City improvements rolling along

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

Potholes and rusty water mains, your days are numbered.

Capital improvement projects to cure those problems and others in Big Spring are rolling right along, according to reports presented to the press and to the city council yesterday.

Big Spring's city manager, Don Davis, met with reporters in his makeshift city hall office yesterday afternoon to deliver a progress report on three areas of improvement: water lines, Wasson Road and the airport.

As carpenters hammered and sawed in the room next door (that's Davis' real office, which is undergoing its own improvement by getting covered with paneling), Davis announced that sixty percent of the water improvements in phase one of the five-year Capital Improvements Program had been completed.

The work consisted primarily of replacing water lines on the west side of town in the vicinity of Third and Fourth streets as well as in the Washington Place neighborhood.

The work had begun in Washington Place, then shifted to the west side because of the difficulty of residential access in Washington Place, Davis explained. Homeowners there had been asked to surrender some space in order to allow repair crews to put in new lines, and while the city was acquiring easements in the area the water work shifted back to the west side.

DAVIS TOLD the council in its meeting last night that there may be a few stretches of water line that are not replaced because the easements can't be obtained.

"We may have to scrap a block in Washington Place," Davis suggested to the council.

He added in his meeting with reporters that there had been complaints from people regarding water service being shut off for the line repairs and not getting turned back on for several hours after the work was done.

"If anyone in town is having this problem, please call the water department," Davis said.

The balance of the first phase of the capital projects consists of the reconstruction of Wasson Road, Davis told reporters — a project which, based on last night's council action on the project, could get into its construction phase by late June, he said.

The council took a look at numerous options for improving Wasson, ranging from a two-lane street with a continuous left-hand turn lane to a four-lane street with a painted median. Prices ranged from $375,000 to $500,000.

Basing their decision on traffic counts and visions of growth in the area, the council picked a $450,000 option, which calls for a four-lane street

Candidates: Coahoma JP

The Herald has given questionnaires to both of the candidates for the justice of the peace, precinct two. The candidates are Willie (New) Grant and Jane Gilmore.

The purpose of the questionnaire is to give voters more information with which to compare the two candidates. This race will be on ballots in voter precincts 9 and 21.

The candidates were asked to limit their answers to 50 words or less. The answers are being printed exactly as received, including grammatical errors. The Herald also asks for biographical information which can be found at the end of each person's answers.

Big Spring to lose WFAA

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Big Springers tuning in Saturday to channel 8 WFAA won't find the old familiar faces of Tracy Rowlett or Lola Johnson, but instead, will be greeted by USA Network programming. The change is in response to a Federal Communications Commission ruling that upholds a request by KWAB, the Big Spring ABC affiliate, for non-duplication of ABC programming by the Dallas station.

With the change, Big Spring Cable

TV, Inc. will replace WFAA with USA Network on channel 8. USA is a 24-hour service that offers children's programming, sports, health series and a variety of other programs.

Jim Lancaster, manager of the cable office, explained that "we will have to drop WFAA's programming to protect the rights of KWAB. KWAB had asked us over a year ago to give them non-duplication protection; however, we appealed the request with the FCC claiming WFAA's signal was technically better.

"I know it's (WFAA) a popular channel, but we've reached the crossroads where we can't do anything about it. We did everything we could to retain it," Lancaster said.

KWAB is a satellite station for KTPX in Odessa. KTPA's station manager Bog Good said the request was simply to clarify the FCC law of non-duplication.

"I know the public thinks it's the fault of KWAB that WFAA will be taken off the cable, but the ruling by the FCC just reaffirmed what the cable company should have been doing a long time ago," Good said.

There have been some complaints in Big Spring that the KWAB signal is too weak for deaf persons with closed caption machines for their televisions. Some residents say they can only get ABC's closed caption programming on WFAA's signal.

Good said his station had only become aware of the difficulty last week and he stated that his staff was doing everything possible to remedy

Says Aussie visitor

Texas, Down Under are alike

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Australia conjures up images of an alien land with kangaroos bounding merrily along, koala bears crouched in trees and boomerangs whirring madly overhead. But according to visiting Australian Peter Diprose, the similarities between West Texas and "Down Under" are more striking than the differences.

"There is an outstanding similarity of countryside and interests in Australia and here. It's dry and flat, too. We have the same problems. Oil wells are the only difference," Diprose said at The Herald yesterday. Diprose is the group leader for five other Australians who are visiting the United States for approximately five weeks through the Rotary International Group Study Exchange.

Diprose said the group exchange had two purposes: to promote international understanding and to allow businessmen to examine things in their fields. A farmer and a rancher himself, Diprose's group consists of Malcolm Charman, school principal; Michael Dominic Fisher, solicitor (lawyer); Brian Francis Bourne, engineer; Alan McCormack, city administrative officer and John McRae, farmer.

Australians and Americans are not really that much different, Diprose said. "Our lifestyles are similar. The average person is employed in a job with pay comparable to America." But taxes in Australia may get a little more bite than in America, he added: "A highly-paid official may pay 67 percent of his salary in taxes," he said.

The mention of salaries led to a discussion of jobs and immigration in Australia. Diprose said a few years ago that the country suffered from a shortage of teachers and pushed for emigrants.

"We have a selective immigration policy because we want people to come and stay. We have many European refugees. Tradesmen, like carpenters, are what we need now — we've got plenty of college-educated people."

Private industry makes up a large portion of the work force in the country, he said, but the government did run some services such as the postal office and others. A vast land area and a small population accounted for some of the uniqueness of Australia, Diprose said.

North South Wales, an equivalent district to Texas, is the same size as Texas, but has a considerably smaller population. In fact, Texas has roughly the same population as the entire area of Australia, he said. "Seventy-eight percent of the population lives within 10 miles of the coast in about five major cities," Diprose added.

This small, concentrated population is probably more aware of national affairs than most Americans, Diprose said, because "we don't have that much going on in our isolated area so we are always looking outwards for outside news."

C-City police chief resigns under fire

By MARGARET BAUM
Herald Correspondent

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The requested resignations Tuesday of Police Chief Jimmy Roundtree and Lt. Jessie Dominguez by City Manager Rick Crowley have left the city with only three policemen.

Additionally, two police dispatchers, Anna Arrellano and Phyllis Klingel Hafer, resigned in support of the chief.

Last night, volunteer firemen began an expected several days of patrolling streets and, according to Crowley, will be providing a city watch and will not be taking action. Should law enforcement officials be required, Texas Department of Public Safety and Mitchell County Sheriff's Office personnel have been made available to the city.

In discussing his forced resignation, Roundtree cited personal financial problems, misrepresentation of his dismissal of a police officer several months ago and an investigation into the police department by County Attorney Pat Barber as reasons for his dismissal.

City Manager Crowley disputed Roundtree's assertion that the county attorney's investigation is one of the reasons given for requesting the chief's resignation. The investigation alleges police brutality.

Roundtree said, "I have no comment regarding the financial situation. As for the dismissal of the officer, the reasons I terminated him seemed acceptable at the time to the city manager. As for the investigation, we have documented proof that the Colorado City Police Department has been under investigation by the county attorney's office since 1977."

Roundtree added, "The first part of next week we will hold a news conference at which time we will present evidence and allegations by several law enforcement agencies against the county attorney's office. We may possibly be looking at a grand jury hearing."

County Attorney Barber said today, "In February, I informed the city manager I was investigating certain matters concerning the city police department. In March the investigation was made known to several other local officials."

Barber added, "Recently, I received word from sources with access to local law enforcement officers that if I pursued my investigation into allegations of police brutality, an attempt would be made to discredit me as a prosecutor."

Barber concluded, "I have not been, nor will I be, intimidated by that kind of threat. The district attorney, Rusty Carroll, and I have conferred about the current investigation status and the evidence will be presented to the next session of the Mitchell County Grand Jury."

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Lawn bowling

Q. Where can I find the rules for lawn bowling? Do you know if we could get a lawn bowling club started in Big Spring?

A. The rules may be found in "Sports for Recreation," edited by E.D. Mitchell or in the "Encyclopedia of Sports" by Frank Menke which is in the Howard County Library. A personal advertisement would seem to be the best way to gather other lawn bowler lovers.

Car rolls into Moss Creek Lake

A 1981 Chevrolet Z-28 spent last night under about two dozen feet of water, officials said.

The car, owned by Joe Boyles of the Southland Apartments, apparently rolled over an embankment at Moss Creek Lake and plunged into the water at about 2 p.m. yesterday, police said.

According to Big Spring building inspector Dewey Byers, whose brother Jim is a ranger at the lake, the car rolled down a 15 to 20 foot hill and plunged into about 20 feet of water.

The driver, Timothy Wilde, was out of the car when it rolled and was not injured in the incident, according to police reports.

Jim Byers said a crane and divers were due at the lake this morning to try to raise the car.

He added that the car had been parked at a pavilion on the north side of the lake at the time of the incident.

Police Beat

Five arrested in pot bust

Four men and one woman were arrested by Big Spring police last night after officers discovered approximately two and one-half pounds of marijuana in a house at 1315 Kinde.

A task force headed by Detectives Roy Lee Osborne and Bill Price made the arrest yesterday at 7:30 p.m. after securing search and arrest warrants for the suspects. According to police, a routine search of the house uncovered the marijuana.

Arrested were Datalina Onofre, 35; Wand Diane Rend, 24; Andy Penara, 30; Gerardo Guerra, 51; and Hector Valdes, 29. The five defendants were still in jail this morning awaiting arraignment, police said.

John Fulesday of 1811 Alabama complained to police he was assaulted at 10 p.m. last night at Bowl-A-Rama. Fulesday said an unknown male jumped on him when he wasn't looking and struck him.

A case of criminal trespass was recorded by police yesterday as Don Bishop of 1305 Grafa told police someone entered his home between 3:15 and 10 p.m. Bishop said nothing was taken in the break-in.

Carlos Mata Jr. of 1300 Wright reported to police that someone stole a 2,800 BTU evaporative air conditioner from his backyard yesterday between 7 and 9:30 p.m. Mata estimated the cooler to be worth $260.

Police reported that two glass doors worth $600 were broken at the Jet Drive-In between 5 and 6:40 p.m. last night.

Tom Pettitt complained to police that while her car was parked at 2501 Hunter someone stole her purse containing $100 from the vehicle.

Vehicles driven by Stephan Russell Bullion of 1408 Nolan and Priscilla Lopez Rodriguez of 1010 N.W. Second collided Tuesday at 4:21 p.m. in the 300 block of Ayford. Neither driver was injured, according to police reports.

Absentee balloting over

Final figures for absentee voting for the Democratic and Republican primaries were boosted yesterday on the last day of absentee voting by 151 ballots cast in the Howard County clerk's office. The final tally for Democratic absentee voting is 461 voters in the office with 25 of 39 mail ballots received.

Republican totals show 29 ballots cast in the office with 10 of 14 mail ballots received.

2 arrested on warrants

Two Big Spring men were arrested Tuesday on charges of revocation of probation by Howard County sheriff's deputies.

One of the men, Jimmy Ray Lindsey, is being held in county jail without bond. Lindsey, 27, of 1905 Wasson, was arrested on a Hale County warrant and is being held for that county's sheriff's office.

Paul Andrew Davis, 20, of 811 Ohio, was released after posting a $1,500 bond through B & M Bail Bond. He is charged in a warrant from Taylor County.

with a continuous left-hand turn lane from F.M. 700 to west of the park entrance, and a four-lane street with a painted median from the park entrance to Randolph Road.

STILL ANOTHER progress report on a big project was offered yesterday, this one concerning the building of new aviation's facilities at the city airport. The first two of three hangars to be built on the west side of the runways are in the construction stages; the city has the bond money to be used to buy the hangars from the Howard County Industrial Foundation, which is financing construction of the first two hangars; the city is prepared to build the third hangar on its own — and the whole project should be completed by October, Davis told reporters.

Additionally, the council last night approved a bid from Permian Night of Midland to install a water line which will connect with the hangars. The bid was for $53,284.75 and compared with a high bid of $76,262.50 from HBH Construction Co. of Odessa.

But the airport project has not been proceeding without hitches. Davis was asked in his press meeting whether the city felt that recent reductions in the work force at O.I.L., the company whose expansion prompted the airport project, might be a cause of concern to city planners, now that things have gotten so far along.

"I'm worried about it," Davis said, "but we have a binding contract with them, secured by (O.I.L.'s parent corporation) Kidde, that legally obligates them to the expansion." O.I.L. signed a contract with the city to expand onto the property where the hangars currently sit; by the time it takes over all the space it contracted for at the airport and industrial park, O.I.L. will be paying the city some $393,000 a year in rent.

ANOTHER BUMP in the road toward smooth completion of the project was the recent lawsuit filed by the city against one of the fixed-base operators using a hangar at the airport. The city sued O.D. Landrum and his Big Spring Aero Service earlier

While the Australians may be internationally-conscious, they do not ignore the local political scene, with nearly 100 percent of the populace expected at the polls for every election. But "voting is compulsory in Australia by law — there is a very stiff fine for not voting," Diprose said. Unlike the primaries Texans will avoid on Saturday, Australians do not have them at all as the parties themselves pre-select candidates.

"We have two major parties, one minor party and several splinter groups. The liberal party is somewhat like the Republicans while the labor party is similar to the Democrats," he explained.

the situation. Good said KTPX currently is considering buying a new, stronger transmitter for KWAB; however, he could not give a definite date when the equipment might be purchased.

It may not matter whether KTPX makes the changes because in the fall

KTPX and KMID, in Midland, will effect a network swap.

KTPX, an ABC affiliate, will become an NBC affiliate, and KMID, which broadcasts NBC, will change to ABC programming.

According to executives of both stations the change was brought about after two years of negotiating.

Early winners spend campaign funds, too

The contested races in Howard County are not the only races where money is being spent to achieve county offices. Candidates who are without opposition also pay filing fees and have other expenses, as well.

The Herald reported on the campaign finance statements of the candidates in contested races in yesterday's edition.

Unopposed candidates' spending is as follows with David Barr, commissioner, precinct four, $300; their offices: Peggy Crittenden, district clerk, $431.55; Bonnie Franklin, county treasurer, $606.24; Margaret Ray, county clerk $621.23; Clifton Crim, county surveyor, $50 and J.B. Hall, constable, $100.

Monday was the deadline for filing financial statements prior to the May 1 election.

British fleet poised for action off Falklands

By The Associated Press

Britain declared today that a "total" war zone 200 miles around the Falkland Islands will go into effect at 7 a.m. EDT Friday, and Argentina put its forces on "maximum alert."

