British shell capitol

By The Associated Press

British and Argentine gunners traded artillery fire around the outskirts of Stanley as Britain beefed up its forces in preparation for the final assault on the besieged Falkland Islands capitol.

Argentine troops, driven back into a "horseshoe" defensive position, began firing back at Royal Marines shelling Moody Brook, 3 miles from Stanley, in the first artillery exchanges outside the capitol, British correspondents reported from forward positions Wednesday night. Moody Brook is believed by the British to be a forward headquarters for the estimated 7,000 Argentines defending Stanley.

British helicopters lifted 105mm guns, with a range of 10 1/2 miles, to the hilltops west of the town while British Scorpion light tanks moved into position and Snowcat transport vehicles brought supplies and ammunition across the boggy terrain.

A senior British defense source in London said the buildup was expected to take "a few days."

"The position of our forces in Puerto Argentino (the Argentine name for Stanley) has been consolidated according to plan and the men await the battle with spirits renewed by a rousing speech by their military governor," the Argentine military command said in a communique Wednesday night.

The command acknowledged skirmishing between British and Argentine troops but gave no details.

British correspondents on the battlefield, whose reports were subject to military censorship, said British troops controlled the ridges overlooking Stanley including the 1,535-foot Mount Kent, the highest position 12 miles from the center of the little town, and the Two Sisters ridge, 3 miles closer.

Independent Television News correspondent Michael Nicholson said some British units "could see through their binoculars Argentine troops eating their lunch."

As ground shelling, naval and air bombardment continued, government sources in London said British planes dropped thousands of leaflets on See Falklands, page 2-A

Buyer bargains for Settles sale

A hurdle has been crossed in the potential purchase and renovation of the Hotel Settles by an individual in Dallas, City Manager Don Davis said today.

After several visits and studies made by civil, structural and soils engineers hired by the potential buyer, the hotel has been named structurally sound despite a visible crack on circumventing the outside of the 15-story hotel, Davis said.

for long-term housing.

Rich later said he didn't think he could come up with the funds needed to renovate the neglected hotel and hoped to sell the hotel to somebody who could revamp it and return it to operation.

The prospective Dallas buyer is "pursuing purchase" of the hotel, Davis said. He is required to pay the delinquent taxes to get clear title.

Davis said if the liens are cleared the next probable step for the buyer will be to conduct a market analysis

Buyer 'beginning to see glimmer of light'

—Don Davis

The buyer is "beginning to see glimmer of light" in buying and renovating the hotel property "if the liens can be cleared and the price is right," Davis said.

The potential buyer is facing complications involving liens on the building, Davis said, resulting from delinquent taxes owed to the city of Big Spring, Howard County, the Howard County Junior College District and the state of Texas dating back to 1978.

The hotel passed into the hands of Bo Rich of Odessa last October, who said he bought the structure for about $500,000. At the time he talked of spending at least $1 million on renovating the hotel and opening it up "to see what the community reaction and feeling would be "towards renovation" and whether the community would "support" the project.

Davis said the potential buyer views the project as a possible first step to revitalizing the downtown central business district.

The prospective buyer is "very adamant that the first two floors (of the hotel) be restored to its original use and condition," Davis said. The bottom two floors initially contained retail and rental space and a ballroom.

Davis said the developers were "not only sincerely interested, but also bonified legitimate developers."

BSHS band director Steve Waggoner said that an Air Force Band spokesman requested that he choose five BSHS students to rehearse and play one song with them at the performance.

The Air Force Band from Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio is scheduled to perform several selections by Sousa, George M. Cohan, Duke Ellington, Glenn Miller and others. The concert is free to the public, but tickets will be used for preferred seating.

Senate candidate visits here

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Republican Jim Reese kicked off his general election campaign for the Texas Senate Wednesday in Big Spring by stressing the importance of Howard County to the election. Reese, who is running for the 28th District Senate seat against Democratic John Montford, spoke at a press conference at the Brass Nail.

"My opponent is well-known in Lubbock," Reese told reporters. "I'm well-known here. All things should balance off, I think. The election is likely to be decided in Howard County."

Reese stressed his knowledge of the needs and concerns of the area as a qualification for the position. "I'm aware of the things we need to be doing," Reese said. "I'm willing to listen to people to solve their problems."

Concrete cracked around reactor?

Flaw in Comanche Peak plant reported

DALLAS (AP) — The first nuclear reactor installed at the Comanche Peak power plant is flawed by a crack in the concrete work that surrounds it, a Dallas newspaper reported today.

Records filed for the federal licensing hearing for the plant disclosed the crack, The Dallas Morning News said in a copyright story.

Texas Utilities, through its subsidiaries, owns 88 percent of Comanche Peak.

One set of Texas Utilities records indicates the crack runs through the 7-foot thickness of the base mat, the foundation on which the nuclear reactor sits, the newspaper said.

But officials at the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission said utility records show the crack is only 1 1/2 inches deep and located in the upper-level radiation shielding for the reactor.

Experts told the News that the size and location of the crack and the way it was repaired will determine whether it is a safety hazard.

A split of the base mat could be dangerous, especially if water seeped in to corrode structural reinforcing steel, but a shallow crack in the shielding would be of little consequence, the NRC said.

The problems of crime and drugs are concerns of Reese. The former Odessa mayor stated two pieces of legislation he hopes to promote in the Texas Legislature. "I think we need mandatory jail sentences for gun-related offenses," Reese said. The mandatory sentences will become law "provided we don't have too many liberals voted in," he added with a laugh.

Drug pushers will get no sympathy from Reese as he says, rather than putting them in jail, "I'd rather see them under the jail."

Calling himself the conservative in the race, Reese said he hopes to get the government out of people's way, particularly young people. "I want to make it easier for young people to make it; it's hard for young people now," Reese said.

Asked about the growing concern for water shortages in Texas, Reese said two items needed to be concentrated on by West Texas. "The Stacy Reservoir needs to be built now and we need to convince other Texans they share the water problem," Reese said. "We have to develop a long-term water supply and broaden the solution."

The possible change-over of the University of Texas at the Permian Basin from a two-year institution to a four-year one should not threaten the local junior colleges, Reese said. "The junior colleges served different needs from UTPB," Reese said. "UTPB should be the national center for petroleum studies; they're not capitalizing on the model they have."

Reese was a three-term mayor of Odessa, as well as president of the Texas Jaycees and the president of the Texas Association of Mayors, Councilmen and Commissioners. A businessman.

Newsweek's nude cover lifts eyebrows

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This week, Newsweek didn't fit the mold. It undraped it.

Three million copies show a woman with an aloof frown. She's also topless.

It's a painting, "Portrait of S," brought from the museum wall to the country's newsstands under the heading: "Art Imitates Life; The Revival of Realism." Inside, the cover article begins: "At first glance, William Bailey's 'Portrait of S' quickens the eye."

The cover has done more than that. It's drawing a few gasps of surprise at newsstands, and it prompted Dick Edkins, a Sarasota, Fla., magazine wholesaler, to apply gum-backed pasties to the woman's breasts, "like a bikini." Edkins thought it was a nice-looking cover, but noted Florida law prohibits frontal nudity on magazine covers.

The beholders at Capitol Book and News in Montgomery, Ala., a store with a policy of not stocking magazines that show nudity, mentioned the cover "more in surprise than offense," said owner Cheryl Upchurch.

"One man said we should put it in a plain brown wrapper," Ms. Upchurch said.

In Lynchburg, Va., the Moral Majority hadn't seen it; its copy was still in the mail. But officials had heard See Nude, page 2-A

Another look at candidates

Howard County voters will vote to fill two offices Saturday in the runoff elections. Before the May 1 Democratic primary, the Herald ran candidates' answers to questionnaires. These will be rerun to help voters make their decisions. Today's questionnaires feature Paul Allen and Bob Cowley, candidates for county commissioner, precinct 2. Tomorrow, candidates for county judge will be featured.

PAUL ALLEN

...finished with 45 percent of the vote in primary

1. Why do you want this job?

I feel as though this job needs a person who is a land owner and a taxpayer, who is capable of making decisions with an open mind, and is skilled in many fields. Also to complete some projects that the footwork has already been done.

2. What do you see as the most specific problem in Precinct 2?

Water drainage has been a problem, but with long range planning and professional help, many of them have been corrected.

3. Do you anticipate an increase in county taxes? Why or why not?

No, because the major equipment (in the Courthouse and road and bridge department) has been upgraded or replaced; therefore no large expenditures are to be expected. Financially the county is "well" in its budget.

4. What problem or problems do you see as most pressing for the entire county?

State control on regulation and taxation.

5. How would you go about dealing with these problems?

Put the control back into the local government.

Date of birth: May 18, 1933.
Address: South Route, Coahoma.
Occupation: Farmer, commissioner, Cosden (on leave of absence).

Spouse: Virginia Allen.
Children: Paula Kay Allen (18 years).
Church: Coahoma First Baptist.
Education: Junior College two years, Senior college one semester, short courses.

Accomplishments: Promoted safety ground reflectors for dead end roads and dangerous places. Promoted new waterways for road relief. Promoted drainage device for undesirable road beds.

BOB COWLEY

...captured 25 percent of the vote in primary

1. Why do you want this job?

I have reached the point in life where I feel I have the time to devote to a job like this. Both of my children are through college, and I think I would enjoy serving the people of this precinct. Also, several people came to me and asked me to run, so I feel that I would have a broad base of support if elected.

2. What do you see as the most specific problem in precinct 2?

This is a tough question to answer in 50 words or less. I have some things in mind, but specifically, I think we need better communication between the commissioner's court and the public. We need to let people know that the county is on a budget, and how much is budgeted for certain purposes. This can be accomplished through our local media, all of which have a certain amount of public service programs.

3. Do you anticipate an increase in county taxes. Why or why not?

They say two things are certain in life — death and taxes. But I think the energy-related industry will remain strong for years to come with steady growth. I believe Howard County is in good shape. I also know of some county maintained roads which the state will be taking over, and that will help. No, I see no need for a tax increase.

4. What problem or problems do you see as most pressing for the entire county?

The problem I see in this county is the same with every county in Texas. I know our founding fathers were much wiser than I, but I can't understand why school boards have presidents, cities have mayors, states have governors, and the U.S. has a President, but county government has no one as a titular head. When you have a problem, sometimes you don't know who has jurisdiction. I think we need someone who, like Harry Truman, has the authority to put a sign on his desk — "The buck stops here."

5. How would you go about dealing with these problems?

I want to see that everyone is informed. I want to listen to individuals as well as pressure groups. Now, pressure groups are not all bad: lots of good things have been accomplished through these groups. I want to help the precinct as a whole, not just do things that are advantageous for me. In other words, I want to see that your shock absorbers last as long as mine.

PRISONERS — Some of the 1,200 Argentine troops that surrendered to British forces at Goose Green, Falkland Islands, are marched from their settlement. The photo was released in London Wednesday by Britain's Press Association.

Falklands

Stanley telling the Argentines their position is hopeless. Defense Ministry sources said Spanish-speaking Britons were among the forward troops to negotiate surrenders around Stanley.

One correspondent reported British troops have taken a total of 1,600 prisoners so far, and more than 650 Argentine dead or missing have been reported. Britain has acknowledged 138 of its men killed.

At the United Nations, British Ambassador Sir Anthony Parsons threatened to wield his nation's veto in the Security Council today to block a Latin-American resolution demanding an immediate cease-fire in the undeclared Falklands war.

Parsons said the resolution, proposed by Spain and Panama, was not acceptable because it did not call for the immediate withdrawal of all Argentine troops.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said in a television interview that the only cease-fire terms she will now accept is an immediate agreement by Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri to withdraw all his forces from the islands within 10-14 days.

"I could never see that he would withdraw.... I am not very optimistic," she said, adding, "The moment you have to sacrifice your blood by repossessing the islands, all bets are off."

"We shall repossess those islands," she later told a group of American correspondents. But she said Britain would "need help for some kind of multinational force" to deter Argentina from renewed invasion attempts. Government sources said she had not yet formally approached the United States or other governments she hopes will take part in such a force.

The influential Argentine newspaper La Nacion said today that the three senior Argentine officers sent to the United Nations Wednesday carried a proposal for multi-national control of the islands and the withdrawal of both military forces about 360 miles, the distance from the archipelago's easternmost coast to the Argentine mainland.

"The administration of the archipelago would be the responsibility of Argentina, Great Britain, Venezuela, another country chosen by the British and another that would be designated by the U.N. secretary-general," the paper said.

This would be a major retreat from Argentina's demand for recognition of its sovereignty over the islands. But Mrs. Thatcher said on May 25, after the breakdown of the previous U.N. peace negotiations, that Britain's objective was to "retake the Falklands. They are British sovereign territory, and we wish to restore British administration."

about it.
"I'm sure the cover was chosen solely to appeal to the artistic depths and interests of the nation and that Newsweek had no interest at all in its prurient appeal," said spokesman Cal Thomas.

"Now, if you believe that," he added, "I've got a bridge in New York I'd like to sell you."

As for Newsweek, Editor Lester Bernstein views the cover portrait as "a beautiful painting illustrating a distinguished article of art criticism," adding that "any different view of it is in the eye of the beholder."

Newsweek received only about a dozen calls from readers unhappy about the cover, said spokesman Neil Hershberg.

Making the cover of Newsweek "is not an artist's dream and certainly not mine," said Bailey, 51, a professor of painting at Yale.

"A painting is a single object and for a painter it's a very private thing," he said in an interview Wednesday. "To see it in that number (of copies) makes one feel very vulnerable. When you have paintings in front of a mass audience, one wonders how they see the thing."

Is this a bold step for Newsweek?

Answers Hershberg with, of course, the magazine's advertising theme: "We don't fit the mold, we break it."

Insurance board considers reduction in property rates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Board of Insurance considered but made no decision on a proposal to reduce overall property insurance rates by 16 percent in Texas.

Board Chairman William P. Daves said Wednesday after a day of testimony that the three-member board would take the proposal under advisement. The proposed rates would go into effect Sept. 1.

Representatives of the industry quarreled with the formula the board's staff used to calculate rates, particularly regarding hurricane risks. The board staff used comparisons of premium intake and loss outgo to arrive at their figures.

Under the staff plan, homeowners insurance would go down an average of 20 percent statewide. Farm and ranch owners' insurance rates would go down 17.5 percent. Extended coverage policies would decrease an average of 15.1 percent.

The only category that showed a major increase was tenants insurance, which the staff said should go up 22.3 percent.

A 25-year-old woman reported to police that a 9:01 p.m. Wednesday at her residence someone known to her hit her with his fists and kicked her in the head, leaving her unconscious for an unknown period of time, police said.

A Ford Granada driven by Dorothy Ann Hamann of 4600 W. Highway 80 struck a chain-link fence at the intersection of First and Curtis at 9:38 p.m. Wednesday, police said. Hamann was arrested and charged with DWI and no valid operator's license, police said. She remains in city jail pending arraignment, according to BSPD officials.

Sheriff's Log

Sheriff's officers investigated a reported burglary of a building overnight.

According to sheriff's office records, Marvin Dixon of Permian Corporation Trucking Company reported at 4:47 a.m. Thursday that a storage shed the company uses for a field office one mile north of Interstate 20 had been burglarized sometime in the last two days.

The door of the shed had been kicked open, causing $150 in damages. Taken were a clock radio belonging to one of the drivers, an inner tube valued at $45, and a 12 volt battery valued at $60. Investigating officers said two sets of footprints had been found at the scene.

Luciano Ruben Rodriguez, 33, of route 1, Box 371, was released from Howard County jail on $1,000 bond. He is charged with driving while intoxicated, according to sheriff's office records.

