O.I.L. officials: layoffs 'part of growth'

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Ten persons in "non-line functions" at Oilfield Industrial Lines, Inc. in Big Spring were terminated last Friday, said Dick Fackler, O.I.L.'s chief operating officer. However, the firings were part of a normal growth pattern, according to Chris Christopher, chief executive officer of O.I.L.

In fact, according to Fackler, O.I.L. has hired 102 new people within the last 30 days.

Christopher explained the hirings and firings as a process by which O.I.L. was finding its best operating level of employees.

"One year ago, we had a little over 300 employees," said Christopher. Since that time, O.I.L. had reached a high of about 745 workers, he said, and has now cut back to 635 persons.

"Any time you grow at that speed, you have to sit back, take a look, and make adjustments," Christopher said.

Fackler said O.I.L. had hired 102 people within the last 30 days, 30 of whom were replacements.

None of the 10 employees fired Friday were directly involved in manufacturing, Fackler said. He named industrial relations and computer services as the two departments in which the greatest number of those fired were employed.

Christopher said that while the first quarter of the year is historically a slow period for the oil industry, O.I.L. plans to continue to grow at a controlled rate.

"One problem with accelerated growth is that it doesn't maximize the bottom line," said Fackler. "You have to have control if you're going to live."

One method by which O.I.L. plans to keep control of its destiny was recently approved by Kidee, Inc., O.I.L.'s parent company.

The final corporate approval for a plan whereby O.I.L. would sell an operator a rig, finance the rig, and provide a place to drill came through two weeks ago, said Christopher. He is optimistic that this plan will provide O.I.L. with a head start when the recession and the attendant drop in rig counts reverses itself.

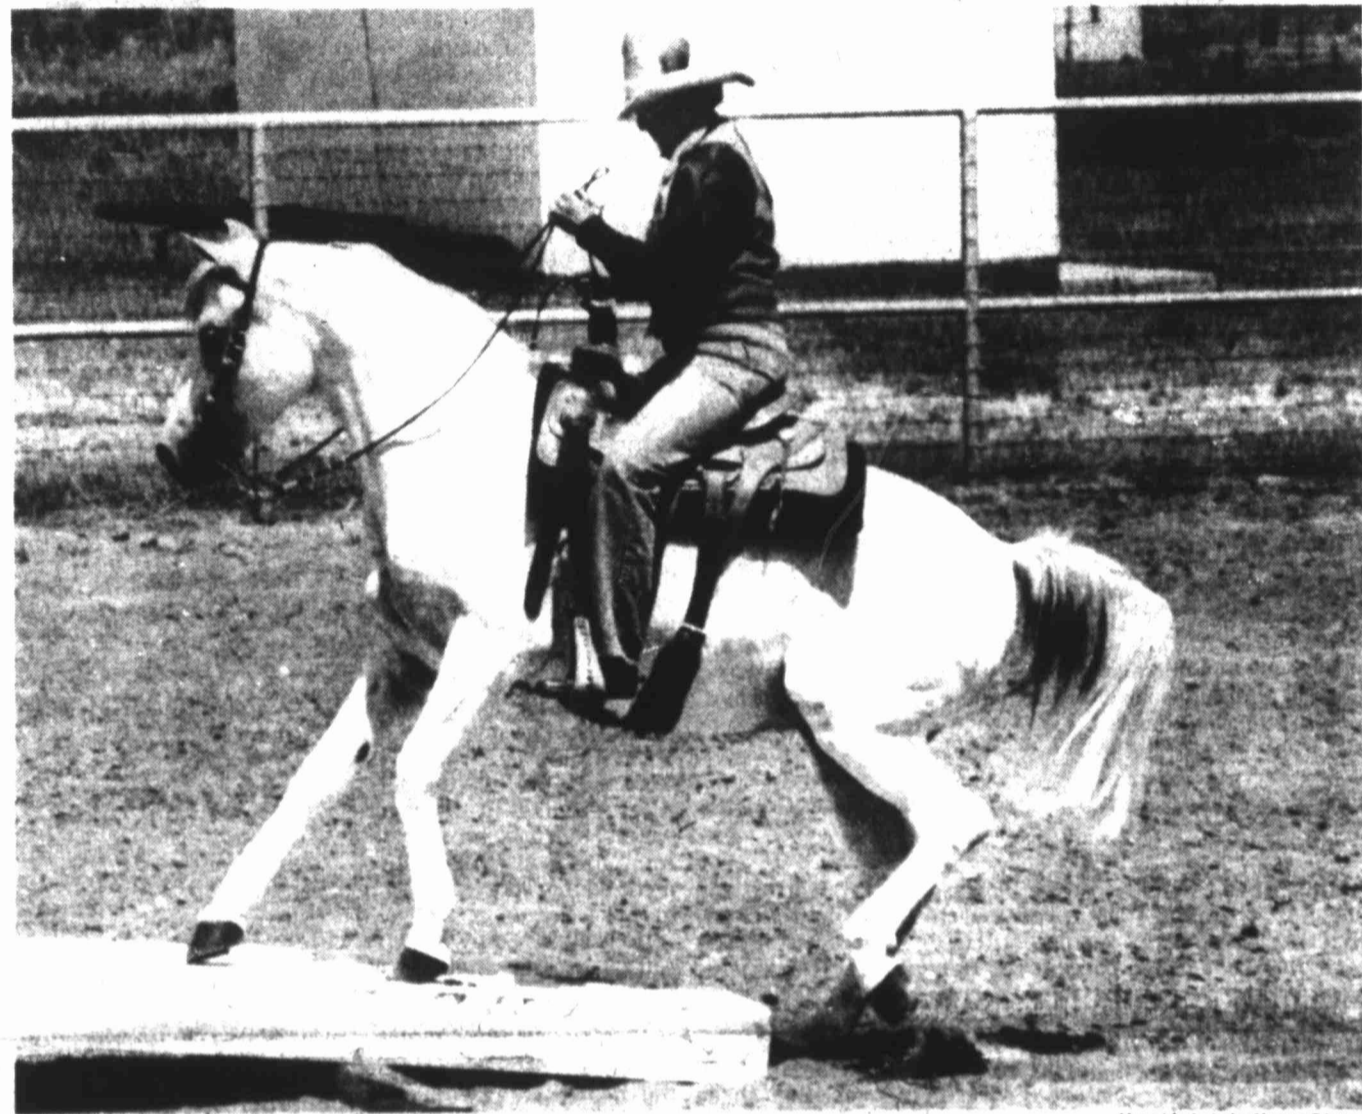

"We will continue to grow," he said "but we don't know at what pace." O.I.L. management expects to sell over $200 million worth of rigs (35-40) this year "at this employee level," he said.

O.I.L. also plans to keep abreast of new development in the oilfield industry.

"The future in any business is in product development," said Fackler, adding that O.I.L. has three new products — portable oil rigs, self-erecting rigs and 40,000-foot rigs already under development.

Although O.I.L. has only moved three rigs off the yard at industrial park since the first of the year, Christopher said, "all those on the yard now are sold." He said five rigs had been sold to one drilling company, three to another, and one to a third. All nine are scheduled to be delivered between now and the first of July.

Kirby defeats Tune

Allen wins commissioners runoff

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Deputy Sheriff Milton Kirby earned a new title yesterday, that of Howard County judge, by sweeping over 60 percent of the 3,158 ballots cast in the Democratic primary run-off.

Incumbent Paul Allen of Coahoma received over 160 more votes than Bob Cowley, of Forsan in the race for Howard County Commissioner, Precinct 2.

Only 21.81 percent of the 14,481 registered voters turned out for the primary run-off Saturday. Kirby captured 60.32 percent of the votes with 1,888 votes. Incumbent Bill Tune took 39.68 percent of the vote with 1,242 ballots in his favor.

Kirby told The Herald, after the final tabulations were in, that he would "serve well as county judge." He thanked "everyone who came out to vote." Kirby will take position as Howard County Judge beginning January 1.

Tune said he accepted the election results and respected the voters' choice.

"I guess that's what the people desire, since they voted that way," he said. "I wish him (Kirby) good luck." Allen had 712 votes, or 56.73 percent to Cowley's 543, or 43.27 percent.

HOWARD COUNTY voters favored Jim Mattox in the race for Texas State Attorney General. Mattox received 1,634, or 57.31 percent of the vote while John Hannah earned 1,217 votes, or 42.69 percent.

Pete Snelson captured 72.08 percent of the votes in Howard County for Commissioner of General Land Office with 2,070 votes. Garry Mauro lagged behind with 27.92 percent, or 802 votes.

In the race for Court of Criminal Appeals Judge, Place 1, Howard County voters favored John E. Humphreys with 54.55 percent, or 1,416 of the votes. Charles F. "Chuck" Campbell Jr. acquired 45.45 percent, or 1,180 of the votes.

In the place 2 race for Court of Criminal Appeals Judge, Bill Black won in Howard County with 1,369, or 52.98 percent of the votes. Chuck Miller garnered 1,215, or 47.02 of the votes.

JIM MATTOX carried the majority of the votes for attorney general in Mitchell County, according to Tom Rees, Democratic Party County Chairman.

Mattox garnered 467 of the Mitchell County votes while John Hannah fell behind with 265 votes.

In the race for Commissioner of General Land Office, Mitchell County voters supplied Pete Snelson with 411 votes and Garry Mauro with 220 votes.

Mitchell County voters favored John E. Humphreys for Court of Criminal Appeals Judge, Place 1 over Charles F. "Chuck" Campbell Jr. Humphreys acquired 317 votes to Campbell's 239.

For the Court of Criminal Appeals Judge, Place 2 Mitchell County voters chose Bill Black with 324 votes over Chuck Miller with 213 votes.

In the Mitchell County Commissioner, Precinct 4 run-off voters chose incumbent Billy Preston with 268 votes over Royce Mahon with 230 votes.

OF THE TOTAL 100 votes cast by Martin County voters, 51 were cast for Mattox and 43 for Hannah in the race for Attorney General.

Martin County voters favored Snelson with 83 votes to Mauro's 17 votes in the race for Commissioner of General Land Office.

Campbell carried nine more Martin County votes than Humphreys in their competition for Court of Criminal Appeals Judge, Place 1. Campbell took 41 votes to Humphreys' 32 votes.

For Court of Criminal Appeals Judge, Place 2, Martin County cast 44 votes for Black and 30 votes for Miller.

Mattox wins nomination for attorney general

By CHARLES C. HILL
Associated Press Writer

U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox captured the Democratic nomination for Texas attorney general Saturday, defeating former U.S. Attorney John Hannah in one of four Democratic runoff for nominations in statewide offices.

With 2,511 of 5,621 precincts reporting, Mattox pulled in 122,227 votes, or 51.3 percent, to 116,027 votes, or 48.7 percent, for Hannah.

Mattox, will face Republican nominee Bill Meier of Euless in November's general election. Meier, who until a year ago was a Democrat, was unopposed in the May 1 primary that spawned Saturday's runoffs. The incumbent attorney general, Mark White, is the Democratic nominee for governor. Democrats also picked nominees Saturday for land commissioner and two places on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Republicans had no statewide runoffs.

In the land commissioner race, state Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland took an early lead against 34-year-old Austin lawyer Garry Mauro but then fell behind. With 2,511 precincts reporting, Mauro had 119,176 votes, or 51.8 percent, to Snelson's 110,741, or 48.2 percent.

State legislative and local runoffs also were held Saturday, in addition to three Democratic and three Republican runoff races for Congress, and three Democratic and two GOP

State board considers drop

Will local homeowners' insurance rates plummet?

By JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The cost of homeowners' insurance in Big Spring and most of West Texas could plummet an average of 20.4 percent if the State Board of Insurance follows a staff proposal.

The insurance industry, meanwhile, is calling for a homeowners' rate reduction of 8.1 percent for the Big Spring area.

The three-member insurance board heard testimony of both proposals Wednesday and is scheduled to adopt a new rate structure within a month.

The proposed effective date of the new rates is Sept. 1. "We are aware that significant rate reductions are rare in these times," Baylon Daniel, the board's staff actuary, said in testimony. "However, premium and loss experience has been extremely favorable."

"Average claim costs have moderated for most coverages while average insured values continue to climb. There has been no major loss on the seacoast in the last decade and even the recent severe wind and hail losses in 4 Wichita Falls and Fort Worth have been overshadowed by excellent experience in other areas and other years."

FOR A MIDDLE-OF-THE-LINE homeowners' policy in Big Spring, a one-year policy covering a $25,000 brick veneer home, the cost of insurance would drop from $339 to $270 under the staff proposal.

Under that proposal, the cost would drop from $592 to $471 on the same brick veneer home valued at $50,000 and from $819 to $652 for a similar home valued at $75,000.

Statewide the staff proposal would decrease the cost of homeowners' insurance an average of 20 percent while tenant insurance or renters' would decrease 22.3 percent.

In Big Spring and Howard County tenant insurance would increase 15.6 percent under the staff proposal with fire insurance dropping an average of 1.2 percent, extended coverage decreasing by 12.2 percent and farm and ranch insurance owners' insurance dropping an average of 18.1 percent.

The insurance industry has proposed a 25 percent increase in the cost of tenant insurance in Howard County, but a 4.1 percent decrease in farm and ranch owners' insurance.

For extended coverage in Big Spring the industry is pushing a 2.5 percent average decrease. Statewide, fire insurance rates would increase 2.6 percent under the industry proposal.

Big Spring and Howard County are located in a north northwest district that includes the Texas Panhandle and stretches as far southward as Tom Green County and as far west as the New Mexico border and east to Coleman and Shackelford counties.

The home insurance rates set by the board have fluctuated drastically in the last five years. Last September the board approved a 7.2 percent increase statewide. In 1980 the rates dropped an average of 6.2 percent and fell 4.1 percent in 1979. The rate increased the two previous years, however, by 4.1 percent in 1978 and 4 percent in 1976.

Israeli tanks move across Lebanon border

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli tanks were reported moving across the Lebanese border Saturday and its jets, warships and artillery pounded a 50-mile stretch of coast in one of the biggest Israeli assaults ever launched against Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon.

Palestine Liberation Organization forces fired barrage after barrage of Katyusha rockets and artillery shells across the border into northern Israel, and Israeli gunners responded in duels that lasted into the night. PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat vowed his guerrillas would "teach Israel a lesson," and Israeli officials vowed to "liquidate" the PLO.

Lebanese police said nearly 500 people have been killed or wounded in Lebanon since Friday in the worst breakdown in the 10-month-old cease-fire negotiated last July by the United States and the United Nations. Israeli officers said the attacks were perhaps the most intense since the air raids that preceded Israel's March 1978 invasion of southern Lebanon.

A spokesman for the United Nations Interim Forces at Naqoura in southern Lebanon said forward listening posts reported Israeli tanks and artillery units moved across the border under cover of darkness into a thin strip of land controlled by Israeli-backed Lebanese militias under command of Christian Maj. Saad Haddad.

There was no immediate comment on the report from Israel.

The fighting was sparked by Israel's claim the PLO was behind the attempted murder of its ambassador to Britain.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Funeral escort

Q. Why don't the funeral homes provide an escort service rather than use the taxpayer's money through the police department?

A. The police department said the escort service is provided by off-duty officers who are paid by the families of the deceased, a point echoed by spokesman from the funeral homes. A statement from Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home said this traditional police function is provided free in all cities but two west of Fort Worth. Steve Childress of Trinity Memorial said he knew of no funeral home with their own patrol car for funeral escort service. Childress said he would rather pay the city for a patrol car rather than pass the cost to each family.

'Cat-and-mouse' clashes reported

British and Argentine patrols playing "cat-and-mouse" with each other clashed in the freezing fog outside Stanley, reports from the Falkland Islands said Saturday. The British ground commander said he was in no hurry to assault Argentine forces holding the capital.

Argentina reasserted its determination to fight. Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez, in Caracas, Venezuela, spoke of "surprises" in store for the British, and an Argentine military source in Buenos Aires, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press "everything is ready" for the defense of Stanley.

New calls came from the non-aligned movement, meeting in Havana, Cuba, and from Spain for a cease-fire in the two-month-old war, but no diplomatic solution appeared in sight.

British forces who have closed in on Stanley have begun a "deadly game of cat-and-mouse" with 7,000-8,000 Argentine troops holding the port town at the far eastern tip of the Falklands, Alastair McQueen of the London Daily Mirror wrote in a pool dispatch from the islands.

He said there were several clashes as patrols from each side probed the other's defenses. His dispatch, which was subjected to military censorship, did not provide details.

Robert Fox of the British Broadcasting Corp. reported British forces were "racing" into position around Stanley. "Already, (Stanley's) outer defenses have come under British artillery fire, and British gunners are preparing their biggest barrage since Korea or World War II," Fox said.

Maj. Gen. Jeremy Moore, commanding some 7,500 British troops ringing Stanley, was interviewed by British reporters at Darwin, 50 miles west of the Falklands capital. Darwin was captured by British forces May 29, eight days after they had established a beachhead at San Carlos 20 miles north of Darwin.

"I don't want us dashing in there," Moore was quoted as saying. "We will do it in a proper, sensible, well-balanced military way."

He refused to discuss his timetable for the Stanley operation.

"Keep him (the Argentine commander) guessing. That's good for him," he was quoted as saying.

The weather on the Falklands continued to be poor, with fog, frigid temperatures, rain and some snow. But British defense sources said this would not deter an attack should it be ordered.

Officials of the British government, which vetoed a cease-fire resolution in the U.N. Security Council on Friday, reiterated that military commanders in the field had been given the go-ahead to attack Stanley when conditions were right.

There was no comment on Argentine claims to have bombed and shelled British positions on Mount Kent, a 1,500-foot hill 12 miles west of Stanley.

80 people join march for nuke disarmament

AMARILLO (AP) — More than 80 people marched seven miles down Highway 90 east of Amarillo to the gates of the Pantex Nuclear Assembly plant Saturday to support a United Nations special session on nuclear disarmament June 12.

The protestors, ranging in age from young children to graying professional men and women, sang songs and carried banners opposing the nuclear weapons assembled at the plant.

Pantex security guards blocked the entrance to the plant with vehicles and watched the peaceful protest through binoculars.

Representing religious and political groups, the protestors released a colorful cloud of helium-filled balloons carrying the message: "Our hopes and prayers for a world without nuclear weapons rise with these balloons."

The protest was timed to coincide with other marches throughout the country supporting the U.N. session, which President Ronald Reagan has promised to attend.

"There is a new spirit moving in this world today," the Rev. Currie Burrus of New York told the protestors from Amarillo, Lubbock, Dallas, Wichita Falls, Austin and New Mexico.

Two years ago, Burrus said, the nuclear disarmament movement consisted of a handful of people who "forged ahead in faith. Now there is an explosion in the disarmament movement."

The march drew camera crews from Tokyo, Japan and from the CBS news show "60 Minutes."

Before the march, more than 100 protestors gathered in front of the St. Francis Catholic Church. Next to a statue of the Virgin Mary, they placed a full-scale model of a hydrogen warhead.

The protest was coordinated by the South Plains Alternative Resources Coalition and included college students from Texas Tech University.

Runoff

runoff elections for the state Board of Education.

Mattox, the front-runner in the May 1 primary, spent much of his runoff campaign arguing with Hannah about who was the best lawyer.

Hannah, 42, labeled Mattox a "professional politician" who has little interest in practicing law but entered the race because his Dallas congressional district boundaries were changed. Mattox attacked Hannah for not having graduated from law school.

Snelson and Mauro battled for the right to face Republican nominee Woody Glasscock of Hondo in November.

Snelson, 59, pointed to his lengthy service in the Legislature. But Mauro, saying the job of heading the General Land Office was administrative, said he was more qualified because of his experience as assistant state comptroller for tax administration.

Snelson beat Mauro in the May 1 primary, but Mauro picked up the endorsements of the third- and fourth-place finishers, state Rep. Dan Kubiak and farmer George Fore of Paducah.

With 2,511 precincts reporting in the Democratic judicial races, Austin lawyer Charles Campbell led Dallas lawyer John Humphreys in the runoff for the nomination for the Place 1 seat on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Campbell had 102,628 votes, or 51.2 percent, to 97,792, or 48.8 percent, for Humphreys.

Dallas County Criminal Court Judge Chuck Miller was ahead of state District Judge Bill Black in the runoff for the nomination for the Place 2 seat. With 2,511 precincts reporting, Miller led with 104,154 votes, or 52.5 percent, to Black's 94,298, or 47.5 percent.

The Republican nominee for the seat sought by Black and Belton is Ray Moses. Republicans do not have a candidate for the seat Humphreys and Campbell competed for.

During the Mattox-Hannah runoff campaign, Mattox, a Southern Methodist University law school graduate, zeroed in on Hannah campaign literature that incorrectly stated Hannah had a law degree.

Hannah said he corrected the brochure as quickly as possible. The former state representative from Lufkin earned his law license by passing the bar exam under a rule allowing legislators to take the test without finishing law school.

Mattox held an edge in campaign financing. He reported raising $431,549 and spending $490,077 through May 26, compared with Hannah's $337,317 raised and $324,770 spent.

