Wet and wild weather

Basin hit by rain, hail, lightning, funnel clouds

By BILL ELDER City Editor

Wet and wild weather blew through West Texas last night, dumping hail and as much as seven tenths of an inch of rain of Big Spring, sparking at least half a dozen reports of funnel clouds in the Permian Basin and startling one Big Spring resident when lightning struck her

The rough weather got rolling as early as 2:38 p.m., when the first of six funnel cloud and tornado reports from the Midland-Odessa area came in, according to a National Weather Service spokesman in Midland.

Five more reports came in until 7:10 p.m., the spokesman said. There appeared to be no injuries and no major damage from the turbulence, according to the Midland and Martin county offices of the Department of Public

On the east side of the basin, Colorado City residents responded to tornado alert sirens by taking shelter in two churches as well as private cellars when a twister was spotted by law enforcement officials 14 miles south of the city at about 9:30 p.m. Damage was reported heavy to power lines, utility poles, trees and a few residences around Lake Champion as well as south of Loraine.

Hail fell all over the basin, ranging in size in the Midland-Odessa area from "pea-sized to softball-sized," according to the NWS. In Snyder, police said marble-sized hail fell, while in Big Spring, Red Thomas of 107 E. 13th said he saw hail almost the size of ping-pong balls landing in

The stormy weather dumped anywhere from nearly two tenths of an inch to seven tenths of an inch of rain on Big Spring, according to various gauges. The U.S. Big Spring Field Station off Interstate 20 reported fifteen hundredths of an inch, while a gauge at the Colorado River Municipal Water District pump station north of Big Spring on Snyder Highway measured half an inch, according to Rod Lewis, acting assistant manager of the water district. Lewis said a tenth of an inch fell at Lake E.V. Spence, three tenths fell at Lake Thomas and half an inch hit Moss Creek Lake.

The pump station north of town has measured 2.6 inches of rain since Sunday, he added.

Rain and hail weren't the only natural phenomena falling from the sky; there was

School roof repair OK'd

Staff Writer

The Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees yesterday approved a bid of $64,670.94 from the Herb Stephens Roofing Co. in Plainview for labor and materials to re-roof Kentwood Elementary School and the district's administration building. The action came in a special meeting at the high school board

According to Assistant Superintendent Don Crockett, the work provides for the application of a sprayed polyurethane foam roof system after preparation of the exhisting roof surface.

"They will spray two inches of foam and then put on three coats of polyurethane. The roof will provide for ample protection from vandalism, hail and other things of the sort,' Crockett said.

He said it was his understanding that the re-roofing process would begin July 1 and could be finished by Aug. 15. The bid contract states the company has 60 days to finish the project once it is started. The roof comes with a five-year guarnatee, Crockett said.

In other matters the board approved the district's annual application for federally funded vocational education programs. The application, prepared by vocational administrator John Bagnall, asks the Texas Education Agency for $34,873 in federal funds for the 1982-83 school year. Bagnall also indicated the district's vocational education program would be bolstered by an additional $41,484 from local funds.

The vocational department of the district is an area vocation school and serves the vocational needs not only for Big Spring, but also for the independent school districts, Bagnall

He anticipated the program would enroll approximately 850 students next year in 21 programs of vocational instruction.

Among the programs are agriculture, industrial training, office education, distributive education and home economics.

In budgetary matters, the board approved a revision in the Head Start program budget totaling $5,000. The money, which had been allocated for other areas in the program, will now be spent on equipment, materials, supplies and travel for in-service

In final action, the board okayed the district's long-range plans for its gifted and talented program.

The program serves grades four through eight and focuses on the enrichment of communication skills. The program's goal is to make the most of each child's ability and to prepare the student to live more fully in the present, as well as prepare him for the future, according to Assistant Superintendent Harold Bentley.

Bentley said the students are chosen for the program by committees of teachers, counselors and administrators, who evaluate the student's abilities and talents.

The program objectives are: 1) to identify students qualified for the gifted and talented program; 2) determine class schedules; 3) develop a curriculum which meets the needs of the students; 4) implement a staff development program designed to keep teachers aware of latest teaching methods; 5) integrate parents into the program and 6) prepare evaluations of the overall effectiveness of the program.

Braniff jets stored here?

Communication between Braniff International Airlines and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce regarding storage of some of Braniff's planes at Big Spring Airport has been confirmed by Hal Boyd, manager of the Big Spring Industrial Park and airport

'All I can confirm is that I've been in contact with a Braniff official,' Boyd said today. "Nothing is official." Braniff authorities declined any comment at this time.

Boyd said Braniff called the chamber of commerce last week and that he later contacted Braniff himself.

Boyd said he was waiting for additional information from Brniff.

The airline suspended its operations May 12 and filed for court protection from creditors under bankruptcy laws. Landing slots held by Braniff at airports are being given away in a lottery and Braniff jets will be moved from their current locations.

NUMBERS FOR AIR ROUTES — Gwyneth Jones, an attorney for the Civil Aeronautics Board, reads a number during a lottery at the Federal Aviation Administration Building in Washington Thursday to allocate domestic air routes of the bankrupted Braniff Airlines. At least 69 carriers participated in the lottery, with the transparent hopper the same that was formerly used by the Selective Service. See story, page 3A.

Big Spring takes a 3-day holiday

By BOB CARPENTER Staff Writer

Almost all of the city, county, state and federal offices will be closed in Big Spring Monday so employees can take advantage of a long Memorial Day weekend.

City hall, as well as the city water office, will be closed and there will be no trash pickups on Monday. A spokesman for the city's sanitation department said crews would be making a special run Wednesday to pickup Monday's normal routes.

The Figure Seven Tennis Center will be closed along with the pool in Comanche Trail Park. Golfers are in luck; however, as the Comanche Trail Golf Course will be open all day.

The Howard County Courthouse will be shut down on Monday. For persons wishing to vote absentee in the June 5 runoff elections, the county clerk's office will be open Saturday from 2-8 p.m. to compensate for being closed Memorial Day. The Howard County Sheriff's Office will have a skeleton crew working the holiday, according to Sheriff A.N. Standard.

The Texas Department of Public Safety driver's license office at 2000 Birdwell will also be observing the holiday. Regular highway patrols will be continued as normal, according to a DPS spokeswoman.

Postmaster Frank Hardesty said the post office would be closed on Monday; however, patrons can still buy stamps from machines in the lobby. All the other federal agencies located in the federal building on Main indicated they would be closed. This includes Social Security, Soil Conservation and Farmers Home Administration offices. The U.S. Big Spring Field Station also will be

Jurors see 'Taxi Driver'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jurors at the federal trial of John W. Hinckley Jr. today watched a showing of "Taxi Driver," a movie closely linked with the presidential assailant's fantasies.

U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker previewed the movie and decided it should be shown to the jury. A few minutes later, a half-dozen television sets were wheeled into position facing the jury, the defense tables, Parker's bench and spectator seats, and a videotape of the movie was shown.

The defense team told Parker the movie was important for jurors to see because Hinckley assumed the role of the main character, Travis Bickle, when he shot President Reagan on March 30, 1981.

In the film, Bickle stalks a presidential candidate and tries to rescue a young prostitute played by Jodie Foster, the actress with whom Hinckley had a onesided romance.

1 dead after prom party

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — A guest who stripped off his coat and vest and dived into a hotel lobby pool was able to save only one of the two high school students who were found lying on the bottom after a prom-night

One of the Revere High School students died in an accidental drowning, authorities said. The other was comatose today, clinging to life with the help of a respirator at Hunt Memorial Hospital, one day after being pulled from the swimming pool by a conventiongoer at the Radisson-Ferncroft Hotel.

After the high school prom Wednesday at a hall in Saugus, as many as 50 youngsters partied through the night in two $72 rooms at the hotel, said Karen McLaughlin, a spokeswoman for the Essex County district attorney's office.

There was evidence of liquor and drugs, which are now in state police custody," she said

'The two men had apparently stayed overnight in the hotel in two rooms where it appeared that a party had taken place," said Tom Polski, a spokesman at Radisson's headquarters in Minneapolis. "The hotel security logs indicate there had been no noise complaints or other reported problems from these rooms.

61 HC students earn honors

Sixty-One Howard College students and 15 SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf students made the Howard County Junior College District honors list for the 1982 spring semester, announced Dr. Charles Hays, president of the district.

The purpose of the HCJCD honor list is to commend those students who are enrolled for a minimum of 15 semester hours of solid subjects, and whose grade point average is 3 or above. The list is sub-divided into 5 divisions on the basis of grade points.

BBC said. It gave no details. The Times of London said helicopters were ferrying troops under cover of darkness for a "big push" to Darwin and Goose Green. Another British press report said the attackers might try to bottle up the Argentine defenders and push on to the capital, 50 miles to the northeast.

While the paratroopers were advancing on Darwin and Goose Green, the BBC said Royal Marines with Scorpion light tanks and artillery moved directly east from the beachhead toward Stanley in the main thrust of the pincer assault apparently aimed at gaining the high ground overlooking the capital garrison.

The British are expected to use positions overlooking the capital to pour 105mm artillery fire down on the estimated 7,000 Argentine defenders entrenched in a wide arc reportedly stretching from Green Patch to Bluff Cove.

The British Defense Ministry imposed a blackout on official news of troop movements after Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons Thursday afternoon that British forces had pushed out of their beachhead in a drive to recapture the South Atlantic colony from Argentine forces who seized the islands April

'Our forces on the ground are now moving forward from the bridgehead." She declined to be more specific, saying, "Too much discussion about timing and details of operations can only help the enemy.'

Argentine military sources denied the reports that the drive to retake Stanley was under way. They said British forces have been "halted and stabilized," and the military command in Buenos Aires said an offensive was improbable because the British had taken heavy casualties from Argentine bombing Wednesday and early Thursday and were short of supplies.

Senate OKs property tax repeal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Senators have approved a prison appropriation of about $28 million less than recommended by a House committee.

But that difference could be resolved today as the special session winds down.

The Senate voted 28-1 Thursday in favor of Sen. Bill Meier's $50 million appropriation for the overcrowded Texas Department of Corrections. On Wednesday, the House Appropriation Committee, coming much closer to the amount sought by the TDC, approved a $78.6 million

That committee was to look at the Senate bill today and decide which version the full House should debate.

TDC Director Jim Estelle told the Senate Finance Committee on Thursday that prison system has been gaining 500 new inmates a month and must embark on a $630 million construction program over the next four years.

With utilities and extra staff added, the program would add up to about $1 billion, he said.

Estelle said the $85 million sought by prison officials would be used to start up construction of 131,000-bed units, speed up current construction and adapt existing building for inmate housing. The House package includes those

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A spurt of Senate action, including completion of its main business, put legislators in position today to finish a special session in five days.

Most of the work shifted to the House, which scheduled a 10 a.m. opening, an hour earlier than the Senate.

The goal was to adjourn by Friday night and get home for the Memorial Day weekend. Senators approved four proposed constitutional amendments Thursday, including one to repeal the state property tax, and voted to spend $50 million to speed up construction of state prison cells.

It was estimated that 4,600 additional prison beds would be ready by the end of 1982.

Money for college construction and settling differences in what senators and House members want to spend at once to ease prison overcrowding appeared to be the major items of unfinished business.