The two sides also said they were studying a U.S. peace plan relayed by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. But Argentina said it expects "military operations" in the Falklands area in 24 to 48 hours.

Details of the plan were not known, but a government source in London said: "Clearly Mr. Haig wants to bring some sort of finality to the issue, with some sensible way of resolving it."

As prospects for peace grew dim, the British Defense Ministry announced that any ship or aircraft, including Soviet vessels, that are found within the "total exclusion zone" will be regarded as hostile and liable to attack.

The British move came amid mounting speculation that the task force now off the Falkland Islands was poised to launch an assault on the South Atlantic archipelago seized by Argentina April 2.

It also followed an emergency Cabinet meeting presided over by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Government sources in London said the session produced "no fresh optimism" of a negotiated settlement.

The British Defense Ministry stressed that the war zone extends to the airstrip at Stanley, the Falklands' capital.

The zone extends a 200-mile maritime blockade around the islands declared by Britain April 12 to include aircraft. Defense Ministry spokesmen said the new move includes civilian aircraft and ships as well as military and naval craft.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda accused Britain of aiming to resolve the Falklands crisis by "military force" and said the dispute's "negative influence already makes itself felt, disrupting normal shipping in the southern Atlantic and world trade in general."

Western diplomats in Moscow speculated that the reference to shipping and trade reflected Soviet anxiety that the crisis could interfere with the Kremlin's grain purchases from Argentina. The Soviets buy $2.7 billion of grain from Argentina annually and is the Argentine junta's leading trade partner. Argentina also is a major supplier of meat for the Soviet Union.

The British Broadcasting Corp. and DYN reported Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. sent a new peace proposal to the Argentine military junta and discussed it with Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez in Washington, but there was no word of the content of the proposals.

American nations support Argentina

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organization of American States foreign ministers approved a resolution early this morning recognizing Argentine sovereignty over the Falkland Islands and urging Great Britain and Argentina to establish a truce.

The vote was taken at 2:10 a.m., ending a marathon debate that demonstrated widespread support for the Argentine cause in Latin America and left the United States politically isolated from its hemispheric partners.

The United States — which abstained along with Chile, Colombia and Trinidad — felt the OAS should not prejudice the sovereignty issue.

The remaining 17 countries voted in favor of the measure, three more than the two-thirds majority needed for approval.

The resolution also deplored the decision of the European Economic Community earlier this month to impose economic and political sanctions against Argentina. The OAS said the sanctions represented a "grave precedent" and asked the EEC to lift them.

The measure also called for implementation of U.N. Security Council resolution 502. Approved on April 3, the day after Argentina seized the islands, the U.N. resolution seeks an immediate end to hostilities, a negotiated settlement and the withdrawal of Argentine forces from the islands.

Argentina has indicated a willingness to withdraw its troops from the Falklands provided its claim to sovereignty is assured. From the start of the crisis, Argentina has said its right to sovereignty is not negotiable, and the OAS upheld that claim.

The debate unfolded against a background of potential hostilities in the Falklands. Tuesday afternoon, Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez asked his fellow ministers to approve a resolution as quickly as possible, saying his government had received information that the British naval fleet may attack the islands in 24 to 48 hours.

VOTE ON RESOLUTION — Foreign Ministers at a special session of the Organization of American States vote on a resolution of support for Argentina early Wednesday in Washington, recognizing Argentine sovereignty over the Falkland Islands. Voting 17 to 0, with four nations including the United States abstaining, the group called on Great Britain to "cease immediately" hostilities in the South Atlantic and urged both Britain and Argentina to resume peace negotiations after establishing a military truce.

Haig says U.S., Soviet Union in dangerous, sensitive period

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning that the United States and the Soviet Union are in a "sensitive and dangerous period," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says the United States must be willing to negotiate its differences with Moscow.

"Total victory by military means has become a formula for mutual catastrophe" for both sides because of nuclear weapons, Haig said. He also said the United States "faces an historic opportunity in dealing with the Soviet Union."

In a speech to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Haig said the United States should send a "signal" to the emerging new Soviet leadership — who will take power in the post-Brezhnev period — that moderate behavior and improved U.S.-Soviet relations will be to Moscow's benefit.

But Haig's strongest remarks concerned the need for the United States to sit down at the negotiating table with the Soviets. A U.S. official said Haig is apparently worried that the recent debate over whether the Soviets have nuclear superiority could reduce the U.S. incentive for meaningful negotiations to reduce strategic nuclear weapons.

"Nothing is gained by appearing to fear diplomatic discussions — neither leverage over the Soviets, nor the respect and confidence of our allies," Haig said.

"We cannot claim that we are too weak to negotiate and at the same time insist that we are strong enough for a policy of all-out confrontation," he added.

Hinckley jury selection continues

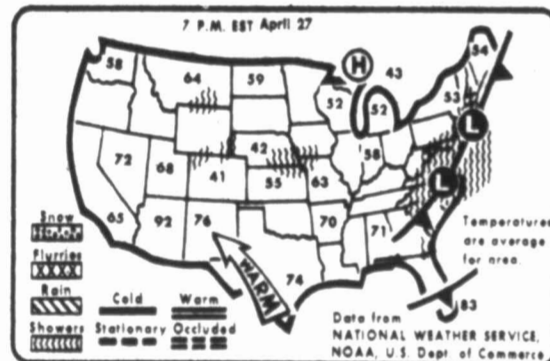

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pool of prospective jurors was narrowed further today in the trial of presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr., as the judge ordered those remaining to "turn a deaf ear" to news accounts of the case. On the second day of jury selection, U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker dismissed CBS White House correspondent Bill Plante, who said Tuesday he had covered stories involving Hinckley and knew a number of potential witnesses in the case.

Plante was the third prospective juror to be dismissed, narrowing jury pool from 90 to 87 people.

Choate, Wrinkle to run Reese's local campaign

Jim Reese, (R-Odessa), a candidate for the 28th District senatorial nomination in the May 1 GOP primary, named two campaign coordinators for Howard County during a visit to Big Spring yesterday.

Wade Choate, former Big Spring mayor, was appointed Reese's chairman for the county. "It's a pleasure to work with Wade," Reese said. "We're good friends and he was mayor of Big Spring at the same time I was Odessa's mayor. I'm sure he'll do an excellent job for me."

Long-time Republican supporter Winston Wrinkle was named as finance coordinator for the campaign.

"I've been friend with Winston for many years and it's good to get to work with him on something worthwhile for the whole area," Reese said.

Reese said he feels good about his campaign, but he does expect a low Republican voter turnout on May 1.

Voters face hard choices

Saturday is election day, and we urge everyone to participate in the democratic process by voting.

Voters will have choices in four races in the Democratic primary. Three good men are running for county judge, and choosing the best man is a difficult task. Incumbent Bill Tune, fighting his political life, has the advantage of solid experience. His campaign has been tainted by controversy concerning the juvenile Probation Board, however, which we feel could have been avoided had he himself spoken up earlier that he was not a candidate for the juvenile probation job.

However, in spite of this flaw, we still find Tune to be the best candidate for the job. His opponents, John Stanley and Milton Kirby, have good records of service to the community. But Tune's accomplishments — including the establishment of a county retirement system and his ability to stay within a budget — seem to outweigh the other candidates' qualifications. Ironically, Tune will lose his retirement benefits unless he is elected because he needs at least two more years of service to the county for his retirement to become vested.

IN THE COMMISSIONERS race, Precinct Two, Paul Allen appears to be the logical best choice. He has done a good job so far and deserves the opportunity to complete projects he has begun in his current term. His opponents, however, also have good qualities, but our gut feeling is that Allen's experience and accomplishments give him the edge.

IN THE JUSTICE OF THE PEACE race, Precinct One, Place Two, we would go with Lewis Heflin. He too has done a good job in the past three and a half years, and we were impressed with the thoughtfulness of his answers to a recent questionnaire published in the Herald. Of the three justices currently sitting in Precinct One, Heflin does by far the best job.

IN THE JUSTICE OF THE PEACE position for Precinct Two, again we have a difficult choice. Jane Gilmore, however, impresses us with her spunk and energy. Her volunteer work as a certified firefighter and her experience as a nurse are accomplishments that would be helpful in situations involving death and dying, where levelheadedness is essential in making a ruling.

REGARDLESS OF WHICH candidate you support, the important thing is that you cast your vote and be part of the democratic process in Saturday's elections.

Just another president

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan, shielded from contamination by Reagan from the presidential nomination and then wound up managing Reagan administration policy. Since last September, he has stubbornly pressed upon a resisting president the doctrine of budget director David Stockman that only tax increases and defense cuts can cure the economy.

Rep. Jack Kemp, chairman of the House Republican Conference and the only dissenter that day among the GOP congressional chiefs, suggested the package was a terrible bargain for their party that would not be acceptable to rank-and-file members. His prophecy was fulfilled the next day when the conference shouted rowdy opposition to Baker's bargain.

Actually, Democratic reluctance to accept anything less than a ripping apart of the Reagan tax cut (still resisted by the president) probably dooms the Baker package anyway. Nevertheless, the nature of Reagan's presidency has been subtly altered. He has shown for the first time a willingness to abandon deeply-held principle for what the conventional wisdom perceives as something that will work.

THIS IS A NEW triumph in the remarkable career of Jim Baker, who twice managed campaigns to keep Reagan from the presidential nomination and then wound up managing Reagan administration policy. Since last September, he has stubbornly pressed upon a resisting president the doctrine of budget director David Stockman that only tax increases and defense cuts can cure the economy.

Baker's campaign for the last six weeks has quarantined the president from the likes of Kemp. Sen. William Roth somehow could not get time with the president for himself and 18 other Republican senators to pledge their loyalty to his tax program. Requests to see Reagan by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce were ignored by the president's senior staff.

The several dissenters on the White House staff, appalled at what was happening under Baker's direction, saw the president surrounded and pressured. While only a few feet from Reagan, they could not get word to him. Thus, Reagan tacitly approved Baker's package, repudiating the president's own principles and promises by advocating a surtax on "wealth," a doubled federal gasoline tax, deep defense cuts and reduced Social Security payments.

ONLY KEMP protested at the April 20 meeting. But the next day showed that he was in closer touch with the House rank-and-file than his colleagues in the leadership. Such junior Republicans as Reps. Dan Lungren and William Dannemeyer of California and Newton Gingrich of Georgia opposed the shape of the emerging compromise at the House Republican Conference, producing cheers and applause.

Indeed, opposition to the surtax and higher gasoline taxes is so intense that the package would be supported by scarcely more than 70 out of 192 Republican House members. Kemp and Gingrich have argued that Reagan's legislative triumphs of last year can be preserved only through a renewed alliance with bol-weepie congressional Democrats found so disreputable by the establishment of both parties.

The regular Republican leadership in Congress, accustomed to both defeat and respectability, has insisted a deal with Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill is essential, even if the price is high. In permitting himself to be maneuvered into that posture, Reagan has followed an undistinguished presidential pattern.

Aides play while Haig's away

WASHINGTON — Behind every international crisis, there are diplomats who spend as much effort maneuvering against each other as they do trying to solve the crisis. It presents the opportunity to play a starring role and climb ever higher on the ladder of power.

Take the case of Lawrence Eagleburger, undersecretary of state for political affairs. In the diplomatic pecking order, he's regarded as No. 3. But when two international crises — the Falkland Islands and the Middle East — erupted simultaneously, Eagleburger saw a chance to elbow aside the No. 2 man, Deputy Secretary Walter Stoessel, and become a super star himself. Here was the situation:

Secretary of State Alexander Haig, the indisputed Numero Uno, took personal charge of the hotter of the two crises, the Falkland Islands dispute. In the style of his old mentor, Henry Kissinger, Haig began shuttling between London and Buenos Aires to prevent a shooting war.

Obviously, Haig wasn't available for any shuttling around the Middle East. Who should be sent, Stoessel or Eagleburger? No. 2 or No. 3? Opportunity was knocking. Stoessel is a 62-year-old career diplomat of the old school, a professional with wide experience in East-West affairs, including a stint as U.S. ambassador in Moscow. Calm and unflappable, he is not known for overweening personal ambition.

boss, Kissinger, was secretary of state and a Nobel Prize winner by the time he was 50.

AT ANY RATE, Eagleburger sent a cable to his old colleague Haig, recommending Stoessel for the Middle East crisis shuttle. Then he called the White House plane to undercut his own cable. He spoke with an aide to Haig, Alvin Adams. My reporters Dale Van Atta and Jeff Nesbit have transcribed the conversation from a tape recording.

After a brief preliminary, Eagleburger gets to the real reason for his call.

"Uh, listen, I want to make one point," he says. "In one of the cables you will be getting, you will find Mr. Stoessel's name. I have put that in the cable because I'm a nice fellow, but I feel very strongly, very strongly that if he's going to buy — if (Haig) is going to buy the proposal at all — it would be better if my name were there, because I'm nastier. Do you understand?"

Adams hadn't heard the transmission, so Eagleburger repeated it all.

Footnote: A State Department spokesman said that Eagleburger had no comment.

UNION VS. HATCH — Utah Republicans are up in arms over a recent letter sent out by the state AFL-CIO vehemently attacking Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who is running for re-election this year. Hatch worked his way through law school as a metal lath worker, and has boasted of his membership in the AFL-CIO. But the union's leaders regard him as an opponent of labor.

The letter, written by Eddie Mayne of the Utah AFL-CIO, accuses Hatch of trying to shoot down the eight-hour day, the federal labor safety agency and the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires federal contractors to pay union-scale wages. It says that "polls show Orrin Hatch is vulnerable," and makes no secret of its hope that he'll be defeated in the fall.

The Utah GOP is contemplating a formal complaint to the Federal Election Commission, questioning the legality of spending and soliciting union funds on a partisan political attack. The Republicans claim there are six federal statutes that the letter may violate.

Mayne has challenged the Republicans to file charges, and says the letter has raised less than $20,000 so far. He says the money will be used for "voter education," promotion of the AFL-CIO's image and a non-partisan get-out-the-vote effort.

UNDER THE DOME — Julian Barber, an aide to Sen. Harrison Schmidt, R-N.M., was aghast to find the windows in his new quarters in the Dirksen Office Building are locked shut as an energy conservation measure. Nonsense, cried Barber, it's just "to keep me from jumping out" when the bureaucrats in Washington get on his nerves.

