LET ME TELL YOU WHAT SOIL MEANS TO AGRICULTURE — Richard Christie of the Soil Conservation Service talks to a crowd of Coahoma fourth-grade students about the land near Coahoma during a farm tour Tuesday. The tour, sponsored by the Tejas Cowbelles, was for more than 80 youngsters. The group saw cattle, sheep, and horses as well as a museum and a packing plant.

Today is Agriculture Day and, to honor it, more than 80 Coahoma Elementary fourth grade students attended a farm tour Tuesday sponsored by the Tejas Cowbelles. This is half of that tour as it might have been viewed from the vantage point of one of those fourth-graders.

"Teacher said we were all going on a field trip today to see a bunch of things about farms and stuff. We got on two buses and headed for the country. It was real noisy on our bus. There were 42 kids and 8 grown-ups on the bus, but the old people didn't talk too much.

"We drove into a field with a lot of pump jacks in it and lots of plowed ground. Mr. Allen (County Commissioner Paul Allen) told us his land was all lumpy to stop something called wind erosion and for conservation.

"The buses stopped beside a fence where we could see lots of cows and calves eating. We got out, but we couldn't go close to them because we might have scared them away. Mr. Allen said he was breeding cattle to get an extra steak or two from each cow. He said he tried to get the best from his breeds.

"Mr. Allen told us the calves, when they got big, went to a cow hotel, a feedlot, to get ready to become steaks. Some girl asked him if those cows were looking at were going to the slaughterhouse. He said no, since these were his breeding cows, his mother cows.

"Mr. Richardson (County extension agent Don Richardson) told us how cattle sweat through their noses and not their whole bodies. That's why their noses are wet all the time. But he said the Brahman cows like Mr. Allen's sweat through their skin like we do so they can stand the heat better.

"Do you name your cows?" was the last question asked Mr. Allen before we drove away.

"WE GOT TO PLAY in a plowed field next while Mr. Christie (Richard Christie of the Soil Conservation Service) told us about the dirt. "The soil is not dead; it's growing all the time," he said. Mr. Christie talked about the differences in soil and how classes of soils were everywhere.

"Getting back into the buses again, we drove over to a barn where Mr. Allen had some horses. Nobody could pet the horses, but we all got to look at them for a long time. His horses were quarterhorses, which Mr. Richardson said was a breed of horse developed in America.

"He said the name 'quarterhorse' came from how fast the horse could run a quarter of a mile back in the old days. It was the fastest racehorse then.

"While we were driving back to the school so everybody could go to the restroom, Mr. Christie talked about the mesquite trees. He said it took 2800 pounds of water for just one pound of mesquite. They use a lot of water and are the biggest problem for Texas ranchers.

"AFTER THE PIT stop, we rode to Big Spring to go to the slaughterhouse (Hubbard Packing Company). Everybody said it was going to be fun. One of the Cowbelles, Maureen Morris, had worked in a Missouri beef packing plant and she gave us the tour.

"The men inside were cutting up meat on a big table when we went inside. Ms. Morris said the little cuts they were making would be like the steaks and things our parents would buy at the store.

"Next, they opened up a real tall metal door and all of this freezing air came out. There were lots of dead cows without head or skin hanging from the ceiling in there. It was neat. Ms. Morris said they were whole hindquarters of beef.

"When we went into the next room, a whole cow was hanging by its hind legs with its skin off and its head gone. Blood was dripping from where its head used to be. We got to watch while the man took out the insides and everything. It really stunk in there.

"Ms. Morris said the cows were stunned in a humane way that wasn't cruel or anything before they were slaughtered. We even could see a cow's skin lying against a wall like an old rug.

"Everybody had lots of things to say after watching that cow being cut up. 'Wow, that was neat.' 'oh, it stinks in there.' 'I feel sorry for the cow.' 'I don't like this at all.' When somebody said, 'Oh, oh, they're going to get that other cow up,' everybody ran back inside to see. One girl kept saying 'Slaughter — not kill' to everybody that said anything about killing a cow.

"SOME GIRLS LOOKED like they were going to get sick, but nobody did since we had to go eat lunch next. We ate over in the auction barn where we were going to get to pretend we were bidders on a calf. After that we were supposed to go to a museum, then see some sheep, a cotton gin and finally a slide show. Two of the Tejas Cowbelles who helped organize our tour are Mrs. Leland Wallace and Lucille Sterling. Cowbelles are women whose husbands are in the beef industry. Cowbelles are in 38 states and there are 800 members in Texas. Mrs. Sterling said the local chapter, which covers five counties, has about 30 members.

"She said the farm tour was to help promote Agriculture Day. The Cowbelles are also promoting beef for Fathers' Day, too. They even offer two $500 scholarships for people going to college. The group just sponsored the National Beef Cook-off — the first time it has been in Texas.

"The next big event for the Cowbelles is the July 10th Agriculture Round-up and Symposium at the Dora Roberts Coliseum with speakers even from Washington, D.C."

'Wonder water' whets science fair interest

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Why does the residue from burnt paper kill a ringworm? How do electrons work? How does a tornado begin? Why do sinkholes suddenly appear?

These are all intriguing questions and if you're the least bit curious you'll head out to the Permian Basin Regional Science Fair being held today and Friday at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum to find out the answers.

The projects of 371 participants are being set up this morning in preparation for an afternoon of judging by 35 science fair officials.

Parents and science fair participants were nervously milling around this morning putting last minute touches on projects and awaiting the appearance of the judges.

For 16-year-old Angie Lee, a veteran of three previous science fairs, the waiting is the hardest part.

"After you get your project all set up and everything then the hardest thing is waiting for all the category winners to be announced. I get so excited waiting," said Miss Lee, who is a junior at Forsan High School.

Miss Lee's project is entitled "Wonder Water Phase III." She said the project is a variation of two previous experiments dealing with the effects of degassed water on plants and soil.

"I originally got the idea from an issue of Organic Gardening. It was about wonder water's effect of plants and I thought 'wow' this sounds really neat and I wondered if it would really work on just plain plants," Miss Lee said.

Miss Lee's first attempt at wonder water came when she was a freshman, but she said she "blew it" because she didn't raise enough test plants in the project for accurate findings.

In phase one, her freshman year, she tested degassed water against ordinary tap water on bean plants. She said wonder water plants were able to survive with one-half as much water as the plants with ordinary water.

"I could see there really was something to wonder water and it got me so interested I did my project on it last year. I used more plants and kept the water temperature the same in all test phases."

"Results showed root development, height, weight, color, number of leaves and blooms. I won alternate last year in the senior division, but I hope to win this year," she said.

For this year's phase three of wonder water Miss Lee decided to "actually harvest something."

"After last year's results I was encouraged and optimistic. I decided that anything this good needed to be produced on a commercial basis," Miss Lee said.

With wonder water she was able to raise lettuce, spinach and radishes to maturity.

How does Miss Lee feel about the science fair?

"I live for those two days. The competition looks awful tough this year, but I've been working hard and whether I win or lose, I'll know I did the best job I could," she said.

Miss Lee has been working on her project since last April in order to get it ready for today's competition. It takes quite a bit of preparation she said as 14 judges will examine her project today and test her knowledge of botany.

"The judges like to see the creativity in a project. I know from my experience at science fairs that a plain experiment out of a book won't win," she said.

According to Miss Lee "wonder water" is simple to make. "You gather up glass canning jars, seal and rings. Then bring a desired amount of water to a rolling boil and boil it for five more minutes. You should then fill the jars completely and seal them."

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Bikes on walks

Q. Is it against the law to ride bicycles on sidewalks?

A. Yes. Section 187 of the Motor Vehicle Uniform Act states that no person shall drive any vehicle on any sidewalk or sidewalk area, according to Sgt. Ted Lancaster of the Big Spring police. Section 179 of the Act pertains to traffic laws that apply to persons riding bicycles. It says anyone on a bicycle is granted the same rights and privileges of someone in an auto, but also he is responsible for all the duties and laws of an auto driver.

Editorial

Let's be fair

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan is upset with members of the Business Roundtable.

The Roundtable is a group of influential businessmen from the nation's biggest corporations. Members of the group are concerned with the size of projected federal deficits and have made it known they feel those deficits need to be pared.

What has upset Regan, however, is that Roundtable members have suggested the deficits be trimmed by raising individual income taxes while leaving untouched the corporate tax cuts approved last year. Theoretically, there is some logic to the businessmen's request. The idea of the tax cuts was to spur investment, not consumption. And corporate tax savings are more likely to be reinvested in new equipment, while individuals are more likely to spend their tax savings.

BUT THERE ARE two problems with the analysis.

First, the cut in individual tax rates was designed to spur individual productivity as much as foster investment. The Reagan theory is that a cut in marginal tax rates will spur individual enterprise.

Second, and most important, is the issue of fairness. Leading politicians of both parties have warned the administration that its monetary and fiscal policies must seem fair. The public will accept personal sacrifice if there is a perception that everyone is suffering equally.

But if the administration's policies appear overly favorable to one side, the plan to foster economic recovery will be undermined.

MEMBERS OF THE Business Roundtable would better serve their country by planning ways to use corporate tax savings for modernization of plant and equipment, not corporate buyouts and mergers.

It's clear that federal deficits are a major concern, but no program will succeed which balances the budget on the backs of the middle class.

Around the Rim

By TINA MILLER

Stay tuned

The networks finally caught on. Someone finally realized that the millions of working women are very unhappy because they no longer get to watch their favorite soap opera.

Viola! The nighttime soap operas of "Dallas," "Dynasty," "Falcon Crest," "Flamingo Road" and "Knott's Landing." You can take your pick of affairs, scandal, wealth and power. Prefer smiling cowboys with two or more faces? Watch Dallas. Love the feel of crushed grapes between your toes? Falcon Crest is for you. Or, perhaps you're intrigued by the small town dirty politics of Flamingo Road. Maybe you can relate to the middle class woes of "Knott's Landing."

It has now become perfectly acceptable for men to watch the soaps. Though many watched these shows for years, few dared to admit it until now. Today, those who don't know who shot J.R. and who caused Crystal to fall off the horse are lost in most social conversations.

BUT WHAT IS the fascination with any of these shows? I know people who refuse to go anywhere on a given night if it means they can't watch "their" show. Why?

Maybe it's a little bit of envy. Who wouldn't want to be rich and powerful? Why not jump on your own private jet and fly to your favorite restaurant just for the heck of it? Can't you see yourself driving that Rolls-Royce? Ah, that would be the life.

But, alas, into every life a little J.R. must fall, so the rich are never really happy. Don't you just love it? Here are people with the money and power to make and break people and corporations with one phone call. But they can't keep their own lives together. That is of some comfort to us "middle-classers."

AND WHAT suspense Will Sue Ellen be dumb enough to go back to J.R.? Will Fallon find out the Nick wants to destroy her father? Will Karen destroy Abby's new romance? Can Angela retain control of the valley? And will Constance succeed in blackmailing Field?

For the answer to these and other intriguing and totally irrelevant questions, stay tuned. You wouldn't want to miss anything.

Billy Graham

I can't believe

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I would really love to believe as you do, but I just can't. My problem is all the terrible things in the world, like all the crime and evil. I can't believe that God loves me, when I see so many things wrong with the world that seem to suggest God doesn't really care. — M.N.

DEAR M.N.: Yes, if I were only looking at the headlines each day in the newspaper I would get discouraged also. There is a great deal of evil in the world. More than that, if we are honest with ourselves, we know there is also evil within our own hearts.

But to me, that is what makes the love of God all the more wonderful. Just think of it a minute. Suppose a friend of yours always did what you wanted him to do, and was always a delightful person to be around. It would be easy to love someone like that, wouldn't it? But suppose someone is unkind to you, and constantly is unpleasant and even hateful. What if you still loved that person? Wouldn't that be an even greater love in a sense, because the person was really not very lovely?

God loves us, not because we are free from sin and always loving him as we should. No, he loves us in spite of our sins! You see, all the evil you see around you (and even within you) is really caused by our rebellion against God. We have decided to run our own lives, rather than let God have control. When God is left out, conflict is inevitable. But God still loves us, and he wants us to come back to him and know the peace that only he can bring.

How is this possible? Is it possible because God sent his Son into the world to save us and bring us back to himself. The Bible says, "But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8). This is the proof you need — God loves you, and the proof is that Christ was willing to die for you. And you can experience that love, and learn to love God, by committing your life to Jesus Christ.

FBI bungling cases?

WASHINGTON The glamorous side of the FBI's work has been chronicled on television and in the movies.

But as any FBI agent could attest, there's a vital part of the G-man's life that will never make it to the screen, mainly because it is boring. That's the seizure and safekeeping of property against the day when it will be introduced as evidence in a federal trial. Probably not even Norman Lear could make the Top 20 with a show titled, "FBI Property Clerk."

Mundane as it is, the custody of evidence is a crucial ingredient of any successful prosecution. And an internal Justice Department draft report charges that the FBI clerks could be blowing some cases.

The nub of the still-secret draft, prepared by auditors in the department's management division, is that nobody keeps proper track of property that has been seized for evidence. Things are so sloppy, the auditors complained, that evidence could be lost or otherwise disappear and no one would know it.

In their low-key, bureaucratic jargon, the auditors put it this way: "The systems misused by the FBI for the handling of seized and recovered property are out of date and lack the specificity to effectively meet the responsibilities and requirements imposed by regulation."

Art Buchwald

The auditors noted that "we were told a number of times that 'we (the FBI) have never lost any evidence,' but added coldly: 'In our opinion, the system now in use would not disclose the loss of evidence if it did occur.'"

THE BASIC PROBLEM, the auditors concluded, is that property taken into custody by the G-men is "not effectively supervised by either agents or Support Service Supervisors."

As an example of this distaste for important but dull detail, the draft report cited "extensive time lags" between the seizure of property for possible use as evidence and its ultimate recording in FBI logbooks.

In the Detroit field office, the investigators found many items of personal property that had been in FBI custody for more than eight years without being entered in the record. Time lags in the Philadelphia and Atlanta regional offices exceeded a year in some cases.

"Once personal property is taken, the FBI becomes responsible for it and accountability is mandatory," the draft reports points out, and adds: "Delays such as we found (in recording) are unwarranted and unjustified."

In addition to the agents' casual attitude toward seized property — possibly because of it — the subsequent handling by property clerks "is neither proper nor adequate," the auditors complained. The reason for this they decided was inadequate training and a poorly written manual of instructions.

The Justice Department investigators found some ridiculous examples of property that had been retained long after it was useful — like the mink coat that had been stored in a cardboard box at the Philadelphia FBI office since 1972, even though it was involved in a case that was closed in 1977.

Finally, the auditors complained, property is often not returned to its rightful owner once it is no longer needed as evidence. FBI personnel told the auditors that property "is returned only if specifically requested," the draft report states.

Footnote: Asked for comment, an FBI spokesman told my associate Tony Capaccio cryptically, "We have a story to tell." But because the report is still in draft form, he said, "we can't comment on it."

Dear Editor,
How long is it going to take the American people to wake up?

All the older people are afraid that Social Security might be cut off. Social Security is broke and has been for 4 years. You cannot get something, when there is nothing there.

