O.I.L. cuts 45 jobs

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Oilfield Industrial Lines reduced its staff by 45 yesterday for cost cutting purposes, according to Richard Fackler, chief operating officer for O.I.L.

In a press release Fackler said, "The reduction in personnel will reduce O.I.L.'s work force from 668 to 623. The staffing adjustments are cost cutting measures which will further assure O.I.L.'s continued leadership in the sales and manufacturing of oil drilling equipment."

Earlier this year, O.I.L. had announced an all-time employment high of 770. According to the latest figures, the work force has now been reduced by 147 employees.

Fackler said the workers would not be hired back "without an increase in the (production) schedule." O.I.L. manufactured 16 oil rigs in 1981 and had planned to build 38 this year, according to Chris Christopher, O.I.L. chief executive officer.

One of the men laid off was Rocky Allmon, a contract welder. Allmon said the company notified him approximately 15 minutes before the end of his shift that he was being laid off.

"They told me they had to reduce the work force because of lack of work," Allmon said.

He said he would be searching for another job and plans to stay in Big Spring.

"I bought a house and all, I have to say here," Allmon said.

Allmon said most of his fellow employees that were laid off have already left Big Spring. Gerald Damm, office manager of the Texas Employment Commission, said his office has not had many former O.I.L. employees come to apply for work.

It would appear that the laid off workers, with no hope of being rehired, are taking flight from Big Spring in hopes of finding work elsewhere.

WE'RE NUMBER ONE — Three classes from Kentwood Elementary School entertained residents of the Canterbury Apartments yesterday morning. The children's session was "Kids Are Music." The first and second graders are students of Loyce Phillips, Carol Boyd, Laura Nixon and music teacher Kathy Tedesco.

Head Start, kindergarten registration scheduled

The Big Spring Independent School District annual Head Start and kindergarten registration for students entering school next term is set for May 6 at Kentwood, Marcy, and Lakeview elementary schools. Parents are asked to bring their children along with birth certificates and immunization records, to one of these schools for the official registration of Head Start and kindergarten students for next school term. Parents should take note of the following information:

Kindergarten registration programs for students attending half-day sessions next school term will be held at two locations — Kentwood and Marcy elementary schools. Brief orientation programs begin promptly at 1:30 p.m. and end at 2:30 p.m.

Students residing in the Kentwood Elementary attendance zone, the Moss elementary attendance zone, and the Washington elementary zone (including rural students) will attend kindergarten sessions at the Kentwood elementary campus at Merrill and Ann streets.

Students residing in the Marcy elementary attendance zone and the College Heights attendance zone will attend kindergarten sessions at the Marcy elementary campus located on Wasson Road.

Students planning to attend full-day kindergarten sessions or Head Start next school term should register at Lakeview elementary gymnasium any time between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. or 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Parents registering students at Kentwood, Marcy, or Lakeview schools should bring birth certificates and immunization records. In addition to these items, parents registering students for Head Start need to bring income verification.

Kindergarten children must be 5 years old on or before Sept. 1, 1982. Head Start children must be 3 years, 3 months old, or before Sept. 1, 1982.

Present Head Start and kindergarten enrollment in the Big Spring schools is approximately 560 students. In addition to classroom teachers, the services of counselors, speech therapists and nurses are incorporated.

At the time of registration at Marcy, Kentwood and Lakeview campuses, principals and teachers will present information including bus schedules. Handbooks will be distributed and questions will be answered. It is important that parents register their Head Start and Kindergarten students at the campus of their attendance zone in order that necessary planning be completed before school begins in August. If there are questions, call the Big Spring school district central office, 267-8245.

WFAA costs cable firm $478 more

A cost increase cited as the reason Big Spring Cable TV will not show WFAA programming in Big Spring amounts to about $473 a month, The Herald has learned.

And the increase, which would have been regulated by the city of Big Spring two years ago, is an increase the Cable TV company can pass on without any city regulation at all, due to a franchise ordinance signed by the company and the city council in August 1980.

Jim Lancaster, manager of Big Spring Cable, announced earlier this week that he was dropping WFAA programming from the Big Spring area because of an FCC ruling prompted by KWAB, which asked that it be the sole ABC affiliate in Big Spring.

Later, it was learned that Big Spring Cable TV could continue to show WFAA programming — but if it duplicated what KWAB was showing, then KWAB would have to be substituted.

Stephan A. Bailey of the FCC in Washington D.C. said cable systems can contain two like affiliates as long as the local station gets preference during duplicate programming. This would mean as long as WFAA is showing the same programs as KWAB in Big Spring the cable company has to substitute KWAB's signal for WFAA.

Meanwhile, a cost increase from the company providing Big Spring Cable TV with WFAA programming is imminent, and Lancaster said he

WFAA: The local reaction

The Herald went out on the street yesterday to find out local residents' reaction concerning WFAA being dropped from the cable system. The station is being deleted because of an FCC non-duplication ruling and a proposed price hike by West Texas Microwave, the company from which Big Spring Cable TV Inc. purchases WFAA programming.

Area residents were opposed to the idea of WFAA leaving the Big Spring airwaves. Most of the people contacted by The Herald lamented the loss of WFAA's news programs and its strong, clear television signal.

JANET PAIGE:

"I don't like it. I like channel 8. Between channel 8 and 13 (the other ABC station on cable), I watch 8 all the time. They have better programs and better movies. It just makes me sick."

CARLON BAKER:

"It's the channel I watch most of the time. I think it has better programs and better news. I don't want to see it go off the air."

RUTH LEUBNER:

"I understand why they're doing it, but I don't like it. I don't want to see us lose WFAA news. I liked the team news program they had. I live for Troy and Iola."

CARRIE BRYANT:

"Well, I don't live here I'm from Dallas, but I've heard about it and I think it's sad. It's a good broadcasting station. People watch it all the time in Dallas, it's the favorite."

GENE MADSEN:

"It's shameful. It's by far and away the best station we have. For overall quality WFAA has the best news and presentation. I prefer to watch their news."

BOBBIE HOLMES:

"I don't want it to go off. Channel 8 is much better. What little time I get to watch television I will watch channel 8. I get better reception with 8."

ALBERT PUGA:

"I think WFAA is a good station. I know a lot of people that go to Dallas on the weekends and it keeps them informed as to what's going on there. And of course, everybody is a Dallas Cowboy fan and you get information about them."

U. S. sides fully with Britain

Haig announces sanctions against Argentina

By The Associated Press

Britain's total air and sea blockade of the Falkland Islands went into effect today, and the United States abandoned its peace efforts because of what it called Argentine intransigence and sided with Britain in the conflict.

There were no immediate reports of clashes in the 200-mile war zone around the Falklands, but Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said in Washington that the "South Atlantic was about to enter a new and dangerous phase in which large-scale military action is likely."

He said in light of Argentina's "failure to accept compromise," its "use of unlawful force to resolve disputes" and its unyielding demand for sovereignty over the Falklands, the United States was abandoning its peace efforts and siding with Britain.

He said the U.S. government was suspending military exports to Argentina, Export-Import Bank credits, and Commodity Credit Corporation guarantees and giving materiel support to British forces in the dispute. However, he said there would be no U.S. military involvement in the crisis.

The London Daily Mail said President Reagan had already ordered U.S. tankers to be ready to steam to the South Atlantic to back up the British fleet. Defense Department officials in Washington said U.S. Navy ships were staying away from the scene of a possible outbreak of war.

A Defense Ministry spokesman in London said "there is no sign of the Argentine fleet moving into our operational area." He refused to disclose the whereabouts of the British armada, but when asked if British warships were ready to block any attempts by Argentina to penetrate the war zone, he replied: "I won't disagree with that."

There was speculation in London of an attack later today by British carrier planes on the airfield at Stanley, the Falklands capital and the bridgehead for Argentina's airlift to the estimated 9,000 troops occupying the British island colony.

With Argentina's ruling military junta refusing to pull back from the islands its forces seized April 2, Britain set the countdown clock running Wednesday with the announcement that it was expanding its 200-mile maritime blockade around the Falklands to the skies over the area at noon today — 7 a.m. EDT.

The Argentine junta retaliated Thursday night with an immediate embargo against British ships and aircraft within 200 miles of the Argentine coast and for 200 miles around the Falklands and its dependencies, South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands.

It said British violators of these zones would be "treated accordingly."

A spokesman for British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said the Argentine declaration "does not change Britain's position one iota."

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Not an actor

Q. Word is out that because of his looks and height, Dana Ehlen, the new director of the city water and sewer plant, was once a bit player in the movies. Can the Herald confirm this?

A. After he stopped laughing, Dana Ehlen said the answer is no, he never was in any movies.

Some area races wide-open

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

An examination of area counties shows several races which are wide-open due to incumbents not seeking re-election. Other races also have developed which will be settled at Saturday's Democratic primary.

In Dawson County, Leslie Pratt is retiring and five men are seeking his county judge's position. R.F. Sprayberry, John Rodriguez, Curtis Pruitt, M.S. (Mack) Sellers and Glenn (Bottles) White are candidates for the position in the Democratic primary.

Other Dawson County races include the commissioner, precinct two race with Kenneth Pearson, incumbent, and two challengers: A.B. Furlow and Victor Shrola. The commissioner, precinct four, position is being sought by incumbent Dalton Myers and William O. (Bill) Saunders. A fourth race in Dawson features incumbent Barbara Stone and challenger Denise Peterson Dyess vying for the county treasurer spot.

IN BORDEN County, incumbent County Judge Jim M. Burkett is not running for re-election. Seeking the position are Van York, Pat Porter and Jesse Johnson. Three persons are vying for commissioner, precinct four: incumbent Ed Rhinehart, Thurman Miller and Rickey Evans. The county treasurer's race has the incumbent Don Cox against Melissa Ludecke.

Glasscock County Judge D.W. Parker also is not seeking re-election the position again, leaving Bennie W. Thomason, Wilburn Bednar and John Robinson to contend for the judge's bench. A three-way race has developed for the county treasurer spot with incumbent Jonnie Cyfert attempting to hold the position over challengers Dana Ruth Schafer and Judy Kingston. The only area county clerk to be challenged is Mary Lou Overton with her opponent, Betty Pate.

The only other contested race in Glasscock is commissioner for precinct four. Incumbent Curtis Palmer and challenger Charles Michael Hoch are seeking the office. Mitchell County features the only sheriff's race as the county seeks to fill an unexpired term. Wendell Bryant, who was appointed to the office, is competing against two other men, Terry Ruddick and James O. (Bimbo) Stewart. In the justice of the peace, precinct one, race, Henry Doss is seeking re-election over James Sprott.

TWO COMMISSIONER races will be resolved Saturday as Johnny Shackelford, incumbent, seeks the precinct two spot over Lewis (Choppy) Rees. Precinct four has the incumbent, Billy H. Preston, challenged by three men: Royce Mahan, Edgar Halton and Lonnie H. Williams.

No incumbents are running in Martin County for two commissioner positions. Don Tollison and Wes Morgan are vying for the precinct two commissioner while Grady Grantham and E.D. (Wimp) Holcomb are looking for the precinct four spot. In two other races in Martin, Bob Davenport is seeking re-election for county judge over Earl Newcomer. H.D. Howard, the incumbent hopes to hold the county treasurer spot over challenger Cleta Barber.

Hotel fire kills 12 in Hoboken

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — A fire of suspicious origin raced through a four-story residential hotel before dawn today, killing 12 people and injuring several others who leaped from windows to escape the flames.

One woman at a top floor window tossed her baby into the arms of two men down below, before she jumped herself.

Deputy Fire Chief Edward McDonald said "an empty container of unknown substance was removed from the building. Something was there that shouldn't have been."

Officials said 31 people, including 13 children were in the Pinters Hotel at the time of the fire.

As firefighters dug through the charred debris, Deputy Fire Chief Ray Sheehan reported, "We brought out 10 (bodies) and two are in the hospital."

McDonald said the fire "spread so fast, the tenants didn't have a chance to evacuate."

Fire Chief James Houn said six people jumped from windows before firefighters arrived.

John Tirado, 15, who lived on the second floor with his family, said he saw a woman toss her infant from a top floor window. The child was caught by two men on the street.

"She had the little kid," he said. "The fire was in back of her and she threw the baby out the window."

LAVERNE HILL REMEMBERED — The Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs along with the Planter's Garden Club yesterday planted a Texas pecan tree in memory of Mrs. Laverne Hill, a longtime member of both clubs. Mrs. Hill was a teacher for 40 years and was active in many civic, church and city activities. Helping to plant the tree is Mrs. Doris Guy, president of the Garden and Planter's clubs. Looking on are several members from both organizations.

Two killed in car crash near Andrews

ANDREWS, Texas (AP) — Two Hobbs, N.M. residents died early this morning when their car veered in front of a tractor-trailer 19 miles west of this West Texas city, authorities said.

Floyd Dempsey Jr., 26, and Linda Susan Dial, 22, were ruled dead at the scene by Andrews County Justice Jay Williams.

The truck driver, Ronald John Vandye of Odessa, was released after treatment at Permian General Hospital in Andrews for cuts and bruises.

Dempsey's 1979 Mercury coupe was traveling westbound on Texas Highway 176 when he "ran off onto the right shoulder, overcorrected and came across the center stripe and hit the truck head-on" about 1:30 a.m., said Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Buff Angel.

W. R. Grace Co. earnings up

NEW YORK — W.R. Grace & Co., which has worldwide interests in chemicals, natural resources and selected consumer services, announced record earnings for the first quarter of 1982, primarily due to a $65,100,000 gain on the disposition of its ownership in a former Grace subsidiary, Chemed Corp.

Results of Grace's operations were said to be enhanced by the continued good performance of the company's natural resources activities, while earnings from chemical operations were affected by significantly lower income from the company's agricultural chemicals business.

Net income for the quarter ending March 31 was $144,176,000, an increase of 73 percent over the $83,570,000 for the 1981 period, which was restated for poolings of interests.

Earnings per common share for the first three months of 1982 were $2.99, versus $1.74 in the 1981 quarter, an increase of 72 percent.

The company operates an agricultural chemicals plant on Interstate 20 near the Cosden refinery.

Dawson meteorite found

LAMESA — A 40-pound meteorite has been found about 10 miles northeast of here, according to Elbert King, a geologist at the University of Houston.

"With a specimen this large, there are probably fragments which broke apart while entering the Earth's atmosphere anywhere in the lower part of the Panhandle," King says.

Originally identified at Texas Tech University, the meteorite, now called the Lamesa meteorite, is being analyzed by King and his students.

Anyone with information about the meteorite or having what they suspect is a meteorite specimen can contact Dr. King at UH at 713-749-3724.

Swing your partner to square dance fest

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The 13th Annual Square Dance Festival will be "clogging" its way into Big Spring today and Saturday at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Clogging is the fancy footwork exhibited by square dancers as sometimes seen on television shows.

The annual festival, sponsored by the Big Spring Squares, is in its fourth year at the coliseum, according to Bobbie Alexander, who has been dancing for about eight years. The festival is expected to draw about 240 people, mostly from a radius of 150 miles, but some folks will be from out-of-state.