Billy Graham

Christians narrow-minded?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I can't see why you Christians are so narrow-minded as to think you have the truth. There are lots of other religions in the world that ought to be just as good. — D.M.

DEAR D.M.: If I believed that Jesus was just another religious teacher who spent his life trying to find out about God, then I would have to agree with you. Jesus would be the same as any of the other great religious teachers of the world.

But what if Jesus is more than a great religious teacher? What if he is not just a great human being, but is also God? What if he is not just a god-like man, but is God himself come in human form? If that were true, then Jesus would be completely different from all the other religious leaders who have ever lived.

This is, in fact, what Jesus claimed for himself. Repeatedly in the four Gospels which tell of his life he states that he is unique, because he alone is God. His birth was seen as a fulfillment of prophecy: "The virgin will be with child and will give birth to a son, and they will call him Immanuel — which means, 'God with us'" (Matthew 1:23). His enemies tried to kill him because "he was even calling God his own Father, making himself equal with God" (John 5:18).

Why do Christians believe Jesus was the Son of God, who alone can reveal God to us perfectly? After all (you may say) anyone could claim to be God. But Christians believe Jesus was the unique Son of God because he not only claimed it and demonstrated it in his life and miracles, but because he rose from the dead. This makes him absolutely unique, and verifies that he is worthy of our trust and our commitment.

I invite you to give your life to Jesus Christ without reserve, because you can know — if you really want to know — that he is "the way and the truth and the life" (John 14:6). He came to deal with our greatest problem, our sins, and by trusting him you can be saved. I challenge you to investigate the claims of Christ. I believe if you do, you will say like the disciple who at first did not believe either, "My Lord and my God!" (John 20:28).

Woman's movement was not 'founded'

Dear Editor: Space does not permit a review of the history of the women's movement in the United States. But Mrs. Falkner needs to know that Betty Friedan, Bella Abzug and Karen DeCrow were not "founders" of the women's movement. These women were instrumental in founding the National Organization for Women in 1966 and the National Women's political Caucus shortly afterward.

The women's movement was not "founded." It has been happening in this country since early colonial times. Mrs. Falkner, please do a bit of research about Anne Hutchinson, Abigail Adams (more well known as Mrs. John Adams), Lucretia Mott, Emma Willard, Elizabeth Blackwell, Mary Lyon, Lucy Stone, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Sojourner Truth, Angelina and Sarah Grimke, Antoinette Brown, Dorothea Dix, Carry Nation, Susan B. Anthony, Margaret Sanger, Carrie Catt Chapman and Alice Paul, among others.

It is nice that the library now has a biography of Phyllis Schlafly, since it does not have available biographies of most of the above women. And Mrs. Schlafly's book will have a safe shelf space in the biographical section, isles away from other material about the women's movement. This book will be easier to find this way, in the event I should decide to read it, which I shall do the very day Mrs. Schlafly is arrested for voting illegally as was Susan B. Anthony — the illegality being the act of voting.

Incidentally, what Gloria Steinem and Eleanor Smel feel about Phyllis Schlafly is not bitterness; these women feel contempt for Mrs. Schlafly because she steps on her sisters, past and present, who have sacrificed so much so that she could gain her success, including being admitted to the Harvard Law School, a bastion of male supremacy until the advent of the modern women's movement. Phyllis Schlafly is an "Aunt Tom".

'Caught in Between' shows the deaf person's dilemma

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The cast and crew brought SWCID playwright Steve Baldwin's words to life last night in a special preview performance of "Caught in Between" at the Howard College auditorium. The play, which concerns a 15-year-old hard of hearing girl trying to cope with her deafness, is designed for both hearing and deaf audiences.

The Herald was given a dress rehearsal viewing of the play, which is scheduled to open at 8 p.m. this Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The play was written and produced by Baldwin, an instructor at SWCID, with Helen Bonura as director. The cast is made up entirely of SWCID personnel, with the exception of Cecelia McKenzie and David Justice from the Spring City Theater.

Basically, the story is about a young girl with a hearing problem trying to make a decision on whether to attend a public school or a deaf residential institution. Her dilemma is further heightened by the pushings and pullings of her parents, friends and doctors.

Although the people portrayed in the play are deaf, almost every situation that the girl faces can be applied to everyday life. The central character, Linda May Bone, experiences frustration, boredom, peer pressure, sexual pressure from boyfriends and the pains of growing up.

Traci Wood heads up a cast of talented players as Linda May and she looks every bit the part of a 15-year-old girl.

She manages to convey her disgust of being manipulated by her friends to the audience until we feel a solid rapport with the character.

Wilam Evans, as Linda Mays' mother, gives an expressive performance as a woman exasperated by the insensitivity of the hearing world. Bob Coltrane plays David Bone, the estranged husband.

Coltrane and Ms. Evans have a particularly effective scene as two people irrevocably breaking apart over their daughter's schooling decision.

Jeff Davis is delightful as a slightly obnoxious audiologist, while Cecelia McKenzie captures the spirit of dedicated educator in her role as Sister Margarita, Linda May's teacher.

Others to watch for are Paul Lovell and Walker Estes, who play a couple of Linda May's school chums. These two characters show that peer pressure often has as much influence in decision making as parental guidance.

Other good performances in the show come from Art Dignan as a grandfather, David Justice as a priest, Fred Roy as an interpreter caught in between both sides and Bern Jones as an administrator.

Hats off to Director Helen Bonura and Baldwin. It is apparent they have spent many hours of hard work on the play and have woven it into entertaining vehicle for the cast.

For further ticket information call SWCID at 267-2511.

Reagan the optimist sees happier economy

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan, the incurable optimist, sees economic silver linings where others see dark clouds stretching toward the horizon.

"The dike" that has kept interest rates so high "is beginning to go," the president observed the other day after perusing the weekend real estate advertisements in The Washington Post.

But the homebuilders, car dealers and other people whose livelihoods are being threatened by the high cost of credit don't see that bright picture. At best, they see only a modest drop in interest rates in the months ahead; at worst, they fear rates will climb even higher in the future. Currently, they see no improvement.

"Eventually, interest rates will come down slightly, but not a lot," said Frank McCarthy, executive vice president of the National Automobile Dealers Association. "It'll be more than a trickle, but the dam won't burst."

"We do agree that mortgage rates will be breaking soon," and likely will decline by 2 or 3 percentage points by midyear, adds Warren Matthews, senior economist for the Mortgage Bankers Association. But Matthews also believes mortgage rates will rise again in the second-half of the year, when an economic recovery is expected to get under way.

The persistence of abnormally steep interest rates in the midst of a serious recession has been the most mysterious economic development of 1982. Conventional wisdom holds that a drop in credit demand and a significant easing of inflation brought about by the recession should have prompted interest rates to come down by now.

Open for business

Even though there are some very optimistic, positive signs around us, Americans and the press seem to dwell almost eagerly on the negative. Digest just a few of the good news items and see how many of them you knew:

ITEM: The American people saved — put away in the bank and in money funds, etc. — $140 billion in 1981. That is a record in American history. It's also enough to cover the projected fiscal 1982 federal deficit and have $20 billion left over. And yet, all we hear is that America is going bankrupt!

ITEM: Inflation, which was economic public enemy number one just last year, has all but disappeared as a major issue.

ITEM: In March, the Producer Price Index, which measures wholesale prices, fell for the second month in a row, matching February's drop of 0.1 percent. The last time the index fell for two consecutive months was six years ago.

ITEM: The beleaguered housing industry is showing encouraging signs of having bottomed out in October at an annual rate of 854,000 units of housing starts. By February, the rate was 953,000, up six percent from January and nearly 12 percent above the October low. Building permits for privately owned housing units have also been on the rise since October, when they hit a low annual rate of 722,000. In February, the rate was up 16 percent to 838,000 indicating more future increases in housing starts.

ITEM: Retail sales first quarter average is about the same as a year earlier.

ITEM: The Industrial Production Index increased 1.6 percent in February, the first rise since last July. By the same token manufacturing utilization rates were up for the first time since July 1981.

ITEM: While unemployment is at nine percent, nearly a post-WWII record, employment is also at a near-record 57 percent of the working-age population. The record was reached in 1979 when employment hit 59 percent.

ITEM: In 46.2 percent of American industries, employment was up in February. By comparison, employment was up in fewer than 30 percent for each month between October and January.

ITEM: Income from wages and salaries rose $7.7 billion in the period from January to February.

ITEM: While most economic writers have been focusing on the increasing estimates of federal budget deficits for next year, few noted that the deficit for the first five months for this fiscal year is $2 billion less than the deficit for the same period in fiscal 1981.

ITEM: And interest rates, though still at an unacceptably high level, have taken a sharp drop during the last year. For instance, the prime rate, which was over 20 percent last summer, has dropped to 16.5 percent.

Let's keep our perspective by reviewing the good news when we get bombarded with bad news!

James Merrill Brockman, a convicted counterfeiter, told The Associated Press that inflation is killing his former profession. With the cost of setting up a counterfeiting operation at $100,000, he said, money just isn't worth enough to make the business profitable. See ... just another example of a silver lining in every cloud!

VOTEVOTEVOTEVOTE
Executive Vice President at GAMCO, JUDITH RICKEY, recently told us about a series of eight grammar books just released in which two of their employees have been recognized for outstanding work: LISA McMILLAN for handling the typesetting and MARTY MEANS in charge of the art. These books will be used all over the nation in classrooms.

Dr. Donohue Aspirin harmful

Dear Dr. Donohue: I need some guidance in the use of aspirin for my children when they run a temperature. I have read that you shouldn't use aspirin because it may cause Reye's syndrome. What are we to do now if children have a temperature? Please help. — Mrs. G.O.

Reye's syndrome is a serious complication of certain viral infections, especially from chicken pox and influenza. Reye's is really not that common — only slightly more than 200 cases being reported for all of 1981. But because of the potential for disastrous outcome, we have to do everything we can to prevent it.

The usual sequence of events in Reye's is this: After a child has had a viral infection, such as chicken pox or a flu-like cold, he may become drowsy and progressively unresponsive, and, finally, lethargic (comatose). This is Reye's syndrome, and there has been some evidence that the use of salicylates (aspirin drugs) is a possible factor in it. This has been widely publicized. Your concern is quite natural, and I imagine that it is in the minds of many parents.

I can do no better than to quote from a statement made by the Center for Disease Control, the national organization that keeps tabs on such things: "Until the nature of the association between salicylates and Reye's syndrome is clarified, the use of salicylates (aspirin) should be avoided, when possible, for children with varicella (chicken pox) infection and during presumed influenza outbreaks."

Certainly, if there is any doubt about the nature of a child's illness, it seems prudent to avoid aspirin to lower temperature until you have checked with your doctor. He may advise use of acetaminophen (Tylenol) if the temperature has to be lowered. You can also use other temperature-lowering methods, such as sponging with tepid water. I have not given you the definitive answer you seek, but it is the best one available at this point.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have the illness, erythromelalgia. I have a burning pain, swelling and redness of the extremities. Does it ever burn itself out? I have had it for five years now. I'll be cooling my heels while I await your answers. — V.C.

I don't know the answer to your question. I can't find anyone who does, nor can I find any references in the literature. But in the meantime (while I am looking), there are some things you can do to ease the pain. Erythromelalgia is a temperature-triggered response. So cooling your heels in this case is more than a figurative solution. If you can manage to keep your feet in a cooler environment that may help matters. Some people with this let their feet stick out of the covers at night. They wear sandals. And either aspirin or methysergide has brought relief to others.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have read of a drug for Parkinson's disease called levodopa, and I am desperate to know where I can locate this drug. — L.W.

It is a drug that has to be prescribed, and ought to be available to any pharmacist. Two trade names are: Sinemet (Merck, Sharp & Dhome) and Larodopa (Roche).

Dear Abby

Book gives happy ending

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to thank you for the most wonderful Christmas I've ever had. I don't expect you to remember me, but my name is Phil and I'm 43. I stood in line at Macy's in San Francisco last December to buy a copy of your book, "The Best of Dear Abby." I asked you to autograph it to Tim — my lover of many years.

I gave it to Tim for Christmas and we read it together. After reading Chapter 5, "The Homosexual Hassle," I immediately bought another copy of your book and sent it to my parents, asking them to read Chapter 5 very carefully. You see, Abby, my parents disowned me 18 years ago because I told them I was gay and they just couldn't handle it.

To make a long story short, my parents agreed to meet me at my sister's house in San Leandro — the first time in 18 years! And yes, I brought Tim along. My mother loved him, and my dad actually talked to Tim and me as though we were real human beings. I couldn't believe it!

It took 18 years, a $10 book, and you, Dear Abby, to make my parents understand and accept my gay lifestyle.

A simple "thank you" is not sufficient. You will never know what you did for me, Tim and my family. As melodramatic as it may seem, you brought a family together. God bless you. Your rewards will be eternal. The names are real and you may use any part or all of this letter.

PHIL IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR PHIL: Thank you. Your letter made my day.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is engaged to marry a nice young man she met in college about a year ago. I'll call him Doug. He lives in a nearby town (70 miles away), but we've never met his parents. The kids are planning to be married in September but haven't set a date yet.

I don't want to seem snobbish, but according to etiquette, Doug's parents are supposed to make the first move and invite us over to get acquainted. So far we have not heard from them. We "met" over the phone just to say hello when the kids were here and told us they were getting married.

I imagine Doug's parents aren't aware that it's their place to call us. Should we tell our daughter to tell Doug to tell his parents to call us?

Council to install officers

The installation banquet for the Big Spring Council of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held at K-Bob's restaurant at 7 p.m. Monday.

Dinner will be a ranch steak, baked potato, salad and beverage. Cost is $6.31 including tip.

Persons planning to attend should make reservations by Thursday by calling Mattie Watson, 263-7542.

STICKY PROBLEM

DEAR STICKY: Common sense, consideration and kindness are more important than etiquette. Don't wait for Doug's parents to make the first move. Call to invite them to come to meet you.

DEAR ABBY: A co-worker was ordered to quit smoking in the office after several of us complained to the boss. (She was a chain smoker.) Now she chews bubble gum instead, and the constant cracking and popping of her gum is driving us crazy. Can you believe a woman in her 40s chewing bubble gum all day in an office? I think she does it just to bug us.

When we ask her to please keep the noise of her gum-chewing down, she says, "What do you want from me? I can't smoke because you complained, and I have to do something!"

Any suggestions?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Complain to the boss about bubble gum. A person has no more right to subject coworkers to irritating noises than to air pollution.

