MARGY THOMPSON

Longtime interest in young people led her to juvenile probation job

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

An interest in young people first led Margy Thompson into the juvenile probation field and that interest continues to make her job an enjoyable one. Mrs. Thompson was appointed Howard County juvenile probation officer by the county juvenile probation board on April 19, 1982.

"I wanted to work with kids long before I ever heard of the juvenile probation office," Mrs. Thompson said. "I think the very earliest was in junior high that social work was it." Her first experience working with children in the juvenile probation field came in the late 1960's, Mrs. Thompson said.

An assistant juvenile probation officer position in El Paso gave Mrs. Thompson invaluable experience in the field. "Our caseload would run about 60 to 80 every month. I also had all the girls from TYC (Texas Youth Council). I had the 100th ward, a rough and poor area of town. I enjoyed the work," Mrs. Thompson said.

After getting a college degree in the early 1970s, Mrs. Thompson and husband, Jack, moved to Big Spring in 1977. She worked at the Big Spring State Hospital, as a training coordinator for nursing homes and briefly with the county's parole office. Working with parolees showed Mrs. Thompson that her place was with young people.

"I didn't have anything to offer adult offenders — I didn't appreciate their problems," Mrs. Thompson said. "I wasn't able to help them so neither of us benefited."

The average juvenile who meets Mrs. Thompson is referred to her by either the police or the schools. "I pick up reports every day at the police department," Mrs. Thompson said. The basic problem areas for juvenile offenders in Big Spring are thefts, burglaries, truancies and runaways, Mrs. Thompson said.

Just because a child has been picked up for an offense does not mean probation or a trip to TYC, Mrs. Thompson said. "There may be two with the same offense, but they will be handled differently. I do what is best for the child in the long run," she said.

Parents are one of the principal influences in causing, however indirectly, and correcting juvenile behavior, according to Mrs. Thompson. "Most parents handle the growing-up age — some don't. Surprisingly, it's usually the caring parents who appear to be stricter, whether a lack of trust or terrible concern. The dating age is a problem," Mrs. Thompson said.

Getting the young adults and their families talking again is a primary aim of the juvenile probation officer, according to Mrs. Thompson. "Children and parents get where they are no longer able to communicate," Mrs. Thompson said. The result is sometimes a runaway, usually female, she said.

"I have got to get them back to where they can talk to one another," Mrs. Thompson said. "I talk to the child first — I'm here for the child primarily. I try to motivate them to try again to tell the parents what the problem is."

If the problem persists, Mrs. Thompson then calls in the juvenile along with the family. Getting both parties to listen is the main goal, she said. "Both can't be right," Mrs. Thompson said. "In many cases, it is the juvenile who is willing to change."

City officials to discuss funeral escort alternatives

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

The funeral escort service provided by off-duty Big Spring policemen, recently criticized by Pastor Claude Craven of Trinity Baptist Church, will be reviewed by city officials at tomorrow night's city council meeting.

Craven went before the council May 25 to complain that the motorcycle escort provided by off-duty policemen at the head of funeral processions is not visible enough to motorists and has led to some near-accidents.

"Before we have a wreck, something needs to be done about this situation," Craven told the council. "People just cannot see that little motorcycle."

Assistant City Manager Paul Feazelle, in a memo to the council, said the "staff has been studying the present funeral escort arrangement" to find "suitable alternatives."

There are presently four men conducting the funeral escorts, according to a memo from Sgt. Dave Spillman, and they are willing to make modifications to improve vehicle visibility at their own expense if the existing service is continued.

Feazelle named other alternatives including the purchase of an additional vehicle to be used exclusively for escort service. The cost of the vehicle would be approximately $12,000, according to Feazelle, with the initial cost possibly recovered in four years.

City officials said the change from using patrol cars to motorcycles was made last January because police no longer could afford to tie up a patrol car with a funeral procession when the cars were needed for police work.

The council agenda also includes a proposal by Ron Broadrick of Hexagon Buildings, Inc. requesting Hexagon lease land at the Big Spring Airpark and construct hangars for lease to tenants for a period of 30 years and then revert the facility to the city.

Other agenda items are an award bid on utility billing statements, a Planning and Zoning Board appointment and discussion of a proposed ordinance to prohibit the consumption of alcoholic beverages on public property during certain hours.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow in Big Spring City Hall, Fourth and Nolan. The meeting is open to the public.

Israeli attacks continue; U.S. Embassy in Beirut hit

By The Associated Press

Israel's invading army besieged major Palestinian guerrilla strongholds in southern Lebanon today and said it thrust within 25 miles of Beirut after a pre-dawn assault captured the Crusader-built fortress that was an artillery base for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"The Israeli flag now flies from Beaufort," Israel radio quoted an unidentified commander as saying, referring to Beaufort Castle. The radio said the force fought hand-to-hand to capture the castle.

In Beirut, at least two rockets hit the U.S. Embassy. A spokeswoman for the State Department in Washington, Carolyn Johnson, said the embassy was damaged but there were no casualties. She said there was "no indication" who was responsible for the attack.

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., en route to Rome, told reporters that his information corroborated the Israeli claim. But the Palestinian Wafa news agency denied the Israelis had taken Beaufort, and a U.N. spokesman said he could not confirm the capture.

In Israel, U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib arrived overnight on a peace mission amid fears the fighting would escalate despite Israeli claims the massive assault had the limited aim of driving the Palestinians northward out of artillery range of Israel.

A major risk of the Israeli invasion was that it might lead to full-scale fighting with the 30,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon.

Israel invaded southern Lebanon in 1978, capturing 500 square miles of southern Lebanon in an attempt to clear the area of PLO forces. The Israelis withdrew after 91 days, but guerrillas soon moved back into the region despite the presence of U.N. peacekeeping troops.

Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, the top Israeli military officer, was quoted on Israel radio as saying his troops had thrust north to take a zone on the Lebanese coast north of Sidon, about 25 miles south of Beirut. Israeli military analyst Haim Herzog, a former brigadier general, said the thrust was an effort to create "a pocket that would block all PLO forces in southern Lebanon."

PLO communiques and U.N. spokesmen said Israeli tanks ringed Palestinian enclaves at the port city of Tyre on the Mediterranean. The PLO said Israeli forces had pushed into the inland market town of Nabatiyeh and "hand-to-hand combat is raging in the streets."

Western correspondents along the easternmost prong of the 33-mile invasion front reported that dozens of mud-camouflaged Israeli trucks were seen streaming north into the Bekaa Valley, where Syria has SAM-6 anti-aircraft missile batteries.

POPE LISTENS TO REAGAN — Pope John Paul II listens as President Reagan delivers remarks during their meeting in the Papal Library in the Vatican on Monday.

day. Reagan said the main purpose of his tour of Europe was to seek peace.

President meets pope Reagan on 'pilgrimage for peace'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — President Reagan, declaring himself on a "pilgrimage for peace," met today with Pope John Paul II at the midpoint of a European tour shadowed by warfare in the Middle East and the Falkland Islands.

The pope urged the United States to "step forward at this crucial moment in history to consolidate her rightful place at the service of world peace."

For 50 minutes the pope and Reagan met alone in the 16th century papal library, talking across a simple wooden desk, each man sitting on a high-backed velvet chair.

Then, in a nationally televised exchange of statements with the pope, Reagan noted he was visiting Europe for the first time as president and said, "I would like to think of it as a pilgrimage for peace, a journey aimed at strengthening the forces for peace in the free West by offering new opportunities for realistic negotiations."

Reagan said he came away from the meeting "with renewed sense of hope and dedication." "We seek the same goals of peace, freedom and humanity that the church pursues," Reagan said. He spoke of conflict in Latin America and the Middle East, and called Poland a "martyred nation" that had been a "bastion of freedom."

Reagan called for an end to martial law in Poland, freedom for political prisoners and renewed talks between the government and Solidarity.

The pontiff, speaking in English, said peace depends on farsighted world leaders working for human rights and an end to the arms race.

He cited "centers of acute tension" in the Falklands, the Iran-Iraq war and "now the grave crisis provoked by the new events in Lebanon."

Reagan also met with American seminarians at the Vatican, and was greeted with thunderous applause.