Heidi Hunt, 18, of 1302 Lamar, was arrested by sheriff's deputies on a warrant for passing a bad check, according to sheriff's office records. She was released after paying a $50 fine and the amount of the check.

Denver girl wins National Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twelve-year-old Molly Dieveney of Denver coasted through 10 words and then spelled "contretemps" and "psoriasis" to win the 55th National Spelling Bee today.

Her turn came after runner-up Uma Rao, 13, of Pittsburgh, spelled contretemps, a French word for mishap, as "contretion." Molly asked if the word was singular or plural, then spelled it correctly.

After spelling psoriasis, a skin disease, one of the judges told Molly she had spelled the word correctly. The 13-year-old gasped and threw her hands to her face as the audience burst into applause.

Thirteen-year-old Jason Johnson of Stevensville, Mich., last year's runner-up, finished third after misspelling "gauleiter," an arrogant, overbearing subordinate, in the 10th round. Jason spelled it "gauliter."

Molly, so short she had to lift her chin to reach the lowest microphone on the stage of the hotel ballroom, went through these words before tackling contretemps: "Saunter," "umlaut," "regicide," "cacophony," "beriberi," "piebald," "nisei," "triduum," "osteomyelitis" and "leucina."

Molly won $1,000, a trophy and several other prizes. The contest is sponsored by Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

She was the last of 54 entrants still in the spelling bee when it entered its second day. Some 126 entrants had been eliminated Wednesday. Many of the words that were the contestants' downfall are not listed in most dictionaries.

Of the past 57 champions, 32 have been girls and 25 have been boys. The 81 female and 45 male finalists this year made it to the national competition by beating an estimated 8½ million contestants in local bees sponsored by 123 newspapers.

Angie Zakrzewski, 14, of Mobile, Ala., faltered in the fourth round on "sesquipedalian" — a word meaning characterized by long words — even though pronouncer Alex Cameron of the University of Dayton was willing to "verberate" — repeat — it for her several times.

"Horriplation" — the spelling, not the goose bumps — was a problem for Homer Cantu, 13, of San Juan, Texas, who had no trouble the first three rounds with "parable," "adulation" and "keratitis" — inflammation of the cornea.

Medical terms, however, were the undoing of several spellers. In the fourth round, Michele Hoggatt, 12, of Pittsburg, Calif., faltered on "dyslexia." David Edwards, 13, of Sunnymead, Calif., on "occipital." Sarah Lindsay, 14, of Naperville, Ill., on "duodenum" and Alexandra Van Ryn, 12, of Hollywood, Fla., on "dysentery."

Jason raced through "opaquely," "illeism" and "orison" and then struggled successfully with "puissant" Wednesday.

Continental Airlines stops Midland service

Continental Airlines, after more than 30 years of service to Midland, made its last flight from the Midland Regional Airport on Monday.

The move to discontinue service to the Midland area was made last Friday by Continental's parent company, Texas Air Corporation. Texas Air owns both Continental and Texas International and the company felt the Midland area could best be served by TIA's smaller DC-9 aircraft, according to Chuck Logue, Continental manager in Midland.

Texas International Airlines officials said their company is working to pick up slack left by Continental's departure.

A special promotion was launched Tuesday publicizing a new TIA shuttle service to help passengers transferring to TIA flights from Continental.

"As far as overall service and boardings are concerned, it's not having a real drastic effect on us," Midland Aviation Director Wilson Banks said. "The big gap that it's leaving is that we no longer have through service to Los Angeles."

Banks said the airport was surprised at Continental's decision, but he said the merger with TIA had caused speculation that Continental would be moving out.

Avowed racist indicted in Jordan attack

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — An indictment charging that Joseph Paul Franklin shot civil rights leader Vernon E. Jordan two years ago is "a waste of taxpayers' money" because the avowed racist is serving life terms for slaying two blacks, says an attorney who defended him.

"It's ridiculous that a man serving four consecutive life sentences ... would even be considered for being prosecuted for a maximum 10-year (sentence)," said David Yocom of Salt Lake City, one of the attorneys who defended Franklin on murder charges.

"The Justice Department must really be looking for points with the black people," he said.

Franklin has been convicted of killing two blacks in Salt Lake City. He has also been charged with racially motivated slayings in Indianapolis and Oklahoma City, and been investigated in slayings of blacks in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Georgia.

A grand jury returned the latest federal indictment Wednesday in U.S. District Court in South Bend. It alleges that Franklin, who is white, fired a high-powered rifle at Jordan, who is black, outside a Fort Wayne motel on May 29, 1980, because of Jordan's race and color. If convicted on the civil rights charges, Franklin could be sentenced to a maximum prison term of 10 years and a $10,000 fine.

The federal indictment charges

Franklin with violating Jordan's constitutional right to enjoy the accommodations of an establishment that provides lodging to transient guests.

Jordan, former head of the National Urban League, had just left his Washington law office when the indictment was announced and could not be reached for comment.

Franklin, a 31-year-old drifter from Mobile, Ala., is imprisoned at a maximum-security federal prison in Marion, Ill.

He was convicted in March 1981 of violating the civil rights of two black joggers by killing them at Liberty Park in Salt Lake City, and sentenced to two consecutive life prison terms.

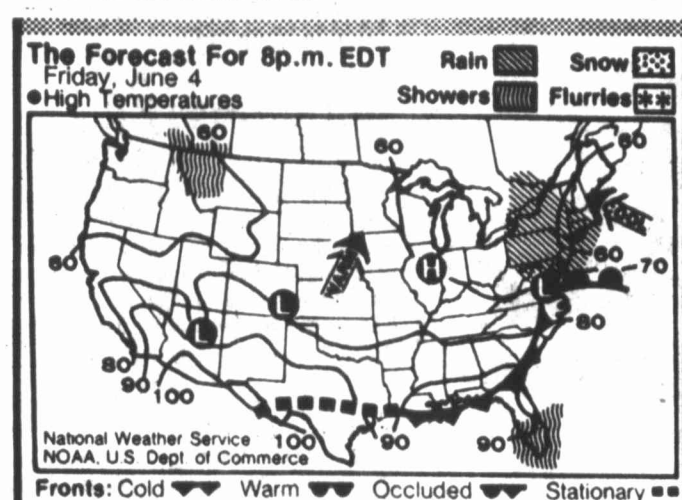

The state of Utah also convicted Franklin on two murder charges for the slayings and sentenced him to two consecutive life terms last fall.

David Martin, 18, and Ted Fields, 20, were shot on Aug. 20, 1980, while jogging with two white women.

Franklin, arrested in October 1969 in Lakeland, Fla., maintained his innocence, but told reporters before the trial that the pair deserved to die for "race mixing."

Jordan, who was head of the Urban League at the time of his shooting, had been in Fort Wayne to address the local chapter's annual banquet. He was gunned down while emerging from a car driven by a white woman who was a member of the chapter's board of directors.

West Texas skies remain clear

A few scattered thunderstorms were forecast for North Texas, but most of the state was expected to have clear to partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures today.

Skies over West Texas were to be mostly clear with the rest of the state to have partly cloudy skies. Highs were to be in the 70s in the Panhandle and the 80s and 90s elsewhere except for a few readings near 100 in Southwest Texas.

Skies were clear to partly cloudy statewide early today.

The roofs of some homes were damaged at Arlington late Wednesday when heavy thunderstorms moved across North Texas. Golf ball size hail was reported in northern sections of Tarrant County.

The only shower activity reported early today was near Paris in Northeast Texas.

Early morning temperatures were in the 50s and 60s in North Texas and Northwest Texas and in the 70s elsewhere. A few readings in the 80s were recorded at dawn in far South Texas.

Thundershowers continued over Florida, and showers and a few thundershowers were scattered from Arkansas to Iowa and Wisconsin. There were a few showers between the Northern Rockies and the Sierra Nevada.

Reagans arrive in rainy Paris

PARIS (AP) — President Reagan opened the first full day of his European tour by conferring with French President Francois Mitterrand today on the Middle East, Central America and the fighting in the Falkland Islands.

On the eve of an economic summit of major industrial democracies, Reagan said he and Mitterrand deferred "heavy discussions" of the economic issues straining America's allies until they join the other leaders at Versailles.

The two leaders met over lunch in the splendor of the Elysee Palace. Reagan said it was a good meal. "How would the food be? Delicious. We're in Paris."

Reagan was greeted at the Elysee Palace by a military honor guard and a salute from a drum and bugle corps. He and Mitterrand shook hands and then met over lunch.

Despite political differences between the conservative American president and the socialist French leader, the two officials have a cordial working relationship. Even so, senior French officials said Mitterrand will oppose Reagan's effort to persuade America's trading partners to limit their credit sales to the Soviet Union.

Before talking with Mitterrand, Reagan met with Mrs. Charles Ray, the widow of a military attaché at the U.S. Embassy who was killed in a terrorist attack Jan. 18.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan told Mrs. Ray he would promote her husband posthumously one grade to full colonel.

The president also conferred with Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan on summit issues.

Reagan, who arrived here Wednesday night for a 10-day trip, had a leisurely schedule today as he adjusted from jet lag. Aside from his conference with Mitterrand, the president was to meet with employees of the American Embassy and attend a formal dinner for Mitterrand.

At his various stops, Reagan will seek popular support for his year-old economic program, and his announced policy of pressing for eventual reductions in U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals while also rebuilding America's defenses.

Although he left Washington with a call for closer consultation and "greater monetary and fiscal discipline" among the western trading partners, aides say Reagan expects considerable criticism of high U.S. interest rates.

Qualifications questioned

Hannah, Mattox take off gloves in runoff battle

By SUSAN STOLER

Associated Press Writer
HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Attorney general candidates John Hannah and Jim Mattox took turns three days before the runoff election of accusing each other of lacking the qualifications necessary to be the state's top lawyer.

"He knows his legal qualifications aren't enough to make him attorney general of Texas," Hannah, a former U.S. attorney in Tyler, said of Mattox on Wednesday.

Hours later, the Dallas congressman flew in for a similar touch-and-go news conference in the same room at the airport.

"We are both running for what is a civil law office," Mattox said. "My opponent has no experience in that particular area. He's never tried a civil case."

The winner of the top statewide race on Saturday's runoff ballot will face

A low voter turnout is expected for the statewide runoffs Saturday. See story, page 5-A.

Republican Bill Meier, a state senator from Euless, in November.

Both Hannah and Mattox made several stops in South Texas to maximize media coverage in the heavily Democratic and Hispanic area.

Hannah has recently become more critical of his opponent. Mattox launched an aggressive campaign the day after he received the most votes in a four-man May 1 primary.

"I thought it especially ironic that he made an issue out of the nursing home operators being for me," Hannah said. "Two of his campaign workers were indicted and convicted for registering people to vote illegally in Dallas in 1980."

The two workers were convicted in February 1981 and sentenced to probated prison terms for illegally witnessing absentee votes of elderly nursing home residents in Dallas during the 1980 congressional race in which Mattox was elected.

Mattox said in Austin Tuesday that the Texas Nursing Home Association threatened him because he wants to establish a division to investigate nursing home fraud. The association has endorsed Hannah.

"I think the people of Texas need to become acquainted with Mr. Mattox," Hannah said.

"If Mr. Mattox wants to get hysterical and high-pitched about nursing homes, I think I have a duty to point this out," he said when asked if Mattox's personal attacks on him have forced him to do the same.

Mattox later accused Hannah of sending workers to disrupt his news conference.

24 overcome in office

HOUSTON (AP) — Carbon monoxide fumes sickened 24 people at a southwest Houston office building because workers at a remodeling project failed to ventilate the area around gasoline-powered machinery, the building's architect said.

Two dozen people, including one firefighter, were treated and released from two Houston hospitals Wednesday, hospital spokeswoman said.

Architect Ray Vance said fumes from the machinery probably spread through the building's air conditioning system.

"It was probably just an oversight, but some of the workers didn't bring any fans to waft some of the gas fumes out of the space they were working in," said Vance.

Robber holds hostages

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police freed five hostages and arrested an armed robber today after the gunman held the four women and a man inside a fried chicken restaurant for almost seven hours.

Police said the gunman took the hostages when officers interrupted a robbery at the French's Fried Chicken restaurant at about 1:40 a.m.

A special weapons and tactics team surrounded the restaurant throughout the early morning hours.

At about 8:30 a.m., the hostages were released unharmed. Police said the release came after a "tactical maneuver."

United Press International sale announced

CINCINNATI (AP) — United Press International, born 75 years ago but losing money for more than a decade, has been sold to a new company formed by investors with interests in newspapers, television stations and cable TV, E.W. Scripps Co. announced.

The news service had been up for sale for some time. The new owner, Media News Corp., has no plans to change the name, said Scripps President Edward W. Estlow in announcing the sale Wednesday.

Estlow said all of UPI's stock was sold to Media News — the 95 percent owned by Scripps and the 5 percent owned by the Hearst Corp.

"I am pleased a group of experienced media people is acquiring UPI," Estlow said.

Media News did not plan staff changes and Roderick W. Beaton has agreed to remain as president of UPI, Estlow said.

Bill Adler, a UPI spokesman in New York, said UPI employees "seemed to react well" to news of the sale, adding the new owners were "charging hard and have big plans for us. You couldn't ask for anything more."

Adler declined to reveal financial terms but said, "They (the new owners) are confident they have the capital to run UPI."

"There's a lot of money here. There has to be," Adler said. "It would be a pointless effort to try it without the money."

Appearing with Estlow as the announcement was made at Scripps headquarters here was Douglas F. Ruhe, managing director of Media News and president of Focus Communications of Nashville, Tenn. Focus has been involved in developing new broadcast technologies including low-power television and direct broadcast satellites. It also operates a subscription television station in Chicago.

Ruhe said Media News would accelerate UPI's changeover to satellite delivery of its news report and improve UPI services.

"We believe that UPI is a basically sound company with an excellent staff and with a high quality news product," Ruhe said in a statement.

Keith Fuller, president and general manager of the AP, said in a statement issued in New York, "We at The Associated Press are pleased to learn that a new company has acquired our chief competitor in the United States, United Press International."

"Under the Scripps ownership, UPI has had its place in the industry, and we are gratified with the prospect of continued competition between the two services."

In addition to the 38-year-old Ruhe, principals of Media News Corp. are:

—Len R. Small, 39, editor and publisher of the Daily Dispatch of Moline, Ill.

—William E. Geissler, 36, senior vice president, planning, of Focus.

—Cordell J. Overgaard, 48, partner in Hopkins and Sutter, law firm in Chicago.

Contraband taken from congressmen

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Customs officials confiscated contraband valued at $217,000 from 27 Mexican congressmen when they returned from a four-day meeting in the United States, airport officials said.

The goods included microwave ovens, video-cassette recorders, jewelry, designer clothes and other items, the newspaper Excelsior said Wednesday.

Customs officials told the furious legislators, all members of the governing Revolutionary Institutional Party, they could get the items back by paying $400,000 in customs duties.

The 14 senators and 13 deputies had been at a four-day Mexican-American Interparliamentary Conference in Santa Barbara, Calif. The 27 included the president of the senate, Joaquin Gamboa.

A Socialist deputy who was on the same flight, Gerardo Unzueta, said the 27 legislators, all members of the government Revolutionary Institutional Party, claimed to have "special permission" to bring in whatever they wanted and that the customs check took place despite screamed angry threats.

The plane arrived at the presidential hangar across the landing strip from the international airport, where there normally are no customs agents. It was not immediately clear why the agents were there this time.

Such goods legally imported to Mexico may retail for up to four times the American price.

5 patrol cars damaged in chase

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two Snyder men face felony prosecution for leading police on a high-speed chase that left one policeman injured and five patrol cars damaged.

Authorities said Wednesday they were preparing charges against the two men, aged 19 and 20. The charges will include aggravated assault on a police officer, theft, evading arrest and possession of marijuana, said police spokesman Bill Morgan.

