Dying man donated eyes; now blind friend can see

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

It was a case of a dying man giving someone a new life.

Eddie Hooper, a 49-year-old Korean war veteran, was in the Big Spring VA Medical Center suffering from terminal cancer. His powerfully built 220-pound body had shrunk to 117 pounds, but he refused to give up his spark of life.

Described by his wife, Wanda, as "a man who never met a stranger" Hooper made friends with a man in the room next to his. The man was Jack Rogers. He was in the hospital waiting for any eye donor so he could have a cornea transplant to rid his eye of cataracts.

Later Rogers was transferred to a ward away from Hooper, but the two still visited each other. From his bed Hooper sometimes watched the sightless Rogers grapple his way along the corridor. The transfer had interrupted Rogers' normal routine and he obviously was having trouble getting his bearings.

DESPITE HIS PAIN and suffering Hooper made a decision to help Rogers.

According to Rogers, "Eddie came to me and asked me if I would accept his eyes so I could have the transplant. I don't know how you can describe how it feels for someone to offer to do something like that."

Mrs. Hooper said her husband told her, "I haven't seen enough of the world in my lifetime and I hope to see more of it through someone else's eyes."

Later Rogers went to Hooper's room where Hooper and his wife signed the donor consent papers.

Johnnie Hooper, a brother, said the scene was an emotional one for him. "I know it was my brother, but had

EDDIE HOOPER
...gave eyes before his death

JACK ROGERS
...once blind, can now see it been anybody the contribution still would have been great. Here was a man in great pain and suffering and still he had enough compassion to do something for his fellow man," Hooper said. "He knew Mr. Rogers was having a hard time being blind and he wanted to give him sight."

However, there is a waiting list at the hospital for patients to receive eye donations. In the planned sequence, whoever was first on the list would have received Hooper's eyes. Call it coincidence, luck or divine intervention — Rogers' name was at the top of the list.

CANCER FINALLY won the hard-fought battle with Hooper on Saturday, March 6. Through the help of Tommy Whitley of Trinity Memorial Funeral Home the eyes were delivered back to the VA Hospital and readied for the transplant the next day. Dr. David Lambert of Texas Tech University, assisted by Dr. William Bartlett of the VA Hospital, performed the surgery.

In a few days the veil of darkness was lifted from Rogers as his eyes were uncovered by Dr. Bartlett.

"The first thing I saw was Dr. Bartlett's necktie," Rogers said. "And since then I've been satisfied with everything I've seen so far."

"There is not expression possible for how it feels to regain sight. I feel like I'm part of Eddie seeing the world through his eyes. I hope I can live up to his expectations of me," Rogers said Friday in an interview at the VA Hospital.

ROGERS, A NATIVE OF Galveston, had been legally blind for two years. In 1960 he lost his left eye in a drilling rig accident. The vision in his right eye began deteriorating in 1968 with cataracts. He had been in the VA Hospital since June, 1981, eagerly awaiting a cornea transplant. He met Hooper in February.

"I don't know how you describe how it feels to know someone has donated their eyes for you. His wife and family are a wonderful bunch of people to be willing for him to do that," Rogers said. "A Lord's miracle has come to me."

The restoration of sight has changed Rogers' outlook on life.

"I always liked to do things for myself. That's what I like best about having my sight back — I can see where I'm going and no one has to lead me around," said the 63-year-old man. "I feel real wonderful that I can do for myself instead of being escorted around."

Rogers' joy is uncontained as he proudly walks the halls of the sixth floor of the hospital. Hooper's first feelings of sympathy for the then sightless man have blossomed into Rogers' independence.

Johnnie Hooper — the brother — said, "When I saw Mr. Rogers walking around those halls it gave me good feelings to know that through my brother's gift, he was able to walk on his own."

Both Johnnie Hooper and Rogers urge people to become more aware of organ donations.

"People ought to keep donations in mind. I would think it would be just as great a feeling for them as for the person getting the donation," Rogers said.

Ironically, Johnnie Hooper said Rogers has never seen a picture of his friend Eddie Hooper. Today when Rogers sees Hooper's picture in the newspaper he will, in a sense, be looking at a reflection of himself.

Tune doesn't want juvenile probation job

County Judge Bill Tune says he no longer is an applicant for the juvenile probation officer's job and has not been since the day he filed to run for re-election as county judge.

"When members of the selection committee did not reach their decision by Jan. 31, they virtually eliminated me from the job," he said.

That's because the filing deadline for county office was Feb. 1, "and once I decided to run for county judge, I had to make a firm commitment to the voters and my supporters," he said.

"I plunked down my $300 filing fee to run for county judge," he said. "I don't know if $300 means anything to you, but it means something to me."

HE SAID IF he had been offered the juvenile probation officer job before Jan. 31, he would have accepted it. "I was very depressed that week, and I kept hoping the selection committee would call a meeting. But when they didn't, and when Bill Crooker and Bob Fuller told me they wouldn't be able to make a decision before the filing deadline for the Democratic primary, I knew I had a tough decision to make."

He said a group of businessmen who supported him for county judge wanted a "yes" or "no" in time to line up another candidate if Tune decided not to run.

BILL TUNE
...seeking re-election

"This was a family decision. I talked with my wife and my children, because this involves them too. It's not easy for them having a county judge in the family. I get calls at all hours of the night, my weekends are interrupted, I often am called to commit someone to the state hospital and that sort of thing, and I'm willing to do it. But I wanted my family to be in on this decision because it affects them too.

"My wife and I talked about it a long time, and finally she said, 'Okay, you get down there and file those papers!'" Once he made the commitment to run for county judge, he said, "the juvenile probation job was out of the question."

TUNE WAS RELUCTANT to talk about the recent controversy surrounding the Juvenile Probation Board. "I don't want to degrade anybody, and I don't want to lower myself or take any dignity away from the office of county judge by getting involved in any senseless name-calling," he said.

But when asked if he had been approached to call a meeting of the Juvenile Probation Board of which he is chairman, he said, "Carol Hunter, to my recollection, never called me until April 7 (the day after a Herald editorial questioned why the board had not yet selected a new probation officer) and then she talked with my secretary."

Mrs. Hunter is chairman of the selection committee for the juvenile probation officer's job. She recently told The Herald she had "made every request (to Judge Tune) to have the meeting."

Tune said the only two times he had seen Mrs. Hunter since Jan. 11, the day of the last juvenile board meeting, was at the Chamber of Commerce banquet on Jan. 30 — "I sat next to Carol" — and again on April 3, city election day. "Neither time did she say anything about calling a meeting," he said.

TUNE SAID his secretary is "very efficient" and "I feel sure I would have received any messages if there had been any" from the selection committee.

The Juvenile Probation Board will meet Tuesday in Carol Hunter's office. Tune is not sure yet whether or not he will attend because he has been invited by local Chamber of Commerce officials to meet with Cong. Charles Stenholm and Cong. Kent Hance at a U.S. Chamber of Commerce legislative and regulatory forum that day in Fort Worth.

But if he is here, Tune said, he will attend the meeting. "In the event that I am not here," he said, "I would urge the board to go ahead and make a selection."

Tune said he has spent $1,555.95 campaigning for county judge. "Would you call me a serious candidate or not? I want my job. I want to be county judge."

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Dr. Hays' salary

Q. Is Dr. Charles Hays the highest paid junior college president in the United States?

A. According to a spokesman in the American Council of Education in Washington, D.C., no statistics exist to compare salaries of junior college presidents. The spokesperson stressed that it is extremely difficult to determine all of the variables that exist between junior colleges. Differing budgets, varying credentials, and other items make the salary a matter subject to the peculiarities of the area and the college district, she said. Texas higher education was growing and higher salaries were needed to get good people, she said.

Suspects arraigned on robbery charges

Two men charged with robbing a Wyoming Hotel resident April 1 were arraigned late Thursday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

John Baker, 32, address unavailable, and William Ensmenger, 27, of the Wyoming Hotel, were each charged with robbery and theft from a person before Judge Heflin, who set bonds totalling $15,000 for each of the men.

Rains in California cause some mudslides

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Drenching warm rains fell Saturday on California, causing some mudslides in the San Francisco area and prompting warnings of flooding from the melting of a heavy snowpack in the mountains.

Reservoirs already are full.

The National Weather Service in Redwood City issued a flood watch for the lower elevations of northern central California and said that 1 to 4 inches of rain would fall in the area by late Sunday.

Police reported scattered minor mudslides on roads in the San Francisco Bay area, but the state Office of Emergency Services said there had been no reports of major problems.

The California Highway Patrol said an exit ramp from U.S. Highway 101 into Sausalito, north of San Francisco, was closed after a mudslide blocked a road.

One of the heaviest snowstorms on record blasted the Sierra Nevada last week, triggering avalanches and forcing evacuations. With rain falling as high as 8,000 feet in the mountains, officials worried that melting snow could swell streams to flood stage.

San Jose officials Friday warned residents of the Alviso area to be ready to evacuate their homes. The warning came about a week after 3,000 people were forced from their homes by floods caused by a levee break on Coyote Creek.

By Saturday afternoon, 0.4 inches of rain had fallen in San Jose.

The National Weather Service in San Francisco said Saturday, "Normally, a storm with associated rainfall amounts of 1 to 2 inches should not cause alarm. However, this has not been a normal rainy season."

The weather service warned people living in flood plains or near streams draining the mountains to watch for rising water through Sunday.

Arctic explorers run out of gas

LONDON (AP) — Two British explorers literally ran out of gas near the top of the world Saturday after picking a path for their snowmobiles through the Arctic wasteland in hopes of becoming the first to cross the globe via both poles.

Anthony Preston, spokesman for the Trans-globe expedition headquarters in London, said more fuel was being flown to Sir Ranulph Fiennes and Charles Burton, who are now expected to reach the North Pole late Saturday night, more than 10 hours behind schedule. Fiennes and Burton set out on the last leg to the pole early Saturday in snowmobiles, stopping only to ax a path across the Arctic Ocean, frozen hard by temperatures of about 26 below. They were only eight miles from the pole when they ran out of gas, Preston said.

Once they reach the pole, the explorers — with Fiennes' pet terrier, Bothy, at their side — planned a champagne celebration at the desolate milestone in their 52,000-mile journey.

Ex-waiter convicted of setting fatal fire

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A former hotel waiter was convicted of murder and arson Saturday on charges he set the Stouffer's Inn fire that killed 26 people.

Luis Marin, 26, a Guatemalan immigrant, was accused of 26 counts of arson and murder in the Dec. 4, 1980, fire at the Harrison hotel.

Marin, who could face a possible 26 consecutive life sentences on the conviction, hung his head without expression as his wife, Blanca, sobbed in the courtroom when the verdict was announced.

The jury had deliberated for 37 hours over six days before finding Marin guilty. Westchester County Judge Lawrence Martin, who had said earlier in the trial — in the absence of the jury — that the prosecution had failed to prove Marin guilty, said he would rule next Wednesday on the defense motion to set aside the verdict. Marin, who has been held without bail since his arrest nearly one year ago, was taken to the Eastchester County jail to await next week's hearing.

Martin thanked the panel for its verdict, despite his stated view that the case against Marin was "pure speculation."

"On behalf of the state of New York and its court system, we thank you," the judge said. "Without you, the system wouldn't work."

Earlier Saturday, the jurors had indicated they wanted to know why Marin lied during the investigation if he did not set the fire that killed 26 people.

"That is what we are debating," jury foreman Frederick Young said when Martin asked for a clarification of the jury's latest note about "Mr. Marin's lies."

Self-made scholar awaits law school

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Peggy Smith is a self-made scholar. In October 1978 armed with only a sixth grade education she tackled a GED test at Howard College and passed it without studying. From then on she has raced through the halls of academia.

She obtained an A.A. degree from Howard College in one and a half years, and she is about to receive a B.A. from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. Her entire college career has spanned only three years.

The awards she has won include a honor merit scholarship to UTPB, membership in Phi Theta Kappa, member of the Dean's Honor list in the fall of '81 and she recently was named in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. Her grade point average despite a heavy workload sits at 3.5.

She has taken the LSAT — an entrance test for law school candidates — and applied to the Texas Tech Law School. She said she will exhaust all the possibilities for law school before she attempts her backup plan — a Ph.D. in government.

In between her studying and endless commuting back and forth to Odessa she has found time to be a mother to six children (three of which still live at home), a wife and she has even found time to be active in local politics.

How has she managed college and a family?

"I owe a great deal to my family. Bob (her husband) and the kids have supported me 100 percent," Mrs. Smith said. "Without them I wouldn't be able to do the things I'm doing."

It takes quite a bit of support. During her last semester in which she was enrolled for 21 hours, a typical day lasted from 5:30 a.m. until about 11 p.m. Her schedule involved the 100-mile round trip to Odessa, a full morning, afternoon and evening of classes. And she also was a member and officer of the UTPB Student Senate.

Her academic career began almost as a whim.

"I heard they were offering the GED at Howard College and I felt challenged to see if I could pass it and I did with fairly high marks," Mrs. Smith said.

Mrs. Smith said she was a bit intimidated upon her initial enrollment in Howard College.

"I was a little bit afraid going into classes. I had been away from school for so long. I had to relearn how to study and I had to get into an academic routine. The kids (of the college) have kept me young and they've really supported me."

"I would encourage anyone to go back to school. It's never too late and you're never too old," Mrs. Smith said.

The grinding rotation of fall, spring and summer semesters have worn her down some, but she said the thought of her black cap and gown and May graduation have kept her going.

"I'm really looking forward to the summer. I guess I've almost reached the point of burning out because sometimes I think if I see another government book I'm going to flip out."

"I realize it's all downhill now so when I get tired I just regroup and charge ahead," Mrs. Smith said.

For now she waits patiently for word of her acceptance to law school. "Right now I'm tired. But after I have two weeks rest I'll probably be apprehensive about hearing from Tech," she said.

If she graduates from law school she sees politics in her future and after that who knows? Peggy Smith is a perfect example of the old adage "if you believe in yourself, you can be anything you want to be."

QUICKSAND RESCUE — Shane Goodman, 8, of Abilene, wraps his arms around the neck of Pat Sullivan of Abilene to keep from slipping deeper into what rescuers described as quicksand. As Sullivan held the boy Abilene policeman Billy Kropp tried to dig Goodman out with his hands Friday afternoon in Elm Creek. Goodman, who was trapped for roughly 30 minutes, was finally freed after a fire department rescue unit used shovels to dig him out. Goodman said he was trying to cross the creek and "fell in."

Reagan defends student aid cuts

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — President Reagan interrupted his vacation for five minutes Saturday to tell a radio audience in the Caribbean and in the United States that "a lot of people have simply been misled" about his proposed cutbacks in federal aid for college students.

