CARRYING WOUNDED — Argentine soldiers carry one of their wounded at Goose Green on the Falkland Islands recently after their surrender to British paratroopers. The British Defense Ministry said that 250 Argentine soldiers were killed in fighting at Goose Green and Darwin. The British are poised for a final assault on the capitol.

British commandos poised for final attack on capitol

By The Associated Press
Helicopter-borne British commandos moved forward today in preparation for the decisive battle for the Falklands capital of Stanley, and Libya sent Argentina missiles for what could be a last desperate air strike, British press reports said.

In Paris, President Reagan met Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for private talks ahead of the seven-nation economic summit, and according to a senior American official, Reagan wants the British leader to give Argentina one more chance to withdraw from Stanley.

However, Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, quoted government officials in London as saying no diplomatic or political reason would hold up the battle for Stanley, and that British commanders have been told to attack as soon as they are ready.

The British Defense Ministry reported thick fog, cold and wet conditions in the wintry South Atlantic territory, which could temporarily hold up an expected attack by 7,500 British troops on the estimated 7,000 Argentine soldiers holding the capital.

Sheriff releases information concerning I-20 shooting

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer
Big Spring Sheriff A.N. Standard released today a teletype to all police stations and officers along Interstate 20 and Interstate 10 containing a description of two people wanted for questioning in connection with the Tuesday murder of a Meridian, Miss. hitchhiker.

The body of William Boyd Hite, 22, was found at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday by a member of a Texas Highway Department maintenance crew who notified the sheriff's office. Deputies Paul Silva and Bill Shankles went to the scene six miles west of Big Spring, just off Interstate 20 on FM 2599.

Police are looking for a "late-model white or light blue" car, according to the teletype. It is believed to have been driven by a white male with a slender build, collar-length curly or bushy hair (possibly blonde), wearing a western-style straw hat, long-sleeved dress shirt and jeans. He is approximately 25 years old, according to the sheriff's teletype.

Hite's companion is described as a white female with a dark complexion, long black shoulder-length hair, about 5'7", with a stocky build (about 160 pounds), wearing a blue and white striped or flowered blouse and jeans.

Local witnesses have told sheriff's deputies that they saw Hite and his companion get into the vehicle about 1:30 p.m. Other witnesses said they saw an argument about 30 minutes later on a service road.

Law enforcement officials said Hite may have been shot one time while he was standing in FM 2599 and at least five times while he was lying on the pavement. The teletype says Hite was shot seven times with a .38 or .357-caliber weapon.

It is believed the female was still with the suspect at the time of the slaying, Standard said.

Standard requests that anyone who might have seen a vehicle or persons matching this description contact the Howard County Sheriff's office.

Unemployment rate rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unrelenting business slump coupled with an influx of college graduates into a tight job market pushed the unemployment rate up to 9.5 percent last month, eclipsing the post-war record set in April, the government reported today.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate climbed one-tenth of a percentage point from April to May as tens of thousands of college and university graduates entered the labor force searching for work, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Altogether, 10.5 million Americans were out of work last month. Adult males, who traditionally constitute the bulwark of the blue-collar work force, were once again hard hit by the lingering recession. Joblessness among this segment of the labor force rose to 8.4 percent, shattering the post-World War II record set two months ago.

Since last July, some 2.7 million Americans have been thrown out of work by the deepening recession.

The government can anticipate school closings, and the resulting expansion of the labor force, as a normal seasonal employment variation. Thus, the jobless figures can be adjusted to reflect that pattern so that it doesn't present a distorted picture of economic trends.

Thomas D. Thomson, senior vice president of Crocker National Bank in San Francisco, said Thursday he doesn't think the nation "has seen the top yet in the climb in unemployment."

County runoffs brighten election

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

It's that time of year when voters are plagued with the runoff election blues. However, two local races in Howard County are helping to keep the political pot simmering, according to County Clerk Margaret Ray.

Mrs. Ray said the county judge race between incumbent Bill Tune and challenger Milton Kirby along with the county commissioner precinct 2 contest pitting incumbent Paul Allen against Bob Cowley have continued to spark voter interest.

Tomorrow's local races and four statewide contests have drawn almost 400 absentee ballots and Mrs. Ray is expecting approximately 4,000 voters to go to the polls. She said that kind of turnout would only be a 600 vote drop since the May 1 Democratic primary.

Although that may sound like a sizable drop, it is not, according to figures released by the Secretary of State's office. Howard County's vote total should only drop about four percent, according to Mrs. Ray's predictions, whereas the statewide totals are expected to fall approximately 11 percent.

Howard County had 14,315 registered voters as of the May 1 Democratic primary and 4,623 turned out to vote translating into a 32 percent showing at the polls. The statewide percentage was much lower at 19 percent.

"It's the interest in local races that brings the voters out," Mrs. Ray said.

She pointed out that the 1980 runoffs had no local races on the ballot and only 154 votes were cast by the Democratic Party.

With the fairly low turnout, the local races promise to be close, according to the candidates.

In the May 1 Democratic primary Milton Kirby totaled 1,683 votes to Bill Tune's 1,607. A third candidate in the race, John Stanley, captured 1,197 votes.

Both Kirby and Tune have been campaigning hard expecting a tight race.

In the county commissioner precinct 2 race, incumbent Paul Allen won the May 1 Democratic primary with 45 percent of the vote followed by Bob Cowley with 25 percent.

Allen indicated that a light turnout could hurt his chances. Cowley said he has tried to keep voter interest up by contacting as many people as possible, but he was unsure of the turnout in tomorrow's runoff.

In area races there are Democratic runoffs in Dawson, Glasscock and Mitchell counties.

In Glasscock County the county judge's race is contested with Wilburn Bednar and John Robinson squaring off for the spot.

Mitchell County has one runoff race which pits incumbent Billy H. Preston against challenger Royce Mahon for the county commissioner precinct 4 office.

In Dawson County there are two contested races. The county judge race has Curtis Pruitt and Glenn "Bottles" White vying for the job. In the county commissioner precinct 2 race incumbent Kenneth Pearson takes on A.B. Furlow.

There are no Republican runoffs in Howard County or in the statewide offices.

Statewide, voters will choose four Democrats to face Republican opposition in November.

Citizens mull voter apathy

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Only eight percent of the registered voters in Texas are expected to vote in the statewide runoff elections tomorrow, according to Secretary of State David Dean.

In Howard County approximately 4,000 of the county's 14,315 registered Democratic voters are expected to turn out, according to County Clerk Margaret Ray.

The Herald went out on the street yesterday to ask local citizens why they felt voter apathy is so prevalent.

ROSE JENSEN:
"People don't think there's anyone worth voting for."

DON MILLER:
"Well, people don't want to get involved. They don't know about the people they're voting for, so instead of voting for the wrong man, they just don't vote."

WANDA TUBBS:
"Most people really don't care. It usually doesn't turn out the way they want it to anyway."

MARY DOPORTO:
"I don't know. I can't speak for other people. I always vote myself. I guess some are just too lazy. Some just don't care enough."

DANA BOYER:
"A lot of people don't feel like they have the time. You know, they work and can't take off."

CHRIS BURNETT:
"They're too lazy. They're apathetic because they've been run down by politicians so much in the past that they've lost respect."

SHANA HOHERTZ:
"Kids my age (18) just don't care. They don't think their vote affects the way things turn out. It does but if their candidate doesn't win they think they've failed anyway."

PENNY BINION:
"They don't know who to vote for. They think the country is in such a mess that we'll never get out of it."

MRS. KENNETH ORR:
"People just don't care. They don't know the issues and they don't know the candidate."

KANDY POOLE:
"A lot of people think it doesn't make a difference. They don't take the time out or some don't think it's worth the hassle. And the way they present the issues discourage some. The issues turn out to be just double negatives."

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Bike laws

Q. I thought I read here that it is against the law to ride bicycles on sidewalks. Is there such a law?

A. Yes. According to the Texas Motor Vehicle Code, bicycles are expected to follow the same laws as automobiles. The law says no motor vehicles on public sidewalks so no bicycles either.

Warren Harding pleads guilty to misdemeanor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Treasurer Warren G. Harding pleaded guilty today to a charge of official misconduct for having two state employees work on his re-election campaign.

Harding, 61, was sentenced to one year's probation and was ordered to pay a $2,000 fine and $2,000 restitution to the state of Texas for the Class A misdemeanor.

Under a plea bargain agreement, prosecutors dropped two third-degree felony counts of official misconduct on which Harding was indicted March 23. Each of those counts carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

A pre-trial hearing had been scheduled for June 21.

After running second to Ann Richards in the May 1 Democratic primary, Harding withdrew from the runoff, saying he would not "subject my family to further hurt and grief."

His withdrawal made Ms. Richards the Democratic nominee for the November general election.

Harding, who took the treasurer's post in 1977, was unopposed for re-election until news of an investigation of his office broke just days before the Feb. 1 filing deadline. He drew four opponents, including Ms. Richards, a former Travis County commissioner.

Speculation that Harding and the state were close to a plea bargaining agreement was fueled last week when attorneys filed a motion to drop a $1 million federal civil suit against Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle. The suit charged that Earle's office had violated Harding's civil rights in the manner in which it had gathered evidence.

At one of his court appearances, he claimed the grand jury charges represented "a miscarriage of justice." Asked then if he thought the charges were politically motivated, he replied, "I suspect so."

Sheriff's Log

Edwards released on $50,000 bond

Isaiah Edwards, 37, of 501 Goliad was released Thursday from Howard County Jail on $50,000 bond set by Peace Justice Bobby West.

Edwards had been arrested in connection with the shooting death of Billy Roy Harris at a local night club Monday night.

Bond was posted by Odessa attorney Bill Alexander, according to sheriff's office officials.

Joseph C. Bowden Jr., no address available, was transferred from city jail after being charged with criminal trespass. Bowden was released on $1,000 bond set by Peace Justice West, according to sheriff's office records.

Glenn Arthur Bivins, 30, of 12 Crestwood Drive was arrested by sheriff's deputies at 3204 W. Highway 80 on charges of resisting arrest and criminal trespass, according to sheriff's office records. Bond was set by Peace Justice West at $1,000 on each count.

Cecil E. Sumpter, 35, of 2612 Cindy Lane was arrested by sheriff's deputies on a warrant for issuance of bad checks, according to sheriff's office reports. He was released on $200 bond set by Peace Justice Louis Heflin.

'Jaws of Life' demonstration

Local firemen will demonstrate "The Jaws of Life" at 2 p.m. Sunday at Birdwell Park. Three firemen have recently attended classes where they learned to extricate traffic accident victims and will demonstrate it using four cars to local firemen and the general public.

C-City has one runoff race

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County residents will go to the polls tomorrow to cast their ballots in four statewide runoff elections, as well as one local runoff race.

Citizens of precinct 4 in Loraine will vote in the runoff race between incumbent County Commissioner Bill Preston and Royce Mahon.

Bishop fund established

A fund has been set up at the First National Bank for six-month-old Michael John Bishop, son of Laura and Donna Bishop of 105 Grafa.

Michael is suffering from Crib Death Syndrome. Family and friends are trying to raise money for a heart monitor.

Anyone wishing to make donations is asked to contact the First National Bank in Big Spring.

Camera club holds first organizational meeting

The Crossroads Camera Club has announced an organizational meeting set for June 25 at 8 p.m. on the second floor of the Permian Building.

Club coordinator Dale Olson said the organization is open to all people interested in photography. He said the club will have field and contests for its members.

The meeting will establish club rules and guidelines, according to Olson.

Bomb exploded at American School

PARIS (AP) — A bomb planted by ultra-leftists opposed to President Reagan's visit to Paris exploded at the American School in suburban Saint-Cloud early Friday.

The explosion at 1:30 a.m. blew out a number of windows, but nobody was hurt, police said.

The president and Mrs. Reagan at the time were at the U.S. Embassy residence 5 miles from the explosion.

The bombers left behind posters attacking Reagan and the United States and saying the bomb was planted by Direct Action, an ultra-leftist organization that has called for demonstrations against the president's visit to Paris.

Police said the bomb was placed between two buildings at the school at the base of a glass door.

Last week, Direct Action claimed responsibility for firing three shots at the Paris branch of the Bank of America, and police rounded up 25 members or supporters of the organization in Paris and Grenoble after it called for armed demonstrations against Reagan.

Posters in French, Turkish and Arabic that appeared on Paris streets said:

"The terrorist Reagan, the commercial traveler for U.S. Imperialism, the enemy of the peoples must be greeted with hate, clenched fists and loaded weapons."

It was signed Direct Action, a small anarchist group that surfaced in 1980.

Another look at the candidates

Howard County voters will vote to fill two offices in tomorrow's runoff election. Before the May 1 Democratic primary, the Herald ran candidates' answers to questions. These are being rerun to help voters make their decision. Today's questionnaires feature county judge candidates, incumbent Bill Tune and challenger Milton Kirby.

Milton Kirby

1. Why would you be the best man for the position?
Because I think I am better acquainted in Howard County than any other person, being in on the law enforcement for more than 35 years. Consequently I believe I could perform the duties of county judge with complete harmony, at least a greater degree of harmony than we have been used to.

Bill Tune

1. Why would you be the best man for the position?
I am the best man for the office because I will have eight years experience as county judge and four years experience as county commissioner. I know the functions of County Court and commissioner's court and the day to day business that the county judge must attend to.

Bill Tune

2. What do you see as the most pressing problem in the county from the viewpoint of the commissioner's court?
Corporation in the commissioners court in my judgement is needed more than any other thing, that is I am in favor of the different precincts helping each other in cases where needed.

