Bingo: Friend or foe? Voters to decide

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Saturday's election on legalizing bingo poses a basic question to voters whether to support bingo for the good the proceeds do or to oppose for the gambling inherent in the activity. Voters in Howard, Dawson, and Glasscock Counties decide April 3rd if they will allow bingo under the 1981 Bingo Enabling Act.

Kerby Kee, a member of Big Spring's Elk's Lodge 1386, says that the defeat of bingo would mean a loss for the kids of the area. "Without the proceeds from bingo, the majority of programs for kids would go down the drain. There is no other way to get money to support these functions without bingo," Kee said.

Fraternal organizations such as the Elks fund Little League teams, football teams and other activities while churches use bingo proceeds for youth centers and such, Kee said. "Ninety-nine percent of the money from bingo — we're talking about a lot of money — goes to help the kids of Big Spring. Kids' sports don't come cheap. Without the aid of bingo, there's no other way to sponsor these needed organized activities," Kee said.

But the good causes for which bingo proceeds may go does not excuse where the funds came from, Royce Clay, minister of Fourteenth and Main Church of Christ in Big Spring, says. "Even if every penny went to charity, it would still be wrong," Clay said. "Bingo is gambling. In essence, it is designed to exploit the weaknesses of people."

The good use of the money from bingo is fine, Clay said. "But, whether done under the guise of charity or whatever, it is still gambling," he said. A danger the Church of Christ minister sees that could develop is the entry of commercial ventures into bingo, thus taking money for itself rather than charity.

The law itself, the Bingo Enabling Act, is set up in order to prevent organized bingo, Kee said. "The law says all proceeds of bingo must go to charity. The money has to go to charity and not to whoever is running the bingo," Kee said.

The basis of these fraternal organizations and churches is to help kids and contribute to charity, but they are watched, Kee said. "Lots of positive things come from bingo, but if the guidelines written into the law are not followed, you will be closed down. You have to keep careful records of everything or the (state) comptroller will get you."

"There is no way I feel money can be skimmed off with these special rules to follow." Despite the controls and worthwhile causes, the nature of bingo is still the issue for opposition, Clay says. "I cannot condone it at all because it is still gambling. The people who cannot afford to spend money on this or other gambling ventures are the ones who are hit the most. I am not at all in favor of it being approved," Clay said.

The possibility of casino operations and liquor in private clubs could happen as it has in other areas, Clay said. Prohibiting anything that plays upon the weaknesses of people is most important even though the money from this venture may be used positively. "There are better ways of raising money for charity," Clay said.

THE BEST ACTOR AT HOME — Henry Fonda sits with his daughter Jane Fonda in his suburban BelAir home Monday night after the elder Fonda was presented an Oscar for his leading role in "On Golden Pond." Ms. Fonda accepted the award on behalf of her father.

Ailing Fonda proud of Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Fonda says so many people had told him he would win his first best-actor Academy Award for playing an aged professor in "On Golden Pond" that he had begun to believe them.

"This makes me feel very happy," said Fonda, ailing and bearded, as he glanced at the golden Oscar on the arm of his chair.

The 76-year-old actor received a few visitors one at a time in a small bedroom of his Bel-Air mansion after being named best actor of 1981.

Though his Monday night triumph wasn't unexpected, it had a powerful impact as he and his wife, Shirlee, watched the announcement.

"He just burst into tears," his wife said. "He's so emotional. His face got very red and I was greatly concerned about him. But I realized that was only part of his excitement."

Fonda, who has been confined to his home for months because of heart problems and other ailments, has sworn he won't shave his beard until he regains his health. He looked wan, but the familiar voice contained some of its old strength and he said he was feeling better and even painting a little.

The British film "Chariots of Fire" outdistanced the highly favored "Reds" to win Best Picture honors Monday night. See story on page 3A.

He received visitors sitting up in his bedroom, a blanket across his legs.

In the movie, Fonda portrayed octogenarian Norman Thayer, a retired college professor who comes to terms with old age and his own family.

Asked whether he thought he would win, he replied with a tiny smile, "Well, so many people were telling me that I would, that I started to believe them."

Until he received an honorary Oscar last year, Fonda hadn't won an Oscar, although he was nominated as best actor twice — for "The Grapes of Wrath" and "Twelve Angry Men."

His daughter, Jane Fonda, accepted Fonda's Oscar at the Music Center and passed up the usual interviews to hurry the award to the Fonda house. She was accompanied by her husband, Tom Hayden; her daughter, Vanessa, 12; her son, Troy, 8; her half-sister, Amy, 28; and her niece, Bridget Fonda, 18, daughter of Peter Fonda.

Henry Fonda said he was delighted over the victory of his co-star Katharine Hepburn, who won the best-actress award for "On Golden Pond," and author Ernest Thompson.

But after a few visitors had filed into the bedroom, Mrs. Fonda decided it was time for her husband to rest.

Shuttle lands at White Sands

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia returned home to a calm harbor today, diving through Earth atmosphere to a pinpoint landing on the sparkling desert sands of Northrup Strip.

A day late, but none the worse for wear.

"This is really a great flying machine," Jack R. Lousma said as he flew hypersonic over southern California en route over three states to this supersecret military base.

At touchdown, the nose rose a bit and then settled smoothly on the gypsum floor.

With Lousma in command and C. Gordon Fullerton beside him, the winged shuttle slapped wheels to sand at 9:05 a.m., mountain time. Monday, Columbia was blocked from landing here by a fierce sandstorm.

Today, the air was clear, winds calm, spirits high. Approach was accompanied by a pair of dull sonic booms.

For Lousma and Fullerton it was a perfect ending for Columbia's next-to-last test flight. For eight days they had put the craft to its most rigorous tests and, except for nagging technical problems, it responded beautifully.

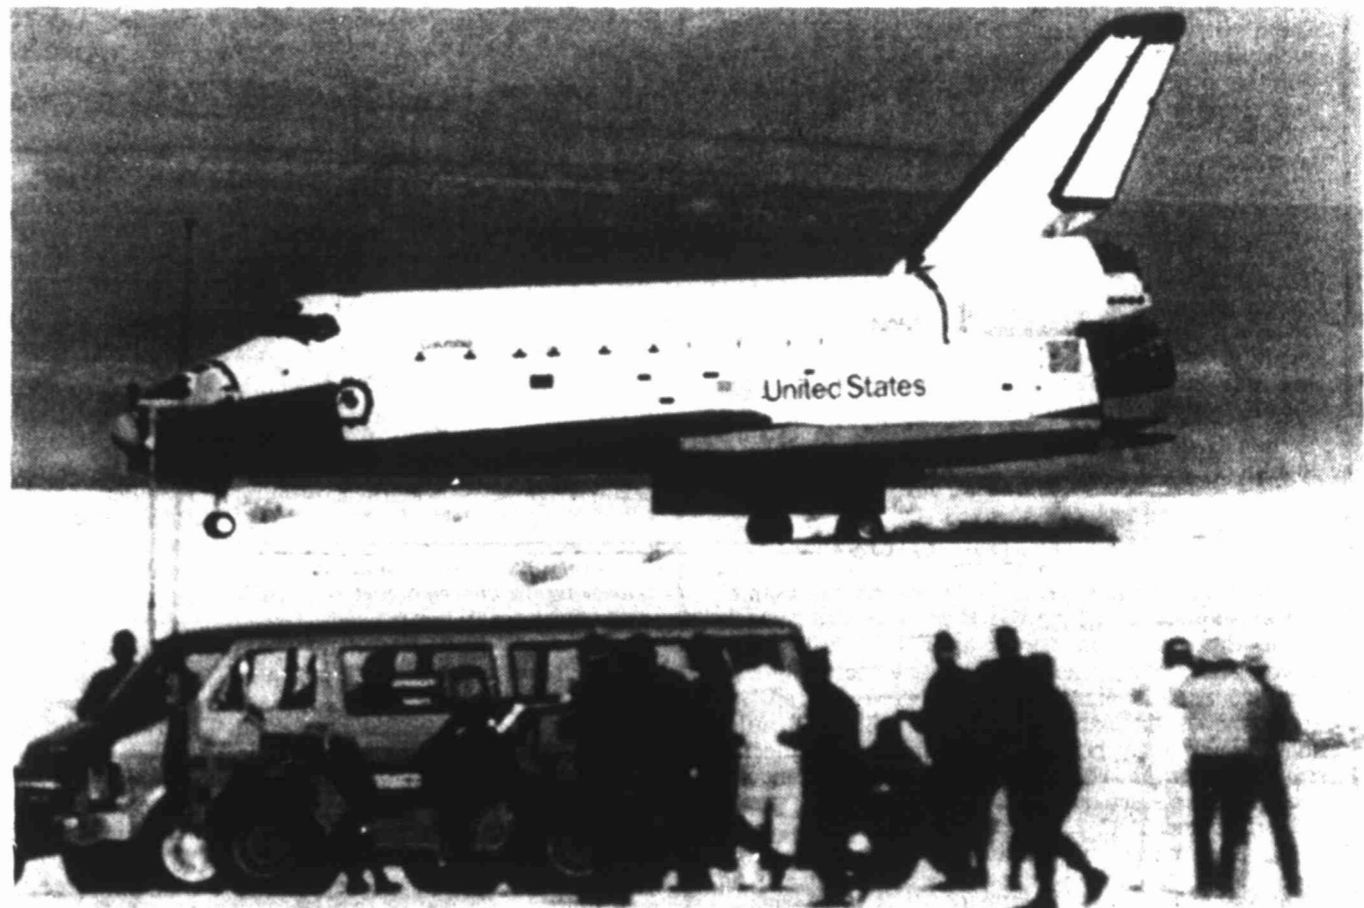

The spaceship settled onto runway 17, a seven-mile strip laid out in a barren-but-beautiful desert setting. The astronauts had no trouble spotting their target from the air — 100 square miles of white gypsum surrounding the landing zone. The spaceship swung right over a nearby mountain range and settled with a gentle thump.