"We haven't cut loans," Reagan said. "We've cut the cost to taxpayers of making these loans available."

The president, in a surfside chat beamed back to the United States, also made his first public comment in two days on the Falkland Islands dispute between Great Britain and Argentina. "We'll do all we can to help bring a peaceful resolution to this matter," he said.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan spoke briefly with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who went to Buenos Aires after a trip to London to seek a solution to "a complex disagreement" between "two of our friends."

After the speech, which concentrated on what Reagan called the "great misconception" about his program of aid to college students, the president flew by helicopter to the beach villa of actress Claudette Colbert.

On many campuses, he said, "the students are being told they might not be able to return to school next year. In some instances, they've even been incited to stage protest demonstrations against what have been called Draconian cuts in student aid."

"Well, a lot of people have simply been misled," Reagan said, acknowledging that guaranteed student loans would drop from $2.7 billion this year to $2.4 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

"But not one dime of the money being cut has ever gone directly for loans to students," Reagan said, adding the actual loans are made by private banks.

Democrats asserted that Reagan was ignoring facts about his proposals. In a broadcast response to the president's speech, Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., noted Reagan's proposal would "aid 1.9 million students less in academic year 1983-84 than are being helped now."

"And that's just direct aid to students seeking a college education," he said. "Overall, the president proposes we cut federal aid to education by about 35 percent. And you can't build a strong country without a strong citizenry."

In his speech, the second of a series of live radio addresses, Reagan said his Caribbean Basin initiative, "a plan for trade, aid and private investment" to build up the economies of Central American and Caribbean nations "is sound and in our best interest as well as theirs."

Argentina vows to defend islands

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's military president told 300,000 delirious supporters Saturday that the armed forces will go into battle if a British armada tries to retake the Falkland Islands. The throng whistled and boomed when he mentioned the United States.

A 200-mile British war zone around the islands goes into effect at midnight Sunday, and President Reagan said in a radio address from his vacation in Barbados, "We'll do all we can to help bring a peaceful resolution to this matter."

The multitude, reminiscent of the crowds drawn to the historic Plaza de Mayo by President Juan Peron and his wife Eva in the 1940s and 1950s, waved blue and white national flags and exploded in cheers when President Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri defied Britain to attack Argentine soil.

Galtieri appeared on the balcony of Government House after meeting for 90 minutes with Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who arrived from London in an effort to avert war over the Falklands, the tiny British colony 250 miles off the southern coast that Argentina seized April 2. Haig did not speak to reporters.

The president told the throng below that Argentina "extends its hand, in peace, to the adversary. But let the world be sure that this (the Argentine) people is firm in its will. If they (the British) want to come, then let them come and we will do battle..."

"I am proud, in my discussions with the representative of the U.S. government, to maintain Argentina's dignity and honor, which is not subject to negotiation by anyone. The people are ready to battle anyone who dares touch one square meter of Argentine soil," he said, drawing a thundering cheer.

Galtieri's mention of the U.S. government brought whistles and boos from the crowd, angry with America's support for a U.N. resolution demanding Argentine withdrawal.

Hundreds of banners fluttered over the 10-acre Plaza de Mayo, proclaiming Argentine determination to keep the Falklands. "We Will Not Lose With Ink What We Won With Blood," read one. Another read: "Sovereignty Shall Not Be Negotiated."

The islands' newly installed Argentine governor, Gen. Mario Menendez, ordered residents to hand over short-wave radio sets to military authorities and said all short-wave antennas outside the capital of Port Stanley must be taken down because of Britain's intention to block the islands.

In Brussels, the Common Market decided to boycott Argentine exports to Europe, valued at $1.7 billion in 1980, the last year for which figures were available.

A fleet of 40 British warships headed by two aircraft carriers was reported off the West African coast and is expected in waters surrounding the Falklands in about nine days. But at least one British submarine, the nuclear-powered Superb, is believed to already be near the islands.

Britain has promised to sink any Argentine vessel within 200 miles of the disputed islands after midnight Sunday — 11 p.m. EST. British newspapers say one carrier in the armada is carrying anti-submarine nuclear depth charges. The British Defense Ministry refused comment.

Argentine forces seized the islands and their South Georgia and South Sandwich dependencies April 2. The islands had been administered by Britain since 1833, when its navy ousted Argentine authorities.

The gale-swept archipelago is home to some 1,800 people, the great majority of whom are British and want to remain such. Twenty-one Americans are reported on the islands. British newspapers said many islanders want to be evacuated before any shooting starts.

Haig said Friday upon arrival in Buenos Aires that he hoped to help find a diplomatic solution "based on U.N. Security Council Resolution 502." The U.S.-supported resolution, passed the day after the Argentine invasion, condemned the aggression and called for an immediate withdrawal of Argentine forces.

Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez, who traveled to the United States last week to defend the Argentine position at the United Nations and met with Haig in Washington, has said everything is negotiable except Argentine sovereignty over the islands.

Argentina will not try to force its ships past the announced British blockade of the Falkland Islands, two Argentine diplomats said Saturday.

The statements came from Raul Quijano, Argentina's ambassador to the Organization of American States, and Esteban Takacs, ambassador to the United States, on the Cable News Network "Newsmaker — Saturday" interview program.

Britain has announced that after 11:01 p.m. EST Sunday, it will sink any Argentine vessels within 200 miles of the Falkland Islands rather than let them supply the troops which seized the British-ruled archipelago on April 2.

The two ambassadors were asked, "Is it Argentina's intention to assert her sovereignty by trying to break that blockade?"

Takacs replied, "Our intention is to assert our sovereignty through discussions and negotiations now."

Texas man reportedly arrested by Argentines

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texan working on a British offshore rig was taken into custody by Argentine authorities who stopped the rig as it headed for Chilean waters, the man's wife said Saturday.

A congressional aide contacted by relatives of Michael Martinez Jr. said he was told that State Department officials sent a cable Saturday to the American embassy in Buenos Aires.

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. is visiting the South American country in an effort to avert a war over Argentina's takeover of the British-ruled Falkland Islands.

"The State Department is sending a very detailed cable and it's now a very frustrating waiting game," said Ivan Sinclair, administrative assistant to U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas. Hightower was contacted by Martinez' mother and brother in Amarillo, Texas.

"Why he was taken we do not know; what they plan to do we do not know," Sinclair said.

Sinclair said State Department officials believed Martinez was the only American escorted from the rig.

The State Department had no comment. Martinez is a paramedic and safety training instructor for Sonat Exploration Co. of Houston, which leased the InterOcean 2 to Sonat Offshore Drilling Co., a British company. Marion Martinez said her husband told her the Argentine navy boarded the rig 100 miles offshore and escorted workers to the coastal city of Rio Gallagos, which is due west from the Falkland Islands.

Martinez said "they were going to possibly send him to Buenos Aires, put him on a plane and send him to Miami," she said. But he added, "I'll believe it when I get there."

Her husband urged her to call the State Department and said the conversation was being monitored by the Argentines, Mrs. Martinez said.

Later, Sinclair said Martinez' employer called him to say Martinez had played "a practical joke" on his wife.

The contention infuriated Martinez' wife, who said her 29-year-old husband "does not play that kind of jokes."

Happy Easter

For most people, the experience of Easter is the dawning of a new season of hope, renewal and bright promise. For Christians, the season of Christ's rebirth is the rebirth of the soul, changing gloom into joy, disillusionment into faith, and lifting man's heart to glory and hope.

Easter is part of the Christian experience, but it also has roots in pagan and Hebrew traditions. THE PAGAN ROOTS go back to the Norse "Eostre," meaning the festival of spring at the vernal equinox, when nature is in resurrection after winter. Hence, the rabbits, noted for their fecundity, and the eggs, colored like rays of the returning sun. The Hebrew roots can be studied in Exodus XII of the Bible, which describes the night in Egypt when the angel of death "passed over" the dwellings of the Israelites, so sparing their first-born. Hence, the Passover or Jewish Pesach, celebrated during Nisan, the first month of the Hebrew year.

In Christianity, it was at the feast of the Passover in Jerusalem that Jesus, a Jew, was crucified and rose from the dead. Christian churches everywhere celebrate the resurrection of Jesus in Easter services that rank in importance with Christmas.

WHATEVER YOUR FAITH, we hope that Easter has a special meaning for you, and that all of us will experience the peace of Easter. The sun sets and there is darkness; but at dawn there is a new light, the beginning of a fresh start, Easter sunrise.

Bad breaks

The housing crunch may have its plus side. Maybe we can go back to having presidents born in log cabins. This sage observation was made by former City Councilman Eddie Acri, who celebrated his birthday Wednesday as does his 2-year-old grandson, Christopher Alan Acri. FREE ELECTIONS are America's gift to the world. We've shown repeatedly that ignorance and indifference need not keep voters from selecting mediocre leaders. It's all right for presidents to come from humble beginnings. But by the time they're elected they'll have to be ready to live up to Nancy Reagan's "place-settings."

Kaye Bunn, good with Herald figures and who observed her birthday April 2, overheard: "She told me exactly how old she is. She's half my age and three-fourths of hers."

Lithesome Lisa Beard, a model motorcycle whiz, repeats there's one thing to be said for ignorance — it sure causes a lot of interesting arguments.

TANTALYZING TONYA MOFFETT, 9-year-old Sylvester sensation, asks: "Isn't it hard to believe this country was founded partly to avoid taxes?"

Tonya, it is a shock to hear the Internal Revenue Service complain that there's too much tax cheating. The story may be true, but we're just not mentally prepared to give IRS sympathy.

MAKE THE PENALTY fit the crime: Anyone caught cheating on his income tax will have to file a longer form.

Fast and flashy Bill Forshee, who lived it up on his birthday Wednesday says: "Don't knock Uncle Sam. You wouldn't mind buying a used space ship from him, would you?"

THE PEOPLE of El Salvador haven't had many elections but they know what's what. How many of them did you see accepting free rides to the polls from guerrillas?

The Salvadoreans' election had a big turnout — and you know why? Because they hadn't sent any observers to watch OUR elections. Baseball and golf are two wonderful sports that do not allow referees to call timeouts for TV-commercials.

FORMER HERALD CITY HALL reporter James Werrell and his wife Gretchen, former Kentwood teacher, are parents of a bouncy baby girl, James, a daring athlete, is an editorial writer for the Abilene Reporter-News.

I think it was James who said the easiest way to stay awake during an after-dinner speech is to deliver it.

Former Herald Society Editor Merry Jo Bright now whipping out sparkling stories about the Austin park system, visited numerous friends in the Big Spring area last week.

She said it would help to know if our estimates of Russian weapons is made by the same people who took the 1980 census.

Could we wine out the Russians before they could exterminate us? "The suspense is terrible... but not as bad as to find out," Jo is convinced.

THAT EXPERT PAINTER and sometimes farmer, R.L. Baker, says he agrees the most important single thing a person can leave for posterity is his name.

Herald Lifestyle Editor Tina Miller, who for some reason is now being called "mother" in some circles, points out at those presidential news conferences, some reporters seem more anxious to ASK their question than to have them answered.

That intrepid reporter, John Edwards, former Herald crusader and now business editor at the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., News-Sentinel, reveals:

Going to the beach is like rummaging through the attic. You'll be amazed at what you see in trunks.

I CAN ONLY FOLLOW that up with a true confession. Two doctors and one of my leaders, Managing Editor Linda Adams, became convinced last week that I have high blood pressure.

Now, the Truth in Advertising campaign isn't quite the same for me. While thumbing through a five months old magazine in one of the doctor's offices I noticed an ad for a "low-calorie chocolate fudge marshmallow nut ice cream sundae."

Trials and tribulations of a winner

We're a little worried here at the Herald... Every Saturday for as long as I've been here, and even before that, a little old lady has called up and said, "I didn't get my paper today."

And every Saturday for as long as I've been here, and even before that, we've responded, "Yes ma'am. That's because we don't have a paper on Saturday." "Oh."

It's a routine that's become comfortable to us, like old shoes. She calls, we answer, she hangs up, we chuckle. "It was her again," someone will say, "wanting to know where her paper was."

"Yeah," someone will reply. "She's been calling for years."

But we're worried, because she hasn't called in the last three Saturdays.

I wish we had thought to get her name just once, so we could check on her. We've gotten used to her, and it doesn't really seem like Saturday unless she calls.

It's funny how even the smallest routine is missed once it's removed. We hope she's okay and that she'll call us again next Saturday and for many Saturdays to come.

Poor Bob Carpenter. Married in January, Bob was just recovering from all the "How's married life?" questions when he won a first place writing award in the Associated Press contest last month.

BOB CARPENTER...smash hit album?

Bob was at home sleeping on a Saturday morning and I was at the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas accepting his award when the news of our awards was sent across the AP wire. Most of the Herald's editorial staff was standing around the wire machine watching the results come in, and naturally there was great jubilation and celebration when the news of Bob's, Bill Elder's and our team effort awards ticked out of the machine. I'm even told that our publisher, Tom Watson, smiled.

Sports Editor Greg Jaklewicz, in his excitement over the wins, jumped to the telephone to tell Bob the news. (I wasn't here, but knowing Greg and his athletic abilities, he probably bounded over two desks in one leap to reach his phone.)

"Bob!" Greg shouted, "you won a first place award in short features!"

"Oh, I did?" Bob hasn't been in the newspaper business too long, so he didn't realize what a big honor he had won.

"Yes, Bob! First place!"

"Oh, that's nice."

"You don't understand, Bob! This is a big deal! Lots of reporters would give their eye teeth for such an award! And you won it! First place, AP!"

I flew home after the awards ceremony with the beautiful plaques in hand. Bob's reaction was, "Oh? I get a plaque?"

Gradually the significance of the award began to sink in. But I think it really sank in when our publisher gave Bob a nice cash bonus for his performance.

So now, instead of everyone asking Bob "How's married life?" he now is constantly teased, "Well, Bob, how does it feel to be a winner?" Someone even made a mock album cover with Bob's picture on it, entitled "I love win-n-awards." It was stuck on the bulletin board and Bob's reaction was, "Oh no, do we have to look at that all month?"

Well Bob, we know it must be tough to get all this attention and glory. We know you're the type who doesn't really like a big fuss made over you. But hang in there. The hoopla will soon die down, and you'll get over it. Probably just in time for next year's awards.

God will help you

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am just about to graduate from high school, and I am confused about what I want to do with my life. My parents want me to go to college, but I don't have any interest in this. How can I get straightened out? — D.G.M.

DEAR D.G.M.: It is important for you to take into consideration the views of your parents; they have many years of experience that are valuable. But the most important thing for you to discover is the will of God for your life.

God loves you, and he has his perfect will for every aspect of your life. He is concerned about your career, your marriage, your education—everything. And he wants to reveal his will to you if you will trust him and seek his will. There is a wonderful promise in Proverbs 3:5-6: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."

