estimated $1 million damage. The rig is seen where it fell across two sludge pits at the drilling site.

Weather's wrath 7 injured in Texas twisters

WINTERS, Texas (AP) — A series of tornadoes that tore through Texas flattened an oil rig, threw a car into a building, destroyed businesses, damaged dozens of homes and injured at least seven people.

The heaviest damage from Sunday's twisters was reported in Winters, where losses were estimated at more than $2.5 million.

"There's only one thing left to do — clean up and rebuild," C.R. Pinkerton, owner of Winters Welding Works, said as he surveyed the destruction of eight vehicles and four of five buildings he owns along Highway 83.

At least five twisters were reported Sunday morning in a three-county triangle running from the West Texas communities of Norton, 57 miles southwest of Abilene, to Goldsboro, about 20 miles to the northeast, to Buffalo Gap, about 15 miles to the northwest.

for the Lord to stop it," said Rhodes, 42. "The next thing I knew, we were out in the yard. And when it stopped, it stopped dead still."

He and his son were treated for injuries at Hendrick Medical Center and released. His wife and daughter were listed in stable condition.

A three-room weekend cabin across the road from the Rhodes house also was destroyed, but no one was home at the time.

Three Winters residents were injured when a tornado picked up a car and threw it into a building at Winters Oil Field Supply Co., according to a nurse at the Hendrick Medical Center.

One of the three, Jessica Perkins, 25, was listed in guarded condition at Hendrick Medical Center.

3 boys arrested in mall burglary

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

Big Spring police arrested three juveniles in connection with a string of burglaries at the new Big Spring Mall yesterday, recovering nearly $25,000 in allegedly stolen cash and merchandise.

Officers were summoned to the mall, located on F.M. 700, at about 6 a.m. yesterday after a burglar alarm went off at Zale's Jewelry, according to police reports.

After summoning Rick Miller, manager of the Zale's store, officers entered the mall and discovered a large amount of watches, rings and other jewelry missing from Zale's, said detective Lt. John Wolf this morning.

Officer Ken Hallmark then spotted a 14-year-old boy with $3,000 worth of allegedly stolen jewelry on him and arrested the boy on a burglary charge, according to police reports.

Calls placed to managers of other stores at the mall revealed several stores had been burglarized.

Jenny's reported an unknown amount of cash missing, as did Emphasis. Missing from Peanut Shack was a calculator and a notepad, according to police reports.

That afternoon, employees of two other stores completed inventories of their shops and told police cash had been stolen. Missing from Helen's Shoes was $3,350 in cash, while Kopper Kettle reported the theft of $200 in cash, according to police.

Meanwhile, an investigation headed by detective Sgt. Lonnie Smith turned up the names of two other juvenile suspects, who were arrested at about 9 a.m. yesterday in the 2000 block of Alabama on burglary charges, according to police reports.

The boys told investigators they had entered the mall from an unfinished door at the rear of one of the stores, Wolf said. They used carpenter's tools such as hacksaws and hammers to break into the shops, he said.

All told, police recovered $24,832 in stolen cash and merchandise, said Wolf. He indicated that there may have been more property stolen, depending on complete inventories by store managers.

The names of the suspects arrested were not released according to state laws.

Reverend will talk on mystery Shroud of Turin

The mysterious Shroud of Turin — was it really the burial cloth of Christ?

To acquaint people with recent scientific attempts to unravel the mystery of the shroud, a slide show and talk will be held Wednesday night at the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, 1001 Goliad.

Father Aristide Joyce of St. Philip's Episcopal Church in Amarillo will present the slide show and lecture, which begins at 7 p.m.

A three-year research project involving 40 scientists came to the conclusion last fall that determining whether the cloth — which bears the image of a man on it — is actually the cloth Jesus was wrapped in after crucifixion is beyond the range of current scientific methods.

But the team of scientists reportedly did conclude that the cloth contained blood stains and the image of a middle-aged Semitic man who bore the wounds of an apparent crucifixion.

Attention to the shroud has been brought in recent years by national magazines such as

FATHER ARISTIDE JOYCE

"National Geographic" and "Rolling Stones." The work of the scientists reportedly is being readied for book form.

In the meantime, Father Joyce will provide some background on the shroud and an update on attempts to unravel the mystery.

An evening prayer service and soup supper will precede the presentation.

Action/reaction: Backhoe mishap

Q. Recently, an inexperienced city backhoe operator turned over the backhoe, damaging the machine and sending himself to the hospital with injuries. Why wasn't this accident made public and why weren't the police called?

A. City Administrative Assistant Bill Hall responds: "This incident took place in mid-December and the operator was not inexperienced but qualified. This minor occurrence did not damage the machine, as it was back in operation on the site. Following standard practice, the operator was checked at the hospital but returned to work with only a bruised knee. Following notification of proper city officials — myself included — no need was seen for the police."

Poles pray for Walesa

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Twenty thousand Catholics joined Poland's primate in a prayer for the release of Solidarity leader Lech Walesa as Soviet bloc troops held maneuvers in northwest Poland.

Archbishop Jozef Glemp, the spiritual leader of Poland's more than 30 million Roman Catholics, made his first public appeal on Walesa's behalf Sunday in Ursus, the Warsaw suburb in which the giant Urus tractor factory was a stronghold of the independent labor federation the Communist government suspended after it imposed martial law.

"Let's pray for Lech Walesa to be released, so he can stand again. His presence doesn't threaten anybody," Glemp told the crowd in the square outside St. John's Catholic Church.

Walesa's freedom "will be the way to agreement and national accord," the archbishop said.

Train hits truck

PLEASANTON, Texas (AP) — A stretch of interstate highway near here may be closed for a month after a freight train crashed into a tractor-trailer rig, derailling 22 of the train's cars, Department of Public Safety officials say.

The rig landed on the tracks after smashing through a guard rail on a highway overpass above, authorities said.

The truck driver was killed and three men on the train were injured.

The derailment, about four miles east of Pleasanton and 40 miles south of San Antonio, occurred about 10 p.m. Saturday, state DPS officials in San Antonio said. It was not known what time Saturday night the truck, which was carrying an earth mover on a trailer, plunged from Interstate 37 to the Missouri-Pacific railroad tracks 30 feet below. But authorities said another freight passed by the area at 7:45 p.m. without incident.

Jail board center of debate

By DIANE BALLARD
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Commission on Jail Standards obtains better results with honey than vinegar, its executive director says. But jail reformers say it's time to stop sweet-talking counties into complying with jail standards.

As of the latest inspection report, dated Feb. 23, 1982, more than half of Texas' 254 county jails fail to comply with state standards, including Borden County Jail, which closed voluntarily. Howard County Jail is in compliance.

Criticism from a jail reform group and the American Civil Liberties Union stems from a difference of opinion with the commission about what its duties are and how they should be carried out.

Commission members and staff say they see themselves as a service organization to help county jails comply with state standards.

"The three elements are education, persuasion and facilitation," commission Executive Director Robert Viterna says. "We had to educate everyone. We had to persuade them that these were standards by which they wanted to live, and to facilitate that through technical assistance."

JAIL REFORMERS, however, say the commission's job is to regulate, not necessarily cooperate.

Instead of granting county jails allowances, or variances, on substandard conditions, the commission should stringently enforce state standards, says Mary Keller, ACLU attorney.

The commission needs about 20 inspectors, Ms. Keller says, instead of three, to thoroughly inspect jails and enforce state standards.

Currently, each inspector is responsible for about 84 counties. But commission chairman Andy McMullen says even if the commission had the added budget, more inspectors wouldn't be needed.

"I'm in favor of keeping it the way it is," McMullen says. "Our inspectors are fine, well-qualified men."

Viterna says persuasion, not strongarming, works best in the long run. It would be impractical to close every jail in non-compliance because there is nowhere else to put those prisoners, he says.

