County auditor loves to go looking for that 'lost penny'

Herald photo by Cliff Coan

EXPLAINING THE AUDITOR'S JOB — Jackie Olson, who has been Howard County's auditor since July 1979, discusses the various aspects of the position. One of the most important functions of the auditor is to monitor what is being spent by the county.

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

With the title of "watchdog of the county," the Howard County auditor's office might be expected to have a stern, unsmiling ex-IRS agent in charge. But, from her second-floor office, Jackie Olson holds forth as county auditor, as she has since her appointment in 1979.

Unlike other county elective offices, the auditor is appointed under the jurisdiction of the district judge, in this case 118th District Judge Jim Gregg. "The office is controlled by the district judge," Mrs. Olson said. He also sets the salaries of the auditor and assistants. He is the sole authority on setting the auditor's budget.

While the auditor is not under the control of the county commissioners or the county, the commissioners and county officials are the ones the auditor works with closest.

"I work with the commissioners' court on the budget, then monitor what's being spent with the budget. This is the only office that knows exactly how much money the county has," Mrs. Olson said.

The main purpose of the auditor's office is to monitor the budget. "Since we handle all the county's purchasing by issuing purchase orders for everything bought by the county, we know what's being spent and what the county is obligated for," the auditor said.

SECOND IN A SERIES

This is the second installment in a weekly series of stories by court-reporter Mike Downey on the people who run Howard County government.

While the auditor oversees budgeting and purchasing for the county, the office does not manage any funds. "We handle no money, but we tell everybody else how to handle theirs. All the money we have is $25 in petty cash," Mrs. Olson said with a laugh.

The auditing process undertaken by Mrs. Olson involves going into other county offices and checking various accounting practices: amount of cash on hand, collection of proper funds, turning over the right money to the county treasurer. "We just make sure money is going where it is supposed to," Mrs. Olson said.

It is this "checking" of county offices which sometimes makes auditing difficult and awkward, Mrs. Olson said.

"I may be prescribing forms or practices they might not want to use and I am auditing their books. Even small errors can make someone unhappy when they're pointed out, but I've had very few problems."

Another aspect of the auditor's job concerns bids for equipment and services for use in the county. All bid specifications are sent from Mrs. Olson's office while the bids themselves are returned to her office. "Writing those specifications can be tricky sometimes," Mrs. Olson said.

Preparing monthly reports showing the receipts and disbursements of the county is a steady requirement of the job. Auditing the county's payroll and the county tax roll is another big chore for the office. The auditor even functions as something of a complaint department for county employees, Mrs. Olson said.

With all of these responsibilities, why would anyone want to be a county auditor? What does the job offer in the way of job satisfaction? The best thing about the job, Mrs. Olson said, is "everything has to balance at the end of the day and then I can forget it, leaving everything at the office."

A love of accounting makes the auditor's position one "I wouldn't trade for any other job," Mrs. Olson said. "There is always a solution to every problem. I just love to find that penny that was lost." Digging through ledgers and accounts, assuring that everything balances, is a major source of satisfaction for Mrs. Olson.

While Mrs. Olson doesn't work with the public, she does work closely with county officials, particularly the commissioners.

"I've got to know what's going on in these offices to know what to audit," Mrs. Olson said. "I work with the commissioner closely to let them know what's going on with the budget."

Although she is under the direction of the district judge, Mrs. Olson considers herself a county employee. "My salary comes from the general fund and the office abides by the guidelines of the county," she said.

While Mrs. Olson receives help from two assistants — "I'd be lost without them," — Teresa Thomas and Beverly Yarbar, she frequently seeks improvement by attending events such as the Institute for County Officers each year. The University of Texas institute allows auditors from all over the state to share similar problems and solutions for three days, Mrs. Olson said.

But the office work is left home at the end of the day when Mrs. Olson goes home to her husband, Craig, and their one-year-old son, Christopher. Skiing and snowmobiling are the couple's passion as "we live for the winter months," Mrs. Olson said. A skiing trip to Canada for their last vacation was the highlight of their favorite pastime. Even someone with "an unpopular county job" can have fun.

Forsan's top grads revealed

Top graduates at Forsan High School are Wade McMurray, valedictorian, and Kelly Long, salutatorian. The two seniors will be honored at Forsan High School graduation ceremonies May 25th.

Wade is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund McMurray of 2300 Grace. His four-year average was 90.87. Wade was voted Most Likely to Succeed by his classmates this year and was president of the National Honor Society. He has been an Honor Society member for two years. Wade participated in the American-Scandinavian Exchange Program in 1980 and spent five weeks in Sweden.

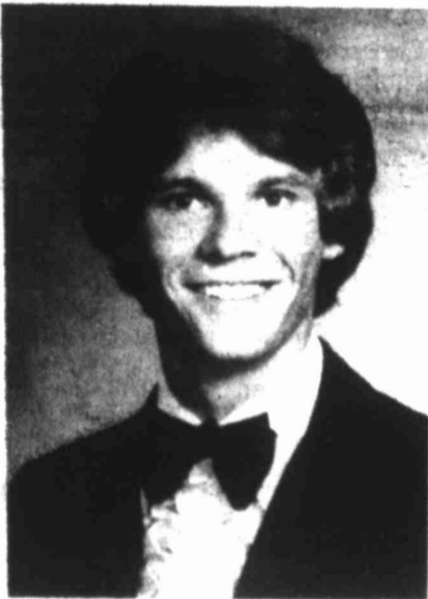

Wade was a delegate to the Texas Farm Bureau Citizenship Seminar in 1981 and a participant in the Civitan Club Citizenship Seminar as well as the first place winner in the club's essay contest. A four-year track competitor, Wade also played football and basketball. He played in the band his freshman and sophomore years.

He plans to attend Howard College to major in business and agriculture. Salutatorian Kelly Long is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kimmie Long of Sterling City Route in Big Spring. Kelly had a four-year average of 88.78. He was voted Best All-Around his senior year and qualified for state in Band Ensemble this year.

Kelly was a regional qualifier for debate this year and participated in the one-act play, football, basketball and track. During Kelly's freshman year, he was president of his class and aided the band which won Sweepstakes awards that year. He attended the Parade of Champions with the band in Dallas.

As a sophomore, Kelly was again class president and vice-president of the student council. He attended the state band contest in Austin that year. As a junior, Kelly was in the National Honor Society and participated in band, football, basketball and track.

After graduation, Kelly plans to work in his family's business and attend night classes at Howard College.

ARCO lowers gasoline prices

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Atlantic Richfield Co., which stopped accepting credit cards last month in a cost-saving move, is bucking a trend among gas retailers to raise prices after a 13-month decline, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

Lundberg, publisher of the weekly

Lundberg Letter, said Sunday that during the period April 16-May 7, as prices rose an average 0.66 cents a gallon nationwide, Arco cut 2.89 cents a gallon from pump prices. Arco self-service regular declined to an average $1.0645 from $1.0934, Lundberg said.

2 inmates walk off from federal prison

Two inmates of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp walked away Sunday, but neither are considered armed or dangerous, according to camp Superintendent John Allman. The two men were at large this morning.

"There is no reason to believe they were armed," Allman said. "I would be most surprised if any problems developed." The superintendent added that the two had no problems at the camp and he knew of no reason why they would leave.

One escapee is Ronald David Rutherford, 40, of Mesquite. Rutherford is serving a three-year sentence for having knowledge of a felony, Allman said. The second man is Jose Jesus Valdez, 24, of Eloy, Ariz. Valdez is serving a three-year-plus sentence for distribution of heroin, according to Allman.

Britain pressures Argentina

By The Associated Press
Britain put new pressure on Argentina with a resumption of attacks in the South Atlantic war zone, and a U.N. spokesman reported "substantial progress" in negotiations to get peace talks started.

The British said their ships and aircraft bombarded Argentine military targets around the airfield at Stanley, the Falklands capital; an Argentine helicopter was shot down, and an Argentine fishing factory ship that appeared to be spying was captured in the British blockade zone around the islands.

After four days without a military attack, ships from the British battle fleet moved close to shore to bombard the Stanley airfield area, a British correspondent reported from the task force flagship Hermes.

At the same time, Britain said its Sea Harrier jets strafed the Argentine positions from the air. British correspondents with the battle fleet reported a missile fired by a British warship shot down an Argentine helicopter engaged in "air combat" over the Stanley airfield.

Argentina reported a 50-minute British attack on Stanley and the nearby town of Darwin. The Argentine account gave no word of casualties. Britain said its jets returned safely.

It was the first fighting reported in the South Atlantic since an Argentine warplane hit the British destroyer Sheffield last Tuesday with a French-built missile, killing 20 crewmen, and a British jet was downed attacking the Stanley airfield.

The attack followed reports that the Argentines had repaired the runway

'We will not let them intimidate us by use of force.'

— Argentine negotiator

at Stanley, reportedly knocked out in two previous British raids, and was airlifting supplies to the island garrison in defiance of a British blockade. But correspondents with the British fleet said Harrier jets had turned back Argentine C-130 military transports escorted by Mirage jet fighters.

The British Defense Ministry also reported that British jets attacked the 1,298-ton Argentine fishing boat Narwal 66 miles off the Falklands because it was shadowing the fleet and appeared to be "fitted out for surveillance."

A spokesman said the 25 crewmen abandoned ship and surrendered, and the ship was also taken into custody. One Argentine sailor was reported killed, one seriously injured and 12 others slightly hurt.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said the ship's crew included an Argentine naval officer, Lt. Cmdr. Gonzales Llanos. The agency's correspondent aboard the Hermes, Peter Archer, said the Narwal had been ordered out of the 200-mile "total exclusion zone" last week by a British frigate.

Argentina claimed the Narwal was sunk in the British air attack and British jets machine-gunned the ship's lifeboats, forcing the crewmen into the frigid South Atlantic.

The British said the Argentines were lying.

"The Ministry of Defense deplores these allegations which are, of course, completely without foundation," said spokesman Ian McDonald.

As the fighting resumed around the Falklands, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar reported "progress" in his efforts to bring the two nations to the peace table. A spokesman for the secretary-general described the progress as "substantial."

"We have made progress on some points, and on others I need some more clarification," Perez de Cuellar told reporters Sunday night after his second day of separate meetings at U.N. headquarters in New York with Sir Anthony Parsons, Britain's ambassador to the United Nations, and Argentine Deputy Foreign Minister Enrique Ros. More talks were set for today.

"We had a discussion of a number of detailed points and on a number of points a considerable amount of progress has been made, but there are still some very important issues to be resolved," Parsons said.

Ros claimed Britain might be using military pressure to get his government to withdraw from the talks.

"We will not let them intimidate us by the use of force," he insisted. "We have decided to continue negotiating here to find a positive solution."

Plane forced to land in field

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

A small plane, piloted by a Jordanian national, flipped over while attempting to land Sunday in a cotton field southwest of Coahoma. No one was injured when the Cessna craft ran out of fuel and Kamal Mol'd Said Alnobani made the landing shortly after noon one-half of a mile from Coahoma in a field owned by Clay Reid.

According to Howard County Deputy Sheriff Eddie Owen, little damage was done to the craft despite the rough landing. Owen said the pilot was part of a regular flying group and caught another flight back to Dallas where his flight had originated. The plane is listed as being owned by Boardman High ACD at Meacham Field in Fort Worth, authorities said.

R. E. McClure of Trans-Regional Air at the Big Spring Municipal Airport said the pilot thought he was at Big Spring and evidently circled the Coahoma area until he ran out of fuel. McClure said he was planning to recover the plane at around noon today.