Note that this verse gives us a command in several forms: "Trust in the Lord... lean not unto thine own understanding... acknowledge him." In other words, we are to look to God and trust him, and not just look at things from our own limited human perspective. Something may seem logical to us, and yet God may have a different plan because he sees all the factors and he knows what is best for us. Then note also that there is a promise: "He shall direct thy paths." It is a firm promise from God that if we truly seek his will for our lives, he will direct us.

Wall to wall banks

If there has been any trickle-down effect from Reaganomics, it has been the crocodile tears of bankers and savings and loan managers who claim they are being creamed by high interest rates.

What most of them won't admit is that there are too many banks and S&L's in this country in the first place. All you have to do is walk down any main street of America and you'll see one bank next to another, each obvious to how many banks and savings institutions the traffic can stand.

"The trouble with the banking business," said Dartmouth, a down-and-out banker, "is that during the roaring '50s and '60s everyone and his brother went into it. It was a time when everyone else and his brother also went into the housing and commercial building business, and everyone and his sister became real estate agents."

"The people who didn't know anything about banking made loans to the people who didn't know anything about building, and for awhile everyone considered themselves financial wizards. The word was out on the street that if you wanted to become J.P. Morgan all you had to do was find an empty ground-floor location and open a bank or an S&L. It was easier to get a charter for a bank than it was to get a driver's license, and before you knew it the nation was covered wall to wall with banks."

"Banks and S&L's went all out to attract depositors. First they gave away Green Stamps. Then they offered dishes, heating pads, coffee grinders and electric toasters."

"As the competition got tougher they threw in television sets and trips to Disneyland, and they were happy to give you 5 1/2 percent on your money, which they loaned out for 6 1/2 percent to all of their friends."

"Then came inflation, followed by unbelievable government deficits, followed by soaring interest rates, followed by Truesdale."

"Who's Truesdale?" I asked. "He came up with a brainstorm and started the money fund-business. He opened up a tiny office on the 30th floor of the Woolworth Building and began offering people 15 percent on their money instead of five. Except for rent he had no overhead, and no employees. He didn't even have to put in a closed-circuit television system to watch his customers."

"People started taking their money out of banks and S&L's and sending it to Truesdale. The gunslingers on Wall Street followed suit and soon there were as many money funds in the country as there were banks."

"At this moment the government had to go out and start borrowing money from the public to make up its deficits, and they had to pay as much interest as the money funds to make their notes attractive."

"So between the money funds and the U.S. Treasury, the banks and S&L's couldn't compete for anyone's savings."

"That's a sad story," I said. "What makes it even sadder is that when the interest rates went sky high, and the building industry went belly up, the banks and S&L's were stuck with 6 1/2 percent loans to everyone and his brother. No one could afford to borrow money for new housing, and the banks couldn't carry home owners and developers at the old mortgage rates."

I said. "That's the funny part of it. Even now, every time you see a new building go up, the ground floor is always reserved for another bank."

"Why?" I asked. "Because everyone and his brother still believes what bank robber Willie Sutton said: 'That's where the money is.'"

Injured woman thanks hometown

Dear Editor, Words cannot express the gratitude and love I feel for my town of Big Spring. I was born and raised here and she is more beautiful than ever. My legs are badly cut up and surgery was performed on some cut tendons in the knee. My right wrist is broken and has a pin inserted. My tongue was split as were my gums but I love my God, my town, my family, my church and most of all myself enough I will make it.

As we start each day we never know what is in store for us. On Tuesday, March 30, 1982 I never would have guessed my life would have been changed. There is a lot I do not remember, but being hit by a Mack truck is not an everyday occurrence.

First off, to all of the beautiful people that cared enough to stop, if you know me or not I know you prayed. Thanks to Shaffer Ambulance staff, Ace Wrecking, Malone-Hogan nurses who came to the wreck and nurses who are still taking care of me. The therapy is long and painful but I will walk again.

To the people who helped them cut me out of the car, if you operated "jaws" or just held my hand, "God bless You." Big Spring firemen, city police and sheriff's dept., thank you from the bottom of my heart. Dr. Moore, Dr. Reddy, and everyone from X-Ray to surgery took care of me on Tuesday with a superb job.

To the many people who have called, sent flowers, came by, or just wanted to. Thanks. My little girl has only two bruises and two scratches and she is more beautiful than ever. My legs are badly cut up and surgery was performed on some cut tendons in the knee. My right wrist is broken and has a pin inserted. My tongue was split as were my gums but I love my God, my town, my family, my church and most of all myself enough I will make it.

Everyone has been great but the most thanks I could have for anyone goes to God without whom the prayers would not have been heard and they tell me I would not have made it. I know he had his protective hand over Rebekah and me.

And to everyone who has cooked for Sherman and the children, kept the children, took them to school and loved them when they were scared, Thank You. As always you leave out someone but everyone has been so great I could never name names.

But my family, my friends, my church, my town: You've won my heart forever.

God bless you

Crash victims win suit

DALLAS (AP) — The family of a U.S. Army pilot and another man who was injured in a 1978 helicopter crash have been awarded $1.2 million in damages.

Chief Warrant Officer Donald E. Long and the family of Chief Warrant Officer Richard Smith contended in the two-week federal trial that the accident was caused by failure of a ball bearing.

The helicopter crashed nose down into a ravine during a training maneuver on Oahu, Hawaii in March 1978. Smith was killed and Long suffered a shattered right leg and a head injury.

Jurors deliberated about three hours before finding the ball bearing's design and manufacture was defective.

Split Ballbearing was ordered to pay $900,000 to Smith's family and $300,000 to Long.

Ex-convict sentenced

DALLAS (AP) — A former convict has been sentenced to life imprisonment for shooting two vice squad officers during a drug raid.

Jurors Friday convicted Leonard Charles Grayson of attempted capital murder for the Dec. 14 shootings while the officers were executing a search warrant in West Dallas.

Sgt. Tom Wafer and investigator John Gaulding were seriously wounded by gunshots fired through an open window as they stood on the front porch of the house.

Since Grayson was convicted as a habitual offender, the life sentence was automatic. He previously was convicted of burglary and possession of a forged instrument.

He was one of five people arrested in the raid.

Armstrong donates funds

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Governorial candidate Bob Armstrong raised $3,000 during a campaign appearance here but, saying his conscience would not let him alone, turned the money over to a relief agency in this tornado-ravaged city.

Nine Paris residents have died from an April 2 tornado that also injured more than 200 and did about $50 million damage in the city.

Armstrong, seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, attended a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner Friday after touring the stricken area.

"I've changed my mind after seeing what happened here... a man could not in good conscience walk out of here with any money," he told the 85 supporters in attendance, who gave him a standing ovation.

Armstrong said he would turn the money over to the inter-faith council, a religious organization helping the city distribute funds to tornado victims.

Armstrong stands above the debris

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Bob Armstrong largely is being ignored by the other two major candidates in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor. The big political question of the primary is whether the voters are ignoring him.

The other two, Attorney General Mark White and Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple, have become entangled in a bitter feud that grows worse each day.

Gone are the days when the focus was on defeating Republican incumbent Gov. Bill Clements.

Both White and Temple have swung their campaigns to a collision course. Their advertisements attack each other rather than talk about qualifications or hit the Republicans.

That leaves Armstrong high, dry and clean, but also rather ignored.

SOME PEOPLE ARGUE that Armstrong ultimately will gain from the White-Temple fight. The voters, they say, will tire of seeing two grown men wrestling in the political mud and will look upon Armstrong as an agreeable alternative who can unite the party after May 1.

But this viewpoint is heard almost exclusively from people who want Armstrong to win. White and Temple supporters say the land commissioner, while being an awfully nice guy, is so far out of the race that he might as well go on vacation for the rest of April.

They claim to have polls that show this to be true. But these polls could be misleading.

A lot of voters still are undecided, and there is a good chance that the support in-dedicated for both White and Temple is mushy. Minds could be changed in the final days before the May 1 vote.

Neither White nor Temple appears to have ignited any fire in any large segment of the Texas population, although Temple has lined up traditional Democratic factions such as teachers and labor.

Each seem to be relying on television image as the great weapon of his campaign. The quicky, slick ad is the battering ram into our political hearts.

The general consensus among people who care about such things is that White comes across better on television.

Two months ago, when Temple first appeared on television after jumping into the race, a Capitol complex office worker said his round face and smile reminded her of TV's Pillsbury Doughboy.

THAT DESCRIPTION spread around, and now some people want to poke a finger into Temple's belly every time he appears on the screen, to see if he'll giggle.

Undoubtedly, that's not the image the Temple people want to promote, although some of us find the Pillsbury Doughboy more appealing than politicians.

Armstrong's campaign leaders say their man will come on strong in the final days of the campaign, matching the other two leading candidates in media exposure.

White and Temple don't believe that, but White might be wise to remember another dark horse who used a smart last-minute television campaign to overtake the front-runner on election day.

That surprise winner was Mark White in the 1978 attorney general's race.

Farm officials planting resentment

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Do farmers have a beef with the Agriculture Department?

The USDA was originally created simply to help farmers make more money. But the agency has turned into a do-it-all bureaucracy with some 85,000 employees performing such chores as composing diet plans, distributing food stamps, monitoring food safety and even investigating reports of illegal cock fights.

And now they plan to investigate "barbecue beef."

It may not seem like a burning question but the USDA announced this week that it is seeking public comments on how to write new federal specifications for barbecue and barbecuing.

Several innovative manufacturers have apparently perfected cooking techniques that produce what they call "true" barbecue without following USDA approved guidelines.

AN OKLAHOMA MEAT manufacturer recently petitioned the department to update its standards. He wants to advertise his "moist-heat" (steamed or infrared heated) product as real barbecue. The USDA says real barbecue is cooked with dry heat, like the kind produced from a hardwood fire or coals.

Therefore, the department's food safety and inspection service will spend an undetermined number of man-hours and dollars trying to solve the barbecue beef mystery.

In the wake of current events, the announcement prompted agriculture observers to wonder if the USDA has lost touch with reality. For instance:

States News Service discovered last week that Agriculture Secretary John Block has ordered his economists to stop compiling 1982 net farm income estimates. A Block spokesman says it is a waste of time because the figures are not accurate.

The president says he doesn't have time to meet with a group of farm state congressmen on the sagging farm economy.

But the department has the time and money to determine what is really barbecue beef?

"Sometimes you wonder what on earth they are up to," says an aide to a House Agriculture Committee member.

USDA officials admit that their mission seems somewhat frivolous in light of more meaty problems in the agenda.

"I know a lot of people think this is a waste of time," says Ron Brewington, chief of the USDA's labeling branch of the Food Safety and Inspection Service.

BUT BREWINGTON maintains that the "barbecue" problem is part of his office's mandate to protect the consumer. Like it or not, they have to do it.

"Consumers must some confidence that they are buying real barbecue beef," says Brewington.

But the question remains: why does the Agriculture Department have to handle such diverse issues.

Robert Mullens, legislative director of the National Farmers Union, contends that the "non-agriculture" programs gives the department more power on Capitol Hill.

"If the department was only responsible for the care of farmers, they would probably be off in some closet," Mullens said, adding that such programs as food stamps lends luster to the agency.

But the recent events poses an interesting question: If the USDA was more involved in just trying to find a decent living for farmers, would Block have to order his economists to stop compiling net farm income figures?

Invasion of the Falklands: how it happened

By DOUGLAS GRANT MINE
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — It took 12 hours from the moment the first Argentine commandos invaded the Falklands until the British governor, wearing a feathered admiral's cap, surrendered to a vastly superior enemy force.

The Falkland Islands, which had been occupied by British forces who ousted Argentine authorities in 1833, were under Argentine control and their 1,800 British residents under military rule.

The following account is based on journalistic reports by Argentines who accompanied the assault, reports from a small group of Argentine journalists ferried to the Falklands briefly April 3, and official British and Argentine versions of the operation.

No journalists have been allowed to visit the islands since.

Shortly before midnight April 2, 90 commandos from the Argentine corvette San Antonio landed at deserted Enrique Point, three miles from the capital of Port Stanley. They split into two groups. One headed to the island's lone airstrip five miles to the west, where a few British marines were on duty, and the other to the British marine barracks just outside town, where about half of the 84 British marines on the island were that night.

The airport and barracks were quickly taken, and within an hour some 900 Argentine marines had disembarked from the 10-ship fleet backing the operation and air force C-130 transports were flying in army troops from the mainland.

The battle was not over though. At about 6 a.m., a column of Argentines advanced on the residence of Gov. Rex Hunt. They were met by a hail of weapons fire — Huntsaid later in London his men fired 6,000 rounds — that killed one Argentine soldier and wounded two.

The firefight lasted three hours, but the hopelessness of continued resistance was obvious. At a pause in the firing, Hunt's secretary, Dick Baker, tied a piece of white cloth to an umbrella and left the house to parlay. He was followed back into the residence by the operations commander, Gen. Osvaldo Garcia, and Rear Adm. Carlos Busser, commander of the Argentine marine assault team.

Hunt wanted to negotiate, but the Argentine officers only consented after he had read over the radio an Argentine statement announcing "the materialization of the historic continuity of Argentine sovereignty over the islands."

The three men talked for nearly two hours. Hunt excused himself and changed into his formal dress uniform complete with feathered admiral's cap and formally presented his unconditional surrender.

He and the captured marines were flown to the mainland that afternoon and taken to Montevideo, Uruguay, where they were handed over to British Ambassador to Uruguay Patricia Hutchinson.

Meanwhile, scattered gunfire was heard outside Port Stanley. It presumably came from six British marines who escaped into the countryside and British loyalist sheep ranchers reluctant to give up without offering at least token resistance.

The marines surrendered three days later, cold and hungry after holing up in a coastal cave.

On April 3, Argentine marines landed on the South Georgias — the Falklands dependency that had been the focus of rising British-Argentine tension in the previous two weeks.

The Argentine marines landed on San Pedro to take the British antarctic research station at Grytviken. The Argentine version is that civilians there told Argentine officers none of the half-dozen British marines stationed at the base was present, but when the second of two Argentine helicopters put down, it was fired upon "by surprise." Three Argentine soldiers were killed.

The conflict began on San Pedro on March 19 when about 40 Argentines landed to salvage scrap iron from an abandoned whaling station an Argentine business man had bought from a Scottish firm.

The landing party raised an Argentine flag, British legislators raised a fuss and the British navy's Endurance, based in Port Stanley, was sent to San Pedro reportedly to evict the Argentines. Argentina dispatched three warships to the islands, and it was a standoff until the Falklands invasion.