Approval of routes brightens gloomy day for Eastern Airlines

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eastern Airlines has been issued a formal order by the Civil Aeronautics Board that allows it to operate most of Braniff International Airways' routes to South America, brightening an otherwise gloomy day for Eastern shareholders.

On Tuesday, Eastern Chairman Frank Borman told an often-hostile group of stockholders meeting in New York that the Miami-based carrier had posted a $51.5 million loss in the worst quarter in its 54-year history. But Borman said the CAB's decision to award Braniff's routes to Eastern would lift the airline's sagging fortunes.

Pan American World Airways and Air Florida late Tuesday made a joint proposal to the board under which they would have shared Braniff's routes. But the board said the emergency nature of Braniff's financial condition precluded deferring action to study the proposal by the two carriers.

But board members noted that Braniff had not endorsed or approved the joint proposal and that Braniff's cash-short position required immediate action on the Eastern proposal.

The CAB on Monday night gave Eastern approval to operate the Braniff routes for up to 15 months. Members also said they would consider Eastern's proposed agreement with Braniff, made earlier in the day, to operate the routes for six years.

Eastern's proposal successfully thwarted a plan under which Pan Am would have obtained the Braniff routes for $30 million.

The CAB had denied interim approval of the Pan Am-Braniff deal on April 16 and had urged Braniff to seek an arrangement that would avoid having a single U.S. carrier serve virtually all of the South American routes. That would have been the case had Pan Am got the Braniff routes.

On Monday, in requesting emergency CAB action, Braniff reported its situation was "critical" and that either the Pan Am or Eastern plan would meet its financial needs.

In unanimously granting interim approval to the Braniff-Eastern agreement, the board said it would help Braniff preserve its route network and retain two U.S. airlines in South America.

Under the six-year Eastern proposal, Braniff would receive the same amount of money, $30 million, that it would get under the Pan Am plan — $18 million this year and $12 million in installments over three years starting in 1983.

The 11th hour Pan Am-Air Florida proposal, hammered out overnight, also offered $30 million over three years. Under that plan, Air Florida would have operated Braniff's routes between the United States and Panama and all Braniff routes to Brazil, Argentina, Peru, Chile, Bolivia and Paraguay. Pan Am would have taken over Braniff routes to Columbia and Ecuador, including a Panama-Columbia-Ecuador leg.

The two carriers asked the CAB to delay formal approval of the Eastern agreement until it had a chance to study their application.

They noted that Eastern, by not taking over Braniff service in some U.S. South American markets, would surrender almost 100,000 passengers to foreign airlines.

Inflation game is over

Marketplace justice making a slow return

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If the inflation game is over, as so many economists claim it is, then a drastic shift of fortunes, probably one of the most pronounced of the century, could ensue.

Should it occur, it would mean that the floaters — certain housing investors, workers, oil producers, borrowers — who used inflation to balloon assets would lose their updraft and return to earth.

For those who financed the flotation — savers, mortgage lenders, fixed-income investors and in general those who believed in sensible economic management, it would be the return of justice and a fair return.

While two ominous "ifs" still loom, optimists already feel the first evidence of the shift is now taking place. Savers are receiving returns that enable assets to grow. Mortgage lenders have broken through usury laws and again can lend at a profit. Analysts term extremely favorable the outlook for fixed-income securities, such as long-term bonds.

The changed outlook, a consequence of inflation having been reduced to manageable levels — perhaps only 4 percent for the calendar year — is described by some securities analysts as poetic justice.

For 15 years or so, they remind us, the exploiters of inflation grew without necessarily inventing or manufacturing or providing any greater services. They invested in inflation, and often borrowed to do so.

In borrowing, investors often drew in Uncle Sam as a partner, and he absorbed a major portion of the costs by agreeing to allow income tax writeoffs. And, of course, they repaid lenders in cheaper dollars.

Meanwhile, their investments may have risen faster than inflation in general. And while the investment appreciated in market value, the investor often could deduct a good deal of taxes for depreciation.

The fortunes of those who fed financing to the exploiters went the other way. They lost. The tax deductions that helped finance market exploitation were matched by higher tax brackets for others. Savers, in effect, lost savings. Mortgage lenders lost on loans. Automakers and municipalities almost went broke financing big wage increases.

To apply moral measurements to such activities accomplishes little or nothing, because the exploiters were only doing what they felt they had to do: Follow the incentives of the marketplace.

Evidence growing that a 'black hole' exists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers are gathering increasing evidence that a powerful "black hole" spewing huge amounts of energy exists at the center of the Milky Way galaxy.

Measurements of different types of radiation coming from the galactic center indicate a massive object sucking in dust, gases and possibly even stars, scientists said Monday at an American Institute of Physics meeting.

A black hole is believed to be a massive object, such as a large star, that collapses into itself and concentrates its matter and gravity.

Although the galactic core is not visible because of intervening cosmic clouds, indirect measurements indicate an object that could have a mass between 100 times and a million times that of the sun.

"An exotic, compact object must exist at the galactic center," Robert L. Brown of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory told a news briefing. The object gives off 10 million times the radiation of the sun, he added.

SMALL WORLD — Leland Feamster has created a "small world" of miniature carnival games and rides. Feamster, of Anderson, W. Va., who retired from his auto parts business seven years ago, took up his unusual pastime as a hobby but says he became obsessed and has since spent thousands of dollars and hours constructing more than 150 mechanical clockwork creations.

Associated Press Writer

ALDERSON, W. Va. (AP) — Leland Feamster is a unique dreamster, a man whose peculiar personal vision has led to the creation of his own "small world."

And, be assured, Leland Feamster's world is no ordinary place. It's a noisy, colorful world that is populated with dozens of tiny denizens, including dancing dolls, prancing bears and, as a carnival barker might proclaim, much, much more!

Carnival is the key word in Feamster's vision. "I began building miniature carnival games and attractions when I retired from my auto parts business seven years ago," said Feamster, a small man in his mid-50s. "It started out as a hobby, but..."

His sentence trails off as he looks around at the myriad, miniature carousels, rollicking rocket rides and mechanical musical stage shows crammed into "Leland's Small World."

Feamster opened his unusual establishment a couple of years ago, after his nearby home began overflowing with his synchronized, clockwork attractions.

"I guess I've created more than 150 of these games and attractions, he says, raising his voice above the near-deafening din of his gaudy, flashing, cacaphonic creations. "I've done it all without any plans, just ideas that sprang out of my head."

The effect, when Feamster has flipped all the switches in his small world, is almost overwhelming. Hundreds of tiny, multi-colored lights, blaring bands and dancing performers leap out at the unprepared.

Feamster said he never planned to create his own small world, nor did he spend a lot of time at carnivals when he was a kid.

"No, I hardly ever had time to go to carnivals," he said. "And, when I did, I was more interested in seeing how things worked than in playing the games or riding the rides."

He said most of his more complex creations take up to three or four months of steady work to complete. Some of the parts he purchases, and some he finds, such as a small bicycle he got at the local dump.

Huntington's disease tests being developed

DALLAS (AP) — Scientists say they may have found a way to diagnose two dreaded illnesses — Huntington's disease and manic depression — before their symptoms appear.

Until now, doctors have waited for overt symptoms before beginning treatment. In the case of Huntington's disease, the researchers' discovery could allow parents to know they have it before bearing children.

Both diseases are inherited and both bring devastating symptoms which affect both the patients and their families.

Huntington's disease is an inherited degenerative nerve disorder considered incurable. Victims may not know they carry the disease until they have children. And their children have a 50-50 chance of getting it.

Scientists also believe that manic depression is inherited, although it isn't known how it is transmitted. The violent swings of mood it brings — from unbounded euphoria to deep gloom — lead one of six sufferers to suicide.

A research team at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School thinks the illnesses may leave "genetic markers" — distinct and recognizable flaws — in skin cells and red and white blood cells. The scientists study the surfaces of the living cells. Doctors then can use light and magnetism to observe and record cell membrane functions.

Researchers have found that the motion and activities of cell surfaces in victims of Huntington's disease or manic depression differ from those in healthy people.

So diagnosis could become as simple as a blood test.

The scientists say they hope their discoveries lead to early diagnoses of manic depression, so that the "episodes that can permanently affect the direction of a person's life could be avoided," said Southwestern psychiatrist Dr. Michael Schlessler.

As for Huntington's disease, the scientists say they hope their research will reveal ways to help victims.

In the past, researchers studied the brain after the victim died, but "all the clues causing the disease had been destroyed," said Dr. Jay Petegrew, a pediatric neurologist at Southwestern.

Early signs of the illness include jerky, "dancing" movements called chorea, severe personality changes and progressive loss of intellect. The symptoms usually surface when the victim is in his mid-30s.

Despite long Argentine claim

Falkland Islands a cozy British spot

By BORIS WEINTRAUB

National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The last time anyone fought seriously over the Falkland Islands, the United States was there — helping to evict an Argentine settlement and pave the way for British rule.

But that was nearly 150 years ago. Since then the tiny islands, with a total land area less than the state of Connecticut, have become very British. Until the recent Argentine invasion, the residents drank English lager in their four pubs, fondly remembered Prince Philip's 1957 visit, and avidly looked forward to the annual L'Falkland Islands Olympics, pitting East and West Falkland Islanders in such sports as sheep-shearing races.

"THEY'RE BRITISH. 'God Save the Queen' all the way," says Martin Rogers, a photographer who was in the Falklands on assignment for National Geographic in 1979. "They have tea every afternoon, and you have no sense while you're there that South America is only a couple of hundred miles away."

The invasion that broke the tranquility brought the islands out of their recent obscurity into a place in the sun — if the sun shone more frequently than it does there.

The bleakness of the Falklands — or the Islas Malvinas, as the Argentines call them — is a central fact of their life and history. The average mean wind speed on the islands is 16½ knots, there are hardly any trees, and on only about 18 days a year is the sky more than half free of clouds.

So bleak and so far off the world's beaten track are the Falklands that nearly 175 years went by from the time they were discovered by English navigator John Davis until settlers arrived. And those settlers found no indigenous human residents, only geese, penguins, albatrosses, and other birds.

Davis sailed by in 1592, and it wasn't until 1690 that the sound between the two largest of the 200 islands was named after Lucius Carey, Viscount Falkland, the First Lord of the Admiralty. The islands themselves were named after Falkland some years later.

The first settlers were Frenchmen who arrived in 1764 to avenge the French honor after being ousted from Canada the previous year. They set up a colony called Port St. Louis, only to find themselves confronted a year later by a British colony.

MEANWHILE, THE Spanish, who had established themselves throughout South America, expressed unhappiness at this turn of events. Within a few years they purchased title to the islands from the French for the equivalent of 25,000 British pounds.

In 1770 the Spanish and the British almost went to war over their rival claims. Negotiations gave Britain the right to found a settlement, but it was abandoned in 1774, and the Spanish moved back in, ruling the islands for 40 years.

When Argentina won independence from Spain in 1816, it claimed inherited sovereignty over the islands. Louis Vernet, a French-born merchant from Hamburg who had settled in Argentina, established a settlement in the mid-1820s.

But whaling and sealing vessels plying their trade in Falkland waters irked Vernet, with disastrous consequences.

In 1831 he seized three U.S. whaling ships, and the United States retaliated by sending a warship which sacked the Argentine settlement and left it virtually deserted. The British returned in 1833 and retained control, despite Argentine objections, until this month's invasion.

The strategic position of the Falklands, not far from Cape Horn, led to a brief period of prosperity in the mid-19th century, after the discovery of gold in California and Australia and the growth of the Peruvian guano trade. Many ships traveling between European Atlantic ports and the Pacific put in for repairs in the Falklands' capital of Stanley.

The advent of the steamer, the growth of a mainland port in Chile, and the greed of the Falkland Islands' craftsmen led to a decline, however. The islands settled into life as a British colony whose peak population, reached in 1931, was 2,391. That has dwindled to about 1,800, who are vastly outnumbered by half a million sheep and several million penguins.

Britain tried giving islands to Argentina

LONDON (AP) — Britain has been trying to give the Falkland Islands to Argentina for years, but the pro-British islanders have always blocked the transfer.

Professor J.C.J. Metford of the University of Bristol, a Falklands expert, wrote before the current crisis reached a warlike state that Argentina's best ally "might well be, paradoxically, British officialdom."

"The Falklands were acquired (in 1833) at a time when a base near the Straits of Magellan was essential for naval control of the Pacific coast of South America and the South Atlantic...."

"Strategically, they are no longer important...To the realistic official mind, therefore, the islands are scarcely worth retaining, especially in view of the damaging effect of the dispute on Anglo-Argentine commercial relations."

London began discussing the Argentine claim in 1947. Five weeks before Argentina invaded the islands April 2, British and Argentine diplomats met in New York on the islands' future.

In 1947 and 1955 Britain offered to hand the dispute over to the International Court of Justice, but Argentina refused to go along. Ten years later the U.N. General Assembly passed a resolution urging the two nations to work for a peaceful solution of the dispute.

All efforts devised by the Foreign Office to alter the islands' status were opposed by the 1,800 Falklanders, who are mostly of British descent. In 1968 the Falklanders became so alarmed at rumours of a sell-out that their strong lobby in London addressed an open letter to Parliament declaring they "did not want to become Argentines."

The British Foreign Secretary at the time, Michael Stewart, retreated. "The wishes of the Falkland Islanders are more important than those of either the government of the United Kingdom or that of Argentina," he said.

Even so, sovereignty talks resumed and by 1971 efforts to link the islanders with Argentina had intensified. Air and sea communications with the mainland were established, and educational and medical facilities in Buenos Aires were provided for the Falklanders.

In 1974, Britain and Argentina signed two further agreements on trade, and the Argentine state oil company was allowed to supply the islands. The underlying British plan was to link the Falklands to Argentina so closely that the sovereignty issue would dissipate.

Congressional tax break: who will take it?

By WILLIAM GARLAND
States News Service
WASHINGTON — While Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, has declined to take advantage of a new $75 per day tax break on his income taxes, an aide to Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said the senator had not yet determined whether he would claim the exemption.
Bentsen voted against the tax break last year and Tower voted for it. It passed the Senate on a 46 to 44 vote.
Bentsen said he did "not believe members of Congress should vote for themselves a tax exemption not available to other citizens. I voted against it and didn't claim it on my tax return."
Tower spokesman Linda Hill said the senator had not yet had time to figure his taxes for 1981 after filing for an extension with the Internal Revenue Service.