Ministers killed in train wreck

CLUTE, Texas (AP) — Two ministers were killed and their sons injured when a freight train moving at 10 mph hit the car they were in and knocked it off the train tracks, police said.

Clifton Leroy Coolage Jr., 43, of Smithfield and Ralph Marven Hitner, 73, of Southlake, were pronounced dead at the scene after the 9 p.m. accident Sunday, police Sgt. Danny Solomon said.

The driver of the car, Hitner's son, Jimmy Dale Graham, 38, preacher of the Church of Nazarene in Freeport, was listed in stable condition at Hermann Hospital in Houston after being taken there by helicopter, officials said.

Coolage's son, 14-year-old Jeff Coolage, suffered multiple injuries including broken legs and was taken to Brazosport Community Hospital, Solomon said. He was listed in satisfactory condition.

The ministers had attended a revival meeting at Graham's church earlier Sunday, Solomon said.

The 91-car Missouri Pacific train hit the auto as the car was crossing U.S. 288, Solomon said. Eighty of the 91 cars were empty, Solomon said.

Security guard attacked

An employee of a local security firm reportedly was assaulted Sunday night in Forsan when he investigated noises at an oil site he was guarding. Rory Heagon of Sterling City Route told Howard County sheriff's deputies nothing was stolen despite the attack.

Heagon said he heard a noise and stepped from the trailer he used while watching a pulling unit behind the Forsan Community Center when he was attacked. One man grabbed him while a second beat him with his fists, Heagon told deputies.

He said the men apparently were driving a red pickup, according to deputies' reports.

Book group meets

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Education's new textbook committee will hold its first meeting here May 14.

The board appointed 15 public school teachers and administrators to the committee Saturday.

Members of the 1982 committee include: Superintendents Truitt Ingram of Marshall and Charles Benson of Ysleta; Teachers Patrick Noon, Longview Pine Tree; Donna Wood, Plano; Terry Smith, Fort Worth; Robert Winer, Anahuac; Julia Young, Austin; Glenda Morrison, Round Rock; Carmelina Holloway, Decatur; Calvin Dukes, San Antonio; and Onita Patrick, Irving.

Thief propositioned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A man's whose home was burglarized says he is willing to buy back the things that were stolen and is asking the thief to call him.

Bill Shea's home near the University of Texas was burglarized last Monday morning, and police have no suspects.

"It's not that I'm not mad at this man for violating my home — I am," said Shea. "It's just that the things that were taken have a great personal value, and I don't want to accept the fact that they're gone."

Shea mentioned a pocket watch that his mother had had refurbished for his father, who had given it to him.

9 dead in crash

WOODSBORO, Texas (AP) — A flaming two-car accident claimed nine lives on U.S. 77 about three miles south of this South Texas town late Sunday, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

DPS Spokesman Larry Todd said authorities had been able to identify only the two drivers by early today.

Todd said a car driven by Teresa Aguilar of Houston struck a car driven by Wayne Anthony Nichols, 37, of Corpus Christi. Aguilar, seven passengers in his car and Nichols were killed, he said.

Five Department of Public Safety officers were required to clear the accident scene and direct traffic on the highway, Todd said.

Police Beat

Hubcaps stolen from lot

A Denver City man reported to police the theft of four wire hubcaps from his vehicle while it was parked in the Howard County fairbarn parking lot Saturday night.

Quirra Molina told police he was at a dance when the theft took place. He valued the hubcaps at $200.

Police arrested Antonio Martinez, 16, of Route 1, on a charge of unauthorized carrying of a weapon at 2:20 a.m. today. The arresting officer reported he observed Martinez in a vehicle in the 600 block of North West 11th. When he saw the youth put something under the seat, the officer said he ordered him out and allegedly found a revolver under the car seat. Martinez was released on $1,500 bond.

Eva Ledesma of 1311 Mobile complained to police that someone she knows attacked her with his fists, feet and a knife during a dispute. She also alleged he verbally threatened her during the 1 a.m. Sunday incident.

Delores Novola, 1200 Madison, told police a person known to her threatened her with bodily harm while she was at the city park at 5 p.m. Sunday.

A break-in at the Big Spring State Hospital canteen occurred sometime Saturday or Sunday, according to a hospital employee. A person gained entry through a window but it was unknown what was taken or what the extent of the damage was, according to police reports.

A 7-Eleven employee at the store on Third and Owens told police two white males had taken a case of beer and left without paying for it Saturday night. The beer, valued at $9.69, was reported taken at 11:03 p.m. Saturday.

A major accident involving a motorcycle and a car resulted in the cycle driver being cited for failure to control his speed, according to police reports. Michael G. Johnson of 1311 Lincoln was aboard a motorcycle which was involved in a collision with a vehicle driven by Ronald L. Gross of 1204 Sycamore, police said. The accident took place at 1200 Sycamore and west of Settles Street at 7:45 p.m. Sunday, police said.

A vehicle driven by Esther Rodriguez of 2203 Rannels was involved in a collision with a parked vehicle owned by Kenneth Burkhart Sunday at 11:50 p.m., police said. The accident occurred at South Rannels and East 13th. Rodriguez was ticketed for failure to control speed, according to police.

Mauro gains endorsement from 2 of his opponents

By KATHY BAKER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Land commissioner candidate Garry Mauro picked up endorsements today from two of his opponents in the Democratic primary.

Mauro faces state Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland in a runoff election June 5.

State Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale and Paducah rancher George Fore joined Mauro at a Capitol news conference to announce they would campaign for the Austin attorney.

"I believe his position and my position are closer than any other," Kubiak said. During the primary campaign, both he and Mauro had proposed improvements on school funding from public lands revenues and expansion of the Veterans Land Program to provide loans for houses as well as acreage.

Kubiak and Mauro had battled for a runoff spot with Snelson, who had led during most of the May 1 vote counting. But Mauro ended up in the top spot with 30 percent, Snelson with 29.9 percent, and Kubiak had 28.9 percent.

Fore trailed the others with 11.3 percent. He said he was supporting Mauro because of his "open-mindedness to my views," especially Fore's opposition to nuclear waste disposal in the state.

Mauro issued a statement outlining his position to any radioactive waste disposal in Texas until it is guaranteed to be 100 percent safe.

In response to a report that Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton had endorsed Snelson, Mauro said he didn't expect Clayton's endorsement to affect the race.

Kubiak interrupted, saying "and I had that endorsement last time."

Mauro criticized Snelson for "blatant political expediency" in his positions on various issues.

He said Snelson, up until two weeks ago, favored retaining a state property tax, but now is expected to play a leadership role in repealing the tax in a special legislative session scheduled for May 24. He also said Snelson changed his position on expanding the veterans land program and now is in favor of it.

Although he did not name names, Mauro said he had received calls from several legislators who said they would back Mauro in the runoff because they resented Snelson's change of position on the property tax repeal.

Reagan tries to counter USSR edge in land missiles

CHICAGO (AP) — President Reagan's bold and sweeping arms control proposal seeks to neutralize the Soviet Union's commanding lead in powerful land-based missiles while the two superpowers slash their arsenals of nuclear warheads by one-third.

"The monumental task of reducing and reshaping our strategic forces to enhance stability will take many years of concentrated effort," Reagan said in outlining his proposal Sunday at Eureka College, his alma mater.

"But I believe that it will be possible to reduce the risks of war by removing the instabilities that now exist and by dismantling the nuclear menace."

The U.S. goal is a treaty setting equal ceilings on U.S. and Soviet strategic nuclear forces and Reagan told the Mothers' Day commencement ceremony he hopes negotiations can begin by June.

The arms control proposal came on a day of high emotion for Reagan.

He was flooded with personal reminders of the four years he spent as a scholarship student at Eureka a half century ago during the Depression and blinked back tears when he joined the graduating class in singing the school song.

As the day drew to a close, the president declared: "I have spent the day in a warm flood of nostalgia."

Probing for a Soviet reaction, the president had told President Leonid I. Brezhnev in a letter Friday what he would say in Sunday's speech.

While there was no direct Soviet response, Defense Minister Dimitri F. Ustinov accused the United States of "openly hostile policies" in an article Sunday in Pravda, the Communist Party daily newspaper.

Some U.S. strategists are concerned that the Soviets could be tempted to launch an attack if they were confident they could destroy enough of the United States missile force to prevent a powerful U.S. response.

Reagan's objective is to cut deeply into this force of SS-18s and other land-based Soviet missiles by sharply reducing the number of warheads the Soviets would be allowed.

In the first phase of the treaty, each side would have to dismantle more than 2,000 warheads, which would require the Soviets to dip into their land-based missiles where they have concentrated their efforts.

Trial starts in alleged fraud

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Ranchers say newly released documents will prove that the government used fraudulent information about its nuclear tests in 1953 to deny them compensation for the deaths of 4,390 sheep.

In a trial starting today, the ranchers are seeking to reopen a 26-year-old suit alleging that fallout from two above-ground nuclear tests at the Nevada Test Site in 1953 killed the sheep, which were at pasture downward.

"The issue is whether there was fraud on the court," said Dan Bushnell, the attorney for the southern Utah ranchers. "That is preliminary to reopening the case."

U.S. District Judge A. Sherman Christensen, who has scheduled four days for the trial, ruled in 1956 that the ranchers failed to prove radiation caused or contributed to the deaths.

Attorneys for the ranchers claim that previously classified documents and reports which came to light during 1979 congressional hearings on nuclear testing showed that there was a cover-up. There are 31 plaintiffs, including individual ranchers and some partnerships.

The ranchers claim that the Atomic Energy Commission had experimental evidence of the effects of fallout on fetal lambs which it concealed during the trial, court documents say.

A brief filed by Bushnell says Dr. Leo K. Bustad, working under a commission contract, performed laboratory experiments from 1951 to 1954 in which ewes were exposed to radioactive materials.

About half of the ewes in Bustad's study gave birth to stillborn lambs. Lambs born to the other ewes were weak and lethargic and the ewes were unable to produce sufficient milk for them, the brief says.

Investigators had noted similar symptoms in the Utah sheep, the brief says. However, Bustad's study was not published until after the trial and the similarity between his study and studies of the Utah sheep were not noted.

The commission also pressured its investigators and potential witnesses in the original trial to change their testimony or refuse to testify, the ranchers claim.

Seniors plan to observe Older American Month

The month of May has been designated as National Older Americans month. This is the time to strengthen ties with older members of your family and the older people in your community. A time to tap the knowledge and experience of older citizens. A time to improve the lives of our older citizens. A time to salute all the older citizens of our country.

In observance of Older American Month, the Spring City Senior Citizens Center has planned several events for the month of May, and they hope all senior citizens in the community will take part.

The RSVP Recognition Banquet is planned for Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. All RSVP workers are urged to attend.

A pool tournament will be held on May 17, 18 and 19, beginning at 9 a.m. each day.

A special Friday night dance is scheduled for May 21 at 8 p.m., featuring a covered dish dinner at 7 p.m. Entrance fee is $1 per person.

All residents of Big Spring (young and old) are invited to an Open House on Saturday, May 22, at 2 p.m. One of the special features is a senior citizens talent contest, which includes instrumental, singing, dancing and comedy acts. There will also be an arts and crafts display. All talents and displays will be judged and awarded prizes.

On May 24, 25 and 26 at 9 a.m., a partnership domino tournament is also scheduled, with prizes awarded to the winners.

All events will be held at the Senior Citizens Center, building 487, Big Spring Industrial Park, and all senior citizens throughout the community are urged to attend and participate. For more information call 267-1628.

Tornado rips into Amarillo; 1 person hurt

A woman was injured and property damage was heavy as at least one tornado ripped through several areas in and around Amarillo late Sunday.