Air Force enlistees gain new pay raises

Single young men and women who enlist in the Air Force will now earn more than $800 per month in pay and allowances as a result of the recent military pay raise approved by Congress. According to Lt. Col. Donato A. Lombardi, Air Force Recruiting in Arlington, "Most single airmen receive quarters and meals in lieu of cash. Their monthly taxable pay is $551.40."

A married enlistee will earn $891.90 monthly, while a married college graduate, newly commissioned as a second lieutenant, will begin earning $1,430 per month in pay and allowances.

The Air Force also offers programs where eligible young men and women can enter the Air Force in the rank of Airman (E-2 pay grade) and Airman First Class (E-3) and receive a beginning monthly pay of $878 and $918, respectively, said Lt. Col. Lombardi. One of these programs is the "Stripes for College Experience" program, where 17 to 27 year olds with 45 semester or 67 quarter hours of college credit may apply for enlistment in the rank of A1C.

Also included in the pay raise, according to Lt. Col. Lombardi, is an increase in the monthly enlisted aircrew flight pay to $83 per month. Pilots, navigators and other officer flight crew personnel will still receive their $125 per month flight pay.

Complete details of the new pay raise and special Air Force enlistment programs are available from the local Air Force Recruiter.

Pray participates in 'Team Spirit 82'

A Navy Master Chief Machinist's Mate Gary L. Pray, whose wife, Wanda, is the daughter of Edith M. Moody of Route 1, Colorado City, Texas, is currently participating in exercise "Team Spirit 82" in the Republic of Korea.

He is a crew member aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Duluth, homeported in San Diego.

"Team Spirit 82" is a joint exercise involving military forces from the United States and the Republic of Korea. More than 160,000 personnel and 31 U.S. 7th Fleet ships are involved in the monthlong exercise.

After several weeks of training, "Team Spirit" will culminate in a major amphibious assault exercise. Land, sea and air forces from both nations will execute a three-pronged attack that includes a surface assault, a helicopter-borne vertical envelopment and an airborne paradrop to seize, occupy and defend exercise objectives.

The Duluth is 570 feet long and carries a crew of 473, plus an additional 930 combat equipped troops.

A 1981 graduate of National University, San Diego, Calif., with a bachelor of arts degree, he joined the Navy in June 1960.

Gonzales signs for Navy's Delayed Entry Program

Paul Gonzales, who resides at Gail Rt. Box 258, Big Spring, Tex., enlisted in the United States Navy's Delayed Entry Program with a guaranteed school in the Aviation Apprenticeship Training Program. He is the son of Mrs. Audelia Gonzales of Big Spring. He will be leaving Big Spring to go on active duty Sept. 27 in San Diego, Calif.

attached by hospital surgeons after being severed when caught in a woodsplitting machine. A team of doctors took 12 hours to reattach the hand.

Man saves his life by cutting off hand

BOSTON (AP) — A man whose hand was caught in a wood-splitting machine may have saved his life by amputating the hand, say surgeons at Massachusetts General Hospital, where the hand was reattached.

Erwin W. Tarr, 31, of North Leeds, Maine, was released from the hospital Friday, 12 days after his left hand was caught in the 600-pound gasoline-powered machine. Tarr said he cut off his hand when he realized it was badly injured.

"His quick thinking in severing the wrist may have saved him," Dr. James W. May Jr., chief of hand surgery at the hospital, said today.

"If you cut partly into an artery the size of the radial or ulnar (two main arteries in the forearm) it will bleed profusely," said May. "But if you cut completely through the artery it will often go into a spasm and stop bleeding on its own."

Tarr, a father of four, said he was lining up a crooked piece of wood in the splitter with his left hand "when I suddenly felt this awful pain" and was unable to free his arm.

"I was bleeding terribly," he said. "I didn't know how deeply I had cut into the wrist, but I knew that the cut was deep enough so that I had to do something. I put the machine back into gear and finished cutting off the rest of the wrist."

Tarr ran to a nearby church where a secretary applied a tourniquet and drove him to the Russell Medical Center in Leeds. A doctor at the center went back to the accident site and retrieved the hand.

Doctors said they will not know how much use Tarr will have of the hand until nerves regenerate over the next few months.

WALKATHON FOR HUNGER — Several hundred San Angelo residents walked through the main streets of the city Friday morning behind a huge wooden cross to raise money for numerous hunger projects sponsored by the Church World Service. Different church groups carried the cross for segments of the six-mile annual Good Friday trek. Organizers hoped to raise $10,000 in pledges from this year's walk.

Feudin' and fussin' stops city government

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (AP) — Three city councilmen trying to oust Mayor Eristus Sams are boycotting council meetings, and their rebellion has brought the wheels of city government to a standstill.

Without them Sams doesn't have a quorum, and without a quorum the mayor cannot conduct city business, certify his own re-election or swear in two new councilmen. And to add to the confusion in this town of 4,000 about 45 miles northwest of Houston, the Austin County State Bank is refusing to honor checks drawn on the city account and six city employees are working without getting paid.

"I don't know what to do," said Sams, 65. "I asked my attorney if I should send my policeman out to pick up (the three councilmen) and bring them here (to the meetings), but he said not to."

Councilmen Philip Nickleberry, Ronald Leverett and Tyrone Davis voted four days before Saturday's municipal election to boot Sams out of office, saying he mishandled city funds by making purchases with out council approval, had not abided by council resolutions and had operated the city without a budget.

Sams appealed to a state district court and later to the Texas Supreme Court, but both declined to review the case.

Waller County Judge A.M. McCraig, however, accepted the appeal and said Sams could remain in office at least until an April 23 hearing. If the mayor's removal is upheld, he will not be able to seek another office for two years.

The rebel councilmen refuse to acknowledge the judge's action and are boycotting meetings.

"What McCraig has done is at the expense of the people of Prairie View. He's playing God Almighty," said Nickleberry.

"We simply feel that what we did in removing Mayor Sams from office was right. And now we refuse to sit down at a table with him. According to the city attorney, Sams is still the mayor, but what we did stands also," he said.

But Sams argues the citizens don't agree. He was re-elected to his sixth two-year term by a vote of 256 to 191 Saturday and he claims the vote vindicated his position.

The mayor said he presented a budget to the council in November, but the councilmen refused to either accept or reject it until a four-year audit of the city is completed later this year.

He said the council then passed a resolution that in the absence of a budget required council approval to spend city funds.

The last budget expired Sept. 30, and Sams said he went along with the council resolution until the councilmen refused to take any action on the proposed budget.

"It looks to me like this is all orchestrated," said Sams.

The mayor contends the squabble dates back to 1978 when he ordered the arrest of then Prairie View A&M President Alvin Thomas for destroying city property after a college construction crew severed a city sewer line.

Thomas countered by filing suit against Sams, the city and the police chief for violating his civil rights, a suit that has not been resolved, said Sams.

He said Thursday night Nickleberry, Davis and Leverett work for the college and are carrying out a vendetta against him.

"Dr. Thomas is now out ... he is going to hell and he wants to take me with him and I refuse to go," said Sams.

Thomas could not be reached for comment despite three attempts to call him at his home Thursday night.

Meanwhile, newly-elected councilmen Frank Jackson and Ellery Stevenson have been going to the city hall nightly to see if there will be a meeting so they can be sworn in.

"We just sit there and sit there and we wait," said Jackson.

Small dosage of aspirin may prevent stroke

HOUSTON (AP) — People who take four aspirin tablets a day to try to prevent a stroke may be able to achieve the same result with as little as a quarter of a tablet, a researcher says.

Dr. William S. Fields, chairman of neurology at the University of Texas Health Science Center here, says studies that have been under way since 1972 have proven a daily dose of common aspirin can ward off a stroke, especially among men.

But at present the recommended dosage is four tablets a day, which causes stomach irritation in some people.

"It has been shown in the test tube that a much smaller dose may be equally effective," said Fields.

Strokes are the nation's third leading cause of death. They cripple or kill more than 1.7 million Americans a year by blocking the flow of blood to the brain long enough to cause permanent damage.

Before that happens, many stroke victims receive brief warnings from their bodies called transient ischemic attacks, or "TIAs," Fields said. They are minor attacks with symptoms similar to a stroke, but much milder and only temporary.

Fields said studies have shown 35 out of every 100 people who experience but are not treated for TIAs suffer a disabling or fatal stroke within five years.

A TIA — triggered by a brief interruption of the blood supply to the brain — can cause temporary blindness, numbness in half the body, paralysis, inability to speak and momentary confusion lasting from a few seconds to 24 hours.

Fields said clinical studies have shown people who have suffered TIAs can stop them from recurring — and prevent a major stroke — by simply taking aspirin daily.

At present, 170,000 Americans die annually of strokes.

Fields said he will seek support later this month at the Aspirin Foundation of America symposium in New Orleans for a three- to four-year study to compare the results of a daily dose of a quarter, a half and a whole aspirin tablet.

"A lower dose of aspirin, if proven effective, would have the advantage of reducing stomach irritation which occurs in some people," he said.

Fifteen hospitals in the United States and Canada, under Fields' direction, studied the effects of aspirin on TIAs, beginning in 1972.

"Clinical trials have demonstrated without question a marked reduction in TIAs, particularly in individuals who had multiple attacks before entering the trials," he said.

Another study combining aspirin with another drug, dipyridamole (Persantine), is now under way under Fields' direction. He said more than 650 men and women are participating in the trial to find out whether the two drugs together are more effective in reducing strokes than aspirin alone.

Fields said TIAs generally are caused by small clots, called emboli, which break off from an obstructed area in an artery and pass downstream where they can block a blood vessel and cause problems elsewhere.

The clots are formed by the clumping together of solid particles called platelets that exists normally in blood.

"Aspirin prevents the platelets from clumping," Fields said.

He said several other drugs produce a similar but shorter-lived effect. Aspirin, however, has an irreversible and permanent effect on platelets, he said.

Although he does not recommend anyone take aspirin without getting a doctor's opinion, Fields said he takes two aspirin tablets each morning.

"I'm a firm believer in practicing what I preach," he said.

Union representation ordered

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state judge has ordered Mexico State School officials to allow union representation at client abuse hearings.

District Judge Harley Clark issued the temporary restraining order Friday, according to Eliseo Medina of the Texas State Employees Union.

TSEU asked for the court order after school officials refused to allow union representation at an April 2 hearing concerning four employees accused of child abuse.

Clark issued a similar order on March 30 after a request by employees at Rusk State Hospital.

Pulitzer panels taking their time

NEW YORK (AP) — A year later, Fred Knobel can still hear the reporter's question: Had Janet Cooke, winner of a Pulitzer Prize for a story called "Jimmy's World," identified herself as a graduate of Vassar?

Yes, said Knobel, spokesman for Columbia University, which presents the annual awards in journalism and the arts.

Unknowingly, he had just unleashed a scandal. Miss Cooke lied when she claimed to be a magna cum laude graduate of Vassar. Then The Washington Post reporter admitted that Jimmy, the 8-year-old heroin addict she profiled, existed only as a composite.

Knobel recalled the story last week as preparations were made for Monday's presentation of the 1982 Pulitzer.

Could "Jimmy's World" happen again? "No, I'm not nervous. I really am not," said Knobel, the man who bore the brunt of media inquiries after last year's prizes.

The selection process this year was not so different than in the past, but there have been some changes.

In early March, 12 juries spent three days wading through 1,200 entries. Each jury nominated three stories for the prize in its category. On April 1 and 2, the Pulitzer Prize Board met and chose a winner in each category. The names were submitted to Columbia University President Michael I. Sovern, who presents the awards.

Last year, the board took Miss Cooke's story from one category and named it the winner in another, jurors said they were assured this year that the board would be more careful in overruling their decisions.

The board traditionally met for one day. This year, it met for two days, "which gave them a good deal more time for reading but also for reflection and identification of possible problems," said Robert C. Christopher, who replaced the late Richard T. Baker as prize administrator.

And for the first time, jury chairmen were asked to be available during the board's deliberations so they could answer questions.

Christopher said board members did not discuss last year's debacle much during deliberations.

But members of the Pulitzer juries said last year's problems were very much on their minds and sometimes in their discussions.

The subject came up "not formally as the five of us sat around the table, but at lunch and during the informal parts of the process," said Wick Temple, managing editor of The Associated Press.

Temple, a member of the special local reporting jury, said he believed the Cooke scandal had an effect on the deliberations.

Books reveal stars' secrets

Do you remember who was the most famous "pin-up" of World War II?

If Betty Grable was your answer, you might like to read her biography, "Betty Grable; The Reluctant Movie Queen" which we have at the Howard County Library. Doug Warren, the author, gives a fascinating account of her life off the screen as well as on. He tells of her start in pictures at 14 years old, her husbands and finally her struggle with lung cancer, which caused her death in 1973.

RONALD HOWARD has written a biography about his father, Leslie Howard titled "In Search of My Father". Leslie Howard is probably best remembered for his role of Ashley Wilkes in "Gone With The Wind", a role which he was very reluctant to play. After "Gone With The Wind," he returned to England, even though he knew war was eminent. His duty now, he felt, was to offer himself in any capacity where he might serve the interests of his country. He did this until the plane he was a passenger on was shot down and everyone on board was killed.

Mention Cary Grant's name and the vision of a suave man of the world—handsome, rich, successful and a jet-setter who mixes easily with the world's most glamorous people. Lionel Godfrey, author of "Cary Grant: the light touch" says it was not always so for the star. Born in Bristol, England as Archibald Leach, he is remembered as a "scruffy little boy" and a "pathetic little figure". He was drawn to show business at an early age and ran away twice to join an acrobatic troupe. That is how he got to America. After a slow start in Hollywood, he was given a long-term contract with Paramount and became known as Cary Grant.

JANE FONDA has been in the public eye since birth, just because she was Henry Fonda's daughter. However she has become an individual in her own right because of her extraordinary and diverse accomplishments. "Jane Fonda; The Actress in Her times" is her biography written by Fred Lawrence Guiles. He has interviewed friends, relatives and colleagues to get an admirable but honest portrait of her.

This is just a sample of what books we have at the Howard County Library. Why not come in, look around, and check out a few books?

Teachers Association backs Shaw

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The political arm of the Texas State Teachers Association has endorsed 135 candidates for the May 1 primaries, including state Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring.

Shaw drew no opponent in the Democratic primary but will face Rep. Jerry Cockerham of Monahans in the November general election.

The men were paired in House District 69 through redistricting.

The endorsing group, called the Texas Educators Political Action Committee, is not backing anyone in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, saying any of the three major contenders, Bob Armstrong, Buddy Temple or Mark White, would champion quality education.

Most of its endorsements are in the state House and Senate, Board of Education and U.S. House of Representatives races. TEPHC took action in more than 100 primary races. For the targeted campaigns, it was allocated $47,000.