The Social Security Act of 1935 was nothing other than a tax, set up by the Government to look like it was "insurance" for old age. In fact, Social Security was challenged in the Supreme Court where the Court told the Government it could not call it insurance, because it was just another tax, like income tax.

The Government has been telling the American people a lie for all these years, since 1935 when this law was enacted. People have been led to believe that their S.S. payments have been going into a special fund. This is not true, this money goes into the same general fund that income tax goes into, and is spent just as fast as the old liberals can spend it.

Our late spending, democratic, President Carter passed the Social Security Reform Bill which increased Social Security by 27 billion over the next ten years. But, Social Security will still be broke. Ask yourself why the government folks who peddle Social Security to the masses aren't about to settle for a Social Security check in their old age.

What this all means is, by 1984 if your wages are $32,400 per year you will pay $2,170 for Social Security tax. Then, your employer will pay another $2,170 matching, this adds up to $4,341 per man. Just think, if you are a business man with 10 employees you can look forward to paying the government $21,708 per year on 10 employees. The ten employees pay $21,708 per year, for a grand total of $43,416.00 per year. All of this goes into the same fund as income tax, but is called "Social Security." Ha Ha.

Now can you understand why people are going out of business? Carter said when he went into office, "I will never increase taxes for the working people of this country," with one hand on the Bible and another in the working man's pocket. He told the biggest lie of all. He said, "Trust me friends, I will never tell you a lie."

If you people don't believe me that Social Security is a fraud, just write to the Social Security Office, and ask them if the money you have paid in, has not been set aside in a fund. They will laugh you right out of town! There isn't any money set aside for yours or anyone else's retirement.

If Social Security were dropped lock stock and barrel today, it would need well over $4 trillion in additional funds simply to pay its present obligations. That is more than $20,000 for every single person in the country! Social Security is not only bankrupt, it is bankrupt many times over. Where are we going to get this kind of money?

We are being taxed to DEATH by the Federal, State, and Local governments. We must all do something about it. Write your local, state and federal government, and tell them that it has to be stopped! If something isn't done we "the people" will stop sending our money to Washington and Austin. This is the only way we can stop the educated idiots in the federal and state agencies, better known as the "bureaucratic parasites."

But, you people that keep whining and whinning about your money being taken and not doing anything about it, are the ones that the government and politicians like. "For sheep are easier to slaughter than the wolf!" Sweet dreams counting your "sheep" tonight.

Regional Science Fair kicks off here today

The Permian Basin Regional Science Fair kicks off today at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum with 371 entrants expected for the two day affair. The event has been held in Big Spring for the last four years and is sponsored by the Big Spring Independent School District and Howard College.

This year's fair is divided into two categories — elementary and senior. The elementary category has two divisions, which are physical and life science. The senior category has six divisions: biology, chemistry, environmental science, math, space science and physics. Entrants will set up their projects today from 8 a. m. until noon and actual judging will take place this afternoon from 1 - 6 p. m. An awards assembly will be held Friday from 8:30 - 10:30 a. m. and the public is invited to view the projects following the assembly.

"I love it because it's so applicable. It's something everyone can do. I feel that's what science is for — to make life more productive for all people," Miss Lee said.

As for her future plans she said she'll be back to the fair once again next year.

"I love science and I love drama. I'd love to go to college and learn to teach both of them. I'd have to carry a double major and I know it'll be tough, but I think it'll be worth it," she said.

"I've learned from my science projects about hard work, optimism, patience, dedication and I've learned that nothing is impossible," Miss Lee said.

The fair will continue today and Friday. Winners will be announced in an awards assembly from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m. Friday. Visitors are welcome to view the projects after 10:30 a. m. Friday.

SCIENCE FAIR — An early morning crowd gathered at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum to set up projects for the Permian Basin Regional Fair being held today and Friday. Approximately 371 participants from the surrounding area are expected. The fair is being co-sponsored by the Big Spring Independent School District and Howard College.

Social work seminar planned

Governor Clements has designated March as National Professional Social Work Month. The Texas Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers is sponsoring observances throughout Texas.

Locally, Big Spring will host the quarterly meeting of NASW's West Texas Unit and the annual professional seminar Friday at the VA Hospital.

"Family Violence," a seminar sponsored by NASW with co-sponsorship of the Family Therapy Association of the Permian Basin and the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children, features Dr. D. Russell Crane, Assistant Professor of Marriage and Family Therapy at Texas Tech University.

Dr. Crane will be the principle trainer and will lead discussions on symptoms of family violence and individual and family treatment.

Prior to Dr. Crane's presentations, participants will hear a discussion of family violence by a panel consisting of Hon. Judge Jim Gregg of the 118th District Court, Nola Crawford MSW and Tom Ellison of Texas Department of Human Resources, and Officer Patricia Dunham of the Big Spring Police Department. Also on the panel will be Sally Brammer of the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children.

Luncheon at La Posada will feature Barbara Henley, ACSW, President of the Texas Chapter, National Association of Social Workers. Mrs. Henly is director of Social Services at Ben Taub Hospital, Houston. Seminar participants will meet at the VA Medical Center Fireplace Room in Building 7.

Following the workshop an informal meeting will be held in the community room at the Coors Distributorship.

Carol Burnett reveals fantasy

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Carol Burnett says that at 48 she's in the autumn of her life, "and that's super. Things keep getting better and better."

"When I grow up, I want to be (actress) Ruth Gordon," she said in an interview in the April issue of McCall's magazine. "A woman who at 80 is so vital and interesting that her kids are always saying, 'We have been trying to get hold of you for days.'"

Talking about her future, she said: "I have this fantasy:

"My girls are married and they all have children and interesting careers and interesting lives. And suddenly I step up on their doorsteps, just like Rosalind Russell as Auntie Mame.

"And I take my grandchildren by the hands and I say to my daughters, 'Bye dears, we're off to travel around the world. See you in a couple of years.' I'd love to be that kind of grandmother."

Islands in sky peaceful if you don't mind mice

By JOY ASCHENBACH
National Geographic
News Service

WASHINGTON — Being stranded on a desert island doesn't always mean sitting under palm trees, cracking coconuts, completely surrounded by water.

For ecologist David W. Johnson, it is being dropped by helicopter on top of a sheer-walled sandstone butte 600 feet above a Utah desert.

Staying on top, even for research purposes, is "like being left on an island in the middle of the ocean, out of touch with the rest of the world," Johnson said. "There's no way off except to fly — or jump."

By studying animal life at the top, Johnson is trying to determine whether the summits of free-standing buttes can be likened — ecologically — to real islands.

Like real islands, they are isolated and detached from the "mainland," but a cliff barrier rather than water. And like real islands, he has found, they tend to have fewer species than the mainland, but as many, sometimes more, individuals within each species.

How did the animals get up there in the first place? Were they trapped on top several million years ago as the land around them eroded, forming the buttes?

Ecologists think they climbed — and more recently. After camping out on five buttes in and near Canyonlands National Park in southeastern Utah, Johnson has concluded that the animals who made it to the top are simply good climbers, able to scale the cliff barriers.

They are all small creatures, members of species that are at home in rocky places and eat shrubs, grass, insects, and berries. The most common is the canyon mouse, the only species found on all five buttes. There are also lizards, chipmunks, pinoon mice, and bushy-tailed wood rats, the biggest animal up there.

What would ever inspire a mouse to undertake a climb of 400 to 600 feet straight up? Ecologists can only speculate. In their youth, the mice may have been forced out of an area down below that couldn't support their large numbers, Johnson says. Or they "may have wandered up out of curiosity," he added. "These mice tend to wander a lot."

The mice could make the ascent in a single night, or take weeks, even months, if they stopped in nooks and crannies along the way. "But it takes more than getting there to stay there," Johnson pointed out. "To colonize the summit, you have to have a male and female or at least a pregnant female." No one knows whether the mice travel in twos.

Once up there, the animals probably stay. There's plenty of room at the top and few predators. The butte summits Johnson visited range in size from about five acres to 400, spacious for small species.

Even on the largest buttes, the animals have to share the resources with less than a third the number of mammal species on the "mainland," Johnson found. On one butte there were only two species of mammals, compared with at least 16 on the mainland plateau.

Johnson's research, under the direction of Dr. David M. Armstrong, associate professor of biological sciences at the University of Colorado, is supported by the National Geographic Society.

Looking at butte tops as islands, Armstrong explained, may help ecologists predict the minimum environment needed for the survival of any natural community. "Many of the natural habitats of the world — wilderness areas, parks, rain forests — are in effect being broken up into islands in a sea of civilization and development," he pointed out.

On two of the shorter buttes, Johnson discovered that not only animals but Indians had been there ahead of him — about 800 to 900 years ago. He founded pieces of black and white pottery, arrowheads, a knife blade, and implements for grinding meal.

Indians of the Anasazi culture, forerunners of the Pueblos, were known to live and hunt in the region from about the sixth century to the mid-13th century. Relics of their culture are found scattered on buttes throughout the Southwest.

Apparently the Indians got to the top the hard way, on foot. What would drive them up cliff walls, archeologists can only guess.

"Probably to get away from somebody. The most popular belief is that they were fighting with each other down below, but we really don't know," explained Dr. Jack Smith, chief archeologist of Mesa Verde National Park in Colorado. "Maybe they just liked it up there. It may simply have been a more pleasant place to live."

Johnson, who with his field assistant wife, Margaret, was helicoptered on and off the buttes, said there is something to recommend life on an island in the sky: no crowds and spectacular sunsets.

Tax cheating up, but chance of audit at all-time low

WASHINGTON (AP) — An individual taxpayer's chances of being audited by the Internal Revenue Service will drop to an all-time low this year — even though tax cheating is on the rise.

But the IRS, rejecting overzealous enforcement as too much like "a police state," says it is expanding other programs intended to pick up at least a little of the estimated $72 billion in taxes the U.S. Treasury may be losing each year because of unintentional errors and outright cheating.

The IRS estimates that, on average, it will audit 15.8 out of every 1,000 individual tax returns during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30. Although the overall percentage of audits is the lowest on record, IRS officials said more emphasis will be placed on reviewing returns filed by upper-income taxpayers.

The audit rate has been sliding since the mid-1960s, when it reached a peak of more than 50 per 1,000 returns. In 1976, the IRS audited 26 per 1,000 on average and in fiscal 1981, the rate fell to 18.3 per 1,000.

Paralleling the decline in audits has been an increase in cheating and other forms of non-compliance with the tax laws. The result has been a near tripling of the annual revenues the government estimates it is losing each year, from about $27 billion in 1976 to $72 billion or more now, according to preliminary findings from an unreleased IRS study recently made available to Congress.

At a House Government Operations subcommittee hearing Wednesday, the panel's chairman, Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., complained that the level of audits has fallen to "an all-time low," and thus deprives the government of an opportunity to claim new revenues needed to narrow the record budget deficits estimated over the next few years.

"It's too low, I agree," responded IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr. "I believe our level of audits is not high enough."

At the same time, Egger told the subcommittee, "I don't think auditing by itself is the sole enforcement (tool)." He said he doubts Congress would approve the unleashing of an army of tax enforcers reminiscent of "a police state."

The IRS commissioner said President Reagan's 1983 budget proposal addresses the enforcement problem by proposing IRS budget increases at a time most other agencies are facing significant cuts.

The IRS budget would rise from $2.6 billion this year to $2.9 billion in 1983, add 5,225 enforcement positions and increase the incidence of audits to 16.7 per 1,000 individual returns.

Last year, a staff of 85,000 processed 167 million tax forms, including 94 million filed by individuals.

$657,180 suit filed following crash deaths

A Howard County woman has filed a civil suit in 118th District Court seeking more than $657,180 in damages for an auto accident in which her husband and son were killed.

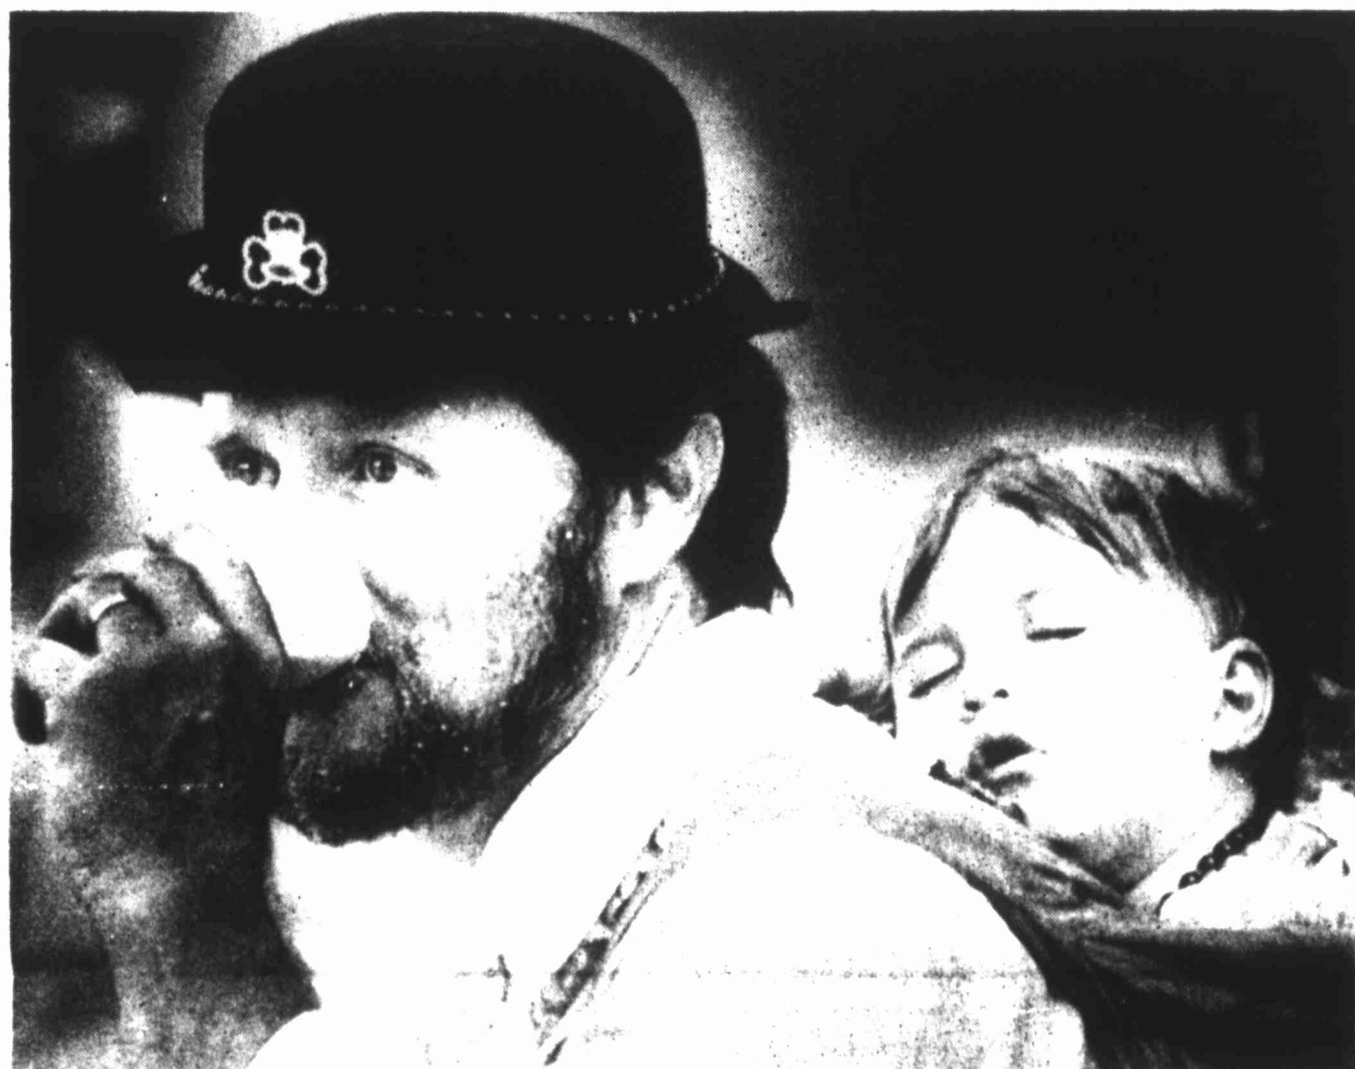

Tina Marie McDaniel is suing James Howard and his son, Kevin Howard, who are residents of Bell County.