Flying here from an economic summit at Versailles, France, Reagan told reporters he was waiting for a report from his Middle East special envoy, Philip Habib, before making further moves to stop the fighting in Lebanon. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the United States was "dismayed by the spiral of violence," but he did not single out Israel for particular criticism in the wake of its drive into southern Lebanon.

Haig also revealed that Reagan had sent a new message — his second — to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, informing him of Habib's mission and "urging him to see him promptly."

After their arrival at the Vatican, Mrs. Reagan, changed from a black and white summer dress to an ankle-length black gown, with black pillbox hat and veil for her audience with the pope.

Both the president and the pope were targets of assassination attempts last year, but Reagan said that would not be a topic of their conversations. "No," he said, "that would not be a happy subject."

Elderly man kills wife to end her suffering

QUINLAN, Texas (AP) — An elderly man left meticulous instructions for his funeral arrangements and asked neighbors to care for his lawn before he shot and killed his crippled wife and then critically wounded himself with a shotgun, authorities said.

Lee Roy McCree, 76, left a note saying he wanted to end his wife's misery after a long battle with a spinal disease before he shot her at least six times with a .22-caliber pistol as she lay in her bed early Sunday, a Hunt County sheriff's spokesman said.

McCree then walked to his front yard with a short-barrel shotgun and shot himself three times as neighbors watched in horror. When neighbors reached the wounded man, said Betty Finstad, he asked three men to take the gun and shoot him again.

McCree was in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Citizen's General Hospital in Greenville Sunday after undergoing surgery for shotgun wounds in his left arm and chest. His 74-year-old, bed-ridden wife Grace Kendall McCree was pronounced dead at the scene.

In the suicide note McCree left for police on the kitchen table, he "asked the Lord to forgive him and stated that this was a mercy killing because "Kids are easier to give in and change rather than the parents," Mrs. Thompson said.

Some parents want the juvenile probation officer to "talk to a kid and scare them," Mrs. Thompson said. "I never tell them (juveniles) anything that isn't true, no bluff. I tell them what can happen." Some parents also fail to notice possible problems like juvenile burglaries.

"I've seen a lot of burglaries and some parents are not paying attention. They should see something's wrong with bringing home TVs, stereos and things," Mrs. Thompson said.

The important thing for juveniles is timing, if one wants to make effective changes, Mrs. Thompson said. "You get a kid young enough and you can turn a kid around. Problems are easier to handle at the onset than at their worst."

The use of imprisonment is not a method of dealing with problem juveniles favored by Mrs. Thompson. "No kid really benefits from jail," she said. One item favored by the juvenile officer is the development of a juvenile detention center for the county, for more than one reason.

The Texas Juvenile Probation Commission has indicated that by 1985, juveniles will no longer be able to be kept in city or county jails, even if jail standards are met. Funding for a detention center could come from the commission itself, Mrs. Thompson said. "We could probably get $20,000," she noted.

The center would need a couple on call for 24 hours in a facility with a secured outdoor area, a kitchen and possibly medical care, Mrs. Thompson said. Teachers would also be needed. "Kids out of school, for truancy or whatever, wouldn't lose any school," she said.

Mrs. Thompson said every agency she had contacted had been very helpful, especially Det. Pat Dunham of the Big Spring Police and Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard. "This county is very fortunate everybody works together," she said.

For the office to be effective, Mrs. Thompson said she has to be available for parents and kids to call at home as well as the office. When she does manage to get away from work, Mrs. Thompson hits the golf course — "I love golf," she says.

Although her husband Jack is an attorney in Big Spring, no conflict would ever arise since he would never represent a juvenile. Despite their busy jobs, the couple, who have a daughter attending Texas Tech, do not have any scheduling problems.

"I enjoy my job. When you enjoy something, it's not like going to work," Mrs. Thompson said.

Strong earthquake shakes south Mexico; damage light

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A strong earthquake shook central and southern Mexico early today, littering some of Mexico City's streets with broken glass and cutting off power to parts of the capital. But there were no immediate reports of casualties or major damage.

A second tremor rocked the capital about four hours after the initial quake, residents said. There were no reports of casualties or damage.

The Tacubaya seismograph station said the first tremor at 12:53 a.m. (2:53 a.m. EDT) had a magnitude of 6.5 on the Richter scale and was centered on the Pacific coast 248 miles southwest of Mexico City, in the states of Oaxaca and Guerrero. There were no figures available for the second jolt.

The U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Center in Golden, Colo., estimated the magnitude at 6.9 on the Richter scale, nearly a major quake.

A police spokesman in Oaxaca reported by telephone that the quake was "a little strong" but there were no reports of serious damage. He said the first shock was followed by a lesser one about 10 minutes later.

"The first was strong and the second slower," he said.

A Red Cross spokesman in Oaxaca said he had no reports of damage.

"Everything is calm," he said.

Supreme Court won't halt intrastate gas regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to halt federal regulation of prices for natural gas that never leaves the producing state.

The court turned away, without comment, arguments by Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and an Oklahoma-based oil company that such federal regulation is invalid when applied to natural gas that never enters interstate commerce.

At stake, as is usually the case in legal battles over pricing controls, are natural gas costs to consumers.

An issue is a 1978 law passed by Congress, the National Gas Policy Act.

Congress first moved to regulate the natural gas industry in 1938, but federal regulation was limited to the transportation and sale of natural gas in interstate commerce.

Wholly intrastate gas — that which was produced, sold and consumed within one state — was not regulated under the 1938 law. That resulted generally in higher prices for intrastate gas.

The energy crunch of the 1970s moved Congress to act again, especially because gas producers had a financial incentive to sell in intrastate markets — causing natural gas shortages in non-producing states.

The 1978 law was aimed at encouraging production and exploration of new natural gas sources and maintaining adequate interstate market supplies.

In part, the law established price ceilings for all first "wellhead" sales of natural gas, whether interstate or intrastate.

Mercy killing

he wanted to take his wife out of misery," Sheriff's Cpl. Richard Hill said.

Hill said McCree left police a list of relatives and their phone numbers and instructions for the couple's burial, including the names and phone numbers of the florist and funeral home along with his note.

Neighbors described the McCrees as friendly people who always shared their home-grown vegetables with residents of this rural community about 30 miles east of Dallas.

"They were the best little old couple I ever knew," said Mrs. Finstad, who lives across the street from the McCree's frame house near Lake Tawakoni.

McCree's best friend, Lonnie Barringer, said that when he found the retired master plumber lying wounded at about 7:30 a.m. in his front yard, he asked Barringer to take the shotgun and shoot him to "finish the job." Authorities were not sure why McCree shot himself with a different weapon.

"He left me a note wanting me to take care of his garden and grass and left $140," Barringer said. "He just said that he couldn't stand to see her suffer and he wanted to end it."

Mrs. Finstad, who runs a corner grocery store next to her mobile home, said McCree's health was worsening and "he knew he couldn't leave her and go to the hospital so he just decided to end it."

She said she heard a shot but thought McCree was just trying to shoot some snakes in his yard.

"A few minutes later came a second shot and I looked out the front door and I just couldn't believe what I saw. I never imagined Mr. McCree would shoot himself," she said.

Mrs. Finstad said that while neighbors waited for an ambulance, McCree asked to be shot again.

"His whole guts were blown open but he was still alert and talking. He knew he was alive and he asked three men to finish it for him," she said.

Barringer said he visited the couple Saturday night and "they both seemed fine."

"He gave me a house key and said it was in case he wasn't there to check on the house," Barringer said. "He (McCree) thought maybe she (his wife) might have to go to the hospital soon."

Civil suits totaling $48,000 filed

Two suits have been filed in 118th District Court seeking over $48,000 in damages. A.N. Henry and Colleen Henry of Big Spring are suing J. Ann Smith and Ronnie Smith for nonpayment of a debt resulting from the sale of a business. In the second suit, Charles C. Briggs is seeking damages for injuries he alleges he suffered at the Big Spring establishment, the Green House.

The Henrys' suit against the Smiths states that on May 1, 1982, the retail liquor business-Red Top and Blue Top Stores — was sold to the Smiths via written contract for $28,000. The suit alleges the defendants did not honor the contract and demands the full purchase price plus $20,000 in exemplary damages. The plaintiffs are represented by Robert D. Miller.