Mission Control said, "Welcome home. That was a beautiful job," and the Houston descent team erupted in applause.

Because of the possibility of continuing high winds, Mission Control had maintained an option to order another "wave off" and direct the ship to an alternate landing on a concrete runway at the Kennedy Space Center in Cape Canaveral, Fla.

"A little bumpy at Mach 2," said Lousma as the ship was traveling twice the speed of sound in the sky above Truth or Consequences, N.M.

At decision time, NASA officials determined that New Mexico landing conditions were very acceptable and Lousma and Fullerton were given the green light to land.

COLUMBIA IS DOWN — The space shuttle Columbia touches down at White Sands Missile Base in New Mexico this morning as U.S. Army troops stand by. The shuttle logged more than a million miles in space in its week-long flight. Monday's scheduled landing was scrubbed due to blowing sand at the base.

"A nice solid burn," commander Jack Lousma said after firing the shuttle engines. "Columbia now committed to deorbit," confirmed Mission Control. "Have a good one," said capsule communicator Steve Nagel.

Columbia had been in space for 130 orbits — 8 days — its longest mission by far.

A second-day crowd of less than 10,000 people, closely watched by Army troops, gathered in the desert to watch the ship come in.

A desert sandstorm blocked Monday's scheduled landing. Gusty winds still buffeted the air above the site today, but conditions were considered safe and NASA rejected its own suggestion that Columbia might be sent to a back-up site, the concrete runway at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

The firing of twin maneuvering engines took place at 8:13 a.m. MST and forced Columbia from its orbit. The ship then began its hour-long descent from 140 miles high.

The burn came as the shuttle sailed high above the west coast of Australia and began the world's only re-flyable spaceship third return from orbit in less than a year. Columbia had been in space for 8 days, its longest mission by far.

Lousma and Fullerton were flying backwards, in position for the rockets in the spacecraft tail to brake their 17,495-mph speed by 184 mph.

Four minutes after ignition they were turned Columbia's nose forward and began to feel the buildup of atmospheric gravity pressure on the vehicle.

The shuttle, plunging ever closer to Earth, her speed declining and heat building up, would take a course that would take it north of Australia, over the Pacific north of Hawaii, across the California coast above Los Angeles and on a supersonic dive across Arizona and New Mexico into White Sands.

Conditions on the criss-crossing Northrup Strip runways were "much better today than yesterday," said a Mission Control spokesman. Lousma was advised to land Columbia on runway 17 to take advantage of an automatic landing system down to 200 feet.

Columbia's crew was awakened See Shuttle, page 2A

Committee takes aim at drunk drivers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tough mandatory penalties for drunken driving are being proposed by the Senate Commerce Committee, which has approved a bill that would financially reward states if they adopt a set of stringent standards.

All first-time offenders who fail a chemical sobriety test automatically would lose their driver licenses for 90 days. If convicted of drunken driving twice within five years a driver would get a mandatory jail term of at least 48 hours.

"Our legislation will establish a strong national deterrent to reduce the senseless and tragic loss of life caused by drunk drivers," Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said Monday after the panel voted for the bill unanimously. The measure, by Pell and Sen. Jack Danforth, R-Mo., now goes to the full Senate.

States heeding the minimum standards or enacting tougher drunken driving laws would be rewarded by getting twice the federal highway safety money they now are eligible for under the bill. The legislation provides $25 million for such grants in fiscal 1983, and double that amount the next year.

The proposed minimum standards also include an automatic minimum one-year license suspension for a second conviction and impoundment of the vehicle if the driver is operating it with a suspended license.

Congressional officials, meanwhile, said the Reagan administration is showing new interest in increasing gasoline taxes and a willingness to discuss a cutback in the size of the president's proposed Pentagon buildup as ways to reduce the massive projected federal deficit.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said, however, that White House Chief of Staff James Baker remains unwilling to discuss changing the three-year personal income tax cuts Congress approved last year.

Baker has been holding private talks with senior House Democrats about the administration's proposed budget for fiscal 1983, which projects a record deficit of $96.4 billion.

In other matters in Congress Monday:

—Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., introduced a bill to increase federal commodity price support loans and provide emergency farm credit. The action comes as farm state congressmen are indicating growing concern that the administration is indifferent to the economic problems of the nation's farmers.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Dress code

Q. Does Goliad Middle School have a dress code separate from the other schools?

A. According to Big Spring ISD Superintendent Lynn Hise, the general nature of the district's dress code states students are expected to dress in an appropriate manner and in good taste. Goliad Principal Jim Holmes said the school had the specifics of no shorts, no fishnet shirts and no bare midriffs. Unsuitable sayings on T-shirts are also taboo. Holmes noted age made a difference on some applications of the code.

Calendar: Candidates to speak

TODAY

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce has scheduled an Open Forum today at 7:30 p.m. in the Tumbleweed Room at Howard College for candidates seeking a term on the Big Spring Independent School District, Howard College District Board and the Big Spring City Council.

The Lakeview Head Start program will hold a meeting Tuesday at the Lakeview gym at 7 p.m. All parents are urged to attend.

WEDNESDAY

The fourth in a series of five Lenten services at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 10th and Goliad, will feature the film "Hope For a New Life." The service will begin at 7 p.m. with Evening Office, followed by a soup supper and then the film. The public is invited and babysitting is available.

Tops on TV: 'Gideon's Trumpet'

On Channel 7 at 8 p.m. is the movie "Gideon's Trumpet." Henry Fonda and Jose Ferrer star in this film about how an obscure Florida convict changed the course of American legal history. Also at 8 p.m. on Channel 7 is another episode of American playhouse. The first Scandinavian immigrants and their families farming in a 1915 North Dakota winter are the subjects of John Hanson and Rob Nilsson's film.

Inside: El Salvador elections

RIGHT-WING PARTIES offered to join the Christian Democrats in a unity government as leftists guerrillas fought army troops trying to regain control of El Salvador's fourth largest city. See story on page 3A.

Outside: In the 70s

Partly cloudy turning fair tonight and Wednesday. High today and Wednesday in the middle 70s. The low tonight is expected in the middle 40s. Winds today from the southwest at 15-20 miles per hour.

Lovers' quarrel leads to shooting

LAMESA (SC) — A romantic quarrel resulted in gun fire, a chase through the streets of Lamesa and the wounding of a young woman here last night. Two men have been arrested and another is being held for questioning in connection with the shooting.

According to police reports Janie Lara and Craig Rinehardt had stopped at Mary Ann's convenience store at 1111 Seminole at 9:30 p.m. yesterday where they encountered a former boyfriend of Ms. Lara's. Police said following an argument one of the men began shooting at Lara and Rinehardt, who then fled the scene. The men followed Lara and Rinehardt west on North Fourth and then north on Ave. L, all the while shooting at them, according to police.

During the chase Ms. Lara was hit by a bullet, police said, and Rinehardt then took her to Medical Arts Hospital. Police said the two men gave chase until Rinehardt reached the hospital.

Police, alerted by the Medical Arts staff, were able to arrest Danny Alzada, 24, of Lamesa, who allegedly fired the shots and Daniel Cronen, 28, for aggravated assault. Rinehardt was also taken into custody for questioning.

Ms. Lara was hospitalized and remains in Medical Arts hospital in good condition. Alzada and Cronen are expected to be arraigned later today. They are now in the Lamesa city jail.

Digest

White House holds back arms package for Taiwan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, caught up in delicate negotiations with China, is holding back a $60 million arms sale package for Taiwan even though it appears to have strong support in Congress.

The principal hang-up over the spare parts sale is China's insistence that the United States explicitly rule out selling advanced weapons to Taiwan and at the same time affirm that the pending parts sale would not be a violation of China's sovereignty.

Talks between the United States and China have been under way in Peking for 2½ months.

"It's turning out to be as tough as drafting the Shanghai communique," said a former U.S. official, who helped set China policy under former President Carter.

Ironically, the Peking government, by all indications, is prepared to let the parts sale itself go through.

And in Congress, where a majority appears to favor strong ties with China, there is almost no inclination to cut off Taiwan completely.

"I don't know anyone who's against it," said an aide to a key House member.

5 die in train blast

LIMOGES, France (AP) — Terrorists are blamed for an explosion aboard the Paris-Toulouse express train that wrecked three cars and killed five passengers, but the blast may have been accidental.

Police said at least 27 people were injured, six seriously, in the explosion Monday night 250 miles south of Paris as the train raced through hilly countryside at 87 mph. Witnesses said between 300 and 400 people were aboard, but it was not known whether any were foreigners.

