Minister, chief rap city policies

By BILL ELDER
City Editor

Two policies of the Big Spring Police Department came under criticism at last night's city council meeting: a minister was critical of the police escort service provided to funeral processions, and in a related matter, the city's acting police chief asked the council for permission to discontinue a policy of non-investigation of minor traffic accidents.

Also last night, the council approved the final design plans for improvements of Wasson Road — a project which will mean assessing property owners on that street for the cost of installing curbs and gutters as part of the improvements.

Pastor Claude Craven of Trinity Baptist Church went before the council to complain that the motorcycle escort provided by off-duty policemen at the head of funeral processions is not visible enough to motorists and has led to some near-accidents.

"Before we have a wreck, something needs to be done about this situation," Craven told the council. "People just cannot see that little motorcycle."

Craven asked for a return to the city's old policy of using patrol cars to head the processions — or, he said, provide the funeral processions with motorcycles bearing lights "large enough for people to see."

City Manager Don Davis and Acting Chief of Police Bob Dugan explained why the city had changed from using patrol cars to motorcycles. The move was made in January, Davis said, because city officials decided they no longer could afford to tie up a patrol car with a funeral procession when the car should be available for police work.

Dugan said he sympathized with Craven and other pastors concerned about the problem. He noted, however, that during a February survey of escort service there were as many as five hours per day taken up by providing escorts. Although the officers in the procession were working off-duty, had they been using patrol cars instead of their private motorcycles they would have tied up patrol cars for as much as five hours on some days, Dugan pointed out.

He added that he had discussed the situation with the four officers who participate in the escort program and they indicated a willingness to install larger lights on their motorcycles.

"We'll try to do something about it," echoed Mayor Clyde Angel.

IN A related matter, the council last night agreed to reinstate a policy of investigating and making reports on minor traffic accidents. Elwood Hoherz, who resigned as police chief in April, had won council approval in October to begin a policy of non-investigation of most minor accidents. Hoherz sought the change because it would be a better use of manpower, he said.

The council went along with the idea and agreed to a six-month trial period for the project. Last night, the council took a look at a memo from acting chief Dugan, in which

Grads told to be willing to work

Dr. Don Newbury told graduating seniors at Big Spring High School's commencement exercises last night "to be brave and strong and willing to work" as they enter the world of adulthood. Newbury, president of Western Texas College in Snyder, was guest speaker at the event in which 271 students received diplomas.

Newbury quoted Socrates when telling the graduates an educated person is one "who learns to manage circumstances encountered day by day." Newbury told the seniors they would need to draw on their educational background to cope and succeed in work or higher education.

Newbury pointed out that the road will not always be clearly marked or smoothly paved, but he urged the graduates to persevere.

"Don't quit on momentary defeats, that's all they are — momentary. Defeats fade away, but achievements are something that cannot be taken from you," he said.

In her valedictory address, Kimberly Karen McClendon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy C. McClendon, said the graduation marked the beginning "of living our lives as responsible 'Achievements are something that cannot be taken from you.'

adults." She said the graduates must now act on their own without the constant guidance and reassurance they received in high school.

Miss McClendon graduated with a four-year grade point average of 98.02 and plans to attend Texas Tech University as a major in pre-med.

Dacia Kaye Loudamy, class salutatorian, said, "We look back on fond memories and we hate to leave, but it is time we become part of college or the working world to face the challenge of the future."

Both Miss McClendon and Miss Loudamy expressed uncertainty of the future, yet they encouraged the graduates to use their 12 years in the Big Spring school system as a springboard to success and to becoming responsible adults.

W. A. McQueary, principal at Big Spring High School, certified the class for graduation and district Superintendent Lynn Hise accepted the seniors as graduates. Carol Hunter, Dwayne Fraser and Al Valdes, all members of the board of education, awarded the graduates with diplomas.

The seniors celebrated the end of their high school careers with a joyous shout and by flinging their graduation caps high into the air.

New Mexico escapee caught here

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

A man who escaped from the custody of the New Mexico Corrections Department in March was arrested by Big Spring authorities at 9:20 p.m. yesterday, police said.

The man, 23-year-old James Allen Isaac, was arrested by officers Bob Lester and Lee Everett after the pickup truck he was a passenger in was stopped on West Fourth for an alleged traffic violation, Lt. John Wolf said.

Big Spring police had been on the lookout for Isaac since March 15 when he allegedly failed to appear at an inmate pickup point in Roswell, N.M. He was employed there in a prisoner work-release program.

Officials thought Isaac might have headed for the Big Spring area because he once lived here and has relatives in the Midland-Odessa area.

Isaac remains in city jail pending a waiver of extradition by District Judge Jim Gregg. Wolf said Big Spring police have confirmed by telephone that Isaac is still wanted for escape, he added.

"He gave us no trouble (when arrested)," Wolf said. "He just came right on."

According to records in the Howard County district attorney's office, Isaac had been convicted of burglary of a motor vehicle in 1977 and received five years' probation.

His probation was revoked in September 1978 based upon a subsequent burglary of a habitation charge, for which he was sentenced to eight years in the Texas Department of Corrections, according to district attorney records.

Isaac apparently had been paroled, District Attorney Rick Hamby said last March, when he was convicted in New Mexico of illegal possession of credit cards and escape from a police officer.

Jeff Pederson, a spokesman for the New Mexico Corrections Department, told the Associated Press Isaac had entered prison in April 1979 and was paroled in November 1980.

In April 1981 Isaac was accused by Howard County authorities of forgery and had a warrant issued for his arrest, Hamby said. Isaac was then arrested and returned to New Mexico as a parole violator in September 1981, according to Pederson.

24 dead, 20 wounded, officials say

British lose destroyer, supply ship

By The Associated Press

Argentine warplanes knocked out two more British ships near the Falkland Islands in a devastating attack that left 24 dead and at least 20 wounded, British Defense Secretary John Nott told Parliament today.

He said 20 men were killed and about 20 wounded when the destroyer Coventry was bombed Tuesday and sunk, and that four men were killed and a small number wounded when the freighter-supply ship Atlantic Conveyor was hit and abandoned. The destroyer Broadsword was damaged in the Argentine attack.

A high-ranking British official said the freighter was hit with radar-deceiving Exocet missiles probably intended for the carrier Hermes, flagship of the British fleet.

Nott said 10 more warships have joined the Falklands armada in the last two days, and that British forces who landed at San Carlos "are now poised to begin their thrust on Port Stanley," capital of the Falklands.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told a Conservative Party meeting that "despite these grievous losses, neither our resolve nor our confidence is weakened."

The high-ranking British official, who declined to be identified, said the Atlantic Conveyor was hit from 28 miles away by two Exocet missiles fired by Argentine warplanes — the same kind of French-built missile that sank the British destroyer Sheffield on May 4.

He said the carrier Hermes was close enough to see the Atlantic Conveyor hit, and that the Exocets — which fly about 6 feet above the surface of the water at about the speed of sound to avoid radar detection — probably were intended for the Hermes, one of two carriers in the armada and a base for Britain's vertical takeoff Harrier jets.

The source said the Coventry was hit by two 1,000-pound bombs from one of four Argentine aircraft that attacked both the Coventry and destroyer Broadsword, accompanying it on radar picket duty. He said the Broadsword suffered minor damage with no casualties reported.

Mrs. Thatcher's "War Cabinet" met earlier in the day, and a government source described the meeting as a "grim affair. We all recognize it was a bad day. But we hold fast to our objective," meaning the retaking of the Falkland Islands from British forces who landed near San Carlos Bay on Friday.

Rescue operations to recover crewmen from the icy South Atlantic continued throughout the night, British officials announced. But they did not say whether the vessels sank or how many men perished. British Defense Minister John Nott was to make a statement to the House of Commons.

Britain has said it lost 74 men and Argentina 394 since the Argentines seized the Falklands from Britain April 2. Most of the Argentine losses — 321 — were from the cruiser General Belgrano, torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine May 2.

The Atlantic Conveyor's most important tasks had been to transport more Harrier fighter-bombers to the British armada fighting to regain the Falklands, but British officials said the jets had already been "disembarked."

U.S., Argentina once argued over Falklands

BOSTON (AP) — President Andrew Jackson had trouble with Argentina 151 years ago over the Falkland Islands, according to an old document that disputed Argentine claims to the islands.

Jackson ordered a diplomat in Buenos Aires to protest Argentine warnings to American sea captains against fishing near the South Atlantic islands, according to the diplomatic note signed by Martin Van Buren, Jackson's secretary of state.

The document was purchased over the weekend by a Boston manuscript collector.

"The government of Buenos Ayres can certainly deduce no good title to these islands ... from any fact connected with their history in reference to the first discovery, occupancy or exclusive possession of them by the subjects of Spain," wrote Van Buren.

The five-page letter, dated Feb. 10, 1831, was addressed to John M. Forbes, U.S. charge d'affaires in Buenos Aires.

The letter was connected with a dispute over the rights of U.S. fishermen, whalers and seal fishermen in the South Atlantic.

Van Buren wrote that Jackson wanted to protest "any restraints whatever upon the enterprise of our citizens engaged in the fisheries in question or impair their undoubted rights in the freest use of them."

Throughout the letter, Van Buren used the term Falklands, not the name Malvinas used by Argentina. It was written two years before the British, who claimed the Falklands in 1765, occupied the islands and kept them until Argentina seized them last month.

Action/reaction: Tag savings

Q. How much money has the state of Texas saved by using the license tag stickers instead of new plates every year since 1975?

A. According to Larry Templeton, chief supervisor of supply for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, the savings is approximately $78 million. Templeton said the conservative estimate is from a more definitive study he is completing on the 1975 switch to stickers.

Ecuadorean jet detained

NEW YORK (AP) — An Ecuadorean cargo jet, which reportedly contained Israeli-made weapons for possible use in Argentina, was being held under guard today at Kennedy International Airport after customs agents searched the plane, authorities said.

The Ecuatoriana Airlines Boeing 707, which flew into Kennedy early Tuesday, was detained "regarding the licensing of the merchandise," U.S. Customs spokesman Michael Kaufman said.

He would not elaborate on the cargo and said all further information would come from the State Department. A spokesman there, Rich Sherman, said no new information would be released immediately.

WNBC-TV said it learned from unidentified sources that the airplane contained "more than 100 high-impact Israeli bombs." The Daily News reported that rockets and other armaments were on board.

U.S. plans sale to Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has secretly notified Congress it plans to sell Israel an additional 75 F-16 advanced jet fighters for more than $2.5 billion, the biggest arms sale to Israel in more than four years.

U.S. defense sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said the Pentagon sent a classified notification to Capitol Hill on Monday, a day before Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon conferred with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Congress is usually notified of all arms sales about two days before the public announcement.

The Sharon-Weinberger meeting Tuesday appeared to unfreeze some defense-related economic aid measures which were slowed last December to demonstrate U.S. objections to Israeli annexation of the Golan Heights, captured from Syria in 1967.

Prime rate cut, but...

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite new evidence that interest rates are falling, economists say the decline will not give much relief to cash-squeezed corporations.

"The conditions that would lead to bankruptcy are still with us," said Ben E. Laden, chief economist at the investment firm T. Rowe Price Associates Inc. "We have to expect there will be more fairly big companies that will fail."

The financial burden on corporations is particularly heavy during this recession because lower sales are not offset by declines in interest expense. Corporate bankruptcies are running about 50 percent ahead of last year.

Hinckley called 'backward'

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr. was "very backward" in his relationships with women and sought out teen-age prostitutes for his first sexual experiences when he was 25 years old, a psychiatrist says.

Dr. Thomas C. Goldman, testifying Tuesday at Hinckley's trial, said the defendant looked for young prostitutes who resembled actress Jodie Foster on three occasions between Dec. 8 and Dec. 12, 1980.

Goldman was returning to the stand for more cross-examination today.

The defense has claimed that Hinckley was obsessed with Miss Foster and shot President Reagan and three other men on March 30, 1981, in an attempt to win her love. Goldman said he wanted to impress Miss Foster "by committing front-page murder."

C-City council to meet again on sewage problem

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Colorado City Council voted yesterday to hold a workshop concerning long-range solutions to the city's sewage treatment problems following a meeting with a representative from the engineering firm of Freeze and Nichols.

According to Lee Hand, the city can build a new sewage treatment plant, renovate and expand the existing plant, or acquire additional land and utilize irrigation techniques.

The Fort Worth engineering firm has been hired to seek long-term solutions to the problems, which include the plant's not meeting standards according to the Texas Water Quality Board, which has set up a long-range compliance schedule.

Action was deferred on enacting an ordinance that would prohibit water skiing at Lake Champion.

Auto office closed Monday

Persons with automobile registrations expiring at the end of May need to pick up their license stickers this week since the automobile registration office will be closed Monday, Dorothy Moore, tax assessor-collector, says. Many persons wait until the last day of the month to register their vehicles, Mrs. Moore said, but the office will be closed on Monday for Memorial Day.

City council

Dugan criticized the non-investigation of "fender benders" and asked the council to reinstate the old policy.

Dugan told the council numerous daily complaints were being received at the police station concerning the fact that certain accidents weren't being investigated any more. Complainants were telling police their insurance companies were reluctant to handle claims without an objective accident report to go by, Dugan said.

Dugan concluded that the "small amount of time saved" by not working the accidents "does not offset the time spent by our personnel in searching our records in answer to complaints."

Acting on a concurring recommendation from City Manager Don Davis, the council agreed to reinstate the policy of investigating minor accidents. Police officers will begin working all traffic accidents sometime next week, Davis said after the meeting.

In other action, the council approved the final design plans for improvements to Wasson Road — improvements which will mean a bill from the city for property owners. The $478,000 improvements call for reconstruction of Wasson as a four-lane thoroughfare with a continuous left-turn lane from F.M. 700 to just below the city park entrance, with the remainder of the road as a four-lane thoroughfare with a two-foot painted median.

Additionally, Wasson will be curbed and guttered. Owners of property fronting the curbed and guttered portion of Wasson will be assessed the cost of installing the curbs and gutters, the council decided.

Assistant City Manager Paul Pezelle told The Herald the cost is unclear at this point. He pointed out, however, that for a similar project done on Scurry a few years ago, the cost to property owners came out to about $6 a foot. An arrangement had been made with a local financial institution to handle financing, he said, and such an arrangement possibly will be set for Wasson property owners assessed the cost of improvements along their property.

The council also passed an ordinance extending some state standards for driveways with access to state-maintained roads. The standards now extend to all driveways leading to public streets inside the city limits and will "make it easier" to do the Wasson Road improvements, Feazelle said.

ALSO LAST night, the council conducted a public hearing on Big Spring Cable TV. Jim Lancaster, vice president of the cable firm, appeared before the council to deliver a status report on some improvements he had discussed with city officials in the summer of 1980.

At that time, Lancaster said, he had indicated he would expand channel capacity in Big Spring within three years. Last night, Lancaster told the council he is on schedule and hopes to offer more programming by July 1983.

Lancaster also answered questions from members of the audience about the recent loss of programming from WFAA-Dallas (the station's original news and movie programming returned to local airwaves Monday night).

In other business, the council:

- Approved bids to spend about $9,000 repairing cracks on all nine courts at the city tennis center, resurfacing three of the courts and replacing windscreens. The council approved using $1,635 earmarked for swimming pool repairs to fund the tennis court repairs (the pool repairs will cost about $30,000 instead of the budgeted $3,000 and could be handled during next year's budget, Davis suggested).

- Awarded the sale of a compact pickup truck to the city by Mesa Valley Toyota for $7,115.

- Approved specifications for bidding on new coats, pants and helmets for city firefighters. The new clothing is needed to conform with state standards which will go into effect in January.

- Granted a temporary mobile home permit to Judi Savell of 1310 Austin conditioned withdrawal of an objection to the mobile home by a nearby property owner.

- Approved putting to bid street improvements in Washington Heights and drainage improvements along 11th Place.

The city also announced it will begin a mosquito control program which will consist of fogging as well as putting larvacide in stagnant bodies of water. Tom Decell, public works director, has asked property owners to scour their property and eliminate standing bodies of water where mosquitoes breed.

Also, the city pool will open Friday with some new hours. Tuesday through Friday the hours are 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., 1 to 5 p.m. and 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. On Saturdays the hours are 1 to 6 p.m. and on Sundays the hours are 1 to 5 p.m. The pool will be closed Monday.

21 die in fire; arson charged

AIRE-SUR-L'ADOUR, France (AP) — The death toll from the fire that ravaged a psychiatric educational center for disturbed youths in southwestern France was put at 21 today, and investigators said the blaze was clearly a case of arson.

"Only a deliberate will to start a fire can explain the size of the fire and the rapidity with which it spread," said a spokesman for fire department investigators.

From the outset, investigators and officials at the Jean Sarrailh Center suspected the fire might have been deliberately set. They noted the blaze broke out in several different areas of the center's north wing.

Officials in this community of about 7,000 inhabitants 75 miles southwest of Bordeaux said nine people were injured in the fire that broke out Tuesday morning and one person was still missing.

Officials said one of the dead was a nurse at the center and the rest were students.

The 90-bed center is run by the Health Foundation for French Students.

Juvenile tries to evade officers

Police said they arrested a 16-year-old male on charges of evading arrest and being a child in need of supervision at 8:57 p.m. yesterday.

The juvenile ran away from the arresting officer on the back lot of Bauer Elementary School, 108 N.W. Ninth, police said. He was taken to city jail where his parents picked him up, Lt. John Wolf said.

