

BONNIE FRANKLIN

County treasurer's job more than just keeping the money

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Does the county treasurer ever worry when handling $3 million in taxpayers' deposits, as the office did last year?

"You bet I do," Bonnie Franklin says. Mrs. Franklin has been Howard County treasurer since her appointment in 1978 and subsequent election in the same year.

One of the functions of the treasurer is to invest the county's money in order to earn more money, Mrs. Franklin said. Although the county gained $78,000 in additional money last year, Mrs. Franklin said, "I have to be sure when I invest I leave enough money for the county to operate on." Though she sometimes is concerned about the possibility, the treasurer has not left the county short of funds at any time.

Mrs. Franklin came into the position she has held for four years in an unusual fashion. The county treasurer who won the Democratic Primary in May, 1978 resigned before the general election. Mrs. Franklin was appointed by the Howard County Democratic party chairman to represent the party in the November election. She also was appointed by the county commissioners in October to fill the treasurer's position until the election.

She became the elected county treasurer following the November 1978 general election.

THE COUNTY TREASURER collects money from all of the offices of the county such as the fines from justices of the peace, fees from the county clerk's office and tax money from the tax collector's office. "The money is then deposited into various accounts and used for the operations of the county," Mrs. Franklin said. The bulk of the money, she added, comes from the tax office during tax collection time.

"We have had good cooperation from the tax office in keeping money available," Mrs. Franklin said. The various investments made by the treasurer in certificates of deposit or treasury bills are set up to ensure money is available when funds are needed. Mrs. Franklin said most of the county's money is invested locally in certificates of deposit rather than treasury bills, which essentially are money loans to the government.

One of the most important tasks of the county treasurer, especially to the county employees, is the payroll. Presently about 125 employees receive paychecks from the treasurer's office. "We also handle Social Security deductions, withholding retirement and life insurance deductions," Mrs. Franklin said.

IN ADDITION to filling out forms for payroll deductions at Mrs. Franklin's office, a new employee will learn the benefits and policies of the county at the treasurer's office. "All health, dental and life insurance claims are handled by the office, too," Mrs. Franklin said.

Monthly reports make up a large part of the treasurer's work. One unique report goes to the state along with a portion of the money collected as fines by the justices of the peace, county clerk and district clerk. "The money goes for victims of crimes in a fund called Law Enforcement Standard for Crime

"YOU HAVE TO REALLY ENJOY FIGURES" — Howard County Treasurer Bonnie Franklin says the love of numbers is important in doing a good job as treasurer. Mrs. Franklin handles the county's money, even down to keeping up with lost money in coke and candy machines.

Third in a series

This is the third installment of a weekly series by courthouse reporter Mike Downey on the people who run Howard County government.

Victims," Mrs. Franklin said. The fund also is called the Victims of Crime and Criminal Justice Planning Fund, she added.

Mrs. Franklin also is the fiscal officer for the state in the operation of the adult probation office, a district office located in the Howard County Courthouse. The state pays for the operation of the probation office and since Mrs. Franklin handles the funds, the county receives a percentage of the money. Asked what type of person occupies the county treasurer's position, Mrs. Franklin said, "Well, you have to really enjoy figures. If you're taking in the taxpayer's money and investing it, you have to know it's important." Another reason why Mrs. Franklin likes the job is her contact with people: "I am connected with all of the county offices and I enjoy See Franklin, page 2-A

Local crime: burglaries up, DWI down

By BILL ELDER
City Editor

Several categories of crime in Big Spring rose during the first quarter of 1982 over the first three months of 1981, according to a comparison of police statistics from each of the two quarters. The statistics covered reports of eight selected crimes.

The most marked changes came in the categories of burglary, which increased by 39 percent, and driving while intoxicated, which dropped by about 50 percent.

Auto theft, arson, assault and robbery all posted increases, while reports of rape remained the same and murder cases went down.

As encouraging as the drop in DWI arrests might seem to be, one police official cautioned that the fluctuation in DWI arrests depends primarily "on the amount of personnel you have" enforcing the traffic code.

Big Spring police made 126 arrests for DWI in the first quarter of 1981; in this year's first three months, they made 62 arrests.

Capt. Sherrill Farmer attributed the sharp dip in DWI arrests to the cessation of a program called the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program, or STEP. He said the program had been funded with a grant which became unavailable this year.

The program utilized officers who worked overtime in areas where there was a high number of traffic accidents, he explained.

Farmer linked the increasing incidence of burglary reports, which jumped from 80 in first-quarter 1981 to 111 in the first quarter of this year, to economic hard times.

"I think a lot of your property crimes have to do with the economic situation," Farmer said. He linked the increases in burglary and robbery, which climbed from three reports to five reports, to the economic situation.

"When they start laying off people, we're more prone to seeing those types of crimes," he said. "I can always see a link between economic hardship and the crime rate."

Auto theft, which increased locally from 23 cases in early 1981 to 36 cases in first-quarter 1982, is a seriously spiraling problem nationwide, he added. And the recovery of stolen automobiles around the country, he noted, "is going down."

A big factor in auto thefts, he said, is the simple matter of leaving keys in cars. Farmers suggested that the incidence of auto theft would decrease markedly if people were more careful about leaving keys in their cars.

In other categories, there was one murder in early 1981 and none in the first three months of 1982. Rape stayed even, with one report in each quarter. Assaults climbed from 23 to 29, while arson doubled from one case to two.

Looking at total arrests, Big Spring police say they made 1,137 arrests in the beginning of 1981 and 1,205 arrests through March 1982 — an increase of six percent. Arrests of persons under the age of 18 for major crimes doubled, from 15 to 28.

Tax review board delays hearing

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The Howard County Board of Review has set August 16th as the first date to hear protests on real and personal property in the county during a called meeting this morning. The board was meeting in called session to set the review dates the board assumed it set at its April 17th meeting.

Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira apologized to the board members for the misunderstanding, but said they could not set the review date since it was not on the last meeting's agenda. The reviews allow property owners, real and personal, to protest their appraised evaluations and possibly have values lowered.

Pereira told the board it was impossible to have the new values ready by June 21st and he would have to use the old values if the board moved for the early date. "The taxing entities can't operate on last year's tax rolls anyway," Pereira said.

Board Chairman Jimmy Ray Smith said the board had understood from the last meeting everything was ready for June 21st. "We don't know when to believe you. I distinctly remember setting June 21, but now you say if we go the 21st, your year's work will be wasted."

Pereira said waiting until August when all the information would be on computer would save the taxpayers money. Board Member J.M. Sterling moved the board not separate the real and personal property and have both beginning in August. This motion was approved by Board member Gerald Harris & Smith.

Thatcher may order invasion of Falklands

By The Associated Press

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is expected to decide within the next 48 hours whether to abandon U.N. efforts to solve the Falkland Islands crisis and order a British invasion, Britain's domestic news agency said today.

"Unless there is an unexpected breakthrough at the United Nations... the invasion now appears certain," the Press Association said.

On Sunday, Britain's defense minister said Argentina had a week to reach a settlement at the United Nations or face an invasion of the South Atlantic islands by troops aboard the Royal Navy fleet of 82-plus ships.

Press Association said Mrs.

Thatcher and her advisers "are convinced that Argentina will never agree to withdraw" its forces from the Falklands until Britain agrees to surrender sovereignty over the islands. Britain has refused to discuss sovereignty as a precondition for withdrawal.

The Argentines "are acting like someone playing a game of tennis and giving a precondition before the game that it is being played on the understanding that they win," Britain's U.N. Ambassador Anthony Parsons told reporters at London's Heathrow airport today.

The news agency did not identify sources for the report by political and defense correspondents.

Two persons killed in Texas storms

By The Associated Press

At least two people were killed and 5,000 were routed from their homes early today after torrential downpours, high winds and hail pummeled Texas for the second consecutive week.

Heavy rains caused more flooding in the Wichita Falls area during the night, forcing about 5,000 people to be evacuated from the Holliday Creek area — some for the second time in less than a week, Red Cross officials said. A flood warning remained in effect for Wichita Falls.

Authorities were searching today for a San Antonio woman whose pickup was washed over a bridge in west Bexar County. Officers recovered the body of 27-year-old Michael Murray of San Antonio, who was trying to help the woman start her truck when both were swept away in rising waters.

Also killed was 17-year-old Sandra Bustamante, whose car was swept away after it stalled in high water in San Antonio, where 5 inches of rain fell overnight.

Two motorcycles were found in water near a San Antonio church and rescuers were looking for the missing riders, said Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Duane Keith. Officers assisted dozens of motorists trapped by floodwaters.

Other severe weather reported around the state Sunday night and early today:

—A tornado was sighted near Silverton. Baseball-size hail pelted an area south of Matador on the South Plains.

MOWING IN THE MIST — A light rain fell on Big Spring this morning, but it didn't stop Doyle Jenkins from mowing his mother's yard at 1109 S. Gregg. Jenkins is visiting from England. When asked if the rain bothered him or made yard work difficult, he replied: "It's a little bit moist, but that doesn't bother me. It reminds me of home."

Graham stands by views

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham, just back from the Soviet Union, says he noticed in the Soviet people "a hunger for something" which he believed was God.