The blast hurled two victims 160 feet, severed the legs of one, shattered windows in a nearby house and scattered debris for more than a mile as the 15-car Capote Express screeched to a halt. It did not derail, but most of the cars were badly damaged and had to be towed to Limoges, 15 miles to the southwest.

A regional official in Limoges said the explosion was the result of "a terrorist attack." He did not elaborate. Passengers were questioned by police and boarded a replacement train early today.

Open Forum scheduled today at Howard College

$147,156 sales tax check received by city

State Comptroller Bob Bullock recently sent the city of Big Spring a check totaling $147,156.42 for its share of the one percent city sales tax for March.

Big Spring's amount was part of a total of $48.9 million in rebate checks sent to 962 cities in Texas.

The overall payment is the largest representing a single month's tax collections ever distributed — 29 percent over the same period in 1981.

The payment, reflecting taxable sales made by Texas businesses in January, is the second record payment in two months, but Bullock added a note of caution.

"Record sales can be one indicator of good times, but they are not an indicator of profit margins. These taxes are based on sales price or market value. True, Texans are spending more but these figures don't tell us what the merchants or suppliers or manufacturers are having to pay for the goods they buy," Bullock said.

Coahoma received $2,757, Colorado City's check was for $15,173, Lamesa received $29,077 and Stanton totaled $3,031.

shortly after 3 a.m. EST with a recording of "This is My Country" radioed up to the spacecraft by Mission Control in Houston. The astronauts responded with a medley of the Air Force song and the Marine Corps Hymn. Commander Lousma is a Marine colonel and pilot Fullerton an Air Force colonel.

"It's a good morning up here. How is it there," said an ebullient Lousma. "We're right over the Straits of Gibraltar. What a sight."

They carried out a few housekeeping chores before breakfast and were later to begin a checklist of preparations for their landing.

Because this is a test flight of a very complicated machine, NASA prefers a landing on the wide-open, hard sand of Northrup Strip rather than attempting a pinpoint approach to the 15,000-foot concrete runway at Cape Canaveral.

"We're confident, based on our experience with two flights, that it is safe to land at KSC," said Eugene Kranz, director of flight operations. "But it's nice to have that little extra margin in a test program."

The decision again may be a cliff-hanger — as it was Monday when astronauts Lousma and Fullerton were "waved off" Northrup just 39 minutes before they were to fire the engines that would drop them out of orbit.

Fierce winds had whipped up a sandstorm on the Northrup Strip runway, making a landing attempt extremely dangerous.

Planes were to be aloft in both New Mexico and Florida to test the winds and visibility at the sites. Their pilots: John Young and Robert Crippen, the astronauts who guided Columbia through its successful maiden flight a year ago.

Young's Monday flight proved the turbulence and poor visibility that sealed Monday's delay, marking the first time in 20 years of U.S. space flight that a landing was postponed.

"Sorry about that," Mission Control told Lousma and Fullerton. "That's the breaks of space, I guess," said commander Lousma, as he prepared for an extra day in orbit on a flight that began eight days ago, and which NASA has proclaimed as highly successful despite some nagging technical problems.

Reagan could increase U.S. counterintelligence efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration may propose making some scientists restrict access to their work as part of a plan to halt a "massive Soviet effort" to learn about U.S. technology, a top CIA official has told Congress.

Adm. Bobby Inman, deputy CIA director, told two House subcommittees Monday that the Soviet Union is concentrating on learning about applied technology, such as weapons systems, missile guidance, and lasers. About 70 percent of the effort is through spying and legal or illegal purchases of various types of technology, he said.

He reiterated the administration's intention to step up counterintelligence to block such efforts. If the United States is successful, the Soviets may shift their attention toward trying to gain access to the basic research done on many college campuses, Inman said. Unless researchers and academics work out a plan to limit access to their work, the administration may come up with some type of proposal within a year or 18 months, Inman said.

But he said he had no specific "proposal on the table to control anything."

Inman's warning, first made several weeks ago, has caused criticism from college campuses, where professors say he is trying to restrict academic freedom.

104 absentee ballots cast on bingo issue

Absentee voting for the Howard County bingo election, the Howard County Junior College District board and the Big Spring Independent School District board ends today at 5 p.m. in the county clerk's office.

County clerk Margaret Ray reports a good turnout for absentee voting so far with 104 ballots cast for bingo and four mailed out, 105 cast for HCJC board and 98 cast for the Big Spring ISD board.

The city council absentee voting stands at 48 ballots cast, according to City Secretary Tom Ferguson.

Absentee voting for the May 1 Democratic primary begins April 12, Mrs. Ray said.

Police Beat

Michigan man arrested

Big Spring police arrested a Michigan man wanted on a warrant for contempt of court yesterday, according to police reports.

Daniel Willey had been sought by Grand Traverse County authorities when local police arrested him in the city park at 10:47 a.m. yesterday, said detective Lt. John Wolf.

SEIZES SNAKES — Jack Tesmell of Big Spring captured the trophy at the 20th annual Big Spring Rattlesnake Round-up for catching the most rattlesnakes: 793 pounds of the venomous creatures. The Round-up concluded its three-day run on Sunday.

"We've got a twenty-four-hour hold on him while they decide whether to come and get him," Wolf said this morning. "If they don't come and get him, we'll turn him loose. We don't want him for anything."

If released from local custody, Willey's arrest warrant would continue to be valid, Wolf said.

• John Donohue of Fort Worth told police he may have lost a bank draft for $5,700 while staying in the Motel 6 on Highway 80 Sunday night.

• Charles Crawford of 511

Benton told police he was riding his bicycle on the south service road to I-20 at 8 a.m. this morning when the driver of a light-brown pickup truck tried to pass him. Due to insufficient clearance, the truck struck Crawford's bike, according to police reports. Crawford was not injured, police said.

Mitchell jail improvements

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Joe Slater of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards inspected the Mitchell County Jail Monday in order to determine which areas the jail needs to improve in order to be in compliance.

According to Sheriff Wendell Bryant, "I feel good about the eight areas in which we are lacking. All of them are being worked on and should be finished soon."

Bryant continued, "I can't thank the commissioners and staff enough for their efforts to make this compliance possible. "With a little bit of patience and hard work, we can achieve our goal: compliance."

C-City cabin damaged by fire

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A cabin located on Cherry Creek Road was heavily damaged by fire this morning and an adjacent car port with a jet boat parked in it was completely destroyed.

The Colorado City Volunteer Fire Department received a call regarding the fire at 3:45 a.m. and 25 men and three units responded to the scene. Also called to the scene was Sheriff Wendell Bryant.

According to a fire department spokesman, about one-quarter of the cabin was consumed by flames while the car port and jet boat were a total loss.

The cause of the fire is being investigated.

For the record

The Yolanda Ramos of 1408 "B" South Nolan, who was arrested last Friday on charges of resisting arrest and failure to stop and identify after a hit-and-run accident, is not the Yolanda Ramos who is a student at Big Spring High School and who currently is taking driver's education. The latter Miss Ramos is the daughter of Pedro and Josefina Ramos of 1408 Robt.

Salvador's rightist parties seek coalition

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Rightist parties that together won a majority of the votes in El Salvador's weekend election invited President Jose Napoleon Duarte's moderate Christian Democrats to join them in a unity government. But leaders of the biggest rightist faction said Duarte would have to go.

The overture to the junta chief's party, which was leading in the election returns with just over 40 percent of the votes cast Sunday, came as the army for the second day battled leftist guerrillas for control of Usulután, the country's fourth largest city.

Christian Democrats greeted the rightist proposal with caution. One party leader, Guillermo Guevara, said the party was still discussing the possibility of a coalition with Democratic Action, the most moderate of the right-wing parties.

Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes, former mayor of San Salvador and the No. 2 man to Duarte in the party, said any alliance or unity government would have to be widely discussed.

Reyes Prendes said the Christian Democrats do not want to share power with ARENA, the ultra-rightist Republican Nationalist Alliance led by retired Maj. Robert d'Aubuisson, which was running second in the election returns. He added that peasants' unions and other workers' groups were "very worried" about how a rightist-led government might treat them.

D'Aubuisson, who is accused of links with right-wing terrorists, said his party would "lead and control" any unity government. But the director of his party, Oscar Cerrato, and spokesmen for two other rightist parties said there was no definite coalition agreement.

Cerrato said a key point of any agreement would be Duarte's exclusion from power. ARENA secretary Mario Redaelli said the unity invitation was a move to depose Duarte, the leader of the U.S.-supported civilian-military junta, and include in the government Christian Democrats who rejected his leadership.

With nearly half of the estimated million votes counted, the Christian Democrats had 184,020, or 41.3 percent, to a combined rightist total of 257,023, including 128,090 (28.7 percent) for ARENA, 70,972 (15.9 percent) for the National Conciliation Party, 41,947 (9.4 percent) for Democratic Action, 11,880 (3.5 percent) for the Popular Salvadoran Party and 4,134 (1.2 percent) for the Popular Orientation Party.

The voting was for 60 members of a constituent assembly that will name an interim government, write a new constitution and make preparations for presidential and congressional elections. But a complicated system of seat-allocation made it impossible to predict the final standings of the parties until more of the votes were in.

