Camaro emerges from the deep

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Divers from the Odessa Police Department and a crane leased to 87 Wrecking of Big Spring lifted a 1981 Chevrolet Camaro belonging to Joe Voyles of the Southland Apartments out of Moss Creek Lake yesterday morning.

Voyles had loaned his car to a friend, Chuck Wilde, who drove the vehicle out to the lake and parked at a pavilion on the north side of the lake Tuesday afternoon.

"I just got out of the car and walked over there to the trash barrel," said Wilde at the scene of the salvage operation. "I know the thing was in park, because he had had trouble with the transmission and I checked it. I pushed the gear shift all the way up, and the little button popped out."

"I looked up and it was rolling," he said. "I grabbed onto the spoiler (a fin on the trunk of the car), but when I saw I wasn't going to stop it, I let her go."

"When I picked myself up off the ground, all these people over there were cheering and applauding," he said, as he pointed at cliffs across the lake.

The car rolled over the edge of a 20-foot cliff, landed on its nose, and turned over length-ways.

Voyles had little to say about the incident, but he obviously didn't find it as amusing as the watchers on the south cliff.

The engine had just been "blueprinted," a performance modification, and an $800 stereo system had been installed, he said.

The divers from Odessa brought complete scuba gear to the lake, since they were unsure just how far into the lake the car had traveled.

As tell-tale oil bubbles broke the surface, the divers quickly located the car in approximately 10 feet of water near the bottom of the cliff.

Cables were attached to the underside of the front, and the crane lifted the vehicle back up to the top of the cliff and set it upright.

The front end was damaged, along with the top. Minor dents and scratches, along with the 22 hours spent under, added insult to injury.

UP SHE COMES — Divers from the Odessa Police Department stand in Moss Creek Lake as they watch a Camaro Z-28 get lifted from the murky depths. The car, owned by Joe Voyles of Big Spring, rolled over the embankment and plunged into the lake Tuesday afternoon. Divers and an 87 Wrecking crane lifted the vehicle out of the lake Wednesday morning. The car was empty when it rolled over the side of the cliff and authorities said nobody was hurt.

Why is WFAA being pulled off cable TV?

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Questions are being asked about why Big Spring Cable TV is dropping WFAA (channel 8) programming in the Big Spring area.

The decision had been made, according to Jim Lancaster, manager of Big Spring Cable TV, because of an FCC ruling prohibiting the broadcasting of two ABC stations in Big Spring.

The FCC ruling was made in response to a request from KWAB, a local ABC affiliate.

A spokesman for the FCC in Washington D.C. said the cable company must delete the distant station's signal if so requested by the local station. Bob Good, station manager for KWAB, said KWAB made the request over one and a half years ago.

This Saturday, WFAA will be taken off of channel 8 on the cable and be replaced by USA Network programming. The move will make KWAB the sole ABC affiliate on the Big Spring cable.

Program listings for the USA Network will be published by The Herald in its regular Leisure-TV weekly section. The expected starting date for USA listing is May 9.

At approximately the same time the FCC's non-duplication ruling came down, the FCC received a request from West Texas Microwave — the company from which Big Spring Cable TV purchases WFAA and KERA programming — for a rate increase.

The rate request apparently has confused cable viewers and WFAA fans.

Some area residents have claimed that Jim Lancaster, manager of Big Spring Cable TV, was dropping WFAA because of West Texas Microwave's proposed rate hike, and not because of the FCC's non-duplication ruling for KWAB.

Lancaster stated that is not the case. He said it was unfortunate that both the non-duplication ruling and the rate request came so close together. He said he was not dropping WFAA because of the proposed rate hike by West Texas Microwave, but because the FCC ruling required him to delete the WFAA signal in favor of WFAA.

"What happened was that West Texas Microwave asked for the tariff increase about the same time the FCC ruled on the non-duplication programming. I have to drop WFAA because of the FCC ruling anyway, but we still have the problem of deciding whether our viewers will want to pay extra for the cable rates to go up for KERA (a PBS station in Dallas)," Lancaster said.

Lancaster said West Texas Microwave sells to cable companies in this area and at the present time his company buys WFAA and KERA from West Texas Microwave for a monthly fee.

He said the area cable companies have hired an attorney to ask the FCC to stop West Texas Microwave from raising its rates.

West Texas Microwave has said the increases will be nothing less than 100 percent, according to Lancaster.

"Any cable system that gets a 100 percent increase will have to pass the cost onto the customer. It'll depend on whether our viewers are willing to pay extra for KERA on their bill. I have no idea how much the increase might be," Lancaster said.

He said Big Spring cable viewers would be involved in the process of deciding whether to keep KERA or not.

Hijackers lower demands

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Five leftist hijackers lowered their ransom demands today for 27 hostages held aboard a parked Honduran airliner, after the government refused to pay them $1 million and free 52 political prisoners.

The hijackers reduced their demand to $250,000 and 32 prisoners in a radio message from the jet parked at Tegucigalpa airport. There was no immediate government response.

The hostages included eight American men, the U.S. Embassy said. One of them, Gregory Bascom of the Standard Fruit and Steamship Co., told the control tower by radio:

Falklands showdown draws near

By The Associated Press

Argentina and Britain were studying a slightly amended U.S. proposal to head off war over the Falkland Islands, but the prospects for a diplomatic solution still appeared slim in both London and Buenos Aires.

Argentina's ruling three-man junta said it expected a British attack on the disputed islands before the weekend, and a Foreign Ministry source said the American proposal was substantially unchanged from the last one the junta rejected.

In London, Britain's announcement that it was extending its sea blockade of the Falklands to air traffic at dawn Friday was seen as the deadline for diplomacy. But British military sources said the assault probably would await the arrival in two or three days of paratroop reinforcements being flown out to join the 1,500 Royal Marines with the British war fleet.

By late Wednesday, the State Department had received no response to Haig's newest proposals to avert war in the South Atlantic. The plan was submitted to Argentina and Britain a day earlier.

"We're now at a point where it's almost imperative that the two sides agree to these proposals," said one senior U.S. official, who asked

City budget: revenue up

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

Greater than anticipated revenue in two city funds was a highlight of a recent mid-year budget review by Big Spring city councilmen.

City manager Don Davis told The Herald revenue is expected to be higher than planned at the start of fiscal 1981-82 in the airport fund because of some oil drilling and expanded leases at the city's industrial park.

Davis said higher revenue in the utility fund is being forecast because it has been a dry year and the city is selling more water than originally planned.

At the same time, projected expenditures in both funds are likely to be higher than were expected back in October, the beginning of the current fiscal year.

Davis said it had been difficult to accurately forecast expenditures out of the airport fund at the start of the year, and linked the higher expenditures from the utilities fund to the increase in water sales.

"As you increase your volume in sales, your overhead goes up," he said.

Davis suggested during the council meeting that water rates "will have to be reviewed and adjusted" but not until the next fiscal year.

The new forecasts show an increase in airport fund revenue from $759,355 to $1,074,231, with expenditures climbing from $844,009 to $942,194.

In the utilities fund, the city is looking at an expected increase in revenue from $3,020,570 to $3,351,027, with expenditures increasing from $3,127,928 to $3,333,094.

In other funds, general fund revenue is expected to be down, service center fund revenue up, and revenue sharing fund revenue should be up, too.

In other action at its meeting, the council:

- Offered to put a curb and gutter in front of the Richard Williams home at 2411 Allendale but pointed out to Williams that if the city does the work it will have to assess Williams for the

SWCID holds 1st graduation

The SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf's first-ever graduating class will step out into the world Friday after an afternoon graduation ceremony.

The ceremony, which will take place at the SWCID campus will begin at 2:45 p.m. with the serving of refreshments.

Speakers throughout the ceremony will include Dr. Douglas Burke, director of transitional planning, and Cheri Sparks, director of Student life at Howard College.

Sam Hill, acting vice-president of SWCID, will award the four graduating students honorary plaques.

The graduates are Jennifer Jeffers, Randy Baker, Cliff Bodiford and Sherri Daniels.

The ceremony will conclude at 5 p.m.

HEADING FOR THE BARREL — Curtis Cunningham, a clown in the fourth annual Coahoma kindergarten rodeo, heads for the barrel as he is pursued by a "bull" ridden by Chad Carter. Also in the arena is Quail Dobbs, a "real" rodeo clown. Working the chute gate is Tommi Perez. The Wednesday performance featured barrel racing, flags and other rodeo events in addition to bull riding, all with the cowboys and cowgirls aboard stick horses and bulls.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Why cans?

Q. Why do they call it "canning" when it goes into a glass jar?
A. Hermetically sealing cooked food for future use began in the 19th century in France and was patented in the U.S. in 1815. Mass-produced tin cans replaced glass jars, except in home canning, in 1825 in the states. The term "canning" is still applied to home canning although glass jars are still being used.

Hinckley jurors quizzed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers interviewing prospective jurors in private for the trial of presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. are asking them some unusual questions, such as whether they've seen the movie "Taxi Driver."

Ten people were stricken from a 90-member jury pool Wednesday and 22 were judged tentatively qualified to serve, court officials said. The process was so slow the defendant returned to his basement cell in the federal courthouse at mid-morning and never returned to the courtroom.

The prospective jurors were summoned, one-by-one, into private discussions with the attorneys and the judge, who asked them about "Taxi Driver," their views on mental illness, and their knowledge of the case.

The private questioning process is set to resume today, the third day of jury selection.

Hinckley is charged with shooting President Reagan, White House press secretary James Brady, Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy and policeman Thomas Delahanty on March 30, 1981 outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

The attorneys and U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker are searching for a jury of 12 members and six alternates. Parker has indicated actual selection will begin once the pool is trimmed to 48 people.

The possible jurors apparently are being quizzed about "Taxi Driver" because the movie and its star, Jodie Foster, will play a role in Hinckley's defense. Hinckley's lawyers want the movie shown during the trial. It was not clear whether a prospective juror who had seen the film might be disqualified.

Reagan to speak at 7 p.m.

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC, CBS and ABC will have live television coverage tonight of President Reagan's address to the nation on the budget, beginning at 7 p.m. CDT.

Worthy tapped for WTCC board

MIDLAND — Jerry Worthy of Big Spring was elected to the board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at the 64th annual WTCC convention held here recently.

Joe Kloesel Jr. of Midland was elected president of the chamber.

Dental deadline nears

The deadline for enrolling in the dental hygiene program at Howard College is May 1, announced Gwenth Gordon, director of the program.

Upon admission to the program, the student attends two years (four semesters, and four summer sessions) of courses designed to provide the educational and clinical training necessary for the practice of dental hygiene.

The two-year curriculum leads to an associate in applied science degree which is conferred by Howard College. Students who are interested in pursuing a baccalaureate degree may do so by applying their work in dental hygiene towards a bachelor of science at a four-year institution offering baccalaureate programs.

For further information about the program, contact Gwenth Gordon at 267-6311, extension 235, or the admissions office, extension 234.

to remain anonymous.

Dean Fischer, the State Department's spokesman, said there is "no ultimatum and no deadline" for the two nations, but added that the United States believes the crisis is at a "critical" stage. The time for diplomacy is "very, very short," he said.

With Britain's fleet moving toward the Falklands, there is "a greater danger of further escalation of the conflict," he said.

The senior official said Haig also believes there is very little time in which to come up with a diplomatic solution.

Meanwhile, Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez told the Organization of American States Wednesday that Argentina is prepared to "negotiate everything except our sovereignty over the Malvinas." The Argentines call the Falklands the Malvinas.

The issue of sovereignty is, however, the principal obstacle to a peaceful solution to the crisis, which began April 2 when Argentina seized the British-administered islands by force.

After meeting with Haig at the State Department, Costa Mendez said his country "has not rejected" the latest U.S. proposals, despite published reports to the contrary.

"This plan is under study and examination and analysis by our government and there will be a response," Costa Mendez said.

Haig's new proposal makes only slight changes from a previous U.S. peace document. Officials said time constraints would appear to rule out major changes in the U.S. proposals, the details of which have not been made public.

"It doesn't rule out some modification," the senior official said. "But because of the military movement it couldn't be anything very major."

Britain's announcement that it will impose a total air-and-sea war zone around the Falklands Friday "gives an added impetus and urgency to reaching agreement on a peaceful solution," he said.

Besides talking with Costa Mendez Wednesday, Haig discussed the situation by telephone with British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym and in person with Sir Nicholas Henderson, the British ambassador.

Fischer said Haig is ready to resume his peace shuttle to Buenos Aires and London if that would help. Haig already has made two trips to each city.

3,500 illegal aliens arrested this week

By The Associated Press

This week's crackdown on illegal aliens holding jobs in the American workplace so far has netted about 3,500 arrests, but many are being set free and a federal judge has set a hearing on whether to halt the raids.

The raids in nine cities by 400 agents of the Immigration and Naturalization Service also have stirred protests from church groups and organizations representing Hispanics, Arabs, Jews and other immigrants.

A Roman Catholic parish priest in Denver says he's so outraged by the roundup he's willing to harbor illegal aliens in his church and bar federal agents from entering. The manager of a fishery in Santa Rosa, Calif., said he can't find American workers to replace the 53 fish cleaners arrested at his establishment.

In Los Angeles, attorneys for an immigrant rights group won a federal court order Wednesday barring the imminent deportation of 150 Mexicans. They were among 425 arrested in the Los Angeles area since Monday as part of "Operation Jobs."

In Detroit, federal agents have released all but 36 of the 107 arrested in that city. Robert Wagus, assistant director of the INS office in Detroit, said the rest "probably would be deported."

Hijack

"The hijackers say that if you don't free the prisoners, I will die."

Another American reported among the captives was NBC-TV correspondent Brian Ross.

"Honduras is a poor country confronting a tremendous economic crisis, and it cannot enjoy the luxury of handing over $1 million to a terrorist group," Deputy Foreign Minister Rodol Rosales Abella told The Associated Press.

"Neither can we free 52 political prisoners who do not even exist in our jails since no one here is persecuted for his political ideas."

However, the government said it would let the hijackers, who it said were members of a guerrilla group called Revolutionary Popular Forces-Lorenzo Zelaya, fly to another country if they freed the hostages.

Police said there were 44 passengers, including 15 Americans, and four crew members aboard the Honduran Air Service Dash-7 turboprop when the guerrillas, armed with pistols, commandeered it Wednesday morning during a flight from La Ceiba, 115 miles north of Tegucigalpa, to the capital.

U.S. weapons jeopardized by spy plot, CIA reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key present and future U.S. weapons have been "put in jeopardy" because of information passed by a defense industry radar engineer to a Polish spy, an intelligence report says.

The report prepared by the CIA listed the futuristic radar-evading "Stealth" bomber, the new B-1 bomber and the F-15 jet fighter's look-down-shoot-down radar as among the endangered systems.

It said William H. Bell, the American engineer, passed more than 20 "significant classified reports" to a Polish intelligence officer who operated under cover as a business executive.

The information probably reached Soviet intelligence, according to the report, which became available Wednesday.

"The information in these documents put in jeopardy existing weapons and advanced future weapons systems of the United States and its allies," the report said.

"The acquisition of this information will save the Polish and Soviet governments hundreds of millions of dollars in research and development efforts by permitting them to implement proven designs developed by the United States and by fielding operational counterpart systems in a much shorter time period," the report said.

"Specifications on current and future U.S. weapon systems will enable them to develop defensive counter-measure systems," it said.

Bell, a former radar project engineer with Hughes Aircraft Co., pleaded guilty last year in Los Angeles to charges that he transferred filmed copies of documents to Marion Zacharski.

Bell was sentenced to up to eight years in prison and fined $10,000. Zacharski was given a life term for conspiring to commit espionage.

The document prepared for Congress by the CIA this month provided the most specific material so far on information the CIA said Bell furnished the Polish spy. The Bell case was highlighted in a report that focused on the problem of legal and illegal Soviet acquisition of Western technology.

The Reagan administration is making a major effort to clamp down on the flow of high technology of military value to the Soviet Union.

Referring to the classified reports it said Bell provided to the Polish spy, the CIA document listed:

—The quiet radar system for the B-1 and Stealth bombers.

—The F-15 look-down-shoot-down radar system that is capable of spotting enemy aircraft that might try to attack at low altitudes where ground-based radar normally could not see them.

—The sophisticated Phoenix missile system carried by Navy F-14 fighter planes and designed to take on many enemy targets simultaneously.

—An all-weather radar system for tanks and an experimental radar system for the Navy.

—Patriot and improved Hawk air defense missiles.

—A ship-borne surveillance radar and a submarine sonar system.

—A new air-to-air missile and unspecified NATO air defense system.

Man arrested on weapons charge

Leanso Lee Jimenez Jr., 22, was arrested by police yesterday at the Brass Monkey Lounge on a charge of unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Officer Garry L. Parker said he was called to the lounge because of a fight, and while in the process of breaking up the disturbance, Parker allegedly discovered Jimenez was carrying a pistol.

Helen Hutt of Helen's Honky Tonk at 3509 W. Highway 80 told police someone tried to break into her business between 12:30 and 4:30 a.m. Thursday. Hutt said the person did not gain entry into the building.

Leonasio Jimenez of 1311 Wright told police that at 5:40 p.m. yesterday a man pulled a gun on him at O'Flynn's Lounge. Jimenez said he was able to take the gun away from the man. Later, officers took a suspect into custody, according to police reports.

Thomas Stoddard complained to police that at 11:15 p.m. yesterday while he was at Cactus Jack's club in the city industrial park, an unknown white male struck him in the face.

Convicted murderer says he wants to die

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for convicted murderer Stephen Peter Morin say they will pursue an appeal on their client's behalf even though Morin says he would prefer to die.

In a letter received Wednesday, Morin informed San Antonio State District Judge David Berchemann Jr. he would prefer execution to languishing in a state prison cell during the appeals process, according to published reports.

The letter, which Berchemann said Morin mailed from the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, asks the judge to set an execution date, the Corpus Christi Caller-Times reported today.

But one of Morin's court-appointed attorneys, Pete Torres Jr. of San Antonio, said, "The appeal is automatic and I will continue with the appeal process until the court tells me that the man... is to be executed."

Morin pleaded guilty to capital murder and was sentenced to death April 16 after a jury in Beaumont heard the state's evidence in the case. Morin was charged in the Dec. 11 shooting of a San Antonio woman, Carrie Marie Scott, in a restaurant parking lot.

Morin still faces kidnapping and murder charges in Corpus Christi as well as murder charges from Colorado, Utah and Nevada. Morin wrote he has made "peace with his Maker" and "Christians are not afraid to die," Berchemann told the newspaper.

Morin also said he did not want to be a continued burden on the taxpayers and was "not a pawn to be banded back and forth in the Texas court system for years to come."

Berchemann said the letter's arrival took him by surprise, but said an appeal is automatic in capital murder cases under Texas law.

The newspaper said Morin also sent copies of the letter to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals as well as his attorneys, Torres and Keith Alaniz, also of San Antonio.

Guilty pleas received

Five people pleaded guilty in the state's 118th District Court Wednesday before District Judge Jim Gregg. All five received probated sentences.

Simon E. Zubiate, 23, of 703 W. Sixth, received five years probation for possession of marijuana over two ounces. Zoilo E. Rodriguez, 21, was handed a four-year probated sentence for forgery. Alan John Baker, 32, pleaded guilty to robbery and received seven years probation.

In two other pleas, David L. Pennell, 31, of 800 Aylford, was given five years probation after pleading guilty to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. William A. Ensminger, 27, was handed a seven-year probated sentence after pleading guilty to robbery.

Singers serenade Lions

Downtown Lions got a dose of nostalgia yesterday when the Signal Mountain Singers gave a program of barbershop quartet music.