The House, however, still had to approve three of the constitutional proposals that cleared the Senate to put them on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

Clements called the special session to repeal the 10-cent per $100 valuation property tax, but he also said he wanted legislators to find construction money for 17 colleges that had relied on the tax.

On Monday, he authorized lawmakers to see what they could do about overcrowded prisons and a few other issues.

The Senate defeated an attempt by Sen. Carl Parker on Thursday to substitute a 3cent property tax, which would be phased out in building a $2 billion college construction fund for colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M University systems.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said senators had told him privately that his proposal was the "easiest" and "best" way to finance college construction, but they feared political opponents might use a tax vote against them in

"I want to serve notice to the people of Texas that what you're about to witness is a case of politicians rising above principle for the sake of politics," Parker said, then watched as his measure failed 23-8.

The Senate approved the proposal to repeal the tax, 30-1, with Peyton McKnight, a lameduck Tyler Democrat, casting the lone House members had adopted the measure, 132-14, on Tuesday, and it now goes on the November ballot. The, state property tax has not been amendment, which requires a statewide vote. Senators also voted Thursday to raise the legal limit on interest rates for certain government bonds, to allow the state to take over sole funding of some welfare programs if federal funds are withdrawn and to exempt farm tools from property taxes.

could only be repealed by a constitutional

The bond proposal would raise the maximum interest rate from 6 percent to 12 percent, or even higher by a vote of the egislature. A Senate committee Reard testimony Wednesday that nearly $219 million in water improvement bonds are going to waste because 6 percent is too low to attract

Also authorized but unissued because of the 6 percent limitation are $57.3 million in park development bonds and $36.2 million in college student loan bonds.

Sen. Ray Farabee's proposal would apply to them, but he said it would not affect $324 million in veterans' land bonds, which have a legal limit of 10 percent. The measure was sent to the House on a 30-0 vote.

The welfare proposal by Sen. Chet Brooks corrects a technical error in a measure adopted by the 1981 Legislature for the November ballot, as well as inserting language that Brooks said would enable the state to respond if the Reagan administration cuts out federal funds for some welfare Brooks, D-Pasadena, said his amendment does not change the 1981 proposal that would remove the $80 million a year limit on Aid to Families with Dependent Children and would substitute a ceiling equal to 1 percent of the annual state budget.

The Legislature still would appropriate AFDC money under that ceiling. "It would be a very modest change," Brooks said. The technical correction, he said, makes sure that the amendment could not be interpreted to set a welfare ceiling of $80 million per person. Senators sent the measure to the House on a 28-2 vote.

By 29-1 they approved Sen. John Wilson's proposal to exempt farm equipment such as tractors and irrigation equipment from property taxes.

Wilson, D-La Grange, said a state tax expert had testified the cost of collecting the tax is greater than the less than $2 million in statewide revenue it generates.

Thunderstorms pound Texas

By The Associated Press Severe thunderstorms accompanied by heavy rain, hail and some tornadoes roared across southwestern, central and north central sections of Texas early today.

Authorities said a tornado was believed to have touched down at Whitesboro, about 12 miles west of Sherman in North Texas. Some damage was reported, but there were no injuries, police said.

A possible tornado tore the roof from a home at Loraine in Taylor County, firemen said. Golf ball size hail was reported at the same time, officials Possible tornadoes were reported about eight miles northeast of Ranger in Eastland County, east of Leatherford, near Gorman in Eastland County, near Shep in Taylor County, in Stephens County and in Callahan County.

Golf ball size hail fell at Lake Worth as heavy thunderstorms passed across northern sections of Tarrant County and across Denton County early today

Winds gusted to 75 mph at a state park near Buffalo Gap in Callahan County:

A tornado watch covered 57 counties in North Central Texas, Northeast Texas and South Central Texas during the night. The area included in the watch was along and 80 miles on either side of a line from 75 miles south southeast of Brownwood to 70 miles north northeast of Dallas.

Cargo carrier wins big in Braniff lottery

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tiny Miami-based cargo carrier collected the biggest bonanza in a lottery conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration for allocating the rights to 276 daily landings held by Braniff

Of the series of 37 random drawings Thursday for slots at airports in 19 states and the District of Columbia, Fleming International Airways won first place seven times and a total of 12 in the top four.

'Fleming is a cargo carrier. But there isn't any restriction. They can fly cargo if they wish," said Dick Stafford, an FAA public affairs spokesman.

Continental Airlines, Delta Airlines, New York Air Northwest Orient Airlines and Frontier Airlines fared best among carriers who plan to offer passenger service in time slots formerly held by Braniff.

In 37 separate drawings that lasted 21/2 hours, Continental was the first selected in the draw at three airports, second at one, third at four and fourth at six airports. That gave the line a total of 14 finishes in the top

Delta, New York Air and Northwest Orient won top-four selection rights at nine airports each, while Frontier was in the top four at eight airports

Pan American World Airways and U.S. Air were topfour picks in the lotteries of seven airports apiece, while United Airlines finished in the top four at six airports. The number of landing "slots" up for grabs varied from one at some airports to as many as 57 at Dallas-Fort Worth, where Braniff has its headquarters Braniff had an allocation of more than 400 arrival slots when it suspended its operations May 12 and filed for court protection from creditors under the bankruptcy laws. Many at the FAA auditorium for the lottery had never heard of Fleming and had not expected a cargo carrier to compete for the landing rights. Whispers of "Who's Fleming?" spread across the room after the carrier was picked first twice in a row early in Fleming's success began on the fourth lottery of the

Rev. Moon says he met Je sus has

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, leader of the Unification Church, testified in federal court that he had met Moses and Buddha and that Jesus Christ had asked him to help save the universe.

Testifying under oath about his religious beliefs for the first time, the Korean evangelist said Thursday that although he doesn't call himself the Messiah, his followers "believe" in

"I have the possibility of becoming the real Messiah," he said.

He was compelled to testify in a case involving a $9 million lawsuit filed by Anthony Colombrito, a Moon follower. He claims he was abducted in 1979 by Galen Kelly, a "deprogrammer" from Kingston, N.Y., in an effort to wrest him from the church. Colombrito claims his civil rights were violated.

The 62-year-old church leader and businessman had fought a subpoena to testify, but U.S. District Judge Richard Owen ordered him to Moon's testimony was halted midstream Thursday when the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals intervened and scheduled a hearing for today to decide if the trial should continue. Moon contends he is being subjected to a "Federal judicial inquisition.'

Moon appeared Thursday, his second day on the stand, as a reluctant witness for the defense, which is trying to show that Moon's church is a "sham" operated to enrich him and

Before the appeals court intervened, Kelly's lawyer, John DeGraff, asked Moon about what the church leader said was his first conversation with Jesus on Easter in 1936 when he was 16 years old. Moon's lawyer, Charles Stillman, leaped to his feet, protesting the line of questioning, but Moon said through an interpreter "I am willing to answer that question. I met Jesus Christ.''

Under further questioning by Degraff, Moon acknowledged meeting and communicating on numerous occasions with Moses and Buddha. "You not only talked to him? You saw him?" asked DeGraff. "And what did Jesus Christ say to you?

When Grover Cleveland completed his last term as President of the United States he took with him a check he never cashed. At that time the saiary was $50,000 a year. He was paid $4,166.67 two months in each quarter, and the third month he received $4,166.66. At the end of his last term it was found that one cent was still due him, and a check for that amount was drawn in his favor. He so treasured it as a souvenir that he never permitted it to pass from his possession.

Drive safely this weekend

The Memorial Day weekend traditionally kicks off the peak driving season. Thousands of Texas motorists will be taking to the highways, spurred by ample gasoline supplies and prices substantially lower than last year.

Last year, a total of 36 people were killed in traffic accidents in Texas over the Memorial Day weekend.

Thousands of lives could be saved annually if all drivers and their passengers used safety belts at all times. Safety belts can prevent ejection from a vehicle and reduce contact with the interior of the vehicle in the event of a collision.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS over the Memorial Day weekend last year took 420 lives across the country and another 20,000 people suffered disabling injuries, according to the National Safety Council. This year, the Safety Council predicts that from 400 to 500 people will lose their lives over the Memorial Day weekend and from 18,000 to 23,000 people will suffer disabling injuries.

Here are some tips to avoid becoming an accident statistic:

• Observe the speed limit.

- •Yield the right of way even if the other driver is wrong.
- Keep a safe distance from the car ahead of you. • Drive during daylight hours whenever possible.
- · Don't drink and drive.

THE 55 MILE-PER-HOUR national speed limit has saved lives and reduced gasoline consumption. But driving for hours on an interstate highway with no traffic lights can produce conditions where even a rested driver can fall asleep. A driver also could become less alert, increasing the danger of being involved in an accident.

Regular stops to get out and stretch, avoiding heavy meals while driving, keeping a car well ventilated, constantly checking mirrors and chewing gum are good ways to stay alert. It's also best to stop for the night when fatigued, rather than risk falling asleep at the wheel.

Motorists often can avoid mechanical breakdowns by having their cars serviced and checked before leaving on a trip.

Sad but true

Confession time I am (horrors) a member of that strange variety of humanity viewed with disdain by the gentler sex, with curiosity by my comrades and with apprehension by certain creatures which I dislike.

I am (gasp) a snuff-dipper. I feel naked without the tell-tale circular tin in my hip or breast pocket, and undernourished without that little pinch between cheek and

I suppose I came by the habit honestly, beginning in my adolesence with a pouch of Beechnut chewing tobacco to lessen the boredom while herding an open John Deere tractor down seemingly-endless rows of Central Texas peanuts.

At two or three miles per hour for a 12-14-hour day, you can't cover much ground to see new territory. After endless hours of mindless chatter and repetitious songs of the only two radio stations the tractor radio will pull in. you hunt new things to ease the Killing flies with a hammer had lost its appeal as a boredom-reliever, and I was long since tired of screeching out every song on the radio at the top of my lungs to an unreceptive audience of young peanuts.

With adolescence providing the spur - you somehow looked tough in those days if you had the red and whitepouch peeking out of your hip pocket - I took to the habit.

AT FIRST, the open-cabbed tractor was the only place I would practice my new avocation. Aiming a squirt of dark brown juice from pursed lips to the ground with no embarrassing stops in between takes practice, and my fragile ego wasn't ready for the disastrous results should a mishap occur in public.

Later, in high school, I graduated to the round tin of Copenhagen. That round can was easier to hide from schoolteachers and parents, and the moist grounds of snuff made it easier to surreptitiously enjoy the habit than the malformed cheek resulting from a chaw of tobacco.

Also, with practice resulting from ill-timed dips taken before a class, it was possible — though not always desirable - to circumvent the necessity of spitting.

MOVING INTO college (Tarleton State University, probably the dipand-spit capital of the world), I met up with some colorful lower lipstuffers.

Old Ben, a gateman at a cattle auction where a roommate and I worked one summer, was never without a mouthful of snuff. Literally a mouthful - he had no bottom front teeth, and he never could gain full control of his dip, making it prudent to stand a few feet from him while he velled at you.

The roommate was a special case. He was never without a dip, reaching for the can before he got out of bed in the mornings and often forgetting to take the last one out at night. In addition, he never felt compelled to spit, something most must do the first few minutes of a fresh load.