"Lots of people plan their vacations around dancing. The snowbirds going home can catch dances every night going home," Mrs. Alexander said.

Tonight will feature a Trail's End Dance at the Big Squares' club from 8 to 11 p.m., she said. Workshops Saturday at the coliseum will have a round dance at 1 p.m., square dance at 3 p.m., request rounds at 7 p.m. and the Grand March at 7:55 p.m. The cost is $5 per couple today and $10 per couple Saturday.

A square dance involves four couples to form a square while round dance involves couples who dance around a circle, Mrs. Alexander said.

"Round dance is much smoother than square and is a lot like the old ballroom dancing," she explained.

Square dancing, especially during the Grand March, has some dancing which can even be classified as a sport, Mrs. Robinson said.

"You don't learn a lot of steps, but it's walking, moving and turning. There are fifty basic moves to square dance with seventy-five moves to the extended basics. Three thousand different moves can be found in square dance although usually 150 to 200 can be seen," she said.

The dance is "very active and is recommended as good exercise by doctors," Mrs. Alexander said. "You don't have to spend a lot of money but you can. You meet the most terrific people and it is spectacular to watch."

Square dancing is not limited to Texas or the southern states.

"The national festival is in Detroit this year after being in Nashville, Seattle and other places. The state festival will be in El Paso in June," Mrs. Alexander said.

Spectators are welcome tonight and Saturday as admission is free at the coliseum.

"There will be lots of costumes around and people may wonder how so many people can have so much fun without a drop of liquor," Mrs. Alexander remarked.

WFAA

wants't sure Big Spring viewers would want to pay more to see WFAA — particularly if, in the case of ABC programming, KWAB has to be substituted for WFAA. KWAB, he noted, has caused viewer complaints because of its poor signal.

"People are used to seeing a good, clean signal and I'm thinking about how it's going to look with a poor signal. I don't think people will want to pay more money for it," Lancaster said.

Lancaster added he couldn't say how much cable viewers' bills would go up based on the scheduled rate increase from West Texas Microwave, the company which sells Big Spring Cable TV its WFAA programming.

However, George Batsche, president of the Austin-based West Texas Microwave, said the bill to Big Spring Cable TV would go from about $700 a month to $1,173 a month for WFAA programming.

Batsche said the $700 figure for the old rate is approximate "because I don't have the final tariffs in front of me. But it looks like based on old billings that we were charging Mr. Lancaster of Big Spring something like $700 a month."

"That tariff has been in effect since 1978. Our records go back that far. It's possible it could have been in effect before that."

But the new $1,173 figure is exact, he said. "That's the bill that we sent. That's for channel 8, that's for the one channel."

He said the new rates "are based on a 12 1/2 percent return on our investment."

He said the tariff had not been raised since 1978 and possibly not since 1976.

"We are a common carrier, just like AT&T. We operate as a utility, we have to ask permission from the FCC to implement a rate increase. We didn't just arbitrarily raise the rates. We applied for it in Washington."

He added that the increase had been approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

Whatever the new cost to Big Spring Cable TV viewers amount to, the city of Big Spring can't regulate the cost, since it signed a franchise ordinance allowing Big Spring Cable TV the right to fix its own fees. The ordinance states that, if the company does increase its rates, it will notify customers at least 30 days ahead of time.

The city benefits from the ordinance, passed in August 1980, because it wrote into the ordinance a provision that it would base its franchise fee on basic service charges as well as home movie charges. The home movie charges hadn't been part

Police Beat 2 boys arrested for cycle theft

Gene Barber of 2002 Alabama reported to police that yesterday between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. someone stole a 1982 Honda dirt bike worth $1,566 from the den of his home. Barber said the perpetrator broke through a window in the den and drove the bike through the back door of the house.

According to police reports, officers later arrested two juveniles at 7:50 p.m. who allegedly were riding the bike in the vicinity of West 12th and Gregg streets. The pair were arrested for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, police said.

Weldon Bennett of Gage's Fina at 1604 F.M. 700 reported to police that sometime last night someone stole a Coca-Cola vending machine filled with 11 cases of soft drinks and $12 in change from the business. Bennett estimated the machine to be worth $1,292.

D.C. Perry of Garden City Route told police that while his car was parked at the Jiffy Car Wash at 807 W. Fourth at 2:45 p.m. yesterday someone stole $400 that was in the vehicle.

Rita Brumley, an employee of Pinkie's at 1414 E. Third, complained to police at 11:35 a.m. yesterday that she had received a threatening phone call from a man who said he was going to rob the business.

Fair reservations slower than expected

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Trucks and backhoes, painters and food vendors rushed around the grounds of the 1982 World's Fair early today, putting on the finishing touches for the weekend opening of the festivities expected to draw 100,000 people to town.

The first world's fair since 1975 and the first ever in the Southeast opens Saturday for a six-month run. President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will be on hand.

Exhibits from 22 nations, four states and more than 50 corporations and organizations are unveiled on a 72-acre downtown site. The exhibits are based on the fair's energy theme, noted in a commemorative postage stamp that went on sale here Thursday.

Mrs. Reagan will fly to Knoxville tonight and then take a helicopter ride to the home of Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., in rural Huntsville, where she and the president will be weekend house guests.

Reagan is flying to Knoxville Saturday for the opening, a national radio address, and a fund-raiser for fellow Republican Rep. Robin Beard.

Elsewhere in Knoxville, World's Fair clerks were cataloging accommodations that include hotel rooms, private homes, dormitories, campgrounds, houseboats and a remodeled tobacco warehouse.

Will Demo governor hopefuls need runoff?

By JAY ROSSER

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Three major Democratic candidates for governor have spent more than $3 million to win the right to carry their party banner against Gov. Bill Clements in November, but the real race could be for second spot.

None of the three major candidates listed on Saturday's Democratic gubernatorial primary ballot are given much chance of winning a clear majority that would eliminate any need for a June 5 runoff.

Attorney General Mark White's campaign staff said there's a 50-50 chance White can win without a runoff.

"If we don't win without a runoff, it'll be so close you can't put a straw in there," said campaign manager Dwayne Holman.

And if there is a runoff, said Holman, White will be in it.

So will Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple, his supporters maintain.

And, yes, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong's staff thinks he'll be one of the two runoff candidates.

Temple's staff maintains the runoff fight is between their mentor and White.

Armstrong's staff believes the runoff battle is between their boss and White.

"He (Armstrong) isn't a viable alternative," said Temple spokesman Tony Proffitt. "I can't believe they told you that. They must be using a Ouija Board or something."

Two statewide polls released this week show Temple and White "running virtually neck-and-neck," Proffitt said.

Armstrong's staff, meanwhile, concedes White will be in the runoff, but claims he'll be in it with Armstrong, not Temple.

"We'll concede that he (White) will probably finish first," said Skip Holcombe, Armstrong's deputy campaign coordinator. "But he'll also predict he'll knock Buddy Temple out of second."

Temple's staff believes they will win the runoff by winning Armstrong's support. Armstrong's staff thinks he will win the runoff with Temple's support.

"Whatever happens," Proffitt said, "I don't think you'll see any of the support going to White."

What has been a complacent primary battle could blossom into a full-fledged war by runoff time, some observers believe.

"It will easily be just as consisted as the primary," said Holman. Probably even more. You've got a shorter amount of time to campaign and fewer people in the race. But then again, I don't think this election has been too bitter so far."

The three candidates will carry their campaign road shows to major urban areas today.

Armstrong, for example, scheduled Houston for Thursday night and will visit Dallas and Fort Worth today with stopovers in Wichita Falls and Sherman-Denison.

Temple's entourage visited San Antonio, Waco, Vernon and Dallas Thursday and will hit Houston and Austin today. He will return to San Antonio Saturday and wind up the day in Austin.

White's caravan went to Dallas, Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Lubbock and McAllen Thursday and will visit Houston, San Antonio, Tyler and Texarkana today.

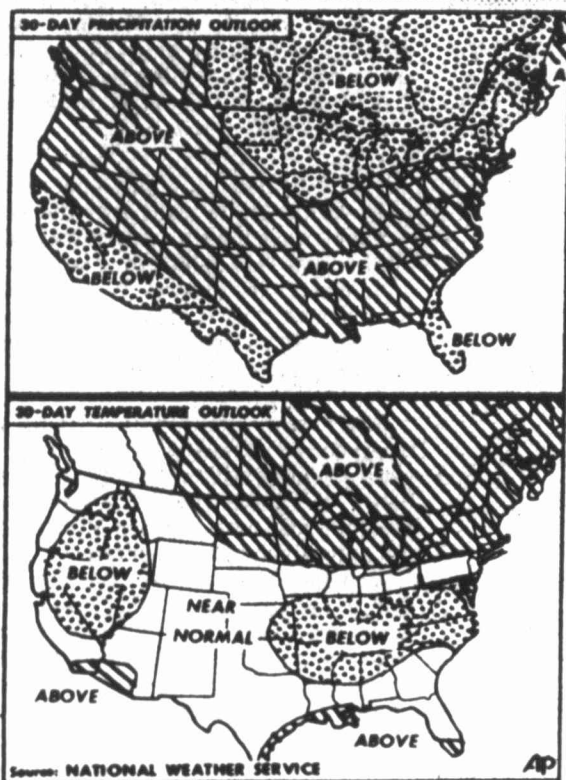

The candidates have found campaign contributions about as often as they've encountered great voter interest — rarely.

Going into the last week of the campaign, White reported amassing the largest financial chest with $1.76 million. He has $205,000 worth of loans to his campaign still outstanding.

Temple reported raising $1.3 million with all but $300,000 the result of loans he has made to the campaign.

Armstrong, meanwhile, has raised $634,103. Clements, a Republican onlooker with only token GOP primary opposition, has amassed $4.4 million in his re-election bid.

Reagan begins budget campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is launching a new budget campaign with a call to the voters to "do it again" and convince Congress to line up for his economic program.

The president summoned congressional Republicans to the White House today and planned to meet with prospective Democratic allies Monday in an apparent attempt to reassemble the coalition that delivered his first round of tax and budget cuts last year.

In a nationally broadcast address Thursday night, the president told the public to let "your representatives know that you think this is no time for politics as usual — that you, too, want an end to runaway taxes, spending, government debt and high interest rates."

"You did it once — you can do it again," Reagan said. With the first budget Reagan submitted to Congress this year all but forgotten — and efforts to find a bipartisan alternative to it in shambles — Reagan said he intends "to forge the beginnings of an acceptable budget initiative."

Congressional Democrats, however, said Reagan's strategy will not work this year and will succeed only in tying Congress in knots.

Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, giving the Democrats' broadcast response immediately after Reagan's speech, said the president was being too political and making an appeal that threatens to deadlock Congress on the budget issue.

"If we work together effectively we can produce something that's good for you and good for the country and good for the future of the country," said Bolling, responding without a prepared text.

He said the budget problem is neither Republican nor Democratic and "it's very important that we have bipartisan cooperation all the way through."

Later, Bolling told reporters the president's speech "almost assures it will tie up the Congress in a situation where we don't get a result."

Home builders seeking more federal help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home builders and sellers, mired in deep recession, say they need more federal help than President Reagan's Housing Commission is willing to recommend.

The commission, which made its final report Thursday, proposed substantial changes for the future of housing finance.

But for now, it said, the best hope for the housing industry is to rely on the administration's economic plans to ignite overall economic recovery and bring down interest rates.

As if to underscore the industry's problems, the government reported Thursday that sales of new single-family houses fell in March to the lowest annual rate of officials have recorded in the two decades they've been keeping track.

New construction and sales of existing houses also are way down, although they've risen a bit recently.

The figures prompted a spokesman for the National Association of Home Builders to raise the possibility that as many as half the nation's home builders could be out of business by mid-year if things don't improve.

The administration's housing commission, however, said very little about short-term aid to the industry.

"Dependency on emergency government programs will not yield prosperity for the economy as a whole or any significant sector of it," the report said.

The report, which has only the force of recommendations, has gone to Reagan and to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Officials of trade groups representing builders and sellers praised proposals to cut government housing regulations and to provide tax incentives for investment in home loans — and possibly for first-time home buyers.

But the National Association of Realtors worried that the availability of home loans would be stifled by the recommendation that savings and loan associations be given greater leeway to invest their money in areas other than mortgages.

"Literally translated, the commission's recommendations would allow for the total abandonment of housing by the savings and loan industry," said Julio Laguarda, president of the realtors group.

Builders said they feared commission recommendations of less government involvement in subsidizing, insuring and otherwise supporting new housing will make it tougher for their industry to recover.

Thursday's new sales figures from the Commerce Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development were one more indication of how bad the times have gotten.

Auto industry losses may be dropping

DETROIT (AP) — The tide of red ink engulfing the nation's auto industry ebbed dramatically in the first quarter of the year, and auto analysts say it's likely to keep receding.

U.S. carmakers lost $600 million in the first quarter of 1981, but only $128.2 million in the first three months of this year, according to figures released this week.

"Things will be a lot better than the last two years, but they still will be nothing to cheer about," said Harvey Heimbach, analyst Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. in New York.

Arvid Jouppi, an analyst at Colin Hochstin Co. in Detroit, said improvements will be due mostly to cost-cutting, and if there is any upturn in sales it won't come until the third or fourth quarters.

The analysts made their comments Thursday after Chrysler Corp. reported it made a $149.9 million profit in the first quarter of this year, chiefly because the sale of its defense subsidiary helped offset operating losses of $89.1 million.

The profit by the No. 3 U.S. car maker, which was felled out of near-bankruptcy by federal loan guarantees and worker concessions, was the highest in the quarter among the four major U.S. automakers.

Earlier this week, General Motors Corp., the biggest, reported a profit of $128.3 million, while Ford Motor Co. said it lost $355.4 million and American Motors Corp. reported a $51 million loss.

The automakers lost $1.3 billion in 1981 and $4.2 billion in 1980.

Heimbach and Arthur Davis, analyst at Prescott, Ball & Turben in Cleveland, predicted

GM would continue to show quarterly profits through this year. That would be a better showing than in 1980 and 1981, when the automaker lost money in the third quarters.

David Healy, analyst at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York, said GM could post a $1.5 billion profit this year.

Ford should see a profit in the second and fourth quarters, and possibly the third, because of rising production, the analysts said.

Ford lost $1.06 billion last year. Chrysler likely will be in the red for this year, Heimbach said. Healy said Chrysler could not show much more than $200 million profit for the year.

Chrysler's first quarter 1982 profit, of $1.95 per share, compared with a first quarter loss of $289.3 million, or $4.43 per share, in 1981.

Soviet arms superiority real: Weinberger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Casper Weinberger is backing President Reagan's statement that the Soviet Union has a "definite margin of superiority" over the United States in nuclear arms.

"It is unfortunately true," Weinberger said of Reagan's assessment as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened a three-week series of hearings on the arms race Thursday.

Former Secretaries of Defense James Schlesinger and Harold Brown, who served in the Ford and Carter administrations, were to appear before the committee today.

Reagan, at his March 31 news conference, said, "On balance, the Soviet Union does have a definite margin of superiority, enough so that there is a risk." In response to another question, he said that "the Soviets' great edge is one in which they could absorb a retaliatory blow and hit us again."