The big voter turnout was a severe setback to the leftists who boycotted the election and tried to disrupt it with widespread attacks on election day.

In Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the new assembly should "hold out the hand of conciliation" to guerrillas willing to join the democratic process.

Elated State Department officials say the heavy turnout in El Salvador's elections weakens the case of administration critics who have been urging negotiations between the government and leftist rebels.

The officials, speaking on the condition their names not be used, said they are hopeful the ruling Christian Democratic Party will be able to form a coalition government with Democratic Action, the most moderate of the four opposition parties which competed in Sunday's election.

"That would be ideal," said one official.

The alternative to a Christian Democratic-Democratic Action alliance appeared to be a coalition of rightist parties led by retired Maj. Roberto d'Aubuisson of the National Republican Alliance.

According to the official, a small turnout Sunday would have indicated broad-based support for the leftist guerrilla movement and seriously undercut American policy.

He said it would have strengthened the hand of congressional and foreign critics who believe the only road to peace in El Salvador is formation of a national unity government in which the insurgents would participate.

Fonda, Hepburn take performing honors

'Chariots' comes from behind for top Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Katharine Hepburn and Henry Fonda, the still-in-love oldsters of "On Golden Pond," were hailed as best actress and actor of 1981 at the 54th Academy Awards.

"Chariots of Fire," the British-made saga of two runners who won gold medals at the 1924 Olympic games, scored a smashing surprise Monday night as best picture of the year. The picture, starring relative unknowns, won three other awards for score, costuming and original script.

Warren Beatty, nominated in four categories for the heavily favored "Reds," won only as best director. His film of American radicalism and the Russian Revolution also won for supporting actress Maureen Stapleton as the firebrand radical Emma Goldman and for cinematography by Vittorio Storaro.

John Gielgud, the wisecracking gentleman's gentleman to a millionaire tippler in "Arthur," took his first Oscar, as best supporting actor.

For Miss Hepburn, 74, it was a record fourth Oscar as best actress. For Fonda, 76, it was the climax of a 46-year film career during which the Oscar eluded him — except for an honorary award last year.

Miss Hepburn followed her pattern of 11 previous nominations and did not attend. She was in Washington touring in the play "West Side Waltz," written by Ernest Thompson, author of "On Golden Pond." Thompson also won an Oscar for his "Pond" screen play.

"You're the most extraordinary, generous people," said "Chariots of Fire" producer David Puttnam in his acceptance speech. "Not just the Academy, but as a country, for taking what is absolutely a Cinderella picture and awarding it this."

"It feels as if I had won an Olympic gold medal myself," said Ian Charleson in Edinburgh, Scotland. Charleson, who played Eric Liddell, the Scottish missionary who refused to run on Sunday and took the 400-meter gold medal at the Paris Olympics, added he was surprised by the award and had expected "Reds" to win.

"Raiders of the Lost Ark," a tongue-in-cheek adventure patterned after cliffhanger serials of the 1940s, had the most Oscars with five: art direction, visual effects, editing and sound, in addition to a special achievement award for sound effects. "Chariots of Fire" had four and "Reds" and "On Golden Pond" had three each.

The delighted Beatty accepted his directorial award by first offering special thanks to his date and co-star Diane Keaton ("You make every director look good") and to actor Jack Nicholson, who was nominated as supporting actor for his role in the movie.

Miss Stapleton, winning on her fourth nomination as supporting actress, came to the stage with an incredulous expression and announced: "I'm thrilled, happy, delighted — and sober."

Barbara Stanwyck, glamorous and slim as ever at 74 in a red sequin gown, received the first and most enthusiastic standing ovation of the evening.

Here is a complete list of this year's Academy Award winners.

Participants silent on rumored doomsday exercise

NEW YORK (AP) — The White House and the participants remain publicly silent about a five-day game of worldwide nuclear war that reportedly involved more than 1,000 civilian and military personnel this month.

Participants signed an agreement not to discuss the game, which included information classified as top-secret, says one participant who spoke to The Associated Press on condition he not be identified.

The Wall Street Journal, quoting officials who requested anonymity, reported details of the game, code-named "Ivy League," on Friday. It was the first time in 25 years that the command structures and communications systems that would be used in all-out nuclear war were given a complete exercise.

The anonymous officials told the Journal their objective in discussing the game was "to make sure that the other side is aware that we have the capability."

William P. Rogers, former Secretary of State, played the president and Richard Helms, former CIA director, played the vice president while President Reagan and Vice President George Bush watched from the sidelines. Rogers, now senior partner in the New York City law firm of Rogers & Wells, and Helms, now head of Washington consulting firm Saffeer Co., were chosen by Reagan for the parts, the Journal said. Rogers and Helms have declined to comment on the exercise.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger, the president's national security adviser, William P. Clark Jr., and other security council members looked on while deputy and under secretaries of cabinet agencies acted as members of the National Security Council, the Journal said.

The Journal gave this account of the game:

The exercise began with assumptions of rising international tension and both the United States and the Soviet Union mobilizing for war. After Soviet attacks on American forces overseas, war was declared.

Then, the game assumed, a U.S. ship was sunk in the North Atlantic and U.S. troops overseas were attacked by troops using chemical warfare. The president ordered a low-level nuclear counterattack and the war escalated.

On the fourth day, the game called for a 5,000-megaton missile attack on the American mainland as an attempt to destroy the federal command structure. The blast killed the "president," who had been directing matters from Washington. Power then shifted to the "vice president" and later to two unidentified cabinet members who were sent to secret federal facilities in Texas and Massachusetts. Newsweek magazine said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and Interior Secretary James Watt, playing themselves, were sent to secret federal facilities hundreds of miles from the capital.

The game ended with the president's "successors" setting in motion a retaliatory strike. The day the game ended, Reagan placed a conference call to all the command centers used during the exercise and told the players: "While we pray to God that we will never have to use the procedures you have tested the past week, the nation is better off for what has been done."

Panel of jurors dismissed in trial of three officers

DALLAS (AP) — A judge has dismissed a panel of prospective jurors in the trial of three law officers charged in the deaths of three black youths who drowned during a Juneteenth celebration.

The panel of 48 was dismissed Monday after a motion by defense attorney James Stafford of Houston, who complained that Criminal District Court Judge Tom Price failed to instruct panel members not to discuss the case during a lunch break.

Lawyers planned to bring in a fresh panel today and continue attempting to pick six jurors. Forty-one potential jurors had been dismissed after saying they had read about the case.

The three youths had been arrested for suspected drug violations and were being transported by the lawmen across Lake Mexia in a fishing boat when the vessel capsized. All six people were dumped into the water.

Mayor Angel deserves reelection

Voters in Big Spring will have a choice between two candidates for mayor when they go to the polls this Saturday: one is the single-term incumbent and the other is a challenger the incumbent faced and beat easily two years ago.

While the roles and powers of the mayor basically are no greater than the roles and powers of the rest of the city council, it doesn't mean thoughtfulness and scrutiny should be slighted or reduced when considering your next mayor. The obligation is still to take the most responsible person available and place him on the council.

CLYDE ANGEL IS THE MOST responsible candidate available. He deserves another term because his record has been sound. His votes usually have been actions which we have approved — but far more importantly, Angel's actions appear to be in accord with the will of the people, who voted in Angel by a comfortable margin two years ago.

Angel has been part of a council bloc, a tightly-spun and homogenous unit which almost always winds up voting unanimously on each item of city business. The most important items have been the launching of drastically needed water, sewer and street improvements. The most far-sighted items have paved the way for the future industrial growth of the city.