The evangelist said Sunday on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," he hopes to return to the Soviet Union for a preaching tour, and acknowledged that his change of heart toward Soviets may appear to be "an element of opportunism."

"I believe that there are millions of people in the Soviet Union that go to church on Sunday and practice their religious faith," Graham said.

"I'm not an expert...I learned that there are two sides to all these questions," said Graham, who more than 30 years ago called communists "Satan worshippers."

Graham, who returned from Moscow last Thursday, said he noticed in the Soviet people "a hunger for something, not necessarily God. I believe it's God... (but) they don't know it's God."

Gov't candidate leads

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Government candidate Salvador Jorge Blanco claimed the Dominican Republic's presidency today on the basis of a substantial early lead after a big voter turnout.

Jorge Blanco, a 55-year-old left-of-center senator from President Antonio Guzman's Dominican Revolutionary Party, was running stronger than Guzman did four years ago.

Their party also was leading in races for the House and Senate.

In party primaries, Jorge Blanco was the candidate of the government party's left wing and opposed Guzman's centrist faction. But after the preliminaries were over, he picked up support from a number of more conservative businessmen and bankers. He also promised no radical changes in foreign policy — specifically not to reopen relations with Cuba.

SHE NAMED IT LET'S GO AND IT DID — Debi Hand, 16, of Sweet Home, Ore., urged her frog, Let's Go, on during semifinal competition at the Annual Calveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee at Angels Camp, California Sunday. The frog jockey and her amphibian went on to win with a jump of 19 feet three-eighths of an inch.

County attorney prepares evidence against C-City chief

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Evidence prepared by County Attorney Pat Barber against former Colorado City Police Chief Jimmy Roundtree will be presented to the grand jury this week.

According to Assistant District Attorney Lonnie Markley, the grand jury will be empaneled Wednesday and will be in session two days.

Markley says the charges against Roundtree probably will be heard Thursday. Approximately 12 persons have been subpoenaed in the case.

The assistant district attorney will present the evidence.

Congressman calls for Nazi investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., has called for a congressional investigation into reports that State Department officials secretly smuggled hundreds of Nazi war criminals into the United States in exchange for Soviet intelligence information.

Frank, a member of the House subcommittee on investigations, called the reported Nazi recruitment operation "the most appalling mixture of moral insensitivity and incompetence I have seen."

Frank said Sunday that he was informed of the purported clandestine program by John Loftus, a former prosecutor with the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigation, the unit responsible for ferreting out war criminals.

Loftus, appearing on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes" Sunday, charged the smuggling program was run by the State Department's Office of Policy Coordination.

More than 300 Nazi war criminals still live in the United States and 50,000 are in Germany, Loftus said.

The FBI, the Army and the State Department were all involved in enlisting Nazi help to spy on the Soviets in exchange for 4 1/2 citizenship and jobs, Loftus said.

"They knew that the entire Nazi government of Byelorussia, the president, the vice presidents, cabinet ministers, governors and mayors, police chiefs were all living in America," Loftus said. "The FBI, Army Counter Intelligence, Army Foreign Intelligence, the Department of State — they knew and recruited them because they were Nazis."

Loftus said that classified information "indicated that a number of these programs were approved at the highest level."

Justice Department spokesman Dean St. Dennis said Sunday that "the department is aware of the allegations and is looking into them," but would not elaborate.

State Department spokeswoman Carolyn Johnson on Sunday declined to comment on Loftus' charges. Spokesmen for the FBI and the Army both said they had no information on the report.

Local parties select convention delegates

The Howard County Democratic and Republican delegates to the state conventions were selected in meetings held Saturday in the courthouse. The delegates will attend their respective party's conventions in Austin in September.

Democratic delegates are as follows: Kay Burns, Clovis Phinney, Rafor Dunagan, Alberto Puga, Jane Ray, and D.A. Brazel.

House destroyed by fire

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Brado of Garden City Route burned down Sunday afternoon. Fire units from Lomax, Jonesboro, Big Spring and Stanton were called to the blaze.

Rev. Moon followers launch newspaper

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's capital, a one-newspaper town for the past 10 months, got a new daily today with the debut of The Washington Times, which is financed by followers of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

The first edition consisted of a 20-page news section, a magazine and an 8-page tabloid supplement introducing the staff and explaining how the paper came to be.

Noting that the Unification Church founded by Moon is "a controversial religion," the sole story in the supplement said, "The Washington Times will face what is described in today's phrase as 'an image problem.'"

The paper, which is to be published five mornings a week in competition with The Washington Post, contained no advertising. None is planned until the paper takes root and can arrive at circulation figures on which to base its rates.

The paper is predicting an immediate circulation of 100,000 or more. The Post, the only daily in town since The Washington Star folded last August, has a circulation running at 700,000 weekdays, 984,000 on Sunday.

James Whelan, a veteran newsman and the paper's editor and publisher, has said that while followers of Moon will put up the capital for the paper, he alone will dictate the contents of the paper and its policies. He has a five-year contract promising autonomy.

many relationships with the officials and employees," she said.

ONE DRAWBACK to the treasurer's job is getting time off, she said. "It's difficult to get a vacation because one needs to be here from eight to five every day. Since I don't sign checks in advance and we have payroll twice a month plus other bill payments, it's just hard to get away," Mrs. Franklin said.

The best thing, however, about the treasurer's job is the challenge. "It is a challenge to me to secure the best possible investment for the county's money and to be responsible for all revenue for the county," Mrs. Franklin said. "I just enjoy being associated with the county."

Since Mrs. Franklin has just one assistant in her office — Priscilla Herrera — she makes extensive use of the county's computer. "We will be getting a computer terminal and printer into the office which will hopefully reduce paperwork for individuals and our office. The terminal will be handy in doing the payroll and other investments," Mrs. Franklin said.

When everything balances at the office and Mrs. Franklin goes home, she finds much of her time taken with her freshman teenager, Clayton. During the course of the interview, Mrs. Franklin found herself "volunteered" for a concession stand job at one of her son's numerous athletic events. She and her husband, George, keep busy keeping up with their son, Mrs. Franklin said.

Budget brawl expanding to full Senate and House

WASHINGTON — Divisions within the ranks of both Republicans and Democrats promise stormy fights on Capitol Hill this week as the 1983 budget is taken up by the full Senate and House.

The Republican-controlled Senate acts first, resuming consideration today of a $779.1 billion 1983 budget blueprint drafted by the GOP majority on the Senate Budget Committee and embraced by President Reagan. It includes a controversial provision for $40 billion in unspecified savings from the Social Security system over three years.

A $780.5 billion package fashioned by the Democratic majority on the House Budget Committee goes to the full House on Friday. It leaves Social Security untouched and calls for $52 billion more in taxes and $28 billion less in military spending than the Senate plan over three years.

Both plans project 1983 deficits of just over $100 billion.

In remarks prepared for delivery on the Senate floor today, Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete V.

Domenici, R-N.M., told his colleagues that the election-year decisions he is asking them to make are unpleasant but, nonetheless, must be made.

"You cannot hide from the precarious nature of our national economy now and the prospects for even more serious problems in the future, unless we act boldly," Domenici said.

Domenici also told senators they "cannot hide from the impending bankruptcy of Social Security," adding "that in order to buy the good things this Congress wants to buy for America, we must raise taxes during the next three years."

Senate GOP leaders are facing an uphill struggle in gaining acceptance of the outline drawn up by the Senate budget writers.

While Republicans are pushing for savings in the politically popular Social Security program, Senate Democrats are demanding bigger tax increases than the $95 billion over three years that the president and GOP leaders are willing to approve.

Thunderstorms, floods reported

By The Associated Press

Heavy rain and thunderstorms pounded the southern plains and middle Mississippi Valley early today, with a triple whammy of tornadoes, hail and flooding in the region.

Hundreds of people fled homes along rain-swollen creeks in Kingfisher, Okla. In Missouri, the Blue River crested 15 feet about flood stage and tornadoes touched down in Oklahoma and Texas.

Flooding forced the closing of Oklahoma Highway 8, between Cherokee and Burlington.

Showers and thunderstorms lingered over the upper half of the Mississippi Valley, and showers also occurred in western New York and from the Tennessee Valley to the Carolinas.

Skies were clear to partly cloudy from the Gulf Coast to Florida.

The Pacific Northwest had cloudy skies and scattered rain, but other parts of the West were clear.

For tonight and Tuesday, the National Weather Service forecast thunderstorms over the Plains and Mississippi Valley with showers across the Great Lakes and Pacific Northwest. Sunny skies were expected from California to the Rockies. Forecasters predicted fair to partly cloudy conditions in the East.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 39 degrees in Lewistown, Mont., and Rawlins, Wyo., to 82 degrees in Phoenix, Ariz.

Navy man dies in shooting

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Police are hunting the gunmen who killed a U.S. Navy sailor and wounded three others returning to their ship after a night on the town, but they don't know whether it was a political attack or an attempted robbery.

Authorities said the four young enlisted men were wearing civilian clothes early Sunday when an automobile pulled to the curb and those inside opened fire on the sailors walking back to the pier where the USS Pensacola was tied up.

Petty Officer 3rd Class Darryl T. Phillips, 22, of Dublin, Ga., was killed while Petty Officer 3rd Class Larry S. Skowronski, 21, of Erie, Pa., Petty Officer 3rd Class Randall L. Keyte, 23, of Adrian, Mich., and Seaman Anthony L. Phaneuf, 20, of Ashville, Maine, were wounded, the Navy reported.

