ONLY A CHILD — But a troublesome one. Police say one out of five persons arrested for serious crimes in Big Spring last year was someone under the age of 17. The state treats these juveniles differently than adults, attempting to help rather than punish them. But times are changing, and some authorities, concerned with the rising proportion of juvenile crime, are calling for harsher treatment of teenaged serious offenders. (Herald photo by Cliff Coan)

Crime among young: the problem grows

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

Rafael Lamirez does not look like a criminal. With his wide eyes retaining a shade of the innocence of youth, and his big unabashed grin wrapping across his face from one ear to the other, he looks more like the kid who mows your lawn in the summertime, the kid who sacks groceries in the checkout line at the supermarket, or even the kid who looks a little confused about the words but still sings his heart out in a choir.

His mother insists he hasn't been a troublemaker. His older sister says he hasn't been a troublemaker. And even though Rafael was found guilty of involvement in a string of six burglaries, the state of Texas won't go so far as to label Rafael a "criminal."

Rafael is only 12 years old. In the eyes of the state, little Rafael did not pull off any crimes; instead, he participated in a series of "delinquent acts." His problem, the state said, was not that he broke laws for which convicted criminals normally are punished. His problem, simply, was that he was tardy in his development as a decent, peace-respecting citizen.

The state, therefore, would try to help Rafael, would give him special attention so that Rafael would turn out like his friends, who had been playing basketball or studying schoolbooks while Rafael was breaking into vending machines and stealing change.

Rafael's case illustrates many of the problems connected with teenage lawlessness (his name and certain facts about his life have been changed here to protect his identity). He came from a broken home. His mother was defensive, and tried to hide from a reporter the fact that her son had been picked up by authorities three times prior to his apprehension as a burglary suspect. For each of his prior offenses, truancy, theft, and possession of an alcoholic beverage, he was kept out of juvenile court, where he might have been treated more sternly — where he might have realized that if you keep on breaking the law, you might not be treated so easily, you might find yourself punished instead of let go.

Life got tougher for Rafael late in February. Two police officers came to his home in a nice neighborhood on the south side of town and picked him up as a burglary suspect. They said two of his friends, who had already been tried and found guilty in court, had implicated him in half a dozen burglaries going back nearly a year. His mother came down to the police station after learning Rafael had been taken there. She was distraught.

"Why did you arrest my little boy?" she asked. The police told her why. The mother said he hadn't been in-involved. But the boy, in the presence of a justice of the peace, admitted to his involvement. The mother shook her head and sadly brought Rafael home.

"He was honest. He told the truth — he didn't mind the truth," Mrs. Lamirez said as she sat inside her small stucco home, its interior lined with religious icons. She explained what had happened: many years ago her husband had left her. She had been forced to raise three children alone. She worked when she could — mostly at house cleaning — but bad feet prevented her from spending too much time standing up.

Rafael eventually took up with a bad crowd, with an older boy who would get the younger ones drunk and tell them to steal.

"You know how kids are — sometimes they're gone and you don't know what they're doing," she said, a haggard expression coming over her middle-aged face. She lit a Pall Mall and tried to make sense of what had happened to her boy after he was picked up by police. That part of Rafael's story makes far less sense to her than why he would get into trouble in the first place.

A few days after he was taken into custody by police, Rafael was brought to juvenile court. Mrs. Lamirez comprehended English but failed to understand what was happening. Who was going to decide what happens to her boy? She thought her attorney would do that — but the attorney was not the judge. After the testimony and the eventual decision to send Rafael to the Texas Youth Council, Mrs. Lamirez was shown some papers.

"They showed me some papers and said to make an 'x'. So I made my 'x' — I didn't know what was going on," she said.

She showed the reporter some papers regarding Rafael, documents which gave her consent for the Texas Youth Council to provide Rafael with medical care if he needed

Big Spring gun, knife show has tools for every arsenal

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Looking to stock a small arsenal? Visitors to the Big Spring Gun and Knife Show at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Saturday browsed through a collection of weapons ranging from flintlock muskets to Israeli-made Uzi submachine guns, every conceivable type of edged weapon and accessories of all descriptions.

Outfitting a small army would have been no problem.

"Several hundred" spectators and would-be buyers roamed the floor of Dorothy Garrett Saturday afternoon, according to Deressa Hill, who, along with her husband, Don, heads the Texas Gun and Knife Association, one of the organizers of the event. "We expect around 3,000 people" to pass through the turnstiles before the show draws to a close at 6 p.m. Sunday, Ms. Hill added.

The show offers "something for everyone" Ms. Hill said, as she rattled off a list of items on display.

"Guns and knives, of course, and all sorts of related items, such as slings, cases, leather goods, scopes and gun stocks," she said. "We've got lots of stuff for the ladies, too, like gold, silver and turquoise jewelry and snakeskin items."

Bartering, an infrequent occurrence in the day of take-it-or-leave-it pricing, may be making a comeback if the exchanges taking place over the selection at the show is any indication. "How much do you want for that pistol?" a prospective buyer asked.

"$375."

"How about if I give you $100 and this .38 Special?"

Buyers and sellers haggled over the price of items in every corner of the floor, trying to decide the difference in price between things like hand-made knives and commemorative pistols, blowguns and Indian arrowheads and military-surplus clothing and used sabers.

"We're pleased with the turnout," said Ms. Hill, "it's moderate right now (Saturday afternoon) but we expect it to pick up later."

"We've got individuals here from all over the country," she said, adding that the Texas Gun and Knife Association "plans to hold at least one (show in Big Spring) a year."

GUN FANCIERS' HEAVEN — Crowds of people browsed, bartered and bought their way through the Big Spring Gun and Knife Show Saturday in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The show, which is also open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. today, offers all kinds of guns, knives and related articles and even includes gold, silver and turquoise jewelry. (Herald photo by Cliff Coan)

Chamber issues cleanup challenge

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

"We're challenging everybody to collect one bag full of litter on Saturday, April 24," is how Big Spring Chamber of Commerce beautification committee chairman Janell Davis describes the committee's plans for Keep American Beautiful Week, April 18-24.

"It seems like people do get the urge to clean the house and the yard in the spring," she said, "and anything we could do to beautify the city would be helpful."

Q. After spending all this money on the airport, when can we expect to board commercial aircraft there to save us going to Midland?

A. According to the director of the Big Spring Industrial Park, Hal Boyd, the Civil Aeronautics Board made a study of past commercial air traffic, called inplanings and deplanings, at the Big Spring airport. The board's study showed that, due to the proximity of the Midland and Odessa airports, no immediate need for commercial lines to Big Spring existed, Boyd said.

Police Beat Chicago man arrested here

Big Spring Police arrested a Chicago man, Raymond Frank Preston, at 3 p.m. Friday on a warrant issued by Chicago police. Preston, arrested in the parking lot of Southwestern Bell in Big Spring, is charged with attempted murder in Chicago. He is being held for Chicago authorities in the Big Spring jail.

Police reports indicate that someone broke two windows in a beginners' classroom on the west side of Iglesia Bautista Le Fe Church at Northeast 10th and Scurry Streets by throwing rocks through the windows Saturday morning. Damage was estimated at $50.

William Dixon told police that someone slashed nine tires on cars at Jack Lewis Buick sometime Friday night.

Elvis Johnson told police that a black female that he knows took a .22-caliber pistol valued at $52 from him at the T-Club on the northside Friday night between 8 and 10 p.m.

Rachel Marquez told police she was assaulted at 6:35 p.m. Friday at Birdwell Park on East 10th and Owens streets. She told police that two young males came up behind her in a pickup truck and attacked her with their fists.

Dolores Bankston told police someone entered the front bedroom of her home in the 500 block of Hillside and took $806 in coins stored in a glass jar. She told police the intruder made his entrance sometime Thursday or Friday.

Ten-year-old Chu-Lai Campos of Big Spring escaped serious injury Friday when she ran into traffic in the 1200 block of South Gregg Street and was struck by a 1971 Plymouth Fury driven by Ruth Bills Dooley of Big Spring, according to police reports. Campos apparently received only minor bruises in the accident.

BEST OF SHOW — John Burcham of Big Spring takes a close look at "Wandering Artichokes," a painting by Midland artist Warren Taylor. Taylor's effort was judged

"Best of Show" in the Big Spring Art Association area show Saturday. Paintings entered in the show will be on exhibit today from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Big Spring Mall.

Art for art's sake Hundreds take it in at Big Spring show

By CLIFF COAN

"This has snowballed, it's been fantastic," said Big Spring Art Association chairman for the 1982 area art show Jimmie Robertson, as she sat in the Big Spring Mall watching the crowd view paintings on display.

She estimated the crowd Saturday afternoon to be "in the hundreds."

"It's been real crowded all day, and we expect a larger crowd for the awards ceremonies Sunday," she added. The exhibits will be on view from one to five p.m. Sunday, according to Mrs. Robertson.

Bob Smith running for peace justice

BOB SMITH
...seeks support

Bob C. Smith is a candidate for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1 Place 2, in the Democratic Primary May 1.

"I sincerely ask for the support of Howard County voters on May 1st, and I pledge to support and serve all the people of Howard County all the time," Smith said.

Smith transferred management of his business to his son Chris January 15th to devote full-time to his campaign.

Smith has served four years in the U.S.A.F., during which time he was a Chaplain's assistant, and also maintained the payroll for military and civilian personnel. "I believe this to be a valuable asset to the office of Justice of the Peace, due to the fact they handle approximately a quarter of a million dollars during one term in office." Other military duties included administrative and file personnel supervisor.

Smith served as a police officer in Big Spring and Slaton. He was appointed Chief of Police in Stanton at the age of 25. Smith served actively with the Police Chiefs Association.

Smith studied criminal and civil law with the Texas A&M System. He also attended Howard College, taking academic and law enforcement courses.

Smith owns a foreign car dealership and a private investigation agency.

Smith said, "I have a deep concern for people, especially young people." Smith began his community leadership at age 17, as a Scout Master. He also served as Cub Scout Master, coached with the Y.M.C.A., youth basketball, football, and baseball. He further served as board member and chapter advisor of the Demolay for boys.

He and his wife Peggy have six children and one grandchild. They are active members of the First Baptist Church.

Smith is a member of the local Chamber of Commerce, serving on the committees for Crime-Stoppers and Governmental Affairs. He is a dual member of Staked Plains Lodge 598 and Big Spring Lodge 1340, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons.

Bob was elected Constable in 1976 and is still serving in that capacity.

Crime Stoppers offers reward for information

At approximately 7:30 p.m., April 6, an unidentified black male assaulted and robbed at gun point Juan H. Garcia, 79.

The assailant forced his way into Garcia's automobile at N.W. 5th and Aylford and proceeded to beat and rob Garcia.

The assailant then pushed Garcia out of the auto and drove away. The vehicle was recovered approximately 2 hours later near the North rest Apartments.

Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person responsible for the aggravated robbery of Juan Garcia.

Crime stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment on any felony crime. If you have information, phone 933-1151.

"We'd like to raise their (Big Springers') consciousness," said Keith Wiseman, chairman of the chamber's sub-committee in charge of the cleanup campaign. "We'd like to get the old junked cars off the streets and clean the vacant lots."

Chuck Benz is chairman of a chamber committee charged with selecting a "Beauty Spot of the Month," one of the chamber's programs to raise the litter consciousness of Big Springers.

The committee will take written nominations for both the residential and non-residential "Beauty Spot of the Month," Benz said, and winners will receive a certificate from the committee.

Keep American Beautiful Day is usually observed on the fourth Saturday in April. KAB Day was inaugurated in 1971 as "Scouting Keep America Beautiful Day," co-sponsored by Keep American Beautiful, Inc. and Boy Scouts of America as a massive, national cleanup and recycling program.

Girl Scouts of the U.S. joined KAB and BSA as co-sponsors in 1972, when nearly 1.5 million tons of trash were cleaned up and an estimated 300,000 tons of glass, steel, aluminum and paper were reclaimed for recycling. By 1973, KAB Day had become a national institution, with the First Lady serving as honorary chairman.

Clements to visit Tuesday

Governor and Mrs. Bill Clements will be in Big Spring on Tuesday to attend the annual Salvation Army dinner. Governor Clements will be the featured speaker while Rita Clements will hand out special awards. Preceding the dinner will be a special reception for all those attending the dinner to meet and visit with Mr. and Mrs. Clements.

The dinner and reception will be held at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the Howard College campus. A press conference will begin at 5:30, the reception at 6:00 and the dinner at 7:00 p.m.

Tickets for the event went on sale April 5 and cost $10 per person. An expected crowd of 750 people will include a number of out-of-town guests.

Clements will not be here to speak on a partisan issue but will discuss the importance of the Salvation Army, United Way, and other helping agencies in our communities.

The dinner will be emceed by Jerry Reid, president of the Board of Directors of the Salvation Army. Winston Wrinkle, long-time Republican worker, will introduce the featured speaker, Lt. Carroll Braun, commanding officer of the local Salvation Ar-it, documents telling her who the parole officer will be when Rafael is released from TYC. She said she didn't really understand any of it. All she knows is that her boy got in trouble, is gone, and she wishes she could have him back.

WHEN RAFAEL COMES home to Big Spring depends on when TYC officials decide they've helped him to the point where they've minimized the possibility of Rafael pulling off another offense. In the meantime, he can be looked at as a statistic, a number which helps reveal the scope of the juvenile crime problem in Big Spring.

Rafael is one of about 20 kids between the ages of 10 and 17 that Big Spring police arrest for serious crimes during an average month. Had he been arrested last year, he would have contributed to a set of statistics which bothers authorities familiar with juvenile crime. According to police, in 1981 one out of five arrests in Big Spring for a serious crime was the arrest of a juvenile (defined by the state as a person between the ages of nine and 17). No precise comparison with earlier years is possible because of differences in crime categories tabulated year by year, but according to former Chief of Police Elwood Hoherz, the proportion of juvenile to adult arrests appears to be rising.

Another statistic: had Rafael been arrested in 1981 for burglary, he would have been one of 62 juveniles arrested on that charge in Big Spring. The number compares with 69 arrests of adults on burglary charges in the same year, according to police reports.

Nationally in 1980 (1981 figures aren't available), the Big Spring statistics on juvenile arrests for serious crimes compares to the following: 36 percent of all U.S. arrests for serious crimes in 1981 were arrests of persons under 18, according to the FBI's annual crime report. For burglaries, 29.3 percent of all burglary reports which were cleared by making an arrest were cleared by arresting a person under 18. In cities with populations between 10,000 and 24,999, the juvenile burglary figure was 33.2 percent. In Big Spring, where the 1980 census pegged the population at 24,804, the figure was nearly 50 percent.

Chief Hoherz, in an interview held a few days before he moved on to Weatherford to be police chief there, summed up the general nature of the juvenile crime problem when he said: "I read recently where forty-six percent of all crime is committed by juveniles now — forty-six percent of ALL crime. Twenty-three percent of all violent crime is committed by juveniles. A few years ago, people would have laughed if you said you thought that was going to happen."

He added: "I think that juvenile work should be one of the top emphases of law enforcement. It is the fastest-growing source of crime statistics there is. It's the problem of the future."

Hoherz, who had spent about six years specializing in juvenile work with the Waco police force, saw another trend within the rise of juvenile crime: the creation of a more hard-core juvenile offender, one for whom traditional rehabilitative responses will not be successful.

"There needs to be some radical changes made in juvenile justice. Instead of us being gentle with juveniles, it's time we turned this thing around," he said.

Monday: To jail a juvenile, or not to jail a juvenile? That is the question for Big Spring police.

Teen rescued from suicide is home

EVERMAN, Texas (AP) — Michael Buchanan, who was rescued from suicide by a New York policeman who cared, has come home to a family that cared, too — though the teenager never knew it until now.

Until November, the 18-year-old youth didn't think his mother was alive. Until September, he hadn't known anyone cared.

"They treat me like I've been here a long time — just like I'm part of the family," Buchanan said at his new suburban Fort Worth home.

It was Sept. 1 that the lonely teenager sat on the roof of a seedy New York hotel and threatened to kill himself. A crowd gathered below urged him to jump.

But a policeman, William Fox, urged him to change his mind. "I'd be proud to have a son like you," Fox told him.

Fox succeeded and eventually adopted Buchanan. Now he's letting him go, though not happily. Buchanan has moved back to Texas to live with his natural family.

Jury acquits suspects in Mexia drownings

DALLAS (AP) — A jury on Saturday acquitted three former Limestone County officers of negligently causing three teen-agers to drown when a boat carrying all six capsized on a Central Texas lake last June 19.

Deputy Kenny Elliott, reserve deputy Kenneth Archie and probation officer David Drummond were found innocent of criminally negligent homicide, a misdemeanor, in the deaths.

Each faced a maximum sentence of a year in jail and a $2,000 fine for each of three counts.

The defendants remained expressionless as Dallas County Criminal Court Judge Tom Price read the verdict, which took the jury of five women and one man four hours and 45 minutes to reach.

The 14-foot motorboat contained no life preservers or running lights as required by state law. A small plate posted to one of the seats specified a passenger weight limit of 400 pounds.

The black youths had been arrested for investigation of marijuana possession at an annual Lake Mexia celebration of Juneteenth, which marks the day in 1865 that Texas slaves received word of their freedom.

Drowned were Carl Baker, 19, Anthony Freeman, 18, both of Mexia, and Steven Booker, 19, of Dallas.

Elliott and Drummond, who are white, swam back to shore. Archie, a black, held on to the overturned craft until he was rescued.

Special prosecutor Larry W. Baraka said he did not know whether new charges would be brought against the trio.

Defense attorneys said Drummond and Archie would return to their Limestone County jobs and that Elliott, who now lives in Abilene, wanted to return to law enforcement elsewhere.

The defendants and jurors were hustled out of the courthouse immediately after the verdict.

Kwesi Williams, spokesman for the Comanche Three Committee of blacks who fought for felony charges against the officers, said he was not surprised by the verdict. He said he would continue to push for a Justice Department investigation.

"We never expected this to yield any results," Williams said. "What else do you expect from an all-white jury?"

Wood suspects held

Will prosecutors have trouble proving charges?

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The long-promised indictments in the killing of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. have been delivered, but prosecutors may have trouble proving the sensational charges against five jailed defendants.

Defense lawyers expressed doubts the government can introduce much of the evidence, which they said was circumstantial and gleaned improperly through methods some of the defendants called "gestapo tactics."

The indictment accuses narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra of paying convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, 43, about $250,000 to assassinate Wood on May 29, 1979.

Grand jurors allege Chagra, 37, wanted Wood killed to keep the judge from giving him from presiding over Chagra's impending narcotics-related criminal enterprise trial.

Harrelson, 43, Chagra and his wife, Elizabeth, 28, and his attorney brother, Joseph Chagra, 35, were charged with helping plot Wood's death.