In the May 1 primary, Mattox won 36 percent of the vote in the four-candidate field compared with 29 percent for Hannah. The third-place finisher, former state Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo, later endorsed Hannah.

Involved in congressional runoffs Saturday were two of the three districts created by Texas' large population growth in the 1980 census — the 25th District around Houston and the 27th District in South Texas.

Nueces County Sheriff Solomon P. Ortiz, 45, battled jeweler Joe Salem, 60, of Corpus Christi for the Democratic nomination in the 27th District.

In the 25th District, the Republican runoff featured 33-year-old Houston attorney Mike Faubion against J.C. Helms, 40, of Houston, and the Democratic contest was between Houston lawyer Mike Andrews, 38, and former state Rep. John Ray Harrison, 51, a district judge from Pasadena.

Former Dallas City Councilman Steve Bartlett, 33, battled Dallas lawyer Kay Bailey Hutchison in the 3rd District Republican runoff. Mrs. Hutchison, 38, is the wife of former Texas GOP Chairman Ray Hutchison. The winner faces Democratic nominee James McNeese Jr.

At least four hurt by tornado

BORGER, Texas (AP) — A tornado injured at least four people and caused heavy structural damage to a Phillips Petroleum Co. natural gas plant in this Panhandle city Saturday night, authorities said.

One of two other tornadoes that touched down near the nearby community of Fritch extensively damaged one house and destroyed a barn, but caused no injuries, said Hutchinson County Sheriff's Sgt. Bob Smith.

Police Chief Arthur Waight said the Borger twister knocked down cooling towers at the plant. But he said there was no danger of fire.

He said no houses were damaged by the tornado that hit in the west side of this city of 16,000 people located about 50 miles northwest of Amarillo.

One man was "badly hurt" when his car rolled over during the storm, said a spokesman at North Plains Hospital. Three others were treated for minor injuries they suffered when the tornado hit the plant.

Woman charged with assault

Police arrested and charged Susie A. Broughton, 27, of 1608 Canary with assault at approximately 4:30 p.m. Friday, police said. She was released from city jail on $200 bond, according to police.

Broughton was arrested by police after Myrna Graham of 1308 Scurry reported to police that someone had pushed and shoved her at her residence, police said.

Charles Trantham of 408 1/2 West Fifth told police that at 12 a.m. yesterday someone known to him took $345 cash from his dresser drawer, according to police.

Kenneth Kellar of 903 Rosemont reported to police that between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Friday someone entered his residence and stole $455 cash and a $60 watch, police said.

Charles F. Clark of 1810 East 24th told police that at 11:30 p.m. Friday someone entered his residence and stole $18, several credit cards and rings, police said.

European summit split over inflation fight

Request for credit curbs against Soviets turned down

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — President Reagan and leaders of major U.S. trading partners fell into sharp disagreement Saturday at the outset of their summit over a common strategy to beat inflation and put their economies on the road to recovery.

Reagan's request for tough credit curbs against the Soviet bloc was turned down by every one of the six other summit participants. One source said the opposition, led by Canada and West Germany, was so "animated" that further discussion of the issue was postponed indefinitely.

A heralded proposal by French President Francois Mitterrand to increase employment and spur economic growth through greater emphasis on high technology drew a cool reception from Reagan and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Britain, too, was clearly upset over the U.S. attempt to retract its initial vote with the British to veto a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in the Falkland Islands conflict.

Senior British officials were reported "dismayed" by the U.S. shift, but Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and a White House spokesman denied that it signaled any softening of U.S. support for Britain's fight to oust Argentine occupation forces from the islands.

The Falklands flap, which also saw Britain deserted by France and Japan at the United Nations, reinforced an undercurrent of tension at the formal opening of the eighth annual economic summit at this 17th century royal estate on the outskirts of Paris.

One bright note was Mitterrand's announcement that "monetary discussions are over" with agreement on a plan to control currency exchange fluctuations that disrupt economic growth.

During the first, nearly three-hour session around a flower-bedecked, doughnut-shaped table in a Versailles chateau, Reagan sought to assure the government leaders of Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Canada and Japan that he anticipated an end to high U.S. interest rates as he succeeds in reducing federal deficits.

Western Europe sees high interest rates, fueled by the deficits, as the real villain behind recession and unemployment. According to Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, the president predicted he would reduce budget deficits over the next three years, "with a balanced budget in sight."

Asked at a news briefing exactly when Reagan planned to balance the budget, the treasury secretary replied to an outburst of laughter: "President Reagan is a man of long vision."

French police said fewer than 3,000 leftists and pacifists marched in sections of Paris protesting "American nuclear war-mongering policies" and U.S. support for Britain in the Falklands dispute. Police dispersed rock-throwing youths at one site with tear gas. Before dawn, a bomb exploded at the Paris offices of the International Monetary Fund, blowing out windows but injuring no one.

Reagan administration officials had expressed concern about anti-American demonstrations before the president left Washington on Wednesday on his 10-day tour of Europe. But in Bonn, the conservative Christian Democratic Union said at least 100,000 people streamed into the center of the West German capital Saturday to demonstrate support for NATO and the United States.

Inside the lavish grounds of Versailles, Haig confirmed that Reagan's stand on curbing trade credits to the Soviets prompted a "very keen and lively discussion" at Saturday's luncheon.

Despite deep differences over what Haig termed the "extremely complex" issue, Regan told reporters that "we have a reasonable chance of success" on the president's request. Haig predicted a consensus would develop for summit leaders to consider on Sunday.

Privately, however, one well-placed administration official, who asked not to be identified, said, "I think we've got a long way to go if we're going to have an agreement."

The United States argues that easy credit for Western industrial goods and technology enables the Soviets and their allies to divert valuable funds to a military buildup. The Europeans say they need communist trade to create jobs and stimulate their economies.

Mitterrand also called for a "third industrial revolution" through cooperation on research and development in high technology, which he said would put millions of people to work and transform society.

Reagan embraced the principle of improved technology, and displayed his ballpoint pen as an example of developments no scientist could have envisioned a half-century ago.

Thousands rally for and against United States

By The Associated Press

Europeans marched and rallied by the hundreds of thousands for or against U.S. defense policies Saturday as President Reagan met with other Western leaders at Versailles. Police clashed with leftist demonstrators in Paris, and new anti-American bombings occurred in the French capital and West Berlin.

In Rome, more than 200,000 protesters shouting "No to missiles!" marched past both the American and Soviet embassies Saturday in one of the Italian capital's largest peace demonstrations in recent history. More than 50 people were arrested when packs of youths, mostly leftists, went on a rampage after the demonstration.

In Bonn and Munich, more than 100,000 West Germans identifying themselves as the "silent majority" and waving such placards as "Where Would We Be Without America?" demonstrated support for West Germany's continued alliance with the United States.

The smallest demonstration took place in Paris, only miles from the Versailles summit, when about 3,000 leftists paraded against "American nuclear war-mongering policies."

Israeli ambassador still critical

International hit list of Jews found

LONDON (AP) — Police have thrown a security net around prominent Jews on an international "hit list" uncovered in raids following the attempted assassination of Israeli Ambassador Shlomo Argov, an informed source said Saturday.

Argov, 52, remained critically ill and comatose with a bullet wound in the brain. Doctors said that if he survives, his left side could be paralyzed and his vision in one eye impaired.

Scotland Yard said anti-terrorist squad detectives were questioning four Arabs and an Iranian arrested in connection with the attempted assassination outside the Dorchester Hotel Thursday night.

A Jordanian who allegedly shot Argov at point-blank range was shot by a Special Branch officer while trying to escape. He underwent surgery for a neck wound and was taken into custody for questioning after release from a London hospital early Saturday.

questioning after release from a London hospital early Saturday.

Another Jordanian and an Iraqi were arrested after a police chase, a Syrian was detained following a raid on a house, and the Iranian was arrested Friday afternoon. A spokesman said the five were expected to be charged late Saturday night.

"We believe that we have frustrated a series of terrorist outrages," said Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner David Powis.

He refused to confirm or deny reports that a list of Jewish targets, living in Britain and other European countries, had been turned up in raids following Argov's shooting.

But a source close to the investigation confirmed such a list exists and said detectives believe they have broken a terrorist cell and are now looking for fringe members who sympathize with various Middle East causes.

various Middle East causes.

The Palestine Liberation Organization has denied any involvement in the London shooting. A PLO statement issued Saturday in the wake of Israeli retaliatory bombings of Palestinian strongholds in Beirut accused Israel of a calculated campaign of genocide.

"The Palestinian people cannot fail to notice the silence from Europe when hundreds of our people are killed or injured by Israel, and compare this to the concern expressed by European leaders and press when a single Zionist is injured," said PLO representative Nabil Ramlawi.

Beirut police said 70 people were killed and 220 wounded in Friday's raids and 46 were killed and 127 injured in renewed Israeli attacks on Saturday.

Britain 'dismayed' at U.N. disagreement

U.S. explains flip-flop vote on Falklands

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — The White House sought Saturday to portray its extraordinary flip-flop on a United Nations cease-fire resolution as a simple disagreement over wording in the document, and not a retreat from its support of Britain in the Falkland Islands fight.

But the British, while officially mum, let it be known that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government was dismayed by what one official called the "curious behavior" of Britain's closest ally.

Larry Speakes, spokesman for President Reagan, who is here for talks with major industrial democracies, said the late-night maneuvers that led to the embarrassing U.S. attempt to explain its veto at the U.N. Security Council took place after Reagan had retired for the night.

Speakes said the decision to abstain from the voting — which came too late to block the recording of a "no" vote of the United States — was made by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Haig changed his mind after assuring British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym earlier in the day that the United States would join Britain in opposing the resolution.

After his call to Pym, the secretary said Saturday, State Department analysts in Washington studied the language of the resolution and unanimously recommended that the United States abstain rather than vote for a veto.

Haig ordered the change in a call to the State Department, which relayed the order to U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, but the change of signals arrived too late.

Why didn't he telephone the ambassador directly, he was asked. "You don't talk to the company commander when you have a corps and a division in between," he replied. "You are always sure that everyone is singing by the same sheet of music."

The secretary discounted reports of a breach between the United States and Britain over the issue. "I felt a veto wasn't justified ... this was not a major nuance, a veto and abstention are the same in this."

The secretary said he did not awaken Reagan for a decision because the matter was completely within his authority. "What am I going to do? Get the president up at midnight or 1 o'clock in the morning with a nuance vote in the U.N.? My God, the president would be up 24 hours a day with the secretary of state on the other end," Haig said.

Britain objected to the measure sponsored by Latin American countries because it called for an immediate cease-fire in the South Atlantic without specifically demanding the withdrawal of Argentine forces from the Falklands by a given date.

Speakes would say only that the United States decided the language contained in the resolution, while unacceptable to the United States, wasn't objectionable enough "to justify a no vote."

But about 10 minutes later, the sources said, Haig called back to tell Pym that the order, relayed from Paris through Washington to New York, had reached Mrs. Kirkpatrick after she had cast her veto.

Hard-line Warsaw party chief resigns

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist leaders Saturday replaced Warsaw's hard-line party chief with a close ally of Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski in a move that appears to further consolidate the general's power.

The official Polish news agency PAP reported Warsaw leader Stanislaw Kociotek resigned and the Warsaw committee elected by secret ballot Marian Wozniak, the central committee's secretary on economy, to replace him. Wozniak had been nominated by Jaruzelski, who is national party chief as well as premier and head of the military council.

A record surprise

Judging by his own testimony, Sen. Barry Goldwater has in one respect led a markedly sheltered existence. After decades in Washington, it seems, he has made the discovery that the Congressional Record doesn't always tell it like it is — or, rather, like it was. This fresh insight came to notice when the senior senator from Arizona announced a change of mind as to the wisdom of televising Senate proceedings.

In early February he had publicly opposed this, saying among other things that a) "I don't want to spend three hours every morning getting prettied up," and b) "the longer we speak, the less we say" (in which view there is much merit, as the noted Swami from Salami was wont to remark). But now Goldwater says he is all in favor of putting the Senate on TV.

WHY THIS SHIFT? The senator laid it on the line in a speech to his colleagues. Having sought a copy of a fellow senator's remarks, he told them, he "learned, to my utter surprise and my complete disgust, that senators are not only allowed to correct grammatical errors, and correct other such mistakes made during the debate, but I was told that entire pages and, indeed, entire speeches were crossed out of the Record before the Record was completed and handed out the next morning."

The fact is that this has been common practice for a long, long time. How it escaped Goldwater's attention is a mystery. And he didn't even mention that under the flexible rubric of "extension of remarks" senators (and all this applies to representatives as well) may add to the Congressional Record pretty much whatever they please, regardless of whether any of it was uttered on the Senate or House floor.

GOLDWATER CONCLUDES that this justifies a new dispensation, saying "the only way we are going to keep a permanent, accurate, dependable record of every word that is said on the floor of the Senate is if we allow television to record the actions of the Senate." Considered by itself, that seems true enough.

Yet we submit that reform of the Congressional Record by means of sensible new rules scrupulously enforced also would be appropriate. And Senator Goldwater, freshly enlightened as to the perfidy in the present system, might be just the fellow to get a reform movement going.

Around the Rim

By CAROL DANIEL

Summer days

Long, lazy summer days. The boy stretched between cool sheets that belied the sun, already high and hot. He listened to the morning house-noises.

"It's not that it's so hot, it's just the humidity," he heard his mother complain into the telephone.

He squinted into the brightness of the kitchen and discovered doughnuts left on the counter. He grabbed one and sprinted for the back door.

"Where are you going?" he heard his mother yell before he eased into the sweltering summer heat.

Long, hot, glorious summer days. As he knelt to tie a broken shoe string, he listened to the morning summer-noises. Cars whizzed by on the other side of the house and older neighborhood kids laughed from the creek.

The boy sat down to eat his doughnut, forgetting the still untied shoe lace. He wiped the crumbs from his mouth and scratched his knees where they had sunburned the day before.

HE GOT UP, found a long stick and ran it along the chain link fence.

"Naa-aaaa-aa-aa-aaaa," he pretended he was a fighter plane. He jumped back to avoid the bomb he dropped to the earth, far below.

"Ka-boom!" it exploded and he whirled away, out the gate and into the front yard.

Suddenly he fell to the ground, covering his face with his right arm and extending his left, pointing the forefinger at a girl riding by on a bicycle.

"Blam, blam, blam!" he got her, right between the eyes. The girl disappeared around the corner.

He hid behind a tree until a group of older boys passed, then he walked to the corner, avoiding cracks in the sidewalk.

He stopped and looked up to the sun, trying to keep both eyes open at the same time. His brother had told him he would go blind if he stared at the sun. But then his brother had also told him his belly button would grow if he stuck his finger in it.

His eyes began to hurt, so he leaned against a post and regarded the quick-stop store that occupied the corner lot now. He saw men buying coffee and older boys playing games inside. His father had told him never to go inside.

He remembered there used to be a house on the corner. The old lady who had lived in the house used to give him Kool-Aid if he stopped to talk. The store had cold drinks, too, but you had to give them money and they didn't have time to talk.

THE BOY TURNED back to walk to his house. He thought about the swimming classes, camps and courses his mother said he could take during the summer. But he always just shrugged his shoulders when she talked about them.

"Then what are you going to do?" she would ask.

"I don't know," was always his answer.

He paused in his walk to inspect an ant bed. The ants scurried to and fro, as if they knew exactly what they were doing.

He pushed his stick down the hole in the bed and watched the ants in their confusion. Then he leapt away. He didn't want to be stung.

He raced back to the house and banged on the locked door. His mother opened it. He heard the TV in the den.

"What have you been doing?" she asked with a smile.

"Nothin'," he said, and walked to the kitchen.

She insisted on being pleasant and interested.

"But where have you been?"

"Nowhere," he called and scooted out the back door again.

He gazed at the blueness overhead. Long, hot, lazy... glorious summer days.

Editor's Column

Overheard at the country cafe

There was a time when I thought I was destined to write the Great American Novel. To give my novel authenticity, I spent hours in country cafes listening to people talk.

What I found was raw beauty and primitive poetry. It wasn't so much what the people said that fascinated me—because none of these conversations ever seemed to lead anywhere—but rather the way it was said, a simple art form in itself. For example:

"Are you going out there?"
"Done been."
"Any cooler out there than it is here?"
"Nope."
"No use going out there then."

Here's my all-time favorite:
"Johnny, we set your slop bucket outside—it soured."

Country cafe conversations are totally unpredictable. I remember one day watching a boy about 16 mop the floor. He was wearing red plaid pants. He was diligently pushing that stick, raising a sweat. Suddenly he stopped, rested his chin on the mop handle and blurted, "I haven't chewed any bubblegum for four months."

His grandmother, sitting nearby, raised her eyebrows. "Remind me to buy you some someday," she said.

In a little while the boy was tired mopping and called out to his grandmother, "Will you mop this floor for me?"

No answer.

Then, to no one in particular he said, "I wonder what would happen if I accidentally forgot to mop this floor. I asked the boss lady that the other day and she looked at me like I fell out of a well. She stared at me like she was staring through a wall."

Here are some other random samples from my journal:
"Hey Toby, you gotta gun I can borrow? My two boys wanna go huntin' tomorrow and I only got two guns."
"Only got two guns huh. How's about lettin' the boys go huntin' and you stay at home?"

"Don't you think my wife is a nice person?"
"I've found she has extremely compassionate nature to live with someone like you."

"Last night there was a fly on the wall at 1:30 in the morning. Bobby Don walked up to it, got his mouth about 1/2 inch from the critter and yelled, 'HI THERE! Scared that poor fly to death.'"

"Awfullest day I ever seen for the first day of spring."

"Now if it snows like this all night there's going to be some snow on the ground."

"I grew up with my grandfolks, and we had chickens. Now to get these chickens to lay eggs, we'd put wooden eggs in the hen's nests."

"So along comes a snake, which normally swallows a real egg whole and then crushes it by constricting its body. But this snake gulped down the wooden egg and found it couldn't crush it. So it crawled up into a tree, hung from a branch, and then dropped on the ground deader than a door-nail. True story."

"People didn't go to that bar to drink—they want there to get drunk and fight."

"There was one guy who stood behind the bar with a cue stick and if anyone started fighting, he would just start swinging his cue stick. The men would go outside and one of them might take a whole sack of rattlesnakes and throw 'em at the other. They were MEAN devils."

"Did you hear Craig Morton tried to commit suicide?"

"No!"
"He put the gun to his head but the bullet was intercepted."

Writer urges action on taxes

Dear Editor,
To Property Owners:
Are you becoming fed up with carrying the heavy tax burden so that the free-loaders can continue to get a free ride?

The bureaucrats are growing fat (financially and politically) because of your concern for law and order, fire protection and a good education for the school age generation. Your concern is noteworthy, but, to continue to be a good joe will break you and you will wind up in the POOR HOUSE because of it, or worse in a cold, dingy, drafty, drab unpainted shack where no one cares whether you live or die. Incidentally, that will be the fate that many of our current property owners can expect if our present taxing method continues.

There is a way out of this dilemma and bring that practice to a screeching halt. Demand (I repeat demand) that all property tax be restricted to a maximum of 1 percent of the market value. How could the market value be determined? A good guideline could be the last sale of title transfer value. This would eliminate the necessity for an appraiser and/or assistant appraisers. This elimination, statewide, would result in a huge saving annually, about $45 million, based on the cost of the office in Big Spring. Take it statewide (252 counties) and that is a bunch of $$$.

This $45 million plus would go a long way toward paying for needed services. To avoid making the same mistakes that the Californians made with their proposition 13 when they failed to head off the bureaucrats' counter attack (cutting the needed services such as law enforcement, firemen and educational expenses) we could stipulate that these services would not be cut. The cuts would come in the welfare and other programs where the free-loaders gather.

My thought is this: Make the real property tax just sufficient to pay the administrative (elected officials) plus a small surplus. All services such as law enforcement, personnel, firefighting and educational expenses paid from a sales tax source of revenue, with these three holding first priority for continuation. This way all who spent money would pay their fair share for services received, there would be NO FREE RIDES. All other services would be given a priority rating as to their importance or necessity. A sales tax limit could be set so as to prevent the bureaucrats from arbitrarily raising the sales tax just to keep their pet program alive.

The only things that should be exempt from sales tax should be groceries, prescription medicine, house rent and uniform type clothing (provided that was purchased through the employer). I do not support an income tax, it should be abolished completely. In the current system of taxation there are far too many loopholes for all types of business, leaving the burden, far too much, on those who cannot qualify for a loophole. The VAT type of taxation should not be adapted. The tax should be at the consumer level only. This way a manufacturing firm would be classified as a consumer. When he buys a new or replacement piece of equipment he would pay a sales tax. This way every consumer purchaser would pay their fair share of government expenses. Only the free-loaders would be hurt, they would have to go to work. Wouldn't that be tough?

Weight Watchers plan described

Dear Editor,
I recognize the courage and determination it took for Sandy Hildebrand to lose 105 pounds (your article of Sunday, May 30th in the "Lifestyle" section.) She looks slender and smart, and talks as if she plans to maintain her new image for a lifetime.