Weinberger told the committee, "The Soviets will continue to have a substantial lead in most of the customary measures of strategic forces — total number of systems, total number of ballistic missiles, and total destructive potential.

"The one area in which the U.S. still retains some advantage is in total numbers of deliverable warheads," he said.

"But, the Soviets may equal or surpass us in the total number of warheads during the 1980s as they continue the rapid expansion of their strategic nuclear arsenal."

Iraq says 2,500 Iranians dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran said its forces captured a "large area" from Iraqi troops in a major offensive in the Iranian oil province of Khuzistan today, but Iraq said it crushed the drive and killed 2,500 Iranian soldiers.

Iran said Iraqi war prisoners were being evacuated from the battle scene to be paraded in Teheran, but Iraq reported "hundreds of enemy captives are being evacuated to Baghdad," the Iraqi capital.

Iran said it captured 770 square miles of territory from Iraq in Khuzistan last month, and Iraq conceded a tactical retreat at that time. The size of the territory claimed seized in the latest offensive was not known.

War claims could not be independently verified because Iran and Iraq ban reporters from regular battlefield coverage.

Conflicting communiques were broadcast by the state radios in Tehran and Baghdad amidst a fanfare of martial music and patriotic songs reminiscent of the fervor that surrounded the Sept. 22, 1980 outbreak of the war between the two Persian Gulf nations.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

THE AWAKENING

An engineer on one of the big railroad lines centering in Chicago fell asleep at the throttle, while his engine was hauling coaches bearing over three hundred passengers. He awoke with a start to see a danger signal ahead, and stopped just in time to avoid a terrible wreck.

The captain of a Norwegian ship likewise went to sleep on duty, and awoke not a moment too soon to prevent a collision with an English merchant vessel.

We are each responsible for the safety of perhaps hundreds who may feel secure in following our example. Dear hearer, if your hand is on the lever of Influence, and you feel the least bit drowsy, wake up — wake up!

Voluntarism keeps us going

If all the voluntary associations in America were suddenly eliminated, the impact would be greater than if our federal government were to cease operation, according to Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame.

"WE TEND TO FORGET the role voluntarism has played in our culture," Hesburgh said. "All the early institutions of higher education were the result of voluntarism. All of our churches, most of our hospitals, all of our businesses, all of our labor unions, all of our newspapers, radio and television stations, all of our clubs, all of our professional associations, all of our political parties, all of our opera, symphonies and ballet companies, all of our entertainment, movies and theater, all of our athletic teams (professional and amateur), all of our transport systems, all our artistic endeavors — in a word, almost the total fabric of our society was initiated, developed and maintained by voluntary activity in the private sector."

In Big Spring, volunteers can be found at every corner and almost under every leaf — at the hospitals, in the clubs, on the cultural boards, at the schools.

Volunteers are cleaning up the city in a Keep American Beautiful drive, and the Garden Club and high school Key Club are removing the crud from our historic spring. Listing all of the volunteer organizations and their accomplishments would fill up every page of this newspaper.

BUT THE NICEST thing about volunteer work — as any volunteer can tell you — is that it takes your mind off your troubles.

Depressed? Life got you down? Focusing on your cares and worries too much and finding it all somewhat mundane and boring? The cure is to turn your attention away from yourself, and focus it on others. Take a big healthy dose of voluntarism — you'll live longer and enjoy life more.

Around the Rim

A bundle of joy

When Tommy Hart hired me as Lifestyle Editor in January, 1981, he knew I had virtually no background in journalism. But, for some reason, he decided to take a chance. Since that time I've been doing something I always dreamed of: writing.

The best thing about this job is that it is never the same. Each week's feature is almost like doing a college research paper. That's not a complaint, mind you, I loved doing research papers (even though I complained about them). Learning about something new every week was a challenge — one that I enjoyed, and one I hope I met well.

THOUGH I HAVE enjoyed this past year and three months, today is my last day here at The Herald. I've discovered I'm going to have a baby sometime in November. I could go on working, but I think I'd rather stay home, get the house together and enjoy the last six and a half months of peace that I'll probably have for a while. Besides, I'm so excited I can't concentrate on much of anything and I'm not worth much around here anymore.

As with any job, there are some things about this job I'll miss. Like Monday morning phone calls from mothers of the bride telling me I had goofed on the wedding write-up. Those calls were relatively few but still unnerving. I'm sure I'll miss the people I've worked with here. They are the best. And the people I have interviewed were always friendly and open in their answers to this "nosy reporter."

IT SEEMS that each time I became discouraged and wondered what on earth I was doing here, some kind soul would call me and tell me how much they enjoyed such-and-such article. And each time, those kind words would somehow make it all worthwhile.

Tina Steffan, who has been the assistant Lifestyle Writer and Church Editor, will become Lifestyle Editor. That's easy enough — you don't even have to remember a new name. But she does, so please be patient while she learns them all. I know she will do a good job, but my ego won't let me say that she'll probably do a better job.

They're not getting rid of me entirely. I plan to waddle in from time to time, just to make sure things aren't going too smoothly without me. And of course, I'll have to come in and show-off our bundle of joy in a few months. Meanwhile, if you see my husband, tell him that all-day morning sickness doesn't last forever. He's beginning to wonder.

Trouble in the schools

Linda Peeples was giving the dinner. When dessert was finished she said, "I have some exciting news for all of you."

"So tell us already," someone said. "My son George just read his first book."

We all raised our wine glasses to toast the occasion. "How old is George?" Reilly asked. "He'll be 18 next month," Linda said.

"That's fantastic," Rowan said. "My son is 21 and he hasn't read a book yet."

"George has always been a bright student," Linda bragged. "What book did he read?" Frannie Huff wanted to know.

"J.D. Salinger's 'Catcher in the Rye.'"

There was an embarrassed silence at the table. "What's wrong?" Linda wanted to know.

"'Catcher in the Rye' is a dirty book," I said. "Were did he get his hands on such filthy literature?"

"He found it in the school library," Linda said. "Extrom was outraged. 'You ought to report the librarian to the school board. They probably don't even know it's there.'"

"But George seemed to enjoy it," Linda said defensively.

"Sure he enjoyed it," Reilly said. "It's full of sex and bad words. But it doesn't belong in a high school library. The next thing you know, George will be reading 'Huckleberry Finn' and Kurt Vonnegut's 'Slaughterhouse Five.'"

"Or Studs Terkel's 'Working.'"

"Not to mention Somerset Maugham's 'Of Human Bondage,'" Frannie Huff said.

"Are they all bad books?" Linda asked. "The worst. They've ruined kids for life," I said.

"But we've been trying to get George to read a book since he was 12 years old. 'Catcher in the Rye' was a breakthrough, and it would break his heart if he told him he couldn't read any more like it."

"There are books and there are books," Extrom said. "My daughter came home from her English class with William Faulkner's 'Sanctuary,' and I told her if she ever brought anything like that in the house again I'd throw it in the furnace. I also reported her teacher to the principal."

I said, "If more parents took an interest in what their kids were reading we wouldn't have such a rotten society."

"Well, it's too late now," Linda said. "George has already read 'Catcher in the Rye.' What do I do?"

"Watch him closely," Frannie Huff said. "Search his room. If you find a book by John Steinbeck or James Baldwin under his bed, then you know he's in real trouble and I would take his library card away from him."

"I wish I had kept a closer eye on my son. I let him read Hemingway's 'The Sun Also Rises' when he was 15 years old, and the next thing I knew he checked out Malamud's 'The Fixer,'" Extrom said.

"Where do you find out what books are bad for children's minds?" Linda wanted to know.

"There are organizations all over the country that will supply you with lists," I said. "We get our guidance from a couple who censors books in Texas."

"What's George reading now?" Reilly asked.

Linda said "Voltaire's 'Candide.'"

"I hate to tell you this," said Frannie Huff, "But you have a sick kid on your hands."

Billy Graham

Tormented by guilt

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Many years ago I committed a terrible sin. I have been tormented by guilt since then and would give anything to know God had forgiven me. I guess my faith isn't strong enough. — Mrs. K.T.

DEAR MRS. K.T.: You do not need to be tormented by guilt over this sin — not because the sin was not serious, but because God in his grace is loving and wants to assure you of his forgiveness. This is true not only for this sin which haunts you, but for every other sin you ever committed.

How can you know God's forgiveness? I believe the key is understanding what Jesus Christ has done to make your forgiveness possible, and then appropriating that gift of forgiveness for yourself.

Why did Jesus Christ, the Son of God, come into this world? Listen to what the Bible says: "Here is a trustworthy saying that deserves full acceptance: Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" (1 Timothy 1:15).

How did he do this? He did it by making himself the only perfect and sufficient sacrifice for sins. You know that your sin deserves to be punished, because it was a sin against God himself. But Jesus Christ, who was without sin, took your sin upon himself, and died in your place. When a Christian says, "Christ died for me," he means that he deserved to die, but Jesus Christ died instead. Christ took upon himself the punishment you and I deserve. Why did he do that? He did it because God loves us, and wants us to be his children.

So Christ has done everything possible to make forgiveness possible. But you must respond — you must trust Christ as your Savior. How do you do that? By a simple act of faith, in which you come to God in repentance and faith and tell him you want to trust Christ and invite him into your life as Savior and Lord. If you do that, you are forgiven, because Christ has already taken your sin away and paid the penalty for you. Trust him — he has promised to forgive you if you turn to him, and he cannot lie.

Drive Defensively For Safety

Safe driving is synonymous with the term defensive driving. To become a good defensive driver, the Safe Driver Association of America offers the following four tips:

- Drive smoothly and consistently. Don't stop and start with "screaming" tires or go around corners, making your passengers grab frantically for handholds.
- Talk to other drivers. Communicate with movements of your car, lights, turn signals and horn to signal your intentions, convey warnings or information, or make requests to other drivers.
- Try to keep a safe distance between you and other drivers in all directions, not just the car ahead of you.
- Adjust to road and weather conditions that come with every different and unusual driving circumstance, including driving at night, in rain, in snow, in fog and on ice.

By going on the defensive when driving, your chances for a safe journey are greatly enhanced.

"A total of 201 possible illegal corporate slush funds were identified," an IRS summary states. Of these, 147 cases were referred to the agency's criminal investigations division.

Deeper digging cleared almost all of the suspect firms, however. "There were 18 cases referred to the Department of Justice and one case referred directly to the U.S. Attorney's office," the IRS reported.

Criminal indictments were returned in at least five cases, and at least four resulted in convictions.

Sources said the terrorists, who have claimed responsibility for killing a dozen Turkish diplomats in various countries, have their headquarters in Beirut.

Energy Dept. falls down

WASHINGTON — The worldwide oil glut, which has brought down prices for gasoline and home heating fuel, has lulled the American public into a false sense of well-being. And it has apparently put officials at the Energy Department to sleep.

The federal bureaucrats — who are paid to know better — apparently feel that the oil-producing countries will never get their cartel together and send Americans back to the gas lines of 1973 and 1979. They are behaving as if the Arab sheiks, whose wealth depends on high oil prices, will be unable to agree on joint action to ensure that their only saleable product commands the highest possible market price.

With incredible shortsightedness, the government energy agency has been systematically killing programs that would develop solar, geothermal and fossil-fuel alternatives to the country's dependence on oil. They have also taken a ho-hum attitude toward energy conservation, despite evidence that such fuel-saving techniques have been the major factor in lessening American dependence on imported OPEC oil.

FORTUNATELY, the administration's devil-may-care attitude toward energy conservation has met spirited opposition among members of Congress, who will be the first to feel the heat if their constituents suddenly find themselves back in gas lines or shivering in their homes when OPEC gets its act together.

Possibly for lack of a better target, congressional critics of the administration's conservation policies have zeroed in on Joseph J. Tribble, assistant energy secretary for conservation. He's a loyal team player and has made no challenge to the liquidation orders on conservation programs he's been getting from the White House.

Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Conservation Subcommittee, is building a case for Tribble's resignation. Sen. Mark Hatchfield, R-Ore., has called Tribble "an undertaker," not an administrator." And even Mr. Mild Manners himself, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., told Tribble, "If I had known then what I know now, I never would have voted for (your confirmation)."

What has particularly infuriated Congress is Tribble's administration of the $215 million appropriated above the Reagan administration's budget request for energy conservation programs this year. The lawmakers thought they had sent an appropriate message to the Energy Department with their appropriation, but they discovered to their dismay that the bureaucrats were simply ignoring the message and dismantling the programs anyway.

HERE ARE SOME examples assembled by my associate, Peter Grant:

— Since 1977, the government has subsidized the insulation of more than 830,000 homes of low-income families. Over DOE indifference, Congress approved $144 million to keep this and similar programs going. Only now is DOE finally distributing this year's funds. As a result, many states had to curtail their weatherization projects during the cold winter months.

— The federal government is the nation's biggest energy consumer — $8.9 billion worth last year. Uncle Sam's consumption dropped 6.3 percent since the first oil crisis. Yet one-third of the conservation program's staff has now been fired, and government consumption of energy is rising.

— In 1976, Congress instructed DOE to set efficiency standards for the 13 products, from refrigerators to TVs and humidifiers, that consume 23 percent of the nation's energy. It was estimated that this could save $15.2 billion to $19.3 billion worth of energy by the year 2005. Yet Tribble's office early this month announced that no standards would be set for these energy guzzlers.

— WADING IN THE SLUSH: Between 1976 and 1979, the Internal Revenue Service sent special questionnaires out to 1,301 corporations, looking for evidence of illegal slush funds — caches of cash that can be used for under-the-counter political contributions or other improper pur-

Manges setting record with his contributions

CLINTON MANGES ...gave over $450,000

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Clinton Manges, the Freer banker-rancher who is breaking state records for campaign contributions, has not been able to find willing takers for all the money he wants to give away.

Manges has found donees for about $450,000, but a $50,000 contribution to gubernatorial candidate Buddy Temple was returned, as was a $25,000 gift to land commissioner candidate Pete Snelson.

San Antonio lawyer Pat Maloney, who oversees Manges' political spending, said it was difficult to figure out why Temple and Snelson returned the money because they had asked for it.

Spokesmen for Temple and Snelson said it didn't happen exactly that way. Manges has been in and out of the headlines during his 20-year rise from high-school dropout to millionaire recluse. He was convicted in 1965 for making false statements on a Small Business Administration loan application. His bank holdings also have drawn suspicious looks from authorities.

In 1975, a $15,000 Manges donation to then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe was returned because Briscoe said he didn't know Manges well enough to take that much money from him.

This year Manges is being generous beyond precedent in Texas politics. Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, the least well-financed of the three major Democratic gubernatorial contenders, has taken $270,000 from Manges or his political action committee (which, as of Thursday, had not filed its required report).

Manges money makes up about 40 percent of Armstrong's total campaign chest. "Lefty Morris (Armstrong's campaign manager) is a dear friend of mine and he told me they were not going to have any last-week television," said Maloney.

"Clinton thought that was a shame and said he was going to cure that problem." According to Maloney, Temple solicited a Manges donation through campaign manager Luther Jones.