An estimated 40 homes were damaged as the tornado dipped down several times as a line of very heavy thunderstorms battered the Panhandle city.

The injured woman, who was treated for neck injuries, was apparently huddled in the basement of her home with other family members when the twister struck.

One witness said it appeared that the tornado cloud struck the ground for a time and then went back into the stormy clouds several times, but he said it could have been separate twisters as it was dark and visibility was poor.

Hail ranging from pea-size to baseball-size also struck the city.

Some homes lost roofs and some mobile homes were overturned.

The storm's high winds tore down some fences along Interstate 40 west of Amarillo and some cattle wandered onto the highway. Civil Defense volunteers acted as temporary cowboys to round up the cattle, but not before at least one traffic accident was reported. Officers said a pickup truck struck a cow.

Power lines were downed, leaving sections of Amarillo and the entire town of Bushland, about 15 miles west of the city, without power for a time.

Golf ball-size hail was reported at Border and marble-size hail pelted Gruver where about .75 of an inch of rain fell in a short period of time.

The storm system that triggered the tornado and heavy thunderstorms moved eastward out of the Panhandle into Oklahoma early today.

Skies were cloudy from South Texas northward through the Hill Country into the Panhandle early today. Partly cloudy skies were reported elsewhere.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s except in South Texas where readings were in the 70s. Extremes ranged from 56 at Lufkin to 77 at Brownsville.

Democrats responding to Reagan's missile proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are responding to President Reagan's nuclear arms reduction proposals by stepping up their clamor for approval of SALT II, the treaty former President Carter finished negotiating but didn't get through the Senate.

"The only way to hold the Soviets in check while modernizing our weapons is to give formal approval, in some way, to the unratified SALT II treaty," Edmund S. Muskie said Sunday.

"There may be some changes that could be made to improve its chances of ratification," said the former secretary of state and senator from Maine.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said, "The president ought to seriously consider taking SALT II and then proposing any amendments he thinks necessary."

Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., said, "This proposal is only a negotiating position. Even if the Soviets warm to it, and I hope they do, it will take some time for implementation. In the meantime it would be prudent for us to have the Soviets bound by the SALT II limits."

In a speech in Eureka, Ill., Sunday, Reagan proposed that the United States and Soviet Union reduce by one third their complement of more than 7,000 nuclear warheads each. He said he hoped negotiations for an arms reduction treaty could begin by late June.

SALT II, which calls for the Soviets to cut back 250 land-based or submarine-fired missiles or long-range bombers, was negotiated over a seven-year period by three presidents.

It was signed by Carter and Soviet Premier Leonid I. Brezhnev but was shelved because of stiffening Senate resistance after the Soviet military move into Afghanistan in 1979.

Carter could not be reached for comment on the president's proposal. Most Republican leaders in Congress, some of them accompanying the president, also were unavailable to reporters here.

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on arms control, said he thought the speech was "in reaction to the groundswell of opinion around the country."

"It will probably be part of the rain dance before the real negotiations, but it's a step forward," Pressler added.

Testimony to continue in Hinckley trial

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jurors are being shown a psychiatrist's portrait of what was going on with John W. Hinckley Jr. in the weeks before his burst of gunfire wounded President Reagan.

Dr. John Hopper, of Evergreen, Colo., was summoned to testify today about his treatment of Hinckley during the weeks leading up to the attempt on Reagan's life March 30, 1981.

Hinckley's mother, JoAnn, testified last week that Hopper devised a rigid plan of rules and deadlines in an attempt to force Hinckley to cope with life on his own.

Hinckley's parents were not to give him money or allow him to live in their Evergreen home.

Hinckley, 25 years old at the time, was to have a job by March 1, 1981 and be out of his parents home by March 30.

In fact, Hinckley lived in a motel in the Denver area in March 1981 after returning from the East. His father would not let him live in the house, even temporarily.

Mrs. Hinckley said her son left the Denver area for Washington about four days before he shot the president.

He is charged in a 13-count indictment with attempting to assassinate the president and assault with intent to kill all four of his victims.

White House Press Secretary James Brady was shot in the head during the attack. Also hit were Secret Service Agent Timothy McCarthy and former Washington policeman Thomas Delahanty.

During her testimony Thursday and Friday as the leadoff defense witness, Mrs. Hinckley said Hopper talked her and her husband out of sending Hinckley to a mental institution near Phoenix.

"If you think he's sick now, he's really going to be sick if you put him in a hospital," she quoted the psychiatrist as saying.

Hopper, she said, "told us that while our son was 25 he thought more like a 14-year-old."

Palestinians, Israel step up fighting

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Cabinet met in special session today to plan Israel's next move after Palestinian guerrillas shelled northern Israel for the first time in 10 months in retaliation for Israeli air strikes in southern Lebanon.

Lebanese officials said at least 16 people were killed and 56 wounded in Sunday's air raids. Israel reported no losses in the guerrilla reprisals.

The tit-for-tat attacks raised fears of a deadly new round of cross-border violence between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization. A cease-fire last July halted a similar campaign.

Settlers in Israel's Galilee panhandle, target of the guerrilla rocket and artillery salvos, appealed to the government today to maintain calm along the border.

"We are not built to withstand a war of attrition," Avraham Broshi, head of the local settlement council, told Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, who toured the northeastern panhandle between Lebanon and Syria and in western Galilee near the Mediterranean.

"Everybody is interested in keeping the north quiet, but not at the price of agreeing to Israel's other borders being open to terrorists," Sharon was quoted by Israel Radio as saying.

Israel cannot live indefinitely "in the shadow of a threat of a war of attrition in the north," he was quoted as saying.

Begin reportedly spoke with settlement leaders by telephone and promised everything would be done to maintain the peace.

Israeli analysts, noting that the more than 150 Palestinian shells fired into northern Israel caused neither casualties nor damage, said the guerrillas apparently were not seeking a war.

Schools and shops were open in the area today after local residents spent the night in bomb shelters.

Israel Television said the guerrilla shelling came from Nabatiyeh, eight miles north of the panhandle, and Rashadyeh, on the coast.

The PLO said Israeli planes and navy craft attacked guerrilla targets along a 19-mile stretch of the Lebanese coast, including Damour, nine miles south of Beirut, and the oil-refining town of Zahrani, just south of Sidon.

Snowflakes fall in central Montana

By The Associated Press

Snow accumulated to 15 inches in parts of central Montana early today, giving way to rain in eastern Montana and northern Wyoming, while scattered thunderstorms fell in the Dakotas, the upper Mississippi Valley and the Texas Panhandle.

Showers and thundershowers were widely scattered from southern Nevada to the western Great Lakes.

Scattered rain lingered from New Jersey to eastern New England. Clear skies extended from the Gulf Coast to the lower Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and the mid-Mississippi Valley. The West was partly cloudy, with mostly clear skies from the Southwest deserts to the southern Rockies.

For tonight and Tuesday, the National Weather Service forecast snow for central Montana and a mixture of rain and snow for the rest of Montana.

Scattered showers and thundershowers were predicted from the Rockies to the northern two-thirds of the plains and the upper Mississippi Valley. Showers were predicted over eastern New England and clear skies were expected elsewhere.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 29 degrees in Cody, Wyo., to 78 degrees in Brownsville, Texas.

Energy secretary to resign?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Energy James B. Edwards is planning to leave his job at the end of next month, according to a published report.

Edwards has told White House officials he will resign from the Cabinet to accept the presidency of the Medical University of South Carolina, the Washington Post reported in today's editions.

If he does resign, he will become the first Cabinet member to leave the Reagan administration. The newspaper cited no source for its information.

The university's board of trustees voted unanimously April 2 to offer the former South Carolina governor the post. Edwards was quoted shortly thereafter as saying he would "probably end up taking the job," but that he had made no definite decision.

He has said he hoped to fulfill by July

Americans volunteer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of U.S. residents have contacted the British and Argentine consulates to volunteer to fight for the Falkland Islands, but so far none has been accepted, consulate officials say.

Argentine Deputy Consul Ramon Granda said about 220 people, mostly expatriate Argentines or former residents of Cuba or Puerto Rico, have volunteered to fight the British. He called the number "encouraging," but said only Argentine citizens were being accepted for the fighting.

British consulate spokesman Peter Beckingham said Saturday he "couldn't possibly give a figure" for the number of would-be volunteers to fight against Argentina, but said the number has been "very substantial."

6 killed by fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An investigation is underway into a fire that killed six children, including five from one family, when it swept through a residence on Columbus' east side.

Fire Battalion Chief Michael Fiori said Sunday the mother of five of the victims was awake when the blaze broke out Saturday night, but she was unable to rouse the children before she was forced to flee.

Police said the fire killed Erica Salter, 10, Sharon Salter, 9, James Salter Jr., 7, Rene Salter, 5, Randy Salter, 2, and Charles Bosley, 2.

The children's partially burned bodies were found on the second floor, the battalion chief said.

Interest rates up

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest levels are headed back up to their 1981 highs, when the prime rate topped 20 percent, says the chief economist for the Wall Street investment house Salomon Brothers.

Henry Kaufman, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" program, said a business recovery in late 1982 combined with a big federal deficit would force up the cost of borrowing.

If the government tries to finance a huge deficit by borrowing, it will snuff out the recovery by crowding out private borrowing, Kaufman said. He urged the deficit be reduced by, among other things, postponing the third phase of scheduled income tax cuts.

Nostalgia for 'Dutch' Reagan

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — He returned to his alma mater as president of the United States but for a few hours, he was Dutch Reagan once again.

Even by presidential standards, it was an unusual day — delivery of 7 major foreign policy addresses at Eureka College mixed with personal reminders of the four years he had spent there as a scholarship student a half century ago during the Depression.

As Sunday drew to a close, the president declared, "I have spent the day in a warm flood of nostalgia."

Dressed in a maroon academic gown, Reagan blinked back tears as he joined the graduating class singing the school song, "Neath the Elms," at the end of the commencement exercise in the athletic center that bears his name.

He could have been any alumnus except for the fact that he had arrived by helicopter and was surrounded by Secret Service agents, including the head of his detail, who sat nearby on stage also dressed in an academic robe.

After spending the night in Chicago, Reagan was planning to attend a $500 per person fund-raiser today to help State Sen. Donald Totten reduce the debt he incurred during his campaign for lieutenant governor. Reagan also was giving a briefing to regional editors, delivering a speech to the YMCA and stopping at a black high school, Providence St. Mel, before returning to Washington tonight.

At the YMCA luncheon, the president was renewing his pitch for volunteerism in the private sector. "While maintaining government's commitment to the poor we want to see if it isn't possible to motivate our people to do what they can to make this a better country," he said in remarks prepared for delivery.

In the past, Reagan has described Eureka College as the place where "everything good that has happened to me" began. He reiterated that Sunday.

"Yes, it is a small college in a small community. It's no impersonal assembly line diploma mill. As the years pass, if you have let yourself absorb the spirit and tradition of this place, you'll find the four years you've spent here living in your memory as a rich and important part of your life."

From the graduation ceremonies at the school, the president and his wife, Nancy, flew by helicopter to Peoria, Ill., about 25 miles away, for a 50-year reunion with 37 former members of the class of 1932 and their spouses.

Tapes show oilman seeking aid from reputed Mafia boss?

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — When the trial of millionaire oilman Robert Sutton resumes in federal court here today, jurors are expected to hear him in a wiretapped conversation at the offices of reputed Gulf Coast Mafia boss Carlos Marcello.

Transcripts of the FBI tape recording, uncovered in public court records by the New Orleans Times-Picayune and States-Item, quote a desperate Sutton asking Marcello to have police jail two Lafayette, La., men to keep them away from federal investigators looking into Sutton's finances.