Milton Kirby

2. What do you see as the most pressing problem in the county from the viewpoint of the commissioner's court?
I would insist on working together out in the precincts, I would visit out in the different precincts, I would pay close attention to the water flooding on roads caused by bad judgment in

Bill Tune

3. What changes would you make to solve these problems?
Since we can't change the problem of rising costs, the Court must make sure that county money is spent wisely. Although the county is now operating within the budget in order to avoid a deficit, we must explore every alternative to insure that all expenditures are necessary and beneficial to the county.

Milton Kirby

3. What changes would you make to solve these problems?
I would insist on working together out in the precincts, I would visit out in the different precincts, I would pay close attention to the water flooding on roads caused by bad judgment in

Bill Tune

4. A nation-wide trend is calling for stiffer penalties for persons convicted of driving while intoxicated. What is your position on DWI sentences?
The maximum penalty is $500 and two years in jail, which should be enough for the first offenders. The problem lies within the law itself,

Milton Kirby

4. A nation-wide trend is calling for stiffer penalties for persons convicted of driving while intoxicated. What is your position on DWI sentences?
I would exercise every effort at my command to curb the problem of DWI, I would encourage civic organizations to stress to our youth the danger of driving while under the influence of alcohol and drugs.

Bill Tune

5. What role would you play in the county judicial process?
The law is clear on the role of the county judge exercises in the judicial process. I would follow the law.

Milton Kirby

5. What role would you play in the county judicial process?
State law requires the County Judge to function as the presiding officer of the Commissioner's Court and in statutory charges which includes court operations, elections, finance, bonds and sureties, and general administration. Court operations including civil, criminal, juvenile, and probate courts, mental and alcohol commitments, and alcohol beverage licensing.

Bill Tune

6. Working closely with the City and Industrial Foundation for industrial growth after the Webb closure.
7. Updated and improved equipment for maintenance and development of county roads.
8. Microfilming of county roads.
9. Voting machines and computer processing of county business.

Wounded ambassador fighting for his life

LONDON (AP) — Israeli Ambassador Shlomo Argov was fighting for his life today after being shot through the brain by a young man who looked like an Arab. Police shot and captured his assailant and arrested two suspected accomplices.

Argov, 52, was shot Thursday night as he left the swank Dorchester Hotel in Park Lane, where he had been attending a dinner for diplomats. Doctors said he had lost a lot of blood and that his condition was critical.

The Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said the three suspects captured after the shooting were Palestinians carrying false passports. Scotland Yard declined immediate comment on the report.

The British Broadcast Corp. quoted a senior Israeli Embassy official as saying the "cowardly and barbarous" shooting was the work of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

According to the BBC, the official, who was not identified, noted that the attack coincided with the 15th anniversary of the state of the June 1967 Middle East war, adding: "The Arabs need no special dates on which to kill Israelis."

The PLO representative in London, Nabil Ramlawi, denied his organization was responsible for the attack. "The Israeli ambassador is a victim of a determined campaign to discredit the PLO," Ramlawi said.

Nonetheless, the attack raised the possibility of Israeli retaliation against Palestinian guerrillas based in Lebanon. "We must strike at the terrorists," Israeli Cabinet Minister Yitzhak Modai said in Jerusalem. "Prolonged restraint costs too much and is simply stupid from the political and military point of view."

"Clearly silence on an incident like this will only invite further attacks," Israeli military commentator Ze'ev Schiff said in interview broadcast by Israel Army Radio.

The Palestine Liberation Organization ordered its forces in Lebanon on maximum alert today in anticipation of a major Israeli attack in retaliation for the shooting of the ambassador, PLO sources said.

There were no immediate claims of responsibility for the shooting. But in Jerusalem, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir denounced the incident as "a criminal attack by Arab terrorists."

Scotland Yard has not identified Argov's assailant.

There was no immediate attempt by Israeli officials to fix the blame on any particular Palestinian terrorist group. But staff members of the Israeli Embassy in London said they believed the attack was part of a continuing campaign against Israeli diplomats, citing the killing of middle-rank Israeli diplomat Yacov Barsimantov in Paris on April 3, and an attack on Israeli officials in Vienna before that.

A spokesman at London's National Hospital for Nervous Diseases, which specializes in neurology and neurosurgery, said today that a single bullet had passed through Argov's brain, entering through the right side of the skull and exiting through the left side.

Argov was reported under armed guard at the hospital.

Scotland Yard said his assailant is under armed guard in Westminster Hospital, also undergoing intensive care after being chased and shot in the neck by a police officer of the Yard's Diplomatic Protection Group. The Yard said the police officer shot him as he attempted to flee after the attack.

A Yard spokesman said the assailant might have to undergo surgery. Earlier, police said he was expected to live.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said two other persons reportedly seen speeding away from the hotel in a car after the shooting were arrested when the car was stopped in the south London district of Brixton. The spokesman said a weapon was recovered from the car.

The last recorded attack on Israelis in London was on Aug. 20, 1978, when Arab terrorists machine-gunned an Israeli El Al airline bus outside the Europa Hotel, killing a stewardess and wounding nine other people.

Argov, one of the most heavily guarded diplomats in London, has been Israel's ambassador here since Sept. 6, 1979. He has also served in New York, Washington, Lagos, Accra, Mexico City, and The Hague.

Reagan warns Europeans against credits to Moscow

By JAMES GERSTENZANG Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — President Reagan is arriving at an economic summit of the world's major industrial democracies today with a warning that America's allies risk endangering themselves by giving easy trade credits to the Soviet bloc.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said today the West could wind up as a "slave" to a huge indebtedness of Moscow and its allies. He said that giving preferential credits to Eastern Europe amounts to "propping up your adversary to your own disadvantage."

On the eve of today's meeting, a senior French official described Reagan's desire to limit such credits as a "frenzy," another likened it to a "one-sided obsession."

In reply, Regan told reporters, "If you loan too much, pretty soon your debtor becomes the master, and you the slave, because you have to keep the debtor going." He said the West was not in that position yet, but said Regan was trying to warn of that possibility.

America's allies see the issue differently. During a period of low growth, and high unemployment and inflation, they say credit limitations would hurt East-West trade which creates jobs in Europe.

terrand, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, Italian President Giovanni Spadolini, Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau — were arriving throughout the afternoon and evening at the summit site, Versailles, outside the French capital.

In an apparent concession to Europeans, Regan said the United States wanted summit participants to launch a study of possible U.S. intervention in world money markets to control currency fluctuations. The Reagan administration, in keeping with its free-market policies, has consistently ruled out such intervention. Agreeing to study the possibility of intervention was seen as a slight shift in policy.

Final preparations at the 16th century palace were underway Thursday, with guards equipped with special detectors sweeping palace grounds for mines and gendarmes armed with submachine guns patrolling outside the gates.

After a boat ride along the Grand Canal this evening, formal meetings get underway Saturday.

Florida braces for hurricane

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of tourists and residents scrambled for higher ground today as a rare June tropical storm that had been the first hurricane of the season hovered off southwest Florida.

Alberto, which had battered Key West with high winds and torrential rains, was downgraded from a hurricane to a tropical storm early today as the cool June water in the Gulf of Mexico and the prevailing westerly winds sapped its strength.

The storm was reported nearly stationary in the gulf today about 200 miles southwest of Fort Myers. Its highest winds, clocked at 80 mph Thursday, had dropped below 60 mph, well under the 74 mph needed for hurricane classification.

Hurricane warnings were canceled along Florida's coast. Some resorts on the cluster of barrier islands off southwest Florida closed their doors and shipped guests and employees away.

Thunderstorms near North Texas

Thunderstorms roamed across Northeast Texas early today ahead of a cold front that stretched from near Texarkana to Waco to Junction.

The thunderstorm activity was mostly confined to the area between Waco and Texarkana and was weakening at dawn today.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s, ranging from the mid 50s in the Panhandle to the mid 70s in South Texas. Extremes ranged from 54 at Amarillo to 80 at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

Forecasts called for widely scattered thunderstorms over East Texas and Southeast Texas today. Skies were to be cloudy to partly cloudy over South Texas and Northwest Texas and clear over Southwest Texas.

Highs were to be mostly in the 80s and 90s except in Southwest Texas where readings were expected to climb near 110.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — A chance of thunderstorms Sunday and Monday and north Tuesday. Cooler north Sunday and most sections Monday and Tuesday. Highs in the 80s Panhandle to 90s south with near 105 Big Bend Sunday, cooling to 70s Panhandle to 80s south and 90s Big Bend by Tuesday. Lows 60s north to 70s south Sunday cooling to 50s north to 60s south by Tuesday.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Continued sunny and warm to hot through Saturday and fair and warm tonight. Highs today low 80s Panhandle to near 110 Big Bend. Lows low 50s mountains to upper 50s Panhandle to near 70 south. Highs Saturday mid 80s Panhandle to near 112 Big Bend.

KKK's military training banned by federal judge

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge's ban on Ku Klux Klan military training puts a blemish on the sex appeal of the racist organization, says a lawyer for Vietnamese immigrant fishermen.

"This is not a ho-hum ruling," attorney David Berg said Thursday after U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald's order.

"As far as I know, there are at least a thousand Klan members between here and the Louisiana border," he added. "I think the sex appeal to these pathetic people has been the paramilitary aspect."

The ruling came in a lawsuit filed on behalf of Vietnamese immigrant fishermen by Berg, a Houston attorney, and by Morris Dees of the Southern Poverty Law Center of Montgomery, Ala. The fishermen had complained that the Klan threatened and physically harassed them.

"It is clear to this court that the proliferation of military or paramilitary organizations can only serve to sow the seeds of future domestic violence and tragedy," Ms. McDonald wrote in her 35-page order, which specifically forbids combat instruction.

Testimony in the case showed that the Texas Emergency Reserve, the local military arm of the Klan, has been training since 1974. Berg said the group had trained within the week on land owned by admitted founder Robert Simente.

Neither Sam Adamo nor Richard Cobb, attorneys who have represented the Klan, could be reached. Adamo left his office without returning a phone call from The Associated Press. A spokeswoman at Cobb's office said he was on vacation.

But Cobb previously has played down the importance of any such ruling.

"If she wants to say 'Don't break the law,' I have no objection to that," he said in April.

But Berg said he was "elated" with the ruling.

"At least for now, this is the end of the Klan, at least in Texas," he said.

Ms. McDonald issued a permanent injunction last September forbidding the Klan from demonstrating near the homes or boats of the Vietnamese fishermen. The lawyers filed the suit last year against the Klan and a group known as the American Fishermen. The suit alleged that the Klan was demonstrating in full costume in an attempt to intimidate the Vietnamese immigrant fishermen who were competing for shrimp with the Americans.

In their suit, Berg and Dees linked the training of the Texas Emergency Reserve with the attempted intimidation of the Vietnamese.

A Vietnamese refugee, Sau Van Nguyen, was acquitted of a murder charge in the 1979 slaying of Billy Joe Aplin, a Seadrift shrimper.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

Novelist Ayn Rand had mesmerized a student audience at Yale University with her prickly ideas. Afterward a reporter from Time magazine asked her, "Miss Rand, what's wrong with the modern world?"

Without hesitation she replied, "Never before has the world been so desperately asking for answers to crucial questions, and never before has the world been so frantically committed to the idea that no answers are possible."

"To paraphrase the Bible," she continued, "the modern attitude is, 'Father, forgive us, for we know not what we are doing — and please don't tell us!'"

It is to such a generation that God has called today's Christians to minister — in an age which sees everything that was nailed down coming loose, a time when things happen which people once thought could never happen. And God has chosen you and me to be His personal representatives to this generation. I'm sure He could have selected far more efficient means, but I hope you never recover from the fact that He has hand picked you for this mission if you are a Christian.

Motion picture ratings absurd

The episode of the naughty word in a film called "Wrong is Right" helps to illuminate flaws in the motion picture ratings system. The Motion Picture Association of America rating board would do well to reflect on the implications of what happened.

At first, "Wrong is Right" was given a PG rating. But it seems that studio executives, fearing this would make the picture seem innocuous and thus hurt box office receipts, wanted a tougher label. The director of the film, Richard Brooks, says "they made me go back and add a dirty word — and that one word did it;" the film was reclassified as an R picture.

Now that, we submit, is an absurdity. Such a reclassification makes the system look foolish enough to warrant some soul-searching as to its objectives and how they are to be achieved.

Can Bo-Weevils set an example?

Dear Editor,
Members of the Conservative Democratic Forum (ordinarily known as Bo-Weevils) who were willing to work with the Democratic party, now do not agree with the budget proposed by Mr. Jim Jones, Chairman of the Budget Committee, because two-thirds of the savings in it come from an increase in taxes and defense cuts. It appears that the Bo-Weevils draw an alternative budget which would reduce the deficit budget.

It must be remembered that the Bo-Weevils helped President Reagan to push his budget proposals through the Congress last year; and it seems to be their intention practically to adopt the President's budget proposals in their alternative budget and canvass support from some Republicans who are wavering.

It is hoped that the Bo-Weevils will set an example by

- (1) repealing the amendment (allowing an even bigger potential tax break by letting members to deduct certain expenses for buying or renting a house in Washington and maintaining it) which they passed just before Christmas 1981; or, in the alternative, not to draw the benefits.
- (2) Agree to a voluntary ten percent, cut in their emoluments
- (3) Not to enforce the tax-cuts which they were a party to pass last year.
- (4) Agree to make substantial reduction in defense spending.
- (5) Raise taxes to allow more money to be spent on Social programs.
- (6) Not to make further reduction in Medicare, Medicaid and food stamps.

Around the Rim

By CLUFF COAN

A different drummer

I went back to my old home town last weekend and stumbled across an old acquaintance.