Briggs is seeking damages from Lee Harris, the Green House, and the general partnership of Harris and Don Lusk. The suit states Harris "intentionally and recklessly pushed or shoved plaintiff over the proch railing at the aforesaid Green House thereby causing bodily injury to plaintiff."

Briggs is represented by Randall Patterson. Briggs has requested a trial by jury.

One dead, three hurt in Freeport shooting

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) — A 46-year-old man was being held in lieu of bond here in connection with a shooting spree in a bar that left one person dead and three others wounded.

Police arrested Bennie Ray Waldrop, last known address in Clute, after he allegedly left the Cozy Lounge in Freeport, returned and began firing at four patrons he "had words" with Saturday evening, a police spokesman said.

Officers said 12 shots were fired with a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle.

Waldrop was charged with one count of murder and three counts of aggravated assault after the shooting at 8 p.m. Justice of the Peace Harold Annons ordered Waldrop held on bonds totaling $65,000.

Johnny B. Goodwin, 36, of Oyster Creek, Texas was dead on arrival at the Community Hospital of Brazosport after being shot four times with .22-caliber bullets, police said.

Goodwin's common law wife, Carol Wilder, 41, was treated and released from Community Hospital of Brazosport for a wound in her right arm.

Comanche Peak hearing opens today

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Atomic Safety and Licensing Board opens a hearing here today on a request for licensing of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant at Glen Rose.

The three-member panel is expected to conduct the hearing for about a week.

Junia Ellis, president of the Citizens Action for Sound Energy, a group opposed to licensing the nuclear plant, said the hearing represents "really the last big chance to fight the granting of the operating license" for the power plant.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has ruled that the plant can be operated safely, but the license must be granted by the U.S. Atomic Safety and Licensing Board. The three panel members who will conduct the hearing here include a lawyer, a safety expert and an environmental expert.

Comanche Peak, located about 80 miles southwest of Dallas and operated by Texas Utilities Generating Corp., hopes to receive the operating license by the end of the year.

Jim Mattox says he won the Democratic nomination for Texas attorney general because of hard work and the kind of supporters who vote in runoffs. John Hannah says his loss boils down to time and money, too little of both.

Regardless, Mattox is looking forward to November. "You know, we haven't ever had a Republican attorney general and I don't think we're going to have one now," the 38-year-old Dallas congressman said in an interview Sunday.

Mattox captured 51.3 percent of the vote in Saturday's runoff election to defeat Hannah, a 42-year-old former U.S. attorney in Tyler. Mattox goes against Republican Bill Meier of Eules in November's general election.

In the runoff for the Democratic nomination for land commissioner, Austin lawyer Garry Mauro defeated state Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland and will face Republican Woody Glasscock in November.

Mauro, rebounding from a second-place finish in the May 1 primary that resulted in Saturday's runoff, won 53.4 percent of the vote. Mauro, 34, attributed the victory to endorsements from the men who finished third and fourth May 1.

The other two statewide Democratic runoffs Saturday were for nominations to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Austin lawyer Charles Campbell captured 52.6 percent of the vote to defeat Dallas lawyer John Humphreys for the Place 1 nomination. The Republicans do not have a candidate for that judicial seat.

The Place 2 election now pits Chuck Miller against Republican Ray Moses. Miller, a Dallas County Criminal Court judge, won 53.3 percent of the votes Saturday to win the nomination in a contest against state District Judge Bill Black of Belton.

The turnout Saturday did not even reach the very light 8 percent predicted by Secretary of State David Dean. The Republicans had no statewide runoffs, but did have runoffs in three congressional districts and two state Board of Education districts. The Democrats had three congressional runoffs and legislative runoffs also were held.

The Democrats would have had two other statewide runoffs but the runners-up withdrew. Attorney General Mark White won the gubernatorial nomination when Buddy Temple quit, and the nomination for treasurer went to Ann Richards when incumbent Treasurer Warren Harding pulled out.

Mauro won 295,170 votes Saturday, or 51.3 percent, compared with Hannah's 279,966 votes, or 48.7 percent, with 5,606 of 5,609 precincts reporting.

Hannah pointed out Sunday that Mattox's margin of victory slipped from seven percentage points May 1 — 36 percent to 29 percent in a four-way race — to less than three Saturday.

"It was a question I think of having a little more money and more time to campaign," Hannah said.

"Basically I got outspent two to one in the runoff," he said. "I didn't have as much TV and money as he did."

Hannah reported spending $118,819 in the April 22 to May 26 reporting period. Mattox reported expenditures of $245,155.

But Mattox had a different appraisal during an interview Sunday.

"I think that just in the end we managed to a little bit outwork them," Mattox said, also noting endorsements by 40 organizations "from one end of the Democratic Party to the other. I think they were the kind of educated voters that got out and voted on election day and made the difference."

Mattox predicted he "will easily be the choice" of the voters in his November contest against Meier, who until a year ago was a Democrat. Meier was unopposed in the May 1 GOP primary.

In the land commissioner runoff, Mauro, former executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, won 297,328 votes, or 53.4 percent, to Snelson's 259,505, or 46.6 percent, with 5,606 precincts reporting.

Mauro said a key factor in his victory "was the endorsement and the hard work" of state Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale and Paducah farmer George Fore, who finished third and fourth May 1.

But Snelson said it was a matter of Mauro having a more experienced campaign organization.

"I think it's just a case of they did a better job of getting their voters back to the polls in the urban areas," Snelson said Sunday.

Among the losers in congressional runoffs Saturday was Dallas lawyer Kay Bailey Hutchison, wife of former Texas GOP Chairman Ray Hutchison. Former Dallas City Councilman Steve Bartlett, 33, defeated her for the 3rd District Republican nomination and now faces Democrat James McNeese Jr.

Runoffs also were held in the 25th and 27th districts, two of the three districts created by Texas' population growth in the 1980 census.

The runoffs set up a 25th District general election contest between Houston lawyer Mike Faubion, 31, and Mike Andrews, 38.

In the Democratic runoff in the 27th District, Nueces County Sheriff Solomon P. Ortiz, 45, defeated jeweler Joe Salem, 60, of Corpus Christi. The Republican nominee is Jason Luby.

SITTING AND WAITING — A group of heavily armed Argentine soldiers relax on the Falklands while British troops await go-ahead for an assault on the Falkland Islands capitol of Stanley.

British troops still poised for assault on capitol city

By The Associated Press

With a heavy fog finally lifting and fresh troops arriving, British forces are ready to launch an assault on the Falkland Islands capital of Stanley "within hours," according to British correspondents at the battle front.

The British spent Sunday consolidating their grip around the town and probing Argentine defenses, according to the dispatches.

On Saturday, for the first time in several days, the correspondents said, the dense, chill fog lifted enough to give them a look at the town, defended by an estimated 7,000 Argentine troops. The British forces, augmented by fresh troops arriving from the beachhead at Port San Carlos, 50 miles from Stanley, number about 8,000.

The weather in the Falklands has been miserable, with high winds, freezing temperatures and driving rain making operations difficult. Correspondent Alastair McQueen of London's Daily Standard reported that supply helicopters had to grope their way across the island with crewmen hanging out the doors to keep sight of the tail lights of the helicopter in front of them.

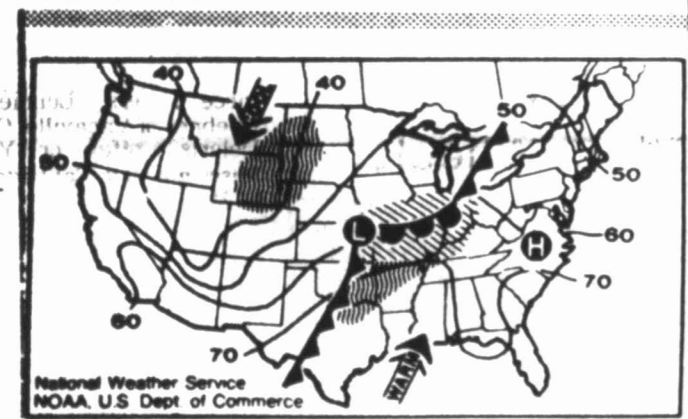

With the weather improving somewhat, British planes on Sunday dropped more leaflets on Argentine positions urging the troops to surrender. The Argentines responded with sporadic, poorly aimed artillery fire, according to the British reports. Argentina said its air force and gunners at Stanley bombed, strafed and shelled the British, but the British Defense Ministry was not giving out any information about operations in the Falklands.