Skowronski, wounded in the abdomen, was reported in stable condition in the Veterans Administration Hospital with a good prognosis.

Lt. Drew Malcolm, a spokesman at the Navy's Roosevelt Roads Base, said the other two were in the intensive care unit at the Puerto Rico Medical Center's University Hospital, in San Juan, with guarded prognoses.

Keyte reportedly had gunshot wounds in the right arm and the abdomen and Phaneuf had a bullet wound in the right side of his body that might have hit his liver.

It was the bloodiest attack on U.S. military personnel in Puerto Rico since pro-independence terrorists attacked a Navy bus in December 1979, killing two sailors and wounding 10 others in an attack on a Navy bus in December 1979.

The same extremist organization that claimed responsibility for that attack acknowledged shooting at ROTC officers a few months later and claimed it destroyed nine jet fighters worth $45 million belonging to the Puerto Rico Air National Guard last year.

Malcolm said authorities had no motive for the attack and could rule out neither an attempted robbery nor a terrorist attack.

Employees told to find new jobs

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International is dead and hopeful employees should face facts and find new jobs, the airline's chairman says.

Howard D. Putnam says he's worried some former workers believe Braniff will "rise like the Phoenix."

"We need to get across to our employees that even if we fly again, the airline will be too small to hire them all back," Putnam told The Dallas Morning News.

"I talked with one of our flight attendants last night, and she was all smiles. She said, 'I'm not even going to go out and file for unemployment or find another job, because I know you will have this thing flying again soon.'"

But Putnam said he told her: "Go out and find another job."

Last week Braniff suspended all flights and filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

The Wednesday suspension of operations came one day before payday for most of Braniff's 9,500 workers. Employees also learned that the company had not paid health, life and disability insurance premiums for more than a month before it closed, and the insurance carrier retroactively canceled the policies.

The airline delivered a check Wednesday to Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. for the premiums that had been withheld from employees' pay through May 13, so claims made through May 1 would be honored.

The company could reorganize and fly again, but Putnam told The Dallas Morning News that any airline that emerges from bankruptcy would be much smaller than Braniff, have a different name, and make no international flights.

"The truth is Braniff died at 12:01 a.m. last Thursday," Putnam said. "The airline is dead."

Braniff is dead, airline president says

Thomas Donovan, chief corporate lending officer at Marine Midland Bank in New York, a major Braniff creditor, said the world would be better off without Braniff.

Donovan said any plans to revive the airline were "poppycock."

Braniff officials have said the company's debts could exceed $1 billion. Braniff, the nation's 10th largest airline, incurred net losses of more than $300 million during the three years ended Dec. 31, and lost another $43 million in the first quarter of 1982.

Police search for suspect in terror spree

DALLAS (AP) — Police say they don't know what women can do to protect themselves from a man who went on a bizarre weekend spree of rape, humiliation and terror.

The man, about 30 and dressed in a gray, hooded sweatshirt, forced about 50 women to strip at health spas in three North Texas communities Saturday, police said.

Officers said they are convinced the man is the same person who raped one woman and terrorized nine others at apartment complexes here Friday. But the investigation is moving slowly.

"We haven't got a thing," said Dallas police Sgt. Randy Jones. "He has not set a sufficient pattern. He's changed his pattern. He's hit apartment complexes and then hit health spas."

"I don't know what women can do (to protect themselves)," Sgt. B.R. Little said Sunday. "These victims sure weren't doing anything out of the ordinary, and he got them anyway."

Between 9:15 a.m. and noon Saturday, a man wearing a gray sweatshirt entered three Elaine Powers Figure Salons — in suburban Garland and Carrollton and nearby Denton — and forced groups of women to strip at gunpoint.

Witnesses said that at one spa, the man told the manager to open the door and ordered the women outside. The naked women ran out the door and fled down an alley, investigators said.

Beginning at 1:15 p.m. and continuing until midnight Friday, nine young women and a man were victimized by a gunman in five incidents at apartment complexes, police said.

A man approached one woman clad in a bathing suit and ordered her to undress, but she refused and he left, police said. Another sunbathing woman several blocks away told police she was forced to take a gunman to her apartment and commit sex acts.

An hour later, police said a gunman ordered a sunbathing couple to strip and then forced the woman to pose.

A fourth incident occurred when a man climbed through an apartment window and raped a 29-year-old woman at gunpoint, officers said.

And shortly before midnight, a gunman followed a young woman into an apartment and forced her and five other women inside to disrobe, dance and perform sex acts while he watched, police said.

U.S. seeking permission to arrest 5 in mutiny plot

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The United States has asked the Panamanian government for permission to arrest five men suspected of killing the first officer of their ship and plotting to kill seven others in a mutiny, authorities say.

The motor vessel Evergreen was expected to arrive at the Houston city docks today after the Coast Guard and FBI collaborated Saturday night to quell the uprising at sea.

In New Orleans, Petty Officer Jim Munro said the men would be returned to Panama for trial if the Panamanian government gives the United States permission to arrest them.

He said the permission was required because First Officer Dajit Suberoi, 42, of Jullundur, India, was killed Saturday morning in international waters, about 110 miles south-southeast of Port Eads, La.

"It's kind of a ticklish area," Munro said. A Special Weapons and Tactics team of 11 FBI agents boarded the Evergreen on Saturday night near the mouth of the Mississippi River. It anchored there after Suberoi was stabbed and thrown overboard, the Coast Guard said.

"All we did was restore control of the vessel to the master and make sure these people were subdued and contained," Munro said.

The ship was enroute from Italy to Houston with a load of steel pipe, he said.

Before the ship left Louisiana waters, Gulf and Eastern Steamship and Chartering Corp., the Evergreen's U.S. agent, hired two private guards to make the 30-hour trip to Houston, Munro said.

He said two of the five suspects were present at the slaying.

"The others were also involved in an apparent conspiracy to murder eight of the crew members because they didn't like the way the vessel was being run," he said.

Prison admission plan expected today

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — State officials who suspended admissions to Texas prisons and paroled about 600 inmates to ease overcrowding prepared to unveil their plan to accept new inmates.

However, the officials said they don't expect to admit many prisoners immediately.

"The plan for controlled admissions hasn't been totally worked out yet," said Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Rick Hartley. "But we hope to be getting in touch with the sheriffs Monday and letting them know what the situation is."

"But I don't see a big flood of prisoners coming in, because we have to evaluate our space, look at the numbers and see what's available," Hartley said.

Because of a court order to stop overcrowding, the TDC on May 10 began refusing to admit new prisoners from county jails.

Officials had released about 600 inmates from Thursday through Sunday to make room for new prisoners, Hartley said.

Under consideration as a possible plan for readmitting prisoners is a proposal to accept prisoners first from county jails that were hit hardest by the admission ban, he said.

Like the state prison system, county jails in Harris, El Paso, Bexar, Travis, Smith and Victoria counties are under federal court order to end overcrowding.

"We have a court order; they have court orders. We're certainly sympathetic," Hartley said. "We never did this (stop admissions) to antagonize the counties, but the (Department of Corrections) board was facing a contempt citation if we didn't take action."

Managerial food for thought

Up and coming supervisors and management are always eager to increase their skill at leading and managing people. They read books, take courses, and some even bone up on the latest findings about human relations.

That's all to the good provided they don't forget one very important fact. In the long run, no techniques, no matter how clever, can conceal the motives people have in their hearts. The right motives are even more important than the right moves.

What do people value most in a boss? The majority of us want someone who is honest, truthful and straightforward, someone we know really has our interest at heart, someone we can trust.

"To give real service you must add something which cannot be bought or measured with money — sincerity and integrity," wrote Donald Adams. This is something which can't be faked, at least not for long. If you have the best interests of your people at heart, it will show in your actions time and time again. You'll build a reservoir of goodwill.

UNFORTUNATELY, sometimes leaders aren't all that concerned about the welfare of their people, but want only to use and manipulate them. No matter how glib such people are, or how clever as amateur psychologists, their motives will show through. They're bound to.

No manager can create a feeling of mutual trust with people overnight. It takes time and effort. Nor can sincerity be turned on and off like a water faucet. People immediately get suspicious when leaders go out of their way to be "nice to them." They sense they're probably after something when they do.

LEADERS WHO ARE sincere don't have to advertise the fact — it's visible in everything they do and soon becomes common knowledge to everyone. Likewise, insincerity cannot be hidden, disguised or covered up no matter how competent a manager may otherwise be.

The only way to keep the goodwill and high esteem of the people you work with is to deserve it. No one can fool all of the people all of the time. Each of us, eventually, is recognized for exactly what we are — not what we try to appear to be.

A negotiable offer

WASHINGTON — The President played it near Peoria but he did himself a world of good in London, Paris, Bonn and Moscow. For in his address to his alma mater Eureka College on Sunday he buried a part of his past and took a major step toward arms control by making the Russians an offer they cannot easily afford to refuse.

Fierce hostility to arms control marked the Reagan administration when it took office. The butt of criticism was the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) negotiated by the Carter administration with the Brezhnev regime, but never ratified by the Senate. Critics included the President and the chief officials of the Defense Department under Secretary Caspar Weinberger. Allied with them were the head of the Central Intelligence Agency, William Casey, and the director of the Disarmament Agency, Eugene Rostow.