Mowing an island of grass at a supermarket parking lot, Henry sweated in the humid air. His battered old mongrel bicycle, cannibalized from various discards, leaned against the supermarket wall.

I didn't stop to talk — didn't have the time, but every time I think about Henry, I get a twinge of regret and sadness.

You see, Henry was different. We all knew it from the first time he walked into our third grade classroom. He was skinny, wore unstylish, often tattered clothes, and didn't fit in. No matter how hard the teachers tried, they couldn't find a niche for Henry, and it frustrated them as much as it did him.

He had what would now be diagnosed as a learning disorder.

Henry never did learn to write, read, or even talk well, even though he stuck with my class through the eighth grade. Uncertain just what they should do with him, the teachers passed him every year, thinking it a kindness. Perhaps it was.

When it did become unbearable for him and he tried to fight back, we turned on him like a pack of wolves, nipping at every exposed weakness.

The only one of my group that I never saw join in the teasing was my best friend, Craig.

Craig was one of those people you would love to hate, but couldn't. It seemed like he had everything — he was smart, athletic, handsome, and always had the best-looking girl. But his nature was that of an everyday person — he was kind and thoughtful, and I was proud to have a friend like that.

In one of our interminable adolescent bull sessions, the subject of Henry came up. Craig's only comment was, "I just can't tease him for something that he can't help."

And Craig never did tease him. He always treated Henry the same as he did everyone else, and Henry loved Craig with a dog-like devotion.

LAST SUMMER, it came home. After a lengthy battle with cancer, Craig's father died. Amid all the sadness (the man had been like a second father to me) one image shines like a misty beacon.

As my wife and I sat in the church, teary-eyed and sniffing, a young man in an out-of-date, too-small suit, horn-rimmed glasses, his hair wetted and slicked down, came in and nervously slid into the pew in front of us.

Henry had come to pay his last respects to the man who had raised his only friend.

HOWEVER, with the unthinkable cruelty that children show for something different, we teased Henry constantly. Even now, some years later, it makes me shudder to think that I joined in with all the others.

But I did. Most of the time, Henry took it all with an easy-going nature.

WASHINGTON — Michael K. Deaver, President Reagan's closest White House aide, moved fast to separate himself from Texas right-wing Republican Clymer Wright when Wright sent a letter to leading Reaganites around the nation pin-pointing James Baker III as Reagan's nemesis.

Deaver has been Wright's friend and protector within the ranks of Reagan Republicans for years. He was instrumental in making Wright the finance director of the Reagan campaign in Texas. When Wright mailed his letter attacking White House chief of staff Baker, one copy quickly arrived in the White House. Deaver worried that his long friendship with Wright might somehow implicate him in Wright's anti-Baker move.

Insiders told us Deaver immediately showed Wright's letter to Reagan and that within "hours" the decision was made for Reagan himself to answer it — with a brutally frank defense of Baker. But that has by no means ended the conservative assault on Jim Baker.

Untying the knot

Working to expand Voice of America broadcasts believe that broadcasting into the Soviet empire has far more potential than it has ever realized.

The president will have just returned from his European grand tour in time to remind the world that martial law has ruled Poland for six months on June 13, with or without any new anti-Soviet sanctions, which are not totally ruled out, the decision to expand foreign broadcasts will give more than symbolic meaning to the memory of a black day in Polish history.

TROUBLE TO EMK
Although the re-election of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is a foregone conclusion, disclosures from Richard Wirthlin's polling data for Ray Shamie, the senator's Republican opponent, have disturbed Kennedy partisans, particularly his low marks as a "problem solver."

Between September 1981 and April 1982, the number of Massachusetts voters who credit Teddy Kennedy with being an "effective" problem-solver had declined from 63 percent to 48 percent. Another Wirthlin question — the possibility of a 1984 Kennedy presidential race — disclosed that 54 percent in his own backyard feel that he either will not run for president or, if he does, will not win.

Kennedy remains far ahead of the neophyte Shamie, a highly-successful businessman who never has run for office. Even so, pro-Kennedy voters remain uncomfortably close to the 50 percent line for a popular incumbent — only 53 percent say they would vote for him, with 25 percent undecided.

SOLZHENITSYN'S ALARM
The haughty letter to President Reagan from Nobel laureate Alexander Solzhenitsyn regretting Ragan's May 11 luncheon invitation contained the charge that "some U.S. generals" want to destroy the Soviet Russian population by nuclear attack. It also criticized some of Reagan's own aides for "hostility" to the Russian population of the Soviet Union.

"It is strange how Russian national consciousness inspires the greatest fear in the world today for the rulers of the U.S.S.R. — and within your own empire," the great Russian author wrote Reagan.

Those words angered White House aides. But when they discovered late last week that Radio Liberty, the semi-independent radio that broadcasts from Munich into the Soviet Union, had broadcast the full letter 11 times on the single day of May 19, these White House aides were livid. Their question: Why on earth should Radio Liberty, the openly propagandistic voice of the U.S., suggest to Russians that the U.S. military wants to nuke them into kingdom come?

Moscow's emerging leaders

WASHINGTON — As Leonid Brezhnev stumbles slowly from the scene, vigorous and competent leaders are making their way to the top in Moscow. The men now emerging show a keen awareness of Russia's internal difficulties, and a determination to fix them.

The U.S. and its allies, with grain and credits at their disposal, enjoy a unique chance to influence the Soviet Union during a fluid period of change at the top. But to make the most of the opportunity, Washington will need to develop a far broader approach than he evinced in the basic strategic document just published by the Reagan administration.

Yuri Andropov — the 67-year-old head of the KGB, or secret police — is now the coming man in Russia. At a meeting of the Party Central Committee last week, he was named to fill the place in the Secretariat left vacant by the death of the ancient ideologist, Mikhail Suslov, last January. Up with Andropov, to candidate membership in the Politburo, went Vladimir Dolgikh, a 57-year-old specialist in industrial management. Their promotions suggest that the logjam of 70-year-olds surrounding Brezhnev has finally been broken.

One mark of Andropov's competence is that in 1967 he was chosen to take over the KGB by a collective decision of his colleagues. Western authorities believe he has done a credible job in the post ever since. While his ascension to the highest rung of the Soviet ladder is by no means assured, several signs indicate that he is confident he can head off his best-known rival — Konstantin Chernenko, a 70-year-old reputed to be Brezhnev's favorite.

Back in February, KGB sources leaked a series of stories implicating members of the Brezhnev inner circle in corruption scandals. After Andropov gave the Lenin Day speech on April 22, somebody leaked word that Andropov would be named to Suslov's post on the Secretariat at a meeting of the Central Committee on May 24. It turned out just that way — like Babe Ruth calling the home run before hitting it.

JUST BEFORE that Central Committee meeting, moreover, somebody leaked an advance version of the report on agriculture to be given at the meeting by Brezhnev. The speech, as predicted, showed Brezhnev very much on the defensive.

The Soviet president acknowledged shortcomings that went back to his takeover from Khrushchev in 1964. He admitted mountainous waste, bad pricing policies and inefficient transportation. He said there would have to be investments of 30 billion rubles a year — a sizable fraction of the defense budget — in agriculture. "It was," one American Sovietologist said, "a confession of total economic failure."

The betting among the experts here is that Brezhnev's successors will move rapidly to remedy Russia's economic shortcomings. With luck the Russians could, in the next five or six years, make enough progress to turn the corner. But in the interim, Moscow will be highly dependent on grain imported from the West, and credits for purchase of industrial goods. During that period this country and its allies have their chance to organize around exports and credits a system of sticks and carrots that might nudge Moscow toward more acceptable policies.

A hint of that opening found its way into the basic strategic document presented on May 21 by the President's Special Assistant on National Security, William Clark. The document, entitled "National Security Strategy," did assert that the U.S. should "force our principal adversary, the Soviet Union, to bear the brunt of its economic shortcomings."

But that comment, apart from striking an unrealistic dictatorial tone, was an isolated fragment. Most of the paper dealt with immediate, bureaucratic issues. It supported

State Department emphasis on the Atlantic alliance against the Pentagon's stress on unrestrained globalism. It dealt at copious length with the basing problems of the MX missile. It answered fulsomely — though not entirely convincingly — charges that the President was not deeply involved in national security. Thus it was much more a tract for the times than a state paper of high importance.

THE SAD FACT is that the Reagan administration is not intellectually up to the requirements of dealing with Russia after Brezhnev. Judge Clark — who supervised preparation of the strategic document and read it — has very little experience in foreign policy. Tom Reed — the former Air Force secretary, who did most of the actual work — is an engineer and business executive. Even in the higher reaches of the State Department, there are no thoughtful strategists with special knowledge of the Soviet Union. So, unless they raise their sights soon, the President and Secretary of State Alexander Haig will let an historic opportunity go by default.

Billy Graham

Is it too late

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have been away from the Lord for many years. Do you think it is possible to get to the point of no return? I'm afraid I've waited too long to come back to God, and it is too late to be forgiven.—M.C.

DEAR M.C.: The fact that you are concerned about your spiritual state indicates to me that you are not too hardened. Actually, from God's standpoint, he is always ready to receive the sinner who comes to him in repentance and faith. There was a time to King David's life, for example, when David got away from God and was disobedient in serious ways. Yet he finally repented of his sins and turned back to God, and God received him.

There are two Psalms that apparently tell about this time in David's life, and I would encourage you to read them carefully and prayerfully. In Psalm 51 he confesses his sin to God, and seeks God's grace and forgiveness. "Have mercy on me, O God, according to your unfailing love; according to your great compassion blot out my transgressions. . . . Against you, you only, have I sinned and done what is evil in your sight" (Psalm 51:1, 4). He also asks God to restore him to fellowship with God, and cleanse him within. "Create in me a pure heart, O God, and renew a steadfast spirit within me. . . . Restore to me the joy of your salvation" (Psalm 51:10, 12).

In Psalm 32 David rejoices because God has forgiven him, after David has turned to God and cast himself on him for forgiveness. "Blessed is he whose transgressions are forgiven, whose sins are covered. Blessed is the man whose sin the Lord does not count against him and in whose spirit is no deceit" (Psalm 32:1-2).

This can be your experience, and I believe it is very important for you to face this matter and not delay any longer. What must you do? Do what David did. Confess your sins to him, and turn your back on them as best you know how. Then trust him to forgive you.

WORKERS TREATED AT EXPLOSION SCENE — Workers from Palstifax Corp. in Gulfport, Miss. are treated at the scene of an explosion and fire that destroyed the firm. Three persons were killed and more than 60 were injured in the Wednesday afternoon blast. The explosion touched off a fire at a neighboring chemical firm which was heavily damaged. Toxic fumes which spread across a large area north of the site caused evacuation of hundreds of homes and many businesses for about four hours.

San Angelo breeds skeeter eaters

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — City Environmental Director John Richardson will assume on some new duties today — raising minnows.

Richardson planned to drive 150 miles, to Sweetwater and back, to pick up a few buckets of Gambusia minnows, and he is having special ponds made so the little critters can multiply.

"We will make our own holding pond so we can breed our own. In 60 to 90 days we should have all the minnows we need," said Richardson.

He has gone to all this trouble because the minnows have one trait that the city finds quite desirable right now — they eat mosquitoes.

San Angelo, like most Texas cities, has had much more rain than usual this spring and resulting ponds of standing, stagnant water are threatening to produce a bumper crop of mosquitoes soon.

The Gambusia minnows — along with chemical spraying and oil films on larger ponds — are part of Richardson's strategy for fighting the mosquitoes.

Richardson said he learned about the Gambusias during a mosquito-control seminar conducted by state health department specialists.

He said the minnows devour mosquito larvae — the worm-like "wiggler" stage in the mosquito's life cycle.

"They also eat midges and gnats, but they don't affect the wildlife in watery places — water plants, algae, fish and so on," Richardson said.

Economy depends on consumers

BY JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The critical economic question concerns you — whether you will get out and spend as you did in the past or conserve your money, declining to buy so long as money costs 18 percent or more.

Carmakers are depending on you to spend, as are manufacturers of home appliances, including computers. And so are those in recreation, transportation, building and securities, to name but a few industries.

At the White House they're waiting, too. And in the offices of scores of private sector economists, who are saying again and again that they expect more activity from you than you showed in the past six months.

A large percentage of them, as a matter of fact, are way out on a limb with forecasts of a revived consumer leading the nation out of the pit of recession and into a more positive, more stable economic world.

Never mind that you were told a couple of years ago that consumer consumption was in large part responsible for getting the country into its economic bind. You may recall the contention: Too much money has gone into living for the moment, too little on building for the future.

That script, it appears, has been edited, sort of like the story line of a soap opera being revised to make it pertinent to late developing news. Whatever, expectations again are based on consumer spending.

It is there for at least two reasons: 1. Business shows little inclination to lead; it may not even have the ability to spend. 2. The consumer soon will receive financial gifts from the government.

The larger of these is a 10 percent federal tax cut beginning July 1 that will mean $30 billion a year to taxpayers. Added to this is a boost in Social Security benefits of about $11 billion a year.

There has been a tendency among economic analysts to assume that this money will be spent on consumption items, and some have even used terminology such as "$41 billion added to consumer pocketbooks."

But who can declare the money will go into pocketbooks? Critics of the "consumer shall lead us" viewpoint contend that some funds will go for mere survival, that is, food and shelter for the unemployed. Some also may go to pay debts. And some seem destined to rebuild savings.

Jogger shot

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police continued their efforts today to learn the name of a jogger shot to death with a high-powered rifle near a downtown newspaper office.

The unidentified man was killed by "a high-velocity bullet wound to the chest," the Bexar County medical examiner ruled Thursday.