"...I want them in the slammer," the transcripts quote Sutton at the January, 1980, meeting in Marcello's office in the New Orleans suburb of Metairie, La.

Sutton's trial is entering its fourth week in U.S. District Court in Tulsa. He is charged in a 17-count indictment with conspiracy to obstruct justice, racketeering and oil misappropriation.

Prosecutors alleged that Sutton — whose holdings include a refinery in Crowley, La., and a large home in Breaux Bridge, La., — made profits of between $120 million and $960 million by falsely certifying price-controlled oil as more valuable "stripper oil."

The tape, recorded secretly by the FBI, apparently was the basis for the obstruction charge.

Marcello has not been charged in connection with the conversation, and is heard on other tapes saying he wants to shun away with Sutton.

"I don't want to — with him, cause that's too dangerous," Marcello told his Lafayette lawyer, Barry Mouton. "I don't want to get implicated."

But Marcello also indicated he was impressed with the oilman's wealth. "He's a high-powered —" Marcello said. "He showed me a financial statement for $167 million. He ain't showed it to nobody, but he showed it to me."

Defense attorneys have argued that Sutton's former employees betrayed him in an effort to gain some of his wealth.

The tapes showed Sutton felt Marcello had the influence to get a former employee identified as Jack Clothier and his lawyer, William Lambert, arrested and jailed in Lafayette, La. The arrests never took place.

During the conversation with Marcello, Sutton said the two men were to meet with investigators the next Monday and provide a box of records from a Sutton company, BPMLtd.

"(I) don't want the guys beaten up right now or anything done to them bad," Sutton said to Marcello as the two drank coffee. "If something happens to them, they could implicate me."

"I want those guys. I've got to get them picked up. Put in jail before Monday. And I want them there. And I want them in the slammer," the tapes quoted Sutton.

Marcello's reply was: "Man, you give me a short notice."

A few minutes later he said, "I got to have their addresses and names. You don't want to pick up the wrong man."

Clothier was said to have been given the box of records by business associate Gaylord Simon, who also worked for Sutton in Lafayette.

Cryts not raising one-man issue

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Missouri farmer Wayne Cryts, jailed in Arkansas for civil contempt of court, says the cause he is fighting for is bigger than some people think.

Cryts, 35, of Puxico, Mo., has been in the Pope County Jail at Russellville since April 28, when he refused to tell federal Bankruptcy Judge Charles Baker of Little Rock who helped him take grain involved in a bankruptcy case.

Cryts said in an interview Saturday that he is fighting for more than just a farmer's right to reclaim grain from a bankrupt elevator.

"I think this is the basic thing about the whole fight, that there are private property ownership rights they cannot take away from you without due process of law and the chance to go into the court," Cryts said. He made the comments in an interview with Little Rock radio station KLRE-FM.

Cryts took 31,000 bushels of grain from an elevator at New Madrid, Mo., in February 1981, six months after elevator owner James Brothers of Corning, Ark., began bankruptcy proceedings. Cryts moved the grain to an elevator at Bernie, Mo., and the following July, he moved the beans again, saying they belonged to him.

Farmers who support Cryts say bankruptcy laws should be changed so that a farmer doesn't lose money when an elevator where he has stored grain goes bankrupt. Cryts said Saturday that farmers are not the only ones who suffer because of bankruptcy laws. He said many people who are not farmers have telephoned him to say they have lost money and property because of bankruptcy laws that froze a bankrupt firm's assets and later redistributed them to others. "This goes a lot further than grain elevators," he said.

"We need a good simple law so that, if two attorneys take it into separate rooms and read it, they'll come out and say it means the same thing," Cryts said. "When a producer takes his private property to an elevator, it's his property until he is paid for it. If his property is in there when the elevator goes broke, it should be returned to its owner."

Cryts said inflation and interest rates affect the value of crops when grain is tied up for years in court cases. Most farmers can't afford legal fees to fight problems they encounter because of bankruptcy cases, he said.

12-year-old watches as father drowns

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 33-year-old man who tried to repair his motorboat during a fishing trip on Lake Worth fell into the water and drowned while his 12-year-old son watched helplessly, fire department officials said.

Another passenger in the boat, who jumped into the lake in an attempt to save the man, was rescued by two Lake Worth residents who heard her cries, said fire Lt. Les Burks.

The dead man was identified as Terry Johnson. Burks said he either slipped or was knocked into the water by high winds on the lake about 3:30 p.m. Sunday as he tried to repair a faulty throttle on the motor.

Fire rescue squad members discontinued their three-hour search for Johnson's body at about 7 p.m. and had not determined whether the search would resume today.

Johnson, his son Lonnie, and Kelly and Anita Martinez of Arlington, left in Johnson's boat at 12:30 p.m. from a point on the north shore of the lake, Burks said. The two residents later rescued Kelly Martinez from the lake's waters.

Cigarette caused condo blaze

HOUSTON (AP) — An arson investigator says a lighted cigarette caused an 11th-floor blaze in a high-rise condominium that killed a 59-year-old woman and forced 200 other residents from their rooms.

The fire that gutted a unit on the eastern side of the plush Inwood Manor Condominiums killed Norma B. Sollars, a widow who fire department officials said was a heavy smoker.

"We eliminated most of the other possibilities, other than a cigarette causing the fire," said arson investigator J.N. Witt.

He said investigators believe the woman left the lighted cigarette on a couch or chair of the unit where she lived alone. The furnishings, he said, were the most heavily damaged in the unit.

District Fire Chief John Slovacek said no damage estimate was available from the blaze, which started about 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the 16-story structure in Houston's prestigious River Oaks section.

A Harris County medical examiner's office spokesman said Sunday that the autopsy on Ms. Sollars was incomplete until toxicological tests could be performed to determine whether she had taken drugs or alcohol before her death.

Ms. Sollars' body was found in a bathroom near the bedroom where the blaze started. The fire was confined to the apartment. Two firefighters injured in the blaze were treated at a local hospital and released.

They were identified as Kenneth Jordan, who suffered smoke inhalation, and J.R. Wathem, who was burned on his hands and face.

Glenora McCants, manager of the condominiums, said Sunday that owners of all the units except the one that burned could return to their homes.

Farmers get chance to speak out tomorrow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers will have a chance tomorrow to let Washington policy makers know first-hand about their financial situation, says the Agricultural Council of America.

The council has set May 11 for a day-long "National Hearing on the Farm Economy."

Fifty toll-free telephone lines will be in operation over a 12-hour period to handle calls from "farmers, ranchers, local farm-business operators and the general public," the council said.

Besides being able to offer their own experiences, callers are being encouraged to propose their own solutions to the severe slump in the agricultural economy.

The project is being financed by a grant from Farmland Industries of Kansas City, Mo., the nation's largest farmer-owned cooperative.

Lawrence V. Gray of Nampa, Idaho, the council's board chairman, and Roger Clark of Brady, Neb., vice president of Farmland Industries, said in a statement that — after being adjusted for inflation — prospects for net farm income are at least the lowest since the Depression.

"It is painfully obvious that agriculture is hurting just as much as, if not more than, for example, the housing and automotive industries," they said. "We hope these calls will finally get that message across."

The telephones will be set up in the Cannon House Office Building on the Capitol grounds. They will be open for calls between 10 a.m. EDT and 10 p.m. EDT Tuesday, May 11, the council said.

The toll-free number during that time period is 1-800-368-5769.

Council officials said the project also is being supported by at least 70 members of Congress, representing both political parties. Many of the members of Congress or their staff people will be on hand to answer the calls.

Catfish, trout abundantly stocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — You hear a lot about farmers' grain prices being low because of the bumper crops last year. The same thing apparently is true about fish farmers.

According to a new Agriculture Department aquaculture report, farm-raised catfish and trout were in abundant supply in 1981.

"Catfish sales, despite a substantial rise, did not keep pace with production, resulting in a buildup in inventories and lower prices," the report said.

"Producer sales of trout in Idaho, where output and processing are concentrated, were down as processors began to reduce inventories. Large supplies and lower prices at the processor level pushed down farm prices for trout."

Last year, it said, catfish producers in 15 states surveyed sold 71.8 million pounds live fish to processors, compared to 63.3 million in 1980. Prices averaged 63.7 cents a pound, compared to 67.6 cents in 1980.

Revenues also included sales of catfish to buyers other than processors, such as fingerlings and stocker fish to other producers.

In all, the report said, gross revenues totaled about $71.1 million. And it wasn't enough to cover producers' expenses, which were reported at $84.1 million last year.

Subsidies suggested for mortgage industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is taking up a proposal that would attempt to revive the depressed housing industry by providing $1 billion in subsidies for home mortgages.

The emergency housing bill, half of a Democratic initiative to put the unemployed back to work, is scheduled for a House vote Wednesday.

Because Republicans have been calling for similar programs to aid housing, the bill is expected to pass. However, the Reagan administration has objected to the cost, raising the possibility of a veto.

Other issues before Congress this week include ways of cutting deficits through cuts in military spending, Social Security costs and whether a freeze in nuclear weapons can be achieved.

The housing bill would put an estimated 140,000 Americans back to work, Democratic sponsors say. The construction industry, with a 19.4 percent unemployment rate, has been affected heavily by the recession.

The bill would subsidize mortgages on new homes, thereby easing consumers' problems in obtaining financing during a time of high interest rates.

The housing half of the two-part Democratic program announced Friday is being handled as emergency legislation. The second $1 billion program, for public works jobs, will come to the House floor later.

Sponsors believe the housing bill will provide immediate assistance to builders and industries that make products that go into homes. "The activity that it will generate is certain to be contagious. It will help convince America that it can build again," said Rep. Fernand J. St Germain, D-R.I.

The bill would provide subsidies to home-buyers whose income is below 130 percent of the area median income and would give priority to first-time homebuyers.

The interest rate would not be subsidized below 9 1/2 percent, meaning the program would stop if interest rates fall below that level. Families would have to contribute at least 25 percent of monthly income toward paying the mortgage.

Making travel fun for Fido

Woof!

Don't forget the family pets when you're making plans for a vacation.

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says that thousands of people take their pets with them when they travel around the United States and overseas, but a trip with an animal can present special problems.

The ASPCA has several suggestions to make things easier. It also has a 60-page booklet, with information on animal regulations in each of the 50 states, and more than 100 foreign countries. The booklet, "Traveling with Your Pet," is available, at no charge, from the ASPCA Education Department, 441 E. 92nd St., New York, N.Y., 10028.

Before you start your trip, have your pet examined by a veterinarian. Be sure you have health and rabies vaccination certificates available for inspection. Many states now require vaccinations against parvovirus as part of the standard health certification process for dogs. The disease — which can be fatal — is particularly prevalent during the summer and in warmer climates; if you plan a summer trip and have not had your pet vaccinated against parvo, see your vet immediately.

Baseball team opens new era

Our heartiest congratulations to the Big Spring High School Steers for their first-ever baseball championship. The team has brought great honor to the high school and to the city.

"AWESOME" IS THE WORD one of the players used to describe Saturday's victory at the Big Spring High School diamond. But the team has done more than merely win a district baseball championship. They have rallied the hopes, enthusiasm and dignity of the city.

The stands are full of supporters at Saturday's game. In fact, pitcher Moe Rubio mentioned that "They were a distraction because we've never had people come out like this before and support us."

THE BASEBALL TEAM has broken the horrid cycle of defeat, lack of support by fans; more defeat, more apathy.

