NOT A BIT RATTLED — Dolly Hale, one of the "Pit Masters" who are working with the snakes at the Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup, doesn't seem to be bothered by this slippery character. The roundup will run through Sunday. It is open until 6 p.m. today, from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday and from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday. It all takes place at the Howard County Fair Barns.

Snakes to rattle for local charity

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The 20th Annual Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup sponsored by the Ambucs began today at 1 p.m. at the Howard County Fair Barns. This year the Ambucs are planning to buy up to a maximum of 2,500 pounds of snakes at $4 per pound, according to Tom Vernon, a member of the club.

Money raised by the rattle roundup will go to the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center or to local charity.

Time for the event will be: Friday 1-6 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and Sunday 1-6 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children. Vernon said last year's roundup drew between 6,000 and 7,000 spectators.

Snake hunters may register from 1 p.m. Friday until 3 p.m. Sunday and fees are $5 per hunter. Vernon said the club will only buy snakes for local hunters this year and no snakes from outside of the surrounding Big Spring area will be purchased.

Handling the pit duties this year are the Pit Masters from Gainesville who will perform stunts, milking and handling demonstrations. In addition to pit shows there will be a flea market and several arts and crafts booths at the fair.

"Everything is ready to go. We wanted a show this year that would be good family entertainment and I think we have something to offer each member of the family," Vernon said.

THE PIT MASTERS — This snake handling club from Gainesville, Texas will be entertaining Howard County residents at the fairbarns for this year's Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup. ## Board in no hurry to name juvenile probation officer

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Confusion as to who can call a meeting of the Howard County Juvenile Probation Board has kept the board from selecting one of three remaining candidates for the juvenile probation officer position, vacated by retiring Ed Cherry in January.

Board members contacted by The Herald said attempts will be made in February for a meeting of the full board, but various members were unable to attend due to business or personal reasons. The full board last met Jan. 11 following the last working day of Cherry.

A selection committee of three board members was appointed then to narrow applicants for the position—a task completed the first week in February according to the selection committee chairman, Carol Hunter.

Big Spring Independent School District Board President Hunter said the committee had three applicants to present to the entire board for the final selection.

THE DECISION to have all seven board members meet to make the final selection was agreed upon by the board at the Jan. 11 meeting, Hunter said.

"It is my understanding the board chairman should call a meeting of the board," Hunter said. She said it was standing policy that a meeting of the full board would be called at the first opportunity.

Mrs. Hunter declined to name the final applicants because she had not discussed revealing their names with other board members.

The chairman of the juvenile probation board and acting juvenile probation officer is County Judge Bill Tune. Judge Tune was also one of the original candidates for the position announced on Jan. 11. Asked about when the board would meet to make the final selection, Tune said, "No one's contacted me about calling a meeting."

CAROL HUNTER
...board member

BILL TUNE
...county judge

The county judge said the juvenile probation business was continuing despite the absence of a regular officer. "We're working real well together with the police department and the schools," Tune said.

"Anytime they (the board) want a meeting, they can call me," Tune said.

BOARD MEMBER David Barr says he is ready to go over the applications and hire a juvenile probation officer, but the board can't seem to get together. "As I understand it, Carol Hunter has to call the meeting," Barr said.

County Commissioner Barr said the board had originally planned to make the final selection in February. "Back when we were supposed to do it, I missed two meetings and when I asked the other day, somebody else was out," Barr said.

Lynn Hise, Big Spring ISD superintendent and a member of the board, said the screening committee has not called a meeting for the full board to consider applicants. "Our last meeting was before Cherry's resignation. It's been difficult to get everybody together," Hise said.

Cherry's official resignation was on Jan. 29 although he last worked Jan. 8 and took vacation time until the end of the month.

Hise added that "time was getting away but that whenever we (the board) get together, we'll make the selection."

City Councilman Jack Y. Smith, also a juvenile probation board member, said the problem of not selecting a new officer yet was due to the inability of all board members to meet. "Every time we try to hold a meeting, somebody's out of pocket. Everybody just can't get together," Smith said.

Smith said he had been out of town for a week or so as well. He said he was aware that the screening committee had narrowed the applicants to three or four.

AN URGENT NEED for a county juvenile probation officer does not exist, according to school and police officials. While a juvenile probation officer is needed, the current vacancy has not hampered any work with juveniles. In fact, according to an official at Big Spring ISD in charge of student discipline, the current situation is a little better than the past set-up.

The school official, who asked to not be identified, said service with problem juveniles and students on probation was possibly better than in the past. "We have had good contact with Judge Tune, he's checking every day," the official said. "We need a juvenile officer, but there's no rush. If more time is needed, the juvenile board should take it."

The lack of a full-time county juvenile probation officer has not affected the work of Big Spring Police Juvenile Detective Pat Dunham either. "Things are working pretty good. I've had good cooperation getting cases to court. I see no major problems," she said.

Dunham said she usually counseled with most juveniles but had sent some to meet with Judge Tune, who is also the juvenile judge. Hearings for juveniles have been held with the youths accused of breaking into the Mall as well as a hearing Tuesday with two juveniles for local burglaries.

The other members of the juvenile probation board are County Commissioner William Crooker Jr. and City Councilman Robert Fuller.

'Oliver' provides worthy entertainment

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Great singing crowd scenes, a clutch of surprisingly quality performances and an effective use of live theatre makes the local production of "Oliver" a worthy night of entertainment for people of any age.

While the opening performance of "Oliver" is tonight, The Herald got a sneak preview of what the four presentations of the Spring City Theatre musical would be at the final dress rehearsal last night at the city auditorium. The cast of 83 is at its strongest when all sing.

The basic story of the musical is that of a young boy who goes from the grind of the workhouse to an undertaker's apprentice position. He escapes to join a ragtag group of child street thieves led by the lively Fagin. Most of the action—the best action—takes place within the world of the street people as they steal and as they play.

PERHAPS THE BEST individual performance comes from Lynn Smith who plays the role of Nancy, the streetwise woman of ill repute that still harbors a kind heart. Her solos are the highlight of the singing performances as she does "As Long as He Needs Me" and "It's a Fine Life." "It's a Fine Life" comes the closest to capturing the spirit of the Dickens novel. She manages to show the wistful combination of pride and pathos so admired by Dickens in her rendition of the number. Her singing on other numbers also raises the standard of those performances.

'OLIVER' TONIGHT
...with Taff Wennik

The lead role of Oliver is played effectively by young Taff Wennik, a mere wisp of a boy that could easily arouse sympathy from the most hard-hearted audience. Wennik handles his accent-laden lines well and possesses a clear singing voice. He is very believable as a victim of society swept along by all the elements of a sometimes-unkind world.

Another standout performance comes from Donnie Wheeler in the role of Fagin, the elfin leader of a band of urchin pickpockets. Wheeler delightfully overplays the outrageous thief who thrills in stealing from anyone. With his gangly arms and Groucho-like crouch, Wheeler reveals in his solos about picking pockets and changing his lifestyle.

Other effective performances come from Bobby Brasel as the Artful Dodger, happily leading Oliver into a life of crime; a fiendishly evil Bo Byrd as the villain Bill Sikes; Tammy Dyer as the clear-voiced Bette, one of the ladies of the night; Joan Brockman in a brief appearance as the amoral Widow Corley, capable of selling and starving children and Russel Stukel as the staid Mr. Brownlow, the savior of Oliver.

ACCOLADES TO the director, David Justice, for his use of the dimensions of live theatre in this production. From the opening number when the workhouse children walk singing onto the stage from the back of the auditorium to the climactic chase around the aisles in the last act, Justice involves his audience as much as possible.

When most of the cast goes sprinting up and down the aisles and the stage looking for the killer of Nancy, the three-dimensional reality of the stage truly comes to life. Justice also deserves credit for the outstanding sets which he coordinated and the cast built.

