

Summer's here

Memorial Day is the traditional beginning of the summer season — and Big Springers had beautiful, tornado watch-free weather Friday, Saturday and Sunday. They made good use of it. In the top photo, Walter Williams goes head over heels into the city pool in a search for a way to keep cool. Walter's dive took place Saturday when many swimmers were enjoying the pool's opening at Comanche Trail Park.

Hours for swimming are: Tuesday through Friday, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., 1 to 5 p.m. and 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. On Saturday, the pool is open from 1 to 6 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. It is closed Mondays.

In the photo to the right, Raymond Rodriguez enjoys a cool soft drink Saturday afternoon while watching his brother Joe, of the Indios softball team, take on the Westwind Express in the Chicano Softball Toruney. Raymond, age 4, was enjoying the weather and the game at Johnny Stone Memorial Park.

ROBERT MILLER

He enjoys freedom as county attorney

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The desire to be independent was a moving force in Robert Miller's decision to become a lawyer. That independence enables him to better serve the public as county attorney.

"I'm not a professional politician — I have a service to provide to the county. I can be independent and do it (the job) as I see it," Miller says. "An elected official should represent the people; you have to do something as an elected official. Doing nothing is the best way to avoid trouble."

Miller was elected county attorney in January of 1981 after practicing law in Big Spring for eight years. "There was a vacancy and Howard County needed a lawyer. I had an interest in the community and was on my own," Miller said. The opportunity to take the position had come since he had just left a law firm, Miller added.

Some people misunderstood the role of the county attorney, Miller said. "I am not the attorney for everybody in the county. I do not represent individual people on civil matters," Miller said. "I advise the county — the political subdivision — on county business. I represent the county and the state on misdemeanor crimes. This office operates the Hot Check Department. I also represent the Department of Human Resources in child abuse cases."

THE MISDEMEANOR crimes the county attorney handles include driving while intoxicated cases, shoplifting and hot checks. While Miller says he has no answer on how to move the DWI case docket, he has taken action to cure the increasing hot check problem in the county.

Before long hot check writers will be attending the National Corrective Training Institute, Miller said. "All hot check writers will be required to attend before the payment of fines. The option says, if they don't attend, they can be prosecuted for a criminal misdemeanor which includes jail time and fines," Miller said.

The institute is to "help people better handle their personal problems — hot checks are a symptom of personal problems," Miller said. "This is for the benefit of hot check writers, forcing them to obtain help, and not as punishment as much as helping people help themselves."

The county attorney said the private, self-supporting organization is already operating in Travis and Lubbock counties with Ector or Midland county to follow. "I want to do the same with DWIs and shoplifting — shoplifting is next," Miller said. Curing the symptoms now will be easier than later when someone is "hardened" to the crime, he added.

The institute is a national organization set up to correct problems, Miller said. "I'll try anything new to help people. A person in a position of power has to be acceptable to new ideas," Miller said.

Shoplifting and hot checks are problems in which the county attorney's office needs the help of the area merchants, Miller said. "We need the complete support of the merchants — we're not a collection agency at the hot check department."

The department receives 500 to 600 hot checks a month, according to Melba Soles of the department, and has collected $13,000 a month for the past three months.

THE PROCESS of bringing criminal charges against persons involves the sheriff's office, the city police, the county attorney and the county judge. "The county attorney's office does not have an investigative staff — we have no way of determining offenses. The sheriff's office or the police department does that," Miller said. "I will not file a case without it first being reviewed by the sheriff's office or the PD."

Miller said he then reviewed their work and turned it over to the county judge. "Warrants come from the judge; you can't file through the county attorney. A case must be processed through. It's more red tape but it protects the innocent and ties down the complaining party," Miller said. "The system runs better than ever before."

Miller continues to practice civil law in Big Spring but says he has no problems separating it from his county job. "Obviously I have to maintain two offices and not overlap between my county work and my personal work," Miller said. Doing only civil practice at his office on Scurry Street and county work at the courthouse "keeps the jobs separate and distinct," he added.

However, the two-office system would not work without the quality of the courthouse staff. "The (county attorney) office is set up where the staff does 90 percent of the screening before something gets to me — that's their job. I'm responsible for them," Miller said.

Secretary Jane Overman is the key figure in the county attorney's courthouse office Miller says. "I couldn't do it without her — she is excellent." The rest of the staff include Melba Soles — "She loves the hot check work" — and Mike Barton who works out of the county judge's office. "Mike has done a good job of coordinating everything," Miller said. "Without Jane, Mike and Melba, it'd be hard."

MILLER BECAME a lawyer for several reasons: independence, prestige, and the chance to help people, he says. "A lawyer can help take care of other people and their problems. There is lots of self-satisfaction in getting people out of problems," Miller said. "I'm not out to change the world, though. My older brother was a lawyer, too."

A move to Big Spring after completing law school in 1973 was made, Miller said, because "I felt the future was here." Miller said he attempts to do things for the good of the community by "being active in what's going on" and "sticking my neck out when needed."

Miller's spare time away from his county job and his civil practice is as busy as his two occupations. "I have an airplane and I travel. I ride cycles for a break from routine. I relax with the Shriners by competing with other temples. My two little girls I probably don't spend enough time with, but they haven't been neglected," Miller said.

The county attorney sometimes escapes the torrid pace of his life on a 100-acre piece of land he owns around Kentwood. The pastoral, ranch-like area is worked by a Howard College student, Miller said, who lives there free in return for taking care of the property which includes some cows and other stock. "I go up there and look at the cows," Miller said wistfully.

British troops advance on capital of Falklands

By The Associated Press

British troops advanced on the heavily-defended Falklands capital of Stanley from the west and south as British planes and ships pounded Stanley airfield and other Argentine positions in preparation for the decisive battle of the undeclared war.

Argentina said its warplanes attacked and disabled a British aircraft carrier in raids Sunday on Britain's 100-ship warfleet. Britain acknowledged an attack was "attempted," but denied any ships were hit and said one Argentine Skyhawk was probably shot down by a destroyer.

Rose Kennedy is hospitalized

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rose Kennedy, the 91-year-old matriarch of one of America's most prominent political families, has been admitted to St. John's Hospital for observation and tests, a hospital spokeswoman says.

"She's resting comfortably and remains in stable condition," spokeswoman Ruth Hardy said early today. "They'll be running tests on her over the next couple of days."

Mrs. Kennedy was brought to the hospital Sunday night from her Palm Beach home by family members. "Apparently, she just wasn't feeling well," said Mrs. Hardy.

Mrs. Kennedy was hospitalized last November after complaining of chest pains during Mass at St. Edward's Roman Catholic Church in Palm Beach.

Her physician, Dr. Robert Gerard, said at the time that Mrs. Kennedy was suffering from angina, a condition that can cause pain around the heart when the heart receives too little oxygen.

Mrs. Kennedy is the mother of U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy and of former President John Kennedy and former U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy, both of whom were assassinated.

Mental patients 'dumped'

DALLAS (AP) — A well-intentioned movement to free mental patients from institutions' back wards has forced thousands to make their homes in back alleys, a Dallas newspaper says.

In the name of "deinstitutionalization," hundreds of thousands of mentally ill people have been turned out of hospitals and told to get care in the community.

The number of the nation's hospitalized patients has dropped by nearly two-thirds, from 500,000 to 180,000, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday. In Texas, the number has fallen from 15,800 to 5,600.

But community treatment is often unavailable, so the former patients are alone in America's cities, panhandling, eating at charity soup kitchens, and sleeping under bridges and in abandoned buildings.

In Dallas County, the newspaper said it found a critical lack of services, facilities and staff, and said sources estimated as many as a third of the city's street people are mental patients.

The newspaper said some mental patients on the streets have histories of violent behavior. Untreated, these people pose a threat to themselves or other.

"Skid row has become the dumping ground. They are putting people in the community, but the community is not ready for it. People are being released with very little, if any, follow-up care," said the Rev. Jerry Hill, an Episcopal minister who runs a downtown soup kitchen here.

"They just turned me out in the community to be part of the community again. But they never give you enough to do it," said Douglas Blaine Bowen, whose 17-year journey to a Dallas alley led through mental hospitals in Illinois, Connecticut, South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

The Times Herald said most of the state money for mental health is not spent on the institutions that treat the most people.

The newspaper said about 75 percent of Texas' mental health care budget goes for 20 percent of the mentally ill and mentally retarded who are in institutions. Only about 20 percent goes to the 80 percent of the patients in community programs. The remaining 5 percent goes to administration, research and training.

A similar disparity shows up around the country. Congress has spent $2.9 billion on community mental health centers since 1963. It was thought neighborhood psychiatric clinics, halfway houses and day hospitals could treat the mentally ill in familiar surroundings and spare them the stultifying monotony of the hospitals.

But the U.S. General Accounting Office said in a 1977 report that the money was insufficient.

"Funding for community-based mental health services has not grown in proportion to the need. Allocations for mental hospitals still dominate most state mental health budgets," the GAO said in its report.

State dollars have not followed former patients from state hospitals' because of pork-barrel politics, said John Billings, director of the community mental health center in Galveston.

State hospitals usually are in rural areas and employ large numbers of people that rural state representatives want to keep happy, he said.

State Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, introduced a bill in the last Legislature that required community centers to screen patients before they are admitted to mental hospitals and to provide follow-up care when the patients are released.

The bill passed, but the Legislature did not provide the $16.2 million the centers said they needed for two years to track 74 percent of those admitted and discharged.

"Nobody cares about crazy people or convicts," Brooks said.

Chimp learns how to mother

CONROE, Texas (AP) — The first domesticated chimpanzee to give birth is responding to her second baby with "totally maternal behavior" with the help of a Southeast Texas homemaker, researchers say.

Tanya was one of 29 female chimpanzees taken at birth and placed in the care of surrogate mothers to allow researchers to understand the behavior of early man. She is the only one of the 29 still alive today.

The 10-year-old chimp first gave birth to Uriah in March 1981, and researchers at the University of Oklahoma's Institute for Primate Studies hoped to learn how much of Tanya's maternal ability was learned and how much was instinct.

Normally, chimpanzees hold their offspring almost constantly to keep them warm, but Tanya showed no interest in her son.

Researchers, fearing he would catch pneumonia and die, asked June Cook, Tanya's surrogate mother, to raise Uriah.

After giving birth to Leah, a three-pound female, on May 11, Tanya showed similar signs of neglect. So Mrs. Cook decided to teach Tanya how to care for her baby.

"I got a little frightened. But she didn't walk off and leave the baby like she did with Uriah. She kept the baby in her arms all the time. Tanya was examining it and everything, but she didn't know what to do," said Mrs. Cook, a 58-year-old mother of seven children.