Workers trapped by gunman talked with police in code

HOUSTON (AP) — Five restaurant employees trapped in a storeroom by a gunman for seven hours communicated in code with police over a damaged telephone before they were rescued, police said.

No charges had been filed by late Thursday night against a 22-year-old man who surrendered 20 minutes after the workers were rescued safely by police who lowered a ladder through a storeroom window.

An assistant manager at the restaurant, who declined to give her name, identified the gunman as a former assistant manager who was fired two months ago.

The employees, four women and a man, barricaded themselves inside the storeroom when the gunman robbed the restaurant about 2 a.m. Thursday.

The robber was unable to flee the restaurant because two people outside flagged down a patrol car and police surrounded the building.

Terry Charlton, manager of the south side fast-food restaurant, said the trapped workers clicked the damaged phone's receiver once for "no" and twice for "yes" in response to questions from police.

He said when police called, the workers could hear but not speak over the phone that the gunman ripped partially out of the wall when he tried to flee the building.

The group signalled to police that they were in a separate room from the gunman and were in no immediate danger, Charlton said.

Braniff, Pan Am leaders to discuss route operations

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of Pan American World Airways says he will meet his counterpart at defunct Braniff International Corp. within a week to discuss ways Pan Am could start operating some Braniff routes.

Braniff suspended operations May 13 and filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy law, in which a company seeks court protection from creditors' lawsuits.

Earlier this week Pan Am said it offered to start operating some of Braniff's former routes, perhaps using at least part of Braniff's grounded fleet of some 60 planes. The proposal calls for some Braniff domestic and international routes to be flown under Pan Am's banner.

Braniff confirmed it was holding "preliminary discussions" with Pan Am.

Pan Am Chairman C. Edward Acker, in discussing his planned meeting with Braniff Chairman Howard Putnam, said both executives considered such an agreement "an interesting idea, worthy of pursuing." The Wall Street Journal reported today following an interview with Acker.

Acker told the newspaper he believed New York-based Pan Am could profitably operate Braniff's former routes between Dallas-Fort Worth and New York, Minneapolis, Chicago, Houston, San Antonio, Wichita, Kan., and Newark, N.J.

Even if an agreement was reached, it would be another five weeks before service could begin because of various other approvals that are required, Acker said.

An agreement would require the approval of the judge handling Braniff's Chapter 11 proceedings, its trustee in the proceedings, Braniff's creditors, the Federal Aviation Administration and, if international routes were involved, the Civil Aeronautics Board, he said.

Acker said Pan Am did not yet have specific proposals on the use of Braniff planes and people, but said labor leaders would have to be contacted if the plan goes forward.

Both Acker and Sam Coats, Braniff's senior vice president of marketing, emphasized the preliminary nature of the talks between the two carriers.

Coats told the newspaper that the talks to date are "so tentative" that the possible ways such an agreement might be structured are "limitless."

Separately, American Airlines defended its computerized reservation system as giving it a significant but not illegal competitive advantage over other airlines. The Washington Post reported today.

Shortly after it suspended operations, Braniff alleged that American manipulated its SABRE reservations system to create cash-flow problems for Braniff and drive it out of business.

The system is used by travel agents to handle ticket sales for American, Braniff and other airlines.

Defense of the system came from Robert L. Crandall, American's president and chief operating officer, and Albert V. Casey, its chairman and chief executive, during a meeting with Post editors and reporters.

"Everything we do with the computer we announce in advance," Crandall said.

Oil firm takeover bid 'too close to call'

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — In boxing, they'd call it a mismatch. But this fight is far from a walkover. In fact, the oddsmakers on Wall Street say it's too close to call.

In one corner is corporate heavyweight Cities Service Co. of Tulsa. The challenger is relative newcomer Mesa Petroleum Co. of Amarillo, Texas.

Until now, the two companies have been trading punches. But this week, one year after Cities Service officials complained Mesa was attempting to obtain a majority of its stock, each formally launched a bid to take over the other.

"The mutual takeover play is a 'new departure' and is a 'headline story' on Wall Street, says Al Harris, vice president and director of research for Stifel Nicolaus and Co. Inc. in St. Louis, Mo.

"The new way to fight off an attempted merger is to fight fire with fire," Harris said. "Usually the fights have been a little bit different.

"It's hard to see who is going to win and how it may develop," he said.

On the surface, it would appear to be no contest. Based on revenues last year, Cities Service is more than 20 times larger than its unwanted suitor.

Cities Service is the nation's 20th-largest oil company. It reported revenue of $8.55 billion on assets of $6 billion last year. Mesa had 1981 revenues of $408 million and assets of $2.1 billion.

But Mesa apparently hopes to draw some affluent corporate friends into its corner in order to gain the capital necessary to bring off a transaction estimated to be worth more than $1.6 billion.

From such small companies as Mesa, conglomerates have grown, Harris said.

"The small fish can swallow the big one," he said. "Sometimes the little fish swallows almost a whale. That happens on Wall Street."

Mesa made a written offer to Cities Service management Tuesday to acquire control of 51 percent of the company's stock. In July 1981, Mesa bought 4.1 million shares, or 5.3 percent of Cities Service stock.

T. Boone Pickens Jr., a 54-year-old Oklahoma native who founded Mesa after working as a geologist for Phillips Petroleum Co. until 1955, said his company would pay $50 a share for Cities Service stock. At the time, the stock was trading at $37.

In a defensive move, Cities Service said Tuesday it was offering to acquire up to 37 million shares of Mesa common stock at the going market price of $17 a share in cash.

Cities Service estimated the total funds required for acquisition of majority stock in Mesa at $635 million, including $6 million for miscellaneous fees. Cities said it has available $1.7 billion under unsecured credit facilities which could be used to purchase shares of Mesa.

An unattributed Cities Service statement criticized

Mesa's overture as "a rather weak tactical maneuver in response to Cities Service's cash tender offer for Mesa."

Pickens insists it is a "responsible proposal."

Cities Service also said "it would be highly unlikely that any financial institution now would underwrite Mesa's attempt to launch a hostile takeover of Cities Service."

"I don't have any comment to make about our financing arrangements or partners," Pickens said.

Analysts aren't counting Pickens out. They say it is his entrepreneurial flair that has made Mesa one of the most dynamic independent companies.

While Cities Service officials won't be quoted on the feud, which has spawned multimillion dollar lawsuits between the firms, some Cities Service employees in Tulsa indicate they don't necessarily fear a takeover by Mesa.

"A lot of people have said that," Harris said.

He said there is a lot of "Wall Street talk" that Cities Service's "management is somewhat suspect" while Pickens works wonders at Mesa.

"That can be said of many major companies," Harris said. "Any time you get to that size, it's hard to show dramatic growth."

Harris said Cities Service's antagonism toward a Mesa takeover reflects management attitude.

From an analyst's perspective, the fight gives the stock market new vigor, Harris said.

Residents sue owners of smelters

DALLAS (AP) — A group of residents who live near two lead smelters filed suit in federal court here contending toxic pollutants discharged from the plants have caused them physical and psychological damage.

Named as defendants were Dixie Metals Inc., General Battery Corp. — Dixie Metals' parent company — and NL Industries.

The 31 plaintiffs in Wednesday's suit live in East Oak Cliff, within a few blocks of either the Dixie Metals smelter or a plant that was closed in 1979 by NL Industries, said Blake Bailey, the plaintiffs' attorney.

The suit says "each plaintiff has suffered varying degrees of severe, progressive, permanent and irreversible neurologic, psychological, physical and developmental damage. Each plaintiff has suffered anguish, psychic impairment, mental pain and has had altered the ability to lead a normal life."

Bailey said medical tests were run on each plaintiff to determine how much they had been contaminated by the lead and the effects of the exposure to the lead.

Roadblock is ruled constitutional

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — Municipal Judge John Bridgforth says the 24-hour roadblock Arkansas State Police operated on Interstate 40 last month was constitutional.

Bridgforth made the ruling Wednesday during a hearing on charges against five people stopped by state police. The American Civil Liberties Union has filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court challenging the roadblock as a violation of the Fourth Amendment protection from unlawful search and seizure.

State, federal and local officials stopped about 7,000 vehicles on May 3 and 4 near Forrest City. Police arrested nine people for drunken driving, 33 for speeding, 33 for other traffic infractions, 62 for vehicle equipment and related violations, 49 for drug infractions and 29 for other criminal activities. Eight aliens were arrested for being in the country illegally.

Bridgforth denied a motion by John W. Hall Jr., a Little Rock attorney, that evidence police took in the roadblock be suppressed. Hall represents five people arrested at the checkpoint.

Earthquake theory

These photos, made in the mid-1960s, are the only known pictures of the phenomenon of earthquake lights. They were taken by Japanese dentist T. Kuribayashi. Scientists with the U.S. Geological Survey now think the glow comes from rocks heated by an earthquake's motion.

Theory offered for 'Earthquake Lights'

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — During large earthquakes, mysterious displays of light sometimes swell above the surface into the night sky. Some scientists now think the glow comes from rocks heated by a quake's motion.

Scientists with the U.S. Geological Survey, in a report released (Thursday), say the puzzling lights could be generated by frictional heating in the earthquake fault.

Movement along the fault, where sections of the earth's crust move against each other with jarring force, could generate a sufficient electrical charge to produce an aurora-like glow above the surface, they say. In a report delivered at an American Geophysical Union meeting in Philadelphia, James Byerlee, David Lockner and Malcolm Johnson say their explanation would account for most sightings of the light phenomenon.

But Byerlee said in a telephone interview that sightings at sea would indicate there must be other causes of the lights operating in different circumstances.

"The lights at sea demand some other explanation because the high (electrical) conductivity of sea water would neutralize the forces we are talking about in our theory," Byerlee said.

Eerie glows coming slightly before, during or after quakes have been reported for decades, but scientists were at a loss to explain them.

Observers usually report a central luminous body of white light contacting the surface that lasts from a few seconds to a couple of minutes. Sometimes lights are reported at different places along the fault line.

Japanese and Chinese scientists in particular have reported on thousands of observations and these studies finally convinced other experts that the phenomenon was real and not the products of panicked imaginations.

The only known photographs of earthquake lights were taken by a dentist in Matsushiro, Japan, in the mid 1960s, but sightings have occurred worldwide, including in the United States.

Rare crane chick to know it's not a person

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — Tex the whooping crane may think she's a person, but there's no chance her chick will grow up with the same problem, scientists at the International Crane Foundation said today.

"We'll make sure he or she will not become imprinted on humans the way Tex is," foundation administrator Joan Fordham said.

Foundation director George Archibald lived with Tex for six weeks this spring, doing the mating dance with her several times a day to encourage her to create an egg.

Gee Whiz — six sturdy inches of cinnamon-brown fluff, oversized feet and a huge appetite — hatched Tuesday night at the privately funded foundation's Baraboo facility.

"It's all dried off and walking around," foundation spokesman Scott Freeman said. "He's a beautiful little bird. He has a silvery cast to his down feathers."

Archibald, who has taken a lot of good-natured ribbing for his paternal attitude toward the chick, took pains to explain to reporters Wednesday that Gee Whiz will be treated just like the other baby birds at the foundation.

"He said Gee Whiz was just like any other chick, but then he spent all day with it," Freeman said. "George was with it all day yesterday, getting it to eat, really sort of treating it with fatherly care."

There are about 100 whooping cranes left in the world. The species' population hit an all-time low of about 20 birds during the 1940s, but special programs have staved off extinction.

Gee Whiz's 15-year-old mother, Tex, has received national attention because she "imprinted" on humans instead of cranes as a chick at the San Antonio Zoo. Basically, that means she "thinks she's a person," Freeman explained.

It also means she's not interested in male whooping cranes, an unfortunate frame of mind for one of the rarest birds in the world.

Instead, she has paired with Archibald, 35, who spent several weeks with her during the breeding seasons in 1977, 1978, 1979 and this year, taking her for walks, helping her build a nest and performing the mating dance with her to encourage her to create an egg. Tex was artificially inseminated.

College sells 13-foot submarine

LAKE JACKSON, Texas (AP) — A cab driver who split the price of a 13-foot submarine with his brother says he plans to contract salvage work, but it may be several weeks before he collects his first underwater fare.

Steven Salley predicted he and his brother, Arthur, could have the sub repaired and ready for testing within two months. The two paid $4,000 to a community college that sold the craft after using it for years to promote an oceanography program.

"I don't have any real experience in rebuilding submarines," he said. "It will definitely be a learn-as-I-go process."

Dr. John Grable of Brazosport Community College said the Salleys have a considerable job in front of them.

"It had been sitting here (on land) for about 10 years," Grable said Wednesday. "A lot of the gaskets and rubber seals — and the batteries — had deteriorated."

Grable said there are no guarantees that it will dive, return to the surface or even float.

Dr. Donohue

Be rational about x-rays

Dear Dr. Donohue: I hate to sound like a hysterical mother, but I would deeply appreciate your comment on this. I heard a discussion on a talk show on the pros and cons of X-rays. One doctor claimed that if a small child is X-rayed there was an increased chance of it developing cancer within about 30 years. Well, my daughter is now 2. When she was six months she started vomiting every time she ate. The doctor suspected pyloric stenosis and sent her to the hospital for stomach X-rays. I don't know how many they took, but the doctor's suspicion was correct. She was operated on and hasn't had a problem since then.

But should the X-rays have been taken at such a young age? Could we have done her greater harm with the X-rays than the problem they found? I would just die if I thought I went along with anything that was ultimately going to hurt my child. I would question my pediatrician, but this is my first child, and I think I am already about to drive him crazy with all my silly questions. — Mrs. M.J.K.