Police arrested a female juvenile at 1:32 p.m. yesterday on a charge of being a runaway, police said. Officials in Frankfort, Ind., have been notified to pick her up, police said.

Jerry Dee Ausburne of 707 E. 15th told police that between 5:30 p.m. Wednesday and 4 a.m. today someone entered his residence and stole a pistol worth $75.81 from the top of a chest.

The manager of Pay-Less Shoes, 2011 S. Gregg, reported to police that $270 cash was stolen from the store between 6:42 p.m. Monday and 1:15 p.m. yesterday.

An undetermined amount of merchandise and coins was taken and damage done to pool tables, a cigarette machine and a jukebox by someone at the T-Club, 311 N.W. Fourth, between 1 a.m. and 5:20 a.m. today, police said.

- Someone slashed tires on three vehicles at Mitchem Auto Sales, 700 W. Fourth, between 6 p.m. Monday and 8:30 a.m. yesterday, causing $320 in damage, according to police reports.

- Someone discharged four gunshot rounds into the front wall of a 603 State residence yesterday, Larry Tubb of 1102 E. Sixth told police.

- A 32-year-old woman told police that at 10:10 a.m. yesterday a person known to her struck her in the face at Asteroid World, 1200 E. Fourth.

- A Cadillac driven by Delores S. Cisneroz of 709 N.W. Ninth allegedly collided with a Toyota pick-up truck driven by Stan Fraley of 1506 Stadium in the Howard College parking lot at 7:40 p.m. Tuesday, police said. There were no serious injuries reported.

- A Ford Thunderbird driven by James Lynn Blackwell of Box 1421, Tarleton Station, and a Chevrolet Impala driven by Carmen Andrade De Leon of 207 N. Nolan collided at the East Fourth and Johnson intersection at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, police said. There were no serious injuries reported.

Probation terms revoked for 2

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested two persons yesterday on charges of revocation of probation. Antonio Flores, 20, of 304 N. E. Eighth, and Douglas Leroy Smith, 32, of Route 1, are being held without bond in county jail.

- Four sentences were handed down in 118th District Court Monday, with three persons transferred by the sheriff's office to the Texas Department of Corrections. Buddy Mulvihill, 43, of 2512 Langley, had his probation revoked and was sentenced to serve his original sentence of three years in TDC for theft by check. Oscar Prince Garcia, 19, of Midland, was assessed a seven-year term after pleading guilty to a charge of burglary. Tommy Gilbert Coates, 24, of Route One, pleaded guilty to a revocation of probation charge and was assessed a three-year sentence. Oscar Solis, 20, of Route 2, received a six-year probation sentence after pleading guilty to theft by appropriation.

- An oilfield worker was in Malone-Hogan Hospital this morning after apparently getting shocked while operating an arc welder on a log located behind Quality Truck and Anderson Road. Jesus Talamantez was shocked and possibly fell while using a welder during the rain Tuesday at 2:45 a.m., according to sheriff's deputies.

Oilfield crime number changes

WICHITA FALLS — The Oil Field Theft Hotline, which has been run by the North Texas Oil and Gas Association, will soon be managed by the Petroleum Industry Security Council, according to Tom Haywood of the North Texas Oil and Gas Association.

The old hotline number of 817-723-1114 changes to a toll-free number, 1-800-645-2677.

The Petroleum Industry Security Council is chartered as a non-profit corporation funded by the oil industry. Calls to the hotline are part of a reward program designed to encourage the report of criminal activity in the oilfields.

Hardesty has summer of traveling ahead

Big Spring Postmaster Frank Hardesty will fill in for the president of the National Association of Postmasters of the U.S. at four state postmaster conventions this summer.

Hardesty is a NAPUS vice president for the Dallas region.

Hardesty will help lead conventions in Cheyenne, Wyo., June 2 to 4; Port Angeles, Wash., June 21 to 25; Mystic, Conn., July 11 to 14 and Monroe, La., July 20 to 22.

Hardesty has served three NAPUS presidents by appointment to a national legislative committee. In addition, he has served twice on national resolutions committees and chaired a national constitution and rules committee. He has been local postmaster since 1965.

Root Valley Fair Lodge slated to get new floors

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Local hospital trustees met last night and discussed a variety of subjects ranging from the budget to replacing floors in Root Valley Fair Lodge.

According to administrator Ray Dillard, the budget looks good right now. He also indicated there will be some inconvenience in the lodge while some of the floors are being replaced.

Dillard announced a new program is being implemented in the hospital which will help meet the staffing level of registered nurses required by Medicare. The hospital will assist two persons with their nursing education, and in turn, they will work for the hospital for an extended period of time following graduation.

The resignation of Willie Landau from the hospital board was announced. Landau, who has been on the board since a year after the hospital district was formed, has moved to Dallas.

Final action by the board included the announcement of advertisement for bids on a new cell counter, an estimated $13,000 expenditure.

Dawson renews contract with Big Spring hospital

LAMESA — Dawson County commissioners Monday approved a contract with Big Spring State Hospital for periodic visits by a psychiatrist and a medical doctor to the Dawson County Mental Health Clinic.

Dawson County Judge Leslie Pratt said the contract is "a formality" which has to be renewed "every other year."

The commissioners delayed consideration of the county's salary schedule "until after" the election in June," Pratt said.

A room at the Howard College building in Lamesa will be rewired for a summer typing class, said Pratt. Although the class normally meets in a room at the Lamesa public school, remodeling operations this summer will require moving the class to the county-owned Howard College classroom. The rewiring is necessary for the correct number of typewriters to operate in the room, Pratt said.

The commissioners also:

- Declined to attend the Texas Tech commencement Dawson County at a cost of $257. "We found out that the chamber of commerce has a copy and probably the library, too," said Pratt. "They wouldn't be used very often."

- Approved the crossing of a county road by Getty Oil Co.

Deaths

C. Tredaway

MIDLAND — Claude Tredaway, 76, of Midland, formerly of Big Spring, died Monday afternoon in a hospital here.

Services were to be held today at 2 p.m. at Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Don Mitchell, minister of the Westside Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was to follow in Westhaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He was born June 4, 1905, in Comanche County. In 1922 he moved to Howard County and farmed. He married Minnie Ola Lancaster in Big Spring in 1927. They lived in Big Spring until 1943, when they moved to Midland.

He had worked at the Farmer's Co-Op Gin for 33 years and was a member of the Martin County Sheriff's Posse.

He is survived by his wife of Midland; four sons, A.C. Special session: House approves tax repeal

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House has driven in the first of three nails required to shut the coffin and bury the state property tax.

House members voted 132-14 on Tuesday in favor of a proposed constitutional amendment that would abolish the tax that has not been collected since 1979.

The tax would die if the amendment is approved by senators meeting in special session here and by voters on Nov. 2. The proposed amendment also would forgive the payment of uncollected taxes, which add up to about $850 million.

House approval of the repeal measure came despite pleas from representatives concerned about the future of the 17 state universities that had depended on the tax for construction money. The 17 schools do not get a piece of the Permanent University Fund (PUF), which has built University of Texas and Texas A&M system schools.

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, said repealing the tax before appropriating replacement money was like selling a car — albeit it an "old beat-up '65 model that perhaps doesn't run too well" — without getting a new one.

The 1979 Legislature gutted the property tax by reducing the assessment rate to .0001 percent. The tax has not been collected since then.

Midwestern State University sued, contending lawmakers could not do away with the tax established in the Texas Constitution. Gov. Bill Clements, confident the state would lose the case when it goes to trial, called the special session.

Clements' goal was to have the tax abolished and come up with a "catch-up" fund for the 17 colleges that have had to postpone construction plans because of a lack of money.

The governor's idea was carried on the House floor by Speaker Bill Clayton, Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, and others. Schlueter defended it against several challenges Tuesday.

The challengers said they did not want to kill the tax until an interim fund is approved, and a permanent fund is established.

The House Appropriation Committee is working on the interim appropriation, but has been bogged down in parliamentary questions since the session opened Monday.

Rep. Wilhelmina DeLo, D-Austin, failed to win support for her plan to revive the tax at a 3-cent rate until a $2 billion fund had accrued for the 17 colleges that don't get PUF money.

She said the 3-cent tax would mean a $15 annual assessment on a $50,000 home.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, tried to delay consideration until next week.

"We just really don't know what we're doing," said Green.

Prison funding put on agenda

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The special legislative session that was supposed to simply repeal the state property tax has been opened up to include emergency funding for the state's overcrowded prison system.

Gov. Bill Clements made the announcement Tuesday after meeting with Texas Department of Corrections officials, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clements called the special session to repeal the property tax, which remains in the state Constitution but has not been collected since 1979, when the Legislature tried to do away with it.

The governor also wants lawmakers to come up with money for college construction that had been funded by the tax.

State officials have called on Clements to let legislators consider construction funds for the prison system, which had to close its doors to new inmates earlier this month. The TDC is under a federal court order against overcrowding.

The TDC board adopted a resolution Tuesday asking Clements to open the session, which began Monday, to appropriate $85 million for prison construction.

But Hobby said after the meeting that all TDC could get for now is $45 million.

"Our board passed $85 million, but we're told $45 million is all we can get," said TDC Board Chairman T.L. Austin. "We'll try to judiciously spend what's available."

Austin said the emergency funds would give the TDC $23 million to add 4,000 more beds by the end of September, and $250,000 for contracting with counties to release TDC inmates on work furlough programs.

The rest of the money would go for utilities and more housing for TDC employees.

Hobby said legislators also would consider proposals to add more employees to the Board of Pardons and Paroles, expand the adult probation program and to give the governor leeway to grant paroles when overcrowding reaches an emergency level.

On Monday, TDC Director W.J. Estelle told a House committee it would take $630.5 million over the next three years to build adequate prison space.

The TDC now holds almost 34,000 inmates and, in order to comply with the federal court order, has adopted a limit on how many inmates it will accept.

"What the board wants the public to realize is that if we continue to have a net increase of 500 inmates a month, it's going to cost the state a lot of money," said Austin.

Phillips seeks new plant site

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has asked a company to look for another site for a proposed plant because some Washington County residents fear the plant will pollute their air and water.

A popular swimming hole is among the waterways the residents want to protect.

On Tuesday the Senate Administration Committee quickly approved a resolution asking Phillips Petroleum Co. to reconsider building a natural gas processing plant on 40 acres in the Quarry community, northwest of Brenham.

Sen. Kent Caperton's resolution suggests a study to locate the plant on an alternate site.

Three senators pounced on the suggestion and said they would like to have the plant in their districts.

Caperton, D-Bryan, was absent, and the committee added an amendment asking Phillips to consider putting the plant in districts represented by Sens. John Wilson, D-La Grange; J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson; and Mike Richards, R-Houston.

The resolution said the proposed plant site is less than two miles from Lake Somerville, the source of Brenham's water supply and a recreational area which attracted three million visitors last year.

The site also is next to Wolf Creek, which is described as a "beautiful, natural spring-fed creek" where Indians camped and "which still is used as a swimming hole."

Texas among states with most savings and loans losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighty-five percent of the nation's federally insured savings and loan associations lost money last year, according to industry statistics compiled by the government and obtained by The Associated Press.

The largest numbers of money losers were in Illinois, Ohio and Texas, according to the data.

Other states with large numbers of troubled savings and loans were California, Florida, Indiana, Louisiana, New Jersey, Jersey, North Carolina and Pennsylvania, the figures show.

In the District of Columbia and in six states — Delaware, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Rhode Island and Vermont — every one of the federally insured associations lost money in the last half of last year. That meant their expenses for the year were greater than their 1981 income.

In each of four states, only one S&L was in the black.

The savings and loan industry is undergoing its worst financial crisis since the Great Depression. Its troubles are due to the lengthy spell of high interest rates that force the institutions to pay more for new money than they are taking in from their large portfolios of home loans granted years ago when interest rates were much lower.

"All we need is a drop in interest rates for the business to become very profitable, very quickly," says William O'Connell, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

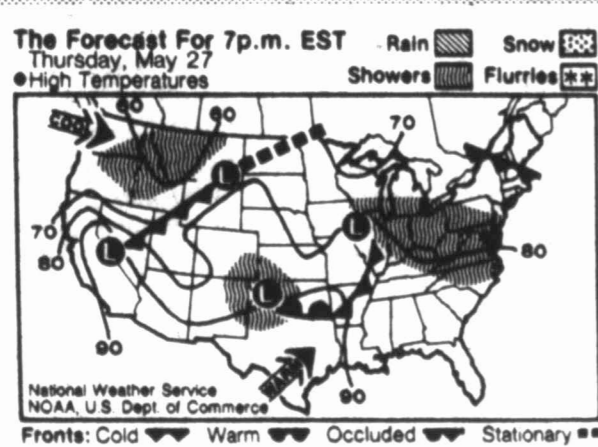

If tomorrow savings and loans could restructure their mortgages in such a way that they could earn an interest rate consistent with the rate they are paying depositors, then they would be in great shape," says Kevin Hurley of Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

To examine the severity of the industry's problems, The AP checked the semi-annual financial reports that 3,743 federally insured institutions filed, as required, with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board Montgomery Data Systems Inc. of Kensington, Md., pulled information on assets, income and liabilities off computer tapes containing data for the end of last year, the most recent period for which the reports are publicly available.

All told, 3,173 institutions said they were losing money in the last half of 1981.

Thirty-four savings and loans had lost so much money that they exhausted their capital — net worth. Net worth is the excess of assets over liabilities. Assets include the mortgages held by institutions, while savings accounts on the books are considered liabilities. When an institution's liabilities are greater than its assets, it is considered technically insolvent.

Heavy storms move toward East Texas

By the Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms with the potential for flash flood producing rainfall, high winds, hail or tornadoes moved eastward across the northern portion of Texas early today.

A tornado watch covered 47 counties in West Texas and North Central Texas early today. The tornado watch was along and 70 miles and on either side of a line from 60 miles southwest of Midland to 60 miles north of Abilene.

Golf ball size hail and street flooding was reported at Lubbock as the storm system passed through that West Texas city. A tornado warning was issued for Lubbock and Crosby counties as the heavier storms passed through the area.

Highs were to be mostly in the 80s and 90s, ranging from the 70s in the Panhandle to near 100 in Southwest Texas.

14 injured; damage heavy

Tennis ball-sized hail pelts Monahans

Tennis ball-sized hail pelted the West Texas city of Monahans late Tuesday, injuring 14 people and inflicting heavy damage on businesses, homes, utility poles and trees.

"There's damage all over the place, windows, roofs, cars," said Monahans police Lt. Mike Strickland.

Breaking glass was responsible for the minor injuries suffered by 14 people, according to Police Chief David Mills. None of the injured were admitted to the hospital, he said.

"There's probably not a business or house that doesn't have some damage," Mills said. Extra police were called out to provide security for businesses with broken windows, Strickland said.

"Most of them got their places boarded up and everything is quiet now," Strickland said early today.

"I've heard about hail that big, but I had never seen it before. The wind was pretty high and that made it worse," Strickland said.

Six mobile homes were also damaged by high winds and the heavy rain accompanying the storm caused some minor street flooding.

Trees were stripped of their leaves in some areas and some utility poles were snapped by the high winds accompanying the storm.

"You'd think it was a glacier," Mills said of the coating of hail on the ground. "It was curb-to-curb ice. I've never seen anything like it."

Floodwaters from an earlier storm were expected to recede enough today to allow some 35 families to return to their homes at Falfurrias in South Texas, officials said.

Several creeks went on a rampage in Falfurrias and chased about 150 people from their homes, according to Brooks County Sheriff Ramior Castellano.

The Falfurrias flood was the latest in a series since May 12 that also have swamped parts of Wichita Falls and Austin.

Water was a foot deep Tuesday afternoon in downtown Falfurrias, and three feet deep in some residential areas, said Castellano.

"The situation is stable, but it's still serious," in the small town about 55 miles southwest of Corpus Christi, he said.

President Reagan declared Wichita County a major disaster area Tuesday due to heavy flooding that began May 12, Gov. Bill Clements said.

The presidential declaration means Wichita County residents who suffered flood losses will be eligible for several types of aid, including loans and grants, Clements said.

Some people thrive on stress

It's impossible to avoid stress in our daily lives. Even lovers exchanging passionate kisses show signs of stress — their pulses race, breathing quickens, hearts beat faster.

Since there's no way to live completely stress-free, the key is to "recognize our typical response to stress and then to modulate our lives in accordance with it," says Hans Selye, the scientist who "invented" the notion of stress more than 40 years ago.

Selye says it's important for people to know their personal limits of stress endurance. Some people are like turtles and require peace, quiet and a generally tranquil environment, while others, he adds, are like racehorses and thrive on stress.

THAT'S WHY HE THINKS it's wrong to generalize sweepingly that overwork and excessive striving are dangerous. All that does, he says, is to create "unnecessary anxiety." "If a danger does exist, it is that some people mistake their own type and push beyond their normal stress endurance. That should be avoided."

Selye also finds the proper attitude a good defense against stress. "Attitude determines whether we perceive any experience as pleasant or unpleasant, and adopting the right attitude can convert a negative stress into a positive one."

WAYS TO DO THAT include: taking a favorable view toward your work; forgetting life's unpleasant incidents; not carrying grudges.

Another ingredient in his recipe for a stress antidote is for people to find a balance in their lives between egoism and altruism, what he calls "altruistic egoism — looking out for yourself by being necessary to others."

Selye says everyone can attain this goal. "You needn't discuss the equivalent of the theory of relativity or write the world's greatest symphony to achieve that state. You can work at being a good teacher, a good baker, a good neighbor. And striving to make yourself even more useful and necessary is an aim that you can safely pursue throughout your life, and one that will protect you from the worst of all modern social stresses, purposelessness."