The $75 per day deduction is currently allowed for "congressional days," or those days when Congress has not gone out of session for five or more consecutive days, which would include most weekends and brief recesses.
There were 262 official "congressional days" in the 1981 House session, allowing a maximum deduction for a House member of $19,650. There were 256 such days in the Senate, meaning that a maximum deduction of $19,200 could be taken by each senator.
The tax break could be taken regardless of whether the senator or congressman was present during the "congressional day" in Washington. Many Texas House members appeared to be leaning against the tax break. Most already had filed their tax returns by the deadline of April 15 without asking the IRS for an extension.

Others said they had not filed but did not plan to take the new break, passed by the House on a voice vote after it was attached to an unrelated bill last year.
Exceptions were Reps. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, and James Collins, R-Dallas. Collins, is opposing Bentsen in the 1982 Senate race.
Hance did not take the full $75 per congressional day exemption, but instead claimed a $50 per day exemption along with a deduction for interest payments on Washington real estate.

"Even with that, with those deductions, he paid more taxes than he ever had," said Hance aide Miller Bonner.
An aide to Collins said he took the full $75 per day exemption, but that the full sum of his salary would go to charity anyway. Patsy Vick, the Collins aide, said that half his $60,662.50 salary, because of his income from outside holdings, would go to taxes, and the other half he would give to charities.
House members who have said they definitely would not take the deduction included Reps. Bill Patman, D-Ganado; Thomas Loeffler, R-Hunt; Jack Hightower, D-Vernon; Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford; Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin; Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall; and Jim Mattox, D-Dallas.

Some lawmakers want long special session

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' proposed mini-session to repeal the state property tax will run longer if some legislators get their way.

Two House members asked Clements on Tuesday to allow the May 24 special session of the Legislature to consider topics other than tax repeal. Clements predicted Monday the session might last only two days.

Rockdale Rep. Dan Kubiak, candidate for land commissioner, said Tuesday he was asking the governor to let lawmakers vote on a $5 million appropriation to fight fire ants.

"The reason for this request is two-fold," Kubiak said. "The fire ant is causing much more destruction than was originally thought, not only in rural areas but urban as well. Secondly, President Reagan has cut the amount of federal funds for fighting fire ants in Texas from $6 million to $900,000."

Houston Rep. Bill Blythe, a state Senate candidate, asked Clements to open the special session to a proposal that would authorize Clear Lake City separate from Houston.

"The citizens are steadfast in their resolve to be free from the city of Houston, and they have gained substantial support within Houston," Blythe said.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Tuesday that Midland Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, who has been criticized for sponsoring a state property tax proposal in 1981, had accepted his invitation to sponsor a measure to abolish the tax in the special session.

Snelson is a candidate for land commissioner and could be in a runoff for that job when the Legislature meets in May.

Texas still has a state property tax although it has not been collected since the 1979 Legislature reduced the tax from 10 cents per $100 valuation to .0001 cents.

Midwestern State University sued, contending the tax created by the Texas Constitution could not be eliminated without a statewide vote to change the constitution. The lawsuit is set for June 2.

Clements said approval of a constitutional amendment to wipe out the tax would make the lawsuit moot. The tax was used to fund construction at 17 state colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

"Texas needs to get out of the property tax business once and for all," Hobby said. "We can adequately fund college construction without taxing homes, farms, and other real estate."

Hobby's announcement followed a news conference at which land commissioner candidate Garry Mauro said the most important difference between him and Snelson was that Snelson supports a state property tax.

"It's bad business for state government to get into property taxes, period," Mauro said. He said he favored dedicating oil and gas severance taxes from state-owned land to college construction.

In an August special session, the Senate approved Snelson's proposal for a 3-cent state property tax for college construction, but the House rejected the proposal.

Speaker Bill Clayton and Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, will sponsor the tax repeal proposal in the House next month.

Clayton and Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, also are sponsoring a bill to appropriate up to $100 million for construction at the 17 colleges.

Clements told several Texas mayors Tuesday his telephone has been "ringing off the hook" with calls from college administrators. He said administrators abolishing the property tax, but have different opinions about how the state should pay for college construction.

"It would be interesting to see in the '83 legislative session if there is any strength" for a dedicated fund for construction, he said.

Eleventh Commandment broken?

Mengden criticized for criticizing Collins

By LAURA RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer

State Sen. Walter Mengden, one of three conservatives running for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate, has broken the Eleventh Commandment.

This gentlemanly rule, endorsed by President Reagan, decrees that Republicans attack Democrats, never each other.

Thus it is that U.S. Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas spends his money on television and radio spots blasting the incumbent Democrat, Lloyd Bentsen, whom he is trying to label "liberal."

The Collins people speak sweetly of Mengden — calling him a "very nice man" — and of the other candidate, Donald Richardson, a 53-year-old Houston resident who runs a computer business in San Antonio and who has gotten so little money and publicity that he's hardly a threat.

But the Mengden campaign, financially pressed to the point that the Houston legislator has had to borrow almost $600,000, is getting downright nasty about the opposition, which is not seen as Democratic.

"The last time I heard, Bentsen's name was not going to be on the Republican primary ballot," said Art Kelly, Mengden's executive assistant.

"Collins is really a piece of petrified wood just sitting there," Kelly said. "His contribution to good government is to vote 'no' every time his name is called."

"Collins doesn't have any experience as a legislator. He's a total failure."

Nasty or nice, Republicans — who expect a low turnout of about 300,000 in the May 1 election — are concentrating on three key counties: Dallas, Tarrant and Harris.

"Whoever carries those top three will probably carry the state," said Barbara Gardner, Mengden's campaign coordinator.

Mengden stresses that Collins' years in Congress have not produced much legislation. Collins responds that the reason is that congressional Democrats have a 90-vote majority. That doesn't satisfy the Mengden forces. "Sen. Mengden has proven his ability to get things done in his 10 years in the Texas Senate," Kelly said. "It's always been controlled by Democrats. He was one of only three Republicans."

JIM COLLINS
...targets Bentsen

Collins, 65, a former insurance company executive, and Mengden, a 55-year-old oilman, are both millionaires. Both are conservatives, with Collins favoring the abolition of the departments of education and energy, a halt to government support of the infant synfuels industry, and an end to "all foreign aid, both economic and military."

Mengden, whose flamboyant style in the state Senate earned him the sobriquet "Mad Dog," has a different approach to foreign affairs.

Last year, he suggested that the United States store its nuclear wastes in El Salvador. At a recent campaign meeting in Houston, he said that the United States should do in Latin America what he said Gen. Douglas MacArthur did in Korea.

"He just armed the citizens and told them, 'You know who the Communists are, and you know, they got rid of them. When we went in there later, there weren't any Communists around.'"

United States troops fought in Korea from 1950 to 1953. About 54,250 American servicemen were killed.

Collins has gotten most of the Republican contributions, raising about $1.05 million, according to John Decker, his finance chairman. Almost of the money has come from the Dallas area.

Mengden is running uphill financially. He has collected about $40,000 in contributions and loans from supporters, has had no big fundraisers, and has had to personally guarantee loans totaling $596,000.

Bentsen, 61, has said he expects Collins to be his opponent in November and Collins thinks so, too.

His ads refer to Bentsen as a "liberal," and he said in a recent interview that "Bentsen is a big government man. He wants to build more government in Washington."

One ad states that Bentsen "opposes President Reagan." Bentsen has voted for Reagan administration policies 70 percent of the time, according to Congressional Quarterly. Collins supported Reagan 71 percent of the time.

Lisa McSoud, Collins' press aide, points out that Bentsen campaigned against Reagan in the 1980 presidential election. Asked if it could be expected that a Democrat would work for a Republican, she said, "I guess not. But he was against Reagan."

Islamic center planned

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A developer has announced plans for a 28-acre Islamic-oriented condominium and retail center to be constructed on the northwest side of the city.

Insha Development Co. announced that the $26 million project would be called Safa City and would contain 300 housing units, a mosque, school, shops, gardens, picnic areas and fountains.

The land for the project was purchased a year ago for $1.8 million in an area two miles southwest of Ingram Park Mall.

In Arabic, Safa means purity with overtones of enhanced quality, according to Omar Abdallah, president of the development firm.

Abdallah said construction should begin by late July.

Clements leads all in campaign funding

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements faces only token opposition in Saturday's Republican Party primary but he has already amassed a $4.4 million campaign war chest.

The three top Democratic challengers haven't mustered anything comparable, reports filed Monday show.

Clements has collected all of the $4.4 million in contributions — he hasn't borrowed a penny. So far he has spent $3 million.

Among the Democrats, attorney General Mark White is the leading money-getter. He reported collecting $1.76 million, $205,000 of which came in loans during the recent reporting period.

White has spent $1.56 million.

Of his opponents for the nomination, Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple is depending heavily on his personal and family wealth and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong is relying on a controversial South Texas rancher.

Temple has raised about $1.3 million; all but $300,000 has come in personal loans made by an Austin bank.

Temple spokesman Clark Jobe said the Temple campaign has spent about $1.3 million.

Asked about the relatively large amount of loans and low contributions Jobe said, "At least we didn't take it from Clinton Manges."

The comment referred to Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong's contributions from Manges, a millionaire South Texas banker-rancher-oilman who has been in and out of the news in recent years.

Armstrong's report show he has raised a total of $634,103 through loans and donations. He has spent $634,495.

Considered the poor boy in a millionaires' race, Armstrong got $195,000 from Manges and $50,000 from the San Antonio-based Texans for Good Government, which gets most of its money from Manges.

Manges was convicted in 1965 on federal charges of making false statements in an application for a Small Business Administration loan. A decade later, Gov. Dolph Briscoe turned down $15,000 offered by Manges for the Briscoe campaign.

Manges also was in the news when he bought control of Groos National Bank in 1971. Federal regulators did not allow him to have voting control of the bank because of his previous conviction. He sold the bank in 1977.

The state banking commissioner closed Manges' First State Bank and Trust Co., of Rio Grande City in 1976. The bank faced financial problems when Manges pulled it out of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Skip Holcombe, Armstrong's deputy campaign manager, said the contributions were needed to buy television time during the final week of the campaign. There were no strings attached to the big contribution, he said.

"I don't think it will have any effect in the campaign other than helpful because we needed it for media," said Holcombe. "Where he is from they consider him a Robin Hood figure."

Monday was the deadline for the final campaign expenditure and contribution report before the Saturday primaries. However, some candidates apparently chose to mail the reports. Candidates can comply with the law by having the reports postmarked on Monday.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's Monday report brought his total loans and contributions to $976,878, including a $200,000 loan. He has spent a total of $793,315.

George Strake, Hobby's Republican challenger, reported $775,085 raised and $749,454 spent. Strake has taken loans of $120,000.

Texas is almost $2 billion richer, thanks to Bob Bullock.

Since BOB BULLOCK became Comptroller, state tax collections have increased from $3.4 billion in 1975 to $8.1 billion in 1981. Inflation and growth accounted for just over two-thirds of that. But almost one-third of the increase was due solely to BOB BULLOCK's efficiency and thoroughness in collecting every tax dollar legally due the state.

That's amounted to $1.9 billion since '75, thanks to BOB BULLOCK.

Bob Bullock makes money for Texas.

Big Spring all alone atop 5-A-A-A-A-A

EYEING A CHAMPIONSHIP — Big Spring third baseman David Anguiano makes another stop at his position Tuesday against Midland Lee. Anguiano's steady play at the corner, good hitting and Moe Rubio's six-hit pitching carried the Steers to an 11-2 victory over the Rebels and into sole possession of first place in District 5-A-A-A-A-A.

Rosson bags four hits in rout of Lee

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

At best it's only a faint glimmer. It could be really nothing at all. Still, Big Spring coach Frank Ibarra is just hoping he's seen the light at the end of the proverbial tunnel.

Rallying from a 2-0 deficit behind the six-hit pitching of Moe Rubio and big sticks of Blake Rosson and Tom Cudd, Ibarra's Steers walloped Midland Lee 11-2 Tuesday for their 11th straight win. At the same time, Permian was pulling off one of the biggest upsets of the season with a 5-4 win over Cooper.

The win by Big Spring boosted the locals into sole possession of first place in the second half standings with a 4-0 record. Cooper slipped to 3-1 and now awaits the all-important Saturday showdown with the Steers in Abilene.

For the year, Big Spring continues its record course with a 21-8 record. Lee dropped back in the league race with a 2-2 mark and 12-13 overall.

"It's going to be a good old West Texas shootout," predicts Ibarra on Saturday's contest. "Anything can happen. They'll definitely have a home field advantage. I think it'll be a very close game."

Big Spring puts itself in position to wrap up the league title with a big win against the Rebels. A strange first inning against Rubio left Lee up by two runs but the Steers recovered quickly to win going away.

The Steers roared back behind the bats of Rosson and Cudd. Rosson, a consistent hitter all year and clutch performer with men on base, socked four singles and drove in four runs. Cudd is recovering from a slump during the first half of district play and hiked his average up with a 3-for-4 day and four RBIs.

"I'm keeping my weight back more now," Cudd said of his recovery at the plate. As for Rosson's ability to hit with men on, the senior shortstop said, "I guess I tend to concentrate more, especially in games like this that are important."

The Steers have scored 36 runs on 36 hits in the last four district games and both Steer hitters agree the bats need to be noisy against the Cougars this weekend.

"It'll be tough I think," Cudd said, "but we need to hit the ball. I'm sure they'll throw the big dude. We'll have to play good defense, too."

Rosson nodded his head in agreement, placing even more emphasis on defense. "We'll need that and play the Big D."

The Steers needed those elements Tuesday. Two high, high infield choppers put the first two men on base for the Rebs and Barry Blackwell made it a 1-0 game by lining Rubio's fourth pitch to right field. Chris Parker grounded out but Bart Ryan came home on the play to make it 2-0.

Rubio then buckled up and fanned the next two batters. He retired eight straight and by the time Blackwell singled again in the third, Big Spring was on top 4-2. After the first, Rubio tossed six innings of shutout ball, allowing four singles. He walked only two and struck out nine.

Lee's runs in the first snapped Rubio's string of 17 straight scoreless innings. The one earned run he gave up gives him only three in 34 innings pitched in district play for an earned run average of 0.61, tops in the league.

When Rubio returned from the mound, he asked his teammates to do their job at the plate. He didn't have to wait long as the Steers jumped on Lee starter Craig Ray in the second.

With one out, Ray walked the bases full. He got Oscar Limon to bounce into a force at the plate but then walked Marcus Armendariz to send in one run. James Walker was safe at first when Blackwell tried to throw out the speedy right fielder before he had fielded the ball. Alan Trevino came home on the bobble to tie the game 2-2.