Library hosts 'silver tea'

The House County library will be holding a Silver Tea and Open House on St. Patrick's Day March 17, according to Judith Gray, director of the library. Tea, coffee and refreshments will be served from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the library's conference room.

This year marks the 75th anniversary of library service to Howard County. The library was first established in 1907 by the City Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Silver Tea held last year on St. Patrick's day revived a tradition begun in 1917 when the first tea was held and guests left donations of silver coins for library improvements, Mrs. Gray said.

She said no donations are required to attend the tea, but any gifts received will be earmarked for the library's basement renovation project. Donations may be made to the library throughout the year and are tax deductible.

Tornado survivor was tossed 40 yards

GOLDSBORO, Texas (AP) — James Rhodes Jr. heard something "whistling real bad" about 2 a.m. as he lay in his bed during a thunderstorm.

"By the time I looked around, I had bricks and glass on my bed," the 16-year-old high school junior said. "Then I flew out the window and the house went down."

In a matter of moments Sunday, a tornado swept him, his 13-year-old sister Vickie and their parents from their home and tossed them as far as 40 yards away.

"I feel the man upstairs was with me," James Jr. said. "If he wasn't, I wouldn't have been here talking with you."

"After I flew out of the house, I was pinned under some boards and bricks," he said. "and a little piece of the attic came for my head. I threw up my shoulder and knocked it down. Then I saw a bigger piece that I wouldn't have been able to stop, but about two feet away it just curved away like a baseball."

"It was horrifying," said James' father, J.C., a welder. "I was sound asleep and I heard my wife scream, 'Something's wrong!' I found her in the hall and tried to grab her hands and pull her to the floor."

"But she was pulled from my hands and I was spun around. I was begging for the Lord to stop it," he said. "The next thing I knew, we were out in the yard. And when it stopped, it stopped dead still."

After locating his family, he went for help.

"I didn't have time to think," he said. "I went running down to the highway in my underwear, about a half mile. I got cuts all over my feet, and I saw some hot wires in a mud puddle and I jumped over them."

A passing motorist took him to a neighbor's house to call an ambulance. A relative said Rhodes had so much glass sticking in him then that he couldn't be clothed other than to have a towel placed around him.

An airplane at the Lamesa Municipal Airport was overturned and one hangar at the airport received damage to a back wall. Two mobile homes were rolled in the high winds, completely demolishing one of them. No injuries were reported.

Many power lines were down, interfering with telephone communications. No estimate has been made as to the damage.

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is expected for most of the country with rain on the west coast and parts of the northeast into Canada. Snow is expected in the Dakotas and showers are forecast over the Great Lake region and parts of the southwest.

Dust storm warning issued for tonight

Thunderstorms moved across Arkansas into the Ohio Valley early today as melting snow caused severe flooding in Indiana and northwest Ohio.

Heavy rain fell on Arkansas and Kentucky. A winter storm was developing over the western mountains.

Mild weather prevailed across the South. Dense fog blanketed the Gulf Coast from Texas to the Florida Panhandle while partly cloudy skies covered the Eastern Seaboard with a few showers along the mid-Atlantic Coast. Light showers lingered over Northern California and the Pacific Northwest.

Flooding along the Maumee forced the evacuation of 3,000 residents at Fort Wayne, Ind. as the river climbed to 9 feet above flood stage.

Gov. Robert D. Orr declared the city and surrounding county a disaster area.

Emergency crews sandbagged the river as the flood moved toward its mouth on Lake Erie at Toledo.

Snow was forecast today from Montana across the Rockies into the mountains of Arizona. Snow changing to sleet was expected over the northern Plains with rain spreading over the central part of the country.

Scattered thunderstorms — some severe — were forecast over the southern Plains and the lower half of the Mississippi Valley. Showers were expected from the Ohio Valley to the mid-Atlantic Coast.

Highs in the 30s were expected in the Northeast with readings in the 50s from the mid-Atlantic Coast through the central Plains to the Pacific Northwest. Readings in the 70s and 80s were forecast in the south.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 13 in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to 76 in Key West, Fla.

Here are the latest weather reports from some key cities around the nation:

A dust storm warning was issued for the South Plains of Texas through tonight as a developing surface low pressure system moved into the central Plains.

The system was expected to combine with a strong upper level disturbance moving over the Panhandle to cause winds to increase over much of West Texas today.

A high wind warning was issued for the Panhandle and the higher mountains passes of Southwest Texas.

Forecasters predicted winds in excess of 50 mph in the Panhandle and winds of 40 to 50 mph and gusty in the higher mountain passes.

Blowing dust in the South Plains was expected to reduce visibility at times to a mile or less and motorists were urged to use caution.

White charges 'outrageous conduct'

Hearing set today on prison master position

HOUSTON (AP) — State officials go to federal court here today to try to persuade U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice to fire the special master Justice hired last spring to oversee Texas prison reforms.

Texas Attorney General Mark White, who filed the motion seeking today's hearing, says the master and his federal monitors have been guilty of "outrageous" and "disruptive" conduct that has helped incite prison disturbances.

White has demanded they all be fired and their office be abolished.

The reforms themselves — in which Justice ordered state authorities last April to ease overcrowding, upgrade medical facilities and make sweeping changes otherwise to improve prison conditions — have been appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Some have been stayed.

Texas authorities complain that in the meantime, Vincent Nathan, the special master appointed by Justice to oversee the reforms, and Nathan's staff have taken sides with the prisoners and are partly to blame for unrest in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Prospective witnesses include 60 convicts and 127 other people. The hearing is expected to last several weeks.

Today's court session also was called to serve the dual purpose of hearing, over the state's objections, a status report from the special master's staff. Justice last month rejected the state's request not to discuss the state's motion to fire Nathan and Nathan's latest report at the same hearing.

Nathan, a lawyer from Toledo, Ohio, and his monitors have been talking to inmates at some of the prison's 19 units for the past year, gathering information and filing critical reports in Justice's court.

White says Nathan and his subordinates have failed to report concealed weapons the state says the federal monitors found among the convicts.

White's motion also accused the master and his staff of "undermining discipline and fostering unrest by spreading rumors" among the convicts.

"That a member of the special master's staff would be a co-conspirator in such conduct is outrageous," White said, referring to a complaint that one of the federal monitors told inmates at one unit that convicts at another were staging a food strike.

White's motion said since Nathan and his monitors began their visits, the number of prison disturbances has increased from one every 5½ months to one every 19 days.

"The master's disruptive motives and actions and those of his staff are nowhere better evidenced than by the statistical correlation between their visits to various units and the resulting increase in violent disturbances at each," White's motion said.

White accused the federal monitors of discovering, but not reporting to prison authorities, knives, clubs, marijuana, dice, a stolen watch and "various other contraband such as ... an electric vibrator" in the possession of convicts.

Mystery continues after 3 bodies pulled from lake

LAKE DALLAS, Texas (AP) — The Valentine's Day disappearance of a couple and their two young daughters continues to puzzle police a month later, even though the recovery of two bodies during the weekend is believed to leave only the girls' father missing.

"I won't be making any speculation of what happened until the father is found," said Sgt. Ron Douglas of the Denton County Sheriff's Department.

The bodies pulled from Lewisville Lake on Saturday are believed to be those of Alice Merrill, 27, and her 5-year-old daughter, Kendra Lee. The body of the other girl, 6-year-old Kayleen, was found floating in the lake Feb. 21.

Kenneth Merrill, 32, is still missing.

Positive identification of the two bodies found Saturday will be made after dental examinations today, Denton County sheriff's deputy Randy Kaisner said Sunday.

Autopsies on the three bodies recovered show drowning as the cause of death, and no marks to indicate foul play have been found on the bodies, according to officials with the Dallas County medical examiner's office. But the office has withheld a ruling on whether the deaths were accidental.

The three bodies were found in the same area of the lake.