The singers had one plus going for them — they had five in the quartet as they went through old-time favorites like "Wild Irish Rose," "Kentucky Babe," "Margarie," and "Coney Island Babe." Members were Dan Corley, Lynn Hise, Joe Dawes, Bill Birrell and Don Green.

Lions firmed up final plans for the kickoff Monday of their annual lightbulb sale. The packets of assorted bulbs ($5.35) and three-way bulbs ($2) will go a long way toward financing sight conservation and blind work, along with youth and other humanitarian projects.

Dr. James Cave, general chairman, said team captains have workers enlisted. The club spends about $3,500 annually to help with various projects for others.

Deaths

Clyde Bell

Clyde M. Bell, 87, formerly of Big Spring, died in El Paso Wednesday morning.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at Kaster and Maxon Chapel. Burial will be in El Paso.

Quiet campaign marks education board race

By GINA SPADA
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The phrase "low profile" usually brings to mind thoughts of undercover agents or fugitives — people who want to stay out of the limelight. It seems an unlikely description for candidates to the board of a major state agency.

But low profile might be an apt description of those persons running for the 27 seats on the Texas Board of Education.

While the board itself attracts some attention, especially when it handles school textbook selection, the races often are run almost unnoticed by the public.

There were 24 board seats with areas corresponding to congressional districts.

After the 1980 census, Texas gained three more congressional seats, and therefore, three more board posts.

All existing 24 places and the three new ones are up for grabs. Since members serve staggered six-year terms, they will draw in January for two, four or six-year terms, said Carolyn Runmann, secretary for the board.

In District 17, which is being vacated by James A. Binion of Abilene, Democrats Jewel Harris and Curly Hays, both of Abilene, will meet in the May 1 primary.

The winner will face Republican Carol Hunter of Big Spring in the November election.

To be a board member, a candidate must be at least 30 years old, a resident of the district for five years and not engaged in public education.

However, a teacher or administrator at a private school is eligible because private schools do not receive state money, said Joe Kelly Butler of Houston, chairman of the board.

The board oversees the Texas Education Agency, approves school textbooks suggested by the State Textbook Committee and sets the general education policy for kindergarten through twelfth grades. Despite these heavy duties, the board has what might be called a low profile.

"Profile is not something you necessarily control," Butler said.

"When you get elected to a responsible position, you meet and you work with what's out there, and if you don't excite the news media then you don't excite the news media," he said.

"I think it's had a low profile because there's been so little controversy," said Paul Matthews of Greenville, who has held his seat since 1949 and is running unopposed in his re-election bid.

Kutler said the board draws the most attention when it is involved with textbook selection.

"We get all kinds of heat when we start getting involved in textbooks, and we handle that like we handle any other matter," he said.

One matter the board handles is the substantial education budget.

The education board is not only responsible for the $69.5 million TEA operating budget for fiscal year 1982-83, but also the nearly $8 billion in state and federal funds that are for the two school years covered by the biennium.

Of that $8 billion, the state contributes about $6.7 billion with the federal government adding the rest. The legislature sets the policy for spending the funds, and the board handles the distribution.

Before 1949, the state did not contribute much money to public education, Butler said.

Then with the enactment of the Gilmer-Aikin laws, the Foundation School Program was created along with the Permanent and Available School Funds.

The Permanent School Fund is derived from income from the sale of mineral royalties on state lands. Its current worth, $3 billion, makes it "the largest of its kind," Matthews, a retired banker, said.

Another of the board's jobs is to invest the Permanent School Funds. The money from the interests or dividends from these investments go into the Available School Fund, which is currently valued at $200 million dollars.

This money, about $100 per child, is distributed to the schools.

Budget compromise fails

Congress to draft proposal 'a piece at a time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has no choice but to try to draft a budget "a piece at a time" after the failure of President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. to resolve their differences on "dollars and philosophy" during a three-hour bargaining session.

"This doesn't mean that the government has broken down," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas. "Now it goes back to the orderly process of legislation in the House and in the Senate where it would have had to go in any event."

The president scheduled a nationally broadcast address tonight (7 p.m. CDT) to discuss the aftermath of his unprecedented Capitol Hill meeting Wednesday with O'Neill and other congressional leaders.

"Our feeling is we simply were not met half way," said White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III. He led administration bargainers in the series of 13 budget meetings between White House officials and members of Congress that led up to the session Wednesday in the richly decorated Presidents' Room off the Senate floor.

O'Neill, D-Mass., said compromise was elusive because of "basic philosophical disagreement" between the White House and congressional Democrats. The president believes his "spending cuts of last year, which he wants to cut some more, are not hurting anyone out there in America," the speaker added.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., who also attended the meeting Wednesday, said the "differences between us were so great in both dollars and philosophy" that agreement was impossible.

Democrats said the talks collapsed with their rejection of a last-minute compromise proposal from Sen. Baker — that Reagan had accepted — calling for a three-month delay in the 10 percent personal income tax rate cut scheduled for July 1983. That was to have been coupled with a three-month delay in the 7.4 percent Social Security cost-of-living increase scheduled for this July.

"That, for all practical purposes, was just not any deal at all and we turned it down rather quickly, flatly," said Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., who attended the meeting and emerged as the spokesman for House Democrats.

"About that time, we got to the point where we were talking about the inability to get together on the crucial issues," Bolling said.

Senate Republicans had a slightly different version.

NO LUCK — President Reagan, flanked by Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, left, and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill prepares for a meeting on the budget compromise. The group failed to come to an agreement.

Polish martial law eased

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist government announced the biggest easing of martial law restrictions so far, including the release of 1,000 internees, lifting of the curfew and improvements in travel and communications.

Among those freed was Jan Kulaj, the leader of the independent farmers' union, Rural Solidarity. Nothing was said about Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, however.

The government said "because of the further stabilization of the situation in the country," 800 of the Solidarity activists and others interned after the imposition of martial law Dec. 13 would be freed while 200 others would be paroled.

The 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew will end Sunday.

the announcement continued, but provincial governors will have the authority to reimpose it.

It said permits will no longer be required for tourist excursions organized by factories and institutions; for courses, conferences and training meetings organized by social groups, and for gatherings and assemblies organized by approved government committees.

Persons making domestic phone calls will no longer have to place them through operators. The ban on travel to areas along the Czechoslovak border will be lifted, and the ban on visas for representatives of industrial firms and foreign trade and diplomatic missions will also end, the announcement said.

A Senate Republican source, who asked not to be quoted by name, said Reagan himself offered a 90-day delay in the July 1983 tax cut if the Democrats would split the differences remaining in other areas. Presumably, this would have meant some adjustment in cost-of-living increases, although not in 1982. But, the source said, Democrats rejected that offer.

"President Reagan and his people honestly believe that their program is fair and I know that we're convinced that it isn't fair," Bolling said. "And I think it broke really on that issue."

"I rather think now, looking back, that maybe this effort was dead in the water from the beginning," said Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., another negotiator. "The philosophical differences are too deep."

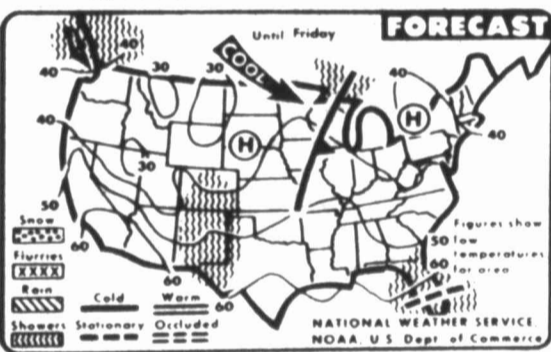

U.N. demands Israel return West Bank to Palestinians

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly demanded that Israel give control of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip to the Palestine Liberation Organization as the prelude to Palestinian statehood and condemned U.S. support for the Jewish State.

Despite bitter U.S. and Israeli protests, the pro-Palestinian resolution was adopted Wednesday by a vote of 86-20. Egypt, Israel's partner in the U.S.-sponsored Camp David peace process, joined 36 nations in abstaining. Those opposed included the United States and most Western nations.

The vote ended an eight-day emergency assembly session on the "question of Palestine."

Weather

Dense fog covers eastern Texas

By The Associated Press

Dense fog covered a vast area of the eastern half of Texas early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a travelers advisory because of hazardous driving conditions.

The fog was reported in North Central Texas, Southeast Texas, East Texas and middle and upper sections of the coast. Visibility was reduced to zero at Victoria and to about one-sixteenth of a mile at Houston.

In addition to the fog, some light showers were reported during the pre-dawn hours in East Texas, mainly between Waco and Lufkin. Elsewhere, skies were clear except in South Texas where it was cloudy.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 50s and 60s. Extremes ranged from 39 at Amarillo and 45 at Wichita Falls to 68 at Galveston and 67 at Austin.

Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures for most of the state. There was a chance of showers and thunderstorms from west to east late today, continuing tonight.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Scattered mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms most sections through the weekend. Warm Saturday and again Monday with slight dip in temperatures Sunday. High Saturday and Monday near 70 north to lower 90s south dipping to mid 60s north to mid 80s south Sunday. Lows Saturday lower 40s north to near 60s south cooling to upper 30s north to mid 50s south Sunday and Monday.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Increasing cloudiness south with widely scattered thundershowers extreme southwest. Otherwise sunny and warm today. Partly cloudy tonight with considerable cloudiness Friday. Scattered showers and thundershowers across the area tonight and Friday. Cooler Friday. Highs 75 Panhandle to 87 southwest except low 90s Big Bend. Lows 45 Panhandle to 60 south. Highs Friday 65 Panhandle to 81 southwest and near 90 Big Bend.

Budget cutbacks force daycare center closings

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Parents who can't afford to pay for daycare for their children will be forced back onto welfare rolls if the state doesn't pay for a program that has become a victim of budget cuts, says Houston state Rep. Ron Wilson.

"Two-to-three thousand children will turn into 'latchkey kids,'" in Houston alone, Wilson told a Capitol news conference Wednesday.

He said he had asked Gov. Bill Clements to open the special legislative session to include passage of emergency daycare funding.

The May 24 special session was scheduled solely to consider repealing the state property tax. But Wilson called the daycare closings a "crisis" and said he expected a "compassionate and sensitive" Clements to "find it in his heart to save these children."

Between $1 million and $1.5 million is needed to fully fund the program statewide, Wilson said.

Wilson said about 20,000 Texas children are affected by the loss of federal funding for daycare. Some are in contract daycare centers in the interim by virtue of a temporary federal-state funding setup.

If the state does not pick up the program, Wilson said, the children either will be unsupervised or the parents — mostly single mothers — will have to quit their jobs and return to welfare rolls.

"This program fits in with the current administration's philosophy of putting people to work," Wilson said.

He said a 2-year-old Houston child was severely burned recently when its 90-year-old grandmother failed to watch after it properly. The child had been in a daycare center until the budget cutbacks.

Midland man faces murder trial

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — A Midland, Texas, man accused of killing his father has been bound over for trial here on second-degree murder charges.

John Vernon Johnson Jr., 29, was bound over Tuesday after a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Judge H.H. Linneweh of Carlsbad.

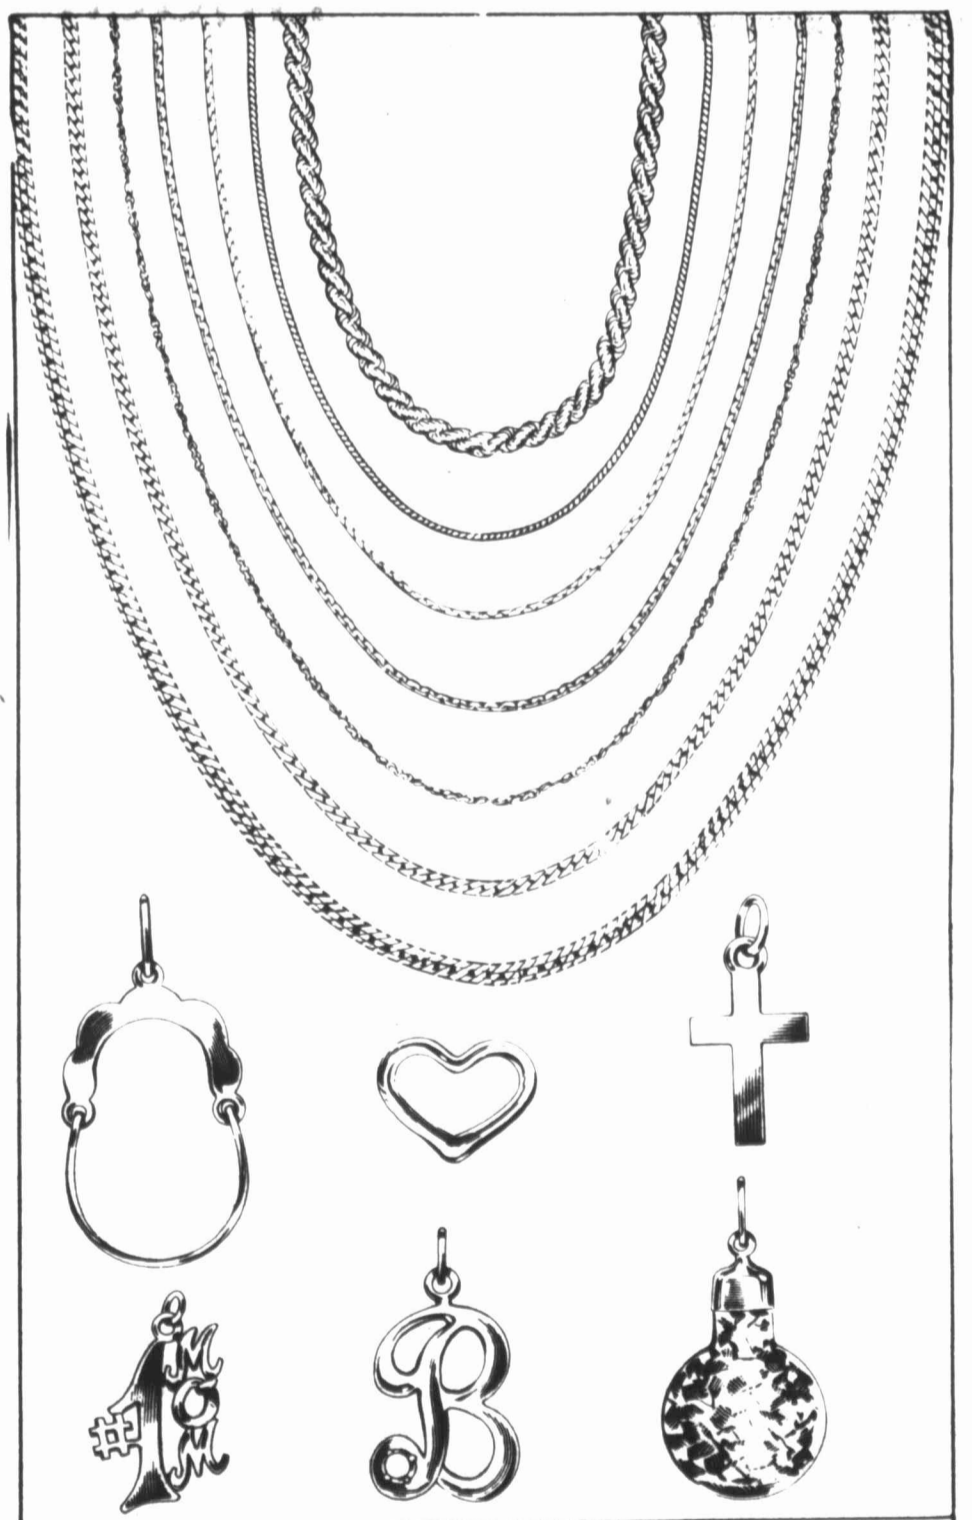

Johnson is charged in connection with the death of his father, John Vernon Johnson Sr., 51. Carlsbad city police found the elder Johnson shot to death April 14 at his Carlsbad home.

According to police, the defendant said his father had attacked him with a pistol and he had tried to wrestle the weapon away from the older man when it discharged.

In Tuesday's court proceeding, Linneweh reduced the defendant's original $100,000 bond, which already had been posted, to $25,000.

Johnson was an attorney in Midland.

A businessman speaks out

A lot of people, including businessmen, complain about government spending in general, but develop second thoughts on projects that might affect their economic interests.

An exception to this rule is textile manufacturer David Stedman of Asheboro, N.C. Stedman recently recorded a series of radio spots for airing on major stations in Washington, D.C., urging cutbacks in Federal spending across the board — including "goodies" thought to be of help to business.

Addressed to Congress and the administration, Stedman's radio spots drive home the central message: Our elected representatives must reclaim control of runaway Federal spending and start to practice real economy in government. There must be cuts in every area of domestic outlay to get the national accounts in balance.

A GOOD SYMBOLIC starting point, says Stedman, would be a Federal pay cut of five percent — beginning with the President himself, then on to other high officials including Congress. After that, a one-year moratorium on government salary, wage and pension hikes. That would involve substantial savings, and also set the stage for other needed cutbacks in the swollen budget.

"Your job in Congress is made more difficult," Stedman told the lawmakers, "because you have constituents back home who want the handouts, the goodies, the subsidies, and all sorts of special deals. Many in the business community are involved as well. These constituents put the pressure on you to 'keep the goodies rollin'." But if you do 'keep 'em rollin', you're going to destroy the very thing these people need most of all — a strong, vital economy and a chance for economic opportunity."

WHAT IS NEEDED most of all, Stedman concludes, is to reverse the present system in which we decide how much we want to spend, then try to scratch up the money to pay for it. The right approach would be to do what every family has to do: Figure out your income, then cut back your spending to what you can afford (which, thanks to Federally-spawned inflation and heavy taxes, keeps getting to be less and less).

This common-sense approach strikes us as good advice. If other businessmen would follow Stedman's lead in urging it, and Congress would pay heed, we could end up with a balanced budget yet.

Around the Rim

Shrimp's eye view

What's Big Spring's favorite pastime? Just show up at Johnny Stone Memorial Park any evening for the next few months and you'll get your answer.

After a hard day in the oilfields or office, there's nothing like heading to a ballpark for softball. There's something about taking your frustrations out on a Blue Dot that does wonders for a man.

Looking for some activity for the summer, staff writer Bob Carpenter and I ventured to an organizational meeting earlier this spring to find a softball team to play on. As the team representatives filed in, we became more and more discouraged. Bob, you see, tips the scales at 300 pounds — with a Datsun on the scales with him — and I am no heavyweight either, unless I've just filled up at Fat's. The rest of the meeting room, however, was filled bicep to bicep with guys with bulds bigger than Conan the Barbarian.

The kicker came when spokesman Bill Bailey asked if any teams needed a couple of players. One of the heftiest guys roared a hearty laugh and said, "It depends how good they are."

When Bailey pointed at us two shrimps, there was more laughter. "Those guys?" they laughed, tears streaming from their eyes. "I thought they was the new scorekeepers." More laughter.

FORTUNATELY we were invited to play on a team that took us up on our offer for great publicity in the newspaper if they gave us a spot on their bench.

Since that auspicious beginning, Bob and I have proven the critics wrong. Yes we can hit the ball out of the infield if the wind is at our backs.

Thinking that if he put me in the outfield I might wander off, the coach of our team first tested me at catcher. That was okay until behemoth Roger Evans came to bat one evening. If you don't know Roger, he's a monster with arms as big as my waist. Looks like Bubba Smith.

The wind created by one of his swings almost blew me back to the dugout. When he hit the pitch and dropped the bat, seismographs registered 7.8 on the Richter scale. The crushed softball fell helplessly to earth six miles past the left field fence.

Worst of it all is Roger isn't the biggest nor is he the meanest. I now address these gentlemen as "Sir" and dust off their cleats between innings.