"It was Luther who designated exactly the sum he was asking for, and when he wanted it," Maloney said. Jones said, "No, I didn't. I don't know how the contribution was solicited, or who solicited it, or any of that. All I know is that I picked the contribution up, and gave it to Buddy (last) Friday morning and Buddy decided not to take it. He asked me to return it."

Temple did not want to Richards and former state Rep. Lane Denton of Waco got in the race days before the filing deadline when word of a grand jury investigation of Harding got out.

Harding is under indictment alleging he used state employees to work on his campaign.

Austinite Millard Neptune is the only GOP candidate for treasurer.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown is another incumbent facing a tough test. Jim Hightower, former Texas Observer editor, has picked up widespread support in his bid for the Democratic nomination.

Brown is counting on a strong turnout for him in rural areas. Hightower, who has won endorsement from some farm groups, could be fairly solid in urban areas.

There are several surprises in Jim Mattox' closet that will come out during the runoff," said Ogg, predicting the runoff will feature himself against Mattox.

Maloney said there is nothing sinister about Manges' contributions. "What I think is sinister is the attempt to cut up Bob Armstrong and Clinton Manges," he said.

The GOP has three candidates seeking the land commissioner's slot — former Hondo Mayor Woody Glasscock, Al Gutierrez of Bryan and Andrew Jackson of Austin.

State Treasurer Warren Harding is trying to fend off two hard-campaigning opponents and a criminal indictment in his bid for re-nomination by the Democrats. Former Travis County Commissioner Ann

BACK TO THE BORDER — Illegal aliens being deported from the United States are unloaded from buses at an international bridge in El Paso. The border city is one of the ports through which immigration officials are sending illegal aliens back home. Thousands have been taken from jobs across the United States. It is hoped Americans will fill the positions.

Illegal aliens returned to Mexico

EL PASO — When the federal government decided to battle unemployment this week with massive roundups of illegal alien workers, Carlos Rodriguez and his family were among the casualties.

Rodriguez hiked his baby up on his arm as he walked across the Bridge of the Americas one day this week after being released by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

He said he had been working in a construction job in Denver for six months when federal agents arrested him and his family at their home Tuesday night.

Before his wife beckoned him to hurry across the bridge, Rodriguez said he planned to return to his home in the central Mexican state of Zacatecas.

Of the 2,000 aliens apprehended in this week's raids, between 250 and 300 aliens have been sent by bus from Chicago and about 90 from Denver for voluntary return to Mexico at El Paso, said Dan McDonald, director of the INS detention center here.

The raids, part of Operation Jobs, are aimed at illegal aliens who earn between $3.50 and $10 an hour. The government hopes Americans will fill their jobs.

Raids were conducted in Dallas; Houston; Los Angeles; San Francisco; New York; Newark, N.J.; Denver; Detroit; and Chicago.

McDonald said that while illegal aliens often are bused to the border, some aliens might arrive in El Paso on flights from New York. He said he does not know how many will go through El Paso because some may be returned to Mexico through Brownsville or other border cities.

Gerardo Maldonado Liniers said he was paid $7 an hour at the Denver construction job where he worked for a year. Maldonado, whose home is Juarez, said he had gone to the United States "because life is more comfortable there."

He said he was apprehended by INS agents while shopping and is not sure whether he will return to the United States.

"I'm not in agreement" with returning to Mexico, he said, "I didn't know how to go about" contesting deportation.

One of the other aliens who had worked in Denver said he held a restaurant job for three years working for $3 an hour.

Others, with their belongings in hand, joked that they were going to get something to eat in Juarez and head back to the United States.

Health Fair Beat Council on Aging plans booth

Young parents as well as elderly persons will want to stop by the Council on Aging's Fair booth, to talk to them about their "vial of life" program. Oilfield workers and industries concerned with safety on-the-job, may find it interesting, too.

"Vial of life" consists of a white vial, imprinted in red, that holds inside a form of which medical histories of the person or persons is recorded. The vial is taped under the top shelf of the refrigerator in the home, or to the visor of a car or pickup if the person so chooses.

A red adhesive sticker is also available to place on the refrigerator door, to alert rescue persons that the medical information about the victim is in the refrigerator.

Young parents may want to pick up a packet to assure proper medical information is available when they must leave their children with a sitter.

Those who work in hazardous jobs, and who have medical histories that might complicate emergency treatment, may want to pick up a packet, too.

The packet is free. Adult children may want to get the forms for parents who live alone, and help them fill them out. The forms are not complicated, but the elderly sometimes may need you to fill it out for them.

Brochures describing the program will be available at the booth.

MALONE-HOGAN HOSPITAL'S radiology department will demonstrate radiologic procedures and answer questions of Fair visitors regarding the use of X-rays in diagnosing various illnesses. Hours of the booth are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Ultrasound, a non-invasive procedure, used when an abnormal condition occurs during pregnancy to prescribe treatment, will be explained through use of dot-like printouts that picture for the doctor's information the position and status of the fetus in pregnancies.

Visitors interested in learning about the hospital's radiology school will want to stop by the booth, too. They'll have brochures on the school, plus brochures explaining the more common x-rays — the barium enema, the gastrointestinal examinations of the stomach, and exams of the kidney, ureter, and bladder.

VOLUNTEERS FROM the Big Spring State Hospital, Malone-Hogan and Hospital, and the Veterans' Administration will host an Information Booth at the Fair. Visitors will pick up a program, and a card for registering results of each screening, at the booth, and Volunteers will direct visitors.

Wood defense to play newscasts

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A defense attorney trying to keep secret parts of a bond reduction hearing for a man accused of conspiring to kill a federal judge says he'll show the court examples of news coverage in the case.

Charles Roberts, a defense attorney for El Paso lawyer Joseph Chagra, says he plans Monday to play in court a collection of newscasts aired over the last three years about the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. and the investigation into the slaying.

Roberts told Chief U.S. District Judge William Sessions during a hearing Thursday that he will need equipment to play the cassette tapes during a Monday hearing on a motion filed by four newspapers.

Antonio Express, The San Antonio News, The San Antonio Light and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram demanded and received the evidentiary hearing under the Gannett Decision, which requires parties to prove the necessity for closing court proceedings from public view.

Dear Abby

She's underpaid and overexposed

DEAR ABBY: I met a man who said he was a top photographer for a famous magazine. He asked me to pose for him, saying I would get $100 for every picture. I agreed, and he came over Sunday with his camera. I posed with nothing on but a policewoman's hat. He also took a lot of pictures of me naked in the shower with the water running. Then we drove to the beach and he got some shots of me on the beach and in the water. It took all day. About halfway through, he ran out of film and didn't have his wallet, so I loaned him $30 for new film. Later we got hungry, so he borrowed $15 from me to pay for the food. He promised he'd call me after the pictures were developed, but I haven't heard from him. I don't know how to get in touch with him. I want my $45 back, but I'm afraid to go to the police because I said I was 21 and I'm only 17, and I don't want to get into trouble for being underage and posing like that. Thanks for any help you can give me.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO: My guess is that the "photographer" is a phony. You could write to the magazine he claimed he works for, but don't be surprised if the people there never heard of him. I can't help you get your $45 back, but I have some valuable advice for you: Don't pose for any more strangers. You could lose a lot more than $45!

DEAR ABBY: Someone who served with Gen. George Patton wrote that the general had entertained some visiting dignitaries at an elegant dinner in his headquarters in Germany. Later that evening an aide reported that two place settings of Hitler's monogrammed gold dishes, goblets and tableware were missing! I would like to know how Patton came to have these things in the first place. I thought only Nazi generals stole other people's property.

CURIOS

DEAR CURIOS: In time of war, when property changes hands, they don't call it stealing — they call it confiscating.

DEAR ABBY: A woman I know carries around a small bottle of breath freshener, and right in the middle of a conversation she whips it out of her purse, opens her mouth and sprays!

I find this repulsive, and many others have commented on it. Is there a nice way to tell her that this is something that should be done in private? Or am I mistaken?

REPULSED

DEAR REPULSED: You are not mistaken. After this hits print, you can mail it to her.

Miss Shive to play in recital Sunday

WANDA LOUISE SHIVE ...in recital Sunday

Wanda Louise Shive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Shive of Coahoma, will be presented in her Senior Piano Recital Sunday at First Baptist Church in Coahoma. The recital, given by Ann Gibson Houser, will begin at 2:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend. Her selections will include music by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Scott and Mana Zucca. Heather Farris, a pupil of Miss Shive, will be guest performer. Ronda Fowler will be vocalist, and Kerry Wood will accompany her.

Following the recital, Miss Shive will be honored with a reception hosted by her parents in their home.

Miss Shive is a prospective May graduate of Coahoma High School, Coahoma. She is the salutatorian of her class and plans to attend Texas Tech University in Lubbock this fall.

She has been a member of the National Honor Society,

Student Council, Society of Distinguished American High School Students, Who's Who Among American High School Students and Who's Who in Baton Twirling. She is the recipient of the John Phillip Sousa Award and was named Miss Coahoma High School.

GFWC centennial discussed by club

Federation Day was the subject of the program presented by Mrs. C.R. Moad at the recent meeting of GFWC Modern Woman's Forum. Mrs. T.G. Adams was hostess.

Mrs. Moad and Mrs. Bert Affleck presented a skit portraying the Mary Stewart Club Collect. Mrs. Moad said the General Federation of Women's Clubs has a 91 year history, and members can be proud of the accomplishments of its volunteer members who work to better their communities.

The GFWC centennial is approaching, and members should evaluate what should be done today to get ready for the future. Mrs. Moad said. The centennial could be celebrated by honoring the many women who have made outstanding contributions to GFWC and the American way of life. Members should work to protect their freedoms and those of their grandchildren.

Members voted to send a contribution to Girlstown USA in honor of Mrs. Moad, outgoing president.

Final meeting of the club year will be May 13 at Canterbury Retirement Home. Mrs. Ruby McElrath will be hostess for the luncheon meeting. Officers will be installed, and activities for the coming club year will be discussed.

Dr. Donohue

Straight answers on vitamins

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been reading your answers to health questions for a long time now. What can you tell us about vitamins? I have several books that tell what symptoms can arise from vitamin deficiencies, but can you tell me what symptoms would show up from too many vitamins? I am taking large doses of vitamins C, A, D, B complex and E as cancer fighters. — Mrs. A.M.K.

Vitamins B and C are water-soluble. That means that excess amounts of them are eliminated from the body in the urine. Your body doesn't store those vitamins. So they are relatively safe, even in high amounts. Let me qualify this. Massive doses of any substance are potentially dangerous, even water and oxygen. Massive doses of C can cause nausea, diarrhea and can even destroy another vitamin — B12.

Now what about the others? Vitamins A, D, E are fat-soluble; they are stored in the body in fat deposits. So large doses of these vitamins may be quite toxic. An excess of vitamin A can cause abdominal pain, nausea, vomiting, headache, skin rashes, bone and joint pain, hair loss and liver problems. Vitamin D in excess leads to high levels of calcium, which in turn can lead to kidney stones, bone disease, muscle weakness and ulcers. Vitamin E is probably the least toxic of these fat-soluble vitamins. But large doses may increase blood cholesterol levels, affect thyroid production, and lower the effectiveness of white blood cells in fighting infection.

I have not tried to make all this sound grim. You have to take very large (massive) amounts for these things to happen. But these are the facts about vitamins. I know there is a school of thought that believes in taking large doses of vitamins for a number of illnesses, cancer among them. I have not been impressed with the evidence that such therapy is helpful. I must admit I am not an expert in this field, and I try to keep an open mind. I haven't closed it yet. Still, I'm not convinced.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Rainbow activities planned

Big Spring Assembly No. 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, held an initiation ceremony Tuesday evening in the Masonic Temple. Kim West, worthy advisor, presided.

Lisa Vigus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vigus, 406 Goliad, received the degree of the order. In March, Jan Donald, daughter of Towana Donald, was initiated.

To observe Founder's Day April 4, the Assembly attended church services together at First Christian Church. Mark Sexon was Founder of the Rainbow Girls. A luncheon in the home of Mrs. Adele Tibbs followed the services.

A joint meeting will be held Saturday with Norman Reed Assembly and Midland Assembly. The meeting will take place at the Masonic Temple with Mrs. Ouida Branson, grand visitor, conducting the evening activities.

Sunday, the Assembly will attend a tea honoring Mrs. Pearl Mills, supreme deputy. Members will prepare food for students at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf Thursday. The food will be given to the students to snack on while studying for final examinations.

Parents of one of last Americans killed in Vietnam can't forget

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Special Correspondent George Esper covered the war in Vietnam and remained there after the American evacuation to report on the earliest days of the communist victory.

By GEORGE ESPER
AP Special Correspondent

WOBURN, Mass. (AP) — Charles McMahon got up from the sofa in his living room and walked into the kitchen to hide his tears. Vietnam made them flow again.

Seven years ago today, McMahon's son, Charlie, was one of the last Americans killed in Vietnam. He was struck down at random in a war and a country where no one wanted to be the last to die. It was, his father said, just bad luck, a "bummer" riding on the imprecision of a North Vietnamese rocket that could have landed anywhere.

"It could have been the boy next door, the boy down the street, it could have been any of them," says his mother, Edna McMahon.

"It just happened that our boy was there, that's all," says McMahon.

At noon the next day, April 30, 1975, the guns fell silent across Vietnam. The American evacuation had ended. Saigon had fallen to the North Vietnamese. It marked the end of 30 years of American involvement at a cost of $7,661 dead, more than 300,000 wounded and $150 billion.

Today, McMahon is 51 years old. His wife is 52. He still works at a gelatin processing plant, the same job he has held for more than 30 years. Mrs. McMahon has been driving a school bus for 19 years.

Their son was 21 when he was killed along with another Marine, Darwin Judge, 19, of Marshalltown, Iowa, in a rocket bombardment of Tan Son Nhut airport during the final evacuation of Americans.

McMahon and Judge were embassy guards who had only recently arrived in Vietnam and were assigned to the U.S. defense attache's compound at Tan Son Nhut. They were believed to be the last two Americans killed on Vietnamese soil. Two other Marines were killed the following day when their helicopter plunged into the South China Sea during the evacuation.

Neither the McMahons nor Judge's parents, Henry and Ida Judge, are bitter, even though they suffered the agony of having to wait nearly a year before the bodies of their sons were returned home for burial. They say their sons wanted to be Marines and enlisted.

"Maybe it would have been different if he had been drafted and sent over there without really wanting to go," says Mrs. McMahon.

"What makes you feel bitter," says McMahon, "is the ones who went to Canada."

The McMahon family endured triple tragedy. Three months after Charlie's death, their youngest son, Scott, also a Marine, was in an auto accident in California that left him a paraplegic. In October of that year, Mrs. McMahon's father died, shielded because of his illness from the news that Charlie had been killed.

Scott, now 25, lives in California and has been in and out of the hospital. Another son, Michael, 26, and a married daughter, Susan, 31, live in Woburn.

What would things be like today if Charlie were alive? "Sometimes you wonder," says McMahon. "You could project what they would be, but you'll never know, if you know what I mean."