Kendra Lee's body washed up on the northeast shore of the lake and was found at 10 a.m. Saturday. Fishermen spotted the other body seven hours later, about a mile offshore where the child's body was found.

Kaisner and Peace Justice Robert Sparks said the two bodies had been in the water "a long time."

The tentative identification of the woman's body as that of Mrs. Merrill was based on descriptions of clothing and cowboy boots she was wearing when the family vanished, according to Lt. Jim Wilson of the sheriff's department.

Senate action is near on spy identity proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials and journalists who disclose or publish the names of American covert agents could be given prison sentences and assessed heavy fines under legislation likely to clear the Senate this week.

The Agent Identities Bill, being taken up by the Senate this afternoon, is opposed by the American Civil Liberties Union and most news organizations as an attack on the free press protections of the First Amendment.

But a similar version already has passed the House and President Reagan and the CIA are pressing hard for Senate approval. Reagan says the bill is needed to halt a pattern of disclosures that has resulted in attacks on U.S. agents and their families in a number of countries.

Otherwise, little activity was scheduled on Capitol Hill this week.

In a continuing effort to find a solution to a standoff between Congress and Reagan on the federal budget, Senate Republicans are to meet Tuesday to take a first look at a new proposal to reduce the deficits.

The approach, drawn up under the direction of Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, would reduce the deficit in 1985 to about $20 billion through higher taxes, slower growth in the Pentagon budget and a 2-year freeze in cost-of-living increases for Social Security and other benefit programs.

Central American talks possible

NEW YORK (AP) — Mexico's top diplomat says he is prepared to follow up on proposals by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. for easing rapidly escalating tensions between the United States and both Cuba and Nicaragua.

Mexican Foreign Secretary Jorge Castaneda said Sunday that contacts by his government with Cuba and Nicaragua on Haig's suggestions might come as early as this week.

He also held out the possibility of promoting a move toward a negotiated settlement of the El Salvador conflict after the March 28 constituent assembly election in that country.

At that time, Castaneda said, "There might be an opening for some kind of constructive action by one or a group of countries" aimed at ending the bloodshed in El Salvador, where leftist guerrillas are fighting against the U.S.-supported junta.

Castaneda's remarks came at a news conference Sunday after a meeting with Haig, their second in a week.

Neither spelled out what Haig had suggested, but the secretary of state's own assessment of the Sunday meeting was more circumspect than that offered by the Mexican official.

Nonetheless, Haig's remarks and the absence of any significant attempt by U.S. officials to temper the optimistic tone of Castaneda's comments reflected apparent movement toward negotiate solutions to the Central American turmoil that has dominated U.S. foreign policy concerns in recent weeks.

Deficits do matter

WHAT a difference a year makes. About a year ago Ronald Reagan swept to an overwhelming presidential victory over Jimmy Carter and the Republican Party gained control of the U.S. Senate for the first time in 16 years. Republican party faithful sniffed the scent of a new political epoch, waiting through the air.

WHEN PRESIDENT REAGAN's first major victories on his federal budget proposals have been followed by plan. Republicans could be forgiven their high spirits. Suddenly, there was talk of capturing control of the House in 1982. Since 1953 has the GOP run both houses in Congress.

But there has been a dramatic change in the 1982 outlook for 1982. Administration officials are saying that the party loses no more than 10 seats this year.

Why the sudden reversal?

The "too high."

INTEREST RATES are too high. Federal debt is too high. Unemployment is too high.

Taxes have been cut, but the government's progress has been trimmed down to a bare minimum.

Of course, the government has been spending more money overnight to live up to its obligations. But one could rightly expect that the government would be shuffling off debt to pay for the interest on the $1 billion a year's worth of new debt.

UNLESS SOMEONE can show that the government and that they are responsible for the deficit, the GOP might have a chance in 1982.

WASHINGTON — The Senate's decision to strip the title of Senator from Bob Packwood is a landmark. It's the first time a senator has been stripped of his title.

Dr. Donohue

Irritable bowel syndrome painful

Dear Dr. Donohue: After suffering abdominal cramping, I was hospitalized and the diagnosis was irritable bowel syndrome. I have been placed on a high-fiber diet, but I still suffer from the same symptoms. What is it? What causes irritable bowel syndrome? What is the treatment, and do I have to live with this the rest of my life? Further, how common is it? — E.N.S.

Irritable bowel is very common. You are not alone by a long shot. It is an apt name for a cantankerous colon that can't control its temper. The intestinal tract is a muscular tube through which food is propelled by the rhythmic squeezing and relaxing of its muscles. When the muscle becomes twitchy the movement gets out of whack. The nice, even peristalsis is lost, and the muscles cramp and uncramp. Pain results, often with diarrhea and/or constipation.

Why this occurs is not always clear. It may be due to intestinal hormones or loss of automatic nervous control. Too, the intestinal tract responds to emotional distress. I have had businessmen tell me they have symptoms when traveling under the stress of trying to tie up a business deal. Add mental stress to a twitchy colon and the problem is compounded.

It can be helped. It is important to increase diet fiber, as you have been told. That assures food that is soft in transit. Medicine to slow down the muscle action can be tried. Exercise seems to help to defuse some of the emotional stress that may be part of the picture.

You should be able to bring some degree of control to your problem. By the way, you might try avoiding milk for a week to see if the milk sugar is adding to the problem. That often complicates matters for some patients.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please discuss pelvic inflammatory disease. How is it contracted, what are its symptoms, and what repercussions follow, if any? — L.J.B.

The female's internal reproductive organs are in the pelvic area, protected by the pelvic bone. Pelvic inflammatory disease (P.I.D.) is infection of any of those organs — uterus, tubes, ovaries.

The symptoms depend on how bad the infection is. Pain in the lower abdominal area, sometimes vaginal discharge, and fever are the common symptoms. If the infection is quite bad, scars may form and block the tubes. That can lead to infertility. This is the worst-case scenario. If the infection is promptly treated, there need be no such repercussions.

This is a question I hesitated to answer. I've learned from past experience that when I list possible causes of any disease (which I shall here) the most sensational ones are the ones remembered. In this case, I refer to gonorrhea. Yes, venereal disease (gonorrhoea) may be the source of P.I.D. But so can an intrauterine device.

Often no cause at all can be pinpointed. Unfortunately, a lot of people think that a woman who has been told she has P.I.D. must have venereal disease. I suppose it is human nature to suspect the worst. It would be better human nature to assume the best.

For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Donohue in care of The Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210 Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." Enclose a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Abby

Readers solve missing silver caper

DEAR ABBY: Re the missing silverware: My first teaching assignment was in "wood shop" in Los Angeles Juvenile Hall, where all tools had to be accounted for at the end of every class because of the threat of physical assault with a tool. Tools also could be useful in helping the young inmates escape.

At the end of every class, if any tools were missing, I would announce what was missing and tell the students that a general search would be made. I would then diplomatically absent myself to go looking in the paint room or wood storage room while the students milled around. The missing items always miraculously appeared. They were usually turned in by "friends" of the guilty parties. That way nobody was apprehended or accused, and everyone benefited by this approach.

DAVID JENNINGS
DEAR ABBY: A couple of us at work got together to work out a solution to the mysterious disappearance of the silverware, and we came up with three suggestions:

1. If your guests are close friends, approach them goodhumoredly with, "OK — the joke is over! Who swiped the silverware?"
2. Simply announce to the guests that you're missing a couple of pieces of silver and enlist their help in finding them. With everybody involved in the search, if somebody did steal the silver, it will be "found" in a hurry.
3. Last, but not least, find out who has the same silverware pattern as yours, and at their next dinner party, swipe theirs, since they probably swiped yours.

CHRIS AND LISA
DEAR ABBY: I had the identical situation with silverware disappearing. Some years ago, I had a housewarming party and invited 24 guests, which included my two sisters and their husbands. It was a buffet supper, and people were eating all over the house. When I collected the silverware, I discovered that a fork and a spoon were missing. I suspected one of my sisters since we all had the same pattern.