Around the Rim

By MIKE DOWNEY

Tell me why

Why do people always refer to going up or down a horizontal street? Who puts those price tags on the bottom of fragile and expensive items? If water is so good for you in its natural state, why are so many chemicals poured into it in pools and water supplies? Why is it that one always replies to that 3 a.m. phone call with "No, I wasn't asleep, just realigning my tires when you called?"

HUMAN NATURE can run the entire spectrum of emotional responses — one can be amazed, shocked, irritated, amused but more often just confused. For example, what sadist put steps in movie theaters for the dark-blind souls to stumble on and scatter popcorn everywhere? Speaking of dark theaters, why does everyone stride into the dark pretending they can see — "Look out, Batman!" — When a few seconds' wait would improve sight?

Is it true that every car that drives in front of me does not have working turn signals? Has anyone else noticed that a yellow light means "Floor it" and the first seconds of a red light mean "I ain't slowing down for nuthin'?" Why does speed limit stand for minimum speed?

Why do people who have the least to say bray the most? Why do we equate success in one field with expertise in all areas? For example, what does Ricardo Montalban know about cars? Tug McGraw about soft drinks? Tom Landry about insurance? Anybody about American Express? What about Lorne Greene and that dog food?

Why is being cold a sign of weakness and being hot is hot? Why do we revere antiques but not the elderly? Who is responsible for all those kids who cry during movies, run through restaurants or generally make any public place a miserable place?

UNFORTUNATELY more questions exist than answers. But wouldn't it be great if someone could resolve all of life's little irritants on the spot? How nice it would be to be driving along complaining of the potholes and see a crew pulling in to repair them? How about a rude person in the grocery line or the jerk who cuts you off in traffic? Perhaps a Clint Eastwood to enforce line etiquette with steely eyes or maybe a few well-placed machine-gun rounds into an errant vehicle?

Have you ever wondered if everyone finds a missing item right after they've bought a replacement? Where do those things go when you lose them where they can't be lost? I have always been curious as to where all my old toys went after I outgrew them or forgot about them.

Who is responsible for starting Christmas in October? Why do we wrap gifts in pretty paper we just destroy? What happened to cheap candy that was a real snack instead of just a taste? Why is this column full of so many inane questions? Don't I have something better to do than ask questions?

Why isn't the Washington Monument of Washington? At what age does the term "old" really apply? Who decided where the letters come in the alphabet? Does anyone have the answers to these questions?

Billy Graham

Bible is our guide

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How much influence should the Bible have on our daily lives? Should we try to follow it in everything, or just spiritual matters? —Mrs. L.J.

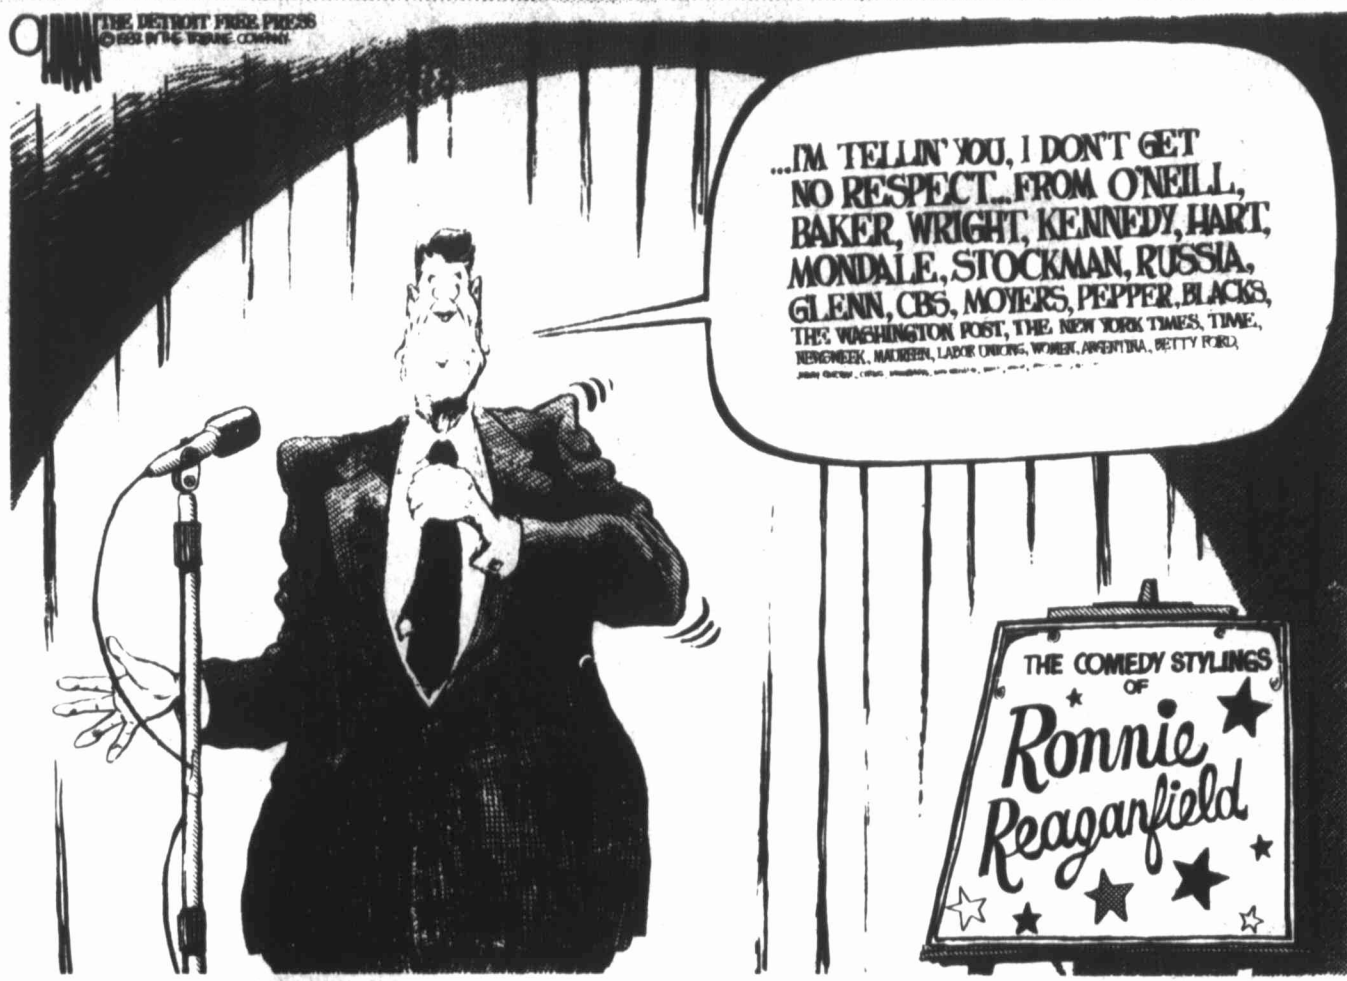

DEAR MRS. L.J.: The Bible is God's Word, and as such it should be the foundation of our lives every day. God has given it to us to guide us and encourage us, and we can never be fully obedient to him if we ignore his Word.

It is interesting to note that the Bible is concerned about every aspect of our lives, and not what you might think are just "spiritual" matters. For example, the Bible gives us many guidelines about personal relationships. It tells us much about the way husbands and wives should act toward each other, and the way we should act toward our neighbors. I suspect that if I were to ask you what some of the greatest problems are that you face every day, they would probably be related to the way others treat you and the way you treat others. Are such things "spiritual"? Yes, because God is concerned about them and wants you to follow his will in them.

That is not to say that the Bible is only a rule book, which gives us an exact rule to follow in every situation we may face. But the Bible gives us spiritual principles, which we then are to apply to our everyday lives. Take for example, Paul's statement that, "If it is possible, as far as it depends on you, live at peace with everyone" (Romans 12:18). Perhaps there is a neighbor who is disagreeable, or someone at work who has difficulty getting along with. This principle from God's Word (along with other principles God has given us) will help you as you live or work with that kind of person. I think you would be amazed to find out how practical the Bible really is, and how relevant it is to our lives today.

Learn to love God's word, and ask God to help you as you read it so you will understand it and apply it to your life.

Strange bedfellows

WASHINGTON — When Secretary of State Alexander Haig unexpectedly turned to the worsening war between Iran and Iraq at the northern end of the Persian Gulf, he called it "perhaps" the most troubling crisis in the Middle East — for the U.S., perhaps the most dangerous in the world.

But Haig did not mention the oddest feature of a war that the U.S. cannot afford to see the Ayatollah Khomeini win: that Israel, the closest U.S. partner in the Middle East, has been surreptitiously sending millions of dollars' worth of military aid to Khomeini. Israel's bedfellows are strange indeed: three of its hated enemies — Libya, Syria and the Soviet Union — working independently to help Iran defeat Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and overthrow his government.

Haig's brilliant exposition on the dangers of Khomeinism to Arab stability in Iraq and throughout the Persian Gulf showed a lack of follow-through that critics insist must be corrected quickly for the Reagan administration to keep its tenuous control over the threatening Mideast. Instead of stopping Israel's surreptitious aid to Khomeini, the U.S. has looked the other way.

ISRAEL'S HELP for Khomeini's war is also help for Khomeini's fundamentalist revolution — the sec-

Psychological profile of Begin

WASHINGTON — Israel's embattled Prime Minister Menachem Begin, though capable of statesmanship, "tends to revert to his former style of rigidity and narrowness of view that makes negotiations difficult." So warns a secret psychological profile prepared by U.S. intelligence experts.

Their appraisal is used as a guide by top U.S. policymakers who deal with Begin. If the Israeli leader should visit the White House, for example, the president would study a psychological profile.

He would be told that Begin is an activist — a puncher rather than a counter-puncher. "As an initiator, he is apt to strive for the dramatic to attract attention. When he reacts, however, he tends to be very cautious and precise."

The reason for this, the psychological profile suggests, is that Begin has spent most of his life "in the role of the opposer, the voice of a minority, an opponent of the establishment."

For five years, he has stood at the center of the establishment. Yet he still has trouble conceiving of himself as a leading actor on the world stage rather than as an angry voice from the wings.

THE SECRET psychological profile has been reviewed by my associate Indy Badhar. It represents the best assessment of Begin by experts on the Middle East. Here are the highlights:

"Begin is not considered, nor does he behave as, a man of compromise or flexibility. His image in the past has been that of a passionate believer in his position and an outspoken and somewhat crude or unrefined representative of the Holocaust philosophy. He represents the mentality of those Jews unable to update in their perspective the Nazi treatment of their brethren."

—Begin believes that "any expression of curbs on the sanctity of the Jewish state, or the potential Arab 'infringement' on Israeli territory" larian Islamic war he hopes to ignite throughout the Arab world. Such a religious convulsion between Khomeini-backed and the Arab Sunnis — the two major Islamic sects — could transform the Persian Gulf from a pro-Western bastion of plentiful oil to a wholly unstable Soviet dependency. For Israel, the benefit of Arab civil wars would outweigh any losses.

But for the U.S., the triumph of Khomeinism would end all hope for Haig's "strategic consensus" between Israel and moderate Arab states like Saudi Arabia, linked to the U.S. in defending the Persian Gulf from Soviet penetration. Soviet penetration is already showing amazing successes in revolutionary Iran. Some Tudeh (Communist) Party agents have moved close to Khomeini's sources of political power.

Yet Haig, despite strong pressures from the Pentagon and the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), has shown remarkable forbearance about Israel's arms aid for Iran — both as supplier and as world-market buyer. Defense officials strongly agree that this forbearance baffles and outrages. Saudi Arabia and other moderate Arab states. But instead of chastising Israel, Haig may now be moving in the direction of rewarding Israel.

The reward will take the form of putting Israel back in good American graces by restoring the military cooperation agreement, called the Memorandum of Understanding. It was suspended by President Reagan when Israel annexed the Syrian Golan Heights. Dusting off that agreement now is linked by cynical Arab leaders to Israel's good behavior in not launching a full-scale invasion of Lebanon.

IN FACT, restoring Israel to good favor despite the Golan Heights and despite Israel's Iranian operations against U.S. interests makes sense only if Haig is preparing a hard Israeli sell on the Palestinian West Bank issue.

But if any such hard sell is in the cards, it is a well-kept secret. Haig intends to push autonomy vigorously on Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and Prime Minister Menachem Begin during their separate visits here soon. But no decision has been made to roll back Israel's settlements and land seizures, now comprising over 30 percent of the West Bank.

In his analysis of the desperate need for Palestinian autonomy to protect future U.S. interests, just as in his conclusion that the Iran-Iraq war may be the most disturbing threat to the U.S. in the world, Haig works with precision and clarity. But without a tough, credible follow-through that cannot possibly exclude Israel, the secretary's analytical skills are wasted.

Congress from tourist-luring states. Under pressure from the caucus, both Senate and House Commerce Committees were persuaded to increase the tourism agency's appropriation a cool 100 percent. The additional $5 million in TTA's budget will go for such necessities as junkets for foreign travel writers, who might otherwise tell their readers about Guinea instead of New York.

UNDER THE DOME: Piqued at two members of his staff for failure to produce a budget report on schedule, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., descended to a zoological epithet. "You two are about as unproductive as those pandas," he said, referring to the National Zoo's two Chinese pandas, whose unsuccessful efforts to produce offspring have bored the public for several years.

N-EPA-TISM REPORT — While the Environmental Protection Agency's professional staff has been decimated by budget cutbacks, EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch managed to find a $23,950-a-year slot in the payroll for her children's live-in babysitter.

The Gorsuch protegee is Mary Wigginton, 26, who came with the Gorsuch family from Denver last July, taking charge of the relocation and the hiring of a housekeeper. This accomplished, Wigginton joined EPA in November as a special assistant to the administrative officer.

Her job was created during the Gorsuch reorganization of EPA, and is one of the "administratively determined" positions that can be filled by an agency head without regard to civil service requirements. Wigginton has known Gorsuch for five years, and said she was offered a job at EPA as soon as Gorsuch learned of her own nomination to head the agency. Gorsuch's neighbors in Alexandria, Va., consider Wigginton part of the family; she represented Gorsuch at a homeowners' council meeting in January.

A call to the Gorsuch home elicited the information from one of the three children that Wigginton acts as sitter when the housekeeper is not there. Wigginton said she's not really a sitter, but is simply "there" in the housekeeper's absence. "The children can take care of themselves," she said.

Wigginton's background in computers and internal management was vigorously defended by her boss, acting deputy chief-of-staff Joseph Foran, a career civil servant. He said she "tracks decisions inside the agency and is helping to update its computer facilities."

Dear Editor, BIG SPRING — a fantastic city full of super people and a great place to call home!

Bill had surgery in January at the Methodist Hospital in Lubbock and at one point things looked very bleak. The doctors could not offer much hope.

However, our family never gave up hope and our relatives, friends and fellow Big Springers rallied with prayers. His condition stabilized and he was transferred to St. Mary's Rehabilitation Center in March for therapy.

After 114 days of hospitalization he was discharged Friday and is to be followed at the Dora Roberts Rehab Center. He continues to improve daily. Truly a miracle!

Our family wants to say many thanks for the prayers, cards, flowers, telephone calls and emotional support during these trying times.

It is great to live in a community where people truly CARE about one another and people of all faiths PRAY for each other.

Open for business

Typical of some of the native Big Springers who left after they got out of school and are now moving back to this community are Terry and Susan Phillips. Terry worked for the past 14 years in several large retail corporations and has recently accepted the position as manager of The Factory Outlet at 907 E. Fourth. Susan works at Security State Bank.

Speaking of The Factory Outlet, it's nice to note that the store has been opened only a little over two months but business has been so good, that expansion has already begun. Co-owners Kent Morgan of Big Spring and Ben Miller of El Paso are very pleased with the reception of the customers. By rodeo time next month the expansion will be completed.

Ken Olsen has opened up another new business in town. Alken Books and Games, at 1908 1/2 Gregg, has all types of paperbacks and magazines, books and games.

ATTENTION KIDS and parents: Beginning next Wednesday there will be regular G-rated feature movies at the Ritz Theater at 10 a.m. The doors open at 9:30. Co-sponsor of these movies is Coca Cola Co. Admission is a bottle cap from a one- or two-liter Coke plus 50 cents. Without the bottle caps, admission is $1.50. In addition, there will be all types of creative contests held with "Coke Is It" theme. Prizes will be awarded for such things as the best artwork, jingles and other creative challenges for the youngsters. Mark your calendar for every Wednesday for the next nine weeks.

IN THE May issue of "Fort Worth", there's a write-up about Charles Allen, "a Fort Worth artist who has achieved national recognition for his metal botanical sculptures." It is a long article covering six pages. Charles is married to Alice Long, who graduated from Big Spring High School in 1962 and who is the daughter of Al and Ozella Long. Charles is the son of Bowers and Marjorie Purcell of Lamesa. Alice teaches in the home economics department at TCU and Charles is a pharmacist when he's not sculpting. An article will appear in "Needlework For Today" in a couple of months about Alice's needlework designs.

Al and Ozella's other daughter, Fran Ballantyne, was featured in the March issue of "Texas Homes" as an acclaimed Texas craftsman for her outstanding work in textile art. Fran, also a graduate of Big Spring High, went on to Texas Tech for her Bachelor's degree and then graduate work at UT in Austin, before gaining recognition for her artistic talents. She lives in Austin where her works are displayed at the Kerbey Lane Gallery and the Presa Street Gallery.