Mr. Money was up next and Rosson's second hit of the game drove in two runs to put Big Spring ahead for good, 4-2.

The Steers struck again in the fourth.

Armendariz and Walke singled and Rosson made it 5-2 with his third hit. Tommy Olague scored another with a sacrifice fly and Cudd lashed a single to make it 7-2. Ray got out of the jam but Brian Willis replaced him the next inning.

Big Spring greeted him with three hits. Rosson singled in Limon who had doubled and with the bases loaded, Cudd powered a shot to deep right field. The ball glanced off the top of the fence for a three-run triple. Lee was buried 11-2.

"They just beat our brains out," said Lee coach Ernie Johnson. "They really hit the ball hard and with men on base. They are a whole lot better team than we are. They have a good chance of winning it... they got a piece of the first half and just need a piece of this half. The kids really played well."

"I wasn't too worried when we fell behind," Ibarra admitted. "That kid (Ray) didn't have good control from the start. We had hit the ball real well in batting practice yesterday and before the game today. If Cudd and Olague get hot, there's no telling what we're capable of. All the guys around the big sticks have been hitting the ball for us."

What do those "big sticks" think about the Steers' position on the edge of a district title?

"I always thought we had the capabilities," Rosson said, "but we just had to come through. We've got a better mental attitude now."

"We know we can win now," Cudd echoed. "It's always Big Spring choke, choke, choke. We've just tuned all that out now."

Maples takes new job

Big Spring High football and baseball assistant coach Fred Maples has taken the head coaching job at White Wright High School.

Maples was in travel Wednesday and unavailable for comment. Athletic Director Ron Logback says the change in positions will be effective at the end of the current school year.

Maples has been with Big Spring High for the past two years, serving as the varsity defensive secondary coach for the Steer football team and as the assistant to head coach Frank Ibarra in baseball.

"We are real disappointed he's leaving us," said Logback. "He has done an outstanding job with our kids. We have a great deal of respect for him and his wife and family. We feel it will be a loss for our community."

Maples and wife, Trumanell, have a son, Jim, four years of age.

Mojo magic downs Coogs

Permian did themselves a favor Tuesday but it was no blessing for Cooper and Abilene High.

The Panthers took on the spoiler Lee in District 5-A-A-A-A-A again by upsetting the Coogs 5-4 in Odessa thus giving the Big Spring Steers a clear shot at winning the district title.

In other games, Abilene nipped Odessa 3-2 and Midland blanked San Angelo 7-0.

Here's how they went around the league Tuesday:

Permian 5, Cooper 4

ODESSA — A big sixth inning carried Mojo to its big upset win of the second half.

Stace Gaddy and Kevin Timmons singled in the sixth to knock in the go-ahead runs for Permian. Cooper rallied in the seventh to score twice as John Williams drove in two runs with a single. Williams over-ran second, however, and was tagged out in a rundown to end the game.

The loss dropped Cooper to 3-1 and places added importance on Saturday's game with Big Spring.

Permian dealt Abilene High its lone loss in the first half.

Muttering looks fit for a Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Back in November, Wayne Lukas, trainer for Tartan Stable, felt he could send three standout colts from California to the Kentucky Derby.

Now he's at Churchill Downs with just Muttering, who seeks to become the first Santa Anita Derby winner to capture the first leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown since Majestic Prince in 1969.

"We were going to launch a nuclear attack," said Lukas Tuesday, "but we wound up with missiles and tanks."

Pro Football Draft

Cowboys 'Rod' over Hill; Oilers get 'Luck'-y

DALLAS (AP) — They watched every move he made in the All-Star games. They sent him through every agility drill possible. It was like the Dallas Cowboys were trying to find a reason not to draft Rod Hill.

What they saw finally made Coach Tom Landry decide to draw to an inside straight if the speedy defensive back from Kentucky State was still available in Tuesday's National Football League draft.

He was there as the 25th pick of the first round and Landry gambled.

"We are very impressed with him as an athlete," said Landry.

What dazzled the Cowboys the most was Hill's blazing speed and lateral agility, prime requisites for an NFL defensive.

Plus a big bonus: Hill was the top punt returner in the nation two years ago. He returned one punt 87 yards for a touchdown.

The 5-11, 183-pound Hill was sidelined three games with an ankle injury last season, but has fully recovered.

"If we wanted to be sure we were right we would have chosen somebody else. There were other more solid picks," said Landry. "We were impressed with his movement during a tryout camp we had down here."

Landry said Hill had 4.6 speed in the 40 "which means he can fly. We have a very fast player. You see a lot of 4.4s or 4.5s which are really 4.6s because the players aren't timed right."

Landry said the only question mark was Hill's tackling ability.

"He's not as aggressive as we would like but he was playing safety and backpedaling with the snap," said Landry. "Also, when you get a film from a small school you are lucky if they locate the player."

Hill, who missed a flight to Dallas Tuesday night, was expected today for a press conference.

The Cowboys, who will be missing the retired linebacker D.D. Lewis and strong safety Charlie Waters, went heavily for defensive help.

They picked Yale linebacker Jeff Rohrer in the second round; followed with Wyoming linebacker Jim Eliopoulos in the third round; and took defensive backs Brian Carpenter of Michigan and Monty Hunter of Salem College in the fourth round.

The Houston Oilers have established the foundations for the future with a rookie quarterback possessing Rhodes scholar intelligence and a massive offensive guard who takes a nasty disposition onto the field.

Oiler Coach Ed Biles selected Penn State guard Mike Munchak, 6-6, 268, in the first round of Tuesday's National Football League draft and then chose brainy West Virginia quarterback Oliver Luck in the second round, signaling the start of a youth movement to improve on last year's 7-9 finish.

"We need to get somebody coming along at guard because (starting guard Ed) Fisher is in his 30s," Biles said. "So the age factor had something to do with it."

After picking Munchak, Biles traded disenchanting tight end Mike Barber to Los Angeles in exchange for its second round selection and used the pick to take Luck, who advanced to the regional round in the 1981 Rhodes Scholar competition.

Luck, a top student who has made only one grade below an A in his collegiate career, will join starter Gifford Nielsen and veteran Ken Stabler in battling for playing time at quarterback.

"I think I can play in the NFL but all quarterbacks have to go through an apprenticeship," Luck said. "It's rare to step in and play because there is so much to learn and the offense is so complicated."

Munchak, 6-3, 257, described himself as a quiet, low key person off the field. But something happens when he gets in a game.

"In a game, I get very involved," Munchak said. "If you meet me in Houston, you'd see I'm not that type of guy off the field. But when I get on the field I get very aggressive."

Munchak was among the top rated guards in virtually all the published scouting reports and could help the Oilers quickly, but Biles stopped short of predicting a starting assignment next season.

"That's a lot of pressure to put on him to say he's going to start," Biles said. "Very rarely to offensive linemen do that. There's a lot to learn."

Munchak will be competing for playing time with Fisher, John Schuhmacher, the other starter, and former starter George Reihner, who is coming back from a one-year retirement.

Michigan's Stan Edwards, 6-0, 206, a running back with a reputation as an outstanding blocker, was the Oiler's selectio in the third round and wide receiver Steve Bryant, 6-2, 185, of Purdue, was taken in the fourth round.

Biles selected Tennessee State defensive tackle Malcolm Taylor, 6-6, 250 in the fifth round but projects and AP first team Little-All-American as a defensive end.

Gary Allen, 5-10, 175, of the University of Hawaii, came to the Oilers in the sixth round. Allen was the leading receiver with seven catches for 195 yards in the 1982 Hula Bowl all-star game.

Texas gridders among top picks

By The Associated Press
Twenty-two Texas collegians, eight from the Cotton Bowl-champion Texas Longhorns, were picked in Tuesday's rounds of the National Football League draft.

New England had the draft's No. 1 pick and, as expected, chose Texas defensive lineman Kenneth Sims. Later in the first round, Pittsburgh selected yet another Baylor running back, drafting Walter Abercrombie.

Sims, a native of tiny Kosse in Central Texas, impressed pro scouts with his pass-rushing at Texas and joins a team that ranked last in the NFL in quarterback sacks last year. In New England, he will be playing under a coach he played against in college, former Southern Methodist Coach Ron Meyer.

Walter Abercrombie, who averaged five yards per carry for Baylor last year, joins former Bear running backs Greg Hawthorne and Frank Pollard in Pittsburgh.

In the second round, Texas A&M defensive end Keith Baldwin went to the Cleveland Browns, Texas offensive tackle Terry Tausch was grabbed by the Minnesota Vikings and Texas linebacker Bruce Scholtz was picked by the Seattle Seahawks.

Later, Southwest Texas State defensive back Bobby Watkins was chosen by the Detroit Lions, Texas tight end Lawrence Sampleton went to the Philadelphia Eagles and West Texas State offensive tackle Reggie McElroy was drafted by the New York Jets.

New England took the second of its two third-round picks to draft another Texan, Angelo State linebacker Clayton Weishohn. Later in the round, Oakland picked Baylor defensive back Vann McElroy.

In the fourth round, Chicago selected Baylor running back Dennis Gentry and Cincinnati chose Texas running back Rodney Tate.

In round five, North Texas State defensive end Tony Elliott was picked by New Orleans, Texas center Mike Babb of Texas went to Cleveland, SMU guard Perry Harnett went to Chicago, Texas defensive backs Vance Bedford and William Graham were chosen by St. Louis and Detroit respectively, Texas-El Paso running back Del Thompson went to Kansas City and Bishop defensive back Dennis DeVaughan was picked by Philadelphia.

In the sixth round, Kansas City chose Texas A&I defensive back Durwood Roquemore, Cleveland selected wide receiver Mike Whitwell of Texas A&M, and the New York Jets picked Houston wide receiver Lonell Phea.

Lakers, Spurs win one

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
 AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Lakers hadn't played in nine days, nine days, so it seemed logical that they would come out cold in the first quarter.

Logic, it turned out, had nothing to do with Tuesday night's National Basketball Association playoffs, as the Lakers hit 15 of their first 20 shots for a 32-20 first-quarter lead against the Phoenix Suns.

The Lakers, who had a bye in the first round of the playoffs, went on to an easy 115-96 victory and a 1-0 lead in their best-of-7 series.

"Los Angeles came out strong in the first quarter and set the tone," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "We couldn't recover. We were never in position to establish momentum."

But Lakers Coach Pat Riley still is worried about tonight's second game, also in Los Angeles, because it will be necessary for his team to be ready to play again so quickly after Tuesday's success.

"It was a good first-night win," Riley said. "In a back-to-back situation like this on our court, we have to make sure Phoenix doesn't steal one. We'll need the same effort in the next game."

In the other Western Conference playoff opener, the San Antonio Spurs beat Seattle 95-93, negating the SuperSonics' home-court advantage.

The second game of that series is tonight in Seattle, and the Eastern Conference playoffs also resume with Washington at Boston and Milwaukee at Philadelphia. The Celtics and 76ers won Game 1 of those series last Sunday.

Jamaal Wilkes led the Lakers' balanced scoring with 28 points, followed by Earvin "Magic" Johnson with 23, Norm Nixon with 22 and Bob McAdoo with 21. Los Angeles' top scorer in the regular season, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, was held to 11.

Dennis Johnson and Alvan Adams led the Suns with 20 points apiece and Len Robinson had 18.

Spurs 95, Sonics 93
 Seattle, which neutralized

the individual talents of Houston's Moses Malone in the first round of the playoffs, couldn't handle San Antonio's 1-2 punch of NBA scoring champion George Gervin and Mike Mitchell in the opener of their second-round series.

Gervin scored 31 points and hit the game-winning 18-foot jump shot with five seconds left, while Mitchell added 30 for the Spurs.

San Antonio took advantage of the absence of Seattle scoring leader Gus Williams for most of the third quarter to turn a 45-44 halftime deficit into a 19-point lead, 76-57, late in the period.

Celtics have confidence

BOSTON (AP) — "Last year," says veteran M.L. Carr of the Boston Celtics, "we were the hunter. Now we're the hunted."

Whatever the role, the mighty Celtics are confident they can become the first team in 12 years to win two National Basketball Association championships in a row.

The current Celtics hope to become a throwback to another era in Boston NBA history. The last team to repeat as NBA champ was the Celtics, led by Bill Russell as player-coach in 1967-68 and '68-69.

Well rested after a first-round bye, the Celtics began their drive for another title — an unprecedented 15th since 1957 — in the opener of a best-of-seven series with the Washington Bullets 1 p.m. EDT Sunday at Boston Garden.

The Bullets earned first crack at Boston by winning two in a row from the New Jersey Nets in the best-of-three first round in the Eastern Conference. However, Washington figures to need every break known to upset the Celtics in the conference semifinal.

"There's a lot more pressure on the hunter than the rabbit," says Carr, who sat out the first few weeks of the season and came back to gain a starting job in the backcourt. "We can just run and play our games. It's up to the other teams to try and catch us."

Winning 26 of their last 30 games, the Celtics finished with a 63-19 record, the best in the league. The team won 60 or more games for the third consecutive year while winning the Atlantic Division race a third straight time.

Although 11 champions in a row have failed to repeat, the Celtics are confident of adding another banner to the rooftop of the Garden.

"We're the team to beat," center Robert Parish said. "We're playing very well, even though game in our final week were meaningless as far as the standings or playoffs were concerned. But all season we won the close games, making the big plays and getting a lot of help from the bench ... Nobody here wants this team to be a one-man show."

"There's no doubt that confidence plays a big part for us," says Boston Coach Bill Fitch. "In close games our plays believe they'll find a way to win. You don't win 60 games three years in a row without winning a lot of close ones."

The Celtics won all six games with Washington during the regular season. And they did it both ways, rolling over the Bullets and out-dueling them. Boston won by as much as 124-100, last Oct. 30, and later by as little as one point, 99-96, in December and 98-97 in overtime March 16.

Superstar Larry Bird was Boston's biggest gun in the regular season against the Bullets, averaging 25.3 points and 11.2 rebounds in the six games.

the individual talents of Houston's Moses Malone in the first round of the playoffs, couldn't handle San Antonio's 1-2 punch of NBA scoring champion George Gervin and Mike Mitchell in the opener of their second-round series.

Gervin scored 31 points and hit the game-winning 18-foot jump shot with five seconds left, while Mitchell added 30 for the Spurs.

Jay's forks stab Texas

American League

TORONTO (AP) — Reliever Dale Murray spoke to Texas with forked pitches and the Rangers were spellbound.