He said the 20-year-old also will be charged with criminal mischief.

The two men also accumulated 74 traffic tickets during a chase that lasted 33 minutes, reached speeds of 90 mph to 100 mph and covered about 36 miles.

"I would bet they never missed an episode of the 'Dukes of Hazzard,'" a popular television show noted for high-speed chase sequences, said Morgan.

One officer was treated and released at a local hospital for an injury suffered when a pickup driven by the two men backed into a patrol car, said Morgan.

Take care with lawn mowers

At risk of boring the prudent, we offer a word of counsel to those who are casual about mowing the lawn. The word is: Don't be — casual, that is. Tackling a span of greensward with a machine whose blade-tips spin at maybe 200 miles an hour is not a task to be taken lightly.

The power mower is a dandy invention (though in these times of fitness-awareness one must note that a hand mower provides for more sweat and muscle tone). But a power mower, carelessly handled, can whisk off a toe or finger; it can flip out a rock — or a misplaced toy, or a stick — 50 feet or so at hazard to eyes and exposed body parts.

Most of the precautions to be taken are obvious, or come to mind with a little thought. The precautions are no good, though, unless put into effect. Doing that, every time, can prevent a lot of needless grief.

Around the Rim

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Food for thought

The good thing about summer vacations is that they happen once a year. All our energy can't be bottled up for three months however, so we've invented another way to let off steam. Go out to eat.

When mom does the cooking at home, we eat what's put on the plate before us. Or we don't eat. And we don't leave until we leave the plate squeaky-clean. But pity the poor folk that have to serve us when we dine outside our kitchens.

One example. We've had some pretty wild weather in recent weeks but what do thunderstorms, hail or tornadoes matter when it's time to eat? So, everyone "hurries off" before the weather gets too bad.

Unfortunately, it gets bad just as the trays full of food are set on the table.

"Do you hear that rain, George?"
"Sounds like it's really pouring, Margaret."

"We better leave before it gets too bad."

And so the family waddles down its meal, scrambles to the car during the height of the storm, splashes all the way home with windshield wipers going 210 mph and then gets in the door as the sun reappears. Not only are they soaked and have upset stomachs but now they feel like fools.

"Wouldn't you know it, George. It'd stop storming as soon as we get home."

"I'll be danged, Margaret. Happens all the time."

And the restaurant people just shake their heads in wonder.

THEN THERE'S the group that goes out for a big dinner. Perhaps they don't notice that other people are eating at the same restaurant but they act like they're the only ones there.

They are so loud that you know what everybody has ordered (and how they decided to choose what they did), you listen to all their pre-meal jokes and stories and, if the food is late coming along, we have to hear the cracks that they had to go slaughter the steer, butcher it and truck it in before they could begin to fix it for dinner.

What's worse is if they have a few strange beverages with the meal. The party gets louder, someone falls out of a chair, steak sauce is mistaken for blue cheese dressing, the stories get more incredible and before you know it, they've asked you to join them.

"Remember that time we went to vake Trabis," the loudest member gurgles. "And Ralph dove the camper into da water. Aha-ha-ha-ha. And he was more worried about the beer that sunk to the bottom. Aha-ha-ha-ha. He pent the next sasseven days trying to fish out all his sssix pecks. Aha-ha-ha-ha."

And you wished you had stayed home.

The adults are the culprits, and they even let their kids get away with murder.

WHEN THEY GO for hamburgers at the place with the arches, the kids just ask a Big Mac or McNuggets or McPeast. When I was a youngster and worked at the competition across the street, the kids had to have things their own way.

"Uh, gimme a Whopper."

"Fine, would you like some..."

"Wait. I don't want no mayonanan, uh, that white stuff, uh, lot's of pickles, you know all over, no tomatoes either I don't like them, and I want my hamburger cooked real long, and scrape those seed things off the bun and cut it up into pieces cause I can't hold it all at once cause the pickles fall out. And don't get nothin' wrong cause momma'll bring it back."

"Fine, would you like some..."

"You got all that, huh."

"Yes, would you like..."

"You better cause I'm not eatin' it if it ain't right."

I worked there three months and left for greater things. I traded in my deep-fryer for a typewriter.

The end result of these daily assaults on the food-sellers is, of course, a mess. That same summer I worked for the big king, I also worked at the newspaper at night. After covering a Little League championship game, I was horrified to find out the victory celebration was to be held where I worked.

My nightmares became reality the next morning when I peaked into the dining room and saw french fries stuck on the wall, half-sipped shakes spilled on the tables and solidified like lacquer, straws stuck in the artificial plants, puddles of water (?) standing in the restrooms and fingerprints everywhere (doors, windows, tables, artificial plants but not on the trash containers).

"We had a big group in here last night, Greg. Better get an early start on things."

"Yes, sir."

Another victory for the hungry American public. It's almost like the charge up San Juan Hill or the landing on Normandy beach. A strategic assault, bury the opposition and then leave.

On behalf of the weary waitresses that poured out these ills to me — the only person that stayed and ate calmly while the storms were going on — try giving them a break. And don't opt for the picnic cop-out either. The poor animals are sick of us, too.

And whatever you do, don't go out to eat just after you've done some back-to-school shopping that you put off because you were on summer vacation. That would mean totally insanity.

The flying limousine

WASHINGTON — Rising Phoenix-like from the ashes of federal frugality, the Air Force's 89th Airlift Wing is once again flying high.

Little known to the public or Kremlin spies, the 89th is well known and highly regarded at the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill. It's the bigshots' favorite unit, in fact; for its sole mission is to provide luxurious — and free — transportation for VIPs and their wives wherever and whenever they can find a halfway-legitimate excuse to fly.

The 89th's post air-taxi service for the elite costs the taxpayers about $10 million a year. To avoid embarrassing congressmen and depressing taxpayers, the Air Force destroys the 89th's flight records after 30 days. But my associate Peter Grant saw a copy of the March manifests before they hit the shredder.

ONE HUNDRED trips were logged by the 89th in that one month. Here are some of these all-expenses-paid junkets, straight out of the records that had been marked for destruction:

—Two dozen members of Congress and their wives flew to the elegant Ocean Reef Club on Key Largo, Fla., for a meeting with a Canadian parliamentary delegation. The tab came to $50,000, including room and board for the Canadian junketeers.

—Rep. Don Fuqua, D-Fla., is chairman of the House Science and Technology Committee. So he and five other committee members — with their wives — hopped an 89th jet down to Florida to see the space shuttle take off. Then, after a side excursion to California, where they inspected a solar-energy project, the congressional couples arrived in New Mexico in time to see the shuttle land.

—Air Force brass hats use the 89th like an airborne limousine service. Robert Mathis, the vice chief of staff, took his wife on a trip to England and Spain. Gen. Robert Marsh, commander of the Air Force Systems Command, took his wife on a 12-day tour of the Far East, which included four days in Hawaii. An Air Force spokesman said wives are allowed on these trips for protocol purposes and to confer with dependents on "quality-of-life issues."

—The 89th is also available to congressional staffers. The Air Force invited 25 Capitol Hill aides, almost all of them female, to Colorado Springs for a tour of the Air Force Academy.

THESE EXAMPLES were all from the month of March. In January, Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., led a group of nine Democratic congressmen and their wives aboard an 89th jet for a two-week, $15,000-plus junket in Italy. They visited Genoa, Venice, Pisa, Florence, Naples and Rome to "show America's support for Italy as a strong NATO ally," a Rodino spokesman said.

Also in January, Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., a member of the Education and Labor, Agriculture and Aging Committees, for some reason flew the 89th to France, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands while his constituents were shoveling snow. A Jeffords spokesman said his boss "has a general policy of avoiding congressional junkets unless absolutely necessary." Coupling the words "junkets" and "Necessary" is a lexicological breakthrough.

Though the $10 million budget for the 89th Airlift Wing is a drop in the $250 billion Pentagon bucket, it probably costs the taxpayers billions more indirectly. What congressman is going to be so ungracious as to niggly over the defense budget after a luxurious flight on an Air Force junket jet?

COSTLY PHASEOUT: In a period of increasing bankruptcies, it's a lucky landlord whose store, office or warehouse is rented to a going concern. Property owners who leased space to businessmen protected under the Small Business Administration's lease-guarantee program are sitting in the catbird seat.

Under terms of the program, when the business tenant goes belly-up, Uncle Sam takes over the rent payments until the landlord finds a new occupant for the property. The program was discontinued in 1976, but many of the guaranteed leases are still running, some up to 1996.

The trouble is that many landlords either can't or don't want to find new, non-guaranteed tenants for their property. So the taxpayers are stuck with the rent on the empty buildings. SBA sources estimate the yearly drain at about $3 million a year now. It will decrease over the years as leases expire, but the total payment to lazy landlords may run as high as $20 million by 1996.

UNDER THE DOME: Though he has attended Energy Committee hearings in the same room for two years, Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., in a hurry to keep an appointment, took a wrong turn leaving a hearing recently. He approached what he said were "two perfectly normal looking, oversized doors," opened one and found himself staring at shelves full of stationery. Instead of the exit, he had barged into the equally fancy portals of the supply closet.

A recent change in eligibility rules for Supplemental Security Income benefits requires elderly applicants to list cemetery plots as assets. As a result, many old people either had to get rid of their burial plots or lose their SSI benefits. Rep. Fortney (Pete) Stark, D-Calif., has introduced legislation to reopen this macabre "loophole" for the elderly.

Billy Graham

Where is happiness?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I had a miserable marriage, and I thought I would be happy if I could just get out of it. Now I find I am just as unhappy, as I ever was. Is there really any happiness to be found in this life? — J.E.

DEAR J.E.: I wish every young person — and many older people as well — could read your testimony. So many are like you have been, trying to find happiness through a thoughtless marriage and yet never coming to know what true happiness is. You are discovering what many refuse to face honestly, that outward circumstances alone are not enough to bring lasting happiness to life.

Yes, there is happiness to be found in this life, but I am convinced real and lasting joy comes only when we give up trying to find happiness on our own and instead yield our lives to God. God created you. You are not here by chance — you are here for a purpose. But as long as you (or anyone else) neglect God's purpose for your life you will never find true happiness.

God loves you, and he wants you to be his child. He wants you to know his presence and guidance every day as you learn to trust him for everything and obey his will. Jesus once made a very startling statement. He said, "But seek first his kingdom and his righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well" (Matthew 6:33). By our own human nature we seek after many things for ourselves, and yet joy eludes us. But when we turn our lives over to Christ, and seek God's will for our lives above all else, then we find that he gives us the things we really need.

You need a spiritual rebirth — what the Bible calls being born again (see John 3:1-21). By turning to Christ and inviting him to come into your life as Saviour and Lord, you can experience that rebirth right now. Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10). This can be your experience if you will give your heart to Christ.

The question of personal gifts to the President and the First Lady is not a new problem, and before making a judgment on whether they should accept them or not we should examine the issue closely.

The first thing we must ask ourselves is, "Why do people want to give the Reagans gifts now, rather than before Ronnie and Nancy moved into the White House?"

The answer is that the donor has such respect for the highest office in the land that he wants to show his affection with something more tangible than a mailgram.

I have a friend in New York named Rabbitt, and every time we get a new First Lady he calls me on the phone.

"You know someone at the White House?"

"Of course I do."

"Good, I want to make the President's wife a brand new fur coat."

"Why do you want to do that?"

"Because I love her and I don't want her to freeze when she goes with her husband to Canada. It won't cost her a nickel, and I'll even come down to Washington to do the fittings, so she doesn't have to come to my showroom and put up with a lot of television and news reporters, who would probably hear about it."

"You have a good heart, Rabbitt, but some people might think you're giving her a fur coat just to promote yourself."

"I can't help what people think. This is strictly a personal gift from my wife and myself. If 'Women's Wear Daily' finds out I gave the First Lady a fur coat it won't come from my publicity department. I told them mum's the word. But my furs are so beautiful that when people see her on television I can't stop them from saying, 'Look, she's wearing a Rabbitt Fur Coat.'

"But suppose you go on the 'Today' show or 'Good Morning America' and they ask you straight out if you gave the First Lady a fur coat?"

"I'll say, 'It's not for me, but for the White House to comment on that. If they want to spill the beans that's their business. I consider it a personal matter between the Reagans and myself.' Just tell Nancy I've got the pelts if she's got the time."

"I don't know," I said. "You just don't call up the First Lady of the land and say, 'Rabbitt wants to make you a fur coat.' It's sort of tacky, and besides it implies that the President can't afford to buy her one."

"Okay, if she feels strongly about it I'll loan her a fur coat for the next three years, and then she can give it to the next first lady who moves into the White House. Our slogan is, 'A Rabbitt Fur Coat Lasts Forever.'"

"Are you sure there are no strings attached to this generous offer?"

"What do you think I am, some crazy publicity hound? I only give away fur coats to my friends."

"But Nancy Reagan isn't your friend."

"She will be if she takes the coat."

"I'm not sure I want to make the call."

"You got to," Rabbitt said desperately. "It's being announced in Vogue and Harper's Bazaar next month."

"Why did you do that?" I said.

"It wasn't me. There's a mole in my organization who keeps leaking things to the press."

Low voter turnout expected Saturday

Interest is fading in statewide runoffs

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Jim Mattox-John Hannah fight for the Democratic nomination for attorney general features a tough-talking congressman who has run an aggressive campaign to portray his opponent as a fraud.

The Pete Snelson-Garry Mauro runoff for the Democratic nomination for land commissioner features a state senator who says his opponent is a "33-year-old kid."

Add five congressional runoffs, two appeals court races and 25 legislative races and you should come up with a Saturday runoff ballot that has excited the voters.

Wrong. Secretary of State David Dean says the runoffs could draw as few as 8 percent of the voters, less than half the number who voted in the May 1 primaries.

Most of the interest faded when Buddy Temple, entitled to a runoff with Mark White, handed the Democratic gubernatorial nomination to White. Indicted State Treasurer Warren Harding also dropped out, giving the Democratic nomination to Ann Richards of Austin.

Mattox, a Dallas congressman, ran first in the Democratic primary for attorney general, but he faces a tough battle with Hannah, a former U.S. attorney from Tyler. Hannah, however, has picked up the endorsement of Max Sherman, who ran third.

Mattox drew 438,446 votes on May 1. Hannah pulled 357,366. If Hannah could add some of the 252,732 Sherman votes, he could take the nomination to face Republican Bill Meier in November.

The Mattox style has been the focal point of the race. He charged Hannah with deception for a campaign brochure that said Hannah was a law school graduate. Hannah got his law degree under a statute that allows legislators to take the bar exam after completing a reduced number of classroom hours.

Hannah was a state House member from Lufkin.

"It's ironic the candidate who bills himself as 'the lawyer, not the politician,' got his license under the ultimate politician's loophole," said Mattox.

Hannah said he took the bar exam early because he had a family to support.

The possibly important Sherman endorsement went to Hannah because of the Mattox style. Sherman said Hannah "has run a positive and dignified campaign of which I approve."

The first Snelson-Mauro race was a peculiar one. At times, as the vote totals dribbled in, Snelson, a Midland state senator, and Mauro, an Austin attorney, each thought he got the most votes on May 1.

The final totals gave Snelson 340,781 votes and Mauro 336,643.

As in the attorney general's race, the also-rans in the land commissioner nomination fight could be a factor Saturday. State Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale and Paducah farmer George Fore, who ran third and fourth, now support Mauro. Between them, Fore and Kubiak got over 450,000 votes.

The winner faces Republican Woodrow Glasscock, former Hondo mayor, in November.

Snelson said Mauro, a former state Democratic Party executive, is too immature and inexperienced to run the state land office.