Flexible bilingual ed needed

For a child who cannot speak or understand English, school is a frightening place. Trying to learn to read or write or do mathematics can be an impossible task if the child does not understand what his teacher is telling him.

Bilingual education has made a vital contribution to the elimination of this barrier. I joined in sponsoring the original legislation to provide federal assistance for bilingual programs in 1967. In 1973, I introduced legislation to expand the scope of bilingual education to include vocational programs. These provisions were adopted in 1974.

From its inception the goal of bilingual education programs has been to help students become proficient in English, while they learn in other subjects. When the program works well, students are able to keep up with their grade level in the whole range of subjects and become fluent enough in English to enter regular classroom programs. I still strongly support this principle, and I believe there is a continuing role for the federal government in this area.

I am proud to say that Texas has done an outstanding job in implementing bilingual programs which have put thousands upon thousands of young people on the road to realizing their dream and aspirations.

Our goal in establishing federal bilingual programs was to help local school districts meet the needs of their areas. As with many other federal programs that began with this goal, there have been persistent efforts — by forces inside and outside of government — to expand the level of federal control. In 1980, for example, the Education Department under the previous administration tried to establish regulations outlining in specific detail what types of programs every school district in the nation should provide. Those regulations eventually were withdrawn, but the pressures still remain.

Congress now is considering legislation to define the direction and parameters of bilingual education for the future. The administration is committed to directing funds toward those students for whom it was designed — the student who does not speak English as a native language. Additionally, the administration supports the concept of local flexibility.

I hope that as we consider the subject of bilingual education this year, we can preserve those aspects which have made it effective in the past and set the stage for an even more productive future.

Business lends ear to employees

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the past three years Allied Corp. has been a company in transition — divesting, acquiring and reorganizing, and to reflect its diversification, dropping "Chemical" from its name.

The transition seems to have been successful. Earnings per share rose to $9.17 in 1981 from $4.25 in 1978, sales more than doubled to $6.4 billion, and the dividend was raised to $2.40 from $2.

Singling out one person or project as responsible would be impossible, so many were involved. But from the experience have come many lessons, one of which reaffirms an old but almost forgotten tenet of management.

"Management has isolated itself from the worker," said Edward L. Hennessy, Jr., chairman through most of the three years. One of the 54-year-old executive's first acts was to form a communications department.

"I've heard people in plants say they never submitted an idea because nobody would listen," he said, reiterating an observation made again and again as companies seek ways to overcome lagging productivity.

"I went to a plant in Canada and they told me they hadn't seen anyone from management in 25 years," he continued. He listened, as do smart managers today, theorizing that in no other way can you learn so much.

He toured other plants. "I wanted to hear what they had to say," he said. They listened too. "Everyone was interested. They wanted to know what were our growth strategies, what were our R&D plans," he said.

Allied decided on conducting an attitudinal survey of workers, and received a 75 percent response, in itself indicative of a desire to be involved.

Workers were asked two questions: What are the problems of the company, and how do you go about solving those problems?

Three themes emerged from the survey, said Hennessy, who learned entrepreneurship from Royal Little, founder of Tectron, and management from William Geneen, builder of International Telephone & Telegraph.

First, communications both across and up and down, that is, among workers themselves and among workers and management, could be improved. Next, job security was a pervasive concern. And third, workers needed information about the company to help them in career planning.

A public affairs department was set up to improve communications, and a newspaper was developed. Management sat in on dialogue sessions with workers and received feedback vital in resolving problems.

Boll Weevils wary of bipartisan budget

By WILLIAM GARLAND
States News Service

WASHINGTON — The bipartisan Republican-backed budget package for 1981 appeared late Monday to be losing the support of some key conservative Texas congressmen who supported President Reagan's tax and spending proposals last year.

The Conservative Democratic Forum helped unveil the Republican measure earlier this month, but five of the so-called "Boll Weevils" said Monday the projected deficit under the plan would be too high for them to support.

A study released Monday by House Democrats showed that the Republican alternative, called the "Latta" budget after Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio, would have higher deficits over a three-year period than the other packages, even though the deficit would be lower in 1983 than the budget supported by the Democratic leadership.

A spokesman for Rep. Sam Hall, D-Marshall, said, "He just can't stomach these huge deficits."

Reps. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, and Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, were sticking with the Latta proposal, but Reps. Jack Hightower, D-Wichita Falls, Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, Marvin Leath, D-Marlin, and Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall, had chosen along with Sam Hall to either support one of the five other budget alternatives or remain uncommitted.

The 47-member Boll Weevil function, consisting primarily of southern congressmen, were essential to Reagan's slim budget victory in the House last year.

"As of right now, we have more votes than any other budget, but we don't have enough," said Gramm, who played a key role in drafting the alternative. "It's going to be very difficult to adopt any budget."

Hightower cited reductions in animal increases in Medicare and the possibility of reductions for water projects such as one dealing with flood-prone Holliday Creek in Wichita Falls, as reasons for his hesitancy to go along with the Republican alternative.

Hance spokesman Miller Benner said the congressman decided to support another budget package that would call for a balanced budget next year. That measure would do away with the deficit primarily through spending cuts nearly double those under Reagan's budget for the current fiscal year.

"He (Hance) has made the point over and over that he can't support the kind of budget deficit" in the Republican plan said Bonner.

The Latta budget would cut about $22 billion from defense spending over a three-year period whereas the Democratic plan would cut $40.4 billion during the same period.

Gramm said Monday the deficit under the Latta package would be lower than calculated by the Democrats because its policy of reduced spending without large tax increases would stimulate the economy. He added that higher taxes in the Democratic package would "have a negative impact on incentive and economic growth."

Earlier Monday House Majority leader Jim Wright D-Fort Worth blasted the Latta alternative.

"The Latta budget would guarantee even bigger tax cuts to the wealthiest five percent and even harsher cuts in services to middle income and low income Americans," Wright said at a press conference.

How Texans voted on budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is how Texans voted Tuesday on the 1983 federal "balanced budget" proposal of Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., which sought to balance the budget in fiscal year 1983 while maintaining the 3-year tax cut passed last year and holding reductions in the president's defense budget to a minimum.

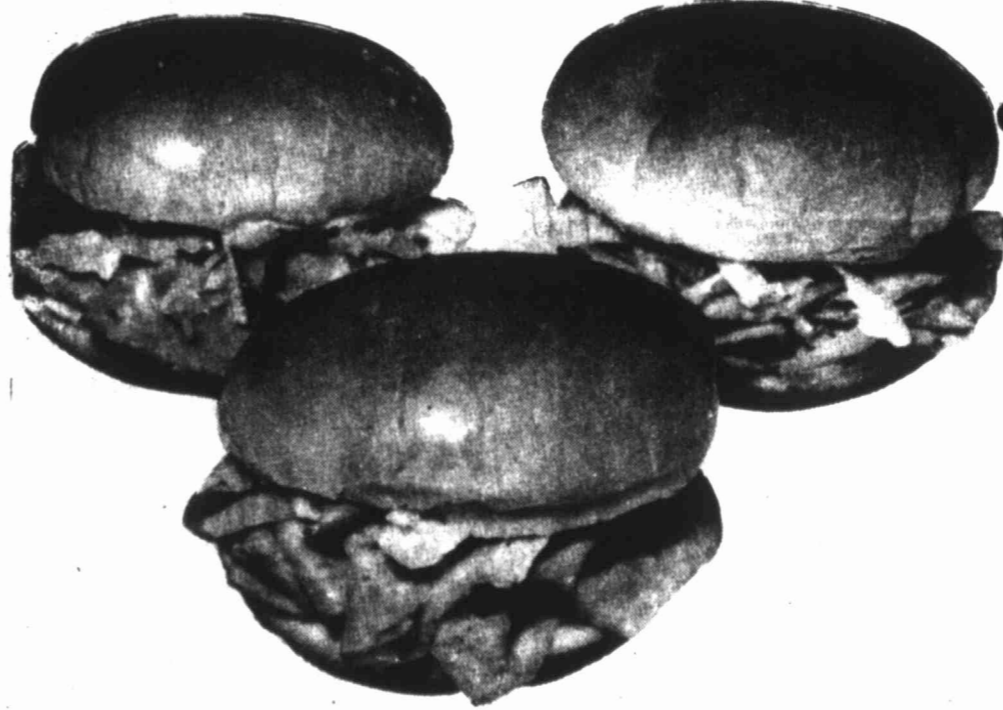

The substitute failed by a vote of 182-242, with Texans voting 14-10 for the proposal as follows: Archer, R-Houston, yes; Brooks, D-Beaumont, no; Collins, R-Dallas, yes; de la Garza, D-Mission, no; Fields, R-Humble, yes; Frost, D-Dallas, no; Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, no; Gramm, D-College Station, yes; R. Hall, D-Rockwall, yes; S. Hall, D-Marshall, yes; Hance, D-Lubbock, yes; Hightower, D-Vernon, no; Kazen, D-Laredo, yes; Leath, D-Marlin, yes; Leland, D-Houston, no; Loeffler, R-Hunt, yes; Mattox, D-Dallas, no; Pickle, D-Austin, no; Patman, D-Ganado, yes; Paul, R-Lake Jackson, yes; Stenholm, D-Stamford, yes; White, D-El Paso, yes; Wilson, D-Lufkin, no; Wright, D-Fort Worth, no.

Insanity trial only start of Hinckley justice process

A WITNESS — Dr. Thomas C. Goldman, a Washington forensic psychiatrist, departs a Washington courthouse after testifying in the John Hinckley trial. He is only one of many psychiatrists called to the stand to offer views on Hinckley's state of mind.

By KEVIN COSTELLO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If prosecutors fail to prove John W. Hinckley Jr. was sane when he shot President Reagan, they then must prove he currently is insane or they could see him go free. And to complete the role reversal, Hinckley's lawyers then would argue that he no longer is mentally ill.

The shift could come about if a federal court jury rules the 26-year-old drifter is innocent by reason of insanity.

Prosecutors then would scramble to make sure Hinckley stays in a mental institution for a substantial period of time, while defense lawyers would hasten to counter that move.

"It puts the government in a very awkward position," says University of Michigan Law Professor Jerold Israel.

But he adds, "As a matter of logic, the prosecution is not entirely inconsistent." Israel notes the issue in Hinckley's trial, now under way in U.S. District Court here, is Hinckley's state of mind when he shot President Reagan and three other men March 30, 1981.

If the jury accepts Hinckley's insanity plea, Israel notes, then the question for any long-term commitment would be his current state of mind.

If Hinckley is found guilty of the shootings outside the Washington Hilton Hotel, he could be sentenced to life in prison.

But if he is found innocent by reason of insanity, Hinckley almost certainly would be sent to a mental hospital for a period of observation. After that, the path the case would follow becomes highly uncertain.

Under normal procedures, U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker automatically would commit Hinckley to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington until Hinckley can prove he is no longer dangerous or mentally ill. The government, arguing Hinckley is seriously mentally ill or insane, would try to counter any attempts to gain Hinckley's release.

The normal procedures have been thrown into doubt by a federal appeals court ruling last March that the automatic commitment is unconstitutional — at least in some cases. The effect of that ruling has been put on hold while all 11 appeals court judges in Washington study it.

Brezhnev successor in sight?

By MARC ROSENWASSER
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The appointment of Yuri V. Andropov, the 67-year-old chief of the Soviet secret police, to the 10-man secretariat of the Communist Party Central Committee appears to improve his chances of succeeding President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Andropov's new position was announced Monday after a special meeting of the Central Committee. He fills the place left open by the death last January of Mikhail A. Suslov, the No. 2 man in the Soviet leadership.

The committee also named Vladimir Dolgikh, 57, the secretary in charge of heavy industry, to the party's ruling Politburo as a candidate, or non-voting, member. Dolgikh thus emerges as a leader of the generation of Soviets who will succeed the current leadership generation, most of whom are over 70.

Soviet sources said they expected Andropov to give up his position as head of the Committee on State Security or KGB. Western diplomatic observers feel that continued association with the feared secret police would hinder Andropov's chances of succeeding Brezhnev, who is 75, ailing and drops out of public view with increasing frequency.

The announcement of Andropov's new post by the official news agency, Tass, did not indicate that he would inherit the power and influence wielded by Suslov, the keeper of the party's ideological purity, the man responsible for insuring that the policies of both the Soviet government and other communist governments reflected the Kremlin's Marxist-Leninist line.

In that capacity, he was involved in every aspect of Soviet policy although he generally remained behind the scenes.

CONTROVERSY OVER DONATIONS — Michael Fletcher, husband of heart transplant recipient Anne Fletcher, says he didn't mean it when he said the couple plans to use left-over donations given for transplant expenses to pay living expenses, buy a mobile home, a lot and maybe a new car. Photo was taken at a news conference Thursday in Tucson, Ariz. before Fletcher's comments were made.

Heart transplant funds create furor

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — In the wake of an unflattering newspaper story, Michael Fletcher says he didn't mean all his comments about how he and his wife Anne would use left-over donations after meeting her heart transplant costs.

He also says he isn't really spending his weekends partying.

Just how much money will be left remained unclear. Drives conducted here and at Peoria, Ill., the Fletchers' home town, along with smaller efforts by relatives in Texas and Massachusetts, raised more than $104,000.

Mrs. Fletcher, whose heart condition was related to her pregnancy, underwent the transplant operation on April 10 and remains hospitalized, recuperating.

For a time doctors had said it was uncertain she would survive long enough for a donor to be found. And the couple was broke, facing costs estimated eventually to total between $50,000 and $100,000, including a $37,500 deposit the University of Arizona medical center was requiring.

With broadcasters and newspapers following the medical drama closely here and in Illinois, donations poured in — the largest $2,000 and the smallest a $2 roll of coins from an elderly woman.

Tucson area people contributed $40,000, though the couple was unknown before arriving for the surgery and though heart transplants with their high costs are performed here with some frequency.

On Sunday, the Arizona Daily Star published an interview with Michael Fletcher quoting him as saying that the couple plans to use some of the money to pay living expenses, to buy a mobile home and a lot for it, furnishings and possibly a new car.

In that interview, Fletcher told the Star he visits his wife each weekday in the hospital but likes to party on the weekends. "When I get my new address, you can tell all the single women they can come over there," he added in the Star interview. "She doesn't care. We have a real open marriage."

But in a subsequent interview the Star published on Monday, Fletcher, who is 20, described himself as an "easygoing guy" who "cracks jokes a lot" and said he didn't mean all those comments to be taken seriously. Some, he said, were "totally wrong."

The Star and its writer said it stood by the original story as accurate and documented. Program director John Stevens said officials at radio station KAIR, one of the prime backers of the fund-raising effort, "are taking steps to insure that these funds are protected and used for legitimate expenses."

KAIR also made public on Monday copies of a March 31 letter Fletcher signed confirming to a University Hospital official, "I agree to allow any money in the Anne Fletcher Fund not used for Anne's expenses to revert to you to establish future funds for financially needy heart transplant patients...."

Investigator Les Turner of the Pima County attorney's office said a preliminary investigation has been started.

With federal insurance from Fletcher's military service expected to pay some of the now-estimated $92,000 medical costs, Fletcher said it appeared there may be as much as $34,000 in left-over donations, the Star reported. It said that, based on other cases of federal insurance, the leftover could be as much as $80,000.

Whether the fund-raising drives restricted the use of the donations or pledged any excess to use for others in similar straits remained unclear. Apparently some statements did and others didn't. Some said any extra money would go to the Fletchers' son, now 6 months.

Once back home, with Anne eight months pregnant, he was charged with selling drugs and went AWOL. Arrested, he drew a dishonorable discharge last September — two weeks before the birth of their son, Roy Michael. The discharge is under appeal.

Reporter posing as 'wetback' arrested

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A newspaper reporter posing as a "wetback" to investigate a smuggling ring has been arrested by the Border Patrol and charged with transporting illegal aliens.

Border Patrol agents took San Antonio Light reporter Danny Garcia into custody 12 miles outside the border city of Laredo last week as he drove a rickety old car containing five undocumented aliens.

Garcia, who was working on the story with the knowledge of San Antonio Immigration and Naturalization Service chief Richard Casillas, was released on a personal recognizance bond.

He wrote how he paid two Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, men $80 to float him across the Rio Grande on an inner tube, then agreed to drive the carload of aliens because he did not have the $250 a "coyote (alien smuggler)" demanded to transport him on to San Antonio.

"As I drove up this highway to the 'promised' land in a battered, windowless 'wetback-mobile' carrying five frightened illegal aliens, a series of emotions flashed through me," Garcia wrote. "So this is what my ancestors went through: Slinking around like heronhouse foxes. Huddling in secret. Swimming a treacherous river. Living in fear of 'La Migra,' the U.S. Government.

"...While crossing the river, I had been overcome by a feeling of terror, fearing that I would either drown or be robbed by my crossers. But at the same time, those fears had been outweighed by a strange sense of fascination.

Bankruptcy judge won't free farmer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge has turned down Missouri farmer Wayne Cryts' request to be released from a jail in Arkansas, saying Cryts holds the key to freeing himself.

"He can do so by telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," Judge Charles Baker said Monday. Baker ruled that Cryts "has planted the seeds of sedition" and must "harvest the bittersweet bounty of his own folly" by staying in jail.

Baker sent Cryts to the Pope County Jail in Russellville on April 28 for civil contempt of court. Cryts refused to say who helped him remove 31,000 bushels of soybeans from a grain elevator. Cryts stored the beans in the elevator, and although they were tied up in bankruptcy proceedings, he said they belonged to him.