The Young Conservatives of Texas is putting its 2,000 members to work in campaigns and to raise money for state and national candidates, including state Senate candidate James Reese of Odessa.

In senatorial District 28, Reese faces two other Republicans in the May 1 party primary: John O'Shea and John W. Smith.

The winner of that primary will run against either incumbent E.L. Short of Tahoka or John T. Montford, opponents in the Democratic primary.

The statewide conservative organization made its endorsements at a Capitol news conference this week.

James Munisteri, executive member of the group, said endorsements were based on candidates' "strong belief in the free enterprise system, rigorous law enforcement and a commitment to the moral standards which have made Texas such an attractive place to live."

Munisteri said the Young Conservatives will provide needed manpower for candidates of its choice, and will target state representatives and senators for most of its contributions.

The organization also endorsed Gov. Bill Clements for re-election, incumbent Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, Texas Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston for attorney general, state Sen. Mike Richards of Sugar Land for comptroller, state Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland for land commissioner and Texas Supreme Court Justice James Denton for re-election.

PLANE CRASH KILLS THREE — A fireman hoses the remains of a single engine aircraft that crashed on a city street Friday in front of Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor in Torrance, Calif. A group of children were having a birthday party inside the restaurant. At least three people were killed in the crash, according to police.

Walesa and family gather for Easter

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, his wife Danuta and their seven children have been reunited for Easter in the villa outside Warsaw where he has been held by martial law authorities for nearly four months, family sources said.

It was believed to be the first time Walesa has seen his entire family since he was interned with thousands of Solidarity activists when martial law was imposed Dec. 13. Their seventh child, a girl, was baptized recently in Gdansk, but Walesa was not allowed to attend.

Family sources said Mrs. Walesa and the seven children would stay with the union leader through Tuesday and then return to their home in Gdansk, the Baltic seaport where Solidarity, the first independent union in the Soviet bloc, was born 20 months ago.

Meanwhile, fugitive Solidarity leader Zbigniew Bujak, in an appeal circulated in Warsaw, warned that the suspended union faces de-legitimation and called on all members to fight for its survival.

Bujak, who evaded internment and is in hiding, appealed in a typewritten statement for resistance to what he described as "a danger of delegitimizing Solidarity."

"A difficult and uncompromising fight for our union is a moral and statutory duty of all Solidarity members," Bujak's statement said. "We will have to undertake such a fight."

The Bujak statement said recent actions by the authorities and articles in the state-run media pointed toward de-legitimizing the union that was registered by a Warsaw court in November 1980.

Bujak cited the dissolution of the pro-Solidarity Association of Polish Journalists and the "dismissal" of a democratically elected Warsaw University rector as reasons for concern. "We appeal to unionists of other countries who have always shown us friendship and rendered their help," the statement said. "When the time of this fight comes, use all means at your disposal to grant us support."

Meanwhile, Poles braved rain and snow and lined up by the thousands outside churches for the traditional sanctification of bread, colored eggs and sausages to be eaten with holy wafers Sunday.

Throughout the day, driving sheets of rain and snow pelted the worshippers, then gave way to brief rays of sunshine only to be followed by another assault of bone-chilling, wintry weather.

Priests in all churches, mindful of martial law rules, appealed to youths not to celebrate Easter by setting off firecrackers, an old custom in Poland.

Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, planned to hold a sunrise Mass on Sunday in suburban Warsaw followed by a ceremony in Warsaw's St. John's Cathedral.

Texas' natural gas woes just starting, Nugent says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Railroad commissioner Jim Nugent's refrain about how federal law threatens Texas' vital natural gas supply has attracted a small Washington chorus. "I'm glad they've joined in so I don't have to sing alone," quipped Nugent.

Texas' natural gas problems, however, seem to be just starting. "What we're facing" — higher prices and less gas — "is not good," said Nugent, chairman of the agency that regulates Texas' natural resources.

Nugent has crossed the Potomac with a message that "something is sadly awry" when Texas, which produces one-third of the nation's gas supply, must go begging for gas while other states have more than they can use.

According to federal government figures, interstate gas pipelines that serve the Northeast and Midwest had a surplus of 90 billion cubic feet in February, just three weeks after gas curtailments in Texas had forced many schools to close.

Nugent blamed price controls in the 1970 Natural Gas Policy Act — NGPA — and the act's congressional supporters for this "imbalance."

"I think the act as it applies today, particularly to Texas and Texans, needs a total indictment," Nugent said in an interview.

He cited U.S. Department of Energy studies that showed "old" interstate gas — or that produced from wells completed before 1977 — sold for 93 cents per cubic foot in 1978, and old intrastate gas was $1.11. The DOE projects that by 1985 old interstate gas will sell for $1.01, old intrastate for $3.29.

"Welcome sucker," said Nugent. "A few years ago, we were shipping 30 percent to 33 percent of the gas

JIM NUGENT

...railroad commissioner produced in Texas out of state," he said. "This year we'll ship over 40 percent out of state. So, we have a squeeze coming on — less gas every year with a higher percentage being shipped out of state."

One apparent reason for Texas getting shortchanged is that the interstate pipelines, with a large base of low-cost gas, are able to outbid their intrastate competitors for new gas supplies.

Nugent said he got an "excellent reception" from the U.S. Senate Energy Committee in November. "We showed our problem to them, and they were interested enough to inquire about additional facts, which we furnished," he said.

However, Nugent points to this statement in a later speech to the Texas Energy Forum in Washington as a threat.

"If the NGPA is to remain in place, the producing states may find themselves forced to look at their own laws and regulations to protect their energy supplies. We cannot sit idly by if we see the future developing as I fear it will."

Recent remarks by the head of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, former Texas lawyer C.M. Butler III, qualify him as a member of the Nugent "chorus." Butler told the Senate Energy Committee evidence indicates "additional and more severe (gas) shortages in both Louisiana and Texas."

Butler warned that gas-producing states might try to limit out-of-state sales, and he said there may be a legal basis for such action.

"I am glad to see Butler and others at a national level now coming on stream saying the same thing I was saying a year ago," Nugent said.

"It's such a serious problem, and it's going to have such a dramatic effect on Texas that I can't understand why more people aren't up on their hind legs yelling and screaming," he said. "It's all coming right down the road, and it's going to kick us in the rear so good."

What can the Legislature or Railroad Commission do?

Nugent noted that Texas law requires commission approval before gas produced on state-owned lands can be sold to an interstate pipeline. This is significant in that more than 10 percent of the gas produced in Texas comes from wells on state land.

Nugent stressed that the commission has not used the law much in the past to restrict interstate sales, but can if it chooses.

Also, he mentioned that some other states prohibit producers from abandoning an intrastate pipeline to sell to an interstate market once the producers are connected to the intrastate line.

"I intend to take care of Texas interests."

Virginia's song called racist

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Virginia State Travel Service has been ordered to destroy travel brochures containing the official state song "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" because of complaints that the song is racially offensive.

The brochure for schoolchildren is being reprinted without the song but with a brief history of Virginia.

Frederick Walker, director of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development, ordered the destruction and ordered distribution halted. He said he had received several complaints about the song over the years and, with a reprint scheduled soon, he decided to eliminate the song from the brochure.

The front of the brochure depicts the state bird, the cardinal; the state tree and state flower, the dogwood; the state flag; the state seal; and the state dog, a foxhound.

The back contains the words to "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," written in the 19th century by a black man, James Bland, the son of a South Carolina slave. Bland never lived in Virginia.

The lyrics, written in dialect, say in part: "There's where the old darkey's heart am long'd to go."

"There's where I labor'd so hard for old Massa."

George Stoddart, Gov. Charles Robb's press secretary, said Robb knew nothing about the directive to remove the sheet. Marshall Murdaugh, director of the travel service, said the sheets have been printed for at least 10 years and probably much longer than that. The sheets are mailed individually to children and in bulk to schools when information about Virginia is requested, he said. About 5,000 to 6,000 are mailed each year to individual students.

Adam throws Steers to eve of title

GETTING HUNG-UP — Big Spring third baseman David Anguiano, left, gets caught in a third-inning rundown between first and second base Friday afternoon. Odessa first baseman Greg Beherendt (14) gives chase and finally tossed the ball to second baseman Mike Curry for the out. The Steers knocked the Bronchos out with two three-run innings to win 6-1 and remain tied with Abilene High for the first half lead in District 5-A AAAA.

Big Spring was ripe for a letdown after its emotional win over Cooper Tuesday but thanks to timely hitting and the pitching of Adam Rodriguez, the Steers did not surrender their first half title chances.

Rightfielder James Walker continued his hot hitting in district with two safeties and Rodriguez recorded his third 5-A AAAA victory as Big Spring topped Odessa 6-1 on BSHS diamond Friday afternoon.

The win kept the Steers tied with Abilene High for the top spot in the 5-5A standings with 5-1 records. Big Spring travels to San Angelo Tuesday for a crucial game with the Bobcats while AHS does battle with crosstown rival Cooper.

The win pushes the Steers to 15-8 for the season and gives Frank Ibarra's team nine wins in their last 10 games. Odessa is doing the reverse number, dropping to 4-16 and winless in league play at 0-6.

Ibarra expressed his concern over playing the Bronchos after Tuesday's victory over Cooper, the pre-season favorites. Odessa, he said, had been hitting the ball very well and seemed ready to pull of a victory. He hoped it wasn't Friday against the Steers.

Rodriguez, however, had his stuff working and even when his noted curve would not do so, he turned to his fastball to scatter five hits. Actually, scatter isn't quite the appropriate description since the leadoff and second batters in the Odessa lineup — David Olivias and Rudy Castillo — slapped out all five hits between them.

Rodriguez, a junior righthander, lost his shutout in the fifth when Olivias singled with two out and Castillo followed with a triple down the right field line.

"That hit just carried over my head," Walker, the right fielder, said later. "I would have had it but for the wind. It was carrying pretty good today."

Rodriguez was hardly aware of Odessa's record when he took the mound. "It doesn't matter what record a team has, you have to take them as any other team," he said.

"My curveball was hanging too much but my fastball was pretty good," he continued. "I threw them fastballs down the middle and hung my curve," he shook his head.

He walked just three and fanned eight batters in seven innings. Doing their job were the Steers on offense, combining timely hits with five Odessa errors.

Robert Rubio and Oscar Limon reached on errors to begin the Big Spring fifth and Walker made the Bronchos pay with a single up the gap. Blake Rosson singled to the load the bases and Tommy Olague made it 2-0 with a single. One out later it was 3-0 as David Anguiano laced a hit to left.

The Steers poured in on the next inning with three more runs. Marcus Armendariz walked and Marty Rodriguez reached on error to start things off. Both runners were sacrificed a base by Rubio.

With two out, Walker came through again, driving in two runs with a single to left. Rosson made it 6-0 with his second hit of the day.

"Yeah, I'll tell you, we've all been hitting a lot everyday," Walker said about his .312 batting average in district play. "That helps keeping your head in more during the game."

Walker and Rosson each had two hits, both entering the game with only .300 averages on the team. Big Spring has been batting less than .200 as a team but pitching and defense are keeping the Steers in the win column, Ibarra says.

"Once again it was good defense and good pitching," he said after Friday's win. "If we hit the ball well, we could be big trouble for anyone."

"James makes so many things happen for us," he said. "We have him in the lineup because of his offense. You've got to field the ball cleanly or he'll beat it out. I've told him if he just makes contact, there is a 90 percent chance he'll make it to base."

Although the Big Spring bats was snapped out a recent slumber in the Cooper and Odessa games, errors Friday set the table and the Steers were then able to clean the plate.

"We just don't execute," Odessa coach Ronnie White moaned. "Losing is like poison. It's hard to stop once it starts spreading. The only thing you can do is win."

Win is what Ibarra hopes the Steers can do Tuesday and keep their title chances alive.

"It'll be interesting to see what Abilene does but it won't matter if we lose," he said. "San Angelo beat us twice last year and they'll be throwing their little lefthander Zeke Barron. He's always been tough against us and beat us twice last year, the second time in relief."

"I'm really excited for the kids. They are finally believing in themselves and playing much better now," he added.

'The Walrus' regains his masterful touch

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Craig Stadler, ambushed by a double bogey earlier, birdied his last three holes for a 5-under-par 67 and took a 3-stroke command Saturday in the third round of the 46th Masters golf tournament.

Stadler, nicknamed "The Walrus," completed three trips over the flowered hills of the Augusta National Golf Club course with a 211 total, 5 under par.

And his closing burst — a 2,3,3 finish over some of golf's most demanding holes — put him in solid control.

"Well," said Jack Nicklaus, who watched on television as Stadler holed his last two birdie putts, "it looks as if his day has come."

"He's got the lead. Either he has to give it away or somebody has to take it away. I sure like his position better than anybody else's. He's got the momentum."

But there's still 18 to go, and, heading into Sunday's final round, some of the game's most honored names remained within striking distance. Included in that group were Jerry Pate, Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Tom Weiskopf, Ray Floyd, Tom Watson and Nicklaus.

Nicklaus finished with three consecutive 3's, but in the time it took him to get from the 18th green to the press building, the deficit grew from 3 shots to 6.

Also, there's Jodie Mudd, a 21-year-old amateur from Louisville, Ky., who insists he has a chance to become the first non-pro to win perhaps the most revered of all the world's golf titles.

Ballesteros, the young Spaniard who won this title in 1980, and Pate, the happy-go-lucky guy who has a habit of leaping into lakes following his triumphs, shared second at 214, three off the pace.

Ballesteros, Europe's finest player and a former British Open champion, was conceding nothing.

"There's a lot of pressure on the leader," he said. "I think it's easier to come from behind than to win from in front."

Pate, winner of the prestigious Tournament Players Championship last month, had a 67 in the mild, overcast weather and said, if he won here, he'd forego his aquatic act.

Weiskopf, a four-time runner-up but not a winner of the Masters, and Floyd, a 39-year-old veteran who owns two major professional titles, were at 215, four behind. Weiskopf had a 68, Floyd 69.

Watson, the defending title-holder seeking a return to his position as the game's dominant figure, had a hard-won 70 that tied him with Bob Gilder at par 216. Gilder closed with a 66, the best round of the tournament.

Mike's aim good as gold

Mike Coleman is barreling 'em over

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

ACKERLY — The community of Ackerly is a small, wind-swept town of 317 inhabitants. Perhaps best known for its appropriately named secondary school — Sands High, the town is also the home of Mike Coleman, a young man recognized in international circles as one of the world's top trapshooters.

Recently added to his collection of trapshooting awards were gold and silver medals from the Benito Juarez Championships held in late March in Mexico City. Coleman was awarded the silver medal in the individual competition and teamed three other top shooters from the United States to win the gold medal.

The competition included 27 foreign countries, mostly from North and South America and including teams from China and Korea. Among the world's best, a 23-year-old rancher and Ackerly native was the second most accurate shot.