You don't sound hysterical to me. Everyone is concerned about the hazards of X-rays. But the most concerned group I know are the radiologists, the ones who use X-rays. They recognize the danger to patients and to themselves so they take the utmost care in keeping those dangers at a minimum. That's why newer X-ray machines have been developed; they require very low dosages of radiation compared with those of only a few years ago.

Yes, it is true that exposure to radiation is a potential threat to development of cancer. Please — I would not want that statement taken out of context. I want to add that is a danger we must always keep in perspective. Millions of people are X-rayed every year and have been for many years — babies included. They have not developed problems in later life traceable to X-rays.

Yes, doctors must be careful to limit the use of X-rays, but they should not refrain from using them.

In your child's case, a very serious intestinal blockage problem was detected. I cannot tell you that her X-rays did not increase a chance of cancer, no matter how minuscule that risk may be. Nor can I tell you that you will not face some risk the next time you bundle your child up for a shopping trip.

The public is entitled to know the dangers of radiation. But those dangers must be viewed in a sane fashion or we could lose a valuable diagnostic tool. I don't think the cause of rationality is served well by bald statements uttered for shock value without a careful discussion of all aspects of the question.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Are oral diabetic drugs as effective in reducing blood sugar or do they just reduce the symptoms? Are those drugs safe? — S.P.

The oral diabetic medicines do both. They reduce the blood sugar, and therefore reduce the symptoms.

There is always a bit of confusion about drugs and diabetes. Not every diabetic can use the oral medicine. The reason for this is that, as with most illnesses, there are degrees of severity. With more serious diabetes, little to no insulin is being made by the pancreas. In less severe cases, some insulin is being made, but not quite enough to do the job of keeping the blood sugar level even.

In the milder cases, the oral drugs can be used. In the prod the pancreas to work a bit harder, to get every last bit of insulin production possible out of it. Some diabetes can be controlled that way.

Safety seats save children's lives

The mother holding her small child in her lap in a moving auto gives the impression of caring about the youngster's safety. It's a mistaken impression.

In a 30 mph accident, the child can catapult forward with a force 30 times its own weight. That's equivalent to a fall from a three-story building.

If the mother is wearing a seat belt, this forward force can tear the child from the parent's arms and send the child into the windshield or dash. If the mother is not buckled up, she and the child will fly forward. The child likely will be crushed between the mother and the dash.

But serious and fatal injury to the child can be avoided in most auto accidents by using a crash-tested child safety seat, says the Texas Medical Association.

Noting that more children die in automobile accidents than from any other single cause, the program encourages parents to consider these factors in selecting a child safety seat:

—Is it crash-tested? Unless a safety seat indicates it has been crash-tested (or dynamically tested), it probably will not provide adequate protection.

—Is it padded and free of sharp, hard edges?

—Will it fit your car seats and be held properly by the seat belts?

Regarding the child's size, an infant carrier should be used beginning with the first ride home from the hospital until the baby can sit up alone. This device straps the child into a semi-reclining position facing the back of the car.

When the child can sit up without support, a child seat should be used. It is upright, faces forward, and has a harness or protective shield to hold the child in the seat.

When the child reaches 40 pounds and 40 inches in height — about age 4 — a regular seat belt should be used.

Brophy gets Home Economics award

Mrs. Katherine Brophy was recognized on May 6 at the Annual Spring Home Economics Meeting in Connecticut as the Outstanding Home Economist of the Year. The award was presented to her by Consumer Education and worked for the Governor's Advisory Council on Consumer Concerns.

In 1978, Mrs. Brophy was honored by being an Education Policy Fellow for the Institution for Educational Leadership in Washington, D.C.

In addition to membership and past leadership on the board in CHEA, Mrs. Brophy is a member and past board member of the Vocational Education Association of Connecticut. She also belongs to Hartford's Women's League of Voters, the University of Connecticut Alumni Association, Phi Delta Kappa and the Omicron Tau Theta.

Mrs. Brophy is originally from Big Spring and graduated from Big Spring High School in 1962. She is the niece of Katherine Homan, 800 Scurry. She now resides in Hartford, Conn. with her husband, Jim.

Mrs. Brophy received her bachelor's degree in home economics from Texas Tech University in Lubbock, her master's degree in higher technical and adult education and her sixth year degree in supervision and curriculum development from the University of Connecticut in Storrs, Conn.

Mrs. Brophy has been employed by the State of Connecticut as Educational Consultant in Home Economics since 1977. She has provided leadership for Home Economics Coordinators and Key teachers, and the Home Economic Advisory Council for the Department of Education. She developed a quarterly newsletter sent to all schools in Connecticut in the home economics department. She has written a guide called Manager Guide to Consumer Education and worked for the Governor's Advisory Council on Consumer Concerns.

Dear Abby

Imagination is resource for job

DEAR READERS: Summer is here, and I am sure to get a lot of letters from teen-agers complaining because they want to work during the summer but can't find a job. "Every place I apply tells me they want someone with experience. But where am I going to get experience if nobody hires me?" Good question. I recently came across a little jewel of a book, "Getting Off to College" by Melody Martin, published by Oak Tree. The following excerpt from that book contains some valuable tips for teen-agers who want a summer job:

"Before we go into the ramifications of jobs, let me say that I am fully aware of the lack of good part-time jobs for kids. I am cognizant of the biases against teen-agers in the job market, and knowledgeable about the horrors of working below minimum wages for long hours. I realize what it's like to work for fast-food chains and drugstores, to baby-sit or tutor kids. I also know it's hard to find those jobs.

"Focus on what you do well. The most successful moneymakers were those who created their jobs by focusing on what they did well, turning it into a service for others, and selling it.

"One class of high school students came up with a wonderful insight: "What do people hate doing so much that they would be willing to pay someone else to do it?" "Out of this discussion came the following examples:

" — A pair of guys walked neighborhoods doing window-washing. They aimed at tract housing where neighbors could get a gander at work in progress. They scanned each house and gave an estimate. They worked together and finished fast. They also did quite well financially.

" — One clever girl charged a basic fee to grocery shop for families. She could easily do two families after school and more on weekends. She got a fee plus tip.

" — Some kids organized art groups for children in their garages. They charged a fee that included the cost of materials.

" — Some kids took pictures for money.

" — One girl gave exercise classes in her garage.

" — Some kids organized an 'I'll take your child to the beach and watch him' business.

" — A couple offered bulk mailing services (stuffing, folding).

" — Car washing and waxing were popular and paid off.

" — One girl entertained as a clown at children's birthday parties.

" — A group of kids became party helpers (serving, cleaning up, getting ready).

" — One clever boy walked through neighborhoods and shined shoes by the closetful.

"The services are endless. I have been delighted and amused at the resourcefulness of students who were willing to earn some money in a different way. Remember that all of these job ideas came from the students' own knowledge of what they did well. Once again, it's a question of taking some kind of positive action instead of moping about because jobs are hard to find.

"Remember that during the summer months you have a lot more time to earn money. It's not too soon to think about how that could be accomplished. Summer usually means a rise in tourism and a change in several of the local industries.

" — Hotels need daytime baby sitters.

" — Food places take on extra help.

" — Many little kids are dying for something to do and someone to do it with.

" — Many weary parents will pay you to entertain their kids.

"Again, it's up to you to get something started. Don't be afraid to invent all kinds of services. You might surprise yourself with the results."

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Use of ceiling fans will cut utility costs

Save on utility bills all year round by installing a ceiling fan.

During the summer the fan creates a breeze that lets you feel cooler at higher temperatures; your air conditioner can run at a lower setting. In winter, the fan can be set on reverse to draw cool air out of the room; your thermostat can be lowered a degree or two.

Conservatives want new budget with lower deficit

By WILLIAM GARLAND
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Conservatives in the House, including several Texas Democrats, say they will not compromise with moderates and liberals but will aim instead for a separate budget with further spending cuts to bring the 1983 deficit below $700 billion.

"The fact is the (moderate and liberal Republican) are dealt out of the negotiating process and out of a strong negotiating position" on the conservative budget, said Rep. Thomas Loeffler, R-Hunt.

Loeffler and other conservatives blamed the failure of the budget process last week on compromises and amendments that would have sent the federal deficit above the $100 billion mark under the Republican budget package.

Rather than compromise in the next round of budget negotiations, they will try to attract conservatives who voted against all the budget alternatives on the House floor last week.

Rep. Sam Hall, D-Marshall, said that among his constituents the $100 billion deficit is "kind of buzzword. They just don't like the sound of it."

A CONSERVATIVE budget task force, including at least one Boll Weevil Texas Democrat, will meet today (Thursday) and attempt to draw up a new Republican-backed budget that will receive the necessary 218 votes to pass the House.

Both the Republican and Democratic budgets, as well as several other alternatives, went down to defeat on the House floor in a long and tedious session last week. Many congressmen blamed the size of the deficit in each of the proposals as a key reason why the budget process failed.

A spokesman for the House Budget Committee said Wednesday that three budgets would probably go to the House floor about the middle of next week. The first would be the president's initial budget, the second would be a Republican alternative and the third a Democratic proposal.

The Democratic plan will be "similar" to that presented by Democrats last week, said budget committee spokesman Wilson Harris.

Wyatt chairman dies

DALLAS (AP) — Robert S. Bell, board chairman of Wyatt Cafeterias, died Wednesday at Baylor University Medical Center after a lengthy illness. He was 84.

Bell was born in Fort Worth and moved to Dallas when he was a child.

In 1929, he became vice president of Skillern and Sons Inc. a Dallas-based drug store chain.

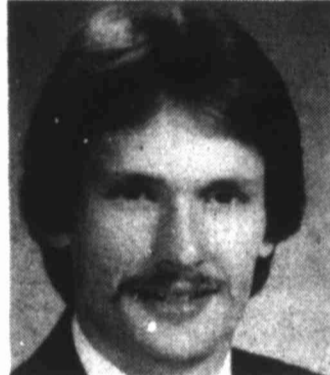

Bell joined Wyatt Food Stores in 1941, was named president of Wyatt Cafeterias in 1955 and board chairman of Wyatt Food Stores in 1958. He resigned from Wyatt Food Stores in 1960 to serve full time as board chairman of Wyatt Cafeterias.

Mask of the Soul

The face is the mask of the soul. It can convey a peace we do not feel, a strength we do not possess, a courage we hope for but have not earned. At the apparent concern for the dignity and privacy of the individual God permits us to shield our inner self from the probing eyes of others.

But a calm face doesn't still the soul's turmoil or satisfy its need. Spiritual peace, spiritual nourishment must come from God.

The millions who come to church each week to worship do not look any different from their neighbors. But they are seeking earnestly to fill an emptiness which we call loneliness, and hide from one another.

Why not be one of them — one of us who worship regularly each week?

Bathroom program not flushed with success

By JOE FOHN
San Antonio Express
CRYSTAL CITY, Texas (AP) — When Francisca G. Perez heard a federal grant would make it possible for her to have indoor plumbing installed at her two-room frame house, she rushed to sign up.

That was in June 1981. Today, close to a year later, her new bathroom includes a tub, shower, toilet and lavatory with hot-and-cold running water.

It does not include, however, a connection to the city sewer line. So, the door to the new bathroom remains closed, and the operative facility remains the escusado — outhouse — out back.

Problems have arisen in the $600,000 federally funded program to eliminate two-thirds of the estimated 300 pit privies in "Mexico Chico," the most impoverished barrio of this South Texas town.

With 12 months of the 18-month program gone, only a handful of the projected 200 bathrooms have been built.

"I started hearing complaints about three months ago. Mostly, 'When are they getting here?'" said Nimfa Moncada of the Crystal City Housing Authority.

"When we finally began being concerned about it, we started to check around and ask questions. But they (residents) felt like they shouldn't complain, that it was a blessing from the sky."

"Those people really have a need," she continued. "I don't think they should suffer because somebody isn't doing his job."

Construction under the program began last July. But by the first part of April, only 11 bathrooms were complete, though others were far enough along to be usable, city officials say.

Amid charges of mismanagement, City Manager Juan M. Perez fired Program Director Esequiel De la Fuente in April. In May, the City Council fired Perez, and last week officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development arrived here to review and audit the program.

Neither Acting City Manager Robert Maldonado, nor De La Fuente's successor, Pablo Aguillon nor HUD inspector Antonio Cabral knows just how many bathrooms have been completed or what the average unit cost has been.

"They had about 40 completed — with minor discrepancies," Cabral said. The discrepancies include unconnected sewer or gas lines in some bathrooms, for example, he said.

The reason for the inexact figures, said Maldonado and Aguillon, was the method of construction used.

"Units were done on a construction process basis," said Maldonado, 24. "They were laying slabs, then putting up the walls, and so on. Right now to date, we don't have an exact number of completed units."

Aguillon said use of city crews instead of sub-contractors made cost accounting difficult.

"Somebody should have kept an accurate figure of time involved in each unit. That was never done. I have no idea of the average costs," he said.

Construction is continuing, Aguillon said, and should continue through the Dec. 31 program cutoff. But the goal no longer is 200 units.

"I doubt they'll be able to do all 200 with the limited funds available to them," Cabral said. At last count, more than $214,000 had been spent, and Aguillon estimated the unit cost at from $4,500 to $5,000 for each additional bathroom to be completed before December.

Cabral said an estimate of 120 to 135 bathrooms would be close to accurate.

Still, Cabral said, "Based on what they've used and the number done, the cost is comparable to other cities using (city-hired) work crews." Cabral added that more than a dozen towns in the Rio Grande Valley are participating in similar programs.

Cabral said his audit revealed no evidence of fraud.