"Mr. Cryts is in jail to make him testify," Baker said. He denied a motion for temporary release and a motion to set bail so Cryts could be freed while his case is appealed. The appeal has been assigned to U.S. District Judge G. Thomas Eisele of Little Rock. No hearing date has been set.

Cryts, 35, of Puxico, Mo., and others took the grain July 22, 1981, from an elevator in Bernie, Mo., in defiance of a court order. Five months earlier, Cryts and others had seized the soybeans from an elevator at Ristine, Mo. The elevator was owned by the James family of Corning. The family had filed a petition in bankruptcy court.

Baker ordered the beans sold and the money invested until the final ownership could be determined. The American Agriculture Movement, of which Cryts is a national vice president, says the struggle is over property rights.

Baker freed Cryts from jail last week so he could testify in Washington in congressional hearings on proposals to change the bankruptcy laws.

KIDDE is diversified

Most people in Big Spring know that Oilfield Industrial Lines — O.I.L. — is a manufacturer of drilling rigs and equipment. But what about its parent company, KIDDE Inc. ? Just who is KIDDE?

"Fortune" magazine lists KIDDE as one of the top 500 corporations in the United States. KIDDE is a broadly diversified multi-national company with 150 operating units concentrated into three major groups: consumer and recreation; industrial and commercial; and safety, security and protection.

KIDDE's consumer and recreation products include Farberware electric appliances, Progress lighting fixtures, Tucker housewares, Jacuzzi pumps, Ertl miniature toys, Bear archery, Universal gym equipment, Daisy air rifles, PGA golf clubs and balls and Valley pool tables.

Leading producers in the industrial and commercial group include Grove mobile cranes, Victor calculators, Weber aircraft interior equipment and American Desk office equipment.

Among their many lines of security equipment are Kidde and Fenwal fire protection, Sargent, Arrow Lock and McKinney architectural hardware, and LeFebure banking equipment.

These are a few of the product lines that make up the multi-national KIDDE family, each of which has contributed to Kidde's 11th consecutive year of growth.

This growth is reflected in the company's financial condition, which shows worldwide sales have increased to $2.8 billion from $2.5 billion in 1980, a gain of 12 percent. KIDDE's net income rose to $99.2 million, up from $87.4 million in 1980.

The next big earthquake

Scientists predict heavy damage from Chicago to Dallas

By RAY FORMANEK
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — America's next big earthquake is likely to be centered in Missouri's Bootheel and probably will cause $15 billion in damage across the Midwest from Dallas to Chicago, scientists predict.

"There is a 25 percent chance that the next great earthquake in this country by the year 2,000 will occur in the Mississippi Valley," Otto W. Nuttli, professor of geophysics at St. Louis University, said Monday.

Nuttli's prediction was part of an earthquake workshop presented this week by the U.S. Geological Survey and the Federal Emergency Management Center at St. Louis University.

Nuttli called southern Missouri "the most active earthquake area of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains."

The reason is the New Madrid Fault, which extends about 150 miles northeast from Marked Tree, Ark., through southeastern Missouri to Cairo, Ill.

The fault produced the nation's strongest earthquake in the winter of 1811-12. Three powerful quakes — about 8.5 on the Richter scale — shook a wide area, doing damage to buildings as far away as Cincinnati.

Nuttli warned that state and local governments today are unprepared for another earthquake.

"This hazard on the whole has been ignored by

'We have to act before it's too late...'

Arthur Atkisson Environmental

government officials, architects and engineers," he said.

Part of the problem, said Arthur Atkisson, an environmental engineer at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, is the time and cost required to make buildings strong enough to withstand a major earthquake.

"It took California 50 years to make their schools safe," Atkisson said. "There are no constituencies that give a damn, and legislators aren't going to act without them."

"We have to act before it's too late. We have to have enough guts to act without the constant reminders they have in California."

Atkisson said one way to get started was to "ratchet up" building codes and require that people who rehabilitate old buildings make foundations strong enough to withstand tremors.

"We should link them to other problems," he said. "People should be required to strengthen buildings against tornadoes, high winds and snow as well."

Geophysicist Ted Algermissen of the U.S. Geological Survey warned the scientists and government officials that an earthquake the magnitude of the 1811-1812 quakes would do much more damage today.

"Tall buildings can be damaged at relatively large distances," he said. "This would affect a broad area of the Midwest — as far away as Dallas and Chicago."

Federal officials estimated a major quake could do up to $15 billion in damage and said it would affect parts of Arkansas, Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee.

Federal planners said a severe earthquake would shut down most communication facilities in the country's heartland and bring traffic on the country's three major rivers — the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio, to a standstill.

A&M gay lawsuit is dismissed

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed a four-year-old suit seeking to force Texas A&M to recognize a gay students group.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling ruled last week that attorneys for the three plaintiff students failed to prove that any of their constitutional rights were violated.

A&M officials learned of the decision late Monday.

The plaintiffs — J.M. Minton, Keith Steward and Patricia Wooldridge — are no longer students there, the university said.

The group, identified as Gay Student Services (GSS), sought in 1976 to be recognized as an official student organization with authorization to meet on campus and distribute material.

GSS, which university officials said has never had a membership much larger than the number of plaintiffs in the suit, contended that the university's refusal to recognize it infringed upon the plaintiffs' freedom of speech and association.

Witnesses arrest records saved officers, panel says

HOUSTON (AP) — Inconsistent testimony and witnesses with long criminal records discouraged a grand jury from indicting 13 policemen suspended or fired for beating and threatening blacks in an apartment building, the panel's report says.

"There's no question the officers went out there and did a lot of things they shouldn't have done," Terry Wilson, assistant district attorney, said Monday.

But the grand jury report on the Nov. 4 incident said the criminal records of many of those testifying could be used in a trial to discredit the witnesses. The report also noted that some witnesses accused officers known to have been elsewhere.

John Bales, acting police chief at the time, fired seven officers and suspended six others without pay in connection with the incident. The Houston Civil Service Commission upheld his orders last week, changing only one 60-day suspension to 15 days.

Dr. Donohue

Blood tests are not infallible

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had a complete blood test and it showed three parts elevated as follows: Lactic dehydrogenase — 254; polys — 39, and lymphs, 50. Since my doctor gave me no explanation on these, and recommended nothing, not even a suggestion as to how they would be corrected, I am completely puzzled. I have been quite worried. I am to have another test later. — Mrs. M.L.H.

How can I say it? Laboratory tests have to be used only for what they are — possible but not infallible, indicators of illnesses. Lactic dehydrogenase is an enzyme found in the liver, in muscles, in red blood cells, in the lung, even in the brain. Certainly, high levels of it can mean trouble in any of these places. But if it were slightly high, that in and of itself may not mean a thing.

Now you ask specifically about the figure for your lactic dehydrogenase. The 254 does not really mean much to me at this distance. There are many different ways to measure this and each has a different set of normal numbers. For example, in one procedure, the normal values are 25 to 100; for another, 200 to 450.

The other numbers you sent me refer to the percentages of two kinds of white blood cells — polymorphonuclear cells and lymphocytes. The former should account for from 25 to 62 percent of cells present and the latter from 25 to 53 percent. That's a wide range. You don't seem to be in any trouble.

As to the first substance, the lactic dehydrogenase, one abnormal reading is not conclusive. Since you're feeling well, your doctor's approach in recommending a further check at a future date is a most reasonable precaution. Then, if your lactic dehydrogenase is elevated, more tests can be run to be certain all is well. I would not lose sleep in the meantime.

Dear Dr. Donohue: During an illness I was treated with an intravenous procedure called hyperalimentation. This was to rest my pancreas. Have you used this treatment and can you explain what it amounts to? — Mrs. S.C.

People who cannot eat or who must rest the digestive system for awhile are usually fed with intravenous fluids. These are solutions of sugar or salt. The sugar provides energy and the salt provides the mineral your body needs to keep the blood pressure up.

Yes, I have been involved in the procedure to which you refer. It requires just a bit of explanation. There is a new solution to give people who must be fed by vein this way for extended periods. These solutions also contain amino acids, fats, minerals, vitamins — all the essential nutrients needed to keep the cell-building process going and the body generally functioning well. Formerly, it was not possible to give these vital ingredients by vein.

But now we know how to, and we give the new method a new name — hyperalimentation. It means extra (hyper) feeding (alimentation). This permits us to put the body at rest while keeping it going over more extended periods than were previously possible.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You referred recently to a woman who had lost a lot of weight from exercise and then stopped menstruating. Last year I decided to lose weight. I lost 37 pounds and am 98 pounds at 5 feet 2 inches. I didn't follow any exercise program. Like this lady I have not had a period for at least three months. I am 15 and started menstruation at age 11. Would gaining a few pounds help bring back my period? — V.H.

I also said in that article that no woman should take for granted that her weight loss (with or without exercise) is responsible for change in menstruation. It is true that a woman must have a certain amount of body fat in order to have regular menstrual periods. But there are so many other reasons for absence of periods that it is not safe to assume that any one is the cause.

You are now on the thin side. You should weigh about 105 pounds. And you did lose a lot of weight rapidly. Now you have to confirm whether this change in weight is involved in the absence of periods. To your other question, the one about the return of periods with weight regain, the answer is yes. If the weight loss caused the absence, regaining the necessary weight brings back the periods.

Diabetic camp set for August

Diabetes doesn't keep West Texas children from enjoying the fun of summer camp. Through the combined efforts of the West Texas District Rotary Clubs and Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) School of Medicine, a camp for children with diabetes is being offered.

The camp will be August 2-7 at Camp Butman, near Merkel, and is open to children and youths between the ages of six and 18. Campers will live in cabins and participate in games, crafts, swimming and other sporting activities. Short courses in diabetic control and management will be taught by physicians and social workers.

Teaching sessions and the entire camp experience are designed to help the campers develop confidence in their ability to care for themselves and to show they can lead happy, normal lives by following good health practices," said S. K. Varma, M.D., medical director of the camp and associate professor and associate chairman of pediatrics at the medical school.

Pediatricians and nurses will be in residence at camp all week, along with registered dietitians who will plan and supervise snacks and meals. Counselors will be medical students and young men and women with diabetes.

This marks the fifth summer the camp has been sponsored by West Texas Rotarians. Although there is a camp fee of $75 per person, Rotarians stress that the fee should not prevent anyone from attending the camp. Information about waiver of fees is available through the TTUHSC Department of Pediatrics.

Deadline for camp registration is June 15. Forms and further information may be obtained through S. K. Varma, M.D., Department of Pediatrics, TTUHSC, Lubbock, Texas 79430, or phone (808) 743-2310. Forms must be completed by parents or guardians of campers, as well as by the child's physician.

Dear Abby

Man is a beast toward animals

DEAR ABBY: For "Save the Fish," who cannot bear to see fish suffer:

May I point out that fish are for more fortunate than the billions of animals destined for our dinner tables each year that are confined in intensive "factory farms." Veal calves, for example, are kept anemic and even deprived of straw (to guarantee white flesh) while they are penned in wooden crates. Chained at the neck, they are hardly able to move until they are led to slaughter. Pigs, which are as sociable as dogs and more intelligent, can be kept for as long as 10 years in cages so small that they cannot turn around. It is estimated that over 90 percent of this country's egg-producing hens spend their lives in "battery" cages so small that their feet can grow around the wire floors due to their inability to move. These hens are "de-beaked" to keep them from pecking at the cage-mates with which they are virtually entombed. No matter how much agony these animals endure at the time they are slaughtered, death must come as a blessing to them.

I'm sure that nine out of 10 decent, sensitive, humane people who actually see a suffering animal will do everything in their power to help, whether it's a stray dog, homeless kitten, injured bird or even a fish. But let that dog or kitten wind up comfortably out of sight in an animal shelter or research laboratory... let that bird out to be one of a million hens confined to one acre of land, then suddenly many of those humane, sensitive people don't really care.

MARY ANN VIOLIN, CONTRIBUTING EDITOR, AGENDA: NEWS MAGAZINE FOR ANIMAL RIGHTS, P.O. BOX 5234, WESTPORT, CONN. 06881.

DEAR ABBY: Vegetarians shouldn't be all that high and mighty because they don't "kill" to eat. Vegetables also are living things. In fact, it's more sporting to eat cows, pigs, deer and fish. At least they have a chance of getting away. Pity the poor vegetables who have absolutely no chance for escape.

SAVE THE VEGETABLES

DEAR SAVE: For crusaders who want to campaign to save the vegetables, I submit, as an appropriate battle cry, "Lettuce Alone"! Or is that too corny?

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a 75-year-old man who resented being called "old."

I'm only 36, and I enjoy being called "young," but I hope I live long enough to be called an "old man."

I've discussed this with my father, who is now 78, and he agrees that being called "old" isn't an insult, it's an honor!

LOOKING FORWARD TO GROWING OLD IN N.J.

DEAR LOOKING: Judging from my mail, a new view of the word "old" has emerged. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A reader urged you to start a crusade against introducing people as old friends. He suggests instead: "Good friends whom I have known for a long time."

Attempting to replace the simple two-word phrase with 10 words is needless. "Old friends" are not necessarily friends who are old. They are exactly what the dictionary says that are: "friends of long standing."

What's next? "Senior Citizen River?"

ARNOLD FEDERBUSH, LOS ANGELES

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Fleet Street worth 3 destroyers

British officials using press as part of Falklands strategy

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — While British officials were telling the press that the battle for the Falklands would be a series of "hit-and-run" raids, the nation's biggest invasion force since Suez in 1956 was assembling off the Argentine-occupied islands.

"Fleet Street must have been worth at least three Type 42 destroyers," the liberal Sunday newspaper, the Observer, said afterward in a comment on the government's apparent use of the press to confuse the enemy.

One official later noted privately there are times when the element of surprise in battle is more important than the credibility of government sources, however senior.

"The process of dissimulation began not in the South Atlantic but in the halls of diplomacy where expectations of an immediate full-scale invasion were skillfully countered with rumors of raids," the independent Sunday Times of London reported.

The prelude came in London on Thursday evening when a top government official briefed senior British correspondents.

In the South Atlantic the surprise was under way with, the British now say, 5,000 troops being assembled on the Royal Navy task force with orders to get ashore and set up a bridgehead at Port San Carlos.

The government briefing that divulged the hit-and-run strategy was immediately reported by the domestic news agency, Press Association, British radio and television, and picked up by the foreign media.

By the time the majority of Britons read the most popular quote in newspapers Friday morning — "attrition is the name of the game" — the troops were ashore and a flotilla of Royal Navy warships, guns ablaze, was in the Falkland Sound between the two main islands.

Foreign Secretary Francis Pym was talking about raids as late as Friday morning.

vigorous Parliamentary opposition and a lively and diverse press, must acknowledge major losses. Even the most seasoned correspondents and politicians believe the basic account of the fighting provided by the Defense Ministry.

However, war information is a mixture of straight announcements, which the ministry insists are true as far as they go while conceding they don't always go all the way, unattributable background briefings by senior officials, and skillfully used nods and winks.

This is supplemented by firsthand accounts from British correspondents with the fleet whose dispatches are subject to censorship.

A notable example of the skillful nod was widespread reports here that the nuclear-powered hunter-killer submarine HMS Superb lurked in the South Atlantic when Britain imposed a 200 nautical mile naval blockade zone around the islands on April 12. When it turned out a week later that the Superb was back at its Scottish base on the Clyde, a ministry spokesman said simply: "We never said the Superb was in the South Atlantic."

But the story had never been denied.

"I will never tell you anything that I know to be false," says Defense Ministry chief spokesman Ian McDonald.

"However, where the lives of the men of the task force are at risk, I am prepared to possibly mislead you by committing the lesser sin of omission."

Some "omissions" apparently result from bad communication and are corrected.

McDonald's ponderous "there were no — I repeat no — casualties" after British Harriers sunk an Argentine fishing boat which the British said was spying was corrected to one dead Argentine a few hours later.

Not so easy to handle was McDonald's failure to report that two Wessex helicopters crashed in a blizzard — their crews were unhurt — on the Falklands dependency of South Georgia April 22, three days before it was recaptured from Argentine troops.

News of the lost helicopters did not get out until weeks later — in a letter home from an 18-year-old sailor, Leigh Qurrey.

PART OF THE BATTLE PLAN — This montage of British national newspaper headlines published in London Tuesday shows reports on fighting around the Falkland Islands between British and Argentine forces. British officials are reportedly using the press to gain a foothold against Argentine strategy. The papers reported that the battle would be a series of "hit-and-run" raids while the government actually planned a full invasion.

Light at end of a telescope

Residents agree to dim lights for astronomers

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Trying to see a star through a telescope against the glow of city lights is like viewing a needle through a fog, worried astronomers say.

Kitt Peak Observatory's Gary Mechler and other professional star-watchers say there is more to the problem than meets the eye. For instance, mercury vapor lamps costing less than $100 each are jeopardizing multimillion-dollar investments in telescopic equipment.

But quietly, effectively, astronomers have mobilized to dim the lights in southern Arizona and nearby so they can see better. And local officials are cooperating enthusiastically, voluntarily trying to curb their communities' light leaks into night skies.

Star-gazing amid the light from urban growth is comparable to trying to find a white flag against a white background, the astronomers say. They also say that Mount Hopkins and Kitt Peak observatories south of Tucson, the third and fourth largest telescopes in the world, are threatened by the continued encroachment of such relatively bright night skies.