"The people of Texas are not going to be hoodwinked into turning the General Land Office and its important responsibilities over to a self-proclaimed 33-year-old kid," said Snelson.

Mauro's response — "First of all, as usual, he has his facts wrong. I'm 34." Snelson said he has the experience needed for the job. But Mauro said Snelson's tenure in the state Senate has been nothing to boast about.

"The first thing that happens when a campaign gets desperate is that the candidate starts flip-flopping on the issues, then he attacks his opponent personally," said Mauro.

The Snelson flip-flop came on the state property tax. In 1981, Snelson carried a bill to salvage it by reducing it from 10 cents to 3 cents. During the current special session, Snelson sponsored a proposal to abolish the tax.

Texas Democrat is named to commodity trading panel

By PHILLIP SWANN
States News Service

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has announced his intention to nominate Texas Democrat Fowler West to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, apparently after being warned by aides that naming a Republican to the panel could jeopardize crucial southern Democratic support for his budget.

West, the House Agriculture Committee staff director, must still pass an FBI clearance check before his name can be submitted to the Senate for approval, White House spokesman Anson Franklin said Wednesday. THE CFTC was established as a regulatory watchdog for fraud in the commodity futures market and also sets guidelines for commodity brokers and advisers.

The White House in March informed several GOP senators that the president planned to name a Republican to replace Democrat David Gartner, whose term expired April 15, according to congressional and CFTC sources.

In fact, Republican Howard McMillan, a Minnesota grain consultant, says he was twice interviewed for the $50,000-a-year job. McMillan had the support of Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan.

But congressional Democrats, including the conservative "Boll Weevils," charged that naming a Republican would be a violation of the law and urged West's nomination.

West, who refused to comment Wednesday, is a long-time congressional staffer from Waco, Texas and a protégé of former House Agriculture Committee Chairman Robert Poague of Texas.

Mortgage foreclosure rate is up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mortgages on about 100,000 U.S. homes were "in the process of foreclosure" in the first quarter of this year, marking the highest foreclosure rate in at least 30 years, says the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

The lenders group said Tuesday that its first-quarter survey also showed payments on 5.35 percent of American home loans were 30 or more days past due in the January-March period — also the highest rate since the group began compiling such figures in 1953.

The foreclosure rate of 0.53 percent compared with a rate of 0.41 percent in the fourth quarter of last year, according to a news release from the group. The delinquency rate was up from 5.18 percent in the October-December period.

The mortgage bankers' executive vice president, Mark J. Riedy, called the rates "devastating news for both the individual homeowner and the lender, as losses further jeopardize lenders' ability to continue to do business in today's recession."

GM pulls the plug on electric cars

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. says it is indefinitely delaying introduction of a battery-powered passenger car.

Stabilizing gasoline prices and technical problems in developing a long-life battery make introduction of such cars unfeasible in the next five or six years, Alex Mair, GM vice president in charge of technical staffs, said Tuesday.

GM originally had set 1985 as the target date for introducing an electric car.

Chrysler Corp. has abandoned its electric vehicle research to save money while Ford Motor Co.'s work with electric cars remains in the experimental stage.

Only small firms and corporate energy development groups remain active in the electric car field, says Walt Dippold, a federal Energy Department electric vehicle specialist.

Mair said that he hopes for its first electric car will last 30,000 miles and cost $2,000 to replace. Mair said GM will push again to introduce the electric car if gasoline prices increase markedly.

"When the price of gasoline gets beyond the $2 level, the market might be better for such a car," Mair said. "We can make an electric car now, but we want it to sell."

Dr. Donohue

Bags may indicate a problem

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A simple question: Every morning for the past few months I have had a swollen pocket or a little pouch under the eyes — both eyes. It is between the eyelid and the cheekbone. I am 58 years old. Can you explain why this happens and if it is a sign of something? — J.D.

They are not there at night, but occur in the morning when you get up right? That means, of course, that fluid has accumulated there during the night. It is not unusual. After a day of standing, the fluid tends to seep out of the circulatory system and into the tissues of your legs. You may not notice this. It doesn't have to produce swollen ankles, for example.

After you lie down, you reverse this process. Now fluid gets back into your circulation and readjusts. The skin under the eyes is quite loose, so any excess fluid tends to pool there when you are flat on your back.

These bags might be harmless. I would guess that they were in a person who has had them all his life. However, yours have just appeared in the past few months. In such a situation they might mean that you are retaining too much fluid in your body generally. That could indicate a kidney or heart ailment.

I don't want to worry you. Most of the time there is nothing seriously wrong. But because this is a recent sign, I'd like you to inform your doctor.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please give me information on timolol, used for treating glaucoma. Is there any drug that you cannot take if you have glaucoma? What about Donnatal? — G.J.

Timolol is a newer eyedrop medicine that is very effective in lowering pressure within the eye. That is what glaucoma is — pressure in the eye. Lest there be any misunderstanding about this, I want to make it clear that I am not speaking of blood pressure. I am speaking of pressure of fluid within the eye itself.

Extra pressure exists either because too much fluid is being made inside the eye or there is an obstruction of normal drainage of it from the eye. The medicine you mention helps keep the fluid in balance. Exactly how it does this is disputed. It may reduce the amount of fluid being formed.

Now to your question about drugs. There are many drugs you have to avoid if you have untreated glaucoma. One large category of drugs to be avoided is referred to as anticholinergics. They increase pressure within the eye for people with glaucoma. Donnatal is an anticholinergic drug. However, my ophthalmologist consultants say that if a person's glaucoma is under control, as it might be with the drops, these drugs are OK to take.

You would be wise to tell your doctor about your other medication if he does not know you are taking it. Then, let him be the judge as to whether your glaucoma is under control and whether the other drug is permitted for you. For a fuller discussion of this illness read the booklet "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Other readers can order by writing the care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for printing and handling.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Daughter has trouble with IRS

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 29, divorced and on her own. She has an excellent job that pays $15 an hour, but for some reason she is always short.

Last year when it came time to pay her income tax, she was flat broke, so we, her parents, ended up paying $2,200 to the IRS for her. We warned her at that time she has better start saving some money for taxes, but when taxes were due again this year she was in exactly the same predicament.

My husband and I are in our late 50s and are trying to save for our retirement. We both work, but we're far from rich.

Our daughter tells us that an agent with the IRS has been calling her repeatedly, threatening to sell her house and car and leave her with nothing.

Can the IRS do this?

CAN'T BELIEVE IT

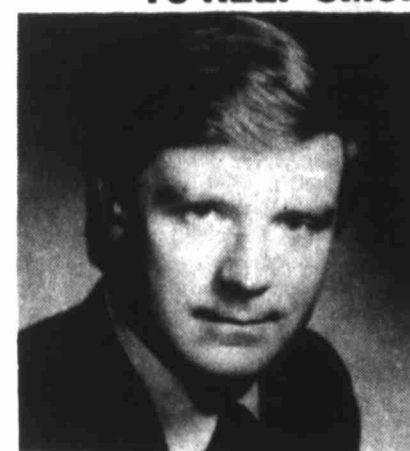

DEAR CAN'T: You'd better believe it, because the IRS can. However, before it gets to that point, the delinquent party is given every opportunity to pay. In some cases, an automatic deduction is made from every paycheck. The money goes into a savings account specifically set up to pay taxes. The selling of personal property is always the last resort.

DEAR ABBY: This is a comment to "Two Thrilled Parents From Iowa" who insist that they are now parents because the husband took your advice and switched from wearing tight brief shorts to boxer shorts.

NOTED HYPNOTISTS IN BIG SPRING TO HELP SMOKERS & THE OVERWEIGHT

WADE M. GENTNER, F.A.I.H.
Director of Techniques For Living

Are you overweight or a cigarette smoker? Have you tried to lose weight or stop smoking, only to fail time and time again? If you find yourself answering "yes" to either of these questions then the Techniques For Living Seminar, under the direction of Wade M. Gentner F.A.I.H. at the Best Western Mid-Continent Inn, Highway 87 and I-20 will be the place for you to be on Tuesday, June 8. Techniques For Living will be conducting their famous Lose Weight — Stop Smoking Seminar which has helped thousands of people throughout the United States. Techniques For Living is a national organization dedicated to helping Americans solve these and other problems that have kept them from enjoying their lives to the fullest.

The subject of numerous newspaper and magazine articles as well as television appearances, Mr. Gentner and his staff have been conducting these seminars throughout the country. In a comprehensive and fascinating three hour program, those who attend the seminar experience the relaxing and beneficial effects of clinical hypnosis. Not only do people permanently lose weight and stop smoking as a result of the seminar, they also report that they sleep better, feel more energetic, and generally enjoy life more than they had previously.

Mr. Gentner's skill in clinical hypnosis was noted by Dan Rather of CBS' "60 Minutes," who referred to him in a nationally televised report as a well-trained and highly experienced hypnotist.

"Clinical hypnosis is the easiest way there is to solve these problems," Gentner says. "Simply put, it helps to eliminate these types of problems permanently."

Gentner says that the reason clinical hypnosis is so successful is that "it removes the causes of problems, not just the symptoms." For example, he explains: "People who are overweight go on diets. A diet is only good for as long as you can follow it. Once you stop the diet you regain the weight. Hypnosis is permanent because it eliminates the causes of overeating, not just the symptoms." The same holds true for smokers where the need to prevent cravings for cigarettes or weight gain is just as important. Both problems are covered at the seminar, and each seminar leader is personally trained by Mr. Gentner. Further information can be obtained by calling, toll free, 1-800-645-5454.

WINDY DEPARTURE — President Reagan attempts to help First Lady Nancy keep her skirt from blowing in a gusty wind as they board Air Force One Wednesday at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland. The Reagans are starting a 10-day, four-nation European trip, the first since taking office. Their first stop is in Paris.

Visit will push Reagan's 'human side'

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — As Ronald Reagan opens his first trip to Europe as president, his aides feel he has already blunted the nuclear arms issue and other potential diplomatic dilemmas. They also feel he has resolved any questions about whether he has the skill and knowledge to perform on the international stage.

But they acknowledge that the 10-day, four-nation trip is not without political risks.

There are the possibilities of diplomatic scraps, although clear rifts are unlikely. Street demonstrations that would call attention to the president's defense buildup are anticipated. The Europeans are likely to make their annual pitch to the president to produce lower interest rates in the United States.

Still, said one senior White House aide, the trip is viewed as an opportunity for Reagan to be portrayed as the leader of the Western alliance, stressing economic unity at the summit in Versailles and military and political unity at the NATO summit in Bonn next week.

At the same time, aides hope that three live television appearances in Europe and such colorful activities as horseback riding with Queen Elizabeth II will help present a "human" side of the president to the European audience.

"I think we're positioned well as far as timing goes," said one aide, referring to the relatively quiet period in Central America, the arms reduction plan and the overall state of U.S. relations with the European allies and with Japan.

He added that since the journey is Reagan's first presidential jaunt beyond the Western Hemisphere, "it is important from the standpoint of the president's overall leadership image that this first trip be a successful one."

Reagan has attended two other major summits: Last year's economic summit of the seven leading industrial democracies, in Canada, and the Cancun, Mexico, meeting on the problems of the developing world.

One senior White House official, who asked that he not be identified, acknowledged that before those gatherings, there was some trepidation about how Reagan, an unexperienced player, would acquit himself and whether he was "up on the issues."

His aides say they are confident that he demonstrated last year that he could handle himself well in such meetings. They say they are unconcerned about such matters in Europe.

Nor, they say, are they overly concerned about anticipated anti-nuclear demonstrations here in Paris or in Rome, London, Bonn and West Berlin, the other cities on Reagan's 10,384-mile journey.

As for the impact at home, the trip is not seen as one that would necessarily lead to political benefits.

"There was a time when a president went abroad and there was a 10-point jump in the polls. Those days are over," said one aide.

Protesters may give Reagan rough reception

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Reagan's visit to Western Europe is going to bring hundreds of thousands of Europeans into the streets to jeer at him and protest the deployment of U.S. nuclear missiles in their countries.

West German terrorists gave Reagan a taste of the sentiment against him when they bombed four U.S. military installations in the Frankfurt area Tuesday and said the attacks were "a prelude to a hopefully loud, eventful and unforgettable reception" for the president.

Two other bombings caused at least $50,000 damage to the Duesseldorf offices of two U.S. computer firms. Police said they might be connected with the Frankfurt bombings.

Reagan's trip to Paris, Rome, London, Bonn and West Berlin will give him his first direct taste of the sentiment building against him in Europe since he took office. He said in an interview with European reporters broadcast Tuesday that he is "curious" about the protesters. He said he wants to find out "what is going on inside these people and whether they really understand what I represent."

Anti-Reagan feeling appears strongest in West Germany, where leftists regularly deride "the cowboy in the White House." At least 150,000 people are expected to rally his policies and the NATO summit he will attend when it opens in Bonn June 10.

On the same day, 100,000 protesters are expected to turn out in West Berlin. Several of the 170 groups supporting that demonstration have threatened to reappear when Reagan visits West Berlin for a few hours the next day.

West German officials have been telling American reporters for the last two months that the protesters are a minority and that public opinion polls indicate 80 percent of the West Germans back NATO and like Americans.

To underline this, the Christian Democrats, the opposition conservative party, have organized a pro-American rally in Bonn June 12. They expect 100,000 people.

Peak month for tornadoes ends

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The peak tornado month of May ended with a vengeance in Marion, Ill. last weekend after a record-setting 351 twisters battered middle America, killing 13 people and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Although the count is tentative, Fred Ostby, director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center, said the 351 tornadoes topped the old record of 274 set in May, 1965.

With one month remaining in the tornado season, the center says 47 people have died in tornadoes this year, nearly double the 24 deaths reported in all of 1981.

The worst day this year was April 2, when 90 tornadoes killed 28 people in Texas, Missouri, Arkansas and Mississippi.

"I had said back in March, looking at the pattern we had, that it would be a very active spring," Ostby said. "It seemed to be more of a lasting thing than a fleeting thing. Unless there's a drastic change, it looks like its going to continue through June."

Ostby says air flows in the upper atmosphere are nearly perfect for creating severe thunderstorms, which in turn spawn tornadoes.

On Aug. 17, 1944, British RAF bombers staged one of the great fire raids of World War II, dumping 70,000 incendiaries on the German ports of Kiel and Stettin.

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — Throughout history, man has used mud and his bare hands to build his homes. But an Alamogordo man has developed a way to bring technology to the oldest of building materials.

Howard Scoggins says his technique may raise adobe to what he believes is its rightful place in modern society — a cheap way to produce energy-efficient homes.

"I believe we're about a decade away from the time when eight out of 10 homes in the Southwest will be made out of adobe," Scoggins, 49, said, adding that high energy prices will lead more and more homeowners to return to the material used to build Babylon and Rome.

Adobe has been made since the dawn of civilization by mixing dirt, water and straw in a wooden mold, packing it by hand or foot and then letting the sun dry the mixture into a hard brick.

But Scoggins has changed that process with a machine some call "the Monster Molder." It's an odd-looking contraption built of scrap metal and it can produce dozens, rather than a couple, of adobe blocks at a time.

The machine is a metal grid with holes the size of adobe blocks topped by a hopper that feeds the mud mixture into the molds. The unit is hooked to the back of a cement-mixing truck filled with adobe mud.

The mud is pumped into the hopper, which moves hydraulically along the top of the mold, feeding mud into the holes and packing it in one motion. Then the mold is lifted off the ground, leaving the wet bricks lying behind. The truck is rolled forward and the process is repeated.

"Before we had the machinery, we had 15 people out here working like hell to move 1,500 adobe blocks a day," Scoggins said. "Now, we have two men making 3,000 a day."