The suit contends that on Jan. 29, 1982 a vehicle occupied by Mrs. McDaniel, her 21-year-old husband Nolan and their four-month-old son Kenneth was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by Kevin Howard.

The incident took place on the Snyder Highway or Highway 350.

The suit alleges young Howard was negligent in that he was speeding, he failed to yield the right of way and he failed to keep a proper look-out.

Mental and physical damages of $90,000 are sought by the personal injury suit as well as $527,300 for income lost due to the death of McDaniel. Medical expenses totalling $24,000 and $6,500 for the wrecked auto were also assessed.

City closes road to ease the path of toad love

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — This is a tale of travelin' toads, and how the amorous amphibians are winning a struggle with civilization in the Netherlands.

Each March, as soon as the temperature goes above 46.4 degrees Fahrenheit, when a toad's fancy turns to thoughts of love, up to 1,000 of the warty wanderers will cross a well-traveled road behind the North Sea dunes to reach their mating and egg-laying grounds in the water-filled ditches beyond.

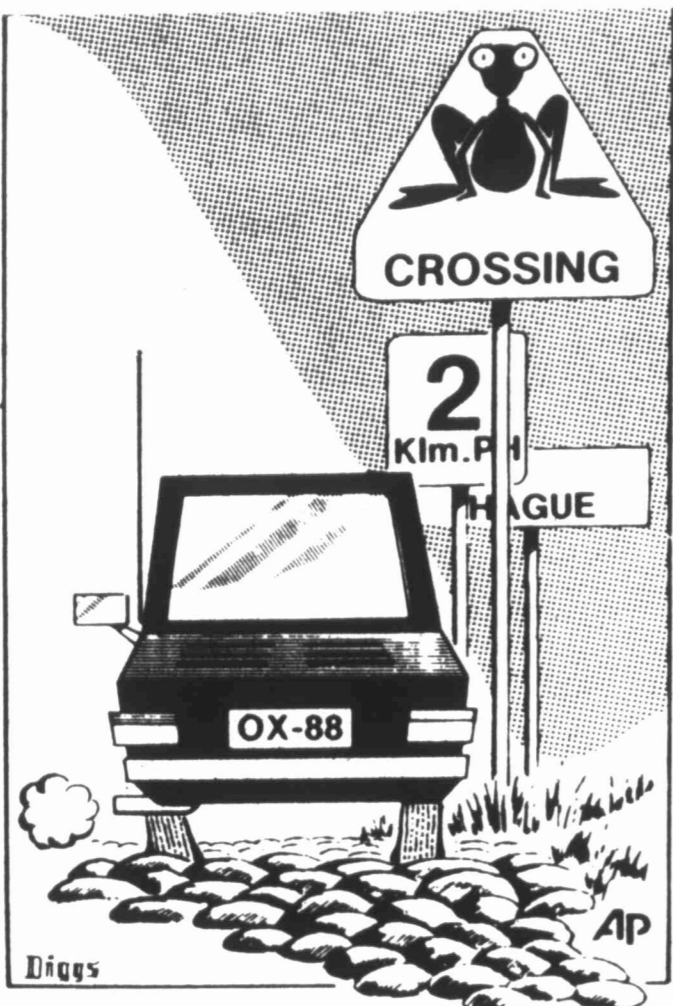

And for the seventh year in a row, this city will close the road to vehicles each night so the toads, — known to science as Bufo buro — can romance without risk of a squashing.

The story began in 1965, when naturalists discovered that a city highway crossed the toad-mating route from their home in the seaside dunes bordering the city. Traffic was taking a rising toll in toads.

Wijnand Bleumink is one of those who came to the toads' defense.

As the population of this city has grown, Dune Avenue — Duinlaan in Dutch — carried more and more traffic.

"Because more and more cars passed, more and more toads were being flattened," said Bleumink, an amateur naturalist who works for the city Education Department.

A former director of the Education Department, Jan Nijkamp, told of the slaughter in a nature column he wrote for one of the local newspapers.

"He got more and more protest letters," recalled Bleumink, noting the Dutch concern for conservation in a society that owes much of its dikes lands — former sea beds — to nature's willingness to adapt to man.

So the Education Department began a campaign to adapt a bit to the toads, at least during the mid-March to mid-April mating season.

Meanwhile, local newspapers began to carry stories about man's inhumanity to toads, and how they were dying out around The Hague.

That carried some weight in this country, known to its inhabitants as "Kikkerland" — Frog Land — because of its wetness.

The close toad relation has also worked its way into the language in such expressions as "You can't pluck feathers from a frog," the local equivalent of the English "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

In 1976, the city's police and Public Works Departments decided to close 500 yards of the highway between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m.

"The problem was not only to close the road, but at what moment," said Bleumink, who noted that the toads, common all over the Netherlands, breed once a year and only when the temperature and humidity are right.

Every March evening, Bleumink, who lives nearby, checks his thermometer about dusk, the time toads prefer to fall in love. He has permission to close the gates on the road as soon as he spots the migration beginning.

The crossings, which last about a week, begin with mostly male toads, who are joined in increasing numbers by the larger females.

At the height of the mating period, the 2.6 inch females carry the 2.2-inch males piggy-back to the breeding grounds. Bleumink said the piggyback position, known as amplexus, provides the stimulation for the female to lay 3,000 to 6,000 eggs in the stagnant ditch water.

And Bleumink noted that the Dutch Department of Culture, Recreation and Social Work organized a study day last month for some 50 groups throughout the Netherlands that have taken similar actions to protect animals.

Each year amateur naturalists monitor The Hague toad crossings. This year, Bleumink expects between 600 and 1,000 toads.

Are a thousand toads worth all the trouble? Bleumink, a tall man with a gentle smile, says yes.

"I'm not allowed to take a toad home and put it in a terrarium. But you're allowed to run over a toad on the highway," he said.

"Every environmental problem starts with the death of a certain animal. I think people need every living creature in the world," he said. "The duty of man is to find a certain balance."

White Sands selected landing site

Space shuttle countdown begins

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Determined to prove "we can launch on the day we say," NASA began the countdown early today for a Monday liftoff of the space shuttle's third flight and shifted the landing site from a flooded Mojave desert floor in California to the white sands of New Mexico.

The clock started ticking at 4 a.m. EST with test conductor Andy Browne's announcement, "The launch countdown is now in progress." Immediately, technicians activated Columbia's computer systems and its electricity-producing fuel cells.

While launch preparations were routine, planning for a first-ever landing in New Mexico preoccupied space agency officials.

The U.S. Army's White Sands Missile Range is usually the backup landing site for the shuttle. Today, NASA decided to shift landing and "safing" equipment there because of heavy rainwater that fell on Edwards Air Force Base in California, the site of Columbia's first two landings.

Launch is scheduled for 10 a.m. EST Monday and a "once-around" emergency landing — if necessary — would be made at White Sands. Landing is scheduled at White Sands one week and 115 orbits after liftoff.

NASA spokesman Dick Young said the decision to "use White Sands all the way" was made after top management officials assessed the latest reports from Edwards and determined that conditions there might be marginal to support a landing on March 29.

Earlier, officials had hoped to designate White Sands as an early-abort site while still planning to use Edwards for an end-of-mission landing.

On launch pad 39A, technicians were oblivious to all this. They were getting the ship ready for astronauts Jack R. Louma and C. Gordon Fullerton, beginning four days of precise preparations toward a scheduled 10 a.m. EST liftoff. It would be the third of Columbia's four test flights.

At midmorning, test director John Talone Jr. reported: "We don't expect any problems. It's been uneventful up to now."

Gen. James A. Abrahamson, NASA associate administrator for space transportation, directed Launch Director George Page to start the countdown. Abrahamson and NASA administrator James Beggs believe that by sticking to the launch date, they can assure customers paying to have cargo carried later that the shuttle can meet its timetables.

Tower pushes for no defense budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee today asked colleagues on the chamber's Budget Committee to avoid major cutbacks in President Reagan's defense spending request, saying "we should not sacrifice the defense of this country for some momentary budgetary comfort."

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, defended Reagan's request for $263 billion in budget authority for the fiscal year starting Oct. 6 as vital to the security of the nation.

"There must be no illusion that a significant overall reduction in defense will not be noticed by our allies and adversaries, and will not be reflected in a reduction of our capability to wage and sustain combat," Tower contended.

He said that if any cuts do occur, he thought they should come by reducing the size of the U.S. military force, rather than by scaling back the nuclear modernization program and readiness items such as ammunition and spare parts.

Tower said elimination of one of the Army's 6 divisions, for instance, could reduce annual operating costs by $900 million and elimination of one of the Navy's carrier battle groups could save $600 million.

But he emphasized he was not recommending any significant defense cuts at all.

Dr. Donohue

Reader has tasteless letter

Dear Dr. Donohue: Let me first tell you that I really enjoy your column very much, including your good sense of humor! Now my problem, of which I never read anything in your column. Perhaps it is too tasteless! I had a bad cold about a month ago, during which time I lost my sense of taste and smell completely, and so far it has not come back. I am beginning to wonder if it ever will. It takes all the pleasure out of cooking, eating, drinking, etc. Why do I have this problem? Is there anything in the medical world to cure this? — R.H.

Because taste is a sensation that is partly due to aromas, a bad cold will tend to leave one tasteless because of the temporary damage it can do to the nerves of the nose. The sense almost always returns, but how long it will take cannot be predicted. As for the tongue, it conveys sensations of saltiness, sourness, sweetness and bitterness — the tastebuds conveying those tastes located in specific areas of the surface. Tastebuds are those little projections on the tongue. They, too, may be affected by a cold.

Now, you can tell if it's the nose or the tongue where the loss of taste has its origin by this neat little trick. Put a little pinch of salt on your tongue. If you can taste that, then the tongue is working. Then try smelling oil of cloves. If you cannot smell the aroma, it's the nose that is at fault. This is a very rough test, but works in lots of cases.

If your loss of taste persists, the doctor to see is an ear-nose-throat specialist. Many different substances have been given to try to restore taste, including zinc. I honestly cannot tell you if any of the medicines work — even though I know I will be flooded with letters from many readers offering a multitude of remedies that have worked for them.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Daughter breaks with parent's faith

DEAR ABBY: I am a very upset and frustrated 15-year-old girl. My parents have forbidden me to date boys of a different religion, but I have been doing it on the sneak and this bothers me.

I can understand their objections and have no intentions of marrying out of faith, but I am not considering marriage now.

My parents and I have had some very heated arguments over this. Dating at 15 and marriage are two different things, but my parents can't see it that way.

I am proud of my heritage, and when it's time to look for a husband, I will restrict my dating to men of my own faith. In the meantime, I can't see the harm in dating others.

I hate sneaking around, but what am I to do?
15 IN SHAKER HEIGHTS

DEAR ABBY: If you have no intentions of marrying out of your faith, you will avoid a lot of possible heartaches by dating only boys you may one day marry. The heart doesn't care what the head is thinking.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who lamented that her guests never used her pretty little guest towels, preferring instead to dry their hands on the rug or whatever was handy, brought back memories.

When my wife was living, we didn't entertain much. But when we did, my wife always had the bathroom spotlessly clean, and she laid out her fancy guest towels. Of course, my son and I were admonished not to use them — they were for the guests. However, none of the guests used them either.

Finally, after one party, my wife mentioned that nobody used her guest towels and she seemed hurt about it. The next time we entertained, I went into the bathroom and dried my hands on not one, but two guest towels, and just to make sure they looked "used," I wadded them up and left them in plain view. Sure enough, one or two guests followed my example!

The morning after the party, my wife and I were discussing what a good time we had, and she said, "And this time they used the guest towels!"

After that, I always did the same thing, and it worked like magic. I never did tell my wife my secret, bless her heart.

Strategic minerals found in Antarctica

By DONALD J. FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service
VICTORIA LAND, Antarctica — Until recently it seemed that of all the potential resources in Antarctica, oil and gas had the greatest allure.

But in a world increasingly conscious of strategic metals and minerals, scientists are finding that the forbidding continent holds other attractive prospects. Molybdenum, thorium, uranium, cobalt, platinum, and other minerals known as rare earths are among the riches found at the bottom of the world. Some of them are strategic — crucial to a variety of industries worldwide, yet often difficult to obtain because of inflation and political instability in the countries where they're found.

OTHER PROMISING FINDS may be in the offing in Antarctica. Working from a remote base camp in rugged Victoria Land near the Rennick Glacier, scientists fanned out over a 30,000-square-mile area collecting rocks and analyzing potential mineral-bearing formations.

Recently concluded, it was the most ambitious geological project ever undertaken in Antarctica by the National Science Foundation (NSF), which supports U.S. research projects here. Logistical support of the 60 scientists involved included a fleet of three helicopters and regular supply flights by large ski-equipped LC-130 cargo aircraft from McMurdo Station 350 miles away.

In a snug prefabricated hut, insulated from the swirling snowstorm outside, Edmund Stump, an Arizona State University geologist who headed the northern Victoria Land project, pointed out that many of the formations his group was studying had a lot in common with southeastern Australia.

Rich in gold, molybdenum, copper, and uranium, southeastern Australia was linked to northern Victoria Land before it separated and began drifting away some 50 million years ago.

NEW EVIDENCE indicates that at least some of these riches stayed behind. Molybdenum, a strategic metal, was discovered two years ago by a small party of West German scientists who established a modest base camp on the Lille Glacier, only 80 miles from the American camp.

The United States is one of the few countries in the world with an adequate supply of molybdenum, a metal used to strengthen steel. "If the kind of material we found had appeared in a place like British Columbia, mining companies would be lined up to file claims," observed Thomas O. Wright, an NSF geologist who was a guest scientist with the German field party.

Edward J. Zeller, a professor of geology and physics at the University of Kansas who has logged almost 600 helicopter hours looking for unusual antarctic rock formations and materials, landed on the Lille Glacier this year for a first-hand look at the molybdenum.