"We're trying to prevent man-made light from drowning out the light from very faint objects we're studying with our telescopes," says Kitt Peak astronomer Mechler. "We don't want man-made sky light to fog up our photographs."

The man behind the drive in Arizona, William Robinson Sr., says all of the great telescopes in this country will lose efficiency year after year "if firm steps are not taken immediately and maintained to control this growth."

Robinson says that Mount Palomar's Hale telescope "has been irrevocably reduced in efficiency due to the explosion of light in Southern California."

Likewise in southern Arizona, the man-made glow has adversely affected viewing quality. Last year, astronomers launched a concerted, three-year effort to persuade southern counties and municipalities to enact outdoor lighting codes controlling unfiltered mercury vapor lighting. Mercury vapor's greatest harm comes from extending into the ultraviolet range — invisible to the naked eye but vital to viewing by astronomers.

The astronomers want the control effort to spread statewide.

They have been talking, too, with neighboring communities across the border in Mexico.

Astronomy capital investments in the Tucson area alone are well beyond $100 million, says astronomer Dr. David Crawford. The industry employs more than 800 people in Arizona and pulls in about $25 million annually, mostly in federal money.

And there's a good chance that a 15-meter telescope — by far the world's largest, and costing $120 million to $150 million — could be built on Mount Graham 100 miles northwest of Tucson, dramatically raising the stakes.

In the effort to persuade communities to reduce their nighttime glitter, Robinson says, astronomers value not only the value of the telescope but also the value of the savings.

Robinson, a consultant, works full-time with Kitt Peak National Observatory.

Local ordinances advocate switching from mercury vapor to sodium vapor to more efficient lighting.

He says sodium vapor's glow light can cut energy costs by half to two-thirds in comparison with mercury's harsh glare and glow.

Astronomers would love to see all mercury-vapor lamps replaced by sodium vapor, but Robinson says, "I can't say we could foresee that all mercury-vapor lamps would disappear." Only one county has passed an ordinance prohibiting their future use, he says, and "there are so many millions of them throughout the county that they will probably never be replaced. I doubt they will be in my lifetime."

The effort has had support from political leaders, no opposition and considerable success. Robinson predicts it will spread to the national level.

But such action must be voluntary, he says. "We have avoided doing anything that would encourage national politicians or even the state politicians to do something overt. We think it's much better for the locals to want to do this and we think it will work, though it will take a lot longer. We hope other population centers will take the cue from what's being done in Arizona."

Aluminum's power down

NEW YORK (AP) — The aluminum industry uses 15.4 percent less energy to produce a pound of aluminum in the first half of 1981 than it did in 1972, an energy-oriented journal.

Energy User News reports the industry originally set a goal of a 10 percent reduction in amount of energy used to produce a pound of aluminum by the end of 1980 but surpassed that mark two years early.

It is now committed to a 20 percent reduction by the end of 1985, the journal noted.

WELCOME TO BOSTON — Cicely, a one-week-old harbor seal, looks over the shoulder of Patricia Fiorelli, coordinator of the marine mammal rescue program of the New England Aquarium in Boston, during a photo session Monday. The aquarium is caring for three pups like Cicely, all less than two-weeks-old.

Over 3,000 people visited health fair

"Between 3,000 and 4,500" people attended the recent Big Spring Health and Safety Fair, according to fair organizers.

Barbara Holdampf and Janet Rogers served as co-chairmen of the event.

Out of 2,528 people actually completing health screenings, 345 had findings classified as "abnormal."

Seven glaucoma screenings were "borderline," while nine persons tested positive for glaucoma out of 184 screened.

Persons taking part in the diabetic screening numbered 276, with four "abnormal" findings.

Participants in ideal body weight screening numbered 323 with 165 being found "abnormal."

Only eight people were screened for sickle cell anemia, and two had "abnormal" findings.

Anemia screening turned up 12 "abnormal" reports out of 273 people taking part.

Blood pressure screenings numbered 662 with 81 "abnormal" readings. However, actual participants numbered well over 1,500, according to the event's organizers. Long lines made keeping up with data sheets difficult, according to volunteers working in the area.

Scoliosis participants numbered 428 with 2 "abnormal" findings.

Forty-two persons signed up for a hearing screening. With the capacity to complete six to eight screenings per hour, 86 of these screenings were completed. Half of these screenings were "abnormal" and results were mailed to persons in Big Spring, Stanton, Crane, Lubbock, Forsan and other outlying communities.

Two hundred eighty-five participated in blood typing and qualified participants were referred to United Blood Services as donors. These participants also received wallet cards indicating blood types.

Shareholders' meeting postponed

HOUSTON (AP) — Faced with possible takeover by a British investor and a Panamanian holding company, Gulf Resources & Chemical Corp. delayed its annual shareholders meeting for the third time this month.

The meeting, which was scheduled Tuesday, was postponed until June 1, said Gulf Resources Vice President Robert E. Bowman.

British investor Alan Clore, and Zopress, S.A., a Panamanian firm headquartered in Geneva, Switzerland, are trying to gain control of Gulf Resources. They released a preliminary count of the ballots last week that indicated Zopress carried 54.96 percent of the vote.

Gulf Resources tried to persuade U.S. District Judge George Cire to void the shareholders' voting. Cire refused, but stayed certification of the vote count for 30 days pending an appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Zopress attorneys have said a preliminary vote count shows its 12 candidates for the board of directors carried 54.96 percent of the ballots, indicating a successful takeover.

CHILES GESTURES — Texas Rangers President and Board Chairman Eddie Chiles gestures at a news conference at Arlington Stadium Tuesday afternoon. Chiles said he plans no major changes for the Rangers that is off to its worst start ever with a 11-25 record.

Chiles won't act from rage

By JOE STROOP
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Eddie Chiles has spent this week learning baseball. Since Chiles is the president and board chairman of the Texas Rangers, that probably is an admirable goal.

But the more the Fort Worth oilman learns, the more second thoughts he has about his April 1980 acquisition of a majority interest in the team.

"Yeah, and you can add fourth and fifth (thoughts) to that," he said, chuckling. "I've asked myself, 'What the hell am I doing here?' But sometimes you get so far into something it's a lot easier to keep going forward than it is to try to turn around and back out.

"I guess I'm a lot like the mouse — I'm not after the cheese any more, I'm just trying to get my head out of the trap."

Chiles' comments came at a Tuesday news conference following 15 hours of meetings with Rangers' brass and players, an effort to find out why the team he thought would be a contender has the second-worst won-lost record in the major leagues.

What's ahead for the Rangers?

Those meetings were held Monday behind locked doors at Arlington Stadium, with armed security guards posted to keep reporters away.

And when Chiles finally met the media, he said there were no major changes in the works.

"We were just trying to follow the basic principles that industry operates under — trying to figure out where we were, where we wanted to go and how we intended to get there. We had to sit back and evaluate our position."

The team's goals have been refined and checkpoints established to insure the club continues in an acceptable direction, he said. However, he declined to say what the goals are now and what will be done to insure they are met.

"I don't believe I can answer that question on a basis that would be useful and helpful to all of us," he said, although he admitted the team was "badly off course" in its goal to reach the playoffs by 1983.

Chiles gained national attention for his peppery 1978 radio commercials saying he was "mad, mad, mad" about liberal government spending and urging voters to "fire" their liberal congressmen. But he said that approach was not right for his baseball team.

"It's never been my style to jump up, rant and rave, have heads fall and fire people — I really don't think that's how you motivate people and accomplish things," he said.

"Firing people, getting mad — taking action from anger is, in my opinion, the poorest solution you can have."

Asked how far the team had strayed off-course, the oilman said, "It's not 180 degrees but it's almost that bad."

Still, Rangers stumble

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Ken Singleton and Eddie Murray are supposed to be Baltimore's power hitters. So who is tied for the American League home run lead with 12? Baltimore's Gary Roenicke.

And who is right behind him with 10? Oriole outfielder John Lowenstein.

Unexpected? Not to Roenicke and Lowenstein.

"Baseball is a cyclical game," said Lowenstein after he scored four runs and popped a two-run homer in the Orioles' 10-3 Tuesday thrashing of Texas. "Right now Gary and I have been pulling the load. We've been hitting the long ball all year."

Roenicke powered two homers Tuesday, driving in four runs.

Baltimore starter Jim Palmer, 2-2, did not ask for an explanation. He just enjoyed the run support and routinely logged the 250th win of his major-league career.

Texas scored three runs in the last two innings, well after the game was out of reach.

Angels 10, Red Sox 2

Tim Foli homered and drove in four runs and Brian Downing and Bobby Grich smacked successive homers to power California to its ninth victory in its last 11 games.

The Angels' Bruce Kison, 4-0, matched the 13-hit offensive attack by striking out four in completing his first game of the season. The right-hander gave up three walks in snapping Boston's five-game winning streak.

Yankees 8, Blue Jays 0

Tommy John limited Toronto to five hits and one walk while getting 15 of the first 16 outs on groundballs in helping the Yankees win their sixth straight game.

John, recording his second shutout of the season, has won four of his last five games to even his record at 4-4.

American League

Royals 7, White Sox 4

Cesar Geronimo knocked in two runs with a homer and a single and Willie Aikens and Jerry Martin each doubled in a pair to make rookie Keith Creel's pitching debut a happy one.

Creel, a 23-year-old right-hander, limited the Chicago Sox to five hits. He needed sixth-inning help from Dan Quisenberry, who picked up his 12th save.

A's 10, Brewers 5

Dan Meyer snapped out of a hitting slump and helped Oakland snap a six-game losing streak with the victory over Milwaukee.

Meyer rapped a club-tying three doubles and drove in two runs. He went into the game mired in a 5-for-33 slump.

Marty Keough, 4-5, scattered five hits over 7-2/3 innings to pick up the victory. Moose Haas, 2-2, was the loser.

Indians 7, Twins 0

Lary Sorenson tossed a seven-hitter as the Indians extended Minnesota's losing streak to seven games.

Sorenson's effort was complemented by three home runs by the Indians, including a three-run smash by Von Hayes. Alan Bannister and Ron Hassey also homered for Cleveland.

Mariners 7, Tigers 6

Dave Henderson legged out an infield single with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning to score pinch-runner Joe Simpson with the winning run for Seattle.

Dawson destroys Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Andre Dawson wishes Montreal fans could have seen him when he blasted two home runs and drove in four runs to lead the Expos to their fifth straight victory.

But since Dawson's exhibition of power hitting came in the Astrodome the Montreal fans missed the show as the Expos beat the Houston Astros, 6-1, Tuesday night.

"Those Montreal fans are very demanding," Dawson explained. "They feel that I should be playing better, that is, I should be driving in more runs. We still have a legitimate shot at the (National League) East.

National League

"We play St. Louis (N.L. East leader) for the first time in mid-June. Fortunately, we didn't play them earlier when they were sizzling."

Dawson delivered his fifth blast of the season off Houston starter and loser Vern See. See Astros page 2B

Texas sends Johnson to Denver team

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rookie Texas catcher Bobby Johnson was sent down to the Rangers' Denver farm team Tuesday, to give him a chance to play every day, said Ranger Manager Don Zimmer.

The Rangers called up Don Werner, who has appeared in 96 major-league games during parts of six seasons but has seen limited duty with Denver since he broke his finger opening day.

Johnson, 22, was hitting .045 Tuesday. His only hit in 22 times at bat was a game-winning solo home run against Boston May 7.

Werner, 29, had five hits in 11 at-bats for the Denver Bears of the American Association.

Astros lose in Dome

 Ruhle, 2-3 in the third inning. Dawson then greeted Astro reliever Dave Smith with another clout in the eighth inning.
 "They were both fast balls in, so I just backed away from the plate and swung hard and they both went to left field high enough to clear the orange line," Dawson said.
 Dawson added a two-RBI double in the ninth inning. Catcher Gary Carter provided the other two runs with his eighth homer of the year in the second inning. Al Oliver reached first base on second baseman Phil Garner's fielding error prior to Carter's homer, giving the Expos a 2-0 lead.
 "I was looking for a slider and Ruhle just put it over the plate," Carter said.
 The enthusiastic backdrop was impressed with 24-year old pitcher David Palmer, who was making his first major league start since October 1, 1980 due to an elbow injury.
 "David had nerve problems and he was still a bit timid thinking about his elbow, but he was still pitched up," Carter said.
 "I just approached it like my tenth start because I had already started nine games in the minors at Memphis. I was really pleased with my performance. Carter really helped me out of two jams by picking off two runners."

Padres 2, Cubs 1
 Ferguson Jenkins fanned San Diego's Garry Templeton on three pitches in the third inning Tuesday night, making the 38-year-old Cubs right-hander just the seventh major league pitcher to record 3,000 strikeouts. But the Padres edged Chicago 2-1.
 Jenkins joined Walter Johnson, Gaylord Perry, Nolan Ryan, Steve Carlton, Bob Gibson and Tom Seaver in the 3,000-strikeout club. Jenkins wound up with four strikeouts in his seven innings.
 "My goal when I started was to win 250 games. I've done that. Now, I'd like to be close to 300 and I could be," said Jenkins, who is in his second term with the Cubs in a major-league career that started in 1965 with Philadelphia. "Everyone has a love for something. I happen to love pitching."

Homers pace Goldminer's USGA win
 Laura Mauldin pitched the Goldminers to a 23-5 romp over the Red Hots in a United Girls Softball Association game Tuesday night.
 Lisa Nichols banged three home runs for the winners while teammates Connie Swinney, Sheila Chatman and Katrina Thompson pounded one homer each.
 Brenda Hernandez homered for the Red Hots.

Jones must stop Kareem's scoring

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Caldwell Jones, the Philadelphia 76ers' center, may have the toughest job in the National Basketball Association championship series with the Los Angeles Lakers. He has to contain Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.
 Among active players, the 7-foot-2 Lakers' center is tied as the top scorer in NBA playoff history with 2,941 points, an average of 30.3.
 On the all-time playoff listing, Jabbar is sixth with 1,524 rebounds, and has the fifth best field-goal percentage, 53.3. He also has 379 assists.
 Earvin "Magic" Johnson, the 6-9 Lakers' guard poses another giant problem for the 76ers in this best-of-seven series, but Abdul-Jabbar generally is believed to be the hub of the Lakers.
 The series opens here Thursday night, with Game 2 scheduled Sunday before the scene shifts to Los Angeles for Games 3 and 4, Tuesday and Thursday nights.
 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham has great confidence in Jones, whose regular-season rebound average of 8.7 equals Abdul-Jabbar's.
 In fact, that matchup is the only one Cunningham has divulged. He lists his starting lineup as Julius Erving and Bobby Jones at the forwards, Caldwell Jones at center and Maurice Cheeks and Andrew Toney in the backcourt, but is keeping the matchups to himself.
 How does Jones play against Abdul-Jabbar?
 "I just try to keep him out of the middle and force him to the baseline. A lot of times we rotate the guards to stop him before he gets his rhythm," said Jones.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEA INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It could be easy to get involved in a confrontation with an associate over a petty matter so make a point to avoid all such likelihood by maintaining a pleasant attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Daytime is likely to be difficult except for late afternoon when an interesting person relieves tensions. Express happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure not to react bitterly to remarks made by a careless person. Take steps to improve your health and appearance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't become involved in an altercation between two associates and it will soon blow over. Use care in motion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use extra care in whatever work you are involved in today and get excellent results. Sidestep a spendthrift.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Keep busy at important business matters and gain benefits. Loved one may be in difficult mood but take this in stride.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more concerned with home duties than outside affairs today. Follow all regulations that apply to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put your finest ideas to work and gain the support of associates. Take no risks in travel when it gets dark. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle monetary matters wisely now and postpone less important affairs until later in the week. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study long-range plans and be patient, since they do not come to fruition quickly. Improve your appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to obtain the data you need from the right sources. The planets are now favorable for getting ahead in career matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to be your gregarious self. Try to understand the problems of others. Avoid one who is too talkative.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Carry through with outside chores in an efficient manner and gain added benefits. Plan the future wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be endowed with many talents, so be sure to give a good education that could lead to a most successful life. Teach to be patient since your progeny is likely to be impulsive. Don't neglect religious training.

Girl Scouts publish anniversary cookbook

Making a cookbook is one way the West Texas Girl Scout Council is observing the 70th anniversary of Girl Scouts in the United States. The "70th Anniversary Cookbook" is a collection of favorite recipes from Girl Scouts, their leaders and families.

The cookbook will be presented to all troop-related volunteers in appreciation for their hard work and dedication to Girl Scout members and the organization.

A few cookbooks will be on sale at the Girl Scout Office.

STRAWBERRY CREAMSQUARES

Dorrie Cook

1 6-oz. pkg. strawberry jello
1 large carton of frozen strawberries
2 sliced bananas
2 cups of sour cream
2 cups of boiling water
1 can of crushed pineapple, drained

Dissolve jello in water. Stir in strawberries until separated. Add crushed pineapple and bananas. Pour half of mixture into a 13x9" pan. Chill until firm. Spread with sour cream. Pour the rest of the mixture into pan. Chill.

SHRIMP MOLD

Brenda Brown

1 can of tomato soup, undiluted
1 1/2 Tbsps. of gelatin
1/2 cup of green onions, chopped
2 Tbsps. of lemon juice
salt to taste
3 small pkgs. of cream cheese
1/4 cup of cold water
1/2 cup of celery, chopped
1 sm. pkg. of frozen shrimp
1 cup of mayonnaise

Melt cheese in soup. Mix gelatin and cold water together in a separate bowl. Mix onions and celery together. Add all ingredients into one bowl and mix thoroughly. Chill. Serve with crackers.