Independent Television News correspondent Michael Nicholson reported that the British forces were already carrying out "extraordinarily daring operations" which, if successful, "will bring an end to the war that much closer." He gave no details due to military censorship.

An Argentine communique reported a clash with British marines west of Stanley, and said the British forces were routed. The Argentines said they suffered no casualties from British artillery fire.

At least 18 killed in Northeast flooding

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A storm that dropped up to 11 inches of rain on southern New England washed out dams and bridges, tore houses off foundations and sent up to 12 feet of water through towns. Authorities said at least 18 people died.

At least nine deaths occurred in Connecticut, two in Massachusetts and seven in Rhode Island, officials said. The most severe problems were reported in Ivoryton, Conn., where two dams on the Fall River burst Sunday, releasing a wall of water that washed away four houses and several cars.

"It looked like a tidal wave," said Christopher L. wey, who lives on Main Street. "It was like a white wave covering everything."

The heavy rain, which began Friday, began to taper off today.

Rocks shifted in the center of a dam near Leominster, Mass., as rain fell, but the dam held and waters were receding.

Helicopters and six-wheeled military vehicles were used to rescue stranded residents as a high-pressure system to the north kept the storm bottled up over the Atlantic Coast all weekend.

"The damage is tremendous in many towns," said Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill, who declared a state of emergency.

Coastal areas of Connecticut near Ivoryton were cut off by flooding streams and marshes, and streets and highways were lined with cars stalled by flooded engines.

In Massachusetts, the weather service said about 2.35 inches of rain fell Sunday. The Boston-area Metropolitan District Commission reported pumping millions of gallons out of the Charles River between Watertown and Charlestown to keep it from overflowing.

President stands behind James Baker

Conservatives hoping to dump Reagan aide

DALLAS (AP) — Several conservative Republican leaders will be bringing their campaign to have White House chief of staff James A. Baker III fired to Dallas Tuesday, a newspaper report says.

Houston attorney Clymer Wright has invited key figures in the "Dump Baker" campaign to a Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport hotel Tuesday despite a personal plea from President Ronald Reagan to end anti-Baker efforts, the Dallas Morning News said Sunday.

Wright — Reagan's 1980 Texas campaign finance chairman and a long-time Reagan supporter — received a blistering letter from Reagan two weeks ago urging him to stop his criticism of the president's aide.

Wright could not be reached Sunday to confirm plans for the meeting.

A growing number of conservative Republicans have been urging Reagan to fire Baker, who they claim is undermining the president's economic programs and presenting a negative image of Reagan.

In a letter sent to the president's supporters several weeks ago, Wright charged that Baker helped portray Reagan as "an amiable, uninformed, lazy and slightly confused politician ... a far cry from the genuine, courageous statesman we know Ronald Reagan to be."

Baker, also a Houston native, ran Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign.

The newspaper quoted a Tarrant County Republican who was invited to Tuesday's meeting as saying: "Clymer is pursuing this because of his great love for the President and his concern that the president get the right advice."

Reagan urged Wright not to join the "Dump Baker" effort and said in a letter to Wright: "There has not been one single instance of Jim Baker doing anything but what I settle as our policy."

Conservative Caucus national director Howard Phillips will be the featured speaker at Tuesday's strategy session, the newspaper said.

Sources told the newspaper that direct-mail organizer and Conservative Digest publisher Richard Viguerie, who has been critical of Baker, declined to attend the meeting.

The Sioux Indian War began in 1862 when forces under Chief Little Crow massacred whites at Yellow Medicine, Minn.

Texas farmers reeling from weather losses

SULPHUR BLUFF, Texas (AP) — State officials and agriculture economists are worried that Texas farmers will not be able to weather the hardship that spring's torrential rains and high winds brought.

In May, heavy rains damaged or ruined 4,000 acres of wheat, 1,000 acres of soybeans, 500 acres of corn and 90 acres of rice, said Jim Scharlach, who manages the 17,000-acre NV International Farms Inc. near this Northeast Texas town.

Some Texas farmers face potential bankruptcy as a result of the beating crops have taken, and one county, Willacy in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, has filed for federal disaster assistance.

"This is the largest disaster I've ever seen," Scharlach said. "I would estimate we lost $1.25 million on this farm."

Weather damage has sown disaster for crops in almost all areas of the state — from cotton in the Panhandle to melons in the semi-tropical Valley.

Carl Anderson, an agriculture economist at Texas A&M University in College Station, said the lost revenue from damaged crops will push some farmers to the brink of bankruptcy because they are already being pinched financially by high interest rates.

"The weather could have the net effect of adding one more little straw that might break the camel's back," Anderson said.

"... There are going to be some severe problems for those who have had their crops destroyed or severely damaged," Anderson said. "Any losses that they have will certainly aggravate their overall financial condition."

Jim Vollmer, an emergency loan officer with the Farmers Home Administration in Washington, said farmers in a few counties may receive government assistance, but others will be left without a federal cent.

Prices in the supermarkets should remain relatively stable, Anderson said. Consumers will have to pay a little more for some items, particularly Valley melons and tomatoes, said Loretta Ewart, a spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Agriculture in Austin.

"There may be some shortage of melons," she said, "and any shortage affects price." Officials said they do not expect shortages of wheat, corn or soybeans because of surpluses of the crops already in storage.

But this spring's punishing weather will leave a scar on the coming growing season, said William Braden of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M.

"The only person who's really hurt right now is the farmer himself because he's going to have to spend more time to get his crops in," Braden said.

"Also, if the crop is late, it won't be as far along," he said. "If the weather turns relatively hot and dry, it's going to be harder on these crops."

Scharlach looked across 500 acres of flooded grain.

"This field would've made 50 bushels an acre of wheat," he said.

Nursing home standards needed

It was only a couple of months ago that Richard Schweiker, the secretary of Health and Human Services, said health and safety standards at nursing homes would not be relaxed. Now the department is saying it wants to take quite a different course; it proposes to cut back on inspections, largely relying instead on a home's record of past compliance.

More specifically, the proposal would drop the requirement for an annual inspection of the nation's 18,000 nursing homes that have Medicare and Medicaid patients. It also would abandon the rule that inspectors return within 90 days to check whether problems they detected have been dealt with.

This is portrayed as a more flexible policy, but it is plainly a retreat from even the present inadequate level of efforts to maintain decent standards. Though many nursing homes measure up, notorious abuses have come to light in others. To relax enforcement of standards would be unfair to a multitude of old, sick men and women with little power to help themselves.

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

Hero hunt

The other day I ran across an article buried in the back pages of U.S. News and World Report about heroes. A respected professor was talking about America's need for hero-types and hero-type influence. He said the American society needs universal heroes to establish values and beliefs to keep it lashed together in these trying times.

It was the first time in quite a while that I had seen anything written on the subject of heroes. They just aren't talked about anymore because there doesn't seem to be any I, myself, can't name one universal hero that all of America looks up to. John Wayne might have been the last of that breed, and even he was more of a mythical hero than a "flesh and blood" hero.

Bob Hope might qualify, but I think he appeals more to older Americans than he does to the youth.

TAKE A LOOK around and think for a minute other than regional or small-scale heroes there just aren't any larger than life people to look up to.

How about the area of politics and the military where heroes traditionally have been spawned? There haven't been any MacArthurs, Trumans or John Kennedys lately.

In the movie industry there are characters like Indiana Jones in "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and Superman, but these are just characters and the actor portraying Superman does not have hero status.

The professor in USN&WR said that even though we might consider these character heroes universal, they remain unreal and people cannot emulate them. For example we don't have Superman's strength and couldn't save the world from nuclear attack like he could. It seems we need real-life heroes to pattern ourselves after.

No one religious figure has really emerged in American society. With all the diversity in religion in the U.S. it is nearly impossible for a member of the clergy to gain enough admiration to bask in the warm glow of heroism.

DIVERSITY in our society seems to have quite a bit to do with us having no universal heroes. We've become so fragmented that everyone has his own personal hero, but one person's hero is nothing to the next person. I think it's good everyone has personal heroes, but it wouldn't hurt to have an Abraham Lincoln to rally around in times of trouble.