The pitchers, of course, are great. You may get one off of them but when they discover how you hit, it's all over. If you pull the ball, they leave on the outside corner. If you go to right, it's tight inside. They, the masters of their art, can even embarrass the behemoths into dribbling the ball back to the mound.

Of course, there is no mound, but it sounded good.

THE QUESTION I ask is why use a white ball on a white infield? It's like playing golf in the snow. Bob has said the ball gets stuck in his right ear before he picks it up off the bat. How about orange, guys? Okay, I guess it was a fruity idea.

Then there is the outfield. The patchy lighting lends only to muggers jumping you during a long inning. And there's animals and stuff out there. Behind one park is a graveyard. During those late games, you start hearing things out there. If they hit a ball, you won't catch this dude trying to find which tombstone it rolled to. I wouldn't be caught dead out there.

AS YOU CAN guess, softball is a lot of fun. Lots of chatter, hollering and ribbing goes on. Most guys are out there for the fun of it to blow off a little steam and imagine that Johnny Stone is really Yankee Stadium. And you know what, some guys are really good. Believe it or not, some of them are not behemoths.

Bob and I are progressing. We are feared around the league for "hittin' 'em where they ain't." If that's four feet left of the plate, that's fine. Or if it's right in their glove and they can't field, that's fine too.

And we're working on our physiques so we can really fit in. In 180 years, I expect to outlast Roger Evans. Until then, we'll just have to scrap with the biggest of them.

Greatest clown show on earth

WASHINGTON — Barnum & Bailey have met their match: The greatest clown show on earth is now located at the United Nations complex on the east side of Manhattan.

The place is populated with delegates from many lands — diplomats by the dozens, puffed up with pride and protocol. An unintended slight to the dignity of a delegation may be interpreted as a deliberate attack on the national honor.

In this atmosphere of continually wounded sensitivities, the world's most experienced, supposedly unruffled diplomats sometimes have their small-boy tantrums. Take the recent case of the speakers' sign-up list.

It might not seem to matter much which country addresses the General Assembly first, last or anywhere in between. But to a U.N. ambassador engaged more in ceremony than substance, the timing of his address is important. The first speakers are considered most prestigious.

For reasons now lost in the 37-year history of the august body, the Brazilian delegate traditionally spoke first. Second place was given to the United States as host nation and principal financial backer. The 155 other delegations signed up for speaking slots on a day chosen by the U.N. Secretariat, with a certain amount of diplomatic horse-trading to get advantageous positions on the list.

BUT THIS YEAR the secretariat had a new ringmaster for the speakers, a Russian named Guennadi Yevstafiev. He decided it would be fairer to award the coveted debate positions on a first come, first served basis.

The formal sign-up, or inscription, was to take place at 9:30 a.m. on April 12, Easter Monday. A formal pronouncement to that effect was posted on April 8.

Joseph Kraft

A short eternity

The Keynesian rule is that "in the long run we'll all be dead." But far more relevant to the era of Ronald Reagan is the obverse principle — "the short run can last an eternity."

The President's newfound flexibility means that the negotiations on the 1983 budget, which have already gone on for months, are sure to continue. Even so, significant legislative action this year is virtually impossible. While there may be a slight economic recovery in the summer, circumstances practically require the monetary authorities to cut it short. Then the whole issue will go back to the voters who will elect a new Congress that will start all over again.

Behind all this are the huge budget deficits shaping up for the years ahead. If nothing is done, the deficit will be well above $130 billion for fiscal 1983, which begins this coming October. It will be over $180 billion for fiscal 1984, and over $225 billion for 1985. Reducing those deficits requires significant cuts in spending or big tax increases or both.

Economic and political logic, however, militates against both tax rises and spending cuts during this period of deep recession. Spending cuts take money from poor people, thus sharpening the bite of hard times. Tax increases cut purchasing power, thus holding back economic growth. Without exactly saying so, the budget conferees decided weeks ago against any truly big moves on either taxes or spending this year. Politically, for both Democrats and Republicans, the least painful way to

But word leaked out to some delegations that at one minute past midnight on April 12, a security guard on the 38th floor of the U.N. building would hand out numbered tickets that could be traded in at 9:30 for the most desirable time slots.

Like fans lining up for unreserved World Series tickets, delegation members showed up to stake out their positions several hours in advance.

Numero Uno was Romania, whose delegate reportedly showed up at 10 a.m. Easter morning to be sure to get the number one slot, a confidential State Department document reported, adding:

"As other delegates arrived during the course of the day, an informal gentlemen's agreement was worked out: namely, to keep a list on which delegates could sign the name of their country and the time of their arrival, thereby obviating the need to physically stand in line for hours."

The State Department account, which was confirmed from other sources by my associate Lucette Laganado, said this impromptu arrangement worked fine all through Easter Sunday, until about 11 p.m., when the Syrian ambassador arrived in his limousine.

Appalled at the notification that he would be No. 26 on the list for numbered tickets, the Syrian grudgingly signed up and left. But at 11:45 p.m., perhaps after checking with Damascus, he returned and announced that Syria did not recognize the gentlemen's agreement.

The others were dismayed at this breach of etiquette, and as midnight approached they crowded around the elevator, which arrived in the lobby at 11:50 p.m. Everyone squeezed aboard and took off for the 38th floor, where they came boiling out like the circus midgets from the little red Volkswagen.

The senior security guard pointed out that it was not yet midnight, and sent them all back down to the lobby — except for the Syrian ambassador, who refused to budge.

At 12:01 a.m., the others returned and the guard handed out the tickets — with no regard for the informal list. Uproar. Protests. Cries of outrage. The guard took the tickets back and handed them out again in proper order — except for the Syrian ambassador, who grabbed No. 6 and ran.

Footnote: The United States, miffed at the change in procedure, refused to send anyone to the free-for-all and threatened a formal challenge to the new system. What will happen next? Will the U.S. delegate be allowed to speak at all? Does anybody care?

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The Falkland Islands crisis has wreaked havoc with Secretary of State Alexander Haig's regular morning tennis games. Haig's aides have been calling the Arlington (Va.) Y Tennis and Squash Club as usual to reserve a court, only to call again at the last minute and cancel the reservation as the demands of the secretary's shuttle diplomacy interfere.

Laura Brock, wife of U.S. trade representative William Brock, has billed the taxpayers for $17,889.61 worth of travel expenses. Although she holds no official job, a spokesman for her husband explained that she serves in a diplomatic role when she attends receptions and dinners with Brock.

The Federal Advisory Committee Act forbids advisory committees from requesting advice from groups or individuals for the purpose of developing policy. So when Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel Pierce invited housing and lumber industry officials to meet with the White House task force on housing, he was ordered to cancel the meeting. An earlier meeting with the same officials did not violate the statute, HUD's general counsel ruled.

approach the 1982 elections is with a deficit — say around $100 billion for fiscal 1983.

FOR THE REST of this year, to be sure, life on Capitol Hill will not come to a standstill. There will be continued negotiations for a budget compromise, and perhaps even an accord. Some small tax increases and some minor spending cuts may be enacted. The budget committees will pass resolutions that envisage bigger spending cuts, bigger revenue balance sometime after 1985. But those actions will be in the nature of pledges. They will set forth objectives and codify good intentions. Legislation to achieve those goals will be subject to the course of the economy and its impact on the political climate.

The economy cannot continue to decline forever. The tax cut enacted last year will combine with an increase in Social Security benefits to put a vast payment into the pockets of consumers on July 1. Disposable income will increase by something like $40 billion. That windfall, together with increased defense spending, should give the economy a lift in July or August.

But the lift will not come in increased business investment. For profits have been very low, and corporate debt is tilted toward short-term loans. So with better times, the major corporations will try to switch from short-term to long-term debt. Investment will stay flat, and so will productivity.

The combination of big deficits, high consumer spending and little improvement in investment and productivity is a red flag to the Federal Reserve Board. It says there is more inflation in the wings. So the Fed will not ease up significantly on money supply. It might well tighten the screws. Interest rates will thus stay relatively high, and the recovery is apt to stall.

The fall elections, in these conditions, are not easy to call. President Reagan remains popular, and the country seems to go for his economic slogans. Maybe the country will still look as though it is on the move. Perhaps the President will be able to stick the Democrats with the blame for what went wrong.

Certainly he has been brilliant in making it seem that he is flexible on the budget, and that if there is difficulty there, the fault lies with the Democrats.

A MORE LIKELY outcome, however, is that the Democrats will benefit from continued high unemployment. They can argue that President Reagan initiated a loose fiscal policy with his big tax cut. The loose fiscal policy obliged the Fed to stick to a tight money policy. The tight money policy yielded the high interest rates that started the recession and kept it going. Therefore, the monkey is on the Republican back.

Either way, the Congress that comes to Washington next year is almost certain to be where the Congress is today. It will have to cope with high unemployment.

Billy Graham

Death is not to be feared

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What did Jesus mean when he said "Whoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die"? Does this mean that if we really had enough faith we would not experience death? — F.R.

DEAR F.R.: No, that is clearly not what Jesus meant. Instead, what he meant is that death no longer is an enemy to be feared, if you are a believer in Christ. The reason is because death, for the believer, is the entrance to eternal life.

The words you quote are found in John 11:26 and are part of a sentence Jesus spoke. It is important to look at the whole sentence: "I am the resurrection and the life. He who believes in me will live, even though he dies; and whoever lives and believes in me will never die" (John 11:25-26).

Note carefully that the first part of the sentence teaches that we are not exempt from death. But Jesus goes on to say that death does not harm us, because we will "never die" — we "will live" and have life forever.

This is a precious truth. The Bible teaches us that death is an enemy. Death came into the world because of sin, and because we are all sinners we all will some day die. Furthermore, the Bible tells us that we are cut off from God because of our sin, and some day we will die and spend eternity alone, apart from the presence of God. But the Bible also tells us that we do not need to fear death or judgment, because God loves us and sent his son into the world to take away the sting of death. On the cross he died for us. He took our judgment and our hell upon himself, because he loves us. By faith and trust in him we can be saved. We need not fear the future, because we know that if we belong to Christ we have a sure hope of Heaven.

Have you ever trusted Christ as your Savior and Lord? If not, I urge you to turn to him in repentance and faith. Then you too can know the joy of facing death not with fear, but with hope and faith.

Please don't waste paper

Dear Editor, Please, let us have no more of our paper (made from dwindling forest resources) wasted upon the ? messages? by that mental clown who provided the cartoon of April 23 who pointlessly depicted an incapacitated man — sucking a finger, slumped until his belly covered his thighs, and his hand held a security blanket — The words "Social Security" were in one corner of the message.

Banish the creator of that message, whatever he intended. The cartoons you have been showing would be better omitted ... they are not worth the space they occupy ... those beside the Editorial section. These be-little every individual, or symbol of a population segment that they depict ... we don't need more BELITTling ... Our present problems make us all now humbly small ... it is no laughing matter!

I remind you that you claim to maintain an on-the-fence position about controversial economic policies ... you are close to failing in that ... We've been subjected to TWO-in-a-row letters in favor of the status quo that will freeze women into continuing to be paid only 58 percent of the amount that is paid to a man for the same value of work, of continuing to have group insurance policies provide fewer benefits to women than to men ... turn time backward so that we have the good old days when the abortions (no matter what the circumstances) must be sought in a back alley under illicit circumstances.

The damned woman shouldn't be stupid enough to get pregnant — men never make that mistake! Let women act worthy of liberation. Yea-a! Phyllis!

Nuclear freeze plainly dangerous, Tower says

By WILLIAM GARLAND
States News Service

WASHINGTON — The call for a freeze on nuclear arms had swelled unexpectedly by the end of so-called Ground Zero Week, but Sen. John Tower seemed almost immovable in the controversy, planted solidly in the administration's camp.

The Texas Republican, prominent in the weapons debate by virtue of his chairmanship of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said in a recent interview that a freeze on nuclear arms is plainly dangerous. It would benefit the Soviet Union more than the United States, he said, and would do more toward getting the United States into a nuclear conflict than keeping it out of one.

Tower is convinced that many people "don't fully understand the implications" of such a freeze and that the "effect is a difficult thing to get across."

"When the United States unilaterally cancelled development of the B1 bomber during the Carter administration, we asked the Soviets what they would do in return. The answer was nothing," he said.

"I am forced to conclude that the Soviets will be unwilling to freeze their weapons production at a level of capability equal to ours."

Tower emphasized that, from his view, the cure is the same prevention that has prevailed for most of the years since World War II: a "demonstration of a strong capability" to respond to the Soviet Union with an equal force of destruction.

As a Senate leader on the other end of the debate, Kennedy has found new steam for political engines that seemed to have died with the Reagan conservative onslaught of 1980.

ACCORDING TO a Kennedy staff member who did not want to be named, Kennedy does not view Tower, however, as one of the most potent opponents of the freeze.

"I wouldn't find him a key opponent," said the aide. "Everyone knows he's against any kind of arms control."

He said that Tower is the only senator who agrees with numerous statements by Reagan that the Soviet Union has strong superiority in the realm of nuclear weapons.

LAST WEEK, members of the Washington-based organization, Ground Zero, carried their campaign against nuclear arms to the front pages and television sets by trying to convey the realities of atomic warfare.

With that effort during their Ground Zero Week, along with recent publication of a book by Jonathan Schell that has been the most-discussed work in years on nuclear war, the movement for a freeze on arms gained momentum and found a powerful congressional voice in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Statements by President Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig about the possible limited use of nuclear arms also have been cited as stimulants for the grassroots outpouring of concern.

Tower is one of the more weighty congressional counterbalances to the freeze movement. In defense briefings given to the press over the past several weeks, he has steadfastly maintained that the traditional approach to the Soviet threat continues to be the wisest one.

"What I would like these freeze people to tell me is how that (a freeze) would prevent a nuclear war," Tower said. "The Russians will not give up anything in response to a unilateral gesture on our part."

He cited as an example the case of the B1 bomber.

Wood assassination suspect complains of gestapo tactics

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A convicted hitman accused of killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. for a $250,000 fee has won a delay of his arraignment on a murder charge until he retains a permanent attorney.

Charles V. Harrelson, 43, complained Wednesday about alleged "gestapo tactics" by the government and said he did not want to take part in any court proceeding until he gets a fulltime attorney appointed to his case.

Four other persons indicted in connection with Wood's May 29, 1979, slaying entered pleas of innocent Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Robert O'Connor and their attorneys filed notice they would seek changes of venue to move their trials out of San Antonio.

Pleading innocent were Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 37, who allegedly hired Harrelson to kill Wood; his brother, Joe Chagra, 35; his wife, Elizabeth Chagra, 28, and Jo Ann Harrelson, 41, wife of the alleged triggerman.

Both Jimmy Chagra and Harrelson, charged with murdering Wood to keep him from presiding at Jimmy Chagra's 1979 narcotics trial, told O'Connor they feared any discussions with their attorneys until they are assured the FBI will not eavesdrop on them electronically.

"I just want an opportunity to talk with an attorney, which I haven't been able to do for nearly two years, without fear of being eavesdropped on, harassment and what I consider gestapo tactics," Harrelson told the magistrate.

Joe Chagra, an attorney, and Elizabeth Chagra are accused of conspiring with Jimmy Chagra and Harrelson to kill Wood. All five of the defendants are accused of conspiring to obstruct justice and Mrs. Harrelson additionally is charged with five counts of perjury.

"Am I going to have a conference with my attorney and co-defendants in a room without fear of being taped illegally or whatever?" Jimmy Chagra asked.

San Antonio lawyer Allen Brown represented Harrelson on Wednesday, but Harrelson said he wants the court to appoint Brownsville lawyer Thomas Sharpe as his permanent attorney.

Permian historians meet Saturday

Papers on topics dating from the stage-coach days to Odessa during World War II will be presented at the annual meeting of the Permian Historical Society Saturday in Odessa.

The sessions will be held at the Community Room at Odessa College, 201 West University starting at 10 a.m. The directors meeting is due at 9 a.m. with registration half an hour later.

Reservations for the luncheon should be made with Mrs. Richard Klepper, 1705 E. 46th Street, Odessa, immediately, said Joe Pickle.

A.J. Prager, whose family has been in business in West Texas for nearly three score years, will project copies from his historic post card collection.

THANK YOU from JOHN STANLEY

To the citizens of Howard County for the fine reception you gave me when I visited with you in your homes and in your business establishments.

You have given me your time for which I am most grateful.

If I have failed to conduct you personally then that is my loss.

I hope that you will consider this as my request for your influence and vote for the office of County Judge May 1.

AMBITION IS NOT ENOUGH!

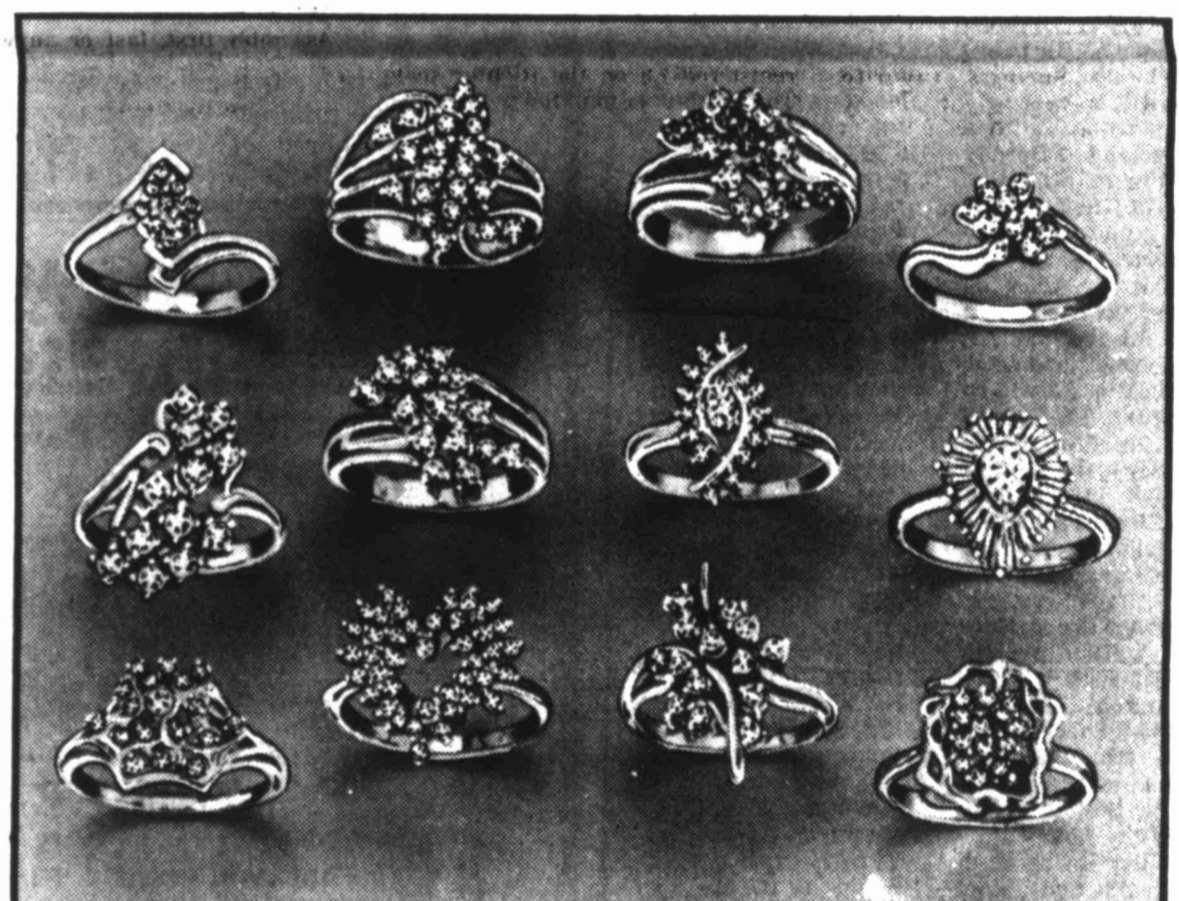

A good public official should concentrate all his energies on being the best he can be in the office he holds. He cannot truly serve the people who elected him to the office if he is using time and energy to further his own personal political ambition.