CHEESE DIP

Geraldine Tucker

1 lb. Velveeta cheese
1 lb. ground meat
1 can Rotel tomatoes
1 small can of mushrooms, chopped

Brown meat. Melt Cheese. Add tomatoes (put through blender) to cheese. Add meat and mushrooms. Serve hot.

COTTAGE CHEESE DIP

Joan Rock

2 Tbsps. of milk
1 12-oz. carton of creamed cottage cheese
1 tsp. of onion salt
dash of Cayenne
1/4 tsp. of garlic powder
1/4 cup of salad dressing or mayonnaise

Place milk, cottage cheese, salad dressing, garlic powder, cayenne and onion salt in blender. Blend for 1 minute or until cheese is smooth. Pour mixture into a bowl. Cover and chill. Serve with crisp vegetable sticks.

RASPBERRY JAM

Mrs. Carroll C. Kohl

2 cups of grated green tomatoes
2 cups of water
sugar
Bring to a boil and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from stove and mix 1 pkg. (3 oz.) box of Raspberry Jello. Stir well and pour into small jar. Place in refrigerator to set. Tomatoes can be grated in blender.

THREE-FRUIT PUNCH

Norma Alexander

2 cans of frozen orange juice concentrate 2 cans of frozen lemon juice concentrate
1 cup of sugar
6 cups of water
1 46-oz. can of pineapple juice
2 12-oz. bottles of ginger ale

Combine all ingredients together and freeze. To serve, partially thaw at room temperature for about 5 hours. Place in punch bowl. Stir with a fork to break up ice chunks. Add ginger ale. Makes about 25 6-oz. servings.

COWBOY BREAD

Geraldine Tucker

1 3/4 cups of flour, sifted
3/4 cup of packed brown sugar
1/2 tsp. of salt
1-3rd cup of butter or margarine
2 eggs
1/2 tsp. of nutmeg
1/2 tsp. of baking powder
1/2 tsp. of baking soda
1/2 cup of buttermilk
1/2 tsp. of cinnamon

Blend together flour, sugar, salt, butter, cinnamon and nutmeg until a crumb-like mixture forms. To remaining ingredients, add baking powder and baking soda and mix thoroughly. Then add buttermilk and eggs; mix until smooth. Pour batter into greased 8-inch square baking pan. Bake in oven at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

BEDOUIB BREAD

Carol Ann Ivey

1 pkg. of yeast
1 Tbsp. of honey
1 tsp. of salt
3 1/2 cups of flour
1 1/4 cups of tepid water

Dissolve yeast and honey in water. Stir in flour and salt. Mix and knead, then divide into eight or ten pieces and place upon a cookie sheet. Flatten pieces into 1/4 inch rounds, and let rise for one hour. Preheat oven at 500 degrees, then bake the bread for seven minutes. Good with just butter or make good hamburger buns.

HUSH PUPPIES

Jobeth Corwin

1/2 cup of cornmeal
1/2 cup of water
1/2 cup of milk
1 1/2 Tbsps. of cooking oil
1/2 cup of grated onion
1 egg beaten
3/4 cup of flour
1 1/2 tsp. of baking powder
1/2 tsp. of salt
1/4 tsp. of sugar

Cook cornmeal and water, stirring until half stiff and it begins to roll into a ball. Remove from heat, add milk, oil and onion. Stir until smooth. Stir in beaten egg, and add dry ingredients. Blend.

Drop batter by teaspoons into hot fat (375 degrees F.) Fry 6 to 7 minutes. Drain. Makes 18.

PEANUT BUTTER CRISSCROSSES

Duanna Chester

1/4 cup of shortening
1/4 cup of brown sugar
1 egg, beaten
3/4 cup of flour
1/4 cup of sugar
1/2 tsp. of vanilla
1/2 cup of peanut butter
1/2 cup of soda
A dash of salt

Cream shortening, sugars and vanilla together. Add egg. Stir in peanut butter. Sift together flour, soda and salt and then add to creamed mixture. Form into tiny balls. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Press with back of fork into crisscrosses. Bake in 375 degrees oven for 8 to 10 minutes.

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE

Duanna Chester

3/4 cup of brown sugar
1 envelope of unflavored gelatin
1/2 tsp. of salt
1 tsp. of cinnamon
1/2 tsp. of nutmeg
1/4 tsp. of ginger
3 slightly beaten egg yolks
3/4 cup of milk
1 1/4 cups of canned pumpkin
3 egg whites
1-3rd cup of sugar (granulated)

1 baked pie shell or graham cracker crust

In a saucepan, combine sugar, gelatin, and spice. Combine egg yolks and milk. Stir into brown sugar mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat and stir in pumpkin. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form, gradually adding granulated sugar, beating into crust. Chill until firm. Garnish with whipped cream.

This pie freezes well and is good served while slightly icy. It makes one large or two small pies.

CHOCOLATE CHIP CHOCOLATE CAKE — Dorrie Cook prepares her favorite cake recipe, Chocolate Chip Chocolate Cake. The recipe is among many others listed in the Girl Scouts 70th Anniversary Cookbook. Miss Cook is a field executive of the West Texas Girl Scout Council and oversees Girl Scout troops in six counties.

JAPANESE FRUIT CAKE

Mrs. Carroll C. Kohl

2 pkgs. (2 lbs.) of dates, chopped
1 1/2 cups of flour
3 Tbsps. of baking powder
1 tsp. of vanilla
4 cups of pecans
1 tsp. of salt
6 eggs, well beaten
1 1/2 cups of sugar

Sift all dry ingredients. Then add dates, nuts and mix real good. Beat eggs and add sugar and vanilla. Mix and add to dry ingredients. Bake real slow at 200 degrees oven. Line greased pan with wax paper to keep from getting too dry. Put a pan of water in bottom of oven while baking. Store with apple slices on top, wrapped in a cloth.

FRUIT COCKTAIL CAKE

Carol Ann Ivey

2 cups of flour
1/4 tsp. of salt
1/2 tsp. of cloves
2 Tbsps. of soda
1 1/2 cups of sugar
1/4 tsp. of cinnamon
1 No. 303 can of fruit cocktail

2 eggs, beaten

Combine all ingredients, then bake in a sheet pan at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

Icing:
1 stick of butter or oleo
1 1/2 cups of sugar
1 sm. can of evaporated milk

Boil one minute and pour over warm cake.

COUNTRY BEEF PIE

Joan Rock

1 lb. of ground beef
1/2 cup of grated cheese
1/4 tsp. of pepper
3 cups of cooked rice
1 1/2 Tbsps. of salt
1/4 cup of chopped onion
1/4 cup of bell pepper
2 8-oz. cans of tomato sauce, divided
1/2 cup of fine dry bread crumbs

Mix together ground beef, bread crumbs, onion, bell pepper, seasonings, and 1/2 can of tomato sauce. Spread into a 9-inch pan, forming a shell. Mix together rice, cheese and remaining sauce. Place in meat shell. Sprinkle top with additional grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 35-40 minutes.

Developers take aim at remote beach area

BOCA CHICA, Texas (AP) — Fishermen, campers and swimmers have flocked to this undeveloped beach for years to enjoy its solitary, natural beauty in contrast to the condominium-fronted shores of nearby South Padre Island.

The lack of drinking water in this remote area 20 miles east of Brownsville had stilled several attempts at development.

Until now, the Boca Chica Water Co. formed three months ago with a filtration plant four miles away on the Rio Grande.

Last month, a Brownsville man and two Dallas partners announced a planned 450-lot, $3.5 million subdivision with sewers, lights, water and a paved beachfront road. Lot owners would build their own houses.

"We think Boca Chica beach is the South Padre Island of this decade," partner Jack Dahlen of Dallas said at a recent ground-breaking ceremony.

The Brownsville ship channel separates South Padre

Island from 8-mile-long Boca Chica beach, which is part of a peninsula bounded on the south by the Rio Grande.

Not everyone is as excited about Boca Chica Beach Estates as the developers.

"I think it's an awful area to develop in. It's very risky," said Cindy Chapman, president of the local Audubon Conservation Society. "My gut reaction is that there is probably a problem with Boca Chica because they would have developed it before now. I have a feeling they may not have all the water they need for that development."

Mrs. Chapman said she and others have questions about the project but have not had time to thoroughly investigate it.

Partner Jack McClung of Brownsville said there have been many skeptics since he, Dahlen and Neil Saunders of Dallas formed the Boca Chica Beach Investments Limited Partnership nine months ago.

"A man told me we'd never get the price ($15,000 to $20,000) out of our lots. I've had people tell me it'll never go because we couldn't get water," McClung said. "Well, we got the water and we're taking reservations on the lots."

The initial plans call for selling the lots in three phases and reserving the 50 acres of beachfront for future condominium development.

Under Texas law, the first 200 feet of beach from the waterline to the mean high tide level is public land.

Some have feared that development at Boca Chica would adversely affect the thousands of families who now drive their vehicles onto the beach for weekend outings.

The 250-acre plot purchased by McClung and his partners includes over a mile of beachfront. Immediately to the south, a group of 15 Brownsville businessmen have bought another 200 acres for eventual development.

The Brownsville Navigation District owns land at the northern tip of Boca Chica. The undeveloped Brazos Island State Park, whose 216 acres are leased by Cameron County, lies south of the navigation district land. County officials have approved a $90,000 improvement program in the park, with picnic tables, cabanas and other small-scale additions.

A geologist familiar with the area said after hearing of the Boca Chica project that he hoped developers avoid the mistakes made at South Padre Island.

"The dune fields at South Padre Island are being destroyed by the building," said Bob Rogers, a geology professor at Pan American University in Edinburg. Scientists say dune grasses act as anchors for sand and stabilize the delicate shoreline.

Erosion is eating away sand on the island because man-made jetties at the ship channel have interfered with sediment drift, Rogers said.

McClung, who operates a glass factory, says the partnership has hired a Dallas law firm with experience in dealing with federal and state land development regulations.

Heart guidelines approved

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — In a policy reversal, the University of Utah has agreed to perform operations in which the living hearts of certain patients would be removed and replaced with a machine, officials say.

The proposal, which is subject to approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, would end the pioneering university's policy of implanting artificial hearts only in patients whose hearts stop during surgery and cannot be restarted. No suitable candidates have been in that situation since the artificial heart was developed.

The new rules would mean that about 10,000 people suffering from an inoperable heart disease may soon be eligible for the operations to receive the university's artificial heart — including a Florida man who has asked to have the device implanted.

The school's Institutional Review Board voted 12-0 after a closed 1½-hour meeting Monday to expand eligibility to include patients suffering from cardiomyopathy, a degenerative disease of the heart muscle.

"I'm very excited. We at least won half the battle by getting them to change the protocol," Dale Lott, 38, a cardiomyopathy victim who has sought to become the first recipient of the device, said from his Homestead, Fla., home.

The proposal goes to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, which has 30 days to accept, reject or seek clarification of the guidelines, said John Dwan, University Medical Center spokesman.

An estimated 10,000 Americans suffer from the debilitating ailment, he said. Dr. F. Ross Woolley, chairman of a board subcommittee that drafted the new guidelines, said Lott's case wasn't discussed at the meeting.

"We don't know, really, anything about Mr. Lott other than what we've heard in the press," he said, adding that the former Dade County fire dispatcher would have to meet the same criteria as other potential recipients of the heart.

Woolley emphasized the artificial heart did not carry a guarantee of a better life for its recipients.

"There isn't any indication given that the patient will significantly benefit from this procedure," he said. "We're not saying that if you have an artificial heart you're going to live for 'X' period of time."

Also, recipients would spend the rest of their lives tethered to an external compressor that powers the heart.

But both Lott and his attorney, Ellis Rubin, rejoiced at the news.

"This is certainly encouraging," said Rubin, who waged a campaign to get the guidelines revised. "Maybe all our prayers are about to be answered."

Implanting the artificial heart — called the Jarvik-7 heart after its inventor, Dr. Robert Jarvik — in cardiomyopathic patients would mean removing a working, though diseased heart.

Lutherans from six states gather

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — More than 1,200 delegates from six states gathered in Omaha Tuesday for the start of the three-day Mid-America Lutheran Convention.

Discussion of merger and a call for a nuclear weapons freeze were expected to highlight the session.

The delegates represent three main branches of American Lutherans: the Lutheran Church in America's Nebraska Synod, the American Lutheran Church's Central District and the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Church's Southwest Synod.

"This is the first time we have met together at this level," said W.J. Culver, convention steering committee chairman. "This will allow us to become better acquainted and to talk about merger."

Although the national bodies of the three

Lutheran organizations have discussed merging, no action has been taken, said Culver, an executive with Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Omaha. The joint meeting is seen as a major step toward merger.

Leading merger talks will be church leaders from each organization — LCA National Bishop James R. Crumley, AELC National Bishop William H. Kohn and ALC General Secretary Arnold R. Mickelson, representing National Bishop David W. Preus.

Resolutions to be presented separately to all three groups call for support of a bilateral freeze on the testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons, said LCA spokesman the Rev. Michael Osberg, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church in Louisville, and an AELC spokesman, the Rev. Harold Schmidt, pastor of First Lutheran Church in Omaha.

If the resolutions are adopted, the Lutherans will join laymen and clergy who have voiced support for a freeze on nuclear weapons.

A dozen religious denominations in Nebraska and Iowa have endorsed the freeze or are considering doing so.

The resolutions call for the delegates to support a freeze proposal introduced March 10 in the U.S. Senate by Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore. United States and Soviet Union.

The ALC Central District is comprised of 262 congregations in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Missouri and Oklahoma with a baptized membership of 99,494, Culver said.

The AELC Southwest Synod is comprised of 25 congregations in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas with a membership of 6,935, he said.

DOE's dismantling opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's plan to dismantle the Energy Department faces what may be insurmountable obstacles in Congress, where even time is on the side of the proposal's opponents.

The president unveiled his long-awaited plan Monday, saying the department had encouraged unwarranted government intrusion that actually hampered energy production.

"Ill-conceived regulations have impeded development of new energy sources, discouraged conservation and distorted distribution," Reagan said in proposing transfer of most energy programs to the Commerce Department.

He said his plan would change government's role from "controlling the activities of energy industries to complementing them." Several congressmen immediately questioned whether Reagan's plan stands a chance of passage this year.

"The House is not hot for this proposal. There's no doubt about that," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on energy.

Time is a principal obstacle to Reagan's plan. Congress plans to adjourn by early October for election campaigns, leaving only four months of working sessions punctuated by three holiday recesses.

The Energy Department bill could be sent to as many as six committees during that period, each of which could hold hearings on the bill.

Court to rule on search warrant case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a case key to government efforts against airborne drug smugglers, will decide whether police need a warrant to search fenced-in fields for cargoes of marijuana and other outlawed substances.

The court said Monday it will review a ruling that Martin County, Fla., sheriff's deputies illegally searched an 1,800-acre field where five men were unloading marijuana from a small airplane.

Deputies rammed through a gate, cut the lock on another, cut through a barbed-wire fence and traveled a few hundred yards before making the nighttime arrests.

The Florida Supreme Court said the marijuana could not be used as evidence because the deputies' April 1978 actions without a warrant violated the constitutional ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures."

The lower court said the five men had a reasonable "expectation of privacy," because the fence and other barriers clearly indicated that "outsiders were not welcome" on the land. The field was leased to one of the five men charged in the case.

In their appeal to the Supreme Court, state officials argued that they did not need to obtain a search warrant from a judge or magistrate.

"With the enormous profits gained from drug smuggling, it is nothing less than commonplace for organized drug smuggling rings to buy up massive acreages of open field, place an airstrip thereon, and smuggle in their wares to be distributed around the country," state officials said.

"The mere placing of a locked and posted fence around such massive acreages should not be allowed to bring this activity within the protection of the Fourth Amendment (warrant requirement)," Florida officials added.

The Supreme Court has ruled that if police traveling uninvited on private land see suspected illegal activity across an "open field" or other wide-open space, they can investigate and make an arrest without a warrant.

The question to be answered in the Florida case is what difference it makes if the land is fenced in, and if the illegal activity is not generally visible.

The justices are not expected to decide the case until sometime next year.

In other action Monday, the Supreme Court:

—Agreed to decide how far state and local governments can go in regulating abortions.

Among several questions to be settled is the validity of requirements that all abortions after first three months of pregnancy be performed in a hospital. The justices also are expected to decide whether any girl under 15 years of age can be required to have the consent of one of her parents or a judge before obtaining an abortion.

—Ruled by a 5-4 vote that FBI documents concerning the activities of then-President Nixon's political opponents are not subject to public disclosure.

—Agreed to decide whether recipients of Farmers Home Administration mortgage loans can sue the government if inspectors fail to spot defects in the mortgaged houses under construction.

When traveling, prepare defense against fire

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — When Martin Grimes travels, he always packs a roll of silvered pipe-insulating tape in his suitcase.

"The hotel bellhop can forget showing me how to turn on TV or the air conditioning," Grimes says. "I want to know where the nearest exits are and where the air conditioning vents are."

"If smoke starts coming through the vents, I want to be able to plug them up quickly."

The tape is about 3 inches wide and tears easily, and it takes up no more room in his bag than a hairbrush, explains Grimes, of Quincy, vice president of the National Fire Protection Association.

As might be expected, Grimes is exceptionally well informed about what travelers can do to insure their safety in case of a hotel or motel fire.

Renewed interest in the subject was kindled by the tragedies which struck recently in Las Vegas and New York. Even the most minimal safety preparations can spell the difference between life and death, according to fire-safety experts.