Another friend made it a habit, when out on the town, to deposit his leavings in any fresh emptied beverage can available. He quickly curtailed the habit when he picked a half-emptied can by mistake and the owner took exception.

ONE CAN'T defend the habit, even if it is a good defense against cockroaches, ants, boredom and a certain cat I couldn't stand (after a few well-aimed squirts, she gave me a wide berth). It's messy, sometimes disgusting, and more than a few people can't stand it if they know you put "that stuff" into your mouth.

However, it's a habit I have had for a long time — long before the movie "Urban Cowboy" made it fashionable for the Rexall cowboys to have the worn circle in the hip pocket of their designer jeans - and one I'll probably have for a while. No excuses, just pass the spittoon.

Salvador collision course

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador -Rising optimism that El Salvador will not be the next communist domino in Central America is clouded by the prospect that Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson is on a collision course with the U.S. Embassy and the Salvadoran army

D'Abuisson, the 38-year-old former internal security officer who has been excoriated worldwide as an ultraright extremist, now leads the crusade for democratic capitalism here as president of the National Assembly. That puts him close to violation of Washington's edict, which the local generals are happy to enforce, against undoing left-wing reforms of the past two years partly responsible for current economic

The irony is not only that Ronald Reagan's representatives here defend confiscation or collectivization of private property against exponents of free market economy. Beyond that the U.S. after a generation of preaching democracy free of military intervention to Latin America is on the brink of alliance with the army in Salvador, as elsewhere in the hemisphere, a notoriously antidemocratic institution.

The problem is U.S. insistence on its old tactic of trying to outflank communists by adopting their techniques. Headlong nationalization of banking, foreign trade and agriculture, combined with war and low coffee and sugar prices, produced economic calamity. Yet, the U.S. Congress has predicated desperately-needed aid on maintaining those dubious reforms D'Aubuisson still packs an automatic pistol in his belt. But he has become enough of a politician to pledge allegiance to reforms he despises. Will the expropriated owners ever get their land back? "Absolutely no," D'Aubuisson told us, promising "no return to" the past.

BUT MEMBERS of D'Aubuisson's

National Republican Alliance (ARENA) hold key economic posts in the new coalition government and are determined to revive private enterprise. As a modest first step, D'Aubuisson was in the forefront last week when the Assembly removed a prohibition against leasing small plots

The U.S. Embassy was dismayed by the way this small change was interpreted. Jose Napoleon Duarte, who pressed the reforms as president of the junta, told us the move was part of a scheme by D'Aubuisson's forces "to destroy the land reform." Such rhetoric will not make it easier for President Reagan to certify that El Salvador is pursuing "reforms," a certification necessary for aid to continue.

The certification process was described to us as "demeaning" by se now — a moderate who will restore D'Aubuisson and "stupid" by Dean Hinton, the outspoken U.S. ambassador. Hinton agrees with the conservatives that nationalized coffee exports ought to be changed but probably cannot because of the congressional mandate. Nevertheless, the thrust of the reforms expropriating private property is endorsed by Hinton as the approved State Department method of fighting communism.

On the morning after the Assembly action on land reform, leaders of campesino (peasant) organizations met with Hinton to protest the changes. That fanned his fears that the new government would push campesinos into the hands of the guerrillas. But could it be that the campesinos themselves voted for Roberto D'Aubuisson March 28 not only out of desire for security but because they were not enamoured of the collective farm program?

SUCH DEBATES do not interest Gen. Jose Garcia, minister of defense, who is rivaled only by Ambassador Hinton as the most powerful figure in the country. He told us the Assembly's politicians, obviously meaning D'Aubuisson, were like "children playing with a new toy" and warned they better not touch the reforms. No reformer, Garcia wants an uninterrupted flow of U.S. weapons. The Salvadoran army thus stands as a guarantor of U.S. policy, no matter what elected representatives want.

A U.S. government-Salvadoran military power play was perceived here when three weeks after the March 28 election Gen. Vernon Walters, State Department trouble shooter, arrived to complain to the army about the deadlock in electing a president. Perhaps unwittingly, that triggered the army's forcible installation of Dr. Alvaro Magana as president. Magana, a distinguished central banker, seems what is needed business confidence without frightening Washington.

But Magana is admittedly transitional. D'Aubuisson and the young enterpreneurs and professionals who lead ARENA want much more. Despite his bloodthirsty reputation, D'Aubuisson sounds more like Ronald Reagan, whom he "greatly admires," than a Latin American caudillo as he talks about free-market economics. To the discomfiture of the army high command, he is in contact with junior officers and rejects the military's traditional political supremacy ("those who direct the process of democratization are the politicians, not the army"). Hinton, a subtle diplomat, is fascinated by D'Aubuisson but is alarmed by his ideas. D'Aubuisson seems genuinely fond of Hinton but warns he will fail unless State Department policy changes. It is a collision course, all the more tragic in that Reagan's policy finds itself aligned with collectivists and the military against those who want capitalist democracy for this unhappy

Billy Graham

God knows what's best

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have developed a physical problem which keeps me from doing all the things I really want to do. Do you think if I pray enough God will heal me of this problem? — H.P.

DEAR H.P.: No one can say in advance how God will choose to answer our prayers. The one thing we can say, however, is that God knows what is best for us, and if we are truly trusting him and seeking his will in our prayers, he will answer in the way he knows is best for his purposes. The Bible tells us, "This is the assurance we have in approaching God: that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us" (I John 5:14).

I want to ask you one very important question: Do you really want God's will in your life? Or are you hoping that somehow God will do only what you want him to do? There is a world of difference between these two ways of looking at things. In other words, nowhere in the Bible do we find God promising us that he will heal us just so we will be free to do the things we selfishly want to do. On the other hand, God has promised us that he will give us all the strength and power we need to do the things he wants us to do as his servants.

I urge you therefore to commit your life to Jesus Christ without reserve not so you may be healed (for that may or may not happen), but that you may become a child of God. When you are a child of God, you know that your life is in God's hands, no matter what may happen. The Bible tells us, "And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him, who have been called according to his purpose" (Romans 8:28)

Shifting balances

WASHINGTON - Through the fog of war around the Falklands there emrges glaring evidence as to the ramshackle structure of world politics. Crucial American connections with Britain, Western Europe, the Middle East, Latin America and China seem suddenly to come up for grabs all at once. In this hour of shifting balances, the first requirement is to reassert basic ties. Fortunately, the President's trip to Europe next month offers an occasion for bringing together anew this country, Japan and the Atlantic allies. The Latin American standing of the U.S. has already been damaged by the fight over the Falklands. In the crunch, the U.S. sided with Britain against Argentina. While most Latin American countries dislike the Argentines, they are also quick to resent slights from the U.S. Washington's tilt away from hemispheric solidarity, and toward an old imperial power, thus adds a new insult to an old injury.

NO PAYOFF in improved ties with Britain follows. On the contrary, the impartial stance taken by the U.S. when this country tried to mediate the conflict was seen as a violation of the 'special relationship' that London likes to claim with Washington. If the British emerge from the Falklands any less than triumphant, they will feel, not for the first time, that they were let down by the Yanks.

An absence of strong support has already poisoned British relations with the Continent. At the outset of the Falklands crisis, Britain's partners in the European Economic Community unanimously voted sanctions against Argentina. When fighting ensued, the Europeans began having second thoughts. A renewal of the sanctions was voted last Monday — but only for a week. Harsh words about the Europeans have been spoken by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, and President Francois Mitterrand and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt have had some nasty things to say about Britain. The U.S., once again, is caught in the cross fire.

Local conflicts of a deeper kind have similarly bedeviled the American position in the Middle East. Staying friendly with both Israel and the Arab world is tough enough. In addition there is the war between Iran and Iraq. A big win for Iran would put the Islamic revolutionaries under the Ayatollah Khomeini in position to threaten the conservative monarchical regimes of the oil-rich Persian Gulf. But if the Iranians are stopped, the revolution loses its dynamic, and opportunities open for the big bear to

The Russians, of course, have already done their bit to intensify all these strains. In addition, they have used President Reagan's emphasis on ties with Taiwan to try to disrupt the American connection with China that was established by President Nixon and continued by President Carter.

LEONID BREZHNEV extended the olive branch by declaring during a speech in Tashkent on March 23 that Moscow considered China to be a "socialist state." Last Tuesday, in a speech on arms control, Brezhnev indicated a willingness to negotiate an accord on nuclear weapons with Peking. A major article in Pravda two days later gilded the olive branch. "Deeds not words" has been the Chinese response. Still, Peking has edged away from the U.S. on issues dealing with the third World countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America. Peking gave a warm reception last week to Russia's chief Far Eastern diplomat, Mikhail Kapitsa. While a Sino-Soviet reconciliation still seems distant, a State Department official pointed out last week that "normalization between China and the U.S. began with a ping-pong game.'

Behind all these events are trends set in motion years ago. Reversing the trends will require careful and patient effort over a long time. But provided the Falkland crisis does not shatter everything, a beginning can be made next month when President Reagan meets with heads' of government at the economic summit in Versailles and the NATO summit in Bonn.

The U.S. can accommodate European economic worries by establishing an international committee that would consider joint intervention in currency markets to keep interest rates from wild fluctuation. The NATO nations can accommodate American security concerns by agreeing to consider new rules for trade and credit with the Soviet Union and the Communist bloc countries. Japan can ease protectionist pressure in this country and Europe by a supplementary budget that raises the value of the yen, and thus works to cut exports.

Miracles will not be accomplished by any of these actions. But in a time of confusion, it is important to set currents moving in the right direction.

Thoughts

Moderation is the only virtue. The other so-called virtues are virtuous only in so far as they are joined with moderation. To be overcourageous is to be foolhardy. To be overthrifty is to be parsimonious. To be overloving is to be doting. To be too unselfish is to weary the world with the spectacle of your martyrdom. Moderation is what counts.

Compromise suggests Texas manage the land?

By PHILLIP SWANN

States News Service WASHINGTON - The Interior Department on Wednesday backed off from its pledge to transfer federally owned portions of Matagorda Island to the state of Texas.

The department however proposed that Texas manage the lands, the home of several endangered species including the whooping crane while keeping the area under the ownership - and final control - of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The compromise announced at a congressional hearing was agreed to this month by Texas Gov. William Clements and Assistant Interior

Assistant Secretar Ray Arnett. Details of the agreement still have to be worked out before the state can begin managing the land. Arnett told the House Fisheries and Wildlife Subcommittee. Interior will also have to complete an environmental impact statement on the proposal a process that could take a number of months.

'This alternative would guarantee that the important state wetlands on Hatagorda which are the critical habitat for several endnagered species would be protected" Arnett stalled efforts to make needed im-

UNDER THE plan, the 19,000 acres of federal property (roughly two-fifths of the island) would remain under the jurisdiction of the Fish and Wildlife Service. The state of Texas would be given a lease to conduct conservation and limited recreational activities and would withdraw its application for the 19,000 acres.

Matagorda Island, which is about 15 miles northeast of Corpus Christ was once used as an Air Force bombing range. The federal government turned over the land to the Fish and Wildlife Service in 1971 when environmentalists complained that the bombing upset the cranes.

Five years later the Air Force said it no longer needed the land and since then Texas has attempted to gain control.