The Chagras, Harrelson, and his wife, Jo Ann, 41, also are accused of a bizarre conspiracy to obstruct justice by covering up Jimmy's and Harrelson's part in the killing, and plotting to break the two men out of jails.

Grand jurors also alleged Jimmy Chagra and Harrelson discussed killing witnesses and possible co-defendants, and that the Chagra brothers planned to finance escape attempts and bribe state officials with the profits of drug sales.

Attorneys say the one big break in the case — the one from which most of the other evidence reportedly evolved — was court-approved electronic eavesdropping on conversations between Jimmy Chagra and fellow Leavenworth, Kan., federal penitentiary inmate Jerry Ray James.

Gerald Goldstein, a constitutional expert instrumental in the acquittal of some Texas Brilab defendants, predicted the state's case would tumble like dominoes if the defense can keep those crucial tapes out of evidence.

"I think they (prosecutors) have a very real problem," said Goldstein, a San Antonio attorney.

Dallas lawyer Billy Ravkind, representing Joe Chagra, was the first to describe the government's dilemma with the James tapes as "the domino problem."

"By using that fellow James, that cellmate, to apparently get this thing off the ground, they may have violated the Supreme Court's mandate" in the Henry Case against cellmate testimony, Ravkind said.

However, prosecutors contend this case is different because James was not a plant, and instead approached prosecutors.

James later was granted conditional release from prison and placed in a federal witness protection program.

Defense attorneys say other major obstacles faced by prosecutors include:

— The admissibility of court-approved tapes of conversations between Joe Chagra and Harrelson at the Harris County Jail in Houston. The defense says approval of the recording was based on the James tapes. Also, Joe Chagra was Harrelson's attorney of record at the time, which the defense says raises client-attorney privilege questions.

— Whether prosecutors can use the co-conspirator charge to knock down the attorney-client privilege of Joe Chagra if the indictment stemmed from improperly obtained recordings. Which came first, the recordings or the conspiracy charge, defense attorneys can ask.

— The admissibility of recordings of conversations between the Chagra brothers because of client-attorney privilege.

— Whether husband-wife privilege protects any evidence based on conversations between Jimmy and Elizabeth Chagra, and Charles and Jo Ann Harrelson.

Drug, alcohol discussion set Wednesday

A drug, alcohol program and panel discussion will be held Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. at the Coahoma Elementary school cafeteria.

Sponsored by the Coahoma Parents Care, the program will be a 30 minute talk to parents on how to identify drug and alcohol usage in their children.

The audience will be encouraged to direct questions to a panel composed of police officers, school administrators and other professionals.

The meeting and program is free and open to the public.

Blackwell wins first in writing contest

COAHOMA — Renee Blackwell won first place in feature writing and Tommy McDaniel won first place in editorial writing at the University Interscholastic League regional finals at Lubbock Saturday.

Todd Anderson of Coahoma took second in shorthand.

Miss Blackwell, McDaniel and Anderson will now advance to state competition in Austin May 1.

Also from Coahoma, Jana Higgins won third place in poetry interpretation.

Public library needs your help

There's nothing like a good challenge to bring a community together.

Big Spring has a challenge that is ripe for the plucking. Our public library needs to be expanded and modernized.

BUILDING A NEW library would cost a couple of million dollars. Fortunately that's not necessary. All the library needs is about $350,000 to renovate the library's basement, which currently is unused and going to waste.

A story on the cover of today's lifestyle section details the library's problems. There is no room on the main floor to add shelves, and there is not adequate space for tables and chairs where people can study. Books are being stacked on the floors because there is no place else to put them.

Duplicates of books are stored in the basement — but since there aren't any shelves in the basement, they are stored loosely on the floor, making them difficult to find, damaging the spines, and allowing them to become dusty.

A LIBRARY SHOULD be the delivery room for the birth of ideas — a place where history comes to life. Big Spring has an opportunity to take a big cultural step forward by rising up to meet this challenge that is before it.

We urge civic groups, city and county governing boards and charitable organizations to band together and raise the money needed to make our library more functional.

Clubs looking for a project are urged to remember the library.

If everyone works together, we can do something worthwhile that will be of benefit to us all.

Tricking down memory lane

Do you ever have trouble remembering things? I have a trick I'd like to share with you. My uncle taught it to me when I was about 10. He used to amaze me with his power of recall. I would randomly select 20 objects in the living room and call them out to him while writing them down on a pad he couldn't see. I would call out things like "thimble," "pillow," "glass of iced tea," etc.

After I would call them out, he would always recite them back to me in perfect order, never missing a one and never using notes.

Finally I got him to teach me the trick. It's a trick I've used many times since — for making a mental shopping list or making a mental outline of a speech.

Mostly I use it when I'm lying in bed at night and remember something I need to do the next day. Usually I think of seven or eight things at once I need to do the next day, so the trick comes in handy.

HERE IT IS — it's based on counting, rhyming and mental images.

For simplicity's sake, let's pretend you're out of paper and pencil and you need to make a grocery list in your head.

- You want to buy:
1. cauliflower
 2. eggs
 3. watermelons
 4. bananas
 5. starch
 6. vinegar
 7. shrimp
 8. ham
 9. peanut butter
 10. sugar.

(These are items I have selected at random.) To remember the first one, say in your mind ONE-RUN. Then picture a horse running. The first item you want to remember should be balanced precariously on the horse. In this case, we're trying to remember cauliflower. The wilder the mental image, the easier it will be for you to remember. So picture a cauliflower with tiny little white legs, trying to balance itself in the saddle while the horse is running. It is balancing back and forth on the saddle as if it were on a surfboard. There is a wild look of fright on the cauliflower's face. It's afraid it's going to fall off. Let that image soak in for two or three seconds, then go to the next item.

TWO-SHOE. Look down at your feet and what do you see? You're standing on top of two cartons of eggs, and they're all broken and you've made a big mess.

THREE-TREE. Picture a tree. It's a watermelon tree. There are watermelons hanging from the branches.

FOUR-DOOR. You see a door, and it's opening. Someone has just walked through the door and slipped on a banana peel.

FIVE-HIVE. Picture a bee hive. Bees are swarming all around the hive, and they are wearing little bowties and shirts that have been stiffly starched. They are all tugging at their necks and complaining about the starch.

SIX-STICKS. Picture two sticks in your hands, and you are trying to pick up something with them. In this case you're trying to pick up a bottle of vinegar, and the fumes are so strong you are about to faint. In fact you do faint, and your face falls into a puddle of vinegar. Yech!

SEVEN-HEAVEN. Picture whatever you want to remember ascending into heaven. In this case it's shrimp. Make the image as wild as possible so you can't possibly forget it. The shrimp are dressed in angel wings and halos, and they are playing harps as they rise to heaven.

EIGHT-GATE. Picture a gate swinging, and whatever you want to remember is balanced on the gate. We're trying to remember ham as our eighth item. So let's put Porky Pig on the swinging gate, jabbering "T-T-T-That's all folks."

NINE-LINE. Picture a straight line, about 10 feet long, drawn in the middle of the desert. Someone has spread peanut butter all over the line. Or better yet, here's a more vivid image. Someone has placed peanuts all along the line. Beautiful Arabian belly dancers are stomping the peanuts into peanut butter.

TEN-HEN. A hen is laying eggs — but wait, those aren't eggs, those are sugar cubes.

Now you have your list. To recall them, just recall the images. ONE-RUN — cauliflower. TWO-SHOE — eggs. THREE-TREE — watermelons. See if you can finish recalling the list. No peeking now.

YOU CAN DEVELOP your own set of rhymes and your own system. Whatever works best for you. Your imagination is the key to your success. But caution: you can remember only one set of images at a time, and the images last only about 24 hours.

ANOTHER MEMORY device I once read about is to picture a car. A car has one hood ornament, two headlights, three places sticking up on the front bumper, four wheels, five door handles (including the trunk), six windows. From here it becomes arbitrary — seven is the ash tray, eight is the steering wheel, nine is the rear view mirror, and so on, pick 'em yourself.

Picture the items to be remembered in connection with the car. Working with our original list, we would place a cauliflower on the hood ornament. The headlights would be two fried eggs. There would be three watermelons perched on the bumper. The wheels would be made out of rubber, but out of banana skins. And so on. Good luck!

"Unfortunately, I don't have any gun spikes in my kit bag, either."

I yield to temptation

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My Christian life seems so up and down. As long as I am surrounded by Christian friends I am OK, but when I am by myself I yield to temptation so easily. I have been a Christian six months. —L.R.

DEAR L.R.: It is not good that you yield so easily to temptation, but it is good that you realize this problem and want to do something about it. Incidentally, I believe this is one of the signs that you have truly been born again — that you are bothered and troubled when you sin. That shows the Holy Spirit is giving you a sensitivity to the things of God.

God has given you Christian friends, and you should thank God for their influence on your life. But God has given them to you not only so you would not be a subject to temptation. God has given them to you to teach you as well. Have you ever discussed this problem with some of your Christian friends who are older and more mature in the faith than you are? I suspect you would find many of them have had the same problem as you are having, and yet they have learned to overcome temptation as time has gone by. They may have some very practical suggestions. Do not let your pride get in the way of asking them. They want to pray for you, and help you. Often just the knowledge that another believer is praying for us will encourage us to resist temptation.

The key, however, to resisting temptation is to learn to rely less on your circumstances — your circle of Christian friends — and to rely more and more on God himself.

If you think I'm crazy...

The big debate over defense expenditure is how many wars the United States should be prepared to fight at the same time.

When you ask to spend a trillion and a half dollars over five years, there are always a few sourpusses in America who want to know where the money is going.

Every President sees it differently. President Eisenhower believed nuclear weapons were enough of a deterrent to stop the Soviets, and he was for the "big-bang-one-war" theory.

John F. Kennedy was a two-and-a-half-war man and wanted us to be prepared to fight the Russians, the Chinese and some Third World country, all at the same time. Then, as luck would have it, the Soviets and the Chinese had a falling out, so he scaled down our military strategy to fighting only one-and-a-half wars.

Lyndon Johnson was also for one-and-a-half wars (the big one with the Russians, and the half one against the Vietnamese).

But before he could say "bang," the half-a-war turned into a whole one in Indochina, and the military started having doubts that you could fight a half-a-war without escalating it into something bigger.

People who know about these things say Nixon's defense strategy after the Vietnam war ended was to also prepare us for one large war and one small war, not necessarily in the same area.

President Carter came along, and while his critics say he only was interested in fighting one big war, he did start building up the military to fight two, though there was some question as to whether we could even fight one with a volunteer Army.

Now we have President Reagan, who insists we must prepare for a "nuclear war," a "conventional war" and a "protracted war," and that's why it's going to cost us one trillion and a half big ones.

Unlike his predecessors, who talked in terms of the numbers of wars we should be able to handle at the same time, the President and his Defense Secretary are thinking in other terms.

At the minimum we must have a three-ocean Navy, and prepare for "horizontal escalation," which means rather than confront the enemy at the target of his choosing, we should attack him or his client state at a place where he is weak. All this is predicated on the assumption that only non-nuclear weapons are put into play.

The Reagan strategists have also added a new deterrent which ups the defensive ante, which is that we must also prepare ourselves for a "protracted war," rather than the short one that other administrations were counting on. The reason for this, according to an article written by Richard Halloran of The New York Times (from which I stole most of this information), is the Reagan people don't want the enemy misled into thinking he could outlast us in a conventional war.

If you think I'm crazy discussing what defense options are open to us these days, you should talk to the people in Washington who are thinking them up for us.

Sunbelt Council averts civil war

WASHINGTON — They said it would be another Civil War, that Congress would again be split as at no time since that tragic period.

These were not slaves over which the interests of North and South would battle. These were the 1980s and lines would be drawn just as rigidly, just as divisively, perhaps even as violently, over the hallowed issue of how federal money is allocated to the states.

Or so they claimed, with some hyperbole of course.

One year after formation of the first formal congressional coalition for the South, the result has been somewhat less dramatic, but, according to coalition backers, also effective.

It goes by the loosely regional title of the Congressional Sunbelt Council, formed one year ago this month with colorful Texas Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, as chairman. He led 118 of his southern colleagues in the attempt to dethrone the Northeast-Midwest Coalition as "king of the coalition mountain" in Congress.

The northern group had managed since 1977 to unite its 218 members of the House with increasing cohesiveness on issues of regional importance. Prior to that, the South had been renowned for its ability to stay together, led in part by a Texas delegation that was considered one of the most powerful in Congress.

Southerners for years had bragged about how they didn't need any formal structure to hold them together.

But then, with the help of the coalition, northern interests began to win battles over congressional funding formulas, such as those for low-income fuel assistance and community development grants, and in the repeal of the so-called "Maybank amendment" so that high unemployment areas in the North could be targeted for certain defense contracts.

Southerners such as Wilson became perturbed by what was seen as regional aggressiveness on the part of the North. And somewhat slanderous statements (such as that by Wilson that the northern coalition was "led by a rather humorless group who have a lot of hate in their hearts") were hurled back and forth. It was in that atmosphere that the Sunbelt Council flowed into the strong political currents of Congress.

One year later, that budding animosity seems to have died out.

"I don't think they have in any way been divisive," said Larry Zabar, director of Northeast-Midwest Coalition.

"There is no finer person roaming the halls of Congress," he said about John Buchanan, director of the Sunbelt unit and a former eight-term congressman from Alabama. "I think we've seen in the past year the first attempt to bridge the gap between the regions."

Such warmth would not have been anticipated one year ago.

That is not to say, however, that in spite of the apparent cordiality between the two groups, there is no more regional tug-of-war. Texas, in fact, is the focus of one of the Sunbelt council's current efforts.

Texas might well lose out on funding from Washington because of a congressional mandate that the executive branch redesign its current funding plans for many programs, according to Sandra Kramer, associate director of the council's staff and a Mississippi native who claims a keen eye in spotting federal funding shifts favorable to the North.

She said new formulas would need to incorporate two primary elements:

Population changes (which would be of particular help to a Sunbelt state like Texas) and a state's so-called "fiscal capacity."

The latter factor would have a drastically negative effect on funds flowing from Washington to Austin, she said. Because the state severance tax on oil and gas generates considerable state income, the "fiscal capacity" of Texas would stand out from other states and make it a target for reduced federal funding, said Kramer.

Haig continues talks with Argentines

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig unexpectedly delayed his departure from Buenos Aires on Saturday, indicating progress in his talks to avert war between Argentina and Britain over the Falkland Islands.

Haig spent 3 1/2 hours in Government House, meeting with Argentina's president, Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, the other members of the ruling military junta and Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez.

Haig left later with Costa Mendez for a private lunch at the foreign minister's residence in an exclusive Buenos Aires neighborhood.

Simultaneously, more than 20 generals met at army headquarters to discuss Haig's efforts to cool tensions growing out of Argentina's April 2 seizure of the British-administered Falklands.

"They're searching for common grounds for agreement," government press secretary Rodolfo Baltierrez said. "There are some differences, but they're still working."

Participants refused comment, and State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said he was "neither optimistic nor pessimistic."

The surprise postponement of Haig's depart-ture was taken as a positive sign that Haig's second visit to Buenos Aires in a week could ease tension in the South Atlantic, where a 40-ship British armada was steaming toward the disputed islands, defended by an estimated 6,000 to 9,000 Argentine troops.

U.S. Embassy personnel had been ordered to be at Eiza International Airport at 10 a.m. for Haig's departure and the U.S. delegation's baggage was loaded aboard the secretary's U.S. Air Force jet, which waited with turbines humming. But shortly after noon, the engines were cut and well-wishers and crew were ordered back to town.

The U.S. Embassy in Rabat, Morocco said Haig was invited by King Hassan II to stop in Morocco Saturday en route to London, but "due to ongoing negotiations in Buenos Aires, the secretary regrets he is unable to accept his majesty's kind invitation to visit Morocco."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was at her rural residence outside London, and a spokesman at her 10 Downing St. office said the British did not know if Haig "will be coming back to London."

The British Broadcasting Corp. said Haig was pressing a plan for U.N. or other third-party administration of the islands, with a continuing Argentine presence and the return of expelled British officials, while an eventual solution was sought.

The key issue appeared to remain sovereignty.

The islands are 250 miles from Argentina and 8,000 miles from Britain, and have been ruled by Britain for 149 years.

The British Defense Ministry said no Argentine warships had breached the 200-mile war zone Britain declared around the Falklands on Monday. The United States said it was providing intelligence to the Argentines. It was learned last week that the U.S. was supplying intelligence to Britain.

Three months after qualifying as a navy helicopter pilot, Prince Andrew, second in line to the British throne, is heading for the Falklands and a possible clash with Argentine warships.

The 22-year-old prince, second of Queen Elizabeth II's three sons, is a sub-lieutenant — the equivalent of a lieutenant junior grade — aboard the Invincible, a lead carrier in the armada heading to the Falkland Islands.

C-City delegates meet state water officials

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A delegation of Colorado City officials returned from Austin recently after meeting with state water officials in connection with the city's water and sewage treatment plant.

City Manager Rick Crowley said the delegation was told that "the current conditions under which we are operating are unacceptable to the state — something we anticipated — and we have to make some improvements."

SUCH IMPROVEMENTS would have to be made on an interim basis between now and the time long-range plans are formulated, he added.

Crowley said the Texas Department of Water Resources wanted the city to make improvements in the chlorination of the final effluent, complete repairs to the trickling system as well as other improvements.

Crowley said he thought the city could get the work done in the allotted amount of time.

Making the trip to Austin were Crowley, the mayor, members of the city council and other city officials.

TRANSIT STRIKE STOPPED — Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority trains sit idle at Boston's Forest Hills Station early Friday after a wildcat strike by MBTA drivers stranded about 300,000 area commuters without warning. Service resumed Saturday after the National Guard was called to patrol empty transit stations. Officials are considering disciplinary action against some members of the Carmen's Union, which has been working without a contract for 16 months.

HC affirmative action panel plans meeting

The Affirmative Action Committee of the Howard County Junior College District will meet at 1 p. m. Thursday in the Horace Garrett Center Library-Conference Room.

The purpose of the committee is to monitor the practices of the district in hiring, training and promoting personnel, and to assist the administration in its efforts to execute faithfully the Affirmative Action Plan of the District.

Members of the committee are Julia Trevino, George Taylor, Beatrice Burke, Bill Griffin and Doris Huijbregtse, chairman. Ex-officio members include Dr. Bobby Wright, affirmative action officer, and Terry Hansen, personnel director and affirmative action coordinator.

The meeting is open to the public. Any matters coming under the jurisdiction of the committee may be brought up at the meeting. A student, employee or other citizen may present matters for consideration in writing or request a personal hearing by contacting any member of the committee.