As a general matter, they argued that arms control worked to paralyze the will of this country and its allies for rebuilding defenses. More specifically, they charged that SALT II enshrined Soviet military superiority. For it applied limits to the one area where this country was clearly out front — number of warheads. But it did not circumscribe Russia's great advantage — throw-weight, or the payload of the many warheads that could be put on a single monster missile.

A FIRST BREACH was made last fall by demonstrations among the European allies against our position on the basing of new intermediate-range nuclear missiles on the Continent. In response, the Reagan administration proposed that this country would abandon the plan for new weapons if the Russians dismantled the modern missiles they had targeted on Western Europe. That "zero-option" proposal on Intermediate Nuclear Forces is now the subject of Big Two negotiations in Geneva. But all along it has been clear that the allies would continue to support this country only if the Reagan administration also surfaced a proposal for dealing on long-range or strategic weapons that was negotiable with the Soviets.

For months there has been raging inside the administration a fight on that issue. Secretary Weinberger and his allies have been calling for deep cuts that would force the Russians back to a position of equality in throw-weight. In one demonstration of their strength they were able to change the name of the game — from SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks) to START (for Strategic Arms Reduction Talks).

The State Department claims that deep cuts would not be "negotiable" with the Russians. But until recently that argument carried little weight. "I began to think," one official at State lamented, "that being for a negotiable position showed a want of character." At that point the nuclear freeze movement came to the rescue. The freezeniks set against the technical arguments of the deep-cutters a political position. They moved out front of the President on the peace issue. Reagan had to top them, and he had to do it before going to Europe for various meetings with the allies next month.

His decision came last Thursday. At a meeting of the National Security Council, the President basically sided with State. In explanation it was said that the Joint Chiefs of Staff, led by Chairman David Jones, had also backed State. But how come the chiefs came out into the open against the secretary of Defense?

THE ANSWER is that they were asked to by the National Security staff, now led by William Clark and his deputy, Robert McFarlane. In that way Clark and McFarlane offset the secretary of Defense by calling forth the chiefs, and made it possible for the President to make a political decision favoring arms control.

The exact terms of the U.S. position the President broached at Eureka are still not fully clear. But in a first phase there will be reductions of about a third in nuclear warheads — from roughly 7,500 apiece to roughly 5,000. Throw-weight would be postponed to a second phase.

While the Russians are almost certain to enter negotiations on those terms, they will not easily buy the American position. For they have always wanted to include bombers in the negotiations and the Reagan proposal applies only to land — and sea-based missiles.

Thus the negotiations are apt to be long and hard. As they drag out, opportunities will crop up for those opposed to arms control to introduce new obstacles of a complex, technical kind. So it is important to keep the pressure on the administration.

The right step at this point is for the true believers to move beyond the call for a freeze to support for SALT II, or a quick variation of it that might be called Interim START. Support for the treaty that has already been negotiated keeps the administration exactly where it ought to be on arms control — under pressure to do better.

Why am I so bitter?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have had so many disappointments in my life that I am honestly a very bitter person. I know this is wrong, but I can't help but resent some of the difficulties I have had. How can I get rid of this bitterness? — Mrs. R.F.

DEAR MRS. R.F.: I am afraid this is a much more common problem than is generally recognized. It also is a serious one, for bitterness will inevitably have a very harmful effect on us and our relationship with God (as well as others).

I am glad you see bitterness is wrong and destructive. The Bible warns us, "See to it ... that no bitter root grows up to cause trouble and defile many" (Hebrews 12:15). The Bible also tells us, "But if you harbor bitter envy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not boast about it or deny the truth. Such ... is earthly, unspiritual, of the devil. For where you have envy and selfish ambition, there you find disorder and every evil practice" (James 3:14-16).

What can you do to drain away this bitterness? First, you need to admit this sin and confess it to God. Jesus Christ died on the Cross to take away our sins. Trust God to take away this sin in your life (as well as all your sins if you have never trusted Christ as your Lord and Saviour). Then ask God to help you accept the situations in your life which have caused you to be bitter. God loves you, and he knows these experiences have not been pleasant for you. But he has allowed them to happen to you, and he can use them to shape you and mold you into the person he wants you to be.

Remember the Apostle Paul. He was placed in prison for his faith, and he could have become bitter. But instead he could say, "I have learned to be content whatever the circumstances. I know what it is to be in need, and I know what it is to have plenty. I can do everything through him who gives me strength" (Philippians 4:11-13).

Then pray that God will give you a new love for the people around you, especially those who have perhaps made you disappointed. Love and bitterness cannot exist together. "Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy. ... It is not easily angered. It keeps no record of wrongs" (1 Corinthians 13:4-5).

'Demos aim at each other

WASHINGTON — In the battle over the budget, it's hard to keep straight who's assailing whom. President Reagan has found himself waylaid by Republican forces whom he would prefer to see attacking Democrats. But there is similar turmoil in the Democratic trenches.

The Republican budget, with its estimated $117 billion deficit and $40 billion cut in Social Security benefits, is a wide-open target. But the Democrats are too busy shooting at one another.

At the center of the shooting match is Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., the Budget Committee chairman. He believes that a serious recession is no time to be trying to wring partisan advantage out of the budget process. So he has been working with the Republicans on a compromise budget.

This has offended Democrats who think the party would be foolish not to seize the opportunity to stick it to Reagan. The squabbling over strategy has been exacerbated by petty animosities and hurt feelings.

Jones' tendency to go it alone has aroused resentment. His solo negotiations with the White House without consulting his committee members were described by one bitter critic as "an attempt to cut a deal between the executive branch and one of the 435 members of Congress."

IN RESPONSE, Jones grumped that his critics "have springs in their pants," causing them to jump up continually to protest their exclusion from the budget negotiations. Yet Jones likes to keep his own counsel. "He's never forthcoming," a Budget Committee source complained to my associate Peter Grant. "Not even his staff knows where he's coming from."

Beyond the clash of personalities is the difference over political strategy. Jones sees danger in the Democrats' trying to make political hay out of economic hard times; his opponents want to point up the philosophical differences between Democrats and Republicans.

This strategy has been pushed behind closed doors by several Democrats, including Reps. David Obey, Wis., Don Pease, Ohio, and Leon Panetta, Calif. They would like to prepare an "ideological" budget, meaning a political document that might win friends and influence voters.

The object of strategy is to carve out a distinct image for the Democrats, with full knowledge that an "ideological" Democratic budget stands no more chance of passage than President Reagan's ideological White House budget did.

"I'd like to show the people where we stand before we start compromising," Obey said in a closed meeting of Budget Committee Democrats. Unhappiness with Jones' strategy and tactics has been building ever since the Republicans presented their fiscal offering. In a meeting with the influential "gang of four" — Reps. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., Tim Wirth, D-Colo., and Panetta — Jones was told bluntly that he either works with the committee or "he does not get a budget." Jones called a peace conference to mend the fences with his committee, but it had exactly the opposite effect. What really infuriated the disgruntled

Democrats was that when they asked for copies of Jones' budget figures, he said he hadn't prepared any. Next day, Republican members of the committee turned up with copies of the figures Jones said didn't exist. The GOP committee staff said the document was found in the photocopying machine.

BUY THIS GUY A MIRROR: Samuel Kenric Lessey was recently confirmed as inspector general of the Synthetic Fuels Corporation. A good place for him to start investigating waste and inefficiency in the agency would be his own eight-month consulting contract with SFC.

Beginning last September, Lessey collected $300 per day as a consultant, even though he wasn't nominated for his present post for five months. By the time he was confirmed and finally went on the SFC payroll, he had collected $37,650 in consulting fees. Congressional sources say Lessey wasn't very productive, failing to complete a reorganization plan he was assigned to do, and presenting no substantial reports or other evidence of useful activity.

While Lessey was collecting his fees, incidentally, the acting inspector general was also kept on the payroll, costing the taxpayers another $300 a day.

What particularly concerns congressional critics is the possibility that Lessey's ride on the SFC gravy train may have compromised his strict objectivity as inspector general. "They're supposed to be truly independent," one source told my reporter Matt Berke. "I'd hate to think this is a precedent for the future."

Footnote: An SFC spokesman conceded it was a "little unusual" to hire an appointee as a consultant before his nomination. But, he added, Lessey wanted to get right to work and should not be blamed for the delays in his nomination and confirmation.

The elite life

During the past week my wife and I were treated to a two-day media tour sponsored by the international Four Seasons hotel chain which included an extensive viewing of a new community springing to life just outside of Dallas called Las Colinas. It was an experience in how the other half lives, as they say.

Las Colinas is the brainchild of Texas millionaire Ben Carpenter (no relation unfortunately) who is in the process of combining both a plush urban center with extensive entertainment and relaxation facilities. Carpenter, along with several hundred entrepreneurs, urban planners and corporate whiz kids, has avoided the natural Texas tendency to put quality before quantity and made the two come out even.

For horse lovers there is the Las Colinas Equestrian Center which features 104 stalls and a large arena for shows and riding. The upstairs riding club would not make any horseman pine for his old Kentucky home.