Interior Secretary James Watt proposed last year the lands be transferred to the state of Texas. proposal saying the state would try to develop the island as a beach and for other recreational purposes. Clements said the controversy has provements on the lands and urgeld the state would protect the island's endangered species. "Its endangered species must be protected, preserved, nurtured and, to the extent possible expanded," Clements said in a statement to the subcommittee.

The compromise comes after a report this month from the U.S. General Accounting Office that the transfer in the G10's opinion, could not take place unless the department ruled the land is no longer needed to protect the whooping crane

Environmentalists at Wednesday's hearing maintained that Texas would, not protect the island's endangered species. The Interior proposal is "at the expense of the public interest and at great potential cost to wildlife values." said Rumcer Pingree a. spokesman for the Wilderness

That was relatively tame. The day before, Reagan had accused O'Neill of "sheer political demagoguery" for criticizing proposed cuts in the Medicare budget.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Although he's unemployed, Tim Orbison still tries to look on the bright side of things. "My income last month was zero," he said recently, "so I figure there's no way to go but up.

Orbison, 24, is one of the thousands of people who came to Oklahoma to take advantage of the state's energy boom. And now, with a slowdown in the state's petroleum industry, he's one of those left unemployed. after being graduated from Freed Hardeman College in Henderson, Tenn., Orbison came to this state and landed a job as a landman, or oil and gas lease broker. sometimes called a leasehound or leaser It was pretty fascinating work for a young person, involving the search of property records to find owners of mineral rights so that arrangements could be made for oil companies to lease or option them. But lots of landmen now find themselves out of jobs, and records show that many previously purchased leases still haven't been worked. Oil prices have dropped, and drilling isn't as profitable as it was. Since December, industry figures show, the number of rotary rigs that are drilling in the United States has fallen by more than 1,000

Orbison said that of seven employees in the firm where he worked, only two are still employed. But at the height of the boom, he said, "none of us were getting less than

GROUNDED - Northwest Airlines jets stand idle on the tarmac outside hangers at a Minneapolis, Minn. airport as a strike by 3,600 mechanics and bag-

Airlines face tough labor negotiations

CHRISTOPHER LINDSAY AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The mechanics' strike against Northwest Airlines indicates that the airline industry, however troubled, is not immune from tough negotiations, analysts and airline executives

Most airlines have won contract concessions, including pay cuts, from many of their employees in the last six months as the carriers reel from losses attributed to the recession, the air controllers strike and repeated fare wars.

Labor costs are seen continuing downward as the industry tries to stay alive despite the stagggering losses and the bankruptcy of one carrier. It will not be smooth sailing, analysts said Tuesday. American Airlines is a case in point, said Eliot

Fried Jr., who follows airlines for Shearson-American Express. The collapse of Braniff International, a major competitor of American's in the Southwest, will not go unnoticed by its unions.

"American is coming out of this Braniff thing very well," said Fried, but he said the loss of the competitor will make American's labor negotiations that much more difficult.

The payroll of U.S. airlines has declined to under 300,000 from a peak of 340,000 in 1979, when the airlines began cutting controllable costs in the face of rising fuel prices, said William Jackman, spokesman for the Air Transport Association. Labor costs as a percentage of airline expenses have fallen from 42 percent in 1978 to 36 percent in 1980 and for most of 1981 for which figures are available, he said.

Airline executives, many of whom have secured contract concessions from their employees, are reluctant to talk openly, for fear of jeopardizing upcoming negotiations. However, a spokesman for one of the major airlines, one of three or four that has been singled out by analysts as particularly endangered, says the unions will probably be reasonable with marginal carriers "and not beat them up with outrageous wage demands. The Air Line Pilots Association, 5,500 of whose 33,000 members are collecting unemployment, negotiates separately with each airline. Its bargainers "look at the situation" and if management can demonstrate it needs help, the union will do its best to accommodate, union spokesman John Mazor said.

The pilots union has given concessions to many airlines, primarily agreeing to allow its members to fly more hours per month and operate certain aircraft with two rather than three pilots.

Flight attendants, many of whom are single, have also accepted management suggestions for concessions, such as taking unpaid leave, Jackman said. However, a mechanic on the ground "with a family to feed" is less likely to accept an unpaid vacation, he said.

And a spokesman for the Machinists Union pointed out that a contract it just negotiated with United Airlines is "notably concession-free."

The Machinists struck Northwest, which has a history of labor turbulence and tough bargaining, last Friday. The airline, the nation's seventh largest, has substantially cut back service. In the 1970s, union pilots struck Northwest three times, once, in 1978, shutting it down for three months. Northwest took out full-page newspaper ads to seek public support, listing how much the airline pilots were paid before they struck. In the latest dispute, the Machinists rejected a contract that would have raised the annual pay of top-scale mechanics to $35,569 by Nov. 1, 1983. Flight attendants and pilots are crossing the union's picket lines, and several incidents of rock-throwing and harassment were reported in Minneapolis on Monday. Northwest is in the "strongest, most flexible financial position of all" the airlines because it owns its own fleet and has virtually no outstanding debt, said Charles H. Hanneman, an analyst with Thomson McKinnon Securities Inc.

Northwest had a profit of $10.5 million in 1981. when many airlines were losing money.

Braniff charges leave American Airlines bloody

By LAURA RICHARDSON Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - It was a charge of industrial sabotage with a flashy modern touch: bankrupt Braniff International claimed American Airlines had used its SABRE to cut Braniff out of the market.

The accusations made by Braniff Vice President Sam Coats three days after the airline went bankrupt May 13 focused attention on SABRE, the largest computer reservation in the country and — to many people — a mysterious and powerful weapon in the airline wars.

The story made headlines across the country. Suddenly American, which at first deemed the charges "unworthy of comment," found itself with a serious public relations problem.

"I think the real 'dirty trick' was the smear campaign that Braniff conducted against us," American spokesman Paul Haney said Wednesday.

Braniff's charges heightened interest in two separate federal investigations of competitive practices in the airline industry.

Coats, refusing to substantiate his original charges, told reporters he was turning his evidence over to the grand jury meeting in Fort Worth to look into possible criminal violations of antitrust laws.

In Washington, Justice Department lawyers confirmed that they had started a preliminary civil investigation of the possibilty that the sophisticated multimillion dollar reservation systems were being used to quash competition.

While denying the Braniff charges triggered the inquiry, Justice Department officials said they would be looking at SABRE.

American was on the defensive. The company counterattacked with suggestions Braniff had caused whatever problems it had with the SABRE computer and that American was the victim of unfair reporting. SABRE is not the only computerized reservation system leased to other airlines or to travel agents. United Airlines has APOLLO, Trans World Airways has PARS.

Braniff used to have a system called Cowboy. Federal bankruptcy Judge John Flowers approved Electronic Data Systems' takeover of the system Monday. EDS was to pay Braniff $577,864 for the equipment that serves 25 airlines of which Hawaiian is the

But SABRE, developed in 1962 at a cost of $135 million, is the marvel of the industry.

About 6,000 travel agents subscribe. More than 200 airlines are plugged in. The huge SABRE network, with its 20,000 terminals and 10,000 printers, handles 600 messages per second, processes three million flight openings and closings a month.

Coats claimed the system was rigged. He said it consistently showed Braniff flights were full when seats were still available, and that the machine always listed American flights first. He said American reservation agents used the system to raid Braniff by changing passengers' reservations.

American denied everything. Company spokesmen explained SABRE's preferential listing system as a legitimate effort to get some return on the money spent to develop the system. They said all airlines' flights are automatically closed before they are completely filled to avoid overbooking.

American also seemed to keep in touch with its supporters outside the company, urging them to cooperate with reporters interested in American's side of the story

On Tuesday, Haney told a reporter to talk to Robert Eckert, a Dallas travel agent who reportedly said SABRE was "on the up and up.

DeBakey: Private funds needed for medical research

> By JACK A. SEAMONDS Associated Press Writer

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) - Physicians share in the responsibility for keeping medical costs at levels that the public can afford, says Houston heart specialist Dr. Michael DeBakey.

DeBakey, who has counted among his patients a Duke of Windsor, the deposed Shah of Iran and a Guatemalan orphan girl, said the greater problem is making good health care available to people in all economic classes and in all areas of the country.

"In a sense, this is a problem of society in general," said DeBakey, 73, chancellor of the Baylor University College of Medicine. He gained world attention in April 1966 when he implanted a partial artificial heart into a patient during a six-hour operation.

"Doctors do have a responsibility to keep costs down, and I think doctors do this," DeBakey said at a news conference Wednesday at the University of Toledo. 'Preventative health care really isn't costly, and in large part it is an individual responsibility, such as avoiding overeating and finding out if your blood pressure is high." DeBakey, who works 18- to 20-hour days, said stress can be a motivation rather than a problem if it isn't overdone.

"In some cases, it can make people do better," DeBakey said. "It's difficult to generalize. For me, it's enjoyable. I think it's sometimes used as a crutch to lean on. Often you can turn a stressful situation into a challenge, particularly if you enjoy your work.' Of the quality of medical care in the United States,

DeBakey rated it "on the whole, excellent." 'Compared to other countries, it would rank very, very high," DeBakey said. "But it means something for the majority of people to have access to good medical care, even those who are economically disadvantaged." He said people who have jobs that involve little or no physical activity but leap into four or five sets of tennis on weekends are missing the point of exercising. "I exercise all the time in my work. I'm up and down steps all day long, on my feet. Exercise is good for you, but you should make it part of your daily life. You can often walk to work or avoid using the elevator unless you're in a 50-story building." Despite federal cutbacks on medical research funds, DeBakey said the important work is still being done. "In spite of that, we still have a very healthy research activity, but we could do better with more research funds," DeBakey said.

Toby has to find interpreter who can give lively "signed" accounts of not always lively materials to keep her awake.

Ms. Silver was among the students receiving master's degrees from UT recently, which is not so unusual, but her field of study - radiotelevision-film — does make her stand out.

What's a deaf person doing in radio-televisionfilm? That's a question she has been asked since the days of high school, when she decided that was the field for her.

"My high school always kept up with the latest in technology for the deaf," she explains through Mark Seeger, an interpreter. "I saw the great potential in video for the deaf. It just seemed natural because sign language is a visual language. You have to see it. Video can bring our culture to the screen, she thought while a high school student. But while she was thinking that, others "thought I was absurd.

"I just like to take a lot of risks and show a lot of guts," Toby says, her dark eyes afire and her hands flying. "I guess I'm grateful," she says, "since all my life no one has said 'you can't because you're deaf.

She credits her hearing family with encouraging her determined spirit, which led her into ballet, sewing and roller skating.

"I even had my own bar mitzvah just like everyone else in my family," she says. "I can't see any limits.'

A bundle of confined energy, Toby is anxiously by watching her work, deal with actors, agents, awaiting a job.

"I can't wait to know what I'll be doing," she says, echoing the concern of hundreds of other 1982 graduates. "It would be nice to be in the metro Washington D.C, area," where she grew up and attended Gallaudet College, she adds. In 1978, she received Gallaudet's Alice M.

Teegarden Special Award in recognition of pioneer television accomplishments for the deaf, and she also was given two media awards by the District of Columbia Chapter of American Women in Radio and Television.