However I take issue with the statement in paragraph 7 where she states that she had tried Weight Watchers and that she never had enough to eat to keep from starving to death. This is simply not a true statement; and is not fair to a plan that has worked for millions of people, and billions of pounds have been lost from 1961 through the present. Not one person has "starved to death," but they are healthier and happier on a completely balanced and generous program.

Weight Watchers is a planned program of 1200 calories per day for women, 1400 for men. Skipping a meal is not allowed. A person MUST have, per day, 3 fruits, 2 servings milk, 2 to 3 breads (3 to 4 for men) at least 8 oz. of meat or other protein for noon and night meals, 3 fats and at least 2 servings of vegetables, but may have as many vegetables as one desires. Does this sound like a starvation plan? It is a healthy balanced program. Your doctor will verify this. I am not so sure the "Brand Name Low Carbohydrates plan is. One needs carbohydrates to supply energy so that protein can be used for cell growth and repair. Carbohydrates are also necessary to add fiber to the diet.

The diet obviously worked for Ms. Hildebrand, and more power to her. I only wanted to set the record straight about the most successful program in the world — "Weight Watchers" — We meet each Tuesday at 4:00 and 6:00 p.m. at Hillcrest Baptist Fellowship Hall.

Sincerely,
VIVIAN GRIFFITH

O'Hair petition a dead issue?

Dear Editor,
Concerning the letter last week in which Mrs. O'Hair allegedly had petitioned against all Religious programs, I was concerned. In checking into the matter I found, according to Congressman Stenholm, this is a dead issue.

In 1974, Jerry Landsman petitioned to have all the religious material removed from the airways not Madlyn Murray O'Hair. In 1975 the petition No. RM 2493 was denied. Since that time every other year it seems to crop up again that someone has petitioned again. This is incorrect. No other petition of this nature has been sought as of this time according to Mr. Stenholm's office.

As a minister of this community I am concerned about getting the good news out that Jesus saves. We definitely won't keep as much religious programs on the air as possible. We need to saturate our young people with as much of Jesus Christ as we can.

If people like Mrs. O'Hair can cause as much turmoil and confusion as she does, can you imagine what a Christian community could do if they were in unity to win souls for Christ?

Can we enjoy worldly pleasures

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know the Bible says we are to keep away from the evil pleasures of this world. Does that mean we can never enjoy some of the wholesome pleasures of life? —S.C.

DEAR S.C.: This world has been created by God; and, in spite of the fact that sin has left its foul mark on much of creation, the world still witnesses to God. Therefore, you can rejoice in the good things God has given us. The Biblical writers had an appreciation for the majesty and beauty of God's creation. Think of the words of the Psalmist, for instance: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork" (Psalms 19:1).

But this extends as well to the good things that man can create. The reason is because man was created in the image of God, and one of the signs of God's image in us is our ability to create — a reminder that God also created. Even a non-believing artist may be unknowingly witnessing to the fact that he is a creature of God; he is able to create because God has given him that ability and because he is created in the image of God. Some of the greatest music, greatest art and greatest literature has been created by Christians who used their abilities to serve God. In the Old Testament, highly skilled artisans were employed to make God's temple a place of beauty.

At the same time, the Bible warns us against placing the things of this world in the center of our lives. We can appreciate what is good, but we must always be on guard against letting them control our lives. Things — no matter how beautiful they are — can become idols. Pleasures which may be innocent in themselves can become enslaving masters. "Do not love the world or anything in the world... For everything in the world — the cravings of sinful man, the lust of his eyes and the boasting of what he has and does — comes not from the Father but from the world" (1 John 2:15-16).

Climber's charges dropped

DALLAS (AP) — The adventures of "Spider Dan" have ended — in Dallas at least. A county criminal court judge has dismissed charges against 26-year-old Dan Goodwin, a Chicago stunt man who climbed the 56-story First International Building in November. Goodwin, nicknamed "Spider Dan," had been scheduled to go on trial Monday, but Judge Robert Moss on Friday dismissed misdemeanor charges of criminal trespass. Goodwin's attorney, John Danish, said officials of First International Bancshares, who own the building, declined to prosecute Goodwin. Prosecutors filed a motion asking that the charges be dismissed. Danish said a conviction would have been difficult because Texas trespass laws do not address climbing the exterior of a building.

LBJ Library reopens

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Lyndon Baines Johnson Library and Museum, with double its original exhibition space, a new theater and expanded exhibits on the Vietnam War and the Great Society, was opened to the public Saturday. "No contemporary library or museum can remain static, so tonight we set our pen to the new chapter," Lady Bird Johnson told a black-tie outdoor gala Friday night.

1-year-old killed

HOUSTON (AP) — Police were holding a man Saturday in the slaying of a 1-year-old child who was bitten and burned in several places, a detective said. Brandon Harris was dead on arrival at a local hospital at 11:30 p.m. Friday night, homicide detective S.H. Kennedy said. The detective declined to speculate on the cause of the child's death, saying police were waiting for results of an autopsy. No charges had been filed against the 23-year-old man being held.

Pilot dies in crash

HOUSTON (AP) — A pilot was killed Saturday when he tried to land his single-engine plane in a rice field shortly after taking off from a private airstrip, officials said. William M. Clubb, 55, died when his plane hit a dike, tearing loose the wings and main gear of the Piper Cherokee, said Robert Kelly, a Houston air traffic controller.

Any cheers for Bill Heatly?

AUSTIN — In the final hours of the May special session, Rep. Bill Heatly, a Capitol legend by any standard, made a speech marking the close of his 28 years in the Texas Legislature. He received a standing ovation from his cohorts and visitors in the gallery, but that wasn't enough. "I observed with pride and humility the standing ovation," United Press International quoted Heatly as saying after the speech. "But I looked over at the press box, and not a damn one of them stood up." After 28 years, including 12 as powerful chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, the retired Democrat from Paducah exited with a Rodney Dangerfield routine. As far as the Capitol press is concerned, Heatly "Don't get no respect." That's kind of sad, especially for a tough veteran such as the man from Paducah.

Heatly should have asked himself a question before getting upset: Has he, in all his 28 years in the House, ever seen Capitol reporters stand up and cheer for anyone? THERE MAY have been a time or two back in the old days, but he hasn't seen such a thing in recent times, whether the speaker was a retiring legislator or a head of state. Reporters consider ourselves just what we call ourselves: reporters. Those in the House chamber during Heatly's speech were there for one purpose. Their job was to listen and report to the public what happened. Not to cheer for anyone. One of the hardest jobs for most reporters is maintaining impartiality. We are not merely human tape recorders who listen and report without feeling. All of us developed values influenced by parents, friends, teachers and preachers.

The best we can do is to resist letting our own prejudices and values color our reporting. The worst we can do is openly take sides on what we are covering. IF A DEMOCRAT is speaking, should reporters who consider themselves Democrats applaud while Republican reporters grimace? In the case of Heatly, the argument is harder to make. Here is a man who is leaving after 28 years of service to his district. He won't be introducing bills or leading floor fights that the press will be covering next year. Why not show him some respect and at least rise for him? If the reporters had risen, there would have been no great problems. They could have been recognizing his 28 years without indicating support for him or his politics.

But where should the line be drawn? At 28 years? Or 15? Or 10? Do we recognize only those who wielded great power, such as Heatly, or include those who never hurt anyone but never accomplished much either? If the reporters listening to Heatly's speech had felt free to express their feelings, probably some would have cheered Heatly as a tough and colorful character while others would have booed him as an abuser of power and privilege. It is better that they all listened and didn't express their feelings. They didn't indicate either respect or disrespect. They were only doing their job.

Replacement sighted for treasurer candidate

By JACK KEEVER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "Phone's ringing, things are happening," Gov. Bill Clements said in way of apology as he strolled into his Capitol news conference 15 minutes late. One thing that's happening is talk of the Republicans running Allen B. Clark Jr., a former Green Beret captain, for state treasurer in November. Clements said Friday he had talked to Clark, former special assistant to the governor, about replacing Millard Neptune but no decision would be made until the State Republican Executive Committee meets in Houston on June 16. Clark, contacted in Midland where he works for an oil exploration firm, said several people talked to him about running last fall. He referred callers to state GOP chairman Chet Upham in Mineral Wells. "I think the world of Allen. He's at the top of my list," said Upham. "I have been talking to various people, and Mr. Clark is one of them, but until I receive a letter from Mr. Neptune officially withdrawing, I will have no further comment. I'm hopeful we can have a news conference next week and release the information," said Upham. Clark quit Clements' staff to become deputy administrator of the Veterans Administration in Washington. But he left that job last year after 22 days. He said he became frustrated by bureaucratic infighting. In Vietnam Clark's legs were blown off above the knee by mortar fire in June 1967. If he replaces Neptune, Clark would become the second GOP substitute candidate in a statewide race. On Thursday, Upham introduced Fred Thornberry, a supervisor for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, as the GOP's replacement for Waller rice farmer Don Hebert for agriculture commissioner. The Democratic nominees are Jim Hightower for agriculture commissioner and Ann Richards for treasurer. Ms. Richards won the nomination when treasurer Warren G. Harding withdrew May 5 from Saturday's runoff. On Friday, Harding pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of official misconduct and was sentenced to one year probation. Hightower beat incumbent Reagan Brown in the May 1 primary. Clements ridiculed state Democratic chairman Bob Slagle's statement that Republican candidate substitutions were making a mockery of the Texas Election Code. "That's all nonsense. To sum it up in one word — it's nonsense," said Clements. "I don't think anyone ever took those two candidates" — Neptune and Hebert — "as serious candidates." Clements said Democrats reminded him of a "pig under a gate squealing. Why are they squealing? Because they're hurt." Clements also told the news conference he hoped to appoint a 15-member committee next week to study long-term solutions for crowded state prisons.

Recession hits congressmen

WASHINGTON — Rep. Kika de la Garza, who has risen from shoe shine boy to chairman of the House of Agriculture Committee, says he "very probably" will serve only one more term in Congress because he no longer can afford the high cost of living in the nation's capital. "Every month I open my checkbook and I see how much I'm spending," de la Garza said this week in an interview. "We've been living off our savings ... and I'm right at the end of the line now." The 18-year veteran of the House added: "I'm a poor guy ... People slap me on the back and say I'm doing a good job but when you look at your balance sheet, it's embarrassing, really." De la Garza, who said he considered not running this year because of financial pressures, is not alone. Many congressmen are saying that the congressional salary of $60,662.50 is not enough to live comfortably in inflation-plagued Washington. "This amount of money and living just in Texas would be fine," said de la Garza, who is married and has three children. The Texas congressman noted that he and his colleagues have to maintain residences in Washington and back home. They also are saddled with numerous other expenses such as paying for family trips to and from the district, he said. De la Garza last year received $9,000 in outside income from speeches but has no holdings or assets, according to his financial disclosure statement. He owns a home in Washington and a small townhouse in Texas that he purchased last year after he was forced to sell his more expensive Texas home. The 54-year-old congressman until now has refused to say whether he accepted a $75-a-day living expense deduction Congress passed for itself this year. But in the interview he said he took the deduction and severely criticized colleagues who opposed it. "It's very easy for a rich person to demagogue this money deal," de la Garza said. "I'm an attorney but I'm not allowed to go out as an attorney and make more than $15,000 a year (according to House rules). Yet a millionaire can acquire millions more through stocks and bonds which could be questionable deals." De la Garza, one of six Hispanic congressmen, is the second "poorest" member of the Texas delegation, according to financial disclosure statements. Fellow Hispanic Rep. Henry Gonzalez, who listed only $472 in outside income in his financial disclosure statement, is first. But Gonzalez, who has served 11 terms in Congress, says he does not plan to leave Washington. "If someone has the idea that he's going to get rich up here, he's in the wrong business," says Gonzalez, D-San Antonio. Gonzalez says he has attempted to maintain a frugal existence in Washington. For example, he has not bought a home here and lives in a small apartment near his office. He agrees with de la Garza that a congressman's life is sometimes barely worth living. "But early in my career I found myself hooked on it (politics)," Gonzalez says. "I knew what I bargained for."

Braniff officials may be questioned

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The creditors of grounded Braniff International Corp. have asked a Fort Worth federal bankruptcy judge's permission to question present and former officers of Braniff to determine the reasons for the airline's collapse. Attorneys Arthur I. Ungerman of Dallas and Will B. Sandler of New York City filed the request Friday on behalf of a creditors committee, which was appointed by Bankruptcy Trustee Scott Bush. Judge John Flowers did not rule on the request immediately. Ungerman and Sandler said the questioning also would help determine whether Braniff had additional assets that could be used to pay creditors and help the airline resume operations. Braniff suspended all foreign and domestic flights May 12 and filed for protection from its creditors in federal bankruptcy court the next day. The attorneys for the creditors also asked permission to question a Federal Aviation Administration official familiar with the reassignment of Braniff's landing slots at airports nationwide.

They have contended that the reassignment of the landing rights violated an order by Flowers that prohibited any transfer of Braniff's assets without his approval. The lawyers also said they want to question an executive of Pan American World Airways involved in financial negotiations with Braniff.

POOCH SLEUTH — Cheryl Griffin poses with a dog she recovered from a Garland, Texas city pound for one of her clients. Mrs. Griffin is a pet detective. She charges $21 for two weeks of service and each morning drops by to check on new arrivals at the animal shelters in Dallas, Garland, Mesquite, Carrollton, Plano, Richardson, Farmers Branch, and the SPCA keeping an eye peeled for fugitive Fidos. For a few dollars more, she will post 10 "wanted" posters in the neighborhood where the pet was lost.

Gone Dogs

Animal lover tracks down canines who've strayed

By BRAD BAILEY
Dallas Morning News
GARLAND, Texas (AP) — "The Case of the Chinese Pug" was solved. Cheryl Griffin got poochie pardoned.
She's a pet detective. She pounds the pound beat.
Dogging gone dogs is the game. Pet Trace is the name.
The big-eyed canine behind the bars had been wearing that harried, desperate look you see on pound-bound hounds cooling their paws in the dog catcher's truck.
The scared, scar-eared, flat-nosed Chinese pug was booked for that last long walk past the cages and down the hall to a date with destiny in the death chamber.
It was a walk he never took.
Mrs. Griffin made a few phone calls and was able to spring him.
The dog was reunited with its owner.
Case closed. Mrs. Griffin was just doing her job.
But in solving "The Case of the Chinese Pug," the Garland gumshoe with the heart of gold had more than money as a motive.

The dog reminded the skip-tracer of another face in another place: Mitzi's.
The mournful brown eyes were like Mitzi's. Mitzi jumped the Griffin's fence. A faceless hit-and-run driver plowed her down.
"The only thing good about her," the detective recalled, "was that she loved me."
Death away from home shouldn't happen to a dog — not even an ill-tempered cross between a Chinese pug and a poodle, such as Mitzi.
Mrs. Griffin, moved after Mitzi's death, began Pet Trace in March on the theory that even the people who are suckers for animals don't have time to pound the pavement going to all the animal shelters looking for their strayed pets.
So Mrs. Griffin does the legwork for them.
She charges $21 for two weeks of service and each morning drops by to chew the fat in animal shelters in Dallas, Garland, Mesquite, Carrollton, Plano, Richardson, Farmers Branch, the SPCA and Operation Kindness — keeping an eye peeled for fugitive Fidos in the kennel lineups.
For a few dollars more, she posts 10 "wanted" posters in the neighborhood where the escapee last was seen.

She also throws in a freebie: Anyone who takes in a stray can call her and add the dog to her list on the chance the owner will call.
But the job isn't all Gravy Train.
Take the case of Suga.
Suga's owner called again and again, each time so grieved she could whimper only, "My dog, my dog," and wait for Mrs. Griffin to ask questions.
After Mrs. Griffin had hounded the pounds diligently for three weeks, Suga's veterinarian said the ailing dog probably had done the Long Goodbye, bowwowing out after a week because it wasn't getting its medication.
"Those kind of things really hurt," Mrs. Griffin said. "Every dog should die of old age. That's why I try to find them. It's sad when they end up like Mitzi or Suga."
There are 1 million stray dog stories in the Mongrel City. These have been some of them.

Highway contractor sues Texas Highway Commission

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Lubbock highway contractor convicted of bid-rigging has sued the Texas Highway Commission to stop the agency from enforcing the suspension of his company's bidding privileges on state highway projects.
In a federal court suit, Stafford Construction Co. says its right to due process was violated by the commission's May 27 suspension.
The company was convicted of bid-rigging in federal court in Austin after pleading no contest March 15 to violating federal antitrust laws. The firm also agreed to pay damages to the state in a related civil action.
As part of its agreement with federal prosecutors and state antitrust lawyers, Stafford provided information on other companies under scrutiny in the federal-state investigation.
In spite of its cooperation, the company still was suspended.

Mother convicted in rape case

DALLAS (AP) — A woman convicted of helping her ex-husband rape her 12-year-old daughter and forcing the girl to pose nude for more than 1,000 photographs has been sentenced to 99 years in prison.
Jurors recommended the sentence Friday for Karen Sue Tallant, 39. She was convicted Thursday on an aggravated rape charge.
Defense attorney Julie Hill argued during the two-day trial that her client was innocent because the girl and Trevor Tallant, 42, were married at the time of the rape.
Tallant was convicted in April of aggravated rape of a child, sentenced to life in prison and fined $10,000.
The girl said she confided in her natural father Jan. 23 after returning from Mexico, where her mother divorced Tallant and she married him.
Mrs. Tallant's daughter testified that her mother and stepfather warned her the Mafia would kill her if she did not have sex with Tallant.

Upon their return from Mexico, the girl said she begged her mother to "make him stop," but Mrs. Tallant instructed her to have sex with Tallant.
"She told me to go in there," the girl said, referring to the bedroom where Tallant raped her Jan. 22.
The girl said her mother knew Tallant was sexually abusing her.
"I mean she had to have known," she said. "She put makeup on me for pictures."
Prosecutors argued the marriage was meaningless because the girl did not understand she was marrying Tallant when she signed the marriage license.
"All she knew was she signed a piece of paper," said Assistant District Attorney Andy Anderson. "She didn't know if she was signing up to win a trip to the Bahamas or what she was doing."
But Ms. Hill contended that "sexual intercourse with one's own wife is not rape."

Problems develop

Arts, crafts festival draws record entries

The Sixth Annual Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival, to be held October 16th & 17th, in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, is drawing a record number of entries.

He said the number of requests for additional tables and electrical outlets had also increased dramatically during the year and that the festival committee and coliseum officials would be hard pressed to meet all of the requests.

Another problem seems to center around the growing number of entries from outside Big Spring and Texas Prather said. Since these exhibitors will be needing motel rooms, they need to receive confirmation of their booth spaces several months prior to the October festival, he said.

Prather said all of these new problems could easily be worked out during the months prior to the festival if exhibitors would be a little more explicit in their requests. "We often have to write a potential exhibitor two or three times to see what they want. This usually results from the amount of their check and the requests on their entry forms being at odds with one another."

He said the festival committee would be able to provide a more detailed outlet to the coliseum officials if they knew the needs of the individual exhibitors prior to their arrival at the coliseum in October.

CHAINED TOGETHER — A group of "independent feminists" chained themselves together outside the Illinois Senate Thursday to show support for the ratification of the ERA. The women chanted and held their hands in the shape of a womb to symbolize womanhood, they said. A number of pro-ERA groups were planning marches today.

ERA supporters to march on capitols despite defeat

By The Associated Press

Equal Rights Amendment supporters, still hopeful despite a crucial legislative setback in North Carolina, plan rallies today in four state capitols to spur ratification by the June 30 deadline.

The North Carolina Senate shelved the amendment Friday, and opponents said the action spelled defeat for the ERA in the state and nation. Ratification by three more states — for a total of 38 — is needed by the end of the month to make the amendment banning sex discrimination part of the U.S. Constitution. Five states have rescinded ratification, but their actions are under review by the U.S. Supreme Court.

North Carolina was among the states where ratification was believed to be most likely. The other states — Illinois, Florida and Oklahoma — have not yet voted on the measure this year. Rallies in the capitols of all four were planned today.

Gov. Bob Graham of Florida has called a special session of the legislature beginning June 21 to consider the ERA and some other measures. But Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh has said he would consider a special session only if his state was the last needed to ratify the ERA.

In Illinois, where seven women have been fasting for 19 days in support of the ERA, a critical procedural vote on the amendment has been delayed indefinitely because a key senator said he would not vote until the demonstrators ended their fast.

The vote was on changing a rule requiring a three-fifths majority to pass the ERA. The change would require only a simple majority.

Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson, an ERA supporter, also called the tactics "counterproductive."

RELEASED FROM CHINA — Lisa Wichser, of Fishers, Ind., hugs her sister-in-law Susan Wichser at Indianapolis International Airport Friday night one day after she was ejected from China for allegedly spying and stealing state secrets.

Charges related to marriage plans?

American teacher ousted from China describes ordeal

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO
Associated Press Writer

FISHERS, Ind. (AP) — An American teacher accused of spying and ousted from China said Saturday a predawn knock on her door began a "nightmare" in a cement room where she was isolated and asked to write a confession.