The show is filled with several nice touches: the rat on a perch in Fagin's den, the little girl overloaded with bowls in the first scene, the three bar girls swinging their hips during the "Bubble & Squeak" scene, the dancing during the "Oom-Pah-Pah" number, the colorful costumes through the play (courtesy of Kelly Draper).

Of course, no amateur production is without fault and this one is no exception. Occasional solos are not projected loud enough for the audience to hear over the music, particularly Oliver's. The music, provided by Art Castellor and the Howard County Jazz Lab Band, supports the players adequately, even superbly in the chase sequence, but an occasional sour note during quiet moments on stage was distracting at times.

Overall, the Spring City Theatre of "Oliver" is enjoyable for anyone willing to undertake the compulsory requirement of theatre attendance: the willing suspension of disbelief.

"Oliver" debuts today at 8 p.m. and plays Saturday also at 8 p.m. at the City Auditorium. The play will be presented April 2 and 3 as well. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for children and are available at Citizens Federal Credit Union.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Graduation quiz

Q. Why doesn't Howard College allow a person to participate in G.E.D. graduation ceremonies unless that person attended one of their learning centers even though the person received their G.E.D. from Howard College?

A. Josie Salazar, associate director of Howard College's Adult and Continuing Education program, says the graduation ceremony is set up as a public service for the participants of the learning center. Graduation is also used as a recruitment tool by the college so the graduates "help us as we help them," Salazar said. HC has the ceremony, on its own, for students from its learning centers, Salazar said.

Border diplomats develop own style

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Wayne Griffith faces few of the hardships of life in the U.S. Foreign Service and enjoys many of the comforts of home.

He can tune in American television and lives less than a mile from Uncle Sam's soil.

Griffith is the American consul in this border city of 250,000 across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Texas.

"Yes, I sometimes joke with friends in Brownsville that I'm going off to my foreign land," he said.

His duties include visiting jailed Americans, interviewing Mexicans applying for travel visas in the U.S. and keeping an eye on local happenings.

Few know the difficulties of his border post better than Enrique Hubbard, the Mexican consul posted just north of the Rio Grande in Brownsville.

Hubbard, whose American grandfather moved to Mexico during a mining boom, has many of the same tasks.

The two men officially are not supposed to deal formally with each other. But they have developed their own style of border diplomacy.

"Technically we cannot deal directly with one another on a formal, diplomatic level," said Hubbard, a 36-year-old father of three. "But if you follow channels exactly, often you will get nothing done," he said with a

American government in an affluent section of town close to the river. A vice consul is the only other American on staff with eight Mexican citizens. Each consul lives outside his consulate.

They frequently cooperate in cases where bureaucratic rules of either countries otherwise would hinder things.

If an American juvenile is arrested in Mexico and needs to prove he is a minor, his birth certificate will not be accepted in Mexican courts unless a Mexican official has certified it to be valid, Hubbard can do so.

On the other hand, a Mexican who is arrested will want to bring in witnesses from Matamoros but those persons lack necessary visas. Griffith can arrange temporary permits.

"We try to visit all our arrested Americans at least once a month," Griffith said. Americans frequently think they will get sprung once the consul arrives, he said. They find out quickly they are wrong.

"We do not interfere in the legal process. We try to get to them as quickly as we can. But Americans constantly believe we have abandoned them because we haven't demanded they be released," he said.

Currently, about 20 Americans are jailed in Griffith's territory, roughly the state of Tamaulipas.

Hubbard, whose district includes three counties, visits Mexicans held in "This doesn't happen everywhere along the border," Hubbard said.

Griffith or vice consul Christopher Dell interview each Mexican citizen applying for tourist, business and student visas. Immigrant visas applicants must go to Monterrey.

"Because of the illegal alien problem, the law makes an assumption that a person is going to stay in the States. The person has to overcome that presumption to get a visa," Griffith said.

They look for signs of "stability" — long time at a job or a professional position.

About 20 percent of visa applicants are turned down but many later return with additional documents and are approved, he said.

The American official said he knows others turned away simply swim the Rio Grande.

"There's nothing we can do," he said. "There were three brothers from Belize who did that. One apparently drowned and the other two were caught and arrested by Mexican police for trying to leave the country illegally."

In 1980, 5,200 Mexican passports were issued in Brownsville. The figure jumped to 12,000 in 1981.

Peso devaluations affect business in both consulates.

The American consulate issued 37,044 visas — to persons of all nationalities — in 1981, compared to 20,936 in 1980.

"We get people in here from all over," he said, reading the list of applicants from countries in Europe, South and Central America, as well as Mexico. "But our business went through the floor with the devaluation."

The Mexican currency traded at 27 to the dollar before the country's central bank recently let it float on world markets. Brownsville banks and stores generally accept it now at between 45 to 47 pesos per dollar.

Panic broke out in Hubbard's office the day after the devaluation was announced on evening news programs.

"First people came in here complaining, Mexicans who were staying in hotels here and found out their pesos were no good," he said. "Then the bank called and said they were not accepting pesos for exchange. Can you imagine, we at the Mexican consulate had to tell people we could not accept pesos for passport fees."

Deaths of citizens abroad mean work for the consuls.

"People tend to think the United States will pay to return bodies of people who die overseas. That is not true. We will contact the family but have to tell them that certain arrangements must be made by them," he said.

Last year 15 American citizens died within Griffith's consular area.

Hubbard recently stepped in when the wife of a Mexican citizen died in Houston following an operation. The man wanted his son to come help him make arrangements but the son lacked a visa.

"We had to guarantee to (U.S.) Immigration that he would return in 48 hours," Hubbard said. "We sometimes have these kinds of cases and if one of them lies to me and goes further north to get work, immigration is not going to give me any more permits."

Griffith will be leaving here in April for an assignment in Washington. He said he feels sure the good relations developed between the consuls will continue — provided the Mexicans can pronounce his successor's name.

"A man named George Kittenhofen is replacing me. They trouble enough with 'Wine Grefet,'" he said.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING — Democratic National Committee Chairman Charles Manatt and Vice Chairman Lynn Cutler applaud the proceedings at a session of the group's executive committee Thursday in Washington. Members discussed party finances during the session.

Gramm urges quick decontrol

By WILLIAM GARLAND
States News Service
WASHINGTON — Although there will be winners and losers in the game of natural gas pricing no matter what the rules, more winners will result from quickened decontrol, Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, argued before a tough panel of senators Tuesday.

From advocates like Gramm to strong opponents of decontrol, natural gas got a formal airing before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee this week. The process appeared to reveal that there still are many leaks in the legislative pipeline that might eventually deliver the decontrol long sought by the petroleum industry.

Since President Reagan announced March 1 that he will not push decontrol this year in Congress, an election year, the hearings were somewhat anti-climatic. But Gramm described his testimony Tuesday, along with that by a number of pro-decontrol organizations, as the beginning of the fight for next year.

He said he had begun "building the consensus now so that we've got a good solid base of supporters" next year, when administration sources also have noted that President Reagan will not hesitate to formally endorse legislation for decontrol.

Senators from the Northeast and Midwest complained to Gramm that they could not at this time, after one of the coldest winters in memory, support legislation that would raise even higher the prices paid by consumers in their states for natural gas.

"While there will be winners and losers, there can be no doubt that the consumer of energy in the aggregate will win" with decontrol, countered Gramm. He argued that freedom of prices for natural gas, and the resulting increase in the supply of gas available, would apply downward pressure to oil prices, eventually allowing a reasonable averaging of energy costs.

"You're going to have a hard time convincing me," answered Sen. Wendall H. Ford, D-Ky.

'If you follow channels exactly, often you will get nothing done'
—Mexican Consul Enrique Hubbard

smile during an interview in his downtown Brownsville office.

They consider each other personal friends. Each finds that being on the border of their two countries creates peculiar, sometimes almost comical situations.