"I just wonder," says Mrs. McMahon, "what he'd be doing now, if he'd be married and have any children, and if he would still be living in Woburn. Things like that. Whether he would have stayed in the Marine Corps, because he did love it."

Study: American kids not physically fit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half the kids in America are so out of shape that they flunked a standard fitness test, a study shows.

The analysis by the Amateur Athletic Union also showed that in some categories the average teen-ager's performance declined after age 14.

For example, the typical 15-year-old boy takes 13.3 seconds to sprint 100 yards while 14-year-old boys cover the distance in 12.6 seconds. The typical 17-year-old girl can do only 38 modified push-ups in two minutes, compared with 43 performed by an average 12-year-old girl.

Dr. Wynn F. Updyke, associate dean for graduate studies at Indiana University's School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, attributed the falling off — or leveling off — after age 14 to the fact that many schools drop compulsory gym and physical education after the eighth grade.

At a news conference Wednesday, Updyke made public the analysis based on the performance of 7,600 youngsters who were chosen at random from four million children given the tests during the last two school years.

"Although the basic standards are designed to be attainable by the average healthy youngster in each age and sex group, only 43 percent of participants were able to achieve them during the 1979-80 and 1980-81 academic years," a summary said.

Updyke said there were no significant differences in test results by geographic region and the scores in 1980-81 were no better or worse than those the previous year.

He said the standards for what the average healthy youngster should be able to do in tests were arbitrarily fixed, but based on AAU testing that goes back 39 years.

To meet the standards, a 14-year-old boy would have to be able to do 41 bent-knee sit-ups in a minute and 38 push-ups in two minutes, jump a distance of six feet, three inches from a standing start and run a mile in seven minutes, 42 seconds.

A 14-year-old girl would have to do 34 sit-ups, 42 push-ups and a five-foot, five-inch standing long jump and run a mile in seven minutes, 48 seconds.

The physical fitness testing program is sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union with underwriting from Nabisco Brands, Inc.

First-quarter productivity rises slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business productivity increased at a slight 0.3 percent annual rate in the first three months of this year, reversing the record plunge of the last quarter of 1981, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

The new report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the small gain in productivity resulted from a 3 percent drop in output and a 3.3 percent decline in working hours, based on preliminary, seasonally adjusted figures.

Productivity in the non-farm business sector tumbled at an annual rate of 6.9 percent in the October-December period last year, in the sharpest quarterly decline in the 34 years the government has kept such records.

Over the past year, productivity has fallen at an annual rate of 1.8 percent, the report said.

When the farming sector of the economy was added into the new figures, productivity declined at a 1 percent annual rate in the first three months of this year, the report said.

That was the third consecutive quarterly drop in productivity in the private business sector and represented a 4.2 percent drop in output and a 3.3 percent decline in working hours. The measure had fallen at a 6.6 percent annual rate in the final three months of 1981.

Productivity in the private business sector, including farming, fell at a 1.4 percent annual rate from the first quarter of 1981 to the first quarter of 1982, the report said. Farming represents about 4 percent of the economy.

Productivity measures the volume of goods and services the private sector produces in each hour of paid working time.

The United States has been plagued with poor productivity since 1977, and President Reagan has appointed a national commission to study ways to strengthen it.

FedMart Corp. folds

SAN DIEGO (AP) — FedMart Corp. President Jan Heydorn says the deteriorating economy left the company with no choice but to shutdown or liquidate the firm's 46 retail discount stores in three states.

"It is with sincere regret and disappointment that I must inform you that after extensive deliberation our board of directors has decided to discontinue all retail operations," Heydorn said Wednesday in a letter to the company's 8,000 employees.

"I know that this news will be shocking to all of you, especially after all the hard work and sacrifices of the past year," the letter said.

Heydorn said the company would shut down its stores — which are located in Southern California, Arizona and Texas — "over the next several months."

The announcement ended weeks of speculation about the future of the financially troubled firm, as well as the intentions of the chain's owner, West German multimillionaire Hugo Mann.

There was no immediate word on whether FedMart's stock would be liquidated through close-out sales, or sold to other retail operations.

Ralphs Supermarket chain is reportedly interested in buying FedMart's grocery operations, while Dayton Hudson's Target chain has been mentioned as a potential buyer of other FedMart operations.

FedMart has 32 stores in Southern California and employs about 3,000 people in the area.

"I'll just go out and look for another job — that's about it," said one FedMart employee in San Diego who asked that his name not be used.

He said he worked for the retail giant for two years and would miss his job.

"They treat you real good," he said. "I've never had any problems with them."

Although sales have topped $1 billion, FedMart has not reported a profit since 1978. It reported $25.3 million in losses from the end of 1978 through Nov. 30, 1980.

Nevertheless, the announcement that the firm was going out of business took union officials by surprise.

HARD TIMES IDLE FISHERMAN — After almost a month in San Diego Bay, waiting for a cannery willing to buy a full seiner load of tuna, crewman aboard the Sea Hawk pass the time repairing nets. The big boat was one of ten unable to unload this week because of a glut of the fish in U.S. markets.

Hawk pass the time repairing nets. The big boat was one of ten unable to unload this week because of a glut of the fish in U.S. markets.

Tuna industry runs aground; 'those fish buyers' blamed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — As the superseiners sit idle with their 1,200-ton loads of frozen tuna, waiting for weeks to unload, fishermen with families talk bitterly of the times and "those fish buyers."

The canneries that consign them to the sea are cutting back. Seafood sales are flat, leading to layoffs of almost 6,000 workers in two of the biggest companies alone. A worldwide tuna glut is growing.

The industry that has kept 2,400 United States tuna fishermen afloat — and has pumped $650 million a year into the U.S. economy — has run aground.

In four weeks, the Bumble Bee plant here is scheduled to close indefinitely. Star-Kist has ordered its three canneries closed for at least three weeks. A spokesman denies Van Camp, San Diego's other cannery, is up for sale but said "assets could be sold."

"Americans are buying less meat, less tuna, less everything," said Manuel Neves, fleet coordinator for the American Tunaboat Association. "Every year it's been a rule that fish production goes up 7 percent, but last year consumption went up only 1 percent."

At the same time, imports from a growing number of tuna-fishing nations have snarled negotiations between the canneries and the American Tuna Sales Association, representing U.S. fishermen.

Seiner owners are being asked by processors to cut their price for yellowfin, the bigger, white-meat tuna American fishermen try to catch, by as much as 40 percent to compete with prices for smaller tuna such as yellowtail and skipjack caught by Japanese, Indonesian and other foreign fishermen.

Fishing industry spokesmen say any setback, even a brief cannery shutdown, can turn a profitable year into losses.

"The younger men are angry about all this," said Neves. "Many of them will make very little money. They face dangers at work and uncertainty at home."

Gil Rodriguez, who has sold provisions to U.S. seiners for 10 years, said this week he is quitting the business.

"I'm closing the doors because I believe it's ridiculous to try to continue in the ship chandlery business with boats closed down for 30, 60, 90 days," Rodriguez said.

"I'm going to purchase a gill net boat and try fishing for bottom fish. It's either that or selling apples on the corner — a box of apples and a sign that says 'ex-fisherman.'"

San Diego is home to the 140-boat U.S. tuna fleet, which sets out each January for voyages of two to three months tracking tuna in the Pacific along Central and South America. The fleet, made up of $12 million vessels equipped with nets, helicopters and modern refrigeration systems, is the biggest ever.

But in addition to foreign competitors, who often sell their catch to canneries in Puerto Rico and Samoa for eventual distribution in America, fishermen have been forced out of business by the cost of fuel, which has doubled since 1979, and recurring boat-seizures in territorial disputes.

In recent years, American vessels have been seized off Panama, Peru, Mexico, Ecuador, Colombia and El Salvador. Those nations claim a 200-mile fishing limit, which the United States does not recognize. Congress reimburses fines and penalties, but not lost fishing time and confiscated cargo.

Admiral proposes U.S., Soviets turn in bombs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific offered a swords-into-plowshares proposal today under which the Soviet Union and the United States would turn in some of their nuclear weapons for conversion into fuel for electrical power plants.

Retired Adm. Noel Gayler advanced the idea as one way to overcome the barriers that have prevented strategic arms limitation talks from succeeding. He said his plan had the advantages of simplicity and easy verification.

Under Gayler's plan, each nuclear device, regardless of size or sophistication, would count as one and each country would match the other, device for device, until both had reduced their nuclear arsenals to a level they considered necessary for deterrence but beyond the point where either could start a nuclear war.

George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, endorsed Gayler's proposal as "bold and decisive" and "very remarkable, very well thought out, very imaginative."

Both spoke at a news conference sponsored by the American Committee on East-West Accord, which seeks to promote peaceful relations and trade, and includes several prominent business executives on its board of directors.

Gayler's plan was endorsed by Robert D. Schmidt, president of the committee and vice chairman of the board of the Control Data Corp.

Hector G. Valdes Vega, 29, of 1315 Kindie, was released on $15,000 bond on a charge of possession of marijuana over four ounces. Catalin Onofre, 35, of 1317 Kindie, posted $10,000 on the same charge, as did Wanda Diane Rand, 24, of 611 College.

All bonds were set by Peace Justice Lewis Heflin.

State treasurer's race

Harding hits hard times

By JERRY REED
Harte-Hanks News Service
If State Treasurer Warren Harding had control over the flow of events that have plagued him recently, you'd have to say he had a lousy sense of timing.
But even a masochist would have been hard put to plan things the way they have been happening to Harding.
He was within four days of escaping without an opponent this election year when he was called before a grand jury investigating alleged official misconduct in his office. He quickly had three Democratic opponents in the May 1 primary and a Republican signed up for the Nov. 2 general election.

THE 61-YEAR-OLD Harding then waged a re-election campaign emphasizing the bank interest he has earned for the state as treasurer. He branded the misconduct investigation—and subsequent indictment and reindictment—as a transparent attempt to “get him” politically.

He was within five days of seeing whether Texas voters would agree with him when opponent John Cutright delivered another blow. Cutright told a news conference Monday that Harding was being investigated for sexual harassment.

Several Texas newspapers then published stories quoting Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle as confirming the investigation. The Austin American-Statesman reported that three women who had worked for Harding said he had sought sexual favors from them, and a fourth said she had heard other women complain about Harding's advances.

Harding's attorneys and a public relations spokesman labeled the accusation as a continuation of a smear campaign.

But former state Rep. Lane Denton of Waco, another treasurer candidate, said: “It probably put the icing on Mr. Harding's re-election bid, particularly since individuals are willing to speak out.”

Denton said Harding may well slide into third place, with himself and former Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards finishing first and second respectively. He predicted that he will clearly emerge, in the runoff, as a candidate best able to “restore public confidence in the office.”

THE RICHARDS CAMP does not agree that she is behind Denton. A campaign aide said staff opinion is divided over whether Mrs. Richards will win the race with or without a runoff.

Cutright, an Austin businessman and political novice, says the voters will buy neither the scandal-plagued Harding nor Richards.

But one group Cutright views as negative—COPE, a political arm of the AFL-CIO—The Richards camp regards as a plus. The COPE endorsement puts the Richards name on slate cards handed to voters entering the polls across the state, a Richards aide said.

Both Denton and Mrs. Richards spent part of their final week in potentially vote-heavy South Texas and the Rio Grande Valley.

Attorney general's race

Undecided voters hold key

By RANDY FISHER
Harte-Hanks News Service
AUSTIN — The Texas attorney general's race, like many others, goes down to the wire with those ever-powerful voters, the undecided, holding the key.

“We are finding a lot of disinterest in this year's election,” Jim Mattox, congressman from Dallas and one of the four Democratic primary contenders, said. “A lot of people aren't sure who they are going to vote for and a lot of people aren't even sure they will bother to vote.”

Mattox is competing with Jack Ogg, state senator from Houston, Max Sherman, former president of West Texas State University and John Hannan, former U.S. attorney, in the Democratic primary.

State Sen. Bill Meier, a recent convert to the Republican Party, is opposed in the GOP primary and will meet the Democratic winner in November.

“There is some talk of a light turnout and if that is the case then certain regions of the state may take on new importance,” Hannah said at a recent news conference.

All four of the Democratic candidates have been spending their last few hours before the May 1 primary trying to raise their name identification with the voters across the state and trying to get their organizations before what each of the four Democrats has said would be a sure runoff.

Raising campaign funds has been a constant problem

Bird watchers claim North American record

HOUSTON (AP) — It took trained ears, alert eyes, fast cars and an airplane, but a bird watching team says it set a new American Birding Association record by identifying 235 species in a single day.

“The important thing was to get to the hot spots,” said John Paulk of the National Audubon Society, who followed the four-man team from the Lower Rio Grande Valley to the middle Gulf Coast as an observer.

He said the largest variety of birds was seen at High Island.

“That's the first batch of trees in range after the birds have crossed the Gulf of Mexico from Yucatan. They literally fall out of the air, like long distance runners, into those trees,” Paulk said.

The Texas record edged the previous high for North America of 231 species of birds identified in 1978 in California, where Paulk said most previous records have been held.

“It's the first time this record has been established in Texas,” he said.

The Texas expedition began Tuesday at 1 a.m. in McAllen and ended up in Port Bolivar, near Galveston, about 10 p.m. that night.

Paulk said the birders rushed from place to place in a station wagon in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, ending up at the Falcon Dam before taking a private plane to Bolivar, where the team boarded a van for the rest of the trip.

He said two species, including a hawk, were seen in the air from the plane. “You never stop looking in this business,” Paulk said.

To qualify as an identified bird species, 95 percent of the species listed must have been verified by all four team members.

Paulk said the rarest bird spotted by the group was Swainson's warbler, a tiny brown bird with a white belly and a distinctive stripe over his eye, which was seen on High Island.

Paulk said the rare warbler had wintered in Mexico and was probably en route to his summer home in Oklahoma or northern Texas.

After dark, when bird watchers can't see the birds, Paulk said it is permitted to identify them by their calls. He said some team members imitated birds' calls to prompt them to sing back, while at other times used a tape recording of the birds' calls.

The team was led by naturalist Roger Tory Peterson of Old Lyme, Conn., an author and bird artist who has written guide books for bird watchers.

Maybe you have already discovered the difficulty in ridding a lawn of weeds. If you are planting a new lawn, do a thorough job of soil preparation—include a pre emergent weed control, then plant good quality sod. If you have an existing lawn and weeds are a problem use one of the weed controls when weeds are actively growing and temperatures are above 65 degrees. You may have a thatch buildup which is a thick layer of decomposing stems, roots and debris. You need to dethatch by scalping the lawn. Then you may need to aerate it. Spring and late summer to fall are the best times to fertilize. Formulas of nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium plus sulphur are excellent for this area. Slow release fertilizers are favored because they make heavier application of nitrogen possible.

Candidates push for late support

By The Associated Press

If absentee ballots are any indication, most Texas voters will do something other than stand in line at the polls during Saturday's Democratic and Republican primaries.

Nevertheless, several candidates predicted that in their races they would draw the lion's share of the meager turnout predicted by Texas Secretary of State David Dean.