Lisa Wichser, 28, told reporters at the Lion's Club near her parents' home here Saturday that she does not fully understand the charges against her in China, but feels they may be related to her intention to marry Yi Xigong, 31, a Chinese economics student.

Her eyes filled with tears as she spoke of her fiance. "I'm not going to give up," she said. "I love him. He loves me. I don't see why I shouldn't keep trying."

She said she would like to return to China to study and marry Yi.

"I called some friends in China this morning who said they heard through the grapevine that he had been arrested," she said.

"I am a friend of the Chinese," she said. "If I violated a Chinese law, it was because I didn't know that it was illegal."

Ms. Wichser said her week-long detention, which ended Thursday with a request that she leave China within 48 hours, had been "a nightmare, something I don't understand."

She said she was awakened around 1:30 a.m. May 28 by a phone call from an attendant in the Peking hotel where she lived. She said she was told there was an urgent cable from her family.

A few minutes later, she said, she answered a knock on her door and found five or six uniformed members of the Chinese Public Security Bureau accompanied by the bright lights of several TV cameras.

The English and economics teacher said she was taken around 5:30 a.m. to a detention center in Peking and placed in a cement room with a barred window and steel door. She said the Chinese repeatedly denied her requests to contact U.S. Embassy officials or friends, and would not give her a paper and pencil to keep a diary.

"They told me I was to spend my resting moments contemplating my crimes," she said. "It was like a bad dream or a bad joke."

Ms. Wichser said she was treated well in the detention center, where she spent three days in solitary. When she complained of nausea and asked for only liquid foods, the Chinese complied.

Q. I thought I was a fairly well informed person, but mortgage financing has me stopped. Are ARM, SAM, PAM and PLAM legitimate financing arrangements?

A. Yes, ARM stands for Adjustable Rate Mortgage, which has interest rate adjustments throughout the life of the loan. SAM, or Shared Appreciation Mortgage, is designed so the lender contracts to receive 50% of the appreciated value of real property in exchange for offering an interest rate normally 50% below current market rates. PLAM is a Price Level Adjusted Mortgage involving a periodically adjusted rate tied to percentage change in a selected price index. FLIP is an arrangement which allows lower payments the first three to five years accomplished by either a pledged savings account or negative amortization.

Alaska's share-the-wealth may have publicity backlash

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A new plan to pay $1,000 in state oil money to every man, woman and child who has lived in Alaska for at least six months could spur "very adverse publicity" in less fortunate states, says Gov. Jay Hammond.

"That's the negative down side" of trying to share Alaska's oil wealth with its residents, Hammond said Friday after the Legislature passed a plan that could put the payments into the pockets of Alaskans this summer.

The share-the-wealth plan was approved Thursday at the urging of Hammond, who argued that if Alaska's 419,600 residents have a personal stake in the state's wealth, they will pay closer attention to how it is invested.

But Hammond said there will be an "enormous obligation" for state officials to explain the program to other Americans, because people in depressed areas of the country may feel Alaskans are flaunting their state's wealth.

State Sen. Bill Ray, who voted against the plan, also said he is worried about a backlash. "Alaska's image is that we're a bunch of spendthrift, blue-eyed Arabs," he said.

And state Sen. Tim Kelly said, "I think every American in the lower 48 who is in a depressed zone or a high-unemployment zone is going to resent Alaska's wealth and put tremendous pressure on their congressmen to take that wealth from the state."

Bid to delay Comanche Peak hearing denied

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas-based citizens group was unsuccessful in its efforts to postpone the licensing hearing for the Comanche Peak nuclear plant and group members say they may not have enough time to adequately prepare questions on the plant's construction practices.

The Citizens Association for Sound Energy, an intervenor in the licensing hearing by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, had asked that the hearing be postponed until Aug. 9.

That request was denied by the appeal panel of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board on Friday, and the hearing is scheduled to resume as planned Monday in Fort Worth.

The hearing began in December, but recessed after a week to allow intervenors to request documents.

Juanita Ellis, a spokeswoman for the citizens group, said the group will "just have to get together what documents we can and do the best we can."

"It's going to be difficult," she said, "especially since the NRC says it does not plan to introduce its inspection reports into evidence."

In another development Friday, officials at the NRC regional office in Fort Worth say they now assume that cracks in a concrete wall around the first nuclear reactor at the plant extend through the entire 7-foot wall.

NRC officials said Thursday that records from Texas Utilities Co., which through its subsidiaries owns 88 percent of Comanche Peak, indicated the cracks were only 1 1/2 inches deep.

Ex-Herald reporter honored at convention

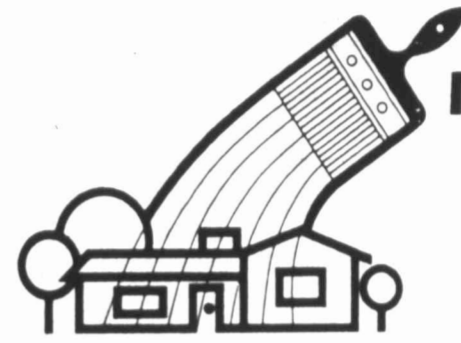

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Marj Carpenter, former Big Spring Herald reporter and national news director of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. was among a group of women from 40 states honored as Women of Achievement in journalism. The state winners were presented at the convention of the National Federation of Press Women being held here. Mrs. Carpenter represented the state of Georgia.

She also won another national first place in writing for a series of columns called "Back in the Corner by Marj" which was printed in a newsletter called "Centerpieces" distributed at the national headquarters of the church. Marj won a national first in 1977 for a news story on the Cosden Refinery fire which was printed in the Big Spring Herald.

Spring City Theater begins audition dates

Audition dates for the fourth annual summer melodrama, sponsored by Spring City Theater, have been slated for 7:30 p.m., Monday and Tuesday at the amphitheater in Comanche Trail Park, according to Cecelia McKenzie, president of SCT.

Mrs. McKenzie urged all area residents interested in theater to come to the amphitheater Monday and Tuesday evenings to vye for a part in the production.

"We need villains, heroes, heroines, and a variety of odd and crazy characters," Mrs. McKenzie said.

"No preparation is necessary to try out," she added. "We need people whose voice will project well, and who have some spare time during their evenings."

Mrs. McKenzie is also looking for a house manager, costumer, crew members, a make-up artist, and a pianist. This year's melodrama will be produced July 22, 23, and 24 in the amphitheater. Rehearsals will be in the evening from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

"We're sure to have fun," Mrs. McKenzie said, urging area residents to come to try-outs.

'Sleeping John Doe'

Unidentified man remains in coma in Houston hospital

BY PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — The "Sleeping John Doe" of St. Joseph's Hospital here continues to sleep, still deep in a coma and still unidentified.
Hospital spokesman Ann Broderick said more than 300 people have inquired about the slightly built young man since he was brought to the hospital April 8, but "all have proven negative."
"We've exhausted just about all the possibilities we can think of and still don't have him identified," said Ms. Broderick.
Doctors say the man appears to be in his 20s. He is slightly built, weighs about 160 pounds and is about 5-foot-10. He has brown eyes and hair and had a mustache and long hair when first brought to the hospital.
"John Doe" suffered multiple fractures and severe head injuries when he was hit by an 18-wheel truck while attempting to walk across a freeway on Houston's east-side.
Witnesses said he used a telephone at a service station just before the accident and commented to an attendant that he was working for a group of rock musicians. No group has been found.
Ms. Broderick said the man had no identification and that his pockets contained only a single piece of paper. Police called a telephone number on the paper and discovered it was a tire dealership. No one there knew anything about the John Doe.
Hospital officials sent the man's fingerprints to the police and the FBI, but the prints have not been identified. Ms. Broderick said this means the man has no police record and has not been in the military or worked for the federal government.

A story and an artist's sketch distributed last month by The Associated Press triggered scores of phone calls and letters, said Ms. Broderick, but nobody could identify the man.
"People called with real descriptive information, but didn't help," said Martha Priest, a hospital social worker. "This guy doesn't have any marks or scars or tattoos."
"That's been part of the problem," said Ms. Broderick. "He could pass for anybody's brother or cousin."
About 15 people have visited the hospital to see the man in person.
The most bizarre search was triggered by a doctor who heard on television that a member of a rock band was missing. Ms. Priest called the Hollywood headquarters of the band, but the missing member later was located in Holland.
Ms. Broderick said the man is in the hospital's neurological intermediate care unit and has become slightly more alert in the last month. Saturday, he was able to swallow some ice cream for the first time. She said he now moves his head occasionally and has opened his eyes slightly for brief moments. But he is still unresponsive.
Cost to the hospital of the man's care has already exceeded $67,000 and is increasing by about $800 a day. There's no end in sight.

Attorney general's finances investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General William French Smith is the subject of two inquiries by his own Justice Department, including one to see whether a special prosecutor should investigate his finances, department sources say.
The department's criminal division, aided by the FBI, is conducting a preliminary inquiry under the special prosecutor law into Smith's acceptance of a $50,000 severance payment from Earle M. Jorgensen Co., a California steel firm, the sources said Friday night.
In addition, the department's internal investigators are looking into whether Smith's acceptance of the payment and his investment in two oil and gas drilling tax shelters violated any department regulations, the sources said. That inquiry was triggered by a request from House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J.

Last Friday, after two weeks of controversy, Smith returned the $50,000 payment to Jorgensen and said he would forego any federal income tax deductions beyond his actual cash investment in the drilling ventures.
At that time, Smith said, "Although I earnestly believe that none of these actions is required by propriety or law, public service often invites the use of an even stricter standard. I intend to apply the strictest of standards."

Asked to confirm the existence of the two inquiries, Justice Department spokesman Tom DeCair replied, "No comment."
The sources, who declined to be identified, said an anonymous letter triggered the special-prosecutor inquiry about two weeks ago without the knowledge of Smith and his closest associates in the department.
The department will have 90 days in which to determine whether there is any serious reason to believe that the severance payment violated a federal criminal law. It is a misdemeanor to give any federal official, or for any federal official to receive, a supplement to his salary.

Sophia Loren released from jail

ROME (AP) — A radiant Sophia Loren, released from jail Saturday after serving 17 "interminable" days of a 30-day sentence for tax evasion, embraced her mother and said returning to Italy was the right decision.
Miss Loren smiled and waved to reporters as she left the women's prison in Caserta, 20 miles north of Naples, at dawn and climbed into a silver Mercedes. She rode with her lawyer, Vincenzo Sepe, to her mother's apartment in Rome.
"When you are inside four walls, surrounded by bars and with the door locked, it is an experience you cannot forget, but it was also enriching," Miss Loren told the state-owned RAI radio station outside her mother's home.
"However, I did the right thing, because I wanted to return to Italy, to return to my roots, to hug my mother and see all my friends."

Miss Loren was released after Judge Cinzia Simonelli signed an order granting her a leave, equivalent to a reduction of sentence. Under Italian law, prisoners sentenced to terms of less than six months are eligible for leaves of up to 45 days.

The Italian news agency ANSA said the court order requires Miss Loren to stay inside her mother's apartment between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. every day until her sentence ends June 19.
The 47-year-old Academy Award-winning actress was jailed May 19 when she returned to Italy after a two-year absence.

Texas World Music Festival 82

Joan Jett flying high into Texas

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Staff Writer

The Texas Jam people have a gift for good timing. Just look back to last year when REO Speedwagon, riding the bandwagon on the success of their "High Infidelity" album, rolled into Houston's Astrodome to headline the Fourth Annual Texas World Music Festival.

This year, the Jam features ultra-popular Journey, a group that spun almost a half dozen hit singles off their release "Escape." But that's not all. Many folks are buying Jam tickets just to see and hear Joan Jett and the Blackhearts, probably the top new artists of the year.

Texas Jam tickets are available in Abilene at Hastings Books and Record and Record Town in the Mall of Abilene; in Midland, at Hendless Horizon Records and Tapes; and in Odessa, at Flipside Record and Endless Horizon Records and Tapes.

Although Joan has been jetting around the music scene since the early 1970's, her career started again when she formed the Blackhearts in 1980. Their first album, "Bad Reputation," sold very well and became a "Record World" top seller.

Then came along "I Love Rock-n-Roll," whose title cut has become an unofficial theme song for the resurgence in rock music since the death of disco. Not only did the single peak in the No. 1 position for weeks, but the entire album became the public's top purchase at the record store.

You can bet the work made Joan and her friends a lot of money and her concert dates were sell-outs. The group has advanced from small, one-night gigs to headline appearances and shows with the biggies, such as the Jam.

The remake of "Crimson and Clover" is getting airplay now and listeners of Joan Jett run the entire album through. There's not a lapse on either side.

JJ and the Blackhearts are providing the hype for this year's Jam as Van Halen did several years back for Boston and Heart. Perhaps, as Van Halen did in their last appearance, Joan Jett will bring a musical high that Journey and the other groups will have to work hard to bring down the crowd.

Journey has released a string of solid albums that landed several Top 10 singles on the charts. Then along came "Escape" and the group's stature among the public rose to higher levels.

The album has everything, from the rockers "Don't Stop Believing" and "Dead or Alive" to the more mellow tunes "Who's Crying Now" and "Open Arms."

All those will be performed along with such classics as "Anyway You Want It," "Just the Same Way," and "Lovin' Touchin', Squeezin'."

Another artist with new material tingling the public's earlobes now is Sammy Hagar. His latest work is called "Standing Hampton" and a variety of cuts have gained extensive FM play. Never an AM performer, Hagar has gained a reputation for his concert performances and quick-fingered guitar work.

Hagar is a Jam veteran, appearing in the Boston-Heart Jam three summers ago. Comparing his stage show with an album title, the audience can expect a "Nine on a Scale of 10."

Santana and Point Blank, both groups with loyal followings, complete Saturday's field in Dallas. Santana is probably the best known group of the lineup, certainly around the longest time. The Jam will be nothing new for Carlos Santana and his boys, — they were there at the famous Woodstock show that remains the pacesetter in outdoor concert fetes.

While Journey, Joan Jett and Sammy Hagar will rock the Jam with pure musical sounds, Santana will cause the audience to sit back and take a close listen. There's too much good things going on on stage to miss. Rhythm is a clincher and a little jazz makes Santana will be a breath of fresh air for a long afternoon in the sun.

Things will lead off with Point Blank and that's a pretty good start. While the group hasn't achieved worldwide success, the band will be a favorite among the Jam crowd as it plays straight-ahead rock-n-roll. The group has had one single, "Nicole," but is best known for its many, many stops around the state.

Gettin' ready for the Jam

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Staff Writer

So you've bought your Texas Jam tickets and now you're ready to head down the highway to Big D for the annual summer rock-n-roll superfest.

But you haven't been to a Jam Before? Better pay attention to a few bits of information that might save you and your party from some hassle once you find a parking place.

The Jam begins at 2 p.m. But don't let that fool you. Gates open at 11 a.m. and if it's a good seat you want, better get there plenty early. That includes getting a safe and convenient parking place. As the space gets tighter, the prices for a place to abandon your car for a day go up.

Because it's a day-long adventure, be well-prepared so your body doesn't burn out before the big-name groups hit the stage in the evening.

Try getting to bed early the night before. You don't want to get a great seat and be having a good time, only to fall asleep before Journey highlights the rock-n-roll agenda. Eat something before you go in, too. There will be plenty of food and cool drinks but the prices are pretty steep and the lines are usually long. Don't be surprised to head off for a hot dog at the beginning of Sammy Hagar's set only to spurt on some mustard as he's strumming his last few chords.

You can't take anything in with you. No food, beverages, coolers, containers of ANY kind, signs, banner, weapons (of course), umbrellas, motion picture cameras or recording devices. It is ill-advised to try sneaking them in because if you're caught at the gate (and they will be searching EVERYBODY), you'll have to go back to your car and put the stuff up. Or just discard it on the spot. Too many folks have learned the hard way in concerts past.

There isn't usually much hassle from the cops. Yes, there will be uniformed officers around the entrances and Pace Concerts has hired 350 T-shirted security people for inside work. This means, the audience's safety will be insured at the least possible visibility. If you're planning to do something illegal, beware. This isn't an anything-goes event.

Reserve seat ticket holders in sections 4-10 should enter the Cotton Bowl through Gate 2. All ticket holders in sections 19-25 should go through Gate 7. Remember this stuff.

Now it's usually hot in Texas at this time of year. Packing 80,000 something people into one area makes things hotter and the music should add even more steam to things. Don't come out dressed for the swimming pool. Bring clothes to cover up with (hats, shirts and shoes). Drink plenty of liquids to insure against dehydration. That doesn't mean beer and booze, either.

Genesis Emergency Services, Inc., will be on call to provide assistance. Everybody has a good time with their neighbors at the Jam so if a friend or new acquaintance gets a little sick, help them out by calling for help.

There will be first aid stations, ambulances available and an on-location hospital. This is not to say these facilities are necessary — they won't be if people use their heads in having a good time.

Because of the extensive preparations by the people that put the Jams on for five summers now, there have been very few problems. Violence is almost nonexistent, a major reason being the gate-searches keep out the things that hurt people.

Journey is headlining the event with Joan Jett and the Blackhearts, Santana, Sammy Hagar and Point Blank bringing the music. A special attraction to the day — the Jam always has an ace up its sleeve — are two giant video screens that will show the Journey set above the stage. It's in color and should be spectacular.

Rough weather hurts crops

CRANE DANCE — International Crane Foundation director George Archibald performs a mating dance with Tex, the only whooping crane at the foundation. Tex' first chick hatched Tuesday night at the Barboo, Wis. research center. Staffers named the chick Gee Whiz. Archibald had to perform the mating dance with Tex several times a day this spring to encourage her to create an egg. He says he has had to take a lot of good-natured ribbing for his parental attitude toward the extremely rare bird.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Heavy rains, hail and high winds continued to assault crops over parts of Texas the past week, causing widespread damage in some areas.

Weather damage to crops was particularly severe in the Rolling Plains and in the Rio Grande Valley, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

From 50 to 75 percent of the wheat crop in Hall county was lost to hail, and wheat also was severely damaged in Haskell County. Wet weather also has delayed wheat harvesting in many areas and has caused heavy weed infestations that can make harvesting difficult. As a result, the Environmental Protection Agency has granted a crisis exemption to sodium chlorate as a harvest-aid chemical for wheat, said Pfannstiel.

Wheat harvesting is nearing completion in the Coastal Bend and is near the half-way point in Southwest Texas, where yields are running about 70 percent of last year due to adverse weather. Harvesting also is active in central areas and has started in the Rolling Plains.

Considerable cotton, grain sorghum, melons and vegetables were lost to heavy rains in the Rio Grande Valley last week, reported Pfannstiel.

Farmers in northeastern areas as well as in the South Plains are replanting cotton lost to heavy rains and hail. Cotton planting also is active in the Panhandle, Trans-Pecos area, Rolling Plains and West Central Texas as field and weather conditions permit.

Grain sorghum planting continues in the High Plains.

First hay cuttings are producing good yields in coastal and eastern areas, and alfalfa yields remain good over western parts of the state, said Pfannstiel.

Livestock and grazing conditions are excellent in most areas due to recent rains.

The state's peach crop continues fair to good, with early varieties being harvested.

A short pecan crop is in the making, with spraying under way for pecan nut casebearers in many parts of Texas, said Pfannstiel.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Scattered rains have benefitted wheat but accompanying hail has damaged much of the crop. Some cotton will have to be replanted; first plantings remain active. Grain sorghum planting is under way. Corn is off to a good start and sugar beets, onions and potatoes look good. Ranges look good where rains fell.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton losses to heavy rains and hail have been extensive in some counties. Cotton planting and replanting are active, and grain sorghum planting continues. Some cotton is up to good stands. Vegetables, sugar beets and irrigated wheat continue to look good. Range conditions are responding to recent rains.

ROLLING PLAINS: Hail has wiped out 50 to 75 percent of the wheat in Hall County and also has done extensive damage to wheat in Haskell County. Some cotton is coming up but most of the crop remains to be planted. Wet fields have delayed cotton planting as well as wheat harvesting. Weeds are heavy in many wheat fields. Livestock are in excellent condition, with prices strong.

NORTH CENTRAL: Wheat needs hot, dry weather to mature. Other crops also need open weather. Farmers will plant peanuts as soon as fields dry. Pasture grasses are making good growth and livestock are in excellent shape. Stock tanks are full.

NORTHEAST: Flooding along river bottoms has damaged crops and hay fields. Most crops are in poor shape due to extensive wet weather; a lot of cotton will be replanted. First cuttings of hay are being harvested where possible. Early peaches are about ready to harvest. Pecan growers are spraying for casebearers.

FAR WEST: Cotton planting is active and the wheat harvest has started. Some alfalfa harvesting continues, with good yields. Early vegetables are about ready to harvest, and peach and pecan crops are developing well. Pecan growers are spraying for casebearers. Sheep shearing and some drenching for stomach worms continues.

WEST CENTRAL: Wet fields are delaying cotton and peanut planting. Wheat is turning color and harvesting will start soon. Early peaches continue to move to market in Gillespie County. Pecan growers are spraying for casebearers. Pastures and ranges are improving rapidly due to recent rains.