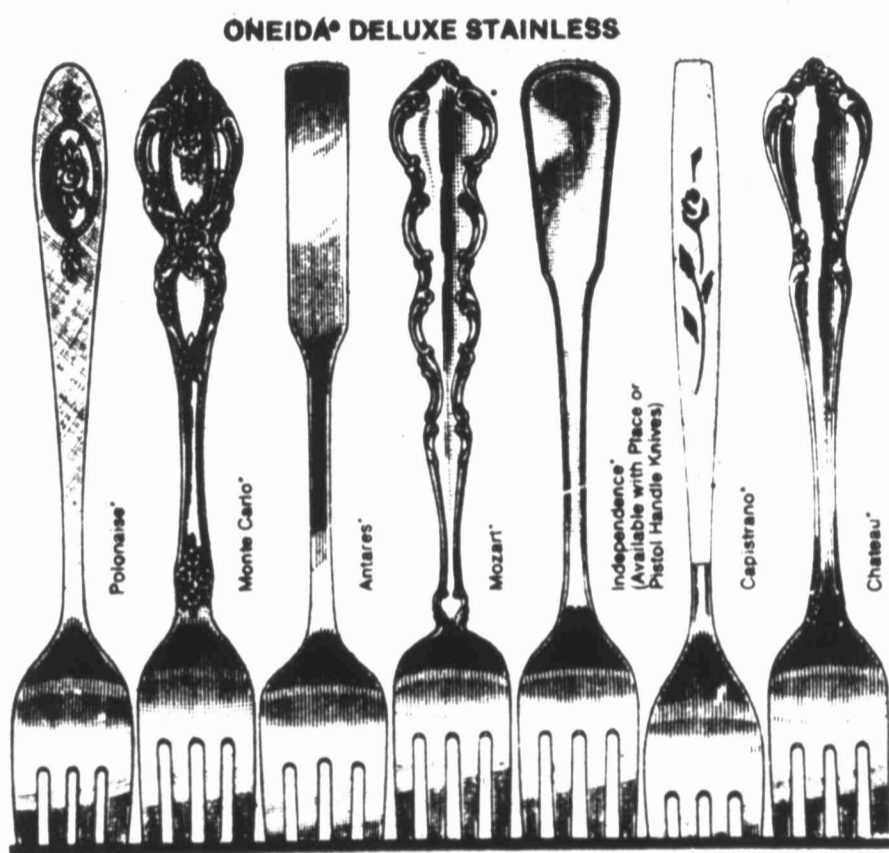

"There were a lot of allegations, but not enough evidence to confirm fraud or any conspiracy to defraud," he said.

Restored hotel stands out in border town

A return to yesteryear

New owners of this hotel in Rio Grande City have renovated the 19th century building. It was constructed by a Frenchman for his house and later a hotel. The $1 million project includes rooms filled with period antiques.

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas (AP) — Across the highway from a neighborhood of unpaved streets, a Frenchman's 19th Century home has been restored as a luxury hotel in a border town with few tourist attractions.

The $1 million refurbishing of the La Borde House hotel seems a bit incongruous in this unincorporated county seat. Tourists find little here besides numerous vintage buildings from the town's turn-of-the-century heyday and sites of historical interest.

Spanish explorers, Indian marauders, Mexican bandits and U.S. cavalry troops all passed through the mostly desolate brush of Starr County.

Agriculture now provides the bulk of jobs but work is scarce and unemployment is over 30 percent.

Not a promising place for a lavishly furnished hotel, one might think. Owner Larry Sheerin explained his enterprise.

"There seems to be quite a nostalgic sentiment in this country," he said. "Old hotels are in vogue. It's a departure from the Holiday Inn."

He's banking on nostalgia to bring guests willing to pay $55 a night to sleep on canopy beds under down comforters.

Sheerin researched original purchase orders for the hotel in choosing Oriental rugs, English carpeting, brass fixtures and antiques as furnishings.

"There are American and European pieces but any one of them could have been original furniture," he said.

Francois La Borde built the core of the structure as his home in 1899.

He came here from a town outside Paris and began a brisk leather business, selling the tanned goods to French glove makers.

He decided to enlarge the building, add a second floor and convert it to a hotel in 1916. The work was almost complete a year later when he apparently shot himself to death in a nearby store. Few know or will tell the story of his end.

"People say that he was very worried because he had spent a lot of money on the hotel and didn't think he was going to have enough business," said Maria Sanchez, current hotel manager.

La Borde's family opened the hotel after the death but business declined during the Great Depression. George Boyle, a young geologist fresh from bringing in an oil well bought it in 1934 and sold it to Sheerin five years ago.

When Boyle sold it, cobwebs had formed and the run-down structure had few guests except for traveling salesmen and seasonal dove hunters.

Sheerin, who divides his time between his local farm and San Antonio, began an extensive restoration project two years ago. The work even took him to the brickyard across the Rio Grande in Camargo, Mexico, where La Borde purchased the building's pale yellow bricks.

Local craftsmen repaired the gingerbread trim of the front portico and cast iron gate and fence.

Sheerin and restoration supervisor Robert Kendall of Dallas filled 11 bedrooms with antiques from as far away as San Francisco and New Orleans. Several of the remaining rooms are efficiency apartments.

Tax laws made it all possible.

"If it wasn't for that, we couldn't have done it," the owner said. "You're allowed a tax credit and you write the whole thing off in five years."

Early opening of jail section urged

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County can ease its jail overcrowding next month by opening the first five floors of a new nine-story jail scheduled for completion in September, a construction superintendent has testified.

George Joiner, superintendent for general contractor H.A. Lott Inc., told a federal judge looking for ways to end jail overcrowding that the first five floors could be opened in mid-July and create space for about 900 prisoners.

James Oitzinger, attorney for prisoner plaintiffs in the 10-year-old crowding lawsuit, said the five floors will increase jail facilities by 878.

U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue ordered the Wednesday hearing in an attempt to find a temporary solution to the crowding. The county is housing more than 3,000 inmates in two buildings designed to accommodate about 2,000, sheriff's officials have said.

Oitzinger and county officials agreed to investigate a list of 10 possible solutions to the problem during the hearing. Suggestions included excluding some types of prisoners, such as those unable to pay fines, from the jail and housing inmates in tents.

Bue also asked the president of a major subcontractor to "give this (job) top priority inasmuch as we have a crisis."

Lynn Ozier, president of Willo Products Inc., said outside the courtroom there should be "no problem" opening the first five floors next month.

Jail inmates have testified during the two-day-old hearing that they spent much of their time standing up in tanks because there is little room to sit or sleep and that they have seen prisoners bully other prisoners.

Police seek terror spree suspect

DALLAS (AP) — Police are searching for a 24-year-old man in connection with a series of incidents in which women were terrorized and forced to disrobe at health spas and homes.

Steven Charles Phillips was named in two aggravated assault warrants issued by police in Dallas and the suburb of Carrollton.

Carrollton Municipal Court Judge Doug McCallon signed the warrant Tuesday and set bond of $250,000 for the man, who police said was identified by one of 23 women forced to disrobe at a local health spa May 15.

Dallas police have issued a warrant that accuses Phillips of being the gunman who forced a man and a woman to disrobe and the woman to pose nude at a North Dallas residence May 14. Municipal Court Judge Barbara Rosenberg set bond at $10,000 on that charge.

The building is listed on the National Register, making it eligible for the tax break.

Sheerin has sponsored restoration projects in San Antonio, including a house in the King William historical district near downtown.

"This country's been good to me and I'm just putting a little back," he said.

Kendall had worked on renovation of the Driskill Hotel in Austin.

Forest green and burgundy are prevalent interior colors. Many of the wallpapers and fabrics are the same patterns used in the recent restoration of the Governor's Mansion in Austin.

An English green patterned carpet covers the stairs and main hallways. Wallpaper with the Texas state seal was hung in the hallways and large downstairs parlour.

"I'm sure glad I sold it to him," Boyle says of Sheerin. "There aren't that many people who would do a job like this."

Lakers sail by Sixers for 3-1 lead

DOWN HE GOES — Philadelphia 76ers' Julius Erving (6) goes up and over Los Angeles Lakers' Earl Johnson during a first-half drive to the basket Thursday during Game 4 of their NBA championships at the Forum in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles stops Philly, 111-101

NBA Championship

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are on the verge of winning their second National Basketball Association title in three years. They are just as close to setting a new standard for excellence in the playoffs.

But they're quick to support the old Yogi Berra adage: "It ain't over 'til it's over."

The Lakers took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven NBA Championship Series Thursday night, building a big lead over Philadelphia in the first three quarters and then holding off a fourth-quarter surge by the 76ers for a 111-101 triumph.

"I'd like to say one thing," Coach Pat Riley said after the game. "We haven't won anything yet. I know we're ahead 3-1. We have one more game to win."

"We're starting to smell the aroma (of the championship), but we have a lot of work left."

The fifth game is scheduled Sunday at Philadelphia, starting at 2 p.m., EDT. A sixth game, if necessary, will be played here next Tuesday night. If a seventh game is needed, it will be played at Philadelphia next Thursday night.

The Lakers, who swept Phoenix and San Antonio to get to the Championship Series, are 11-1 in post-season action. Six of the 35 NBA champions lost only two games on their way to the title. No team has ever gone through the playoffs with as few as one setback.

"Right now, I'm just counting the wins and losses," said Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 22 points, 11 rebounds, six assists and three blocked shots in Game 4. "We have a lead right now, but as you know, we have one more game to win."

"For us to win we have to use all our potential and all our talents. Philadelphia is an excellent team and just because you take the court doesn't mean you're going to win."

It seemed to be that simple through most of Thursday night's game. As in Game 3 two nights earlier, the Lakers never trailed and the game was tied just once, this time at 2-2. Los Angeles rattled off six straight points to take an 8-2 advantage and was on top the rest of the way.

It was 29-18 at the end of the first quarter and 57-42 at halftime. The Lakers led by as many as 19 points in the third period before settling for an 87-72 lead entering the final 12 minutes.

The 76ers outscored the Lakers 8-2 at the outset of the fourth quarter to cut the deficit to nine points, 89-80. However, Los Angeles regrouped and soon led by 14 points. But Philadelphia wasn't finished.

It was 100-86 midway through the final period when the 76ers went on a 12-5 binge to make it 105-98 with 3:17 left. Philadelphia had two opportunities to narrow the gap to five points, but bad passes by Caldwell Jones and Julius Erving spoiled the chances.

The teams went nearly two minutes without a score. Bob McAdoo's alley-oop layup with 1:25 to go made it 107-98 and ended all doubts.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Jamaal Wilkes led a balanced Los Angeles attack with 24 points each. McAdoo came off the bench to add 19 points. Norm Nixon was held to 11 points, making only four of 18 field goal attempts, but he recorded a game-high 14 assists.

Kurt Rambis had only three points for the Lakers, but equaled Abdul-Jabbar's rebound total of 11. Including team rebounds, Los Angeles out rebounded Philadelphia 61-53.

Andrew Toney led the 76ers with 28 points and 11 assists. Erving added 25 points, all but eight of them coming in the second half. No other Philadelphia player scored more than 12 points. Bobby Jones led the 76ers in rebounding with nine.

Belmont sets favorites

Aloma's Ruler, Con Cielo are money horses

NEW YORK (AP) — Two colts who were nearly knocked out of the Triple Crown classics by injuries are rated among the top contenders for Saturday's Belmont Stakes.

Back in February, Conquistador Cielo was sidelined with a slight shin fracture and Aloma's Ruler was taken out of training because of a wrenched ankle.

Since then, Conquistador Cielo has raced the fastest mile ever at Belmont Park. Aloma's Ruler wasn't ready for the May 1 Kentucky Derby, but won the Preakness May 15.

"He probably wouldn't be here now if it wasn't for Dr. Reed," said Butch Lenzi, trainer of Aloma's Ruler.

Loody Stephens, Hall of Fame trainer of Conquistador Cielo, echoed Lenzi's remarks about William O. Reed, who also treated his colt.

"He's without a doubt the finest veterinarian in country," said Stephens.

Conquistador Cielo is still being treated with an electronic device that stimulates bone growth. Aloma's Ruler no longer needs the Bi-Oseogen system.

Conquistador Cielo, owned by Henryk deKwiatkowski, has won three straight starts since returning to the races, including the Metropolitan Handicap in 1:33 last Monday at Belmont Park.

The son of Mr. Prospector, who will be ridden by Eddie Maple, was made the early-line 3-1 choice after the field of 11 3-year-olds was entered Friday. He will leave from the outside No. 11 post.

Next to Maple in the No. 10 post will be another speedball, Nathan Scherr's Aloma's Ruler, ridden by Jack Kaenel, who at 16 will be attempting to become the youngest rider ever to win the Belmont.

The Belmont will provide another matchup between Aloma's Ruler, winner of six of eight career starts, and Christiana Stable's Linkage, ridden by 50-year-old Bill Shoemaker.

Linkage, beaten a half-length by Aloma's Ruler in the Preakness and a winner in eight of 11 starts, and Aloma's Ruler, each was listed at 4-1 in the early line.

The speed horses will be attempting to hold on for the 1 1/2 miles. If they falter, Gato Del Sol figures to be coming like he did when he rallied from 19th place to win the Derby.

The Derby winner, who again will be ridden by Eddie Delahoussaye from the No. 1 post, was listed at 5-1.

THOROUGHBORED — Preakness winner Aloma's Ruler is clearly not excited by preparations for Saturday's Belmont Stakes as he watches the action from his stall Thursday at New York's Belmont Park. Though many fans are looking forward to Saturday's confrontation between Aloma's Ruler and Kentucky Derby champion Gato Del Sol, Conquistador Cielo, winner of four straight races, was installed as the 3-1 early line favorite Thursday over the field of 11.