Jennifer most popular name for New York girls

NEW YORK (AP) — The granddaughters of the Marys, Catherine and Esthers born around the turn of the century are no longer looking to religion for inspiration in naming their baby girls, it seems.

The city Department of Health reported Thursday that for the first time since 1898, neither Mary nor Maria was among the 10 most popular names given to newborn girls in New York last year.

The favorite girls' names were, in order, Jennifer, Jessica, Melissa, Nicole, Michelle, Elizabeth, Lisa and Tiffany (tied), Christina and Danielle.

"I think what we're seeing is parents are no longer going to the Bible to find names, they're going to the soap operas," said Health Department spokesman Marvin Bogner.

Jennifer has been the favorite every year since 1972 on the list drawn from city birth certificates. The latest list showed that Maria, replaced as No. 10 by Danielle, dropped to 13th place. Mary, which was first in 1898 and third as late as 1963, was 37th.

In 1898, the 10 most popular girls' names were Mary, Catherine, Margaret, Annie, Rose, Marie, Esther, Sarah, Frances and Ida.

For boys, Michael was first in 1981, for the 18th straight year. It was followed by Christopher, David, Jason, Joseph, Anthony, John, Daniel, Robert and James.

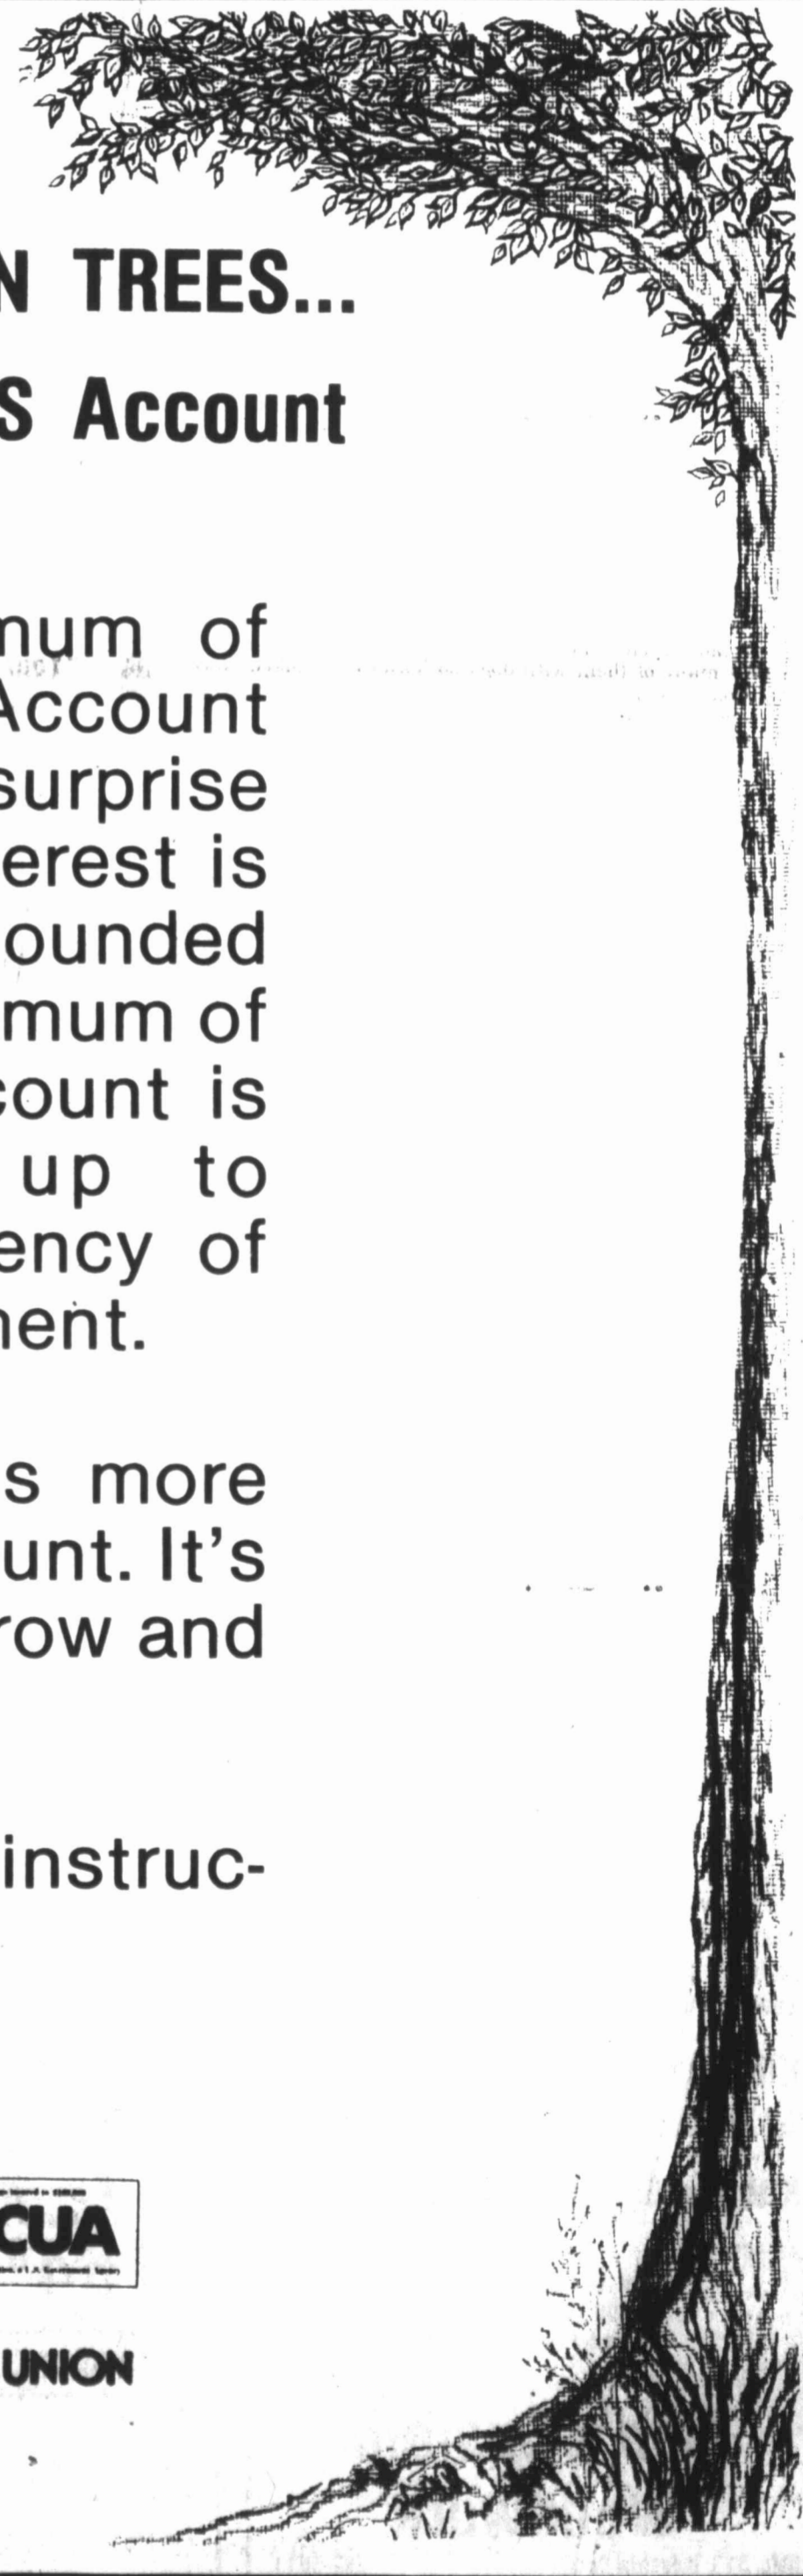

The 1898 boys' list was topped by John, then William, Charles, George, Joseph, Edward, James, Louis, Francis and Samuel.

Agent Orange hits home?

Study shows high rate of health problems for veterans

By DIANE BALLARD
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Eleven-year-old Ted is missing a thumb and several wrist bones, causing his hands to turn inward. His brother, Michael, 9, is missing the long bone of his left forearm. A sibling, born between them, died of severe birth defects.

Many children have difficulties adjusting to school, but Ted and Michael, the laughter and questions of other children made things harder, says their father, Dan Jordan of Austin.

Jordan, a disabled veteran and founder of the Brotherhood of Vietnam Veterans, blames his children's handicaps on the United States government.

He says his exposure to chemical sprayings of the herbicide Agent Orange in Vietnam is responsible for his children's birth defects and for his skin disease and blood and liver disorders.

THE DEFOLIANT was used in a massive effort to deprive Vietnamese Communists of food and cover.

Although the Veterans Administration denies any link between Agent Orange and veterans' health woes, except skin disease, a Texas study under way indicates some surprising results.

Veterans in the Texas Agent Orange study, which was mandated by the 1981 state Legislature and began in January, show an abnormally high rate of health problems.

Of the 66 veterans referred into the program so far — most of whom were in combat — 14 report that their wives miscarried, 11 say they have reproductive problems and seven report birth defects in their children, says Dr. George Anderson, study manager.

And, as found in a recent New York study, he says, "we do have a fairly high number that have cancer."

Besides birth defects and spouses' miscarriages, veterans say other symptoms associated with Agent Orange are skin disease, loss of sex drive, insomnia and blood and liver disorders.

Jordan says he has had the scarring skin disease, chloracne, for years. He also has liver damage, blood disorders, reduced immunity to infection and has experienced numbness in his hands and leg.

About 23,000 Texas veterans are thought to have been exposed to the herb.

Scientists conducting the Texas study note that just as the state's legislation was the first of its kind, the product of their efforts will be the first of its kind — credible.

A previous Agent Orange study by the U.S. Air Force and a current one by the VA have drawn sharp criticism.

U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas, chairman of the Task Force on National Security and Veterans Affairs of the House Budget Committee, says veterans won't have confidence in the VA study because the VA refuses to release its test methodology.

Researchers with the Texas study will attempt to reach indisputable conclusions says Harriet Franson, a technician working with the program managers.

"These are professional people (conducting the study). They want to come up with results that can't be questioned."

Jordan concurs: "I feel pretty confident that this one will be credible."

THE LEGISLATURE appropriated $500,000 for the first two years of the program. The Texas Health Department will gather data identifying veterans for tests, and the University of Texas medical schools will conduct fat biopsies and sperm studies.

Fat biopsies, costing more than $1,000 a piece, probably will be done on only about 13 veterans, Franson says.

She says testing may begin by June. Establishing conclusive results, however, could take several years, she says.

A problem with the program, Anderson says, is that a lack of funds prohibits contacting all veterans who may be eligible for tests.

Of the 23,000 Texas veterans thought to have been exposed to Agent Orange, only 66 have been referred into the program through a private physician or a VA doctor.

Jordan says the Veterans Administration denies the overwhelming evidence for a connection between Agent Orange and lingering health problems to avoid compensating veterans exposed to the more than 50 million pounds of the chemical that was sprayed over Vietnam jungles from 1961 to 1970.

Mattox agrees. "This is the VA's position: if you've got it (a problem), we'll treat it, but we're not going to acknowledge what it is and that it's a result of our action," Mattox told the Agent Orange Subcommittee of the Texas Legislature last week.

But Robert Nimmo, VA chief in Washington, D.C., has said there is no connection between Agent Orange and the problems veterans blame on it, except skin disease.

3,000 Texans join 'March for Survival'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nearly 3,000 men, women and children got a rousing send-off from former gubernatorial candidate Frances Farenthold and walked from the Capitol to a nearby park on Saturday in what organizers said was a "march for survival."

Marchers displayed the slogan "Bread not bombs" on signs, T-shirts and flags. Some booed and hissed when the names of President Ronald Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig were mentioned.

Ms. Farenthold urged the demonstrators to investigate the role of defense contractors and "that superhawk, senior senator from Texas — John Tower."

Demonstrators on the Capitol lawn cheered "More, more," and clapped with their hands above their heads. One voice carried above the noise — "Sissy for governor."

"It's pathetic what we plead for... to fill human needs," said Ms. Farenthold, a Corpus Christi lawyer who lost in the Democratic primary race for governor in 1972 and 1974. In 1972, Ms. Farenthold also became the first woman in the party's history to be nominated for vice president. She garnered 420 votes before withdrawing in favor of Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton.

"We have a built-in dependency in this country on a war economy," Ms. Farenthold said.

"Stop it," shouted a spectator. Motorcycle police blocked off side streets as marchers — many of them with dogs on leashes — walked down Congress Avenue, the main downtown street, then cut over to a park near the county courthouse. Adults pushed infants in strollers and carried them on their backs and in their arms. One young boy rode in a car pulled by a large, white dog.

Mexicans lament increasing use of English in daily life

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY — The clothing store has a sale on "shorts" and the linen shop offers "king-size" sheets. One restaurant has "take-out" food available and another promises the best meal in town "since 1981." The parking lot attendant shouts, "go, go, go," as he guides a driver out to a crowded street. Are we in Mexico? That's the question many language experts and government officials from President Jose Lopez Portillo on down are asking these days. THEY NOTE the infiltration of English words across the 1,760-mile border with the United States, helped to spread by tourism, commerce and the pervasive influence of American entertainment from films and television to the latest pop song hit. It has reached the point where the government has formed the Intersecretarial Commission for the Defense of the Spanish Language. The commission has started radio advertisements lauding the grand tradition of Spanish language and literature. It plans a more extensive media campaign later this spring. "Sometimes, frankly, Spanish is being erased," said Hector Manuel Ezeta, the commission's technical secretary. "What is happening is a displacement of Spanish." He said the commission Lopez Portillo had signed into existence eight months ago was now working in its preventive phase, hoping through education and persuasion to stop further inroads of English into Mexican daily life. Ezeta said there seemed to be a prevailing view among merchants that an English word sold a product better than a Spanish one. Part of that is due to the nature of multinational commerce. Stores offer "shampoos" of every sort, "Vicks VaporRub," "Dewar's White Label" and "Sprite." Ezeta suggested that the voluntary effort could eventually lead to a requirement that Spanish signs on Mexican streets avoid English or at least be bilingual "to Mexicanize the urban landscape." SOME AREAS, particularly those heavily visited by tourists, now feature exclusively English signs. "This language is denationalized," Ezeta said. He said the foreign influence was most visible in tourist areas, along the frontier and in the biggest cities. "This certainly is not a serious phenomenon, but our work is fundamentally a preventive action," Ezeta said. He added that the commission's work was not aimed exclusively at English, although that clearly had the biggest influence in Mexico. The Mexican Academy of the Language, for its part, has undertaken a review of women's magazines, economic publications and street signs to find out errors of language and then try tactfully to point out the errors. Jose Luis Martinez of the academy, which guards the language, agreed with Ezeta that the problem was not only one of English influence but also of poor usage in general. "I don't think it has deteriorated, but yes, a certain neglect, a certain disorder has intensified," he said. The commission's work has met a certain amount of indifference and even ridicule. One language expert, who asked anonymity, said the increasing influence of English in Mexico was "lamentable but inevitable."

In the large circulation daily Excelsior, columnist Carlo Cocchioli wrote, "Let's defend this language, already. But how?" Juan M. Lope Blanch, director of the Center of Hispanic Linguistics at the prestigious Colegio de Mexico.

Boy Scouts volunteer to escort cookie-sellers

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The abduction and rape of an 8-year-old girl selling Girl Scout cookies has prompted Eagle scouts and older Boy Scouts to volunteer as escorts.

Steve Lalonde, a Boy Scout spokesman, said Girl Scout officials were notified of the boys' willingness to accompany girls on cookie sales after the April 3 assault on a Brownie scout as she sold cookies at a convenience store. No arrests have been made. Sales end Monday.

"Sales have not been going well because parents are reluctant to let their children go out on the streets," said Allison Douthitt of the Girl Scout Council.

U.S., Soviets join in satellite plan

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States, Canada and France are joining the Soviet Union in a multimillion-dollar joint satellite project to help find plane crash survivors and people lost at sea.

Planners, who met here last week, say hundreds of lives could be saved every year once the system is in place. The first satellite is to be launched this summer.

A Western expert said the system will enable monitors to pinpoint almost instantaneously the location of a downed plane or a disabled ship, instead of spending hours searching for it.

"The new system should take the 'search' out of search-and-rescue," he said.

despite major political disagreements that have led to a cutback in scientific exchanges between the United States and the Soviet Union. Organizers from the four countries, including a 19-member U.S. delegation, said their talks had gone well.

The Soviet Union is scheduled to send its first rescue satellite into orbit in July, and a U.S. satellite, with French and Canadian equipment on board, is expected to be launched early in 1983. A 15-month test is anticipated, but, an expert said, the satellites could play a part in saving lives as soon as they go into orbit and ground stations are working.

The head of the American delegation, Tom McGunigal, of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the United States had allocated $29 million for the first phase of the project: France set aside $22 million; and Canada about $13 million. The head of the Soviet delegation, Yuri Zurabov, declined to specify how much the Soviets had spent when asked by a Western correspondent.

The two satellites, designed separately, will be able to operate effectively together, planners say, even though Americans involved in the work say no exchange of technology was involved.

They are to be equipped with special receivers and sent into a low orbit, where they will be able to "listen" for distress calls from ships and planes equipped with radio beacons. The beacons already are mandatory in all large American vessels and all U.S. planes.

Once a signal is received, it will be relayed to a network of ground stations. The radio wave monitored there should vary according to the relative location of the satellite, flying in a fixed orbit, and the origin of the distress signal.

Teen runaway was forced into prostitution

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A teen-age runaway given up for dead by her parents and forced into prostitution by a man who frightened her with tales of mobsters and police says "home is practically heaven compared to where I've been."

The girl testified a dispute with her parents over grades prompted her to runaway from her East Texas home in October of 1980.

Her mother said she thought the girl was dead by the time police picked her up in December. She had been working for more than a month as a prostitute.

The girl testified that she always worked in front of the same bar, and said her customers paid the tavern proprietor $5 to use a backroom for 15 minutes.

"I never would have imagined anything as horrible as what happened," she told the Austin American-Statesman in a telephone interview Friday.

Jurors deliberated four hours Thursday before recommending Jack Alvin Moore, 39, of Austin be sentenced to 10 years in prison for compelling prostitution. Prosecutors had sought the maximum penalty of 20 years.

The girl, who was 14 at the time, testified the man forced her into prostitution after telling her she was being hunted by police and mobsters.

She said she caught a ride to Houston with two truck drivers after she ran away and then took a bus to Austin. She said she met Moore on an Austin street after she had tried and failed to locate a friend who lived in Austin.

The girl testified Moore took her to a motel and raped her. She said he then convinced her that the truckers who had given her a ride were drug-runners for organized crime, and had robbed a convenience store and killed the clerk.