When he checks in, Grimes' first question to the desk clerk is: What does the fire alarm sound like?

"I want to know whether to listen for bells, chimes, horns or sirens," he explained in an interview. "There is no uniform fire-alarm sound." Such a safety precaution meets with approval from attorney Bruce Allman of Cincinnati, a partner in the firm Paxton & Seasongood, which specializes in fire litigation.

"More hotel guests are looking for emergency and fire exits these days," he says. "I do that myself whenever I travel."

There are multipronged efforts to improve safety from fire at public lodgings, according to Manfred Steinfeld of Chicago, hotel and restaurant seating manufacturer.

Steinfeld, chairman of Shelby Williams Industries, says "a fireproof hotel room is getting closer to reality all the time." The manufacturer has just converted his company's upholstery cushioning to a new fire and smoke-retardant urethane foam.

A fire-resistant mattress ticking for beds also has been developed by Steinfeld.

Big hotels and resorts rely on more than technological advances and equipment to safeguard their guests, says John A. Ambler, safety director of a huge luxury resort operation in Florida, the Boca Raton Hotel and Beach Club.

Ambler says the resort undergoes monthly fire drills, held for employees only, by the city fire department. The drills are called at random but the hotel's guests are given written notices in advance.

Each of the facility's 917 rooms is furnished with maps detailing nearby exits, plus brochures on precautions to take in case of fire.

Fire-safety experts have joined in compiling these precautionary guidelines for travelers:

—Determine what the sound of the fire signal is, so you can listen for that alert.

—Check the exits nearest your room and make sure they are open and usable.

—Count the doorways between your room and the exits so you can find your way there quickly and easily. If you smell smoke or detect a fire, call the hotel operator or pull the alarm box.

—If you are in your room and hear the alarm, feel the door. If the handle is not hot, or heat is not coming around the edges, leave quickly and close your room door.

—Keep your room key with you so that you can return if smoke or flames block you from getting out.

—Walk, don't run.

—If there is smoke, crawl to breathe the freshest air nearest the floor.

—If no one answers the desk line, dial outside and call the fire department. Inform them of your room number at the hotel.

Old house renovated into new inn

BY GARRY MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer
MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Finding space for the eight bathrooms was a major task, says Darlene Holmes, surveying renovation of the late-Victorian and Queen Anne-style house in Mobile's historic district.

But it's been done. Now Mrs. Holmes has spaces for the claw-footed tubs, pedestal sinks, and commodes — some under staircases — in the house that opens this summer as the port city's first "bed 'n' breakfast" inn.

The European-type facilities are popular in historical districts in other cities in this country, and are considered distinct from the traditional boarding house.

The spirit and demure face of Molly Young, the elder sister of Mrs. Holmes's grandmother, are the house trademarks: the name, "Molly Young's Bed 'n' Breakfast Inn."

"She was accidentally shot at age 18 by her little brother who was playing with a Civil War pistol," Mrs. Holmes related. "She's buried in Tudor Cemetery at Houlika, Miss.

"We're going to put her face on our menus and little church fans."

Mrs. Holmes, a 33-year-old with auburn hair and an inspiring laugh, said it had taken two years to talk her husband, David, into this project.

He's a city fireman with a sideline in fire alarms.

Upstairs, three double rooms and a single will provide accommodations for overnighters who visit the historic district or have business in the area. The second-floor rooms with 11½-foot ceilings will feature Victorian furnishings.

"It's not my livelihood, so I won't have to be exorbitant in my fees," she said. She divides her times between her husband, three children, church and coaching volleyball and basketball.

"I try to make the time organized so that no one is slighted," she said.

Soon to be added to the house, built in 1901, are stained-glass windows in strategic areas.

Painted a bold London blue with banisters Texas Star yellow, Molly Young's provides a striking contrast to the conservative pastels of the Queen Anne houses across the street.

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.

This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation.

To buy, sell, trade or rent, place your ad in the classified section.

Good grooming for mail of the species

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — For the next few days please avoid picking up the mail in bathrobe, hair curlers and sneakers. And the man of the house should shave and put on a clean bowling shirt before approaching the postal box.

This is Mailbox Improvement Week, as proclaimed by the U.S. Postal Service, and you wouldn't want to mar the aesthetics of the occasion.

From time to time I have been possessed with plans to beautify my mailbox or conceal it under camouflage paint toward the end of the month when the due bills flutter in from impatient creditors.

A few months back, when the Internal Revenue forms were drifting in, I contemplated hanging crepe on my mailbox, putting the little red flag at half staff and leaving the carrier a little note:

"Broke Like Braniff."

One time there, when stamp prices were becoming unglued, I entertained the idea of painting my mailbox black and soldering on little bronze handles, like a coffin, in mourning for the three-cent stamp, which I suppose dates me to the era of Postmaster General James Farley. Or was it Benjamin Franklin?

Anyhow, hardly a mailer is now alive who remembers the penny postcard.

"The purpose of Mailbox Improvement Week," according to some junk mail distributed along rural routes by the Post Office, "is to call attention to the need for providing mail receptacles which are designed to protect the mail from the weather and are neat in appearance, conveniently located and safe to use. Neat, attractive mailboxes make a significant contribution to the appearance of the countryside and the streets in suburban areas."

A friend in Denver, Col., reports that a school chum of hers, living along a rural Star Route, where the mail is distributed by a contract carrier, finds that the mail deliverer is part of the beautification problem. The carrier, in his anxiety to go swiftly about his appointed rounds, keeps smashing into the mail receptacle, which is bureaucratic for mailbox.

In the outer reaches of the Connecticut commuter belt, where I live, the main deterrents to mailbox beautification are pointy-headed teen-aged vandals of 25-watt mentality who go about beating on mailboxes with baseball bats and get their biggest kicks out of the bend and fall away type supports so favored by the Postal Service.

I don't know what they teach the urchins in civics class these days but students rallying for nuclear disarmament don't reach me as long as my mailbox looks like it was caught resupplying the Falkland Islands.

Finally, during Mailbox Improvement Week, if my carrier insists on wearing those ridiculous khaki shorts and that pith helmet, the least he can do is pull his socks up.

KKK parade denied

SEABROOK, Texas (AP) — A police chief says he denied the Ku Klux Klan's request for a "memorial march" because he didn't want to give the group permission to violate a federal court injunction.

Klan members asked permission to parade through this coastal community June 19 to honor Billy Joe Aplin, an American fisherman killed by a Vietnamese refugee.

However, Seabrook Police Chief Bill Kerber said Tuesday that he denied the request on Monday because the proposed route would take the parade near Vietnamese businesses and homes and might violate a federal court injunction ordering the Klan to stop harassing the refugees.

"I don't want to get in a position where I give a group permission to violate an injunction," Kerber said.

Klan members and members of the American Fishermen's Association planned the "memorial march" through Seabrook to honor Aplin, a Seadrift, Texas, fisherman killed Aug. 4, 1979.

Vietnamese refugee Sau Van Nguyen claimed he killed Aplin in self defense. A jury later acquitted Sau of murder charges.

Denmark's scrappy political magazine dies

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer
COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Kate Fleron has resigned herself to the death of the feisty little political journal that took her through 40 years of fighting Nazis, Americans, Common Market, NATO and bureaucrats she felt were chipping away at Danish freedom.

Nevertheless, says the white-haired Danish grandmother, the world is in such a mess that her work is far from over.

"In the 1950s it would have been terrible if we had had to stop, because there was a desert around us," she said. "Now we are scared to death about the dangers around us, but we're not sleeping as we were then."

Miss Fleron, a sprightly 72, took a break from editing the 56-page final issue of Frit Danmark to discuss her ideas in her cubbyhole downtown office. The magazine, whose name means "Free Denmark," came out for the last time on May 4. That was the 37th anniversary of Denmark's liberation from the Nazis, the first adversary the magazine took on.

On her office's yellow wall is a dark, morbid line drawing depicting a queue of prisoners beneath a spotlighted guard tower. It was drawn, she said, by a fellow inmate of the Nazi prison camp where she spent eight months, the only period since December 1942 that she was not editing Frit Danmark.

With a staff consisting of Miss Fleron and a secretary, the magazine occupies two rooms in a walk-up downtown building, overlooking a plaza favored by local leftists for demonstrations, in which she often participates.

"I want to be active as long as I can," she told an interviewer. "I will not give up. It is not so terrible for me if I am going to die in an atomic war, but it will be terrible for the world."

As dangerous as she considers the modern world, Miss Fleron is not without hope, recalling the bleak early days of the five-year Nazi occupation as proof that no situation is hopeless.

"We know, and we are trying to resist, what is threatening us," she said. "I mean first of all war, but also atomic power, pollution. We know what we are afraid of and why, but we don't know if we can change it."

Miss Fleron was a staunchly conservative nationalist when she began editing Frit Danmark nine months after it was born and 2½ years after Germany invaded and occupied its tiny northern neighbor. Most other conservatives who helped publish it in the World War II underground quit because the magazine, reflecting her bythen leftist views, refused to condemn in 1948 the takeover of Czechoslovakia's government by pro-Moscow communists.

The split turned the magazine from a right-to-left political forum into a left-wing, non-party, strongly nationalistic organ.

The magazine had become the largest publication of Denmark's anti-Nazi underground, and its first postwar edition had a press run of 140,000 copies. For the last few years, however, its circulation has been stable at about 2,000, and as the circulation dropped financial problems grew until rising costs forced the closure.

Miss Fleron's room is lined with books — authors include Nikolai Lenin, Kim Il-Sung and Hans Christian Andersen — and on its walls are memorabilia of postwar travels to North Korea, North Vietnam and elsewhere.

Her wartime underground work with Danish communists, her postwar travels and the opinions expressed in Frit Danmark led many of her fellow Danes to vilify her as a communist.

Not true, she insists. "I worked with them when I thought they were right, and I worked against them when I thought they were wrong," she said.

34 injured in collapse ROGERS, Ark. (AP) - A second-story wooden sundek collapsed "in a twink of an eye" at a birthday party on a children's ranch, injuring 34 people when they fell to the ground, authorities said.

Ten victims of the Tuesday evening accident remained hospitalized today. After the piers and planks of the balcony at the Real Life Ranch gave way at about 8:45 p.m., children and adults were sent sprawling on a concrete sidewalk.

Mrs. Long, reached at St. Mary's Hospital in Rogers, said about 70 children, staff members and guests had gathered on the balcony for a birthday party for four children, but not all fell.

Deputy Fire Chief John Elliott said most of the debris had been cleared away and the most seriously injured identified when authorities arrived Tuesday night. No one was trapped in the rubble. It took about 45 minutes to transport all victims to the hospital.

Benton County Sheriff Don Rystrom said deputies would return to the ranch today to investigate the accident.

STILL CRAZY — Steve Martin stars in "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," now showing in Big Spring. Thanks to clever editing, Martin plays opposite such old-time stars as James Cagney, Lana Turner and Humphry Bogart.

Martin's humor is subtle in 'Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid'

Comedian Steve Martin is back on the wide screen. But what's more fun in Carl Reiner's "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid" is the return of the great stars of the 1950s black and white classics to the local movie theater.

Combining the zany humor of Martin and film clips for many of the classics, audiences can laugh throughout this picture even without knowing exactly what's going on.

The plot is fairly simple although the solution isn't. Martin plays Rigby Reardon, a detective of the old mold, who is asked to investigate the death of a cheese king by his daughter, played by Juliet (Rachel Ward). From this point in the opening frames of the movie until the wild solution is thrown at the audience at the climax of the film, moviegoers are treated to Martin's humor and the intricate splicing of the oldies to create even more laughs.

Remember Bogart, Bergman, Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland? They're all back. There's even evil Vincent Price and lovely Lana Turner. The trick was to fit scenes from their classic screen appearances into this summer

Part of the slipped-in humor comes with the signs his partner Phillip Marlow has put up to discourage rigby from getting involved with his clients — namely in the female genre. One of those reads "Don't Fall in Love with a Client" which is shown as Rigby and Juliet cross sparkling glances. Another is "Guns Don't Kill Detectives. Love Does."

Another great moment is Martin's reaction to the term "cleaning lady." Just the mention of the phrase sends Rigby into a strangling frenzy.

THERE ARE many other funnies that you'll recall after seeing the movie. Million dollar comedy from a detective who works for $10 a day plus expenses.

How the mystery of John Hay Forrester's death is solved won't be revealed here. It's really not the main thrust of the picture anyway. The comedy and movie nostalgia along the way make this film definitely must viewing.

If you like Steve Martin, you'll like "Dead Men." If you like seeing scenes from the old shows, you'll like "Dead Men." If you like a good movie, you'll like "Dead Men."

release. It was a great puzzle to solve but film editing by Bud Molin, costumes by Edith Head and resounding success with musical scoring by Miklos Rozsa fit the entire picture together perfectly, with not a piece missing.

WHILE MARTIN has relied on slapstick in the past to form his "wild crazy sez" image, the humor in this work is more subtle. If you pay close attention, the film is full of little jewels that tickle your funny bone as hot butter adds to popcorn.

It's hard to recall all the highlights of the movie but one that comes to mind, is a scene in which Martin is making his famous "java." Pouring from a large bag of coffee, he keeps pouring and pouring and pouring. And pouring some more. Then he adds eggs and water. A cup of what mixture probably combines enough caffeine to keep a person awake for six years.

Other moments to appreciate come when Martin does some narrating when the audience hears what is going through his mind. Most of these scenes occur when he's expressing his growing feelings for Juliet. Unfortunately, Juliet also is tuned in on what is going through his head and poor Rigby usually ends up with a slap in the face.

Juvenile justice on ABC

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You can't go wrong tonight with either "In the Custody of Strangers" on ABC or "Rehearsal for Murder" on CBS.

"Strangers" is ABC's powerful drama about a teen-ager who slips through the supposed protective net of the juvenile justice system. "Rehearsal" is CBS' baffling murder mystery that will trap would-be crime-solvers, then trip them up.

"Strangers" stars Martin Sheen and his son, thinking it might straighten him out. By regulation, Danny is kept separate from the adults in jail, but a man in an adjacent cell makes a homosexual advance.

Danny reacts violently and is charged with assault. His one-night lesson in prison is taking a nightmarish turn. The next morning he has a detention hearing. By now his father wants him home, but the judge, acting in what he thinks is Danny's best interests, feels the family tensions are too strong to release him.

Five days later, red tape postpones Danny's freedom. And so it goes. On and on. Meanwhile, the high-strung Danny is getting more paranoid and panicky, especially in his isolated cell, separated from the criminal population. The psychiatrist calls him a "time bomb."

The film becomes a relentless study of a system gone wrong, even though the judges, lawyers, probation officer, psychiatrist and warden all are well-intended. Meanwhile, a youngster whose crime was, basically, immaturity has become the tortured victim.

The release delays eventually become a bit overdone, but strong acting by Sheen, Estevez, Jane Alexander as Danny's mother, and Kenneth McMillan as the warden make "In the Custody of Strangers" a chilling experience.

Television

Emilio Estevez. Both bring fervor to their roles and make credible the movie's indictment of a legal system that doesn't fit the crime.

Danny Caldwell, played by Estevez, is a volatile 16-year-old with his share of adolescent anger and frustration. His girlfriend moved to another town. His father lost his job to the recession. He and his dad are in constant conflict.

One night, Danny gets arrested on a drunken driving charge. His father decides not to pick him up, letting him spend the night in jail,

'Marco Polo' was hit of the week

NEW YORK (AP) — "Marco Polo," NBC's $30 million, 10-hour miniseries, was the hit of the week ending May 23 — as the struggling network had hoped — but ABC won the three-way ratings race four shows among the 10 most-watched, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

The last three installments in the four-part "Marco Polo" miniseries were among the week's six highest-rated shows, and the joint American-Italian-Chinese production helped boost NBC from last-place in the ratings for the first time since early January.

Part III was the week's highest-rated program, with Part IV, the conclusion, fourth and Part II tied for fifth. The rating for the third chapter was 22, and Nielsen says that means in an average minute of the program, 22 percent of the homes in the country with television were watching "Marco Polo."

Part I of "Marco Polo" was broadcast in the preceding week.

ABC's top-rated program of the week, "Three's Company," finished in a tie for fifth place with "Marco Polo," Part II, and the network — No. 1 in the competition for the fourth straight week — compiled an average rating of 15.1 to 14.7 for NBC and 14.5 for CBS.

The networks say that means in an average minute of prime-time during the week, 15.1 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were watching ABC.

Eight of the week's 20 highest-rated shows were repeats, and two of three segments on a ninth, "60 Minutes," had been broadcast before.

A theatrical film, "The Concorde — Airport '79," scored for ABC — No. 10 for the week — while NBC was successful with a made-for-TV film, "The Return of Maxwell Smart" — No. 15.

NBC emerged from the ratings cellar even though the network broadcast all five of the week's lowest-rated shows, starting with No. 52 "I've Had It Up to Here," and followed by a special news report on the Falkland Islands crisis, a movie, "Movie, Movie," "Harper Valley" and "One of the Boys."

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows: "Marco Polo," Part III, with a rating of 22 representing 18 million homes, NBC; "60 Minutes," 21.5 or 17.6 million, both CBS; "Marco Polo," Part IV, 20.8 or 17. million, NBC; "Marco Polo," Part II, NBC, and "Three's Company," ABC, both 20.3 or 16.6 million; "Trapper John, M.D.," 20.1 or 16.5 million, CBS; "Fantasy Island," 19.6 or 16.1 million, "Hart to Hart," 19.3 or 15.8 million,