State Senator E. L. Short rented out his farm and sold his business in Tahoka so he could serve the people of this 28th Senatorial District full time. He has lived here all of his life, served 8 years in the House of Representatives and 4 years in the Senate. He knows this area and its people. We need E. L. Bigfoot, other monsters still stalk science

By BORIS WEINTRAUB
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The reports started coming in to officials in Truro, Mass., last fall. A large, cat-like animal was killing cats and pigs, running in front of cars, and generally alarming the populace of the Cape Cod community.

"It's been compared to Bigfoot, to the Loch Ness Monster, to everything," says Edward A. Oswalt, the town's selectman-assessor and chairman of its board of health.

"We've had trackers out everywhere, and we've followed up on all leads. To this day, we haven't found anything conclusive to indicate there was such an animal in the area."

But the animal has been named "the Beast of Truro," and no one has explained it yet.

MYSTERIOUS CREATURES of this sort are reported nearly everywhere. Just last fall a University of Chicago biologist went off to central Africa to search for Mokele-Mbembe, said to look like a dinosaur with a long, flexible neck and a muscular tail. So far he's had no luck; Mokele-Mbembe hasn't turned up.

The Loch Ness Monster has North American counterparts in "Champ" of Lake Champlain, and in "Ogopogo," the sea serpent of Okanagan Lake in British Columbia. Then there is the Abominable Snowman of the Himalayas, the Wildman of Hubei in China, Yowie of Australia, and the Soviet Union's Chuchunaa and Wild Man of Dagestan.

But the most famous North American creature is Bigfoot, or sasquatch, as he was known to British Columbia Indians. Like many such creatures elsewhere, he is described as at least 8 feet tall, covered with hair, and emitting a foul odor; like creatures elsewhere, he goes back centuries in folklore and myth.

The number of Bigfoot sightings reported each year depends on who is doing the counting. The creature has been reported in every region of the continental United States, though the Pacific Northwest, with its dense forests, is its most common "home."

Apart from sightings, the evidence in favor of its existence consists of footprints, some hair samples, a little blood and some droppings, an occasional photograph, and a short film sequence shot in California in 1967.

But every piece of evidence has proven to be controversial, leading Grover Krantz, an anthropologist at Washington State University, to say that only a specimen or a skeleton would convince other scientists. Krantz himself is convinced already.

"I'VE EXAMINED evidence that I can't explain any other way," he says. "I've analyzed the footprints, and I can deduce that it's not a gigantic human foot involved. It's been modified exactly the way you'd have to modify a foot for an 800-pound body in order to keep it walking correctly."

"There's a lot of pig-headedness about scientists. If science has missed an animal this big, science would look a little funny. So better not look for it."

No, that's not the problem, says Turhan Murad, a physical anthropologist at California State University at Chico. Murad teaches a course called "Bigfoot and Other Monsters: Myth or Reality?"

"It's not that scientists are unwilling to accept Bigfoot, but a matter of having to prove its existence, coming up with physical evidence of some type," says Murad, who uses the mystery as a lesson in how science works.

Krantz bases much of his case on more than 1,000 footprints found in a single area of California that suggests a giant creature with a clubfoot. Only someone with a detailed knowledge of anatomy could fake such a deformity, he says.

But Murad, who has examined the same prints, says a human foot can be deformed in many ways. Thus, he says, anybody could have faked the prints.

NO SKELETONS, bones, or fossils have ever turned up for a Bigfoot, a major reason most scientists are skeptical at best.

But the people who believe in its existence offer explanations, some admittedly bizarre. Take, for example, Robert Warth, president of the Society for the Investigation of the Unexplained.

Warth suggests that an aberration in the earth's electromagnetic field may have caused a time warp that enables the creature to appear and then disappear, baffling scientists.

And John Beckjord, a Seattle man who operates a "Bigfoot Hotline" and says he has seen the creature three times, offers this explanation of why people shoot at Bigfoot but don't kill it:

"It suggests something science isn't ready to face yet, and doesn't have the tools to study. It could be that Bigfoot isn't from this earth, that it's able to prevent us from seeing it. Now this is just speculation, but we need to have an open mind."

to study. It could be that Bigfoot isn't from this earth, that it's able to prevent us from seeing it. Now this is just speculation, but we need to have an open mind."

Beckjord has sent samples of purported Bigfoot hair to experts for analysis. The result, he says, is that the experts agree that the hairs were unique and didn't match that of other North American mammals including humans.

The Mall Street Journal

This week at the Big Spring Mall there seems to be an air of excitement and great anticipation because this weekend is the Great Big Spring Mall In Door Flea Market. To be honest the flea market has gotten bigger than I thought it could ever be. There will be over fifty dealers at the Mall this Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. till 9 p.m. each day. The promoter of this show is none other than Big Spring's own town character Sig Rogers. Sig has done a great job getting the show booked and from all indications it will be a lot of fun. There are a lot of great events on their way to the Big Spring Mall in the near future. For example the week following the Flea Market there will be many fine values throughout the Mall for Mother's Day we will end that week with the 1st Annual Mother's Day Plant Show on May 7th & 8th. The next weekend on May 15th the Big Spring Health and Safety Fair will be at the Big Spring Mall. The Health and Safety Fair is another one of those events that is getting bigger than I thought it would. This is due primarily to the fine leadership by Barbara Holdamps and her committee it is a pleasure to work with such a group.

Pushers, White Pants, Trousers, and Straw Handbags. This sale ends May 8th which is the day before Mother's Day. Bobbie wants me to remind you that Visa and MasterCard are welcome, and there is a Lay-A-Way program. Remember men, Mother's Day is May 9 don't get caught without a gift for your favorite person.

As I reported last week Helen's is having a grand opening sale all this week and there are still a few days left on this special. Down at Kopper Kettle Roxann Rich has got in a shipment of Kitchen Counter sets and Steak Knives, just in time for Mother's Day. At Gordon's buy mom a 14K gold chain at 20 percent off. At Zales for Mother's Day one can find Kremenz Jewelry, as with everything Zales has this is a real real buy. The two big stores here at the Big Spring Mall, J.C. Penneys and Bealls both are having a great number of Mother's Day specials.

There is another event coming to the Big Spring Mall that I am particularly excited about. Jim Swails, who is the owner of Swails Originals is going to spend the week prior to Mother's Day at the Big Spring Mall. Mr. Swails and his wife are the creators of the hanging Butterfly and Quail Swag Lamps. Many of you who have shopped the larger malls in the area are probably familiar with this couple's extraordinary work. A lamp of this quality would be a perfect gift for that special mother. The Swails originals will be at the Big Spring Mall from Monday the 3rd to Saturday the 8th.

Again I come to the end of another Mall Street Journal, let me remind every one to come to the Big Spring Mall and shop for that perfect Mother's Day gift, we're open from 10 a.m. till 9 p.m. for your convenience.

Weather a big factor in gardening

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

The factor with the greatest impact on the success or failure of your vegetable garden is the weather. Regardless of how carefully you have chosen the recommended varieties, prepared and fertilized your soil and planted your transplants and seeds, poor weather conditions can drastically reduce the quantity and the quality of vegetables.

The first decision that must be made is when to set out cold susceptible plants such as tomatoes, peppers and eggplant.

Be prepared to cover or protect tender plants. If these plants are damaged by a light frost or freeze, they will probably recover. However, if damage is severe, pull them out and start over. Often stunted, damaged vegetable plants never fully recover, and the results show up at harvest time. This is especially true for tomatoes, beans, squash, cucumbers and melons.

In most areas of Texas, the day after you set out tomato plants the wind starts to blow. Protect your garden vegetables from these strong, spring winds. Severe damage can occur to seedlings or transplants from the wind itself, from drying or desiccation of the foliage and from blowing sand.

Some type of windbreak such as roof shingles, shakes, snow fence or scrap lumber placed on the windward side helps protect plants. Cages made of concrete reinforcing wire wrapped with plastic also provide wind protection for tomatoes, peppers, and eggplants.

Heavy spring rains or hail also can ruin hopes for a bountiful vegetable garden.

There is not a lot that can be done to protect vegetables from these forces of nature. Locating a garden in an area that drains well and planting vegetables on raised beds help prevent some of the problems associated with heavy rainfall. If your garden is severely damaged by hail, and there is still time, it is best to replant.

Ag sales up, profits down

1981 sales from Texas agricultural products are estimated at $9.5 billion, up about a half billion dollars from the previous year. However, net profits of farmers and ranchers continued a downward trend, notes an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The livestock sector, including dairy and poultry production, added about $4.9 billion to the total agricultural sales. Crop sales contributed $4 billion while sales of agriculturally related sources such as timber, horses, fish farming and hunting leases added another $600 million. Beef cattle receipts alone totaled about $3.5 billion to lead all commodities. Cotton sales topped all crops at $1.3 billion.

Dr. Donohue Arthritis cripples

Dear Dr. Donohue: My mother has a severe arthritic problem that has crippled her to the point she can barely make it to the bathroom or kitchen. Many days she stays in bed all day, and if she runs out of Bufferin she is paralyzed until we can get to the store for more. She takes anywhere from 25 to 30 Bufferin a day. She refuses to see a doctor. I would appreciate any help you can give me as far as convincing her she should do so, or advising what can happen if she continues this way. — Mrs. E.M.

Your mother is making two serious mistakes. For one, she is prescribing her own medicine and taking it in quite high doses. Buffered aspirin is a good and safe drug for arthritis when it is used with a doctor's guidance. But any drug, aspirin included, can have undesired side effects. Those can include bleeding from the stomach, dizziness and changes in the acidity of her blood. Those are only a few. So she certainly needs to have her medicine and dosage straightened out.

Her second mistake is that of self-diagnosis. Does she know for sure she has arthritis, and, if so, which kind? Osteoarthritis? Rheumatoid? Does she know whether parts of her body other than joints are being affected by it?

She's apparently making another mistake. She has given up hope, and that is unnecessary. There are drugs other than aspirin that may benefit her more. There are other important points she is missing. Drugs are not the only means of arthritis control. Physical therapy, exercises, hot packs, whirlpool — all go a long way in limbering up arthritic joints.

Her continued bedrest, if it is not necessary, will only add to stiffness, and make her completely immobile and vulnerable to complications, such as bed sores or osteoporosis. She may be making an invalid of herself on an erroneous diagnosis. I back you 100 percent in motivating your mom to get to a doctor. She may find a more realistic understanding of such problems in the booklet "How You Can Control Arthritis." Other readers interested may obtain a copy by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for printing and handling.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been told by my doctor that I have thalassemia minor. My blood count is OK and my blood pressure is 120-50. I am 64 years old and a male. I would like to buy a book from you on this condition if you have one. — M.J.F.

No book on this. All I can offer is this short paragraph. Free. The thalassemias are a group of anemias. They got the name from the Greek word for "sea" because most of the people who have them are of ethnic groups originating around the Mediterranean Sea. With thalassemia, there is defective production of hemoglobin, a part of the red blood cells. Because fewer red blood cells are being produced, anemia results. Thalassemia minor, is, as the word suggests, a less serious form of the illness. It is common, and rarely causes symptoms. Usually, the blood count is only a little lower than normal and the person gets along fine. I am happy to hear that your blood pressure is so good, but that doesn't have much to do with thalassemia.

Dear Abby

Don't skirt the issue

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to a bridal shower for a cousin. I plan to decline, although I would have accepted had it not been for one of the restrictions spelled out in the invitation.

It is taking place in a Lutheran church hall. No alcohol will be served, nor will smoking be allowed. That was all right with me until I came to the last restriction: "Dresses only, please!" (In other words, no slacks or pantsuits.)

I do not own a dress or even a skirt. I can't afford to buy a dress and the accessories to go with it for this occasion, but I do have some very presentable pantsuits.

I plan to send a gift with my mother, who is attending. When I decline, should I say why?

WRONG CLOTHES

DEAR WRONG: Absolutely. They might insist that you put on your pants and come.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling "Unhappy Doctor's Wife" to demand that her cheating husband either clean up his act or get out.

Because of our four children, I also hung in there while my doctor husband swung with nurses, secretaries and who knows who else.

The pits for me was the day I was actually trying to find a way to kill myself so that it would look like an accident and my children wouldn't know the truth and suffer. That's when I began to realize that my life was worth more. Gradually I forgave myself for the imagined guilt. (What woman hasn't thought, "If my husband got what he wanted at home, he wouldn't look elsewhere"?)

He refused to go for counseling, saying he was satisfied with his life, and since I wasn't I was the one who needed counseling. Well, I got it. And thank God I did. I sued my husband for divorce, and now, 10 years later, I have peace of mind, my self-respect and a satisfying career.

Yes, he married his office nurse. She's a nervous, insecure wreck who has him tailed when he goes out of town to medical meetings. I feel sorry for her, but she knew what he was like before she married him.

My message is threefold: 1. Take charge of your own life. 2. Time wounds all heels. 3. There is life after hell for a doctor's wife.

DEEP IN THE HEART OF TEXAS

PLANS ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Cox, Coahoma, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Judith Fay, to Kevin Lee Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carlson, Slater, Iowa. The couple will be married May 8 in the Patio Room of Holiday Inn. Justice of the Peace Bob West will officiate.

Members attend regional meeting

Approximately 250 members of Region V of the Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs attended the annual meeting in San Angelo April 23-25. Headquarters of the meeting was the Holiday Inn, and theme of the meeting was, "Just for You in '82."

Local club members attending were Venita Blessingame, delegate, Ann Drake, alternate, Charlotte Sheedy and Annette Kestermeier.

Prior to the first meeting Friday, seminars open to the public were held on the subjects of geology, land and production. The seminars were coordinated by the Petroleum Extension Service of the University of Texas, the educational committee of ADDC and Region V. Instructors were D.P. McGooky and Clem E. Ware, both of Midland.

Activities began Friday evening with a barbecue and Western and antique style show. Entertainment was provided by three members of the Budweiser Cowboy Six Pack. San Angelo Mayor Tom Parrett welcomed club members from Arizona, New Mexico, West, Central and North Texas during the opening session. Mrs. Mary Anna Brimberry, Midland, Region V director, presided during the meetings.

Mrs. Dottie Tallant Faust, Cleveland, Ohio, ADDC president, was speaker at Saturday's awards luncheon. A "town hall" meeting was also held, and members voiced their opinions on current association policies and discussed problems and questions. Other business sessions were held, and tours were taken to various places in the city.

U.S. Representative Tom Loeffler, who represents the 21st District was featured speaker at the Saturday night banquet held at the San Angelo Convention Center. Sunday's activities included a breakfast and devotional period and business session.

Candidates for Region V director were introduced during the meeting. They are Claudia Deupree, Amarillo, and Jolene McCollom, Breckenridge. The director will be elected by mail balloting and assume office with other officers who will be elected at the annual convention in Fort Worth in September.

Abilene was chosen as the site of the 1983 Region V meeting.

Shower fetes Mrs. Marshall

Mrs. Randy (Sandy) Marshall, 3603 Connelly, was feted with a baby shower Monday in the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

The hostesses for the event were Mrs. Richard McCormick, Mrs. Robert Gilbert, Mrs. Waymon Phillips, Mrs. Bill Myers, Mrs. John McDiffitt, Mrs. Mel Porter, Mrs. Eugene Moore and Mrs. Jay Thomas.

The hostesses presented the honoree with a corsage of spring flowers.

Refreshments were served from a table decorated in a rainbow motif and handmade dolls and centered with a large doll in a wicker basket full of flowers.

Baby Marshall is expected to arrive May 18.

Soviet economy struggles

Russians facing economic problems and uncertainties

By MARC ROSENWASSER
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — There's an old joke about four Soviet leaders riding together on a train when the tracks suddenly and inexplicably end. Says Lenin: "We just appeal to the revolutionary fervor of the masses so they'll complete the track."
Says Stalin: "Round up those responsible and punish them."

Khrushchev: "Let's lift up the tracks behind us and lay them down in front."

Finally, Leonid Brezhnev, today's president: "My advice is to close the curtains, turn off the light and pretend we're still moving."

The Soviet economy is still chugging along, unlike that mythical train, but it's been chugging more slowly in recent years. There are signs it may be losing more steam at a time when the average Soviet citizen still earns far less, has fewer consumer goods, lives in smaller quarters and eats a less balanced diet than his counterpart in the West.

Soviet officials prefer to look at the bright side, emphasizing that the nation has no unemployment, virtually no inflation, and that industrial growth is continuing without the periodic "crises" that beset capitalist countries.

But the growth in industrial output was 3.4 percent in 1981, according to Soviet figures, down from 3.6 in the previous year, and below the planned increase of 4.1 percent.

The Soviets themselves acknowledge that the fuel on which their economy runs is becoming scarcer and increasingly expensive to extract; that workers are often inefficient, and that there aren't enough of them in the right places.

The country's population is growing in the Moslem areas to the southeast; its greatest natural wealth is located in Siberia, to the north and east, and the majority of its population still lives in the European part of the country to the west. In addition, the country suffers from what one Soviet writer recently called a "demographic hole" — a manpower shortage that stems from heavy Soviet losses in World War II.

Western experts say inertia on the part of Soviet officials, reluctant to make hard political decisions or ideological concessions, is another major factor contributing to the economy's problems.

They say the Kremlin could cut down on defense spending, estimated at 12 to 14 percent of the Soviet gross national product, and put the difference into domestic consumption; trim aid to client states like Cuba and Vietnam, which receive Soviet resources and goods at below-market prices; or increase private ownership and incentives, tactics that have stimulated the economies of other Communist nations, such as Hungary.

However, the Soviets are not likely to cut arms spending at a time when the United States has begun an arms buildup. Cuts in aid to client states would mean giving up political leverage, a move the Soviets are reluctant to make. And major economic changes would amount to an admission that the current system, based on Marxist-Leninist principles, is unworkable — an unacceptable ideological concession for the world's leading promoter and defender of communism.

"The Soviet Union has a tremendous economy that has a lot of potential. It's not about to collapse overnight," one Western analyst said recently. "But all the symptoms show it is slowing down and showing signs of strain."

Soviet industrial and agricultural production dropped in several key areas in January 1982, following a sluggish performance last year and disappointing results in the five-year period ended in 1980.

Data published in the Economic Gazette, a weekly publication of the Soviet government, showed that the production of oil, steel, coal, cement, trucks and cars, and meat all fell in January from the same month a year ago. There was only a marginal improvement in February.

That means the economy is again running far behind the ambitious targets that the leadership set, a situation that has upset Communist Party leaders.

Last November, the Communist Party Central Committee insisted that "practices allowed in the past of correcting plans cannot be tolerated. After being endorsed, the (economic) plan becomes law, and it is precisely as a law that everyone — from worker to minister — must treat it. The party sets the task: the plan for 1982 must be not only fulfilled, but overfulfilled."

Any optimism about the Soviet economy rests largely on the country's enormous natural resources. The Soviet Union is the world's leading oil producer, second in natural gas and gold, and has great stores of diamonds, timber, and coal.

"Nature," Brezhnev said in a recent speech, "has been lavish to us. This allows us to look into the future confidently."

The nation's energy planners, however, probably look to the future with a mixture of confidence and concern.

Natural gas production continues strong. It ran ahead of target last year and is expected to increase by nearly 50 percent by 1985. It's considered the nation's best means for earning badly needed hard (convertible) currency from the energy-hungry, capitalist West.

The Soviet Union needs Western currency if it wants to continue importing grain and technology from Western nations which refuse to accept Moscow's ruble in payment.