He told her that her fingerprints had been found in the truck, and that police and mobsters were hunting her, the girl testified. Moore also allegedly told her that her parents' home was being watched and their telephone tapped.

A police officer said he questioned the girl on Dec. 3, 1980, because she appeared young and "looked something like a clown," with pale skin, bright red rouge and black hair.

Police notified her parents, who picked her up that night.

The girl's mother said Friday her daughter had returned to school, and has been on the honor roll all this year.

The girl had counseling for several months and still attends group sessions.

The mother said her daughter's story "wouldn't stop one kid (in her group) from running away. They would think she made dumb mistakes. It makes me so sad to see these kids. They think it can't happen to them."

The girl, now 15, told the newspaper, "That's the attitude I had, that it wouldn't happen to me, and sure enough it did."

23-year-old man sentenced to 1,197 years

MIAMI (AP) — A judge has sentenced a 23-year-old man to 1,197 years in prison. He'll be eligible for parole in 2015.

Alfonso Ponton was convicted Friday of five counts of armed robbery and two counts of aggravated battery.

Circuit Judge Ellen Morphonios Gable sentenced him to 730 years to be served consecutively after two other armed robbery terms totaling 467 years she handed down earlier this month.

Ponton also was sentenced to 11 consecutive mandatory three-year sentences for using a firearm during various felonies.

The sentences stemmed from four armed robberies Nov. 11, 13 and 16.

Ponton and accomplices robbed a used-car lot and held up a moving company and a Hialeah business forms company, authorities said.

TRUDEAU SIGNS — Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau signs the new Canadian constitution Saturday in Ottawa while Britain's Queen Elizabeth, who already signed the proclamation giving more freedom to Canada, looks on.

Freedom from British Parliament

Queen says constitution 'truly Canadian at last'

OTTAWA (AP) — Elizabeth II, queen of Canada, proclaimed a new constitution Saturday in the largest and most diverse nation of her realm, saying the document is "truly Canadian at last."

About 30,000 people crowded between the gothic edifices of Parliament Hill to watch the British monarch sign the proclamation, ending a legal anachronism whereby all changes in Canada's constitution had to be made by Britain's Parliament.

Threatening clouds unleashed a downpour just as the queen began addressing the nation. "It is one of the quirks of history that over a century should have passed before Canada obtained her own constitution, formulated by Canadians and approved by her own Parliament," she said. "But the years have not been wasted and a great nation has grown up in this magnificent land."

As the queen spoke, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque led about 12,000 marchers through Montreal, waving blue-and-white Quebec flags instead of the red Canadian Maple

Leaf, shouting "Non au Canada Bill."

The French separatist government in Quebec rejected the constitutional compromise and boycotted the Ottawa celebrations as part of its campaign for independence.

"Although we regret the absence of the premier of Quebec, it is right to associate the people of Quebec with this celebration because, without them, Canada would not be what it is today," Queen Elizabeth said.

She expressed pleasure that a new charter of rights and freedoms attached to the constitution explicitly protects the rights of women, the disabled and native peoples.

Until now, the Canadian constitution had been the British North America Act of 1867, although Canada became a fully independent member of the Commonwealth in 1981.

Although Britain was willing to transfer constitutional authority, Canadian politicians were unable until now to agree on procedures for making amendments and on the wording of a bill of rights.

Last November Prime Minister

Pierre Elliott Trudeau struck a bargain with provincial premiers of the nine English-speaking provinces.

"For more than half a century, Canadians have resembled young adults who leave home to build a life of their own, but are not quite confident enough to take along all their belongings," Trudeau told the crowd at Saturday's ceremony.

"It is my deepest hope that Canada will match its new legal maturity with that degree of political maturity which will allow us all to make a total commitment to the Canadian ideal."

Queen Elizabeth presided over the ceremonies from a gilded throne, seated under a red-and-white canopy adorned with the royal crest. At her side sat her husband, Prince Philip.

Flags of Britain, Canada and the 10 Canadian provinces streamed in the wind from hundreds of poles and lampposts. The U.S. Embassy, directly across Wellington Street from the ceremony, flew the Canadian Maple Leaf for the first time along with the Stars and Stripes.

Cheerleaders chosen differently

Cheerleader elections were held at Coahoma High School and Junior High School this week. A change was made this year with the election of six basketball cheerleaders along with the twelve football cheerleaders for varsity, junior varsity, and freshman teams.

Senior varsity football cheerleaders elected were Vickie Buchanan, Jana Higgins, and Debbie Kirkpatrick. Juniors elected are Ronda Fowler, Tobie Henry, and Donna Myers. Valerie Calaway, Stephanie Dobbs, and Gina Hudson were chosen as junior varsity football cheerleaders; and freshman cheerleaders will be Leslie Kirkpatrick, Leslie Brockman, and Jeanie Robertson.

The six new basketball cheerleaders will cheer at freshman, junior varsity, and varsity basketball games and they include two seniors, two juniors, one sophomore, and one freshman. The new basketball cheerleaders are seniors, Lisa Musser and Susie Harrison, juniors, Jenna Brown and Lisa Thompson; sophomore, Tonya Sneed; and freshman, Julie Alexander.

In the junior high elections, eighth grade cheerleaders will be Shanna Fowler, Tabitha Jolly, Traci Dorsey, and Darby Gordon. Lara Cobb, Shonna Drewery, Nancy Hardison, and Angel Caldwell will represent the seventh grade as cheerleaders.

UIL literary regional qualifiers left for Lubbock Friday at 4 p.m. to compete for the chance to represent Coahoma at state competition. Contestants in speech events are Jana Higgins, Tracey Spell, Shana Souter, Pam Riddle, Brad Grandon, Ronda Fowler, and Kathi Wallis. Qualifying in journalism events are Renee Blackwell, Tommy McDaniel, and Lisa Musser. Kristi Franklin and Delinda Bennet will compete in ready writing. In spelling and plain writing, Shanna Cobb and Teresa Reid will represent Coahoma; and Todd Anderson will compete in shorthand.

Friday the Science Club went on a field trip to Fort Worth. While in Fort Worth they visited a museum and went to the Fort Worth Zoo. Science Club members who went are Bobby Doolin, Georgia Uranga, Matt Dahmer, Donald Ewing, Jenna Brown, Joey Nixon, Janna Griffin, Deanna Smith, Sheila Smith, and Kendall Powell. Others who went were David Sargent, Victor Dela Cruz, Cheryl McCoy, Theresa Kuykendall, Kyna Kerby, Jeff Dever, Orlando Muniz, Robert Copeland, Joe Wright, and Jim Wright. Richard Myers is the Science Club sponsor.

Coahoma High Business Students will compete in the Sul Ross Business Awards Meet today and tomorrow on the Sul Ross campus in Alpine. Areas of competition include shorthand, accounting, championship typing, and typing. Students traveling to Alpine for the competition are Todd Anderson, Brenda Green, Renee Blackwell, Penny Smith, Linda Abergro, Terri Torres, Kathi Wallis, Susie Harrison, Troyce Renfro, and Lucy Flores. Sponsor for the program is Jewel Stovall.

Students pick future leaders

Big Spring High School Students selected several students to hold positions in the school next year.

National Honor Society elected officers for next year. The officers are as follows: president, Bret Crenweige; vice-president, Teresa Alexander; secretary, Amy Ragan, and treasurer, Kim Grant.

Officers for student council and cheerleaders were elected on April 16. They were announced at the Last Chance Dance. Those running for varsity cheerleaders were seniors, Tracy Claxton, Felicia Ford, Amy

Ragan, and Norma Rubio; juniors, Kerri Chandler, Kim Jones, Misty Meyers, Kay Pollard, and Jane Tercero. Those running for junior varsity cheerleaders were Tammy Biel, Michelle Deanda, Prissila Escanuela, Melissa Fuller, Julie Miller, Neasa Rhodes, and Brenda Shirey. Those running for president of the student council were Kim Grant, Becky Stephens, and Alan Trevino. Two of the four candidates that ran for vice-president were elected. Juniors were Julio Cerda and Teresa Alexander; sophomores were Phillip Koger and Pete Crabtree. Students running for corresponding secretary were Pammy Puga and Monette Wise. Students running for recording secretary were Tymi Brooks and Carla Maynard.

Cheerleader tryouts were held in the gym at 9:30 a.m. Student council candidates made speeches over the loud speakers at 9 a.m. Underclassmen voted during their lunches in the main foyer. Those elected to offices on the student council will attend the Texas Association Student Council State Convention on April 29-30. Seniors are reminded that on April 20 they need to bring the balance they owe on their graduation announcements. The Bible classes went to Six Flags for the weekend on April 17. UIL Band Contest is in Midland on April 20 and 21. There will be an assembly on April 22 at 10 a.m. The Meistersingers will perform scenes from the musical, "Brigadoon." "Brigadoon" will be performed on April 23 and 24 in the auditorium at 8 p.m. The tickets are $5 each. State DE contest is in Corpus Christi on April 22.

Novelist says books sell because of 'conspiracy age'

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK — For novelist Robert Ludlum, life really did begin at 40.

Ludlum, now 54 and with a number of best-selling novels to his credit — the latest is "The Parsifal Mosaic" — says he decided to switch careers in mid-life.

"After I got out of college I became an actor," the amiable Ludlum recalls. "I guess I acted in about 200 television shows and I also did Broadway and regional theater."

"I did that for about six years, and then I became a theatrical producer. He's the creative catalyst of a show. He's got to bring together the script, the actors and the director into a fluid whole. I did that for 15 years, but I got bored with it."

"To me, the theater had started to resemble a real-estate game. To me, it seemed you didn't mount a production to get its best values, you did it for economic reasons."

DROPPING OUT of the theatrical world, Ludlum set aside 18 months to write a first novel.

"It was a logical evolution," he recalls. "The theater is a great training ground for a novelist because it involves you with character and plot. You learn to understand the architecture of a work. You learn discipline. And, very important, you learn that one of the quickest ways to find yourself standing in the unemployment line is to bore your audience."

Ludlum says he spent the first four months of his allotted 18 "convincing myself to write that first book. Then I sat down and spent about a year actually writing it."

The book was "The Scarlati Inheritance," and says Ludlum "I was gratefully shocked when it became a best-seller. If it hadn't done well I had planned to go into teaching and continue to write on the side."

That was in 1971, and since then Ludlum has published 10 books under his own name and three under pseudonyms. He says he used the cover names "because when I first began writing I was writing so fast that I was producing more than the publisher wanted. He didn't want to put out more than a book a year under my name, so I published some of my things under other names."

LUDLUM'S NOVELS are usually classified as thrillers, although he prefers to call them "suspense writing." He isn't quite sure why they are so popular — they've been published in 23 countries and in 17 languages and their combined sales exceed 25 million copies — but thinks it might be because "we live in an age of conspiracy."

"As we grew up," he says, "we realized there were a lot of things we didn't know and we became almost compulsively interested in finding out. Although my books are fiction, they have a certain credibility and an underpinning of reality and I suspect readers gravitate to them because they think they will learn things they want to know about what they feel has been concealed from them."

Although fiction, Ludlum says, many of them are inspired by contemporary events and by history — "I'm a history buff."

"The idea of 'The Parsifal Mosaic,' for example, goes back to ancient Egypt, while the novel I'm currently working on — I've got 150 pages done — draws some of its ideas, even though it's set in contemporary times, from events that happened in eighth- and ninth-century England and France."

When he isn't reading history, Ludlum writes. And to do so he gets up at 4:15 in the morning.

"There's nothing mysterious or creative about this," he says with a laugh. "I get up that early because of the silence. The telephone does not ring at that time of the day."

It also explains why Ludlum and his wife don't go to the theater much. "If we get to a Broadway show in the evening, by the time we get back to our house on the Connecticut shore, it's 2 o'clock in the morning. That makes it tough to get out of bed about two hours later."

Home rooms battle for parties

As part of the Reading is Fundamental project, students at Runnels released helium filled balloons on April 15th. Stamped postcards were attached to the balloons with the senders' names and the address of Runnels Junior High.

The finder of each balloon will hopefully list his name, address, date, and place the balloon was found, and mail the postcard back to Runnels.

As a service project the Runnels Chapter of the National Junior Honor Society is collecting labels from Campbell's, Swanson, and Franco American in order to earn money for much needed equipment.

The homeroom with the largest percentage of these labels will be honored with a pizza party. The second place class will receive an ice cream party, and the third place a coke party.

Labels are to be turned in by Friday, April 23rd.

Big Spring Junior High Tennis Teams hosted the Big Spring Junior High Tennis Tournament Friday and Saturday

The singles competition was held Friday, and the doubles competition was held Saturday.

The category for last weeks Calendar Clue Game was Animal Kingdom. The students giving the correct answers were Keri Murphy, Tommy Stevens, and David Salazar. The answer was Tsetse Fly.

Athletes hold banquet April 27

An athlete banquet will be held on April 27 in honor of the Goliad boys and girls athletes. The banquet will be held in the cafeteria, with the food catered by K-Bob's. Cost will be between $2.50 and $3. The menu will include hamburgers, baked potatoes and dessert. Parents are welcome to purchase a ticket and attend.

Tickets can be purchased from any Goliad coach on the 19th and 20th of April. Awards will be presented at the banquet.

An assembly will be held on April 28 to present awards to honor rolls students. At the same assembly, the boy and girl chosen by the teachers will receive the American Legion Award. Parents are invited to attend the assembly.

The district track meet was held yesterday; results will be given in next weeks Megaphone. In other track meets, the boys finished second and the girls finished first.

Ginger Griffin, seventh-grader at Goliad, received a $25 award from the Kodak Company for her science fair project. The money will be used to have seventh grade blood type tests.

The history club took a trip to the Pottion House yesterday. Mr. Wallace is the sponsor of the club.

Conversion shouldn't save Morin from death, jury says

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Jurors thought admitted murderer Stephan Peter Morin had enough chances to turn his life around, and that his conversion to Christianity should not save him from the executioner, the jury foreman said.

Defense attorney Pete Torres told jurors Morin was "the worst, he was the scum of the earth, he was a cancer of society," but deserved life instead of death because he had been born again and was truly repentant for the slaying of Carrie Marie Scott.

"Give Christ a chance," Torres implored. "Give Christ a chance. Give Christ a chance, amen."

Jurors deliberated two hours and 15 minutes before deciding Friday that the man convicted of capital murder, the drifter wanted on rape, murder, and kidnap charges in five states had had enough chances and should be put to death for Miss Scott's Dec. 11 slaying.

Jury foreman Floyd J. Labure said jurors did think it possible Morin had experienced a true religious conversion.

"I think that's more up to him and God," said Labure. "I think as far as I'm concerned he just had killed enough. We thought he had had enough chances in his life to correct himself before killing these people."

"We did all we could," said Torres. "If I could have tried it all over, there's not one thing I would have done differently."

Lead prosecutor Susan Reed told reporters she thought "bringing God into the courtroom was a sham."

"This man has made himself what he was and is. He made himself a mass murderer," she told jurors.

During her final argument she spread photographs of Miss Scott and other alleged Morin victims on the rail in front of the jury.

"They've brought God into the courtroom. They've tried to put God's law into man's law," she said.

"When Jesus was on the cross and the thief next to him turned and repented, Jesus said he'd be in heaven soon with him and God. But he didn't take him down off the cross," Ms. Reed said.

Morin has used people all his life, said Ms. Reed. "I don't want to see God used by this man," she added.

Morin, 34, a native of Providence, R.I., was on the FBI's 10 most wanted list. He had been sought since 1976 when he was charged with raping and brutalizing a 14-year-old girl in San Francisco.

Although he pleaded guilty to the murder of Miss Scott, 21, state law required corroborating evidence before prosecutors could seek the death penalty.

Morin also has been indicted for the strangulation of Janna Bruce, 21, of Corpus Christi.

Morin, who came to court toting a red Bible, asked jurors Friday to spare his life.

He said he was "a person who had not met Christ till that fateful day... a person who had run and eluded the law for more than half his life."

Book sale coming Friday

By DONNA JACKSON
Children's Librarian

The Friends of the Library group is sponsoring another book sale this spring. It will be held this Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The sale held last fall was a big success. It was a pleasure to see so many patrons so happy with their book bargains. I'm sure there will be many happy readers leaving with bags and boxes full of books again this year.

The prices will be the same this spring. Both fiction and non-fiction will be sold for 25 cents an inch, magazines and paperbacks 10 cents each, and records 25 cents.

The sale books have been augmented by those that were withdrawn during the January inventory as well as by donations that have been received since then.

DONATIONS MAY be made at any time and books may even be dropped off in the book drop. Any books donated to the library are checked against our catalog to see whether they are needed for the collection. If they are not added to the shelves, they are placed in the book sale which benefits the library too. If you have books to donate and would like a tax deduction, we have forms that may be used for that purpose.

As in previous sales, there are many interesting books. Some included are: "The Thumb on the Scale or the Supermarket Shell Game," by A.Q. Mowbray, an explanation of supermarket merchandising; "Islands in the Sky" and "Rendezvous with Rama," two science fiction classics by Arthur C. Clarke; "Wrack and Ruin," a 1982 mystery by Charlotte MacLeod; "Ingrid Bergman, My Story," an autobiography. There are again a few very old books. One of them is a 1886 booklet of J.G. Whittier's poetry.

Bids will be taken on the 1980 Thomas Register.

THE VARIETY is wide and the price is low so stop in at the book sale this Friday or Saturday between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Two reminders about records: Do not leave records in your hot car for even a few minutes — they warp very quickly. Also, records may not be returned in the book drop — they may be broken when heavy books are deposited on top of them. There is a one dollar fine for records returned in the book drop.

The resources you need to get the results you want.

Buffalo soldiers' history matters to black artist

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Indians dubbed them "buffalo soldiers" as tribute to their fierce prowess in battle, and Patricia Erisman remembers listening as a child to her grandmother recount first-hand tales of their exploits.

There were tales of these doggedly loyal soldiers safeguarding the volatile Mexican border in the last days of the old West, of shielding settlers from marauding Indians, and of blazing trails through rugged, uncharted territory.

"I didn't know in all her stories that the men she was talking about were black men," Mrs. Erisman said. "It didn't matter to her."

But it matters to Burl Washington, a 31-year-old black artist who believes history has short-changed the buffalo soldiers.

"People need to know that blacks did contribute something to the settling of this country. That's what I'm trying to do," he said, gesturing to the paintings that line the walls of his studio in the Fort Worth stockyards.

Washington has started a series of 18 watercolors depicting the dress and daring of the black soldiers who served in the Ninth and 10th Regiments of the U.S. Cavalry.

He expects to finish the series in the next two years. He hopes it will serve to peel off the whitewash daubed on the folklore of the frontier.