A graduate of the University of Maryland with a B.A. degree in radio-television-film, she came to UT Austin's garduate program on a fellowship.

What kind of television show can a deaf person produce?

A very good one, called "Bobbie," for which Toby served as producer, director and editor. The doecumentary was her work in lieu of a thesis and follows the development of a young deaf woman who was a government employee with no significant theatrical background, who was selected to play the leading role in the Dallas Theater Center production of "Children of a Lesser God."

Toby stumbled upon the project idea when she met the play's author, Mark Medoff, in Big Spring. Medoff was at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in search of talented deaf actors and actresses to be in the play. They hashed over the idea for hours, Toby recalls, and that led to the documentary.

"My feelings about her were further enhanced producers and the general public," Medoff says. 'The documentary ... turned out very well indeed. I'm hopeful that the documentary will find an audience on television; I believe it's of a quality that deserves to be seen, and indicative of the kind of work Toby will continue to do deeply felt, human and honest," Medoff con-

In the true, demanding spirit of the artist, Toby says the 30-minute program needs a little more work here and there. One area she isn't satisfied with is the sound, but she plans to work through the flaws only a keen observer would notice, and have the program ready for telecast at some time in the future.

What steps are necessary to bring it to the public? She isn't sure, but she is finding out.

Handling so many areas of the production was a special opportunity. Toby says, since such a project may be the "prime time that I can demonstrate my talents and expertise." It provides a chance to "see where my own strengths and weaknesses are," she adds.

The work has paid an additional bonus. When Bobbie and Toby got together for their first meeting, they realized that they had known each other at some time in the past. That time turned out to be camp together, 10 or so years earlier, in Minnesota. Toby didn't recall Bobbie by name, because she had since married.

'You have to sweat and work hard," says Bobbie. She also says, and you can't help but think of Toby in the lines: "I should at least take a chance and try.'

Close friends are strangers

In Northern Ireland, ordinary workers get trapped

By CHARLES J. HANLEY Associated Press Writer

BELFAST; Northern Ireland (AP) — Sean and Sam are "the best of mates.

For two years they have worked together on the factory floor, two ordinary men who joke over yesterday's problems, worry about tomorrow's and try to make a decent living for

But Sean O'Neill, a Roman Catholic, and Sam Ledlie, a Protestant, do not truly know each other. Over Northern Ireland's sectarian divide, they cannot.

At the end of the day, each heads home to his own ghetto, into his own community's prejudices and fears. Sam can only guess about Sean's youthful "involvement" in the anti-British movement here. Sean can only surmise what apprehensions lie at the back of his Protestant friend's mind

They both yearn for peace in their troubled land, but with little hope.

"It's the flag wavers that've got us," says

'Politicians on both sides have a lot to answer

The everyday story of this fragile friendship helps illustrate the sad story of Northern Ireland, torn by an underground war involving the Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army, the British army and Protestant paramilitary groups. The IRA wants to unite Northern Ireland with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic, but the Protestants are determined to keep it British.

The roots of conflict run deeper — in centuries of enmity between the dominant Protestant majority and Catholic minority here.

The violence has left thousands dead or injured. But there are lesser casualties as well lives altered, an economy shattered, friendships

The O'Neill-Ledlie friendship may be next. Their factory, the financially troubled De Lorean automaking firm, is shutting down next week, and the two workers will head home for good. Sean O'Neill, 30, is a maintenance worker at De Lorean, in the rolling green hills of suburban Dunmurry. Dark-eyed, mustached and selfassured, he lives with his wife and three children in a modest home at Twinbrook, an all-Catholic

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC VIEW — Sean O'Neill, a Roman Catholic who is about to lose his job as a manintenance worker at the De Lorean Motor Co. factory in Dunmurry, Northern Ireland, is pictured in front of his home in an all-Catholic housing project with one of his three children, "I worry about the kids more than anything else." says O'Neill, troubled by the thirteen years of sectarian violence in Northern Ireland, and unsure of what the future holds.

housing project splattered with "BRITS OUT"

Sam Ledlie, 52, is an assembly-line repairman, married, with a grown daughter. Bald and ruddy-faced, Ledlie speaks in an earnest, halting voice. He and O'Neill became friends as union representatives at De Lorean.

'We're the best of mates. Like that," Ledlie told a visitor, holding out two fingers pressed

Interviewed in his tidy brick rowhouse, within sight of the De Lorean plant, Ledlie said he has worked with Catholics most of life.

In fact, until 1969, when "the troubles" began, his best friend was a fellow worker from the Catholic slum Falls Road. "I was up to his house every other Friday night. I drank in the Falls Road bars with him," Ledlie recalled with a

"But we lost all contact because of the roubles." Ledlie no longer ventures into

The bloodshed of Belfast has not closely touched his life. But his friend O'Neill, who grew up in Falls Road, knows it well. A cousin was hot dead by Protestant gunmen and a close friend was killed in a bomb explosion, O'Neill said, talking above the barroom din at a Catholic social club near Falls Road.

In their separate interviews both men insisted the bitterness of the streets had not reached the floor at De Lorean, where the work force is evenly divided between Catholics and Protestants, a rarity in Northern Ireland. "But people never come out and tell you everything that's in the back of their minds,' O'Neill said

'What's at the back of all Protestants' minds.' said Ledlie, "is that Catholics want to unite with Ireland, and Protestants think that if we had an all-Ireland we wouldn't have religious freedom that the Church of Rome runs Ireland.

Does Ledlie himself think that? 'Well, yes," he replied. "The priests have a big say.... Religious freedom would be cur-

He acknowledged that bigotry, a deep-seated feeling that the "native" Irish Catholics are inferior, is powerful among Northern Ireland's Protestants, descendents of Scottish and English

"If you heard people talking, the Catholics were bogeymen," Ledlie said.

O'Neill said he encountered anti-Catholic job discrimination in the past and noticed it among some Protestant supervisors at De Lorean. Ledlie said he was unaware of any discrimination at De Lorean.

The Catholic sees other things the Protestant does not, such as the two De Lorean workers who sport the arm tattoo "UVF," for Ulster Volunteer Force, a Protestant extremist group.

Contaminated marijuana traced

BOSTON (AP) — Dirty marijuana can cause bacterial infections, and a contaminated batch of the drug spread food poisoning germs across the country last year, researchers

Doctors found that marijuana laced with the bacteria salmonella caused an outbreak that affected people in at least seven states. Salmonella bacteria is a common cause of intestinal illness, but it is almost always spread by tainted food.

Researchers at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta tracked down the germ-laden pot after several cases of apparent food poisoning were reported in Ohio and Michigan in January 1981

'Working' suit settled PITTSBURGH (AP) -

Two high school students, their parents and a school district have settled out of court a dispute over the book "Working" by author Studs

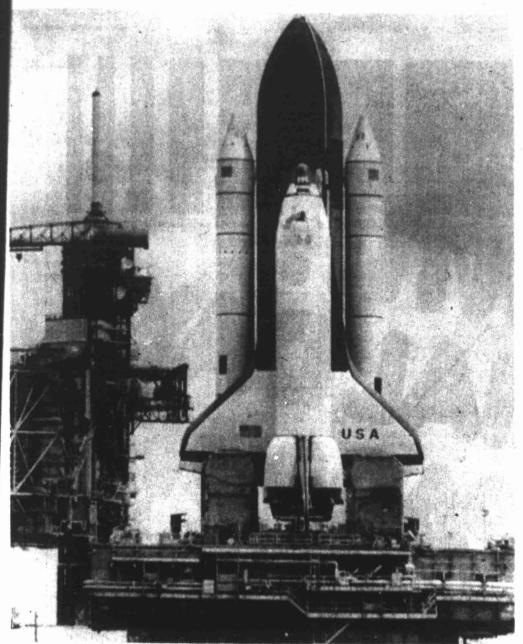

The students, seniors at Girard High School, had refused to read the book because of profanity, and their principal had said they would not graduate unless they did.

All sides, including a federal judge, were withholding comment on terms of the agreement.

"I don't know the details. I don't want to know the details, neither should you,' U.S. District Judge Gerald Weber said Wednesday.

Study says Great Lakes have no water to spare

TORONTO (AP) — Although the Great sumption in 1975 are met. Lakes contain nearly a fifth of the world's fresh water, there isn't a drop to spare for dry regions of the southwestern United States, says an International Joint Commission study. For years, Canadian provinces and states have been urged to sell their water to the U.S. southwest, but the study says there won't be enough water in the lakes to satisfy the demands of the population that will be living around it in 50 years.

The study, presented to the U.S.-based Great Lakes Commission at a meeting set up by Ontario's Ministry of Transportation and Communications on Wednesday, said by the year 2035, the levels of Lake Michigan, Huron and Erie could fall by more than a foot if projections based on water con-

Lower volumes of water mean hydroelectric power stations wouldn't be able to produce as much electricity, massive dredging programs would have to be undertaken to keep shipping channels and harbors open, cottagers around the lakes in the United States around the Great Lakes would find it hard to use their docks and vital wildlife preserves on wetlands would Drops in water levels would also hit power generators and marine navigation.

Frank Kudrna, chairman of the Great Lakes Commission, said "hell no" to proposals to ship Great Lakes water to parcher areas

But John Cousins, chief of Ohio's water division in the state's department of natural resources, said the economically-troubled Great Lakes states would benefit from a water sale.

Man charged in $2 million swindle case

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A man has been indicted on 37 counts alleging that he swindled 25 San Antonio businessmen out of nearly $2 million, claiming to invest their money in bogus construction loans.

The Bexar County grand jury Wednesday returned two indictments against Philip Rivers, 57, of San Antonio, based on an investigation by the special crimes section of the dictrict attorney's office.

Rivers, who allegedly has used at least seven aliases, has been jailed since March 28 in lieu of $25,000 bond. His bond was increased to bond was increased $50,000 by District Judge Roy
Ir. after the indictments were returned.

Special Crimes Chief John Quinlan said Rivers allegedly located wealthy clients through a bogus tax and accounting firm, Rivers Associates, and offered a 15 to 45 percent return on their investments in construction

"We have not been able to come up with the exact figure of money" allegedly swindled, Quinlan said. "He asked businessmen to invest in short-term construction loans and told them the people would pay high interest rates."

A woman who allegedly posed as vice president of Rivers Associates also was indicted on theft charges, but Quinlan did not name her because she had not been arrested.

Plan includes tariff reductions

Japan announces new trade package

By EUGENE MOOSA Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) - Following months of internal debate and growing pressure from unhappy trading partners, Japan Thursday offered an eight-point package of proposals aimed at opening the nation's markets by reducing tariffs and removing or easing some import quotas.

In a rare, official briefing prior to Cabinet approval on Friday, a senior Foreign Ministry official announced details of the trade package. It includes tariff reductions on 119 agricultural and industrial items and tariff cuts for another 96 products.

The announcement was timed to precede the Versailles summit of major industrialized nations on June 4-5, when Japan is sure to face hard questions about its huge trade surpluses with the United States and other Western trading partners

Japan's offer represents its third attempt in recent months to ease the growing trade friction. Last December, it moved up by two years an across-the-board tariff reduction on 1,650 items. In January, it announced other reforms to relax customs inspection and testing procedures on 67 imported products.