CENTRAL: Wet weather is delaying peanut planting and hay harvesting. All crops need open weather; aphids are heavy in some corn. The peach crop is light, with some early harvesting. A fair pecan crop is in the making, with growers about through spraying for casebearers. Grazing conditions are excellent.

SOUTHWEST: Wheat harvesting is under way; farmers are using sodium chlorate as a harvest-aid chemical to kill weeds which are heavy due to recent rains. Wheat yields are running about 70 percent of last year due to adverse weather. Corn is tasseling and grain sorghum is heading. Onion harvesting is in full swing but prices are depressed. Livestock and grazing conditions are excellent.

SOUTH: Heavy rains caused extensive damage to cotton, grain sorghum, melons and vegetables in the Rio Grande Valley. About 40 percent of the cantaloupe crop and 60 percent of the tomatoes were lost. Citrus is making good progress. Grazing conditions are good over most of the area.

New financial tests for grain elevators set

By BOB FICK

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is imposing a more stringent financial test on thousands of grain elevator operators in an effort to insulate American farmers from the financial disruption created by bankruptcies.

"It doesn't by any stretch of the imagination eliminate bankruptcies," acknowledged James Springfield of the Agricultural Marketing Service. "But it will help us better identify ones who appear to be in trouble."

The new standards, announced Wednesday, take effect next month, requiring most major grain storage operators to increase their minimum assets and submit annual financial statements subject to independent audits.

Those statements, he said, could be used by the government to withdraw storage approval from an elevator facing insolvency before it closes, thereby effectively warning farmers to move their grain to another facility.

Covered by the standards will be the 2,000 federally licensed warehouse operators and some 4,500 nonlicensed operators that have contracts to store government-owned commodities or commodities under federal price support loans.

Those operators control 85 percent of the nation's off-farm storage capacity.

The new requirements were recommended last year by a special USDA task force on grain elevator bankruptcies. The task force was organized in response to an elevator insolvency two years ago that led to the recent jailing of Missouri farmer Wayne Cryts.

Cryts focused public attention on the financial problems of the elevator industry 15 months ago when he and hundreds of other farmers defied a federal judge's order and stormed a bankrupt warehouse to recover 31,000 bushels of soybeans he claimed were his. The soybeans were under government loan at the time the elevator was closed.

Ultimately, he sold the crop, but the government has refused to accept repayment of the loan. Cryts was jailed this spring for a month after being cited for contempt for refusing to disclose the names of those who helped him recover the soybeans.

A number of farm-state senators and House members are pushing legislation to insure farmers quick repossession of stored crops if an elevator goes bankrupt. But no final action has been taken despite warnings that the depressed farm economy could prompt the bankruptcies of hundreds of

Show lamb training slated Monday

Youngsters and parents involved in the junior 4-H and FFA show lamb programs in the county will have the opportunity to participate in a training meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Reddy Room of Texas Electric in Big Spring.

The program will be presented by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Jack Groff, a sheep specialist from Kerrville.

storage facilities. The new standards require warehouse operators to have minimum net assets equal to 20 cents for every bushel of storage capacity with the absolute minimum raised from $10,000 to $25,000. The financial disclosure, which could be required more than once a year if circumstances warrant, must include a balance sheet and statements of profit and loss, retained earnings and changes in financial position.

Selection, feeding and management of the show lamb will be the chief topics of discussion, but the 1983 Howard County Junior Livestock Show will be discussed as well according to County Extension Agent Don Richardson.

All youngsters and their parents who plan to exhibit lambs at the show are invited to attend this program.

Foreign investors buying Texas farmlands

By The Associated Press
Texas farmland has been selling at inflated prices recently because foreign investors are buying as a hedge against deflating currencies, agriculture officials say.

Investors from Mexico, Germany, the African nation of Namibia, the Cayman Islands and the Middle East have been keeping land prices high at a time when weak farm markets should be driving the price of farmland down, said Dick Whittington of the USDA Soil and Conservation Service in Hidalgo County.

"Land here that is worth $1,800 to $2,500 is selling on the average for $4,000 and $5,000 an acre. This is definitely having an effect on the small farmers who are trying to buy land," Whittington said.

Foreign buyers have purchased 14.7 percent of the acreage in the lush South Texas Rio Grande Valley, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports.

Some investors channel their purchases through such countries as the Netherlands Antilles and Lichtenstein because of tax advantages.

More farmland in Texas is being sold to investors from the Netherlands Antilles than any other foreign nation — 163,615 acres, twice the land area of the island nation.

The USDA reports that foreign corporations and individuals account for only .6 percent — or 800,000 acres — of all the farmland in the state, and 1 percent of all farmland nationally.

State Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-

Rockdale, said he believes the percentage of acres owned by foreign investors is much higher, perhaps as high as 12 to 15 percent of all Texas farmlands.

TO: Southwest Cotton Growers

Many growers, because of lack of moisture, tight money, and the late season, were not able to get their weed control chemicals down like they wanted to this spring. Chances are some growers will pay the price this fall — the price in a problem harvest and grassy bales; problems no one needs at today's cotton prices.

If you didn't get your herbicide down this spring or banded your chemical, you ought to consider the new TREFLAN® "Culti-Save" option.

A new Texas state registration for TREFLAN® now allows you to protect your investment and your crop from troublesome summer weeds and grasses.

You can now apply TREFLAN® broadcast (either by air or ground-rig) to cotton past the four true leaf stage of development and after final bed preparation. One pass with sweep type or Illiston rolling cultivator can be used for incorporation.

This new clearance has been obtained to help southwestern growers insure the kind of weed control that only TREFLAN® can offer.

See your chemical supplier for more information about the new "Culti-Save" program for TREFLAN®.

Hurricane threat strong this year, forecasters warn

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The birth of the season's first hurricane comes amid warnings by weather experts that the danger from the giant storms is growing and last year's good luck isn't likely to hold.

Alberto officially became a hurricane Thursday in the Gulf of Mexico, when its winds topped 74 miles per hour. By Friday, however, its winds had slowed and it was reduced to tropical storm status.

The United States got through 1981 without a hurricane coming ashore, an unusual year not likely to be repeated.

Only twice in this century — 1904-1905 and 1930-1931 — have there been two hurricane-free years in a row, according to records at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

On the other hand, six hurricanes struck this country in the peak year of 1916, and there have been 132 in this century.

The nation's deadliest hurricane occurred in 1900, killing 6,000 Americans in Galveston, Texas.

One of the most damaging, with destruction estimated at $2.3 billion in Mobile, Ala., and Pascagoula, Miss., was Frederic in 1979.

But heavy development in coastal areas means more and more danger of exceeding those records in future storms, warn government weather experts.

Americans have flocked to the coasts and many of them have never experienced a serious tropical storm. Unfamiliarity, the weather experts warn, may breed a dangerous contempt.

People don't understand the source of the storm danger in coastal areas, commented NOAA Administrator John V. Byrne.

"They believe the wind and the rain are the most potent parts of the storm. The fact is that nine out of every 10 hurricane deaths are caused by the storm surge, an immense wall of water up to 25 feet high, swept by fierce winds over the land," said Byrne.

"Those who lose their lives in hurricanes are not blown away; they drown," he added.

Surviving a hurricane may well come down to individual planning and action, Byrne said. He urged persons in coastal areas, whether resident or visitor, to be aware of the height above sea level of their dwellings and to be familiar with evacuation routes and shelters.

The East Coast has not faced a really powerful hurricane since Donna in 1960, with winds of 155 miles per hour, and which killed 50 persons.

"We are more vulnerable to the hurricane than we have ever been in our history. Poor building codes, out-of-date evacuation plans and over-development are setting the stage for a major disaster," National Hurricane Center Director Neil Frank told a Senate subcommittee in February.

On Long Beach Island, N.C., for example, Hurricane Hazel destroyed all but five of the 357 homes there in 1954. Today, there are more than 2,000 homes there.

And there are now 900 homes in an area of West Hampton Beach, N.Y., where a hurricane in 1938 destroyed 153 of 179 homes, Frank said.

It is only possible to give about 12 hours warning of a hurricane coming ashore, Frank explained, meaning insufficient time to evacuate larger communities. He estimated that it would take 20 hours to evacuate such vulnerable places as Tampa Bay, Fla., Galveston, Texas or Fort Myers, Fla. And it could be even longer in such places as New Orleans and the New Jersey coast.

As residents of the Middle Atlantic states learned 10 years ago, it isn't always the most powerful storms that do the most damage.

Venue change sought in Alley murder trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for a man accused of strangling a theater executive called the publicity surrounding the case "inflammatory and unfair" and asked a judge to move the trial out of Harris County.

Ron Mock, appointed by the court to defend Clifford X. Phillips in the capital murder trial, said Houston area jurors will be prejudiced against his client.

In a string of interviews, Phillips gave reporters detailed accounts of killing Alley Theater executive director Iris Siff as she worked late in her office Jan. 13.

"The people of Harris County have been exposed repeatedly and in depth to injudicious, inflammatory and unfair statements concerning the defendant's alleged participation in the crime," Mock wrote in his request.

State district Judge George Walker is scheduled to conduct a hearing on the venue change request June 11.

Phillips, 47, told reporters in a string of interviews that he killed Ms. Siff when she confronted him as he tried to rob her office.

Conquistador Cielo conquers Belmont

CHARGING THROUGH THE SLOP — Jockey Laffit Pincay guides Conquistador Cielo into the homestretch ahead of the pack in the Belmont Stakes Saturday at Belmont Park in Elmont, N.Y. Conquistador Cielo took the win by several lengths over Gato Del Sol (1), shown at the left of the winning horse.

NEW YORK (AP) — Conquistador Cielo, racing for the second time in six days, ran away with the $266,200 rain-dampened Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park Saturday.

Gato Del Sol, the Kentucky Derby winner, came on in the stretch to finish second, but was never a serious challenger to the winner. Illuminate finished third, and Preakness runner-up Linkage was fourth.

Conquistador Cielo, who won the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont last Monday, setting a track record of 1:33 for the mile, took the lead on a sloppy track shortly after the break and kept it.

Several opponents tried to mount challenges on the final turn of the 1½-mile race, but when the field turned for home, Conquistador Cielo simply ran away and gave jockey Laffit Pincay his first victory in 17 appearances in Triple Crown competition.

It also was the first Belmont victory for 68-year-old trainer Woody Stephens, who has won stakes with 90 different horses in his career.

It was a victory that almost didn't happen for Pincay. Eddie Maple was assigned to ride Conquistador Cielo, but he sustained a broken rib and a kidney injury in a spill at Belmont on Friday. Stephens put in a call for Pincay, and the Panamanian veteran flew in from California, after first missing a flight, and arrived in New York at 10 a.m.

Pincay's trip to New York was a lot tougher than his ride in the Belmont.

Conquistador Cielo finished 14½ lengths in front of Gato Del Sol, with Illuminate another four lengths back and 3½ lengths in front of Linkage. It was the biggest winning margin since Secretariat won by 31 lengths in gaining the Triple Crown in 1973.

Conquistador Cielo's victory means this year's Triple Crown was shared by three 3-year-olds. He had not participated in the two previous races — the Derby and Preakness. On this rainy, windy day, Aloma's Ruler, the winner of the Preakness, finished ninth.

Conquistador Cielo reached the end of the 1½ miles in 2:28.15, four and one-fifth seconds slower than Secretariat's stakes and track record.

The winner, owned by Henryk deKwiatkowski, paid $10.20, $7.40 and $6.80 to his backers in a crowd of 45,128, the smallest Belmont Stakes crowd since 43,832 watched Celtic Ash in 1960.

Gato Del Sol, owned by Arthur B. Hancock III and Leone J. Peters, returned $8 and $6.40 in his first start since he won the Derby on May 1. Illuminate, a 40-1 outsider owned by George W. Humphrey Jr., making his debut in Triple Crown competition, was $6.40 to show.

Martina powers to Open crown

PARIS (AP) — Martina Navratilova powered her way past Andrea Jaeger, the youngest-ever finalist, 7-6, 6-1 Saturday to win the French Open tennis tournament for the first time.

Jaeger, whose 17th birthday was Friday, hoped to make tennis history, but her challenge failed in the scorching, 96-degree heat on center clay court at Roland Garros stadium.

She had a set point in the tiebreaker of the first set but eventually lost it 6-8.

Afterward she accused Navratilova of breaking the rules by receiving advice from her coach, Renee Richards, and her friend, Nancy Lieberman, at court-side.

"Andrea should be a gracious loser," Navratilova, 25, said in denying the accusation. Richards, who began coaching Navratilova last year, also denied the allegations.

Navratilova, a former Czech citizen living in Dallas, earned $52,000 by winning the event, her 42nd victory in 43 matches this year.

Jaeger's runner-up prize was worth $26,000.

Youth still had a chance to set a record in this tournament.

Mats Wilander, 17, an unseeded Swede, hoped to beat Guillermo Vilas in Sunday's final and become the youngest-ever men's champion.

About 17,000 watched the 1-hour, 42-minute match, a nip-and-tuck affair for more than an hour before Jaeger cracked under pressure.

After losing the first two games Jaeger went ahead 3-2 and there was never more than one game between the players until they reached the tiebreaker.

Navratilova led 4-2, but then Jaeger took a 5-4 lead and went to set point at 6-5. Navratilova responded with three of her best winners — a cross-court forehand, a backhand volley that dropped over the net and died, and a smash.

ALL IN THE BAG — Levelland's Mike Hunt makes a careful step on second base as he travels around the diamond Saturday evening against Petro Lewis. Waiting for the ball to return from the outfield is Petro second baseman Danny Dodson. The action took place in the Sixth Annual Cotton Mize Fast-Pitch Tournament at Johnny Stone Park. Levelland won the game and finished second in the tournament, won by Lamesa. Hunt, by the way, was named to the 12-player all-tournament squad along with the teammate Terry Petty. Story on page 3-B.

Laker title time?

NBA Championship

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham realizes his team is in big trouble. But despite the fact that the 76ers face a 3-1 deficit in the National Basketball Association Championship Series, he doesn't sound like a beaten man.

In fact, Cunningham expressed optimism after the 76ers rallied in the fourth quarter in Game 4 of the series Thursday night, only to lose to the Los Angeles Lakers 111-101.

"I thought L.A. was a different ballclub when the game got close," he observed. "They stopped looking for the run. But that doesn't mean we can come out and just play one good half Sunday as we did tonight. We have to concentrate for 48 minutes."

The 76ers will be trying to do something that's never been done in the 35 previous NBA Championship Series, starting with Sunday's fifth game at the Spectrum in Philadelphia. No team has ever overcome a 3-1 deficit to win the league title.

Game 5 begins at 2 p.m., EDT. A sixth game, if necessary, will be played Tuesday night in Los Angeles. A seventh game, if needed, would be played next Thursday night at the Spectrum.

"We have been in this position before, only the opposite way, up three-to-one," said Cunningham after Game 4. "We know it takes four games to win and we are looking forward to coming back to L.A."

The Lakers led by as many as 19 points in the second half at the Forum Thursday night, but the 76ers battled back, getting as close as seven points in the late going. However, they could get no closer.

"The pressure is on Philly now. If Sunday's game is close, they'll feel it more than us. I don't think anybody can beat us."

A victory by the Lakers Sunday would not only give them their second NBA championship in the past three years, it would enable them to record the finest one-year postseason record in league history.

Six NBA champions have gone through the playoffs with only two losses. But only the Milwaukee Bucks, in 1971, had to win 12 games to win the title. The Bucks were 12-2 that year, while the Lakers are 11-1 in this year's playoffs.

A member of that Milwaukee team was center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who was playing in his second NBA season. Abdul-Jabbar, who is now 35, had 22 points for the Lakers in Game 4 Thursday night and now has scored 20 points or more in 102 of 108 career playoff games.

Abdul-Jabbar isn't ready to celebrate any championships yet. "Last year we took the playoffs for granted and found ourselves thrown into an early vacation," said Abdul-Jabbar, referring to the fact that the Lakers were eliminated by the Houston Rockets in a first-round mini-series. "We have a game to win and we're not taking anything for granted."

"Philadelphia is a first-class team. They'll be back today. We expect a difficult time. But the pressure is now on them."

Cotton feeling Chipper about his team

It was bound to happen. Staff ace Larry Smith was busy trying on his tuxedo for Saturday night's wedding and No. 2 pitcher Bobby Mize had pitched so much already, the bolts holding his arm sockets together beginning to fall out. Yep, the Cotton Chippers were bound for a tumble and Lamesa was the team to knock them off their cleats.

In the midst of a typical afternoon chalkstorm at Johnny Stone Park, the Lamesa Plains softball squad recorded an 8-6 win over the local boys in the Sixth Annual Cotton Mize Fast-Pitch Tournament Saturday. The loss eliminated the hosts from their own tournament but more dramatically, was only the team's second loss in 22 games this year.

"We didn't play good ... that was the worst game we've had all year," said founding father Cotton Mize after the chalk had settled. "But we were due for a bad game."

That's true, Cotton. It was about time you guys made a few errors and the hits didn't fall in the gaps. And besides, young Mize was pitching his third game of the day.

The problem the Chippers encountered was unique, Smith was getting married and took the whole weekend off. Sounds kind of selfish, doesn't it? I mean, letting down the whole team just for one girl. Come on, Larry.

And so the Chippers called on elder statesman Joe Blasingame to win their opener Friday 10-0 over Carlsbad, N.M., and then watched Mize toss a 9-0 victory over Sterling City and a 13-1 win over D&R of Odessa. Then along came Lamesa, playing its first games of the year and coming up with a rare feat.

The Chippers lost a bid for a third consecutive tourney title. They've already won at Carlsbad and San Angelo. This season follows a tradition that Mize has been associated with for 46 years.

The Chippers won a state fast-pitch championship in 1970 and will be in Brenham this summer for another try. Last year they were seventh and the year before, fourth.

The team features seven former Big Spring High players — David Altom, Kenny Fowler, Mize, Ricky Myers, Tommy Rodriguez, Paul Spence and Smith. The team has been reconstructed since last year because of the loss of five players. Still, the wins continue.

Fast-pitch is almost a mirror image of hardball. The diamond is smaller and fences in closer but most of the rules apply to both games. You can steal, but have to wait until the ball leaves the pitcher's hand.

Speaking of pitching, this ain't slow-pitch by any means. Good hurlers whiz the 12-inch ball at speeds well over 100 mph. Smith is almost there now and Mize can throw around 90, changing speeds to as low as 55 mph. Sounds like a safe speed limit.

In his heyday, Cotton Mize won nine games in one weekend tournament. The secret is that fast-pitch — unlike baseball — involves a natural pitching motion. The arm isn't overworked like it is throwing an overhand pitch. That makes it hard to sustain a rotator-cuff injury in this sport.

Mize likes to work with former baseballers. He spent the cold days of winter teaching Rodriguez how to hit the fast pitch. Smith has become the ace of the team in four years.

"I'm like an alcoholic ... it's something I'm addicted to," he says.

During his fast-pitch days, Mize has been involved in an estimated 2,000 victories with the Chippers. The most memorable was a 2-0 win over the Navy world champions in 1971. The game was played at 2 a.m. one Sunday in Wichita Falls.

Why the "Chippers?" Well, Cotton works for the potato chip people and I guess that qualifies him as a chipper.

There's plenty of more games left this year for Cotton's gang. Hopefully no more weddings will disrupt the season. At least Saturday's loss afforded Altom and Mize — both having parts in the wedding — some leisure time after the rings were exchanged.

And Smith didn't have had to pitch on his first honeymoon night.

White Sox nip Rangers

American League

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Britt Johnson and game Barojas teamed up for a double and Harold Baines broke open a tight pitcher's duel with a two-run, seventh-inning homer Saturday night as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 2-1 and snapped a losing streak.

Johnson's fourth home run of the year was the fourth off Texas starter Tom Seaver, 0-7, and came after he had walked. Honeycutt struck out three hits overall, struck out two and walked four.

Johnson walked two and struck out three in the following five of the game.

Johnson's third run in the seventh inning was the first on an error by shortstop Bill Almon and advanced to second on a single by Mark Wagner which brought on Barojas. After John Grubb singled to load the bases Randy Bass' sacrifice fly brought Werner home.

Barojas then got Buddy Bell to foul out to end the Rangers' threat and went on to post his 12th save.

Brewers 11, A's 3
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Robin Yount, Cecil Cooper, and Ben Oglivie belted consecutive solo homers in the seventh inning as the Milwaukee Brewers smacked 17 hits to beat the Oakland A's 11-3 Saturday.

It was the second time in Brewers history that a Milwaukee lineup hit three straight homers. The first time was only eight days ago in Anaheim.

Orioles 3, Twins 1
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Flanagan scattered seven hits and John Lowenstein hit a solo home run to carry the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday night.

The Orioles staked Flanagan, 4-4, to a 1-0 lead in the first, when Al Bumbry led off with a walk, took third on Rich Dauer's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by Eddie Murray.

Phillies flatten Astros

National League

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ivan DeJesus and Sparky Lyle each hit a home run in the eighth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies flattened the Houston Astros 7-0 Saturday night.