"I thought, 'I'm going to go in Tanya's cage and help her.' I didn't know if Tanya would let me or not," Mrs. Cook said. "I put the baby up to Tanya's breast and the baby started nursing immediately. I did that the rest of the day for about three times."

Police Beat 7-11 store is robbed

An apparent aggravated robbery occurred at the 7-11 Store, 1701 Marcy, at 9:58 p.m. yesterday, police said.

Kathy Smout of I.S. 20 Trailer Park No. 2, manager of the store, reported to police that two unidentified males came into the store and took four cases of Budweiser beer and an unknown amount of cash, advising her they had a gun, police said.

Police said the two men may have been driving a van, although they left the store on foot. There currently are no suspects in the case, police said.

Police arrested Ray Galviz, 18, of 1903 Runnels on charges of public intoxication, criminal mischief and simple assault and a 16-year-old juvenile on charges of public intoxication and criminal mischief at 10:57 p.m. Sunday, according to police.

The two were arrested after Delfina Leos of 411 Scurry reported to police that the men threw beer bottles through two windows of her residence after she refused to let them enter.

Both remain in city jail, police said. No bond has been set.

Tommy Campbell of 1706 Young told police that sometime between 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday someone threw a rock through the front windshield of his vehicle parked at his residence and caused $200 damage, according to police.

Dewey Byers of 538 Westover, Apt. 158 reported to police that someone stole three wire hubcaps from his vehicle while it was parked in front of his residence sometime between 7 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. Sunday, police said. Damage was estimated at approximately $300.

Jeff Keller of 3700 Hamilton told police that sometime between 10 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 p.m. Sunday someone threw a beer bottle through the back windshield and an unknown object through the side window of his vehicle parked at his residence, causing approximately $250 damage, police reports said.

Loyd Thomas of 609 Caylor reported to police that sometime between 9 p.m. Saturday and 7:15 a.m. Sunday someone took a five-gallon gas can containing three gallons of gas from the rear of a welding truck at his residence, police said.

Someone damaged the rear door of the Airport Grocery Store at 3107 West 80 sometime between 10:30 p.m. Saturday and 6:45 a.m. Sunday, police said. An unknown instrument was apparently used to make a hole in the glass window of the door, causing approximately $100 damage, according to police reports.

A package of round steak valued at $8.19 and a package of beef sirloin tips valued at $4.55 was stolen from the Winn-Dixie store, 2602 Gregg, at 9:10 p.m. Saturday, police said.

Police arrested Tracy Bock, 20, of 538 Westover, No. 103 at 1:42 a.m. Sunday on charges of assault with a motor vehicle and DWI.

Bock was transferred to county jail and bonded out yesterday, police said.

Falklands

British military sources said Sunday's bombardment by 4.5-inch naval guns and Harrier jets was the most punishing of the campaign so far and was aimed at softening up the Argentine garrison, estimated at 7,000 troops, defending the Falklands capital.

Argentina said two Harriers were downed by anti-aircraft fire and a third was damaged. The British had no comment on the claim.

An Argentine military communique said Super Etendard fighter bombers carrying Exocet missiles and Skyhawk jets with "high-powered bombs" hit an "aircraft carrier-type ship" and it was put out of action "because of the grave damage it received."

The communique did not name the carrier, but Argentine news agencies said it was the Invincible, one of two in the battle group. Prince Andrew, second in line to the British throne, is a helicopter pilot aboard the Invincible.

The British Defense Ministry said in a statement: "A number of Argentine naval aircraft attempted to attack the carrier battle group this afternoon. None of the ships was hit. One Skyhawk was believed to be shot down by an escorting destroyer."

Meanwhile, Royal Marines and paratroopers advanced by helicopter to within 22 miles of Stanley in the northern arm of a pincer drive on the capital. The troops reported the capture Saturday of the Douglas and Teal Inlet settlements northwest of Stanley. They said Argentine forces abandoned the outposts, apparently falling back to the defensive lines around the capital.

Advancing from the southwest along the coast are the 600 paratroopers who overran Argentine garrisons at Darwin and Goose Green in a 14-hour battle Friday.

Lead elements of the British assault force are expected to run up against the first line of Argentine defenses around the capital within 24 hours, said British military sources who declined to be identified.

"Stanley is going to be a hard nut to crack," one of the military experts said. "The toughest fighting has yet to come if the Argentines choose to slug it out."

British press reports speculated that the attack could be less than 48 hours away. But military analysts in London said with the British force outnumbered about 2,000 men, the assault may be delayed until assault ships land the 3,000 troops ferried to the war zone by the liner Queen Elizabeth 2.

The Daily Mail, one of Britain's leading Conservative papers, reported that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her five-man War Cabinet discussed the possibility of delaying the assault to offer surrender terms to the Stanley garrison to avoid more bloodshed.

270 villagers missing

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — More than 270 villagers are missing after mudslides unleashed by tropical storm Aleta buried three mountain villages in northern Nicaragua, authorities said. Twenty-nine survivors were reported.

Josefa Hernandez Martinez, a civil defense official, said flood waters prevented rescue teams from reaching the villages on the slopes of Mount El Guallo.

Tons of rock and mud slide down the mountain Friday and buried the villages of El Tular, La Ruega and San Antonio, the official said.

Police nab terrorist

ROME (AP) — Police shot and captured another of the Red Brigades terrorists convicted of kidnapping U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier, authorities said.

Marcello Capuano was taken Saturday night after he and a woman companion shot it out with police in a gunbattle in downtown Rome Saturday night that left a bystander seriously wounded.

The arrest of Capuano left six of Dozier's 17 abductors still unaccounted for. Nine are serving prison terms ranging from 26 months to 27 years and another was killed in a shootout with police in Pisa last Monday.

Dozier, kidnapped from his Verona apartment Dec. 27, was rescued by police on Jan. 28.

Soviet launch set

MOSCOW (AP) — A joint Soviet-French cosmonaut team has completed training and passed all tests for a space launch set for June 24, Radio Moscow said today.

French sources in Moscow said Jean-Loup Chretien, 41, has been chosen to make the flight with two Soviet cosmonauts. Patrick Baudry, 34, is Chretien's backup, the sources said.

Chretien would be the first non-American Westerner launched into space. The two Frenchmen have been training in the Soviet Union since 1980 for the launch from the Baikonur Space Center in Soviet Central Asia.

Texas growth is largest in nation

DALLAS (AP) — The stereotyped Texan brags about the superiority and size of the Lone Star State. Now the federal government has confirmed what many Texans have suspected: More people chose to make Texas home last year than any other state.

The U.S. Census Bureau's most recent count shows Texas passed perennial front-runner California in absolute growth in 1980-81 — the first time the state has outgrown its western rival since 1972.

"If Texas moved ahead, it is much more a statement about Texas than it is about California," said Steve Levy of the Center for Continuing Study of the California Economy. "It must mean that Texas is right up there with California in production of new jobs."

Despite record-high housing costs in California, Levy said the state was still benefiting from a "reasonably steady rate of economic growth."

Texas' 27 percent growth rate between 1970 and 1980 outstripped both California and New York, but lagged behind other states, including Nevada, Florida, Arizona and Wyoming.

Experts on national population shifts tend to attribute Texas' recent surge in absolute growth to increased migration from North Central and Northeastern states. But they say they cannot be sure until they determine the extent of the state's natural growth — a figure that is arrived at by subtracting deaths from births.

The experts also point out that natural growth can be a product of migration.

"Some of the births, no doubt, would be by people recently moving to the state, since the ages of most migrants put them in prime reproductive years," said Larry Long of the Census Bureau's Center for Demographic Studies.

Dr. Bernard Weinstein, a professor of economics at the University of Texas at Dallas who was written extensively on migration, estimates that as much as 60 percent of the state's population gain could come from migration.

Natural gas blast kills child

LEVELLAND, Texas (AP) — Two deadly natural gas explosions in a newly rented house were caused by gas from an uncapped pipe that had not been used in two decades, the owner of the house says.

The fiery blasts destroyed the house, killed a child, and injured 11 people who were spending the Memorial Day weekend together.

Carroll Peck said Sunday he had told his new tenant, Rudy Zamora, that the three-bedroom brick home was all-electric when he rented it.

"I'm at a loss to explain the gas," Peck said. "It's just flabbergasted me."

Zamora, a 28-year-old U.S. Postal Service employee, and his family had moved into the house only two days before the explosion that ripped it apart Saturday, said Baltazar Padilla, who lives next door.

Ten people remained hospitalized Sunday, three of them in critical condition, with burns from the blast in this South Plains city about 30 miles west of Lubbock.

Hospital officials said the burns covered from 6 percent to 50 percent of the victims' bodies.

The dead child was identified as 3-year-old Martin Zamora Jr.

Padilla said workers from

Energas Co. had installed a gas meter Wednesday so the Zamoras could hook up their gas range.

"My understanding is that after they installed the meter, they turned on the gas, found a leak and turned it back off," he said. "I don't know if it was turned back on or what."

"The gas lines went to old space heater outlets and into the kitchen, but after they converted to electricity they didn't bother to seal the lines," he said.

He said he had checked the condition of the house because at one time he had been interested in buying it.

Energas Co. officials could not be reached for comment.

Fireman Bill Pharis said investigators discovered the open half-inch gas line when firefighters heard the sound of a leak during a pressure test after the explosions.

Investigators chopped through the kitchen floor near an electric water heater and found that "the cap had been unscrewed. It was just off," he said.

Pharis said officials were unsure how the gas was ignited.

"But anything could have touched it off," he said. "It could have been the water heater turning on, or someone lighting a cigarette or even flipping a light switch."

The force of the 9 a.m. blast hurled some of the victims out of the house and shook homes in a three-block radius, said Assistant Fire

Chief Jeff Scott.

"We were still in bed ... We just heard a loud boom. At first I thought it was a bolt of lightning right outside the window, it was so loud. It blew glass all over us," said Padilla, 24.

"We ran outside and the saw the brick home completely blown all out. The walls were all down and people were laying outside," he said.

Witnesses said the first blast lifted the roof off the house and it settled back onto the interior walls that were left standing. Neighbors rushed to pull survivors from the house before a second smaller explosion touched off a large fire inside, Pharis said.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD — Rescue workers sift through the rubble at the Shawnee Apartments on the West side of Marion, Illinois. Workers were looking for a reported four missing.

Search continues for storm victims

MARION, Ill. (AP) — Severe thunderstorms flinging hail and rain sent new funnel clouds dancing over this community as workers plowed through tons of debris from a tornado that killed at least 10 and left Marion looking "as if it had been bombed."

None of the funnel clouds sighted Sunday touched down, but the hail and rain forced rescue workers to seek shelter temporarily, delaying the search for more victims.