And the result was an 8-4 American League baseball victory by the Toronto Blue Jays.

Murray, formerly with the National League's Montreal Expos, Cincinnati Reds and New York Mets, replaced starter Mark Bombardieri in the fifth inning and threw 41-3 innings of one-hit ball to pick up the victory.

"Murray was just outstanding, there's no other way to describe it," said Toronto Manager Bobby Cox. "Cold as it was, it was a difficult night to either pitch or hit, which makes it all the more impressive.

"His forkball and fastball were working real good for him."

In his seventh major-league season, Murray said his success against the Rangers can be attributed to his staying ahead of the hitters on the count.

"If you get ahead, you get them out," said Murray, who raised his record to 2-1. "My forkball was breaking good and I think when it's cold like it was tonight the pitcher has an advantage over the hitters."

Willie Upshaw, celebrating his 25th birthday, was one hitter who battled the elements and won.

With Toronto trailing 3-1 in the third inning against starter and loser Doc Medich, 1-2, Upshaw hammered a bases-loaded triple over the head of center fielder George Wright and scored what proved the winning run on John Mayberry's sacrifice fly.

The victory ended a five-game losing streak for the Jays and extended the Rangers' winless skid to five games.

Angels 3, Yankees 1

It was a tension tailor made for Reggie Jackson — fraught with tension, adulation, and irony.

There he stood, the man who WAS the New York Yankees for five years until George Steinbrenner let him get away. He hadn't had an extra base hit in his first month as a California Angel. It was as if he had saved it up for one swing.

It came on Ron Guidry's first pitch of the seventh inning.

"I'm very happy and pleased. It's like a load off my shoulders. I'll never forget that one," Jackson said after his monumental home runoff the upper deck facade at Yankee Stadium highlighted a 3-1 Angel victory Tuesday night.

Steinbrenner, the New York owner who had dumped Manager Bob Lemon on Sunday in the latest episode of Yankee upheaval, kept a low profile as he watched Gene Michael's debut in his second turn as manager go down the drain.

Tigers 5, Twins 2

Jack Morris weathered a bad cold as he shut down the Twins on six hits and ran his record to 4-1 as Detroit won for the ninth time in 10 games.

The Tigers, who boast the same 12-6 record as Boston, jumped to an early lead on Lou Whitaker's two-run single in the second inning and made it 3-0 on Lance Parrish's home run to lead off the fourth. Randy Johnson homered for the Twins, who lost for the ninth time in the last 11 games.

White Sox 11, Brewers 2

Back in 1974, Ron LeFlore made his major league debut against Jim Slaton and struck out three times. Tuesday night the Chicago center fielder had the last laugh — albeit a little late — when he cracked grand slam homer off Slaton to highlight a seven-run second inning for the White Sox.

"There was super location on the pitch," LeFlore conceded. "It was an inside fastball, and I got out and got it. That pitch has given me difficulty most of my career."

Mariners 7, Indians 4

Jim Malar lined a drive just past Cleveland third baseman Von Hayes with two men or and nobody out in the 11th inning. That drove in the run that broke a 2-2 tie and opened the way for a five-run Seattle rally capped by back-to-back homers by Dave Henderson and Todd Cruz.

The Indians came back with two runs in the bottom of the 11th on a bases-loaded double by Andre Thornton, but Ed Vandenberg came in to get the final out and his first major league save.

Red Sox 7, Royals 5

Aging Carl Yastrzemski, saying he's "in a good groove and just trying to keep it going," drilled a two-run single in the second inning and set up a tie-breaking run with another hit in the fifth as the Red Sox won their eighth game in a row.

Yaz, closing in on his 43rd birthday, leads Boston with 15 runs-batted-in and five homers while hitting at a .349 clip in the first 18 games.

Astros 'Ruhle' Cards

National League

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outfielder Terry Puhl says getting away from home to play 12 games in 14 days may have been just what the Houston Astros needed.

"We hadn't really played that bad," said Puhl following Houston's 3-0 triumph, its second in a row, Tuesday night over the St. Louis Cardinals. "But we needed to get on the road. We needed to relax."

For purposes of restoring the confidence of the Astros, a combined five-hitter by Vern Ruhle and Joe Sambito could hardly have been exceeded.

Ruhle, 1-2, started the night with a 7.24 earned run average but hand-cuffed St. Louis on three singles preceding Lonnie Smith's double in the Cards' eighth. Sambito finished up, embellishing his fourth save of the season by striking out the side in the ninth.

"We're playing like we know we can play," said Sambito, the leader on the mound so far in Houston's 8-12 start.

"We were so bad, every part of our game," said the 30-year-old relief standout. "I think it's starting to turn around. Over a long time, our players are going to shine."

Those doing their part to keep the Astros on the rebound against St. Louis included Ray Knight, Phil Garner and Jose Cruz, who drove in the Houston runs.

Knight singled home Puhl in the first inning off loser Steve Mura, 2-1. Garner doubled in the seventh after Alan Ashby had done likewise one out earlier, and Cruz homered in the ninth off Joaquin Andujar.

Ruhle, who had been battered for 18 hits and 13 runs in three previous outings, said identifying the reason was not hard.

"I was getting behind the batters. My control wasn't what it should have been," said the 31-year-old right-hander. "I don't know that our pitching was really that sharp out of spring training. Now that the season is really underway, maybe we'll find our stride."

Indeed, said Astros Manager Bill Virdon, a staff ERA of 4.21 at the start of the night represented a big part of Houston's problems.

"You've got to have pitching, I don't care who you are," said Virdon. "We can't win with that. Some clubs may break even with that kind of ERA, but we can't."

Ruhle, despite composing a mound masterpiece that followed Nolan Ryan's 4-0-hitter by 24 hours, said he still fears the suddenly silent St. Louis bats.

"They're not slumping. Tonight I'd have to say I had some exceptional pitches," said the Astros hurler. "I could easily have gotten beat if I'd made some bad pitches. Their swings are very solid."

Knuckleballer Joe Niekro, 2-1, was to be on the mound today, facing Bob Forsch, 3-0, of the Cards as Houston went for a sweep in wrapping up the first part of its four-series trip.

"Our record wouldn't be so bad if we weren't 0-6 against Atlanta," said the Astros' Puhl. "That hurt, but it's early. Last year we started poorly but turned it around at about this time when we went on the road."

Padres 8, Mets 5

It was a moment to savor for the San Diego Padres.

"It's like somebody who hasn't eaten in a long time and then somebody gives him a steak," said Eric Show.

Show was the winning pitcher Tuesday night on a momentous occasion for the long-suffering Padres. An 8-5 victory over the New York Mets vaulted them past Atlanta and into first place in the National League West.

It not only was a club-record 11th-straight victory for the surprising Padres, but marked the latest into any season of their history that they had been on top.

"I think everybody's starting to realize it's about time to take the Padres seriously," said Show.

"It's nice to be in first place now, but it would be nicer in October," Williams said. "I just hope we keep playing this way."

Pirates 10, Braves 4

Tony Pena belted a grand-slam home run, Jason Thompson hit two homers, and Tom Griffin and Kent Tekulve combined on a five-hitter as Pittsburgh beat Atlanta.

The Braves continued to spin after opening the season with a record-setting 13-game winning streak.

Griffin, 1-1, was relieved by Tekulve in the ninth after giving up a two-run homer to Bob Horner with no outs.

Bob Walk, 2-2, was the loser.

"I was just looking for a ball I could hit hard," said Pena after hitting his slam off reliever Jose Alvarez in the fifth inning.

Reds 6, Cubs 3

Johnny Bench hit his first home run of the year and Cesar Cedeno drove in three runs to lead Cincinnati past Chicago. Bench's two-run homer in the fifth inning erased a 2-1 Chicago lead and Cedeno doubled home two of his runs in a three-run seventh that locked up the game for the Reds.

Bruce Berenyi, 4-1, gained the victory with relief help from Jim Kern, who posted his first save for the Reds with four innings of work. Dan Larson, 0-2, absorbed the loss.

"We got something today that we haven't been getting: RBI production," Cincinnati Manager John McNamara said. "We've been getting runs here and there, but there hasn't been any consistency."

Dodgers 3, Phillies 0

Jerry Reuss hurled a four-hitter and Pedro Guerrero slugged a two-run homer to lead Los Angeles over Philadelphia. Ken Landreaux, the NL's leading hitter, also singled twice, scored a run and stole two bases as the Dodgers won for the fifth time in their last six starts.

Reuss, 2-1, who pitched a one-hitter in his last start against Houston, hurled his 32nd career shutout. The left-hander got 20 of the 27 outs on ground balls. He struck out two and walked one.

Larry Christenson, 1-2, took the loss.

"I'm pitching as well as I ever have," Reuss said. "I can't remember pitching two shutouts in a row."

Expos 3, Giants 2

Chris Speier belted three hits, including a triple and home run and scored twice to lead Montreal over San Francisco.

Winning pitcher Steve Rogers, 3-1, scattered seven hits and broke a 2-2 tie with a run-scoring single in the seventh following Speier's leadoff triple. Rogers struck out seven and walked two.

Al Holland, 1-3, was the loser.

Salads are perfect for warm summer days

Fruit, vegetable or main dish — no matter what the ingredients, salads are always popular. In the summer, the ease of preparation, time- and energy-saving qualities and nutrition make salads perfect for any occasion.

Below is a variety of salads, some traditional, others unusual, but all perfect for the warm days ahead.

HOT GARDEN POTATO SALAD
6 medium potatoes, pared and cut in 1/2-inch cubes
3 Tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 Tablespoon sugar
1 Tablespoon flour
1 Teaspoon salt
1/2 Teaspoon celery seed
1/4 Teaspoon pepper
1/4 Teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup white vinegar
8 to 10 slices cooked bacon, cut up
1/4 cup reserved bacon drippings
1/4 cup fresh snipped parsley
1/2 cup thinly sliced radishes
Tear off a length of heavy duty aluminum foil large enough to permit adequate wrapping. Place potatoes in center of foil sheet; add onion. Combine sugar, flour and seasonings; sprinkle over potatoes. Pour vinegar and bacon drippings on top of potato mixture. Bring two foil sides up over potatoes; fold down tightly in a series of locked folds. Fold short ends up and over again; crimp to seal. Cook on grill over ash-covered coals, 3 to 4 inches from heat for 20 minutes. Turn package over and cook for an additional 25 to 30 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove packet from grill; open and toss gently with bacon, parsley and radishes, before serving. Makes: 6 servings.

FESTIVE CHICKEN SALAD
2 cups chopped cooked chicken
1 cup fresh or canned pineapple chunks
1/2 cup celery slices
1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1/2 Teaspoon salt
1/2 Teaspoon curry powder

1/2 Teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 Teaspoon white pepper
1 Tablespoon grated onion
1/2 Teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

2 eggs
6 hot dogs
1 cup sharp Colby cheese, grated

Scrub potatoes thoroughly and rub with vegetable oil. Bake in 400 degree F oven 50 to 60 minutes, until done. (Do not use microwave oven if possible, as potatoes will be fluffier baked in a conventional oven.) Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Scoop out centers of potatoes with rounded spoon and place in mixing bowl with butter. Whip until smooth. Heat milk and add cream cheese, seasonings, onion and eggs. Beat at high speed until light and fluffy.

Use half the hot dogs, place pieces into bottom of potato shells. Mound fluffy potato mixture evenly into shells. Sprinkle with one teaspoon grated cheese and remaining sauteed hot dogs. Return to oven and bake at 400 degrees F for 20 minutes.

If potatoes are very cold or partly frozen, increase baking time to 40 to 45 minutes. Stuffed potatoes may be heated quickly in microwave oven.

VARIATION: Use Italian sausage in place of hot dogs. Place two teaspoons chopped cooked Italian sausage in bottom of potato shell. Mound fluffy potato mixture evenly into shells. Top with three teaspoons of chopped cooked Italian sausage and

Overwhelming demand cited

Drop in price of fire ant pesticide reported

AUSTIN — An increase in demand for the fire and bait Amdro has resulted in a decrease in the price of the pesticide, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown announced today.

"Because of the overwhelming demand for Amdro from the many southern states plagued by the fire ant, American Cynamid, processor of the fire ant bait, has agreed to drop the price from $3.75 to $3.01 for the one pound bag and from $2.99 to $2.65 for the 25 pound bag. "This reduction in price coupled with the emergency funding from Gov. Bill Clements, will help us substantially increase our supply of the pesticide and provide more relief to imported fire ant infested areas," Brown said.

AMERICAN CYNAMID agreed to lower the price of the bait when it was realized how widespread the imported fire ant problem had become. The numerous orders for the pesticide made it economically feasible to offer it at a lower price. The company will also allow credit to those states who have already purchased and received shipments of Amdro.

"Texas has already received one order of the pesticide so the manufacturer is allowing us credit for this shipment order. This means that we will be able to purchase much more Amdro than expected. The many counties infested with this pest may be assured that more help is on the way," Brown said.

The 88 counties involved in the fire and control program requested 3.1 million pounds of Amdro.

THE PLANT is currently operating at a production level that will utilize all materials available; however, more corn grit carrier could be made available soon. When this happens, the company will begin around-the-clock production. The extra demand for the bait helped lower the price but it also slowed deliveries to Texas since the limited production has to be spread over all infested states. The Texas Department of Agriculture will not receive the extra bait until late summer or early fall. This is still within the optimum treatment season. The price to the individuals from the state will still be $1 per pound for the AMDRO.

Iowa tops Illinois in exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iowa was the leading exporter of farm commodities in 1980-81, nudging ahead of Illinois for the first time in recent years, the Agriculture Department says.

Farm exports in the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30 rose a record level of $43.8 billion. Of that amount, the top 10 states provided about $25.4 billion, or 58 percent, of the total.

In order, the leading farm export states were: Iowa, $3.74 billion; Illinois, $3.62 billion; California, $3.59 billion; Texas, $2.58 billion; Minnesota, $2.34 billion; Kansas, $2.26 billion; Nebraska, $2.11 billion; Indiana, $2.01 billion; Ohio, $1.63 billion, and Missouri, $1.32 billion.

The annual state export rankings are based primarily on a state's production record. Thus, a big corn producer would be a big corn exporter.

For the latest rankings, production figures for 1980 were used — a year when drought bit into yields over much of the country.

"Increased soybean production during 1980 boosted Iowa's export share, while Illinois' share dropped because soybean output declined," the department's Economic Research Service said Monday.