Similar processes had been tried by many before, but none worked, he said. "The secret is the material itself," he said. "It's been engineered before it's ever mixed. Most people who make adobe just get any old dirt and mix it with water until it looks right and then they figure they've got good adobe." Scoggins and his partner, Bob Godby, screen the dirt and crush it into a fine powder before mixing it with water and an asphalt compound that makes the bricks waterproof. The result is a denser adobe block that Scoggins boasts is stronger than cement.

'There's a bar in Mexico where they've had one of our (adobe) blocks in a fish bowl for three years waiting for it to melt. By God, it hasn't yet.'

He throws an adobe block to the ground to show it won't crack. He has a visitor lift regular adobe blocks and his version to show his is heavier and denser.

"There's a bar in Las Palomas (Mexico) where they've had one of our blocks in a fish bowl for three years waiting for it to melt," he said with a chuckle. "By God, it hasn't yet."

Scoggins became interested in adobe after interviewing a brickmaker when he was running a small newspaper in Marble Falls, Texas. He left the newspaper business for the building trades and ended up in village rebuilding projects for World Church Services in Africa and the Middle East, where adobe is still made the old way.

He developed a hand-operated version of his adobe machine for use in the Third World countries and then showed it to Godby, 54, a friend who had run The Adobe Patch in Alamogordo for more than a decade.

The two men perfected the machine and began producing adobe blocks in six different sizes. They also build homes from their own materials. "We've taken the mystique of the little old fellow in the sombrero out of the process," he said. "We're looking at the middle class, the people who want to cut energy costs and have a nice place to live."

Energy shortages may cause a resurgence of adobe use because the density of the bricks acts as its own insulation, he added.

"With adobe, you've got all of the advantages of an underground house sitting there in a conventional style home," he said. "You can save 35 to 50 percent on your energy budget if you live in an adobe house rather than a wood frame house. The energy savings over 20 years just about equals the interest on the note for the house."

Costs for adobe can be lower, he said. "A woodframe constructed house when it's finished will cost you about $7 a square foot of wall. A woodframe wall with brick veneer will cost you about $8.90 a square foot. A square foot of adobe wall costs about $4.60."

It's cheaper when you lay the adobe bricks yourself, and Scoggins teaches classes in adobe masonry and sells about 95 percent of his blocks to people building their own homes.

Scoggins believes that once people in the Southwest realize the economic benefits, adobe will again be the main building material in the area.

He and Godby have designed an adobe-making plant that would be totally mechanized and could produce 15,000 blocks a day. Plans to build the plant have been postponed because of the slump in the housing industry.

Cubans, Haitians taken off welfare

SWEETWATER, Fla. (AP) — Alberto Morales hiked up his pants and waded through the rain-soaked high grass to busy Flagler Street, then patiently dangled a freshly caught red snapper toward the passing cars.

With luck, a motorist would stop to buy the fishmonger's catch for a few dollars.

For the 34-year-old Morales, a Cuban auto mechanic unable to find work in the United States, it is his only income.

The poorly dressed man hawking fish, oranges or apples along Miami-area streets — not an uncommon sight since the 1980 Cuban boatlift that brought nearly 100,000 refugees to Dade County — had new urgency Tuesday.

For some 32,000 Cubans and Haitians, it was the day their names were taken off federal welfare rolls.

Since 1980, the refugees have depended on cash payments of up to $119 a month to pay for housing and other living expenses. However, the Reagan administration this year halved the eligibility for the special cash assistance from 36 months to 18 months.

Florida, like most states, doesn't have its own cash-assistance program, other than Aid to Families with Dependent Children. It paid out $10.1 million in the last two months, but stopped after a federal judge declined to order the federal government to reimburse Florida and to resume the monthly payments.

State officials said Tuesday they will continue to seek relief in the courts, but are concerned about the impact on crime in Dade County — fueled to record levels in 1980 and 1981 by Mariel refugees — for jobless refugees suddenly unable to pay for a place to live.

"It's a shame, because of the inroads we have been making in controlling the crime problem in Dade County. You have to be concerned about this large number of jobless refugees being put into the streets," said Gov. Bob Graham.

"I can't predict the impact on crime, but I can say that of all the refugees we've talked to who were receiving the payments, only three have told us they have found jobs...when you have such a large number of jobless people suddenly with no money, there are going to be problems," said Linda Berkowitz, refugee coordinator for the state's Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Another 6,000 refugees will lose their eligibility Aug. 1.

The aid cutoff may hit hard in this heavily

Latin, flood-prone East Everglades town of 8,000 residents. Local officials estimate between 1,000 and 2,000 refugees here had been receiving an average of $98 monthly in federal assistance.

"It may mean some stereotypes are taken and hubeaps are stolen so they can pick up $30 here and $30 there," said Ana Perea, social services director for the city. "This could lead to chaos."

Florida last month caused an uproar among welfare officials in other states by sending letters to the refugees advising them of 10 states from Massachusetts to Hawaii where they could continue receiving welfare for up to 18 months.

But officials say few refugees show any interest in leaving the Miami area, and that the state hasn't organized any effort to move them from Florida.

"The state wouldn't put them on a bus and let them fend for themselves," says state HRS spokesman Danny Pietrodangelo in Tallahassee. "That would be morally wrong."

Officials expect that more refugees now will ask about moving to other states. Stephanie Altone, one of several thousand Haitian refugees affected, earlier sent his wife to Chicago to join a relative there who has a job.

Voters pick candidates to fight off incumbents

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Republicans hoping to knock off two Democratic fixtures in the U.S. Senate have picked a young Mississippi lawyer to challenge aging John Stennis and a wealthy West Virginia conservative to take on party leader Robert Byrd.

In other primary voting Tuesday, New Mexico Democrats chose attorney general Jeff Bingaman to try to unseat Sen. Harrison Schmitt, while a former attorney general, Toney Anaya, won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Anaya will oppose former Republican state Sen. John Irick for the job that Democratic Gov. Bruce King must give up in accordance with state law.

In South Dakota, state Sen. Mike O'Connor defeated former state Rep. Elvern Varilek for the Democratic nomination to oppose incumbent Republican Gov. Bill Janklow.

West Virginia and New Mexico also held congressional primaries, where incumbents faced token or no opposition, but Mississippi did not because its redistricting has been challenged by the Justice Department. There was no primary competition for South Dakota's lone House seat.

Stennis, the senior member of the Senate who is seeking his seventh term at the age of 80, easily captured the Democratic nomination.

But he faces his first serious Republican threat from 34-year-old Haley Barbour, a long-time GOP worker and attorney who defeated Highway Commissioner Bobby Richardson.

With 2,106 of Mississippi's 2,120 precincts reporting, Stennis had 145,483 votes or 75 percent of the vote, state Sen. Charles Pittman had 34,207 votes or 18 percent, and radio station owner Colon Johnston had 14,674 votes or 7 percent. On the Republican side, with 2,091 precincts in, Barbour had 30,461 votes or 74 percent and Richardson had 10,531 votes or 26 percent.

In West Virginia, Cleve Benedict, a first-term congressman, swept to the Republican nomination for the Senate and promised a tough fight against Byrd, the Senate minority leader who is seeking a fifth term and was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Benedict declined to say whether he believed support from Reagan would help his campaign to unseat Byrd, one of the best vote-getters in West Virginia political history.

Des Moines paper may shut down

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Employees of the Des Moines Register and Tribune Co. were told today that a formal recommendation has been made to cease publication of the afternoon Des Moines Tribune at the end of summer.

Executive Editor James Gannon read a statement to employees of the Tribune and the morning Des Moines Register which said the recommendation will be considered at a June 21 board meeting.

Gannon said the recommendation had his support as well as the support of Michael Gartner, president of the Register and Tribune Co. The recommendation came from a special committee formed to study prospects of the Register and the Tribune.

Employees in the newsroom said there was silence as the statement was read. One employee wept openly. Gannon told employees no decision has been made on whether the morning Register would begin publishing an afternoon edition. He did say the Register would continue its statewide edition.

Jim Bridger, mountain man, was the first to see the Yellowstone River. He told a tale of the river that straddled the Continental Divide, a two-ocean waterway where trout could swim toward either the Atlantic or Pacific Oceans.

Government plans butter giveaway

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of pounds of butter will be distributed to the nation's needy as the government expands its cheese giveaway to other dairy products and possibly beyond.
"Up to 50 million pounds of butter will be available to the states through the remainder of the year," Agriculture Secretary John Block said Tuesday.
Block's announcement marked the second time in less than a week that the administration, faced with burgeoning stockpiles of milk products, has widened its free distribution of dairy products to needy American families.

USDA officials have also said within recent weeks that the government's free food distribution program could be expanded beyond perishable dairy products to include such surplus commodities as honey, turkey, rolled oats and peanut butter.
Last week, Deputy Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng said the cheese giveaway program would be increased by another 120 million pounds to a total of 220 million pounds.
"The expanded cheese distribution provides food valued at over $320 million to needy persons," Block said. "The butter distribution will be patterned after the successful cheese program and will make available nearly $75 million of donated food to needy persons."

The government, under its multibillion-dollar dairy price support program, currently owns some 380 million pounds of butter and nearly 700 million pounds of cheese, stored in warehouses around the nation.
Earlier this month, the government stocks of surplus cheese, butter and nonfat dried milk were valued at some $2.5 billion. Storage costs for government-owned commodities have been placed in excess of $100,000 a day.
Both the butter and cheese are being distributed through local nonprofit organizations with the department's Food and Nutrition Service assisting as much as possible.

California lifts some vegetable quarantines

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — Satisfied with the success of its $90 million campaign against the Mediterranean fruit fly, California has lifted fruit and vegetable quarantines in three counties and may declare two more counties medfly-free next week.
At the same time, the Agriculture Department in Washington said it was launching a precautionary program to prevent potential medfly infestations in other parts of the nation.
"We're putting about 35,000 traps throughout the United States ... concentrating them in the Southeast, the Gulf Coast states and other areas with favorable climates, heavy international traffic, produce terminals and a variety of medfly hosts," said Harvey Ford, deputy administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.
While Ford said it is unlikely the fruit flies will be found in those areas, he said the California outbreak probably began with the entry of a single piece of infested fruit into the state. Early detection of any similar situation elsewhere can prevent rapid spread of the pest, he said.

The traps use food bait to lure the flies onto a sticky plate. No pesticides are used and the traps are considered harmless to humans and animals, Ford said.
Quarantine signs were taken down in Los Angeles, Stanislaus and San Benito counties Tuesday by officials of the California Department of Transportation, according to Roger Blake, spokesman for the medfly eradication project.
Four other counties remain quarantined but if no new medflies are found they may all be declared free of the crop-destroying pest by early September, Blake said.
"The next good news may come on June 10 or 11," Blake said. "We might move the quarantine signs northward out of Santa Clara and Santa Cruz counties by mid-June. It looks like that would be very possible."
Alameda and San Mateo counties may be declared free of the medfly by early September, Blake said.

Grocery bills jump, survey says

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Grocery bills went up last month at the fastest pace in almost a year, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey which shows higher prices at the meat counter were to blame for much of the increase.
The AP survey showed that the price of a randomly selected list of 14 food and non-food items, checked at one supermarket in each of 13 cities, rose by an average of 1.3 percent during May. That compared with a decrease of eight-tenths of 1 percent during April.
The AP began its survey on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month since then. The findings are not weighted to reflect seasonal adjustment or to show what percentage of a family's actual food budget each item represents.
The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bill increased during May at the checklist store in 10 cities and decreased in three cities. The overall increase of 1.3 percent was the largest since June 1981 when prices also rose 1.3 percent.
Comparing today's prices with those at the start of the year, the AP found that the marketbasket bill was up at the checklist store in 10 cities and down in three, for an overall average increase of 3.1 percent during the five-month period. The average marketbasket bill dropped 6.4 percent in the same period last year.
One of the few bright spots for consumers last month was the continuing decline in the price of eggs. The AP survey showed the price of a dozen, medium white eggs dropped at the checklist store in 10 cities, rose in one and was unchanged in two.
Prices for meat — particularly pork — were up sharply last month, however. The price of a pound of center cut pork chops went up at the checklist store in 10 cities, declined in one and was unchanged in two. The price of chopped chuck went up at the checklist store in five cities and the price of all-beef frankfurters rose in four cities. Meats accounted for about one-fifth of all the items surveyed by the AP, but they accounted for two-fifths of the May increases.
The higher prices for meat at the supermarket reflect higher prices for hogs and cattle. Ranchers and hog farmers, who had been losing money because of low meat prices, have cut back production, meaning smaller supplies and higher prices.
The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes or comparable substitutes were used.

Republican official recommends Texas A&M researcher for post

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas A&M University poultry specialist who has been recommended as the Republican candidate for state agriculture commissioner says he will campaign for consumers' support in the race.

Fred Thornberry, 45, has been recommended to replace Waller rice farmer Donald Hebert for the November battle against Democrat Jim Hightower, a Republican official said Wednesday.

Party leaders were expected to make the formal recommendation today in a press conference at the state capitol.

"If I am elected, I hope that I can do as good a job as humanly possible for the consumers and food and fiber producers of this state," said Thornberry, 45, a project group supervisor and state specialist for the A&M Agricultural Extension Service.

"I hope that I can offer the leadership we need," said Thornberry. "I intend to take an active role in state leadership."

Thornberry will be recommended for nomination by the state Republican Executive Committee, said Republican executive director Wayne Thornburn.

He said party chairman Chester Upham recommended Thornberry from a field of about 20 other candidates. Republican officials had sought a stronger candidate to run against Hightower, who defeated incumbent Reagan Brown in the May 1 Democratic primary.

Party officials had said Hebert would withdraw if a stronger candidate could be found.

Hebert could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

"It has been indicated to me that I will be offered the opportunity to run for agriculture commissioner," Thornberry said from his home in College Station.

Thornberry has three degrees from A&M, including a Ph.D. in poultry science in 1968.

Father pays back Temple's loans

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple has his father to thank for repaying more than $1 million in loans he spent in the governor's race.

Temple's campaign finance report filed on Tuesday showed that Daboll timber baron Arthur Temple Jr. paid off $1,027,041 in loans on May 19.

Other candidates who lost in the May 1 primaries or who face Saturday runoff turned in campaign finance reports on Tuesday.

Buddy Temple took out about $1.38 million in loans for his race, raising a total of $2.5 million. He spent about the same amount in his campaign as he raised through loans and contributions.

But Temple ended his bid for governor when he withdrew from a Democratic runoff with Attorney General

Mark White, who ran first in the May primary. Arthur Temple Jr. is vice chairman of Time Inc. During the campaign he said he would prefer if his son was not in politics.

Campaign reports have not been received from Jim Mattox and John Hannah, who are in the Democratic runoff for attorney general. State Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland, opposing Garry Mauro of Austin in Saturday's Democratic runoff for land commissioner, also did not have a report on file late Tuesday.

But reports not filed still will meet the deadline requirement if they arrive by mail and were postmarked by June 1.

Republican Gov. Bill Clements and White, his Democratic challenger, did not have to file Tuesday.

Appeals court reverses theft conviction

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Corpus Christi man cooperating with law enforcement officials did not intend to steal a miniature tape recorder used by undercover agents, a federal appeals court has ruled.

Thomas P. Shackelford had been convicted in the theft of an FBI Nagra tape recorder, valued at over $2,000.

However, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the conviction

Tuesday. The court said the recorder had disappeared after Shackelford talked with another man who wanted to avoid arrest.

He had met with Timothy Bielert of Corpus Christi on Oct. 20, 1980, to discuss how Bielert could "get off the hook" of a couple of arrest warrants by paying $350, the court said.

The justices said Shackelford was acting as a cooperating individual for Nueces County deputy constable Rick Miller.

And Bielert actually had contacted the FBI about Shackelford's $350 proposal and carried a brief case with the Nagra concealed beneath the lining, the court said.