I announced to the guests that I must have "misplaced" a fork and a spoon and asked if they would mind helping me look for them. I suggested that we search all over the house. Then I made myself scarce for about 10 minutes.

When I returned to the dining room, the fork and spoon were on the sideboard! I laughed and apologized for "misplacing" them, and the party went on.

Believe me, I am more careful about keeping an eye on them these days. (My sisters, not my silver!)

COLORADO SLEUTH
DEAR ABBY: How does one retrieve a missing article? This worked with youngsters, so maybe it will work with adults: When my son (now grown) had his 10th birthday party, I noticed one little boy was fascinated with a collection of miniature ceramic animals I had on display. I saw him pocket a small dog when he thought nobody was looking.

I waited a while, then I said in a surprised tone, "Oh, one of my little doggies is missing. Let's everybody look on the floor, behind the sofa and in all the corners!"

All the children started looking. Then the boy who had taken it announced, "Here it is! I found it in the corner!" And he handed over the doggie. I was greatly relieved. And I'm sure he was, too.

COLUMBUS, NEB.
DEAR READERS: So the consensus is: If you're missing silverware (or whatever) while your guests are still present, announce that silverware (or whatever) is "lost" and would all those present please help you "find" it. That way the thief will save face, and you may recover the lost article.

Accidental deaths can be prevented

Accidents are a major cause of death among school-age children. Car-pedestrian accidents, drownings, fire-related mishaps and firearm accidents are four major death-causing misfortunes among young children, says Diane Welch, a family life education specialist.

Welch is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Even though the death rate from injurious accidents has declined in recent years, among children ages 5-14, accidents are responsible for more than half the deaths of boys and two-fifths of girls' deaths. Consequently, children as well as adults should be aware of safety precautions and learn to follow them as a matter of habit, she said.

Motor-vehicle accidents rank highest in terms of cause of death for boys and girls, the specialist reports. Pedestrian fatalities account for one in every two deaths in car accidents involving children ages five to nine and one out of four at ages 10-14. Most pedestrian fatalities occur when children are playing in or crossing the street.

Some precautions to help prevent car-pedestrian accidents are: help children watch for cars when crossing streets, teach children to ride bikes safely, find areas away from streets for children to play and urge children to wear belts when riding in cars.

The threat of drowning has always haunted parents when children are swimming, the specialist says. Drowning ranked second among boys and third among girls in accidents causing death. To reduce the chance of children drowning, Welch urges parents to: have children take swimming lessons both for pleasure and protection, have an adult swimmer or lifeguard watch children when swimming and make sure safety float lines or rescue rings are readily handy.

Fire and fire-related accidents ranked second among causing death in girls and third in boys, the specialist points out. Careless smoking and children playing with matches and lighters are the major causes of one out of every five fires.

To prevent fires from occurring, Welch says children should: know that matches and lighters are not toys, learn what should be done in case a fire occurs and never be left alone in a house if they are very young. In addition, adults need to make sure fire-hazardous articles are out of sight and reach of children, the specialist says.

Accidents involving firearms are another major cause of death in school-age children, Welch says. Firearm accidents appear more frequently among boys than girls. In addition, a large percentage of firearm deaths occur in the home instead of outside. Consequently, to prevent accidents with guns from occurring in the home, Welch suggests that: if firearms must be kept in the house, keep them unloaded at all times, ammunition should be locked in a different place from guns and children should not be allowed to handle a gun until they receive proper training.

In addition to a large number of fatalities, accidents can cause permanent impairment, disability and time away from school to young children, Welch says. In order to prevent possible accidents from occurring, parents should take the precautions listed seriously and teach their children to become aware of making safety a habit.

The death penalty

Woman on death row is living 'in the past'

GATESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Linda May Burnett has plenty of solitude now to recollect what she used to be. It's a bittersweet bonus, says the former housewife, that comes with being on death row.

"Now I live in the past," said Mrs. Burnett, who spends about 23 hours a day alone in her yellow-walled cell at the women's prison here. "The last six months I have really come to grips with myself as a person — as Linda. It's nice to think these past three years could count for something."

The memories she likes to share are sketched in vivid detail — peaceful days when she was free, tending to kids in the neighborhood and attending PTA meetings. A life she says revolved around her family, her husband, Leo, and three daughters.

But she offers only sketchy remembrances of the chain of events that led to her death sentence — the revengeful boyfriend, Ovide, she committed adultery with, the accusations that she merrily led five people to their pre-dug common grave, and her conviction for the murder of a 2-year-old boy.

She refuses, she says firmly, to dwell on past hate and unhappiness.

Mrs. Burnett is one of only two women under sentence of death in Texas. She was accused of murder in the execution-style slayings of the 2-year-old, his parents and grandparents, who were abducted and forced to march to a grave near Winnie, Texas. Each victim was killed with a single shot to the head.

A jury also condemned Ovide Joseph Dugas for the same crime. Mrs. Burnett, who was convicted only in the boy's mates on Death Row in Huntsville, reading and watching television.

She loves soap operas and looks forward to prime-time serials such as "Dallas," and "Knots Landing."

Since coming to death row — at present, she's the only woman here under death sentence — she has finished her fragmented education by passing a high school equivalency test. She now takes Bible classes.

Every month, her husband drives 250 miles from their southeast Texas home in Nederland for a four-hour visit. They cannot touch — prison rules. She says she struggles against tears during those visits so her family will not fret about her.

While incarcerated at the Gore Unit in Huntsville, formerly the women's prison, Mrs. Burnett tried to commit suicide by downing a handful of pills. She said she sometimes regrets not killing herself before the state of Texas could take her life.

"Finally, I just wanted to die because I didn't think I could ever clear myself," she said. "I am not a strong person. I couldn't cope. But I wasn't putting my faith in Jesus and I wasn't being fair to my family."

Only eight women have ever been sentenced to death in Texas. Only one was actually put to death, subjected to swift frontier justice. Chipita Rodriguez, accused of robbery, was hanged from a mesquite tree in 1863. According to legend, her ghost walks the Nueces River bank in San Patricio every time a woman is sentenced to death in Texas.

Pamela Lynn Perillo, 26, of Lytwood, Calif., is the only other woman in Texas now under death sentence. She was convicted in August 1980 for strangling a Louisiana man with a rope in what prosecutors said was a thrill killing. She has been in the Harris County Jail for the past several months.

Even if Mrs. Burnett's conviction is overturned, she would face another trial. And, she said, the people in her hometown will never forget where she spent a chunk of her life.

"I would love to go home, but they won't let me," she said, eyes filling with tears. "I had a lot of bad things happen to me. Someone burned a cross in my front yard. The supermarket where I had shopped for years asked me to not to shop there anymore. Someone threw eggs at me. I was kicked out of the PTA. This was all before the trial."

"Leo refuses to have our phone number changed. He refuses to buckle to people's cruelty. It's been a nightmare for me. I had never been arrested. I thought the courts didn't make mistakes. I thought that if you were arrested you were guilty."

Mrs. Burnett was arrested at her home July 10, 1978, shortly after the partly decomposed bodies of the five victims were discovered in a shallow grave.

In preparing their case, defense attorneys hired a hypnotist to interview Mrs. Burnett about the slayings, but to the dismay of her lawyers, prosecutors successfully subpoenaed the tapes and used them against her.

The recordings detailed the slayings of 2-year-old Jason Phillips, his parents, Elmer and Martha Phillips, and grandparents, Bishop and Ester Phillips. The little boy and his parents, from Woodward, Okla., were visiting Elmer's parents in Winnie during the Fourth of July holiday.

On the tapes, a woman's voice says Dugas shot the young boy, despite her tearful pleas that the child be spared.