The tornado Saturday afternoon left more than 100 injured in this southern Illinois community. At least 44 people remained hospitalized Sunday.

Hospital officials said at least 65 additional people sought treatment for injuries, mostly puncture wounds, received while combing the wreckage Sunday.

Officials said the death toll may rise as workers lift piles of twisted steel, glass and concrete.

Scores of homes and more than 100 apartments were destroyed. Officials estimated 75 businesses in the tornado's 15-mile-long path also were destroyed.

Gov. James R. Thompson gave an initial damage assessment of $100 million. Thompson said at a news conference Sunday that he had talked to President Reagan and would ask the federal government to declare Williamson County a major disaster area.

The state already has declared it a disaster area.

State Sen. Gene Johns, D-Marion, who toured the destruction with Thompson, said the damage will further erode Marion's faltering economy.

"A lot of people are going to be out of work or out of business. It's going to be a real economic plunge," Johns predicted.

Tom Kirby, owner of the Village Squire men's clothing store in one of three flattened shopping centers, salvaged most of his inventory. "I may have to pitch a tent (to reopen)," he said, "but I cannot afford to be closed. Have you checked the economy lately?"

An 8:30 p.m. curfew was imposed for the second consecutive night to curb looting. City streets again were patrolled by National Guard troops and state police, as well as volunteers from several other jurisdictions.

"We stopped it (looting) before it got started," said Ron Swafford, assistant police chief in the community of about 13,000.

"The townspeople are taking it pretty well. We've set up emergency housing in several churches," he said.

E. Eric Jones, director of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, said records of past tornado fatalities were not immediately available, but that Saturday's twister was "the worst tornado he's ever seen," according to an emergency services spokesman.

Storms hit North Texas

By The Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms moved across North Texas early today accompanied by heavy rain, high winds and some hail.

Winds gusted to about 50 mph at Sherman where some hail also fell. Electrical power was knocked out in some areas of Sherman, McKinney and Dallas when the storm blew down power lines. An estimated 2,000 homes located north of Love Field were without power early today, Dallas officials said.

A tornado watch covered a vast area of North Texas early today, ranging from just west of Wichita Falls along the Red River to about Paris and southward into the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The storm activity was triggered by a cold front moving southward out of the Panhandle. Forecasters said as the colder air with the front meets warm, humid air, severe weather was possible.

Some blowing dust was reported during the night at Lubbock where winds gusted to 25-30 mph as the front moved southward.

Tornadoes were sighted Sunday near Stamford, Luedder and Anson in West Central Texas. Most were in rural areas and there were no reports of injuries or serious damage.

Numerous severe thunderstorm warnings were issued during the night as the storm system moved southeastward across North Texas.

Early morning temperatures were in the 50s to 60s north of the front and in the 70s elsewhere. Extremes ranged from 52 at Amarillo to 81 at Del Rio.

Forecasters called for scattered showers and thunderstorms over most of the state today. Cooler temperatures were forecast for Tuesday.

Highs today were to be mostly in the 80s, ranging from the 70s in the Panhandle to the 90s in Southwest Texas and as high as near 105 in the Big Bend area.

Lows tonight will range from the upper 40s in the Panhandle to the 60s and 70s over the rest of the state. Highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 80s.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts showers for Tuesday for most of the Southeast and from the central Gulf to the Great Lakes. Cool weather is forecast for the northern Plains. Warm weather is expected for most areas.

Nation's weather is wet and stormy

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms and heavy rains pummeled much of the eastern part of the nation today, from the Ohio Valley into the Gulf and across the northern Mississippi Valley.

In the six hours ending at 2 a.m. EDT, more than an inch and a half of rain fell at Tampa, Fla., almost an inch fell at Atlantic City, N.J., and about two-thirds of an inch fell at Rochester, Minn.

In Lewistown, Mont., residents were digging out from 15-foot snowdrifts after a weekend storm. And sightings of more funnel clouds interrupted the cleanup in Marion, Ill., where a tornado Saturday left at least 10 people dead and flattened about 75 businesses.

For tonight and Tuesday, the National Weather Service predicted showers and thunderstorms from the central Plains and the Mississippi Valley across much of the Atlantic Coast. Generally fair skies were expected over the West.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 30 degrees in Lewistown, Mont., to 83 degrees in Del Rio, Texas.

FORECAST

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy north today, otherwise sunny days and fair at night through Tuesday. Cooler north today and tonight and south Tuesday. Highs 72 Panhandle to 96 southwest and near 105 Big Bend valleys. Lows 48 Panhandle to 65 south. Highs Tuesday 79 Panhandle to 98 Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST

WEST TEXAS: Scattered mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms most sections Wednesday, continuing Panhandle Thursday and Friday. Otherwise partly cloudy with no important temperature changes through the latter part of the week. Highs in the mid 70s north to near 103 Big Bend valleys. Lows near 50 north to the mid 60s south.

Woman guilty in murder plot

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — A deteriorated mental state and a law-abiding record do not excuse Ruth Coe's attempt to arrange the murders of the judge and prosecutor who sent her son to jail, a judge said as he sentenced the socialite to a year in jail.

Mrs. Coe, her eyes red with tears, apologized in court Friday for her attempt to arrange the murders of the two men involved in a rape case against her son, Frederick Coe.

Snohomish County Superior Court Judge Robert Bibb, who found Mrs. Coe guilty Friday, said she approached an undercover police agent posing as a hit man like "a hungry trout snapping at a fly."

Bibb said the deteriorating mental state of the 61-year-old Spokane woman, her good record and her "almost incredible series of misfortunes" in the past year were still not enough to let the former charm school teacher go unpunished.

Before sentencing, Mrs. Coe stood up, thanked the judge — who heard the case without a jury — and said in a soft voice, "I can't let the trial end without making an apology to both Judge Shields and his family and Donald Brockett and his family for the anguish and harm my actions may have brought them."

Let's remember what today is for

"Let no ravages of time testify to coming generations that we have forgotten as a people the cost of a free and undivided Republic."

These were the last words of an order issued by General John A. Logan on May 5, 1868, which instituted the observance of Decoration Day — now known as Memorial Day.

Decoration Day was inaugurated to honor Civil War veterans by decorating their graves. General Logan's order is still carried on but now extends to the dead of all wars.

To many people it has also become a day of personal and family commemoration.

It is only fitting and proper on this special day to reflect on the words of a speech given by Abraham Lincoln on Nov. 19, 1863, at the site of the Battle of Gettysburg in Pennsylvania. Lincoln delivered the address at ceremonies to dedicate a part of the battlefield as a cemetery for those who had lost their lives in this Civil War battle. But the words have become immortal, surviving through the centuries as a guiding light for a free people. Many of us had to memorize this speech in school, but it is good to reflect over the words once again.

THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

"Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that the nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate — we can not consecrate — we can not hallow — this ground. The "brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion — that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain — that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom — and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

***

LET US NOT LOOK at today as merely another holiday — a day in which we don't have to go to work, a day of leisure and fun in the sun. Let us, at least for a few moments, remember those who gave the ultimate sacrifice that we might continue to enjoy our freedom. Let us remember what today really stands for.

Sneak preview

Have you ever watched Sneak Previews? It's the top-rated PBS television show where two movie critics — Gene Siskel and Roger Ebert — review current movies, show a film clip or two and then vote either yes or no on whether the audience should see the movie.

I enjoyed the show during its first couple of seasons, but lately Gene and Roger have become boring. All their once-bright comments are getting hackneyed as they try to top each other with their knowledge of the cinema.

HERE IS A sneak preview of Gene and Roger's next show as I would like to see it done.

Gene: "Hello, my name is Gene Siskel, film critic for the Chicago Tribune, and seated across the aisle from me is Roger Ebert, film critic for the Chicago Sun-Times. Wait a minute! Did I get that wrong? Do you write for the Sun-Times? Oh, never mind, it's not like we're real journalists anyway."

Roger: "Thanks, Gene. Tonight we're reviewing the movie releases for the summer: 'Summer of '42,' 'Corvette Summer,' 'Summer's Almost Here' and 'Summer of My German Soldier.' Ha, ha, only kidding. Boy, am I witty. Gene, start us out on tonight's first film."

Gene: "The first movie tonight is 'Rocky III.' I have to say right off this is a stunningly original idea whose time has come. Who would have believed Sylvester Stallone could wrangle three major motion pictures from such a thin plot. Bravissimo, Stallone!"

Roger: "You're absolutely right, Gene, not to mention Stallone keeps Talia Shire from starving to death as an actress by continually casting her as Rocky's wife."

Gene: "I'm glad to see we agree about agreeing on a movie for a change."

Roger: "Okay, Gene, now on to our next cinematic feature 'Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid.' I have to admit Steve Martin is great, but who are all those old actors in the movie. What is this film? An old folks reunion?"

Gene: "I know what you mean, Roger. A lot of those guys are past their prime. Fred McMurray, Vincent Price and Humphrey Bogart, I mean I didn't even know Bogart was still doing films. And as for McMurray, well, he'll never approach the level of his finest work — 'Son of Flubber.'"

Roger: "Now we move on to 'Conan the Barbarian.' Look out Sir John Gielgud, there's a great new actor on the block and his name is Arnold Schwarzenegger."

Gene: "Yes, Arnold's acting ability makes Gielgud look like a plodding amateur. However, I feel Arnold needs to work on his physical presence, sometimes it seemed he was hardly in front of the camera."

Roger: "You know what I like — the beheading scenes."

Gene: "Roger, I loved the realism, this was real slice-of-life stuff."

Roger: "Next up is the musical extravaganza, 'Annie.' That song 'Tomorrow' is really catchy, but I hope cute kids everywhere don't start singing it over and over until we get sick at our stomachs everytime we hear it. As for the movie I don't see how Columbia could budget $79 million for a film about a kid with no eyes and only one red dress. I think Annie was washed up when she lost her comic strip."

Gene: "Right, Roger. This film doesn't faithfully follow the Annie story at all. I mean Annie has eyes and her dog Sandy never does say 'Arf, Arf' right. Speaking of dogs, here comes Spot the Wonder Dog with this week's 'dog of the week' film."

Roger: "You would've made a great Sandy, Spot." Oh no, Spot, don't do that on the seat. Boy! He must really hate this next film."

Gene: "As well he should, Roger. This week's dog is a film called 'Diner.' The public will never go to this one. It was real humor, great dialogue and human feelings that are artfully defined on the screen. The public will stay away from this one in droves, it's just not mindless enough. What did this director take us for — intellectuals?"

Roger: "Bow wow, Gene, this film is a dog that really howls at the moon. Spot, take a bow for a great choice."