DeJesus, who earlier knocked out the Phillies, singled off Steve Carlton, 1-3, the third pitcher to start the eighth-inning inning for the Phillies.

DeJesus sacrificed him to second and singled him to third on the breaking run.

Carlton struck out and scored.

DeJesus led in the third inning as he tripled and scored on Lyle's single. The Phillies took the fourth on Mike DeJesus' double and Lyle's double and Maddox.

DeJesus led 2-1 in the fifth on Lyle's RBI double and scored on a home run.

DeJesus' homer, his fifth of the season, came in the sixth inning on a 3-3 tie for the Phillies in the seventh on a single by DeJesus which involved

DeJesus' pinch-hitter Biff

DeJesus' loaded walk and DeJesus' sacrifice in the going seventh inning and DeJesus' sacrifice in the eighth inning on a 2-1 victory over the Houston Astros Saturday night. DeJesus had blanked the Astros for one hit until Dale

DeJesus' homer walked, and DeJesus' pinch-hitter scored on a home run. White's glove in the field seemed to tie the game.

DeJesus' homer was walked independently loading the bases, and DeJesus' pinch-hitter fanned,

DeJesus' pinch-hitter walked, and DeJesus' pinch-hitter scored on a home run. Reliever Willie

Francisco then got pinch-hitter

Rufino Linares on a tap to the mound to end the inning.

The Expos had taken a 1-0 lead in the fourth on consecutive singles by Terry Francona and Andre Dawson and a groundout by Al Oliver that scored Francona from third.

The winner was Rick Mahler, 5-4. Steve Bedrosian worked the last two innings for his second save.

Reds 6, Mets 2
CINCINNATI (AP) — Dan Driessen homered and drove in four runs and Mario Soto scattered seven hits as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the New York Mets 6-2 Saturday night.

The losing pitcher was Charlie Puleo, 5-3.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the third on Ron Gardenhire's double and Bob Bailor's sacrifice fly. Soto gave up the Mets' second run on Mike Jorgensen's pinch RBI single with two out in the ninth.

Eddie Milner bunted safely and took second on Puleo's throwing error to ignite the Reds' three-run third. Dave

Concepcion singled with two out, driving in Milner to tie the game, and Driessen followed with his eighth homer of the season.

The Reds added a pair of runs in the fifth on Ron Oester's RBI single and Driessen's sacrifice fly. Oester doubled in the seventh and Driessen singled him home for Cincinnati's final run.

Giants 2, Cubs 1
CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Rich

Gale's first major league home run, a two-run blast in the second inning, gave the San Francisco Giants a 2-1 victory Saturday over Chicago, handing the Cubs their sixth consecutive loss.

Gale, a 6-foot-7, 225-pound right-hander, drilled a two-out, 1-2 pitch from Doug Bird, 3-6, into a 12-mile-an-hour wind and over the left-center field wall following a double by Tom O'Malley.

Gale, 2-4, was nicked for a run in the first when Bump Wills singled, stole second, went to third on catcher Bob Brenly's throwing error and scored as Bill Buckner grounded out.

In the eighth, Scot Thompson led off with a single but was thrown out trying for second. When Wills also singled, Gale, who scattered seven hits in 7 1-3 innings, was replaced by Gary Lavelle. He got Larry Bowa to hit into an inning-ending double play, then Greg Minton replaced Lavelle in the ninth and earned his eighth save.

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 2
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pedro Guerrero singled home a run to break a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and Bill Russell added a three-run double two outs later, powering the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

Steve Garvey homered, rapped two singles and scored three runs as Fernando Valenzuela, 8-4, became the NL's first eight-game winner.

Garvey's solo homer, fifth of the season and third in six games, came in the first off St. Louis right-hander Steve Mura, 5-4.

David Green tied it for the Cards in the second. He singled and stole second, moved to third on Ken Oberkell's grounder and scored as Glenn Brummer also grounded out.

After St. Louis moved ahead 2-1 on Mike Ramsey's double and Keith Hernandez' single in the third, the Dodgers tied it in the fourth on Guerrero's sacrifice fly.

Garvey opened the sixth with a single and moved to second on Dusty Baker's single. Following Guerrero's tie-breaking hit, Mura retired Rick Monday and Ron Cey, but walked Mike Scioscia intentionally, setting up Russell's bases-loaded double.

RAINOUT FUN — Seattle Mariners' starter Gaylord Perry pounces on fellow pitcher Bill Caudill who was doing an impersonation of Perry outside the dugout before Saturday's Detroit Tigers game was rained out. Perry 4-4, is going for his 302 career win.

Five inducted into Texas Hall

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas — Five Texas sports greats were inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame in ceremonies on the steps of the building Saturday.

The honorees included Kathy Whitworth, the winningest player on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour; former Texas Tech All-American and All-Pro E.J. Holub, who was a star with the Dallas Texans and the Kansas City Chiefs; 1957 Heisman Trophy winner John David Crow of Texas A&M; three-time Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Rutherford; and former American League batting champion Pete Runnels of the Boston Red Sox.

Whitworth recently won her 83rd tournament and was the first player on the LPGA tour to exceed $1 million in career earnings. She was born in Monahan.

Holub, a Lubbock

graduate who is the only player to start Superbowl games on both offense and defense, was a linebacker for the losing Chiefs in the first Superbowl and the center for the Superbowl IV champions.

Crow, a native of Springhill, La., played 11 years in the National Football League for Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco.

Rutherford won his first

Indy 500 in 1974. He took other titles in 1976 and 1980 in his Chapparal car, designed and built by Jim Hall of Midland.

Runnels was the American League batting champion in 1960 with a .320 average and in 1962 with a .322 average.

The five also were honored at a banquet Friday night.

The Lufkin native played seven years with Washington and five years with Boston and his last two with Houston.

He compiled a lifetime .29 average.

The five also were honored at a banquet Friday night.

Is Moses worth $2 million?

That may be Rocket's latest bid

POTENTIALLY RICH — An attorney for star center Moses Malone confirmed the Houston Rockets have offered his client a contract, but refused Saturday to confirm reports that it is worth nearly $2 million a year.

HOUSTON (AP) — An attorney for star center Moses Malone confirmed the Houston Rockets have offered his client a contract, but refused Saturday to confirm reports that it is worth nearly $2 million a year.

"Yes, I have received a written offer from the Rockets but I have not yet had time to consider it or talk to Moses about it," Washington attorney Lee Fentress told the Houston Chronicle.

Fentress said the club sent the offer to him late in the week.

The Chronicle reported in a copyright story Saturday that, depending on which option Malone prefers, the contract would run from three to six years and escalate from $1.6 million to $1.9 million.

In one option, the paper said, Malone would be paid $1.9 million a year for three years.

The 27-year-old Malone, who led the National Basketball Association in rebounding and was second in scoring this season, will become a free agent the day after the playoffs if he declines the Rockets' offer.

"If they are trying to avoid having him become a free agent, it does seem a little late in the day," Fentress said. "Other than that, I have no reaction at this time, except to say I will be in discussion with Moses and we will reply to the Rockets."

The Chronicle quoted an anonymous source as saying the contract would make him the highest-paid player in the league.

Rocket General Manager Ray Patterson declined to confirm or deny the offer.

Malone, the NBA's most valuable player in 1979, is in the final days of a three-year contract that pays him $1 million a year. He averaged 31.1 points and 14.7 rebounds per game in leading the Rockets to a 46-36 record and became the first player since Wilt Chamberlain to lead the league in rebounding two years in a row.

The Chronicle reported that the New York Knicks have made signing Malone one of their top priorities. New Jersey Nets president Joseph Taub and Los Angeles Lakers owner Jerry Buss also have said they will enter the bidding for Malone.

RECORD JUMP — Keith Conner, of Southern Methodist University, set an American and NCAA record of 57-feet 8-inches in the triple jump during Saturdays NCAA Track and Field finals in Provo, Utah.

Texas topples Okla. St., 9-1

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Tracy Dophied drove home three runs to go with Roger Clemens' five hits as No. 1-ranked Texas stopped Oklahoma State 9-1 in a College World Series first-round baseball game Saturday.

In Saturday's second first-round game, South Carolina, 45-11, was to face Stanford, 48-16-1.

Clemens, who had recorded three straight shutouts in his last three starts, held the Cowboys scoreless through seven innings before Dale Rath doubled and scored on a Gary Green single in the top of the eighth.

The Longhorns, 58-4 on the season, picked up a run in the first on Dophied's run-scoring ground ball and added another in the fifth on Dophied's RBI double.

Dophied also added a run-scoring single in the four-run sixth inning as Texas sent OSU to the losers' bracket with a 56-15 record.

The Longhorns picked up their final two runs in the bottom of the eighth on Randy Day's two-run homer, his seventh of the season.

Houston's Floyd sets 100 record

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Dean and Brian Crouser became the first set of brothers in 38 years to win titles Saturday in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Brian, a 19-year-old freshman, began the history-making act by winning the javelin with a heave of 274 feet, 7 inches. A couple of hours later, Dean, a 22-year-old junior, hurled the shot put 68-4 1/4 to complete the historic sibling "double" and win his second NCAA title this year.

Friday, Dean won the discus at 207-4.

Meanwhile, Keith Connor of Southern Methodist University uncorked the second-best triple jump in history, soaring 57 feet, 7 3/4 inches, and mercurial Stanley Floyd of Houston regained the NCAA 100 title he won in 1980 by capturing the sprint in 10.03 seconds, a meet record.

The jump by Connor, a native of Slough, England, broke the collegiate record of 56-4 3/4 set by Ron Livers of San Jose State in 1977. Only the world record of 58-8 1/2 by Brazil's Joao de Oliveira in the 1975 Pan-American Games in Mexico City's 7,400-foot altitude exceeds Connor's effort.

The altitude in Provo is 4,549 feet.

Floyd's victory in the 100 also was close. Tennessee teammates Willie Gault and Mike Miller finished second and third, respectively, in 10.10 and 10.11.

Floyd's time erased the meet record of 10.07 set by Clancy Edwards of Southern California in 1978.

In the shot put, Dean Crouser's winning throw edged runner-up Mike Lehmann by a quarter-inch.

Stadler bypasses Golden Bear

THE LINE-UP — Golfer Jack Nicklaus of North Palm Beach, Fla., kneels with putter in hand as he lines up a putt on the 3rd green during the third round of the Kemper Open Saturday. Nicklaus is the early round leader.

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Masters champion Craig Stadler, overhauling Jack Nicklaus in a head-to-head duel, fired his second consecutive 5-under-par 67 and took the lead Saturday in the rain-delayed Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Stadler, displaying the talent that brought him a record Kemper total of 270 last year, made up five shots on Nicklaus, the second-round leader who carried a 2-stroke margin into the third round.

Stadler's fifth birdie in a bogey-free performance, a 2 on the 211-yard 16th hole, gave him a 2-shot margin. It became a 3-stroke margin when Nicklaus registered his third bogey of the round at 17.

Stadler's 54-hole total was 206, 10 under par for three trips over the soggy 7,173-yard Congressional Country Club course.

With a 71, Nicklaus fell to second place at 209, 7 under for this $400,000 tournament with a first prize of $72,000.

Gil Morgan, playing in the last threesome with Stadler and Nicklaus, was alone in third with 70-210. Then came Wayne Levi at 68-211, Dan Hallderson 69-212, and Seve Ballesteros of Spain at 72-213 along with George Archer, who carded a 71.

Stadler, No. 1 on the 1982 money list, overcame a 3-shot edge by Nicklaus after two holes. Nicklaus' birdie at No. 2 sent him to 8 under.

But one hole later, Stadler launched his rally with a birdie. He followed with three birdies in a row, starting at No. 7.

A two-shot swing on the ninth hole — Stadler birdied and Nicklaus bogeyed — put Stadler into the lead for the first time.

Nicklaus came right back with a birdie at No. 10 to match Stadler. Nicklaus' bogey at 13, followed by Stadler's birdie at 16, put the 28-year-old California in position to become the first three-time winner on this year's PGA Tour.

The leaders' starts were delayed 2 hours and 10 minutes because of heavy rain that flooded the greens and forced a suspension of play. It marked the seventh straight week a Tour tournament had a round suspended because of poor weather conditions. Only six of the 22 golf tournaments have not been negatively affected by the weather this year.

Lamesa wins tourney

Blinding dust stirred up by evening thunderstorms forced a quick end to the Sixth Annual Cotton Mize Fast-Pitch Tournament Saturday night.

With the score tied zero, officials brought Lamesa and Levelland together for a coin-flip. Lamesa won the toss and first place honors.

Lynn Vaughn of the undefeated area team was the Leading Hitter for the tournament and also the Most Valuable Player. Levelland hurler Scooter Johnson was the Most Valuable Pitcher.

Named to the all-tourney team from the local Cotton Chippers were Paul Spence and Ricky Myers. Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

SUNDAY, JUNE 6, 1982
GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when your intuitive perceptions are off and you need to double check with your best judgment for any important decisions to be made. Don't rely solely on your hunches now.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
 Private affairs do not turn out as you wish today, so postpone making important decisions until another day.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
 A good friend can't be relied upon today, so use your own good judgment for best results. Take health treatments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)
 Guard your reputation now since others are in a resentful mood. Show that you are a conscientious person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)
 Being alert to opportunities around you is wise, but don't take action on them until later. Be logical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)
 You may think you can handle an important matter in a certain way, but consult an expert for a better way. Avoid extravagance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)
 An associate may overtake you in a new project. Keep alert and all will be well. Make future plans tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
 Try to listen to what an associate has to say instead of being obstinate. Take time for recreation later in the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
 You have good ideas that need more study before putting them in operation. Show increased devotion to loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
 Try to be more objective in all your dealings with close friends. Take steps to remove any cause of friction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
 Taking time to meditate early in the day can be helpful to you. Spend more time with persons you like.

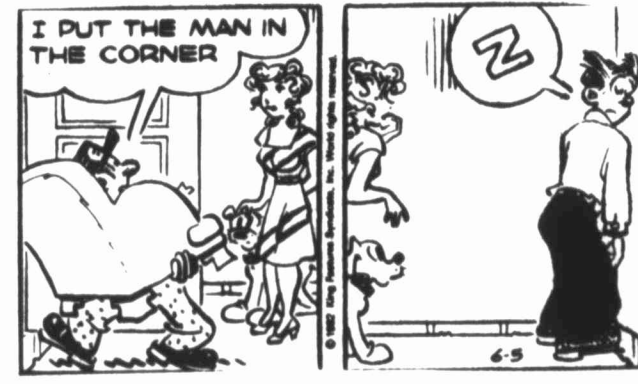

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
 Study your immediate surroundings and make plans for improvement. Try to be helpful to friends who are having a tough time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)
 Be sure to control your temper today, no matter what the provocation. Plan how best to expand in career affairs.

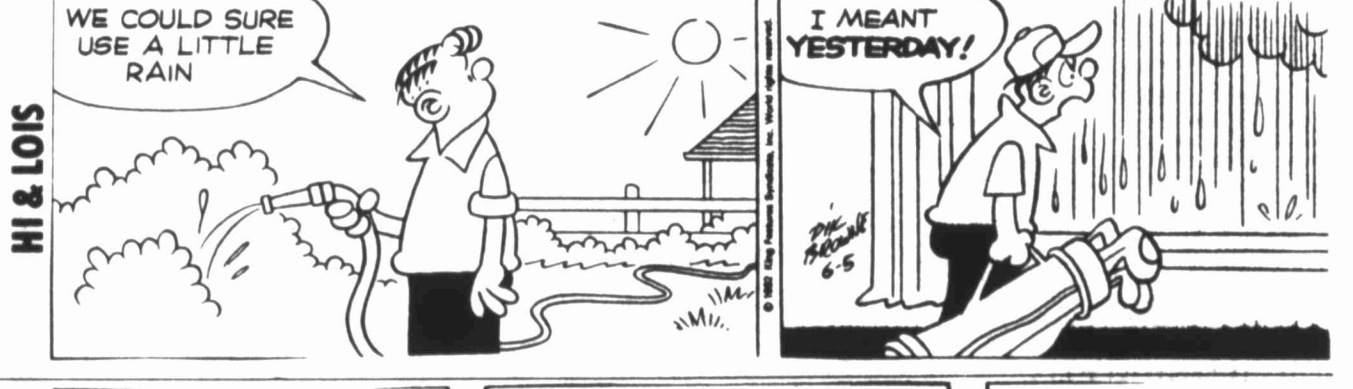

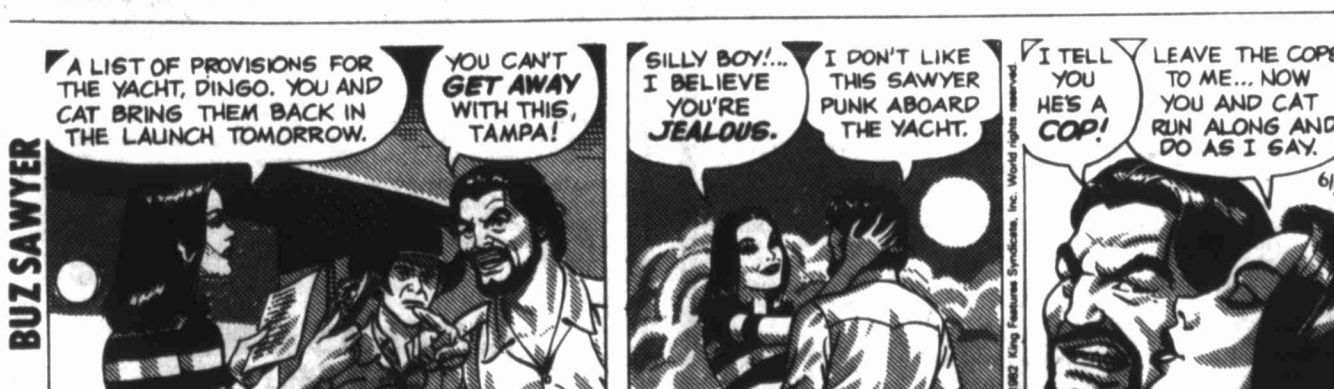

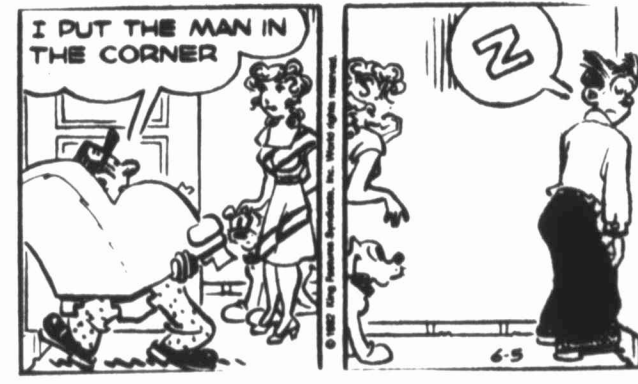

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY
 ... he or she early in life could experience one worry after another, so try to bring pleasant conditions into your progeny's existence and success can then be possible. Be sure to give good spiritual and religious training.

"The Stars Impel"; they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you!

L.A. traveling show used to warn students

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
 Associated Press Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two men have been stalking and assaulting young children in the Los Angeles area recently, and the Los Angeles Unified School District has fought back — with its high-powered traveling show that warns students of "stranger danger."
 The children had to be warned in a way that would appeal to them, that would grab their attention and keep it, school authorities say.
 The show starts with an audience warm-up by Ruben Gonzalez, a security agent for the school district. The only thing missing is the applause sign, as he urges children on to higher decibels when their screams of welcome don't quite pierce eardrums.
 The program includes puppets and music, audience participation and straight talk.
 That straight talk is serious, and agent Calvin Simpson related gruesome facts when he addressed several hundred fifth and sixth graders recently at Florence Avenue School.
 "Do you know what happened at Marvin Elementary School?" Simpson asked. "A little girl, about 7 years old, was on the campus, just playing, having a good time. A lady got out of a car, called her by her name and the girl went with the lady."
 "They found that girl in a ditch," he told the hushed audience that no longer squirmed or giggled.
 "She had been sitting there for two or three days. She was decayed. She was dead," he said.
 The little girl did two things wrong, he said. "She left the campus and she didn't tell anybody."
 There were 284 "incidents" ranging from indecent exposure to sexual assault of Los Angeles schoolchildren either on campus or traveling to or from school between July 1, 1980 and June 30, 1981, says Richard Green, chief of the district's security agents.

2 new UPI owners involved in '60s protests

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Nashville Tennessean said in a copyright story Friday that two of the four new owners of United Press International were involved in civil protests in the 1960s.

According to The Tennessean, William Geissler was convicted in 1968 of resisting the draft and served time in a federal prison, and Douglas Ruhe, the new managing director of UPI, was arrested twice for participating in civil rights demonstrations.

Reached by The Associated Press early Friday, both men acknowledged details of the Tennessean's report. Ruhe said he was exercising his constitutional rights when he was arrested, and Geissler called his actions "honorable."

The Tennessean said the source for its report was a Federal Communications Commission application filed by Ruhe and Geissler to obtain a license for a television station in Murfreesboro, Tenn. The license was approved last month.