Police said it was a grudge killing the Oklahoma family members were swept up in simply because they were visiting. Dugas once was married to Mary Phillips, the daughter of the Winnie couple, and prosecutors said he blamed her parents for the marriage's breakup.

During the taped interview, the woman's voice — prosecutors said it was Mrs. Burnett's — recounted the thrill she got directing the victims to the grave, saying, "I talked to them constantly, telling them just to play along with him (Dugas), that I would kill him."

When asked if the victims resisted their executions, she said, "No. The damn tools just got into the grave. I talked them into the grave."

Mrs. Burnett said the voice on the damaging tape recording is not hers. She said the transcript of the tapes was peppered with words she cannot even pronounce, much less define.

She blamed Dugas, the "handsome" childhood friend she became reacquainted with a month before the killings, for robbing her of her home, her family and her freedom. She said she spurns his infrequent letters from the men's death row at the Ellis Unit without reading them.

She now claims she was not even present when the victims were shot and that the only reason she knew about the murders was because Dugas bragged about them to her. She contends Dugas framed her because she refused to have sex with him.

However, after being sentenced to death she said, "My only crime was poor judgment in choosing Joe Dugas as a friend. My only sin against God is adultery."

Stark prison life now protects Mrs. Burnett from the pointing fingers and accusatory stares of small-town life.

"Human beings? I couldn't count on them," she said.

LINDA MAY BURNETT
...condemned woman

death, insists she is innocent.

Her wait for exoneration — or death — could be a long one.

Mrs. Burnett's court-appointed attorney, whom she never has met, wrote her that he was confident the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals would rule on her case soon. That was September. Week after week passes without a word.

"No one had explained the appeals process to me," the 34-year-old Mrs. Burnett said in a recent interview, across a table in a prison conference room. "I thought they kept you for a month and then killed you. One night, they took me up upstairs for blood tests and I turned to the woman and said, 'Is this it?'"

Three years of her life have been spent in prison, and she has yet to hear the decision on her first appeal.

"You just don't have an end to it," she said. "You wait and wait and wait and wait. There's no end in sight."

The Mountain View unit in Gatesville, part of the Texas Department of Corrections, is nestled in rural Central Texas, 40 miles from Waco, framed by sprawling fields and towns that are just a blink on an endless highway.

Mrs. Burnett has made friends here, but she never forgets where she is — or why.

"You know I'm here for killing a kid," she whispered. "I can't stand that. Especially since I didn't do it."

Although prosecutors at her trial played tape recordings in which she was hypnotized and confessed involvement in the slayings, she claims the tapes were a sham.

Now Mrs. Burnett's days melt into weeks, months, eventually years. She says she survives on her fierce faith in God, by living in the past, virtually memorizing the photographs of her family, writing letters to the male in-

Pre-trial hearings in Martin case begin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Martin was shot in the elbow last summer outside a mobile home where he lived while in Austin. He initially told investigators he did not know who shot him, then said he believed the attack was the work of an occult group.

Martin is accused of committing perjury by denying that he staged his own shooting. The request for a second change of venue was to be made today at a pre-trial hearing in Fredericksburg.

The Longview Republican is accused of lying to a Travis County grand jury about his own July 31 shooting.

The case was moved last November to Fredericksburg, about 80 miles west of Austin, after Martin's lawyers complained that extensive publicity in the state capital would keep Martin from getting a fair trial.

Prosecutors did not oppose moving the trial to Fredericksburg, but have said they will oppose moving it again.

FATAL RIDE — A Mineola, N.Y. fireman stands next to the van that was crushed after colliding with a Long Island Railroad train early Sunday morning just west of the Mineola train station. Nine passengers in the van were killed and another critically injured when the van raced through the downed warning gates into the path of the oncoming train. All victims were between the ages of 18 and 20.

Lightning strikes DePaul again

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It was bad enough when lightning struck the DePaul Blue Demons twice. The third time, however, was as crushing as it was unexpected.

For the third year in a row, favored DePaul failed to survive its opening game in the NCAA Basketball Tournament and Coach Ray Meyer called Sunday's 82-75 loss to unheralded Boston College "a bitter pill to swallow."

There was, however, some small consolation for the veteran coach. "The difference this year is I really feel we tried hard," Meyer said. "They never gave up. The last couple of years our effort was lacking."

Second-ranked DePaul's loss was the biggest surprise of an excitement-packed weekend in which the field was trimmed to 16 teams for the regional tournaments March 18-21. Besides the Blue Demons, No. 10 Tulsa, No. 12 Arkansas, No. 14 West Virginia, No. 16 Iowa and No. 18 Wake Forest reached the end of the road, while top-rated North Carolina, third-ranked Virginia, No. 5 Missouri, seventh-ranked Minnesota, No. 8 Idaho, ninth-rated Memphis State, No. 11 Fresno State and No. 13 Alabama posted narrow victories and No. 17 Alabama-Birmingham trounced defending champion Indiana.

The regional lineups look like this: Midwest at Birmingham, Ala., Thursday — Virginia vs. Alabama-

Birmingham and Minnesota vs. No. 20 Louisville.

West at Provo, Utah, Thursday — No. 6 Georgetown vs. Fresno State and No. 4 Oregon State vs. Idaho.

East at Raleigh, N.C., Friday — North Carolina vs. Alabama and Memphis State vs. Villanova.

Midwest at St. Louis, Friday — Missouri vs. Houston and Boston College vs. Kansas State.

The weekend went something this way:

Midwest
DePaul was done in by a pair of smaller players. John Bagley, a 6-foot senior, scored 26 points and 5-10 freshman Michael Adams added a career-high 21 to pace Boston College. Five DePaul players fouled out as the officials whistled the Blue Demons for 35 personals to BC's 17.

"The officiating didn't beat us. That's part of basketball," Meyer said. "We were outplayed and deserved to lose. We don't have any excuses. I don't believe in jinxes of any kind."

DePaul jumped to an 8-0 lead before BC settled down. "I was afraid we were going to get blown out," said Coach Tom Davis, whose Eagles, one of four teams from the Big East Conference in the NCAA, were the object of scorn by coaches whose teams were overlooked.

In Sunday's other game, Tyrone Adams scored nine of Kansas State's last 11 points and finished with 21 to lead the Wildcats past Arkansas 65-64.

Les Craft's basket with just over a minute to play gave K-State a 65-58 lead and enabled the Cats to withstand a furious Arkansas rally.

On Saturday, Ricky Frazier scored 20 points and Steve Stipanovich added 19 as Missouri shaded Marquette 73-69, while Rob Williams' 26 points on 10-of-15 shooting helped Houston eliminate Tulsa 78-74.

West
Danny Evans scored 18 points and Lester Conner added 16 as Oregon State pounded Pepperdine 70-51. The Beavers led by six at the half before pulling away.

Brian Kellerman's 15-foot jump shot at the overtime buzzer bounced off the rim twice and dropped through to give Idaho a 69-67 victory over Iowa. "Was it only two? It seemed like 10," sighed Iowa Coach Lute Olson.

The winners blew a 10-point halftime lead but survived thanks to Kellerman's shot and Phil Hopson's 21 points. "Kellerman is my money man in those situations," said Coach Don Monson.

On Saturday, Georgetown held Bill Garnett, Wyoming's top scorer, to five points and defeated the Cowboys 51-43, while Rod Higgins and Tyrone Bradley combined for nine points in the final 1:26 as Fresno State broke a 40-40 tie and downed West Virginia 50-46.

Meyer finds loss 'a bitter pill to swallow'

DALLAS (AP) — To paraphrase a Ray Meyer quip, the DePaul Blue Demons cost the priests who run their school a bundle of money Sunday for the third straight year.

The No. 2 ranked Blue Demons, 26-1, ran into Boston College's buzzsaw press and were chopped up 82-75 in the Midwest second round. It marked the third consecutive year DePaul has lost its first game in the tournament.