The Soviets are developing new gas fields and moving ahead with the construction of six giant pipelines that will feed natural gas from western Siberia to the European part of the country. One will extend into Western Europe. Brezhnev has called these the "key construction projects" of the 11th five-year plan.

The oil picture is less rosy, however. Earlier this year, the president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, Anatoly Alexandrov, told a Soviet newspaper that "fuel resources are running out quickly.... Oil should be vigorously saved."

Soviet oil production, which rose dramatically over the past 25 years, last year grew by less than 1 percent, and today the Soviets are earning less for the oil on international markets because of the oil glut. That is thought to be causing cash-flow problems.

Such developments have prompted a search for alternative sources of energy.

In an article published in January, the deputy chairman of the U.S.S.R. state planning committee, A. Lalayants, wrote: "Atomic energy has a special place in the development of the fuel and energy complex.... Simultaneously, foundations are being laid for tapping new sources of power — the sun, the wind...."

Conservation is being urged more and more. Soviet Premier Nikolai Tikhonov, in a speech a year ago, called for "tight restrictions on the use of all resources."

Study denies opposition to bilingual balloting

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bilingual elections are essential for continued political participation by one in every seven Mexican-American voters in the Southwest, an Hispanic civil rights organization contends.

The Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund said it commissioned the first such study of Mexican-American voters to prove the value of extending the bilingual requirements of the Voting Rights Act.

Joaquin Avila, director of Political Access Programs for the organization, released the study at a news conference Tuesday and said it was aimed at rebutting stands by bilingual election opponents such as Sens. S.I. Hayakawa of California and Orrin Hatch of Utah.

One in every seven — or about 830,000 Hispanic citizens — speak only Spanish and benefit from federally required Spanish ballots and bilingual assistance at the polls, according to a poll of Mexican-American voters in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Uvalde, Texas.

Avila said critics have termed bilingual elections too expensive and "un-American" and have demanded proof of their value.

"We now have scholarly evidence" of the benefits, he said.

Federally required bilingual elections approved as amendments to the Voting Rights Act in 1975 are scheduled to expire in 1985 unless the Senate approves a bill already passed by the House to extend the provisions until 1992, Avila said.

"Bilingual elections have received the endorsement of President Reagan and Governor (Bill) Clements of Texas. It is our hope that the full Senate will follow the lead taken by the administration and the House on this," he said.

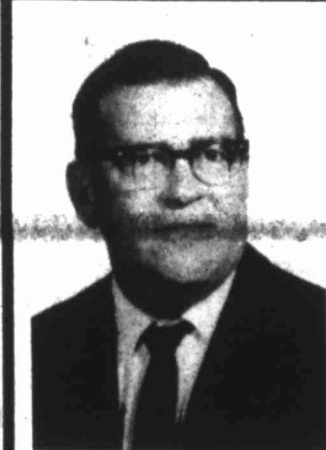

Dr. Robert Brischetto, an assistant professor of sociology at Trinity University here, directed the study entitled "Bilingual Elections at Work in the Southwest." It consisted of interviews of 912 Mexican-Americans who voted in the most recent elections in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Uvalde.

"Spanish language assistance in the election process is seen among voters surveyed as a sign that Mexican-Americans are welcome and encouraged to vote regardless of their lack of fluency in English," the study said.

PRACTICE IN WALES — A British Scorpion tank and army helicopters take part in training exercises in the Welsh mountains last week. Nearly 3,000 troops are reportedly preparing for the possible occupation of the Falkland Islands. Many of Prime Minister Thatcher's opponents worry that she is taking the threat of war too lightly.

Opposition parties getting worried

Thatcher's crisis honeymoon is over

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — With a British assault on the Falkland Islands appearing imminent, bipartisan support for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's handling of the crisis has cracked. But the "Iron Lady" is still riding high in the opinion polls.

Opposition leader Michael Foot threw his Labor Party's support behind Mrs. Thatcher when Argentina seized the British colony three weeks ago and she dispatched a British fleet to the South Atlantic.

The honeymoon ended Tuesday with an angry clash in the House of Commons.

Foot urged Mrs. Thatcher to desist from military action and turn again to the United Nations. Mrs. Thatcher said that would "achieve nothing."

"What do you want, a war?" shouted senior Laborite spokesman, Eric Heffer.

"Use all your powers of influence with the Argentine junta," retorted Mrs. Thatcher.

Underlying the split in the midst of national crisis is the fundamentally pacifist outlook of the socialist Labor Party.

It's one thing to back diplomacy with the threat of force, but another matter when it comes to using that force when a party is pledged to scrap Britain's nuclear weapons unilaterally.

ban U.S. cruise missiles from Britain and has a powerful left wing opposed to war at almost any price.

"Michael Foot stands today accused of cowardice in the face of the enemy," declared the right-wing 4 million-circulation Sun newspaper Wednesday as the conservative press dubbed Foot everything from a "pussyfoot" to "fighting shy."

However, not only the Labor Party is getting worried. David Steel, whose small Liberal Party is in a burgeoning electoral alliance with the new centrist Social Democratic Party, urged Mrs. Thatcher to take the leaders of all parties into her confidence.

Noting she has not spelled out publicly the precise terms of the latest unacceptable peace formula negotiated by U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Steel said:

"We don't know what the government is playing at. It's the escalation of the conflict that worries us. We can't draw her some kind of blank check for doing what she wants if she does not consult with the other parties."

Some commentators believe Labor, in refusing to commit itself to the use of force while not ruling it out, is hedging its bets rather than holding a principle.

"Unlike the government... it has the luxury of being able to back all horses at once," wrote

Hugo Young, political editor of the independent Sunday Times. "It is getting ready to take the credit for victory — but also for defeat."

Also behind Foot's split with Mrs. Thatcher is Labor's endemic problem of party unity. The party's left wing, headed by former Energy Secretary Tony Benn, opposed sending the fleet from the start.

"One knows why Mr. Foot is so keen on the New York (United Nations) route," said the liberal Guardian newspaper. "It enables him to keep his party, his initiatives and his undoubted passion for peace together."

Many of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservatives consider the United Nations an ineffectual talk show dominated by Third World and Communist nations. Mrs. Thatcher was delighted by the U.N. Security Council resolution April 3 calling on Argentina to withdraw from the Falklands but has since noted tartly the world body can't implement it.

Said Winston Churchill, grandson of the World War II leader and a Conservative member of the House of Commons: "The Soviet Union's veto power at the United Nations has long since ruled out to all intents and purposes the United Nations acting against aggression."

Mrs. Thatcher's rating in opinion polls has risen rapidly since the crisis began, with Conservative support up nearly 10 points to around 40 percent.

Jewish leaders condemn smoking

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Conservative rabbis representing 1.5 million people have urged Jews to quit smoking, saying the practice should be banned from public places.

The rabbis, at their annual convention which runs through tonight, became the first major Jewish body to officially denounce the habit.

Smoking "is proved dangerous to health in violation of Jewish law," the rabbis said Tuesday, citing Deuteronomy 4:15, which says, "Be very careful about your lives."

Some Christian groups, such as Southern Baptists, have taken similar positions, but until now no Jewish group had done so. Roman Catholic bishops last fall discouraged smoking.

The Rabbinical Assembly, representing 1,200 Conservative rabbis and 1.5 million members, debated the issue briskly. A few rabbis who opposed the resolution held pipes or cigars in hand.

"Are smokers to have no more rights?" asked Rabbi Selig Auerbach of Lake Placid, N.Y., protesting a section advocating legislation to ban smoking in public places.

Gesturing with his pipe, he added, "Smoking is a pleasure and questions of health should be left to the individual."

Smoking "is dirty, harmful and anti-social," said Rabbi Seymour Siegel of New York City's Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He said it also is contrary to "a divine commandment to preserve the health of your body and spirit."

The assembly also joined a growing movement by calling for an immediate U.S.-Soviet freeze on nuclear weapons production.

"It is incumbent on Jews, who gave the world Isaiah's messianic vision of peace, to lead the way in the struggle for peace before a nuclear nightmare ends the human species," said Rabbi Gilbert S. Rosenthal of Cedarhurst, N.Y., the convention resolutions chairman.

The assembly was the second branch of U.S. Judaism to urge such a freeze, joining Reformed Jews who did so at a convention in December. Many Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders have taken such action.

The Rabbinical Assembly also criticized the Reagan administration for cutbacks in social welfare services to the poor, urging restoration of programs "most critical to Americans in the lower- and middle-income groups."

Water, roads are top priorities for mayors

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Water and roads top the list of concerns for Texas cities, a group of mayors told Gov. Bill Clements.

Some mayors said their cities have too much water. Others said they have too little. Either way, those problems ranked first on a list of complaints the city officials compiled before an appearance Tuesday by Clements before his Mayors Advisory Committee.

Roads problems came in a close second, followed by housing costs and energy.

At the meeting, the group unanimously adopted a resolution supporting abolition of the state property tax, which Clements is asking the Texas Legislature to do in a special session next month.

Clements dropped in on the mayors briefly Tuesday, telling them to concentrate on developing proposed legislation for the 1983 session. Several committee groups complained about Public Utility Commission unresponsiveness and said they thought the PUC was more concerned about utility company profits than consumers' needs. But Clements was not sympathetic.

"The alternative is for you as municipalities to build your own power sources and see how you like that," he said.

Before Clements arrived, Chairman John Sammons of Temple went around the conference table, asking the 15 mayors present — whose cities ranged in size from San Antonio to Seymour and in location from Post to Missouri City — what they considered their cities' biggest problem.

Mayor Giles McCrary of Post, a small West Texas city near Lubbock, named water. "Some of us have got too much, but some of us have got too little."

Clute Mayor Bobby Jacobs said his coastal community was one of those cities with too much.

Midland Mayor Thane Akins cited a serious housing problem in his booming oil town. He suggested looking into mortgage bonds to help newcomers buy homes.

McCrary, who said Post had the "reverse problem" — attracting builders, suggested multi-county agreements to increase bond amounts to get more broker interest.

John Knox, mayor of Missouri, said the road problem in the Houston suburb was a top problem.

IRA G. CORN
...died in Dallas

America's first bridge champion dies

DALLAS (AP) — Financier Ira G. Corn Jr., who brought the United States its first world bridge championship, will be buried Friday after funeral services here.

Corn died Wednesday at Baylor University Medical Center. He was 60.

He co-founded two Dallas companies and once bought a "lost copy" of the Declaration of Independence, but was best-known for his prowess at contract bridge, a game that brought him international fame, a syndicated column and five world championships.

He formed the Dallas Aces bridge team in 1968, a full-time professional team intended to bring the best players in the United States to Dallas to train specifically for international competition.

Corn said at the time, "The U.S. lost to Italy for about 15 years and the reason why we were losing is because we didn't have players that concentrated on partnership — morale and teamwork."

In 1970 the Aces captured the Bermuda Bowl, symbolic of the world bridge championship, at the world tournament in Stockholm, Sweden, the first such title the United States team had won since 1954. Corn, playing captain of the Aces, won five world championships in all.

"I am an expert, a darned good player," Corn once said. "If I played full time, I could play at the international competition level."

Corn helped found Tyler Corp., a Dallas company that manufactures oilfield pipe fittings and chemicals, as well as Michigan General Corp., a tightly run and highly successful conglomerate. But his biggest challenge, he once said, came from playing bridge.

"Playing International Master Points bridge is more exhausting than pro football," he said. "It's brutal, and the pressures far exceed those of any other sport."

Corn, a native of Little Rock, Ark., wrote a syndicated column called "The Aces on Bridge" that appeared in about 145 newspapers.

His death on Wednesday was "pretty much of a shock" said John Edgar, a vice president at Michigan General.

"He had gone to a Tyler Corp. meeting, where he is a member of their board,"

Edgar said. "Prior to the start of that meeting, he felt ill and was taken to Baylor where he died."

Corn is survived by his father, Ira G. Corn Sr., of Little Rock; a brother, John Peter Corn of Little Rock; three sisters, Mrs. R.F. Owens of Little Rock, Mrs. F.L. Drexler of Oak Brook, Ill.

Only all-women's college still thrives in Missouri

By DEBRA KRAJNAK
Associated Press Writer

NEVADA, Mo. (AP) — On a Sunday in 1884, 12 young ladies marched along a dirt road to the Centenary Methodist Church in Nevada, Mo.

During the walk, Virginia Alice Cotter instructed her charges: "Hold your heads high, you're Cotter girls."

That year, Miss Cotter had chosen a cornfield on the edge of the farming town in westcentral Missouri to found Vernon Seminary, a Home and Day School for Young Ladies. It was renamed Cotter College two years later.

Today, Cotter — a nonsectarian, two-year, liberal arts institution — is the only college in the nation owned and operated by women for women.

In 1927, the aging Miss Cotter gave the school to the Philanthropic Educational Organization Sisterhood, with the understanding that the organization would build an endowment fund of at least $200,000.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood, which has at least one chapter in every state, was founded in 1869 to provide financial and moral support to women pursuing a higher education. It is not affiliated with any church group.

In addition to the Cotter project, the P.E.O. has a revolving fund that provides loans to college women; a continuing-education grant program for women who want to return to college after an interruption, and scholarships for foreign women doing graduate work in the United States.

The 220,000 international members of the Des Moines-based P.E.O. later boosted the original Cotter endowment to $3 million and Dr. Evelyn Milan, college president, hopes to raise it to $10 million by the school's 100th anniversary in 1984.

Officials say the college is now entirely self-supporting, although some students receive loans or grants. It operates on an assessment of P.E.O. members and on student tuition. Enrollment is limited to 350 women.

The 56-acre campus, flat and largely treeless, is dotted by a dozen or so austere red brick buildings of Georgian architecture — testimony to Miss Cotter's no-nonsense attitude toward education.

"Right living should be the fourth 'R' in education," read the Home Science Creed in 1909, reprinted in a Cotter catalog. Miss Cotter followed it to the letter, especially on Sundays.

Her protective arm reached into the 1920s, when students were still shadowed by chaperones, even to doctors' appointments.

Before founding the college, Miss Cotter, who married Samuel Stockard in 1879, attended a convent school and a school for girls in Missouri, where she felt women were receiving inadequate academic training. She believed they should have access to quality education equal to that offered men.

Cotter today, with 314 students, is a far cry from the early days.

Although church attendance is no longer required, students still trek into the quiet city of 10,000 to go to movies, do church volunteer work or, if 21 or older, stop by the local tavern.

Groups of students often drive north 93 miles to Kansas City, Mo., where they shop or see shows. Or they stay at Cotter's lodge on 33 wooded acres at the edge of Nevada for a weekend of socializing.

But most Cotter students have no cars and rely on campus entertainment.

Health Fair Beat Fair set May 15

Anyone interested in learning how to take better care of their health will have the chance to do so May 15 at the Big Spring Health and Safety Fair. Scheduled to take place at the Big Spring Mall, the fair will offer health screenings and educational booths between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m.

The fair is sponsored by six community groups — the City-County Health Unit, the Hospital Council of Big Spring, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Health and Safety Committee, Howard College, Big Spring Herald and Cosden Oil and Chemical Co.

Fourteen health screenings are already registered for the fair. The subjects range from anemia, height and weight, diabetes and rapid development of infants and toddlers to glaucoma, vision, hearing and back screening. Many health educational booths will provide information and demonstrations on topics including nutrition, drug and food interaction, hypertension, poison prevention and family concerns in the aging process.

National health agencies will be involved in the fair, and local health professionals are cooperating in offering the screenings and information. The Consumers Affairs Office of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has shipped hundreds of health pamphlets in support of the BSFH fair.

Each participating group will furnish screening or health information regarding their commitment to local health concerns. Each booth will be staffed by health professionals or volunteers during specified hours, and the booths will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

If you are a provider of health care or safety, you are invited to become involved in the Big Spring Health and Safety Fair. All booths are non-commercial.

If you are already registered for a booth, please forward information, telling what the screening is called, what the visitor can expect to see or do at the screening, what benefit the visitor will experience, what publications or audiovisuals will be available for visitors, and why you are sponsoring the booth. Mail it to Health Fair Beat, Barbara Holdampf, R.N., Howard College, 11th and Birdwell Lane, Big Spring, TX 79720. Or call 267-8770, extension 206.

Thursday Notes

Coach William Pool at Southwest Texas State in San Marcos brings up an update on the performance of former Big Spring High standout Dickie "Trick" Wrightsil.

Wrightsil leads the Bobcats in hitting with a .381 average this year as SWTSU has compiled a solid 13-12 record. He is one of four Cats over the .300 mark.

Big Spring High 3,200 runner Karl Wolfe is in Abilene this weekend to run in a regional qualifiers meet at Abilene Christian University. Wolfe was second at the District 5-AAAAA meet this past weekend.

He'll also run the 1,600 meter while James Hodges, a junior, will get some experience for next year's cross country and track season by running in the open 5,000 meters.

If you are venturing east for the Byron Nelson Classic this weekend, be sure to stop in at Texas Stadium for the 9 a.m. final auditions for the Cowboy Cheerleaders of 1982.

Included in the auditions will be a two-minute singing or dance routine. Tests will be given on the Cowboys and football. Most guys care less what Cowboys cheerleaders know about defensive interference or crack-back blocks.

Training camp begins May 5 with 45 girls, 36 of which will make the final team.

Speaking of the Byron Nelson, former First Man Gerald Ford and singer Glenn Campbell are among the entries in the Pro-Am field at the prestigious tournament.

Also playing golf are Bob Hope, Tom Landry and big-time golfers such as Tom Watson, Ben Crenshaw and Lee Trevino.

Keep up with local bowlers, the Class E doubles team of Carol Fowler and Anna Thompson of Big Spring is third in the Texas Women's Bowling Association standings. The results as of the fifth weekend of the tournament in Lubbock.

A note from the mail. For all you runners or joggers — like me — Dr. John Bergfeld of the Sports Medicine Department of the Cleveland Clinic says a five-point program can help the 30 million Americans that can fall victims of painful injuries from their pastime.

If an injury should occur — whether in the leg, shoulders, arm, back or neck — try some rest, ice treatment, compression, elevation and buffered aspirin. He points out that none of his remedies will do any good if the runner presses on as normal. Rest is the key to healing.

If these simple techniques don't help a minor problem, consult a doctor.

Entry deadlines is 4:30 p.m. for this weekend's partnership at the Big Spring Country Club. Entry fee is $35 per man. Call pro Gary Hammer at 267-5354.

That's it for another week unless you'd like to know that white bass are biting up a storm at Lake Spence. Crappie fishing is up along with striped bass. Catfishing is a possibility.

Who got the best of all the picks?

NEW YORK (AP) — Their rosters have been stocked for the 1982 National Football League season — assuming there is a season. The question is: who did best in the draft?

That, of course, may not be known until the end of the 1982 season, if it isn't decimated by a players' strike. For that matter, it may not be known for several years. That's often how long it takes for a player, even one of star caliber in his rookie season, to blossom in the NFL.

Among those for consideration as the top drafting teams this year are the New England Patriots and the Baltimore Colts.

The Pats get an almost automatic nod because they drafted first and took Ken Sims, the defensive tackle from Texas. Scouts said he was the man in what was ostensibly a one-man draft. They said he could do for New England in the next decade what Joe Greene did for Pittsburgh in the past one.

The Patriots also ended up with the last pick of the first round, Lester Williams, a defensive tackle from the University of Miami, by way of a trade with San Francisco.

The Colts, in trading quarterback Bert Jones to Los Angeles, obtained the No. 4 pick in the opening round to go along with their own No. 2. With their own they shored up the defense, the worst in the NFL last year, by picking linebacker Johnnie Cooks from Mississippi State. And with the Rams' pick, they filled Jones' shoes (maybe) by drafting Ohio State's Art Schlichter, a quarterback considered so good that Woody Hayes had to get away from his three yards and a cloud of dust ground game.