Las Colinas' Cottonwood Valley golf course will be the scene of the 1983 Byron golf Classic. Just as a note, the first green of the course is cut in the shape of Texas with the green's sandtrap shaped like the state of Oklahoma. Nowhere else but Texas.

AS FOR LIVING quarters Las Colinas has apartments, condos, and houses starting in the $60,000 range and rising quickly. Las Colinas officials must approve any architecture before it's built to keep the houses in line with the aesthetic setting of the community. In the most affluent areas of Las Colinas custom houses start at $325,000 and that's not counting lots that are priced from $40,000 to $100,000 for one-third of an acre.

Las Colinas officials say when neighborhoods are complete you'll need an identification card to get into your own neighborhood. The community will have its own neighborhood. The community will have its own professionally staffed security police force patrolling and monitoring the entire Las Colinas area.

officials say the canal and the lake will be serviced by specially imported water taxis from Venice, Italy, that will transport businessmen to appointments and lunches around the perimeter of the lake. The business community also will be served by a monorail system to be installed later.

For unwinding and taking your mind off a long day of business deals Las Colinas offers a sports club, tennis, racquetball and golf — all professionally staffed, of course. There will be innumerable gourmet restaurants and places to gather for cocktails. If you just want to stay home and watch television there are 29 channels plus several FM music stations.

Las Colinas would be a great place to live if you could afford it. The place is incredible and it's amazing what can be done if you don't care about expense. Las Colinas may soon become the place to hang out in Texas if you have enough money to support a penchant for image polishing.

TOPS attend state meeting

Six members of the Take Off Pounds Sensibly (TOPS) Club No. 21 attended the annual State Recognition Days Meeting April 24 and 25 in Austin. The theme of the meeting was "Sailing from TOPS to Kops." The Regency Convention Hall was the meeting headquarters.

Local members that attended were Shirley Jenkins, Gensy Bertran, Lucille Petty, Gladys Russell, Florence Bair and Hazel McCary.

Activities for the two-day meeting included the Parade of TOPS' Yearly Queens and Club Leaders from each Texas Chapter. Mrs. Petty participated in the activity as the Yearly Queen of Big Spring TOPS No. 21. Mrs. Shirley Jenkins participated as Leader of the local TOPS chapter.

Further activities were the Graduation of the New KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly) members. An Inspirational Speech by a KOPS graduate, the Baggy Dress Parade, recognition of KOPS of Long Standing, a Circle of Light march and various success stories shared by members.

At the meeting, Mrs. Petty officially graduated into KOPS status and was recognized for this honor.

During the meeting, two TOPS Kings were crowned from Texas. This was the first time Texas has had two Kings in one year to be eligible for the honor.

Fort Worth was chosen as the site for the 1983 State Recognition Days.

Upon their return to Big Spring, TOPS members, Mrs. Bair, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Petty, Mrs. Bertran and Mrs. Jenkins shared highlights of the trip with the local chapter.

Mrs. Petty was commended for her graduation into KOPS status and Mrs. Jenkins gave a presentation in top-hat and cane with an invitation to attend the 1983 meeting.

TOPS Club No. 21 meets each Thursday at 6:30 at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

April weekly queens were: April 1, Mrs. Bertran; April 8, Pat McNew; April 15, Mrs. Jenkins; April 22 and 29, Mary Trim. Each weekly queen received a trophy cup and a fruit basket.

Pat McNew was recognized as the monthly queen for having lost the most weight during the month of April. She received a TOPS charm and other items.

Program topics presented during the April meetings were "The Blimp is Up to You," "Dieting Thoughts," "Methods of Eating," "If You Don't Have Time to Write it Down — You Don't Have Time to Eat It" and "Eating Habits in Relation to Weight." A discussion followed each of the programs. Involved in program responsibilities were Olnee Mengers, Mrs. Jenkins and Hazel McCary.

Mrs. Petty was in charge of the "wormy-apple" contest during the month of April. Anna Lou Bradberry won the contest by not recording a weight gain during the month. Mrs. Petty and Abbie Clearman, two official KOPS members, also shared in the contest winning for not exceeding their goal specifications during the contest. Plans were made to begin new contests during the May meetings.

Dear Abby

Billions of dollars adds up

DEAR ABBY: Our politicians toss the term "billions of dollars" around so casually that it might interest your readers to know how much a billion dollars really is. To illustrate:

A man gave his wife a million dollars and told her to spend $1,000 every day and come back when she ran out of money. She did so, and returned, broke, after about three years.

He then gave her a billion dollars. After spending $1,000 a day, she returned — after about 2,740 years!

FELIX IN L.A.

DEAR FELIX: Thanks for explaining in understandable terms how much a billion dollars really is.

Now let me explain it in terms of today's economy: Let's say Mohammed Khalid Ibn Jamal (not his real name) gave his wife a billion dollars and told her to go shopping on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills and buy whatever she wanted. She started on Monday and came back on Friday. Broke.

DEAR ABBY: When Jack and I became engaged seven months ago, I asked Jack's mother to please start making up a guest list because I had to know how many people to plan on. I am paying for the reception myself. My father is dead and my mother has all she can do to support the family.

After waiting for three months, I asked Jack's mother for her guest list and she said there was plenty of time. Finally, I told her I could afford to have no more than 150 at the reception, which mean 75 from her side and 75 from ours.

Well, the invitations are ready to be mailed, the wedding is eight weeks away, and Jack's mother now informs me that she must invite 85 guests or a lot of people will never speak to her again.

What can I do? I hate to start my marriage off with bad feelings between Jack's mother and me, but all I can afford is 75 from her side. Also, we are short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to order any more. Please help me.

BITING MY TONGUE

DEAR BITING: Tell your mother-in-law that if she needs 10 extra guests she will have to pay for them. And if you're short 10 wedding invitations and it's too late to re-order, 10 guests (on Jack's side) will have to settle for handwritten invitations or a telephone call.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TEARS ON MY PILLOW IN CLEARWATER, FLA.: Regret is the cancer of life. Although it's too late for you to give your own mother pleasure, others can profit by your "sins of omission."

There are nursing homes filled with elderly people who would so enjoy a little regular attention. Drop in with a few flowers from your garden, magazines you would have thrown away, some homemade goodies, etc. One day a week take one or two or as many as you can for a little ride. Bring the children along on occasion. Old folks love children.

Do this, at first, in reparation, and in time it will become a labor of love. True, of course, we can only have one mother, but in the family of God we are all one: He loves us, he forgives us.

Piano students audition before examiner

A group of students from Mrs. Chester F. Barnes' piano class played in the National Piano Playing Auditions held Tuesday at Howard College.

The pupils played memorized programs from standard classic, romantic and modern repertoire. They received recognition in local, district and national categories.

Performing before the examiner were: Shelly Brasel, Malinda Ellison, Cindy Bond, Leigh Corson, Marilyn Corwin, Debby Dennard, Monica Huckabee, Jami Norwood, Dana Perkins, Suzy Perkins, Dawn Smith and Kristen Wilkins.

Dr. Donohue Class of '42 plans reunion

His bleeding is okay

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a very embarrassing problem, which has caused me a lot of grief. I am a 25-year-old male in very good health. My problem is blood in my semen. Sometimes I have more than other times, but there are always traces of it. Before this problem arose, I had no problem with erections. Then I gradually became self-conscious and now have that problem also.

Last year, I went to a urologist, who gave me a complete checkup, which included a stay in the hospital for tests. He concluded everything was all right, and that I would just have to learn to live with the problem. Every time I see this, I truly believe everything is NOT all right, and I never have encountered another person with this problem. My love life is going downhill, and I am scared. This may not be a subject you can discuss in your column, but please say something. — B.D.

Brand new set of initials for you, "B.D." You do not have a rare condition, but you do have one that gives much natural anxiety and causes alarm. It looks ominous, but it is almost always a benign condition. You did the most important thing you could do — had a complete examination. That eliminates the possibility of serious conditions being present, such as prostate infection.

Now that you are sure (and you should be) that you are not ill, you should ignore the condition. The same thing is happening that can happen in small skin bruises. A few skin capillaries break and leak a little blood. In your situation that is what is happening. The sight is never easy to come to terms with.

There is one possibility, that I dislike mentioning, because it is one I have never prescribed myself for this. But I know it is done. A low dose of estrogen for a month is sometimes used to stop the capillary bleeding. You might want to ask your doctor if he thinks this would be a course of treatment for you.

Do not let this affect your life. And don't be upset with your doctor if he does not choose to try the estrogen therapy I refer to. I told you I have not prescribed it myself. I prefer to have the patient come to terms with the situation himself once the benign diagnosis has been made.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You have discussed surgery for hemorrhoids. Is surgery always necessary to get completely rid of them? My doctor diagnosed hemorrhoids after an episode of rectal bleeding. The problem will go away for a few days, sometimes for a couple of weeks, but I still get the uncomfortable recurrences. I don't know what I am doing or not doing to cause them to keep returning. Don't they ever completely go away without surgery? — M.S.

Surgical treatment is not always necessary for hemorrhoids, but it is certainly one reliable way to get rid of them for good. After surgery the problem is gone. When is surgery needed — at what point in the problem? Well, certainly, if they are bleeding they probably require removal. If they are always painful, it is best of have them removed. And if no form of treatment is helping, then surgery remains the only alternative.