Gene: "So folks, that's it for another week. Tune in next time when we review our favorite science fiction movies including 'Catwomen From Mars,' 'The Day the Atomic Rats Declared War on Kraft' and 'The Creatures From Outer Space Who Died and Became Crazy Mixed-Up Zombies.'"

Death of a Marine

WASHINGTON — The death of an American serviceman is tragedy enough for his family under any circumstances. But the loss is made even more painful when the Pentagon is less than forthcoming in disclosing the cause of death.

For example, the Navy recently attributed the deaths of some sailors to "unfortunate accidents." Investigation established the true cause of death as harassment and brutal mistreatment.

HERE'S ANOTHER tragic story of contradiction and uncertainty in the death of a serviceman:

More than 14 years ago, the Marine Corps reported that James Miller was one of 47 Americans who died in the crash of a helicopter in Vietnam. But his brother Lee wasn't satisfied that the Miller family had been told the whole truth.

After a year and a half of trying, Lee Miller finally was able to obtain some of his brother's medical and service records. My associate Donald Goldberg has seen the records and the classified Aircraft Accident Report issued at the time. The official documents are riddled with errors and internal discrepancies. For example:

— The accident report listed 47 dead. The helicopter's manifest showed only 42 men aboard. The telegram to the Miller family in 1968 said 45 died in the crash. The burial records account for only 39. A few months ago, the Marine Corps told a member of Congress that 48 were killed.

— Only five bodies were ever positively identified.

— Not a single dogtag — the virtually indestructible metal identity tag worn by every serviceman — was recovered at the crash site.

— The crash occurred shortly before the Tet offensive, in an area crawling with Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops, yet the Marines Corps insists no enemy forces were near the scene of the crash.

— Two of the report victims had "homicide" listed as the cause of death. Two were identified on the death reports as battle casualties in another province. In all, 10 death certificates don't match the crash records.

The worst contradictions are contained in James Miller's individual records.

On his death certificate, the words "body recovered" are sloppily typed over the original "body not recovered." His combat records show him fighting on various missions at the same time his medical records show him recuperating aboard a hospital ship. And his service record lists him as a rifleman on active duty with the First Marine Division a month after he was supposedly killed in the helicopter crash.

THE APPALLING truth seems to be that throughout the winter of 1967-68, the Marine Corps had no idea where James Miller was. Directory services had been repeatedly unable to deliver mail to him.

Wherever he was — and whether alive or dead — there is little evidence to place him aboard the helicopter when it crashed.

Military experts suggest that the helicopter tragedy was turned into a "crash of convenience." This is the cynical term used to describe a crash in which records of those aboard were not well kept. It then becomes an easy task to write in the names of additional "victims" from the backlog of men who are missing but presumed to be dead. It's a convenient way for the recordkeepers to close the books on these statistical annoyances.

Lee Miller wants the Marine Corps to reopen his brother's files and take another look at the confusing finds. So far, he has had no luck.

To judge from the autographed pictures of members of Congress that adorn the lobby's office on nearby Pennsylvania Avenue, ice cream is second only to motherhood as an inspiration to our lawmakers. ### Financial institutions in trouble

WASHINGTON — The failure of a small securities firm in New York last week identified a weak sector of the economy. Financial institutions — from big banks through brokerage houses to the savings, and loan industry — are in trouble.

The infirmity clearly works to keep interest rates high and to slow recovery from the present recession. Since financial strains are often masked, they could provide a nasty surprise that tips recession into something far worse. As a result, efforts to reduce the projected deficits in the federal budget acquire added urgency.

The small firm that went bust was Drysdale Government Securities. Its inability to pay interest on borrowed government securities entangled some 30 brokerage houses which had loaned the bonds to Drysdale through the Chase Manhattan Bank Chase at first refused to acknowledge responsibility for Drysdale's losses. The brokerage firms, some of them menaced by bankruptcy themselves, threatened to sue Chase. With lawyers all over town getting ready to attach its reserves, Chase accepted responsibility for more than $150 million in losses on several billion dollars worth of Treasury securities.

A hotshot operator, cutting corners in the government securities market, which is not regulated, is generally blamed for the debacle at Drysdale. But to say that is only to ask how a financial gunslinger managed to engage two major elements of the financial system — the big banks and the brokerage houses.

THE BIG BANKS include Chase, Citicorp, Bank of America, First Chicago, and about a dozen others. Since 1973 they have accumulated huge amounts of loanable capital, thanks to deposits from oil-producing countries that have benefited from the surge in petroleum prices. Soaring interest rates in this country have given the banks a keen incentive to put the money to work, and there has been intense competition to find borrowers. Personal relations with customers have been increasingly superseded by computer operations.

Austere standards, in consequence, have gone by the boards. Many foreign countries — notably Poland, but also Zaire — have received loans that go beyond their capacity to pay off. Frail companies — like Braniff and International Harvester — have enjoyed the same favor. Drysdale is thus merely a small case of a general decline in the quality of debt. The big banks have done for their customers what Jimmy Carter's former budget director did for his neighbors when he was a country banker. There has been Bert Lanceism in the big leagues.

The brokerage houses have always been thinly capitalized. Instead of accumulating assets over the years, as the banks do, their capital waxes and wanes as partners come and go. Higher interest rates mean larger fluctuations than before and bigger risks in buying and selling even such safe securities as Treasury bonds. Thus a major dip, unless covered by a big bank, could entail a wave of bankruptcies.

THE CUMULATIVE effect of these problems asserts a drag on the economy as a whole. Productive investment by business has been slowed because many firms would rather use assets to improve their debt position, or to speculate in currency and financial markets. Even if interest rates did go down, it is possible that demand for funds to restructure debt would quickly drive them up again. If so, recovery from the recession would be short-lived.

Much of the financial weakness, moreover, has been obscured from public view. Banks with weak loans, tend to let the debtors try to turn around rather than press claims that cannot be met. Thus several countries and some companies are being

Billy Graham

God is a loving God

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I believe God is a loving God, and everybody will go to Heaven eventually. After all, the Bible says that "God sent his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved" (John 3:17). W.B.G.

DEAR W.B.G.: Yes, God is a loving God, and we know that because the Bible tells us of his love. The Bible tells us God loves us so much that he gave his Son to die for our sins.

But if we believe God loves us because the Bible tells us so, we must also see what else the Bible has to say about him. In other words, we cannot pick and choose passages that happen to appeal to us, and then reject the rest of it. When we look at the whole Bible, we see that God is not only a God of love, but a God of justice and holiness as well. You quote John 3:17, but have you read the very next verse? Note it carefully: "Whoever believes in him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because he has not believed in the name of God's one and only Son." Or again, later in the same chapter we read, "Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life, but whoever rejects the Son will not see life, for God's wrath remains on him" (John 3:36).

I know this is not a popular teaching, but we cannot avoid it if we take the Bible seriously. Our problem is that we do not really see the holiness and perfect nature of God, and the terrible and horrible nature of sin. Sin separates us from God — both now, and in eternity. "Do you not know that the wicked will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived" (1 Corinthians 6:9).

The wonderful thing is that we need not fear the judgment of God. God himself has provided the way for our salvation. His Son took our sins upon himself, and by faith in him we can be saved. "Have you accepted the gracious gift of salvation that God offers you in Christ by faith? If not, I urge you to reach out and accept Christ as your personal Lord and Savior. "To all who received him, to those who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God" (John 1:12).

Family wonders where is justice

Dear Editor, On April 2nd, my brother-in-law was deliberately followed home on his motorcycle late at night from a nearby Seven Eleven store.

The driver deliberately hit the cycle and when the young man jumped off at the driveway and ran, the driver crushed and demolished the bike, dragging it for over four blocks.

The driver was identified by the vehicle's owner. He was arrested, but he posted bond and was released. After a polygraph test was supposed to be given, the charges were dropped.

The police department are not pursuing this as they say it is in the hands of the detective division.

We have a brand new demolished bike, which the insurance won't replace because the owner wasn't driving. We have a family who is afraid to leave their home at night, always wondering who tried to run down their son. Now we wonder where is justice?

The only mention of this incident was a four-line paragraph in Police Beat. No pictures were taken and evidently the incident is already pushed back in the files.

We would like to have the guilty person prosecuted, not only for the damage to the cycle, but for the mental anxiety caused to this family. We would like to see justice done.

Sincerely yours,
TAMMI PLANCHEON

Dr. Donohue Germ lives in carrier

Dear Dr. Donohue: This letter will be long, but it's the only way I can explain. My son, who is 5, had strep throat. He was put on antibiotics. When he finished the medicine the symptoms returned. He was put on still another antibiotic. Same thing. During this time three cultures were run. All were positive, and he always got the symptoms after finishing the supply of medicine. Now his pediatrician says that since the last culture was positive, and so long as he doesn't have symptoms, he must be a carrier of the germ.

Yet my son's temperature is still 99.2 in the afternoon. I am wondering what this means. His tonsils are still large. I am wondering why all of a sudden he would become a carrier and if that is harmful to him. Is he contagious to others? About the tonsils, I know they don't like to take them out anymore, but I don't want him to be harmed by them. I just cannot find the answers to my questions. — Mrs. L.R.

I'll take equal time in answering. Let me try to tackle your questions one by one.

1. After his repeated treatment with antibiotics, the persistent finding of the strep germ is not a cause for alarm. The germ can persist, but it loses its virulence.

2. It is present in such small numbers and in such a weakened state that it is not very likely to be passed on to anyone else. The child with the full-blown infection is the one who transmits it.

3. The size of the tonsils is not an indicator of health or illness. If the tonsils are so large that they interfere with swallowing or breathing, that's another matter. If they are covered with pus, that means they are infected. But the size alone should not worry you.

4. Temperature of 99.2 is not abnormal. Temperature varies from hour to hour in a day. That reading is less than a degree above what we call normal. It doesn't mean a thing so long as the boy is active and healthy.

5. The prompt antibiotic treatment your son got will stop any complications from strep infection. The fact that he is now a carrier doesn't mean that he will have complications later on from his previous infection.

Did I get them all?
(And speaking of temperatures):

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a waking temperature of 96.8 degrees. The normal waking temperature is 98.6 degrees. Is this likely to cause lowered resistance to disease or other problems? Is there any treatment for this condition? — R.S.S.

Our temperatures fluctuate throughout the day and night. From the considered average of 98.6, it can drop as much as 3.6 degrees during the night and early morning, and can reach its highest point in the late afternoon. If you cared to follow your temperature hourly during a 24-hour period you would see this clearly. And, if you exercise you will be surprised to see how high that can make your body temperature go. The thermometer is not the ultimate indicator of health. How you feel is. The waking temperature you cite is well within the realm of normality. You don't have to worry about it.