While the Japanese called the earlier proposal a serious effort to open markets, the package received only lukewarm response in the United States and Europe, with many officials criticizing it as inadequate.

Some Japanese officials privately expressed concern earlier this week that the lastest package of proposals would not be taken any more seriously

The package focused mainly on easing of restrictions on manufactured goods, with less emphasis on increases in agriculture imports, one of the main controversies between the Inited States and Japan.

By mutual agreement, talks on the issue of orange and beef imports has been postponed until later this year.

The eight items in the package were:

-Tariff reduction on 102 industrial and 17 agricultural products and elimination of tariffs on 96 industrial products.

-Further reform of import testing and customs procedures.

-Lifting import quotas on herring, prepared and preserved pork, molasses and canned pineapples.

 Various measures to improve distribution of imported cigarettes, and to promote privatesector efforts relating to imports of Alaskancrude oil and coal from the western United

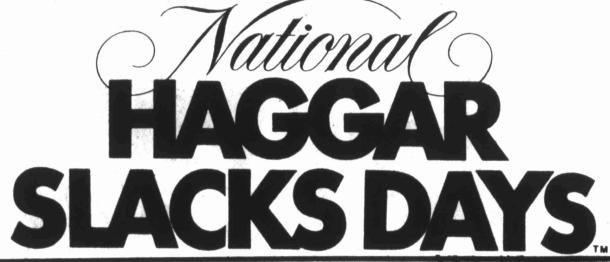

-Streamlining of Japan's complicated market distribution system and related business

Opening up service industries such as banking, insurance and securities to foreign competition. -Promoting free trade in high-technology products.

-Overall measures such as funneling food purchases to lesser developed countries in the form of aid, discouraging concentrated exports in specific fields, and encouraging joint ventures, research and other forms of industrial cooperation in order to revitalize the world

Dear Dr. Donohue: Our daughter, who turned 12 recently, has been plagued with a kidney ailment. It started with a strep throat. Since then she has had several blood tests and also a kidney biopsy. Will you please discuss this? -

I am glad that your daughter now appears to be healthy and normal. That in itself is a very good sign of recovery from her illness, which I assume was what is called poststreptococcal glomerulonephritis. It is a subject about which I have never written.

I know that you are still worried. First of all, strep infections are very unique as infections go, differeng from others because they can cause residual damage. Take, for example, a strep throat. Without penicillin, the throat gets better on its own. With penicillin, the throat gets better a little faster and complications are usually avoided.

However, when a person is infected with strep, the body makes antibodies to fight the infection. In rare cases, this antibody production gets out of hand and causes more trouble than it avoids. The antibodies can actually strike out against healthy tissue, like heart valves. That's rare. In your daughter's case, an even rarer complication occurred — glomerulonephritis. The antibodies attacked her kidneys, causing them to become inflamed.

When kidneys are involved, the urine turns a dark color,

VFW holds annual poppy sale

like Coke, a situation you describe in another part of your letter. That's caused by blood in the urine. The swellings, too, can occur, part of a generalized body swelling.

Such kidney involvement fortunately clears up for most children, and rather promptly. Only in a small number of cases are there lingering kidney problems. It sounds as though your daughter is not in this category.

I am certain your doctors would not take a wait-and-see approach you mentioned if there was serious kidney problems. But I do think you should express your lingering concern about your daughter to your doctors. They may not know about your anxiety, which, as I say, probably is not the least necessary.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it. both mentally and physically, by reading Dr. Donohue's booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." Highway repairs lagging, group says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only 6 percent of all Americans are aware of the federal Highway Trust Fund — which which collected $6.3 billion from them last year for road and bridge projects - according to a recent poll conducted for a highway research group. The Road Information Program (TRIP).

Just 3 percent of the poll's respondents correctly identified the federal gasoline tax rate as 4 cents per gallon and most believed the rate was higher, with responses ranging up to 36 cents per gallon.

'The Highway Trust Fund is virtually the only source of federal road funding. But now we're discovering that Americans have no idea just how much they're paying into the fund, why they're paying, or how the money is being used,' said Donald S. Knight, executive director of TRIP, a nonprofit highway research agency funded by highway-related businesses.

tires, tubes and tread rubber; truck parts; and lubricating oil.

A lack of public understanding, together with lagging motor-fuel sales, is the main reason road programs are suffering repair funding shortfalls, according to Knight.

"In the 1970s we saw dramatic shifts in userfee collections for road upkeep," he said.

"After depending on motorfuel taxes for more than 50 years to pay for roads, we started encouraging people to use as little motor fuel as possible. Today, gasoline consumption is falling at a record pace and repair revenues from gasoline taxes are falling right along.

Following annual increases since 1956, federal motor-fuel tax revenue fell 8.5 percent in 1980.

Less than one-third of the U.S. road network needed repairs in 1970. By 1982, that maintenance backlog had swelled to 53 percent and now more than 1 million miles of broken pavement and 230,000 bridges need repairs, according to TRIP data immediately.

While potholes have been multiplying, Knight points to evidence that Americans are recognizing a need to boost highway repair programs in some areas.

"Repairs to road surfaces, bridges and the Interstate highway system were the top three areas listed by respondents as programs where new road money should be spent," Knight said. "We've seen evidence that driver dismay is reaching state governments. A record 33 states have passed legislation boosting road repair funding in the past 18 months "he added.

'But while those increases will yield another $2.9 billion to the states, federal road aid dropped about $780 million last year. The bottom line for the states isn't getting much better," Knight

Government at all levels spent about $17 billion for road and bridge repairs last year, according to Knight, who says that amount will have to at least double over the next decade to catch up on the current repair backlog.

Lady Steers sign pacts Laker aboutface

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Sports Editor

Elise Wheat and Pam Cawdill, a pair of former student-athletes at Big Spring High School, have signed scholarship agreements to continue their sports careers in Angelo State University signed Wheat to a basketball agreement making the all-district point guard the first BSHS girl's basketball player to gain such an honor. Cawdill continued a Big Spring tradition by signing a scholarship pact with Hardin-Simmons University to play volleyball.

A third standout performer, trackster Carla Jackson, remains undecided to which university she will attend next fall. Tops on a long list, however, is the University of Oklahoma.

Wheat starred in three sports during her four years as a Lady Steer. In addition to her honors in basketball she also was all-district in volleyball and was a regional qualifier in the discus four years.

Her favorite sport is basketball, however, and she will begin her post high school career at ASU. This past season, Wheat averaged 14.5 points, eight rebounds and seven assists a game. "She's capable of playing every postion on the floor," says coach Sandie Brown.

She was second on the team in scoring and rebounding her senior season. She made the District 5-5A honorable mention all-district list twice before advancing to the first "Elise will develop into a starting position," Brown promises. "She is very dedicated and a very hard worker. She doesn't like sitting on the bench and she won't be for long because she is such an all-around athlete. ASU is undergoing several changes in their women's athletic program and the Rambelle basketball squad will be playing under new head coach Mary Hanson. "She's going to do some good things for the program," predicted freshman her coach said. "I liked the campus, surroundings, coach and players," Wheat said of her recruiting trips. As for her goals as a Rambelle, she says, "Right now I think I can contribute my defensive skills. When I learn more on fundamentals, I can contribute more. Right now I don't have the experience necessary.

"It shows that Big Spring has other talents other than in volleyball and track," she said of being the first basketball player to receive a college offer. "Basketball will be a dominant sport pretty soon. There is a lot of talent coming up from the junior highs, juniors and sophomores.

Wheat shared the Wanda Ferguson Award this year with Jackson in addition to other honors.

Cawdill lettered in volleyball three years, working at the set and spiking positions on the court. She guided the Lady Steers to a 19-9 season record and third place finish in District 5-5A this past school year.

She gained honorable mention all-district honors as a junior and was the high point server this past year with 93 percent reported her coach Patti Purser.

'Hardin Simmons was real excited about getting her,' Purser said, "They needed someone with a lot of speed They play the same offense we did and thought that was a

HSU also has a new coach in Kim Vinson, former Cowgirl volleyball standout.

Cawdill was named the team's Outstanding Player in 1981 and the Best Team Player in 1982.

"It's something I've always wanted to do," Cawdill said Thursday. "I was really excited about HSU during my visits. I think I can fit right into the lineup and feel comfortable about being a part of the team.'

Indy revs up for 66th race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After three weeks of frenzied preparation, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 21/2-mile track is silent. The next time the 33 gleaming race cars are wheeled from their Gasoline Alley garages will be on

The next time all of the powerful engines are brought to life, three-abreast in 11 rows along the main straightaway, will be on Sunday at the start of the 66th running of the Indianapolis 500.

Thursday's final practice session for the world's richest automobile race again offered glimpses of the speed that produced the fastest Indy starting lineup in history. Again, front-row teammates Rick Mears and Kevin Cogan were above 200 mph, and car owner Roger Penske pronounced their identical PC-10s as race-ready.

"We got both cars at 202 early in the practice. They were running great, so we took 'em back to the garage. There wasn't anything else we needed to do," said Pen-

Also leading the speed assault at more than 200 mph were teammates Mario Andretti and Gordon Johncock. both former winners who will start from the second row. Cogan, who will start between Mears and four-time winner A.J. Foyt on the front row, had a lap at 202.292.

Two of the 33 starters failed to take advantage of Thursday's practice session.

Rookie Chet Fillip, who has yet to drive his first lap in an Indy-car race, did not practice because of a clutch problem. The only other no-show Thursday was two-year Indy veteran Dennis Firestone, whose race engine was Foyt, who qualified at more than 203 mph for a record 25th Indy start, failed to get his March-Cosworth over 170 mph in a brief appearance on the track.

"It feels bad — I'm just trying to use my left hand as a guide hand. I'm not swinging with it at all. "It's only hitting — swinging the bat — that bothers it," he added. "I can play the field fine

In addition to his sixth homer of the season, Murray clouted two singles and a double, drove in three runs and scored twice in the 6-0 victory. His powerful, one-handed batting backed the five-hit pitching of Sammy Stewart who got his first complete game of the year, his first career victory over Texas and his first career shutout in the majors. "It's beautiful," Oriole Manager Earl Weaver exclaimed of Stewart's performance. "He's see him do it six straight times and if he throws the ball like that, he's got a shot to do it. 'Since it's a shutout I would have to say it's my best game of the season," said Stewart, 5-3, a 27year-old right-hander. He let only two Texas

Weaver agreed. 'I have to say, 'Yeah,'' the manager said. "It's the first shutout of his life. He has looked this good in a four- or five-inning stretch before, but all in all, it was his best game.

Texas starter Frank Tanana, 1-7, was shelled early. In all, Baltimore pounded three Texas pitchers for 14 hits, seven of them for extra bases, including three doubles by Dan Ford.

"Tanana was due a bad outing," said Texas Manager Don Zimmer. "He had four of five good ones before that."

After his two-run homer — scoring Rich Dauer, who had singled - Murray drove in another run with a third-inning single, scoring Ken Singleton, on via a double. The Orioles added two more in the eighth. Ford opened the inning with a double, went to third on John Lowenstein's bloop single to right and scored on a single by Cal Ripken Jr. Lowenstein then scored on a throwing error by second baseman Mike Richardt.

Baltimore closed out the scoring with a run in the ninth on consecutive doubles from Murray and Ford.