Dean, basing his prediction on absentee ballots in 50 counties where 72 percent of the state's voters live, estimated Wednesday only about 28 percent of the state's 6.6 million registered voters would turnout at the polls.

He said 36 percent of the voters turned out for 1980 primaries and 39 percent for the 1978 primaries.

Republican U.S. Senate candidate Walter Mengden said reports from 23 area campaign chairmen show him an easy winner with 55 percent to 56 percent of the GOP vote. Mengden said opponent Jim Collins is "living in fantasy land" if he thinks he will win the nomination to face incumbent Democrat Lloyd Bentsen.

Jim Mattox said polls for candidates in other races show him "substantially ahead" in the Democratic race for attorney general. But he said 40 percent of the voters are undecided about the four-man race also including former U.S. attorney John Hannah, State Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston and Max Sherman of Amarillo.

"It's close enough I wouldn't be surprised if I ran first or second or perhaps third," said Hannah. "I don't think I'm going to run fourth and I don't think I'm going to run third."

Hannah predicted Ogg would finish fourth. But Ogg said two statewide polls show the contest a "horse race with Ogg leading the Pack."

Campaign workers for Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown let others quibble about frontrunners, they were busy trying to explain Brown's racial slur in a speech to agriculture educators Tuesday. The comment later was aired by a Dallas television station.

Campaign Spokesman Rick Henderson said Brown was tired and running a 103-degree fever when he unintentionally muffed the word educator in a speech and called Booker T. Washington a "great black nigger."

He said the "unintentional muffed word" came during the "course of a very complimentary and laudatory speech" about the noted educator who died in 1915.

Jim Hightower, Brown's challenger in the Democratic primary, said in Weslaco, "It is shocking that a public official in this day and age in Texas would utter this kind of racist remark. It is deplorable and Mr. Brown owes all Texans an apology."

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Buddy Temple called Wednesday for pledges of party unity after the primary.

"I think the voters deserve to know whether each candidate will stand by his commitment to the Democratic Party or whether we're going to see some sore losers who will cut and run," Temple said in Corpus Christi.

Temple, a railroad commissioner, said he would support the Democratic nominee against Republican Gov. Bill Clements. However, he said he expects to be that nominee after a June 5 runoff with Attorney General Mark White. Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong is the third major Democratic candidate in the race.

Luther Jones, Temple's campaign manager, said Temple returned a $50,000 contribution from Clinton Mangas, a South Texas banker-rancher who gave $270,000 to Armstrong.

"Buddy decided he didn't want to take that size of contribution from anyone other than from his own family," said Jones.

Pete Snelson, a land commissioner candidate, said he returned a $25,000 donation from Mangas' political action committee. The Mangas contribution "was greatly out of proportion to our other contributions," said Snelson.

Mangas was convicted in the 1960s of making false statements in a loan application.

Man innocent of threatening newspaper

HOUSTON (AP) — A wealthy Houston attorney who testified he feared two men who knocked on his door were "gay terrorists," has been acquitted of charges that he pointed a shotgun at a pair of newsmen.

William C. Morris III was found innocent Thursday of reckless conduct charges by jurors who said he had an "obligation to protect his home and family."

A Houston Chronicle reporter and photographer said Morris threatened them with a shotgun Nov. 17 when they knocked on the door of Morris' home in River Oaks, Houston's richest neighborhood.

The newsmen said they intended to question Morris about his ties to a Mailgram sent to thousands of voters and alleging then-mayoral-candidate Kathy Whitmire was politically tied to San Francisco's homosexual community.

Morris did not deny making the statement, but said he feared the men were "gay terrorists" or members of another group intending to harm him in retaliation for the Mailgrams.

"We feel he had an obligation to protect his home and family, specifically because he had received threats" about the Mailgrams, jury foreman Monty Patch said.

Reporter Raul Reyes and photographer Buster Dean testified they had knocked on the door but had no chance to identify themselves before Morris trained the gun on them and said, "If you want a story, don't leave."

SENATOR E. L. SHORT AND FAMILY

A good state senator must represent ALL the people... not just a few who contribute heavily to his political campaigns.

Senator E. L. Short is comfortable with all the people in his district... whether he's in the corporate board room, the churches or just visiting in a rural cafe near the gin. He likes people and he knows their problems.

His 8 years in the House of Representatives and his 4 years in the Senate have earned him a position as one of the most stable and experienced Legislators in the state.

He is the only farmer-rancher listed in the official Senate roster among 14 lawyers, 16 businessmen and one housewife. We need E. L. Short in the Senate.

Minority astronauts feel 'added pressure'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronauts Sally Ride and Guion Bluford Jr. said today they feel added pressure because they are the first American woman and black selected to fly in space.

But both told a news conference the pressure will not affect their performance when they orbit Earth on separate space shuttle flights next year.

"I think there is added tension and pressure when you're the vanguard," said Bluford, 39, an Air Force lieutenant colonel. "But it won't affect our training or our capability to perform in space."

"I'm not as hyped-up on being the first black as I am in flying on the shuttle," he added.

Miss Ride, a 30-year-old astrophysicist, agreed. "It's a great honor that NASA selected me as the first woman for a space flight," she said. "But I'm more excited about the opportunity to fly early than in being the first woman."

Miss Ride will be on the seventh space shuttle flight, a six-day, satellite-carrying mission scheduled to start April 20, 1983. With her will be three male military officers — Navy Capt. Robert L. Crippen, Navy Capt. Frederick H. Hauck and Air Force Lt. Col. John M. Fabian.

Bluford will be on the eighth shuttle flight, also a satellite-hoisting mission, set to start July 4 next year. With him will be three Navy officers — Capt. Richard H. Truly, Cmdr. Daniel C. Brandenstein and Lt. Cmdr. Dale A. Gardner.

Both missions will utilize the second space shuttle, Challenger.

Crippen, who flew on the maiden flight of the shuttle Columbia last year, was asked how it would be to fly in orbit with a woman.

"There's not much privacy in the shuttle, but we'll work around that," he replied. "I think Sally will be just one of the guys."

"Both Sally and Guy (Bluford) are well-qualified; that's why they're flying," Crippen said.

Truly, a veteran of Columbia's second flight last November, said his crew hopes to make their launch "an unusual Fourth of July celebration."

"It will be the first night launch and the first night landing for the shuttle," he said. "That should be spectacular."

Truly said the 1 a.m. liftoff time is dictated by the requirement to place an Indian communications satellite into a precise location in space.

Home births

Doctor who performs them suspended by health board

By SUSAN LISOVICZ
 Associated Press Writer

KINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — To Anne Thompson, the man who delivered her two babies in her own bedroom is "the most competent doctor I've ever run across."

To the chief of pediatrics at an Albany hospital, that same doctor is "responsible for some horrendous problems" with his home-birth patients.

Dr. George A. Wootan is the focus of a passionate dispute in this community in the Catskill Mountain foothills 75 miles northwest of New York City. It pits Wootan and his small, but steadfast following against the New York State Health Dept.

Wootan, a slight, soft-spoken man, is the father of 10 children, the last of whom was delivered at home. He says his wife, Pat, prompted the idea of a home birth after a "very disappointing experience" with their ninth child. He says the birth made him wonder, "If I as a physician can't have the type of birth experience I want with my wife, what chance does anybody else have?"

Shortly after, he agreed to attend two births at home.

Wootan found his services in demand by women who did not want the traditional hospital delivery, a growing sentiment behind the increasing popularity of "natural childbirth."

"The word spread like wildfire. I was up to my ears in home births," Wootan says. Home births now account for 20 percent of his practice, he says.

But Wootan's medical license was suspended after a medical board investigation alleged his methods contributed to the deaths of at least two babies and endangered his patients.

State Health Commissioner David Axelrod suspended Wootan's license last Nov. 20 after an investigation by the State Board for Professional Misconduct. The board had reported that "deficiencies in Dr. Wootan's medical practice constitute an imminent danger to the health of his patients."

The panel, which could permanently revoke Wootan's license, continues to hold closed hearings on the charges.

Meanwhile, on April 1, the five-judge Appellate Division of state Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the Health Department had overstepped its bounds in ordering the 60-day license suspension for Wootan.

The court said that Axelrod had exceeded his authority in ordering the full suspension, noting the Wootan's obstetrical practice amounted to only 20 percent of his work.

The Health Department will appeal the ruling, according to William Fagel of its public affairs staff.

In the meantime, Wootan cannot practice medicine.

Dr. Allan Geis, assistant professor of pediatrics at Albany Medical College and attending neonatologist at the Albany Medical Center, says he helped treat at least six seriously ill infants in the past two years who were hospitalized after home deliveries by Wootan. A hospital birth could have prevented or avoided most of the problems, according to Geis.

Doctors at the Albany Medical Center declined to discuss individual cases while the hearings are in progress.

Wootan, 45, maintains the safest possible birth is obtained in a home delivery and cites an infant mortality rate for his patients of 5.6 percent. Statewide, the infant mortality rate in 1980 was 12.5 percent, according to New York State Health Department statistics.

Wootan contends that the American Medical Association and what he calls the medical establishment conspired against him because his home-birth practice represents a financial threat to hospitals.

"If home births are allowed to catch on, it will mean a tremendous loss to the medical establishment," the family practitioner says. "And it's people like me who show that home births can be done safely. They have to get rid of me."

By delivering 350 babies at home since 1977, his practice has deprived local hospitals of nearly $1 million, he says.

"When doctors interfere with drugs, chemicals, anxiety-producing situations, it interferes with these systems that are in a woman's body and then trouble breaks loose. Trouble doesn't arise nearly as fast nor as often" with a natural childbirth at home, Wootan says.

"I'm not convinced that just because the pioneers did it, it's the better way," says Myron Gordon, chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the Albany Medical Center. Gordon and several area doctors disagree with Wootan's contention that a woman could not have a natural, deeply moving birth in a hospital.

Run for the Roses

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cupecoy's Joy, a fast-working New York-bred filly, Saturday will test 18 colts — including a one-eyed runner — and a gelding, survivors from a Kentucky Derby field that has been stripped by illness and injury.

In 107 previous Derbies at Churchill Downs, only two fillies have won — Genuine Risk in 1980 and Regret in 1915.

Cupecoy's Joy, who ranked sixth on the money earning list which determined the field at a maximum 20 3-year-olds, also had been entered in today's Kentucky Oaks for 3-year-olds.

However, after Cupecoy's Joy drew the favorable No. 1 position for the richest Derby ever with a gross purse of $527,600, owner Roberto Perez said, "We're in for the big one. If we had drawn on the outside, we would have scratched immediately and run in the Oaks."

ABC is providing both radio and television coverage of the Kentucky Derby. TV coverage begins at 3:30 p.m. Saturday. Posttime is 4:38 p.m.

The parimutuel field was listed at 8-1 in the early line, which favored El Baba, winner of eight of 10 starts, at 5-2, followed by unbeaten Air Forbes Won, the Wood Memorial winner, 7-2, and Muttering, the Santa Anita Derby winner at 4-1.

Cupecoy's Joy, to be ridden by Angel Santiago, has four victories — all against New York-bred competition — five seconds and four thirds in 14 starts, earning $213,420. Royal Roberto, a 20-1 outsider, is the other New York-bred in the field for the 1 1/4-mile first leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

No New York-bred has ever won the Derby which has been dominated by Kentucky-breds.

The bay daughter of Northerly-Lady Alba made her last start in the Spiral Stakes at Latonia March 27 where she finished third. She has been impressive during her workouts here this week.

Mrs. Joe W. Brown's El Baba won the Louisiana Derby and ran second to Hostage, who fractured a sesamoid earlier this week, in the Arkansas Derby. The son of Raja Baba-Hail to El, tops the money winners among the Derby field with earnings of $384,863.

El Baba, who won twice here as a 2-year-old, will leave from the No. 4 post position with Don Brumfield aboard.

"Good," said trainer Dewey Smith when he heard his colt's post position. "That's just good, couldn't be better. I'm very happy."

Edward Anchel's Air Forbes Won will go from post No. 7 under Angel Cordero Jr., who rode the colt's sire, Bold Forbes, to victory in the 1976 Derby. "Sitting on him is like sitting on his daddy," said Cordero after a workout earlier this week.

Air Forbes Won didn't go to the races until March 4 this year and has won all four starts. The last horse to win the Derby that didn't race as a 2-year-old was Apollo in 1882. He also was bred in Ohio which has produced only one Derby winner, Wintertgreen in 1909.

Muttering, owned by the Tartan Stable, heads a contingent of five who prepared for the Kentucky Derby on the West Coast. He has raced only twice this year but has earned $317,299 off a career record of four wins and two seconds in nine starts.

There is plenty of curiosity here over 20-20 Stable's Cassalera, who lost his left eye in a stall mishap shortly after his birth. Because he is claustrophobic, according to his trainer, Ron McAnally, he has been stabled here in a special outdoor pen.

Cassalera drew the No. 18 post position, which pleased McAnally who said his late-charging colt runs better on the outside.

Star Gallant, who had won his first four starts before his two seconds was listed at 8-1. Sent off at 1-5 odds in the Derby Trial, he lost to Listcapade, a non-Derby nominee.

Gato Del Sol, second in the Blue Grass, was listed at 10-1. Bold Style, third in the Arkansas Derby, and Wavering Monarch, third in the Blue Grass, were rated at 15-1.

Battle royal in Abilene

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

ABILENE — Not many people thought it would come down to this. Still, Big Spring is playing its most important baseball game ever Saturday. That's EVER, folks.

According to Steers fan Hal Rosson, a ballplayer himself around 1950, Big Spring has occupied the role of "bridesmaids" a number of times but has never won a championship. In fact, he can't recall a boy's team winning any sort of title since the late 50's and that came in basketball.

Coach Frank Ibarra's baseball crew, however, can take a megastride towards updating the story when the Steers meet the Cooper Cougars here Saturday at 2 p.m. Ibarra has given the nod to junior righthander Adam Rodriguez, 8-2, to battle the Coog's Billy Mitchell, 7-3, in the big game.

Cooper was the pre-district favorite but inconsistent pitching led to a 4-3 finish in the first half. The Coogs came out smoking in the second half, winning three games before being upended by Permian Tuesday in Odessa. Cooper, 19-9 overall, now has three things going for them Saturday.

The first is revenge. One of the first half losses was a 5-3 defeat at the hands of the Steers and Moe Rubio. The second is the home diamond advantage. And the third is the "must factor." Cooper's only hope for post-season play now lies in a victory Saturday.

Big Spring is also hot and perhaps has the most incentive — winning that first district championship. The Steers are on a tear, having won every game — and that's 11 of them — since a district opening loss to Abilene.

The bats were quiet in the first half but the team average has risen from .200 to .245 in the second half. Leading the comeback at the plate is designated hitter Tom Cudd whose average has climbed dramatically from .111 to .265. He leads the team in RBI's with 14, including four Tuesday against Lee.

Blake Rosson has a district average of .421 and has also knocked in 13 runs. James Walker stands at .390 and is tied with Rosson with 16 basehits. David Anguiano, strong defensively at third, has contributed a .310 average.