Boston College, 21-9 and the fourth place finisher during the regular season in the Big East Conference, will meet Kansas State of the Big Eight Conference Friday night in St. Louis. The Wildcats, 23-6, nipped Arkansas 65-64 in the first game.

"It's a bitter pill to swallow," said Meyer, who joked last year that the DePaul fathers had spent the lucrative NCAA playoff money before his Blue Demons earned it.

"The difference this year is I feel we really tried hard today," Meyer said. "The last couple of years our effort was lacking. They never gave up."

Senior guard John Bagley scored 26 points and freshman guard Michael Adams added a career-high 21 points for the Eagles.

DePaul jumped to an 8-0 lead and Boston College Coach Tom Davis said, "I was afraid we were going to get blown out. We just needed to settle down."

Adams said, "They were kind of slow getting back on defense. Our free throws down the stretch were really clutch."

Bagley and Adams each hit four free throws in the final 20 minutes.

All-America Terry Cummings was high for DePaul with 20 points.

DePaul lost five players via fouls and was whistled down 35 times.

"The officiating didn't beat us," said Meyer. "That's part of basketball."

Another Adams had a vital part in the first game — Tyrone Adams of Kansas State, who scored 21 points against the Razorbacks.

Kansas State had to survive a last second shot by Scott Hastings, who had 16 points for Arkansas, to take the victory.

It was Kansas State's third consecutive win over Arkansas and gave Coach Jack Hartman a 6-1 lifetime record against Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton.

"I guess Jack just has our number," said Sutton.

Barber wins Vintage Invitational

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) — Heavy rains usually hurt the chances of 50-year-old Miller Barber, but this time an hour-long downpour did little to harm his golf game.

Barber shot a 1-over-par 73 Sunday to claim a 1-shot victory and the first prize of $40,000 in the Vintage Invitational seniors tournament.

"I'm just happy that I won," said Barber, who will play at the Tournament Players Championship this week at Ponte Verde, Fla. He said he was pleased with his round, but added that he could have done better without the heavy rains.

Barber had five bogeys and four birdies on the day and finished at 6-under-par 282 in the event for golfers age 50 and older.

He was one shot ahead of Arnold Palmer, Dan Sikes and Art Wall, all of whom all finished 5 under at 283.

Palmer, Sikes and Wall all won $18,666.66.

Roberto DeVicenzo, who had the day's best round, a 4-under-par 68, finished alone in third at 287 to collect $12,000.

The 52-year-old Palmer had led the tournament after the first round and shared the second-round lead.

Tulsa's dreams ended

Houston squares off against Missouri

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hot shooting and standout individual performances have propelled No. 5 Missouri and Houston into the Midwest Regional semifinals Friday in St. Louis.

Houston will have to again use its powers to defuse the home crowd advantage when it takes on the Missouri Tigers before a Missouri crowd.

Houston, headed to the NCAA regional semifinals for the first time since 1971, upset No. 10 Tulsa 78-74 in the second round of the regional Saturday.

Big Eight champion Missouri, meanwhile, dispatched Marquette, 73-69, in the other second round game at Oral Roberts University Saturday night.

Houston guard Rob Williams pumped in 26 points on 10 of 15 from the field that helped end Tulsa's season at 24-6. As a team, the Cougars shot better than 57 percent from the field.

"I want to congratulate Houston," said Tulsa Coach

Nolan Richardson, whose Hurricane lost before a Tulsa crowd for only the second time in two years.

"Usually when we get 25 turnovers and rebound the other team, we win the ballgame. The University of Houston did a superb job of handling our press and their big people inside intimidated us a little bit," Richardson said.

The loss also ended the dream of Richardson and four seniors on the club to win three national cham-ionships in succession.

Tulsa won the National Invitation Tournament in 1981 and Richardson won the National Junior College Athletic Association title in 1980 with the same core of players.

"The secret is we handled their press," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis, whose team advances with a 23-7 record.

"We turned the ball over a few times... We like to play that kind of game. In games we've been able to run, we've looked pretty good," Lewis said.

Missouri's Ricky Frazier hit 20 points, 6-foot-11 center Steve Stipanovich added 19 and the Tigers used a series of late free throws to stop Marquette, which ended the season at 23-9.

Missouri hit a sizzling 62 percent in balanced halves while also connecting on 27 of 34 free throw attempts. That offset the Tigers' 24 turnovers to just 10 for Marquette.

Baseball Roundup

Red's grand slam turns into a single

When is a grand slam not a home run? Ask Gary Redus.

The Cincinnati Reds' non-roster player, facing Philadelphia's Mike Proly with the bases loaded, one out and the score tied 2-2 in the bottom of the ninth inning of an exhibition baseball game Sunday, hit an apparent grand slam home run over the left-center field fence.

But, Redus, believing the ball had fallen safely in the outfield for a game-winning hit, returned to the dugout after touching first base rather than circle the bases. He was credited with a single and Cincinnati won 3-2 instead of 6-2 over the Phillies.

In other spring games, Chili Davis got three hits and scored two runs as the San Francisco Giants beat the Cleveland Indians 5-1.

While the Giants were winning their first game in five tries, Atlanta won its seventh in eight spring decisions, a 4-3 triumph over the Texas Rangers. Pinch-hitter Larry Whisenton slugged a two-run homer in the eighth inning to break a 2-2 tie.

Pittsburgh also stayed hot as Tony Pena and Dale

Berra slammed homers to lead the Pirates to their fifth straight victory, a 9-1 decision over the Montreal Expos.

Candy Maldonado keyed a five-run rally in the eighth inning with a two-run homer as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat Houston 10-5.

Gary Roenicke drove in four runs with a homer and a single to lead the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

Jim Rice belted a two-run homer in the first inning and the Boston Red Sox went on to a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Joaquin Andujar and four other St. Louis pitchers held the New York Mets to four hits as the Cardinals captured a 6-1 decision.

Rance Mulliniks had four hits for Kansas City and Ron Kittle contributed three for Chicago in a 13-13 slugfest called because of darkness after 13 innings. Kansas City took leads of 10-8 in the 11th, 12-10 in the 12th and 13-12 in the 13th, but the White Sox tied the score each time.

Toronto rookie Fred Manrique overcame a 6-5 deficit with a three-run homer in the eighth inning as the Blue Jays beat Minnesota 9-6.

Mark Brouhard stole home with the winning run in the sixth inning as Milwaukee defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-2. Cecil Cooper homered for the Brewers.

A throwing error by Wayne Gross in the bottom of the ninth inning allowed Rod Allen to score the winning run as a Seattle Mariners split squad edged the Oakland A's 5-4. Richie Zisk contributed a three-run homer for the Mariners, who had other players in Mexico City, where they won 7-1 over a local team of all-stars.

Geoff Zahn went the distance in a rain-shortened, five-inning game, pitching a five-hitter to give the California Angels a 2-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

GREAT GRAB — Montreal Expos third baseman Brad Mills flies backwards in the air to grab a foul fly in a game yesterday with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Mills made the catch and landed flat on his back.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Taking any risks where your good reputation is at stake today is unwise. Make an effort to alleviate a personal problem.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study new outlets for increasing your income. Use your own good judgment in making an important business decision.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't postpone routine duties at this time because you have an urge to go on a fun spree. Be more cheerful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good day to settle a dispute of long standing with an associate. Strive for more harmony with close ties.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make plans now to handle the work ahead of you more efficiently. Take time to improve your appearance. Be thoughtful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan sensible recreational activities for the days ahead. A business matter should be handled promptly for best results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to complete whatever has been started but could easily get into a rut by being too dependent on one activity. Expose your progeny to a wider range of activities. Don't neglect ethical training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Texas law catches up with boom in 'condos'

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In 1963 when the Legislature enacted the state's first condominium law, hardly anyone in Texas knew what a condominium was — or cared.

Now the Texas "condo" boom is on, and legislators are trying to help the law catch up.