I think we need heroes, but I wouldn't know how to go about creating one. I guess a hero would have to be someone individualistic, but at the same time have a strong rapport with his fellow man. I think a hero would have to have no real concern for money, other than to live comfortably, and he would always speak his mind, but see the other person's point of view. And finally he would have a deep feeling for the human condition and the good common sense to know right from wrong.

I suppose we'll have to be satisfied with our small-scale heroes — those teachers, or singers, or relatives, or special people that keep us going from day to day. Those common heroes may be worth more than one big hero.

Heroes are an attractive part of our society and I hope there will always be a chance for someone to be raised to that level. We need those special people who can pull us together and keep us together.

Billy Graham

By faith alone

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: If salvation is by faith alone, and our good works can never win us God's favor, does that mean that we can go out and live anyway we want to once we have been saved? — Mrs. C.T.

DEAR MRS. C.T.: No, it does not. Even in the times of the New Testament there were some people who tried to teach this, but the Bible makes it clear that when we come to Christ we have a new life which should be marked by purity and good works.

Why is this true? One reason is because of God's purpose in saving us. Why did God send his Son into the world to die for our sins? Was it simply that we would then go to Heaven? No — it is far deeper and richer than that. Christ came so that you and I who know him would live under his Lordship — that we would be disciples and follow him as Lord of our lives. In the Gospels, Jesus always called people to be his disciples. His Great Commission to his followers was that they were to "go and make disciples" (Matthew 28:19).

In Acts, the early Christians were known often as disciples. So you and I are called by God to be disciples — followers of him. We cannot follow him and at the same time do whatever we want to do.

Also, Christ came to defeat Satan, and to conquer sin. On the Cross he took our sins upon himself, and in the resurrection he showed that sin had been defeated. But if this is why Christ came, how can we still live in sin? That is to live as if he had never come and conquered sin.

There is one other thing I would mention, although more could be said. It is simply this. The Bible — as well as life itself — teaches us that true joy and happiness are only found as we follow Christ. One of Satan's greatest lies is the idea that happiness is found only when we are independent, and living for ourselves. Not so! "In thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore" (Psalms 16:11).

Arafat's character appraisal

WASHINGTON — Yasir Arafat is a vacillator and a compromiser, an inadequate personality who has received and seized opportunities to reach a political power level that would not be gained had there been a contest for leadership of Palestinian exiles.

This is the conclusion of U.S. intelligence experts contained in a secret psychological profile of the Palestine Liberation Organization leader. My associate Indy Badhwar has had access to the secret study, which reflects the best judgment of analysts whose business it is to know why Arafat behaves as he does, and what his response to changing circumstances in the explosive Middle East is likely to be.

The question of peace or war in the troubled region often turns as much on the personalities of a handful of political leaders as on geopolitical events over which they have little or no control. That's what makes the character appraisal of someone like Arafat so important to the president and his policy advisers.

Here are the highlights of the secret Arafat psychological profile: — Beyond wondering how Arafat manages to maintain a three-day growth of beard at all times, the public probably doesn't realize that his grubby appearance is a calculated effort to "add drama, to make him stand out from his Palestinian colleagues, who generally dress more Western and more conservatively," as the study puts it.

Though his dark glasses "make him look ridiculous to some" — a sort of Peter Sellers caricature of an Arab sheik — the analysts conclude that Arafat's "cloak and dagger movements, his striking and unforgettable appearance, his series of changing psychological faces will be admired only because they can be many things to many people."

— Behind the flamboyant facade lurks a weak, insecure person, torn by indecision, incapable of bold action or original thought, easily manipulated by his associates. As a result, he expends "as much psychic energy in maintenance of his own position as he does on the (Palestinian) cause."

Arafat is essentially an actor, and his true power is hard to determine. "Whether he is fundamentally a figurehead cannot be determined in fact; that he is a person who would quite willingly play that role, the answer is probably yes."

— Arafat is regarded with mixed feelings by his PLO colleagues and other Arab leaders; they have differing assessments of his political power, his ability to plan and recruit, and his general effectiveness as a leader.

— When he compromises, it is not from the confidence of strength, but "probably because nuances of the political context escape his mind." The massive amount of information he receives confuses Arafat, who has "less than adequate capacity to organize and interpret it himself." So he sticks to a few simple, familiar themes and leaves the formation of new ideas to others.

— It is oversimplification to describe him as merely "weak, vain, effeminate, crafty and silly," as many have done. "There is more to Arafat than the general summary statement used by most Western writers, but there is less than some of his comrades see."

— Arafat can be "gratifying," arrogant and petty, but all such behaviors are carefully attuned to a degree of irritation, not to the degree of open attack; if that occurs, he will retreat and compromise."

— Essentially a moderate, Arafat is bound to no particular ideology other than establishing a Palestinian state under his personal control. His real power may lie in control of the PLO's funds, rumored to be kept in Arafat's own Swiss bank account.

— Though undoubtedly a skillful survivor, if a political solution were reached in the Middle East, "and the pressure for the kind of behavior removed from a covert, guerrilla type to one in an elected or appointed position, Arafat would have a very difficult adjustment."

Cap's lonely defense

WASHINGTON — Behind the circus atmosphere of the House budget debate, defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was waging a lonely — and losing — rearguard action to bring President Reagan back to the reality of his original promise to restore American military power.

The treatment of lawyerly, quiet-spoken Cap Weinberger by top White House aides literally disarmed him and the Pentagon, preventing the counterattack they had planned against sundry budget documents drafted for House debate. Every one of these backed away at defense, but Weinberger was silenced.

Weinberger's custody of Reagan's commitment to rearm in the face of runaway Soviet military spending has never been in question (despite complaints of occasional inattention). He prevailed over Reagan's staff throughout the budget struggles of 1981 and again in early 1982. His defeat now by White House staff chief James Baker III and budget director David Stockman sends a weakened Reagan to the Bonn summit to explain why the U.S. must reduce its "force postures": place some fighting units in mothballs.

For weeks Weinberger was kept in the dark by the back-room Baker-Stockman signal-callers who were warning Reagan he would have to accept substantial defense cuts in his 1983 budget. At the same time, the Baker-Stockman team worked over House Republican leader Bob Michel. They encouraged him to tell the president the same thing: that defense cuts between $5 billion and $10 billion in 1983 outlays were unavoidable.

On May 19 Weinberger made his first move. He called Stockman on the telephone and told him defense cuts of that size were unacceptable. But Stockman insisted Reagan's only course was to "deal with the Democrats" — in other words, retreat. Weinberger argued back: The president should fight any and all reductions under his original military budget and withdraw his support from defense cuts in Sen. Pete Domenici's Senate-approved budget.

But the retreat was advancing. On May 22 Reagan announced his support of the "bipartisan" budget named for Michel and Rep. Delbert Latta. That undercut Weinberger's planned counterattack in the form of a letter to Michel — an undated version of which had been hand-delivered to Michel before Reagan's public endorsement of Michel-Latta.

How could Weinberger attack defense cuts that the president himself was supporting? The answer: by indirection — by focusing his attack on the larger but similar cuts contained in the House Budget Committee's bill, sponsored by Rep.

James R. Jones, committee chairman.

The Jones version would have reduced 1983 defense spending by $9 billion, somewhat more than the Michel-Latta version, and 1983-1985 spending authority substantially more than Michel-Latta. So Weinberger's letter, which arrived on the floor only moments before the House started voting on May 25, spelled out the costs of the Jones budget:

— It would "send a clear signal of a lack of resolve to both our allies and adversaries."

— It would require "significant reductions in the force structure, readiness and sustainability of our combat forces."

— Army and Marine ground forces "might have to be reduced by up to two divisions, deployed naval forces reduced by decommissioning up to 36 older ships and Air Force tactical fighter forces reduced by up to five wings."

The Michel-Latta budget, and the higher cuts in the Domenici bill, would force similar — though lesser — reductions across the board in the American defense posture. By the time Congress takes final action on the defense budget, possibly months away, the cuts may be enlarged far beyond Michel-Latta size.

Cap Weinberger, blind-sided by Baker and Stockman, has now made his record. It is a record Ronald Reagan should scrupulously study before he accepts White House staff advice for even deeper defense cuts in the bloody budget struggles still ahead.