Griffith keeps a post office box in Brownsville for mail coming from the states. Many government shipments from Mexico City to the Mexican consulate are flown to Matamoros on commercial airliners. Hubbard somewhat jokingly complains that it is hard to practice his English since Brownsville has a 75 percent Spanish-speaking population.

Their assignments require that the men live in the country where they are assigned. They or their staff members are to be available 24 hours a day in emergencies, such as deaths or arrests of fellow citizens.

"Last night a woman called me at 11 p.m. and said her ex-husband from California, had kidnapped their son after trying to run her car off the road," Hubbard said. "You can imagine the mother was hysterical."

After checking the case, Hubbard's staff discovered the man had a California court order granting him custody. He sent the woman to the local district attorney about possibly pressing charges for assault.

Hubbard received his law degree from the state university in Culiacan. He moved to Brownsville in 1980 after seven years at the Mexican consulate in Chicago. His Brownsville office includes five consular officers, six other career employees and three locally hired workers.

Griffith, 33 and single, earned a psychology degree from the University of Pennsylvania. He has been a career diplomat 10 years, serving posts in Monterrey and Jerusalem before coming here. His office is a one-story building leased by the county jails and those held in a federal detention camp as illegal aliens.

"We can't visit them all because a lot are only held for 12 hours and then deported. They usually want to get back as soon as possible. No one wants to be locked up," he said. Sometimes the undocumented workers need help notifying relatives of their arrest or collecting their final paycheck.

If Americans misunderstand Mexican laws, Mexicans also find the U.S. judicial system sometimes baffling.

"A lot of my people will claim discrimination. I will ask them, 'What did you do?' They say, 'Nothing. They got me because I'm a Mexican.' One thing they don't understand is that an American can get out of jail on bond easily while a Mexican can't. The authorities fear he will go back to his country," he said.

Although both list their top priority as emergency services for arrests and deaths of nationals, each says his office spends many hours processing travel forms for Mexicans wanting to enter the United States.

A Mexican citizen needs a passport and a U.S.-issued visa. Americans tourists entering Mexico need only proof of citizenship for returning to the United States.

The nearest Mexican city issuing passports is Monterrey. Instead of making the four-hour drive, border residents come instead to the Mexican consulate in Brownsville. As a diplomatic office in a foreign country, it can issue passports, birth certificates, death certificates, validate documents and perform marriages.

Many Mexican citizens wanting passports lack the necessary visa to enter Brownsville. Under a local arrangement, passport applicants are allowed to enter on a 12-hour visa after submitting their names a day in advance.

Klan endorses Mark White for governor

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White says he does not want the support of the Ku Klux Klan in his race for governor.

The Klan officially endorsed White on Thursday but a campaign spokesman repudiated the group's support, saying the KKK had no place in "legitimate politics."

"The KKK is attempting to make a mockery out of our political system," said White spokesman Dwayne Holman. "The Klan has no place in legitimate politics and there is no place anywhere for the organized White could not be reached hatred that the Klan wants to perpetuate."

You want perfect tomatoes. The tomato plant is ready and willing to deliver if you give it what it needs. Select a variety that you have used or one recommended by Mr. G's personnel. The size of the tomato you desire is essential in making your selection.

Disease resistance is shown by "V" for verticillium wilt, "F" for fusarium wilt or "N" for nematodes. There is a hybrid variety (Hy) and standard variety (S). You may want to check the number of days from transplanting to first picking.

Too much water can drown plant roots — too little can stop tomato production: The daily requirements of nutrients is small but that amount should be available when the plant needs it. Always follow package or bottle directions for best results. Make sure soil is loose and permits good drainage. Remember roots breathe the way you do. Deprived of air, roots, or portions of roots die of suffocation. To the tomato plant light is life so give it good sunlight. If you have problems with your tomatoes come see Mr. G. TURTLE SAVER — Kim Clifton, center, a conservationist from Arizona works with local Indian fishermen, netting and tagging a green sea turtle in the Pacific ocean off of Maruaca, Mexico. Clifton is working to halt the decline in the population of the sea turtle, a much-hunted subspecies who nests on the beaches near Maruata, 280 miles west of Mexico City.

Arizonan is trying to save sea turtles from extinction

MARUATA, Mexico (AP) — On a faraway bay fringed with palms and frothing with Pacific surf, Kim Clifton is struggling almost single-handedly against the tide, fighting to save a lowly turtle from its appointment with oblivion.

With American money and a Mexican helping hand, the young conservationist from Arizona is working desperately to halt the decline in the population of the eastern Pacific green sea turtle, a much-hunted subspecies with only one major nesting area in the Northern Hemisphere, the broad white beaches flanking this Indian village 280 miles west of Mexico City.

The eastern Pacific type — commonly called the black turtle because of its dark coloring — is the most critically endangered of three green sea turtles.

Clifton's fight has been difficult, even perilous. He is not ready to give up, but he is realistic.

"If everything goes as it's going now, the turtles will be driven right up to extinction," he said in a recent interview.

Sea turtles are hunted for their meat and hides, for shells that are turned into jewelry, and for turtle oil used in cosmetics. Their eggs, laid in sandy holes on Maruata's beaches, are prized by some Mexican men as aphrodisiacs and can fetch up to 75 U.S. cents each in Mexico City.

For the past four years, with a combination of cash, persuasion and the occasional assistance of a five-man Mexican marine detachment stationed here, Clifton has tried to bring the trade in turtle flesh under control.

He has paid villagers about 3 cents for each of hundreds of thousands of eggs they have collected. He and his helpers have released swarms of hatchlings into the Pacific. And he has stood guard against poachers killing the 100-pound-plus adult turtles.

"The bottom line is still negative, as far as the population decline," said Thomas Lovejoy, vice president for science of the World Wildlife Fund in Washington, D.C. "But Clifton's effort is the most important for saving the turtle."

The Fund is Clifton's principal sponsor, providing $59,000 of the project's $94,000 annual budget. The rest comes from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the private Center for Environmental Education in Washington.

The 33-year-old Clifton, a muscular blond six-footer who has worked on environmental projects since the mid-1970s, first hiked into Maruata in 1976, before the Pan American Highway reached this primitive stretch of the Mexican coast.

He found the 200 or so Indians here systematically slaughtering the black turtles.

"I saw them pulling in 80 turtles a day, slashing them open, just taking the skin and throwing the rest into the water," he recalled.

He returned in 1978 with money for the egg-buying scheme, and since then has spent every mating-nesting season here.

The female black turtles range over a huge stretch of Pacific coast, feeding in submarine turtle-grass grounds from the Gulf of California south to Colombia. Each year one-third of the females return to breed in the waters off Maruata and nearby villages, where the males have remained year-round. Beginning in July and continuing into February, females lumber ashore to lay and bury their eggs.

In four seasons Clifton and his local helpers have gathered more than one million eggs and put them in protected hatchery areas. They have released almost 700,000 hatchlings into the sea.

But this may represent only 30 percent to 40 percent of the eggs laid, he said, and heavy poaching of adults continues.

"There's 40 miles of coast to worry about, and there's no way to stop it," he said.

Mexican authorities have imposed on-and-off moratoriums and quota systems for black turtle hunting, but Clifton complained the Mexicans do not back this up with the money and men to enforce the rules.

Mexico has not signed the international convention banning trade in endangered species.

'Superb natural cuisine'

Something's wrong with today's 'healthy' summer camps

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Remember those care-scrawled, cryptic postcards that used to arrive at long last from the kids at summer camp?

"Dear Mommy and Daddy,
"There was a snake in our tent. My sailboat sank in the race. The counselors are always yelling at us. My friend burnt his pancho at the marshmallow roast. The food slinks. Please send some cookies ..."

If the staccato prose style here induces a nostalgic pang of panic, you have just dated yourself into another generation.

Kids being packed off to camp in the computer age are having an entirely different wilderness experience than when yesteryear's parents exiled the urchins to a green gulag for a couple of weeks to keep the nuclear family from exploding.