"SOME OF THE MOLYBDENUM we found encased in hunks of quartz as big as your desk," reported Zeller. "No question, there's a significant amount of the stuff just lying around on the surface."

Zeller also turned up small concentrations of uranium and thorium in an area called Lichen Hills about 80 miles south of the American base, and from the air pinpointed what might be a uranium deposit at the head of the Scott Glacier, in the central Transantarctic Mountains.

Zeller carries a gamma ray spectrometer on his flights. From a low altitude it can detect gamma rays emitted from radioactive materials such as uranium, thorium, and potassium.

It was with this instrument that Zeller made his most extensive find to date, a large deposit of thorium on the Darwin Glacier in the Transantarctic range. A soft radioactive metallic element, thorium has been considered as an alternative to uranium as a nuclear power source.

Rare earths are often found together with radioactive materials; Zeller discovered traces of cerium, yttrium, and lanthanum in his rock collection. Tin, niobium, and zirconium were also present.

RARE EARTHS are metal elements that have a multitude of uses. They help treat certain illnesses, refine crude oil into gasoline, polish precision lenses, help strengthen steel, and color stained glass window and ceramics. They also appear in sunglasses, welders' goggles, laser crystals, and jet engines.

Zirconium is useful in everything from nuclear reactors to surgical instruments because of its corrosion resistance. Niobium adds toughness and flexibility to stainless steel and is used in making rockets.

DESPITE ALL THIS CURRENT work, the best geological bet in Antarctica hasn't been covered by U.S. research teams since 1979. It's a 30,000-square-mile mineral-bearing, layered formation or intrusion in the Dufek Massif and a neighboring mountain range not far from the Weddell Sea.

Arthur B. Ford, a geologist at the United States Geological Survey (USGS) in Menlo Park, Calif., has made three field trips to the Dufek intrusion since 1964, collecting a ton of rocks.

The same type of rocks found in the Dufek appear in South Africa's Bushveld Complex, a similar layered intrusion with extremely rich deposits of chromium, platinum, titanium, and vanadium.

That's no surprise. Before the supercontinent of Pangaea broke up 200 million years ago, the Dufek Massif region was linked to South Africa.

Today, the Bushveld contains seams of chromium up to 10 feet thick that extend as far as 100 miles. W.C.J. van Rensburg, a South African geologist, estimates that the intrusion holds more than 6 billion tons of the metal. More than 2.5 million are produced annually. Platinum production probably exceeds 3 million ounces a year.

For, of course, can't make such forecasts for the Dufek, but he has analyzed 100 of his rock samples carefully and found small concentrations of platinum, chromium, titanium, cobalt, and magnetite, an iron mineral usually associated with vanadium.

They're tantalizing hints of what might lie below. Almost all the experts agree that if there are concentrated treasures in the Dufek, they lie buried at the base of the intrusion, just as they do in South Africa.

Because of budgetary constraints a deep drill project is highly unlikely in the near future. Ford has received only limited funding to complete the analysis of his Dufek rock collection. Almost 1,000 rocks are still stashed away in packing cases.

Despite the lack of funds, the United States and several other countries may soon be eyeing the Dufek with renewed interest.

As Thomas Ovenshine, chief of USGS's Office of Mineral Resources in Reston, Va., reported recently, "The United States is facing a period of decreasing metal reserves and a growing dependence on potentially unreliable foreign sources for such critical metals as chromium, nickel, tin, cobalt, manganese, aluminum, titanium, and platinum."

Many other countries face the same problem, so there's some urgency in determining who would share in antarctic treasures. No one owns Antarctica, although several nations have made claims to slices of its territory. The Antarctic Treaty permits free access to all parts of the continent for peaceful uses but does not deal with the minerals issue.

R. Tucker Scully, director of the State Department's Office of Oceans and Polar Affairs, thinks the 14 consultative nations of the treaty, which include the United States, Soviet Union, and Japan, may begin deliberations on minerals as early as May or June in New Zealand.

Houston police unit checks Brown

ATLANTA (AP) — A group from the Houston Police Department is here to find out what kind of job Lee P. Brown, nominated to become Houston's new police chief, did as Atlanta's public safety commissioner.

"We're meeting with the Fraternal Order of Police over here to find out how Mr. Brown works with their police organization," said Dave Collier, a member of the Houston Police Officers Association's board of directors.

"Some people we have talked to feel like he has done a good job," Collier said. "Some feel he hasn't done such a good job."

The Houston officers' group has been critical of Brown's nomination by Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire.

"We came out ... in Houston, disagreeing openly with his nomination," Collier said, adding that Houston police were worried that Brown lacked patrol experience and sufficient knowledge of Houston and Texas law.

"We were all a little disappointed in Mayor Whitmire going out of the city of Houston and the state of Texas," Collier said. "We feel that somewhere in the police department there was a man qualified to be chief ... or at least in the state of Texas."

Brown's nomination will still be approved by the Houston City Council. And Collier said, "It appears at this time that Lee Brown will be confirmed as police chief, and if he is confirmed we will do anything in our power to work with Mr. Brown."

After Brown resigned here to accept the nomination in Houston, Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young appointed police chief George Napper as acting public safety commissioner.

Colorado City councilmen award engineering study

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Colorado City Council waded through a four hour meeting Tuesday night which included the awarding of an engineering study for the sewage treatment plant to the firm of Freeze and Nichols of Fort Worth, taking a look at the preliminary 1982-83 budget and approving a pay classification schedule for city employees.

In explaining the preliminary budget City Manager Richard Crowley said high pay would be given to police officers, but that would come about at the expense of one less policeman. The budget calls for a 3 percent increase in spending.

As for the engineering study Freeze and Nichols had quoted a price to the city of $6,000 for a study of the water treatment plant and from $15,000 to $21,000 for both the water and sewage treatment plant.

Loraine trustees approve 1982-83 school calendar

LORAIN (SC) — The Loraine School Trustees discussed a variety of items in their regular meeting Tuesday night.

A report was given on the recent meeting in Colorado City between the Board of Review and the Valero Energy Corp. The trustees gave their approval to the 1982-83 school calendar, which will include classes beginning August 23 for the fall semester, two full weeks for the Christmas holidays and a spring break March 7-11, 1982.

Additionally, the trustees agreed to advertise for bids on re-roofing the vocational building and decided not to increase payments on two houses zoned by the school district in order to save the interest. The loans for the houses were financed by six and eight percent interest rates.

Inmate testifies TDC officer ignored knife

HOUSTON (AP) — A convict who supervised other inmates says a Texas Department of Corrections official once found a homemade knife under his mattress but pretended the weapon didn't exist.

Chester Smith Jr., 42, said a TDC officer found the weapon in his cell during a 1981 shake-down but did not confiscate the knife.

Smith, who is serving a 35-year sentence at the Ramsey Unit near Rosharon for aggravated robbery, also said a TDC captain confiscated a claw hammer from "building tender" but later returned the weapon.

Smith testified Wednesday at a hearing on two complaints before U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

State Attorney General Mark White contends the special master appointed to oversee sweeping court-ordered prison reforms has overstepped his authority and should be removed.

Special Master Vincent Nathan argues the state of Texas has no right to end its use of inmate supervisors, since it holds no tenders, is Justice's order.

During his testimony, Smith said another inmate wrote the special master, mentioning Smith witnessed the fight and saw the captain return the claw hammer.

proached Smith and told him "that I better forget it and go on back to the wing and do my job," the inmate said.

Earlier Wednesday, an inmate supervisor testified prison officials assured him that "building tenders" would continue to control his prison unit despite Justice's order that the job be eliminated.

"We were all concerned what would happen if we lost our jobs. What would happen to our status?" after U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's prison reform order in 1980, inmate Bennie Earl Hudson said.

But, he said, a warden and a prison major "told us we were still in control of the farm — still running the penitentiary."

Hudson said he was a building tender at the Texas Department of Corrections' Ramsey Unit, where he was serving a life sentence for theft, from 1975 until January. He is now in federal custody.

Hudson told the court he left five weapons when he left the TDC prison — two lead pipes, two knives and an 18-inch club.

"Most every building tender I know has a weapon or weapons," he said.

He testified that he carried a pipe in his back pocket in the course of his duties so that "if I hit someone, it wouldn't break my hand. I could hit harder."

Cessna suit sent back

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 3rd Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that two wrongful death suits against Cessna Aircraft Co. must go back for new trials.

James Parker and Benjamin Smithson were killed in the 1976 crash of a Cessna piloted by Smithson in New Mexico. Their survivors sued in an Austin district court, charging the design of the plane's seats caused the deaths.

A jury awarded Darla Smithson and her children $1.2 million — the amount of future wages the jury said her husband would have earned — after Mrs. Smithson presented evidence that her husband intended to become a commercial pilot.

Carolyn Parker Duncan and her children were awarded $1 million, but after Cessna argued it was not liable under a release Mrs. Duncan signed, she got nothing.

Mrs. Duncan, who had gotten $90,000 in damages from the company that owned the plane, appealed the "take-nothing" judgment.

Cessna appealed the award to Mrs. Smithson and the appeals court considered the two cases together.

Cessna argued that it was not allowed to present evidence that Smithson was partially at fault for the crash, and that the award to Mrs. Smithson was too high because it was based on her contentions her husband had intended to become a commercial pilot.

Two 18th-Century pistols found in police warehouse

NEW YORK (AP) — The ivory-inlaid, gold-encrusted hunting pistols that once belonged to Catherine the Great had lain for a decade in a police warehouse, two museum pieces lost amid the common tools of crime.

The ornate 18th century guns, valued at $200,000, were seized in a drug raid and may have "knocked around the streets" of New York for years, said Sgt. Thomas McCabe, the Intelligence Division officer assigned to the case.

The pistols were supposed to be melted down along with hundreds of "Saturday Night Specials" and other illegal handguns when police set them aside, thinking them odd antiques.

The officers were right. Experts at the Metropolitan Museum of Art said the pistols were made and signed by Johan Adolph Grecke, gunmaker to the court of the Empress of Russia.

Research Associate Leonid Tarassuk, who specializes in Russian arms, noted that the guns have the initial "E" — for "Ekaterina" — inlaid in gold.

"Their quality is so very high, I am almost certain they could have been used by the empress herself," he said. "They are true works of art and there is no doubt as to their authenticity."

Now that the guns have been identified, police face a new problem: finding the owner.

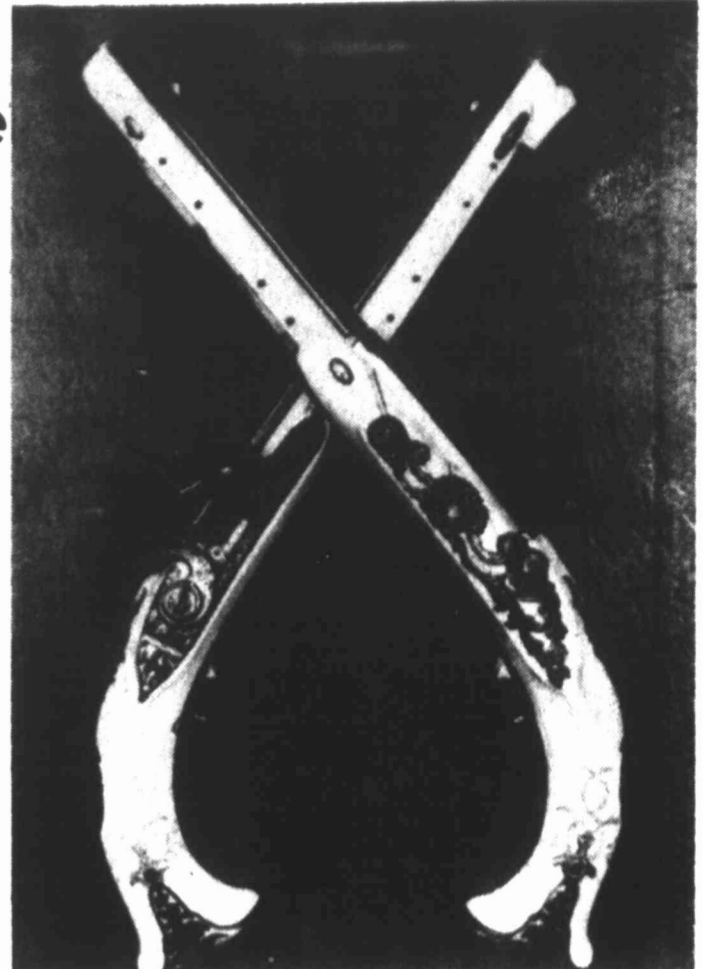

The pistols will be loaned to the museum, with the hope that once they go on display, "the real owner may come by and see them," said Rosemary Carroll, the Police Department's assistant commissioner for civil matters.

"Obviously they didn't belong to the heroin seller we busted," McCabe told The New York Times in an interview published today. "We think one of the owners sold them off and the new owner was burglarized, and then the guns kind of knocked around on the streets."

The previous owner may have been the late Shah of Iran, police said. When she showed a photograph of the firearms to his sister, she said they looked like a pair once in his extensive gun collection. She wasn't sure, however.

Another possible previous owner is Gustav Diderrich, once the head chef to the wealthy Widener family of Pennsylvania.

HERS AND HERS — Experts at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art believe this pair of pistols, seized in a drug raid nearly 10 years ago, were originally made for Catherine the Great, empress of Russia. Their value is put at $200,000. The pistols were in a police warehouse with other illegal weapons and were scheduled to be melted down but were spotted by a police officer with an eye for beauty.

41,000 pounds of ham stolen

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Florida truck driver was handcuffed to a tree in Guadalupe County by a hijacker who took a truck loaded with 41,041 pounds of ham, the Department of Public Safety reports.

Robert Jones, 35, of Tallahassee, Fla., was found handcuffed to the tree about three hours after the hijacking on Wednesday.

DPS officers said the theft was the latest in a series of hijackings.

Jones, a driver for Land Span Co. of Florida, told officers he stopped his truck about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday on Interstate 10 East just inside the San Antonio city limits.

After buying hamburgers, Jones said he was approached by an armed man wearing a vinyl jacket and brandishing a pistol.

"This is no joke. We are going to hijack your truck,"

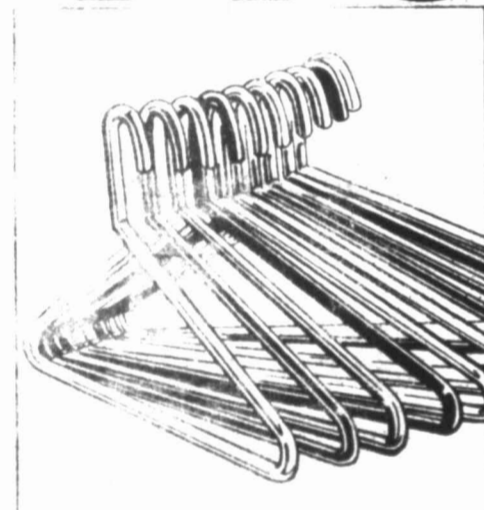

Jones quoted the bandit as saying.

Jones said he was ordered to drive toward Houston and then to stop the rig in Guadalupe County. He said he was handcuffed to a tree a quarter mile from the interstate highway.