The hours of solitary practice were rewarded when the American flag was raised and the National Anthem played at the awards ceremony.

"That's kinda why we do it... for the glory and for our country," Coleman says. "It takes a lot of work but if you get them to raise the flag and play the National Anthem, it's all worth it."

The Mexico City event was the last of the 1981 season for the American team. Prior to flying across the border, qualifying shots for 1982 had already begun.

Coleman, the dominant shooter in Zone IV, won a

One of the joys of covering 5-A AAAA track this year was watching great competitors such as Carla Jackson, Carla Seldon, Demetra Fort and others perform each weekend. Another joy was just watching the girls.

Call us sports writers male chauvinists if you will but Ken Gates of the Abilene Reporter-News, Paul Arnett of the San Angelo Standard-Times, Bob Wagner of the Odessa American and I couldn't help but notice how well girls keep in shape these days.

In honor of those pleasant afternoons around the track we scribes voted on which girls would look most like Bo Derek under an Easter bonnet. Our final selection — with advice from some male tracksters and the bashful staff at the Midland Reporter-Telegram — is known as the District 5-5A All-District Good-Looking Team.

Most Valuable Fox, won hands down, was Cooper's 800-meter winner Angle Dunnam. Before, during or after a race, she looked like a champ.

Other first team members were Permian hurdler Terre Clark, San Angelo distance runner Michele Reed, Cooper miler Noemi Espinoza, Midland quartermiler Arlene Griffin, Cooper's Diana Davis and Big Spring's Sylvia Randle. Newcomer of the Year was Lee's Joyce Nelson.

The selections was based purely on looks with no consideration of ability although all of the picks were standouts in their events just by coincidence.

The photos of the girls are not the best but on fear of getting slapped by the girls or meeting a boyfriend who happens to be a shot putter, I (the only cameraman available) kept my distance.

We would have selected a team of the most handsome guys but none of us felt qualified in that category. By the way, Coach of the Year honors went to Cooper's Dee "Dynamite" Williams.

Gates and myself would like for each girl to thank us personally. So would Arnett and Wagner but Paul's too shy and Wagner's married.

Until next year, many happy gazes.

Rangers open season on the 'Wright' foot

CLEVELAND (AP) — Buddy Bell homered twice and singled to drive in three runs and George Wright made his major league debut with a single, double and homer and three RBI as the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 8-3 Saturday in the storm-delayed season opener for both clubs.

Texas starter Charlie Hough fell behind 2-0 in the first inning when Bake McBride and Ron Hassey delivered RBI singles. The veteran knuckleballer went the route, scattering eight hits, but only two after the third inning.

The Rangers scored a run in the second against loser Rick Waits when Larry Parrish singled, moved to second on an error by shortstop Jerry Dybzinski and came home on Jim Sundberg's single.

Wright homered leading off the third and one out later Bell hit the first of his two solo shots to put the Rangers in front 3-2. Toby Harrah's leadoff homer in the bottom of the third tied the score, but the Rangers took the lead for good with two out in the fourth on consecutive singles by Mark Wagner, Doug Flynn and Wright.

Bell hit his second homer leading off the fifth to make it 5-3. Texas added two runs against Tom Brennan in the sixth on consecutive doubles by Flynn and Wright and a single by Bell. The Rangers scored their final run in the ninth against Ed Whitson on Sundberg's single and a double by Mike Richardt.

Blue Jays 3, Brewers 2

TORONTO (AP) — Barry Bonnell, who went 5-for-5 in his first appearance this season, drilled a two-out single in the bottom of the 10th inning to score Damaso Garcia and give the Toronto Blue Jays a 3-2 victory Saturday over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Garcia led off the inning with an infield hit, was sacrificed to second by Lloyd Moseby and took third on a wild pitch by relief ace Rollie Fingers, the American League's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner in 1981. Designated hitter Wayne Nordhagen drew a walk and, after pinch-hitter Al Woods struck out, Bonnell hammered his single over the head of shortstop Robin Yount.

Roy Lee Jackson pitched the final two innings for Toronto and allowed two hits to earn the victory.

Angels 8, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Doug DeCinces sparked a four-run fifth inning with a double as the Angels beat the Minnesota Twins 8-1 Saturday.

Bob Boone opened the inning with a walk off losing pitcher Darrell Jackson, and Rod Carew also walked.

American League

DeCinces then drove Boone home with a bloop double. Jackson then intentionally walked Don Baylor, but Juan Beniquez spoiled the strategy with a two-run single. Baylor scored the fourth run of the inning on a sacrifice fly by Fred Lynn.

The Angels took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Baylor doubled and Bobby Clark singled him home. Clark scored on a double by Rick Burleson.

The Twins got one run back in the bottom of the fourth when Kent Hrbek hit a 430-foot home run to right field, his third this season.

California scored in the seventh on an RBI single by DeCinces, and got a final run in the eighth when Boone doubled to score Lynn, who had singled. Steve Renko, who replaced starter Bruce Kison in the fifth inning, was the winning pitcher.

Red Sox 2-3, Orioles 0-5

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Murray drove in three runs with two doubles and a grounder as the Baltimore Orioles defeated Boston 5-3 and earned a split of Saturday's doubleheader with the Red Sox.

Dennis Eckersley blanked Baltimore on six hits in the 2-0 opener, with a two-out single by Jim Rice accounting for the only runs of the game in the third inning.

Eckersley recorded four of his six strikeouts in the first three innings and then worked out of two late threats.

Ken Singleton and Murray singled with two out in the ninth before Eckersley retired Lowenstein on a fly ball.

Murray, who had five hits for the day, had an RBI double in the first inning of the nightcap and followed Singleton's run-producing single with an RBI grounder in the second off loser Bob Ojeda, 0-1. Murray also had an RBI double in the sixth.

Royals 5, Tigers 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dennis Leonard pitched a perfect game for five innings and combined on a sparkling one-hitter with Grant Jackson and Dan Quisenberry as the Kansas City Royals beat the Detroit Tigers 5-2 Saturday night.

Quisenberry came on after the hit, working 1 1/3 innings before giving way to Quisenberry.

Braves bust Astros again

ATLANTA (AP) — Rookie Brett Butler stroked a pair of hits, drove in two runs and scored three times to trigger Atlanta to an 8-6 victory over the Houston Astros Saturday night, giving the Braves their best start in 13 years.

The four consecutive wins equaled the Braves' 4-0 start in 1969, the last time the Braves captured the West Division pennant in the National League.

Glenn Hubbard, Rafael Ramirez and Bruce Benedict each also had two hits in the 12-hit Atlanta attack.

Butler opened the first inning with a single and scored on Claudell Washington's ground-rule double off loser Vern Riffe, 0-1. Washington then moved to third on a balk and scored on Dale Murphy's sacrifice fly.

The Braves took a 5-0 lead in the second inning on Butler's two-run single and an RBI single by Hubbard that scored Butler, who had stolen second.

The Astros pulled to within 5-3 on a two-run homer by Terry Puhl in the third and knocked out Atlanta starter Steve Bedrosian in the fourth on pinch hitter Dickie Thon's run-scoring single.

Butler scored his third run in the fifth when he reached on a forceout and came home on Hubbard's double. The Braves added a run in the sixth on a triple by Ramirez and a passed ball and scored again in the seventh on an RBI single by Benedict.

Houston got a run in the seventh off winning reliever Larry McWilliams, 1-0, on three singles, the last by Jose Cruz. They added another run in the eighth on Thon's RBI single and one in the ninth on a triple by Alan Ashby and an error by third baseman Bob Horner.

Pirates 11, Cardinals 7

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Reliever Mark Littell's throwing error sent home the winning run in the top of the seventh inning Saturday, helping the

National League

Pittsburgh Pirates down the St. Louis Cardinals 11-7.

With the game tied 7-7, Johnny Ray, who homered in the Pirates' second for the first of his three hits, led off the top of the seventh with a double. Ray scored when Littell fielded Dale Berra's sacrifice bunt and threw wildly past third base.

Pinch hitter Willie Stargell walked, and Littell issued an intentional walk to Mike Easler after Lee Lacy, running for Stargell, stole second. Littell, the fifth of six St. Louis pitchers, then wild-pitched Berra home before Lacy scored the third run of the inning on Jason Thompson's sacrifice fly.

Mets 9, Cubs 5

CHICAGO (AP) — New York's Pat Zachry pitched no-hit ball until Bob Molinaro's two-out, RBI single in the eighth inning triggered a four-run uprising as the Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 9-5 Saturday.

Dave Kingman drove in five runs for the Mets with a homer and a single.

Until the eighth, Zachry had allowed only one runner to reach base, walking Bill Buckner in the first inning. But after retiring 19 straight batters, Zachry, 1-0, got into trouble by walking two batters. He then gave up the run-scoring single to Molinaro, who was pinch hitting for Herman Segelke, the third Cubs' pitcher. The Cubs then scored three more runs on an error by second baseman Wally Backman and RBI singles by Junior Kennedy and Buckner.

Jerry Morales' homer leading off the ninth knocked out Zachry, and Neil Allen got the last three outs for the Mets.

Dodgers 6, Padres 0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitcher Fernando Valenzuela made a successful 1982 debut Saturday, blanking San Diego for six innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Padres 6-0.

Valenzuela, the National League's 1981 Cy Young Award Winner and Rookie of the Year, allowed five scattered hits, walked one and struck out four before giving way to a pinch-hitter. Dave Stewart and Dave Goltz finished up for the Dodgers, completing a seven-hitter.

Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda had determined that six innings would be the maximum for the Mexican left-hander, who had reported late to training because of a contract dispute and worked just five innings.

Expos 11, Phillies 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Montreal right-hander Bill Gullickson overcame a record-tying six wild pitches and Al Oliver and Gary Carter each hit a home run as the Expos pounded out 16 hits to take an 11-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night.

Gullickson's wild pitches allowed two runs to score, but he managed to scatter six hits in seven innings and pitch out of several jams.

Oliver's three-run homer capped a two-out Expos' rally in the third inning. Wallace Johnson singled, stole second and advanced to third on a wild pitch by Philadelphia starter and loser Dick Ruthven. After Andre Dawson walked, Oliver homered to give Montreal a 4-0 edge.

Giants 7, Reds 5

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan's bases-loaded two-run single in the top of the 10th inning Saturday lifted the San Francisco Giants to their first victory of the season, a 7-5 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

Big Spring golfer wins Las Vegas tournament

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Who says life slows down when you're over 50?

If you're Martha Saunders, the pace doesn't lose a stride even if one of your favorite past-times is spending time at the golf course.

Mrs. Saunders and Peggy Marshall of Big Spring recently attended a NSSA (National Senior Sports Association) golf tournament in Las Vegas, competing against 80 other women. Mrs. Saunders recorded a low net score of 198 for three days of golf to win the tournament, four shots better than the runner-up golfer from California.

Mrs. Marshall was second low net in her flight after the first day.

The tournament was the second for Mrs. Saunders, having first played in the Monterey Peninsula Tournament in California last November. Playing the Rancho Canada West twice and the Laguna Sea courses, she was paired with golfers from Washington, Oregon, Colorado, California, Arizona, Massachusetts and Texas.

Mrs. Saunders arrived in Las Vegas from Caribbean cruise and had a little trouble adjusting to land, not to mention the golf course. The tournament was played on the Showboat Country Club and the Sahara Country Club.

She has been a member of the NSSA for less than a year and is planning another golfing trip to San Antonio June 13-17. Courses to be played will be the Pecan Valley Country Club and Riverside Country Club.

Mrs. Saunders is a member of the Big Spring Ladies Golf Association. Having only taken up golf in the past few years, Mrs. Saunders calls herself "a complete novice at the game and having won the Vegas Tournament was a miracle."

Q. The new All Savers Certificates were supposed to assist the housing market, as well as being a new investment instrument for virtually everyone. Are All Savers proceeds going to the housing market?

A. When the All Savers Certificates went on the market, the National Association of Realtors said it would monitor where the proceeds of the All Savers Certificates went. It has just issued a report indicating the savings & loans surveyed showed 71% of new net proceeds from AS's were going to the housing market, 1% toward agricultural loans and 28% for other purposes. Banks surveyed said 56% of new AS's proceeds were going to housing, 16% for agricultural loans and 28% for other uses. Proceeds from the All Savers Certificates are, it appears, going to the promised areas, and are being attributed, in part, to currently falling interest rates.

Ackerly's Mike Coleman right on target

sixth title in seven years in San Antonio and will attempt to make the U.S. four-man team again at the final tryouts this August in Fort Benning, Ga.

The final tryout was held last year in Salem, Ore., and the Ackerly shooter hit 383 of 400 targets in the four-day event to finish in a tie for third. He lost the shoot-off but still made the U.S. team for the second time.

In 1976, Coleman was second alternate to the United States team that competed in Montreal. For the Olympics, the country sends its two best shooters. Coleman already has his sights set on the 1984 Games in Los Angeles and thought of competing in world's ultimate sporting event brings a twinkle to his eye.

"There's a good chance I can make it," he smiles. "I'd really like to go."

Between now and the '84 Games, Coleman is hoping to shoot for his country in the 1982 World Championships in Caracas, Venezuela, and 1983 in Edmonton, Alberta Canada.

To make the team, he must finish in the top four each year at the U.S. final tryouts. For 1981, he joined fellow Texan Ernie Neil of Wichita Falls, Terry Howard of Illinois and Darrell Whitehead of Seattle, Wash., on the squad.

International trapshooting, the Olympic event, is different from American trapshooting.

As Coleman explains, "The birds are thrown farther out from much harder angles." The shooter stands 15 meters from the pit where the birds are thrown. The birds — actually circular disks made of chemical by-products — can be thrown at 45-degree angles from the machine and may range in height from three to 40-50 feet.

In competition, the bird sets flight when the shooter says "pull" into a microphone. Coleman says this negates the human element that can either hurry or delay the target release. In American trap, when the shooter orders a pull, the target is set off by a release pressed by an individual. The difference makes the international event more challenging.

Coleman has been shooting for 15 years, the last of seven of which have been devoted to the international style. While shooting trap one year in San Antonio, he had the opportunity to take a few shots at an international range.

"They opened it up one evening and I really liked it," he recalls. "I heard about the traveling team and had a friend in San Antonio who told me about it. The NRA (National Rifle Association) told me where to go for the tryouts."

The first step was the Zone IV tryouts in San Antonio that brings in shooters from five states. In seven years, he's won the championship six times. After a practice day of 100 targets, competitors shoot 100 targets each in two following days. Last year, Coleman blasted 192 of 200 birds to earn top honors.