"People today know mainly what they read or what they see on TV," he said. "John Wayne's riding to the rescue, and you don't see any blacks behind him."

Washington has concentrated the series on capturing the milieu of 1866 to 1901 in intricate detail, from the corn-cob pipes the blacks fashioned to the Civil War weapons they were furnished.

He has crisscrossed the state the past several years, visiting old army posts and uncovering information. His fact-finding missions have sent him to deserted stretches of West Texas and other states. But, ironically, one of his best finds was right under his nose.

A mutual friend introduced him to Mrs. Erisman, a Fort Worth resident whose great-grandfather — John Sylvanus Loud — was a white officer in the Ninth regiment from about 1868 to 1890.

Mrs. Erisman's grandmother, Dorothy Helena Loud, left the legacy of a detailed scrapbook.

"It shows the black men," Mrs. Erisman said. "They were extremely good soldiers. They were probably the best because they started with nothing. It's funny to me because I grew up knowing it (that many soldiers were black), and people just don't seem to know."

The buffalo soldiers were saddled with an extra burden — prejudice. Whites served as regiment officers; the rank-and-file soldiers were black. Washington likens it to a chocolate cake with white icing.

"They were set apart from the community they served," Washington said. "They are unsung heroes. They had to prove something to the whole country — and they did."

Most of the buffalo soldiers were former slaves, not allowed to join the army until legislation was passed on July 17, 1862, midway through the Civil War. They earned about $13 a month. Many white officers refused to serve with black troops.

Western artist Frederick Remington once rode and camped out with the 10th, and wrote of their dedication and loyalty. Indeed, historians record that the black regiments had a lower rate of desertion than their white counterparts.

The Llano Estacado Museum in the West Texas town of Plainview is studded with artifacts from the heyday of the buffalo soldiers. The museum's curator, Eddie Guffee, has set up an exhibit on the black soldiers.

"Every kid growing up is wild about the cavalry and John Wayne movies," Guffee said. "In 1962, when I was what I called fort-hopping — going from one army post to another — I located another post in the Trans Pecos region that had been virtually untouched since the buffalo soldiers left."

That post was Pena Colorado, near Alpine. But the black soldiers also were stationed in Texas at Fort Concho, near San Angelo, and Forts Davis and Stockton in West Texas. They served from Texas' Big Bend area to the plains of South Dakota.

"I don't recall ever seeing an article in an old newspaper about the black ninth and 10th cavalry," Guffee said.

MEMORY FADED — Burl Washington, a 31-year-old artist who believes history has short-changed the buffalo soldiers sits with three of his watercolors depicting the dress and regiments of the U.S. Cavalry. Washington works out of his studio in the Fort Worth stockyards.

Capital expenditures are topic for CRMWD

Capital expenditures approaching $100,000 will be considered by directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District when they meet Thursday at district headquarters in Big Spring.

In addition, the board will consider requests for issuing water and sewer extension and improvement bonds on behalf of the cities of Midland and Odessa. The board is due to act on a requested contract with Midland for a $23 million issue, and will receive an initial request from Odessa that is expected to exceed that figure substantially. Such issues are permitted under the revised District act and are without liability to the District.

Directors will consider asking for bids for a heavy duty truck which may be used for transporting heavy equipment. Estimates are that the unit may cost upwards of $50,000. Appropriation of $45,000 from the Contingency and Improvement Funds will be sought for drilling an additional well in the Ward County well field.

Authority also will be sought for drawing on this fund for major equipment purchases and repairs without being charged as budgetary operating items.

The board will be asked to consider the purchase of a 4.54-acre tract of land in Midland County which has been used for booster pump facilities. Other agenda items include acting on a request from Sayres Operating Company to reduce its daily contract quantity of water for secondary recovery purposes from 6,000 to 3,000 barrels a day; grant an easement for power lines and consider a lease for a concession operation at Lake E.V. Spence.

Flammable water troubling community

HUDSON, Colo. (AP) — Flammable drinking water that has been troubling Weld County residents could be caused by shale or coal deposits that allow methane to enter the water supply, state officials say.

John Rold, director of the Colorado Geological Survey and spokesman for a task force investigating the problem, said Friday researchers have reached a tentative conclusion that methane-bearing, underground rock formations are the source of the problem.

MR. G'S ADVISE ON CHOOSING SHRUBS

In times past, most homeowners sought out bulky shrubs for "foundation plantings" to hide the unattractive high house foundation. With the disappearance of the high foundation, shrubs have taken on new landscape lives. Some shrubs grow slowly, taking many years to achieve the beauty of maturity — others grow rapidly to a satisfying size and beauty. The wise gardener takes advantage of both. When choosing shrubs, keep in mind the following basic points: Adaptability — is it suited to our climate, soil and environment? Plant size — if you have space for a 4 by 4-foot plant but install one that will reach 12 feet in all directions, you're bound to be unhappy in time. Growth rate — slow growth is the price you will have to pay for some of the most desirable shrubs, so place those plants where their slowness will be no detriment to your plans. Texture — combined with size and shape gives a plant its character. A variety of finely textured small-leaved shrubs together produces an indistinct landscape where nothing is highlighted.

Come to Mr. G's and let our experienced personnel help you select your shrubs.

Lawyer's book blasts Ralph Nader

Paper-slinging war in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new book by a conservative lawyer attacking consumer activist Ralph Nader has set off a spate of what occurs in polite circles in Washington in lieu of mud-slinging: paper-slinging.

It all began with Dan M. Burt's 270-page book, "Abuse of Trust," the last 114 pages of which are appendices.

That drew a "statement" from Nader's Public Citizen organization — eight pages worth; with a nine-page attachment.

That was followed by a "press release" reply — five pages and a one-page attachment — from Burt's Capital Legal Foundation.

That prompted a treatise from a lawyer who has worked with Nader's organization. It culminated Thursday when Burt held a news conference — another Washington institution.

In his book, Burt, who heads an organization largely supported by corporations and conservative and business-oriented foundations, accused Nader of many of the practices that Nader himself criticized.

Specially, Burt says:

—Nader has a "network" of 19 organizations that have not complied with charitable solicitation laws and resist "adequate disclosure" about their size and financial resources.

—Some Nader groups also use the "negative check-off" device — which Nader has criticized when it was used by businesses — to get funds from college students.

—One Nader organization also collected $150,000 in contributions in 1969, made $19,000 in stock purchases but made no grants or other disbursements to charitable organizations.

—Nader's activities do not really protect the poor and the working man. They would lead to more government control and less freedom.

In response, Public Citizen said Nader has founded or been involved with more than 19 organizations that are loosely tied together but do not constitute a "network." They have resisted filing disclosure notices in many states because Nader feels such notices are unconstitutional, the group said.

Nader himself says he lobbied against some disclosure legislation because it would have treated volunteers working for a cause much like lobbyists paid by corporations.

According to Joan Claybrook, president of Public Interest, Nader student groups use the "negative check-off" to collect money from college students.

Malone-Hogan health newsletter available

A health newsletter that focuses this quarter on high blood pressure will go out in the mail this week to those who placed their name on Malone-Hogan Hospital's mailing list in January.

For Your Good Health will be mailed free to anyone requesting it, according to Hospital Administrator John Bingham.

"We made the first one available as an insert in the Herald, and we're pleased that so many called or wrote us, asking to be placed on the mailing list. We hope the list grows," said Bingham.

The newsletter focuses on health topics of general interest, is written by medical writers, and is board-physician approved, he said.

The newsletter will be made available to local schools also, in quantities that will allow it to be used as a text on health subjects, according to Bingham.

"A teaching guide is available. This quarter it deals with high blood pressure, a primary risk factor for stroke or cardiovascular disease.

By LILA ESTES

Q. We've heard about something called a mortgage buy-down. Can you tell us more?

A. A mortgage buy-down is a recent development by builders in an effort to assist home buyers. Simply put, the home builder will "buy-down" the mortgage interest rate for several years by paying part of the loan himself. After the initial "buy-down" period, the interest rate returns to a predetermined level, which is understood at time of closing. That interest level may be indicated, or may be the going market rate at the time the buy-down is terminated. Even though a buy-down plan is strictly a short term proposition, the buyer does know the terms he is contracting under to buy his home. And, it does provide a little breathing space for the new home owner, if used properly.

Outspoken queen will address U.S. Congress

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Queen Beatrix, on an official state visit to the United States this week, is a constitutional monarch who often speaks her mind in public. Government sources here say a joint session of the U.S. Congress will get a piece of it Wednesday.

Queen Beatrix, 44, also is known as a stickler for court protocol and respectability. Last month she gave a reception for municipal officials and told the married ones that spouses were welcome but that single ones were not to bring girlfriends or boyfriends.

In her address to Congress on Wednesday, she is expected to continue the Dutch tradition of queenly outspokenness begun by her grandmother, Queen Wilhelmina, who broadcast resistance pep talks from London to the Nazi-occupied Netherlands during World War II.

A government source close to Queen Beatrix said she would bring up "serious" issues during her 18-minute address, including "differences of opinion" in the 200-year-old U.S.-Dutch alliance.

In an interview published last week in the weekly Elseviers Magazine, Queen Beatrix was quoted as saying that "a genuine fear of war and the threat of a nuclear holocaust in Europe" has caused strains within the Western alliance.

"Europe is striving for a more independent position in the world," she said.

FOLLOW THE BOUNCING BALL — Alan Trevino watches his second inning sacrifice bunt bound down the third baseline. Trevino's sacrifice moved up baserunner Marty Rodriguez who later scored on Blake Rosson's RBI hit. The Steers avenged their only loss of the first half of District 5-AAAAA play with a 6-3 victory over Abilene Saturday. Abilene had beaten Big Spring three straight games before the Steers victory.

James Walker led the home team with four basehits, the high mark for the team this season.

Revenge with the aid of a 'Walker'

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

James Walker usually has his speed do his talking for him. Against Abilene High Saturday afternoon, however, the Big Spring right fielder let his bat hog the conversation.

Walker banged out four hits, scored three runs and stole three bases to lead the Steers to a very important 6-3 District 5-AAAAA victory over the Eagles.

The win reversed a 4-2 loss to AHS in the first round of league play and gave Big Spring its eighth straight win. The Steers are now 18-8 for the year while the equally hot Eagles slipped to 15-6 with the loss, the first to Big Spring after three previous wins.

Walker collected all four of his singles with two-strike counts. After a so-so non-district batting performance, the senior finished the first half with a .304 average and is off to a fabulous jump in the second half.

"I was fired up, man," Walker smiled, slapping high fives with his teammates. "I wanted to beat Abilene bad. This is our spark in this half of district. I was ready all night. I hit two over there," he continued, pointing to left field, "and two over there (pointing to right). All with two strikes on me."

Abilene pitchers couldn't get that last strike on Walker but Moe Rubio saved the day when he got one on Eagle batter Scott Hamilton in the seventh.

With one out, starter Adam Rodriguez gave out. He surrendered back-to-back doubles to Shane Gravens and Chanc Hall and coach Frank Ibarra pulled him out in favor of his senior hurler.

Rubio, who pitched a nine-inning win Tuesday against San Angelo, got Dee Eubank to ground out to third and then got a quick 1-2 count on Hamilton.

With Ibarra advising him to throw a curveball, Rubio instead blazed in a fastball that caught Hamilton off guard. With his bat still on his shoulder, he watched the third strike end the game.

"He wasn't supposed to throw that fastball," Ibarra shook his head. "I told him to throw the curve because he (Hamilton) didn't look good at all on the last one. So what does he do but throw a fastball belt high. It caught him by surprise... that's the kind of pitch he wants. We got away with a pitch he likes to crush."

Abilene High started Jeff Waits but coach Mark Elam pulled him in the first in favor of ace Jay Tindall early in the game.

Big Spring scored a run off Waits when David Anguiano beat out an infield chopper with the bases loaded and two out in the first. Than run was charged to Waits but the Steer socked Tindall for nine more hits and five runs.

The Steers made it 3-0 in the second when Walker and Blake Rosson drove in runs. Abilene closed to within 3-2 with single runs in the third and fourth against Rodriguez.

He walked George Shannon in the third and Hamilton came through with a two-out single to knock him in.

In the fourth, Pat Siagala walked and scored an unearned run when Tindall signalled following an error by Anguiano that moved him into scoring position.

The Eagles left two in on the bags in the sixth with a two-out rally ended by Tindall's fly to Alan Trevino in left. Rodriguez got one out in the seventh before giving up the doubles that forced Ibarra to replace him.

"That was a tough game," Rodriguez said later. "I

Can't Steer you wrong this year

greg jaklewicz

I hope this column doesn't turn out to be like the Sports Illustrated jinx.

You see, whenever SI features a team — football, basketball or whatever — on its cover, it never fails that the team suddenly loses its first game or takes an abrupt nosedive in the standings.

This Sunday, I could think of nothing more appropriate to comment on than the Big Spring Steer baseball team. If the Greek god of athletics is reading (Sportos is his name), I hope he doesn't cast an evil eye on this community which is enjoying sports success as never before.

Coach Frank Ibarra dropped in the Herald office before the bats and gloves were out and was quite "frank" (I'm sorry with me, Greg, he mused, we have a chance to win district this year. I believe these guys can do it. We'll just have to wait and see what the pitching does.

Now several months later, Big Spring is living up to Ibarra's expectations. The Steers are 18-8 for the season, tied for the first half title with Abilene High and avenged three previous losses to the Eagles with a victory Saturday.

The Steers have won eight straight and 11 of their last 12. The last two losses were at the hands of the Eagles. Of the eight defeats, three were to AHS, two to defending 5A state champ Monterey and another to 2-AAA leader Snyder.

In district, the Steers have not hit the ball very well — that is until Saturday with 10 hits against the Eagles. Big Spring brought in a .200 average for seven games and listed just two players over .300 and five over .200.

The key, though, has been Big Spring's performance in the clutch. A player suffering through a slump will come up with the big hit to win a game. Next time out, it's a new player taking the hero's role.

A good example is designated hitter Tom Cudd who hit the cover off the ball before district but has had his problems in 5-5A play. Although the hits have been few, Big Spring owns a win over Permian thanks to Cudd's two-out homer in extra innings that defeated Mojo 3-1.

James Walker, who did not have a great non-district performance at the plate, is hitting near .350 and became the first Steer to get four hits in Saturday's game.

Ibarra thought his team's hitting would be the main ingredient for success this year but pitching and defense have really spiced things up. Big Spring boasts the most consistent pitching threesome in the league with Moe Rubio, Adam Rodriguez and Jinx Valenzuela.

Pitchingwise, Rubio and Rodriguez have been the mainstays. Rubio is 2-1 in district and Rodriguez 4-0. Neither is known for an outstanding pitch but both mix what assortment of fasties, curves and specials they have up well.

Despite all the physical accomplishments, the major difference is in the team's mental outlook. Big Spring has always been competitive in baseball but always has managed to do what is necessary to finish without a championship.

As Walker said Saturday, the team thinks of themselves as one big happy family this year. Working together, the Steers have pulled off the best news in sports this town has had in quite awhile.

Now if my enthusiasm hasn't angered Sportos.

GOING AFTER ANOTHER OUT — Milwaukee's Paul Molitor (4) leaps over Texas' Lee Mazzilli after putting on the tag during a fourth inning double steal Saturday afternoon in Milwaukee. Molitor took the throw from Brewers pitcher Bob McClure and got Mazzilli in a rundown. He then raced for second but was too late with his toss to get the Rangers' Buddy Bell.

Braves tie mark at Astro's expense

HOUSTON (AP) — Atlanta third baseman Bob Horner hit a two-run double in the first inning to help the Braves defeat the Houston Astros 2-1 and tie the National League record for consecutive victories at the start of a season.

The victory was the 10th of the year for the Braves, who can break the league mark and tie the major league record Sunday in the series finale with Houston. The Oakland A's won 11 straight games at the start of last season for the major league best.

Glenn Hubbard singled and Dale Murphy walked with one out in the Atlanta first and both scored when Horner doubled into the left field corner off loser Joe Niekro, 1-1.

After stranding nine runners in the first four innings, Houston finally scored in the fifth. Terry Puhl drew a base on balls from Braves starter Bob Walk and came home on Phil Garner's hit-and-run double to left.

Walk was replaced by Larry McWilliams after Garner's hit. Jose Cruz lined to first and Alan Ashby struck out, but McWilliams had to be pulled after giving up a walk to Ray Knight and an infield hit to Tony Scott to load the bases.

Preston Hanna, 1-0, retired Art Howe on a fly to left and went on to earn the victory. Gene Garber relieved Hanna in the seventh and gained his second save with three innings of perfect relief.

Cubs 10, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Leon Durham slammed a two-run home run and Larry Bowa snapped a 1-for-25 slump with a pair of extra-base hits Saturday as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-2.

The Cubs bunched eight of their 18 hits in a five-run explosion in the eighth inning off Tom Griffin, the third of three Pirates pitchers in the rain-delayed game.

After Keith Moreland led off the inning with a double, Durham rifled his first homer of the season over the right-field fence. Steve Henderson doubled and Gary Woods added an RBI single before Bowa tripled down the right-field line. Bowa scored on Bump Wills' single.

GETTING A RUNNING START AT SOCCER
...Big Spring hopes to kick off fall program

Soccer rolling along

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

In the past few years, Texans have discovered they can still get a kick out of sports even if the game isn't football. Soccer has invaded the Lone Star State and its reputation as the nation's fast-growing sport hasn't suffered even in this football-oriented land.

Soccer has been introduced to Big Spring through the local YMCA and an organized program has steadily improved in quality in its three-year existence in the Spring City. A meeting Tuesday night, bringing together parents and other soccer enthusiasts around town, will determine the future of soccer as an alternative sport in this community.

To date, soccer has been a program divided into two seasons, fall and spring. According to soccer coach Toby Farris, the spring season is "an extension of the fall season" and its brevity is due to "trying to get it in before Little League gets started."

To better organize the program, a revamped fall season is on the drawing board. New ideas include purchasing official uniforms, expanding the league, setting up team sponsorships and conducting clinics on coaching, playing and officiating.

As booster Don Fisher sees it, the local program can point to three goals. The first is to provide another activity for boys and girls not wanting to participate in contact sports. The second is to prepare youngsters age 5 through high school for soccer at the secondary school level where programs will be instituted in the next year by the UIL. The third is spur Big Spring to a leadership role in the sport; instead of following the crowd, the community would set the trend in soccer for this part of Texas to follow.

Fisher and his family recently moved to Big Spring from San Antonio where daughter Kayla, 12, played soccer. He was informed the city had no soccer program, and despite learning this was not true, he did observe the program still had its inadequacies.

"What I'm concerned about is that as Big Spring grows, and more people come in with different businesses and from metropolitan areas where kids are exposed to organized soccer programs, we don't have a really organized program," he says. "We want to be able to give youngsters different avenues to choose from. Soccer is another avenue."