Defense and pitching have been the combination that has carried the Steers. Behind the mound is a unit that averages one or less errors a game.

Rodriguez is 5-0 in 5-AAAAA play and has an earned run average of 2.03.

"I think we'll be ready ... the kids have had good workouts this week," reports Ibarra. "We'll have to play good defense and score over five runs. We have to make contact and put a lot of pressure on them."

"The pressure is on them (Cooper) but we want to beat Cooper real bad," he added.

Catcher Marty Rodriguez takes aim on Cougars

Putts fall for Archer

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — There was no wind and the normally fast greens were soft. It was strictly target golf in the opening round of the Byron Nelson Classic with George Archer and Curtis Strange stealing the par-breaking show.

Archer, who still holds the PGA record for fewest putts in a 72-hole tournament, used a new blade to one-putt 10 times Thursday for a 5-under par 65.

Strange matched Archer's heroics over the tame Preston Trail Golf Club with another 65, including six one-putt greens.

"I've played here many, many years and I've never seen the course play any easier," said Archer. "You could just fire it at the pins."

For an example of how simple the course played, defending champion Bruce Lietzke was 1-over par 281 in winning the tournament last year.

Lietzke shot 1-under 69 Thursday and trailed 14 other players.

Bruce Fleisher, Vance Heafner and Eric Batten cruised home in 4-under 66. Three were at 67 and six, including U.S. Open champion David Graham, were at 68.

"We got a break in the weather," admitted Strange. "The wind didn't blow and the temperature (mid-70s) was perfect. The overnight rains softened the greens."

Strange added "par is never a bad score here over 72 holes. The course always catches up to the players. Watch what happens if we get a little wind."

Archer, who used only a record 94 putts when he won the 1980 Sea Pines Heritage Classic, tried a Bullseye putter and the change worked magic.

"It's the kind of putter I used when I was a kid," the 41-year-old Archer said. "I'm not as good a putter as I once was... I can't concentrate like I used to. But I only had 26 putts... that's pretty good."

The 27-year-old Strange, one of the bright, young stars on the PGA tour, didn't use a new putter just good "mechanics" on his round.

"I've been working hard on it," he said. "Ninety-nine per cent of putting is between the ears."

Archer and Strange played in the afternoon after early morning winds had died down.

- For Election of Federal District Judges—Under the present system they are politically appointed for life. Federal Judges assume and wield more and more power over the lives of citizens as well as over cities, county and state governments. Yet never are they answerable to the people. The way to remedy that injustice is to elect them for a fixed term of office just as our State Judges are elected.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use that talent you have and make a fine impression on others. Handle duties more efficiently and they become easier.

Ol' Wagon Wheel

The old wagon wheel in the picture, leaning against the side wall of the old log shop, is fast becoming a relic of a departed era.

Time was when the blacksmith and wheelwright did a thriving business and the rumble of carts and wagons was a familiar sound in every community. Some of these old vehicles survive on the farms but they are fast disappearing.

The truck, trailer and tractor today are doing the farm work and hauling the farmer's produce to market. These have ushered in a new era in transportation.

The conditions of human life are thus constantly changing under the impetus of man's inventive genius. Age follows age in rapid succession and change is the order of the world. The only enduring things are the things of the mind and spirit. Love and hope and faith are eternal.

The Church ministers to the spiritual needs of man. It seeks to impart the principles of right living and teach men to love and honor God. These are the changeless and eternal things in a world of constant change and they are as necessary today for wholesome living as in ages past.

Rev. Guy White Sr.

As a pastor, his work is never done

By TINA M. STEFFEN
 Church Editor

When the Rev. Guy A. White Sr. was 33 years old, he was called to go into the ministry. He was a supervisor at El Paso Natural Gas Company when he resigned to attend seminary. Now at the age of 53, he's the pastor of East 4th Street Baptist Church.

"By age of 33, I thought my future was fairly secure in working for the company I was with and the Lord had different plans for us," White said. "Since we believe firmly in a called ministry, in Oct. 1962, the Lord really began to deal with me about my service to him."

"For four months, every waking moment I had it went through my mind 'I want you to be a pastor.' That thought was with me day and night. In Feb. 1963, I surrendered to His call. It was quite an experience ... a peacefulness ... but I have never for one minute doubted it' (his calling)."

At that time he was married and had two boys age 11 and nine. "We left work at El Paso Natural Gas and moved to Fort Worth and entered seminary there," he said. White attended Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and earned a diploma of theology. White was in seminary for two years. During his second year in seminary, he pastored his first church, Bethel Baptist Church in De Leon. After graduation, the Whites moved to Snyder where he pastored Union Baptist Church.

In 1967, the family moved to Coahoma and pastored First Baptist Church, Coahoma for five years. The Whites went to Phillips in 1972 and pastored First Baptist Church, Phillips, for four years. In 1976, The Whites arrived in Big Spring and have spent the last six years serving East 4th Street Baptist Church.

"The most beautiful thing in the ministry," he said, "is seeing the change that comes into a life when Jesus Christ comes in at the experience of salvation. Watching new Christians grow is beautiful. To see someone make a commitment to Jesus and not grow hurts ... You never have to ask a growing Christian if they are happy because

REV. GUY A. WHITE
 ...pastor of East 4th Street Baptist Church

White's wife, June, is a homemaker and takes care of their grandchildren. The Whites' two sons are now grown and have families of their own. Guy White Jr. is a certified public accountant in Big Spring and lives with his wife Arlene and their two sons Matthew, 4, and David, 1, in Coahoma. Danny White is chief engineer for Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon. Danny, wife Susan and two daughters Lindy, 1, and Cara, 9 months, live in Amarillo.

White's hobbies are playing golf, having fellowship with other ministers and doing yardwork. His family enjoys camping. They spend two weeks in June every year at the Frio River. Because all of their relatives join them, he says "it's like a family reunion for two weeks."

"Our work is never done ... never as a pastor. I need some ways at times to change the pace." His hobbies and vacations provide diversion from his work.

White had two experiences that really stood out in his life as a minister. The first was "a morning service at Union Baptist Church. Seven adults came forward at one time at the invitation. Three were for salvation and four were for transfer of letter." He never had so many come forth at one time before then.

The second experience occurred in 1979. White went to the Philippines for a two week crusade with Gene Williams Evangelistic Association. "In two weeks time, we saw 10,000 professions of faith on the whole island." There were 50 ministers on the crusade trip.

"The Church (East 4th Street Baptist) donated funds to build a church in San Francisco Mindanao ... I will be going back in Jan. 1983 for another two weeks crusade. I hope to go back to that church. There are so many needs and you just can't reach all of them. But it is a job to reach some of them."

White's goals are "to be as devoted to the Lord as I can possibly be everyday of my life to continue to grow in my ability to preach the Word of God and to equip myself in my avenues of service in any way I can. I'm still learning."

Religion Roundup

Campaign presses social moral issue

NEW YORK (AP) — The "biggest campaign ever" is under way by religious stockholders to press social-moral issues at corporate meetings this spring, in many cases against nuclear weapons, says the Interfaith Center for Corporate Responsibility.

"We have more groups filing than ever before," says Tim Smith, executive director of the center, a clearing house for 17 Protestant denominations and 180 Roman Catholic orders.

It reports the filing of 67 proxy resolutions with companies involved with production or sale of weapons. The religious shareholders filing the resolutions own more than 175,000 shares worth more than $10 million.

Israel paid the price for peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conference of about 600 Jewish leaders, citing "Israel's sacrifice for peace" in giving up the Sinai territory to Egypt, has urged a U.S. policy on the Middle East "that rewards only those states willing to live in peace with Israel."

"The people of Israel are betting their lives on the peaceful intention of their former enemy," says a

Ecumenical structure is proposed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Lutheran leader has proposed a new, more inclusive "ecumenical structure" that would embrace churches not now part of the national Christian cooperative organizations.

Bishop David W. Preus, president of the American Lutheran Church, says he sees a "widening gap between the conservative-evangelical and the mainline churches" and a broader conciliar organization might be a way to close the gap.

He told a meeting of about 40 U.S. church leaders he hoped such a new organization would include Roman Catholics, Southern Baptists and various conservative Protestant and Pentecostal bodies now not members either of the National Council of Churches or the National Association of Evangelicals.

Wingo kicks off celebration

First Christian Church has laid plans for celebrating its 100th anniversary, making it the oldest established congregation in Big Spring. Their celebration will officially begin in May and conclude in November.

It was in November 1882 when seven Christian believers met in the home of I.D. Eddins for worship and communion in the fledgling settlement of Big Spring. This was the beginning of the First Christian Church and the first organized congregation in Big Spring.

Meetings were held in the homes of members for a time, then in the school house, until a small church was built in 1884 in the 300 block of Gregg Street.

By 1925, the group had outgrown the Gregg Street facilities even though a small shed-room with a ground floor had been added. The second church building was erected at Fifth and Scurry streets in early 1926.

As a part of the beginning activities for the church's centennial celebration, the oldest known living pastor of the church, the Rev. Claude Wingo, 86, will preach during the morning services May 9. He also will be the special guest at a fellowship dinner Sunday evening. In addition, a surprise dinner will be held May 7 for all his friends in While reviewing the 1927 Church Directory, the church's centennial committee discovered there are many people whom Wingo baptized still living in the community today. The committee hopes those people who knew the Wingos will visit with them while they are in Big Spring.

Public memorial to Holocaust is dedicated

A public memorial to the Holocaust — a 13-foot high wall containing seven bronze bas-reliefs depicting the Nazi persecution and massacre of the Jews — was dedicated by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith Sunday on Dag Hammarskjold Plaza in New York, N.Y.

New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch and Yehuda Blum, Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, participated in the outdoor ceremony that took place on the 47th Street side of ADL's headquarters building, where the agency has had the "Monument of the Holocaust" erected. The bas-reliefs are by the renowned artist, Arbit Blatas. Nathan Perlmutter, ADL's national director, said that the human relations agency had built the monument "as a permanent memorial to the six million who perished, as a public reaffirmation of the Jewish people's resolve that we will never again be victims, and as a reminder to all people of what can happen when hatred and bigotry are allowed to prevail."

He added that the monument was in a particularly significant location for serving as a reminder, "opposite the United Nations, which has become a forum for anti-Semitism."

Mr. Perlmutter spoke at the dedication. Other participants include Burton M. Joseph, president of the ADL Foundation, who acted as chairman for the dedication; Regina Resnick, the noted opera star and wife of Arbit Blatas, who read the monument's inscription, entitled "Zachor" (Remember); Benjamin R. Epstein, executive vice president of the ADL Foundation, who presented Mr. Blatas with a special award; Dr. David J. Seligson, Rabbi Emeritus, Central Synagogue, New York, NY; Cantor Joseph Malovany, Fifth Avenue Synagogue, New York, NY, and Rabbi Herschel Schacter, Moshulu Jewish Center, Bronx, NY.

The Holocaust memorial bas-reliefs, each three feet by two feet, are based on paintings by the Lithuanian-born Blatas, whose parents were victims of the Holocaust. The bronze tableaux are named "The Deportation," "Crystal Night," "The Quarry," "Punishment," "Execution in the Ghetto," "The Revolt of the Warsaw Ghetto," and "The Final Solution." They are affixed to the granite wall, 13 feet high by 21 feet wide, constructed by ADL. Two other additions of the bas-reliefs are in Europe — the first imbedded in the wall of the historic Venice Ghetto in 1980; the other dedicated at the Martyrs Juifs Inconnus (Unknown Jewish Martyrs) in Paris in 1981.

Mr. Blatas, whose paintings and sculptures have been exhibited throughout the world, was awarded the Legion of Honor Chevalier Award by the French government in 1978 for his contributions to French art.

Construction of the wall and reproduction of the bas-reliefs were made possible through grants from Mr. and Mrs. Moses Deltcher of Freeport, Bahamas, and Mr. and Mrs. William Troy of New York City. Also assisting in the ADL project was the league for Human Rights of B'nai B'rith, Canada.

Church to celebrate 30th anniversary

Phillips Memorial Baptist Church will celebrate its 30th anniversary Sunday with a day of worship, special music and noon feast. The day's celebration will begin with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. followed by morning worship at 11 a.m.

Following morning worship services, there will be feasting in the church's newly remodeled Fellowship Hall. A special afternoon service with slides, singing, testimonies and a sermon will cap the day's activities. All friends, former members and former pastors are invited to attend the festivities.

The anniversary coincides with the Southern Baptist Convention's Christian Home Week which begins Sunday and continues to May 16. Christian Home Week will begin with recognizing the talents and ministries of senior adults.

Seminar for women slated

A teaching seminar for women only entitled "A Springtime Refreshing" will be held Friday evening and Saturday at Christ Fellowship Church. The theme will be "How to Excel as a Woman of God." All women are invited to attend.

Dianne Thurmond and Trudi Staples, Seminole, will share in the ministry. The seminar is designed to create a new freshness in the women present.

Meetings are scheduled to begin Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 9 a.m. The seminar will conclude Saturday at 3 p.m. During the Saturday meeting, there will be several demonstrations on "Excelling as Women of God in our Bodies."

A $10 registration fee will cover the cost of the packets participants will receive and the noon meal. Since it is to be a special day for women, the hostesses request that no children be present. A nursery will not be provided.

Church Women United in Big Spring will celebrate the day May 7 at 10 a.m. in First Presbyterian Chapel. A nursery will be available.

This year's theme, "The Powers of Words," invites the community to recognize a word's potential to be helpful and harmful, and to resolve to use words to bring understanding and unity.

As part of the day's celebration, 1,920 units of Church Women United will seek ways to carry out programs needed in their local communities.

Bake sales benefit choir

The Ladies Auxiliary of New Life Covenant Chapel is sponsoring two bake sales Saturday at Highland Mall and College Park T.G.&Y. Proceeds will be donated to the church's choir. Burritos, Bread, Cookies, Pies, Cakes and many other goods will be available.

National Family Day

Sunday is National Family Day. Special services are planned Sunday at First Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster, for the observance of this day.

pastor, will preach at the 6 p.m. service presenting a sermon entitled "The Pattern for a Christian Family." A musical ministry will be part of each service and will feature the Sanctuary Choir, directed by Bob Spears, and other local singers.

National Family Day focuses on responsibilities of the church in relation to family growth and maturity. It indicates the need for church participation by both young and mature families.

Church Women United meet

Church Women United discussed holding a Rape Crisis Seminar in the future during their meeting April 23 in the First Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall.

Tentative plans are being made for a Tasting Tea. All members were reminded of the May Fellowship Day Celebration to be held May 7 at 10 a.m. in the Chapel of First Presbyterian Church. A nursery will be provided and the public is invited to attend.

Harold Bentley, August Graumann and Richard Knocke, all church elders, are in charge of the festivities. Also helping with the arrangements are Phyllis Graumann and Jane Jensen, church secretary.

Schaeffer wants to break the hold of secularism

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Although Christian conservatives have moved into the public arena to fight for their causes, one of their leading thinkers urges greater activism, up to civil disobedience, to "break the authoritarian hold" of overwhelming secularism.