It takes almost super-human effort to break such a destructive cycle, but Big Spring's baseball team has done it. The ball is now in the fans' court. Let us hope that a show of support for the Steers will never again be seen as something out of the ordinary.

Our congratulations also to Coach Frank Ibarra. The Big Spring "loser" myth has been dispelled.

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

A literary hero

The book "The Catcher in the Rye" turned 30 years old a couple of months back. And it did so without too much fanfare, except for the fact it was listed as one of the books most often blacklisted by various censorship groups.

That's really nothing new. Censorship groups have inked out and cut out objectionable words, and in some cases, entirely removed the book from one library or another since the early 1950s.

Ah, but the power of J.D. Salinger's words lives on. The book is now in its 53rd edition in Bantam paperback alone and it sells just as well as when it was published 30 years ago. There are 10 million copies in print.

The book censors will never kill off Holden Caulfield, the protagonist of the novel, and I couldn't be happier.

HOLDEN IS ONE OF the few "literary" heroes I feel any affinity for. I read the book for the first time when I was about 18 or 19 and was immediately captivated by Holden's fragile soul. He was just like me — bored, afraid and caught between adolescence. Sometimes I still feel caught in that void.

It makes me angry to see the censors always list the book as unsavory or dirty, especially when Holden has carried me over bouts of depression, encounters with stupid people and the general craziness of life.

I get angry when I think maybe there's a kid out there somewhere who needs a book like "Catcher" but won't find it because someone, who has failed to look past the book's use of colorful language, has jerked it from the shelves.

I wonder if book censors read the books or just look for particular words or ideas that offend them. I think they may be missing the meaning of books like "Catcher."

It's like Holden says "People never notice anything."

I admire Holden's ability to poke fun at the "phony" things in life. He can't stand things that aren't natural and spontaneous. In a world where there is too much plastic and pre-planned rigmarole it's nice to reveal in Holden's true feelings for a while.

We all have those deep, dark thoughts we never vocalize, so it's a cathartic experience to have Holden say those thoughts for us.

ONE THING I've noticed about the books that are blacklisted — they almost all deal with adolescent feelings. It's as if the censors mean to say adolescents have no right to understand their agitated feelings. Just from experience I know it is a relief for me to read a writer who sees me to have climbed inside my heart and drawn forth my feelings.

It is unfortunate that John Chapman, the man who shot John Lennon, carried a copy of "Catcher" on the night Lennon was murdered. It gave the censors more fuel and a chance to say "Aha! You see what the book did to him." But who knows what lurked in Chapman's twisted mind. I don't think Holden Caulfield was the cause of Lennon's murder.

I'm glad the book has endured and I think it will continue to endure. The censors can't kill "Catcher" and its creative genius, moreover, the censors will never kill independent thought.

I salute you Holden and all you stand for.

Youthful job trading

Most of the telephone calls I've been receiving these days go something like this:

"Hi! It's Phil."

"Hello, Phil, how are you?"

"Never mind the small talk. My kid is graduating from college this year and he wants a job."

"This is a bad time to get a job in Washington."

"That's why I'm calling you. I figured you would know somebody."

"I know a lot of people, but I don't know anybody who can give him a job."

"What about all those senators and congressmen you're always writing about?"

"I haven't had any luck with them. I called a senator the other day about a job for my nephew, and he asked me for a job for his niece. It was a stand-off. Neither one of us could do anything for the other."

"You know Ben Bradley?"

"Of course I know Ben Bradley."

"Good! Get my kid a job with The Washington Post."

"I can't do that. Bradley had to get a job for his grandson, so he called up Otis Chandler at the Los Angeles Times. Chandler said he'd give the kid a job if Bradley hired his grandson to work on The Post. Bradley had to use up his last draft choice in the trade with Chandler."

"What about the White House? My kid is willing to start anywhere."

"I can't ask the White House for a favor because if they give your kid a job, they'll expect me to go in the tank for them in exchange."

"What about the State Department?"

"I don't know anybody in the State Department. Besides any job there is offered first to the kids of big Republican contributors. You have to understand. I have nothing to trade with anybody. I can't just call up and ask for a job for your kid in this town, if I can't get one for mine."

"So what you're saying is I should tell my kid you won't get him a job in Washington."

"That's unfair. I like your kid, but I have 45 resumes from sons and daughters on my desk right now, and I can't even get them in the Marine Corps."

"How about calling up your friends at Public Television?"

"I don't have any friends at Public Television any more. They were all laid off."

"My kid isn't proud, he'll even work for a lawyer."

"Look, Phil, I'd love to help you but I don't have any clout with lawyers. The word is out on the street I can't get their kids a job in this town, so they have no interest in interviewing anyone I send them."

"You turned out to be one hulluva friend. All I ask you for is one little lousy favor and you give me the brush."

"Has your kid come to Washington and tried to get a job for himself?"

"I told him he couldn't have to because I knew you. It's pretty late in the game to tell him he has to find his own job. It will break his heart that his Uncle Artie wouldn't even help him fulfill his lifetime dream."

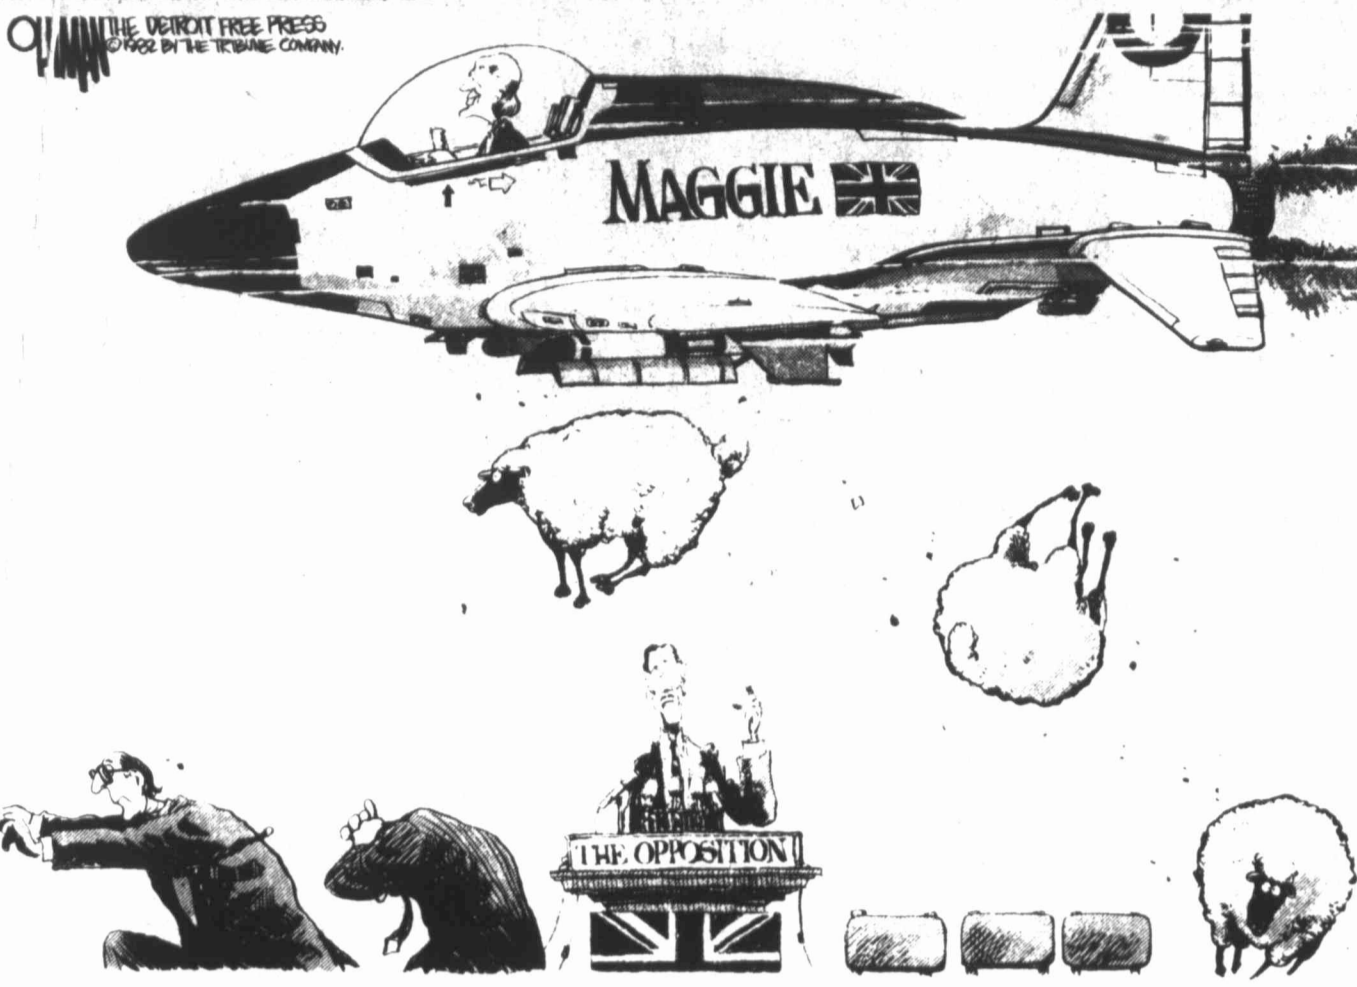

"Why didn't you call me first before you told him I could get him a job?"

"Because if you said you couldn't, he would lose all respect for me."

"Okay, I'll make a few calls. Maybe I can get lucky."

"That's more like it. Who are you going to call?"

"I have a friend in the NBC bureau

Miscalculating Argentina

Argentine occupation, the counter-argument never had a chance. Now, however, some policy-makers wish they could turn back the clock.

Argentina's demonstrated intent to ride out the British assault makes it more unlikely than ever that there will be a quick, negotiated settlement.

On a broader level, U.S. officials were taken aback at the furious Latin American reaction to Reagan's statement of support for Britain. Although not yet fully advertised, the U.S. has been accused by hemispheric neighbors of crimes against the Rio Treaty and of imperiling joint hemispheric defense to the benefit of Cuba's Fidel Castro.

A telephone call from a leading Argentine official to a high former U.S. official early in the morning of April 30 showed the depth of anti-U.S. sentiment. With "terror in his voice," the Argentine official said he had just been advised that Reagan "is going to hit us on the head" even though Argentina had not yet closed the door to Secretary of State Alexander Haig's mediation efforts. He begged the former official to intervene.

The losing argument, if successful, would have required much tougher U.S. treatment of the British and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who is Ronald Reagan's favorite. With overwhelming majorities in Congress pushing Reagan to back the British and the glaring illegality of the

But there was no turning back at that stage. The policy decision to give Britain U.S. economic and military support was backed within the administration by a strong majority in the belief that it would work.

Now that Argentina is making it clearer every day there will be no retreat under Britain's superior military strength, condemnation of the U.S. by previously friendly Latin American leaders—which so far has been private—is likely to get noisy. The heart of current unpublicized criticism is that support of British military action will make much tougher U.S. attempts to mobilize Latin America against Castro-directed aggression.

That implies Soviet gains in the U.S. backyard, not by overt intervention but by exploiting desires throughout the hemisphere to take revenge on Washington for the Falklands humiliation. Down that road lie more instability and U.S. influence over future events, a condition afflicting this country all around the world but more dangerously so close to home.

Haig makes monkey of self

WASHINGTON — The full story can now be told of how a 19-year-old Nicaraguan made a world-class monkey out of Secretary of State Alexander Haig. Incredibly as it may seem, Haig was largely responsible for his own humiliation.