Fisher would like to see kids wearing soccer-type uniforms and shoes, play on fields of size relating to age and a tie with the North American Youth Soccer League to bring in clinics for coaches, players and referees.

Through his efforts, Fisher has received commitments from eight local institutions and businesses willing to sponsor a team next fall. With sponsorships and a minimal registration fee, the expenses would be met and surplus cash put into field improvements and upkeep, supplies and equipment.

Fisher and Farris would like to see the program remain under the wings of the YMCA but have its own governing body. Both men agree that the local Y and its adult leaders have done a remarkable job bringing the program this far, but the community must now increase its role if the future will be as successful.

Both men are fearful of a potential waste in talent. Several local players, such as Farris' son, Todd, and Jignish Bacca, have extensive soccer training in other states and other countries. Without an extension of the Big Spring program from its end at age 13, Farris says these talented youngsters will have no soccer to play.

Soccer coach Paul Murphy worked with 11-13-year-olds this past year. "We would like to have more of that age," he says. "Most of the kids playing are generally too small for football or don't care for contact sports — or are too short for basketball."

He is quick to emphasize, however, that soccer players are not athletic castouts. "You need a unique kind of stamina to play soccer because you do so much running," he said.

His older league consisted of three teams that played 16 games total in the fall and spring seasons. Games are divided into two 25-minute halves and rosters limited to 14 players to give everyone a chance to play.

"The teams are small on purpose to give every kid a chance to play. All the kids will play a half," he explained.

The program has 200 participants. With expansion, Murphy hopes to form five teams in the 11-13 age group and play a 14-16 game schedule in the fall, from the beginning of school until Thanksgiving.

All three men agree soccer has grown by bounds since it began three years ago. Now is the time, however, to insure its growth. The 7 p.m. meeting Tuesday at the YMCA hopefully will take aim in that direction.

"Here's a chance for us to be leaders," Fisher says.

Coogs take 5-5A golf

ABILENE — For the second straight year, Cooper will be sending both its golf teams to the Region I-AAAAA tournament in Lubbock.

The Cooper No. 1 team shot a 279 Friday at Abilene's Maxwell Golf Course to run away with team honors with a score of 1,546 for five district tournaments. The Cooper No. 2 team shot a 310 to finish at 1,579 and in second place. The nearest competitor was Midland Lee's No. 1 unit which shot a five-leg total of 1,649, downing Midland by three strokes.

Three Cooper golfers led the medalist race as the Cougars place sixth in the top 10 in District 5-AAAAA. Mike Standly shot a 70 Friday to finish at 294, nipping teammate Cole Thompson who had a 69 Friday and overall score of 296. Just one shot behind was Kyle Coody with a 297.

To figure the best scores, one tournament score was thrown out of each player's total.

Big Spring carded a 322 Friday for a 722 score and ninth place finish in the 15-team tournament. Cary Wiggins shot a 72 Friday for the only sub-80 score in district play for the Steers. He also was the top golfer on the team with an 81 average in league golf.

"I had a lot of beginning golfers who are working hard," said coach Howard Stewart. "Maybe next year we can give Cooper a run for their money."

Here are the final team and top 10 individual totals:

Wadkins regains control in MONY

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins scorched the back with six birdies in nine holes, finishing off a 4-under-par 68, to post a 2-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $350,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions.

Wadkins pulled away from the elite field, comprised only of winners of PGA Tour events during the last year, with a 32 on his back nine and, at one point, appeared poised to make a rout of it.

He birdied five of his first six holes on the homeward side of the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club course, then bogeyed two to the last three. "I just kind of got it rolling," Wadkins said, "and then I started knocking the flag down."

He completed 54 holes with a 207 total, nine shots under par.

Tom Watson, who won this event two years in a row before being interrupted by Lee Trevino last season, matched par 72 in the mild, breezy weather and was second at 209.

"I got off to a poor start and just didn't do anything particularly well," said Watson, who won four consecutive Player of the Year awards before the streak was broken in 1981.

"Lanny is playing very well," Watson said. "It will take a supreme effort from me tomorrow for me to catch him." Ron Streck was another shot back at 210 after a 68. Tom Kite, last year's leading money winner, had a 65 that ranked as the best round of the tournament and closed up to 211, 4 strokes back in the chase for a $63,000 first prize.

Kite was followed by U.S. Open champion David Graham and Fuzzy Zoeller, tied at 212. Graham included a hole in one, with a 5-iron on the seventh, in his round of 70. Zoeller had the same total despite a 4-putt double bogey on the sixth.

Trevino had a 74 and was at 217. Craig Stadler, winner of the Masters last week, shot 73 and was out of the title chase at 219.

Wadkins matched par over the front side and said he was "hitting a lot of good shots. It had to break soon, one way or the other. I either had to start making some birdies or it was going to catch up with me and I was going to start making bogeys. Something had to happen."

"Fortunately," he added, "the coin came up heads."

Air Forbes Won win

NEW YORK (AP) — Air Forbes Won chased Shimatoree for most of the 1 1/2 miles, caught him 20 yards from the finish and won the $175,200 Wood Memorial Saturday at Aqueduct.

The victory by a neck sends Air Forbes Won on to the May 1 Kentucky Derby with four victories in four races, all of them this year.

Shimatoree finished 2 1/4 lengths in front of Laser Light, who was a head in front of Wolfie's Rascal.

Air Forbes Won, the 3-5 favorite with the crowd of 31,213, carried Angel Cordeiro over the distance in 1:51. He carried the Derby weight of 126 pounds, as did each of the other nine 3-year-olds in the race.

Air Forbes Won, owned by Edward Anchel and trained by Frank LaBocchetta, returned $3.20, $2.60 and $2.40.

Olympics tickets on sale in spring

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Everything is on schedule for the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles and tickets will go on sale next spring, the executive vice president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee said Saturday.

Harry Usher presented a report on progress at the U.S. Olympic Committee's annual meeting. He also issued a plea for support from the organization's House of Delegates for passage of a congressional bill authorizing the minting of commemorative Olympic coins.

Usher and USOC President William E. Simon discussed the importance of revenue from the coin bill during the business meeting and at a later news conference.

"This is a one-shot item," Simon said about the chance to obtain revenue from coins to build developmental programs for future U.S. Olympians. "We will never have another summer games in my lifetime here. It is to me a tragedy if we don't take this step to help our future generations of athletes."

Usher said the Los Angeles committee was working with a budget of $425 million to $450 million. "We have achieved a sense of financial well-being that will allow us to stage the games," he said. "But the proceeds from the coin program are critical to our well-being."

All member nations of the International Olympic Committee receive 3 percent from commemorative coin sales, Usher said. He added that in 1980, even though the United States did not participate in the Moscow Games, money it received from coin sales represented one of the USOC's four largest sources of income.

He said youth programs planned in conjunction with the 1984 Olympics would be the major loser if a satisfactory coin bill is not quickly passed. The USOC has been trying to have coin legislation approved for nearly a year. A bill authorizing the minting of coins was passed in the Senate in a unanimous voice vote but has been stalled in the House by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill.

Annunzio has used his right as chairman of the House Banking Subcommittee to not call the bill for a hearing. Last week, he introduced a bill authorizing the sale of one commemorative coin by the government, rather than a private group. However, USOC officials have questioned whether the bill would produce the $50 million Annunzio said it would. Hearings on coin legislation are scheduled in Washington on Wednesday.

"It's silly to think of the Treasury Department to conduct this program," said Simon, a former Secretary of the Treasury. "It's not their bag. It's not their professional expertise."

A private group had agreed to market the coins but recently exercised its contractual right to withdraw due to delays in having its plans approved in Congress.

Denver downs Dallas to gain playoff spot

DENVER (AP) — Alex English and Dan Issel divided 64 points and Ken Higgs scored all nine of his points in the final six minutes Saturday night as Denver beat Dallas 130-124 to clinch its first National Basketball Association playoff berth in three seasons.

The Nuggets ended the regular season with a 46-36 record and will open Western Conference post-season action next week against an as-yet-undetermined opponent. Whether or not the Nuggets gain the home-court advantage in the three-game mini-series playoffs will depend on the outcome of two games Sunday — Houston at Kansas City and Los Angeles at Phoenix.

Denver led most of the way against the Mavericks but fell behind in the fourth quarter when Dallas' Elston Turner hit a jumper with 8:44 left to put his team ahead, 104-103.

Issel came right back to shove Denver on top for good at 8:28 with a follow shot.

Later in the quarter, English and Higgs twice led 6-0 spurts by the Nuggets to hold off Dallas, which finished its second season in the NBA at 28-54.

The Mavs, behind rookies Jay Vincent, Mark Aguirre and Rolando Blackman, drew within 127-122 with 1:27 to play before Higgs nailed a critical jumper shot with 1:05 left.

David Thompson's 18 points backed Issel and English, while Vincent led Dallas with 26, Aguirre and Blackman each had 21 and Brad Davis added 17.

Recession takes heavier toll on business, report says

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Strains on business from the recession and high interest rates are increasingly obvious. More and more companies are failing, layoffs are mounting and first-quarter profit reports are bleak.

The strongest evidence was the Federal Reserve Board's report this past week that production by the nation's factories, mines and electric utilities fell 0.8 percent in March. The production rate had risen 1.2 percent in February after six consecutive months of decline. The renewed drop in March dashed most hopes that the recession had reached bottom in January.

Statistics aside, the economy simply is sick. Or, as Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Thursday, it is "dead in the water."

Dead, too, are a growing number of businesses. Dun & Bradstreet, the business information service, reported that business failures for the year through April 8 were 55.5 percent higher than in the same period last year.

Alan Murray, an economist at Citibank in New York, estimates that the annual rate of business failures is currently running at 75-80 per 10,000 businesses. He said that is the highest rate since the 1930s.

"Until I see interest rates fall from current levels, I wouldn't think we've seen the peak in the failure rate," Murray said. Last June, as the recession was about to begin, the failure rate per 10,000 businesses was 62.

Bankruptcies are troubling, but the greatest danger for the financial system lies in the possibility of a surprise failure of a major company. That is because banks and other lenders, fearful of more surprises, would become less willing to extend new credit to other debt-laden companies. That clamp on credit could, in turn, spark even more bankruptcies.

Few were surprised at AM International Inc.'s announcement this past week that it had filed for court protection under federal bankruptcy law. The supplier of office equipment and information processing systems had earlier defaulted on a $115 million bank credit agreement and had said it was in danger of defaulting on its entire $254 million debt.

A day after AM International's action, Saxon Industries, a paper product and photocopier manufacturer, filed for reorganization under the bankruptcy law. Last week it had said it was in default on certain debt provisions.

WHERE'S MY SANDBOX!?! — Two-year-old Stacy Gaylon appears to be a confirmed landlubber recently at a YMCA "mom-and-me" swim class for kids 6 months thru 5 years. The classes are based on the theory that children are born without fear of water and by properly introducing them to swimming they will avoid any such fear. Stacy is held by her mother, Melaine Gaylon, both of Redding, Calif. Stacy was glad to graduate and get back to the sandbox.

THE DECISION TO HAVE A BABY COULD SOON BE BETWEEN YOU, YOUR HUSBAND AND YOUR SENATOR.

For everyone who until now thought something like this could never happen. It has begun.

Last month, the United States Senate Judiciary Committee took an unprecedented first step toward depriving you of your most fundamental personal rights.

The right to have the number of children you want. When you want them. Or to have none at all.

They have approved the "Hatch Amendment" to the Constitution which will now go to the Senate floor. If this amendment becomes law, birth control choices might be limited at the same time your Constitutional right to choose an abortion is taken away.

Birth control such as IUD's and some forms of the Pill could be outlawed. Even when your pregnancy was due to rape or incest, abortion could be illegal.

Amazing as it sounds, this nightmare is becoming a reality.

Backing this amendment are right-wing U.S. Senators who want to impose their religious beliefs on you. Your friends. Your family. Everyone.

Don't stand by silently. Write to your Senators. Support Planned Parenthood.

FORECAST FOR SUN- DAY, APR. 18, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A beautiful day for meditation and studying a philosophy of life under which to operate in the days ahead. Take time to make plans that could give you more abundance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Talk over with loved one how to have better relations and more happiness in the future. Exercise your good judgment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You have to be more sensible where practical plans are concerned to gain your most cherished aims. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Plan what to do for those who have done you favors and show your appreciation. Plan time for personal pleasure.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Engage in a new kind of recreation that will bring you more pleasure today. Strive for increased happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Contact friends and discuss important plans you have in mind. Be more precise in handling your personal affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A new approach at new ideas will make them work more successfully for you. Allow time for recreational activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Make those changes in your environment that will be helpful to your welfare. Take no risks with your reputation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Good day to analyze what you most want to achieve in the future and make plans to carry through successfully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Study every facet of your life and then gain advice from advisers you trust. Express happiness with closest tie.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Attend to regular routines early in the day so you'll have more time for recreation later. Be more cheerful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Taking part in public affairs can prove most satisfying and interesting today. Make this a worthwhile day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Your hunches are accurate now, so be sure to follow them. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have an uncanny knack for coming up with the truth in any given situation but could be harsh in judgement unless taught early in life to have more compassion for others. Politics would be a good field here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MON- DAY, APR. 19, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to work out a better financial arrangement early in the day. Later you become more interested in the social side of life. Make sure your activities are well organized.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Tackle every angle of a difficult problem in the morning and get excellent results. Cut down on expenses wherever you can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Know what your true aims are and then go after them in a positive way. Show more interest in outside events.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get together with associates and make plans to be more productive in the future. Improve your appearance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You need a more worldly viewpoint if you wish to expand in career activities at this time. Be alert!

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Contact good friends who can assist you in gaining your most cherished wishes. Be wise and careful in spending your money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Morning is best for widening your vistas and gaining your aims. Later confer with influential person for support you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Handle important business affairs early in the day so you'll have time to study new projects later. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Come to a better understanding with associates and cooperate more with them. Keep commitments you have made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Get busy at work ahead of you and gain benefits. You are able to make rapid progress at this time. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Talk with associates can produce excellent results at this time. Exercise more discretion in handling a civic matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't neglect to look into new interests that are appealing at this time. Show more affection for family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Have those talks with allies and plan how to become more successful in the days ahead. Make this a most productive day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can easily gain the right perspective in business matters, so send to the right schools and this can become a successful and happy life. Teach early in life to be more understanding of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Card Of Thanks C-6 We wish to thank the nurses at United Health Care Center and the nurses and doctors of the Malone and Hogan Clinic and Hospital during the recent illness and death of our dad, Gilbert Ballew. Your kindness will always be remembered.

John Ballew Family Dudley Jenkins Family Jim Ballew Family S.P. Brake Family

In the midst of our sorrows, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our many friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us in the loss of our beloved husband, father and brother, Buel F. Everett. We especially wish to thank the hospital staff, doctors and nurses at Hall-Bennett Hospital, especially Dr. Thomas. Thanks to the many donors of the beautiful floral offerings, and other courtesies extended to us. Thanks to Rev. Keith Wiseman for his comforting words, the pallbearers, singers. A special thanks to the organist - our dear friend, Helen Green; everyone at First Methodist Church who cooked and served food, Staked Plains Lodge No. 598, and to Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home for their efficient management of the services and to Dori's Flowers for their attention.

TREAT FOR THE FEET — Everyone, young and old alike, appreciates giving their feet a cool treat when the weather begins warming up. 'Children of a Lesser God,' 'Hamlet' slated for Lubbock

LUBBOCK — William Shakespeare's "Hamlet" and the Tony Award-winning "Children of a Lesser God" will both be performed in Lubbock in the coming week. "Hamlet" will be staged Friday through April 27 at Texas Tech University. The play will be the last directed by Prof. Ronald E. Schulz, retiring after a 30-year career at Texas Tech, and will end the 1981-82 University Theatre Main Stage season. Casting for the play was open to Schulz's former students, present students and colleagues. Derek Horton, a junior theatre major from Big Spring, will play "Hamlet." Prince of Denmark, whose complex dilemma forms the heart of the play. Performances will be at 8:15 p.m. Tickets for the Friday and Saturday evening performances will be $4 and for the Sunday through Tuesday performances, $3.50. Tickets went on sale April 13. Reservations may be made by calling 742-3601. "Children of a Lesser God," acclaimed for the recognition it has brought to the deaf, will be presented in Lubbock on Saturday. The single performance will be at 8:15 in Lubbock

Municipal Auditorium and is sponsored by Texas Tech University Center Cultural Events. For reservations and ticket information, call (806) 742-3610. Tickets are $9, $12 and $14 for the general public. Written by Mark Medoff, the play was first performed in Los Angeles. On Broadway, it received the Tony Award for the Best Play of 1979-80. It also received the Drama Desk and outer Critics Circle awards that year. The play examines the relationship between a hearing man and a deaf woman and the conflicts between the world of sound and the world of silence. The play deals with its serious subject with an often light and upbeat approach. Critics have termed it "joyous, witty and touching," "tender, touching and funny," "absolutely enjoyable" and "a play you will never forget." Medoff wrote "Children of a Lesser God," for Phyllis Frelich, a deaf actress who, like Sarah, refuses speech and is married to a hearing person. Frelich won the Tony Award for Best Actress for her performance in the original production. Young speech therapist

James, played by Philip Reeves, in the traveling production, tries to get the student Sarah, played by Freda Norman, to learn speech and lip-reading. Deaf since birth, Sarah refuses to learn anything but sign language and defends the deaf world as being equal in value to the world of hearing people. James and Sarah fall in love and have a fun-filled courtship. In marriage, however, they find themselves still worlds apart and attempt to bridge or understand the gaps. "Orin," a deaf student and political activist at the deaf clinic where James works, is played by Charles Jones. Orin seeks to obtain greater job equality for deaf people and enlists Sarah's aid. Her crusade for deaf people increases the tension between her and her husband. The traveling version of the play is produced by Marvin A. Krauss and Irving Siders. It has been re-staged by Jonathan Lee from Gordon Davidson's original production. Sets are by David Jenkins, costumes by Nancy Potts and lighting by Tharon Musser. Museum figures show that visitors in the first quarter of 1982 numbered 32 percent more than in the same months of 1981. Museum director Homer Fort attributed most of the gains to the popularity of the building's new North Wing and to the population growth of Midland and Odessa.