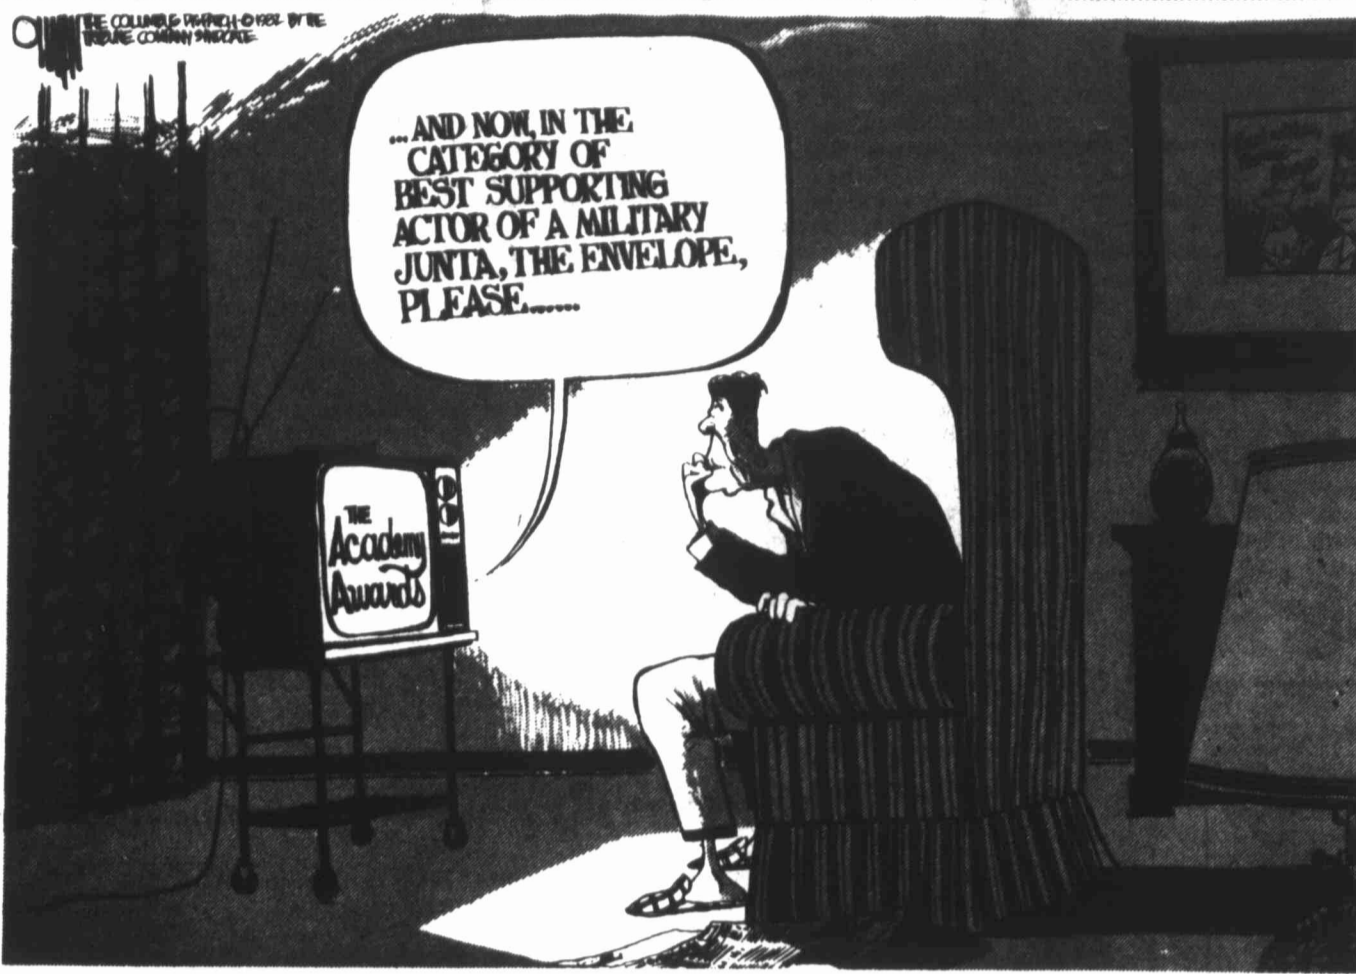

The capital improvements were begun after receiving a message from the people about what kind of improvements they wanted and what sort of financial obligation they were willing to take on to see those improvements accomplished. The industrial expansion — we're speaking mainly of growth at the municipal industrial park — hasn't been guided by a similar mandate from the people because the people haven't had a chance to express such a mandate. But we suspect the wishes of the people are being carried out as city officials plan the way for more local revenue and more jobs in the coming years.

TO BE SURE, having a council which votes unanimously on most items of business has drawbacks. There is an opposite side to each item and it would be nice if someone stood up from time to time to describe that opposing viewpoint. Such an act might even lead to a new majority in certain cases — to rejection of proposals which ordinarily might have passed without expressed opposition. Such a turnaround might be appropriate in some cases.

UNDOUBTABLY, IF ANGEL'S contender Jerry Higgins were placed on the council, there would be displays of opposition. There would be minor argumentation and there would be hot verbal slugfests. It's no secret that Higgins likes to stand up against the current tide of city leadership; he did so the other night at a council meeting and shocked some observers with his rude, occasionally incoherent haranguing of the council members.

If Higgins were to be elected, he might prove to be disruptive too often. The criticism he would offer would not be effective, simply because it would fail to sway any of his four colleagues. He would be a lame duck mayor; his fights would be purely symbolic, a fight for fighting's sake when the tide is inevitably against him.

The business of the city can't stand for that kind of turmoil. It's too important to continue the dramatic rebirth Big Spring is experiencing. And that means it's important to reelect Clyde Angel on Saturday.

Sandbagged

Jack Anderson

President Reagan's attacks on television coverage have made the news executives take a hard look at what they are showing on the nightly news.

Durham, at the ACN network, told me, "You know, the President isn't all wrong. What people see on the nightly news can affect them one way or the other. We make a lot of tough decisions when it comes to what we show."

"Give me an example."
"Well, remember a couple of weeks ago when Mr. Reagan stopped off in Fort Wayne, and for 10 minutes helped the people pass sandbags to each other to stop the flood?"

"Do I ever. It was a great piece of film, and showed the President really cared about the people."

"I'm glad you saw it that way. But when the tape came in, we had a lot of questions about it. The first one was, if we showed it, would the viewing audience think the entire Midwest was under water?"

"You cleared that up by saying only Fort Wayne was being threatened."

"The second question was, would the American people think that all President Reagan did all day was pass sandbags from one person to another?"

"He was dressed in a black suit and wore a shirt and tie. I got the impression he just stopped off because it was a great picture opportunity for him, and his press people couldn't pass it up."

"That occurred to us, too. If this was true, was it a news story or just a publicity stunt to get the President on the evening news?"

"It could have been both," I said. "Frankly, the fact that the President of the United States took time out from defending his budget to pass sandbags to the people of Fort Wayne made me feel very good."

"Some of us thought that, but there were others in the newsroom who argued that viewers would be frightened about what we showed them in Fort Wayne, and they'd say if it could happen to the Hoosiers, it could happen to them. That could prolong the recession."

"I hadn't thought about that. People do tend to stop buying cars when they see them floating down the streets."

"Yet if we didn't show the President passing sandbags, the White House would start screaming that we were keeping Mr. Reagan off the air when he was doing something for the people, and only showing him when he was attacking the media."

"Why couldn't you have done both? First you could have shown the President talking about South Suckotash, and then you could have used the film of him saving Fort Wayne from going under water. It would have portrayed Mr. Reagan as first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Durham said, "That's what we finally decided to do. But then we followed it with a story about an unemployed steelworker in Gary, Ind., and the White House raised the roof. They wanted to know what the President passing sandbags out in Fort Wayne had to do with unemployment in Gary."

"They had a point. Mr. Reagan was trying to stop an act of God, and you were trying to dramatize a manmade calamity for which the Democrats are responsible."

"Maybe we made a mistake in news judgment. We should have devoted the whole program to President Reagan passing along the sandbags."

"That's all water under the bridge, Durham," I told him. "When you're under a deadline it's hard to judge what will play in Peoria. Maybe you'll have another chance to make it up to the President."

"How?"
"As soon as Mt. St. Helens blows again, the White House might give the President a broom and have him help the people sweep up the lava dust in Montana."

Billy Graham

I find I'm worrying more

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have been a Christian for many years, but now that I am elderly, I find myself worrying more and more about my health and the future. Is it natural to do this? — Mrs. B.B.M.

DEAR MRS. B.B.M.: Yes, it is natural to do this I am sure, but as a Christian, you want to rise above the fears you have about the future. Perhaps there are practical steps you can take to relieve your mind about some of your concerns. But more than that, you need to learn to trust God for the future and commit it to him.

I have often thought about the fact that often in our lives, as believers, we do not necessarily need completely new truths to guide us, but we need instead to learn in a deeper way, truths we have probably known for many years. For example, you know that God loves you. You know that he loves you because he sent His only Son into the world to die for your sins and make it possible for you to be a child of God. You also have undoubtedly experienced His love and grace many, many times in your life.

Has God's love been withdrawn from you now that you are older, or is he any less concerned about you than he was when he sent His Son to the cross for your sins? Certainly not! You are His child, and He knows your needs. He loves you, and nothing can change that. And because He loves you, you can trust Him for your future. "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall trouble or hardship or persecution or famine or nakedness or danger or sword? ... No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him who loved us" (Romans 8:35, 37).

These years could be the sweetest and most useful of your life, if you will learn to trust God and ask Him to turn your mind to Him.

Shaw troops are thanked

Dear Editor,
Due to the fact that your reporter failed to give recognition to the following local volunteers who gave of their time and talents to provide entertainment for the Larry Don Shaw "Shill Shindig and Shake-Down," I am hereby submitting their names for recognition in appreciation of their generosity in making that occasion a most enjoyable event:

- Bob C. Smith, Master of Ceremonies.
- Dr. Kenneth Patrick, Invocation.
- "The Believers" — youth band from Knott.
- Big Spring Squares — President, D.W. Overman.
- Lynn Smith — singer.
- Chris Smith — ventriloquist and comedian.
- Felicia Ford — 1981 Miss Texas Teen, singer.
- Rosie Olgin & Linda Arsiaga — Mexican Hat Dance.
- Jill Beall — sing and dance routine.
- Dawn Estes — Miss Texas Junior Miss 1982, singer.
- Andi Burns & Tymi Brooks — "Pillowcase Polka."
- Marci Weaver — 8-year-old singer.
- Heather Farris — Cinderella Mini-Miss Dance.
- Shelly Buchanan — Singer.
- Pat Porter — comedy routine and chili judge.
- George Dushler — chili judge.
- Sam Pendergrass — chili judge.
- Bobby McCracken — chili judge.