Though Washington officials would like to forget it, most of the world remembers the carefully staged appearance of young Orlando Jose Tardencilla at a State Department press conference on March 12. The Sandinista stripling was supposed to be living proof that Nicaragua was aiding and abetting leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

Instead, of course, he told the world — live, on network TV, thoughtfully arranged by his American coaches — that his confessions incriminating the Nicaraguan regime had been wrung out of him by torture and were pure horsefeathers.

It was a bad day for Haig and his hardliners. All hands responsible for the fiasco attempted a hasty disengagement.

The State Department, caught red-handed, could only stammer and stutter in embarrassment. The CIA at first piously proclaimed its innocence of any involvement in the pathetic affair. When the absurdity of this line became obvious, the spooks judiciously leaked a secret document to a trusted reporter, which tended to show that Tardencilla's interrogation by CIA experts had been painstakingly thorough.

THE TRUTH OF the matter is this: American intelligence people knew about Tardencilla almost as soon as he was captured in January 1981. Not only that, but some State Department officials greeted his confessions with open skepticism. "His story was a little shaky," one diplomatic source recalled. "That whole thing sounded phony."

What particularly turned off State Department people was Tardencilla's claim that he had received guerrilla training in Ethiopia. This made no sense: Nicaragua and Cuba have ample training facilities for El Salvador-bound guerrillas. Why send recruits all the way to Africa?

Eventually, the youth's supposed confession was filed and forgotten, as it should have been.

But early this year, Haig began claiming the United States had proof positive that the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua was deeply involved in El Salvador. He was challenged by Congress and the press to produce the "smoking gun."

It was at this point, apparently, that someone remembered the young Nicaraguan prisoner, whose confession so neatly matched the Haig theory of Sandinista involvement in El Salvador's civil war.

Fortunately for young Tardencilla, his Salvadoran captors had never quite given up hope of exploiting the confession they had extracted under torture. So they kept him alive against the day when his bizarre tale could be turned into useful propaganda.

My reporters Jon Lee Anderson and Lucette Lagnado reached Tardencilla by telephone in Nicaragua, where he is now a national hero. He told them what happened next:

Early in March, he was visited in his solitary prison cell by an American official. Tardencilla said the American told him he could either come to the United States and tell his story or be left to rot in jail.

It was an easy choice to make. The young Nicaraguan had been brutally tortured by the Salvadoran police and kept in solitary for virtually an entire year.

The day after the American's visit, Tardencilla was flown to Miami, then on to Washington. His new captors treated him better; they even took him to an optometrist for new glasses. He was interrogated by a series of

Billy Graham

Is man basically bad?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: The human race has made so many scientific advancements, particularly in the last century, that I don't see how you can say men are basically sinful and bad. I believe man is basically good, and history shows this. — I.D.

DEAR I.D.: Does history really show this? Frankly, I don't think so. Think of all the wars that have been fought, and are even being fought today. Take a look at any newspaper, and see the headlines which tell about the growing crime rate, the breakup of family life, or the way people destroy themselves with alcohol or drugs.

That is not to say mankind has not made remarkable scientific progress, for he has. I am thankful for all the advances that have been made in such fields as medicine or communications. But how does man use his discoveries and inventions? Take nuclear physics as an example. Many beneficial results have come from the diagnosis and treatment of cancers with radioactive materials. But how else has man used his knowledge of the atomic? You know as well as I do — we have developed the capacity to destroy the human race with our nuclear bombs.

The Bible says two things about the human race that you need to know. First, it tells us that man is made in the image of God. That gives a dignity and meaning to human life, because it tells us we are not an accident on this planet. Second, it tells us that we have rebelled against God, and the image of him that we bear has been marred and distorted. I think history demonstrates that on every page.

But there is a further thing to be said. The Bible says man can be restored. God created us, and he can re-create us as well as we turn to him in repentance and faith in Christ, his Son. "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has gone, the new has come!" (2 Corinthians 5:17).

Do not let pride stand in your way between you and God. You need God's grace also, because you are sinful and have not obeyed God perfectly. But God wants you to come to him, and make you into the person he created you to be.

experts and interviewed by a psychiatrist.

The 19-year-old soldier, eager to improve his lot, told the interrogators what they wanted to hear. He guessed at specifics and came close enough to satisfy them.

So his interrogators proudly presented the young Nicaraguan as the "smoking gun" that their boss so desperately needed. And it blew up in Al Haig's face.

Footnote: According to Radio Havana, Tardencilla was recently in Cuba to attend a communist youth congress. He was hailed as a hero.

BUGGING THE PRESIDENT: The White House has been in an uproar since I began publishing excerpts from the telephone conversations aboard Air Force One, including President Reagan's instructions to Secretary of State Alexander Haig on the Falkland Islands negotiations.

The National Security Council has now ordered new procedures to "safeguard these conversations. Clearly, the great concern is that the American people might become privy to the unguarded statements of the public servants.

Eavesdroppers in the Kremlin listen constantly to the conversations from the president's plane, helicopter and limousine. It is assumed that other nations, including the British, Cubans and Israelis, also monitor these conversations.

Frankly, I believe the American people are entitled to learn as much about their leaders as the Kremlin knows.

Dr. Donohue

Odor Due to Diet

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a female, aged 26. Within the past year I have been concerned about a distinct and strong ammonia smell in my urine. I notice it in the morning. There is no pain associated with urination, but it is rather cloudy. I do try to balance my diet, without too much junk food, and I take a multivitamin tablet each day. Would you consider this serious?—L.G.

All I can really tell you is that the ammoniacal smell could or could not be of significance. But you and I know I am not going to settle for that. One reason for the odor can be that when the urine stands for a period of time, the substance urea forms in it. That begins to form ammonia. So that may be what is happening to you. After spending a night in your urinary bladder, your urine may be breaking down into ammonia. That is nothing to worry about.

However, infections with certain germs can do the same thing to urine. The germs hasten the process. The same goes for the cloudiness. That may represent only the normal mineral content of urine, or it may represent infection. The fact that you have no symptoms, like burning or pain, does not close the door to possible infections. Some infections are silent.

With the doubt in your mind, I would have a very simple test done—a urinalysis. That will settle the issue for you.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the difference between a corneal abrasion and a corneal erosion? What are the symptoms of either? What are the treatments? Just how serious is each? Should one see an eye specialist?—G.S.

The cornea is the transparent part in the front of the eyeball. A corneal abrasion is a scratch on it. Usually, a foreign body causes the scratch. Abrasions hurt, especially when you move the lid over the eyeball. The eye is often red. Your family doctor can treat this quite effectively. Generally, the eye is patched and an antibiotic saline is applied. Corneal abrasions usually heal promptly.

A corneal erosion is a deeper scratch of the cornea, like an ulcer. And it, too, may result from some injury to the eye. Corneal erosions are painful, also, but they are more serious than abrasions, also slower to heal. I would recommend you see an ophthalmologist if you have corneal erosion.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What kind of test is done for catecholamines? What is it supposed to show about the body? What if it shows them to be high? I would appreciate any information that will help me to understand this test better.—A.A.P.

Catecholamines are kinds of hormones. Adrenalin is a catecholamine. These hormones are made by certain glands. A major producer of them is the adrenal gland. Our body needs them to function properly. Yet, you can get too much of them.

One cause for overproduction is the presence of a tumor of the adrenal gland. That is called a pheochromocytoma, another phrase you have heard. The tumor of the gland results in too many catecholamines being made. That causes high blood pressure. Are you surprised about that? It is a rare cause of high blood pressure, and fortunately it is one of the forms that can be cured surgically. When the tumor is removed, the blood pressure returns to normal.

The doctor checks for catecholamines by measuring their level in the urine. If it is high, he assumes there are too many being produced. You have left me hanging about what is to be done for you next.

What are ulcers? How can you help yourself get rid of ulcers and stay rid of them? Read the booklet, "Peptic Ulcers: The Modern View and Treatment." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of The Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

MOTHER'S DAY FIESTA — Maria Limon receives her corsage from Ofelia Florez at the fiesta for elderly mothers held at St. Thomas Youth Center.

Ladies Altar Society honors mothers

Felicidades Madres was the theme of the fiesta that honored elderly mothers of the community over 70 years of age. The fiesta was held at St. Thomas Church Youth Center Saturday.

Eighteen mothers were honored at the event. Jesusita Gonzales was recognized as the oldest mother at 96 years of age. Mrs. Gonzales was born in 1885 in El Paso. Francisca Perez was next oldest at 95 years.

The mothers were served a Mexican meal and participated in games. Ladies Altar Society assisted with the games.

Prizes were won by Pilar Roman, Nocolasa Molina, Francisca Perez, Nicolasa Morelion, Micaela Del Bosque, Monica Rocha and Chona Hernandez. The centerpiece was won by Petra Hernandez.

Gifts for the games were donated by the St. Joseph Society of St. Thomas church. St. Thomas Church Mariachis, directed by Pascual Porras, serenaded the mothers with songs expressing their love for them.

Each mother received a fan, apron and carnation. The Ladies Altar Society has adopted this yearly project of honoring elderly mothers on Mother's Day.

Piano students auditioned

Sixteen students piano pupils of Mrs. Emilee Beckham, 1107 Sycamore, performed in the National Piano Playing Auditions, for Mrs. Rene Elliot, adjudicator, at Howard College Friday.

These students are members of the National Federation of Student Musicians, with headquarters in Austin. Each piano student prepared a repertoire for elementary, intermediate, preparatory classification. A certificate, report card and pin were awarded to each student.

Stacy Swann auditioned for her high school diploma from the Guild of Piano Teachers. Stacy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Swann of Midland, formerly of Coahoma. Those students that auditioned were: Christy Alexander, Michelle Evans, Sonya Evans, Jeffery Johnson, Karri LaRoche, Carey Lewis, Kenda Madry, Angela Sinclair, David Sprinkle, Lydia Sprinkle, Mark Sprinkle, Nate Sprinkle, Stacy Swann, Melissa Turner, Christy Webb and John Webb.

Dear Abby

Man's health a matter of record

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the man who bragged about his physiological attributes at the age of 77, I have decided to list my own attributes, which far outshine his.

For instance, I am still a vigorous and athletically inclined individual at the age of 96!

Furthermore, I have not been sick in the last 50 years, not even with a headache or backache. Furthermore, I still engage in daily calisthenics, exercising every muscle and organ in my body. Furthermore, I am still mentally vigorous. (I write occasional newspaper and magazine articles.)

I still have an excellent appetite for good, wholesome food, and equally, if not more important, I am still sexually potent.

If any man or woman can duplicate my record, I would be glad to hear from them.

WILLIAM MCHENRY, WORCHESTER, MASS.
DEAR WILLIAM: I'll bet you will hear from a good number of readers. But if you're challenged by a woman demanding proof of all your claims—you're on your own.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my 18-year-old daughter told me that a boy had made a derogatory remark about her at school in the presence of several of her friends. She refused to repeat the remark but said she was very upset because she had always considered him to be a nice person and a good friend. He had been to our home many times and I also thought he was nice.

I decided to phone the boy and talk to him about it. His mother answered the phone and said he wasn't there. Abby, I have always appreciated being informed when my children have done something wrong, so I took a chance and assumed that this boy's mother felt the same. She did, so I told her what my daughter had told me. She was very nice, thanked me for telling her and said she would speak to her son about it. Did I do wrong? If my daughter finds out I called and reacts badly, how can I make amends?

GOOD INTENTIONS

DEAR GOOD: The scenario will probably go like this: Boy's mother tells son that a girl's mother phoned to report that he had bad-mouthed daughter. Son either denies or confirms the charges, after which he will be angry at your daughter for getting him into trouble at home. Your daughter in turn will be angry with you for getting into the act. You should not have made that call. And you can make amends by apologizing and promising not to do it again.