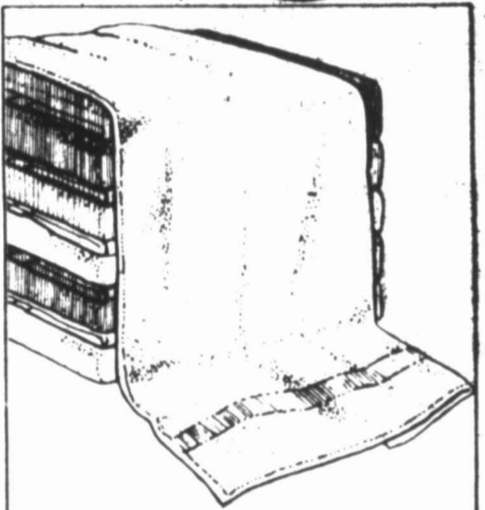

DPS officers said they received a call about 6 p.m. Wednesday that a man was yelling for help off the highway and troopers found Jones.

SANDBAG BRIGADE — Hundreds of volunteers form lines to pass sandbags to leaking dikes along the Maumee River in Fort Wayne, Ind., Wednesday. More than 4,000 residents on the eastside of the city were evacuated as rising waters continued to threaten more areas of the flood torn city in northern Indiana.

Flooding river seeps through dike as residents evacuated

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Firefighters hurried people out of their homes and onto city buses as the floodwaters that have ravaged this city began leaking through a dike so waterlogged it was "just like mush."

Hundreds of volunteers forming long chains passed sandbags in bucket-brigade style up to the muddy, 50-year-old dike "because our engineers tell us the sheer weight of the sand is the only thing that can save it," said Al Zirkle, director of operations for the city utilities.

Water was filling streets today along the Maumee River dike in the Lakeside neighborhood in the eastern part of the city. The river, bloated from thawing ice and days of rain, was expected to crest today at a level higher than it reached in 1913, when a series of floods killed 700 people in Indiana and Ohio.

About 7,900 people in Fort Wayne and surrounding Allen County have already been evacuated in the worst flooding on the Maumee since that disastrous year, bringing the number of Indiana evacuees to as many as 10,000.

The National Weather Service predicted thunderstorms for tonight and Friday.

Rivers were receding in Ohio and Michigan, where floods have done a total of $19 million in damage, but the Illinois River was still rising and causing minor flooding in Peoria. A tornado damaged an Atlanta building Wednesday as thunderstorms hit Georgia, and the San Francisco area was pelted with hail, snow and rain.

Two people were killed in Michigan, two in Ohio, and one in Fort Wayne over the weekend, but no deaths have been reported in the three states since. Flooding has caused an estimated $16.8 million damage in Fort Wayne.

"The entire dike area here is just like mush," Zirkle said. "The dikes are just saturated. It's not water lapping over the top."

"It could break loose at any time in the next 24 hours," Public Safety Coordinator Anthony Meyers said late Wednesday night.

Police used loudspeakers and firefighters went door-to-door along eight blocks to evacuate an undetermined number of people. Five city buses were sent to help take residents away, and evacuees with nowhere else to stay were brought to one of two churches. The firefighters also disconnected gas and electricity to prevent fires.

Later, buses were standing by in case the volunteers had to be evacuated, and a crane was brought in to help dump dirt on the earthen dike, if necessary.

"We have engineers all along the dike and they'll give the word if we need to get these people out," Zirkle said, adding there would be plenty of warning if something went wrong.

"We're gonna beat that river," Mayor Winfield Moses Jr. told volunteers Wednesday.

About 4,100 people left their homes Wednesday, and seven more emergency Red Cross shelters were opened, bringing the total to 11.

The three rain-swollen rivers that join in Fort Wayne — the Maumee, the St. Joseph and the St. Mary's — were expected to rise almost a foot overnight and threatened to divide the city of 170,000 into six isolated communities. All city schools were closed.

The water began trickling through about 11 p.m. EST.

"The leakage has accelerated. We've not had a full breach of the dike yet," said Frank Heyman, Fort Wayne city controller. He said earlier that if any of the dikes broke it could cause a flash flood.

The Lakeside area gets its name from a holding pond near the Maumee, which has spilled over into the pond. Water depth in the pond is about 12 feet, almost the height of the dike, which rises steeply near homes in the area.

"The latest report from the National Weather Service is that the Maumee is at 25.88 feet and still rising," said the mayor. "By tomorrow morning, it will crest at 26.5 feet."

The record crest for the Maumee at Fort Wayne is 26.1 feet, or 10.6 feet above flood stage, which was set during the 1913 flood.

Water spilled over sandbags in the city's Lakeside area along the St. Joseph and Maumee rivers where President Reagan helped volunteers Tuesday during an unscheduled visit to Indiana's second largest city.

Braniff plans layoffs

DALLAS (AP) — Financially strapped Braniff International will drop about 2,300 employees from its worldwide payroll in a transfer of South American routes to a competitor, and furlough another 700 domestic workers by summer.

About one-third of the total Braniff workforce will be laid off or transferred in the move, said Robert Culp, Braniff vice president of pricing and authority.

The 700 domestic workers from across the nation would be furloughed in an effort to "get down to fighting weight by summer," Braniff President Howard Putnam said in Washington Wednesday.

He and Pan American World Airways chairman C. Edward Acker announced that Braniff would allow Pan Am to service its South American routes, in exchange for an immediate $20 million advance to ease Braniff's cash crunch.

Culp said about 1,500 workers would be laid off because of the agreement allowing Pan American to service the South American routes, and 800 Braniff employees in South America would be transferred to Pan Am.

The cash agreement comes just two weeks after Braniff was forced to delay paychecks because of a shortage of cash.

But Pan Am is in little better financial shape than Braniff, which lost $160 million last year. Pan Am lost $348 million last year as the industry's top money-loser and drafted Braniff's chairman John J. Casey to help restore it to profitability.

Braniff executives said they hope the Pan Am cash and the loss of routes that lost $15 million last year and half that amount the year before will help the airline's in its major turnaround effort.

Pan Am has already provided $7 million to Braniff under the agreement, and another $13 million was to be delivered on approval of the plan.

Putnam said another $10 million would be paid to Braniff in 1983. The two airlines would share revenue from the South American routes, which Pan Am will fly for four years and then return to Braniff.

The airlines said both the Civil Aeronautics Board and the governments of the countries concerned must approve the agreement. Braniff officials said they were already asking the CAB for quick approval.

The layoffs will take place one to two months after Pan Am is expected to begin operating the routes on April 25, said Culp.

"The additional 700 employees could be laid off by July," Culp said. "The decision has basically been made based on the economy."

"We are still working on our restructuring," Culp said. "This is a major step toward the restructuring of the company."

He said 9,500 people are now employed worldwide at Braniff, down from a peak of 15,500 in mid-1979.

Acker said he expects his airline to turn a profit in the first year of operation because Pan Am will use wide-body aircraft that carry 50 percent more passengers than the planes used by Braniff.

Belushi's 'pal' speaks out

NEW YORK (AP) — The woman who stayed with John Belushi in a Los Angeles hotel bungalow the night before his body was found March 5 says she and the comedian were just friends.

Cathy Smith, a backup singer for rock groups, said she stayed in the bungalow's living room while Belushi slept in the bedroom.

Miss Smith told ABC-TV "20-20" correspondent Tom Jarriel, for a report to be broadcast tonight, there was no one as close to Belushi as his wife "and there never would be." Miss Smith said she had known the comedian for five years.

Belushi, 33, died from an injected overdose of cocaine and heroin, a coroner's report said last week.

Courting Season—

•NCAA: Cavs, Hoyas face big tests

Sunday is the first day of spring and what better way to celebrate than head out to the golf course.

The Big Spring Country Club opens its season of golf events with its "First Day of Spring Tournament" Saturday and Sunday. Tournery is open to members only.

The local Chicano Golf Association begins its season with a one-day event Sunday. Tee-off is 1 p.m. at the Comanche Trails Golf Course with entry fee for 18 holes set at $5.

And let's not leave out the women. The Ladies Golf Association played in tournery Tuesday at the Sunset Country Club in Odessa. Billie Dillon shot an 84 in the championship flight while Eileen Womack won low putts in the second flight.

The Association has become affiliated with the Permian Association which consists of nine clubs from this area. Next playday is April 13 at the Andrews Country Club.

Turning to the stables, Ricky Brown and Joe Faulkner each qualified a horse in the finals of the Lubbock Spring Futurity this Saturday. Their entries are Heza Tara by Faulkner and Miss Willie Bug by Brown.

Miss Willie Bug won the Randall Park Early Starter Futurity last month and is entered in the $200,000 Val Verde Downs Rio Grande Futurity in April.

After that, it's off to the Rainbow Futurity and the All-American Futurity which awards $1 million to the winner.

The Howard County Boxing Club is trying to raise a little money. Saturday night, the club, together with local senior citizens, is sponsoring exhibition boxing, a roast beef dinner and dance at building 487 in the Industrial Park, from 7-11:30 p.m.

Tickets are $8 with money going to local boxing activities and the senior citizens.

And finally again, from The Herald Hole-in-One Scrapbook, Red Womack does it once more. This time he sank a shot on the No. 13 hole at the Country Club using a five-iron. Witnesses were Gail Jones, Jack Cook, J.D. Nelson, Bill McClendon, and Dick Pfeiffer.

Stay tuned next week for Womack's continuing adventures.

Georgetown will present some tall problems tonight for Fresno State in the NCAA's West Regional basketball playoffs at Provo, Utah.

The tallest is Pat Ewing. "I think Ewing's presence creates more problems on defense than he does on offense," says Fresno State Coach Boyd Grant. "John Thompson is a good coach and he has Ewing play so alertly in the middle of his defense."

The Hoyas' 7-footer rejected 112 shots in the regular season and figures to block a few more in tonight's action at Brigham Young University's 22,700-seat Marriott Center.

The game will be the nightcap of a West Regional semifinal doubleheader. In the other contest, Idaho faces Oregon State.

In other action tonight, Louisville plays Minnesota and Alabama-Birmingham faces Virginia in the Midwest Regionals at Birmingham, Ala.

Friday night, Memphis State, 24-4, plays Villanova, 23-7, and North Carolina, 28-2, meets Alabama, 24-5, in the East Regional at Raleigh, N.C.

In the Midwest at St. Louis, it's Boston College, 21-9, vs. Kansas State, 23-7, and Houston, 23-7, against Missouri, 27-3.

Finals in the West and Midwest will be played Saturday and in the East and Midwest on Sunday. The winners of the regional tournaments will advance to the Final Four in New Orleans March 27-29.

The West Regional features some of the toughest defenses in the country, including Fresno State's statistical country leaders. The champions of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association have surrendered a mere 46.7 points a game, using a combination of presses and zones and man-to-man defense.

"We have to be a good defensive team to get the most out of our talent," says Grant. "It's important to play the game to win and we've won with our defense."

The 11th-ranked Bulldogs, 27-2, advanced to the West Regionals with a 50-46 victory over No. 14 West Virginia in sub-regional play, while sixth-ranked Georgetown, 27-6, the Big East champion, defeated Wyoming 51-43.

Eighth-ranked Idaho, 27-2, the Big Sky champion, uses a tough matchup zone which Coach Don Monson describes as "man for man on the ball, with zone concepts of the other four players." Washington State Coach George Raveling calls it one of the best in the country.

The Vandals stunned Oregon State 71-49 in the Far West Classic last December and Beaver Coach Ralph Miller says his Pac-10 champions are eager for a rematch.

"The biggest thing that I see is that we played them in December and ours was a more experienced team than theirs at that time," Monson says.

Fourth-ranked Oregon State, 24-4, beat Pepperdine 70-51 and Idaho edged Iowa 69-67 in overtime in earlier NCAA play.

In the Midwest Regional, Alabama-Birmingham will face another tall problem in Cavalier center Ralph Sampson. The two-time All-America is the main reason for Virginia's fancy 30-3 record and No.3 national ranking.

Virginia guard Jeff Jones says he expects UAB to run and press in an effort to neutralize the board advantage afforded by the 7-4 Sampson.

"They'll want to run the whole 40

• NIT: Sooners home, 'Wave' away

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

If it's Thursday, it must be Peoria, Ill., for the Tulane basketball team.

"I don't know what they (NIT officials) are thinking," says Coach Ned Fowler. "We have had to play three games in a row in hostile environments."

Of the eight teams remaining in the NIT field, only Tulane hasn't played at home. And tonight, Fowler's players find themselves facing another unsympathetic audience in Bradley's Robertson Field House.

It's one of three NIT games tonight. Elsewhere, Dayton plays at Oklahoma and Virginia Tech visits Georgia. In another third-round game Friday night, Purdue entertains Texas A&M.

The winners tonight and Friday night will advance to the semifinals at New York's Madison Square Garden next Monday night. The championship will be decided Wednesday night.

Tulane has been the surprise team in this year's NIT. In its first-ever postseason bid, the Green Wave has beaten Louisiana State 83-72 and Nevada-Las Vegas 56-51 en route to the quarter-final round.

Bradley, meanwhile, has surprised few people, including Coach Dick Versace. The Braves' coach was critical of the NCAA's tournery selection committee for inviting four Big East teams while ignoring his club.

Bradley took out its frustration Monday night with a 95-81 trouncing of Big East team Syracuse in the Big Orange's own arena. Bradley's other victory was a 76-65 decision over American University.

The Braves may have to play tonight's game without the services of junior guard Willie Scott, who is suffering from a pulled groin muscle.

"This is our 34th game and Willie has been playing really hard," Versace says. "He was in the whirlpool when I last saw him, and he may heal. But Eddie Matthews (a junior guard) and Eddie Harris (a freshman) are both healthy."

About Tulane, Versace said: "They have a style that gives everybody trouble. If you get behind a team like this, you got trouble. They're difficult to pressure."

Tulane doesn't run like Syracuse, noted Versace. "Syracuse wanted to run and we ran them out of the gym," he said.

Oklahoma has bounced back from large deficits in both of its earlier games. The Sooners opened the tournery by beating Oral Roberts 81-73 after overcoming a 17-3 deficit. They then beat California-Irvine 80-77 after shaking off a 7-point disadvantage.

"We've been very effective with the press," notes Coach Billy Tubbs. "We don't press that much in the first half but we kind of get into it in the second. You get the crowd involved in it and it gets everybody fired up and gets us moving up and down the floor."

The Sooners' two victories in the NIT improved their season's record to 21-10. Dayton, 21-8, advanced to the quarter-finals with a 76-75 overtime win over Connecticut and 61-58 over Illinois.

"Dayton is probably one of the best rebounding teams we'll go against," said Tubbs. "They're very big and

Little League Registration

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

The first day of registration for Big Spring and Howard County Little Leagues is Saturday announces Jack Barber, District Administrator.

Boys and girls ages 6-12 may register this Saturday or Saturday, March 27. All Little Leaguers must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian and present proof of birth. Baptism and hospital certificates are not acceptable.

Registration is scheduled from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. for International Little League at the league's ballpark in the Industrial Park. Ed Lawson is serving as president of the International League this summer.