Two years ago, 7 percent of all the new "houses" built in Austin were condos. Last year it was 25 percent, and this year it is expected to go even higher.

Housing economists say this is typical in large Texas metropolitan areas, and they think the condo craze will spread to smaller cities as well.

Consider this statistic from the Texas Real Estate Institute at Texas A&M University: By the year 2000, over half of Texas' homeowners will be living in condos.

"I think to a degree it has a faddish appeal," said Martin Cude of Dallas, one of a few Texas lawyers specializing in condominium law. "The main reason for the popularity of condos, however, is ease of living. Many condo owners are ex-apartment owners. They want to build up equity, and they are not interested in keeping a lawn. A condo is the best of two worlds."

Condos can be high-rises, townhouses or separate dwellings in which unit owners share maintenance costs that range from $55 to $80 in what Cude calls "standard vanilla" condos, to even higher monthly assessments in more expensive condos.

"Horror stories" from Florida, where Cude says developers took advantage of buyers, resulted in a proposed Uniform Condominium Act. The act, among other things, was designed to protect renters whose apartments were converted to condos. Often the renters could not afford to buy the unit and would have to move.

Cude said the uniform act was "too strongly anti-business" and failed. The Legislature went to work on its own proposal.

In 1981 a 43-page condominium bill cleared the House late in the session. Larry Niemann, an Austin lawyer representing the Texas Apartment Association, said, "That particular version was the final product of a hundred or more people from nearly every trade association or group affected by the condominium statutes."

The bill, however, was killed in the Senate Economic Development Committee on May 29, three days before the session ended.

"It was a monster bill," said a Senate aide assigned to follow its progress. "It took me three days to read it twice. The realtors took no position but said, 'We want to read this.' I talked to other aides after the bill was defeated, and they said, 'My boss didn't feel comfortable voting for it.'"

Now, the House Subcommittee on Condominiums and Housing Laws is starting over, with the 1981 proposal as the starting point.

"We have a very archaic law," said Cude. "It gives the developer, the lender, the attorney very few guidelines to follow."

A summary prepared by the Apartment Association also said the present law offers no consumer protection provisions.

The proposed law would require developers to provide buyers with a statement listing information about the condominium, such as a projected budget for the first year and possible additional costs and whether any more units are planned.

The statement would disclose any title defects, financing available to the buyer and include a copy of any written warranties.

"This is the most important consumer protection provision (in the bill)," said Cude. "It more or less tells the consumer what he is buying."

The bill would require that the information be given to the buyer five days before he signs a contract, or as an alternative, the buyer could cancel the contract within five days after he receives the information. Buyers could collect $500 plus "other relief" from developers who fail to provide the information. Buyer deposits would go into a special escrow account to prevent developers from using the money to help finance construction.

In cases where buildings are converted to condominiums, tenants would have to be given at least 60-days notice to vacate.

One Dallas bank officer recommended the creation of a State Condominium Agency to register larger condos — a proposal also included in the Uniform Condominium Act — and to make sure that the condos had adequate insurance.

"That's terrible," said Cude. "I'm vehemently opposed to it. California has such an agency, and it takes 12 months or longer just to get preliminary state approval. Can you imagine what that does to financial planning? And the costs are passed on to the buyer."

Rep. Steve Wolens, D-Dallas, chairman of the condominium subcommittee, seems to agree with Cude. "I don't know that a state agency is needed," he said. "We don't have the problems of Illinois, New York or California."

Asked about "horror stories" mentioned before his subcommittee — without names or places — Wolens said, "I don't know. I asked them (the witnesses), and they didn't say and presented no written material."

"As far as I know there are no horror stories in Texas, at least any that have reached court at the appeals level," said Cude.

The state proposal, in fact, would prohibit local governments from banning or declaring moratoriums on condos.

"The Legislature is anticipating problems rather than waiting for them to happen, as well as offering remedies to current problems not available under law," said Wolens.

Carol Burnett is returning to luckless Eunice Higgins

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carol Burnett is returning for an extensive examination of her most enduring television character, the shrill and luckless Eunice Higgins.

Eunice was born in the final years of Miss Burnett's variety show, in a series of "Family" sketches that seemed to have been written by Tennessee Williams by way of Woody Allen.

"Eunice was a born loser because she chose to be," says Miss Burnett. "There are many people in the world like that. In fact, and I mean this in a kind way, my mother was like that."

She used to say, "If only it hadn't been for this and that, I could have had this." It's a great way to blame outside circumstances for being too frightened to stick out your neck.

"It's easier to blame everybody else for your lack of success. Since my mother was an alcoholic it also gave her a good excuse to drink. And she had the same kind of relationship with my grandmother that Eunice and her mother have.

They would fight like cats and dogs one second, then turn right around and be cooking together in the kitchen and chatting about something else.

Within one breath. Those are the games people play with each other."

In a 90-minute "Eunice" special on CBS on Monday, Miss Burnett, Harvey Korman as Ed and Vicki Lawrence as Mama will reprise their roles as the Higgins family. Betty White plays Eunice's sister, Ellen, and Ken Berry is her brother, Phillip. It takes the Higgins family from Ed's courtship of Eunice to the death of Mama, but it may not be the end of the line.

"I see it as a culmination, in a sense, of all the years we've been doing it," says Miss Burnett. "All of the Eunice sketches were written by Dick Clair and Jenna McMahon and a year ago we asked them to think about writing a play."

Boxcar Willie loves being 'America's favorite hobo'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — He dresses like a hobo. He has just one hat, one coat and one pair of shoes. He sings about trains.

And he's one of the hottest selling country music singers today — drawing on his cheerful nature, his crackling enthusiasm and the public's romance with nostalgia to become a star at the age of 50.

If you watch television, you may have seen Boxcar Willie. Suddenly, there he is — in his hobo garb, flashing a thunderbolt smile — interrupting the news, a soap opera, a movie. He wants you to buy his album, "King of the Road."

Lots of people did. The now-legendary TV commercial, which ran for six months last year on 250 stations, helped sell 1.5 million copies of the album. At one point, 50,000 copies were being sold each week.

He's no bum. Ask him: "Hoboes worked their way across the country and used trains for transportation. A hobo works but a bum doesn't. A hobo won't beg but a bum will."

After all, he sold all of those albums, even though no one had heard of Boxcar Willie seven years ago.

"That commercial just clicked," he says in his friendly way that makes you want to hop a train with him. "You could see me and my personality and you could hear the songs America grew up with. It was a cross-section of America."

As a youngster, he would run to his front door in Sterrett, Texas, and watch the freight trains roll past his home.

"Mom says I could imitate a train whistle at age 2," he recalls. He still can, and he does on the album.

As a teen-ager, in the summers of 1946 and '47, he was a genuine hobo.

"I've drawn on my experiences," he says. When he became an adult, he was a pilot, mechanic, guitar salesman, disc jockey and bowling alley proprietor. And he always liked to sing country music — especially songs about trains.

"The railroads built America," he says with some pride. "Without the steam engine and the railroads, where would we be? They have been our life blood."

Then, in 1976, he saw a hobo in a boxcar. Cecil Martin became Boxcar Willie, donned his garb and his legend was simmering.

He took his act to England where his career took off in 1978. Then the television commercial propelled his career in this country.

"The album still sells 5,000 a week," he says.

Terrorism expert happy when life is just routine

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — James J. Nealis says he doesn't mind that his job hasn't been as exciting as it might be. The way the studious Philadelphia native sees it, that means he must be doing something right.

Nealis, 34, is the FBI's Philadelphia expert on domestic and international terrorism.

It is his job to know the history and methods of the Irish Republican Army, the Black Liberation Army, the FALN — a Puerto Rican Separatist group — and other organizations the FBI believes might resort to violence in the name of social or political change.

"When you're talking to an Armenian terrorist, you want to be able to understand what they are talking about, what their people have gone through and why they are doing what they are doing," he said.