DEAR ABBY: I really enjoy your column. I cut out some of the articles I think are especially good and display them on my refrigerator. One letter stayed there for a year.

I am enclosing one I would like to see as a return on Mother's Day:

"Woman was created from the rib of man.
"She was not made from his head to top him,
"Nor out of his feet to be trampled upon.
"But out of his side to be equal to him,
"Under his arm to be protected,
"And near his heart to be loved."

A LOVED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Here it is—one day late, like so many cards and gifts.

Do you have questions about sex, love drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Students play for honors

Sixteen piano pupils from the class of Milred Harris, Garden City, have registered as candidates for the National Fraternity of Student Musicians, sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Teacher Division of The American College of Musicians, of which Ms. Harris is a member. This group of young piano hobbyists played in the National Piano Playing Auditions, at the Howard College and strove for pledges, local, district, state, national or even international honors which the organization conferred according to the number of standard classic, romantic and modern pieces chosen from the Masters of pianoforte literature each student can perform.

The entrants from Garden City are: Lisa Cypert, Stephanie Frerich, Christie Hirt, Elizabeth Glass, Wesley Glass, Michael Jones, Kristi Jones, Stephanie Seidenberger, Kelli Stringer, Kayla Tonn, Paula Wilde and Staci Wilkerson.

The entrants from Sterling City are: Rene Stewart, Jeff Glass, Christie Barr and Scott Clark.

Kathy Harrell feted with shower

Kathy Harrell, bride-elect of Mike Hicks, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Bill Blalack on May 3.

Refreshments were served from a table covered in a russet and brown cloth and centered with a fall floral arrangement.

Corsages were presented to the bride's mother, Mrs. W.F. Harrell and mother of the groom, Mrs. Harold Hicks. The prospective bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Lawrence Robinson, was a special guest.

Hostesses were Jane Blalack, Billie Adams, Myrna Richardson, Koleta Carlile, Ellen Miller, Dolores Hull, Dorothy Carroll, Evelyn Zellars, Sue Balzer, Rebecca Barbee, Shirley Mariott, Laverne Hull and Mary Ann Conard.

The hostesses gave the honoree a 12 speed mixer and the fall floral arrangement.

The wedding will be held May 21 at 10 a.m. at College Baptist Church.

Smooth, passionate music — will it sell?

● "Architecture and Morality," by Orchestral Manoeuvres in the Dark, Epic-Dindisc-Virgin Records. The majestic grandeur of England's Orchestral Manoeuvres in the Dark's second album may be destined to make inroads in the plasticized world of popular music if enough people ever get a chance to hear it. "Architecture and Morality" is a passionate, romantic album that is an aural delight.

The basic ingredient of Orchestral Manoeuvres' sound is not much different from the best-selling album by Vangelis, "Chariots of Fire" — the plaintive synthesizers, the stirring keyboards.

But while Vangelis' instrumental noodlings often are laced with saccharin filler, the two men of O.M.D. can not only sing well, but their music has purpose and passion with every note counting.

The prime example of O.M.D.'s appeal is in the masterpiece cut on "Architecture and Morality" — "Joan of Arc." The song builds from a sighing choral beginning and the delicate chime of a triangle to a slow drum beat and the aching lyrics. A painful impression of a love never to be returned by a long-dead historical figure is heightened by the stirring swirls of synthesizers.

As vocalist Andrew McCluskey's voice proclaims "I gave her everything that I ever owned," the music crescendos to reflect his emotion in synthesized passion. Just as the drums and mellotron kick in to nail down the depth of the singer's feelings for Joan, the sound drops off as he whispers to her across time. But the music soars again as the singer realizes that not only time and space separate him from his love: she is God's.

McCluskey and Humphreys, who also play the majority of the numerous synthesized instruments on "Architecture," have the deceptive talent of taking simple rhythms and crafting elaborate cadences around those rhythms. Clearly, O.M.D. offers music with the potential to be popular — the catchy hooks, the FM-radio smoothness, plus an intelligent use of sound.

The problem lies in whether anyone will give the group a listen. The "synthesizer sound" is currently popular with the aforementioned Vangelis selling well, along with albums by the Human League, Softball Cell and even the Cars.

Of course, O.M.D.'s seamless techpop may not appeal to those who enjoy the rough-hewn chords of country or the brittle edge of rock. But the glorious power of O.M.D. deserves attention or, as the album's final song warns, "This is the beginning and the end."

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electrical utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.

This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation.

Bogart, 'disco king,' dead at 39

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Neil Bogart, the entertainment magnate whose discoveries ranged from Donna Summer to Curtis Mayfield, died of cancer Saturday, his publicist said. He was 39.

The spokesman, Michael Ameen, said Bogart died at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

Bogart's Casablanca Records and Filmworks made millions of dollars from films including "Midnight Express," "The Deep" and "Thank God It's Friday" and also struck gold in the late 70s with a string of disco hits by Miss Summer, the Village People and others.

Bogart and his partners sold their controlling interest in Casablanca to the German-based Polygram Group three years ago, but Bogart quickly founded yet another company, Boardwalk Entertainment, which is now enjoying hits by such artists as Joan Jett and Richard "Dimples" Fields.

A 20-year veteran of the entertainment business, the New York City native started his career as a recording artist but quickly turned to behind-the-scenes positions. By 25 he was general manager at Cameo-Parkway Records and was known in the industry as "The Kid."

NEIL BOGART
Discovered Donna Summer

In a later executive position at Buddha records, he helped build the "Superfly" successes of Mayfield. Hits by such other Buddha acts as Melanie, the Isley Brothers, the Edwin Hawkins Singers and Peter Noone — better known as Herman of Herman's Hermits — prompted Time magazine to dub Bogart "the bubblegum kid."

In 1973, Bogart fulfilled his longtime dream of founding a record company of his own with the creation of Casablanca. His first major success there was with the then-unknown singer-producer team of Donna Summer and Giorgio Moroder, who put together a 17-minute tune called "Love to Love You Baby" that became one of the first giant disco hits and skyrocketed Miss Summer to fame. Soon Bogart had yet another nickname: "the disco king."

Health Fair Beat

Raising a family is no easy chore. For some parents it can mean more problems than they can cope with on their own. The end result may well be that children in such families will be abused by parents whose emotional deprivation as children cause them to be unable to meet the dependency needs of their children.

What child abuse is, how it starts, and how the Texas Department of Human Resources attempts to change abuse patterns within the family will be the focus of the department's booth at the Big Spring

Health & Safety Fair May 15 at Big Spring Mall.

"People generally are not aware of the extent of the problem in Big Spring. We'll be at the fair to talk with visitors about the problem, and offer educational pamphlets and handouts," said Robert Rivera, child placement worker with the department.

A video presentation on parenting skills will be a part of their booth, also. Bringing the problem even closer to home, slides of actual abuse cases will be shown. The department will explain, too, how child abuse cases are investigated locally.

"I don't know whose idea it was to organize a health fair locally, but we're glad to have this opportunity to air the problem of child abuse and how the community can help," Rivera said.

Another part of the DHR exhibit will be information about the foster parent program in Big Spring.

Graham tells Soviets to follow orders

MOSCOW (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, preaching in Moscow's only Baptist Church, told Soviets to "obey the authorities" and made no mention of allegedly human rights violations or the detention of dissidents in jails, labor camps and mental hospitals.

The 63-year-old Southern Baptist minister spoke to 900 officially invited guests, while about 300 Baptists singing hymns were kept behind a police barricade 200 yards from the church. Some of the Baptists said they heard of his visit through shortwave radio broadcasts by the U.S. government-run Voice of America and traveled to Moscow from all over the country.

Security was tight and only people with tickets were allowed into the Baptist Church and a Russian Orthodox cathedral where Graham spoke later.

The Soviet Union has an estimated 600,000 Baptists, including 100,000 who worship illegally in unregistered congregations.

Asked by a reporter whether he knew there was a group waiting outside the church for a glimpse of him, he replied, "I didn't know that" and proceeded to the black Chajka limousine waiting to take him to the Patriarchal Yelokhovskiy Cathedral.

Although police warned the street crowd to stop singing hymns, apparently no arrests were made.

Graham also apparently ignored a small demonstration at the end of his first sermon in which two people held up banners saying "we have more than 150 prisoners for the work of the Gospel" and "deliver those who are drawn away to death."

A plainclothesman led away the young woman holding the first banner, but what happened to the other person was not known. The official news agency Tass refused to transmit for The Associated Press a picture taken of the woman unfurling the banner.

Graham arrived here Friday for a six-day visit as the guest of the Orthodox Patriarchate. He said he would touch on the human rights issue in his 20-minute address Tuesday to the conference of "Religious Workers for Saving the Sacred Gift of Life from Nuclear Catastrophe."

HIT IT WHERE THEY AIN'T — Alcar batter Rick Ferguson attempts to hit the ball to the opposite field in yesterday's championship game in the David and Goliath

Alcar edges White to win David and Goliath tourney

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Sports Editor

It's quite a sacrifice to let your husbands play softball on Mother's Day weekend but the wives and other spectators at Johnny Stone Park were treated to some great action at the Sixth Annual Big Spring Athletics David and Goliath Softball Tournament.

Alcar of Midland defeated C.A. White of Snyder 6-5 for the overall championship and took home the giant five-foot trophy for their performance. In addition, slugging center fielder Willie Hill was named the Most Valuable Player in the Open Division and hit the most home runs, duplicating his feats of four years past.

Eddie Bane of White was named the MVP in the Class A Division as White defeated Coors of Midland for the title of the three-day event.

Alcar and Totco compiled 6-1 records in round-robin play in the Open Division but Alcar got the championship nod by defeating Totco 23-21 in head-on competition.

Ricky Ferguson, Mike Sawyer, Robert Cochran and Alex Kager were named to the Open Division All-Tournament team from Alcar.

David Mayes, Jay Rosemisch, Ricky Hopper and Shawn Ragland were on the Class A All-Tournament team from C.A. White. Ralph Lewis won the Golden Glove award while Ricky Beard was the home run king.

Other All-Tourney selections from the Open Division were Mita Sterling, Luke Groves and David Shelton of Totco, Leroy Patton and Jake Cannon of MSA and Gary Gregory of Cowan.

All-Tourney picks from Class A were Belo Sanchez, Carlos Corralo and Sambo Sanchez of Coors, Richard Nance and Phil Huston of Bad Company and Mike Murray of Dickey Box.

The Astros of Big Spring won the Sportsmanship Trophy in the Open Division while Coors took the honors in the Class A division.

76ers rocked by Celtics...

BOSTON (AP) — The sight of one of the best teams in basketball playing like one of the worst was enough to move a grown man to tears.

"You cry and you laugh," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham after watching his 76ers annihilated by the Boston Celtics 121-81 in the opening game of the best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference championship. "I'm laughing now because I cried on the court and got all the tears out there."

"We didn't do anything in any phase of our game, and they were out-standing," Cunningham said.

"I think you have to give all the credit to us today," said Boston's Cedric Maxwell. "I don't think they made too many turnovers. We did everything well."

The 40-point margin was the widest of any Celtic playoff win and any 76er playoff loss.

Boston's biggest previous winning playoff margin was 129-95 over St.

Louis on April 2, 1961 in the opener of the championship series won by the Celtics, 4-1. Philadelphia's biggest playoff loss was 156-120 against Milwaukee on March 30, 1970.

The unexpected spark that turned the game into an unexpected rout was reserve Rick Robey.