"The scheme quickly went awry" after Bielert got into Shackelford's car, the court said.

Managing editor resigns

DALLAS (AP) — Jon Katz, managing editor of the Dallas Times Herald, says he has resigned, effective July 1.

"My reasons for leaving are personal," Katz said Tuesday in a statement to the newspaper's staff.

Ken Johnson, editor and executive vice president, said a successor to Katz has not been named.

Katz, 34, joined the newspaper in September from the Baltimore News-American, where he was editor. He previously worked for the Atlantic City (N.J.) Press, The Boston Globe, The Philadelphia Inquirer and The Washington Post.

Thursday Notes

Baseball championships are being decided across the country with the daddy of them all, the NCAA College World Series, saving the best of last.

No. 1 ranked Texas advanced to Omaha this past weekend, winning the regional tournament played on its home field in Austin. One of the teams making the tourney was Hardin-Simmons University, representing the Trans America Athletic Conference.

The Cowboys gained the tourney spot by winning the league tournament earlier in the month. One of the heroes was Big Spring's Bobby Doe, a former standout at Lubbock Christian College who played his senior season at HSU.

BOBBY DOE
...big year at HSU

Doe batted .305 for the year and was named all-conference along with pitcher Mike Richard, who is from Midland. He also made the all-tournament TAAC team.

He knocked in 30 runs for the year, and scored 31 times. Before the post-season began, he had only three strikeouts in 164 at-bats.

HSU was only 23-30 entering the tourney but here's why. They were 1-13 against LCC, the No. 1 rated NAIA team in the nation; lost two to Texas, the No. 1 rated NCAA team; and lost two more (including a 3-2 decision in 14 innings) to Oklahoma State, a team that will be at the College World Series. That's a pretty tough schedule.

Doe completed his high school playing days at Snyder before his college career.

Stewart Bunn, a former Big Spring resident and now tennis pro at the Eastridge Country Club in Shreveport, La., recently made a big name for himself. He and three other local tennis pros played tennis for 90 hours to establish a new Guinness Book world record.

The old mark was 84 hours, held by four players from Australia. "We want to bring the record back to the states," said Chris Brown, one of the four.

Hey, hey, hey. The new Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders have been picked. I haven't seen any of them yet but you can bet your cleats they're some babes.

I have met one of them — Kelly Gray, whose aunt is the justice of the peace in Stamford. She's one of 12 veterans back on the 36-member squad.

All but five are from Texas with one, Barbara Ferne, from Vancouver, British Columbia. An even dozen are from Dallas. The oldest is 28 (Jo Anne Hall of Dallas) and the youngest age 18 (Lorie Clark of Coarland, Kim Bateman of Fort Worth, Kaye Boone of Bartlesville, Okla., and Sany Matthews of Deland, Fla.)

Reminders for your softball calendars. This weekend is the Sixth Annual Cotton Mize Fastpitch Tournament and also the Phunhaus Slowpitch Tourney in Coahoma.

For the weekend of June 11-13, the West Texas "Belles" Tournament is slated for Johnny Stone. Entry fee is $75, with the usual assortment of trophies, awards, watches, new cars and Lear jets being given away. Call Bill Bailey at 267-1649 or 263-8525 (after 11 p.m.) to enter.

The Big Spring Chamber tournament is scheduled June 18-20 with entry fee set at $90. Deadline is June 16 at 6 p.m. Contact Bailey again to enter.

And from the Herald Hole-in-one Scrapbook...

Big Springer Bob Bell recorded an ace on the No. 7 hole at the Country Club using a 7-iron. Watching him perform were Earl Cota, Bill Chane and Steve Childress, all of the Spring City.

Pro Gary Hammer reminds golfers of the June Partnership (June 12-13). It's a low-ball event with scratch and handicap divisions. Entry fee is $40. Contact Hammer at the County Club to enter.

Sixers hoping for game 4 theft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob McAdoo believes his Los Angeles Lakers swiped a game in Philadelphia last Thursday night. He doesn't want the 76ers to match the theft at the Forum tonight.

"They're going to try to steal one from us just like we took one from them back there," said McAdoo. "The pressure's still on us, we have to win at home. We can't let up. They're a great road team."

McAdoo referred to Philadelphia's two victories at Boston in the Eastern Conference championship series, which enabled the 76ers to advance to the National Basketball Association finals against the Lakers.

However, the 76ers didn't look great, or even good, at the home of the Lakers Tuesday night as Los Angeles took a 129-108 decision to grab a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The opportunity was there for the 76ers when Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar went to the sidelines with 2:15 remaining in the first quarter after picking up his third foul. He didn't return until the start of the second half.

NBA
Championship

Los Angeles led 24-17 when Abdul-Jabbar went out. But shortly later, the Lakers were on top 40-30.

The 76ers narrowed the gap to 60-46 at halftime, but that was as close as they got as the Lakers went on a 13-2 rampage in the opening 3:30 of the second half to end any suspense.

Tonight's fourth game begins at 6 p.m.,

PDT. The teams return to Philadelphia, where the Lakers won the series opener 124-117, for Game 5 Sunday afternoon. A sixth game, if necessary, will be played here next Tuesday night.

McAdoo had a lot to do with his club's convincing victory in Game 3, scoring all 14 of his points in the first half, 12 of them while Abdul-Jabbar watched.

"Being at home sure helped a lot," said McAdoo. "The fans really got us going at the start. We knew we had to put four good quarters together tonight and we did that."

Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham gave the Lakers credit, but made it clear that his club wasn't at the top of its game. He also expressed the feeling that tonight's contest will be another matter.

"We just did not play well as a team," he said. "They played outstanding. I know that is simplifying things, but that is exactly what it was. We will be back. You will see a different club Thursday night."

Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley agreed.

"I think it's indicative that when a team loses at this level it's going to respond with a much better effort," he said after Game 3. "So I expect Philadelphia to come back in a different frame of mind Thursday night and we're going to have to be just as tough."

Riley feels the Lakers played much better in Game 3 than they did at Philadelphia, where they won the opener before losing the second game 110-94.

BREAKS MEET RECORD — SMU's Robert Wier lets fly with the hammer setting a new NCAA meet record of 246-feet 8-inches during qualifying Wednesday in Provo.

The old record was 237-feet 5-inches held by Scott Nelson of Washington.

HC Queens ink Farwell guard

Janene Berry, a 5-5 guard from Farwell High School, is the first basketball recruit of coach Don Stevens at Howard College.

The three-sport letterman made the all-district squad her sophomore, junior and senior seasons, gaining the league's most valuable player award in 1982.

She was named to the Amarillo Globe News Super Team, was All-South Plains and was selected to play in the East-West All-Star game in Amarillo.

Berry scored 524 points and averaged 17 a game this past year. She also contributed seven steals a game.

In addition to basketball, she was district runner-up in tennis for two years, advancing to the regional meets. As a golfer, she played on three state qualifying teams and was regional medalist as a sophomore. The team won the state title that year and were runnersup her freshman and junior springs.

JANENE BERRY
...first HC signee

"I am very pleased that Janene has chosen Howard College to pursue her career," said coach Stevens. "She provides the talent in ball-handling and outside shooting that I feel we needed help in. She will be a crowd pleaser with her flashy style of play."

Outside of her sports career, Berry was a member of the Farwell Student Council and National Honor Society.

HC signs Mitchell

ABILENE — Howard College baseball coach Bill Griffin added a fourth recruit Wednesday when he signed Cooper High standout Billy Mitchell to a scholarship agreement.

Mitchell was an all-district selection on the second place Cougar squad. As a pitcher, he compiled an 8-3 record and batted over .400 at the plate, smacking eight home runs for the season.

He joins Big Spring standout Blake Rosson, Moe Rubio and Mark Warren on the first-ever Hawk baseball roster.

Cooney spars with the press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I just like to fight," says Gerry Cooney. "I don't like what goes along with it."

One of the things that goes along with it is the continual questioning a fighter has to undergo.

It is something Cooney says he could do without, but he has been cooperative with the media since coming here to prepare for his bid against champion Larry Holmes for the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship June 11 at Caesars Palace.

"The questions aren't important," he said at a news conference after a workout Wednesday in which he sparred two rounds each against three partners. The only thing that matters is June 11. In the large crowd watching the training session in a hotel conference room was Frank Sinatra, who is appearing at Caesars Palace.

One of the questions usually is about Cooney's left shoulder. He tore a muscle in it while sparring Jan. 11 and his fight against Holmes, originally scheduled for March 15, had to be postponed.

The question was asked again Wednesday.

"It's 100 percent better than it was before," said trainer Victor Valle.

"It's 150 percent better," said Cooney, raising his voice. "There's no chance of it recurring."

But Cooney also displayed a sense of humor.

On opening the news conference, the 25-year-old challenger from Huntington, N.Y. said, "As far as I'm concerned, my view on foreign policy..."

He also said that he had been measured by ABC-TV for a pre-fight show and that his listed height of 6-foot-5 is inaccurate.

"You know I'm 6-foot-7 now," said Cooney. "I hope I don't grow no more."

Valle said that Cooney is right on schedule in his training and conditioning.

"Right now he's at his peak and I got to be a little careful."

No. 1 Lloyd is upset

PARIS (AP) — Andrea Jaeger upset the favorite, Chris Evert Lloyd, 6-3, 6-1 today and reached the final of the French Open tennis championships.

Lloyd, 27, who has won the French title four times and was once rated invincible on these slow clay courts, played inconsistently while Jaeger scarcely made an error.

For Jaeger, one day short of her 17th birthday, it was her third victory over Lloyd in five meetings this year. Jaeger sewed up the match in an unbelievably one-sided spell in the second set when she dropped only six points in racing to a 4-0 lead.

In the other semifinal at Paris' Roland Garros Stadium, defending champion Hana Mandlikova, the No. 5 seed from Czechoslovakia, played Czechoslovakian-born No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova.

Connors was toppled Tuesday in the quarterfinals by Spain's Jose Higueras, a 29-year-old seeded 14th. The bearded Spanish player stayed at the baseline in his 6-2, 6-2 victory.

Higueras will meet No. 3 seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina Friday when the men's semifinals get underway.

Mats Wilander, a 17-year-old Swede who wins at being called the heir apparent to Bjorn Borg, takes on No. 4 seed Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina in Friday's other men's semifinal.

Vilas, who has won all five Grand Prix tournaments he has entered this year, is the only men's player who has not lost a set at this two-week tournament. The Argentine, No. 4 in the world rankings, posted his fifth consecutive straight-set victory Wednesday.

Griese signs with network

As a quarterback for the Miami Dolphins, Bob Griese was never flashy, just a winner. He hopes to follow the same pattern as a broadcaster.

Griese, who retired following the 1980 season after 14 years with the Dolphins, begins a new career this fall. He's signed with NBC as a color commentator on National Football League games, and also will work on the network's "SportsWorld" anthology shows.

Tanana returns to old self

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Tanana, fresh from a rare victory, jumped atop his clubhouse stool and yelled at his needing teammates: "Keep it down, guys. I'm trying to hold an interview here."

Then he turned to members of the media and cracked: "I'm a little nervous. It's been awhile." Tanana had just pitched the Texas Rangers to a 4-1 victory Wednesday night, ending a personal six-game losing streak by holding the Baltimore Orioles to four hits with his first complete game.

"I didn't know what to do after the game," joked Tanana, who is 2-7 for the season and 5-17 over the past two years. "I was happy I walked back to the right dugout."

The Texas left-hander, who lasted only 2 1/3 innings while losing to the Orioles last Thursday, retired the first 11 batters before a scorching two-out double by Dan Ford in the fourth.

Bob Bonner blooped a two-out double in the sixth and scored on a single by Rich Dauer. Ford also singled, but Tanana retired Eddie Murray on a dribbler to first baseman Dave Hostetler.

"The key hitter was Eddie," Tanana said. "He's been a tough out for me. Fortunately, he hit an offspeed pitch, low and away. Last month, the ball would have rolled foul and then he would have cranked one."

Tanana has been on the losing end of three shutouts this season and in his previous seven starts, the Rangers had scored only 12 runs.

This time, the Rangers scored twice in the second inning off Sammy Stewart, 5-4, who blanked Texas and Tanana last Thursday. Hostetler homered in the fourth and John Grubb's RBI single made it 4-0 in the fifth.

Grubb walked with one out in the second and Hostetler, who has gone 6-for-14 since being brought up for Denver, followed with a single.

Larry Parrish also singled and Grubb, who had held up to make certain the ball would fall safely, scored when center fielder Gary Roenicke made an error on the pickup. A single by Mark Wagner scored Hostetler.

Rookie George "Storm" Davis held Texas to one hit over the final 4 1/3 innings, giving him an 0.83 earned run average for five relief appearances spanning 14 1/3 frames.

"Things just fell into place," said Tanana, a former fireballer who can no longer rely on blazing speed.

"Sometimes when I get to feeling good," he said, "I want to go back to where I was five years ago. But I'm not that anymore, and the sooner I realize that, the better."

"I tried to overpower the Orioles last time," Tanana said. "I got everything up, and I got roped."

Noting he had a better breaking ball and a good offspeed pitch this time, he added: "That's the kind of pitcher Frank Tanana is these days."

Ashby bats Astros to win

MONTREAL (AP) — If nothing else, the Montreal Expos learned the meaning of frustration in their 6-4 loss to the Houston Astros.

It began when the Expos left five runners on base in the first two innings Wednesday night against Houston starter Nolan Ryan and it continued when five of the six Astros' runs were driven in by their eighth-place hitter.

"I'm glad to get any RBI, let alone five," said Alan Ashby, who did the damage with a two-run double in the second inning and a three-run homer in the sixth. "I'm trying to get out of a rut."

"I've been in kind of a bad groove lately, and I just wanted to start hitting the ball hard somewhere. But I don't like the eighth spot in the batting order."

In the second inning, Ashby came up with two out and runners at first and second. In the sixth, the Astros had runners at first and third with two out.

"I didn't want to walk Ashby, but I know in both situations I shouldn't have given him anything real good to hit, with the pitcher coming up next," said Expos starter Scott Sanderson, 5-4. "I made some mental mistakes that were inexcusable for a pitcher who has been pitching as long as I have."

Ashby's double put Houston ahead 2-1, but the Expos tied it in their half of the second on Terry Francona's RBI single.

The Astros made it 3-2 in the third as Terry Puhl drew a leadoff walk and scored all the way from first on Ray Knight's double to left. Puhl stumbled rounding third and would have been out at the plate but catcher Gary Carter failed to hold on to the relay.

"It's one of those nights," said Montreal

Manager Jim Fanning. "Gary drops a ball like that maybe once every four years."

The Expos were especially ragged prior to Ashby's homer. Jose Cruz singled off the glove of shortstop Chris Speier and Tony Scott reached on an infield single on a sharp liner knocked down by third baseman Tim Wallach. An out on either play would have ended the inning before Ashby came to bat.

Montreal left the bases loaded against Ryan, 5-6, in the first. The Expos threatened again in the second, but Ryan, after yielding a run, limited them to one walk before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Dave Smith, who relieved Ryan, also struggled, but finished the game, despite yielding a solo homer to Andre Dawson in the eighth and a sacrifice fly to John Milner that produced a run in the ninth making it 6-4.

Dr. Patrick addresses Downtown Lions Club

America is in trouble, Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the First Baptist Church, told Downtown Lions at their Wednesday meeting. He suggested the way out was a biblically based conservatism patterned after Israel of biblical days.

A public debt of one trillion dollars bodes financial trouble, he said, and financial trouble leads to spiritual trouble. Some way has to be found to cut heavy tax burdens and to reduce federal intervention into affairs of localities, he said.

Some of this, he added, was in the area of welfare and entitlement programs. "All Thomas Jefferson was saying when he wrote that 'all men are created equal' is that the colonists were to have equal opportunity with Englishmen."