The 49ers, in exchange for the first-round and fourth-round picks sent to New England, acquired one of the best tight ends in the game, Russ Francis.

But in a bizarre way, the San Diego Chargers may have come out of the 1982 draft with the best package of players — even though they had only five picks in the 12 rounds.

The five picks by the Chargers are the fewest since Washington had four in 1979.

Tradition not favoring one Air Forbes Won

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Air Forbes Won, the only unbeaten horse in the Kentucky Derby field, has a lot of tradition to overcome.

He never raced as a 2-year-old and he's an Ohio-bred.

The last time there was a Derby winner who didn't race as a 2-year-old was 100 years ago when Apollo captured the Run for the Roses.

The last Ohio-bred Derby winner was Wintergreen in 1909.

"Obviously, he doesn't know he's from Ohio," said owner Edward Anchel. "And he doesn't know that he would be only the second unraced 2-year-old to win. Of course, we don't know that he can't read the newspaper, so we're trying to keep that away from him."

More than 20 3-year-olds were expected to be entered today at Churchill Downs for the 108th Derby, first leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown. However, the field is limited to 20 starters based on money earnings.

Some other top contenders include El Baba, the Louisiana Derby winner, Santa Anita Derby winner Muttering, Cassalera, a one-eyed colt, and Star Gallant, second in both the Derby Trial and Florida Derby.

Numerous losses of top Kentucky Derby contenders because of illness or injury, including early favorite Timley Writer, and the apparent lack of a real standout has prompted the late flurry of entrants for the 1 1/4-mile race, worth $250,000-added.

"It doesn't matter if there is 15 or 20," said Air Forbes Won's trainer, Frank LaBocchetta, a 42-year-old former bricklayer from New York. "I have a superior horse. There's nobody better."

The colt's trainer also feels he has the best jockey in Angel Cordero, who rode Air Forbes Won's sire, Bold Forbes, to victory in the 1976 Derby.

"I couldn't ask for a better jockey," LaBocchetta said. "I'm sure Angel will do what's necessary when it counts." Air Forbes Won's earnings of $173,880 guaranteed him a spot in the field.

Despite his unbeaten record, Air Forbes Won is suspect because he has been to the races only four times in his career, making his first start March 4, and was not impressive in winning the Wood Memorial April 17 at Aqueduct.

Seattle Slew was the last Derby winner to go into the race unbeaten, winning three times at 2 and the Flamingo and Wood at 3.

Another Derby prospect, Stephen's Peskoff's Lejoli, joined the list of ailing Wednesday. Lejoli, winless in six starts this year, including a last-place finish in the Blue Grass Stakes has a throat ailment and will be operated on, according to trainer Leon Blusiewicz.

On Tuesday, Arkansas Derby winner Hostage withdrew because of a fractured sesamoid, suffered during a workout.

AFTER SUNRISE WORKOUT — Air Forbes Won, handled by Joe Azzara, stops to graze following a workout at sunrise Wednesday at Churchill Downs. The Ohio-bred horse is a favorite to win Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

Blue Jays pinch Rangers, again

TORONTO (AP) — Don't feel too badly for the Toronto Blue Jays because they don't have one pinch-hitter. Actually, they have a benchload of baseball players currently leading the American League in that department.

"I keep calling on them and they keep doing the job," Manager Bobby Cox said of his pinch-hitters who sparked Toronto to a 6-4 baseball victory Wednesday night over the Texas Rangers. "They have my confidence as well as confidence in themselves, and that's the whole secret."

After 18 games, the Blue Jays have delivered 15 hits in 42 pinch-hit attempts for a .357 average. Two seasons ago, they managed 12 pinch hits all season and the most the team has ever accumulated is 29 in 1978.

"It's a tough job to be a pinch-hitter and most clubs only have one good one and he can't usually play a position," said Cox. "We've got guys who can come in the game to pinch hit and then stay in."

"It's about time that small can say," said Cox. "We wanted to win two in a row for a change very badly."

Royals 8, Red Sox 5

The inning that helped Kansas City snap Boston's eight-

American League

"The big inning was pretty cheap — one home run off the foul pole and a bunch of ground balls through the infield," Houk said Wednesday night after the Royals downed Boston 8-5 at Fenway Park.

Yankees 6, Angels 0

Tommy John tossed a six-hit shutout, and the Yankees scored three of their runs in the third inning off Ken Forsch, 2-2. Consecutive doubles by Ken Griffey, Oscar Gamble and Dave Winfield produced the runs. The Yankees already had scored twice in the first inning on Griffey's RBI single and a groundout by Winfield.

Brewers 2, White Sox 1

Rollie Fingers shut out the White Sox on one hit over the final 22-3 innings, and Jim Gantner's single broke a 1-1 deadlock in the seventh inning. Fingers earned the victory for a 2-2 record.

National League

"A lot of fans and friends in Toledo are going to read about it and say, 'I can't believe he did it.' I won't believe it until I read it."

Phillies 9, Dodgers 3

Pete Rose tied an NL record with his ninth career five-hit game, and Philadelphia scored all its runs in the last two innings, including a six-run ninth, to come from behind to beat the Dodgers.

Bob Dernier's double broke a 3-3 tie for the Phillies in their big ninth inning and Ivan DeJesus contributed a two-run single.

Rose singled his first three appearances, doubled in the eighth inning, and singled again in the ninth. His ninth five-hit game and first since 1978, ties Max Carey. The major-league record of 14 five-hit games is held by Ty Cobb.

Mets 5, Padres 4

Mookie Wilson led off the 15th inning with a triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Bob Bailor as New York beat San Diego and halted the Padres' winning streak at 11 games.

The winning rally came off Gary Lucas, 0-1, after the reliever had pitched four strong innings, giving up only Wilson's hit and striking out four. Pete Falcone, 2-0, was the winner.

Indians 6, Mariners 1

Len Barker and Tom Brennan combined on a four-hitter, and the Indians scored six runs in the first inning to end their four-game losing streak. Barker, 3-1, yielded a run on three hits, and left after seven innings when he was troubled by a bone spur in his right elbow.

Twins 4, Tigers 2

Randy Johnson and Gary Gaetti each homered in the fourth inning as Minnesota ended a four-game losing streak. The Twins led 1-0 when Johnson led off the fourth with a solo shot. After John Castino walked, Gaetti hit his homer, giving Minnesota a 4-0 lead.

A's 6-1, Orioles 2-5

Cliff Johnson and Dwayne Murphy hit home runs for Oakland in the first game, and John Lowenstein and Eddie Murray homered for Baltimore in the nightcap.

Mike Norris, 1-2, scattered five hits and struck out six in Oakland's victory, while Baltimore's Scott McGregor earned his first victory in the nightcap with a five-hitter.

Murray went hitless in the first game, losing an 18-game hitting streak that included the final four games of 1981.

Cubs 6, Reds 0

Dickie Noles pitched a one-hitter — Eddie Milner's line-drive single in the fourth inning — as Steve Henderson and Jerry Morales each belted two-run triples to lead Chicago over Cincinnati.

Noles posted the first complete game of his major league career. He struck out seven and walked two to improve his record to 3-2.

Braves 7, Pirates 6

Shortstop Dale Berra's error on a two-out bouncer by pinch hitter Bob Watson brought home Bob Horner from third with the winning run in the 10th inning for Atlanta. The victory snapped a five-game losing streak for the Braves.

Munchak blows first assignment

HOUSTON (AP) — Penn State offensive guard Mike Munchak already has blown his first assignment as a Houston Oiler.

It came Wednesday when Coach Ed Biles introduced the 6-3, 260-pound first round draft choice to the media and Munchak was describing as honestly as possible how he tried indirectly to dissuade the Seattle Seahawks from drafting him ahead of the Oilers in Tuesday's National Football League draft.

Munchak did not want to play for Seattle and therefore left the impression there was a chance he might not graduate in May, which would make him ineligible for the NFL draft.

Because Munchak was red-shirted in 1980, he has completed only three years of eligibility. Under NFL rules, a player with less than four years of completed eligibility must be in a position to graduate to be eligible for the draft.

Sonics melt the 'Ice'

SEATTLE (AP) — Bill Hanzlik of the Seattle SuperSonics has the unenviable job of trying to slow down the San Antonio Spurs' famed "Ice man" in the teams' National Basketball Association playoff series.

Hanzlik helped hold Gervin to 24 points, including just one basket in the final quarter, and the Sonics rolled over the Spurs 114-99 Wednesday night.

The Seattle victory evened the teams' best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series at 1-1. The next two games are in San Antonio this weekend.

"Ice" is going to score no matter what you do," Hanzlik said. "The thing is to let him know it's not going to be easy."

"We wanted to make Gervin work defensively," added Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens.

"I should take more advantage of a little man," the 6-foot-8 Gervin said sarcastically of the 6-foot-7 Hanzlik. "The name of the game is to win."

Gervin scored 31 points, including the game-winning 18-foot basket with five seconds remaining, here Tuesday night in a 95-93 Spurs triumph.

In game two of the series, Gervin picked up his fifth foul just 1:09 into the fourth quarter. He was nine of 19 from the floor.

NBA Playoffs

Bullets 103, Celtics 102

Frank Johnson says the Washington Bullets need to "play well for 48 minutes" to beat the Boston Celtics.

"They needed nearly every second of that time Wednesday night to even their best-of-7 National Basketball Association playoff series 1-1 as Johnson connected on a 30-foot three-point field goal with three seconds left to beat the Celtics 103-102.

It was the first victory for Washington over Boston in eight tries this season. The Bullets finished 20 games behind the Celtics in the final NBA standings.

Sixers 120, Bucks 108

Andrew Toney, playing in a starting role because of Lionel Hollins' injury, scored 31 points and Julius Erving added 24 as Philadelphia took a 2-0 lead in its series with Milwaukee.

Toney also held Bucks star guard Sidney Moncrief to nine points as the 76ers took control of the game early and were only seriously challenged once.

Philadelphia led by as many as 16 points in the second quarter, at 51-35, but the Bucks cut the deficit to 67-61 in the third quarter before falling behind again when the 76ers scored 20 of the next 29 points for an 87-70 lead at the end of the period.

Brian Winters topped the Bucks with 21 points, while Marques Johnson contributed 19 and Mickey Johnson 18 for the Central Division champions.

Lakers 117, Suns 98

Los Angeles beat Phoenix by 19 points for the second night in a row, and again the Lakers used a balanced scoring attack to pull away from the Suns.

In Tuesday night's opening-game victory, four Lakers had 21 or more points, while in the latest triumph there were four with 19 or more.

"It looked like an instant replay from last night," said Coach Pat Riley. "I'm amazed about how well we're shooting. It's good to win the first two at home."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 24 points, Norm Nixon added 21 and Jamaal Wilkes and Ervin "Magic" Johnson each had 19.

Gordon leaves Coahoma post

COAHOMA — Coahoma High head girls basketball and track coach Billy Gordon has resigned his position to take a job with an oil company.

The announcement came Thursday morning from athletic director Larry Hudson.

"He's one of the ones on the staff I definitely wanted to stay on," Hudson said. "He had a heckuva program going."

Gordon coached the Bulldogettes for six years, winning two outright and tying for another district championship in basketball and leading the track team to five league crowns.

His resignation is effective at the end of the current school year.

His wife, Linda, will remain with the Coahoma school system as a junior high library aide. Daughter Darbie is a sixth grader.

Applications for Gordon's post should be made to Hudson, P.O. Box 320, Coahoma High School, Coahoma.

Yanks, Ponies get big wins

Dibrell's Yankees won for the second time, defeating the Downtown Evening Lions 13-2 in a National Little League game Tuesday night.

Lee Morris got the win with a three-hitter.

In a Texas League game, the Akerley Co-op Ponies ripped Albertos-Casa Blanca Red Sox 9-3.

Jay Fryar had a double in the game as pitcher Sambo Rodriguez struck out 17 batters and gave up just two hits. One of those was an inside-the-park homer by Andy Flores.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APR. 30, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to observe the progress you have made, and to make plans for even greater advancement in the future. Show that you are one who seeks harmony with others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to understand an associate's position better and improve the relationship. Safeguard your reputation tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to the views of others carefully before you team up with them in some enterprise. Be wary of outsiders.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make certain you don't spend too much money for pleasure, as you could easily be tempted to do at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to save more money instead of spending it like there's no tomorrow. Show others you have wisdom.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Discuss the future with associates and come to a fine agreement with them. Find a better method to avoid costly mistakes.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study every angle of your monetary needs and make plans to have increased income in the days ahead. Use common sense.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to handle personal affairs since the planets are favorable for such now. Handle business affairs wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Morning is best for handling private affairs. Complete week's work with added enthusiasm and analyze your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to deepen relationships with friends. Use extreme caution in motion today and avoid possible accident.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Seriously delve into new interests that can pave the way to a more prosperous future. Take needed health treatments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Gain the backing of the influential for whatever responsibilities you may have to discharge. Sidestep a troublemaker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Forget antiquated ways and engage in modern methods and gain added income in the future. Adopt a positive manner.

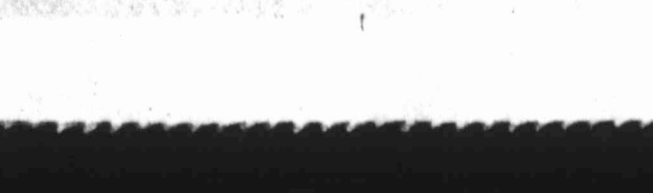

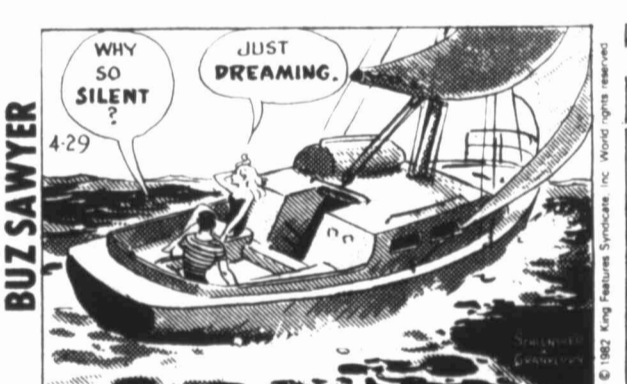

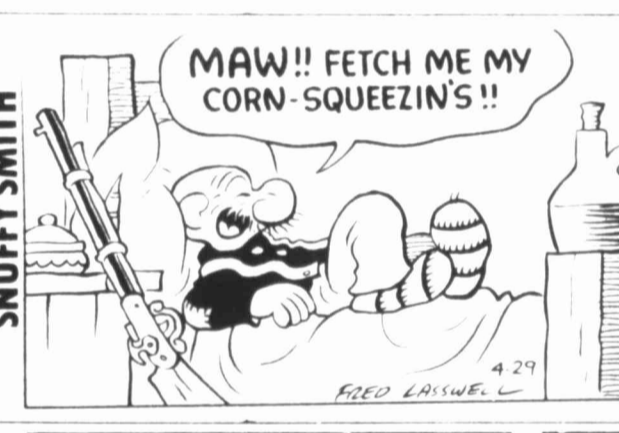

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she will be one who can carry through with specific plans in a most precise way, so direct the education along scientific lines for best results. A most unusual profession could emerge here. A lover of music in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

TV presents crime games

By FRED ROTHENBERG
 AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television is famous for taking hot topics and successful shows and recycling, reshaping and spinning them off well after the public has gone on to its next hula hoop.

The networks have beat to death crime shows, and extended the limits of workable reality programming with "That's Incredible" and "Real People," while reaching a dead end with "Inside America."

This weekend, ABC has managed the ultimate coup of linking both phenomenon, combining America's fascination with crime and the proven format of reality shows. The result is a new TV genre: Crime Games.

In one show, "Shoot, Don't Shoot," viewers become living room cops and decide whether to pull the trigger during potential life-and-death situations. The other, "Counterattack: Crime in America," is a call-in program, in which crimes are re-enacted and viewers are asked to phone the authorities with tips.

If these succeed, the possibilities are endless. We could have "What's My Crime?" "Did You Tell the Truth?" and, even, a new version of "Let's Make a Deal."

"Shoot, Don't Shoot" and "Counterattack" are both produced by entertainment divisions, although news divisions also are gingerly getting into the area of re-enacting crimes and, in some cases, visually re-creating news events.

"Shoot, Don't Shoot" is a production of ABC's five owned-and-operated stations. It's syndicated in 60 markets, with some stations carrying it this Saturday night.

The idea came out of viewer questionnaires revealing intense interest in crime. The responses inspired WABC's news division in New York to broadcast a unique series last February in which five unsolved crimes were re-enacted. Several weeks later, police arrested a suspect in a replayed murder case.

There is value in examining the harrowing decisions of cops, who must act quickly to save themselves without jeopardizing bystanders. "Shoot, Don't Shoot" has illuminating moments, with interviews with police officers who have been on both ends of shootings.

It can be beneficial for viewers, particularly youngsters, to gain a more realistic understanding of police work, especially since most police dramas present nothing more than occupational fantasy.

As host Peter Falk explains, most cops shows on TV subscribe to the theory of "bang, bang, bang, the bad guy goes down." Then the next scene has the cop going to some fancy restaurant.

But, even so, "Shoot, Don't Shoot's" public-interest credibility is undermined by a gimmicky and sensational test of limited value. Nine seemingly dangerous situations are created, and viewers are told to pull the trigger when, if ever, shooting is appropriate.

"Counterattack," on Sunday night, wasn't available for screening. According to ABC, it offers crime-prevention tips and "encourages viewers to join the war against crime."

Potholes and rusty water mains, your days are numbered.

Capital improvement projects to cure those problems and others in Big Spring are rolling right along, according to reports presented to the press and to the city council yesterday.

Big Spring's city manager, Don Davis, met with reporters in his makeshift city hall office yesterday afternoon to deliver a progress report on three areas of improvement: water lines, Wasson Road and the airport.

As carpenters hammered and sawed in the room next door (that's Davis' real office, which is undergoing its own improvement by getting covered with paneling), Davis announced that sixty percent of the water improvements in phase one of the five-year Capital Improvements Program had been completed.

The work consisted primarily of replacing water lines on the west side of town in the vicinity of Third and Fourth streets as well as in the Washington Place neighborhood.

The work had begun in Washington Place, then shifted to the west side because of the difficulty of residential access in Washington Place, Davis explained. Homeowners there had been asked to surrender some space in order to allow repair crews to put in the new lines, and while the city was acquiring easements in the area the water work shifted back to the west side.

DAVIS TOLD the council in its meeting last night that there may be a few stretches of water line that are not replaced because the easements can't be obtained.

"We may have to scrap a block in Washington Place," Davis suggested to the council.

He added in his meeting with reporters that there had been complaints from people regarding water service being shut off for the line repairs and not getting turned back on for several hours after the work was done.

"If anyone in town is having this problem, please call the water department," Davis said.

The balance of the first phase of the capital projects consists of the reconstruction of Wasson Road, Davis told reporters — a project which, based on last night's council action on the project, could get into its construction phase by late June, he said.

The council took a look at numerous options for improving Wasson, ranging from a two-lane street with a continuous left-hand turn lane to a four-lane street with a painted median. Prices ranged from $375,000 to $500,000.

Basing their decision on traffic counts and visions of growth in the area, the council picked a $450,000 option, which calls for a four-lane street with a continuous left-hand turn lane from F.M. 700 to west of the park entrance, and a four-lane street with a painted median from the park entrance to Randolph Road.

STILL ANOTHER progress report on a big project was offered yesterday, this one concerning the building of new aviation facilities at the city airport. The first two of three hangars to be built on the west side of the runways are in the construction stages; the city has the bond money to be used to buy the hangars from the Howard County Industrial Foundation, which is financing construction of the first two hangars; the city is prepared to build the third hangar on its own — and the whole project should be completed by October, Davis told reporters.