Ballplayers within the American Little League boundaries may register from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at the College Baptist Church activity building Saturday. Registration will be held at the same hours March 27 but at the American ballfield adjacent to the Howard College campus.

Ralph Jordan is president of American Little League.

National Little Leaguers will register from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at the National ballpark located on Highway 87 south at the American Legion building. Dearl Pittman is president of National Little League.

Registration is set for 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Texas Little League diamond located on the Bauer School property. President of Texas Little League is Johnny Greene.

Ballplayers in all leagues must sign-up at their respective parks March 22-26, beginning daily at 5:30 p.m.

A Big Spring city map designating the boundaries for all four Little Leagues is shown at the left. Ballplayers living within the boundaries of a league will play summer baseball in that league.

Fresno presents toughest defense

minutes," Jones predicts. "We've faced some teams recently that wanted to run, but not for the whole 40 minutes — five minutes, then slow it down and get it under control."

"I think we've shown with what we have coming off the bench that if any team wants to run with us, we'll wear them out."

The game will be played at the Civic Center, UAB's home court, where the Blazers have recorded a 52-8 record in the four years that the school has fielded a basketball team. UAB is 30-1 at home over the past two seasons.

Virginia Coach Terry Holland said he was less concerned about UAB's home court advantage than UAB's fine outside shooter, Oliver Robinson, who averaged 21 points a game this season.

Considering that UAB will try to deny Sampson the ball, Holland says he doesn't want his guards to completely quit trying to get it to Sampson inside.

"We don't want to get into that syndrome," he said.

UAB, 24-5, is bidding for a Final Four berth in only the fourth year of the school's basketball program. Should the Blazers make it, Coach Gene Bartow would become the first coach ever to take three teams to the championship tournament. He made previous trips to the Final Four with Memphis State and UCLA.

Minnesota, the Big 10 champion with a 23-5 record, depends on a big, strong front line, which Louisville Coach Denny Crum calls the most dominant in college basketball. Smith said his Cardinals will try to minimize the size disadvantage by out-running the Gophers.

"We're going to have to get position and make them come over our backs," he said. "We're not going to outjump those guys."

"After a miserable 2-7 start this year, Louisville turned things around and finished the year at 21-9. Crum feels his team is playing as well as any time this season.

"If we've got a chance to beat teams of this caliber any time during the season, it's now, because we are playing well," says Crum, who led the Cardinals to the NCAA title two seasons ago.

In the Division II championship at Springfield, Mass., Bakersfield State meets the District of Columbia and Florida Southern takes on Kentucky Wesleyan in the national semifinals Friday night. In the Division III national semifinals at Grand Rapids, Mich., Friday night, it's Stanislaus State against Wabash and Brooklyn College vs. Potsdam State.

Aggies battle Purdue Friday night

strong players. We don't know a lot about them. At this point in the season, there's not much you can do. You pretty well have your game plan ready."

Dayton Coach Don Donofrio: "For us to survive, we'll have to do a better job offensively than at Illinois."

Georgia, 18-11, will have the home court advantage for the third straight time in this tournament, hosting a Virginia Tech team with a 20-11 record and two victories over NCAA entrant Louisville. The Bulldogs beat Temple 73-60 and Maryland 83-69 in earlier games while Virginia Tech stopped Fordham 69-58 and Mississippi 61-59.

"I'd say both teams are going to run it up and down a little," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham of tonight's impending meeting with the Gobblers.

"We don't know that much about them — but just knowing (that they beat Louisville twice, and lost close games to Marquette and Memphis State) is enough."

Like Georgia, Purdue, 16-13, will be playing its third straight NIT game at home. The Boilermakers have never lost in post-season competition in Mackey Arena.

"It's tough to play on the road this time of the year unless you've really got some highly motivational factors," said Purdue Coach Gene Keady, noting the home-court advantage. "It's a tough place to play here."

Purdue, the 1974 NIT champion and 1979 runnerup, won three straight NIT games at Mackey Arena last year, then finished third in the tourney finals in New York, losing to Syracuse and then beating West Virginia. So far this year in the NIT, the Boilermakers have beaten Western Kentucky 72-65 and Rutgers 98-65.

Texas A&M, 20-10 this season, is coming off a 60-58 win over Lamar and 69-65 over Washington. The Aggies, in the NIT for the second time, are looking toward their first appearance in the Final Four.

"At home, we're much better with our transition game," said Keady. "Our kids are playing with pretty good confidence right now. I think that's the main thing."

Moses Malone the teacher

Two Cougars get special ed

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Cougar centers Larry Micheaux and Akeem Olajuwon had a special tutor in preparing for Friday's battle against fifth-ranked Missouri in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament — professional all-star Moses Malone of the Houston Rockets.

Malone, who spends his summers playing pickup basketball at a local recreation center with Micheaux and Olajuwon, dropped by practice Wednesday to wish the Cougars well in their battle against the Tigers.

"I played with most of these guys at the recreation center at Fondre and they've got a lot of great talent on this team," Malone said. "A lot of these guys will make it in pro ball."

Micheaux says playing against Malone in the summer prepared him for dominating centers like Stipanovich.

"Sure it concerns me going against a player like Stipanovich but I've played against Moses Malone too and he's quite an outstanding player," Micheaux said. "I think I'm capable of handling this guy because in the summer Mo and I just play against one another and I learned a lot from Mo."

Micheaux said he had worked on moves to the basket learned during summer sessions with Malone that often help him in games.

"If I need to get inside on a player, I just refresh my mind back to Moses and things that he did and it really helps," Micheaux said.

Malone said Olajuwon is good already but will get better with age.

"Right now he is 7-foot but he is young," Malone said. "A lot of people don't think he is strong, but I've played against this guy and he is real strong and can jump real well. He's a good intimidator."

"He is aggressive. Give him another year of getting back to the summer and working on his game. He's got a lot of talent but you've got to work with it and he's got to keep his mind on the game."

The Tigers plan a strong man to man defense against the quick Cougars

"I think we'll have an advantage playing man to man because our guys are faster," Micheaux said. "We get the ball out quicker and get it down court quicker."

Chicago 'Sobers' Mavs

ARM WRESTLING — Reggie Theus (34) of the Chicago Bulls has his arm intertwined with the arm of Dallas Mavericks' Jay Vincent (31) during the first period Wednesday night in Dallas. The two players went up for a rebound off the Bull's basket, with Vincent coming up with the ball.

DALLAS (AP) — Chicago reserve guard Ricky Sobers said it was just one of those nights and Dallas' Jay Vincent just shook his head and agreed.

Sobers scored 14 of his 20 points in the final quarter to break open a tight game and pace the Bulls to a 102-92 National Basketball Association victory over Dallas Wednesday night.

"For me it was one of those nights when all went well," said Sobers, who scored 10 points in one final period Bulls spurt that saw Chicago outscore Dallas 16-8.

"I had one of those big off nights, nothing went right for me at all," said Vincent, who was held to a paltry 13 points Wednesday night — a total 23 points below his 36.5 point-a-game average as a starter.

"This is the first time I've played that bad all year," added Vincent.

The score was tied 13 times and there were seven lead changes through the first three quarters of the game.

Dallas wasted a 10 point lead, 37-27, in the second period and needed an 80-foot shot at buzzer from Brad Davis to tie the score 46-46 at intermission.

But Davis' shot, which he threw up from the free throw line at the opposite end of the court, could not inspire the Mavericks in the second half.

Until the final period surge by Sobers, the Bulls had not led by more than five points.

"This was a big win for us," said Sobers. "Any time you win on the road, it is a big win."

Ronnie Lester led Bulls scorers with 27 points and Reggie Theus added 18.

Vincent shared Dallas scoring honors with Davis and Mark Aguirre at 13 points apiece.

"We didn't have as much hustle tonight as we did in practice. We took too many long shots and did not give the defense a chance to foul us," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "We have played so well for so long, but it looks like we may have hit a valley."

New Jersey 93 San Antonio 90

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The reason the New Jersey Nets executed their offense so well in public was because of the work done earlier in private.

Following the Nets' 93-90 National Basketball Association victory over the San Antonio Spurs Wednesday night, playmaker Clarence "Foons" Walker noted that the team merely went public with its drills from an intense practice Tuesday.

"We worked on isolating Ray (Williams) on one side," Walker said. "We knew that if he had half the court to himself, that by the time the defender got any help, Ray would be in the basket."

The Nets went to Williams often in the fourth quarter and he responded with 14 of his 20 points.

"I felt that I could beat (Johnny) Moore," said Williams, referring to his Spurs' defender. "I told the rest of the players to go to the other side of the court and give me room. It worked, just like in practice."

Williams starred offensively in the final quarter after having spent most of his early concentration on guarding George Gervin, the Spurs' 6-foot-7 guard who had entered the game leading the NBA in scoring with 33.5 points a game.

"But once he (Gervin) got in foul trouble, I knew he'd play a little tentative and I could be a little more offense-minded," Williams said.

Gervin, meanwhile, scored only 1 point in the final period before fouling out and finished with 24 points on nine-for-24 shooting from the floor.

Rookie forward Buck Williams led the Nets with 22 points.

The victory was only the fifth for the Nets in 23 games they have played against the Spurs since both joined the NBA in 1976.

The victory improved the Nets' record to 34-32, and dropped San Antonio to 40-25.

Homers lift Rangers to win

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Pat Putnam's second-inning home run started an 18-hit attack for Texas as the Rangers blasted the Minnesota Twins 12-4 Wednesday.

The Astros' lone run came in the bottom of the first inning. Tony Scott doubled, advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by Craig Reynolds and scored on a sacrifice fly by Danny Heep.

Boston's big break came in the second inning when Gordie Plafon, the Astros' losing pitcher, walked Ed Jurak, who then advanced to second on a throwing error by Reynolds.

Jurak went home on another Reynolds error, and Marc Sullivan scored on a single by winning pitcher Dennis Eckersley. Reid Nichols, Jerry Remy, Dave Stapleton and Wade Boggs also scored to give the Red Sox a 6-1 edge.

The Red Sox scored two more runs in the fourth inning off relief pitcher Billy Smith. Garry Hancock doubled and went to third on a single by Jurak, and Sullivan singled to make it 7-1. Julio Valdez brought Jurak home on a sacrifice fly.

Nearly everything green on St. Pat's Day

By The Associated Press
Thousands of Americans who dyed almost anything the color of a shamrock strutted down main streets, told jokes full of Irish blarney and tipped glasses of green champagne and beer on St. Patrick's Day.

The Chicago River turned its annual bright Kelly green and a steady Irish mist greeted parade-goers on New York City's Fifth Avenue.

In St. Paul, Minn., Jane Kiemen had to keep working as a checker at Applebaum's supermarket as the parade marched by, but she wore green lipstick and fingernail polish anyway.

In Savannah, Ga., nearly 200,000 people jammed the streets for that city's 158th annual parade.

"You won't be able to walk in a straight line," Police Capt. Ken Howard said of the crowds. "But, of course, nobody will be walking a straight line anyway, except maybe the police."

About 150,000 people lined a half-mile parade route in St. Paul, where one tavern owner did brisk business with his green champagne. A crowd of 125,000 watched 40,000 marchers and 76 floats in Chicago, and about half of the usual 1 million parade-goers in New York City braved a drizzle to watch an estimated 100,000 marchers.

In Hartford, Conn., green bagels were scattered throughout the Statehouse and Irish songs reverberated through the stone halls of the building. Rep. Richard Torpey, D-East Hartford, sang a bit of "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and eight girls in Irish costume danced in the Senate chamber.

At the White House, an Irish tenor, Frank Patterson, and his wife, Eily O'Grady, sang traditional songs for President Reagan, Prime Minister Charles Haughey and a large audience that included members of Congress, the Cabinet and the administration.

In Northern Ireland, however, Wednesday brought more violence. Roman Catholic youths in the town of Kilrea south of Londonderry hurled gasoline bombs and stones at police, who in return fired plastic bullets. In another scuffle nearby in the largely Protestant town of Crosskeys, Catholic youths confronted a busload of band members returning from a parade. Three people were arrested, officials said.

Northern Ireland's troubled political history also had its impact on gatherings in the United States. Reagan issued a statement saying that violence in Northern Ireland has "continued its generally downward trend... Perhaps most important, despite the sorrows of the past years, there are signs that the climate has improved for moderate political solutions." New York City's parade committee named as honorary grand marshal Bobby Sands, the first of the Irish hunger strikers to die last year. His picture and those of nine other hunger strikers who died were carried in the parade, along with white crosses bearing their names. Sands' brother, Sean, was among the marchers.

Four persons enter guilty pleas in 118th District Court

Four persons pleaded guilty before 118th District Judge Jim Gregg Tuesday and received sentences.

Lonnel Lott was given three years in the Texas Department of Corrections for aggravated assault — threat with a deadly weapon. Also receiving a sentence to TDC was Jim Bob Probated sentences were assessed to Raymond Puga Nunez and Earl Dennis Kolden. Nunez was given three years probation for auto burglary while Kolden received two years probation for felony DWI.

Economist urges restraint on spending increases

By The Associated Press
A Nobel prize-winning economist thinks Congress is making too much of federal budget deficits, but he says the preoccupation at least is keeping Congress from attempting spending increases that would fuel inflation as they stimulate the economy.

"All this talk about deficits, all this concentration about compromise and so on is a sign of the absolute triumph of (President Reagan's economic) policy," Milton Friedman said Wednesday.

In previous recessions, however, politicians clamored for "increased government spending to get people to work," and that put pressure on inflation, he said.

Friedman, a conservative who has argued relentlessly against government regulation, rose to prominence partly through his expansion of the theory that control of the money supply, rather than government spending and taxing policy, is the most effective means of affecting the level of economic activity. He won the Nobel Memorial Prize in economics in 1976.

Friedman told a conference in Atlanta that lower spending and Federal Reserve Board action to control money growth could reduce the inflation rate to 3 percent in three years. If not, he warned, inflation could climb to 25 percent.

In Washington, American Stock Exchange Chairman Arthur Levitt Jr. emphasized the record deficits being projected should not be dismissed as unimportant.

In a speech to the National Press Club, he called for reducing the growth of the defense budget, cutting back spending on Social Security and other federal entitlement programs and examining corporate tax benefits included in last year's tax package in an effort to pare the government's shortfall.

"Now the president is learning that deficits matter a great deal," Levitt said. Levitt has served on a Reagan task force aimed at spurring charities and businesses to do more for their communities. He also served Jimmy Carter's administration, heading the White House Commission on Small Business.

Many economists blame high government spending for adding to growing budget deficits, which are forcing massive government borrowing. That borrowing to pay the government's bills, they say, along with credit-tightening by the Federal Reserve, is keeping interest rates high and delaying economic recovery.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve reported Wednesday there was some improvement in factory use in February after six months of decline. But government and private analysts warned the number could dip again in March as manufacturers remain reluctant to resume full production.

The Fed said U.S. manufacturers operated their plants at 71.8 percent of capacity last month — a 1.2 percent gain from the previous month.

SUPPORT ERODES
— Arthur Levitt Jr., chairman of the American Stock Exchange, tells a National Press Club audience Wednesday that Wall Street backing for President Reagan's economic program has fallen off.