Postcards from the front these days might yield these nervous nuggets of misinformation:

"Dear Mommy and Daddy,
"We hit the dining room roof in rocketry class. My minicomputer has lice. I got the lead in 'Streetcar Named Desire.' The wheel came off and we had to make a pit stop. My sharing, caring, sensitive, child-oriented counselor is mad because I only lost a half-pound this week. I hate Granola."

Read the camp advertisements in the tonier Sunday papers and you'll realize halfway down the first column how much the summer scene in the woodlands of juvenilia has changed since you and I cremated a hotdog around the council fire and shuddered through some spine-chilling, psyche-bruising ghost stories.

Hot dogs and marshmallows apparently are among the endangered species at today's "nutrition controlled" and "culturally enriched" kiddie camps, gone the way of the early morning bugle call, pingpong paddle discipline and the outdoor latrine with the crescent cut in the door.

"Superb natural cuisine," trumpets the ad for one of the summer retreats. "No chemical additives or junk food. Resident dietitian."

Kids don't go to camp anymore to learn how to pitch a tent or tell a yellow bellied sapsucker from a double-breasted seersucker. The axe, the canteen and the compass are as obsolete as the old campaign hat that Lord Baden-Powell wore at the siege of Mafeking.

"Granny" loves her active lifestyle

By TINA M. STEFFEN
Lifestyle Writer

The week of March 1 was just one of those weeks for Audrey Wilson. At 5:30 p.m. Monday, she attended an Altrusa Club meeting. At 6:10 p.m. the same day, she had totaled her car and was on her way to the hospital. Tuesday evening she was named "Woman of the Year" by members of her American Business Women's Association chapter.

Mrs. Wilson is an advertising salesperson for the Big Spring Herald and commonly known to many of her clients as "Granny."

"Tuesday went from bad to best, I guess," Mrs. Wilson said in a recent interview. "I received a lot of nice cards. I was fortunate. I just wound up with bruises, no broken bones and a few cuts."

Alice Butler submitted the letter that nominated Mrs. Wilson for the "Woman of the Year" award. The entire chapter decided that she should get the award and no other nominations were given. The letter told of Mrs. Wilson's ambitious life in advertising and her dedication to her family. The award is based on the person's business ability, personality, volunteerism and experience.

Mrs. Wilson married Charles Curtis Wilson during World War II. They raised horses, calves, chickens, rabbits, lambs and alfalfa on their ranch in California and her husband also worked at Norton Air Force Base. She has one son, Wilbur.

She attended San Bernadino Junior College and later graduated from the University of California in Riverside with a degree in business. She said she felt the "School of Hard Knocks" was more rewarding.

Her father had interests in the Sun Telegram Newspaper in San Bernadino and she went to work there typing route lists. She progressed to the junior executive training program at the paper and worked six weeks in every department. "My cup of tea was selling advertising," she said. "They started me selling to used car salesmen and I worked into better accounts. She was employed in the advertising department there for 12 years.

Her husband was killed in a plane crash in the early 1960s and a year later her mother died and her father came to live with her. In 1968, she went to work for the newspaper in Yucaipa, Cal. as an advertising salesperson.

Mrs. Wilson has been an advertising salesperson at newspapers in Laguna Beach, La Mesa, Carlsbad and Chulavista, all in California, since that time. Tom Watson, publisher of the Big Spring Herald, was her employer at Yucaipa and Laguna Beach.

She sold mobile homes for four years while her father was ill with cancer. After his death, Watson asked her to sell advertising for the Big Spring Herald.

AUDREY WILSON
...advertising salesperson

"Display advertising, or retail advertising as they call it here, in newspaper is the best job a woman can have," Mrs. Wilson said. She attributes this to good pay and a good association with the community. "Newsprint gets in your blood or ink gets into your blood. I sold mobile homes for four years, but it (newspaper advertising) is more fascinating.

"Pleasing the customers," is what she said she likes best about her job. "It's fun to take an idea of a customer's and work it into an ad. Pleasing the customers is the most fascinating part. You please the customer by making an ad that puts people in their store. Then the merchant has to do the selling.

"You have to read the people," she said. "You are never a Democrat or a Republican if they start talking politics. You stay neutral. You don't want to offend them. If you offend them, then you won't get the ad."

"Some people wouldn't like this job because there is so much driving and getting in and out of your car...and meeting and working with people," she said. But she loves it. "When we make a mistake (on a newspaper ad) the whole world knows about it. And that goes for any of us in the newspaper business."

Mrs. Wilson volunteers her time at the Veteran's Administration Hospital, and is a member of Republican Women's Club, Altrusa Club and ABWA. She also is an advisor on the Hillcrest Baptist Church School Board.

She combined helping the Easter Seal campaign with her job by placing collection cans in various businesses while calling on her clients. Mrs. Wilson is a busy, hard-working individual, and if she can kill two birds with one stone, she will do it.

Dr. Donohue

Gilbert's disease—don't worry

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 17-year-old daughter went to a dermatologist for her skin and he recommended she have a blood test before prescribing any medication. He said he found a bilirubin count of 2.2. Just to make sure, another test was done, and this time it was 4.5, which is really high. She went to a gastroenterologist who took another test, and that showed her bilirubin at 3.4, still quite high. Our family all has normal bilirubin counts. They called this Gilbert's disease. I would appreciate your writing about this. — Mrs. N.O.

You should not be concerned about this. Gilbert's is a harmless liver condition. It should not even be called a disease. From time to time the person with it will become a little yellow because of the buildup of the pigment, bilirubin, in the blood, which is what probably brought her to the doctor. I hope I can explain.

Bilirubin is a product from the breakdown of old red blood cells, a task of the liver. Every day, we must get rid of used red blood cells. To do this, the liver takes the old cells' pigment and attaches to it a substance that allows it to dissolve in water. That permits elimination through the kidneys.

The process is called "conjugation." The pigment is "conjugated." In Gilbert's the liver does not conjugate as well as it should, so some unconjugated pigment remains in the blood to give the skin a yellow cast. This usually happens when the person with the condition has been fasting for a while, has had an infection, or has taken a little too much alcohol.

Once Gilbert's is confirmed as the cause of the skin cast fears should vanish. The yellowish tinge to the skin does not remain long. There is no liver damage. Indeed, Gilbert's is more of a medical curiosity than an illness. The only concern is the initial one of ruling out true jaundice as the cause of the skin yellowing. That was done for your daughter.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Affair creates unexpected issue

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't talk to anybody about. My husband had an affair with my 17-year-old niece, and now she's pregnant. The only ones who know about it are my husband, the girl, the doctor who confirmed it, and now me.

My husband has always been a decent family man, and my niece is a nice, quiet girl who never even had a steady boyfriend. Nobody would ever believe this could happen to us. We are all respectable, churchgoing people.

My niece is in her third month, and soon everyone will know she's pregnant. This is a small town, and I don't want my family split up over this. We have three fine children. My husband has been walking around like a zombie for the last six weeks. He finally broke down and told me what was wrong. He says he loves me very much and must have been crazy. Meanwhile my niece says she "loves" my husband and wants to have his baby so he will have to marry her. (He's old enough to be her father.) I still love him and will stand by him regardless. Please help me, Abby.

OUT OF MY MIND
DEAR OUT: Since you are a churchgoing family, I urge you to talk to your clergyman. All of you involved desperately need his advice and counsel. Your husband should also see a lawyer. Because the girl is a minor, he could be charged with statutory rape. No man can be forced to marry a girl if he doesn't want to. I commend you for standing by your husband. Hang in there and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19-year-old unmarried woman, and my problem has almost become an obsession with me. I have sagging breasts like a woman who has nursed six kids! The rest of me is well-proportioned, but every time I look at my body in the mirror I get depressed. I tried toning up my chest muscles by weight-lifting, but all I got were big arms.