Additionally, the council last night approved a bid from Permian Utility of Midland to install a water line which will connect with the hangars. The bid was for $53,284.75 and compared with a high bid of $76,262.50 from HBH Construction Co. of Odessa.

But the airport project has not been proceeding without hitches. Davis was asked in his press meeting whether the city felt that recent reductions in the work force at O.I.L., the company whose expansion prompted the airport project, might be a cause of concern to city planners, now that things have gotten so far along.

"I'm worried about it," Davis said, "but we have a binding contract with them, secured by (O.I.L.'s parent corporation) Kidde, that legally obligates them to the expansion." O.I.L. signed a contract with the city to expand onto the property where the hangars currently sit; by the time it takes over all the space it contracted for at the airport and industrial park, O.I.L. will be paying the city some $393,000 a year in rent.

ANOTHER BUMP in the road toward smooth completion of the project was the recent lawsuit filed by the city against one of the fixed-base operators using a hangar at the airport. The city sued O.D. Landrum and his Big Spring Aero Service earlier this month for alleged non-payment of rental fees. The city obtained a restraining order which in effect prevents the company from doing business out of the hangar, Davis explained.

As of May 1 and until the replacement hangars are built on the west side, the city will use the Big Spring Aero hangar as storage space. That, however, turned out to present a problem for a man who had sub-contracted with Landrum to use space in Big Spring Aero's hangar.

H.M. Rickabaugh went before the council to ask what the prospects were for continuing to do business at the airport between now and the time the new hangars open up. The council decided that it didn't seem like a good idea to hire another fixed-base operator to use the hangar now intended for storage space — a move which would enable Rickabaugh to continue operations — but instead suggested he look into the possibility of working with the other fixed-base operator at the airport, Reed McClure's Trans-Regional Air.

3 out on bond for DWI

Three persons were released on bond from the Howard County Sheriff's Office after being arrested for driving while intoxicated by city police.

Pedro Torres Padron, 34, of Coahoma, Michael J. McKinley Snyder and Avel Ramirez, 35, of 1504 Cherokee all posted bail on $1,000 bonds set by Peace Justice Bobby West.

Bail for McKinley and Ramirez was posted by B & M Bail Bond while Padron's bail was made by Basden & Conway.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Diann Larman, 24, of Big Spring Monday on a charge of issuance of bad checks. She was released on a $500 personal recognizance bond set by Peace Justice Lewis Heflin.

The Mall Street Journal

This week at the Big Spring Mall there seems to be an air of excitement and great anticipation because this weekend is the Great Big Spring Mall In Door Flea Market. To be honest the flea market has gotten bigger than I thought it could ever be. There will be over fifty dealers at the Mall this Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. till 9 p.m. each day. The promoter of this show is none other than Big Spring's own town character Sig Rogers. Sig has done a great job getting the show booked and from all indications it will be a lot of fun. There are a lot of great events on their way to the Big Spring Mall in the near future. For example the week following the Flea Market there will be many fine values throughout the Mall for Mother's Day we will end that week with the 1st Annual Mother's Day Plant Show on May 7th & 8th. The next weekend on May 15th the Big Spring Health and Safety Fair will be at the Big Spring Mall. The Health and Safety Fair is another one of those events that is getting bigger than I thought it would. This is due primarily to the fine leadership by Barbara Holdamps and her committee it is a pleasure to work with such a group.

Pushers, White Pants, Trousers, and Straw Handbags. This sale ends May 8th which is the day before Mother's Day. Bobbie wants me to remind you that Visa and MasterCard are welcome, also there is a Lay-A-Way program. Remember men, Mother's Day is May 9 don't get caught without a gift for your favorite person.

As I reported last week Helen's is having a grand opening sale all this week and there are still a few days left on this special. Down at Kopper Kettle Roxann Rich has got in a shipment of Kitchen Counter sets and Steak Knives, just in time for Mother's Day. At Gordon's buy mom a 14K gold chain at 20 percent off. At Zales for Mother's Day one can find Kremenetz Jewelry, as with everything Zales has this is a real real buy. The two big stores here at the Big Spring Mall, J.C. Penneys and Bealls both are having a great number of Mother's Day specials.

There is another event coming to the Big Spring Mall that I am particularly excited about. Jim Swails, who is the owner of Swails Originals is going to spend the week prior to Mother's Day at the Big Spring Mall. Mr. Swails and his wife are the creators of the hanging Butterfly and Quail Swag Lamps. Many of you who have shopped the larger malls in the area are probably familiar with this couple's extraordinary work. A lamp of this quality would be a perfect gift for that special mother. The Swails originals will be at the Big Spring Mall from Monday the 3rd to Saturday the 8th.

Again I come to the end of another Mall Street Journal, let me remind every one to come to the Big Spring Mall and shop for that perfect Mother's Day gift, we're open from 10 a.m. till 9 p.m. for your convenience.

GS Day Camp planned

The Big Spring Girl Scout Day Camp will be held at Comanche Trail Park July 26-31 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Day Camp registration will be held May 1-28 and the fee is $10 for scouts, $13 for non-scouts and $5 for volunteer workers' daughters. Registration forms may be obtained from troop leaders or the Area IV office located at 2005 Gregg.

The day camp's theme will be "It's About Time" and programs will concentrate on learning, organizing and carrying out water conservation activities. Girl Scouts in second through eighth grades will earn the 70th Anniversary Patch.

The camp's administrative staff includes Gerrie Tucker, director; Virginia Oliver, assistant director; Janet Murley, business; and Debbie Burrow, program director.

Class of 1942 plans reunion

Big Spring High School Class of 1942 has designated the weekend of June 19-20 as the date of their 40th year reunion. The decision was made at a planning meeting held April 13.

The event will take place at the Llanestead Inn, and registration will begin the evening of June 18. Planned activities include a reception, teachers and guests coffee, hospitality hour, banquet and dance. Tours of Runnels Junior High and Big Spring High School will be provided.

Local alumnae are urged to help prepare for the reunion by sharing efforts, historical information, pictures and scrapbooks.

For more information or to help with the events, call Mardeena Smith, 263-4024; Raymond Andrews, 267-7694; or Ocie Mason, 263-2405.

Big Spring to lose WFAA

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Big Springers tuning in Saturday to channel 8 WFAA won't find the old familiar faces of Tracy Rowlett or Iola Johnson, but instead, will be greeted by USA Network programming. The change is in response to a Federal Communications Commission ruling that upholds a request by KWAB, the Big Spring ABC affiliate, for non-duplication of ABC programming by the Dallas station.

TV, Inc. will replace WFAA with USA Network on channel 8. USA is a 24-hour service that offers children's programming, sports, health series and a variety of other programs.

Jim Lancaster, manager of the cable office, explained that "we will have to drop WFAA's programming to protect the rights of KWAB. KWAB had asked us over a year ago to give them non-duplication protection; however, we appealed the request with the FCC claiming WFAA's signal was technically better."

"I know it's (WFAA) a popular channel, but we've reached the crossroads where we can't do anything about it. We did everything we could to retain it," Lancaster said.

KWAB is a satellite station for KTPX in Odessa. KTPA's station manager Bog Good said the request was simply to clarify the FCC law of non-duplication.

"I know the public thinks it's the fault of KWAB that WFAA will be taken off the cable, but the ruling by the FCC just reaffirmed what the cable company should have been doing a long time ago," Good said.

There have been some complaints in Big Spring that the KWAB signal is too weak for deaf persons with closed caption machines for their televisions. Some residents say they can only get ABC's closed caption programming on WFAA's signal.

Good said his station had only become aware of the difficulty last week and he stated that his staff was doing everything possible to remedy the situation. Good said KTPX currently is considering buying a new, stronger transmitter for KWAB; however, he could not give a definite date when the equipment might be purchased.

It may not matter whether KTPX makes the changes because in the fall KTPX and KMID, in Midland, will effect a network swap.

KTPX, an ABC affiliate, will become an NBC affiliate, and KMID, which broadcasts NBC, will change to ABC programming. According to executives of both stations the change was brought about after two years of negotiating.

Chapter announces officers

Mu Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi announced new officers at their recent meeting. The meeting took place in the home of Debbie Walling.

New officers are Sharon Richardson, president; Peggy Payne, vice president; Kathy Schrum, treasurer; Lisa Murphy, recording secretary; Rene Eyskens, corresponding secretary; and Teresa Wash, extension officer. Mrs. Payne, Mrs. Richardson and Marian Buzbee will be City Council representatives.

Ms. Walling presented a program on human relations, and Ms. Murphy spoke on the topic, "How to Stay Loose in this Uptight World."

A pledge ritual was performed for Sherry Hampton. Members voted on Girl of the Year and Pledge of the Year. Results will be announced at the Founder's Day Banquet Thursday evening.

The next meeting will be held Monday in the home of Kathy Schrum. A legacy ritual will be performed for several daughters of chapter members.

PTA needs photographs

Photographs of activities and workers in the Parent-Teacher Association during its 56 years in Big Spring are needed for the History of Howard County now being prepared by the Howard County Historical Association.

The Home and School Club and Mothers Club are two similar groups which were active in Big Spring before the PTA was organized here. Pictures of these two groups also are needed.

Anyone having old scrapbooks and pictures of any of these three organizations should call Carole Owen, 263-3404. Copies will be made, and the original photographs will not be damaged.

Party honors youngster

A birthday party was held March 20 in the Big Spring State Park to honor Michael William Joseph Essary on his first birthday. Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Essary, No. 11 September Trail.

Michael is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Holderfield, of Bristow, Okla., and the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Essary of West Plains, Mo. He is the great-grandson of Rev. and Mrs. W.V. Holderfield and Mrs. Nola Armitage of Bristow, Okla. He has two sisters, Nonna and Tandra.

Son's birth announced

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grinnan, 1317 Wright, announce the birth of their second child, Gordon Michael, April 20 at Malone-Hogan Hospital. The infant arrived at 11:55 p.m., weighing 7 pounds 1 ounce and measuring 20 inches long.

Gordon Michael's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ament, Sterling City, and his paternal grandparent is Mrs. Robert E. Grinnan, Dallas. His great-grandmother is Mrs. Sam Ament, Kingstons Springs, Tenn.

Gordon Michael is welcomed home by his brother, Brian Gregory, 2.

Daughter to graduate

Carrie-Beth Atkins, Waxahachie, daughter of Richard Atkins, 101 Lincoln, and Linda Ker, Waxahachie, will graduate from Temple High School, Temple, May 5. Miss Atkins attended Big Spring schools until 1978.

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Atkins, 1301 Rannels are her paternal grandparents.

The Elegant Elephant, in College Park Center in Big Spring, is a unique store that specializes in maternity fashions and sports wear. "Everything for the Mother-to-be" is their motto and that is exactly what they provide.

IN ADDITION to their sportswear and dress wear for the mother-to-be, Elegant Elephant has a full line of lingerie.

But Elegant Elephant is far more than just a clothing store. They have a large stock of nursery accessories, such as furniture and comforters, and they can coordinate everything to match in any design you wish.

They also stock a wide selection of specialty items, including a full line of Dakin stuffed animals.

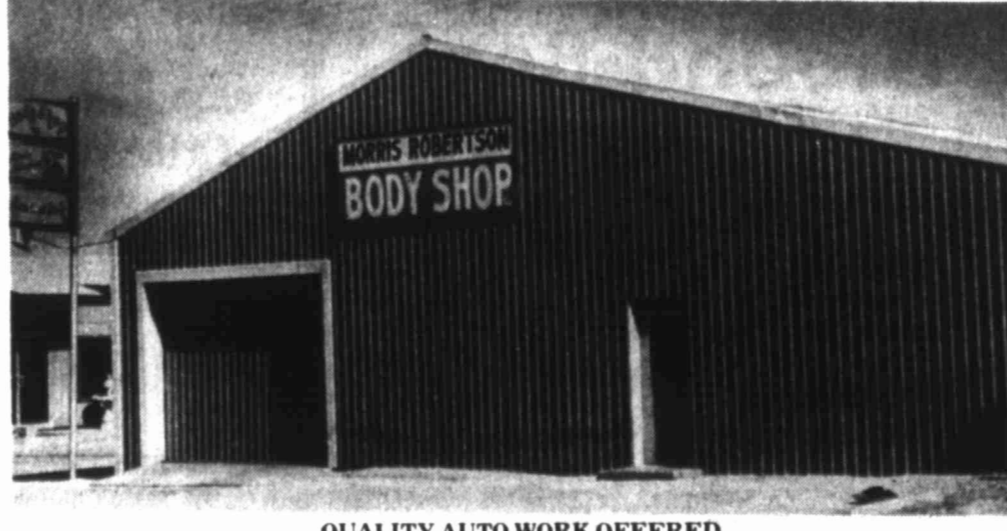

The Elegant Elephant is able to personalize gift items for you. They carry combs, brushes, ribbons, and many other items that can be personalized to your liking.

One new service being offered by Elegant Elephant is a special gift selection for mothers-to-be that can be arranged around a baby shower. You can come in to the store and make a selection, or if you are unable, they will bring the selections to you.

Elegant Elephant wants customers to know that they are there to serve you. If there is anything special you need that is not offered at their store, they will do their best to get it.

THE OWNERS of Elegant Elephant urge those in surrounding towns to shop in Big Spring, and remember College Park Center as a perfect place for one-stop shopping. They also encourage shopping early for Christmas. They have a layaway plan available.

Remember that Elegant Elephant has everything for the mother-to-be. They are located at 8B College Park right next to Final Touch. Their hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and their phone number is 267-8303.

QUALITY AUTO WORK OFFERED
...at Morris Robertson's

Morris Robertson, sons want to serve public

With our fast-driving lifestyles, it's all too easy to put a nice big dent in your car or truck. If that has happened to you, or if you think you need a new paint job on that not-so-new automobile, Morris Robertson is the person you need to see.

MORRIS ROBERTSON Body Shop has the experienced people to do the job you need. They're a family business and have been in Big Spring since 1946.

Morris and his sons take a great deal of pride in the professional work they do. The residents of Big Spring and the surrounding area know they can trust the Robertsons. They are not out to take the public, they are in the business to please the public. And they please the public by turning out the best work at the most reasonable prices. They are very open and honest with the way they deal with customers, and have no desire to make a little extra money by taking advantage of someone in need.

Morris Robertson Body Shop offers complete body work facilities. They can do radiator work, body work and can mend the broken glass and straighten the frame on your car. Morris Robertson and sons open their doors at 7:30 every Monday through Friday morning and close the doors at 5:30 p.m.

THE MOST CAUTIOUS of drivers can make a big mess of his or her car. If you find yourself looking for quality body work, and want a business that takes pride in their work, look no further than Morris Robertson's Body Shop, located at 207 Goliad. They are here to stay, and they are here to please.

Overwhelming demand cited

Drop in price of fire ant pesticide reported

AUSTIN — An increase in demand for the fire and bait Amdro has resulted in a decrease in the price of the pesticide, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown announced today.

"Because of the overwhelming demand for Amdro from the many southern states plagued by the fire ant, American Cyanamid, processor of the fire ant bait, has agreed to drop the price from $3.75 to $3.01 for the one pound bag and from $2.99 to $2.65 for the 25 pound bag.

"This reduction in price coupled with the emergency funding from Gov. Bill Clements, will help us substantially increase our supply of the pesticide and provide more relief to imported fire ant infested areas," Brown said.

AMERICAN CYANAMID agreed to lower the price of the bait when it was realized how widespread the imported fire ant problem had become. The numerous orders for the pesticide made it economically feasible to offer it at a lower price. The company will also allow credit to those states who have already purchased and received shipments of Amdro.

"Texas has already received one order of the pesticide so the manufacturer is allowing us credit for this shipment order. This means that we will be able to purchase much more Amdro than expected. The many counties infested with this pest may be assured that more help is on the way," Brown said.

The 88 counties involved in the fire and control program requested 3.1 million pounds of Amdro.

THE PLANT is currently operating at a production level that will utilize all materials available; however, more corn grit carrier could be made available soon. When this happens, the company will begin around-the-clock production.

The extra demand for the bait helped lower the price but it also slowed deliveries to Texas since the limited production has to be spread over all infested states. The Texas Department of Agriculture will not receive the extra bait until late summer or early fall. This is still within the optimum treatment season. The price to the individuals from the state will still be $1 per pound for the AMDRO.

Mental illness trends talked

A. K. Smith, superintendent of the Big Spring State Hospital, was guest speaker at the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club luncheon Friday.

Smith discussed the broad scope of mental illness and trends in the treatment of mental illness.

He projected an increase in the future need for services, based on a projected population increase in the Big Spring State Hospital's 46-county service area.

Dawson gets rabies force

Despite a lengthy agenda the Dawson County Commissioners' Court only approved one piece of business in a special meeting held yesterday morning.

Dr. David Smith, a Lamesa veterinarian, was appointed head of the county's rabies control force. In cases where an animal is suspected of having rabies, Smith will work closely with officials in Austin to conduct tests for final diagnosis. It is the commissioners' hope the control force will curb incidence of rabies in the county.

In other action the commissioners tabled discussion on adopting safety devices for county road and highway work sites, discussed checking into the possible roof repair of the Dawson County Museum, studied hospitalization insurance for county employees and agreed to request a salary grant for the district attorney's secretary.

Successful blood drive

The Big Spring Federal Prison Camp conducted their bi-monthly community blood mobile last Wednesday, with 83 donors coming forth to make this the most successful blood mobile at the Camp, according to David Huff, camp health systems administrator and mobile coordinator.

The blood drive was a team coordinated effort by the Camp Jaycees, Inmate Advisory Council and the Camp Medical Department to support the ever-growing community need for blood.

The mobiles are under the auspices of United Blood Services of San Angelo which is the provider of blood needs for West Central Texas.

Andrews rips Lamesa, 6-1

LAMESA — Andrews scored three times in the first inning as Eric McCullough smacked a solo home run to lead the Mustangs to a 6-1 District 2-A AAAA victory over Lamesa here Tuesday.

The loss dropped the Golden Tors to 0-1 in the second half and 7-11 overall. Andrews is 9-13 and 1-0.

The Tors scored their only run in the seventh as Blake McKinney knocked in Damian Hernandez with Lamesa's run. Winning pitcher George Ramirez limited the Tors to six hits.

Lamesa is on the road Friday in Pecos.

Coahoma sets sport fete

COAHOMA — Tickets are $5 for the Coahoma All-Sports Banquet Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the school gymnasium.

Booster Club scholarships will be awarded as a highlight of the program.

Forsan pair makes finals

ODESSA — Two Forsan tracksters made the finals at the Class AA regional meet here Tuesday.

Vicky Baggett ran a 5:54.1 in the 1,600 meters for third and Karla Cregar was seventh in the 200 meters. She had run a 27.1 in the prelims.

Other Buffalo Queens making the trip to the meet were Teresa White in the 800 meters and Karla Nix in the 200. The mile relay also completed.

Coahoma student honored at Howard College ceremony

Dr. Charles Hays, president of the HCJCD, presented Mr. Wright with the award. The award is presented to the student who best exemplifies the personality, character, and ability, which when combined, make an excellent leader and student for the District, said Dr. Hays.

Presenting the Wall Street Journal Award, an award given to the outstanding business student, was Ralph Smith, business instructor at Howard College. Recipient of the award was Marilyn Clark.

Another award presented was the American Legion Citizenship Award, which was presented by Dr. Halvard Hansen to Andrea Fowler, a freshman from Coahoma, and Brent Zitterkopf, also a freshman from Coahoma.