Venezuela predicts rough meet

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — OPEC's emergency meeting Friday to deal with the world oil glut is going to be a rough one, but the Saudis will defend the $34 benchmark price, Venezuela's energy minister said today.

"It's going to be a difficult meeting. It's a difficult situation. I don't believe we can make a final decision of production levels," said Energy Minister Humberto Calderon, who was among the early arrivals for the meeting.

Calderon said Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter, will defend its price before the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. "I think the effort is needed, that's our position," he told reporters.

Venezuela has had trouble selling some of its oil products since the glut developed, being forced to cut production and exports.

The glut is pushing prices lower, OPEC production is at a 13-year low and its petrodollar surplus is fast dwindling. Internal bickering, while always present, seems to be growing.

Some analysts believe that unless OPEC drastically reduces its production, its members will launch a free-for-all in price cutting to avoid losing customers. That could push oil prices to $25 a barrel or lower. The current contract price averages about $33 a barrel.

For nearly a decade OPEC flaunted its power to set prices, and in doing so reshaped the economic paths of the industrialized West. Now OPEC is seeing its strength sapped by such non-OPEC producers as Mexico and Great Britain.

By forcing prices higher in the 1970s, OPEC spurred the importing nations to conserve, to find oil outside the Middle East and to use alternative fuel sources.

As a result, Great Britain and Norway — which had virtually no oil production before 1967 — have rapidly developed rich oil fields in the North Sea. Production there now exceeds 2.4 million barrels a day and is growing.

The increased output from non-OPEC countries has come at a critical time for the oil group. Its competitors have cut prices far below the Saudi Arabian price of $34 a barrel, around which other OPEC members set their prices. As a result, oil customers are walking away from OPEC contracts.

And many energy analysts believe OPEC will be forced to reduce its benchmark price in order to avoid a further, possibly disastrous, erosion of its finances.

Economist urges restraint on spending increases

By The Associated Press
A Nobel prize-winning economist thinks Congress is making too much of federal budget deficits, but he says the preoccupation at least is keeping Congress from attempting spending increases that would fuel inflation as they stimulate the economy.

"All this talk about deficits, all this concentration about compromise and so on is a sign of the absolute triumph of (President Reagan's economic) policy," Milton Friedman said Wednesday.

In previous recessions, however, politicians clamored for "increased government spending to get people to work," and that put pressure on inflation, he said.

Friedman, a conservative who has argued relentlessly against government regulation, rose to prominence partly through his expansion of the theory that control of the money supply, rather than government spending and taxing policy, is the most effective means of affecting the level of economic activity. He won the Nobel Memorial Prize in economics in 1976.

Friedman told a conference in Atlanta that lower spending and Federal Reserve Board action to control money growth could reduce the inflation rate to 3 percent in three years. If not, he warned, inflation could climb to 25 percent.

In Washington, American Stock Exchange Chairman Arthur Levitt Jr. emphasized the record deficits being projected should not be dismissed as unimportant.

In a speech to the National Press Club, he called for reducing the growth of the defense budget, cutting back spending on Social Security and other federal entitlement programs and examining corporate tax benefits included in last year's tax package in an effort to pare the government's shortfall.

"Now the president is learning that deficits matter a great deal," Levitt said. Levitt has served on a Reagan task force aimed at spurring charities and businesses to do more for their communities. He also served Jimmy Carter's administration, heading the White House Commission on Small Business.

Many economists blame high government spending for adding to growing budget deficits, which are forcing massive government borrowing. That borrowing to pay the government's bills, they say, along with credit-tightening by the Federal Reserve, is keeping interest rates high and delaying economic recovery.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve reported Wednesday there was some improvement in factory use in February after six months of decline. But government and private analysts warned the number could dip again in March as manufacturers remain reluctant to resume full production.

The Fed said U.S. manufacturers operated their plants at 71.8 percent of capacity last month — a 1.2 percent gain from the previous month.

Gag order issued in Rep. Martin's case

FREDERICKSBURG, Texas (AP) — Indicted Rep. Mike Martin's latest trip into the courtroom had reporters scrambling for their lawyers and a publicity-wary judge slapping a gag order on everyone in sight.

The reporters won their battle to keep the retrial hearing open Wednesday, but State District Judge Robert Barton ended the session by barring anyone who knows anything about the case from talking with reporters.

Martin, R-Longview, sat quietly through the three-day retrial hearing. The freshman lawmaker, charged with aggravated perjury, is accused of lying to Travis County grand jurors in August when he denied staging his own shooting. Prosecutors say Martin planned the July 31 Austin shooting — he was wounded in the elbow by shotgun blasts — as a publicity stunt.

Defense lawyer Frank Maloney won no major victories during three days of motions. Barton turned down a defense request to move the trial away from here because of extensive publicity. The case came to Gillespie County in Central Texas because of news coverage in Austin.

After Maloney invited reporters into the courtroom with subpoenas for the change of venue motion, he kicked them out by persuading Barton the testimony on other motions was too hot to be reported. The judge, agreeing that potential jurors could be prejudiced by news coverage of the testimony, closed the hearing despite reporters' objections.

On Wednesday, lawyer Jim George, representing the Austin American-Statesman, Dallas Morning News and Dallas television station WFAA, came into town with a solution approved by Barton.

"We exist to have our cake and eat it too," George said in proposing a solution to the dilemma of protecting Martin's constitutional right to a retrial and the reporter's constitutional right to cover it up.

Under the George solution, Barton decided to reopen the hearing. Matters which did not include potentially prejudicial testimony were heard Wednesday in open court.

"How can that be the kind of emotional evidence that is going to pollute the pool of jurors in Gillespie County?" George said of those motions.

The second half of the solution involves $166 motions which will draw testimony that could be damaging to Martin. Barton said those motions will be heard after jurors are selected and sequestered, as suggested by George. The trial is scheduled to begin April 19, about two weeks before Martin faces two opponents in the May 1 Republican primary.

After the jurors are picked, Barton will hear Maloney's motion to dismiss the indictment. The defense lawyer claims Martin was entrapped by law enforcement officers. A motion to suppress Martin's grand jury testimony also will be heard.

Barton denied several different attempts to dismiss the indictment Wednesday. Maloney argued the indictment was no good because grand jurors were not investigating a crime when Martin appeared because, if Martin indeed planned the shooting, it's possible that no crime was committed.

"There was no crime under investigation, otherwise (the indictment) would have alleged it," said Maloney.

Barton and the lawyers in the case worked out plans to allow the defense to see some of the evidence gathered by prosecutor Bill Wilms.

The judge closed the hearing by invoking a gag order on "the defendant, the defendant's attorneys, the state's attorneys and any witnesses in the retrial hearing or the trial."

Barton barred those people from "discussing with any member of the press or news media any evidence or testimony which may be offered or presented during the trial of the case."

MH-MR board chairman raps 'witch hunt'

By JAY ROSSER Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — After grueling questioning Monday by an interim Texas House committee appointed to investigate the Texas Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation, the agency's board chairman said the probe has turned into a witch hunt.

And that's just what the committee chairman, State Rep. Walter Grubbs of Merkel, promised three months ago would not happen.

"I think it is not constructive for the department," L. Gray Beck of San Angelo told a reporter after the meeting. "The very process we're going through tends to undermine the department."

Beck was upset at questioning by the House Selection Committee to Investigate the Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation regarding his role in the MH-MR administration.

"It's very disconcerting to volunteer your time and have to face something like this," he said.

At issue during Monday's six-hour meeting was whether Beck is ignoring legislation passed by the Texas Legislature in 1981.

That legislation directed the MH-MR board to handle policy issues and leave the day-to-day running of the agency to its commissioner.

Of particular interest to the committee was whether Beck played a major role in the decision to fire Richmond State School

Hit-and-run suspect gives up in Midland

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

Big Spring highway patrolman Dean Richardson was scheduled to travel to Midland this morning to pick up a man who turned himself in after allegedly hitting and killing a pedestrian on Interstate 20 near Big Spring early Tuesday morning.

According to the Midland office of the Texas Department of Public Safety, 25-year-old Rodney Walton of Midland surrendered to the Midland County Sheriff's Office at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in connection with the hit-and-run accident.

Seventy-three-year-old Andrew Thomas was found dead near the east-bound lanes of I-20 in the vicinity of the Cosden refinery at about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday, according to Richardson, who investigated the case.

Thomas, a Dallas resident, apparently had been walking along the interstate when a motorist hit and killed him, Richardson said.

The DPS had been stymied in following up on the accident because there were no apparent witnesses. Walton then went to the Midland sheriff's office late Tuesday morning and admitted having hit Thomas, said DPS spokesman Joyce Woods in Midland.

Richardson said he would carry a warrant with him to Midland, charging Walton with failure to stop and render aid.

The charge is a felony because the victim died, Richardson explained.

"The crime is not that he ran over the man but that he didn't stop. The law says you're supposed to stop immediately and render aid," Richardson said.

Local minister testifies at Haitians trial in Miami

The Rev. Guy Allen White, pastor of East Fourth Street Baptist Church here in Big Spring, testified Tuesday in Miami, Fla., against the government in a class-action suit that seeks to end the federal detention of 2,100 Haitians in the United States.

White and an official of the Rochester, N.Y., Catholic diocese hook the stand to charge they were frustrated by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service when they tried to help Haitian refugees.

White testified before U.S. District Judge Eugene Spellman that he headed a committee that sought sponsors for Haitians detained last year at the Big Spring Federal Prison.

White said he repeatedly tried to contact William Powell — his district's INS director — but said that his telephone calls were never returned.

Finally, he said Powell talked to him by telephone. "I told him I had jobs and homes (for the Haitians.) He told me his hands were tied, and that no one would be released."

White said he was told to write to the INS commissioner in Washington. He did, but never received a reply, he said.

The suit brought by Kurzban, Marie Lucie Jean, et al, vs. the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service seeks to end the year-old policy of detaining illegal aliens until the lengthy sylum-deportation process is complete.

In other action Tuesday government prosecutors vigorously objected to Ira Kurzban, attorney for the Haitian Refugee Center, Inc. calling a Miami attorney as a potential witness in the trial.

Tuesday Kurzban requested the court call attorney Joel Hirschhorn as a witness.

But Kurzban's request brought harsh objections from Justice Department attorney Robert Bombaugh and Assistant U.S. Attorney

Thomas Mosely.

"They cannot call Mr. Hirschhorn," Bombaugh said. "He is an arm of the court."

"They can no more call Hirschhorn than they can call a magistrate or a judge's secretary to testify for them," Mosely added.

The prosecutor's objection was made in reference to Hirschhorn's prior involvement in the Haitian case as an investigator for U.S. District Judge James W. Kehoe, formerly in charge of the Haitian trial.

Hirschhorn was called on by Kehoe in November to investigate claims by the government that hundreds of Haitian refugees were abandoning their request for admission to the United States.

Hirschhorn visited campgrounds at Fort Allen, Puerto Rico; LaTuna, Texas and Otisville, N.Y. He interviewed hundreds of refugees and returned to testify in detail of what he found and also submitted a written report to Kehoe.

The appearance of Hirschhorn was delayed Tuesday to give government prosecutors time to marshal their objections to the request, said U.S. District Judge Spellman, who is hearing the suit.

Hirschhorn was called into the courtroom from a corridor by Spellman, who told the attorney he would probably be heard sometime next week.

Big Spring convict flees from New Mexico facility

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

Big Spring police are on the lookout for a man who reportedly escaped from the custody of the New Mexico Corrections Department Monday.

The man, 23-year-old James Allen Isaac, had been placed in a work-release program by New Mexico authorities but allegedly failed to appear at an inmate pickup point Monday afternoon.

Isaac, who had been placed in a work-release program with a Roswell, N.M., employer, may have decided to head for the Big Spring area because he once lived here and has relatives in the Midland-Odessa area, police said.

According to records in the Howard County District Attorney's office, Isaac had been convicted of burglary of a motor vehicle in 1977 and received five years' probation.

His probation was revoked in September 1978 based upon a subsequent burglary of a habitation charge, for which he was sentenced to eight years in the Texas Department of Corrections, according to DA records.

Isaac apparently had been paroled, District Attorney Rick Hamby said, when he was convicted in New Mexico of illegal possession of credit cards and escape from a police officer.

Jeff Pederson, a spokesman for the

New Mexico Corrections Department, told the Associated Press Isaac had entered prison in April 1979 and was paroled in November 1980.

In April 1981 Isaac was accused by Howard County authorities of forgery and had a warrant issued for his arrest, Hamby said. Isaac was then arrested and returned to New Mexico as a parole violator in September 1981, according to Pederson.

Isaac is believed to have stolen a pickup truck when he disappeared Monday.

"Neither he nor the pickup truck has been sighted or found," Pederson said late yesterday afternoon. "It is possible he may have gone to Texas."

Suspect held in shooting

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A charge of murder was expected to be filed today against a 63-year-old man following the shooting death of 34-year-old Gary Jink Jones of Colorado City Saturday.

According to Mitchell County Sheriff Wendall Bryant, the incident occurred Saturday at about 11:30 a.m.

Jones, a truck driver, was shot following an argument, Bryant said.

The sheriff said a shotgun was recovered at the scene of the shooting about a mile north of Colorado City.

Graveside services for Jones will be held at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Colorado City Cemetery under the direction of Kiker-Seale Funeral Home.

Johnnie Lou Avery

Open for business

JOHN H. VAN DE WALKER, Field Construction Manager for UNION CARBIDE CORPORATION, reported that they have started preliminary dirt work for the Big Spring Union Carbide Plant. Look for formal ground-breaking ceremonies in mid-April. They have already let the first contracts: one for site preparation and one for building the cooling tower and nitrogen storage tank.

It was just reported by the National Safety Council that the chemical industry now ranks as the safest of 43 basic industries. A chemical worker is 4 times safer than the average U.S. employee, citing an accident rate of only 6.9 percent per 1000 employees compared to 27.9 percent for all industries. As if to prove this point, our own Cosden Oil and Chemical Company is now at 1,259,180 manhours without a loss-time accident — this is 336 days accident free. JIMMY WOOD, COSDEN Safety Engineer, added that prior to this, Cosden employees worked an astounding 2,235,000 manhours without losing work days because of accidents!

Housing costs are driving buyers to mobile homes all over the nation, according to the Merrill Lynch Market Letter. If you would like to see some of the giant strides being made in that industry's products, visit our local CAMEO ENERGY HOMES MANUFACTURING PLANT on any of the Saturdays or Sundays left in this month and see their full line of styles, colors, sizes, and prices. You will be amazed at this product showing!

If your dog happens to bite a mail carrier, you now stand to be sued by the U.S. Postal Service. As part of a new program to defend personnel and cut costs, the Service may press a suit even if the carrier doesn't. Estimates put the annual cost of dog bites at approximately $2.4 million. FRANK HARDESTY, local postmaster, said they have never sued anyone here, but for the past three or four years, when a dog bites a carrier, it costs the owner for the doctor's examination, shots, and any other expenses involved. In addition, most carriers also have with them a dog repellent spray; and a carrier has a right to refuse to deliver mail to houses in an area that has a dog running loose.