There are a few simple measures you can try until you opt for or against surgery. One is to keep your stools soft by increasing the amount of fiber in your meals — bran for example. Avoid straining, which aggravates hemorrhoids.

REMAINS OF PROTEST — The burned-out hulk of a government pickup truck provided a grim reminder of the protest at an agriculture school in Ciudad Juarez. Students can be seen playing soccer in the background.

Sunday. The students released 15 million insect larvae and their school director Saturday after holding them for five days. The students are now seeking a compromise in their fight for school funds.

'We can take drastic measures'

Students keep truce, awaiting negotiations

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Protesting students who had kept 15 million insects and their school director captive for five days say they may take action again if the government fails to negotiate with them.

The students held to their declared "truce" Sunday, but said they might take further action by tonight if the government does not contact them about a March agreement that would have provided financial help for the school.

"We can take drastic measures," student leader Fernando Reyes, 19, said through an interpreter. "But we haven't yet decided what to do next."

demolished and burned two government pickup trucks in protest.

But after the insect laboratory and three offices held by the students were deserted early Saturday, between 500 and 800 soldiers and police surrounded the school and retrieved seven more trucks the students had captured. The soldiers left with the trucks without confronting the protesters.

The students released Delgado before noon Saturday, saying he was being made a martyr and was harming their cause.

Meanwhile, the students received promises from Juarez Mayor Jose Reyes Estrada and local television personality Arnoldo Cabado that they would try to get federal agriculture officials to negotiate today. The men pledged their support after the students ended the five-day siege.

The protesters say the federal agriculture department reneged on an agreement that would have provided $4.9 million in cash and farm equipment to the Hermanos Escobar agriculture school.

Braniff executive blames American

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Braniff International executive says he believes an indictment will result from a grand jury investigation he predicts will show that senior officials at American Airlines instructed their workers to sabotage Braniff's reservations system.

Braniff vice president Sam Coats also said such dirty tricks were among the factors leading to the airline's demise and he added that Braniff's creditors might be able to win some compensation for their losses by suing American.

"In my view, one of the largest potential claims that the shareholders, employees and creditors have is a potential claim against American Airlines for violation of the criminal antitrust laws," Coats said Sunday, declining to speculate on how much money such a claim might seek.

American has denied past allegations of dirty tricks and on Sunday spokesman Al Becker said Coats' comments were "unworthy of comment."

Coats said he based his comments on "statements that have been made to me, documents that have been brought to me and turned over to the Justice Department, and various conversations that have been held during the past seven months." He refused to say who made the statements and provided the documents.

In a telephone interview from his Austin home, Coats stressed that no suit has been filed against American and none is being prepared. He also said he was talking about his personal opinions as an officer of Braniff, adding, "Braniff as an entity has made no allegations."

"I feel there will be evidence developed that American talked to some of Braniff's bankers and convinced them not to restructure Braniff's debts," Coats said.

He said he also believes it will be shown that American tried to persuade travel agents not to use Braniff.

—Discriminated against Braniff through the SABRE computer reservation system, which is owned by American but also used by other airlines.

—Instructed its agents to try to avoid booking Braniff for connecting flights with American's flights.

A federal grand jury in Fort Worth is investigating allegations that American employed dirty tricks in its fierce competition against Braniff. The two Dallas-area airlines shared many of the same routes until Braniff suspended all flights last Wednesday.

On Thursday, Braniff filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act. Its chairman, Howard Putnam, said then that Braniff might reorganize and renew operations later. In an interview published Sunday in The Dallas Morning News, Putnam said that if operations are resumed, it would be a much smaller airline and would not carry the Braniff name.

He said he also believes that some Braniff flights were not listed and that some people were told "that Braniff did not serve given markets by American when in fact Braniff did serve that market."

Livestock, art sale pulls in $3.46 million

HOUSTON (AP) — A chandelier-dotted ballroom replaced the smelly sales barn, tuxedos and couturier gowns took the place of jeans and cowboy boots and pure-bred livestock paraded by tables adorned with white linens and silver.

Hosts for the Western Heritage Sales were former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and his wife, Nellie.

About 1,200 consignors, prospective buyers and guests hailing from 40 states and five nations received engraved invitations to bid Saturday night for the "most gorgeous purebreds on four feet." Connally said 800 others were turned away.

Breeders from the nation's leading ranch sold 26 American quarter horses and 26 Santa Gertrudis bulls, heifers and calves. The quarter horse is America's only native breed, and Santa Gertrudis cattle are a cross of Shorthorn and Brahman stock first bred on the King Ranch in South Texas.

Twenty-seven pieces of contemporary Western art also were placed on the auction block.

When the sales were tallied early Sunday, more than $3.46 million had been spent within a five-hour period, about $500,000 less than last year's record total.

"That may seem like a lot of money, especially since we're not living in the most encouraging of economic times," said Connally, who organized the extravaganza in 1976 with millionaire ranchers Louis Pearce of Houston and Joe Marchman of Dallas to inspire appreciation for American West heritage.

"This is an investment, not a toy," Connally said. Auction-goers dined on shrimp, steak and asparagus during spirited bidding at the Shamrock Hilton's grand ballroom.

The Derrick Dolls — cheerleaders for the Houston Oilers' football team — carried huge placards matching animals to program numbers and men dressed in black coats and ties carried shovels around after the animals.

"This is serious business, not a rich man's game," said Jim Reno, a Kerrville horse trainer whose one-of-a-kind bronze sculpture sold for $50,000. "Anyone who comes here knows they'll leave with only the very best."

Steve Langham, of Houston, paid $140,000 for an oil painting, "Walking Coyotes and Buffalo Orphans," by artist Tom Lovell, of Santa Fe, N.M.

Dole calls for tax reforms

HOUSTON (AP) — Senate Finance Committee chairman Robert Dole says the number of people refusing to pay taxes is growing faster than the gross national product and almost as rapidly as the national debt.

Dole, R-Kansas, called for sweeping reforms to halt "the retreat from responsibility" that costs the nation billions of dollars in uncollected taxes and preferential tax policies.

"A few years ago, it was said that computers had taken the place of taxpayers' consciences, but now, even the computers can't stem the tide of under-reporting, fraudulent exemptions and just plain concealment that undermines tax collection," Dole said in a speech Sunday to the 2,000 delegates attending the League of Women Voters' biennial convention.

Dole estimated noncompliance now costs the nation $75 billion. He predicted the number would nearly double by 1985 if "the retreat from responsibility is allowed to go unchecked."

Dole said reforms were needed to simplify the complex tax system and "to even the odds."

Parolee robbed after his release

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who was paroled from a Texas Department of Corrections unit after three years there told police he was robbed moments after his release.

Evelardo Ortiz said bandits took $200 he received after being released from the TDC's Sugar Land unit where he served time for a forgery conviction. Two men have been charged in the robbery, police said.

David R. Underdown, 33, and Clifford G. Eberhart, 19, were charged with aggravated robbery, police said.

Ortiz rode a bus to Houston after being paroled Friday with hundreds of other inmates throughout the TDC system, police said. The early paroles were granted to try to reduce overcrowded cells.

WINS THE COLONIAL — Jack Nicklaus is jubilant after sinking his putt on 18 Sunday, the final round of the Colonial National Invitation Tournament in Fort Worth. Nicklaus won the tournament, shooting seven under par, and will take home $63,000. This is the first time Nicklaus has won the Colonial.

Wins his first tourney in two years

Bear takes Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Jack Nicklaus was on the 10th green studying his birdie putt when he glanced at the scoreboard.

"I said, 'hmm, something's changed,'" Nicklaus muttered to himself.

What was about to change Sunday was Nicklaus winning his first tournament in two years, the elusive Colonial National Invitation which had eluded him in nine tries.

Nicklaus saw that challengers Andy North and Danny Edwards had found disaster on the tricky pond-fronted ninth hole. North had made double bogey and Edwards triple bogey.

"I decided to do something about it, and I turned around and made the putt for birdie," Nicklaus said.

It was a familiar scenario for the man who now has earned 69 tour victories and $3,907,320. Give him an opening and he'll bury you with his putter.

North temporarily recovered from the shock with two birdies to tie; then, Nicklaus' killer instinct took over again.

North, trying to win his first tournament since the 1980 U.S. Open, three-putted the 15th hole.

Nicklaus responded by canning a 17-footer that broke a foot for birdie. The tournament was over. Nicklaus strolled to the clubhouse with a 3-under-par 67 and a 72-hole total of 7-under-par 273, pocketing the $63,000 first prize check.

WATCHING IT FALL — Fort Worth, Texas, May 17 — Jack Nicklaus reels around in excitement as his birdie putt falls on the 16th hole of Sunday's final round of the Colonial National Invitation Tournament. Nicklaus went seven under on the 16th, aiding him in the win of the tournament, his first PGA win in over a year.

Islanders sweep Canucks for Stanley Cup

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Sometimes the vanquished have the best perspective of the battle.

That was the case Sunday night when the Stanley Cup finals were over and the New York Islanders had swept the Vancouver Canucks. It was the third straight National Hockey League championship for the 10-year-old Islanders, an incredible achievement. Their 3-1 victory in the fourth game made the Islanders the first United States-based franchise to capture three Cups in a row.