Girl Scouts celebrate

The Girl Scouts of the United States are celebrating the 70th Anniversary of the founding of the organization in 1912 by Juliette Gordon Low of Savannah, Georgia.

The year-long celebration will focus on its girl scouts and their activities, and upon adults who devote their time and talents to Girl Scouts.

The 70th Anniversary Cookbook include a wide assortment of recipes from Girl Scout leaders and friends, and is an anniversary gift, presented by West Texas Girl Scout Council, Inc., to all the adult members.

This is one way the Council is helping observe the 70th anniversary of Girl Scouts in the United States.

The cookbook was edited by Marianne Hooker W.T. G.S. Council Field Executive and was presented to adult members at Leader Appreciation Luncheon held throughout the area.

Adults need rules to live with parents

When adult children move back home, set up clear "ground rules" to make the transition easier, advises a family resource management specialist, Nancy Granovsky. "Even written lists or mini-contracts can go a long way in helping families adjust to these household changes," she says.

Mrs. Granovsky is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Economic pressures are the force behind many households doubling up, the specialist explains.

Three age groups seem most likely to make a move. Young adults or teenagers, 40-45-year-old singles (many of whom are recently divorced or legally separated) and those 70 years or older.

Rising rents and utility bills, high property taxes and the high cost of household maintenance are blamed for this trend. Many young adults feel the economic pinch as they try to manage on minimal starting salaries.

This results in many adult children moving home. Families unaccustomed to having their children at home could experience conflict unless certain mutually agreed upon ground rules about home management are established, she cautions.

Some of the daily living routines to work out include: PEOPLE SCHEDULES: Accommodate different work schedules so that living patterns and needs of all family members are respected. Retain independence with mutual respect for other people's time demands.

MEALS: Establish an equitable system for shopping, food preparation and clean-up. Decide how many meals will include the entire family.

HOUSEHOLD EXPENSES: Decide what financial support adult children will contribute to household expenses. Some household expenses will increase as a result of additional members.

LAUNDRY: Establish laundry rules. Some young adults may show a tendency to revert to pre-adult behavior when "someone else" did the laundry.

Pierces announce birth

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Pierce, Odessa, announce the birth of their first child, a son, Mark Braden. Mark was born at 9:53 p.m. at the Women and Children Hospital in Odessa, May 22. Mark weighed 8 pounds and measured 20 1/2 inches.

Mark's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Palmer, 1416

Stadium. His paternal grandparents are D.W. Pierce, 1405 E. 18th. Mark's maternal great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Palmer of Bellville, Kan., and Marie Alderson of Hebron, Neb. His paternal great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bland Waters of Weatherford and Addie Pierce of Abilene.

Club donates plaque

The 1905 Hyperion Club presented a plaque to the Howard County Library to honor the charter members of the club according to Mrs. Hayes Stripling at "End of the Year Luncheon" at the Big Spring Country Club, May 20.

Names of the charter members were engraved on the plaque. The 1905 Hyperion established the first library in Big Spring.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Rich Anderson, Mrs. D. O. Gray, Mrs. C.O. Nalley, and Mrs. Clyde Angel.

Mrs. Gray, president, announced that the program "The American Humorist" presented by Mrs. David Bristow and Mrs. Clyde Angel won first place in the Western division and tied for first in the state.

Mrs. Gray installed the following officers: Mrs. J.R. Anderson, president, Mrs. Aubrey Stokes, vice-president, Mrs. Ben Johnson, secretary, Mrs. Chesley McDonald, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Granville Dawson, treasurer, and Mrs. Norman Read, parliamentarian.

The club adjourned until September.

Second child born to Crittendens

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Crittenden, Garden City Rt., announce the birth of their second child, a daughter, Hope Marie. Hope Marie was born at Malone-Hogan Hospital at 10:54 p.m., May 8. She weighed 7 pounds 10 ounces and measured 20 inches in length.

Hope's maternal grandmother is Ruth Jones of Tulsa, Okla. Her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Crittenden, Garden City Rt. Her maternal great-grandparents are Mrs. Clarence Lawson, Jay, Okla., and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jones, Pryor, Okla.

Hope was welcomed home by her sister, Faith Renee.

HOUSEHOLD TASKS: Evaluate what must be done to maintain family standards for household care and who will do it. Plan to share tasks.

Every family situation is different, so the decisions about home management will naturally differ, Mrs. Granovsky explains.

What is important is that all parties sit down together to discuss the situation that brings them together and how they can live in harmony without fracturing independence or family relations, she adds.

Dear Abby

Agency, parents fight drugs

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I want to save our parents the heartache we felt when we discovered our sons were using marijuana and other drugs.

After many months of blaming ourselves, blaming others and searching for help, we heard about the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth — an organization founded, directed and administered by parents to educate and assist parents in the prevention and intervention of drug use. It helped us immediately. We received reliable up-to-date educational materials. We obtained a Parent Group Starter Kit, which told us how to form a parent support group. With this information, we were able to begin helping our family focus on the cause of our problem — drugs! Not only are our sons now drug-free, but my husband and I have been able to help hundreds of other parents recognize the signs and realize that they, too, must take positive steps to help their children.

It is important for all parents to know that their children will be faced with pressure to use drugs. (Our boys tell us that over 60 percent of students at their schools "do drugs.") The average beginning age is 11 1/2 years. I pray that you will print this soon.

Nail biting hazardous

If the embarrassment of unattractive hands hasn't been enough to convince you to give up nail-biting, some information just published in the May issue of SEVENTEEN Magazine may do the trick.

"Nail-biting can be hazardous to your health," the magazine reveals, after interviewing several doctors on the subject. "Persistent nail-biters run the risk of chronic infections. In addition, nail-biting over a long period of time can cause nails to grow back in an unnatural, curly pattern," the article concluded.

The medical problems associated with serious nail-biting certainly have not been overlooked because they are uncommon. According to one doctor interviewed by the magazine, Dr. Steven Abelman, "Two thirds of all Americans have bitten their nails at one time or another, usually to relieve stress but when the stress is gone the habit remains."

To make sure the news of this new health hazard does not increase stress for current nail-biters, the respond to every request for information promptly.

Parents wanting information or support should contact the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth, P.O. Box 722, Silver Spring, Md. 20901.

DEAR ABBY: "Tens" (really beautiful women) have a problem I call the curse of excessive beauty." Because of this, they are unapproachable by potential mates because everyone assumes that all such beauties are already spoken for.

This assumption, which is valid about 98 percent of the time, coupled with the male's natural fear of rejection 99 percent of the time, causes a lot of people to miss the boat.

When a beautiful woman is newly divorced or has just broken up with her last love and is not involved with anyone but would like to be, she has a problem.

My solution: Let her wear some kind of identifying symbol — a "sitting duck" perhaps — as an ornament on a charm bracelet, a necklace, a brooch, or even a T-shirt to signal to all male animals that the lady is at least approachable.

HERB IN HOUSTON

DEAR HERB: Nice try, but somehow I can't see a "10" wearing a "sitting duck" T-shirt to signal her availability. All she has to do to telegraph her interest is make eye contact and smile.

Bike-a-thon held

Sixty-two riders from the age of six to 73 participated in the American Diabetes Association bike-a-thon at the Big Spring Mall, April 25. This was the second bike-a-thon to be sponsored by the organization.

The oldest rider was Delma Daniel, Big Spring. He rode 35 miles and raised the most money in the adult division. Rocky Lee King, Coahoma, was the youngest rider, riding 32 miles. Darin Greenfield, Coahoma, rode the most miles for the day by riding 55 miles.

State Representative Larry Don Shaw, honorary chairman, rode 48 miles.

Shane Quinters was grand prize winner with a total of $423.26 collected. Other prize winners were in Rusty Ginnett, first, Pace Booth, second and Tonya Booth, third, in the age group 6-12 John Olson, first, Deborah Smith, second, and Scott Ginnett, third in the age 13-20 group; Delma Daniel, first, Ray Wood, second, and Carla Quinters, third, in the age group 21-up. Prizes will be given out at Malone-Hogan Hospital classroom at 7 p.m., June 3.

The purpose of the bike-a-thon was to raise funds for research. A large portion of the money raised by the event will go to research and education programs of the American Diabetes Assoc. for the 10 million Americans who have diabetes.

The prizes were donated by Peggy McDonald, Safeway, Phillip Tire, First Federal Savings and Loan, Broughton's Truck and Impl. Co., First National Bank, State National Bank, Coahoma State Bank, Security State Bank, Dunlaps, K-Mart and Big Spring Athletics.

Pope travels to possible trouble spot today

STADIUM MASS — Pope John Paul II, foreground with hands raised, offers up the host as he celebrates Mass at Wembley Stadium in London Saturday. The crowd is estimated at over 74,000.

By EDITH LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Pope John Paul II ordained a dozen priests today at a Mass for 200,000 people on the fourth day of his historic British pilgrimage, a day which was to take him later to potential trouble spots in heavily Protestant Scotland.

Police estimated 80,000 of the crowd at Manchester's Heaton Park had camped overnight to see the pontiff, in gold mitre, accept the new priests' vows and urge them not to forget "those who are in need, especially those who are in prison."

Departing from his prepared remarks, John Paul recalled that Christ loved prisoners, too.

"He did not specify whether they were innocent or guilty," the pontiff said. "Remember you represent Christ and no one can be excluded from your ministry."

The throng that waved Polish and papal flags to welcome John Paul was far smaller than expected. Organizers had said they were prepared for up to one million people.

Manchester police reported five arrests but no demonstrations, and the crowd was enthusiastic.

"It's the event of a lifetime," said Peter Dolan, 60, a Manchester businessman. "In my youth, you went to Rome to have an audience with the pope if you could. Now, the pope comes to us."

Earlier today, John Paul continued the ecumenical theme of his British visit by meeting in Manchester with Britain's chief rabbi, Sir Immanuel Jakobovits, and other Jewish leaders.

The Polish-born Pope, who as a student in Krakow helped save Jewish families from the Nazis, greeted the leaders with "Shalom" — Hebrew for "peace" — and said, "I wish to reiterate the full respect of the Christian church to the Jewish people." "Your visit to this country, although officially of a pastoral nature, is an historic event of significance far beyond our Catholic friends." Later Monday, John Paul was going to the northern English city of York to deliver a speech on the family, before traveling to Edinburgh at the beginning of a Scottish swing.

Scotland is a Presbyterian stronghold, and the Rev. Ian Paisley, the Presbyterian militant from Northern Ireland, promised to rally anti-Catholics Scots to protest the pope's visit. But so far Paisley's demonstrations have had no noticeable impact on the enthusiastic greeting accorded the 62-year-old pontiff.