Robey came in with Boston leading 33-24 with 10:07 left in the second quarter. He played the rest of the period, scoring 15 points and boosting the Celtics to a 62-45 halftime bulge. The 76ers never came closer after that.

"Rick was the difference in the game," Maxwell said.

"Any time you can come in and help a team win a playoff game it's going to make you feel good," said Robey, who finished with a season high of 19 points.

Philadelphia's top two centers, Darryl Dawkins and Caldwell Jones each had three fouls for most of the second period, and third-stringer Earl Cureton played the final six minutes. Dawkins said that he was hampered by a painful leg and added that he didn't know if he would play in the second game here Wednesday night. He broke the same leg during the season.

Boston pulled down 67 rebounds, two more than its regular-season high, and held Philadelphia to just 32.3 percent field goal shooting.

"For us to stay in the ballgame and slow down their running game, we knew we would have to control the boards," said Boston center Robert Parish. "They got the ball inside to their people, but we double-teamed them and their shots weren't dropping."

Parish and Larry Bird scored 24 points each for Boston, which led by as much as 48 points, 110-62. Andrew Toney paced the 76ers with 15.

The Celtics put the game away in a 31-11 third quarter that gave them a 93-56 lead.

...while LA rolls over Spurs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Basketball Association playoffs are giving the Los Angeles Lakers an opportunity to erase some bitter memories.

So far, they are perfect, but the misery of a year ago is still remembered.

The Lakers won the NBA championship following the 1980-81 season, but last spring was a different matter as they were eliminated by the Houston Rockets in a first-round mini-series.

"We're playing well as a team because we can remember the disappointment from last season," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar after the Lakers whipped the San Antonio Spurs 128-117 Sunday in the opener of the Western Conference championship series. "This year, the team is ready. We want to win."

Abdul-Jabbar, a six-time NBA most valuable player who turned 35 last month, led the way with 32 points, 10 rebounds, six assists and five blocked shots as the Lakers held off the gritty Spurs.

The Lakers, by winning the Pacific Division championship, didn't have to play in a mini-series this year. They advanced to the conference championship series by sweeping the Phoenix Suns in four games.

The second game in the best-of-seven Lakers Spurs set will be played here Tuesday night before the teams travel to San Antonio for games next Friday and Saturday.

"We definitely have our work cut out for us," said Abdul-Jabbar. "San Antonio is a very physical team and can score whenever they like."

"If we don't get a good defensive effort from the team, we won't win the series. Today's game showed how hard they can play and this will not be an easy series."

The Spurs can play better, as evidenced by their 47.9 percent field goal performance and 66.7 percent effort from the free throw line. The Lakers hit on 55 percent of their floor shots and 73.3 percent of their free throw tries.

However, the Spurs were in contention nearly all the way. Mike Bratz missed a layup with 40 seconds to go that would have drawn them to within four points. The Lakers then scored the final five points of the game to give them their 11-point margin of victory.

San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck was shaking his head afterwards.

"I will tell you how bad things are, our guys don't have any hot water in their showers," he said. "We just have to work harder. This is going to be a great series. I am happy with the way the guys played. We will have a practice tomorrow and I am sure you will see another great game Tuesday night."

A WINNER'S SMILE — The joy of being a winner is reflected on members of the Big Spring Steers baseball team Saturday. The Steers captured the District 5-

AAAAA title and now head onto bi-district competition against Denton. The first game of the three-game series will be May 18 at 2 p. m. in Big Spring.

Sugar Ray's career in limbo

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard's boxing career will be in doubt for several weeks following eye surgery, although doctors think the world welterweight champion could resume fighting before the end of the year.

Although optimistic about a full recovery, Dr. Ronald G. Michels said it's too early to tell whether Sunday's operation will successfully repair the detached retina in Leonard's left eye. However, he added retinal surgery was successful 90 percent of the time.

"The tissue has to seal down in the proper locations, we have to wait for the healing response," Michels said after the two-hour operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital. "It's much too early to tell, but he should be fully recovered in four to six months."

The operation forced the postponement of Leonard's title bout against Roger Stafford scheduled for Friday in Buffalo, N.Y.

Michels, the ophthalmologist who successfully performed retinal surgery on boxer Earnie Shavers, said it will be several weeks before doctors can predict a full recovery.

"This is a condition that is serious and can affect vision and must be treated," Michels said.

Houston clubbed by Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Lee Elia gradually is solving the problems of his Chicago Cubs and things are beginning to fall into place.

Elia has found a spot for Keith Moreland's hot bat — right field, instead of behind the plate where Jody Davis is now operating.

Davis is a far better catcher defensively, but he also provided the fireworks on offense Sunday with a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth to give the Cubs a 6-3 victory and a sweep of a three-game series with the Houston Astros.

"I can catch," said Davis, "and the hitting will come. I can hit .260 or .270 and get my home runs, especially in this park. It was just a matter of time that they would find a spot for Keith's bat. This looks like it will be the lineup for a while."

Davis also singled home the second run in an interesting fourth inning to tie the game. That's the way it stood until he hammered his first homer of the season off loser Randy Moffitt, 1-2, to make a winner of reliever Willie Hernandez, 1-2.

Starting pitchers Fergie Jenkins of the Cubs and Bob Knepfer of the Astros were involved in a beanball incident in the fourth inning.

Jenkins hit Craig Reynolds with a pitch in the top of the fourth after the Astros had taken a 3-1 lead on a single by Ray Knight, a double by Jose Cruz and a two-run single by Alan Ashby. Knepfer's first pitch in the bottom of the fourth plunked Bill Buckner, who started out for the mound as both benches emptied.

Nothing happened. Order was restored quickly by plate umpire Paul Runge, who warned both benches.

"The warning was ridiculous," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "Nobody was throwing at anybody. He (Knepfer) isn't going to throw at anybody with a curve ball."

Knepfer said "Buckner came out at me and said 'What are you trying to do, Knep?' I told him 'Buck, it was a changeup.' I was so shocked I started laughing." Buckner later said "I don't want to discuss it" and Jenkins contended that he didn't throw at Reynolds.

"I had thrown him two curve balls and he was over the plate looking for another curve," said Jenkins. "I threw him a fast ball that tailed in."

Hitting Buckner proved costly to Knepfer. He walked the next two batters and the Cubs tied the score with two runs in the inning on an infield force and the single by Davis.

That's how it stood until the ninth when Leon Durham doubled with one out and went to third on an infield out. Pinch batter Bobby Molinaro walked intentionally before Davis unloaded his first homer of the season.

Boston squeaks by Rangers, 1-0

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Twice in four games against Texas, Boston Manager Ralph Houk went to his bullpen during the fifth inning, depriving the starting pitchers of a chance for a victory.

Baseball rules require a starter to complete five innings to get a win. In each case, the affected starter — Bob Ojeda on Thursday and John Tudor on Sunday — appeared angry after the game.

"The only reason I do that is the bullpen I have," Houk said after relievers Bob Stanley, 3-1, and Mark Clear preserved Boston's narrow 1-0 Sunday win. "If I didn't have a good bullpen I would never do it."

Stanley relieved Tudor with two out in the fifth and the bases loaded, and got Ranger Lamar Johnson on a ground out to end the threat.

Clear earned his fifth save of the year, and second in two days, by striking out the final two batters.

Neither relief pitcher criticized Houk for pulling the starters.

"He's not afraid to make a decision. That's what he gets paid for," said Clear. "And we're 20-9 (best record in the American League). That speaks for itself."

"That's the way he wanted to do it and I can't criticize him for it," said Stanley. "If he (Tudor) wants my win, I'll give it to him. I don't care, as long as the team wins. That's what counts."

Tony Perez produced Boston's only run with a sixth inning double that scored Dwight Evans, who had walked.

Texas loaded the bases in the first and fifth innings, put a runner on third in the sixth and a runner on second in the ninth, but could not deliver a run-scoring hit.

Islanders defeat Canucks in NHL playoffs

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Islanders got a taste of what the 1982 Stanley Cup finals are going to be like from the very first faceoff.

The Vancouver Canucks made it clear from that point they were going to play a slowdown type of game, hitting, clutching and grabbing the Islanders at every opportunity. Although that style frustrated the two-time defending Cup champions Saturday night for much of the first game of the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series, they did manage a 6-5 overtime victory. And, that is all that really counts as the teams prepare for Game 2 Tuesday night.

"We can't allow their tactics to upset us," said Mike Bossy, whose 30-foot slapshot two seconds from the end of the first overtime won the game. "We have to settle down and concentrate on playing our game."

Little League play heats up

AMERICAN LEAGUE
The Fiberflex Falcons, behind some solid hitting, defeated the Small Fishing and Tool Eagles 12 to 5. Jason Phillips was the winning pitcher, while John Montgomery was the loser. Buddy Everett and Bradley Garrison each had two hits to lead the Falcons. The Falcons are now 1-2, while the Eagles fall to 0-3.

The O.I.L. Mustangs won big over the Eagles by 11 to 1 behind the stable pitching of Jeromaine Gonzales. The Eagles managed to get only run off of Gonzales in the first inning.

Patrick Martinez and Abel Hilario had three hits apiece followed Jeromaine Gonzales with two hits for the Mustangs.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
The Downtown Evening Lions edged the Anderson

Music Devils 10-9 in a hard fought contest. Kit Krous was the winner, while Jamie Moss chalked up a loss.

The Lions were lead by Lathy Williams two triples, Mike Sharp's single and double and Kit Krous' single and double. The Devil's Byron McElreath showed he could hit as he banged out three singles.

Both teams are now 2-2 in the standings.

Darrell's Sporting Goods Yankees are now in first place in National League thanks to their narrow 9-8 victory over the Big Spring Herald Rangers. Lee Morris was the winner and Donnie Barber was the loser.

The Yankees smashed out eight hits as Timmy Gutierrez and Quade Weaver had two singles each. Brant Nichols and Thomas Moore also had two singles apiece for the Rangers.

The Yanks are now 3-1 in league play. The Rangers fell to 1-3.

Marcy wins

Sports editor's note: Due to space limitations in today's paper complete results of the elementary track and field meet will be run tomorrow.

Marcy Elementary School came away the Big winner in Saturday's Big Spring Elementary track and field meet. Marcy outdistanced runner-up Washington Elementary by 66½ points as Marcy scored 355½ points to Washington's 289.

Other standings were: Moss, 150; Goliath College Heights, 268; Baurer, 159½; and Kentwood, 153½.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 11, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until sundown you have much foresight and are able to accomplish a great deal. Be prepared to extend your influence and activities beyond present boundaries. Make plans for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Studying details of a new project is wise. Be sure to get the advice of higher-ups you know. Strengthen your aim in life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your intuition in the morning and learn how to get along better with others. Handle new duties efficiently.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you follow through on any promises made and then you can relax happily later in the day. Be wise.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now accomplish a great deal during the day if you apply yourself seriously. Take health treatments.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Engage in a commercial enterprise with increased confidence. Your creativity is high early in the day. Keep poised.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you listen to the views of others at home, you can make conditions there more harmonious. Strive for happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do whatever will improve regular routines. Find the right appliances to make working conditions easier. Relax tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study financial matters of importance before making an investment. Go to the right sources for the data you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Give more thought to your personal life and make constructive plans for the future. Keep up your appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you are objective in the handling of your affairs, you get excellent results now. Obtain the information you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to get together with good friends and discuss mutual aims. Attend an important social affair tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Engage in a civic affair and improve your position in the community. Show others that you have wisdom.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who will speak up at every opportunity, and should first learn to have the correct facts and figures before speaking. Include foreign languages in the education since there could be much travel here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