I know how I got this way, Abby. I developed early (age 12) and I never owned a support bra, so I bounced around a lot, and now I am paying for it. I look OK in an uplift bra,

Howard College students win several OEA honors

Four Howard College students won several honors from the Post Secondary Office Education Association Leadership Conference held in Lake Jackson on March 4-6, announced Reva Adams, chairman of the Business Division at HC. Students receiving awards were Connie Garcia, winning second place for Accounting Clerk, third place in Job Application-Accounting, first place in Accounting Concepts, and fourth place in Business-Proofreading-Spelling. Sonya Worthan won first place in Accounting Practice I, fifth place in Prepared Verbal Communications and third place in Extemporaneous Impromptu Verbal Communications. Also winning awards were Lisa Bowen, who placed first in the Secretary I division, fifth place in Accounting Concepts, and first place in Business Arithmetic. Diane Lopez placed fourth for Accounting Clerk and placed sixth in Job Application-Accounting. "I am pleased that we had so much student participation in such a diversity of categories in the competitive events," said Adams. "It has been a tradition that Howard College OEA members win many honors at the state and national leadership conferences." The National Leadership Conference will be held April 24-27 in Nashville, Tennessee. The OEA states its primary objectives as the development of top leaders in business and industry. This nationwide organization has affiliations in secondary and post-secondary institutions involving thousands of young men and women whose ambitions are for careers in business.

Deaths of note

World War I flying ace William Lambert, age 87

William Lambert, a modest World War I flying ace whose exploits were second only to the more flamboyant Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, died last Friday at the age of 87. He was buried in Infronton, Ohio on Saturday. Lambert was the nation's longest surviving World War I flying ace. He was credited with shooting down 22 German aircraft during three months in 1918.

• Marshal Vasily I. Chuikov, who commanded the Red Army that repulsed Hitler's troops in the bloody World War II battle of Stalingrad, died Thursday in Moscow at the age of 82. Chuikov also served as commander in chief of all Soviet land forces and as a deputy defense minister. He was chief of civil defense before retirement.

• Milo W. Bekins, a moving and storage executive and one of the principals in the company that bears his name, died Wednesday of an apparent heart attack. He was 90. He died in Los Angeles.

• William "Sonny" Greer, a drummer who worked in the Ellington band for 30 years died Tuesday of cancer in New York. He was 78. Greer recorded with Johnny Hodges, Tyree Glenn, Lionel Hampton and others. He was noted for his unique use of chimes, especially on a recording of "Ring Dem Bells."

• Edward Fitzgerald, whose living-room discussions with his wife Pegeen were broadcast live as "The Fitzgeralds" on WOR radio (New York) for more than 40 years, died Monday in his Manhattan apartment. He was 89. Fitzgerald died after a long battle with cancer.

• Helena Wright, a pioneer of birth control in Britain, died Sunday in New York at the age of 94. Mrs. Wright was a founding member of the National Birth Control Council, now the family planning Association, and wrote many books on birth control and sexual behavior.

• Gustave Stamm, a founder of the Science Digest magazine, died Monday in Kalamazoo, Mich. He was 92. Stamm was an author, publisher, merchant and humorist. He founded Science Digest in 1937.

• Chanler A. Chapman, 80, a dairy farmer whose life was the model for a novel by Nobel Prize winner Saul Bellow, died Monday in Barrytown, N.Y. Chapman once said the novel "Henderson the Rain King" accurately described "the kind of kid I was." Bellow once lived in a coach house owned by Chapman.

Recommended varieties of fruit trees, grapes

By DON RICHARDSON County Extension Agent-Ag With the coming of spring thoughts of homeowners turn to planting and always a popular question coming up at the local County Extension Office is the one about the best variety of fruit tree to plant.

Based on research and recommendations by our area horticulturists the following list has become available.

Peaches are always popular here in Howard County and though often a problem for many growers the following varieties should perform well here. Ranger, Springgold, Redglobe, Jefferson, Sentinel, Loring, Dixiland, Redskin, Frank, Milarn and June Gold.

Pears do acceptable here but the planting of two different varieties will aid in cross pollination and fruit set. Recommended varieties include the Orient, Keiffer, Ayers, Moonglow, Le Conte, and Garber.

With plums, the variety Methley, is the one recommended if only one tree is needed but the other recommended varieties include Bruce, Morris, Ozark Premier, and Santa Rosa do best when two different varieties are planted together. Fig growers have either the Celeste or Texas Everbearing varieties to choose from. Apples recommended for our area include Red Chief, Jerseyana, Holland, Starkspur Golden Delicious, Starkrimson Delicious, Mollie's Delicious and Ozark Gold. All these varieties perform better if two different varieties are planted also.

Grapes are increasingly becoming more popular in West Texas and the varieties recommended include: Ruby Seedless, Flame Seedless, French Colombard, Chenin Blanc, Barbera, Ruby Cabernet, Emerald Riesling, and Thompson Seedless. Production may be erratic in the Thompson Seedless and grapes will be small unless gibberellin acid is applied to the fruit before it matures.

Moor Park and Tilton are the two varieties of Apricot recommended for our area.

Additional information on the planting and management of fruit trees can be obtained for the Howard County Extension Office located in the basement of the courthouse in Big Spring.

Officer suspended for opossum prank

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A policeman with poetry in his heart and a practical joke on his mind was suspended Wednesday after admitting he put a dead opossum in a police lieutenant's car.

Office Bill Pursley Jr., who has been on the force since 1977, was suspended indefinitely for putting the opossum and a Valentine's Day message on the seat of Lt. Jim Shelton's car. Pursley's message read: "Roses are red, Violets are blue, Even a possum has its day

And so will you." Pursley said he had no idea he would be suspended, saying officers regularly engage in practical jokes to relieve the tensions of their job. Pursley is appealing the suspension, and the Wichita Falls Civil Service Commission is expected to hold a hearing for Pursley within 30 days.

Rafael Septien to speak at revival

Several special guests will take part in the revival to be held at First Baptist Church, 705 Marcy. The revival will begin Sunday and continue until April 4 with the theme "Listen Now, Hear Forever." Among the guests are Rafael Septien, member of Dallas Cowboys; Harold DeCou, composer, arranger and keyboard artist; and Mr. and Mrs. John Hall. Hall is a gospel recording artist.

Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, will lead the nightly services with Joe Whitten, minister of music, directing music. There will be special appearances by the choirs and ensembles of the church. Services will begin at 6 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. all other nights. A praise service also will be held at 11 a.m. April 4. The public is invited to attend.

The schedule for the revival week is as follows. An evangelistic service for youth in third through twelfth grades will be held Sunday at 9:45 a.m. The morning worship service will be at 11 a.m. and the evening service at 6 p.m.

Monday evening is Sunday School Rally Night. Each Sunday School department will be recognized during the service. A Youth Pizza Dinner will be held at the church Tuesday at 6 p.m. with the revival service following.

Rafael Septien will give his Christian testimony during Men and Women's Night. Following the service, at 8:30 p.m., there will be an All-Church Fellowship and Autograph Party with Septien. A children's supper and puppet show will be held Thursday at 6 p.m. with the revival service following. Friday is Family Night. The family with the most members attending will be recognized.

There will be no services Saturday evening. The Praise service will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. John Hall will perform in concert that evening.

Harold DeCou, of Scottsdale, Ariz., is one of America's foremost keyboard artists. His works include books for church organist, pianist and violin soloist and numerous choral works including two Christmas cantatas "God's Love Gift" and "A Night to Remember" and two Easter cantatas "Easter Celebration" and "Jesus Lives!" His musical ministry has extended throughout the United States, Canada and Europe as a result of evangelistic crusades, revivals, and conferences. He has recorded several albums, produced music for radio and television and has enhanced the recordings of many vocal soloist and groups.