Ruhe, Geissler, Len Small, a Moline, Ill., newspaper publisher, and Chicago attorney Cordell J. Overgaard are the principals of Media News Inc., which purchased UPI Wednesday from the E.W. Scripps Co.

Ruhe is president of Focus Communications Inc., in Nashville and Geissler is vice president.

According to The Tennessean: Geissler, 36, pleaded guilty to resisting the draft and offered to serve as a non-combatant, but that was rejected. He served 10 months, from August 1969 to June 1970, at the federal prison in Danbury, Conn. He was pardoned in 1975 by former President Gerald Ford.

Ruhe, 38, was arrested in Kansas City, Mo., in 1963 and charged with disturbing the peace in connection with a civil rights demonstration in which he was participating. A municipal court found him guilty and fined him $25, but a higher court overturned the conviction.

Ruhe was arrested two years later in Lawrence, Kan., for his part in a civil rights demonstration, but that charge was dismissed before it came to trial. Ruhe, who was reached at a New York hotel, said: "I believed in what I was doing at the time and I believe in it today. What I was involved in protesting was the denial of fundamental rights to the black citizens of the population... We have a right under the Constitution to petition for the redress of grievances and I was exercising that right."

Geissler, who also was in New York, said, "I was younger when I made the decision. I did what I felt was honorable. I did not dodge the draft. I cooperated with the prosecutors at every step of the way, and I served time for my decision."

"I believe in obedience to law and government and in the principles for which our country was founded. If called upon to serve today, I would do so. I'm not a radical."

PUBLIC NOTICE

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed proposals addressed to the Honorable Mayor and City Council of the City of Big Spring, Texas, will be received at the office of the City Secretary, until 2:00 P.M., June 16, 1982 for the reconstruction of Wason Road, repairs to certain streets which were cut for the construction of Water Works and Sanitary Sewer Improvements for the City of Big Spring, and the construction of several drainage structures.
The project consists of reconstructing approximately 63,250 square yards of Wason Road from Randolph Blvd. to F.M. 700. The new pavement will consist of curb and gutter, six inches caliche base and two inches HMA surface. Repairs will be made in various parts of the City by either patching the pavement cut or by reconstructing the pavement from curb to curb. Drainage structures will be constructed along West 11th Place to carry storm runoff away from the pavement.
Also included are improvements to certain paved areas at Big Spring Municipal Airport and Industrial Park. Improvements consist of reconstructing approximately 4,975 square yards of entrance road, a portion of curb and gutter, and constructing approximately 2,275 square yards of General Aviation access road.
A Pre-Bid Conference will be held in the Council Chambers, City Hall, Big Spring, Texas, at 2:00 P.M., June 7, 1982.
Bidders must submit a Cashier's or Certified Check issued by a bank satisfactory to the Owner, or a Proposal Bond from a reliable Surety Company, payable without recourse to the order of the City of Big Spring, Texas, in an amount not less than five percent (5 percent) of the largest possible bid submitted as a guaranty that the Bidder will enter into a contract and execute bonds and guaranty in the forms provided within ten (10) days after notice of award of contract to him. Bids without the required check or Proposal Bonds will not be considered.
The successful Bidder will be required to furnish a Performance Bond and a Payment Bond, each in the amount of the contract, written by a responsible Surety Company, authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and satisfactory to the Owner, as required by Article 5160, V.A.T.C.S., as amended by H.B. 344, passed by the 56th Legislature, Regular Session, 1956.
The City of Big Spring, Texas, reserves the right to hold all proposals for a period not to exceed 30 days after the date of receiving bids, to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities. No bids may be withdrawn, after having been opened, within the 30 day period set out herein.
Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions.
Information for bidders, proposal forms, specifications and plans are on file in the office of the City Secretary, Big Spring, Texas, and at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 4101 Avenue R, Lubbock, Texas 79412. Phone 806-747-4161, and 5214 Thomason Drive, Midland, Texas 79703. Phone 915-697-1447.
Copies of the plans, specifications, and contract documents may be secured at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 4101 Avenue R, Lubbock, Texas 79412 (Phone 806-747-4161) upon payment of $50.00 deposit for each set of documents. Refund of the deposit will be made as provided in the INSTRUCTION OF BIDDERS.
Attention is called to the fact that there must be paid on the project not less than the general prevailing rates of wages as set out in the SPECIAL PROVISIONS. However, the inclusion of such minimum schedule of wages does not release the Contractor from compliance with any State Wage Law that may be applicable. The Contractor must abide by the Wage and Hour Laws of the State of Texas and must pay not less than the rates legally prescribed or as set forth in the SPECIAL PROVISIONS, whichever is higher.

Emergency Medical Technicians

Lives depend on their quick thinking

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

The white vehicle flashes by, red and blue lights pulsing, sirens wailing, and bystanders get a cold feeling in the pit of the stomach.

The attendants leap from the ambulance, performing their duties with a calm, quick, dispatch. Bystanders feel concern for the victim — they rarely give the ambulance personnel a second thought.

Most people face a life-or-death situation where the fate of another person lies in their hands only once or twice. The people who provide emergency first aid face it every day.

"The first time, I was scared to death," said John Korell, owner of Shaffer Ambulance Service in Big Spring.

That first time was a long time in the past for Korell, a lanky Montanan. He's been in the emergency medical field for 13 years, beginning as an Air Force chopper medic in the jungles of Vietnam.

Korell and his staff relax in their home-away-from-home, the ambulance station, explaining their duties to a reporter.

"It's just keeping your head and going the best you can," Korell says. "When you get out there, you've just got your field kit and yourself — you haven't got somebody to fall back on."

"In the service, everything was speed — just patch move like well-practiced athletes, neither getting in the other's way. Korell trots into the house with his suitcase-sized kit.

Inside, the distraught young mother hovers over the infant. Korell quickly examines the obviously uncomfortable child quickly, feeling of his stomach and head.

You notice the fear apparent on both the father and the mother, while another youngster of three or four sits quietly on a threadbare sofa. The house is bare, unpainted, and has the musty smell of poverty.

Korell's decision is that while the infant is obviously unhappy, there is really no need for him to be transported to the hospital.

"We'll go ahead and take him, if you want," he tells the father, "but I don't think he's all that sick."

The father decides against the trip.

As Korell and Smith leave, the black-headed child on the sofa waves and says, "Bye."

Enroute back to the station, Korell says, "We're really supposed to charge him $30 just for coming out here, but there's really no use ... The city says we're supposed to give them a bill. If they don't have any money, I'm still supposed to give them a bill and if they don't pay it, I'm supposed to get the law on them, and then I'm supposed to turn it over to my lawyer. I don't think it's fair."

"The good part of the job is helping people," Korell had said earlier, "and the bad part is all the hassle you have to go through just to help. We go into a house and a guy's in complete cardiac arrest. You work on him and finally you get a heartbeat and he starts getting some color back — I just get goosebumps. That's got to be one of the biggest thrills in the world."

After checking in at the office, Korell and Smith decide to run an errand, then get something to eat. Boredom between calls is an enemy, but they combat it often by tours through town and occasional meals during their 24-hour shift. However, a radio and a pager is always at their side for calls.

Before the errand is completed, a call comes over the police radio nestled between the two in the ambulance. Smith veers from his intended course, heading toward the accident before they are even officially notified. The crew at Shaffer is proud of its quick response time. Indeed, the average time to the scene in March was 3½ minutes, with an average time to hospital of 4.3 minutes.

"People will say it took thirty minutes for the ambulance to get there," Korell said. "What's really happened is they called all their neighbors, the police department, and then the ambulance. In cardiac arrests, in four to six minutes the brain will die from a lack of oxygen. When we get there — if they've called all these people before they call us — it's been maybe fifteen or twenty minutes, and there's nothing we can do to bring him back. But we'll work on him — you never know."

As they arrive at the scene of the accident, Korell leaps out, grabbing his driver kit on the way around the ambulance. Smith slams the ambulance into park, and "Chuckles," as Korell has nicknamed for his wry sense of humor, is all business as he grabs the stretcher from the box-like rear of the vehicle.

The driver of one of the cars, an obviously pregnant woman, is sitting on the sidewalk, frightened, crying and having difficulty breathing. A tableau of bystanders surrounds her — there's her equally concerned husband, the officer investigating the wreck, and several spectators.

As Korell examines her and Smith fetches supplies from the ambulance, a well-meaning spectator takes it upon herself to describe to Korell the circumstances of the accident.

"I saw it all — he changed lanes right into them..." the middle-aged woman says, but it's wasted breath. Korell's not really concerned with what happened or why, and all his attention is on his patient — he's not listening.

Smith and Korell load the woman onto their stretcher in a sitting position — she says she's more comfortable that way — and head out for the hospital.

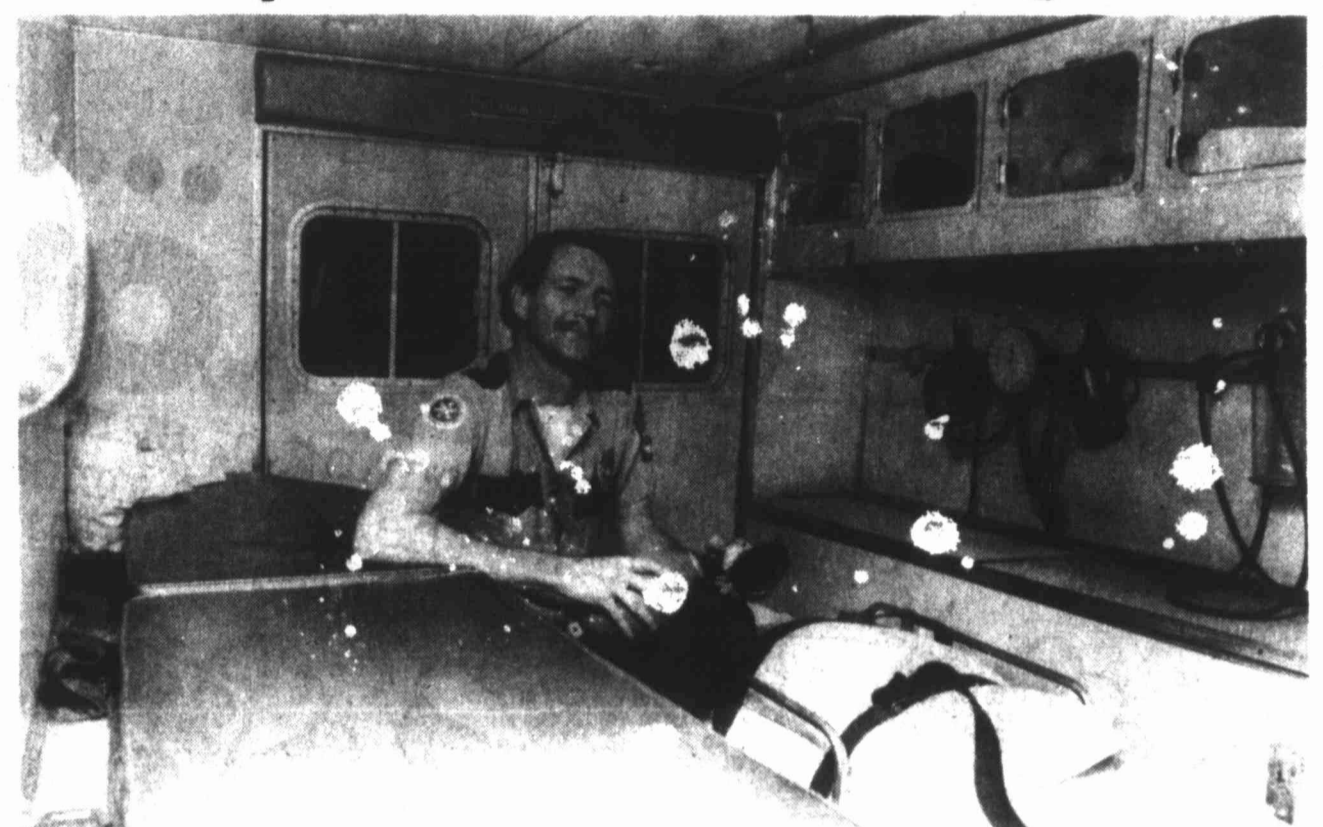

As Smith weaves his way down Gregg Street, Korell, in the back with the girl, is calling out vital signs to his driver.

"We've got a sixteen-year-old white female, she's five months pregnant, blood pressure is 100 over 74, pulse is 94, and respiration is 20," he calls through the open window into the cab. "She's having a little shortness of breath."

Smith calls the figures into the hospital, preparing the emergency room personnel for what they'll have to deal with.

As Smith drives down the road leading to the hospital, a confused driver hesitates at an intersection, blocking the ambulance's passage. Smith goes around, saying, "The ones you've got to watch out for are the little old ladies with white gloves — no kidding. They'll just stop, and you don't know if they're going to turn left or right. They should just pull over to the right."

By the time they arrive at the hospital, the girl has

IN THE BACK — John Korell of Shaffer Ambulance Service poses in the back of an ambulance. On his shift, Korell performs as chief medic, treating victims at the scene calmed down considerably and her difficulty in breathing has subsided. The emergency room personnel check her over anyway, just to be sure.

Before Smith and Korell have time to leave, a police officer runs in the hospital, saying to Korell, "I need you, I've got a baby choking at the PD."

Korell and Smith hit the road again, with "Chuckles" winding the motor up to 75 mph on the curvy road behind the police squad car.

Korell dashes into the police station while Smith wrestles with the stretcher.

Snatching the baby from a woman's arms, he upends the crying infant and strikes it between the shoulder blades.

Nothing. He repeats the maneuver. Still nothing.

Time's growing short — the child is turning blue from a lack of air.

Korell, still holding the baby, climbs into the back of the ambulance and Smith takes off with a police car leading the way.

Before they get to the hospital, Korell gives the baby a squeeze, upends it and hits his hand on the baby's back, and a blue marble pops out. The child calms down instantly, crying only when Smith takes a turn rapidly.

As the hospital personnel check the infant over, Korell tries to find the aunt who was at the police station so he can complete his forms.

Smith takes a more direct approach, asking the baby, "You got a driver's license? Any ID?"

and maintaining a rapport in the ambulance, all the while shouting vital signs to Chuck Smith through a window so Smith can radio them to the hospital.

No answer, only a puzzled grin.

Korell and Smith relax at the hospital, teasing and being teased by the nurses. With a work schedule of 24 hours on duty, 24 off and 48 on call, they take their ease where they find it.

The nurses respect the two, for the ambulance personnel's work is much different for that of an ER nurse.

"We had a nurse one time," said Korell. "I asked him if he wanted to ride with us and he said sure. He lasted about seven hours, then he said no way, you've got the toughest job in the world. Out there, it scared him — he didn't have all that fancy equipment, and it gave him an entirely different perspective."

"They work in a controlled environment," said Cranford. "All we've got is what's in our head and in the ambulance."

"You'll be working on a patient and you've got three drunks telling you what to do," said Korell. "It's not usual to turn around to get something out of your kit, and you turn back and they're moving your patient."

"Yeah, the drunks always say 'I took first aid,'" Chuck says as he mimics an intoxicated pedestrian.

It's a different world out there, they agree.

"When you hire somebody, you like experience," says Korell. "They can go to school and get straight A's, but unless they've got the field work, they're no good. You've got to have that experience — the book shows you the basics, but you've got to be able to handle the situation."

Korell and Smith still have twelve hours ahead of them, even though it's midnight.

They'll handle the situation.

DRIVER — Chuck Smith, a native of Big Spring, serves as driver while he and Korell are on duty. Nicknamed "Chuckles" by Korell, Smith is shown here in the ambulance cab amidst an array of radios, switches and sirens.

them up and get them to the hospital before they die," he adds. In Big Spring, away from the pressures of combat, "the only thing we do is package them — which means that we control their bleeding, we splint them — stabilize their injuries so they're able to transport," Korell says. "Now on cardiac arrests and this kind of stuff, we do just as much as they do in the emergency room, except to start IVs. We keep them going until they get to the emergency room. There, they take over. Lots of times we work in the emergency room with them, side by side, until the patient either comes out of it or is pronounced dead."

Korell's explanation is interrupted by a call — a family on the west side of town has a sick baby. He and Chuck Smith, a compact curly-headed and bearded native of Big Spring, pile into the waiting ambulance.

All our vehicles are plenty capable of doing anything all these fancy new ones are doing in the bigger towns, and we've got the personnel trained to do it," Korell had said. Paramedics and much of the new equipment aren't really necessary because, he said, "we can get to any place in this town in a little less than four minutes. We've got five hospitals in this town — there's really no sense. Ninety percent off our calls, we can be there in the time it takes them to start an IV."

Smith makes the 454-cubic-inch Chevrolet engine moan as he floors the accelerator to the scene. The ambulance is a hybrid, according to Mark Cranford, a former Army medic on Korell's staff. The front portion of the vehicle is a 1976 version, while the rear is a 1974 style.

"They don't wear out," Korell said. "We just keep fixing them."

Shirin Chinoy is a native of India

Advancing in career meant leaving home

By TINA M. STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Shirin Chinoy fulfilled her goals of job advancement by seeking employment and education outside her native India. As a single, self-made woman, she funded all of her education, living expenses, and several application attempts for living in the United States, and trip preparations.

Today she is the supervisor of social workers in the administrative unit at Big Spring State Hospital.

Shirin came to the United States to advance her career as a social worker in 1971. "It wasn't very well accepted (in India)" she said of her profession. "It was a new concept. There were poor job conditions and very little future prospects."

Although it meant leaving her family, her parents encouraged her to live in the United States. They always wanted the best for their family and supported her decision to leave, she said.

It took several attempts, several years and a large amount of money to come to the United States. "I applied on my own to come here as a student because I wasn't sure my degrees would be equal to the degrees here," she said. "The other main reason was my love for travel and meeting other people ... understanding and grasping the problems of the culture and seeing the differences and similarities of the culture with my own ... It was the boldest step I've ever taken and I'm glad I took it. I don't regret it."

FOR THE FIRST time in 11 years, Shirin will return to India in August. In the past she never had the money or time to make the trip. Her brothers and sister have grown up, been educated, married and have children of their own now. She says she probably won't recognize them at first.

Before coming to the United States, Shirin earned a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in social work from M.S. University of Baroda in Baroda, India. She was employed as a psychiatric social worker at Baroda Mental Hospital in India while working on her masters. She also was employed as a research associate and instructor at M.S. University of Baroda until she came to the United States in 1971.

Prior to coming to Texas, she earned two master's degrees in social work and in personnel and guidance from Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, Mich. She was employed in social work positions in Grand Rapids, Mich., Cincinnati, Ohio, and Brenham.

Shirin came to Texas in 1978, worked in Brenham, then moved to Big Spring in September 1980. "I was interested in mental health agencies and wanted to live in a warmer climate like India's," she said.

As the supervisor of social workers in the Admissions Unit at Big Spring State Hospital, she oversees five to six social workers. She also is responsible for the social work aspect of the unit, for admitting clients, the clients' treatment, discharge and aftercare plans. She sees patients, conducts case work, group work, family counseling, and works with Mental Health-Mental Retardation Centers and outreach programs.

SHIRIN IS AMBITIOUS and has plans for her future. In November, she will take an exam for the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) certification into membership of the Academy of Certified Social Workers. She also plans to have her own independent social work practice someday.

Along with these goals, she wants to work up into state hospital administration. She plans to attend University of Texas at Permian Basin in Odessa in the evenings for a program in health care and hospital administration. She would like to teach social work at the university level.

Shirin has applied for state certification for Advanced Clinical Practitioner and for her United States citizenship recently. She is a member of the Altrusa Club and Business and Professional Women. She also is a member of NASW, the Texas Chapter of NASW, and the Howard County Unit of NASW of which she is secretary-treasurer.

A career in social work has provided many rewards and feelings of satisfaction to Shirin. She enjoys working with patients and their families, training and supervising social workers and seeing the day-to-day interests of the whole unit outside her social work area. She said she has felt "a sense of gratitude and fulfillment" from the appreciation and recognition she is getting from her supervisors, fellow staff, patients and families.

SOCIAL WORKER — Shirin Chinoy, supervisor of social workers at Big Spring State Hospital, is a native of India. She left her country in order to advance in her career in social work.

When asked if she would ever return to Indian permanently and resume her career there she replied, "I don't know. It depends on personal circumstances. I might at a later date, but at this time I don't plan on doing that for at least five years."

Weddings

MRS. MARK STEPHAN VASSAR
...formerly Veronda Earlene Boothe

Boothe-Vassar

The wedding vows of Veronda Earlene Boothe and Mark Stephan Vassar were solemnized Saturday evening in a ceremony in the backyard of the bride's parents home. Victor Sedinger, pastor of First Christian Church, officiated the 7:30 p.m. rite.

The wedding site was decorated with hanging basket arrangements from trees and floral arrangements floating in the pool. The walkway was lined with orchid mums and hurricane lamps with orchid candles.