Petroleum Museum's admissions top record

Admissions at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Midland, were higher in March than in any previous month in the museum's history. The total reached 7,051, and if non-paying visitors, such as samll children, were added the figure would have been more than 7,500. The highest previous month, with 5,933 paid visitors, was recorded in February of this year. Estimated total visitation in February was 6,239. Prior to that, the record was in July 1978. Museum figures show that visitors in the first quarter of 1982 numbered 32 percent more than in the same

Bank employee turns gunslinger
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jim Singleton, like many American youngsters, grew up playing cowboys and Indians. Thirty years later, he still plays the shoot-'em-up game — but now he and his sidekicks get paid for it. After graduation from the University of South Carolina and a hitch in the Army, Singleton became a stunt man at Alamo Village in Texas. The village, a tourist attraction on the set for the movie, "The Alamo," was about 150 miles from the real Alamo in San Antonio. Every half hour, Singleton appeared in gunfights and jumped off buildings into wagons filled with hay. In 18 years of mock gunfights, Singleton has been injured only twice — once when his pistol went off in the holster and again when a gun misfired. Both times he escaped with only powder burns. The idea for the Wild Bunch originated about three years ago when Singleton was being interviewed by a reporter about a novel he had written. The reporter, Frank Coley of Charlotte, discovered that both he and Singleton were quick-draw artists and that Singleton had worked with a group called the Wild Bunch

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS
How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You
During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back up generating equipment that is not energy efficient. Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load. This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation. To buy, sell, trade or rent, place your ad in the classified section. BIG SPRING (TEXAS) HERALD, SUNDAY, APRIL 18, 1982

National Volunteer Week to be observed

Volunteers share their time and talents

By TINA M. STEFFEN
Lifestyle Writer

Gov. Bill Clements designated the week of April 18-24 as Texas Volunteer Week and called upon all Texans to take pride in their volunteer heritage, giving recognition to Texas volunteers.

Big Spring is blessed with an abundance of citizens who volunteer their time and skills to enrich the lives of others in the community. Volunteers are essential not only to Big Spring, but to the state and nation also. Clements says "the estimated value of their work (in Texas) is 3.6 billion dollars a year, making voluntarism on Texas' ten largest industries. But the caring they contribute could not be bought for any sum."

National Volunteer Week and Texas Volunteer Week will be observed in various ways. Big Spring State Hospital plans to honor its volunteers with a Spring Luncheon Thursday at noon in the Auditorium of the Allred Building. The Veteran's Administration Medical Center will honor its volunteers with an awards ceremony Monday at 7 p.m. in the Cactus Room at Howard College. Malone-Hogan Hospital will observe the week, but will honor their volunteers during a banquet that will be held during National Hospital Week in May.

"Volunteer action is a powerful force for the solution of problems and particularly in these times when we recognize the limitations of government," Clements said. "Citizens who see a problem and take the initiative to solve it are carrying on the tradition which has made our nation great."

Dianne Jones is a Red Cross volunteer in the Pharmacy and Occupational Therapy units at the VAMC. She has volunteered her services for four years and is the Red Cross volunteer representative at the hospital. "She was selected for that for being one of our outstanding members," Lupe Dominguez, chief of volunteer services at the hospital, said, "If someone wants to volunteer here for the Red Cross, they talk to Dianne."

Dianne first applied for volunteer work after reading an article about volunteers. Her sister was executive director of Red Cross in Sweetwater and told her she should try it. "When I was in school, I wanted to be a nurse. That's why I'm here," she said. Dianne enjoys helping people.

Dianne puts in at least 12 hours of her time each week at the hospital. In the Pharmacy, she takes prescription orders, looks up patients files and mails out prescriptions filled by the pharmacists. Her duties in the Occupational Therapy unit are to check all craft equipment, makes sure it is available and prepare it for patients' use. She also carries out treatment for patients when needed, finishes projects for patients that are leaving and does general housekeeping in the area.

"We have stroke patients and they do exercises on an exercise table to strengthen muscles in their arms. Strokes damage muscles and (the patients) have to rebuild them," Dianne said. The exercise table is called the Herring Track Exercise Table. "With alcohol and psych patients, you have to watch yourself," she said. "What you say might set some off. So I just try to help them with their projects... We have a good time in here. It's fun."

Margaret M. Luna is a patient from Lubbock whom Dianne is helping. Mrs. Luna is learning how to make a macrame picture holder. "It's a good place to be," Mrs. Luna said. She has been at the hospital for five weeks and expects to be there for a few more months. "Occupational (therapy) keeps me busy... keeps me from smoking... keeps my mind busy... It keeps me from crawling the walls. You have something to do besides watching TV," she said.

Diane is in contact with patients who come in because they need something to occupy their minds, patients who suffer from closed head injury, paralysis, arthritis, fractures of the upper extremities such as elbows and wrists and strokes. She also works with alcoholic and psychiatric patients. Occupational therapy helps patients get them back to being able to function in everyday life.

AM I DOING IT RIGHT? — Dianne Jones, Red Cross volunteer in the Occupational Therapy unit and Pharmacy at Veteran's Administration Medical Center, helps

AID TO MOTHER AND CHILD — Helen Ebling helps Holly Williford as she feeds her child Harmony, 10 months. The volunteers at Malone-Hogan purchased the rocking chair Mrs. Williford is in for use by mothers and babies. The purchase of rocking chairs is just one of their many projects for the hospital.

How has she grown personally from her volunteer experience? "I learned a lot of crafts, how to get along with other people better and to be more considerate and compassionate," she said. "I was going out of my mind sitting at home and I enjoy it up here. I enjoy people."

"We've had several come here because of a stroke and were not able to use parts of their bodies," she said. Seeing them improve and regain the use of their bodies is a reward for her. "If they want to get better, they do exercises and they get better. It's watching them get better... seeing an accomplishment."

When she isn't at the hospital, she is babysitting a 6-month-old baby, helping the Boy Scouts or taking care of her own family. She is married, has two children 11 and five years old, and is secretary to Christian Women's Fellowship at First Christian Church. The Malone-Hogan Hospital Volunteers strive to give the best service and care possible to each patient in the hospital. They try to take care of the physical, emotional and psychological needs of each patient, picking up where the doctors and nurses leave off.

Volunteers have built a reputation for treating patients as special guests instead of the tonsilectomy in room 236. Volunteers try to be a friend and build a rapport with patients and families, letting them express their fears or ask "dumb" questions to someone who isn't a professional.

Several services are provided by the volunteers at Malone-Hogan. The services include an escort service, flower, mail and newspaper delivery, gift shop, hospitality, blood donor drives, health fairs, surgery liaison, educational seminars, holiday tray favor and receptions for graduating nurses and for doctors on Doctors' Day. They also award scholarships to students who attend Howard College ADN Nursing School and Malone-Hogan School of Radiology.

Since the volunteer program started at Malone-Hogan, the volunteers have donated several items to the hospital for patient use. All income derived from the Gift Shop and dues from volunteers is spent on community education and services and purchases for the hospital that will benefit the patient.

Their purchases include a closed circuit TV for patient education and health films, rocking chairs for mothers with babies, high chairs and toddler chairs for the dining room, toys for the emergency room, and emergency room scanner for communications with ambulances, a hydraulic patient life and a telephone communicator for the deaf.

The volunteers operate the Gift Shop and provide nursery photo service. They contributed to the construction of permanent visual display in the hospital lobby that traces the history of the first surgeons and doctors that came to Big Spring.

The Malone-Hogan volunteers believe it is their responsibility to give each patient and visitor the same care they would want for a member of their own family.

Crowded library conditions

County Library needs renovation

By TINA MILLER
Lifestyle Editor

When the Howard County Library moved from its location at 510 Scurry (now the Heritage Museum) to its present location at 4th and Scurry (the former post office) library employees were thrilled. The large building, with seemingly vast amounts of space, was theirs.

Twelve years have passed since that time, and the building that once seemed huge now is crowded. The building itself is not the problem, however, but the thousands of square feet of unused space in the library's basement. The basement is a maze of small, dusty rooms, and an estimated $325,000-$350,000 is needed to remodel the space.

According to Judith Gray, librarian, many new shelves have been added in the main floor of the library in recent years. Now, she says, there is room to add only one or two sections of shelves. Any more would sharply reduce the amount of floor space. Regulations require a certain amount of floor space, Ms. Gray said, and the library currently is just about the minimum amount allowed.

Rebecca Taylor, who worked at the library at the old location, said that conditions now are almost as crowded as they were before the move. At the old location books were stacked on the floor, in windows, on radiators, on top of shelves and were stored in an adjacent garage. "We're doing the same things as we did in the old building," she said, "except I'm not putting books on top of shelves." She said that unless the remodeling is done the new library will be as crowded as was the old one within two years.

"WE HAVE no facilities for storing books," Ms. Taylor said. She explained that although the present location has more floor space, the library now has more patrons than in past years. "I don't see how we can add much more (shelves) and still have space for people to work, move and read," she said.

According to Ms. Gray, about one-fourth of the Howard County population are registered borrowers at the library, and the number of patrons increases each year. "If we don't grow, we die," she said. The library must continually acquire new books to meet the needs of the community. Changing political climates, economy, science and many other subjects require constant updating. The library also attempts to acquire books on both sides of controversial issues.

The most crowded areas in the library are currently the reference and adult non-fiction sections. Shelves are full and many books are lined up on the floor in the non-fiction section. The children's section also is crowded. Shelves must be low so children can reach the books, Ms. Gray said. The library loans books to teachers during the school year, she said, and this helps reduce the crowded conditions on these shelves. However, there are still so many books that tables have been set up so all can be seen.

To make room for new books, duplicates of books are being taken off the shelves and stored in the basement, Ms. Gray said. If a book is popular, the staff attempts to leave at least two copies on the shelves, but the shrinking amount of available space is making this more and more difficult. Also, older copies of reference books are put into circulation to make room for updated copies.

Ms. Gray uses the term "stored" loosely since the books are merely taken to the basement and stacked on the floor. This is bad for the books, she said, and makes them difficult to find. Dust filters in, and stacking books on top of one another often breaks down the spine of the book. Until more shelves can be purchased and/or remodeling done, this is the only way books can be stored.

THE LIBRARY has attempted to get the funds needed for remodeling on several occasions. They have been turned down, however, by the County Commissioners, City Council and the Dora Roberts Foundation. Friends of the Library help raise money in the annual Book Sale. Silver Tea and by other means. But this money "is just a drop in the bucket" compared to the amount needed, Ms. Gray said, and most of that money is used to purchase equipment. She said Friends of the Library would like to resubmit the proposal to the Dora Roberts Foundation.

LIBRARIAN — Judith Gray, who has been county librarian since August, 1960, said, "The first time I saw this (basement) I said, 'Oh my, what a waste.' Currently the basement is primary uses are the storage of books and a viewing room for children's films. Cost of needed renovation is estimated at about $325,000.

Ms. Gray said she would like the money to come from a combination of sources including county funds, donations and grants. The remodeling could be done in stages, she said. The children's section would be the first phase, followed by the catalog area and elevator, and finally a children's film and public seminar area. By doing the work in stages, not all the funds would be needed at the same time, she said, but costs could increase between stages and make the present estimate too low.

"The biggest expense we have is we have to have an elevator installed for the handicapped, Ms. Gray said. Law requires that the handicapped have easy access to all areas, she said, and a ramp is not possible because the length needed would not fit in the available space. An electric, rather than hydraulic elevator is planned because it will fit into the available space and also is less expensive.

Should the money for the remodeling be obtained, the children's area would be moved to the basement, and the periodical and reference sections would be expanded. The small cataloging area would be moved to the basement and expanded, restrooms would be remodeled and storage space would be expanded and improved. Direct entrance to the basement from the outside would also be included. Audio visual, a rapidly growing section of the library, would probably be expanded also. The improvements would require at least two additional staff members, Ms. Gray said, one full-time and one part-time. But, she added, the renovations would make the building adequate for at least 15 years. If renovations are not done soon, an increasing number of books will have to be "weeded out, stored or gotten rid of," she said.

CROWDED FACILITY — With most of the library shelves full, the staff has begun placing books on the floor. Few shelves can be added due to floor space requirements set by the government. Tables of books have been added in the children's area where shelves must be low so that youngsters can see the books.

SOME PEOPLE argue that other areas in the county need funds worse than the library because not everyone uses the library. But, said Ms. Gray, "Everyone can use the library, and they know it's there if they need it. A public library is designed for everyone in the community to use."

"A public library is an educational, service, social and information agency," she said. The library provides educational materials in the form of supplemental research for students. A variety of services, such as renting and loaning projectors and other items to clubs, businesses and churches are available. It is a social agency, Ms. Gray said, because it is "open for anybody to use."

The library also is an information agency because it subscribes to many newspapers and other publications. With the installation of a microcomputer in the near future, Ms. Gray hopes the information aspect will be expanded. Ms. Gray plans to use the computer in many areas, including a community calendar that would list all activities in the area.

Other services provided by the library include a section of large-print books for those with poor vision, city directories, phone books of many major cities, stock information and tax forms and information. Records, pictures, films and filmstrips can be checked out for various periods of time.

April 18-24 is National Library Week, Ms. Gray said. The annual Book Sale will be held Friday, and the regular film programs will be scheduled during the week. Ms. Gray said she welcomes assistance in the form of money or ideas. Donations are tax deductible.

Wedding

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN G. SMITH
...wed in Andrews

Manes-Smith

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen G. Smith are on a wedding trip to New Mexico following their marriage Saturday morning in Means Memorial United Methodist Church, Andrews. The Rev. Norman Gribbsy, pastor, performed the 11:30 a. m. rite.

The bride, formerly Paula Jo Manes, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Paul Manes, Andrews. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Smith, 2806 Parkway Rd.

The altar was decorated by a spring bouquet. Mrs. Tynetta Wetzel provided organ music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a three-piece beige suit of raw silk. She carried a cascade of gardenias and sprangeri.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception and buffet luncheon in the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table, covered with a white lace cloth, featured a three-tiered cake decorated with daisies.

The bride is a graduate of Andrews High School and Southwestern Oklahoma State University School of Pharmacy, Weatherford, Okla.

She is employed as a pharmacist in Odessa.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and Texas Tech University School of Engineering, Lubbock. He is associated with West Texas Consultants, Inc., Odessa.

Following the wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Odessa.

MRS. RONALD HIPPI
...formerly Joan Elizabeth Langkiet

Langkiet-Hipp

Joan Elizabeth Langkiet and Ronald K. Hipp exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening in the home of the bridegroom's parents. The Rev. Herb McPherson, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, performed the 7 p.m. rite.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Don Anderson, 1210 Sycamore, and Carl Langkiet, Wichita, Kan. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hipp, Rt. 3.

The couple stood before a mantle decorated with pink carnations flanked by lighted tapers. Baskets of flowers and a unity candle completed the setting.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Carl Langkiet, wore a formal-length gown of sheer organza lined in acetate taffeta. The gown featured an off-the-shoulder ruffle and spaghetti straps and was accented with pink flowers and ribbon. A chapel-length veil of chantilly lace completed the attire.

Bill Hipp, father of the bridegroom, was best man.

A reception was held in the home following the rite. The bride's table, covered with a Chantilly lace cloth, was centered by an arrangement of bells and pink flowers. A three-tiered cake, accented with pink roses, bells and topped by doves, lace and roses, was served.

Coffee and chocolate cake were served in honor of the bridegroom.

The bride attended Big Spring High School and is employed by Newsom's Food Store. The bridegroom is a Coahoma High School graduate and is employed by Quality Glass and Mirror.

Following a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Big Spring to host Round-up, Symposium

Susan Alexander reported on the Agriculture Round-Up and Symposium to be held at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum July 10 at the Tejas CowBelles meeting Tuesday. The meeting was held at the Shack in Snyder.

The confirmed speakers for the Round-Up and Symposium are Congressman Charles Stenholm; Anne Anderson, director of Nutrition Services for Texas Cattle Feeders Association; Burton Eller, National Cattlemen's Association Government Affairs vice president; Jim Powell, chairman of NCA and Texas Southwest Cattle Raisers Association tax committees; Becky Terry, Texas CowBelle president; Dub Waldrip, NCA president-elect; Hilmar G. Moore, chairman of Beef Industry Council of the National Livestock and Meat Board; and Dr. Dennis Stiffler, meat extension specialist from Texas A&M University.

Gov. Bill Clements has been invited to be the keynote speaker at the barbecue and dance following the Symposium, but his appearance is still unconfirmed.

Patsy Fee of Roscoe and Danetta Gressett of Forsan were introduced as new members. Jeanne Bullard discussed the success of the Snyder Museum exhibit with 1,254 in attendance this month.

The Coahoma Agriculture Day was held recently. Children learned about agriculture-related businesses in this area. Plans were discussed for including another area school in the event next year.

Bonnie Baldrige reminded members to watch for TV commercials that promote beef. The commercials are sponsored by the National Beef Council and will appear periodically from April to June.

The National Beef Cook-off will be held in San Antonio Sept. 19-22. The Tejas CowBelles are requested to provide six volunteer workers for the event. Any member able to attend needs to have their registration in by Aug. 28.

The CowBelles' next meeting will be held May 11 in Big Spring. Members will be notified of the location.

Dr. Donohue

Swimmers and baseballer write

Dear Dr. Donohue: I swim — for two reasons: I like to and I think it is a good way to exercise, certainly as good as jogging any day. But I have wondered about calories used in swimming. Can you give me some idea of how many I burn in swimming? I like the thought of losing weight, too. — V.F.

I agree with you. Swimming is an excellent aerobic exercise — the kind that builds up the heart and lungs. And swimming has other advantages. One advantage that is important to persons who may not be quite as agile as they used to be is that it doesn't place so much stress on the legs, hips, knees, ankles and feet. All those structures get a lot of heavy wear in jogging.

To your calorie question: The calorie cost in swimming (how much you spend) is determined by body drag (a subject I'll save for another day), your technique and your style, and your level of expertise; also your weight. The butterfly and breaststroke burn twice as many calories as the front and back crawl. As a rough estimate, swimming burns up between 500 and 600 calories an hour.

I forgot another important calorie-burning factor in swimming you can add to the others — water temperature. Cool water makes you burn more calories than warm water. You have to burn the extra calories to keep your body warm.

Another swimmer writes:

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a sinker. No doubt about it. My sister insists that I go to her swimming class with her to rejuvenate us both. I knew I was a sinker, but went anyway. I sink. She floats. She thinks I am trying to get out of the program. Can you prove to her there are such people as sinkers? — Mrs. P.R.

Let's just say you are not quite as buoyant as she is. But you can still learn to swim. It will take a bit more effort. A more adipose body displaces more water than a lean body. That may mean in simple terms that your sister may need to be rejuvenated a bit more than you do. Translated, it also means that the fatter a person is the easier it is to float.

Even if two people weigh the same on the scale, the one with more muscle will not be buoyed by the water as much as the one with more fat. You must not have very much body fat. That's great. But, I am sure that with a little practice and with a little coaching you'll be able to keep your denser body on the surface. My sister always insisted I was a sinker. Or was it a stinker?