At the final tryouts in Salem, the field is cut down for the last day from 110 shooters to 60. Coleman hit 97 of 100 his first day to lead, slipped to a tie for the lead with a 95x100 performance the second day and was second going into the final round after another 95x100 round.

He hit 94x100 in his last turn to tie for third and insuring him a spot on the U.S. team.

He had been on the U.S. Junior team for three years and made the open team for the first time this past year. Coleman has also taken a title at the annual U.S. Sports Festival which serves as a pre-Olympic competition for this country's hopefuls.

There are not too many international trapshooters in Texas and Coleman must practice by himself at his home in Ackerly, having recently rebuilt a pit and shooting arena.

"There aren't too many international shooters from the state," he said. "There are about 20 in the United States that are good enough to make the team and you can pick the ones that will make it every year."

Much of his competition comes from the armed services. Howard is one of the Army's top marksmen while Whitehead is on the Air Force shooting team. At the Fort Benning final tryout this summer, Coleman says the Army shooters will have a "home court advantage" since the installation houses their shooting team.

Once outside the national boundaries, Coleman reports the toughest competition comes from the Russians. The Soviet Union won the 1981 World Championships in Argentina but did not send a team to Mexico City although they did compete in the pistol and rifle events.

"Russia and the U.S. are the best at trapshooting," he says. "The Italians and French are pretty good too."

"It's just like another shoot if you don't get to thinking how important it is," he explains. "There are a lot of different people there and I have friends from all over the world."

What's it like to compete against the Russians. "It's all right," he grins. "Their people are very friendly. They carry a manager and political officer too. He keeps an eye on all of them. When he's not around, they're pretty friendly but when he comes in, they all clam up."

Coleman uses a 12-gauge shotgun, over and under with a long barrel and tight choke. It is housed along with a fascinating arsenal of hunting weapons in a vault in his home for protection. When not ranching or trapshooting, Coleman joins his father, Dudley, for big game hunting across the globe. His father is an avid American trapshooter and also possesses a deadly aim, the family's huge trophy room can attest to.

Visitors are treated to a scrapbook featuring son Mike in his officers red coat representing the United States in the foreign shoots. Proud as they are of their son for his individual accomplishments, his parents are prouder still of his representing his country.

"It's really something when they raise that flag and play the National Anthem," his mother, Zula, smiles.

Rockets within a game of top

HOUSTON (AP) — Calvin Murphy and Moses Malone each scored 12 points in the final quarter Saturday to spark Houston's 105-100 National Basketball Association win over San Antonio, moving the Rockets within a game of the division-leading Spurs.

Houston, 44-33, has now won eight of its last nine games while San Antonio, 45-32, lost for the fifth time in six outings.

The Rockets held a narrow five-point lead entering the fourth period, 71-66, but Murphy and Malone combined for 20 points in a six-minute stretch and Murphy's jump shot with three minutes to play put Houston in charge, 96-84.

Spur sharpshooter George Gervin led all scorers with 38 points while Malone led the Rockets with 27 points and 17 rebounds.

Murphy, nursing a sore back from an automobile accident earlier in the day, finished with 14 points for Houston. Robert Reid added 17 and Elvin Hayes tossed in 16 points and grabbed 15 rebounds.

Mike Mitchell and Dave Corzine each added 16 points for the Spurs.

Houston led by four points, 52-48, at the half after Mark Olberding and coach Stan Albeck both drew technical fouls for San Antonio and Allen Leavell cashed in both Houston free-throw chances.

Two inducted into Hall

WACO, Texas (AP) — Former Southern Methodist center Ira Terrell and the late Albert S. "Abb" Curtis, a longtime Southwest Conference referee, will be inducted Saturday into the Texas Basketball Hall of Fame.

Three other SWC basketball stars — Jerry Mallett and Darrell Hardy of Baylor and Bill Henry of Rice — also will join the hall during a noon ceremony at the Waco Convention Center.

Curtis, who in 1950 became the first full-time supervisor of SWC officials, refereed both basketball and football and was named to the Texas Sports Hall of Fame in 1973.

Terrell led Dallas Roosevelt High School to the state 4A championship in 1972 and, after four years at SMU, was picked in the third round of the 1976 National Basketball draft by the Phoenix Suns. He stayed in the NBA two years, playing for Phoenix, New Orleans and Portland.

Henry played at Rice from 1942-45 and helped the Owls to two conference crowns, including an undefeated league slate his senior year.

Hardy broke Baylor records for career scoring and free throws his senior season.

Mallett led Beaumont South Park to the state 3A championship in 1953. He played basketball and baseball at Baylor and played for the Boston Red Sox for a year in 1959.

Twins trade for Yankee reliever

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Twins traded shortstop Roy Smalley to the New York Yankees Saturday for relief pitcher Ron Davis and two minor leaguers.

"I was stunned," Smalley said. "I'm emotion-filled right now. I'm not sad to be going to the Yankees, but I'm sad to leave Minnesota. I'm not sad about playing in the middle of the Yankee lineup, but I am sad about leaving this one."

"The feelings I'm having now are contradictory. I kind of feel like a rookie. I'm going to the Bronx Zoo, for God's sake. Playing for the Yankees is a dream of every kid."

Smalley, who has a .259 lifetime batting average, came to the Twins in a 1976 trade with Texas. He negotiated a four-year, $2.5 million contract last season.

Davis, 26, who combined with Rich Gossage to give the Yankees a strong bullpen, has a 27-10 career record, 22 saves and a 2.94 earned run average.

Davis went to the Yankees in 1978 from the Chicago Cubs in a trade for Ken Holtzman. His best year was 1979 when he was 14-2 with nine saves and a 2.86 ERA. He was 9-3 with seven saves and a 2.95 ERA last season, but was hit hard in the World Series loss to Los Angeles, yielding six earned runs in 2 1/3 innings.

"They made the trade and I'm going," Davis said. "That's part of baseball. I might not win another game or save another game, but I'll have fun over there."

The Twins also obtained right-handed pitcher Paul Boris. Minnesota had drafted Boris from the Yankees last fall, but returned him after spring training. He will report to Minnesota's Toledo farm club in the Class AAA International League.

Cascot Certified Cottonseed Can Mean 25% Bigger Yields!

Custom Ag Service, now a leader in the market, has selected, tested, and developed four cottonseed varieties which are early maturing, disease resistant, and give consistently higher yields, as much as 25% over your current yields.

CASCOT C-13: Being released for the first time this season, C-13 has shown great yield potential. Growers have had consistently high yields in excess of two bales per acre from C-13. But, book early for this variety because supply is extremely limited.

CASCOT BR-1: Fast fruiting, excellent yield potential, outstanding lint quality, extra early maturity (120-130 days), and premium micronaire are characteristic of this variety. Plus BR-1 is a proven producer on dry or irrigated land.

CASCOT B-2: Probably the fastest maturing cotton on the market, this stripper variety has good cold tolerance which allows for earlier planting.

CASCOT L-7: A great producer on dry land, even better when irrigated, L-7 is cold tolerant, early maturing, and possesses as much wilt resistance as any commercial seed.

Liability insurance warning has expired

AUSTIN — The 90-day DPS warning period for the new mandatory liability insurance law has expired. After midnight Wednesday, March 31, state troopers began issuing citations to drivers who fail to show proof insurance when such information is requested. The law, which became effective Jan. 1, 1982, requires all drivers to carry minimum liability coverage for bodily injury of $10,000 per person ($20,000 for two or more persons) and property damage of $5,000. Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director, said the law is encouraging more drivers to obtain the required coverage. "DPS figures show that during 1981, approximately 73 percent of drivers involved in reportable accidents had the insurance," Adams pointed out. "That number increased to 81 percent for the first two months of this year." Drivers who fail to carry the required coverage risk being fined from $75 to $200 for the first offense and from $200 to $1,000 for subsequent violations. In addition, a conviction under the new law will result in the suspension of the violator's drivers license and motor vehicle registration unless the violator establishes and maintains proof of financial responsibility for five years from the conviction date.

Forgotten and doomed at the animal shelter

City officials say facilities inadequate

By TINA MILLER
Lifestyle Editor

They are the unwanted and the unloved. Often their plight is the fault of careless or uncaring humans who allow them to roam the streets and produce unwanted litters to be dumped on a deserted road. They are large and small, vicious and meek, mutts and purebreds.

Big Spring's Animal Shelter has housed a total of 164 dogs and 33 cats this year. The shelter, a small building at the intersection of Second and Donley streets, has 10 cages. Animals are separated according to their age, size, and when they were brought in. The building is not heated, and windows cool the facility in the summer.

"The public has a misconception of the pound," says Carrie Harvell, who works in the shelter's office. "We're fair and humane with the animals." She admits, however, that conditions at the shelter could be better. Outdoor runs where the dogs could exercise would be a major improvement, she said.

Lt. Arvin Henry of the Police Dept., who handles the budget for the facility, describes the shelter as, "very old and inadequate for the number of animals" it houses. The animal and human populations of Big Spring have grown, he said, but the shelter has not.

WHY HASN'T the facility been improved?

According to City Manager Don Davis, a new Animal Shelter was proposed in the December 1980 bond election. The proposal was defeated, and presently there are no plans, or money, to build a new facility. Private donations toward a new shelter would be accepted, Davis said, and any money specified for the shelter would be used in that area.

"What we have is deplorable," he said, "but people said (in the bond election), 'No, we don't want (a new) one.'"

The Animal Shelter is a popular topic of conversation in the community. One popular rumor is that animals are fed straight from opened cans of food which have jagged edges and cut the animals' mouths. This rumor, as well as others concerning the shelter, proved to be false. According to Ms. Harvell, puppies are kept either together, or, if possible, with their mothers. Large dogs are kept alone in a cage, while two or three medium-size dogs may share a cage. Animals suspected of being rabid are isolated in locked cages for 10 days. Each cage is 4' x 8'.

Monday, a variety of animals including small puppies, an English Sheepdog and a registered Golden Retriever were housed in the shelter. The shelter has the registration papers for the retriever, Ms. Harvell said. The owner moved and could not take the dog with him. Since there was no time to sell the animal, she was taken to the Animal Shelter. Why hasn't she been adopted? "She's pregnant," Ms. Harvell said, "and no one wants a pregnant dog."

Cats, she said, are less frequent boarders at the shelter. Many people want cats, and a list is kept of those wanting animals. A list of reported lost and found animals is also kept by the shelter. Cats are also difficult to catch, Ms. Harvell said, and many area residents use traps supplied by the shelter to catch the cats and bring them to the Animal Shelter. A deposit is required for the traps, but is refunded when the trap is returned.

THE ANIMAL SHELTER, under the supervision of the Big Spring Police Department, employs two animal wardens. Alice Vargas and Roger Oliver are current

TOO YOUNG TO DIE — Puppies are kept together or with their mother when brought to the shelter. The puppies give each other warmth and companionship during their stay. If not claimed or adopted within three days after they are brought to the Animal Shelter, however, they face death by injection.

wardens, and Ms. Vargas said most of the calls they answer are related to stray dogs. The shelter also has picked up 135 dead dogs, 55 dead cats and answered six calls related to dog bites this year.

Stray dogs and cats (with no tags) picked up by the Animal Shelter are kept three days before they are destroyed. When an animal with tags is brought in, the shelter contacts the veterinarian whose name appears on the tag. The vet gives the shelter the name, address and phone number of the owner, who is then contacted. If the owner does not pick up the dog within about a week, the animal is destroyed.

The animals are destroyed by injecting T-61 into their system. According to Dr. H.E. Thompson, local veterinarian, T-61 is a "concentrated anesthetic" that causes the animal no pain. He describes the drug as "very good and used universally." A total of 38 dogs and 28 cats have been killed by injection at the shelter this year.

ON THE BRIGHIER side, 97 dogs and 5 cats have been adopted from the shelter this year. Adoption of a shelter animal is simple. Anyone can choose any dog or cat and pay a small fee. Charge for cats is $6 and includes tags and necessary shots. Dogs, because of their food requirements, require a fee of $16.

If the shelter picks up an animal with out-of-date tags, the owner is charged a fee to bring the tags up-to-date. Owners of dogs with no tags are charged for the tags.

The animals are fed late in the evening and again in the morning. Dogs are fed a popular brand of dry food, and cats also get dry food. Normally, cages are cleaned twice daily. Earlier in the week, however, the Animal Shelter was having problems with clogged drains. When the drains were clogged, the cages cannot be cleaned, Ms. Harvell said. The drain became clogged April 2 and remained clogged, despite efforts to clear the problem, until Tuesday afternoon.

When the cages are cleared, they are washed with water and then disinfected. The dogs are moved to other cages while this is being done, she said.

ANIMAL WARDEN — Alice Vargas, who has been with the local Animal Shelter about two months, came from a similar position in Hobbs, N.M. "I love my job," she said. "I love animals." It bothers her when it becomes necessary to destroy an animal, particularly kittens and puppies. But when they are suffering, she says she knows it has to be done. Because she loves animals, she says she would rather do the job than someone who does not care for them.

TAKE ME HOME — Because they are so difficult to catch and because they are in demand, cats are not frequent boarders at the Animal Shelter. Fee for adopting a cat is only $6 and includes a tag and shots. This friendly feline posed for the camera and carried on a conversation with the photographer during his visit.

STUCK AGAIN — Curiosity got the best of this dog who thought the concrete looked better on the other side of the cage. Because of a clogged drain, the cages could not be cleaned for more than three days. Normally, the cages are washed and disinfected twice daily, according to Carrie Harvell, who works in the shelter office.

POTENTIAL PET — Most of the calls received by the Animal Shelter are related to stray dogs. The shelter has housed a total of 164 dogs and 33 cats this year. The animals are kept indoors in a 4' x 8' cages. Large dogs are kept alone in a cage, while two or three medium-sized dogs may share a cage. A pet may be adopted from the shelter by paying a minimal fee on shots, tags and food.

Pans used can affect baking results

Shiny metal cake pans give more even browning and heat distribution, says Rose Tindall Postel, a foods and nutrition specialist. When using heat-proof glass pans, reduce the suggested oven temperature by 25 degrees, she adds. Dr. Postel is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

you're pregnant

MRS. GERALD W. PARNELL JR.
...formerly Vicki Dalby

Dalby-Parnell

Vicki Dalby became the bride of Gerald W. Parnell Jr. in a ceremony held Saturday afternoon in Hillcrest Baptist Church. The Rev. Terry Cosby, pastor of Phillips Memorial Baptist, officiated the 1 p.m. rite before an archway entwined with greenery and a unity candle.

The bride is the daughter of Louise Dalby, 805 E. 18th, and Thomas Dalby, Weatherford. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Parnell Sr., 4104 Dixon.