He rapped the theory of pure democratic action, declaring that government "by public opinion is a consensus of stupidity."

He proposed a strong external protective system and compulsory military service.

Those who will not participate have none but themselves to blame, he noted. "It's a crying shame people stay home and won't vote. If you don't vote you ought to keep your mouth shut."

He declared that biblical patterns were applicable today, and proposed a tithe for running society. "If it (10 per cent) worked for Israel, it will work for us."

Business announces merger

Jack Bennett of Dorothy Bennett Bookkeeping and Tax Services, recently announced the business was merging with ICS Computing and Services. He said the firm will continue to provide the same type services it has in the past, as well as expanding into the area of computerized accounting.

Pop singer Branigan lets her Irish out

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A lot of people call her Branigan, says singer Laura Branigan. "It's that kind of name."

She adds, "It's a very Irish name and I think a strong name. You can tell by the face I'm Irish." So, though Miss Branigan has been married for two years to a corporation lawyer, she uses her maiden name to sing. And her first record album, released in March by Atlantic Records, is titled "Branigan."

The first single, "All Night with Me," by Christ Montan, has been joined by a second single released from the album, "Gloria," by Umberto Tozzi, Giancarlo Bigazzi and Trevor Veitch. Miss Branigan wrote one of the songs on the album, "I Wish I Could Be Alone."

She was born in Brewster, N.Y., has three brothers and a sister. As a child, she remembers being shy. She'd sing and her mother would ask if she wanted to be a singer someday and she'd say no.

Then the teacher of the high school glee club suggested she try out for the female lead in the school's "The Pajama Game." She got it. "I went over well. After that, I went to the Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York for two years."

"Then, I pounded the pavement. First, I tried to get in a musical. But what I was really most interested in was singing, right off. It was most obviously my strong point. My range is three and a half octaves."

"My first job was singing background to Leonard Cohen when he toured Europe four years ago. He is worshipped over there. The first night out was for 8,000 people in Berlin. It was an incredible experience."

"Then I came back. I was asking a woman for directions on the street and Sid Bernstein came by. I said, 'You're Sid.' I was writing my own songs and wanted to start my own career. The next day I rang him up and asked if I could come over to his office and sing him one song. I said I wanted him to manage me. He said, 'You got it,' and that was it."

Bernstein arranged for her to sing for Ahmet Ertegun, board chairman of Atlantic. She sang Kiki Dee's "Never Going to Let You Go" and Ertegun told her the audition was over. He said her voice didn't really fit into any niche, but he signed her.

THE SONGS for her album were chosen in New York, with producer

...new artist

Jack White, and the recording was done in three weeks in November and December in Hollywood. Each track was sent to Ertegun as soon as it was done. The advice he gave her, Miss Branigan says, was not to hold a phrase too long, sing naturally, feel the song and not worry about anything while singing.

"I guess I like pop rock best," Miss Branigan says, "more than middle of the road. I wouldn't say the album is hard rock. Definitely there are some good rock 'n' roll tunes on it. When you have a big range, you can do a lot of different things. What I had to do, and have to do, is settle on what is really me. I've had people say I sound like a cross between Pat Benatar and Barbara Streisand."

Miss Branigan sang once at Reno Sweeney, then in March at the Bottom Line, two New York nightclubs. Billboard magazine said of the latter, "A star may have been born," and added, "Branigan showed herself to be a powerful singer with the stage presence of a veteran."

Her younger brother Billy sang backup vocals with her at the Bottom Line on "I Wish I Could Be Alone." She suggested that he record it with her, too, but the record company thought it a bit too expensive to fly him across the country for a three-minute song.

The day after the Bottom Line appearance, Miss Branigan flew to Los Angeles and recorded the song "Find Me," to be used in the movie "Some Sunny Day." She says, "They might change the title of the song. Atlantic is thinking about releasing the record. It's a beautiful ballad."

She will also take a screen test before the lead is cast in the movie "Evita." "Robert Stigwood heard my tape and saw my picture," she says.

"My voice is right for it. It's a magnificent show. That's why he feels they could go with an unknown."

IN JUNE, Miss Branigan will spend three weeks in Europe, mostly making TV appearances.

While in high school, Miss Branigan went to a bon voyage party on the France for a friend who was going to Oxford. She and two other girls drank enough champagne to decide it would be a lark to stay on board. They left the party and hid in a shower stall in an unlocked room. After a couple of hours, they rejoined their friend, who was horrified.

A steward locked them up in a tiny room with three beds.

"He was really angry. We were screaming and banging on the door, acting like maniacs. The head pursuer didn't find it at all funny. I had tears running down my face, laughing so hard."

"We said it was mistake and we were sick in the ladies' room. We were afraid to say anything else."

Their parents were called from the ship and sent money. Miss Branigan phoned her parents just to let her stay locked up, since they weren't wealthy, but they didn't. "The first night they gave us bread and water, I swear," she says. "People would come by and look in a little window at us."

After their parents sent money, the three girls were allowed out, to be back in their room by 11:30 p.m. They'd come back, be checked and leave again for the disco. A man from the French Line escorted them to London for emergency passports and to catch a flight home. He pleaded with them not to escape from him and, fearing he'd be fired if they followed their inclination, and escaped, they didn't.

London papers called them "the champagne stowaways" and took pictures of them in the only dresses they had. Before she married, Miss Branigan confessed, her wild oats to her husband.

ABC's 'J. Edgar Hoover' doesn't pay compliments

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What ABC's entertainment division glorified, ABC's news division will tarnish tonight in its documentary "J. Edgar Hoover."

ABC Entertainment has broadcast a pair of two-fisted glamorizations of Hoover's FBI, with Efrim Zimbalist Jr. as Hoover's hand-picked actor 17 years ago and Mike Connors bringing the G-Man up to date in last season's "The FBI."

But the FBI that unfolds in the "ABC News Closeup: J. Edgar Hoover" is the other side of the coin, and it doesn't look counterfeited. Hoover comes across as a vindictive, arbitrary, power-hungry man whose 50-year reign as the nation's top cop went from a war on crime to an assault on the Constitution.

And, in the end, Hoover's indiscretions obscure his contributions to a country he protected — perhaps too vigilantly — against his enemies: criminals, Nazis, communists and, finally, America's minorities.

What gets lost is that in 1924, the 29-year-old Hoover was asked to reform a corrupt FBI.

Dance number pulled from Tony Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — The star is heartbroken, the producer defiant and the number is out of the 1982 Tony Awards Show, which will be televised Sunday on CBS — minus a provocative dance number from the musical "Nine."

Anita Morris, nominated as best featured actress for her role in the musical, told her tale of woe Tuesday after learning that the Standards and Practices Committee at CBS found her on-stage undulations a problem.

"It's no problem for me...It's a piece of choreography," said the red-haired actress who plays the mistress of the musical's star, Raul Julia. "My grandmother would love it."

"I was heartbroken" on learning of the CBS decision, said Miss Morris. "I'm a theater person. It's the dream of a lifetime to appear on the Tonys."

BIG SPRING (TEXAS), THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1982

Six miles west of Big Spring

Man slain near I-20

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The body of a murdered Ohio man was discovered yesterday afternoon six miles west of Big Spring just off of Interstate 20. William Boyd Hite, who would have been 23 next week, was declared dead on the scene at 4:10 p.m. by Peace Justice Bobby West of what West called "extensive gunshots."

According to Sheriff Standard, the body was discovered at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday by a member of the Texas Highway Department maintenance crew who notified the sheriff's office. Deputies Paul Silva and Bill Shankles went to the scene on Farm Market Road 2599 at the interstate overpass with Justice of the Peace West, Standard said. Hite was shot with a heavy caliber weapon, the sheriff said.

The 22-year-old male was dressed in casual clothing evidently prepared for traveling, Standard said. A backpack was found approximately one or two miles east of the body which was later identified as belonging to the deceased Hite. "It is apparently intact," the sheriff added.

Hite's most recent address was Meridian, Miss., but he had evidently stayed in Big Spring for a period of time, Standard said. "We think he was here a day or two, we have someone who can put him here," he said.

The motive for Hite's slaying is as yet undetermined, the sheriff said. "We do have some general information we're sifting today but as to where it will lead, we don't know yet," Standard said.

Peace Justice West estimated the time of the shooting at 3:15 p.m., only thirty minutes prior to the discovery of the body. "I have ordered an autopsy, but he died of extensive gunshot wounds. We recovered four bullets at the scene," West said. Dr. Robert Rember of Malone-Hogan Hospital is performing the autopsy, West added.

A LONELY DEATH — Blood has washed away part of the chalk outline where the body of William Boyd Hite was discovered west of Big Spring. Law enforcement officials estimate Hite was shot several times with a large caliber weapon at approximately 3:15 p.m. Tuesday. The investigation continues according to the Howard County sheriff's office.

Suspect arrested

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Police arrested 37-year-old Isaiah Edwards of 501 Goliad yesterday in connection with the shooting death of Billy Roy Harris after Edwards turned himself in to a Midland attorney, according to Lt. John Wolf.

Edwards returned to Big Spring with the attorney and turned himself over to police officials, Wolf said. He remains in city jail pending arraignment.

A warrant of arrest for Edwards' was issued after he allegedly shot Harris, 45, of 712 Willia at approximately 11:15 p.m. Monday. Approximately 75 persons were at the scene of the alleged slaying, according to police reports.

Investigating officers found Harris lying to the right of the front door of the Zodiac Club at 311 North Lancaster, with a .25-caliber gunshot wound in his chest, police said.

Harris was described by police officials as a "silent partner" in the club's business operations.

The Mall Street Journal

It looks as if the warm weather is here to stay in good old West Texas. I hope every one's summer will go the way they want it to, out here at the Big Spring Mall there will be lots of good values coming your way. On the 9th of this month in honor of dear old dad there will be a recreation show inside the mall come out and see all the different forms of recreation on hand. There is also plans for several other kinds of shows later this month so keep an eye out for them.

Let's take a walk down the mall and see some of the good things the merchants have to offer. At Helen's we find that the new fall shoes are arriving daily, and that there are over 25 styles of shoes 40% off. Zales the diamond store has gentlemen's diamond rings, pendants, and tie tacks. The big sale at Radio Shack is still on and will continue till the 27th of this month. Gage Mims the manager tells me that they have cordless phones for $99.95, and turntables regularly $169.95 now $119.95. At Jenny's Old Time Treats there are Caramel Apples and fresh Strawberries dipped in white chocolate. The manager of Gordon's, Noe Luevanos tells me that you can save $100.00 to $300.00 on Diamond Solitaires. Now let's look at the Kopper Kettle the best way to describe this fine store is to say that they have a little bit of everything for the kitchen including gourmet coffee. Ric Beltram the manager of Regis stopped by the other day to remind me of the upcoming training session for all his employees this will mean that Regis will be closed June 15 and 16 from 8 a.m. till 5 p.m., but they will be open in the evening. At Aladdin's Castle the Tron Contest is still going strong. It is amazing to me the technology that goes into those machines. Bobbie Holmes at Emphasis is giving away a $25.00 gift certificate the night of June 5th so be sure to come in and sign up, $25.00 goes a long way at Emphasis. Emphasis is also having a sale on shorts and short sets. After all this walking around stop by the Peanut Shack where there are three new items: Orange and Pina Colada Wheppes and that old favorite Delaware punch.

For the next couple of weeks there will be a glass blower right here on the mall designing, creating and selling his art.

In case you haven't heard there will soon be three new members to the Big Spring Mall family. Flipside Records, Royal Optical, and Henderson Hallmark. The Big Spring Mall is proud to be the place to be in the Big Spring area.

Cottonseed products can be used in cooking

Women's Cotton Promoters, a newly-formed organization of farmers wives who promote cotton farming and products, furnished several recipes this week that use cottonseed products in cooking.

According to an extension service pamphlet "Food Products From Cottonseed," cottonseed is used in such foods as cooking oil, high protein beverages, whipped topping, Tamunuts, textured meat extenders and cottonseed flour.

Cottonseed oil is the major edible product derived from cottonseed. At least one of the many food products made with cottonseed oil is consumed by families each day. Some of the products include margarine, shortening, salad oil and mellowine.

Cottonseed flour has been important in combating malnutrition in Central and South America since the late 1950s. It offers many "plus" factors such as improved shelf life in baked goods, better machining and controlled spread in cookies, reduced fat absorption in doughnuts and better nutritive value in many foods through the addition of high-quality protein.

Researchers at Texas A&M University developed a nut-like product from the blandless cottonseed kernels called "Tamunuts." The Tamunuts have a pleasing nutty flavor and can be eaten directly as a snack or used in candies, bread, cookies and other baked items. The kernels may be boiled and eaten as a vegetable also.

Glandless cottonseed products have many food uses. Some of the uses are in simulated meat products, fortified cereal products, bakery goods, pastas, snack foods, gravies, sauces, puddings and other desserts such as soft ice cream.

The cotton products for cooking may be ordered from Cindy Hopper at 353-4419. They may be bought from Farmer's Co-op Gin in Knott.

ROASTING GLANDLESS COTTONSEED KERNELS-TAMUNUTS

Spread cottonseed kernels on cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees F. until golden brown (about 15 minutes) stir every 5 minutes. Tamunuts may be eaten as a snack or used in any recipe as a substitute for pecans or peanuts.

GLANDLESS COTTONSEED BUTTER

1 cup of Tamunuts
5 Tablespoons of vegetable oil
1/2 teaspoon of salt
1 1/2 Tablespoons of honey
Using a blender, grind the Tamunuts (roasted cottonseed kernels) into a powder. Add vegetable oil, blend until well mixed. Add salt and honey, blend thoroughly.

Makes 1 cup of "Cotton Butter". It can be used as a spread or a substitute for peanut butter in recipes.

CHOCOLATE COTTON BUTTER FROSTING

1/4 cup of cocoa
1-3rd cup of hot water
1 cup of cotton butter
1 teaspoon of vanilla
1/2 teaspoon of salt
1 pound of confectioner's sugar, sifted
Combine cocoa and water. Add cottonseed butter, vanilla and salt; beat until smooth. Gradually add sugar. Beat until creamy. Frost 2 layer cake.

COTTON BUTTER CAKE

1/2 cup of Cotton butter
2-3rd cup of water
1 box of "butter recipe" cake mix
1/2 cup of butter or margarine
4 eggs
Blend cotton butter and water. Add cake mix, butter and eggs. Continue preparation according to directions on box. Frost with Chocolate Cotton Butter Frosting.

COTTON PRALINES

1-3rd cup of corn syrup
1 1/2 cups of sugar
2-3rd cup of water
1/4 teaspoon of salt
2 cups of Tamunuts (roasted kernels)

4 teaspoons of butter
Combine sugar, syrup, water, and salt in saucepan. Stir until sugar is dissolved, then cook over moderate heat until mixture reaches soft ball stage (236 degrees F.). Remove from heat. Add glandless cottonseed kernels and butter. Beat until mixture begins to thicken. Drop by spoonfuls onto buttered foil. Cool.

Adds protein to a simple box cake mix.

COTTON BUTTER BISCUITS

2 cups of all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons of baking powder

1/2 teaspoon of salt
1/4 cup of shortening
1/4 cup of glandless cottonseed butter
1/2 to 3/4 cup of milk
Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening and cottonseed butter, until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Stir in milk a little at a time, just enough that dough leaves side of bowl and forms ball. Turn out onto floured pastry board. Knead gently 20 times. Roll 1/2" thick. Cut with biscuit cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes.

For a breakfast treat:

Blend:
8 oz. of cream cheese
1-3rd cup of sugar
1/4 teaspoon of cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon of allspice
Stir in: 1-3rd cup of chopped canned fruit, drained; set aside.