Rafael Septien, kicker for the Dallas Cowboy Football Team, attributes much of his steady improvement in football to positive thinking courses he has taken. "I've always felt I was a good kicker, but the mind governs much of what you do," he says. Septien is the third-leading field goal kicker in the team's history. He was chosen All Pro place kicker by the press and was selected to the pro-bowl by players and coaches to represent the National Football Conference, both in 1981. A native of Mexico City, Mexico, Septien and his wife Linda live in Dallas.

"Big" John Hall has a rich bass-baritone voice with much range and power. He considers his voice secondary to his ministry and puts sharing Christ and leading congregations in worship first in his life. Hall is a frequent guest of the PTL Club, 700 Club, TBN Network and "100 Huntley Street" programs. He has been featured soloist at many conferences and recently was featured soloist for the American Festival on Evangelism. Hall has recorded several records and tapes, the latest being "The Lord Liveth."

Joe Whitten has been minister of music at First Baptist for 10 years. Dr. Kenneth Patrick pastored the church for 12 years. Patrick has participated in over 125 revivals and evangelistic campaigns and was in the Evangelistic Crusade in Korea in 1976 and La Cruzada Bautista Nueva Vida in 1965.

REV. L.D. PATRICK ...leads revival
BILL SLOAN ...leads music

Revival to be led by mission director

The Rev. L.D. Patrick, director of Missions from Lake County Baptist Association in Lindenhurst, Ill., will lead revival services at Baptist Temple Church. The church, located at 11th Pl. and Goliad, will hold services Sunday at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. and Monday through Wednesday at 7:30. A nursery will be provided during the services and the public is invited.

The revival is part of a cooperative effort with other Southern Baptist Churches across Texas holding simultaneous revivals in 1982.

Patrick graduated from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1963. He has been in Illinois since then and was appointed by the Home Mission Board seven years ago. He led numerous mission projects during the past 18 years.

Mrs. Patrick will accompany her husband and will share in an area-wide Woman's Missionary Union meeting Tuesday morning at 9:30 a.m. She is the past president of the Illinois State WMU and has served on the long-range planning committee for the Southern Baptist Convention's WMU program. The Patricks have four children. Mike Patrick, pastor of Baptist Temple Church, is one of them.

Bill Sloan will lead the music during the revival. He is the associate minister to youth and senior adults at Hillcrest Baptist Church. He graduated from Wayland Baptist College in 1980 and attended Southwestern Baptist Seminary. He has about 20 songs published. His wife, Laurie, will accompany him with special music.

Proceeds from dinner goes to children's home project

A benefit dinner for the Medina Children's Home will be held tonight at 7 p.m. The dinner is sponsored by the Friends of Medina Children's Home. Proceeds will go to construction of a metal building for use on the Medina Home campus. Cost for the project will run about $25,000 according to Byron Corn, minister of Birdwell Lane Church of Christ.

courts, welfare departments, friends and relatives. Children live in cottages with their houseparents and the routine is arranged to provide as much a "home" atmosphere as possible. The home also offers services to mothers and children of families from split homes.

The home is located in the Texas Hill Country 17 miles south of Kerrville and seven miles from Medina where students attend church and school. The home is designed and licensed to provide group care for adolescent boys and girls referred by

Communication 'major factor' in marriage

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The more a couple has in common the greater the chances that the marriage will succeed, sociology studies have indicated over the past 60 years.

But, say two Brigham Young University researchers, a factor that has almost been overlooked until recently — communication — now looms more important than similarities in background.

Dr. Thomas Holman and Dr. Wesley Burr, in the family sciences department at BYU, found in a survey of 57 married couples that communication outweighs such factors as the quality of their parents' marriage, agreement on values and role expectations, demographic similarities, and emotional health.

"This is the first study that's found communication is so very important when compared with other factors," said Holman.

"Before, we've known that if people come from similar backgrounds their marriage has a greater chance for success. We've assumed, through folk wisdom, that communication is important, but social science has not been able, through scientific devices, to corroborate just how effective it is."

Communication covers the ability to talk out problems without defensiveness or an emotional outburst and the willingness to listen to another point of view, Holman points out.

Although both husbands and wives thought communication was the most important factor in marriage, the women surveyed felt more strongly about it.

Burr attributes this to a "power imbalance" that still persists in many marriages, where the husband is seen as the "boss" and the wife as the subordinate.

"We are trying to change things so men and women are equal, but women still haven't had a fair shake in our society, and they're still lower on the power scale," he says.

"Wherever you have a power differential — parent-child, boss-employee, men-women — the one who is the most powerful doesn't have to be so effective in understanding the other person. The employee, for example, has to know what the boss wants. They have to be the communicators."

The BYU researchers also discovered that it is more important that a couple believes they are similar than that they really are.

"The actual similarity was almost irrelevant in the areas we measured," said Holman. For example, it is not as important whether the husband or the wife handles the family finances as it is that both are happy with the arrangement they have selected.

"People's perceptions really make the difference and if you couple that with the fact that marriage is an emotional relationship, then when people ask who should handle the money these findings suggest it doesn't matter as long as they think their system is good."

The data used in the survey were taken from answers to questionnaires that are being collected throughout the country as part of a national longitudinal study.

This is the largest study of its kind ever undertaken, says Burr, who estimates that nearly 5,000 surveys will be added annually to the 10,000 showed how flying insects behave in gravity-free environment. Astronauts Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton demonstrated the experiment from Earth-orbit Wednesday afternoon.

Todd watches his insects do their thing in space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Todd Nelson saw that his bugs were alive, well and flying in space, and the 18-year-old Minnesota high school student finally broke into a grin.

Nelson, who endured grimly a week of feverish preparation and hours of interviews, watched on television Wednesday as two astronauts operated his bug box aboard the orbiting Columbia space shuttle. He saw his insects flutter and fly and float in weightlessness and realized, at last, he said, "We did indeed see a good result."

Only then, after days of solemn-faced public appearances, did Nelson grin. And like a true scientist, he was eager to get to a lab and study the results.

"I'm extremely curious to review the film in detail," he said.

Nelson's experiment, the first of 10 high school projects selected to fly aboard the shuttle, is a clear-sided box containing two chambers. In one chamber are 24 adult velvetbean moths and 12 housefly pupae. The second chamber contains 14 honeybees and 24 velvetbean moth pupae. The idea was to find out how the insects would react to flying in the weightlessness of space.

The moths tended to fly more than the bees. But when the moths took to wing it was "in an extremely unstable pattern. I saw one make a 90-degree within five centimeters. It was very unstable."

Nelson had a duplicate box with the same number and type of insects in a high fidelity model of Columbia's cabin at the Johnson Space Center. After watching the insects fly in space, the youth thumped and tapped the duplicate box while a photographer took movies. In this way, he hoped to be able to compare the flight patterns of the bugs in the weightlessness of space with those on the ground.

Astronauts Jack Lousma and Gordon Fullerton spent about a half-hour with the insect box and Lousma described what he saw.

Three Americans in Japan break down arts barriers

By RICHARD BILL
Associated Press Writer

KYOTO, Japan (AP) — The Japanese have a word for it: gaijin — outsider. No gaijin, they hold, can ever fully understand their venerable country let alone express its subtle mysteries through its native arts.

Three Americans, nonetheless, decided to try the improbable.

One, Clifton Karhu, a former missionary, took up Ukiyo-e, woodblock print, an art form rooted in the days of feudalism and the samurai. Now, most of his customers are Japanese.

Another, John Neptune, a rock musician, heard the sweet, delicate notes of the shakuhachi, a Japanese flute, and was smitten. Now he teaches the instrument — to Japanese students.

The third, Ken Frankel, was determined to assault the most rigid barrier of all. Born in Hollywood, he came to admire traditional Japanese theater, kabuki. But kabuki is closed, absolutely closed, to foreigners. Frankel is determined to become the first exception.

Three gentlemen of Japan.
Clifton Karhu, a 54-year-old native of Duluth, Minn., first came to Japan as a GI in 1946 and returned in 1955 as a Lutheran missionary, beset by doubts about his calling.