U.S. has two in French finals

PARIS (AP) — The field in men's division at the French Open tennis championships had been narrowed to a 29-year-old Spaniard making a comeback, a teen-aged Swedish sensation in the manner of Bjorn Borg and two Argentinians whose once-close friendship has weakened because of tennis.

The men's semifinals at the first Grand Slam event of the year began today when No. 4 seed Jose-Luis Clerc played Swede Mats Wilander, an unseeded 17-year-old who already had toppled Czech Ivan Lendl and American Vitas Gerulaitis.

Argentine Guillermo Vilas, the No. 3 seed who has not lost a Grand Prix tournament this year, met Spain's Jose Higuera, seeded 14th, in the other semifinal on the red clay central court of Roland Garros Stadium.

The women's $51,000 championship match Saturday will be a match between two Americans — No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova and No. 4 seed Andrea Jaeger, who both defeated former French champions Thursday in straight sets. Jaeger stopped top seed Chris Evert Lloyd Thursday in her advancement toward a fifth crown in Paris. The blonde teen-ager, who has cut off her long pigtails, outplayed the 27-year-old Lloyd 6-3, 6-1 Thursday a day before her 17th birthday. It was only Lloyd's fourth loss on clay in the 222 matches she has played on that surface since 1973.

The American teen-ager, who would become the youngest women's champion, if she wins the title, has lost her last three matches against Navratilova and has a 4-6 lifetime record with her going into Saturday's final.

Navratilova needed only 41 minutes to eliminate Czech Hana Mandlikova 6-0, 6-2 in the other women's semifinal. Mandlikova, the 20-year-old defending champion who was seeded fifth, attributed her rapid defeat to "bad luck and a bad day."

Navratilova, a Czechoslovakian-born American, credited her superb playing to the help she has received from her coach, Renee Richards.

The men's $66,000 final at this $917,000 two-week event will be played Sunday.

Wilander, who burst on the tennis world this year, has become the prodigy of the tournament. If he wins the title, Wilander will end Borg's distinction of being the youngest man to win the French Open.

Borg, who is not competing in any more tournaments this year, won his first six French Open titles in 1974 six days after his 18th birthday. Wilander turns 18 on Aug. 22.

The Swedish teen-ager, now ranked 18th, has never played his semifinal opponent Clerc, a 23-year-old ranked sixth worldwide.

Clerc said he would like to play Vilas in the title match.

Both Argentine players, once close friends, say their friendship has suffered because of Clerc's refusal to play for Argentina in the Davis Cup earlier this year.

Peete's feet blow Kemper lead

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Calvin Peete was just trying to be courteous on the 13th hole when he leaned on one foot to avoid another player's line and attempted to sink a one-foot putt. He missed and that cost him a share of the first-round lead in the $400,000 Kemper Open.

Dr. Gil Morgan, the 31-year-old optometrist, and Gavin Levenson of South Africa, a 28-year-old second-year man, shared the lead with 4-under-par 68s Thursday on the newly-revised par 72, 7,173-yard Congressional Country Club course in suburban Washington, D.C.

Peete, an 11-year tour veteran, said he made a careless putt for his bogey on the 13th hole.

"It was just a common mistake we all make sometimes," said Peete. I was just trying to save somebody's line and putting on one foot."

Peete said the error helped his game.

"It probably was all for the best because it made me play more aggressive the next five holes," he said. "Before then, the wind was blowing pretty good and I was steering the ball for the center of the green. After I three putted there, it made me know that I had to be more aggressive."

Peete birdied three of the next four holes for sole possession of second place at 69 entering today's second round.

Morgan has played well at this course.

In the 1976 PGA Championship, he shot 66-68 and was the leader after the first two rounds before fading and he finished third in the 1980 Kemper, the first year it moved to Congressional.

"Usually, I start playing good here and I get better as it gets closer to the fall," he said. "The golf courses are more suited to my game, the more they get into fast greens, hard greens, long courses as opposed to some of the grass types we play on the West Coast."

Levenson, from Johannesburg, had no trouble at Congressional after finding the course. He was lost three hours Monday. The South African had one bogey on what he described "my only bad shot of the day" to go with four birdies.

Tour veterans Gibby Gilbert and Lon Hinkle, relative unknown Clarence Rose, a two-year pro from Clemson, and Bobby Clampett, were at 70, while Andy Bean, George Cadie and Fred Couples were in a group of eight players at 71.

Jack Nicklaus came in with what he described a "so-so 72, a kind of a yes and no, in and out round," along with defending champion Craig Stadler, Masters champion and leading money winner on the tour this year, and Seve Ballesteros of Spain and 11 others.

Johnny Miller and Rex Caldwell were disqualified for not signing their first-round score cards. Scott Simpson withdrew with a bad back after shooting 41 on his first nine.

The field is battling for a first-prize of $72,000. Portions of the final rounds Saturday and Sunday will be carried by CBS-TV.

Irishman helps in church and hospital

By RHONDA WOODALL
Church Editor

Robert O'Neill came all the way from Antrim, North Ireland to help his cousin, Father James Delaney, at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. O'Neill is serving as minister of communion at the church this summer.

"I enjoy helping people," O'Neill said when asked why he came. This is his fifth visit to Big Spring since 1972.

O'Neill says he has been helping people most of his life. He worked 41 years as a registered nurse at Holy Well Hospital of Antrim. To get the nursing job he submitted an application and some references. Today, a person must do much more to get a nursing job, he said.

Male nurses are common in Ireland and were when he became one, O'Neill said.

Before becoming a nurse, O'Neill worked on his parents' farm in N. Ireland. Now, he enjoys growing flowers, especially roses.

What does he think of Texas?

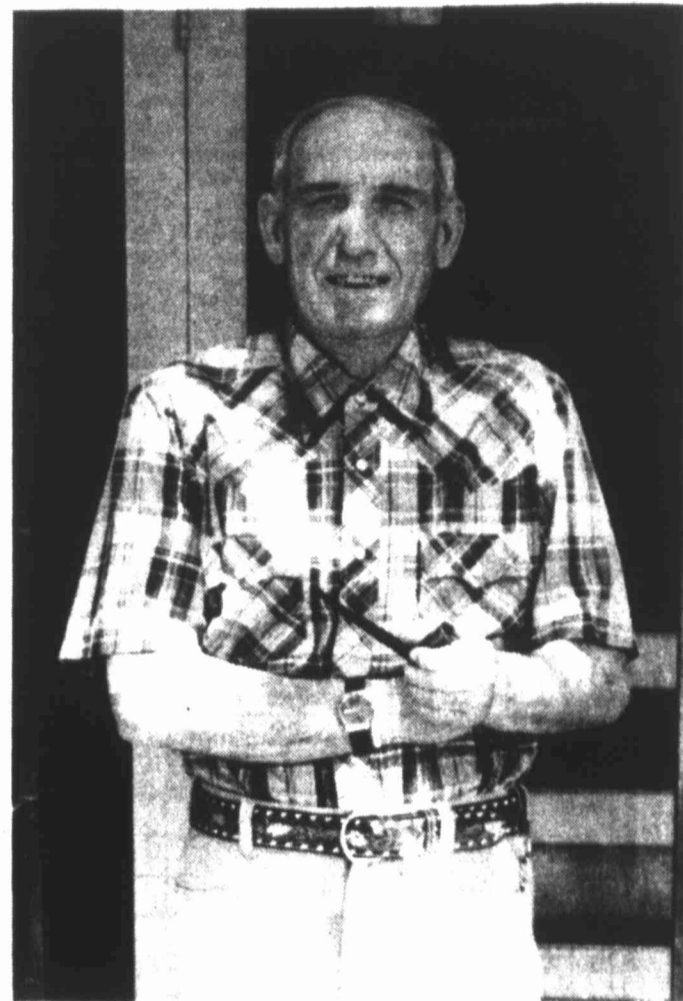

"The people are friendly and helpful. I'm quite happy and relaxed here," O'Neill said. "The people here are more open, more prepared to say what they think."

One thing that surprised O'Neill when he arrived here was that people talked about water. In Ireland, water isn't even considered a topic, because there is too much of it.

The first time O'Neill tasted the city water here, he didn't like it, but now he thinks it is quite good. He thinks it may be as good or even better than the water in his hometown in Ireland.

When O'Neill returns to Ireland at the end of August, Father Delaney will be traveling with him for a vacation. The first thing O'Neill plans to do when he gets home is to check his garden.

He also plans to take Father Delaney to see "Mullkin's Tier," the Scottish mountains. He takes visitors to see them and sometimes goes there alone. "It's rugged. It's beautiful," he said.

HELPING OUT — Robert O'Neill will spend the summer helping Father James Delaney at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Barrett wonders about religion

LONDON (AP) — A revolt by some Africans against Western-style Christianity 25 years ago started the Rev. David B. Barrett, an English clergyman-missionary, wondering about the present state of the world's religions.

His questions have led him to compile what is probably the most comprehensive array of facts throughout the world and also about the extent of non-belief.

Barrett's work, with 500 collaborators, has produced the "World Christian Encyclopedia," a huge volume on the memberships of 20,800 distinct Christian denominations from 1900 to 1980, with projections to the year 2000.

Also included — an index of 500 names for God in 900 languages.

Other religions, as well as atheism, are covered because "Christianity must be studied in the total religious context," Barrett said in an interview.

The 1,000-page book has just been published in the United States by Oxford University Press (at $74.50 until Aug. 1 and $95 thereafter). It appears in Britain in July.

Barrett, 54, an Anglican who lives in Kenya and trekked with his notebooks through 212 countries and territories of the 223 featured in his book, said much of the material was already available to individual churches, "but they didn't know what to do with it."

"I was sometimes told that the Archangel Gabriel doesn't use statistics and that there are no statistics in heaven," he said.

"But all the churches collect their own statistics every year—and then forget them. I would say that, far from being useless, the facts about the world growth of Christianity are of primary importance."

Barrett said Christians are the most numerous of the world's religions, outnumbering Moslems by nearly 2-to-1. "But Islam is growing slightly faster."

"Islam's strength is in the third world, like Indonesia, where population is increasing faster than in the West," he said.

Pope's visit helps Catholic's image

LONDON (AP) — Pope John Paul II's visit to Britain enhanced the image of the Roman Catholic Church in a non-Catholic country and encouraged other Christian religious leaders to feel that centuries of schism can be healed.

The pope said in a television interview broadcast Wednesday night as he flew back to Rome that he hoped his six-day visit, the first ever by a pope, would be a step toward Christian unity. He announced that Dr. Robert Runcie, the archbishop of Canterbury and the leader of the world's 65 million Anglicans, had promised to come to Rome to return his visit.

In a glowing farewell tribute, Runcie said the pope, although he is the leader of hundreds of millions of Catholics throughout the world, came to Britain "with the grace of a pilgrim and a prophet" and "conquered hearts by his attentiveness and humanity."

"He has spoken convincingly of the things of God, but he has adapted himself to people and occasions with the sensitivity of a gifted pastor," the Anglican primate said.

Runcie, spiritual head of the Church of England, and the pope signed a joint declaration pledging to continue the consultations, under way for 21 years, on how their two churches might achieve the "unity for which Christ prayed."

The Times of London said the declaration "gave the ecumenical movement a boost beyond anyone's expectations."

The moderator of Scotland's Presbyterian Free Church, Dr. Kenneth Green, said the pope "has given impetus to Christian unity."

Other Protestant leaders who met with the pope — Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Reformed Church and others — said they were impressed by his personality but felt they would not live to see unity with Rome. But the pope invited them, too, to visit him.

Nuclear weapons are contrary to Christ's teaching

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A nuclear weapons worker, Eloy Ramos, has quit his job at Pantex, the final assembly point for U.S. nuclear warheads, saying nuclear proliferation is contrary to Christ's teachings.

"Man does not have the right to destroy all that God gave us," he said, adding his decision to quit came after a year of soul-searching affected by recent imprisonment of protesters at the Pantex site, prayer and denunciation of nuclear arms escalation by Bishop Leroy Mathiesen of Amarillo.

CLERIC LEADS DISARMAMENT FIGHT — The Rev. Paul Meyer, coordinator of the Interreligious Task Force's "mobilization for survival," expects a series of demonstrations, scheduled to coincide with the start Monday of the special United Nations session on disarmament, to be the largest yet mounted by the growing religious peace movement in this country.

Secretary needed

The ecumenical agency in New Mexico, which is changing its name to "New Mexico Conferences of Churches," is accepting applications to fill the position of executive secretary. Persons interested may submit applications or inquire to John E. Haaland, search committee chairperson, 1808 George, N.E., Albuquerque, NM 87110.

Europe and the United States, where population growth is slowing down. The percentage of Christians is declining very slightly each year, because the surge of Christianity in Africa and the Far East is balanced by a 3 million-a-year loss in Europe and the United States.

Barrett, lean, bearded and quietly humorous, studied aerodynamics at Cambridge University and was a government aircraft designer when he changed vocations 30 years ago, entering the Church of England ministry.

Eventually sent to Kenya 1957 as a missionary, he soon faced a church rebellion in which about half the diocese broke away to form their own church, saying the Anglican church did not reflect African culture.

The same thing happened in many other Western-style African churches, and there now are 27 million people in African indigenous churches.

After learning that similar breakways had been going on in Africa for 100 years, "it seemed far bigger than anybody realized, but there were no figures." He began collecting them in 1967, leading to his huge, world-wide research project.

With financial help from the Church Missionary Society and the Anglican Communion, Barrett worked from an office in Nairobi.

He said 100 of his collaborators in Islamic and Communist countries insisted on anonymity, because of state or social pressures against their religions. A number are Roman Catholic monks and nuns who "know their countries very well."

"One man wrote the facts for me on Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Palestine — Palestine because the Israeli boundaries are artificial from a Christian viewpoint. They were on just four sheets of paper, but they were sensational, quite unknown to the outside world," he said.