Paul Molitor homered on the game's third pitch to put Milwaukee ahead to stay and Cecil Cooper unloaded a two-run blast in the third inning to lead the Brewers over California.

Molitor belted his fifth homer of the season leading off against loser Ken Forsch, 4-4. Cooper's blow, his fourth, gave the Brewers a 4-0 lead and they hung on to cool off the streaking Angels, who had won nine of their last 11 games.

'We've been struggling," said Cooper of the Brewers' .500 record so far. "We know we're a better team than we've shown recently. I'm hopeful tonight will get us going.'

Maltbie on comeback trail

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — First-round Memorial Tournament leader Roger Maltbie knows why his golf game deteriorated after the last of his three PGA Tour victories

'When you're playing poorly, it hurts,' he said after his 4-under-par 68 Thursday. "You know your performance is substandard, but it was not enough to drive me back to the practice tee. I found out the problem wouldn't correct

The fun-loving Maltbie earned a combined $112,000 in the four seasons following 1976, when he won $117,000. He dipped as low as $9,796 three years ago.

Now Maltbie insists he's on the way back.

The facts support him. He won $75,000 a year ago and has $34,000 already in 1982.

Why is Maltbie on a comeback? "She's right there," he answered, pointing to his wife, Donna. They were married in November 1980, shortly before Maltbie began to rediscover his game. There were other reasons, too.

'I worked harder and corrected some of my nocturnal habits. I'm making strides, but once you lose your ability to play, it's hard to recapture it," he said. One stroke back, at 69, came defending champion Keith

Fergus, former tennis pro Frank Conner, Steve Melnyc and Bruce Fleisher. At 70 was an even bigger cluster, led by Tom Kite, Hale Irwin and Johnny Miller. They were joined by Jay Haas, John Cook and Greg Powers. The $380,000 tournament's host, Jack Nicklaus, was five shots behind on the course he designed and built eight years ago. But he warned: "I will play better. I am playing too well not to. I am still playing aggressive golf.' Nicklaus wasn't the only big name at 74. Also there were Masters champion Craig Stadler, Tom Watson, Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd.

And then there was Gary Player at 75, Lee Trevino at 78

The field in this seven-year-old tournament is battling for a first prize of $63,000. Portions of the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS. The collection of second-place golfers was an odd one. Conner is a former tennis pro who did not take up golf until he was 24, 12 years ago. Melnyk broke his right elbow four months ago and some said he would never play again.

Diablos edge Drillers

Mark Schuster's solo homer in the bottom of the ninth inning powered the El Paso Diablos to a 6-5 Texas League baseball victory over the Tulsa Drillers.

In other Texas League action Thursday night, Amarillo beat Jackson, 8-6, and Shreveport and San Antonio split a doubleheader. Shreveport won the first game, 9-4, and San Antonio took the nightcap, 7-4. Arkansas' scheduled game at Midland was postponed because of rain. Schuster's homer enabled the Diablos to win their 12th straight game Dan Murphy had a solo homer for Tulsa. Bob Gibson, 4-1, was the winning pitcher. The loser was

Kevin Richards, 0-2. A three-run homer by Luis Quinons gave the Amarillo Gold Sox an 8-6 come-from-behind victory over the Jackson held a 5-0 lead until Amarillo tied the game with a five-run rally highlighted by a two-run double by George Hinshaw and a two-run single by Randy Kaczthe Memorial Tournament.

Board games have long been serious business

Oneida* Heirloom*

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - "The game is done! I've won, I've won!"-Coleridge, Rime of the Ancient

Anyone who's ever suffered the cruel fate of being sent directly to jail, without passing "Go," without collecting a preinflationary $200, without even hope for reprieve except through a lucky roll of the dice, knows that board games can be a serious business indeed.

How serious? Industry experts estimate that Americans spent more than $1 billion last year on games and puzzles, including everything from age-old standbys such as chess and checkers to modern fantasies such as home-video board games of the electronic age.

Such tremendous popularity didn't come about overnight, according to researchers for Odyssey 2's homevideo games, with headquarters in Knoxville.

In fact, long before all the big spenders began buying property on Boardwalk and Park Place, players from all countries were testing their skill and tempting fate on a wide variety of "playing fields for the imagination.'

Square one, as far as board games are concerned, goes back nearly 5,000 years to Mesopotamia. There, the ancient Sumerians played their version of today's board games.

Like today's popular children's games, the Sumerian game was a basic "path" or "chase" game. The standard feature of this type of game is the "zap," in which players lose ground by landing on the "wrong" squares, or by their opponents landing on the "right" ones.

Even in olden times, losers had to suffer silently the slings and arrows of boorish winners. An engraving from the second or third century B.C. shows a young Roman couple playing a board game and the inscription reads, "I believe I have beaten you."

9:30 TO 6:00

And in the game of Hyena, still played by the Arabs of the Sudan, the player whose marker, representing his mother, is eaten by the hyena is ribbed unmercifully by his opponents.

As societies became more complex, so did their board games, according to the researchers. In India around 500 A.D., a new game gave the common folk a chance to pretend to be rajahs, complete with armies of infantry, cavalry, elephants and boatmen. This game, Shaturanga, gradually became more sophisticated and abstract, spread to Europe through the Crusades, and eventually made Bobby Fischer famous. Today, this game of skill now known as chess is played by millions of people throughout the world.

The counterpart of chess in the Orient was a strategic game of encirclement originating in China but achieving its greatest popularity in Japan. Called "Go," it quickly became Japan's national game and by the 16th century was so popular that a state academy was established for its advancement. In fact, the game was so important to the Japanese that the director of the academy received 1,400 square yards of land and an annual salary of 1,000 buckets of rice!

Closer to home, dire consequences, not rich rewards, faced those players who couldn't avoid the pitfalls of "The Checkered Game of Life," the first board game to achieve broad popularity in this country. Introduced in 1860, it featured a board of 84 squares along which pieces moved at the dictates of a spinner. The object was to reach the goal of "Happy Old Age" and avoid squares labeled "Disgrace," "Crime" and, worst of all, "Ruin."

This and other realistic games which followed it reflected prevailing attitudes (thrift is rewarded, waste punished) and helped pave the way for the most successful board game of all time, Monopoly.

Minister enjoys small town living

By RHONDA WOODALL Church Editor

Royce Clay began preaching during his senior year in high school for an area without a preacher. He discovered that he enjoyed preaching, and decided to attend Abilene Christian University and major in Bible. He has taken courses at University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, N.M., and University of Oklahoma, Norman, Okla.

Of his 25 years in the ministry, five of those years have been as a minister at 14th and Main Church of Christ. He ministered 10 years in Muleshoe, five years in Hobart, Okla., and 31/2 years in Albuquerque, N.M.

"I am supported by the church to preach the Word and to spend my time meeting the needs of the people in the best way I can," said Clay.

Bryce L. Clay, his father, was a major influence in Clay's life. His father was an elder for the Church of Christ in Shamrock for 25 years.

Clay's family include his wife, Patricia, and two children, Royce Don, 22, Lubbock, and Brenda Lloyd, 18. 1406 Runnels. 'Clay said that his most rewarding experiences were baptizing and officiating his children's Clay was born at home in Shamrock in 1936. He is the second child of Bryce and Lorene Clay. His older brother, Billy, still lives in Shamrock, while his younger brother, Tommy, lives in Colorado Springs, Colo.

He enjoys working vith people during times of need and is concerned about elderly and young people. He visits the ill and is interested in working in mental health areas. Clay has been a member of Downtown Lion's Club for 15 years, and serves as liontamer. He also is on some committees for Big Spring State Hospital volunteers. He enjoys hunting fouls, especially quail, turkey and feasant, and playing "42"

"It's nice living in Big Spring. It's big enough to have the advantages, and small enough that it doesn't have the disadvantages of the metropolitan cities," Clay said.

Clay said when his son, Royce, was five years old, he and his family moved from Albuquerque, N.M., whose population was a third of a million, to Hobart, Okla., which had 6,000 inhabitants.

One day, Clay and Royce were walking down the street in Hobart, and a man said hello. Clay returned the greeting. After they had gone down the street a way, Royce asked his father who was the man, he had spoken to, and Clay answered "I don't know." Royce then asked his father why he had spoken to the man if he had not known him. Clay said "He is a nice man," As they walked along they talked to three or four more people they did not know. Royce then said, "Daddy, everybody's nice here, Clay explained that in big cities when a newspaper prints an obituary, the address and time of the funeral are omitted because the home could be robbed while the family is at the funeral. In small towns, the neighbors bring food over to the family of the deceased.

Clay has had three radio programs. In Big Spring, he does a church program on KBST at 7:55 a.m. each Sunday entitled "Five Meaningful Minutes." In Hobart, Okla., he had a daily radio show for 41/2 years. In Muleshoe, he had a weekly radio program for more than seven years.

Clay has participated in youth church camps for 18 of the last 25 years. This summer he will direct the Pine Springs Christian Camp near Cloudcroft, N.M., July 25-31. One hundred to 125 kids, most of them from Big Spring, will attend the camp.

'My goals for this coming year are to see a continued increase in the congregation and to add additional programs and staff to better serve the community ... especially the large number of senior citizens that reside in our area," he said.

Church honors secretary.

By RHONDA WOODALL Church Editor

Latrice Davis has served as secretary of East Fourth Baptist Church for 35 years. Last Sunday, the church honored her for her years of service and presented her a corsage and a $500 love offering. "To me, this is a calling of the Lord ... I went to college with being a church secretary in mind," Mrs. Davis said.

Mrs. Davis graduated from Amarillo High School in 1943. She continued her education at Waylan Baptist College in Plainview. She graduated from junior college on May 20, 1945 and started work at East Fourth Baptist Church on May 21, She arrived at 2 p.m. that day and Rev. James Roy Clark put her to working on a newsletter before she even had a chance to unpack. That summer she met

Dick Davis and married him in November. They had two children, Linda Davis and Charles Davis, both of Midland. In Sept. 1947, she and her husband moved to

Pope pleas for peace

LONDON (AP) - Pope John Paul II launched his historic visit to Britain today with a plea for peace in the Falkland Islands and a vow to pray for it "at each step" of his six-day tour.

Celebrating Mass at Westminster Cathedral at the start of the first-ever papal visit here, the pontiff said in English: "We cannot forget that an armed conflict is taking place — brothers in Christ fighting in a war that imperils peace in the world. In our prayers, let us remember the victims of both sides.

As he spoke, British troops were fighting to expand their beachhead on the islands, seized by Argentina on April

The pontiff departed from the prepared text of his homily to urge that Britons 'join me at each step of my pastoral visit, praying for a peaceful solution to the conflict, praying that the God of peace will move men's hearts to put aside the weapons of death and to pursue the path of fraternal

Heavy rains mean more mosquitoes

Texans may want to forget about the heavy rains that belted the state recently, but the wet weather will leave a few hundred thousand little reminders behind.

Bugs, especially mosquitoes, roaches, horseflies, hornflies, houseflies and ticks love damp weather and that's bad news for Texans. State officials are predicting an insect population boom unparalleled in recent years.

The "psorophora" floodwater mosquito, which breeds in water pooled on the ground, probably will be one of the more noticeable species, said Jimmy Dickens, director of the general sanitation division of the Texas Health Department in Austin.