"(Bryan) Trottier is the best player in the game today," said Canucks Coach Roger Neilson. "(Mike) Bossy is the best scorer. (Denis) Potvin is the best playoff defenseman and (Al) Arbour is the best coach.

"They're going to be tough for a long while to come."

"They've been too tough for the opposition for three seasons. And Sunday, they proved once more they were too classy for the outmanned Canucks, who wound up the regular season 41 points behind the Islanders.

Bossy had two power play goals in the second period and was named the most valuable player in the playoffs, in which he scored 17 times. Trottier had a pair of assists and finished as the No. 1 point man with 29, including a record 23 assists. Potvin also had two assists and Arbour won his seventh Cup, four as a player.

"If we don't rank with the best teams in history," said goalie Bill Smith, who has backstopped the Islanders to the three titles, "then I don't know what more we can do."

General Manager Bill Torrey, who built what now may fairly be called a hockey dynasty on Long Island, wasn't looking for more right now.

"This team in three years has won all kinds of series in every kind of way," he said. "This team deserves everything they'll get.

"Every one gets tougher and better. There's more satisfaction every year."

Torrey was asked whether the Islanders could surpass Montreal's five straight Cups, won from 1956-60.

"I'm just thinking about No. 4," he said. "Otherwise, we can never get to six."

The third Cup was earned with a minimum of difficulty through the final two rounds. The Islanders swept Quebec in the semifinals before disposing of Vancouver in a four-game final.

"The fact that we were criticized since the playoffs started but never lost our poise or character, especially in the last two series, when we won eight in a row, means a lot," said Bossy, who began the postseason action with a knee injury that limited him to power play duty. The Islanders nearly lost to Pittsburgh in the opening round and often missed Bossy's potent scoring touch.

In the quarterfinals, they were extended to six games by the Rangers. But the Isles won all three games of that series at Madison Square Garden and wound up with seven straight road wins as well as nine consecutive victories overall in the playoffs.

"My knee got to the point where, with a brace, it wouldn't hurt any more," said Bossy as he cradled the Conn Smythe Trophy as MVP. "It sure doesn't hurt now."

None of the Islanders were hurting. They were standing tall because what they had done was special. Very special.

"Winning three in a row sets us apart," said captain Potvin, who accepted the Cup from NHL President John Ziegler, then skated it around the rink for the third year in a row. "That's something you never get tired of. I'll sit back tomorrow and read all the accolades about us. I'll enjoy that."

STICKS UP — Vancouver Canucks forward Jim Nill (8) and New York Islander defenseman Dave Langevin (26) run into each other with sticks up during first period of NHL Stanley Cup action in Vancouver Sunday night. The Islanders won the contest 3-1.

CELTICS GLOOM — Injured Celtics star Nate Archibald is deep in thought as teammate Larry Bird eyes the scoreboard during NBA playoff action against the Philadelphia 76ers in Philadelphia Sunday. The 76ers won, 119-94, and now lead the best-of-seven series 3-1.

76ers open cautious 3-1 lead over Celtics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers needed no reminders about what happened the last time they took a 3-1 lead in a conference championship series against the Boston Celtics.

"We all realize it's not over because of what we've been through before," 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham said Sunday after Philadelphia routed the defending National Basketball Association champion Celtics 119-94.

What they have "been through before" was a reference to the Eastern Conference final series a year ago when the 76ers also took a 3-1 lead only to lose the last three games by a total of five points.

In 1980, Philadelphia beat Boston 4-1 before losing the NBA championship series in six games to the Los Angeles Lakers, who now await the Celtics-76ers after sweeping the San Antonio Spurs 4-0 in the Western Conference finals.

Despite the overwhelming victory over their archrivals in Game 4, which saw 76ers guard Andrew Toney score 39 points, Philadelphia was in no mood to celebrate.

"We've beaten the Celtics three in a row (since a 40-point defeat in Game 1)," said Cunningham, "and they've surely got the ability to win three in a row from us. What we've got to avoid are the emotional peaks and valleys."

"There's a possibility we could lose three in a row," said the 76ers' Julius Erving, who scored 17 points.

"Anything's possible in the NBA. But if we prepare ourselves properly, we shouldn't lose any."

Echoing Cunningham, Erving added, "It's necessary that we be confident, but not overconfident. We can't celebrate."

The Celtics, who are on the verge of elimination after going 63-19 in the regular season, were totally dominated in the final 15 minutes of the game, when they were outscored 47-27.

They sorely missed the offensive spark of injured guard Nate "Tiny" Archibald, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in Saturday's loss.

In Sunday's game, Fitch said, "We just couldn't stop Toney, either by guarding him or making him guard someone. But our game just wasn't there. It wasn't all Toney, not all the absence of Tiny."

The 6-foot-3 Toney was brilliant throughout the game, hitting 11 of 12 free throws and 14 of 20 shots from the field, from all ranges and angles.

But he was at his best in the third quarter, when he scored 15 points. Eight of those came in a 2½-minute span during which the 76ers outscored the Celtics 12-2, extending a 72-67 lead to 84-69 with 47 seconds left in the period.

Boston never led in the game, and managed only one tie, at 44-44 with 3:31 left in the first half.

Walker's bat helps Steers into playoffs

Note: as the Big Spring Steers enter the Class 5A playoffs this week, The Herald will spotlight a player each day that made this year's 23-9 and district championship success a reality.

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Things got exciting for the Steers when James Walker gets on base. When Big Spring awoke from its first half slumber at the plate, it was because Walker was getting on base more. Thus things became very exciting for the Steers.

Walker hit .304 in the first half of District 5-AAAAA play but then rapped the baseball at a .429 clip in the final seven league contests to finish at .373. His hitting, base speed and play in right field earned the Steer senior all-district honors.

"That's what I told my father I'd try to do," Walker said about becoming a first-teamer in the outfield. "It was a dream come true. Now the other dream is to go all the way in the playoffs."

Walker said his improvement in the second half of district play just part of the whole Steer team meshing together.

"We just became one big happy family," he said of his team's unusual degree of harmony. "At the first of the year we didn't have that. We were always arguing but then we gradually got together."

The Steers spent the practice hours in district helping each other out, giving pointers and passing around encouragement. Walker got hitting tips from his teammates and his competition with the team's top hitter, shortstop Blake Rosson, kept his own bat hot.

One addition to his performance at the plate was a new ritual that helped him relax. Before taking each swing, Walker steps out of the box, raising his bat like a sword in front of him, takes a deep breath and lets it out in a rush as he digs in to take his cuts.

"It really relaxes me," he explained. "When I bat, my hands and upper body get real tight and I loosen up by taking a deep breath. And now when I bat, I think about all those things and rules you are supposed to do like loosen your grip, keep your head in and keep your hands back. It's really helped."

Walker knew he had some of the tools to make a good ballplayer for the Steers but worked on making himself a complete package with hard work at the plate.

"The hitting just took a lot of time. I had to learn to keep my head in and watch the ball. I was real scared of a fast pitch and a curve. Now I can hold my hands back longer and hit the ball," he continued.

Like most kids, Walker played baseball at the Little League level but got out of the summer programs for at least three years to visit his father in Atlanta instead.

In high school, he made the junior varsity squad as a sophomore and played left and center field. As a junior he started a few games but mostly provided his team with excellent speed as a pinch runner. This year, he's put it all together and no one is happier about it all than his parents.

"They've made me what I am," he said. "They told me to stick with it. I think I've done that because I've had their support. My mom tells me I'm getting a lot of response from what we are doing this year. I'm really proud, especially since it's my last year."

"It's a really great feeling. The people in town are really backing us," he added.

Now that he's accomplished something this season as a ballplayer, what goals does he have for the playoffs?

"I want to go all out for it," he said of Tuesday's bi-district opener. "If we take this game, it could be another big spark for us like the Abilene High game. When we played them, we knew it would be big spark if we won. And that's what it turned out to be."

After all the playoffs are finished and graduation has passed, Walker is going to do some more traveling and will play summer baseball. He hopes to play baseball in college, a small college rather than a larger university and one close to Big Spring so he can be near his family.

"Baseball is my life," Walker mused. "I want to try to make it my life. I really love this sport."

Rangers take Blue Jays 2-1

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — From the subdued voices and glum faces in the clubhouse, a visitor would have thought the Texas Rangers were still mired in a long losing streak.

The Rangers were not acting like a team that had just beaten Toronto three games out of four to close out a home stand. But veteran catcher Jim Sundberg said the Rangers were not celebrating because they know they played poorly, even though they won.

"We didn't play well in the whole series," Sundberg said after Sunday's 2-1, 10-inning victory over Toronto, only Texas' 10th victory of the season against 20 losses. "If we don't play better than this we can't expect much against Chicago and Kansas City," teams Texas visits this week.

Texas starter Charlie Hough had baffled the Blue Jays with his knuckleball through eight innings, giving up four hits and no walks and striking out three. But he gave way to reliever Danny Darwin in the ninth.

"Hough was the outstanding," said Texas manager Don Zimmer, "but he was done after the eighth. I had no choice but to pull him. I asked him how he felt and he said, 'I'm dead tired.'"