Dr. Donohue Urination gives clues

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please tell me what I should do. I just urinate too often. I drink plenty of water, no coffee or anything like that — just water. My doctor tells me he can find nothing wrong with me. My heart, blood pressure, and urine are OK. He tells me that at my age (82) I look much younger. But I know I urinate too much. I do so about every three hours on average, sometimes more. — Ms. L.L.

Are you urinating small or large amounts each time? That is an important question to answer because each can imply a different condition. You use both terms — too often and too much — so I cannot tell.

Now for some background. The normal bladder can store a little less than a pint of fluid at one time. And you ordinarily make about a quart of urine over a 24-hour period. So the average number of volume voidings is two or three.

But I want to impress on you that in addition to the number of voidings, it is helpful to also know the volume of each. If you are voiding frequently and in large amounts each time, that opens a whole new vista of possibilities. Diabetes, which I've discussed here frequently, is one. Another is a disorder of the pituitary gland in which that gland is not making the hormone that helps the body retain fluid. Consequently, the person urinates often and copiously. The name of that illness is diabetes insipidus, and it has nothing to do with the other kind — diabetes mellitus.

I want to add another possible explanation — one, which in the light of your good test results, may make more sense. If you drink a great amount of water, you may be falling into the category of people known as compulsive water drinkers. Such people drink large amounts of water, even when they are not thirsty and when the body doesn't need extra fluid. Just a habit. Naturally, it all has to be eliminated from the body. Why don't you measure just how much fluid you drink daily for a few days, and present your doctor with your findings. This may be your problem.

Dear Dr. donohue: I have a question. What exactly are adhesions? Do they form from gas pockets? What, if anything, can be done for adhesions? Do they eventually go away? — Mrs. M.G.

Adhesions are scars, special scars, that form within the body. If you cut your skin, a scar forms. If you cut inside the abdomen, for example, scars form there, too.

Ordinarily, adhesions cause no great problems. But if a loop of intestine were to catch on to a bit of scar tissue, there could be difficulty. There might be blockage. Is that what you meant by gas pocket? At any rate, that is the only connection I can make between adhesion and gas pockets.

No, adhesions do not go away. Once they're there, they stay for keeps. If they cause trouble — abdominal pain, for example — they can be broken up. This is done by entering the abdomen and cutting away the scars.

There are other medicines to help prevent uric acid formation, like allopurinol. Many gout patients take that. Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension). Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Party for Annen, Willbanks

Mrs. Nancy Annen and Mrs. Sue Willbanks, vocational teachers, at Big Spring High School, were given a farewell party in the Vocational Agriculture Department of BSHS, May 26.

Mrs. Annen, teacher-coordinator for Home Economics Education, is retiring after teaching for forty years. She will be traveling to the Hawaiian islands and Europe this summer.

Mrs. Willbanks, Home Economics teacher, is moving to Honolulu, Hawaii. She was the chairperson of the Homemaking Department at the time of her resignation from BSHS. She also taught for 14 years at BSHS. She is planning to attend the University of Honolulu.

The Farewell party was hosted by Mr. John Bagnall, vocational administrator for BSHS, and assisted by Mrs. Ima Dell Williams, vocational secretary, and Mrs. Billye Grisham, homemaking teacher.

Dear Abby

Lovesick woman needs new doctor

DEAR ABBY: To make a long story short, I am in love with my gynecologist. Other than for routine checkups, I keep finding excuses to make an appointment so I can see him. I did have cancer of the uterus, but I had surgery for that and am completely cured now.

I'm divorced and have teen-age children, but I don't know anything about my doctor. One day when I was in his office, we happened to look at each other and our eyes just locked! He didn't look away until I did, and neither of us said anything, but I know it was an electric moment for both of us.

I've been alone for nine years and own my own home. I don't know if he's married or not. He won't offer a word of encouragement during my visits, but he is very friendly and seems to enjoy talking to me. After he looked at me that way, I can't help wondering if there's a chance for me. It says on my chart I am not married, so I'm sure he knows I'm available.

After every appointment, before I leave, he says, "Is there anything you want to ask me?"

Would it be terrible if I said, "yes. Would you like to see me outside the office?"

GOT A CRUSH ON MY DOCTOR
DEAR GOT: It wouldn't be "terrible," but it would be inappropriate. There's an unwritten law that doctors do not date their patients. If the "crush" becomes too crushing, find another gynecologist. This one is off limits.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 14 years old and I like to talk on the phone a lot with my friends. I want to get a phone of my own so that my parents won't have to yell at me for tying up the line or getting too many phone calls.

I am willing to buy the phone and pay the phone bills myself with the money I earn from baby-sitting, yard work and so on. All of my friends have their own phones, and over half of them bought the phones themselves and pay their own phone bills the same way I want to.

My parents say "No!" Why, Abby? Please tell me why. And if you have any good ideas on how I can change their minds, please tell me.

WANTS MY OWN PHONE

DEAR WANTS: I suspect that your parents are fearful that if you have your own phone you will spend more time talking and less on homework and chores. Try to make a deal with them. Agree to keep your grades at a level that they consider acceptable if you can have your own phone. And if you fall below that level, the phone will be removed without a whimper.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If a member of your family has been diagnosed as "mentally ill" and is living at home, please write and tell me what problems this has created for you. Your firsthand experiences are needed for an important mental health study.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CHAINED WOMEN REMOVED — Illinois Secretary of State police remove Mary Whitmore, 34, of Seattle, from the door of the Illinois Senate. Whitmore was the last of the women chained for the ERA to be removed from the capitol around 4:30 a.m. Sunday. They were not arrested but were taken to a nearby building where they will be allowed to continue their protest.

ERA supporters march to keep amendment alive

By ERIC KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

At least 35,000 supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment marched in four state capitals, beginning a last-ditch three-week drive for ratification, while their leaders considered a novel effort to place the amendment on the North Carolina ballot.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham and his wife, Adele, led 10,000 marchers Sunday in Tallahassee, and North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt addressed another 10,000 in Raleigh.

From 5,000 to 8,000 people marched in Springfield, Ill., and Gov. James R. Thompson — who had been criticized for "lukewarm" support of the ERA — said in Chicago he would personally call every state senator opposed to the amendment and seek votes for approval. Another 10,000 supporters marched in Oklahoma City.

Graham and many other marchers wore green and white — the colors of the National Organization for Women's ERA campaign. White also was worn by suffragettes of the early 1900s, seeking women's right to vote.

The amendment, which would ban discrimination on the basis of sex, needs ratification by three more states by June 30 to become part of the U.S. Constitution. Five of the 35 states that have ratified the amendment have attempted to rescind their ratification, but that action is being challenged in the courts.

The demonstrations were held

Sunday in states where ratification is considered most possible.

In North Carolina, where the Senate voted last week to table the ERA, Hunt and key supporters planned a meeting today with the head of the state Board of Elections to discuss placing the amendment on the June 29 primary ballot.

Alex K. Brock of the state Board of Elections said, however, that the Legislature would have to suspend 12 to 15 technical requirements to put the measure on the ballot and get voting rights approval from the U.S. Justice Department, which normally takes 60 days.

"It's not a feasible alternative or workable," he said.

Footnotes from Howard County Library

New books offer thrills, advice

By JUDITH GRAY
Howard County Librarian

It's 1985. Meat costs $16 a pound, gas is almost $5 per gallon. Jimmy Carter is a Baptist missionary in Africa. Frank Rogers, the president of a California-based missile manufacturer and former banker, is called away from his vacation by the chairman of the board.

The company is one of three that has developed a cruise missile that is under consideration by NATO. It's system is the best, and seemed to be the certain selection of NATO. But West Germany, the Netherlands, and Belgium have voted to table the decision and seem to be leaning to one of the other company's missiles.

In spite of the law against bribing leaders of a foreign power, the suspicion that the leaders of those three countries had been bribed to favor another missile is held by Rogers and the Chairman (Lancaster). Lancaster wants Rogers to go to Europe and find a way to swing the three key countries (and all of NATO) back on their side, even if he has to bribe a Swiss lawyer who has worked with them before.