"Both states experienced reduced corn crops, but Illinois' production fell more sharply. Exports from California benefited from increased shipments of fruits, vegetables, rice, poultry, seeds and hay, particularly to Japan and other Asian countries."

The report said that because few states collect or publish information on exports, state shares "were estimated from data sources" such as USDA crop reports and census information.

"A major premise is that each state's share of exports equals its contribution to U.S. farm output," the report said. "While this premise may not always be valid, producers in each state do obtain additional income indirectly from exports through their price-enhancing effect."

Meanwhile, a related article in the same report suggested that exports of U.S. farm commodities may decline this year in actual quantity shipped as well as in dollar value.

During the first five months of the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, farm exports were valued at about $18.1 billion, down 8 percent from the same period in 1980-81. The export volume was 70.4 million metric tons, down 2 percent.

The report said the drop from year-earlier levels suggests an export forecast issued two months ago "may be too high."

The report said a 26 percent drop in corn exports, along with reduced shipments of rice and some other commodities were largely responsible for the lower quantities. Wheat exports, on the other hand, were up 11 percent from a year earlier. Lower grain prices also were major factors in the reduced dollar values.

Block working on dairy price support curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he still is looking at ways to curb the $2-billion-a-year dairy price support program but will not deliver a plan to Congress until all details are ready.

"I can tell you we are close, but a few details still need to be ironed out before the plan meets with my satisfaction," Block said. "The severity of the current dairy situation demands that we give it our best shot."

"Unless we get this situation turned around, we're going to be spending nearly $6 billion between now and 1985. And with all that spending, we won't be giving the dairy farmer what he really wants — prosperity at the market-place."

Block's remarks were in a speech Monday night at the annual meeting of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America.

The Agriculture Department is required by law to buy surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk at specified prices to support the price of milk paid to farmers.

As a result of expanding milk production, market prices have sagged, forcing USDA to buy record amounts of those dairy commodities. Some of the products are donated to schools and needy families or to foreign aid programs, but the stockpile grows even faster.

"Right now we have 365 million pounds of butter in government storage," Block said. "We've got 625 million pounds of cheese and 975 pounds of non-fat dry milk. And those inventories are growing day by day. If we don't stop it now, by 1985 we're going to have the equivalent to 30 billion pounds of milk in storage. We just can't let that happen."

Earlier this month, Block said he would have the administration's proposed dairy legislation ready in about two weeks, and there were indications he might announce it Monday or Tuesday.

Block said that despite bleak economic conditions on the farm, he is optimistic about the recent general decline in the inflation rate, some easing of short-term interest rates and market price improvements for grain, soybeans and livestock.

Earlier in the day, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., told the farm editors that, while there is "no quick fix" for agricultural problems, he is confident the Reagan administration is on the right track.

"We need to get farmers competitive on the basis of free enterprise," said Helms, who is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Farmers need lower interest rates, and the government should "get off their backs," he said.

Helms said some people in the news media — whom he did not identify — speak of "too much doom and gloom" about the farm economy. "I wonder if they are not trying to talk us into a depression," he said.

Ag movement chairman raps Reagan policy

Reagan's grain "experts" continue to be out horse-traded and the last good deal the United States cut was when Seward bought Alaska from the Russians, the chairman of the American Agriculture Movement claimed today.

Marvin Meek, a Plainview, cotton and milo farmer, and AAM National Chairman, said, "The administration has begged the European Community (EC) to lift wheat and corn tariffs so we can export our way out of the current farm depression."

"It won't work. It hasn't worked," Meek stated, pointing out that soybeans, a protein, are exempt from EC import tariffs and are still selling below cost of production.

In December, Reagan sent Secretaries of State, Commerce, and Agriculture Haig, Baldrige, and Block, plus Trade Representative William E. Brock, to the EC seeking the tariff concession. At the same time, Deputy Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng was telling Senator Ruby Boschwitz's export subcommittee why this was the cure.

"Our leaders told the EC that their tariff is depressing our prices and interfering with third-world trade. They should have told the EC we were raising our prices to the protected price EC farmers enjoy, which is just about at our parity. They got the cart before the horse," Meek said.

When a minimum price for grain is reached in Europe, the EC authorizes purchases on top of a variable levy. Even total elimination of the tariff won't work, Meek said, citing soybeans as proof.

With no tariff at all, soybeans closed April 15 at $7.35 in Europe, up from $7.22 a bushel the day before, and $6.83 March 14. In Chicago Wednesday, soybeans closed at $6.02, up four cents from a month ago.

USDA 1982 share-renter projected production costs for soybeans is $8.28 a bushel, up 83 cents from the 1981 figure, and $4.52 below parity, Meek said.

"Of course, we need export markets, but to think that the EC lifting a corn and wheat tariff is going to solve our problems is foolish. We need the price," Meek said.

David Senter, AAM National Director, said, "We can't continue to give away the produce of our farms and expect the farmers' lot to improve, nor the nation's economy."

Slowly but surely, Wall Street is rallying

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A slow but steady recovery in stock prices has been going on without fanfare for six weeks, suggesting that some people on Wall Street may think the worst of the economy's decline is over.

The rally comes despite a lingering recession — with millions out of work and businesses closing at the highest rate since the 1930s — that continues to be the source of gloomy economic news from Washington and corporate board rooms.

One year ago today, the stock market stood at an eight-year high, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at 1,024.05. But when interest rates turned higher, pushing the economy into its second recession in as many years, stock prices plunged.

By March 8, the Dow Jones industrials had slipped to a two-year low of 795.47, a loss of 22 percent in less than a year. At the time, talk of depression was spreading through the financial community.

But since that low point, the blue-chip average has recovered 70.11 points, with six consecutive weekly gains — this despite Treasury Secretary Donald Regan's assessment April 15 that the economy is "dead in the water."

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrials rose 3.42 points to 865.58. It was still below the 1981 close of 875.00.

"The market is telling us things are not going to be as bad as they seemed over the winter," Lee Idleman, director of research at the investment firm of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., said Monday. "There is every reason to believe the economy will get better in the future."

The Reagan administration, which in the past has chided Wall Street for its gloomy outlook, has yet to hail the market's turnaround.

But the stock market's performance is being watched. It is one component in the government's index of leading indicators, a barometer of future economic trends.

Traders have found encouragement in the unwinding of inflation, with consumer prices falling in March for the first time since 1965. With inflation slowing — some economists say the rate for 1982 could be held to 5 percent — prospects have brightened that interest rates will begin to fall.

Historically, interest rates have been three percentage points above the inflation rate. Last year, the inflation rate fell to 8.9 percent from 12.4 percent the year before. In the first three months of this year, consumer prices are up only 1 percent on an annual basis.

Interest rates of 12 percent and higher prevail today, with the prime lending rate for the nation's most credit-worthy business borrowers at 16.5 percent.

One reason interest rates remain high is the prospect of heavy borrowing by the government, which faces record budget deficits, and businesses, which have been forced to borrow at almost any price to ride out the recession pending a hoped for rebound in sales.

Recovery hopes are also pinned on expectations of increased consumer spending following a 10 percent tax cut in personal income tax rates in July.

Regan said Monday he expects signs of a strong recovery by late spring. He said the economy is poised for an upsurge, with pent-up consumer demand and lean business inventories of unsold goods.

"The fact that it (the market) is up is in my mind at least an encouraging development," Robert Dederick, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, said Monday.

Dederick said the rally provides further support for administration forecasts of an economic upturn at midyear, but he did not attach any special significance to the market's advances.

Trucking firm files for bankruptcy

HOUSTON (AP) — Owners of the Spector Red Ball, Inc., trucking firm, which ceased operations last week, say they hope to make arrangements to save their holding company from going broke when the carrier files for bankruptcy.

A statement from the Telecom Corp. said Red Ball was more than $30 million in debt and therefore "will seek protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code."

Telecom said it hoped "it would be able to make arrangements with its creditors, and certain creditors of Spector Red Ball, which would avoid the necessity of Telecom also seeking protection under Chapter 11."

The statement blamed Red Ball's closing on heavy losses caused by a "depressed economy" and stiff competition.

Red Ball's smaller special commodities operation, the Viking Division, was kept in operation.

"Red Ball was losing money and had some cash flow problems to contend with," said Larry Schumann, a Telecom spokesman.

He said one problem was rate discounting by competitors.

"The discounting was worsening and the economy was getting worse, and a decision had to be made," Schumann said.

He said the Dallas-based trucking company employs 6,200 people, and 5,700 of them were assigned to general freight operations. But he said he did not know how many jobs would be affected by the bankruptcy.

Telecom, which is traded on the New York Stock Exchange, dropped from 2% to 1% during the day Monday.

Red Ball, which lost $16.4 million last year on revenues of $416 million, is the largest company owned by Telecom. Schumann said all its other companies were operating profitably.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APR. 29, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning brings a new view on a project you have in mind and you can easily express yourself and gain the support you need. Be sure to plan the future wisely.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) New opportunities come your way early in the day. Showing more thought for the one you love pays off at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can communicate well with others in the morning. Later study new ventures that could be profitable in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to study monetary affairs and improve your status in life. Come to a better understanding with associates.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can reach some personal aim in the morning that means much to you. Expand where finances are concerned.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make personal plans and then talk them over with persons who can be helpful to you. Improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid criticizing others if you want to make greater progress in the future. Be more precise in handling your duties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Know what is expected of you by higher-ups and you get ahead faster. Sidestep one who has an eye on your assets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Engage in a new enterprise in the morning that will have much success connected with it. Express happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to keep promises you have made. Carry through with civic duties and gain added prestige.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are able to come to a true understanding with associates in the morning. Show others that you have wisdom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Commence the day properly by attending to important work without delay. Strive to gain your most cherished aims.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use modern methods that will make your job easier and become more efficient. Avoid one who imposes on you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young persons who can easily understand the needs of the public in general and should have as fine an education as you can afford. Upon reaching maturity much success is possible.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Actors poke fun at Reagan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comic actors Chevy Chase and John Ritter teamed up with Hal Linden and Robin Williams to poke fun at the Reagan administration and help fund a clearinghouse to match stars with liberal politicians needing support.

"I breathe the air, so I'm concerned about the environment. I'm a resident chicken, so I'm concerned about the (nuclear) arms buildup," said Linden Tuesday night.

"My show just ended," added Linden, whose "Barney Miller" TV series is being dropped by ABC, "so I'm very concerned about unemployment."

A star-studded audience attended the show at the Wilshire Ebell Theatre on behalf of Citizens in Politics, a new group forming a bank of 30 to 40 celebrities willing to make public appearances for any candidate for national office that meets the group's criteria.

The idea is to match stars, by interest, with candidates who seek the group's help.

Linden is among those celebrities, as is actress Linda Kelsey of TV's "Lou Grant" series.

"I'm strong on environmental issues and women's issues," she said.

The highlight of Tuesday night's show was the showing of 30 to 40 celebrities willing to make public appearances for any progressive candidate for national office. In the skit Asner plays Leonid Breshnev. Chase plays Ronald Reagan and Hesseman plays Breshnev's interpreter.

of outtakes, discarded film segments, from the sets of three Ronald Reagan movies.

In one well-received scene, a young Reagan tried unsuccessfully to buckle and zip up the pants of an Army uniform. In exasperation, he mumbled a profanity.

Chase, best known for his stint on "Saturday Night Live," delighted spectators who paid $25 to $250 a ticket for the benefit performance with his well-polished newsman skit from the late-night television comedy series.

Pamela Lippe, director of Citizens in Politics, said the group wants to counter the "radical right" and its ability to raise money.

"There is such an incredible disparity between the amount of money that is available to the right wing and money that is available to the progressives or liberals," she said.

Ms. Lippe said the 1980 elections and the defeat of many liberal candidates spawned the new service.

She said the best way to use money raised was to form a clearing house of highly visible people — musicians, actors and literary figures — to back up favored politicians in their fight for the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives.

CBS still dominates prime-time TV race

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, No. 1 in the recently completed 1981-82 season, continued to dominate the weekly competition with reruns, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS had five of the 10 top-rated programs for the week ending April 25, including repeats of "Magnum, P.I." in first place and "The Jeffersons" in second.

The network's average rating for the week was 15.4 to 14.8 for ABC and 13.3 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average minute of prime time, 15.4 percent of the country's homes with TV were watching CBS.

The rating for "Magnum, P.I." was 23.2. Nielsen says that means in an average minute of the program, 23.2 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned in.

It was CBS' third straight week in first place, and NBC's 16th consecutive in last.

The season ended a week ago, with CBS the highest-rated network for the third year running.

Eight of the week's Top 10 programs were reruns, and two of the three segments on the No. 4 show, CBS' "60 Minutes," had been broadcast before. The only new program among the first 15 was "Cagney and Lacey" on CBS.

"Cagney and Lacey" was, in addition, the highest-rated of the season's new series shown last week, with ABC's "Fall Guy," right behind in eighth place. NBC scored with a new show, "Teachers Only," No. 19.

'A Question of Honor' explores corruption

NEW YORK (AP) — "A Question of Honor" explores the well-traveled police corruption theme from a road rarely taken. Tonight's three-hour CBS movie examines the cop not on the take, who can be squashed by overzealous, callous investigators intent on their own political profit.

It's a nice twist on "Serpico" and the latest of the genre, "Prince of the City," which starred Treat Williams as the corrupt cop who reluctantly rats on his fellow narcotics officers to save his own skin.

In "A Question of Honor," Ben Gazzara plays Joe DeFalco, a strong family man and an honest cop on the drug task force, who won't go along with the federal agents and suffers for it.

The point is blunt. Justice is perverted when decent cops are victimized, while stool pigeons and informants get a better shake from investigators, some of whom are operating for their own personal — and political — prestige. Uncovering corruption sometimes can be an afterthought.

"A Question of Honor" is an interesting, inside perspective on the illegal police practices that spawned watchdog groups, like the Knapp Commission in New York during the early 1970s.

AMBITION IS NOT ENOUGH!

A good public official should concentrate all his energies on being the best he can be in the office he holds. He cannot truly serve the people who elected him to one office if he is using time and energy to further his own personal political ambition.

State Senator E. L. Short rented out his farm and sold his business in Tahoka so he could serve the people of this 28th Senatorial District full time.

He has lived here all of his life, served 8 years in the House of Representatives and 4 years in the Senate. He knows this area and its people. We need E. L. Short in the Senate. He's the only listed farmer-rancher in the 31-member Texas Senate, and he's got the kind of experience that counts!