On Sunday, Paisley mustered about 50 Protestants to wave Bibles and yell "anti-Christ" as the pope drove through a slum district of Liverpool. But they were lost amid the 200,000 to 250,000 cheering people who greeted the pope at the airport and lined his route through the city.

Paisley was taken away in a police car "for his own safety," a police spokesman said, and three of his supporters were arrested "offenses to public order."

Liverpool has Britain's largest Catholic community, nearly half the 510,000 population. But the pope also received a prolonged ovation in the city's huge Anglican cathedral where Archbishop Robert Runcie of Canterbury was shouted down in March by militant Protestants angered by his invitation to the pope. On Sunday, the 3,000 worshippers rose to their feet and gave John Paul 10 minutes of sustained applause after he embraced Anglican Bishop David Sheppard and joined him in reciting the Lord's Prayer.

Iran rescue mission 'bungled'

DALLAS (AP) — The leader of the bungled mission to rescue 52 American hostages in Iran says now that he's sorry he didn't "put his foot down" more often when the mission was planned.

Col. Charles Beckwith, who has come home to Texas after 30 years in the military, blamed the failure of the April 24, 1980 rescue operation on equipment failure, poor planning, and lax security.

The hostages were not released until Jan. 20, 1981.

"You've got to realize there were some very heavy people in Washington who were participating in this, and sometimes we would say 'How about this?' and they wouldn't know what in the hell we were talking about," Beckwith said in an interview in Sunday's Dallas Times Herald "Westward" magazine.

"So we had to sit down and explain things. There were times I had to put my foot down and say, 'If these things do not occur, then me and my guys are not going to go.' I do regret not putting my foot down more often."

The elaborate rescue plan, which involved all four branches of the military, called for Beckwith to lead the commandos who would storm the American embassy in Tehran and free the hostages.

The operation required six helicopters.

Planes from Egypt and choppers from the aircraft carrier Nimitz were to meet Beckwith and his troops in the desert 200 miles southwest of Tehran. While the aircraft waited with their motors running, the soldiers would transfer equipment from the planes to the helicopters.

Beckwith's men would rescue the hostages in Tehran, take them to a nearby stadium to board the helicopters, and fly to the planes waiting in mountains east of Tehran.

The mission ran into trouble soon after the group landed in the desert.

"At the third helicopter, the pilot said, 'The skipper told me to tell you only have five flyable choppers.' So I asked (Air Force) Col. (James) Kyle to go talk to them, find out what was wrong. He talked for about 10 or 20 minutes and came back and stated: 'They've got trouble in the hydraulic system. They can't fly forward. What do you want to do?'" Beckwith recalled.

"I told Col. Kyle: 'You tell me which one of the planes you want me to put my men on, because we're going home.'"

After the mission was aborted, eight servicemen were killed when a departing helicopter collided with a transport plane.

"The pilot of the first chopper to arrive said he wanted to top off his tanks before he departed, because he'd been on the ground, with his engines running longer," Beckwith said.

"As he was approaching the C-130 (the transport plane) with the fuel, his rotor struck the 130. There was an explosion and a huge fireball."

"Operation security wasn't maintained. Certain things like keyboards were lost and then found by my guys."

Johncock triumphs in close-call Indy

DOWN TO THE WIRE — Championship driver Gordon Johncock, car 20, is chased by pole-sitter Rick Mears as both racers fought it out late in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Sunday.

Johncock finished 16-hundredths of a second ahead of Mears to win the second-fastest race in Indy history.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The tower at the head of the track ticked off the laps as the brave men who pilot racing cars at blurring speeds zoomed around the oval, setting the stage for the closest, most dramatic finish in the history of the Indianapolis 500.

With a dozen laps to go Sunday, Gordon Johncock's Wildcat Cosworth was leading the race and Rick Mears, driving a Penske Ford, was chasing him. The difference between the two cars was 12 seconds and 350,000 frenzied fans, their cheers almost drowned out by the ear-splitting sounds of the engines, were about to witness Johncock survive the most exciting stretch duel in the 66 years that cars have been hurtling around this storied course.

It takes 200 trips around the 2.5-mile Indy track to finish this grueling test of man and machine and at 190 laps, Mears, operating the fastest car in the field, had Johncock in his sights, trailing the leader by 10 seconds.

Mears had qualified his car at an astounding 207.044 mph, and now, driving with what the auto racing fraternity calls "pedal to metal," he made his move, slicing the distance between them as the tower ticked off the laps.

Johncock worried about those crucial final dozen laps.

"I wondered if I might blow a tire or run out of fuel, or some other crazy thing like has happened so many times in the past," he said. "As long as I kept running, I was all right. I knew I had to run all out."

He had finished in the top 10 in this test four straight times and had won it in 1973 in a rain-shortened race, getting the news while his car sat in the pits, waiting for a rainstorm to pass. This time, though, Johncock would have to earn his victory on the track, fighting off a frantic stretch drive by Mears.

At 192 laps, the gap was 8.5 seconds. At 193, it was 6.5. At 194, it was 6. At 195, it was 5.

As each lap was completed, Mears kept creeping closer and closer to Johncock, the Penske Ford responding majestically to its driver's demands.

"I was trying everything I could think of," said Mears, "but he had a lot better straightaway speed. I could catch him in the corners but I couldn't hold it."

GORDON JOHNCOCK ...in victory lane

Johncock, who had battled so hard to get in front, was not surrendering to the pressure Mears applied.

"No way I was going to back off," he said. So the two-car duel continued as the laps on the tower fell one by one. At 196 laps, the gap was 3 seconds. At 197, it was 1.67. At 198, it was .56.

By now, the crowd was on its feet, howling at the sight of these two magnificent drivers dueling for the most prestigious title in their sport, battling man-to-man with the miles running out on them.

As they crossed the row of bricks that marks the start-finish line at Indy for the last time, they were just about parallel. The race would be decided in the final lap — 2.5 pulsating miles, one more trip around the oval that has recorded its share of heartaches and thrills in its storied history. This was going to be one to remember — the 45-year-old Johncock, one of seven drivers who have accounted for 14 victories in the last 16 Indys, against the 30-year-old Mears, who won here in 1979 in only his second try.

"I really didn't know where he was," Johncock confessed. "I couldn't see him in my mirror. I didn't know if he was behind me or to the side of me."

Mears: 'We gave the people a good show'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bitter? Not Rick Mears.

"We gave the people a good show, and that's what we're out here for," a smiling Mears said Sunday after finishing a heart-breaking 16-hundredths of a second behind Gordon Johncock in the closest — and one of the most controversial — Indianapolis 500 races in history.

"If people didn't like this race," he added, "I don't know where to tell them to go."

The Johncock-Mears duel brought a frenzied, thrilling finish to a day that began on a sour and near-tragic note. Again, Mears was in the center of things. A crash on the final parade lap eliminated Mario Andretti, second-year driver Kevin Cogan and rookies Roger Mears and Dale Whittington.

And several drivers, including Johncock and Johnny Rutherford, said it was caused by Mears' bringing the field to a start too slowly. Mears was on the pole position, just as he was in earlier races at Phoenix and Atlanta.

"Rick brought us down too slow, I believe," said Rutherford. "The start was too slow," said an angry Andretti, who directed most of his venom at Cogan.

"We had the same pace at Phoenix, and in Atlanta," Mears said. "It doesn't matter what the pace is. They (race officials) said not to speed up, then slow down and speed up again. There are some people who have got to blame somebody for everything. I didn't have any problem with it."

But Mears said he did have a problem with a bumping incident on his final pit stop with Herm Johnson. With 17 laps to go, Mears pulled in behind Johnson and the cars bumped. Those few precious ticks of the clock may have meant the difference between winning and losing, Mears said.

Boring Indy? Not at all

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — For years some skeptics have scoffed at the Indianapolis 500, arguing it isn't a sport at all but a dull exercise in mechanical science.

"As exciting as watching grass grow," grumbled some as they watched the low-slung cars hum around the old oval at blurring speed.

"It's lost all its glamor since these exotic machines replaced the roadsters," said many an old-timer. "It was better when the guys wore only sweat shirts and battled it out fender to fender."

These jaded appraisals of bigtime championship racing died an agonizing death Sunday in the fierce duel that saw little, plucky Gordon Johncock withstand a fierce rally by favored Rick Mears to win the 66th race in this storied Memorial Day series.

Johncock won by 16-hundredths of a second, the closest margin in the 71-year history of the event. The winning time of 162.029 mph was the second fastest, exceeded only by Mark Donahue's 162.962 in 1972.

But this was a race that should not be obscured with figures, talk of aerodynamics, ground effects and Cosworth engines.

It was man against man, and it was something beautiful to behold — two gristled men locked into the small cockpit of winged machines that are the closest things possible to ground missiles.

From track side, one sees them pass with only a puff and a whine.

Johncock and Mears, the latter a member of the Penske stable, typified such unbreakable steel nerve in Sunday's race which people will be talking about with awe for generations.

NBA championship

76ers even series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers preached what they practiced and as a result are tied at one victory each with the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association championship playoff.

The 76ers, led by the irrepressible Julius "Dr. J." Erving, snapped a 12-game Lakers' winning streak — a record nine in this year's playoffs — with a 110-94 triumph Sunday.

The loss also ended Los Angeles' NBA mark of consecutive playoff victories on the road — dating to 1980 — at seven.

The best-of-seven-game series now shifts to Los Angeles for Games 3 and 4 Tuesday and Thursday nights, with the fifth game scheduled here next Sunday.

"We worked hard the last two days in practice on stopping their trap plays and we did," said 76ers' coach Billy Cunningham.

Erving, who scored 24 points, grabbed 14 rebounds and handed out three assists, agreed with his coach.

"We learned (in practice) how to deal with their traps. We exposed them in the first half, and forced adjustments," Erving said.

"We have taught ourselves how to beat the Lakers." The Lakers' traps consist of double-teaming the ball. It forces the opposition into turnovers and keys the L.A. fastbreak.

Philadelphia shut the trap doors by spreading around the court and making quick passes, then patiently waiting for the open shot.

It bordered on a zone offense. The 76ers took the lead at 10-9 and never trailed. They opened a 34-26 first quarter lead, and upped it to 57-44 at halftime.

They led by 11 at halftime in the first game and by 15 with 5:59 left in the third period before falling apart as the Lakers outscored them 40-9 and took a 16 point lead.

Not Sunday. The Lakers never got closer than six in the third period, and eight in the final quarter. The Sixers had a 19-10 spurt in the third as Andrew Toney hit five of seven for 10 of his 12 points.