Rogers goes to Europe and meets some assorted characters: the Swiss lawyer, a Belgian Prince, a former mistress, etc. In spite of his abilities and his knowledge of Europe and finances, he becomes involved in a tangle of trouble and is believed guilty of murder, arson, you-name-it, and almost ends up in a Swiss prison. He is himself almost a victim of European politics. What he sees and learns causes him to fear that 1985 is the beginning of "The Last Day of America", a riveting tale of the near future by Paul Erdman.

exile, captivity and death of Napoleon Bonaparte on St. Helena, a remote South Atlantic island.

The second story is about the historical and scientific investigation of a Swedish toxicologist and Napoleon-buff named Sten Forshufvud who, upon reading the memoirs of Napoleon's valet, saw the symptoms of arsenic poisoning in the Emperor's illness and death. Over a period of several years, he worked at his theory and eventually proved that N. had indeed been poisoned.

He did this by reading various memoirs of the people who had been with Napoleon during those years and did a time-line graph of the exhibition of the arsenic symptoms. He also obtained hair from samples given to various people at that time and had them tested with a new method that would detect the presence of arsenic even in single strands of hair.

Also tested were sections of hair that were irradiated and examined. The results were definite proof that Napoleon died of the cumulative effects of poisoning, not from environmental causes, but from deliberate chronic poisoning. He also set out to determine the assassin's identity, but as in any murder mystery, that'll be left for you to discover.

Join us this summer and throughout the year for good reading at your Howard County Library.

Arkansas water sale costly, report says

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — It would cost as much as $22.6 billion annually to transport 6 million acre-feet of Arkansas water to Texas and Oklahoma, according to a report by the High Plains Study Council.

Texas officials have said they would like to buy water from Arkansas.

The first draft of the report says an acre-foot would cost $434 and that figure could jump to $880 by the year 2105 if energy prices keep rising.

Stayin' alive! Sixers in rout

NBA Championship

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers took the first step in mission improbable.

The 76ers, down 1-3 in their best-of-seven series against the Los Angeles Lakers for the National Basketball Association championship, routed the Lakers 135-102 Sunday to stay alive.

Alive but not still not well. No team ever has climbed out of a 1-3 hole in the 36-year history of the NBA, and the Sixers have to play Game 6 in Los Angeles Tuesday night where they haven't won since 1980. If Philadelphia should win Tuesday night, the seventh and deciding game would be here Thursday.

The key to the Philadelphia survival victory was the ineffectiveness of 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, and a 76ers' defense described as obsessed by Lakers coach Pat Riley.

Abdul-Jabbar scored just six points, the first time in 420 games he failed to collect 10 or more. It was the first time in 109 playoff games that he totaled less than 11, and the seventh in which he was under 20.

What happened to Abdul-Jabbar, recognized as one of the best ever to play in the NBA?

Riley said, "I've never made any excuses and I won't start now. You get a man in foul trouble and he can't play his game. It makes a difference."

Abdul-Jabbar's explanation was limited as his scoring.

He offered mostly one word answers on his lackluster performance.

He was asked if the 76ers did anything different to him Sunday.

"They just pushed and shoved," he replied.

The 76ers took advantage of the fact Abdul-Jabbar played just 28 minutes. With those long arms not around to intimidate the trajectory of their shots, six scored in double figures, four over 20.

Andrew Toney, the prolific scoring 6-3 guard, led the 76ers with 31 points. He shot 13 for 18 from the field. Julius Erving, blanked in the first period when he missed his first seven shots, wound up with 23 — 18 in the second half.

Bobby Jones contributed 21 and Darryl Dawkins 20 before a roaring, sellout crowd of 18,364, which chanted, "see you Thursday."

"Nobody said it was going to be easy," said Lakers' coach Pat Riley. "You'll see a heck of a different effort on our part Tuesday."

"It was Philadelphia's last chance. You knew what their motivation was. We played a good game until the third period. Then they became obsessed."

As for Abdul-Jabbar, Riley predicted his superstar would deal with the 76ers Tuesday.

Oui, oui! Wilander triumphs

Swede tops Vilas in first Open

PARIS (AP) — Perhaps no one was more surprised at the result of the French Open title match than Swede Mats Wilander, a 17-year-old tennis sensation whose triumph over Guillermo Vilas has made him the tournament's youngest men's champion.

"When I had my match point, it was the first time I thought could win," the unseeded Wilander said Sunday after his 1-6, 7-6, 6-0, 6-4 victory over the 29-year-old Argentine. "After the first set, I didn't think I had a chance."

Suffering from the effects of a cold and troubled by cramps in his arm, the Swedish teen-ager overcame his first-set loss and captured the $66,000 winner's purse in a four-hour and 42-minute battle that was one of the longest finals in the history of the world's most prestigious clay court event.

The marathon took place on the center court of Roland Garros Stadium in sizzling temperatures that reached 97 degrees.

"I started getting cramps in my arm in the fourth set and I was very tired," the WINS FRENCH OPEN — Sweden's Mats Wilander, left, shakes hands with Argentine Guillermo Vilas after Wilander defeated him Sunday afternoon to win the French Open. Wilander's 1-6, 7-6, 6-0, 6-4 victory over Vilas made him the youngest French Open champion.

blond, 5-foot, 11-inch Wilander said. "I don't know what would have happened if we had gone another set."

Wilander's upset of Vilas, the No. 4 seed, ended his fellow Swede Bjorn Borg's distinction of being the youngest French Open champion.

Borg, who was not competing in this year's event, won his first of six French crowns in 1974 six days after his 18th birthday. Wilander celebrates his 18th birthday on Aug. 22.

Vilas said Wilander's slowly hit balls were the key to the match, which was played from the baseline with rallies that lasted as long as 90 strokes.

"His shots take a long time to come down," Vilas said. "I gives him lots of time to go back into position. I didn't know how to deal with it."

Vilas served the only ace of the match in the first set before taking it 6-1 after an hour of play. But the young Swede, who was last year's junior's champion in Paris, soon found his timing.

On Saturday, Martina Navratilova won the women's title by defeating fellow American Andrea Jaeger a day after Jaeger's 17th birthday. Jaeger was attempting to become the youngest women's champion.

Navratilova added another title to her collection Sunday when she won the women's doubles final with Anne Smith.

Rockets keep fighting

Moses offered richest contract ever

HOUSTON (AP) — Big money, big reputations and big talk of other National Basketball Association clubs won't undermine the Houston Rockets' efforts to keep All-Star Center Moses Malone, says General Manager Ray Patterson.

"I've heard all the rumors about what (New Jersey owner) Joe Taub is gonna do and how much (Lakers owner) Jerry Buss is gonna offer Moses. They can offer $2 million or they can offer $3 million or they can offer $4 million. We'll still be here in the end of the negotiating," Patterson said.

"If they think they are dealing with San Diego or Kansas City or Milwaukee or some other club that has limited funds and can't afford to go out and get in the running for the high-priced talent, then they are making a mistake," he said.

Malone, the league's second-leading scorer with 31.1 average per game and the leading rebounder with 14.7 per game, becomes a free agent after the NBA's championship series.

In New York, Rockets' owner Gavin Maloof told ABC Radio Sports on Sunday that Malone has been offered the richest contract in the history of professional sports.

Maloof refused to disclose the figures but said the Rockets were determined to keep Malone.

"We've made a substantial offer, the highest in the history of pro sports. We'll do whatever it takes to keep Malone in Houston. We're optimists. I think he likes the city. He's told us he wants to return," Maloof said.

"I don't care what anybody says in New York, New Jersey or Los Angeles," Patterson said. "I am going to sign Moses Malone and keep him in the Houston franchise. And I want everybody in the NBA to know that this ball club will not be intimidated by the big money or the big reputations or the big talk of the Knicks, the Nets, the Lakers or anybody else."

Watson wins in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — John Watson knows you aren't supposed to be able to pass on a narrow, twisting road circuit like the one constructed for the first Detroit Grand Prix.

But, pass he did, charging from the 17th spot on the starting grid to victory Sunday, a triumph that vaulted him into the lead in the world championship point standings.

The race, which was stopped for about 45 minutes after six laps because of an accident that took out two cars, featured just three leaders — pole-sitter Alain Prost, Keke Rosberg and Watson.

But there was plenty of action to entertain the more than 75,000 people who surrounded the 2.5-mile, 20-turn circuit, threading its way around the Renaissance Center in downtown Detroit.

Watson, a 36-year-old native of Northern Ireland, who now lives in England, still was running 14th when the race was restarted on lap seven.