In 1967, he was commissioned to illustrate calendars for a Japanese electronics firm, and a new career was born.

His prints depict the old Japan of quaint wooden houses on cobbled streets, exquisitely carved rooftops and shoji-paneled walls in rural settings. Bold strokes and splashes of color dominate.

Like the woodblock print masters of the 18th and 19th centuries, Karhu is prolific, churning out limited editions of up to 50 prints a year that sell for $43-$335, depending on size. His work adorns galleries in Tokyo, New York and London, and at least one geisha house in his adopted home, Kyoto, Japan's capital for 10 centuries and one of its most picturesque cities.

He also produces numerous sumie brush writings that fetch $1,000 each, and when he tires of that, he carves erotic miniatures called netsuke. "I like to keep busy," he says.

In 1971, he became the first foreigner to be accepted as a full member of the highbrow Japan Print Association. "It certainly wasn't a case of 'he's a foreigner, so let's give him special consideration.' I was judged purely by Japanese standards," he says.

Karhu says his prints didn't sell well until Japan's foreign community took notice of them. Now most are scooped up by Japanese.

In a country where old folks command almost saintly respect, Karhu is still a relative youngster. A Van Dyke beard, he says, is an attempt to alter his relatively youthful looks. He also tries to blend in by wrapping his ample frame in traditional-style kimono.

A stickler for orthodox techniques and traditional methods, Karhu hires apprentices to do his studio dirty work: six months sharpening chisels before being set loose to carve straight lines.

"What I do in a sense is God's work. I create, and that gives me a sense of conviction." He draws inspiration from the sights and sounds of Kyoto, a city of 1.45 million with temples and shrines that give it an Old World atmosphere.

Karhu, on the side, also designs record album jackets for his friend, John Neptune, the American who has mastered the shakuhachi, a bamboo flute 22 inches long, with five holes and a mouthpiece.

For centuries, it was played only by wandering Zen Buddhist monks who believed it would lead them to heights of meditative ecstasy and enlightenment.

Few people might be tempted to go to the lengths Neptune has. He not only mastered the difficult woodwind instrument, but redesigned it, adding an extra hole and lengthening the stem to make it harmonize with other instruments. He composes new music for it, and teaches it to Japanese, who, he says, come to him "because I'm the only one constantly experimenting with new ideas."

"Being a foreigner allows me a freedom the Japanese simply don't have. They would never think of doing what I'm doing," says Neptune, 30. "But, no matter how well I play, there will always be some folks saying I'm not playing like a Japanese simply because I'm not Japanese."

"The bees just float around without flapping their wings," said Lousma. "That's like Gordo (Fullerton) — you don't see him flap his wings."

Lousma jarred the insect box once and the container was instantly filled with a cloud of flying bugs. Watching on television, Nelson pointed and then made notes.

Plano seeks Sunday ban on video games

PLANO, Texas (AP) — City Council members will decide on April 12 if they should give Pac-Man Sundays off.

The council has asked the city attorney to prepare an ordinance that would prohibit the playing of coin-operated video games on Sunday and restrict the playing time of elementary and secondary students during school hours on weekdays.

The city currently allows the playing of coin-operated video games from 9 a.m. to midnight weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday, and from 1 to 6 p.m. Sundays. Children under the age of 12 are allowed to play from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays and Saturdays.

"I think people will be getting in line to challenge this, no question about it," said Mayor Jim Edwards.

Exhibition Baseball Roundup
Astros tame Tigers

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Jose Cruz and Phil Garner combined for five hits and five RBIs as the Houston Astros beat the Detroit Tigers 10-3 in an exhibition baseball game Thursday.

Brett Butler's bases-loaded fly ball was turned into a double play by Rangers' centerfielder George Wright, who threw out Washington at the plate.

The Astros broke a scoreless tie in the fourth when Cruz singled home Craig Reynolds who had singled and advanced to third on an error.

move was retroactive to March 21 and Stone will be eligible to pitch April 11.

SOMEONE TO THANK

"God is a product of man's imagination," announced the dignified intellectual who occupied our TV screen. "God isn't dead," he argued as our children watched. "He was never alive!"

Mary and I felt that Christian children such as ours should realize that not everyone believes in God. Perhaps, knowing this, they could better understand the state of the world. We would encourage and answer their questions as best we could, confident that God would not allow their faith to be destroyed.

Later, before I tucked Kristen into bed, she clasped her hands and closed her eyes. "Dear Lord," she prayed, "thank you for Mommy and Daddy. Thank you for Zoome (her goldfish) and Toddy and my new dress." She stopped suddenly and I raised questioning eyes to her. "Daddy," she said anxiously, "that man on TV doesn't have anyone to thank?"

Do you have Someone to thank? Come worship this week.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

DENNIS THE MENACE

"THE BEST YEARS OF MY LIFE ARE MAKING THESE THE WORST YEARS OF MINE."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"... Jack fell down and broke his crown..."

"Was Jack a KING?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAR. 27, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You now have a good opportunity to make positive plans that could make your future brighter. The time to improve your environment. Be more thoughtful of family members.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A close tie has good ideas where your work is concerned, so be sure to listen and take advantage of its suggestions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Consult an adviser you can trust and gain the information you need. Stop feeling sorry for yourself and be more confident.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss monetary and property matters with a close family tie and get excellent results. Make your home more functional.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to buy the appliances that can make home life more comfortable. Engage in favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you consult a trusted adviser, you can make your life more successful in the near future. Show that you have ability.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Sitting down with an older friend and getting advice can bring fine results now. You can now make your life more prosperous.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Gain the backing you need for an important project you have in mind. Show increased devotion to loved ones. Be logical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good friend can be most inspiring at a time when you could be feeling at a low ebb. Steer clear of a troublemaker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Discuss your business obligations with an expert who can help you discharge them efficiently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new idea should be brought to the attention of a long-time friend to gain mutual benefits therefrom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use your intuition in discharging regular duties, since it is most accurate now. Express your true personality.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you enjoy amusements at a new site with congenials, you can gain unexpected benefits. Try to be more cooperative.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will require as much education as possible early in life since your progeny will not mature fully until later in life. The chart is excellent for the researcher, particularly in governmental work. Sports are good here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Diana Rigg weds

NEW YORK (AP) — English actress Diana Rigg and theater producer Archibald Stirling were married by a clerk in New York City's Municipal Building. They were wed Thursday in the building's chapel by City Clerk David Dinkins. The couple has a daughter, Rachael Atlanta Stirling, born in London in 1977. Miss Rigg, an acclaimed stage actress known in America principally for her role in the British TV series "The Avengers," had been touring the United States in the musical "Colette." Miss Rigg was married in 1973 to Israeli artist Menachem Gueffen; they were divorced in 1976. Stirling was married in 1964 to Charmain Montagu-Douglass Scott, a niece of the Duke of Buccleuch and Princess Alice, duchess of Gloucester. He had two sons from that marriage, which ended in divorce in 1977.

Murrays are new parents

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie and TV comedian Bill Murray and his wife of 14 months are the parents of an 8-pound, 1-ounce boy, Murray's brother says. The baby, as yet unnamed, was born Tuesday morning in a New York City area hospital, Ed Murray, manager of radio station KSMX in Santa Maria, Calif., said Thursday. "Bill and Margaret — they call her 'Mickey' — were married on Super Bowl Sunday in 1981," Murray said. "It's their first-born. Another brother, Brian, already has taken pictures." Murray said he'd talked to Brian Murray by phone, but was uncertain which hospital Mrs. Murray was in. Bill Murray starred on television's "Saturday Night Live" and in the comedy films "Meatballs," "Stripes" and "Caddyshack."