Sam Hill, Acting Vice-President for SWCID, presented awards for the Outstanding Preparatory Student to Harry Lee Buckley, and to Norbert Irion for the Outstanding SWCID student. The outstanding freshman and sophomore students were also announced. They were Walker Estes and Randy Baker, respectively.

Receiving awards for academic excellence were Phyllis Vickers,

A.D.N.; Jana Long, Business; Kathleen McChristian and John Lelek, English; Janise Whitehead, Biology; Lula Price, Art; Paula Harrison, Chemistry; Steve Drake, Health and P.E.; Charles Hamner, Mid-Management; Deon Grandon, Trade and Industrial; Kathleen McChristian and Charles Carter, Spanish; Janise Whitehead, Computer Programming; Frankie Noyola, Journalism; Pepper Sullivan, Music; and Janis Whitehead and Sajjan Malil, Math. Awards for academic excellence for SWCID were presented to Hamid Hajejian, Science; Justine Fendrich, Social Studies; and Carol Adair, General Business.

Outstanding members of the various organizations of the District were recognized by Bill Griffin, Howard College Dean of Students. They were Herbert Moore, Baptist Student Union; Ana Walls, Phi Theta Kappa; Cliff Kirkpatrick, Rodeo Club; Frankie Noyola, Thistles; and Victoria Berry, T.N.S.A.

Dom Bonura, SWCID Dean of Students presented leadership awards selected by the students to the Outstanding SWCID Man, Larry Hutchison, and to Sonya Gonzales, the Outstanding SWCID Woman.

The Fall 1981 Honors List for the District were also presented with awards along with the Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. Special recognition was also given to the HC and SWCID student government officers and representatives, and the HCJCD Classics. Susan King presented special awards to members of the Writer's Club. Students receiving recognition were Kayla Wiggins, Norbert Irion, Kathleen McChristian, Coy Willis, Greg Wright, Elizabeth Phelan, Amy Carmen, and Javier Martinez.

Council to install officers

The installation banquet for the Big Spring Council of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held at K-Bob's restaurant at 7 p.m. Monday.

New and retiring officers and their spouses as well as other PTA workers are invited to attend the function which honors local leaders in the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Dinner will be a ranch steak, baked potato, salad and beverage. Cost is $6.31 including tip.

Persons planning to attend should make reservations by Thursday by calling Mattie Watson, 263-7542.

Festival begins Friday

The Big Spring Squares will present their 13th Annual Square Dance Festival Friday and Saturday in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Chuck Bryant of San Antonio, festival headliner, is a square dance caller in the San Antonio area clubs and also calls for special dances in other areas. The public is invited to attend.

Randy Phillips, Abilene, will call for the Trails End Dance Friday at 8 p.m. in the Big Spring Square Corral. This is the kick-off dance for the weekend. Phillips is the club caller for Big Spring Squares. Admission to the dance is $5 per person.

Cueing rounds will be Dave and Nita Smith of Lubbock. The Smiths have called several festivals for Big Spring and have several clubs in the Lubbock area. They also spend several weeks as round dance instructors in Fun Valley, Colo., a square dance resort. The Smiths will present an exhibition dance during intermission.

The festivities Saturday will begin with a round dance workshop at 1 p.m. The Smiths will teach new moves and steps to lively tunes. At 3 p.m., Bryant will teach a square dance workshop, incorporating new moves that will be included in the evening dance. At 7 p.m., the evening begins with request rounds. The Grand March and introductions will begin at 7:50 p.m. with the square dance following. An After Party will be hosted at the Square Corral beginning at 11 p.m. Refreshments will be served and dancing with guest callers will continue. Admission for the full day's activities is $10 per person.

Willis and Bobbie Burchett are festival chairman. Hayes Stripling will emcee the Saturday dance. Dancers from Lubbock, Abilene, San Angelo, Midland, Odessa, Andrews, Colorado City, Snyder and other area cities are expected to attend.

New officers elected

Members of the Howard County Association for Retarded Citizens elected new officers at their meeting April 19. The meeting took place at Hillcrest Baptist Church.

New officers are Mary Smith, president; Caroline Volbrecht, vice president; Mike Cowley, treasurer; Irene Jackson, secretary; and Lois Kietchmare, telephone chairman.

Thirteen local participants of the Special Olympics will travel to Austin for the State Special Olympics May 24-26. Carol Green will coach the participants, and Mike Cowley will attend as local coordinator.

Teens Aid to the Retarded will sponsor a car wash May 8 at Highland Texaco. Proceeds will help sponsor activities for the retarded.

The next meeting will be held at 6 p.m. May 10 at Alberto's Restaurant.

Absentee votes cast Saturday

Thirty-four voters took advantage of the chance to vote absentee Saturday as the Howard County Clerk's office was open from 2-8 p.m.

According to County Clerk Margaret Ray, 15 Republicans and 240 Democrats have voted absentee in the county.

The office has mailed out 32 Democratic ballots and received 15 back so far. Fourteen GOP ballots have been sent out and eight have been returned.

Salads are perfect for warm summer days

Fruit, vegetable or main dish — no matter what the ingredients, salads are always popular. In the summer, the ease of preparation, time and energy-saving qualities and nutrition make salads perfect for any occasion.

Below is a variety of salads, some traditional, others unusual, but all perfect for the warm days ahead.

HOT GARDEN POTATO SALAD
6 medium potatoes, pared and cut in 1/2-inch cubes

3 Tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 Tablespoon sugar
1 Tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup white vinegar
8 to 10 slices cooked bacon, cut up
1/4 cup reserved bacon drippings
1/4 cup fresh snipped parsley
1/2 cup thinly sliced radishes
Tear off a length of heavy duty aluminum foil large enough to permit adequate wrapping. Place potatoes in center of foil sheet; add onion. Combine sugar, flour and seasonings; sprinkle over potatoes. Pour vinegar and bacon drippings on top of potato mixture. Bring two foil sides up over potatoes; fold down tightly in a series of locked folds. Fold short ends up and over again; crimp to seal. Cook on grill over ash-covered coals, 3 to 4 inches from heat for 20 minutes. Turn package over and cook for an additional 25 to 30 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove packet from grill; open and toss gently with bacon, parsley and radishes, before serving. Makes: 6 servings.

FESTIVE CHICKEN SALAD
2 cups chopped cooked chicken
1 cup fresh or canned pineapple chunks
1/2 cup celery slices
1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon curry powder

(optional)
1 Tablespoon pineapple juice or milk
3/4 cup 100 percent natural cereal
In large bowl, combine all ingredients except cereal; mix well. Chill. Immediately before serving, stir in cereal. Serve in pineapple boats or on lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with additional cereal and garnish with orange slices and strawberries, if desired. Makes about 3 cups chicken.

6 medium green peppers
3/4 pound hot dogs, cut into slices
2 Tablespoons butter, margarine or oil
1 1/2 oz. can tomato soup
18 oz. can niblet corn, well drained
1 7 oz. package macaroni, cooked
1/2 pound sharp cheddar cheese, grated (approximately 2 cups) Cut tops from green peppers and seed. Parboil peppers for 5 minutes. Sauté onions in shortening until soft and translucent. Combine hot dogs, chopped onions, tomato soup, drained corn, macaroni and 1/4 cup grated cheese (reserve 3/4 cup cheese for topping). Fill green peppers with mixture and set in 9 x 9-inch casserole. Sprinkle with reserved cheese. Leftover macaroni mixture may be spooned into casserole around the peppers or baked separately. Bake in 350 degree F oven for 20 minutes or until heated through. Serve immediately. Yield: 6 servings.

MUSHROOM-SIZZLE RICE SALAD
12-ounce package pork breakfast strips
1 Tablespoon lemon juice
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, cleaned and sliced
3 cups chilled cooked rice (approximately 1 cup uncooked)
1/4 cup sliced red radishes
1/4 cup diced green pepper
1/4 cup thinly sliced green onion with tops
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Cook pork breakfast strips following package directions. Drain and cut strips into sixths crosswise. Cool. Sprinkle lemon juice over mushrooms. Toss to coat. Add remaining ingredients. Combine thoroughly. Serve on lettuce leaves and garnish of snipped parsley, if desired.
Yield: 5 servings

TOSSED CHICKEN SALAD
1 1/2 cups diced cooked chicken
1 can (16-oz.) mixed Chinese vegetables, rinsed and drained
2 Tablespoons chopped onions
1 cup sliced celery
1/2 cup green peppers, cut in strips
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons soy sauce
4-6 mushrooms, sliced
3/4 cup mayonnaise
Combine chicken, Chinese vegetables, onions, celery, green peppers, salt, soy sauce, mushrooms and mayonnaise. Mix lightly; chill. Serve on crisp salad greens.

CHEEZY DOG IN SPUDS
6 long Idaho baking potatoes
3-oz. package cream cheese, softened
4 oz. butter or margarine
1/4 cup milk, heated
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
1 Tablespoon grated onion
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 eggs
6 hot dogs
1 cup sharp Colby cheese, grated

Scrub potatoes thoroughly and rub with vegetable oil. Bake in 400 degree F oven 50 to 60 minutes, until done. (Do not use microwave oven if possible, as potatoes will be fluffier baked in a conventional oven.) Cut potatoes in half lengthwise. Scoop out centers of potatoes with rounded spoon and place in mixing bowl with butter. Whip until smooth. Heat milk and add cream cheese, seasonings, onion and eggs. Beat at high speed until light and fluffy.

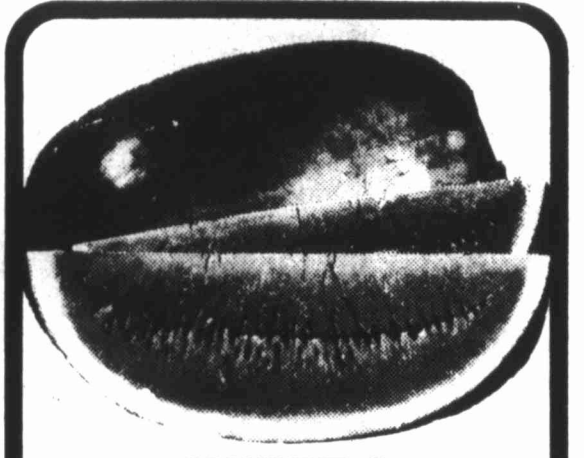

Cut hot dogs in quarter lengthwise, then slice into 1/4-inch pieces. Sauté hot dogs in lightly buttered skillet until just browned. Using half the hot dogs, place pieces into bottom of potato shells. Mound fluffy potato mixture evenly into shells. Sprinkle with one teaspoon grated cheese and remaining sautéed hot dogs. Return to oven and bake at 400 degrees F for 20 minutes. If potatoes are very cold or partly frozen, increase baking time to 40 to 45 minutes. Stuffed potatoes may be heated quickly in microwave oven.

VARIATION: Use Italian sausage in place of hot dogs. Place two teaspoons chopped cooked Italian sausage in bottom of potato shell. Mound fluffy potato mixture evenly into shells. Top with three teaspoons of chopped cooked Italian sausage and two teaspoons of grated mozzarella cheese before baking. Garnish with parsley before serving.
Yield: 12 generous servings

SPROUT SALAD IN AVOCADO BOATS
3 large ripe avocados, pits removed
1-3rd cup salad oil
3 Tablespoons white vinegar
2 Tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1/4 cup thinly sliced green pepper strips
1/4 cup thinly sliced scallions
1 1/4 cups cubed cooked ham
3 cups shredded lettuce
Combine the salad oil, vinegar, soy sauce, salt, pepper, pepper sauce, and garlic in mixing bowl. Add bean sprouts, green pepper, and scallions. Chill at least 1 hour, tossing frequently. Just before serving, add ham and lettuce; mix well and fill avocado halves with the mixture.

'Caught in Between' is spinoff of another play

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

"Caught in Between" A Play of Our Own Part IV, a two act comedy-drama, is being braided into the fabric of fine entertainment by the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf for presentation April 29, 30 and May 1.

The play, written and produced by Stephan C. Baldwin, concerns a 15-year-old hard of hearing girl being torn between attending a residential school for the deaf or a public school system.

Baldwin, an instructor of history and government at SWCID, has written 12 plays and has seen 10 of them produced. He has directed six of his own works, which included two full-length and four one-act plays.

Baldwin is one of three consistent deaf playwrights in the U.S. The other two are Shanny Mow of the National Theater of the Deaf and Donald Bangs of the Fairmont Theater of the Deaf.

"Caught in Between" is about a hard of hearing girl trying to decide between a deaf school and a regular public school," Baldwin said. "She must decide amid the pushing and pulling of her mother, father, grandparents, friends and doctors."

He said the work is a spinoff of another play he wrote entitled "Borderline." The play was a comedy-tragedy about a boy in a similar situation. Baldwin said the play was unsuccessful because the mood was too heavy and morbid for the audience.

"In the play the boy kills himself, but I found people had a hard time accepting the ending. With this play I just took the same idea and shifted my thoughts into a comedy. I wanted to see if I could accomplish some of the same things without having the girl go so far," he said.

Baldwin said the ideas for his plays have been formulating in his mind since he was six-years-old. He calls his writing "just putting things together after a lifetime of thinking."

"I started off by writing three-act plays, then two-act plays and now I'm down to mostly writing one-acts. Either I'm becoming lazier or I realize how hard it is or it's a sign of age."

"With a three-act or two-act play I have all the time in the world. I can take my time by building, building, building. I don't have to be immediate. With a one-act I don't have that time to build the feelings of the audience. It's tougher, but I think I'm beginning to like one-acts," he said.

As for favorite writers Baldwin listed Oscar Wilde, George Bernard Shaw, Mark Medoff, Chekov and Arthur Miller. He said he has no particular favorites and that he "plays musical chairs with writers."

"There is no deaf playwright for me to look up to. The deaf community at large is a few decades away from other established playwrights besides Mow and Bangs," he said. He said he incorporated his years of growing up in Boston and being part of a Catholic neighborhood into "Caught in Between."

"Caught in Between" is really a study of self-image. In other words, deafness is just a plot device to centralize that theme of self-image. The situations and events can be translated into anyone's life experience," he said.

Baldwin wrote the first draft of the play in only three weeks. He said it took another week for the second draft, and now the play is in its third draft. He said the third rewrite is often a collaboration between himself, the director and the cast.

"I believe the first write is the most important. Then you can let the director and his imagination, if he has any, and the actors make some kind of sense of it. Sometimes it's hard to put down precise feelings because you have to depend on so many components. The director can change the whole thing as to what I intend to show as my feelings or the actor might have a different concept of my words."

"There are differences in a playwright and a regular writer. The playwright sees his ideas change from his fingertips to script to stage. You face the risk of a non-imaginative director. I don't really trust any directors. That's why I've only used two in the last four years."

"One of those is in Big Spring — Cecelia McKenzie. She got herself involved and she saw things I wanted her to see in my work. I trust her with my scripts," Baldwin said.

For right now Baldwin looks upon his writing as a hobby, but he would consider writing for a living if the right opportunity presented itself.

"If someone gave me a contract that would give me more money than I'm making now, I might say yes and I might say no. I'm not chasing it. I'm not expecting it to come to me because I enjoy teaching. Teaching's more stable and realistic."

"I've seen too many people starve to death as a writer. I'm not starving yet, I have a job," he said. Most writers have a tough time getting their words into print or plays acted out on the stage. However, Baldwin has found an outlet for his works.

"It is hard to get a play produced. It's hard to send a script to Baker's Plays in Boston because they send it back and say 'Steve, the play is too specialized.'"

"To have a play produced you must find the right sponsor. I've taken mine to the Howard County Junior College District, deaf organizations and high schools and no one has turned me down," he said.

Baldwin has a strict requirement that a deaf organization must sponsor his plays and half the proceeds must go to the organization.

He said money for "Caught in Between" will go into the SWCID student activity fund, and one-fourth of the amount will be donated to the "Silent Thespian Club" at the school.

As for the future, Baldwin said he has three plays waiting in the wings, so to speak, that need to be rewritten.

"I hope to get some time this summer to write. When I go to summer school it is the only time I get to write. The National Theater of the Deaf has invited me back to their conference this summer, and while there I will start on a new play," he said.

The cast for Part IV consists mainly of people from SWCID, however, a couple of actors from the Spring City Theater will be in the production.

"It's not that I'm lazy and haven't gone out to look for actors — these people are really talented. In fact, this may be one of the best casts I've ever had, not to mention the production staff donating time and effort and none of them are getting a penny," Baldwin said.

Baldwin said the play is not specifically for a deaf audience. He said special techniques will be used to satisfy the hearing audience.

The cast includes: Wilma Evans as Ruth Bone; Traci Wood as Linda May Bone; Walker Estes, Leo; Paul Lovell, Vic; Fred Roy as Bert Lawson; Bern Jones, Dr. Bird; Cecelia McKenzie, Sister Margarita; David Justice, Father McCann; Bob Coltrane as David Bone; Jeff Davis, Dr. Devine; and Art Dignan as Edgar Daniels.

The production staff is: Steve Baldwin, producer; Helen Bonura, director; Graham Peters, assistant director; Tracy Salter, assistant; Marilyn Myers, costume director; Graham Peters and Art Dignan, theatrical sign language consultants; Lillian Hill, choreographer; Sam Hill, house manager; Patsy Pettitt, typist; Michael Moore, publicity director; Bill Eckstein, business manager; Mark Sheedy, lighting director and designer.

Others in the staff are Cecelia McKenzie, Alicia Malcom, Richard Fendrich, Carol Hart, Melanie McKay and Gary Tibbs.

The play is scheduled for April 29, 30 and May 1 in the HCJC auditorium at 8 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. For further information about tickets call SWCID at 267-2511.

Foster parents to meet

Howard County Foster Parent Association will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. at 1806 Morrison.

HCFPA is dedicated to helping foster parents develop the skills and abilities necessary to provide the best possible care for foster children. Foster parents face many situations when dealing with abused or neglected children and the agencies that place them.

By bringing together couples who share the same goals and difficulties, the association strives to provide a forum that will improve foster child care in Howard County.

All foster parents and prospective foster parents are welcome. For more information, call Tim Winn at 353-4410.

Volunteers are needed

Permian Basin Planned Parenthood needs people in a number of volunteer positions including clinical aide, receptionist, clinical counseling, typing and public speaking.

Two training sessions will be held for volunteers on April 29 from 6-9 p.m. and May 6 from 6-9 p.m. in Odessa. Those interested in becoming a volunteer should call Dana Frazee or Sue Drake at (915) 333-4133.

Note repairs in date book

Use a small date book for noting all car repairs, tire rotation, oil changes and gasoline purchases, and keep it handy in the glove compartment, suggests Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

Mrs. McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

2 arrested on warrants

Two Big Spring men were arrested Tuesday on charges of revocation of probation by Howard County sheriff's deputies.

One of the men, Jimmy Ray Lindsey, is being held in county jail without bond. Lindsey, 27, of 1905 Wasson, was arrested on a Hale County warrant and is being held for that county's sheriff's office.

Paul Andrew Davis, 20, of 811 Ohio, was released after posting a $1,500 bond through B & M Bail Bond. He is charged in a warrant from Taylor County.

Bundle of joy costs a bundle

COLLEGE STATION — Today's baby is an $85,000 bundle, says Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist.

Shocking as the figures sound, current estimates place the cost of raising children at about $85,000 from birth through four years of higher learning at a public university.

This is 33 percent higher than in 1977, when the figures were last updated.

In spite of all that, it's important to note that the overall costs of child-rearing haven't changed that much when viewed as a percentage or "chunk" of total family income.

Mrs. Granovsky is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Families with higher after-tax incomes will have greater costs associated with child-rearing.

For example, southern families with an after-tax income of $22,500-$27,500 could expect costs to be $71,478 (farm), $75,027 (rural non-farm), and $74,568 (urban).

Add the costs of childbirth and a college education, and the overall total approaches $85,000.