Dear Dr. Donohue: I like baseball a lot, and play right field. Last year I threw the ball so hard that I ripped a muscle, a tendon, or whatever. I am told that this has healed. Yet, I still have great pain in the arm. Why is it taking so long for the pain to disappear? — Agony

Ligament tears and pulls are sprains. Muscle-tendon tears and pulls are strains. Both occur in degrees, from those causing minor annoyances that subside in a few days to serious and catastrophic injuries where ligaments, muscles or tendons are completely torn apart.

Wedding

MRS. JEFFERY JEROME SPECHT
...formerly Martha Ann Cooper

Cooper-Specht

Emmanuel Episcopal Church in San Angelo was the site of the Saturday afternoon wedding of Martha Ann Cooper and Jeffery Jerome Specht. The Rev. Norman Griffith, pastor, and James Sullivan, director of Laity Lodge Youth Camp in San Angelo, performed the 5 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Sara Baker Cooper, San Angelo, and Raymond Cooper. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Specht, San Angelo.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar decorated with spring bouquets and candelabra.

Mike Kirkpatrick sang and accompanied himself on the guitar.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Steven Cooper, San Angelo, wore a formal-length gown of ivory satin formerly worn by her mother. The gown featured a lace yoke, long tapered sleeves and a chapel-length train. She wore a fingertip-length veil of ivory trimmed in pearls.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Kyle Box, San Angelo, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sally Cooper, San Angelo, sister of the bride; Shelley Abrahamson, San Marcos; Zetta Young, Dallas; and Christie Ottensen, Houston.

Grady Reed, Amarillo, was best man. Groomsmen were Paul Abrahamson, Amarillo; Mark Dawson, Chickasha, Okla.; Bill Luttrell, San Antonio, and Pat Carrington, Pleasanton.

Scott Templeton and Hal Noelke, both of San Angelo, were candelighters. Ushers were Bill San Marco and Jimmy Kockwelp, both of San Antonio.

Following the ceremony, a reception honored the couple in the Parish Hall of the church. The bride's table featured a white cake decorated with fresh flowers in rainbow colors. Fresh flowers centered the table.

The bridegroom's table, decorated with fresh greenery, featured a chocolate cake.

The bride is a graduate of San Angelo Central High School and Angelo State University, San Angelo. She is a teacher at Coahoma Elementary School.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Robert E. Lee High School, San Antonio and Southwest Texas State University, San Marcos. He is employed by Oilfield Industrial Lines.

Following a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

MRS. ROBERT SHAYNE ASKEW
...formerly Teresa Deloris Sherman

Sherman-Askew

Teresa Deloris Sherman and Robert Shayne Askew were wed April 9 in the Apostolic Faith Church. The Rev. Akin, minister of College Park Church of God, performed the 7 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Sherman, Gail Rt. Parents of the bridegroom are Bob Askew and Lee Askew, both of Big Spring.

The couple stood before an archway decorated with tiger lilies and accented with yellow and orchid bows. Seven-branch candelabra, accented by matching bows, flanked the archway.

Music was performed by Mrs. Carol Fowler and Helen Sherman, mother of the bride, vocalists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of Chantilly lace and chiffon. The bodice, overlaid with lace and seed pearls, featured a Queen Anne collar and sweetheart neckline.

The gown was fashioned with long, fitted sleeves ending in lace cuffs, and the full skirt of chiffon fell from an empire waistline to a chapel-length train. A beaded

Juliette cap held the fingertip veil.

The bride carried a nosegay of pink, yellow, orchid and yellow carnations tied with pastel ribbons.

Debbie Earnest was maid of honor and Janet Sherman, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

David Garver was best man and Brian Dale Patterson, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. Guests were seated by Gene Fowler and Cecil Sherman, brother of the bride.

A reception at the church parsonage honored the couple following the ceremony. A three-tiered cake, decorated by mint roses, cupid and bells, was served from a table covered with a gold lace cloth. A candelabrum, accented with greenery and pastel bows, centered the table. Mrs. Fowler and Debbie Earnest served the guests. Lou Sherman, cousin of the bride, registered guests.

The bride attended Coahoma High School and the bridegroom attended Big Spring High School.

Following a wedding trip to Carlsbad, N.M., the couple will reside in Big Spring.

Teague-Jackson

Nadine L. Teague and Gary S. Jackson, both of Colorado Springs, Colo., exchanged wedding vows March 13 in the Radiant Assembly of God, Colorado Springs, Colo. The Rev. Don Steiger, pastor, officiated the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Clifton G. Teague, 3618 Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson, Los Angeles, Calif., are parents of the bridegroom.

The couple stood before an archway entwined with daisies. Candelabra and a kneeling bench completed the setting. Music was performed by Sherri Robbins and Paul Heimbuch, guitarists and vocalists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of Chantilly lace featuring a square neckline and long full sleeves. Rose appliques of lace adorned the dress, and a cap of lace held the cathedral-length veil edged in lace.

The bride carried a nosegay of tea rose-colored roses and baby's breath accented by a rose-colored bow.

Liz Alba was maid of honor and Liz Valverde, was bridesmaid. Gwen Sowell was flower girl. All reside in Colorado Springs.

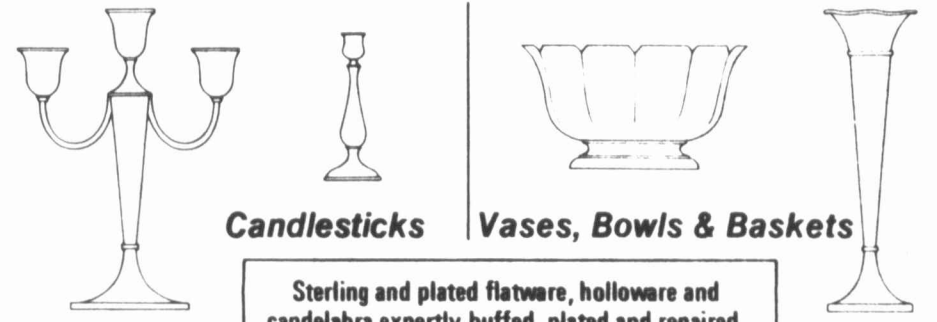

Matthew Rehl, Colorado Springs, was best man. Steven Pogar, also of Colorado Springs, was groomsman and usher.

A reception honored the couple following the ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Rehl, Colorado Springs. The bride's table featured a two-tiered cake decorated with roses and doves. Fresh fruits were also served.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and University of Texas at Austin. She is youth director at Pike's Peak Youth United Services Organization (similar to YMCA) in Colorado Springs, Colo. The bridegroom is a graduate of Fairfax High School in Los Angeles, Calif. He is attending University of Colorado in Colorado Springs, Colo. Following a wedding trip to Woodland Park, Colo., the couple is residing in Colorado Springs.

Nurses are Special at Lubbock General

Nursing at Lubbock General Hospital is a two-way experience. It encourages you to give of yourself, and it rewards you with a unique fulfillment. Lubbock General Hospital nurses are not merely a part of one of Texas' finest medical centers. They are one of the major reasons that we are one of the finest.

The primary commitment of all our employees is excellence in patient care. As members of the health care team, nurses work closely with physicians, therapists, and technicians to meet the patient's total needs. Staff nurses do not do clerical work. They spend their time working directly with their patients, providing medical and emotional support, explaining medical problems, teaching patients to care for themselves, and responding to individual needs.

We believe that today's nurses are devoted to good nursing, and that it is our responsibility to help develop their potential. To this end, Lubbock General Hospital provides extensive and challenging programs in staff development and continuing education. In every clinical area, from Emergency to Neonatal Intensive Care, our nurses never stop learning.

We invite you to share in and contribute to our unique health care efforts.

Because we would like you to be one of our special nurses, Lubbock General now offers the most comprehensive benefits package on the South Plains...

Compare before buying

Considering a major product—a car or appliance—that costs a significant amount of money? It's wise to search for information about the product before buying.

Gathering information about a product can be rewarding for several reasons.

- You can increase your purchasing power by making the best buy for your wants and needs (not always the most expensive).
- You can make an intelligent decision and be pleased with the consequences.

• There is a social payoff. Not only will your purchasing power be increased but also your intelligent search for information may have a disciplinary effect on sellers, inducing them to offer better products on better terms to all buyers.

- You may influence others to look for information.

For objective information concerning features, operating procedures, use and care, look at Extension Service Fact Sheets on various products. Brand names and prices will not be included, but the sheets will give general guidelines explaining how the product works.

For price comparison, brand names and ratings, consult "Consumer Reports," Consumers' Research Magazine and specialized publications such as "Popular Photography."

To determine if a product will do what you want—and whether you can care for it, read the use-and-care booklets available and labels attached.

If objective information is not available, answer these questions:

- Are prices for the product fixed by the manufacturer or retailers—and is there any way to buy the products more economically.

• Is the product the same at a discount store as it is in a specialty store or a more conveniently located store? It's possible that the SAME product may have different brand names and prices.

• Have I made valid comparisons on prices and qualities of different brands.

Other sources of information you may want to consider are the warranties of a product. Is the seller offering a full or limited warranty? Obviously, a full warranty is a quick way to know you're getting a lot of protection.

TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Sundy, Gail Rt., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Donna, Dallas, to Phil Springer, Rotan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Springer, Rotan. The ceremony will take place May 8 in First Methodist Church, Rotan. The Rev. Randall Smith, Mesquite, ordained minister and uncle of the bride-elect, will officiate.

Women's Health

Fibroids call for awareness not panic

By GEORGE M. RYAN JR., M.D.

The subject of tumors and cancer is as involved and complex as it is important. But a knowledge of some basic symptoms and conditions can signal a need for you to see your doctor and yet not frighten you into a panic about your health.

A tumor in the uterus may sound alarming, but you should know that one of every four women is likely to develop them, usually between the age of 33 and 44, and that the vast majority of these tumors are not cancerous.

The purpose of the Pap smear when you go for your annual gynecologic examination is to detect through microscopic examination any cancerous cells that might be present in the vagina. Largely because this test enables early detection of the disease, the mortality rate of uterine and cervical cancers has dropped steadily over the past few decades.

The most common uterine tumor is the benign, or noncancerous, fibroid, known medically as a myoma or leiomyoma, which develops in the uterine wall or to a lesser degree in the cervix. These fibroid growth may cause unusual bleeding during or between normal menstrual periods. If large enough, the tumors may press on other organs and cause frequent urination, constipation or changes in bowel habits.

In a young woman they can cause pain during pregnancy, or, if large enough, difficulties in delivery.

If the fibroids grow large, an operation may become necessary. One surgical procedure is the myomectomy, in which only the fibroids are removed and the uterus is repaired to permit childbearing. In most cases a hysterectomy is performed in which the entire uterus is removed.

But fibroids are usually slow growing, and your physicians may simply keep them under observation, foregoing surgery if no other organs are affected, if pregnancy is not a factor, and if other symptoms are not troubling.

In an older woman, fibroids often diminish after menopause, when the estrogen hormone level decreases.

There are other kinds of uterine tumors besides fibroids, and these will be discussed in other columns.

Dear Abby

Invalid's visitors cause pain

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 89th year and in poor health. I am alone and seldom get out, so friends keep wanting to come visit me. I don't want to seem ungrateful, but, Abby, it is such a burden I would rather they didn't come.

Let me explain. A hostess is expected to offer her guest a cup of tea and perhaps a sandwich or some sweets. This imposes a hardship on me because I am badly crippled with arthritis and can barely prepare my own meals. I also have diabetes and never have sweets or bakery goods on hand.

I would be interested in hearing how other elderly and disabled people feel about having company.

NO COMPANY, THANK YOU

DEAR NO COMPANY: I know a person who handles visiting an elderly or disabled person this way: She calls and says, "I will come on one condition — that you do not lift a finger! I will bring the refreshments."

Then she arrives with a picnic basket containing a thermos of tea, an assortment of refreshments, cups, saucers, then placemats and napkins. All the hostess has to do is open the door and enjoy the company. Now wouldn't that kind of company be a pleasure?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old divorced woman. When I was 22, I had a short affair with a very mature boy who was only 15. After that I discovered that I really got turned on by boys between the ages of 15 and 20.

Some older guys will turn me on, but most teen-agers are more manly than in their 30s.

Would you like to know if this is normal for a woman my age, or do I need to see a shrink?

CRADLE ROBBER

DEAR ROBBER: According to the most authoritative studies on sexual behavior, the male reaches his sexual peak in his teen years. And from then on, it's downhill.

DEAR ABBY: We have a precious new daughter-in-law. She and our son are head over heels in love. She has many fine qualities, but, Abby, her grammar is atrocious! For example, she says, "We seen," instead of, "We saw." And, "Him and me went," instead of, "He and I went."

I would like to correct her in a loving way, not for my sake, but for hers. She is barely 21, and if I could find a gentle way to correct her, I'm sure it would save my son a lot of embarrassment later on, because he surely must notice how bad her grammar is.

I don't want to mention it to my son because I don't want him to think I am finding fault with his wife. I have always had a wonderful relationship with him and don't want to do anything to alienate him or offend his wife. My husband feels as I do, and suggested I write to you.

CARING MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR CARING: Don't offer your new daughter-in-law any well-meaning help by correcting her grammar. If your son is satisfied with his wife, and apparently he is, that's all that matters.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Save the Fish" to cheer up. Next time her husband brings home a fish, let her think of all the smaller fish that would have been eaten later if her husband hadn't caught it, and of all the smaller fish that fish had already eaten.

In his autobiography, Benjamin Franklin relates how he resolved to be a vegetarian because he didn't believe living creatures should die so he could eat. Then he realized that fish eat each other regularly. He continued to eat fish.

SCARED MINNOW FROM PA.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pre-Easter breakfast is held

Dixie Robertson, assistant pastor of First United Methodist Church, was guest speaker at the April 10 pre-Easter breakfast hosted by the Business and Professional Women's Club. The breakfast took place at Holiday Inn with Mamie Roberts presiding.
 Ms. Robertson described what happened Saturday, the day after Jesus was crucified and the day before he was resurrected. She said the day was one of silent grief with no hope for followers of Christ.
 Not all silence is bad, she said, when it is shared. Persons need a time for silence, grief and prayer after hearing bad news. In this way, good news can be appreciated.

Weddings

MRS. MARK LOUIS INMAN
...formerly Cindy Lu Sheppard

Sheppard-Inman

St. Mary's Episcopal Church was the site of the Saturday wedding of Cindy Lu Sheppard and Mark Louis Inman. The Rev. David Bristow, pastor, performed the 8 p.m. rite before an altar decorated by a spring arrangement of white iris, snap dragon, carnations, roses and gladioli. Two urns completed the setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill M. Sheppard, 1411 East 18th. Mrs. Elaine Kraft Inman is mother of the bridegroom.

Music was performed by Gene Adkins, organist.

The bride wore a traditional gown of white silk organza and re-embroidered lace. The gown featured a fitted bodice overlaid in lace, a portrait neckline and sheer organza yoke embellished with pearls. Long, full split sleeves covered a fitted sleeve, both enhanced with lace, and the A-line skirt fell to a cathedral-length train ending in a pleated flounce topped with lace. A two-tiered scalloped veil edged in pearls fell from a Juliette cap.

The bride carried a cascade of orchids, roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Diana Sheppard was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Teresa Sheppard, Odessa, Connie Sheppard, both sisters of the bride, Laura Butler, Midland, and Paula Chrane.

Cal Heathley, El Paso, was best man. Groomsmen were Scot Sheppard, brother of the bride, Alex Inman, Lubbock, brother of the bridegroom, Joel Jackson and Dode Harvey, both of Midland.

Guests were seated by Craig Person, Gregory Person, Robert Lee, both cousins of the bride, Bruce Miller, Midland, and Kyle Choate, cousin of the bride.

A reception in the Parish

MRS. RICHARD LEE WOLSEY JR.
...formerly Lesa Carol Statham

Statham-Wolsey

Lesla Carol Statham became the bride of Richard Lee Wolsey Jr., Saturday evening in Trinity Baptist Church. The Rev. Claude Craven, pastor, performed the rite before an archway decorated with blue and yellow carnations. Candelabra completed the setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Statham, Garden City Rt., and Mrs. Carolyn Hill, Dallas. Parents of the bridegroom are Richard Lee Wolsey Sr., Carthage, Mo., and Mrs. Harriet Johnson, Dallas.

The bride wore a formal-length gown of sea blue featuring a V-neckline and empire bodice. The flared skirt, covered in lace overlay, fell to a V-shaped shawl down the back of the neck.

The bride carried a nosegay of blue roses, yellow daisies and baby's breath encircled by lace with lace and satin streamers.

Following a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev., the couple will reside in Midland.

Music was performed by Mrs. Donna Thurman, pianist, and James Kinman, vocalist.

Mrs. Starla Kaczyk was matron of honor, and Cara Statham, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

Mark Kaczyk was best man and Chad Statham, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. Terry Dewayne Watkins and Kit Kraus were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception honored the couple in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a blue cloth and white net overlay. A three-tiered cake was served. Serving were Mrs. Eva Watkins, Mrs. Teri Nichols and Renetta Robison. Guests were registered by Charlene Minchew.

A rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening at K-Bob's Restaurant.

The bride is employed by K-Mart, and the bridegroom is employed by Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Following a brief wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Arrangements for Reception Food and Drink

Food and drink are both an important part of a wedding reception and a big responsibility. Here at the ACCENT SHOPPE, we suggest you gear your arrangements to the site you have chosen. If your reception is to be held at a club, hotel or restaurant, the maitre'd or banquet manager will probably help you. For a reception held in a private home or at another site where you are responsible for details, you might want to hire a caterer to handle the arrangements, do it all yourself, or combine your efforts with those of the caterer you choose. Sounds delicious!

Sign language course completed

Certificates were awarded this week for successful completion of an eight-week workshop entitled "Basic Sign Language for Retail Business Personnel."

Those completing the course were Nancy Crenshaw of Merle Norman Cosmetics, Pearlie and Lloyd Nason of Art-N-Craft World, Debbie Clay and Paula Roberts, both of T.G.&Y. in College Park, and Jewell Wheeler of Young-N-Alive.

Nita Tarbet instructed the workshop. The course is offered on a regular basis for retail businesses by Avery and Associates. The next class will begin April 27 at 8 a. m. A night class also will be offered in the near future. For more information about these classes, contact Avery and Associates at 263-1451.

The course is geared to the needs of retail store personnel in dealing with deaf customers in daily transactions. Emphasis is on basic communications skills needed to conduct business transactions including courteous conversation, money values and buying information. The alphabet for finger spelling of words is stressed as well as word and phrase signing.

Nita Tarbet is a deaf person who has mastered several forms of communications between the deaf and the hearing world. She uses her talents and abilities despite the obstacles of being deaf. She functions successfully as a wife, mother, career woman and in many other areas. She has been associated with Avery and Associates for nine months.