The success of this event was due in a large part to these entertainers as well as to the outstanding contributions made by the chili contestants themselves in providing the basic incentives of food and fun and atmosphere combined with the underlying seriousness of being politically supportive.

Looking forward to next year's "Shill Shindig and Shake-Down," I am,

Sincerely,

Foreign pickup purchase knocked

Dear Editor:
Since I do not live in the city, I am reluctant about writing this letter, but I still feel someone should.

Noticed that the City Fathers have contributed to the unemployment of American workers and increased the trade deficit in one fell swoop. They approved purchase of a foreign-made pickup for city use.

In my opinion it is a shame for any governmental body to buy and use foreign products if the same or comparable products are available domestically.

Around the Rim

Cheap thrills

One of the traditional rites of spring, alongside baseball, graduation ceremonies and income tax returns, is the annual opening of the big "theme" amusement parks.

These are a far cry from the days of merry-go-rounds and bumper cars. Today, a trip to the amusement park isn't a trip to the amusement park without a ride on an enormous roller coaster.

I have a fairly normal relationship with these huge beasts full of screaming people. When I arrive at the park I get that tight feeling in my stomach, just from knowing that I won't be able to leave without climbing aboard one.

The wait in line increases the anxiety. And once you're on, that sickening click-click-click sound as you ride to the top of the first incline. From there it's all downhill.

The first thing you want to do when you get off is ride it again.

Texas is blessed with at least six good roller coasters. I've been on all of them in Dallas' Six Flags Over Texas and Houston's Astroworld, and I have some definite opinions about which ones are good and which ones produce more headaches than thrills.

The following totally subjective list covers only those coasters in Astroworld and Six Flags. There may be a grand ride in some place like Presidio that I don't know about. If so, please forgive me.

THE BEST — Astroworld's Texas Cyclone. This is a replica of New York's famed Coney Island Cyclone and apparently it's a pretty good one. It is made out of wood, which means it bangs the riders around and looks rickety and unstable.

The highlight of this roller coaster is at the beginning — you drop at what seems like a 90-degree angle. I'm talking DROP. It gives you the uneasy feeling that your stomach will pop out of your nose.

ALMOST AS GOOD — The Runaway Mine Train at Six Flags. Good things come in small packages. This is sometimes written off as a kiddie ride, but it's hardly that. It takes you through tunnels and around hairpin turns and goes extremely fast the whole way through. It never lets up. Just when you think the ride is going to end, here comes another drop and a few more sharp turns. Ride it at night for the best effect.

WEIRDEST — The Dexter Freebie Electric Roller Ride at Astroworld. This is an oldie but a goodie. It's not very fast, but it takes you pretty high and is at its most frightening at its slowest speed. There are no guard rails on the sides of the tracks and when you make a sharp turn at slow speed you feel sure you're going to tumble out and crash through the Astrodome's roof.

Ever since the Cyclone came to Astroworld this ride has been held in low regard, but I really enjoy it. The lines aren't very long, so you can sometimes ride it over and over again without getting off. Next to the freeways, it's Houston's strangest ride.

OVERRATED — Six Flags' Shock Wave. This is one of the new-fangled jobs with the loops in the middle. You go through the loops at break-neck speed and it's over before you can get a good scream out. What fun is that? Makes you feel like an astronaut in training.

WHAT A BORE — Judge Roy Scream, again at Six Flags. This is pretty popular with Dallasites, but I had more fun waiting in line than riding it. The track makes a big circle and has a couple of humps in the middle. There is one pretty good drop, but it's no big deal. I recommend taking along a book to read.

ALL-TIMES BEST — The Swamp Buggy, a relic from Astroworld's past. They tore this down several years ago because the brakes kept falling (so the rumors go). It consisted of what looked like a big, ugly hollow tree. There were separate cars that held two people each. Only one car on the tree at a time.

You went up the inside of the tree at a 90-degree angle, totally perpendicular to the ground. All that kept you from falling were those brakes that everybody kept saying never worked right. Finally, you popped out of the top of the tree and spiraled down at a wild speed. It was hard to walk a straight line after getting off this one.

Hunt, Hansen extortion called off

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury here is investigating an apparent extortion attempt aimed at two of the nation's most colorful conservatives, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, and Texas tycoon Nelson Bunker Hunt.

It's a bizarre case, to say the least. The suspected extortioner, who has not yet been identified, evidently had some inside knowledge of silver contracts the congressman's wife, Connie, sold in January 1979. The mystery man — or woman — demonstrated ignorance of a crucial feature of the Hansens' financial setup. And to top it all off, the would-be profiteer had a sudden change of heart and called off the whole clumsy attempt within 10 days of its inception.

HERE'S WHAT happened: In April of last year, multimillionaire Hunt got an unsigned letter, postmarked Dallas, charging that "during January, 1979, you gave an $87,000 bribe to Rep. George Hansen ... to secure Rep. Hansen's support in your bid for a large silver mine in Idaho."

The writer demanded a $440,000 "loan" from Hunt for 120 days, explaining: "This money is to be used to help finance an operation that you would certainly give your full support to if we could provide you with details."

The letter instructed Hunt to wire the $440,000 to Account No. 00615 at the Cayman National Bank & Trust Co., in the British West Indies. The account was in the name of a "Gordon Warner," and the letter warned: "If we do not get it, we will give everything to the FBI."

Hunt, whose daddy didn't raise any patsies, declined to roll over. He had his attorney, Ivan Irvine, notify Hansen, and Irvine and the congressman met with Associate U.S. Attorney Rudolf Giuliani, who put the FBI to work on the case.

But even as the G-men were pulling on their gsmshoes, a second letter arrived on Hunt's desk. Dated April 15 and also postmarked Dallas, it informed the tycoon that "due to a change in our plans we no longer need these funds." Also enclosed was a copy of a letter, signed by "Warner," to an official of the Cayman bank, instructing him to send any money arriving for Account No. 00615 to Placid Oil, a Hunt company.

WHAT ARE THE facts of the extortion letter's charges? My associate Tony Capaccio checked into them and learned that Mrs. Hansen had in fact made a profit of $87,475 when she sold 125 silver contracts in January 1979.

The $125,000 down payment on the silver was indeed wired to the broker on Jan. 18, as "Warner" stated in the letter. But it was sent by Mrs. Hansen's accountant in Pocatello, from an account she opened up in 1978 — not from Hunt as the letter charged.

And what "Warner" evidently didn't know was that since 1977 the Hansens have had a legal separation of their financial affairs, as Idaho law allows.

Mrs. Hansen said she has known Hunt since 1977, and that when the millionaire learned she was raising money to pay off her husband's campaign debts, he gave her the name of one of his commodity brokers, Les Ming of Oklahoma City. It was Ming who handled the silver transaction for Mrs. Hansen; Hunt had nothing to do with it.

As for the silver mine mentioned in the first "Warner" letter, it's not even in Hansen's congressional district. There is also no evidence that Hansen ever did anything to help the Texas entrepreneur.

Working from the letters, FBI agents have interviewed Ming and his employees as well as those of the Cargill Investors Service, which executed the silver deal. Cargill's telephone records for the period of January 1979, through June 1980, have been subpoenaed.

So far, however, the authorities haven't trapped the mouse that roared at Nelson Bunker Hunt — and then crept back into its hole.

WATCH ON WASTE: When American troops in West Germany conduct field exercises, they leave behind trampled hay fields, broken fences and torn-up roads. To assuage the injured German property owners, the Pentagon pays out millions in damage claim settlements each year. But Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., chairman of a Defense subcommittee, thinks the costs are rising a little too fast. For fiscal 1982, the compensation fund was given $30 million. For next year, the Pentagon is asking $55.7 million — almost a 90 percent increase.

Dr. Donohue

Pain has lasted too long

Dear Dr. Donohue: A while back, I broke the last bone of my sacrum. It is five months later now and I still feel very uncomfortable, especially after a couple of hours of doing some housework. I feel shooting pains through my back. How long will this last?

I am scared to do exercised, like biking or walking, and I don't want to gain weight. I am 44 years old and in good health otherwise. Any advice you could give me in this matter would be appreciated. — A.S.

For other readers I should explain that the coccyx is the last part of the sacrum, a group of bones that are sort of fused together at the base of the spine. The coccyx can be broken, just as any other bone can. Usually, breaks do not produce long-lasting pain. In fact, treatment often consists of warm-bath soaks and the use of a doughnut-shaped pillow to take pressure off the area when sitting. Occasionally, m'd pain relievers may be required on a temporary basis.

If your pain still is there after five months it is time to consult the doctor about it. He may want to consider the wisdom of surgically removing this bone. In any event, some effort has to be made to determine the reason for the overlong period of your back pain. Read the booklet "Backache and Spine Problems" for a more complete discussion of such symptoms. Other readers may order a copy by writing me care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents to cover printing and handling.