Prepare Cotton Butter Biscuit dough (above recipe). Roll dough 1/4" thick, and cut into 5" circles. Divide fruit mixture equally among circles; placing mixture in center of each circle. Pull edges of each circle up to center, gently twist together and pinch to seal, filling inside. Place on ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake at 400 degrees F. for 10 minutes or until golden brown. Combine 3/4 cup of confectioner's sugar with two tablespoons liquid (from fruit). Drizzle over warm pastries.

Let P&S Insulation make you cooler

The thunderstorms are dying down and soon the weather in Big Spring will be a constant "hot."

There are ways you can be cooler this summer, and save on energy bills. Pat and Sue Warren of P&S Insulation can show you how.

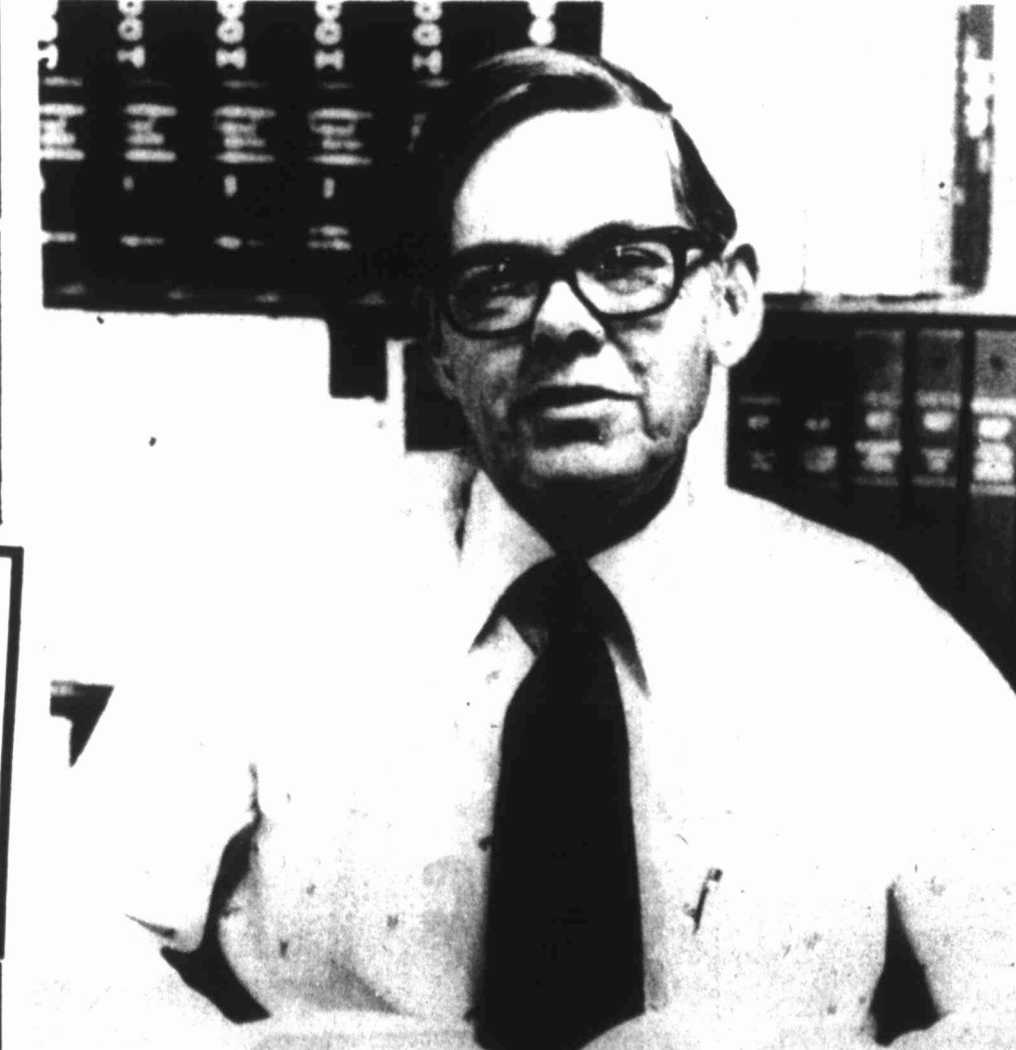

THEY CAN tell you about Insul-Safe II, the non-combustible insulation that will help homeowners who are worried about spiraling heating and cooling costs — for this year and for years to come.

Because Insul-Safe II is fiber glass, it won't absorb moisture, rot or decay and won't cause odors. It is made specifically for blowing into attic areas. It won't absorb moisture that can reduce thermal efficiency or contribute to its weight gain. It contains no chemicals that can cause mildew and fungus growth.

Insul-Safe II is free of fire retardant chemicals that can corrode gas or water pipes and electrical conduit. It is manufactured by Certain Teed Corp.

THE PEOPLE at P&S Insulation are experienced professionals. They have the skills and know-how and can tell you how to get the most out of your energy dollars. They are located at 301 Willard. Call them evenings at 267-1264 or 267-5611. Keep your energy costs working inside the house.

Six 4-H members visit Texas A&M

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas A&M University campus will be a hive of activity June 8-10 when some 2,000 4-H members from across the state gather for the 1982 State 4-H Roundup and State 4-H Congress. Roundup is traditionally held on the A&M campus each year, but this year the State 4-H Congress, a leadership event for senior 4-H members, has been scheduled to coincide with Roundup activities.

Theme for the three-day event will be "Discover Your Tomorrow," says George McArthur, 4-H and youth specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The Extension Service is the parent organization of 4-H.

Activities will begin with the State 4-H Food Show the first day followed by a special assembly that evening at 7 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium. Five individuals and businesses will be honored for their long-time support of 4-H and 72 outstanding 4-H members who will be awarded scholarships totaling $350,000.

Competition in 39 different contest areas begins bright-and-early Wednesday, June 9. These range from method demonstrations in agronomy and clothing to judging of horses, livestock and soils.

Six 4-Hers from the Howard County area will attend the roundup and congress. Paula Allen of Coahoma 4-H Club will participate in the food show. David Bristo of Forsan 4-H Club will participate in the livestock judging contest.

State 4-H Congress, with some 800 participants, begins at 8 a.m. that same day with a general assembly in Rudder Auditorium. Congress participants will be involved in a number of special seminars the remainder of the day dealing with educational and career opportunities.

And the State 4-H Project Show gets under way at 10 a.m. in Rudder Exhibit Hall. A special luncheon that day will honor 29 outstanding 4-H adult volunteer leaders from across Texas who have been selected from the 14 Extension Service districts.

Roundup contest winners will be recognized at a special assembly that evening at 8 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium.

The final day's program will include special activities for Congress participants, including tours and visits in various academic departments at Texas A&M.

State 4-H Roundup is a highlight of the 4-H year for many members, points out McArthur. Those who qualify to compete in the various contests have worked long and hard to sharpen their skills. They must have won at the county and district level to qualify for state competition.

Those who compete in the Project Show are demonstrating their expertise in certain project areas which they have developed over the years, he adds.

And Congress participants are working to expand their leadership skills and knowledge bases as they prepare to make choices relating to continued education and careers.

The Howard County 4-Hers attending will be accompanied by Mrs. Paul Allen, adult leader of Coahoma 4-H Club, Nina Mahon, county extension agent in Home Economics and Don Richardson, county extension agent in agriculture.

Absentee voting ends

Absentee voting for the June 5th Democratic run-off primary has ended with 359 ballots cast in the Howard County clerk's office. A total of 147 people cast absentee ballots yesterday on the last day of absentee voting.

County Clerk Margaret Ray reports 41 ballots have been mailed out with 31 already returned. Ray announced that all election judges should come by her office Thursday or Friday and pick up their election supplies.

Stanton City Council awards $10,500 bid

STANTON — The Stanton City Council awarded a bid of $10,500 to Environmental Sales and Service for a new water-pressure cleaning system for the city's sewer at a regular meeting last night. According to City Secretary Nelda Turner, the system will help to keep the city's sewer clean and free of congestion.

In other business the council discussed and considered a new Environmental Protection Agency grant that will help to rebuild part of the city's sewage treatment plant. Mrs. Turner said the EPA will be releasing the details of the grant at a later date.

The council approved the closing of an alley on block one in the Sun Set Addition so that Terry Shanks, a private citizen, could build a storage shed in the area.

In monetary matters, the city fathers agreed to give Stanton citizens a 20 percent homestead exemption for 1982, according to Mrs. Turner.

In final action the council approved a motion to sell a 1978 sanitation truck, and start condemnation procedures of the old Chevrolet building that burned during the winter.

Dr. Donohue

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a son who was diagnosed in the hospital as having disc space infection. He was put in a body cast and given a drug called Protophlin. He was about a year old when he got this, and that was 20 years ago. I was told the disc space infection was extremely rare. I've never talked to anyone who has any new information about this problem. My son was pronounced cured three years after his treatment and the cast was removed. Just a few years ago, he was checked again and was given the go-ahead to play football. I'd like to know if any new research has been done on disc space infection lately. — D.D.

Between each of the sections of backbone (vertebra) is a spot where the shock-absorbing cartilage called the disc is located. That is the disc space. And this space can be come infected. It is a rare, but not unheard of, infection.

This infection is hard to diagnose. For one reason, it is difficult to detect with X-rays of the back. Also, the low-back pain associated with it can come from a multitude of causes. The germs that cause the infection get to the disc space by way of the blood. It is not known why they decide to settle at that point. Your son was treated with a drug that kills the staph germ, one of the most common causes of disc space infections. His cast was to rest his back and the disc area specifically.

I am happy to hear that your son's infection responded so well to treatment and that he's able to play football now. He should send his doctors a couple of free tickets to his next game. They were alert in detecting his problem and treating it promptly, especially in one as young as he was at the time.

I can't report on any recent research having to do with disc space infection generally, but there is a tremendous amount of study trying to find the best way to kill germs that cause it. If we lived today without antibiotics, disc infection could be a permanently-crippling illness. Now, antibiotics attack the organism before there can be spread of infection to bone, which can cause collapse of the spine. We can be thankful for all the research that has gone on in the past few decades, leading to development of such a wide array of antibiotics.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can a man with Hodgkin's disease pass it on to the woman through sexual relations? — Anon.

I am not aware of any such precautions to be taken with a patient who has Hodgkin's disease. For the spouse of a person with Hodgkin's to come down with it would be a medical curiosity. We do not know that much about how a person does get Hodgkin's. Intercourse is not banned for those who have it or who had it and were treated for it.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Drug may be cure to psoriasis

An old drug in a new, very low concentration may prove to be the best treatment for psoriasis, the chronic scaly skin disease. Anthralin ointment, introduced in 1915, has been used for psoriasis in a standard concentration of 0.1 to 1.0 percent. According to Dr. Leopoldo F. Montes of the University of Alabama, Birmingham, the skin problem cleared up among the vast majority of 130 patients who used Anthralin ointment as part of their treatment. They applied a low concentration of ointment (1 to 0.5 percent) once daily along with using mild ultraviolet light, bath oil, emollient (softening cream) and antihistamine. The treatment was successful in every case of scalp psoriasis. What's more, reports Dr. Montes, the low-concentration ointment doesn't irritate or stain.

Angels record another win

The Saunders Company Angels continued their surge in American Senior League with a 19-7 romp over the Gartman Refrigeration Trojans Tuesday night.

Dodd was also the winning pitcher, limiting the Trojans to six hits.

The Angels are now 4-3 in the league standings while the Trojans slip to 3-4. The Astros lead with a 6-1 mark.

Despite all the gloomy reports that dominate front page news about the economy, there is more and more encouraging news about the economic developments. Here are some of the good economic news.

For the first time since mid-September all three major U.S. automakers reported that sales were higher than a year earlier. In addition, truck sales were even more robust.

The Department of Labor reported that full-time job openings available through 161 state employment-service jobs banks across the nation were up an average of 28 percent in March over February. The gain is the first month-to-month increase since September 1981.

Consumer prices from January through March increased at an annual rate of 1 percent. The GNP implicit price deflator indicated an annual rate of inflation of 3.6 percent.

Initial claims for unemployment insurance declined during the week ending May 1 for the fourth week in a row and reached the lowest level since February. In addition, the number of individuals collecting unemployment insurance declined by 10,000 from the previous week.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation reported home mortgage rates have declined for the tenth time in 11 weeks.

March was the second consecutive month that durable-goods orders increased. Durable-goods orders in March were 5.3 percent above the January level. Orders for machinery were up 3.8 percent during March.

The 30-day Treasury bill rate fell from 12.67 to 12.18 percent over the latest week, and is down from 15.58 percent in early September.

Non-residential investment spending has declined 1 percent during the current recession from its peak in the third quarter of last year. This is compared with an average decline of 4 percent during the first two quarters after the peak in the seven previous postwar recessions.

F. W. DODGE announced the value of new construction contracts awarded in March was up 8 percent after seasonal adjustment, with non-residential building up 9 percent seasonally adjusted largely because of new awards for shopping centers.

April retail sales were up 1.4 percent over March. Retail sales have risen 3.5 percent since January. This is very significant considering the 1 percent inflation in consumer prices in the first quarter.

The federal budget deficit for the first six months of fiscal 1982 was $6.7 billion more than the same period in fiscal 1981. This is significantly less than the doubling of the deficit indicated by most economic forecasts. Individual income-tax receipts have grown by 9.1 percent more than twice their projected growth, while corporate tax receipts were virtually unchanged compared with a forecast decline of 24 percent.

Forbes magazines reported business travel, depressed since the spring of 1980, made a sharp turnaround in March. This resulted in reported increases of 23 to 40 percent in automobile rentals.

Airlines are reporting more traffic. Despite the recession, domestic air traffic this March was up 11.5 percent from a year ago.

Private non-agricultural employment increased by 285,000 in April, including an increase of 100,000 workers in the construction industry.

Real disposable personal income has continued to grow during every quarter of the recession as a result of the reduction in the rate of inflation. This means consumers have more buying power than they did when the recession started.

This information was taken from the Washington Report.

PATTI HORTON, co-owner of Sun County Realty, and current president of the Big Spring Board of Realtors, reported on the first new member orientation developed to assist new real estate agents. JANELE BRITTON is chairwoman of the Board of Realty's Education Committee, and it was she who instituted and planned the first orientation which will be repeated periodically. The agenda included a step-by-step complete real estate sale. JANELE DAVIS gave the pros and cons on Multiple Listing Service. CARLA HENRY of First Federal Savings and Loan Company, talked about formulating the good faith estimates. PAULA SMELSER of West Texas Title Company, gave information on title costs. For more information about upcoming orientations for prospective and new real estate agents, call Sun County Realty Company. Call me about your business news and views.

Coahoma water rates hiked

Water bills will be going up in Coahoma soon as the city council moved recently to raise rates 50 cents per 1,000 gallon. The council took the action while meeting in regular session at city hall.

Mayor Joe Swinney said the unanimous council decision to raise rates from $1.80 per thousand gallons to $2.30 per thousand was made due to increased repair costs. "We've had a terrible lot of lines breaking," Swinney said. The mayor estimated the increase would raise the minimum rate by $2.

In other water-related matters, the council decided to raise the fee for connecting new water lines into the main line from $150 to $250. The new charge will be for a three-quarter inch water tap.

A third decision by the council gave Robert Helm, head of the water department, permission to send registered warning letters to residents who have open sewers. The letters will request that residents running waste water onto the ground stop the practice.

G. Hamilton, president of the institution.

The new rates went into effect June 1, 1982.

The Federal Land Bank Association of Lamesa makes long-term real estate loans on farm and rural residence property in the counties of Dawson, Gaines, Andrews, Upton, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Winkler, Ector, Midland, Crane and Borden.