Mary Ann Hartin, pianist, Gina Dalby, sister of the bride, and Johnny Hatch, both vocalists, provided the music for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of sheer organza and taffeta accented by lace trim and appliques. The bodice featured sheer front and back yokes. The skirt fell from an empire waistline into a chapel-length train. She wore a fingertip-length veil of illusion to complete her ensemble.

The bride carried a bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley.

Tammy Cole, Midwest City, Okla., was maid of honor. Gina Dalby, Weatherford, sister of the bride, Mary Bair, Lubbock, and Tina Pitts, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. Tonya Vess, Odessa, was flower girl.

Ricky White was best man. Groomsmen were Mike Parker, Bobby Roy and Dwayne Fox. Jeff McGregor, Weatherford, and Brent Whitson, Del City, Okla., were ushers.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception in the church's Fellowship Hall. The bride's table was covered in a blue and white lace cloth was centered with candles and featured a three-tiered wedding cake accented with peach roses. The bridegroom's table was covered with a lace cloth and featured a chocolate cake.

The bride attended Big Spring High School and is employed by Baptist Temple Day Care Center.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is employed by Brandin Iron Inn.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidosa, N.M., the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

By GEORGE M. RYAN, JR., M.D.

Even if you consider yourself a stay-at-home, you might have to think twice if someone asked you to promise you won't do any traveling for the next nine months.

Luckily for most pregnant women there is general agreement that a normal pregnancy should not interfere with traveling.

In the early stages of pregnancy, you and your doctor will want to be sure everything is off to a good start. But it's difficult to be sure everything is well until the physician has had a chance to examine you and evaluate the status of the pregnancy.

Until you and your physician know that your pregnancy is going well, you may not want to travel too far if it is not necessary.

If problems develop, you should be able to reach your physician quickly and have the benefit of someone who is thoroughly familiar with your medical history.

The middle three months of pregnancy are usually the best months for travel especially if the mother is careful not to allow herself to become too tired and if the trip is for something pleasant, like a restful vacation.

If you're going by car, plan to make frequent stops, at least every two hours. Walk around when you take a rest stop, to improve your blood circulation. Wear loose clothing and comfortable, low shoes. Don't try to cover too many miles in one day. And let someone else do the driving.

Bus travel may or may not be comfortable for you, depending on the equipment and the distance you're traveling. There may be a problem adjusting your body's needs to the bus schedule. The train may be easier on your system, depending on the accommodations you have and the distance involved.

If you take the plane, let the airline know that you are pregnant in advance. Many will give you special consideration. Choose a seat where the plane is most stable, over the wing. Eat lightly and use the bathroom before you board your flight. Conditions aboard the flight — pressurized cabins, depressurization, and the like — are safe for you and the baby.

It's especially important that you do not take any medication for nausea or motion sickness unless it has been prescribed by your physician.

Travel during the last three months will be up to you and your physician.

Talk over your travel plans with your physician, and you'll lessen the chances of putting yourself and your baby in an unsafe situation.

Decorate your storage boxes

Don't hide your storage boxes — decorate them instead.

Use burlap, felt or velour, staple fabric to each box so it can be drawn tight, then glue fabric to the boxes and glue on appliques, says Alma Fonseca, a clothing specialist.

Dear Abby

Woman isn't being herself

DEAR ABBY: How do you get a man to propose marriage? I've tried every approach I can think of. I've played hard to get. When that didn't work, I let him know he could have whatever he wanted. I've told him I didn't mind if he wanted to date others. No reaction. Then I acted jealous and possessive when he as much as looked at another woman. Still no reaction. I've tried pursuing him shamelessly. He said he didn't like to be pressured, so I quit calling him and waited for him to call me. I've tried being vivacious, exuberant and extroverted. That didn't work, so I toned down and came on more laidback, subdued and ladylike. Abby, nothing seems to work, and I am desperate to marry this man. What is wrong with me?

OPEN FOR SUGGESTIONS

DEAR OPEN: You ask what is wrong with you. Which you? The woman who's hard to get, or the woman who's easy? The liberal, broad-minded woman who's willing to share him? Or the jealous, possessive one? The aggressive huntress or the shy, retiring maiden who waits to be pursued?

Be yourself and quit acting. He may find the real you refreshingly appealing. And if that doesn't work, you haven't lost anything because so far you've battled zero.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for agreeing with "Bothered and Bewildered," the bride's mother who resented having to cart home her daughter's wedding gifts from the reception hall!

I thought I was the only person in the world who resented the thoughtlessness of those who hand-carried wedding gifts to a reception. I am from a foreign country where gifts were always delivered to the home of the bride or bridegroom, whichever was most convenient. I am with you 100 percent.

CORPUS CHRISTI

DEAR CORPUS: So far, my mail is running 10-to-1 against us. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I strongly disagree with your answer to "Bothered and Bewildered." There are at least three good reasons why carrying wedding gifts to the reception is practical:

1. Most stores charge a delivery fee for gifts under $50.
2. Deliveries left at the door are not "safe" these days. (Many couples arrange their weddings and both work during the day. Parents may live elsewhere.)
3. Hand-delivering gifts eliminates the uncertainty as to whether:

- a. The store sent the gift.
- b. The gift was actually received.
- c. The bride is a slowpoke with her "thank-you" notes. I agree that it is a burden imposed on the bride's family, but it's still the safest way to handle the gift. The bride and groom are not obligated to open any gifts at the reception. Every reception that I have ever attended has had a table available for gifts — which is in itself a subtle reminder to those guests who still haven't bought a gift. You say that hand-carrying a wedding gift to the reception is not an acceptable practice. I say it is a practical solution, and no one should look a gift horse in the mouth.

Stretch is in today's fabrics

COLLEGE STATION — "Stretch wovens are in this season since homesewers need more "activewear" fabrics that perform well under stress, says Alma Fonseca, a clothing specialist. Stretch is no longer restricted to knits these days. In addition to the basic categories — denim, poplin and gabardines — polyester-rayon linen has been made into stretch, she points out.

Stretch denim, for example, has been most successful in navy, but this spring lighter colors of blue team up with softer, more feminine looks with gathers and flounces, Fonseca announces.

The coming trend, Fonseca foresees, is the increase in the blending of natural fibers with stretch. Fiber-producing companies predict that in five years stretch will move into a wide variety of outerwear fabrics and will become the "volume fabric," the specialist notes. These predictions will come true only if consumers are made aware of which fabrics are stretch and the benefits they provide, Fonseca continues.

In terms of cost of stretch fabrics, some price resistance has occurred, the specialist says. However, fiber-producing companies are working to reduce cost and feel homesewers will be convinced of the value they're getting in stretch fabrics once they try them, she adds.

MRS. WILLIAM STANLEY SCHROM
...formerly Diana Owens

Owens-Schrom

Diana Owens became the bride of William Stanley Schrom in a Saturday morning ceremony in the chapel of First Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was officiated by Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, before an arch covered with wild smilax and flanked by bouquets of spring flowers and candelabra accented with carnations, English ivy and baby's breath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Owens, 509 Highland. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Simon Schrom, Geneva, Ohio.

Mrs. David Vickers, vocalist, and by Mrs. W.W. Grimes, organist, provided the music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a slipper-length gown of white silk taffeta. The scooped neckline was accented by a large ruffle and re-embroidered Alencon lace encrusted with pearls. The fitted bodice was covered with re-embroidered Alencon lace and mother-of-pearl sequins. The full puffed sleeves were gathered at the elbow by a bow and accented with matching lace. The full skirt fell from the waistline into a chapel-length train and was edged in matching lace and lace medallions. The bride wore a headpiece fashioned of re-embroidered Alencon lace and mother-of-pearl sequins which held a chapel-length veil of illusion. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of stephanotis, phaeleopsis and English ivy.

Mrs. Joe Miller, Baton Rouge, La., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Carla Rambo, Midland, and Kimberly Chesshir, Houston. William Schrom, Geneva, Ohio, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were Scott Winchester, Cleveland, Ohio, and John Schrom, Kent, Ohio, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception in the church's Parlor. The parlor was decorated in pink and violet spring flowers.

The bride is a graduate of Texas Tech University, Lubbock, and received her masters degree from American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale, Ariz. She is employed as a financial analyst by First City National Bank of Houston.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Bowling Green University and also received his masters degree from American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale, Ariz. He is employed by Western Geophysical Company as an accountant.

Following a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will make their home in Houston.

Best Wishes, Mary

A furniture cleanser-conditioner you can make

Furniture eventually reaches a point where it needs more than dusting or polishing. Many pieces need only to be cleaned to restore their finish since removing the finish of a valuable piece of furniture can destroy its value and character.

You can make a furniture cleanser-conditioner for those pieces of furniture which simply need cleaning and not refinishing. It can be used to restore natural grain and color of wood; to conceal scratches, and to retard crazing or checking. The cleanser will remove cloudiness caused by smoke, grease and dust. It will also recondition dry woods caused from over-heated atmosphere of rooms. One caution: use cleanser conditioner sparingly on shellac finish. To determine if the finish is shellac, rub alcohol on an underside spot. The finish will soften and peel off if it is shellac.

To prepare and use the cleanser-conditioner: Mix in a glass container with a tight fitting lid, one part of gum turpentine with three parts of boiled linseed oil. Cover tightly and shake well. The mixture keeps indefinitely. Spread a thick layer of newspapers on the floor under the piece of furniture you plan to clean. Heat some water and pour it into a dish on a saucer or small pie tin.

Shake cleanser-conditioner and pour enough into dish to cover the surface of the water. DO NOT STIR. The cleanser-conditioner is flammable and should be kept away from hot surfaces or open flames. Dip your cleaning cloth into the floating oil mixture. Apply on a small area and avoid excess moisture in joints or glued areas. Rub the surface with the oil mixture. Use an old toothbrush on carved areas and grooves. If there is a buildup of dirt, dip 3-0 steel wool into mixture and rub lightly. Wring out clean cloth with clear warm water and wipe furniture surface. Go to final rub if luster needs restoring.

Discard the cleaning mixture when water becomes cold. DO NOT REHEAT. The mixture is flammable. It also becomes gummy.

For additional information on furniture cleansers and polishes you can make at home, contact the Howard County Extension Office.

The Crosstown Church of Christ in Tulsa, Okla. was the setting for the Saturday afternoon wedding of Marilyn Loraine Martin and Paul Louis Pickle. John Higgins, minister of education at the church, performed the 2 p.m. rite before an archway flanked by columns and baskets of gladioli and mums.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Martin, Coahoma. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William C. Pickle Sr., Memphis, Tenn.

Wedding music was provided by Chris Jones, Gary Smith, Linda Jones and Debbie Moore, all vocalists.

The bride wore a white formal-length gown of Chantilly lace, silk Venise lace and pleated chiffon. The bodice was embellished in Chantilly lace and featured a Queen Anne collar, which circled down into a sweetheart neckline, and pleated bishop sleeves ending in matching lace cuffs. The full circular skirt of chiffon and silk Venise lace trim fell from the waistline, which was dropped in the back, into a chapel-length train. Complementing her ensemble, the bride wore a veil of Chantilly lace and pencil-edged illusion.

The bride carried a bouquet of white daisies and blue baby's breath.

Betty Todd, Tulsa, Okla., was maid of honor. Mrs. Michael Evans, Tulsa, Okla., and Debbie Patterson, Sapulpa, Okla., were bridesmaids. Cathy Connatser, Lafayette, La., niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

Ben Wiles, Tulsa, Okla., was best man and Nick Gould, Tulsa, Okla., and William C. Pickle Jr., Poteau, Okla., brother of the bridegroom, were groomsmen. Larry Martin, Brea, Calif., brother of the bride, David Pickle Fort Smith, Ark. brother of the groom, and Robert Connatser, Lafayette, La. brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were ushers. William C. Pickle III, Poteau, Okla., nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Robert Connatser Jr., Lafayette, La., nephew of the bridegroom was candlelighter.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception in the church's Fellowship Hall. Sarah Connatser, Cyndi Gould, Becky Pickle, Terri Pickle and Susanna Pickle served at the reception.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School and Abilene Christian University, Abilene. She presently is employed as a secretary.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Messick High School, and Memphis State University, both in Memphis, Tenn. He is employed as a financial accountant.

Following a wedding trip to West Virginia, the couple will make their home in Owasso, Okla.

Timothy was born March 9.

Dr. Donohue

Naturalness is important

Dear Dr. Donohue: You write a lot for joggers, but I have never seen you tell the best way to run. Does just doing what comes naturally serve the purpose? I use this approach, but I am sure there are approved ways and some don't. I don't want to make my running too mechanical. I wouldn't mind improving, if that's possible. Is it?—V.L.

You are right in one respect; running form that is the most natural to you is probably the best. You are also right in that certain rules are accepted for proper running.

For long-distance running, it is better to land the foot just behind its ball and push off with the toes. Some have also said that for long-distance running, the short stride is best because it takes less energy than long strides. The rationale here is that longer strides throw the body a little off balance by pushing it too far ahead of its center of gravity. That causes you to make energy-wasteful muscle contractions to compensate.

Other tips: Let your arms swing rhythmically; do not clench the hands, again avoiding energy-wasteful muscle contractions; keep your head up, look about 10 yards or so ahead, occasionally shifting to look into the distance.

All this having been said, it is still a personal choice as to which running form is most comfortable, especially if it is one that works.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been dieting and I have 15 more pounds to lose. I joined a local weight club, but have not been able to lose in the last six weeks. I can only maintain my present weight. I walk four miles a day, also pedal five miles on an exercise bike. My friends in the club tell me that I am all wrong in thinking that the exercise will help me lose weight. I find this very hard to believe. If I am persistent with my program, will I eventually lose?—Mrs. M.S.

I don't know your weight, so I can't say if you need to lose more than you already have. You may very well be at an ideal weight for your frame, no matter what the tables tell you. How do you look in a bathing suit?

Anyway, your friends are wrong, wrong, wrong. The combination of dieting and exercise is an excellent way to lose weight or to maintain present weight. Exercise will not make you eat more, which is the argument some anti-exercise people may put forward. It will burn off calories and it will firm up your muscles, perhaps in areas where you need it most.

Watching calories and exercising are both great for taking off pounds. As you get closer to ideal weight, it is more difficult to lose. You may have to count in ounces, not pounds, after that. But it can be done. You either increase the calories you burn by increasing the exercise program, or you eat fewer calories. You'll make it, one way or the other.

Wedding Invitations that Require a Response

As a proper wedding guest, we here at the ACCENT SHOPPE feel it is important for you to know what invitations require an answer. Etiquette says no reply is necessary to a wedding invitation in a church unless you also receive an invitation to a reception. However, if a pew card is enclosed with your invitation, a reply is definitely in order so that the bride's mother will know whether the pew will be occupied. In addition, every reception invitation should be answered as soon as possible, whether or not you plan to attend. Hope you can make it!