Toney also contributed 11 assists in the game. The Lakers scored six straight points to make it, 98-90, with 6:30 remaining as the sellout crowd of 18,364 stirred uneasily.

But the 76ers went on a 12-4 spurt to keep the game in hand.

In addition to Erving, the 76ers got 19 points and eight assists from Maurice Cheeks, and 12 points from Caldwell Jones, Bobby Jones and Richardson had 10 each.

The Lakers' scoring was led by Abdul-Jabbar with 23 points. Magic Johnson collected 18, while Jamaal Wilkes, who scored 24 in game one, managed only 13.

Abdul-Jabbar had only seven rebounds. Johnson's 11 was the best for Los Angeles.

IT WENT THAT-A-WAY — Los Angeles Lakers Jamaal Wilkes tries to turn back for a loose ball as Philadelphia 76ers Bobby Jones begins to fall to the court during second half in the second game of the NBA Championship series in Philadelphia Sunday. The 76ers won 110-94 to tie the best-of-seven series 1-1.

Use it with 2,4,5-T to control more weeds and brush on more acres than other treatments.

Conditioning to promote the growth of beneficial plants is essential for getting the most out of your rangelands. Broadleaf weeds and brush rob rangeland of vital moisture and soil nutrients, strangling grasses... tying down your cattle's weight gains.

You have a choice of herbicides to combat broadleaf weeds and brush on your rangeland... but one outdoes all the others. Banvel® Herbicide. Tank mix Banvel with 2,4,5-T to take problem weeds out of your rangeland, including poisonous and hard-to-control varieties. You'll improve the overall condition of the rangeland. And help beneficial forage to thrive for better production from your cattle.

Get the most out of your range. Get the herbicide that conditions like no other... Banvel Herbicide. Ask your ag chem dealer about Banvel Herbicide for rangeland broadleaf weed and brush control.

Rangers bomb Kansas City

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Keith Creel's second major-league start was supposed to be a big deal.

Creel, a high-school pitching star at nearby Duncanville, was summoned to Kansas City from the minors a week ago and about 30 family members were on hand Sunday to watch him start against the Texas Rangers.

It was not a pretty sight. Billy Sample bashed Creel's first pitch into the bleachers — his first home run of the season — and things went downhill for Creel from there as Texas won it 8-1.

"I knew he'd be pumped up, that the adrenaline would be flowing," Sample said. "With his family and friends in the stands I knew he'd be high, so I just went up to the plate wanting to be ready. I didn't want to let him get ahead in the count and take control of the situation."

Before he left in the fifth inning, Creel had surrendered six runs on seven hits, five walks and two wild pitches, plus rookie Dave Hostetler's first American League home run.

"They just hit him, that's all," Royals Manager Dick Howser said.

Did either Sample's leadoff homer or the family in the stands bother Creel?

"They shouldn't," Howser said. "If they do, he'll just have to get over that. I've got some patience. We'll go with him."

"I may have been a little nervous," said Creel, 1-1, "but not any more than usual when you start. It (the leadoff homer) shakes you, it would shake anybody, but you have to settle down and I didn't."

Creel's Texas counterpart, veteran Doc Medich, went the distance for the first time this year, scattering six hits.

"I felt good throwing the ball and a big early lead meant I could throw for the middle of the plate ... and not try to be as fine with my control," said Medich, 3-5, with a nod in Sample's direction.

"He's the most aggressive player we have on the team," Medich said of the young slugger who had two home runs and scored three times.

Yankees 8, Twins 6

The New York Yankees are getting all the good bounces these days — and the Minnesota Twins the bad ones.

"We're playing well. We're just not getting the breaks," said Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner after Sunday's 8-6 loss to the Yankees in 10 innings.

The latest bounce that broke the Twins' backs came in the eighth inning of the game at the Hubert H. Metrodome. The Twins had battled back from an early 6-0 deficit to pull within a run.

Facing Goose Gossage, the Yankees' top reliever, Gary Gaetti walked and Larry Milbourne singled. Then Gary Ward hit a ball into the right field corner that appeared likely to clear the bases.

But the ball bounced off the artificial turf and over the wall for a ground-rule double, allowing only one run to score. The Yankees got out of the inning, then won it in the 10th on Willie Randolph's run-scoring single and Oscar Gamble's RBI double.

Indians 4, White Sox 2
Andre Thornton hit a three-run homer and Toby Harrah added a solo shot to support Len Barker's nine-hit pitching and spark Cleveland over Chicago. It was the Indians' seventh straight victory.

Thornton hit his third-inning blast off White Sox starter Dennis Lamp, 4-1, to boost his AL RBI lead to 44. The homer was his 13th.

Brewers 7, Angels 3
Cecil Cooper capped a four-run rally with a two-run homer in the fifth inning to spark Milwaukee over California.

The Brewers erased a 3-0 deficit after getting just one hit through four innings off right-hander Bruce Kison, 4-1. Mark Brouhard doubled, took third on a single by Jim Gantner and scored on another double by Marshall Edwards. Roy Howell's sacrifice fly scored Gantner before Cooper slammed his sixth homer of the season, giving Milwaukee a 4-3 edge.

The Angels' runs off Jim Slaton, 4-1, came on Fred Lynn's solo homer in the second inning, his second, and a two-run blast in the fourth by Doug DeCinces, his sixth.

Blue Jays 6, Orioles 0

Rookie Jim Gott and Roy Lee Jackson combined on a one-hitter and Damaso Garcia knocked in two runs, leading Toronto over Baltimore.

Gott, 2-1, fanned six batters and allowed only a fifth-inning single by Rick Dempsey before being lifted with a stiff right shoulder after issuing his fourth walk, to leadoff batter Terry Crowley in the seventh. Jackson, making his 17th appearance in Toronto's 46th game, recorded his fourth save.

Jim Palmer, 2-3, was the loser.

Tigers 5-3, A's 2-10

Alan Trammell broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run single in the fourth inning, sending Detroit over Oakland in the first game of their doubleheader. The Tigers managed only five hits altogether, but Oakland helped them with 10 walks.

Rickey Henderson stole four bases, raising his season total to 49 in 49 games, smashed three hits and drove in three runs to pace Oakland's second-game victory.

Mariners 2, Red Sox 1

Richie Zisk and Gary Gray delivered run-scoring doubles after two were out in the ninth inning as Seattle rallied to beat Boston.

Boston's John Tudor, 4-3, walked leadoff batter Bobby Brown in the ninth, but was one out away from shutting out the Mariners when Zisk doubled home the tying run. Gray then belted reliever Mark Clear's first pitch for the game-winning hit.

The Red Sox had held a 1-0 lead by virtue of Jim Rice's first-inning single.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 1, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day and evening for you to engage in activities that you enjoy and can perform in a most efficient manner. You are able to come to a fine accord with associates.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more enthused at whatever work you are committed to, whether indoors or outdoors and get excellent results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Delve into all that work you have to do instead of wasting time on less important matters. Don't neglect vital bills.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give more attention to your home and make it more comfortable. You are able to communicate very well with others today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to have increased income in the days ahead. Schedule your activities more intelligently.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are noted for generosity but now you must balance your accounts and need to be more frugal than in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show your knack for precision and get right results when dealing with others. Take no risks with your savings now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care of those accumulated chores you have put off. Once they are finished, you can enjoy company of loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to have better relations with your friends by controlling your temper. You have creative ideas that need expression.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Work more and talk less today, especially in civic duties you may be involved in. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in outside activities that can help you advance in your career. Follow your intuition when dealing with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Adopting a new method can help you run business affairs more effectively. Be more accurate with figures.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to confer with associates and to get mutual matters worked out more satisfactorily. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of working out fine plans for projects and then carrying through with them to a successful completion. Send to the finest schools you can afford and teach to work with hands for best results.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

24 anglers back from Cuban trip quizzed by Customs
 FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Twenty-four bass anglers who traveled to Cuba after their fishing trip was banned by the U.S. Treasury Department were welcomed home by federal agents seeking answers about their journey.
 U.S. Customs officials quizzed the fishermen, some of whom traveled with their wives, shortly after they arrived at Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport Sunday afternoon.
 The government claims the fishermen were flown to Cuba May 23, eight days after unrestricted travel to the Communist-ruled island ended when a currency flow ban was imposed by the Reagan administration under the federal "trading with the enemy" act.
 "What we're doing here is an investigation," said Robert Guthrie, criminal investigations supervisor for the Customs service. But Guthrie refused to say who or what was being investigated.
 The fishermen were flown to Cuba by Florida Air-motive, a Palm Beach-based air charter firm under contract to Cuba Travel U.S.A., a company located in Houston, Texas, that specializes in bass-fishing trips to Lake Hanabaniilla in Cuba.
 Government officials said last week both firms had been informed in writing and by telephone not to fly any more fishing parties to Cuba after May 15.
 Under the restrictions of the travel ban, only people with relatives in Cuba, journalists, research scientists and performers are allowed to travel freely from the U.S. to Cuba.
 Officials from Cuba Travel U.S.A. and Florida Air-motive officials told The Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel that the anglers who make the trips all conduct "research." But a federal agent disagreed.
 "The overall character of these trips is that the people are involved in sports fishing, not research," said Dennis O'Connell, director of the treasury department's office of foreign assets control.
 One of the anglers who made the trip, Barney Felcher, 43, of Cooper City, Fla., said: "We haven't really done anything wrong. We were down there researching."
 "I would like to see it all straightened out," said Felcher, who said he had often traveled to Cuba in the past five years. "There are still a lot of virgin lakes in Cuba to be checked out."
Three people drown in North Texas lakes
 DALLAS (AP) — At least three people drowned in rain-swollen North Texas lakes as the Memorial Day weekend began, and officials said certain park areas had been closed because of the high waters.
 "We're encouraging people to stay away because there are a lot of hazards," said Edward Hill, assistant reservoir manager at Lake Lavon. "We're having trouble keeping people out of the barricaded areas. They're ignoring the signs; they don't realize the hazards."
 Said one U.S. Army Corps of Engineers official: "You could be motorboating over a 20-foot tree."
 Authorities identified the dead as:
 — Steve Pena, 17, Dallas, who disappeared while swimming with friends in Grapevine Lake early Sunday.
 — Tommy Joe Wilson, 26, Wylie, vanished in Lake Lavon early Sunday.
 — Jody Doty, 21, Farmers Branch, died Sunday afternoon when his plastic raft capsized and he was thrown into the spillway current at Lake Lewisville.

'Eddie Macon's Run'

Rookies, veterans make movie in Laredo

By KATHY BAKER
Associated Press Writer

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — "Lock it up" is movie talk for shut up and be still. As soon as the order is relayed down the line, crew and onlookers alike obey, all holding their breath in anticipation.