FOR M.J.H. — I gave you some new initials because you wanted anonymity. Your letter was about polycystic kidneys. Polycystic kidneys are inherited, with cyst formation in the kidneys. The cysts enlarge, usually in later life. As they enlarge, they compress the normal part of the kidney and interfere with its functioning. The cysts can be diagnosed by the doctor by feeling the kidney during a routine physical examination. The enlarged kidneys can often be felt in the abdominal area. Or, ultrasound often shows them clearly. Ultrasound is the use of sound waves to produce pictures. The third way to determine if there are cysts present is with X-rays, which can show the cysts well before there is any noticeable sign of trouble. The signs of kidney cysts, incidentally, include blood in the urine, flank pain, kidney stones, and high blood pressure.

If cysts enlarge so that they completely impair kidney function, dialysis or transplant may be necessary. You should let your doctor know about this family problem. He may want you to have ultrasound of your kidneys. If they show cysts you will have to be watched carefully, especially for development of high blood pressure. Polycystic kidneys begin to show symptoms in the 40s and 50s.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently, I underwent two similar tests: the upper GI and the barium swallow. Once the tests started the doctor was able to see my insides on a screen all through the tests. Doesn't that mean the X-rays were going through me all the while? Wouldn't that involve an enormous dosage? — D.R.L.

No, the X-rays were not going through you all the time. The doctor was using a fluoroscope; he does not keep the fluoroscope on throughout the test. He only turns it on for short times during the test so he can follow the path of the barium and take X-rays at points of interest. If there seems to be something abnormal at one place, the picture will let the doctor study it in more detail.

Following the barium down the intestinal tract lets the doctor see how it is working "live." He can get an idea of how well it is contracting and expanding. You can't see that with the single X-ray picture. But you were not being exposed to continuous X-rays throughout the tests.

Dear Abby

Thumb-sucking is harmless

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Going Crazy" with the thumbsucking children not to let it bother her. I have five children, and they were all thumb-suckers. When my oldest baby started sucking his thumb a lot, I asked my doctor what to do about it. He recommended that I paint the baby's thumb with some bitter-tasting medicine, which I immediately picked up at the drugstore. While painting my baby's thumb with that stuff, I accidentally spilled a few drops on my skirt, and would you believe it not only ate a hole in my skirt, it ate a hole in my slip, too!

I threw it out and let my kids suck their thumbs to their hearts' content. All five stopped by the time they went to school and they all have beautiful mouths.

NORTH DAKOTA NANA

DEAR ABBY: I have two children. The first one was a thumb-sucker. It didn't bother me much, but it seemed to bother a lot of other people, so I used every remedy I heard of to get her to stop. It became a real battle, and I lost. That child sucked her thumb every chance she got. She'd come home from school, hide in a closet or behind the sofa and suck her thumb. I finally gave up.

The next child was also a thumb-sucker, but I made up my mind to ignore it. I don't know whether my attitude about thumb-sucking made the difference in their personalities or not, but the second child is much more loving and even-tempered.

Texas gives up attempts to fire prison inspectors

HOUSTON (AP) — State attorneys gave up efforts to have a team of federal monitors fired for allegedly stirring up trouble in Texas prisons and said they would work instead to resolve the dispute out of court.

Monday's surprise reversal came after two weeks of testimony into state allegations of misconduct by Special Master Nathan Vincent, and his complaints that Texas violated a court-order to abolish a system of inmate supervisors.

"We think we have resolved the matter internally," Rick Gray, executive assistant to Attorney General Mark White, told U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

The judge recessed the hearing until April 15 and ordered both sides to negotiate their differences out of court.

Justice said the state's motion "terminates, at least temporarily, an unseemly campaign of vilification against the special master as well as the court."

He warned state officials to make sure no inmates prepared to testify for the special master are threatened or harmed, and warned he would resume the hearing immediately if any evidence of such threats reached him.

The state complained two months ago that Special Master Vincent Nathan and his staff were guilty of "outrageous" and "disruptive" misconduct.

The state had argued Nathan and his staff spread rumors of unrest among convicts that helped incite disturbances, failed to report to guards knives, clubs and other weapons found among the inmates, and committed other acts of alleged misconduct.

Gray declined to say if the state still believed those allegations to be true.

Nathan, who was appointed by Justice to oversee sweeping prison reforms decreed last April, refused to comment on developments Monday.

Gray said White, Nathan and Texas Department of Corrections Director W.J. Estelle had met twice in Austin last week and learned "the differences between them were not as great as first thought."

"We are now in a position to sit down and discuss with all parties the role building tenders play in the prison system," said Gray.

Previously, state officials denied the existence of building tenders, arguing they had been replaced with "support services inmates" to comply with Justice's order.

Policeman dies in explosion after truck crash

HOUSTON (AP) — A 30-second delay allowed motorists along a congested freeway to get out of the way before a gasoline tanker sideswiped by a gravel truck exploded, authorities say.

Police Officer Winston J. Rawlins, who was issuing a traffic ticket along the side of the freeway Monday, was struck by the gravel truck and died under the fiery wreckage, authorities said.

"I don't know how nobody else was hurt or killed. By the grace of God, I guess," said Police Investigator T.D. Owens. "It's a miracle. That's all I'd call it."

Officer N.P. Blesener said the tanker truck driver, Willard C. Gray, had stopped behind a line of cars which had been slowed by an accident farther up the freeway.

He said the gravel truck, which was unable to stop in time, "tried to go to the left but didn't have anywhere to go there," Blesener said.

"He veered to the right but saw the officer and the other guy stopped in the emergency lane and veered back into the rear of the tanker," he said.

The gravel truck, driven by Kenneth Wayne Morrow, scraped the side of the tanker, ran over the officer and slammed into the career high 28-points and was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player as the Tar Heels won the title with a 63-62 victory.

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A national champion at last, North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith can finally say what he thinks about his critics.

"A great writer in Charlotte once said that it was our system that kept us from winning the national championship," Smith says. "It's the most ridiculous comment ever made and I always wanted to say that. We don't have a 'system.' We try to use our talent."

Part of that talent, All-American forward James Worthy and freshman guard Michael Jordan, teamed up to help the Tar Heels beat Georgetown 63-62 in the NCAA finals Monday night, the closest championship game in 23 years.

Worthy won the duel of dunks with Georgetown's Pat Ewing, scoring a career-high 28 points and winning the Most Outstanding Player award. Jordan scored 16 points, including the game-winning shot with 15 seconds left.

The NCAA championship was the only thing missing from Smith's trophy case in an otherwise brilliant career that includes one of the best records in coaching — 468-145 over 21 years at Chapel Hill — an Olympic gold medal and acknowledgment by peers of his basketball greatness.

Smith had brought North Carolina teams to six previous Final Fours only to end up a loser.

Disappointed in the past, Smith said he would have been doubly disappointed if the Tar Heels hadn't won Monday night.

"We had the best basketball team (in the tournament), I thought," he said. "This was the only year it would have bothered me."

Smith didn't necessarily think he had the best team Monday night, however. "I think we were the lucky team," he said.

The Tar Heels thus certified their No. 1 ranking going into the tournament, the first time that has happened since Kentucky in 1978.

"We were ranked No. 1 in the country in the pre-season and post-season," Smith said. "Everybody shot at us. We took peoples' best shots and found a way to win."

North Carolina proved its worth as No. 1 by winning 13 games at the start of the season, including triumphs over five teams eventually selected for the NCAA playoffs. Both Kentucky and Virginia were undefeated and ranked No. 2 when the Tar Heels knocked them off.

The Tar Heels dropped from the top spot after a loss to Wake Forest with center Sam Perkins out sick. Their only other loss this season was to Virginia, but they finished with 16 straight victories and a 32-2 record.

Monday night's victory was one of the toughest of all.

Ewing was responsible for that. The 7-foot Georgetown freshman scored 23 points, grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds and blocked two shots. He also was called for goaltending five times, three on Worthy shots early in the first half.

"I was amazed at Pat Ewing," said Smith. "He has not shot that well in tapes that I watched."

Lucky for North Carolina, the Tar Heels had a pre-game good freshman of their own in Jordan, who collected a team-high nine rebounds in addition to the 18-foot jump shot from the corner with 15 seconds left that gave Smith the championship.

There was still time, about 10 seconds, for Georgetown to come downcourt and pull it out.

Some felt it was also the moment for Georgetown to call a time out. Coach John Thompson explained why he didn't: "When Carolina called a time out (with 32 seconds to go) I told my players not to call one if they (North Carolina) so Dean wouldn't have a chance to set up a defense against a last shot."

As it turned out, Worthy proved better than any defense that could have been arranged. He caught a pass thrown by apparently confused Georgetown guard Fred Brown, a pass that should have gone to All-American guard Eric "Sleepy" Floyd, who scored 18 points for the Hoyas.

"I saw him pick up the ball at the top of the key," said Worthy. "He was going to throw it to someone on the wings. I thought he'd try to lob it over me or throw it away from me. I was surprised that it was right in my chest."

Worthy took off downcourt as time ran out for Georgetown.

Worthy was eventually fouled, setting up two shots. He missed them, but it was already too late for the sixth-ranked Hoyas, who ended their season 30-7.

"It was a great game," Worthy said. "Nobody got more than a four or five-point lead. It was what you want in a national championship."

With Ewing and Floyd each scoring 10 points, Georgetown held a tenuous 32-31 lead at the half. There was no breathing room in the second half, when Georgetown briefly held the game's biggest lead — four points — and North Carolina resorted to its four-corner delay game up by just one.