Young mayor tries again

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five years after he became the youngest big city mayor in the nation and three years after the voters ousted him, former Cleveland Mayor Dennis Kucinich is once again seeking elected office. This time it's a statewide office — secretary of state. He filed petitions for his campaign Thursday. Kucinich, a Democrat, was Cleveland's mayor when the city went into financial default. He says he showed that "a mayor could stand up and fight for the people of this community." He faces three other Democrats in the race for the party's nomination. Kucinich, who took office in 1977 at age 31, was voted out of office when he sought a second two-year term. He lost to Republican George Voinovich, who is the present Cleveland mayor, by about 20,000 votes.

Mississippi river boats built to scale

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Past is being united with present here as the Mississippi River fleet returns. Flatboat, packet-boat, showboat, gunboat and diesel towboat are among 21 types of vessels that will be seen once more. The model makers averaged about 1,000 hours of work on a boat. Some boats, however, required more than 3,000 hours. All boats are built to the same scale, with one-fourth inch equalling 1 foot.

The vessels, built to scale, will be a feature of Mud Island, a $63-million, 50-acre tourist attraction scheduled to open in July. Each craft has left its marks on the history of the 2,348-mile-long river.

"The boat models, which range in size from a 15-inch flatboat to a 114-inch sidewheel steamboat with working steam engine, are among the finest collection in this country," says Michael Sievers, 36, director of the Mud Island Mississippi River Museum, where the vessels will be on display. "We conducted a nationwide 12-month search (from 1978 into 1979) before selecting 13 top model makers from Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Ohio, Tennessee and Virginia," he adds.

"Once we decided we wanted to use models," Sievers explains, "we put together a list of model makers." Several sources, including the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., were used in compiling the list.

Sievers made his selections on the basis of past work and proposals the model makers submitted. There are about 5,000 people in the world who build models, he notes.

Once the building began, each model maker had to submit photos monthly showing the work in progress. Sievers also visited most of them regularly.

The decision of which boats to build, Sievers says, was based on whether the craft played a significant role on the Mississippi. Also taken into account was whether the boats were representative of the types that plied the river.

Most major vessel types that navigated the Mississippi are in the fleet, he adds.

In building the fleet, model makers faced a major hurdle: no original plans or blueprints existed on boats built before 1930.

"To do an accurate recreation," Sievers points out, "model makers had to do their own research, often quite time consuming. In each instance, we had to provide go-ahead approval as to authenticity."

Conflicting information sometimes proved a problem. Plans for the snagboat, Horatio G. Wright, for example, had to be drawn from photos taken at different times during the 40 years the vessel was in operation. During that span the boat underwent construction changes. In some cases, model makers had to work with photos that showed only the port side of the boat, at other times, only its starboard side.

"The boat models," Sievers says, "add something very special to Mud Island which, after all, is the first national tourist attraction to showcase a river."

"I feel the three-dimensional aspect of the models will give the public a greater understanding of the craft."

"This spring we'll activate the fleet," Sievers says. The models will be taken out of "mothballs," carefully inspected for nicks or other damage and installed in the museum.

The public, however, won't be seeing them until July 3 when Mud Island officially opens.

Beil appointed to committee

CHICAGO, Ill. — Charles E. Beil, president of First Federal Savings, Big Spring, Texas, has been appointed to the 1982 Committee on Federal Supervisory Regulations of the United States League of Savings Associations. The appointment was announced by Roy G. Green, chairman of the League and president of Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Association, Jacksonville, Fla.

The U.S. League is the principal trade organization for the savings and loan business and represents over 4,000 associations throughout the country. Savings and loan associations are the second largest type of financial institution in America and specialize in attracting savings accounts for investment primarily in home mortgage loans.

MANDEL'S BACK — Former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, seated at the dais between his wife Jeanne and Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer, made the presentation of an award to Schaefer this week. The Monday night event marked Mandel's reemergence into public life after spending 18 months in federal prison on a mail fraud and racketeering conviction. He's planning other public activities, including lecturing at the University of Maryland law school.

Convicted former governor returns to public spotlight

BALTIMORE (AP) — His friends do not expect Marvin Mandel to run for office again right away, but the former Maryland governor, convicted on federal mail fraud and racketeering charges, is easing back into public life. "Somewhere along the way, people have to come back into the community," said a spokesman for a local men's group that asked Mandel to present an award to Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer. Audience response to Mandel's appearance Monday was warm. It was his first formal social function since being released from federal custody Dec. 18.

"What we're saying in effect is welcome home," said the toastmaster, Solomon Liss, a Mandel appointee to the state Court of Special Appeals. Later this year Mandel will be a guest lecturer at the University of Maryland Law School, in May he will be the subject of a "toast" by a local chapter of the American Cancer Society.

The former governor, convicted in connection with a scheme to fix racetrack dates, agreed to speak to the law school students on bill drafting and executive-legislative relations. Bruce Beremo, who teaches the course, was at one time Mandel's attorney. He said Mandel is one of many lecturers he has invited. Cathy Sloman of the cancer group said Mandel was chosen because the society was looking for someone who could draw a large enough crowd to produce $40,000 in donations.

Mandel spent 18 months in prison at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida and several weeks at a Baltimore halfway house before being released in December. At that time Mandel told reporters: "I have no intention of walking away from prison. It's been my life. I am not ruling out a second political office."

But the 62-year-old former governor still faces problems resulting from his conviction. Disbarment proceedings against him began this month, because he practiced law has been suspended since his conviction. The state Attorney General's Commission citation against Mandel refers to disciplinary rules against "conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation."

"All of these rules, we suggest, were violated," said the commission's chief prosecutor. The Maryland Attorney General's office expects a trial date for a civil suit against Mandel and his wife, Jeanne, for about $24,000 worth of items belonging to the state and liquor — taken when they left the state in 1979. The Maryland Attorney General, claiming the items belonged to the state, said Attorney General James Holloman.

"I'm not sure what factors out there, his haters, and people like DeBippo, Mandel's former chief of staff, are saying. I think a lot of people think Marvin is a scoundrel." "But I don't think so," DeBippo said. "Who was the best governor in the state? They'll say Marvin Mandel every time." Mandel's ownership of a troubled time in the state's history, DeBippo said, showed "real leadership," DeBippo said.

Some can make millions by scoring well in Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What is an Oscar worth?

The price the Dodge Trophy and Awards Co. charges for the statuettes the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will hand out Monday night is a secret, but Hollywood legend has it that winning an Oscar can bring actors and movie companies millions of dollars.

While the legend may be accurate for some companies, it's not always so for actors.

Theater owners are apt to book and rebook the winning film, and viewers of the Oscar awards ceremony are drawn to theaters by the hoopla and by film clips of the winner, said Charles Powell, former publicity and advertising chief for MGM and Universal and now head of a film marketing firm.

"The best-picture award can mean a minimum of $6 million but closer to $10 million in ticket sales," said Powell. "That has been the experience over the past 10 years."

Sometimes the entire release pattern is built around the awards. Four years ago, Universal faced a problem with "The Deer Hunter," an expensive, unrelenting treatment of the Vietnam war. The company decided to release the film in Los Angeles just in time to qualify for the awards. A few more bookings were added in February, with the broad release scheduled to coincide with the Oscars.

The strategy worked. "The Deer Hunter" was named best picture of the year, and a problem picture became a huge moneymaker. The rentals in the United States and Canada totaled $31 million, meaning more than twice that amount poured through box offices.

Does Oscar have the same golden touch for acting award winners? "It certainly didn't help Luise Rainer, who won two years in a row and then dropped out of sight," says Billy Wilder, who directed the 1945 film and Oscar winner "The Lost Weekend."

"It certainly didn't help Ernest Borgnine," he said. And what about winners Louise Fletcher, Miyoshi Umeki and George Chakiris?

"Individual winners don't mean as much for a box office gross," said Gordon Armstrong, advertising and publicity head at Universal. "What counts is the best-picture award or multiple winners. Last year the Oscar for Sissy Spacek added little to the 'Coal Miner's Daughter' business. The picture had been released more than a year before, and it had already played out."