Jay Lane Phinney, guitarist, Dawn Underwood, pianist, the bride, Kerry Boothe, sister of the bride, Lisa Bumgarner and Scott Underwood, all vocalists, provided music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Boothe, 2307 Brent Drive. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Duffy Vassar, 3201 Drexel.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of silk organza. The scooped neckline was accented with re-embroidered Venice lace and seed pearls. Ruffles of silk organza and silk Venice lace cascaded from the waistline into a chapel-length train. The bride wore a hat embellished with re-embroidered silk Venice lace and seed pearls with a floor-length veil edged in matching lace. For something old the bride wore her great-grandmother's gold band which has been worn by her great-grandmother at her own wedding and later worn by both the bride's grandmother and mother at their weddings. For something blue the bride wore a blue garter and for something borrowed she wore her mother's diamond earrings.

The bride carried a floral cascading bouquet of status, white roses and orchid ribbon.

Kerry Boothe, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Diane Boothe, sister of the bride, Melinda Vassar and Mindy Vassar, both sisters of the bridegroom. Misty Byram

Watkins-Smith

Kelli Watkins and Larry Smith were united in marriage Saturday evening at East 4th Baptist Church. The Rev. Carroll Kohl, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, and the Rev. Guy White, pastor, officiated the 7 p.m. rite, before an altar decorated with baskets of mixed pastel flowers and palms and emerald foliage held in tree and branch candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Watkins, 1200 Pennsylvania. Mrs. Mollie Rush, 1812 Benton, is the mother of the bridegroom.

Gail Bonner, organist, Mark Warren, Brenda Beil and Lorenda Lee, vocalists, provided music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length ivory gown of chiffon and satin. The gown featured a high neckline and V-yoke accented with silk Venice lace. Venice lace embellished the bodice. Long sleeves of imported English net accented by Venice lace ended in cuffs of Slipper Satin. The A-line skirt had an apron effect with wide lace edging and fell into a cathedral-length train. To complete her ensemble she chose a two-tiered fingertip-length veil held by a lace-covered Bandeau. For something old she wore her great-grandmother Watkins' gold locket. Connie Smith was maid of honor. Bridesmaids are Lorie Little and Jill Dunnam. Angela Watkins, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Byron Harris was best man. Groomsmen were David Altom, and Johnny Mize. Ushers were Ricky Watkins, brother of the bride, John Watkins, brother of the bride, Jimmy Jones, cousin of the bridegroom and Kyle Casey. Candlelighters were Chris Gammons, nephew of the bride, and Sarah Fangmeyer, Hebron, Neb., cousin of the bride.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is employed by Noel Hull. The bridegroom also is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Midwestern State University, Wichita Falls, and Howard College. He is self-employed. The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Lubbock couple honored with wedding shower

Regina Coker and Jackie C. Rudd, both of Lubbock, were honored with a wedding shower in the Fellowship Hall of East Fourth Street Baptist Church Tuesday evening.

Hostesses for the shower were Mrs. Reuben Hill, Mrs. H.M. Macomber, Mrs. W.L. Clayton, Mrs. Dick Davis, Mrs. J.D. Curry, Mrs. R.G. Adkins, Mrs. W.F. Harrell, Mrs. R.C. Stocks and Mrs. Floyd Dixon. Additional hostesses were Mrs. Loy Anderson, Mrs. J.J. Willingham, Mrs. H.D. Stewart Jr., Mrs. Margaret Cooper, Mrs. M.L. Kirby, Jeansette Mansfield and Mrs. Ben Hitt.

The hostesses presented the couple with a food processor and blender. The honored couple greeted guests with their mothers, Mrs. Bruce Coker of Dallas and Mrs. Billy Rudd. Other special guests were the prospective bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Mae Rudd, and his sister, Mrs. David Rhoton. Rose pink carnation and white daisy corsages were presented to the honoree and mothers.

The tables were decorated with rose pink cloths edged in white lace. The centerpiece on the refreshment table was an arrangement of pink roses in a crystal bowl, flanked by pink candles in a pink candelabrum. Other arrangements of pink roses and carnations were used around the room.

The couple will be married June 12 in Quaker Avenue Church of God, Lubbock.

Couple to celebrate 25 years

Wayne and Peggy Webb will celebrate their 25th anniversary with a reception in their home from 2-5 p.m. The celebration will be hosted by their children and all friends and relatives are invited.

The Webbs were married June 7, 1957 in Ackerly Church of Christ. Frank E. Chism, minister, officiated the ceremony. Mrs. Webb is the former Peggy Davie.

They have two children, Tammi Webb, a student at Lubbock Christian College in Lubbock, and Gary Webb, a farmer in Ackerly. The couple also have two grandchildren Laci Jean, 7 months, and Kimberly Dawn, 3.

Webb is a farmer and Mrs. Webb is a homemaker.

Wedding

Carstensen Reyna

Lisa Lynette Carstensen became the bride of Nick Reyna Saturday afternoon in a double ring ceremony at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The Rev. James P. Delaney, pastor, officiated the 2 p.m. rite before an archway decorated with pink and white carnations, gladiolus and ivy. Two tree candelabra and two arch candelabra flanked the archway, while four mixed floral arrangements were placed on each side of the altar.

Eva Mendoza, organist, Lydia Melina, Lori Marin, Lisa Leal, Marisa Thurber, and Kim Carstensen, vocalists, provided music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F.T. Carstensen, Garden City. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Reyna, 310 N.W. 9th.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of silk organza. A Queen Anne's neckline and empire bodice were embellished in Chantilly lace and seed pearls. The bishop sleeves ended in cuffs of Chantilly lace. An A-line skirt trimmed in Chantilly lace and ended fell into a chapel-length train. To complete her ensemble the bride chose a chapel-length veil of bridal illusion held by a bandeau cap of Chantilly lace and seed pearls.

The bride carried a cascading nosegay of pink and white silk roses.

Connie Nichols, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Margie Deanda was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathy Lujan, cousin of the bridegroom, Becky Gonzales, aunt of the bridegroom, Jeannie Carstensen, Garden City, sister of the bride, Junita Corrales, Dallas, sister of the bridegroom, Barbara Tatom, sister of the bridegroom, Anita Reyna, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Sonya DeLeon, sister of the bridegroom, Ramona Molina, Flora Salazar, Vivian Marin, aunt of the bridegroom and Debbie McKee. Additional bridesmaids were Patsy Reyna, Austin, cousin of the bridegroom, Crystal Roth, Alpine, Dorothy Schwartz,

Mendoza-Herrera

Gloria DeLeon Mendoza became the bride of Emilio R. Herrera in a Saturday evening ceremony in the Howard County Fair Barns. Justice of the Peace Bobby West officiated the 6 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesus A. Mendoza, 104 N.W. 4th St. The parents of the bridegroom are Sanitago R. Herrera, 306 N.E. 6th, and Mary Vincenta Herrera, 1502 Wood.

Music was provided by the band, Fiebre Nortena.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown that featured a Queen Anne's neckline. The bodice was embellished in lace and accented with seed pearls and sequins. Bishop sleeves trimmed with lace accents, seed pearls and sequins ended in deep cuffs. A full skirt fell from the waistline into a cathedral-length train. To finish her ensemble, the bride chose a cathedral-length veil edged in lace.

The bride carried a bouquet of blue and white flowers.

Dear Abby

Letters reassure folks at home

DEAR ABBY: What can parents do or say to get mail from their son or daughter in the military service? We love our son and write to him often, but we never hear from him. Of course we worry. We don't expect a literary masterpiece. A few sentences to let us know that he is well is all we want.

Abby, we know that your column appears in the Stars and Stripes and just about everybody in the service reads it, so please write a few lines addressing this problem. Thank you.

WORRIED MOM IN YORBA LINDA, CALIF.

DEAR WORRIED: How's this: Servicemen and servicewomen everywhere! Hear this: Long silences worry the folks back home, so even if you have nothing to say, please write a few lines once a week. Example: "Hi, I am alive and well. Feed the dog, kiss Grandma and send cookies."

The sight of your handwriting will make their day. Trust me.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the grandmother signed "Had Enough," who wrote about the deplorable way her daughter was raising and feeding her children. You advised her to contact social service agencies — because her daughter and son-in-law were, in fact, abusing the children. I just want to urge her to please follow through on your advice.

I was one of six children. And while we were not beaten constantly, we were abused. We lived in filth, had improper food, poor clothing, and a mother who was present but uncaring. (Our father had left us.)

I often wanted to report my home situation to the authorities, but I was young and frightened, and didn't know what happen to us if I did.

Twelve years (and two nervous breakdowns) later, I realized I'd been carrying the guilt of that impossible situation around with me ever since. I finally realized that a 13-year-old child couldn't be responsible for the situation. But what about the people who surrounded us and did nothing when they should have — especially my grandparents? They saw the negligence, and while professing to "love" us, did nothing. I see now that it wasn't love — and my anger has diminished both my love and respect for them.

So, Abby, please tell "Had Enough" even more emphatically to follow through on your advice. She'll be doing everyone in her daughter's family a favor.

FREE AT LAST IN DENVER

DEAR FREE: Fortunately, today almost every community has a hot line to report child abuse cases, and the children themselves are being taught to report any mistreatment they may suffer.

DEAR ABBY: So the sex experts say that a male reaches his sexual peak in his teens, and from then on it's downhill?

Well, I am a 21-year-old male virgin, and it's depressing to learn that I have already passed my sexual peak before I have even begun.

Fanatical fans can kick their habit

For teens who paper their walls with posters of their favorite recording star and even spend evenings at home listening to his records rather than going out with a flesh-and-blood boy, it's time to try to kick the habit, a family therapist advises.

"Teens who become heavily involved with the life of an entertainer or other personality often are afraid of relationships with real people who might reject them. So they choose, instead, to live through an idol," Bob Gardenhire stated in the magazine. While the addiction may begin simply as the result of a painful breakup with a boy friend, it can cause a teen to become so absorbed in this fantasy world that she finds it difficult to risk another "real" relationship, Gardenhire explained.

Breaking habits isn't easy, so he offered several suggestions on how teens can do it painlessly and successfully:

Equal time: try to spend as much time on yourself as you do on your idol. If you spend an hour listening to his records, then spend an hour doing something for yourself — reading or rearranging your room.

Expanding horizons: if you buy one poster of your favorite star, purchase another of someone else. Listen to new singers, or see new film stars at the movies.

"Pretty soon, real relationships will become more important than being a fan of someone you'll probably never meet," Mr. Gardenhire says.

Dr. Donohue

Divers: beware of shallow-water blackout

Dear Dr. Donohue: My older brother, who is a skin diver, was home and took me with him for some diving down at the beach. He stopped me when he saw me taking a deep breath before diving. He said skin divers don't do that, that it doesn't help. I believe him, but he couldn't explain why this hurts. Can you? — N.A.

I'll try. Your brother is right, of course. And, as a matter of fact, this is not a bad time to warn about improper breathing for skin divers just starting out. My answer to you will be my warning to them.

If you are planning to try out skin diving equipment for the first time, there are a couple of important things to know about breathing. Hopefully, you haven't already learned the lesson the hard way.

By skin diving, I mean the sport in which the swimmer uses only a viewing mask and flippers to explore underwater regions. He uses no auxiliary breathing apparatus, so his endurance is limited to his internal oxygen "tanks" — his lungs and his blood — at the time he enters the water.

It would seem logical then that the sensible thing to do is to fill up those lungs with as much air as possible before diving, by taking in huge gulps. Not so — it is a mistake common to beginners.

There are good reasons for not doing so. One relates to a fact of physiology. Blood is already loaded with oxygen, even from the casual breathing done prior to diving. It is estimated that blood always contains between 98 and 99 percent of its maximum oxygen supply.

MRS. JESS H. SLAUGHTER III
...formerly Jana Carole Wyrick

Wyrick-Slaughter

Jana Carole Wyrick became Mrs. Jess H. Slaughter III in a ceremony at Trinity Baptist Church May 28. The Rev. Claude Craven, pastor, officiated the 7 p.m. rite before an archway flanked with Boston fern and blue roses on each side. The archway was accented by two seven-branch candle spiral candelabra and blue candles.

Donna Thurman, pianist, and Steve Moses, vocalist, provided the music for the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Drue Wyrick, Gail Rt. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jess Slaughter Jr., Midkiff.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of silke organza. The Queen Anne's neckline and empire bodice were accented with Venice lace. The bishop sleeves ended in Venice lace cuffs and were accented with appliques of re-embroidered silk Venice lace. The skirt fell into a chapel-length train edged in matching lace. The finger-tip-length veil was held by a bandeau cap of re-embroidered Venice lace.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of roses in shades of blue and accented with baby's breath.

Sherri Stanley was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Carter, Lauri Madigan, and Jana Terry. Laura Wilson, Midkiff, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

John Slaughter, Houston, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsman were Craig Wyrick, brother of the bride, Jay Slaughter, Abilene, brother of the bridegroom, and Johnny Midkiff. Ushers and candlelighters were Billy Eggemeyer and Jimmy Eggemeyer, both of Midkiff and step-brothers of the bridegroom. Ring bearer was Cody Slaughter, Abilene, nephew of the bridegroom.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table held a three-tiered cake featuring a waterfall and white bells hanging between the layers. The groom's table featured a chocolate cake topped with a car.

Out-of-town guests were from Lubbock, Wellington, Ralls, Tahoka, Abilene, Odessa, Midland, Houston, Midkiff and Wheat Ridge, Colo.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is employed by OIL. The bridegroom also is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended TSTI in Sweetwater. He is employed by OIL.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Get a job at a summer resort

For those teens interested in getting away from it all, a job at a vacation resort spot can be a real dream come true. Many resorts advertise in travel magazines and newspapers, and some of the larger places hire as many as 100 extra workers for the summer for positions as waitresses, chambermaids, cooks, receptionists, lifeguards, and activities or sports counselors. Choose a job, the magazine suggests, by looking for a resort with activities that appeal to you. Since you may spend your own money traveling to and from the resort, make sure that you know what you're getting into before you get there.

LOOK WHO WON $2000 FROM COCA-COLA PLAYING PEEL-A-FORTUNE

A very happy Hope Lopez of Big Spring, Tex. exchanges her lucky Coca-Cola cash caps that spelled the word HOMERUN for a $2000.00 check from Mr. Weldon Bennett, Big Spring Coca-Cola Sales Center Manager. This picture is taken beside the Coke machines at Hall-Bennett Hospital where Mrs. Lopez purchased her 12 oz. can Coca-Cola that had the last letter Mrs. Lopez needed to complete the spelling of HOMERUN. Ever since your local Coca-Cola bottler began the Peel-A-Fortune game early this year, many of your friends and neighbors have been collecting letters of the alphabet from bottle caps and can tabs of Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, and Tab. They have been trying to spell the lucky words, HOMERUN, TOUCHDOWN, POINT, OR COKE in hopes of winning a prize or instant cash up to $2000.00 from their local Coca-Cola Bottler. Now, Mrs. Hope Lopez of Big Spring, Texas has successfully spelled the word HOMERUN in accordance with the Peel-A-Fortune rules and has become the first $2000.00 Coca-Cola instant cash winner in 1982.

You can be a winner, too. This weekend, when you stock up your summer supply of soft drinks, look for bottle caps or can tabs of Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, or Tab with $$$ on the top. Under each specially marked cap or tab is a letter of the alphabet. All you have to do is spell one of the lucky words on the game card and you can win a prize or instant cash up to $2000.00 just like Mrs. Lopez. Even if you don't spell any of the winning words, you are a winner because you have provided yourself and your family delicious, refreshing Coca-Cola or its allied brands of Mr. Pibb or Tab. Coca-Cola ... the #1 selling soft drink in Big Spring and the Permian Basin. Coca-Cola ... the one others try to challenge or compare themselves to, whether they are number 2 or 27. Coca-Cola ... the one others want to be when they grow up ... The Real Thing. Coca-Cola ... the one everyone associates with a winner. Just ask any of the following $1000.00 winners in last years Coca-Cola instant cash contest: Royce Brooks, Roberto Garcia, Forrest Ward, Ken Lenoir, all of Abilene, Charlotte Davis of Hawley, Zeke Davila of Colorado City, Eddie Lou Phernetton of Coahoma, RUSSELL WALKER AND MRS. REX C. TALBOTT OF BIG SPRING, Mrs. Gene Bishop of Midland, Tony Gallegas of Lamesa, Shannon Ash and Gustavo Hernandez of O'Donnell, Rob Baize and Dale Bradley of Lubbock, Larry Dearing of Hereford, John Barbee of Dublin, or Johnny Matthews and Harry Shapiro of Breckenridge, Texas.

No purchase necessary. Just look for game cards and details where your stop for Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, and Tab. So play Peel-A-Fortune with Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb or Tab who knows ... you could be a $2000.00 instant cash winner ... just like Hope Lopez.

Wedding

MRS. JOHN BLANTON MCKISKI
...formerly Bonnie Kallio

Kallio-McKiski

Bonnie Kallio and John Blanton McKiski were united in marriage during a Saturday morning ceremony held at Trinity University in San Antonio. The Rev. Chris Jones, pastor of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, officiated the 11 a.m. rite before an altar decorated with candelabra and fern.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Kallio of Albuquerque, N.M. Parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Wendell E. McKiski.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length gown of ivory organza with Venice lace. The gown featured an empire bodice and butterfly sleeves. The A-line skirt fell from the empire waistline into a chapel-length train edged with a border. A fingertip-length veil fell from a wreath of silk apple blossoms and baby's breath.

Janice Foster of Denton served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mickie Fletcher, Marcella Parker and Karon Voyles of Austin.

William Gant of Abilene was best man. Groomsman were Dennis Bowman of Harlingen, Joby Reed of San Antonio and Bill Wallas of Dallas. Ushers were Glen Kallio of Salt Lake City, Utah, brother of the bride, and Eric Heidhausen of Saugerties, N.Y.

Following the ceremony the couple was feted with a reception at Bright Shawl in San Antonio. Guests were served a luncheon buffet. The bride's cake was a white cake with pineapple filling decorated with fresh flowers. The bridegroom's cake was a German chocolate cake.

The bride is a graduate of Charter Oak High School in Covina, Calif. and Texas Woman's University in Denton. She is a dental hygienist for Dr. John Key, D.D.S.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Marine Military Academy in Harlingen and American Technological University in Killeen. He is a professional pilot.

Following a wedding trip to San Antonio, New Orleans, and the Bahamas, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM T. McREE
...celebrate 50 years of marriage

McRees celebrate golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William T. McRee, 1906 Morrison, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary with a family dinner June 12 and a church reception June 13 from 2-4 p.m. in the parlor of First Baptist Church.

Hosting the occasion will be their children.

McRee, originally from Munday, met Mrs. McRee, the former Janetta Frowe, on a blind date while they were students at University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kan. They were married April 17, 1932 in the Delta Zeta Sorority House, Lawrence, Kan. The Rev. Dr. Theodore Azman, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, in Lawrence, officiated the ceremony.

The McRees have three children. They are Nancy McRee, of St. Louis Mo., Mrs. W.R. (Sharon) Cregar, and Mrs. W.E. Droke of Santa Fe, N.M. The couple also have seven grandchildren.

The McRees have lived in Hobbs, Roswell, and Carlsbad, all in New Mexico, and Gruver, Beaumont and Big Spring during their marriage.

McRee is a retired scout executive with the Boy Scouts of America and Mrs.

Pointers for pickling season

It is that season of the year when questions concerning pickling are being asked daily.

The following is a basic review of some of the essentials of making good pickles.

For utensil, use stainless steel, aluminum, or glass utensils.

Jars should be free of cracks and chips to be assured of a good seal. Use metal bands in good condition. Metal lids with sealing compound care used only once. Wash jars in hot soapy water and rinse well. Fill jars while they are hot to 1/4 inch of top. The jars are sterilized in the waterbath process.

Some essential points to making good pickles:

1. If you are in an area where the water is particularly hard and/or alkaline, it is best to use

2. Always water bath pickled products. Many people feel this is what causes pickles to be soft; however, just the opposite is true. The water bath treatment is a mild heat treatment designed to destroy spoilage organisms and inactivate enzymes. Processing beyond recommended time may lead to softness in the product.

3. Calcium chloride can be added to improve texture. Use 1/4 teaspoon per pint or 1/2 teaspoon per quart. Your local druggist should be able to get this for you.
4. Use only pickling salt. Table salt has anticaking agents which may cause cloudiness of the brine.
5. Pickle your products the same day they are picked. This is very important.
6. Be sure to use at least 1/2 cup of undiluted vinegar (5 percent acetic acid, 50 grain) per quart of pickles. 100 grain (10 percent acetic acid) vinegar should be reduced to 50 grain by mixing it half and half with water.

7. Be sure you are using a pickling variety cucumber and not a salad type. Avoid using waxed fruits.

I hope that these tips will help answer some of your questions, should you have more questions please feel free to call me at 267-1821.

BEAUTY KNOW
Joyce

Question: What can be done about dry patches on my skin?

Answer: We have a new product containing elastin, to enrich the skin so that tone, elasticity and overall beauty of the skin are improved. It actually helps retain and restore its most desirable moisture level. Its ingredients are especially beneficial for treatment of aging and damaged skin. This product self adjusts to any skin type, dry or oily. Use Luxiva Collagen Support at night and under makeup.

Beginning June 10th, I will be open until 8:00 on Thursday nights.