But, by lap 31 his Marlboro-sponsored McLaren MP-4B racer, was fifth, and the 10-year veteran of Grand Prix racing moved into second, behind Rosberg, on lap 40.

"I was surprised I was able to pass so much," Watson said. "I was able to brake a lot and still get in good position to pass."

"Sometimes, when you get the momentum of passing, you can go through a lot of cars, and that's what I seemed to do."

JOHN WATSON ...Grand Prix champ

The winner averaged 78.2 mph for the race that was scheduled to run 75 laps, but was cut to 62 by the slow speeds and the Formula One time limit of two hours.

Watson got nine points for the victory — his second of the season — giving him 26. That left him with a six-point margin over Ferrari's Didier Pironi of France in the battle for the world title. Pironi finished third.

AL umpire struck by car in Arlington

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Louis John DiMuro, an American League umpire for the past 19 years, died late Sunday when he was struck by a car shortly after umpiring at a game between the Chicago White Sox and the Texas Rangers, Arlington police said today.

Police Sgt. Glen Davee said DiMuro's body was found near a curb near downtown Arlington. Information concerning the accident was sketchy, he said. An investigation was underway, Davee said.

An autopsy was pending today, Sgt. Davee said. Dick Butler, supervisor of umpires for the American League, said that he was told the car knocked DiMuro into the air and he landed on his head. Both his legs were broken, Butler said.

Butler said that the other umpires who worked the game said they all went out to eat after the game and then returned to their hotel, but that DiMuro left the hotel and tried to cross a busy intersection. He said the driver of the car could not avoid the accident.

The umpires were to leave Arlington today to do a series in Milwaukee. DiMuro, 50, was born at Brooklyn, N.Y., but lived at Tucson, Ariz.

He ranked second in seniority among American League umpires behind Bill Haller. DiMuro had umpired in two World Series in 1969 and 1976, worked league championship series in 1971, 1975 and 1978, and officiated at All Star Games in 1965, 1967, 1972 and 1981.

He began umpiring after a broken finger he suffered while serving in the U.S. Air Force benched him as a player.

Hayes is arrested

DALLAS (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys star Bob Hayes was jailed today after he was arrested for allegedly driving while intoxicated, police said.

Officer R.J. Kosam said Hayes, 39, was picked up about 1 a.m. after officers saw him weaving in traffic in north Dallas.

"He didn't give the officers any trouble," Kosam said. He said Hayes was jailed until 6 a.m., when he was released on a writ of habeas corpus. The arrest was not Hayes' first brush with the law. Once known as "the world's fastest human," Hayes, a former Olympic sprinter and a wide receiver for the Cowboys, retired from sports in 1975 and was arrested on a drug charge in March 1978.

He was sentenced to five years in prison a year later for delivery of Quaaludes, a powerful tranquilizer, and cocaine. Hayes was paroled in February 1980 after serving ten months.

Grand Canyon wins NAIA

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — It was victory, humility, rest and a feast in that order for Grand Canyon State following the team's third consecutive NAIA baseball championship.

The Antelopes whipped Lewis and Clark of Idaho, 10-6, Saturday night to remain unbeaten in tournament play at the 26th annual NAIA World Series baseball tournament.

It was the 17th straight NAIA World Series victory for the Phoenix, Ariz., college. "Just before we left the field, we got everybody together and said a prayer to give thanks to the Lord for all the things that have happened to us," Grand Canyon coach Gil Stafford said Sunday.

Chuck Deluca's pinch-hit, two-out, bases-loaded double that knocked in three runs highlighted the championship game victory.

"We're going to sleep all day, and then we're going out to eat at the best restaurant in Lubbock," Stafford said Sunday. "We're going to stuff ourselves with barbecue and ribs."

Catcher Pete Bethea of Grand Canyon was named series Most Valuable Player for the second year in a row. "I'd like to come back and win it all one more time," Bethea said.

Grand Canyon took the lead in the bottom of the fifth when Deluca's hit broke a 3-3 tie.

The Antelopes added three more runs in the sixth on a combination of two walks, two singles and a double. Bethea scored his 23rd World Series hit for the final Grand Canyon run in a single that drove in Larry Johnson from second base.

Stadler wins Kemper

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Craig Stadler has easily retained his Kemper Open championship, boosted his money-winning lead on the pro golf tour to $312,058 and established the largest winning margin of the year — seven strokes.

For all this, he gave some of the credit after his victory Sunday to those in the gallery who were rooting for Jack Nicklaus, playing in the same threesome with Stadler and Dr. Gil Morgan.

Stadler, who fired a closing-round 69 and posted a 275 — 13-under-par for the 72 holes over the Congressional Country Club course, said that the pro-Nicklaus crowd pumped him up after he had bogeyed the eighth hole.

"I got me a little more excited today than I have been in the past. You're never going to have everybody pulling for one guy or the other. Obviously, you're going to have a lot of people pulling for Jack more than anybody else, or Arnold (Palmer) than anybody else."

"It's one of the reasons I birdied No. 9. I don't hear a lot of things, but a lot of things you can't avoid. And, for a couple of holes in there, six, seven and eight, there was a lot of negativism in there."

"Oh, come on, you can choke it, you've done it before." These kind of things. I've heard them before. I heard that about 30 or 40 times on the front nine. It's fine, if they want to say it, they're going to say it. I'm not going to stop them. That kind of got me going, I think more than anything. I kind of turned, and under my breath, said a few things and went on," he said.

Nicklaus and Morgan appeared to have second place wrapped up but Seve Ballesteros of Spain came on strong to match Stadler's 69 and take the $43,200 runnerup prize with a 282. Nicklaus and Morgan tied for third at 283 and won $23,200 each.

Stadler, who earlier this spring won the Masters, had a relatively easy time in the final round over the par-72, 7,173-yard layout in suburban Washington.

Going in with a three-stroke lead over Nicklaus, Stadler birdied the first two holes to jump out a five-stroke advantage before coming up with a bogey. After a par, he picked up two more birdies while Nicklaus made par, to take a six-shot edge.

"I didn't hit the ball as well as I did the last two days, but I made everything happen and nobody really made a substantial run at me early which didn't hurt the cause any," he said.

Stadler said he believes the turning point came after he bogeyed No. 8 and came into No. 9 with a five-stroke lead.

"I hit a shot about 6 feet above the pin," he said. "Jack was about 20 feet away. He hit what looked like a perfect putt, but it spun out and didn't go in. I didn't hit a very good putt and it took a little bound left and just dribbled in the right side of the hole. The way the putts were hit, it should have been a two-shot swing. Jack should have made his and I should have missed mine."

UTEP, UCLA win NCAA

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Jackie Joyner and about a dozen of her UCLA teammates huddled in the soggy and empty Brigham Young University stadium, shivering as they waited to learn if they'd won the first NCAA women's Outdoor Track and Field championship.

"I just want to get on a plane back to L.A.," Joyner said as she ran in place to stay warm after a thunderstorm drenched athletes and participants Saturday, spoiling what had been a record-smashing final day of competition in both the men's and women's meets.

Joyner, who won the heptathlon competition earlier in the week, and her cold companions cheered moments later when they were told they'd won the women's championship with 153 points, beating runner-up Tennessee by 27 points. Florida State was third with 121 1/2 points.

Texas El Paso, sparked by sensational Sleiman Nyambui, claimed the title with 105 points. Tennessee was second with 94 points and Washington State was third with 87.

The Miners may find the title a bit more elusive next season because of the graduation of Nyambui, who earned his unprecedented 14th and 15th NCAA titles at Provo.

The 30-year-old Tanzanian Friday easily won his fourth straight 10,000-meter championship, then capped his collegiate career Saturday with a victory in the 5,000 meters.

Nyambui's performance was one of a fistful of noteworthy efforts from the six-day competition.

Southern Methodist University's Keith Connor, a junior from Slough, England, broke the United Kingdom, British Commonwealth, NCAA meet and collegiate records in the triple jump with a leap of 57 feet, 7 3/4 inches — the second-best in history.

UTEP's Milton Ottey, a sophomore from Toronto, set a British Commonwealth and Canadian mark in the high jump by clearing 7-7 1/4. UCLA junior Del Davis also cleared the height and tied the American record, but finished second on the basis of more misses.