"That type of mosquito is a fierce biter and bothers people but is not known to carry disease," Dickens said Thursday.

Texans also can expect to more ''culex'' mosquitoes, which can carry encephalitis but are not noticed as much by their victims

"They're just kind of a shy mosquito and people don't feel them biting as much,' Dickens said.

sewage and in water standing in containers, such as flower pots and pet dishes, that commonly are found around houses.

One possible case of St. Louis encephalitis has been reported so far this year, but tests still are incomplete, Dickens said.

Local authorities submit live mosquito samples to Dickens' department, which tests for disease and advises counties if they should institute control measures, such as fogging with insecticide or spreading diesel oil over groundwater

Manager's example has impact on his employees

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Offering employees incentive programs with cash prizes or more flexible working hours won't improve their work ethic as much as will effective supervision, according to a business analyst.

Dr. David Cherrington, associate professor of organizational behavior at Brigham Young University, says a manager's good example can have a dramatic impact on work values.

Managers do not need a new model of human behavior or another novel theory of motivation. They need to manage more effectively," said Cherrington, author of the book, "Work Ethic," and numerous articles on the Supervisors exert a much greater influence on subordinates through their personal behavior than through the things they say, Cherrington believes. "If supervisors expect subordinates to be punctual, supervisors should be punctual. Company policies about quality, service, punctuality or pride are just so many words if supervisors disregard them in their actions," he While business experts are surveying hundreds of workers in more than 53 companies, Cherrington found that the organizations with the worst labor problems failed to set clear expectations about productivity, establish individual accountability, provide feedback h appraisals, or encourage their employees to develop their

One older worker felt he was cheating the company because he wasn't doing an 'honest day's work.' It was a bad design and management should have changed it," Cherrington says.

Managers who set high expectations about worker productivity have better productivity records, according to Cherrington's research. In one study he conducted, supervisors were told to communicate either high, low or no performance standards. The highest performance rates were achieved by the groups whose supervisors expected high performance.

Cherrington surveyed workethic attitudes throughout the country but didn't find stronger work values in any 'ne geographical section. He did discover, however, that workers nenl areas had a greater sense of work values than those in urban areas.

Although we no longer live in an agrarian society where many of ourt traditional work values were fostered, says Cherrington, he thinks that work values can be taught and reinforced in employees who may not have been exposed to them at home. Believing in the dignity of labor and taking pride in ing at the College Park Cinema. 'Chariots of Fire,' the British-made film that America named Best Picture of 1981, opened in Big Spring today. But because of the awards and glowing reivews, local movie-goers must be expecting the greatest film to ever pass before a projector's light bulb. Unfortunately, those kinds of expectations often lead to disappointment. Please, don't be disappointed.

"Chariots of Fire" beautifully tells the story of two British runners at the 1924 Olympics - Jewish Cambridge student Harold Abrahams and Scottish missionary

The film traces their preparations for the Olympics - Abrahams at Cambridge, fighting school officials who are upset by his ambition (and a little anti-Semitic, perhaps), and Liddell in Scotland, trying to balance his desire to run with what he feels are his Christian responsibilities.

The two race against each other only once and are only on screen together a couple of times. These are parallel but separate stories. They fit together perfectly

The entire movie is well-acted. John Gielgud and Ian Holm are probably the bestknown of the actors, although the two leads, Ben Cross as Abrahams and Ian Charleson as Liddell, stick in the mind the most

The pleasures of the film are in its craftsmanship and its heart - two virtues that don't often make it into the same movie. Audiences are able to identify so closely with the two main characters that Americans don't mind cheering against the United States' runners at the Olympics. You may not like the characters, but its hard not to be affected by them. Abrahams is filled with ambition ("If I can't win, I won't run," he says at one point), but you admire his drive and spirit. Liddell comes across as a model Christian, not afraid to stand up against royalty when he refuses to run in an Olympic race held on Sunday, but you also see his faults. He is a truly humble

The running scenes are exhilarating, backed up by Vangelis' music that at first seems inappropriate, but later seems like the perfect accompaniniment.

As good as the movie looks and sounds and feels, there are a few sour notes. Apparently, what happens on the screen bears little resemblance to what actually happened in 1924. Whole events reportedly have been altered to make a better movie.

And despite all the deeper meanings the filmmakers try to put across - the importance of some of the characters place on values and the racism Abrams feels - the actual enjoyment of the film comes from watching those two guys win a race. But there is a lot of enjoyment to be found

The film is rated PG. It could easily have been rated G.

Dialogue sparkles in 'The Patriot Game'

THE PATRIOT GAME. By George V. Higgins. Knopf. 237 Pages. $12.95.

At first, the problem presented in George V. Higgins novel, "The Patriot Game," doesn't seem to have a solution.

It is this: There is a man in the Boston area who wants to buy guns and smuggle them out of the country to terrorists in Ireland. Nobody knows the man's name nor what he looks like. But he has to be found and neutralized.

The problem is assigned to Pete Riordan. a government agent, for solving. Riordan goes about unraveling the knotty poser presented him by talking. And that is just fine since dialogue, as Higgins has demonstrated in his previous novels, is what he does best.

But he tops them all in "The Patriot Game." The dialogue in this well-crafted, hard-boiled book is beautifully done and rings remarkably true.

Whether it is a well-educated bishop of the church doing the talking or a foul-mouthed politician or an ill-educated but crafty bartender, the words sound just right. It is almost as if the reader were hearing an actual conversation between two very real people standing near him on a crowded bus.

It's extremely well done, as is the nicely spun-out plot as agent Riordan carefully uncovers a trail and then follows it to the shadowy, unknown man who is his quarry. The ending is, quite literally, a bang-up one. Quite violent, to be sure, but given that which has preceded it it is quite logical and quite unavoidable. PhilThomas APBooksEditor

Gary Sandy—after 'WKRP'

AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Sandy was a bad guy in soap operas, then a good-guy program director on "WKRP in Cincinnati." Now he's the raffish pirate king of Broadway's pop-flavored "The Pirates of Penzance."

Someday, he also hopes to star in a movie about Jerry Lee Lewis, the fiery rockabilly king prone to thrash a piano so soundly it's a wonder the piano doesn't hide under the bass player

He concedes his desire to play Lewis may strike some as off-the-wall, flat weird, even, likewise his selection by producer Joseph Papp to be the chief rogue in "Pirates. "But nobody's going to pigeonhole me," vows Sandy, 36, a tall, lean, fast-talking man who sounds vaguely Kentucky even though born and raised in Dayton, Ohio. He's been swashing and buckling in "Pirates" since March and will keep at it until August. It's his first Broadway musical, but not his Broadway debut. That was back in 1974, in the short-lived "Saturday, Sunday Morning" in which Kaye Ballard, now in "Pirates," also appeared.

He auditioned to be Broadway's chief sword-waver last summer, then flew back to Los Angeles to attend to a television matter

'That was the last two segments of WKRP," he says. He grins wryly. "They turned out to be the two final segments of the series." CBS recently dropped the show after four seasons

Despite his years in television, Sandy's only made three movies, small roles in each. He agrees it's due in part to the tendency of Hollywood's movie folks to ignore actors primarily known from TV

You run into it in theater, too," he adds. "There are so many theaters in this country, various and sundry, that somehow have it in their minds I'm only a television actor. It's hard to fight."

Sandy began in the emoting business in the late Sixties, after quitting college in Ohio to study broadcasting in Atlanta, then quitting that to come here to study acting at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

New band carrying progressive rock torch posed to be dead and gone by now, joining acid rock, glitter and disco as a musical footnote of the 1960s and

Yes and ELP disbanded, Eric Clapton returned to the blues and King Crimson updated its sound for the '80s.

But the quick acceptance of the new band Asia, shows that there's still a strong market for the soaring instrumentation, abstract lyrics and abrupt changes of pace used by the British progressive rockers — especially if the songs are tailored to the needs of FM rock radio.

We made a conscious effort that we shouldn't sound like an afterthought of the '70s," says John Wetton, bassist and chief songwriter for the band, whose debut album zoomed to No. 1 on the charts after only seven weeks. "The way to do that was to come out of the box very strong with songs people could play and listen to and enjoy.

BOSTON (AP) - British progressive rock was sup- "Instead of nailing together three songs that didn't fit. like most progressive rockers, we made a conscious effort to make each song separate and have it stand on its own, Wetton said.

Those lengthy "nailed-together" songs were fine 10 years ago for underground FM radio stations that wanted to distinguish themselves from AM pop music stations. But today's album-oriented FM rock stations want tight five-minute tunes. Asia's approach quickly paid off.

Songs such as "Heat Of the Moment," "Sole Survivor" and "Only Time Will Tell," were added to playlists throughout the country. Asia was soon able to headline at 3.000-seat theaters.

Much of Asia's early appeal stemmed from the credentials of the four musicians, each of whom had played in British progressive rock bands known for their sweeping musical epics.

Writer of theater songs knew the music was in him

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Henry Krieger started writing theater songs instead of pop songs because he "didn't want to make a life writing songs good only this month. I did want it to be more than a disposable kit."

The theater songs that Krieger has written, with lyricist Tom Eyen, are in the Broadway musical "Dreamgirls." The cast album has been released by Warner Brothers, which also released the single, "And I Tell You that I'm Not Going," the first act closing number, a real show stopper, sung by Jennifer Holliday. The manager of the girls' trio, the Dreams, has just thrown Miss Holliday's character, Effie, out of the Dreams and out of his personal life. She does not go quietly.

Krieger and Eyen, who also wrote the book for the show, were nominated for a Tony award for best score of a Broadway musical this season, along with Stephen Sondheim, Maury Yeston and Andrew Lloyd Webber and

The songs in "Dreamgirls" are "theatrical songs with strong rhythm 'n' blues input," Krieger says. "They aren't really rhythm 'n' blues songs.

"I really wasn't going for the Supremes," Krieger says. "It's almost pointless to protest about it. It looks like we were. Of course there is input of the Supremes. I was going for a general blend of a lot of people in the rhythm 'n' blues galaxy. 'People have been saying it is a Motown kind of thing. Almost nothing in it sounds like the Motown sound." Krieger says he thought of Effie as Etta James, whom he admires.

Krieger was born in New York 37 years ago and grew un in Ossining

N.Y., where he got interested in Fats Waller as a child. The man across the street played stride piano and gave him two recordings, one by Fats Waller. Krieger played that neighbor's piano until he got one of his own. His childhood friends were the piano and dogs and, he says, they still are.

One of the jobs that Krieger held before writing music was as publicist for Jerry Butler. "He taught me to write a song, A's and B's and hooks," Krieger says. "He thought I was kind of strange to want to write them. He stressed the story inside each song.

"That's what brought me to theater. It's true. A song should capture the imagination. What better way than to be theatrical?"

"I was very Krieger says, frustrated and stifled. I knew I had a whole lot of music in me. I had almost a religious fervor that before it was over, I would be heard. I needed someone." He met lyricist Tom Eyen.

"He was asked to write for 'O Calcutta,' and he thought it was smutty and shallow and offensive and insulting to people. He wrote 'The Dirtiest Show in Town,' about air pollution and Vietnam and as a protest against 'O Calcutta.' It was a big success and sort of made his