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce has been selected as the Small Business Administration Resource Center. Among other resources they will offer is to work with SCORE and ACE personnel to assist the needs of small businesses.

Mark this important date on your calendar which will aid members of two of our most important community groups: youth and senior citizens. CAROLYN McCARTY, Senior Citizen Administrator, reported that on March 20 a benefit dinner-dance will be held at the Center (the old Webb Officers' Club) co-sponsored by the Senior Citizens and Howard County Youth Boxing Association. All proceeds will be split equally between buying building insurance for the Senior Citizen Center and equipment for the boxing team. The tickets are $8, which includes dinner at 7 p.m., a boxing exhibition at 8 p.m. and a dance from 9 to 11:30. The Big Spring Camp Outlaw Country Band will provide the music. Everybody of all ages is invited.

QUICK TIME-SAVER TIPS FOR BUSINESS PEOPLE: Assertiveness is a time saver. If you can't say no, if you shy away from conflict situations, or if your major concern is being well liked, you can't manage effectively or efficiently. Test your assertiveness: Do you feel guilty when you have to turn down a request even if your decision is entirely justified? Do you agonize over the prospect of turning in a poor evaluation report for a committee member or coworker? Do you sometimes feel that others are taking advantage of your "good nature"? Do you feel extremely uncomfortable when called on to take sides in a dispute? When an unpleasant assignment comes along, is your first impulse to handle it yourself rather than delegate it up or down the decision-making ladder?

This column is written by Johnnie Lou Avery, president of Avery & Associates, West Texas Program Bureau, Property Management Systems, and Professional Service Bureau, and co-owner of Yes! Business Services. Her offices are located at 218 Permian Building and her phone number is 263-1451. She welcomes your comments about this column.

The Mall Street Journal

Well, it's time again for another Mall Street Journal where I get a chance to brag about the goings-on out here at the new Big Spring Mall. We've been open for two weeks and things couldn't be looking better. This month, by the way, drop by and drop in your lose change in the fountain, all the money taken from the fountain this month will go to the Easter Seals. Next month all the proceeds will be going to the Lions Club White Cane Day. Giving the money from the fountain is one of the ways the Big Spring Mall hopes to help the various deserving concerns thru-out Big Spring and Howard County. Also plans are being made for an Art Show next month on the 17th and 18th, make plans to attend. There is also plans for a Flea Market that will be coming to the Big Spring Mall around the first of May, to me there is nothing more fun than a good old fashioned flea market.

Now let's take a walk down the Mall and see some of the fine values and attractions the Big Spring Mall has to offer you right now. In Emphasis we find that the manager Bobbie Holmes has just received a load of Evening and Prom dresses, while over at J.C. Penney there will be a sale on women and children's shoes now thru Saturday. Helen Vaughn the owner of Helens has a group of shoes on sale at 25% off while just next door at Gordon's, Diamond Solitaires are 20% off thru Saturday, and 14K necklaces are 50% off. Feel like a haircut or style, Regis has not got the Softcurl and Highlighting, also Regis would like to announce the addition of Lovie Harrison to their fine professional staff. Well, you should be getting tired by now so stop by Jennys Old Time treats or Peanut Shack and get a cold drink or a snack. While you're at Jennys pick up a solid milk chocolate Easter bunny and register for a free stuffed bunny. Joan Cohn of Peanut Shack would also like to announce that she will soon have popcorn. Over at Bealls you will find that the Levis boot cut denim jeans that were regularly $21.00 are now $16.88 and the short and long sleeve western shirts that are regularly $18.00 are now $11.88. Space Dual is now at Aladdins Castle, this game is guaranteed fun for kids of all ages and is new from Atari. At Zales, Rick Miller and his fine group are still having their Grand opening sale thru Saturday. Not to be out-done Roxanne Rich at the Kopper Kettle has just received a shipment of clay wine coolers and party trays, and an order is in on candles which should be here soon. Last but not least Gage Mims at Radio Shack, fine gentleman that he is, has put his 50 Wait Speakers on sale at half price, he has also reduced the prices on his multi meters and cassette players.

Well this brings to an end another Mall Street Journal, I hope it has been informative. "You'll" come see the New Big Spring Mall, we want to grow with you.

Mark Sheedy, Mall Manager

Cities served by CRMWD are showing heftier thirst

Cities served by the Colorado River Municipal Water District are showing a heftier thirst during the first two months of this year.

For February, municipalities received 932,873,500 gallons of water, or 12.72 per cent more than for February 1981. This brought to 1,973,045,900 gallons for the first two months, up 15.12 per cent for the cities.

Oil and industrial users also took more water, or 174,439,367 gallons, a gain of 12.35 per cent. For the first two months, these deliveries aggregated 386,408,705 gallons, up 21.01 per cent.

For January and February deliveries amounted to 2,359,454,605 gallons, about 326,000,000 gallons or 16.04 per cent more.

The initial 10 days of March are showing even greater percentage gains.

For February Odessa took 420,182,000 gallons, up 17.42 per cent; Big Spring 202,982,000 gallons, up 16.30 per cent; Snyder 65,011,000 gallons, up 9.00 per cent; Stanton 8,976,000 gallons, up 21.43 per cent. The Midland draw of 233,410,000 gallons was up only 1.88 per cent, but then Midland only receives part of its total supply from the district.

Special recipes give meals the Irish touch

The Irish have given the world a heritage of more than food. But many meals including Corned Beef and Cabbage and, of course, the versatile potato, reflect the influence of the Irish.

Many cities will salute St. Patrick's Day by dyeing their rivers green and serving green beer. But for those who prefer to celebrate quietly, these recipes can help bring the spirit of Ireland to your home. Happy St. Patrick's Day!

IRISH STEW

1 1/2 pounds lamb or mutton, cut into 1/2-inch cubes
3/4 cup onions, sliced 1/4-inch thick
2 1/2 pounds potatoes, sliced 1/4-inch thick
salt and pepper to taste
1 bay leaf
2 cups boiling stock or water
2 Tbsp. finely chopped parsley

In bottom of a heavy pan, place a layer of potatoes, a layer of meat and a few slices of onion. Repeat twice, ending with potatoes on top and seasoning each layer with salt and pepper. Add bay leaf. Pour stock or water over top and sprinkle with parsley. Bring to a boil. Cover and simmer gently about 2 1/2 hours or till meat is tender. Shake pot periodically to keep potatoes from sticking. When done, all moisture should be absorbed by potatoes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

LEFTOVER POTATOES O'BRIEN

6 medium-sized leftover boiled potatoes
1 cup seeded green pepper, membrane removed
1 onion, minced
1 Tbsp. flour
salt and pepper to taste
3/4 cup grated cheese
1 cup hot milk
Dice potatoes. Add pepper, onion, flour, salt and pepper and cheese. Place in greased baking dish. Pour hot milk over all. Sprinkle with light covering of bread crumbs. Dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

ST. PATRICK'S GREEN RICE

2 drops green food coloring
2 cups chicken broth
3/4 cup minced green onions and tops
3 Tbsp. olive oil
1/2 cup minced green pepper
1 cup uncooked rice
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 cup minced parsley
Add food coloring to broth. Cook onions in oil till soft but not brown. Add remaining ingredients, cover and cook about 15 minutes. Fluff with fork. Press into shamrock mold, let stand one minute. Unmold and garnish with parsley around edges of shamrock design. Rice may also be baked, covered, in a casserole for about 45 minutes or until set. Makes 6 servings.

POTATO HAM PIE

Sherry Howell
A crust of potatoes, a filling of ham, cheese and chilies. A good brunch idea.
3 Tablespoons salad oil
1/2 cup chopped onion
3 cups frozen hash brown potatoes
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, slightly beaten
3/4 cup milk
3 Tablespoons chopped canned green chilies
1 can (8 3/4-oz.) chunk ham
1 cup (4-oz.) grated Cheddar cheese
Preheat oven to 400 Degrees F. Heat oil in medium skillet. Add onion and saute until soft, about 3 to 5 minutes. Add frozen potatoes and salt. Cook over medium heat until potatoes start to brown, about 10 minutes, turning occasionally. Pat mixture evenly into bottom and sides of 9-inch quiche pan or pie plate. Bake 20 minutes.
In medium bowl combine eggs, milk and chilies. Spread ham and grated cheese on potato crust; pour in egg mixture. Reduce oven temperature to 375 Degrees F. and continue baking 30 minutes or until set and lightly golden. Makes 6 servings, about 335 calories each.

HEAVENLY DESSERT

Sherry Howell

1 cup whipped topping
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
Mix together, spread on cooled crust.
Second layer:
2 packages instant pudding

Bake at 450 Degrees F. until golden brown (Approximately 15 minutes). Can be refrigerated or frozen before baking.

Dear Abby

Pregnancy is a two way affair

DEAR ABBY: You recently stated that if the parents of an unborn child cannot agree whether or not to terminate the pregnancy, the decision should be the mother's "because it is her body." I disagree. Pregnancy is not simply a state of a woman's body. It is also a stage in another person's life, and that person has not only his-her own identity, but another parent whose contribution to and interest in that person are every bit as vital as those of the mother.

The whole issue of abortion is difficult enough when both parents agree. But to deny one parent his share in that decision, just because he doesn't agree with the other parent who by biological accident happens to be in control, is unconscionable.

If the father is willing to assume responsibility for childrearing, his wishes should carry the same weight as the mother's. Some way should be found to compensate the mother for the inconvenience and potential hazard of the pregnancy.

After all, you could not claim as your own another person's car parked in your garage.

HERBERT S. HEINEMAN, M.D., PHILADELPHIA

DEAR DR. HEINEMAN: So what happens if the woman insists on terminating the pregnancy even though the man is opposed to it? Since there can be no compromise, the woman's wishes should prevail, assuming she finds no amount of compensation acceptable for the "inconvenience and potential hazard of the pregnancy" — in addition to bearing a child she does not want. And by the way, Dr. Heineman, a woman's body is not a garage that can be rented by the week or month.

Maintaining Your Car: Check tire pressure regularly.

Underinflated tires increase gas use. You can lose about 2 percent in fuel economy for every pound of pressure under the recommended pounds-per-square-inch.

Dawson County to hold 'Sew It With Cotton' contest

The Mesa Cotton Promotion Council is sponsoring the 1982 "Sew It With Cotton" contest. The contest will be held at the Women's Study Club, 101 Juniper Drive, Lamesa, May 1 from 10-11 a.m. Judging will be at 5:30 p.m. April 30 and contestants will need to be there by 5 p.m.

Entries should include the person's name, address, telephone number, where material was purchased, the material brand name, fabric content, category (where garment is to be judged), who made it, who will model it, the pattern brand and number, and the salesperson's signature to verify fabric content of at least 60 percent cotton. Specify if the garment is an original design and the name of the designer.

Attach a completed description of the garment and accessories to the entry form for the narrator's use. Enclose a 3 x 5 inch sample of fabric with the entry form. The entry deadline is 5 p.m. April 24. Entries should be sent to Anderson Fabrics, Lamesa, TX 79331 or to Alta's Fabrics, Lamesa, TX 79331.

First, second and third prizes will be given in each category. The decision of the judges will be final.

Bonus points will be given for 100 percent cotton garments. All parts of the outer garment(s) must be at least 60 percent cotton. A small amount of trimming of another fabric is acceptable at the neck, waist, hem and sleeves. Lining, interfacing and innerfacings may be of any fabric. Cotton bonded to synthetic is not accepted, but cotton quilted to a synthetic is accepted. A portion of an ensemble may not be bought readymade. For example, if a blouse, skirt, or similar item is needed, a readymade will not be accepted. A portion of one ensemble (blouse, shirt, or similar item) may be used to complete another entry. Accessories are items not permanently attached such as belts, dickers, ties, scarves, detachable collars and cuffs. Accessories may be any natural or synthetic fabric, leather or plastic.

Garments will be judged according to suitability of garment to category, fit, suitability of style and fabric to model and overall eye appeal. In case of a tie, garments will be re-judged on the model with the entire category reshown.

Bailey Marshall, athletic director, Interscholastic League in Austin said, "Please note that all activities not sponsored by the League were removed from the Amateur Rule and the Awards Rule in September 1971. If the criteria for determining a winner in a contest does not involve a student's participation in a League activity, the Amateur and-or Awards Rules would not be violated."

ELDRED GRAY... certified public accountant

Eldred Gray can help you gain from tax act

This is income tax time. April 15 is only a little over three weeks away and you're probably looking for ways to get the most out of your return. Because of the Economic Recovery Act, your tax preparations are most important if you are to receive the best benefit possible.

It's complicated, but Eldred Gray, a Big Spring certified public accountant can help you sort through it all.

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing you need to do is review your entire tax plan so that you can benefit from the tax act. It's too late to do that for 1981, but Eldred Gray can help you make the smallest income tax payments possible. And he can get you started on a review of your tax plan for 1982.

Although it is against the law to not pay income tax, it is wise to pay as little income tax as possible. The government has given tax breaks for a number of things to make individuals' payments lower. Eldred Gray can help you find and use those breaks.

Among the things that can be deducted to make tax payments smaller are moving expenses, energy saving measures for the home, and job related expenses. Political contributions and contributions to charitable organizations can also be written off for savings to the taxpayers.

ALL OF THIS is not easy to understand; it often takes several different forms to get the needed breaks. Eldred E. Gray can help you. He has the qualifications necessary. He's been a certified public accountant for 15 years and has 25 years experience in preparing income tax forms. He knows the best ways to claim exemptions and deductions and can help you take advantage of the tax laws to the greatest advantage.

Eldred E. Gray is a self-employed accountant working in Big Spring. Call him today to make an appointment, and take a taxing load off your mind. Call Mr. Gray at 263-5938. He also offers services for bookkeeping, money management, and audits. He is open in the evenings for your convenience.

FOR JOB PLACEMENT... see Big Spring Employment

Big Spring Employment puts right person in job

Success in finding a job or in finding the right person to fill a position is better assured by calling a professional employment service such as Big Spring Employment Agency, located in the Coronado Plaza.

Finding the right person for the right job is the duty of Mrs. Sue Brown and Mrs. Rubi Taroni, the experienced personnel counselors at Big Spring Employment.

EACH EMPLOYER has the right to demand the person best qualified for the job, considering the requirements for the work, the salary to be offered and the availability of applicants. With this in mind, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Taroni carefully evaluate each applicant so employers do not waste time interviewing persons not qualified for the job opening. The agency refers only those who measure up to the job's requirements.

efficiency of employees tends to rise. Many highly qualified job applicants prefer to use the services of a private employment agency, thus protecting their own identity.

BIG SPRING EMPLOYMENT carries on an extensive testing program in the area of office skills, exposing applicants to personnel tests in business and industrial situations.

Both the employment counselors and the employers may refer to these tests as an indicator of future possibilities. All services are handled on a confidential basis. From the minimum-wage clerk to the highly-paid executive, job applicants come to Big Spring Employment because they know private agencies are specialists in job-hunting and can, because of experience and contacts, place them in desirable jobs sooner than they can locate job themselves. Applicants desiring employment in other parts of the state or country can be referred for interviews through associated agencies.