Nealis says he gathers intelligence information from informants and investigates complaints about potentially dangerous groups.

Philadelphia has been a relatively quiet beat for terrorist watchers, but Most terrorist groups are relatively small, with 20 to 100 hard-core members. However, through bombings and hijackings, they can affect the lives of large numbers of people, he said.

Former baseball commissioner inducted into Hall of Fame

Although there had been a strong grass roots campaign, nudged by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, to get Happy Chandler into baseball's Hall of Fame, the election of the vibrant, innovative former commissioner caught everyone completely by surprise.

His name was conspicuously missing from the long list of prospects posed by newsmen and baseball personalities for consideration by the Veterans Committee.

Of the non-players, the most talk centered on the late Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers and his longtime manager, Walter Alston. The old players' rollcall ran the gamut: Charlie Grimm, Jimmy Dykes, Johnny Sain and, the latest eligible, Phil Rizzuto.

Bill Guilfoyle, the enterprising publicity director of the Hall of Fame, found he had neglected to include a Chandler sketch in his preparedness portfolio.

There was a quick scramble among newsmen for Chandler biographical material, although many oldsters could draw much from memory.

It was learned later that Gabe Paul, president of the Cleveland Indians, and Joe Cronin, the Hall of Famer who once served as president of the American League, had led the successful fight in the committee.

Afterward, Kuhn received a telephone call from Chandler in Versailles, Ky., home of the former Kentucky governor and U.S. senator.

"I could tell," Kuhn said, "near the end of the conversation Happy was so choked up he was crying. I must admit there were tears running down my cheek when I hung up."

It was Kuhn who rescued Chandler from the baseball dungeon after the 83-year-old Kentuckian had been completely cut off by the baseball establishment.

Irwin captures Inverrary Classic

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Hale Irwin called it "a miracle shot," that inspired effort from a shady wooded glen that produced his one-stroke victory in the Honda-Inverrary Golf Classic.

"I can't recall hitting that good a shot, in that situation, in any previous tournament I've won," Irwin said Sunday after he'd broken a three-way tie for the top and secured the 14th victory of his 14-year tour career.

"It was not," he said, tongue in cheek, "the sort of shot you practice a lot. You have to be creative."

And Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champion who was locked in a tie with Tom Kite and George Burns for the lead, created a beauty.

It came on the final hole of the tournament, the 36th of the double-round day. Playing in front of Burns and Kite, Irwin went to the 18th on the Inverrary Golf and Country Club course needing a birdie-3 to pull ahead.

"The most unforgiving spot on the hole is to the right," Irwin said. And that's where he put it. "I didn't accelerate through the shot. The wind took it right and, alas, there I was in the woods," he said.

"I had a shot at the flag — if you used your imagination a little," he said.

He was faced with the problem of keeping the shot low, under the over-hanging branches. And, he didn't have a clear path through the woods. The only way he could reach the putting surface was with a hook.

So he took a 5-iron, choked down on it, played the ball back in his stance and produced just what the situation demanded, a low pitch that hooked around the trunks of trees, stayed under the branches, hit on the front of the green and ran obediently toward the flag, trickling to a stop some four feet from the flag.

And, of course, he made the putt, than had to wait for Kite and Burns to finish, each with a par, before the triumph was secured with a 269 total, 19 strokes under par. He had closing rounds of 67 and 66 in the 36-hole finale that was set up when Thursday's play was rained out.

Irwin collected $72,000 from the total purse of $400,000 and became only the fifth man in golf history to go past the $2 million mark in career earnings.

Burns and Kite, who were locked in a two-man struggle for the lead most of the nine-hour playing day, were surpassed by Irwin's fast finish and tied for second at 270. Burns had closing rounds of 67, 70 and Kite 71, 67.

It was small consolation to the win-oriented Kite that he won $35,200 and again took the No. 1 position in money-winnings at $150,910 and also leads the tour in stroke average. He led in both categories last season.

Bobby Clampett, a 21-year-old, was fourth alone at 271 with a 67, 66 finish. He was followed by Calvin Peete at 272 and Ray Floyd at 274. Peete finished 67, 69 and Floyd 69, 68.

NBA Roundup

Spurs defeat Chicago

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD

Johnny Moore hadn't made a shot all day, he was closely guarded 22 feet from the basket and time was winding down.

Then the San Antonio Spurs guard launched a high, arching shot that didn't seem to have a prayer of finding the basket.

"I can't believe the last shot went in," said Chicago's David Greenwood. "I think an angel must have guided it."

Moore scored only four points all day, while teammates George Gervin and Mike Mitchell had 37 and 34, respectively. But it was Moore who hit the shot at the buzzer, giving the Spurs a 119-117 victory over the Bulls Sunday.

The triumph snapped a three-game losing streak by the Spurs, who lead the National Basketball Association Midwest Division.

In other NBA games Sunday, Los Angeles bombed Dallas 138-116, Boston tripped Phoenix 105-92, Washington spanked Atlanta 92-85, Milwaukee smashed Utah 129-100, Philadelphia outscored Kansas City 128-114, Seattle edged New Jersey 98-97, Denver crushed Golden State 127-101 and Detroit defeated Cleveland 109-103.

Coach Rod Thorn of Chicago, which got 23 points from Artis Gilmore and 20 from Reggie Theus, said his team just ran out of time.

Pistons 109, Cavaliers 103
Kelly Tripucka scored 13 of his 37 points in the last nine minutes to spark Detroit past Cleveland.

The Cavaliers led 89-83 with 8:05 remaining, but Detroit outscored them 14-2 in the next four minutes for a 97-91 advantage.

Bucks 129, Jazz 100
Milwaukee, the runaway Central Division leader, snapped a five-game losing streak and extended Utah's string of defeats to 10 as Sidney Moncrief scored 22 points and Mickey Johnson added 21.

Moncrief scored 13 points in the third quarter and Johnson had 16 in the first quarter as Milwaukee never trailed.

76ers 128, Kings 114
Julius Erving scored 30 points and Philadelphia led from the start against Kansas City.

The Kings never got closer than five points after the 76ers took a 13-2 lead.

They coasted to their fifth straight triumph.

Celtics 105, Suns 92
Robert Parish scored 33 points, 10 of them in the third quarter when Boston turned the game around for its 11th straight victory.

Bullets 92, Hawks 85
Greg Ballard scored 20 points to lead a balanced Washington attack that stopped a five-game Atlanta winning streak.

Lakers 138, Mavericks 116
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 28 points and Jamaal Wilkes 26 as Los Angeles bombed Dallas for the eighth straight time since the franchise was formed last season.

Sonics 98, Nets 97
Jack Sikma's foul shot with two seconds left carried Seattle past New Jersey.

Sikma was fouled after he controlled the rebound of a missed free throw by James Donaldson, who had tied the score with a dunk.

Nuggets 127, Warriors 101
Kiki Vandeweghe scored 26 points and Glen Gondrezick added 24 to spark Denver over Golden State.

White leads in Olympia

CITY OF INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) — Donna H. White, looking for her first LPGA victory since 1980, carried a 3-stroke lead into rain-delayed final round of the $150,000 Olympia Gold women's golf tournament.

White, who took last year off from to have a baby, was 5 under par at 214 entering today's final round at 6,006-yard, par-73 Eisenhower course at Industry Hills.

Ayako Okamoto, a star on Japan's LPGA circuit who won her first U.S. event at Tucson, Ariz., two weeks ago, was three strokes behind after three rounds with a 217 total.

Persistent drizzles and intermittent heavy rain washed out play Sunday. The round was called off in the early afternoon, after two earlier rain delays totaling nearly three hours. White and the rest of the leaders never teed off.

Sally Little, defending champion in the tournament, was another stroke back, one shot ahead of Amy Alcott and Janet Coles. Little collected the first prize money of $22,500 last year when she led after the first two rounds and the last two were rained out.