All eyes are skyward as the stunt coordinator waits for the sun to pass from behind a cloud. At last he gives the "roll 'em" signal, and the serenity of the Laredo graveyard is creased by the sound of spinning tires and spewing gravel.

The brown Dodge hits the ramp hidden by phony gravestones, flies into the air, flips end over end, does a 180-degree turn in mid-air and lands on its roof.

After what seems like an eternity, director Jeff Kanew yells "cut" and the stuntman scrambles out of the car. Kanew runs to him and the two men embrace as the crew whoops and cheers.

After hours of preparation, it was over in a flash. Later, apparently oblivious to the macabre setting, actor John Schneider sits casually on a real tombstone in the middle of the cemetery and professes not to be particularly impressed.

"We do two turn-overs and a jump before lunch on 'Dukes,'" he says. Although this is his first feature-length film, Schneider is blasé about death defiance, having witnessed plenty as star of that bane of driver's ed teachers — "Dukes of Hazzard."

This is Kirk Douglas' "73rd or 74th" movie. Although it is humid and the noon-time temperature has hit 90, he sits in the sun with the rest of the crew rather than in one of the portable, air-conditioned dressing rooms over at "base camp" on the other side of the cemetery.

"I don't have to be out here," he insisted before the stunt. "I want to see this. This is a terrific stunt."

The 66-year-old veteran is still seemingly awestruck by the whole movie-making process. His 28-year-old rookie co-star is almost bored.

"When I do a movie, I start to get excited, and people seem surprised that I have an excitement about making movies," Douglas said in an interview at his hotel overlooking the Rio Grande before the day's shooting.

"But if I didn't get excited about movies, I wouldn't make them. I don't need to make them for financial reasons." Douglas and Schneider head the cast of "Eddie Macon's Run," the story of a wrongly imprisoned young father who escapes the Texas Department of Corrections and runs cross-country at night from Huntsville to Laredo to escape with his wife to Mexico.

It is being filmed entirely in and around Laredo and is scheduled for release next spring.

Schneider plays the young hero, Douglas a New Jersey cop displaced to Texas who delivers some digs at his "dumb cowboy" co-workers which can be expected to inflame any self-respecting Texas law enforcement officers who see the film.

"The interesting part is he's never changed any of his eastern ways," Douglas says of Marzack, his character.

"He dresses just like he did in New Jersey. He's opinionated — you know, 'These cowboys, what do they know.' He's a real cop."

"I'm always fascinated by characters who are loners, people who society is against and they overcome all the odds and fulfill what they want to do."

Schneider, meanwhile, betrays no over-analysis of his role, which he jokingly says he accepted so long ago he no longer remembers why.

"My character is kind of a hero, because he's unjustly imprisoned and he's running against time, trying to meet his family, which is the American way and all that."

"Eddie Macon's Run" is only Kanew's second directing effort. He is not the raging, charismatic stereotype of a movie director. He takes quiet command of the situation when necessary, but otherwise lets his people work without hindrance.

Directing a veteran like Douglas and a rookie like Schneider has been no particular problem, said Kanew during a break in the filming.

"The intensity of television work makes John a professional," he said. "Kirk has more knowledge about the moviemaking process and what's involved, which I find very helpful. He makes a lot of suggestions. Some of them don't gibe with my concept of the movie, but he's given a lot to the movie in terms of his character."

"It's been very good for me working with both of them. I was a little nervous — Kirk Douglas and all those movies. But he's made me feel like I know what I'm doing."

Kanew's first film was "Natural Enemies," a 1978 effort that starred Hal Holbrook, Louise Fletcher and Jose Ferrer. It was not a commercial success, to say the least. But it did impress Robert Redford to the point that he hired Kanew to edit "Ordinary People," and gave Kanew enough new credibility to get this project.

"This was the kind of film I needed to do, because my last film was so cerebral and talkie and, in some people's minds, dull," Kanew said. "It's an opportunity for me to show that I can do more than just dialogue. But it has enough humanity and things that I'm interested in that it isn't just a car-chase movie."

"Natural Enemies" was the story of a outwardly successful, middle-aged executive so alienated from his world that he kills his whole family, then commits suicide.

After depressing the few audiences who did get to see "Natural Enemies," Kanew took the opposite tact with his next film. Despite his protestations of its loftier values, "Eddie Macon's Run" is basically an un-cerebral chase movie.

"No matter what anybody says, that's the bottom line," said Kanew. "I want it to be successful — and I think it will be a pretty good movie, too."

Bonnie Raitt looking for breakthrough hit

By JAMES SIMON
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — She's a concert headliner from coast to coast, and her albums routinely sell hundreds of thousands of copies. But after 11 years of trying, Bonnie Raitt just can't come up with the hit single she longs for.

The bluesy tunes on her first several albums never cracked AM radio. A cover version of Del Shannon's "Runaway" got her into the Top 40, but no higher. Producer Peter Asher failed in his attempt to turn Miss

Raitt into a slick popster with her 1979 album, "The Glow."

This year Miss Raitt put down her acoustic guitar, teamed up with the hard rocking Bump Band and released "Green Lights," possibly her best album ever. But so far — still no hit.

"The economics of the record business are such that if you don't have a hit single, the record will sit there at 150,000 (copies) and not even go up to 300,000 because you can't get it played," Miss Raitt said before performing two sold-out shows at the Orpheum Theatre.

"With the new album, 'Keep This Heart of Mine' didn't do as well as we hoped as the first single, so now we're trying with 'Me And The Boys,'" she said with a sigh. "At least we're getting a lot more airplay on the record as a whole, with a lot of hard rock stations that never played me before. It's kind of thrilling to not always be relegated to the dentist's office."

The Boston shows were a homecoming for the 32-year-old singer, who started her career by playing the blues in local coffeehouses while attending Radcliffe College in nearby Cambridge in the late 1960s.

The country blues tunes that first brought her fame are still part of her live show. But they're overshadowed by the loud rock that Miss Raitt says has been bottled up inside her for a long time.

"It's a definite rock'n'roll band now," she said. "The feeling I used to get at the tail end of my set is what I get for the whole set now. Luckily, at a time when the country is moving toward hard rock, and there are more women in rock who are getting successful. That also happens to be the time when I am wanting to do more of that kind of music."

While the material may have changed, Miss Raitt still presents a sassy, independent image on stage, tossing off wisecracks and barbed remarks about the nuclear power industry she has long crusaded against.

She hopes the hard rock approach will allow her to broaden her audience by attracting younger fans without losing too many of the people who have followed her for a decade.

Van Cliburn director named

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Andrew Raeburn of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will assume the executive directorship of the Van Cliburn Foundation, Inc. in early July, foundation officials have announced.

The foundation presents concerts throughout the year, but is best known for the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition.

Texas Jam comes to Dallas June 12, Houston on June 13

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Staff Writer

Texas provides a wide assortment of summer activities, everything from deep-water fishing off the coast to taking in the thrills and chills of championship rodeo. And then there the Texas Jam.

The fifth annual party is planned June 12 and 13 and this year the fun happens in two locations. The original Texas World Music Festivals were held in Dallas but later switched to the air-conditioned comfort of the Astrodome in Houston. Now the rock-n-roll is twice as good, playing first in the Cotton Bowl June 12 and then traveling south for another engagement June 13 under the Dome.

Gates open promptly at 11 a.m. in Dallas to give concert-goers time to get situated before the music is cranked out by Journey, Santana, Joan Jett and the Blackhearts, Sammy Hagar and Point Blank.

A new addition to the show will be giant video screens that will give everyone of the 80,000 folks expected a chance to see Journey up close.

Journey is the biggest name among the performers, continuing the past tradition of the Jam to bring the best rock-in-roll to the big stage. In the past, Aerosmith, Ted Nugent, Heart, Boston, the Eagles and REO Speedwagon have headlined and not failed to live up to their pre-show billing.

Journey rose steadily as one of the nation's favorite bands but exploded on the music scene with last year's huge success with "Escape." The mega-purchase album released the huge hits "Who's Crying Now," "Don't Stop Believing," "Keep on Running," "Dead or Alive" and the ballad "Open Arms."

Lead singer Steve Perry and lead guitarist Neal Schon are the pathmakers for Journey. Bassist Ross Valory and drummer Steve Smith are two other original members of the group which lost Gregg Rolie to a solo career. His replacement is Jonathan Cain, formerly with The Babys and stints with Santana.

Journey has done some extensive touring and if you've caught them on video, you've seen Japanese crowds have their pagodas rocked off.

The oldest band and one of the most respected anywhere for their distinctive style and originality is Santana.

Sure this group has its own following among Chicanos but Santana's success for so many years can't be based on appeal to one group alone. Why? Rhythm, mind-boggling guitar solos of Carlos Santana and soulful lyrics can make followers of anyone.

Santana was a highlight of the famous Woodstock scene. The group can go from Latin to jazz without missing a single beat.

Big hits over the years are "Evil Ways" and "Black Magic Woman." This group, however, puts together package albums, that is, not relying on one single's power but on side-to-side listening enjoyment.

With one album and particularly one single, Joan Jett and her Blackhearts have become rock immortals. Cashing in on the recent success of female rockers led by Pat Benatar, Ellen Shipley and others, Miss Jett has made "I Love Rock-n-Roll" a legend in 1982. "Crimson and Clover," a remake of the 60's classic by Tommy James, is now heating up the charts.

The group has already made one big appearance in this area, rocking the Tornado Jam in Lubbock.

Sammy Hagar has never been a big, big superstar but followers have never been disappointed with his work. Always ready to turn a corner with a fast car or fast guitar riff, Hagar, the man in love with red, is a great concert performer.

His latest album is "Standing Hampton" and this work has come a long way since his days with heavy metal Montrose.

While Hagar hasn't had a big Top 40 single himself, his "I've Done Everything For You," (found on his live album) was recorded by Rick Springfield and zoomed to the top 10 along with everything else Dr. Noah Drake released in the past year.

JOURNEY TO THE TEXAS JAM — Continuing a tradition of great headlining groups, Journey will top off another great day of rock-n-roll at the Fifth Annual Texas World Music Festival June 12 in Dallas and June 13 in Houston. Joining Journey will be Santana, Joan Jett and the Blackhearts, Sammy Hagar and Point Blank.

Two great concert works are the old Montrose hit "Bad Motorscooter" and "Young Girl Blues," an oldie by Donovan.

Finally, there's Point Blank and that really isn't a finally to it. Point Blank is a Texas favorite, playing basic rock blues. After years of touring with other groups, the band has gone into the album business and been increasingly successful with each release.

The recent "American Excess," turned out the single "Nicole" which was the group's first Top 40 hit. Their latest is "On a Roll," which reflects their success after years of hard work.