To get information on "difficult" countries like Albania, Iraq and the Soviet republics, it was not always necessary to go there but to find out who the experts are, wherever they might be.

"Writing was no good, so I went to nearly every country in the world. I asked churches for their yearbooks and if they were unsatisfactory I went to universities.

"University experts are important sources, in Moscow, London, San Francisco. Then there are the exiles. There are two Albanian churches in the United States."

Barrett said his book contains many discoveries and curiosities.

"The pope thinks he has 730 million Catholics. My figure is 806 million."

"Brazil claims more than 11 million Catholics who are really Protestants. They were baptized Catholics who discovered, mostly in Pentecostalism, a more dynamic religion."

"Dual affiliation is my category for them, and for those Scandinavians who belong to a state church but also become Salvationists or members of free churches. There must be at least 50 million people in the world like that."

Wallace to speak at women's seminar

Joanne Wallace offers suggestions on how to be God's ideal woman in the challenging 1980's. Ms. Wallace is a nationally known speaker, author of The Image of Loveliness, television personality for Image Identity, president of Image Improvement, Inc., fashion editor for Virtue magazine, former model and Mrs. America pageant contestant.

Mrs. Wallace will speak on such topics as self-image, hair and skin care, wardrobe, and how to represent Christ and strengthen the family at a seminar at Hillcrest Baptist Church on July 23-24.

The cost of the seminar is $15 which includes nine hours of teaching, workbooks and snacks. A nursery will be available with an additional charge of $2.50 per child. The deadline for registration is July 16.

Write to Hillcrest Baptist Church, 2000 FM 700, Big Spring, Texas, 79720 or call 267-1639 to register. Be sure to include name, address, and city.

Self-described homosexual named to Methodist board

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — In a move toward "reconciliation" with its gay members, the Southwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church has appointed a self-described homosexual to an official board.

Troy Stokes of Austin, named as one of 30 members of the Church and Society board, became the first avowed homosexual elected to such a position within the conference, church officials said.

Ellis said later he believes the issue of homosexuals serving on church boards will be debated at next year's conference. He added that he thinks it was wrong for Dixon to promise dialogue with gay church members.

"He didn't have the right to pre-commit the conference," the McAllen churchman said.

Stokes said he was elated over the vote and that he believes his nomination would pave the way for other gays to serve on decision-making bodies of the church.

"We have a mandate to be in dialogue with gays in our conference," Ricker said. "How can we be in dialogue without having gays on the boards?"

Bill Ellis of McAllen requested that Pan

MAIN STREET — Eric Henry and Janie Phillips, puppeteers, and Professor Chester will be performing at 14th and Main Church of Christ, June 7-11.

Main Street to perform

"The Christian Life" is the theme for the Vacation Bible School at 14th and Main Church of Christ from 9:30 to 11:30 in the morning, June 7-11.

Classes will be offered to children from nursery school age to up to high school age.

This year's Bible School features "Main Street", a singing and puppet team composed of 14 teenagers and three adult sponsors from the church. The group has performed in Hollywood, Calif. and Red Lodge, Mont. as well as locally. The group will be taking a trip back to Hollywood later this month.

Mr. Bible will be at the V.B.S. assemblies to teach Bible verses and play Bible games. There also will be song time, crafts, classroom interaction and other activities.

All children are invited, there is no fee and transportation may be arranged by calling the church office, 263-1303.

MR. AND MRS. DELL MCGUIRE ...best dressed

McGuires chosen as Best Dressed couple

Mr. and Mrs. Dell McGuire, Gail Route, were named "Best Dressed" at the recent "Old Fashioned Sunday" at First Church of the Nazarene. They were presented an old fashioned kerosene lamp.

The congregation had an old fashioned basket dinner, music by the "Senior Singers", a number of old time hymns, and other nostalgic events.

Churches involved in Day-Care

NEW YORK (AP) — What is considered the largest survey of religiously run day-care programs for children shows that American churches are heavily involved in the growth of the day-care industry.

The Rev. Eileen Linder, director of the Child Day Care Project of the National Council of Churches, said the survey indicated 48 percent of Protestant, Eastern Orthodox and Anglican congregations operate or house a child day-care program.

Half of these programs are for pre-school educational programs, she said.

In the poll, questionnaires were sent to 93,000 congregations, of which 24,900, or 27 percent, responded. She said the strong response "tells us we've touched a nerve that is important in the life of local parishes."

Blankets bought for needy

Blanket Sunday for Texas World Service Crop was May 9. Its purpose was to raise enough money to buy 15,000 blankets at $5 each or $75,000 in Texas.

For thousands of homeless people throughout the world, a CWS-CROP blanket is a shelter, roof, tote or wall of privacy. CWS annually ships over 300,000 wool-blend blankets bought in bulk from the manufacturer.

Bulletin inserts and envelopes are available from CWS-CROP 2704 Rio Grande no. 9, Austin, TX 78705. They will be sent free and postage-paid.

Vacation church school materials also are available without charge.

Plaintiffs told to disclose names in religious suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Two people must reveal their names if they wish to continue a suit against a county commissioner over the erection of two crosses and a Star of David in a park, a federal judge has ruled.

In the same motion Thursday, U.S. District Judge Carl Bue refused to grant Harris County Commissioner Bob Eckels' request to dismiss the action.

"The non-disclosure of the plaintiffs' identities in a case in which the defendant, a public official, stands publicly accused of a serious contravention of federal law is unfair," Bue wrote.

The plaintiffs, who filed the suit under the pseudonyms Jane Doe and John Roe, contend that maintenance of the articles in a public park violates their First and Fourteenth Amendment rights to be free of any governmental action respecting establishment of religion.

Woman celebrates birthday

STELLA WALKER ...celebrates 98th birthday

Trinity Baptist Church will honor Stella Walker, on her 98th birthday Sunday. The Pastor's class will honor her at 10 a.m. and the church will honor her at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Walker, called "Aunt Stella" by many friends, has been a member of Trinity Baptist Church for many years. She seldom misses a service at the church and still makes the visitation program each Tuesday morning. The Rev. Claude Craven, pastor, says she is a faithful member, loyal worker and a prayer warrior.

The church invites her friends to come and honor her on Sunday morning.

A reception will be held in Dorothy Garrett Hall following the services.

Gospel quintet to appear

Crystal River Gospel Quintet of Lubbock will be appearing at First Assembly of God, 4th and Lancaster, at 10 a.m., Sunday. A nursery will be provided.

Five of the twelve children of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Rodriguez Sr. will be singing. They are Sammy, 33 yrs. old and fifth child; Joel, 26 yrs. old and eighth; Carlos, 24 yrs. old and ninth; Hector, 21 yrs. old and eleventh; and Johnny Joe, 20 yrs. old and twelfth.

Guests are invited to come early or stay late to meet and talk to the Rodriguez brothers.

Vacation Bible School

Salem Baptist Church will be having Vacation Bible School, June 7-11, from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The theme this year is "God Speaks We Listen." This is a new curriculum from Scripture Press Publications.

Children between the ages of 3 yrs. old and early high school are invited to join in on the learning, recreation, and refreshments.

Science of Mind

A study group is forming around the science of mind teaching. Anyone interested may call 263-6311.

Hillcrest Baptist has VBS

Hillcrest Baptist Church is planning a vacation Bible School from 9 a.m. to noon, June 7-11. Children from the ages of 4 to the sixth grade are invited to participate. For bus transportation call 7-6639 before Monday.

Nazarene Bible School

"Jesus and Me" will be the theme for Vacation Bible School at the First Church of the Nazarenes, 1400 Lancaster, June 7-11. The school will begin at 6:30 p.m. and last until 8:30 p.m. Children from the two years old up to the sixth grade will participate. For information or transportation call 267-7015 or 267-8013.

Missionary dies in China

TOKYO (AP) — A funeral for the Rev. Louis N. Grier, a Presbyterian missionary who worked in a human rights program for a group of Japanese social outcasts.

Grier died of a sudden illness at the Yodogawa Christian Hospital in Osaka Tuesday night. He was 61.

Grier, who arrived in Japan 34 years ago, has been affiliated with the Buraku Liberation Center in Shijonawate City, Osaka.

The group strives to provide education and other opportunities for "Burakumin," Japanese who suffer social discrimination because of their social background, said Grier's widow, Dorothy.

The Burakumin are descended from people who during Japan's feudal period were forced to live in segregated communities and could only hold what were considered "unclean" jobs, such as butchers, leather tanners and gravediggers.

While Japanese laws now prohibit discrimination in the workplace or classroom based on ancestry, some people refuse to hire or marry descendants of the outcasts.

Mrs. Grier is employed in Wakayama Medical College's division of neurological diseases. The couple was planning to retire soon and return to the United States, she said.

Survivors also include a son, Stephen, of Minneapolis, Minn.; a daughter, Norma of Grants Pass, Ore.; a son, Ross Ramsey-Grier who is moving to Kobe, Japan; and a daughter, Jessie Morioka of Wakayama.

Wills Point residents to be deported

DALLAS (AP) — Aureliano Hernandez, his wife and five children consider themselves Americans — Texans, in fact.

Hernandez has lived in the Northeast Texas town of Wills Point for nearly 14 years. His son, Tony, 15, plans for the day he graduates from high school and begins training for a career in electronics.

The Hernandez neighbors describe them as hard-working, industrious and "worthwhile citizens."

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service calls six of them illegal and wants them to go "home" — to Mexico.

"We mostly just thought of ourselves as just people, though I guess being aliens has always been in the back of our minds," said Tony Hernandez. "I feel like I am an American, no matter where I was born."

Only Melecio, the youngest of the seven family members, is a U.S. citizen, born in Texas seven years ago. The others have been living legally in the United States since 1968 under a variety of government programs.

However, their last line of defense against deportation — a 1977 court order — expired Nov. 10, 1981, and a nationwide crackdown on illegal aliens is bringing action against Hernandez and others like him.

The INS is now deporting 2,800 families in North Texas and Oklahoma as part of a national crackdown in illegal aliens, said Dallas Regional Director William Chambers.

The Hernandez was ordered by INS to return to Mexico by Wednesday, but "we haven't moved because our lawyer told us not to move until he said so," 12-year-old Teresa Hernandez said Thursday.

It will be at least a month, and perhaps as long as three, before the family can be brought to Dallas for a deportation hearing, because of a case backlog, Chambers said.

A judge could grant Hernandez permission to stay if "the deportation ... would cause someone here

Protestant churches working in China

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — More than 300 Protestant churches are now reported opening and functioning in China, says the Rev. M. Douglas Swendsen, East Asia secretary of the American Lutheran Church, on his return from a second visit there.

The number is up about 100 from a year ago.

He says 250,000 Bibles were published in China in 1981 and 600,000 to 700,000 are expected to be published in 1982. He says Chinese church leaders report some tightening of controls in Bible distribution because of recent activities by Bible smugglers from the outside.

FIRST LADY IN PARIS — First Lady Nancy Reagan chats with Jack Land, French minister of culture, Friday in Paris. Mrs. Reagan was a luncheon guest of Mrs. Francois Mitterrand.

Falklands reports one-sided?

NEW YORK (AP) — They're not exactly household names, but Brian Hanrahan, Michael Nicholson, Jeremy Hands and Robert Fox have been heard frequently on American newscasts, providing the closest thing viewers have to the sights and sounds of the war in the Falkland Islands.

These are the British reporters whose scratchy-sounding voices come from the South Atlantic, whose faces share corners of the screen with the ubiquitous maps of the Falkland Islands. For this war, neither Argentina nor Britain permit foreign journalists in the combat zone.

Both nations are exercising strict censorship, but Britain's war information generally is viewed as more credible than Argentina's.

In addition, Argentina's state-run TV organizations are not providing anything comparable to the eyewitness accounts of Hanrahan, Nicholson and the others.

These reports, which are censored aboard the British fleet and again by the Defense Ministry in London, are what appears on English TV and then the U.S. networks. ABC, CBS and NBC point out to viewers that the information is censored and, potentially, biased.

"It's a very difficult story to keep in perspective," says Jeff Gralnick, executive producer of ABC's "World News Tonight." "There are no third parties."

What America is hearing, then, has a decidedly British accent. How good has that reporting been? Is the truth coming out?

Ed Fouhy, CBS' vice president for hard news broadcasts, says he knows the British correspondents from other wars and other stories. "The BBC (British Broadcasting Corp.) and ITN (Independent Television News) say they sent their best. They're doing a pretty good job of being objective."

NBC pushes CBS into third

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Perennial third-place network NBC won seven spots in the top 10, and pushed CBS into third place in a row during the May sweeps, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

ABC took top honors in the weekly Nielsen television ratings, finishing in first place for the week ending May 30. ABC won all four weeks of the May sweeps period.

ABC placed first for the week with a rating of 13.8. NBC was second with 13.5, and CBS was third with 12.7. The networks say this means in an average prime-time minute 13.8 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to ABC.

CBS finished in second place in the first two weeks of the sweeps, but fell into third place for the final two weeks. NBC was third for two weeks and second for two weeks. Last week NBC was bolstered by the fine showing of its 10-hour

miniseries "Marco Polo."

The highest-rated show of the week was the NBC special "Television's Greatest Commercials," a nostalgic look at the best commercials over the past 30 years. "Paper Dolls," an ABC movie about teen-age fashion models, placed second.

Other NBC shows in the top 10 were "Gimme a Break," "Walks Far Woman," "Bob Hope's Birthday Celebration," "Diff'rent Strokes," "Hill Street Blues," and "Facts of Life."

were "20-20," "Too Close for Comfort," and "Three's Life," Company," which tied for