Its dominant control has been extended by the courts, education and the media through "every level of society," says theologian-philosopher Francis A. Schaeffer, and "we must do battle on every front."

In his latest, big-selling book, "A Christian Manifesto," published by Crossway Books, he says "it is not too strong to say that we are at war, and there are no neutral parties in the struggle. One either confesses that God is the final authority... or that Caesar is Lord."

Schaeffer, 70, a Pennsylvania-born Presbyterian, has become an influential voice among evangelicals through his noted L'Abri communal study center in Switzerland, with branches in the United States and elsewhere, and through numerous books, films and lectures.

"A missionary to the intellectuals," Time Magazine called him.

He sees trends — permissiveness, pornography, barring of religious elements from public schools, abortion, disarray of morals and families — as symptoms of a more underlying "shift in world view."

He describes it as a narrowed "humanism," contrary to the country's religious predispositions, and which holds that "final reality is impersonal matter or energy," with man important religious dramas — The Jerusalem Passion Play and The Nativity Play of Bethlehem — will be performed on Historic Holy Land sites Aug. 2 through Nov. 6. The dramatizations of Christ's birth and final days are performed in the general area where they happened with ancient religious ruins serving as the stage for these plays. The old Church of St. Pierre on Gallieante on Mount Zion serves as focal point for the Passion Play. You see the ruins of the palace of Caiaphas, the High Priest; the dungeon where Jesus was incarcerated; the courtyard where Peter denied his Lord; and the ancient steps which led Jesus from the Garden of Gethsemane to the house of Caiaphas the night of His arrest. The Nativity Play is set in Shepherd's Field outside Bethlehem, where the angels heralded Christ's birth. Performances of the plays will be held on consecutive evenings, Aug. 2 through Nov. 6. Tickets to the two dramas are $60, and available as part of a Holy Land tour or separately.

They will be sold through many churches, U.S. travel agents and directly by calling toll free 800-421-1510.

It now "controls the consensus in society, much of the media, much of what is taught in our schools and much of the arbitrary law being produced by various branches of government," he says.

He says the "bottom line" can justify defiance in some cases. He cites as an example a federal court's banning of "creationism" from Arkansas public schools, overriding the will of legislators.

While the action came "under the guise of 'civil liberties,' it is tyranny," he says. He cites asserted other instances of it, such as barring religious meetings or posting of the Ten Commandments at schools and barring religious manifestations in other public spheres.

Farm income picture still bleak

WASHINGTON (AP) — The farm income picture is so bleak that hard-pressed producers would favor some kind of stern government action to help them from the financial mire, a congressional committee has been told.

A former president of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America said distressed farmers want a combination of controls on domestic production and imports of competing goods.

And another editor said farmers don't believe the economic problems being created by price depressing surpluses can be solved solely by increasing U.S. agricultural exports.

Farm income nationally is expected to be down in 1982 for the third year in a row, reflecting depressed market prices for crops and livestock in relation to growing expenses, high interest rates and the general economy.

"Most favor a mix of policies to boost demand as well as to cut back supply," Al Swegle of the Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Gazette told the Joint Economic Committee.

H. Carlisle Besuden III of the Lexington (Ky.) Herald, who just stepped down as president of the association, told the Joint Economic Committee that farmers, at least in the Southeast, realize they need government-set standards and controls on production and sales.

But Besuden said that while most farmers agree with the principle of free world trade, it has to be controlled so import volumes don't undo domestic efforts to cope with surpluses or low farm prices.

"Nearly every farmer I have talked to has told me that within the past decade, every time he has something that is ready to sell and has to be sold, it seems record-breaking imports of that particular commodity have just entered this country, driving down prices," he said.

Besuden specifically cited this year's record wool imports from South America that drove domestic wool prices from 60 cents a pound to 30 cents.

He said farmers also want a ban on imports from any nation that has trade barriers to U.S. exports.

WORLD'S FAIR TO OPEN SATURDAY — The 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tennessee will open Saturday and is scheduled to last through Oct. 31. President Ronald Reagan is to attend opening ceremonies at the United States pavilion.

Beauty queen's stolen pendant found in pieces

NEW YORK (AP) — The diamond-studded gold pendant that Vanessa DuBois won for being named Miss Hawaii and lost to a chain snatcher has turned up in pieces at a jewelry store, and the jeweler says he can point out the thief.

Detectives staked out New York's diamond district looking for the tall man with the "huge hand" who ripped the $7,000 pendant from Miss DuBois' neck Wednesday as she walked in Manhattan with four other state beauty queens, all bedecked in their title sashes.

The pendant had been cut in half and its diamonds had been plucked out when police found it Thursday, but all the parts were recovered and Miss DuBois said she was sure the designer would know just how to fix it. The main thing, she said, was that it had been found. "Two pieces or not, it is one in a million shot," she said.

Miss DuBois was told of the find as she arrived in Biloxi, Miss., Thursday for the Miss USA contest May 13.

"I'm thrilled to death, it's a miracle," she said after pageant officials told her the pendant was found.

"No one else has one like it. It was made just for me. I wore it to bed and in the shower," Miss DuBois said of the pendant. She said her mother had priced the pendant at $7,000. "My mistake was that I wore it outside my blouse. Maybe I was just a little bit naive."

Miss DuBois beat long odds in getting the pendant back. Police Crime Analysis Unit statistics show that last year 4,815 chain snatchings were reported in the city and 1,274 arrests were made.

Detective Chris Surillo, who recovered it, said he was "going to be in the front row when she comes to claim it."

TURNS OF THEFT — Miss Hawaii, Vanessa DuBois, describes to a friend from her New York hotel room Thursday how her $7,000 necklace and pendant was ripped from her neck by a robber on a Manhattan street Wednesday.

DEFINITELY NOT PLAID — Steve Martin, left, as Rigby, and Carl Reiner as Field Marshall VonKluck, argue over who gets to reveal the plot of the movie in a scene from "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid." Martin plays a fumbling private eye whose commission from a mysterious lady takes him through the plots of 20 films of the 1940s.

Still a wild and crazy guy?

By FRED YAGER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — No matter how hard he tries to change his image, comic Steve Martin always will be "a wild and crazy guy" to his fans.

He recently tried to be a little more serious when he starred in the music and dance fantasy "Pennies From Heaven." Reaction from his fans was clear. They stayed home.

Now he hopes to get them back to movie houses with his return to humor in an unusual film called "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid."

In the film, Martin portrays a private detective hired by a beautiful woman, played by Rachel Ward. She wants him to investigate the mysterious death of her father.

If this plot sounds familiar, the characters certainly are. So are Martin's co-stars. Careful editing by director Carl Reiner has Martin interacting with some of Hollywood's greatest performers in their original legendary roles. Through this process, the comic is able to trade lines with Jimmy Cagney, Barbara Stanwyck, Charles Laughton and Bette Davis, and dozens of other well-known celluloid faces.

"I'm a little nervous," Martin says. "It's not anything in particular, nor anything to do with the film. It's just that anytime I open in anything I get a little case of nerves."

"Dead Men" is real funny though," he said, "so I'm not worried about that."

Fellow comedian Steve Allen, in his book "Funny People," discussed Martin's stage fright anxiety, noting that it caused the comic's hair to prematurely turn gray.

"With comedy you live or die with every line," Martin says. "It's not like singing, where you figure if a song isn't working you've got three minutes to come up with another one."

"A joke takes eight seconds and that's it." Although "Pennies From Heaven," caused Martin his share of anxiety when the picture bombed at the box office, the entertainer insists he has little concern about how the movie will affect his future.

Ann Jillian shines as Mae West

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mae West made herself a star, and now she's going to do the same thing for Ann Jillian, who shines Sunday night in ABC's movie, "Mae West."

The bouncy actress-comedienne, whose "Making a Living" series died this season, is delightful as Mae West, perfectly capturing the essence of her suggestive personality, pioneering philosophy and dynamic presence.

Many females, and some males, have imitated the Mae West walk, talk and gawk. But Miss Jillian, a self-described "torch singer from Chicago," sings and dances the role, reproduces the mannerisms and double-edged one-liners and totally embodies the strong-willed lady who never gave people more than what she wanted to give.

At one point, the movie depicts George Raft leaving a screening in a huff, angry that some dame named Mae West stole his movie. James Brolin (of "Marcus Welby") certainly could identify with that. Miss Jillian is so imposing there's barely room on the small screen for the lethargic Brolin, playing Miss West's manager and one true love.

Cody Laid to rest

CHICAGO (AP) — Civic and church leaders bade farewell to Cardinal John P. Cody, who was buried during a ceremony heavy with tradition and pomp "because we think he deserves all this," a mourner said.

Cody, who headed the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese for almost 17 years, was eulogized at funeral services Thursday as a man with "a great heart full of love."

Helen Dolan Wilson, Cody's lifelong friend and step-cousin, was among the mourners. She sat in the front pew of the cathedral with her son, David, and wiped away tears during the service.

Alabama takes three Country Music Awards

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — The rocking country band called Alabama was the big winner at the 17th annual Academy of Country Music awards, taking two honors in addition to being named entertainers of the year.

Barbara Mandrell was named top female vocalist Thursday, Merle Haggard won top male vocalist, and the duo of David Frizzell and Shelly West won top vocal duo and song of the year, for "You're the Reason God Made Oklahoma," in the ceremony at Knott's Berry Farm.

Alabama, which less than two years ago was playing a bar in Myrtle Beach, S.C., claimed "Hat" trophies for top vocal group and album of the year for their "Feels So Right." A year ago the band won the top vocal group award.

"I think the academy just kind of leads the way," said lead singer Randy Owen. "It's a great honor. Last year we did 300 days (on the road) and we're glad all the people listened." Frizzell and Miss West had something more to celebrate than their awards — Miss West gave birth Tuesday to her first child.

Miss West is the daughter of Dottie West, who was co-neece of the NBC telecast, and her husband, Alan Frizzell, is her singing partner's brother.

"All this in one week — it's been an amazing week," David Frizzell said backstage. Dottie West got her first glimpse of her new granddaughter, Tess Marie Frizzell, during the program as co-hosts Mickey Gilley and Conway Twitty introduced a videotape of the baby and her parents.

Miss Mandrell's top female vocalist award marked her fourth honor from the Los Angeles-based academy.

UNFRIENDLY GREETINGS — Neal Barkon of the Bitter Bouquet delivery service stands outside his office in Medford, Mass., Wednesday holding a bouquet of dead flowers and deflated balloons. The service offers delivery of such unsavory items as an alternative to conventional greetings.

Say it with dead flowers; an alternative to gift-giving

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — A new messenger service catering to those who care enough to send the very worst offers spurned suitors and riled relatives the opportunity to say it with dead flowers.

Or how about smashed and chewed chocolates for Mother's Day? Or deflated balloons for that special someone?

"We tried to come up with the things people send on good occasions and find something else," said Paula Keefe, 26, one of three partners who run "The Bitter Bouquet" out of her Medford home. "Instead of sending someone a basket of fruit, we send lemons."

Ms. Keefe, who said the company began a few months ago, takes telephone calls in her home and has a basement workshop where there are slews of dead flowers she dries outside, fruit baskets, balloons and chocolates.

Another partner, Neal Barkon, 27, of Melrose, gets the business and handles advertising, while his wife, Joan Auspitz, 26, does the art work for fliers and cards.

"Joan takes the bites out of the chocolates," said Ms. Keefe. "I can't because I'd gain too much weight."

The three partners are considering adding sour grapes, half-empty bottles of flat champagne, Geritol, and packages of peach and plum pits to their current wares, which range in price from $20 each to $50 for a sampler called "The Bitter Works."

The first patrons of "The Bitter Bouquet" have included spurned lovers, angry spouses and perturbed relatives.

So far, the novelty of the business seems to be attracting questions, but not too many orders.

"Right now, we're not so much getting orders as calls from people who just want to know what we're about," Ms. Keefe said.

"We get a lot of requests, and actually, if someone requests a legitimate item, we probably would do it for them," Ms. Keefe said.

But callers are screened carefully and their phone numbers are checked to weed out those with particularly vengeful motives, she said.

"Of course, we can only go on the information they provide us, but if we feel someone has a really malicious reason, we won't do it," she said.

Buffalo Bill rides again in the not-so-wild west

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer

CODY, Wyo. (AP) — As the lean, aging cowboy softly whispered to his horse, a hundred years suddenly fell away from the world. Buffalo Bill Cody came alive in the Wyoming twilight.

There he stood, the hero of the Wild West, leaning on a fence post and smiling at a private joke. His trademark goatee and mustache were white as winter's first snow. His long locks flowed from underneath a crushed felt hat with enough brim to keep the rain off his buckskin jacket. The twinkle in his eyes outshone the ones painted into his portrait by Frederic Remington.

But William F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody had died a sick and penniless man in Denver on Jan. 10, 1917. Who was this look-a-like imposter smiling for a snapshot?

It was William Cody, all right. But the namesake is of a later vintage. He is the grandson of the buffalo hunter, Indian scout, Pony Express rider, and bigger-than-life hero who helped create the mystique of the American West, then sold it around the globe.

The Bill Cody of 1982 is one of two surviving grandsons of the showman.

Bill and his brother, Fred Garlow, both live near Cody, the town his grandfather carved out of the Bighorn wilderness in the 1890s.

They are the sons of Irma Cody Garlow, Buffalo Bill's youngest child. Fred, born in 1911, and young Bill, who arrived two years later, were orphaned in 1918 when their parents died in a flu epidemic. Grandmother Louisa Cody, Buffalo Bill's widow, took them in and provided for their care until her own death in 1921.

Although their father was named Garlow, Bill legally assumed the family name Cody 13 years ago during a promotional tour that called for him to dress up like his grandfather and make a commercial pitch for air rifles.

"That's just one of the many careers I've had," says Bill, stroking his goatee and contemplating a painting of his ancestor. "I guess I've got that in common with granddad. Both of us were interested in a lot of things."

Unlike his brother Fred, who early in life chose the solitude of the Rocky Mountains over the lure of big-city lights, Bill Cody has been a traveler, a dreamer, and a boom-and-bust entrepreneur. He has occasionally leaned on his last name to earn a living.

"I've done a little bit of everything. I graduated from Cody High School, went on to the University of Nebraska, then got a law degree from Harvard just in time to become a second lieutenant in the Army, and wound up in the Battle of the Bulge."

"That's where I had the dubious distinction of having surrendered the second largest number of American troops in the history of the United States," says Cody. His warm smile disappeared at the memory.

It is a tough admission from the grandson of a man who scouted for Gens. Phil Sheridan and George Armstrong Custer; braved hostile Indians to bring food to the men who built a railroad across the Plains; was awarded a U.S. Medal of Honor, and fought for the Union with distinction in the Civil War.

But like his grandfather, who once wrote "I am a broad gazer, and I am willing to back my judgment," Bill Cody didn't just come back from a POW camp and grow old in obscurity.

"I practiced law for a couple of years, then built a radio station and went broke," says Cody, his smile returning. "Then I built a motel and went broke. I started a rodeo, lost more money, so I went to Texas and got into the oil business. And you guessed it — flat busted again. I just played too hard, chased too many girls, and didn't tend to business."