Darwin took a 1-0 lead into the ninth, thanks to George Wright's eighth-inning triple that scored Mark Wagner, who had walked. But Darwin gave up two walks, a single and a sacrifice fly by Dave Revering to let Toronto tie the score and, after the Rangers went down in order in their half of the ninth, send the game into extra innings.

It was Wright who finally provided the winning run. He singled sharply to center in the 10th to score Leon Roberts who had walked and moved to second on Doug Flynn's sacrifice bunt.

Earlier in the day, Wright — whose batting average had dropped below .260 during a prolonged struggle at the plate — sought some hitting help from coach Tommy Helms.

"I opened up my stance slightly," Wright said, explaining Helms' advice. "It feels uncomfortable right now but I think it will help. I can see the inside pitch a little better now."

Wright's two hits overshadowed a stellar outing by Toronto rookie Jim Gott who made his first major-league start and held Texas scoreless through six innings. Gott yielded to Joey McLaughlin in the seventh after he gave up a hit and a walk to the first two batters.

American League

"He had had enough," said Toronto manager Bobby Cox. "Seven innings is as long as he has thrown, including spring training. He was overpowering while he was in there. His fast ball, slider, curve and changeup were all good. The kid's good."

Roy Lee Jackson, 2-4, gave up Wright's game-winning hit. Darwin, 4-1, got credit for the win but he walked three in addition to surrendering the game-tying run in the ninth.

Tigers 7, Twins 6

Each team hit four home runs — including a grand slam by Detroit's Alan Trammell — but it was Larry Herndon's seventh-inning solo shot that snapped a 6-6 tie. The Twins, who have dropped five games in a row and 15 of their last 17, jumped to a 5-0 first-inning lead on a two-run homer by Randy Johnson, solo shots by Tom Brunansky and John Castino and an RBI single by Tim Luedner.

The Tigers got four runs back in the second on Trammell's first major league grand slam. Minnesota's Brad Havens surrendered homers to Mike Ivie and Chet Lemon before departing in the fourth inning. Dave Engle homered in the Twins' sixth to tie the game 6-6.

Herndon's game-winning blow came off Terry Felton. Felton was ejected in the eighth after brushing back Lynn Jones on his first pitch of the inning. Home plate umpire Durwood Merrill, with memories of two Friday night melees between the two teams still fresh, immediately threw Felton out of the game. Manager Billy Gardner also was ejected.

Dennis Leonard and Dan Quisenberry combined on a five-hitter and John Wathan and Frank White collected three hits apiece. Leonard allowed four hits, struck out two and walked two before giving way to Quisenberry at the start of the eighth inning after a 62-minute rain delay.

A's 7, Yankees 6

Davey Lopes rapped two RBI singles as the A's gave Manager Billy Martin's a happy 54th birthday. The A's took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Dave Righetti on a walk, Cliff Johnson's single, a throwing error by left fielder Dave Winfield and a single by Lopes. They made it 3-1 in the second when Kelvin Moore singled, was sacrificed to second and scored on a single by Jimmy Sexton. Consecutive run-scoring singles by Lopes, Mike Heath and Wayne Gross made it 6-1 in the fourth. Oakland got what proved to be the winning run in the fifth when Rickey Henderson singled, stole second and third — he leads the majors with 38 — and scored on Johnson's double.

White Sox 6, Brewers 1

Steve Kemp doubled home the tying run in the sixth inning and Tom Paciorek put the White Sox ahead with a bases-loaded grounder. In the fourth inning, Kemp delivered a two-run single and Paciorek singled home another run.

Royals 5, Red Sox 0

Amos Otis doubled home Kansas City's first run in the opening inning and the Royals made it 3-0 in the second on Greg Pryor's RBI double and a run-scoring single by Wathan. Pryor led off the fourth with a single, stole second and scored on Wathan's single and White singled home the final run in the eighth.

Angels 3, Indians 0

Don Baylor scored from second base on an infield hit, Reggie Jackson and Fred Lynn homered — his first since May 1, 1981 — and Ken Forsch hurled a four-hitter as California completed a sweep of a four-game series. Baylor singled with one out in the fourth off John Denny and moved to second on a wild pitch. Doug DeCinces hit a high chopper to the mound and beat Denny's throw to first. Baylor, running all the way, beat first baseman Mike Hargrove's throw to the plate.

Orioles 5, Mariners 4

Rick Dempsey's 10th-inning sacrifice fly scored pinch-runner Eddie Murray with the winning runny's 11 strikeouts.

With one out in the 10th, Ken Singleton walked and Murray went in to run. John Lowenstein then extended his hitting streak to 13 games with a single to left-center off Perry, 3-3. Dempsey followed with his sacrifice fly off reliever Mike Stanton.

Cubs defeat Astros, 2-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Chicago Cubs Manager Lee Elia says new faces sometimes help when playing in old places like the Astrodome.

"Maybe it's good that we've got some new people who don't know our losing history here in the Astrodome," Elia said Sunday after the Cubs beat Houston 2-1 for their third victory in the four-game series.

Obviously, no one told winning pitcher Doug Bird, who ignored history and silenced Astros hitters on three hits through seven innings.

The Cubs had lost 12 in a row in the Astrodome prior to the current visit, in which they won three of the four games in the series.

Bird, who came to the Cubs last June from the New York Yankees, felt right at home against the Astros.

"I had a better change-up today than I've had all year," said Bird, 3-4. "I've had three different catchers in eight starts, so three out of seven decisions is not all that bad."

Bird got relief help in the eighth from Bill Campbell and Willie Hernandez, who fanned pinchhitter Alan Knicely to end the game.

Bird got the victory in a pitching duel with Astros starter Nolan Ryan, who said he pitched some of the best innings of the season following a four-inning Cubs uprising.

Chicago got both runs on three hits in the fourth inning.

Keith Moreland singled, went to third on former Astros outfielder Gary Woods' double and scored when Ryne Sandberg grounded out to second base as Woods advanced to third. Larry Bowa's screamer up the middle scored Woods.

Ryan, 3-6, won his last outing in a struggle.

"I pitched worse my last time out and won and better this time and lost," Ryan said. "But they are all tough to take."

Other Cubs newcomers Junior Kennedy and Woods also didn't keep up with their history lessons.

"We don't have the stars: Gus some veteran castoffs with professional pride like Kennedy and Woods," shortstop Larry Bowa said. "It's always a step in the right direction when you have guys who know how to play baseball and they're with an organization willing to give them the opportunity to play."

Bird is getting his second chance to play under the watchful eye of Cubs General Manager Dallas Green, who cut Bird when he was managing Philadelphia two years ago.

"I had no qualms about playing for Mr. Green again because whenever he is, there's going to be a winner eventually."

Braves 5, Cardinals 2

It had been a long, depressing dry spell for Atlanta's Rick Mahler, who pitched like Cy Young in the season's first week and just plain siph after that.

Mahler hurled consecutive shutouts in his first two games during the Braves' record 13-0 start but had not won in six outings since, with three losses and three no-decisions over that stretch.

But the bad times ended Sunday when the right-hander pitched Atlanta to a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals as the Braves bunched all their runs with two out in the first inning.

In other National League games Sunday, San Diego rallied for seven runs in the ninth inning and defeated Montreal 8-2, the New York Mets scored nine runs in the sixth inning and whipped Los Angeles 13-4, Philadelphia downed San Francisco 6-1, Cincinnati trimmed Pittsburgh 3-1 and Chicago edged Houston 2-1.

Mahler started the season with a two-hit shutout against San Diego on opening day and followed that with a five-hitter, blanking Houston in his second start. But it was downhill until he posted that elusive third victory.

Mario Soto spaced seven hits and struck out nine, beating Pittsburgh for Cincinnati.

Alex Trevino ripped three singles, driving in two runs and scoring the third for the Reds. Soto survived a two-on, two-out ninth inning scare when Johnny Ray drilled a long foul ball.

"It was exciting," the pitcher said. "I knew he hit it hard. It scared me."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 18, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to avoid getting into disputes with associates since long-term alienations could take place. Go to the right sources to obtain facts and figures regarding a new project.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Make sure you do nothing that could harm your reputation today. A higher-up is upset now so steer clear of this person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): The work at hand could be boring and you wish to go to new sites, but it's best to finish your duties first. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't try to avoid your responsibilities at this time. Show more understanding for loved one now and maintain harmony.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't try to renege on a promise you've made with an associate. Sidestep one who opposes you. Be poised.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Do your work efficiently and don't try to overburden a co-worker with tasks that you should do. Become a more friendly person.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Don't give into a temptation to overstep where amusement is concerned. Discuss important matters with higher-ups.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): The situation could be tense at home, but if you relax and pretend all is okay, you find it soon rights itself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Instead of berating co-workers for their mistakes, show them how they can be rectified and all works out fine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Know exactly what your personal aims are and pursue them in a positive manner. Show that you have character.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A good day to advance in career activities. Steer clear of the social where arguments could erupt. Use common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't delay doing important work early in the day. Later try to assist a friend who needs your help. Be more generous.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Don't show your ire to a friend who you feel has been working against you since this is not the case. Express happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she should be taught to be more considerate of less fortunate persons, otherwise your progeny could go through life alienating others. Direct the education along trouble-shooting lines for best results.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.
 Try to use energy intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.
 This energy saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation.
 To buy, sell, trade or rent, place your ad in the classified section.