Jordan didn't see final shot

By AUSTIN WILSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Freshman guard Michael Jordan said he saw the winning shot in a pregame vision, but couldn't watch to see what happened after he arched the real thing with 15 seconds to go in the NCAA championship game.

It swished through from 16 feet away, just as it was planned and just as it occurred in his pregame fantasy. The shot gave North Carolina a 63-62 victory over Georgetown Monday night and the national college basketball championship.

"To tell the truth, I didn't see it go in," Jordan said. "I didn't want to look."

The winning basket came after North Carolina called a timeout to discuss strategy with 32 seconds left, trailing 62-61.

"The play was designed for Mike to shoot a jumper. They were in a 1-3-1 zone, and he should have had about a 15-foot shot after we passed it a couple of times," said senior playmaker Jimmy Black. He had seven assists in the game, including the pass to Jordan.

"I knew I was within my range, and I was open, so I took it," Jordan said.

He said junior forward James Worthy, who got a career-high 28 points for North Carolina, would have saved the game anyway, had the shot gone awry.

"James said after the game that if I didn't get my shot down, he was in good position to get a tip-in," Jordan said. But that would have spoiled the fantasy.

Jordan said he envisioned the dramatic finish and his hero's role before he got to the game.

"I was thinking the game might come down to a last-second shot. I saw myself taking it and hitting it," he said. And the dream-come-true saved sophomore forward Matt Doherty from a nightmare.

Doherty missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with 1:19 left, opening the door for Georgetown to take the 62-61 lead and set the stage for Jordan's heroics. He felt at the time that he had failed his team in the clutch, Doherty said.

But he said a heavy load fell from his shoulders when he saw his teammate turn the shot loose.

"I knew it was in," Doherty said.

But it still remained for Worthy to make a big defensive play to go with his game-high 28 points. With five seconds left, he stepped in front of a Georgetown pass, came away with the ball and dribbled down court.

He missed two free throws after a deliberate foul with two seconds left, but Georgetown had time only for a mid-court heave that fell way short.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith had been accused of being unable to win the big ones. It was his seventh trip to the Final Four, but his first national championship.

Smith praised Georgetown, its coach, John Thompson, and Georgetown players Pat Ewing and Eric "Sleepy" Floyd.

"I'm not sure we were the best team tonight," Smith said. "We were the lucky team."

Reds shut out Astros

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Clint Hurdle and Dave Concepcion drove in one run each Monday, and that was all the scoring the Cincinnati Reds needed to defeat the Houston Astros 2-0 in a spring training exhibition baseball game.

Cincinnati starter Frank Pastore, 2-0, was the winner as he and relievers Tom Hume and Jim Kern limited the Astros to six hits. Houston starter Don Sutton, 0-2, was the loser.

In the second inning, Dan Driessen singled to right field, moved to second base on an infield out and scored on a single to center by Hurdle.

The Panthers lead the district race with a 2-0 record after being picked to finish last among the eight league teams. Blake Rosson is leading the Steers in hitting in district with a .427 average while Marcus Armendariz has a .333 mark. The Steers have managed just eight hits in two games but have received great pitching from Rubio in the opener (4-2 loss to Abilene) and Adam Rodriguez Saturday (3-1 win over Midland).

Ewing's play 'offensive' ...

...but defense wasn't half-bad either

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Georgetown's Pat Ewing wanted to show critics that he doesn't just play on the defensive end of the court.

The 7-foot freshman center poured in 23 points, grabbed 11 rebounds, had three steals and blocked two shots in Monday's 63-62 loss to North Carolina in the NCAA championship game.

"I wanted to do my best," said Ewing, who hit 10 of 15 shots in equalling his season-high scoring output.

"They think I'm just defense. I wanted to show I could play offense, too."

He wasted no time showing North Carolina. After controlling the opening tip, he went down and popped a seven-footer from the baseline for a 2-0 lead.

Over the next three minutes Ewing was called for goaltending after swatting back a James Worthy six-footer; stole the ball; hit a short jumper; and was whistled on another goaltending violation on a Worthy jumper.

"For a freshman, he's awesome talent," said Worthy, the game's most valuable player with 28 points. "I hate to see him the next year or after that. He's awesome."

'They think I'm just defense. I wanted to show I could play offense, too.'

—Patrick Ewing

Nobody was more surprised with Ewing's overall play than North Carolina Coach Dean Smith.

"I was amazed at Pat Ewing," Smith said. "He has not shot that well in tapes that I watched. Sam (Perkins) had a hand up on him and he still made them."

"Not only is he a great shot blocker, he made some shots that showed he could play offense."

Ewing, called for goaltending five times in the first half, thought the blocks were clean swipes.

"I felt I wasn't goaltending," he said. "I felt it was judgment calls."

North Carolina didn't get an untouched basket until Matt Doherty's driving layup with 11:52 remaining in the half to cut the Georgetown lead to 12-10.

"Those were high-percentage shots they were taking," Georgetown Coach John Thompson said of the goaltending violations. "It creates a consciousness and tends to make people gravitate to the outside."

Georgetown, playing in its first Final Four since 1943, lost its chance for the title after a turnover in the final seconds.

Sophomore guard Fred Brown attempted to flip a pass to forward Eric Smith on the right baseline, but Worthy was there to pick it off with five seconds to go.

"We were in great position but James Worthy stole the ball on the perimeter and that's exactly where we would want an outstanding player like him to be," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson.

All-American guard Eric "Sleepy" Floyd thought the ill-fated pass was intended for him.

"I had cut away to the corner to get the ball," said Floyd, who finished with 18 points. "Unfortunately we didn't get a shot off."

Thompson said he had told his players not to call timeout to set up a play because he didn't want to give North Carolina a chance to get back on defense.

Exhibition Baseball Roundup

How to spell relief? R-O-L-L-I-E
 By The Associated Press
 Milwaukee Brewers Manager Buck Rodgers can let out a sigh of relief that he still has Rollie Fingers in relief.
 Fingers, the 1981 Cy Young award winner in the American League, dislocated his left, non-pitching shoulder March 13 while engaging in horseplay with teammates. He made his first appearance since the injury Monday, working one hitless inning during Milwaukee's 9-8 exhibition victory over San Francisco.
 Rodgers said the injury, during which Fingers struck out one batter and walked one, was enough evidence for him that nothing is amiss with his star relief pitcher.
 "After I saw that first fastball he threw, I knew he didn't miss anything," said Rodgers.
 Fingers has thrown hard on the sidelines three times since the injury, and Rodgers said there was no rush to get him into play.
 "I think we were wise doing it this way. He wanted to get in there earlier," said Rodgers.
 Shortstops Ron Koenigsfeld and Robin Yount hit homers and Mark Brouhard drove in three runs to lead Milwaukee's 16-hit attack against the Giants.
 In other games, Bobby Ojeda pitched a four-hit shutout for seven innings, Jim Rice had three hits to raise his average to .462 and Glenn Hoffman homered to lead Boston to an 8-0 triumph over Detroit.
 Bump Wills and Larry Bowa, the first two hitters in Chicago's batting order and newcomers to the club, combined for five singles, a stolen base and four runs to lead the Cubs to a 5-1 victory over Oakland.
 Steve Strouther hit a two-run homer and Todd Cruz drove in two runs with a double to lead Seattle to a 7-4 victory over San Diego.
 Wallace Johnson collected three singles and three RBI as Montreal defeated Toronto 10-2. Expos pitcher

Steve Rogers allowed only one hit in five innings.
 Clint Hurdle and Dave Concepcion both drove in a run and Frank Pastore, Tom Hume and Jim Kern scattered six hits as Cincinnati blanked Houston 2-0.
 Mike Scioscia knocked in two runs with a triple and Steve Garvey slugged his first spring homer as Los Angeles defeated Minnesota 7-2 to snap a five-game losing streak.
 Tom Paciorek's bases-loaded single in the 11th inning gave the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia. Ivan DeJesus homered for the Phillies.
 Chris Bando and Jack Perconte both had three hits and two RBI and Larry Sorensen blanked California on four hits for eight innings to lead Cleveland to an 8-3 triumph.
 Lee Lacy led Pittsburgh's 15-hit attack with three hits, three stolen bases and one RBI as the Pirates improved their record to 14-6 by bombing the New York Mets 10-5.

DeBakey sisters operate on thick medical jargon

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Michael DeBakey's medical contributions — particularly in the fields of education, open-heart surgery and organ transplants — are well-documented. But his most lasting contribution to medicine may be his two sisters.

DeBakey, now 73 and the chancellor of the Baylor University medical school here, noticed early in his career that doctors often had trouble making themselves understood, largely because their vocabulary was weighted down with medical jargon.

State, local taxes equally disliked

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Federal income taxes are uppermost in people's minds as April 15 approaches, but state and local levies also account for a big chunk of the money collected by government.

Income taxes are the second biggest money-raiser for the states. Individual income taxes accounted for 27.1 percent of state tax collections in fiscal 1980 and corporate income levies accounted for 9.7 percent.

The public, meanwhile, is about equally divided in its dislike of the federal income tax and local property levies.
