TWO JPs — Lewis Heflin, above, and Bobby West, right, talk about the roles of the justice of the peace. The job is never dull, they say — and it's been around a long time in America, since the beginning of the nation. The two stories below are the seventh installment of a series on county officials by Mike Downey.

JP job tough but enjoyable

Heflin

By MIKE DOWNEY

From performing a marriage in a restaurant which began with a plane dive-bombing the nuptials to the shock of discovering that a late-night unattended death was a close friend, Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin has had a full range of experiences in his past three years as peace justice. The job he says as he begins his fourth year in January, "never has a dull moment."

The main reason for the wealth of events is the variety of responsibilities a peace justice has. Heflin said the functions of a justice of the peace range from ruling on unattended deaths and regulating traffic fines to holding small claims court and setting bonds. One particularly important bond to JP Heflin is the peace bond.

The primary purpose of the bond is to prevent someone from harassing someone else. Heflin said his office handles about five or six a week. "Complaints are signed against a man; I set the bond and he's picked up (by the sheriff's office)," Heflin said. "If he goes back at all, he forfeits the bond. Then I set a higher one that no one puts up since he forfeited one and he has jail time."

The peace justice said he always made sure of probable cause before issuing a peace bond because, he said, "I feel like it's a dangerous bond but effective."

Heflin's affinity with this bond comes from its ability to reach a particular goal in his office: helping people. "I like to help people more than anything else," Heflin said. "We get women in here who have been beat up and it does me a lot of good to help them."

Heflin came into the peace justice position some three years ago with over 10 years experience as a salesman. "Lots of people asked me to run. Once I got in, I started off with the JP schools," Heflin said. He noted he had 100 hours in justice of the peace training for Southwest Texas. See Heflin, page 2-A

West

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The office of the justice of the peace is one of the oldest offices in the United States, says Justice of the Peace Bobby West, dating back to the colonists and even to the Bible. West has been a peace justice in Howard County since his election in October of 1975.

West came from an assistant managership of a lumber yard to the peace justice position, but had 12 years' experience as a criminal investigator for the district attorney's office in the 1950's. Asked why he sought the peace justice job, West replied, "I enjoy working with the public. It's enjoyable work even though it's one of the hardest in the county, being on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Nobody but he JP and his family knows how many times the phone rings at night."

The peace justice office is the first contact people have of the judicial system, West said. "We set an example for the judicial process; people form opinions of the progress if brought into a justice court," West said.

Among the basic duties of a peace justice of setting bonds and traffic fines are criminal and civil hearings. These include examining courts, forcible detainer hearings, driver's licenses hearings and safety responsibility hearings. West said an examining trial was held to determine if enough evidence existed in a criminal case to bind to a grand jury.

A forcible detainer hearing would be held, West said, in the case of a default on something to determine what action should take place. The driver licenses hearings are for persons who have received a certain number of traffic violations. "We rule whether or not to suspend their license for a year," West said.

License suspension is also the punishment in a safety responsibility hearing, West said. "A person involved in an accident who has no

Saudis get a new king

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Crown Prince Fahd took control of this oil-rich desert kingdom and close U.S. ally in a clockwork transition following the death of King Khaled and pledged to continue the pro-Western policies of his half-brother. Khaled Ibn Abdel Aziz, 69, died of a massive heart attack Sunday in Taif, the royal summer resort. Less than seven hours later, the royal family, hastily-gathered leaders of several Arab nations and tens of thousands of Saudis attended his funeral, which was modest in accordance with the late king's strict Wahabi Moslem beliefs.

The new 60-year-old king, who is known to favor cooperation with the Saudi oil policy is not expected to change quickly after the death yesterday of King Khaled. See story on page 3-A.

West and particularly the United States, addressed the nation after the funeral, pledging to continue his brother's policies and pursue the late king's goals.

"He was a father and a brother to all of us," Fahd said, breaking off at times as he apparently wept.

A royal decree announced the Cabinet would not be changed, in an immediate affirmation of continuity.

Fahd, who had been in charge of day-to-day decisions in Saudi Arabia, was expected to accelerate economic development, improve education, strengthen the armed forces with U.S. help and upgrade the kingdom's role in Arab and Islamic politics.

Fahd quickly selected as crown prince his half-brother Abdullah, commander of Saudi Arabia's national guard, the Saudi state radio said. The move was seen by political analysts as designed to guarantee a smooth transition. The national guard is the backbone of the Saudi armed forces.

Abdullah's mother belongs to the powerful Shammur tribe, which provides most of the men for the 30,000 national guard, and his appointment was widely expected.

But Abdullah, 58, was reliably reported to favor a get-tough policy toward Washington because it is allegedly pro-Israeli and anti-Arab. He is an outspoken advocate of the Palestinian cause and has strong ties to the Soviet-supported Syrian regime of Hafez Assad. Saudi Arabia is a major financial backer of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Khaled, who assumed the throne in 1975 after King Faisal's assassination, had suffered for years from a heart ailment.

Khaled's coffin was carried in a procession two miles from the Grand Mosque to the royal burial plot, and he was buried in an unmarked grave. The Wahabi sect of Islam, which was founded by the Saudi royal family, abhors lavish funerals.

UTPB's future pondered

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin located in Odessa recently indicated it might be expanding into a full-fledged four-year institution in the near future.

Local reaction to the news in a Herald survey was that UTPB's expansion would strengthen the Permian Basin's educational offerings, and most people surveyed were in favor of the move. Generally, people felt schools like Howard College would not be hurt by the move.

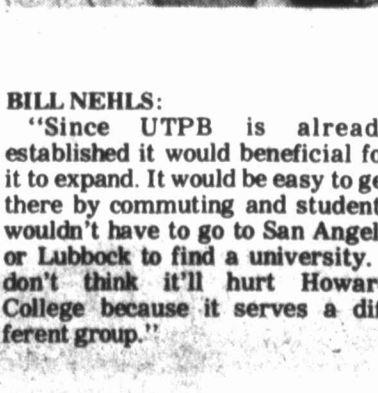

SUE ARMSTRONG:
"I think it will be real good for us. I don't think it will hurt Howard College at all because people go there because it's less expensive."

CLOVIE SHIREY:
"As many junior colleges as we have in the area, I can't see it'll be a benefit. It (the expansion) might even hurt Howard College."

MARY GARCIA:
"I think it's a good idea. Kids wouldn't have to travel as far and they could spend more time with their families, especially during the holidays."

BILL NEHLS:
"Since UTPB is already established it would be beneficial for it to expand. It would be easy to get there by commuting and students wouldn't have to go to San Angelo or Lubbock to find a university. I don't think it'll hurt Howard College because it serves a different group."

TERESA KUYKENDALL:
"It's good. I'm going there and it would benefit me. I don't think Howard College will be hurt by the move."

British troops near Stanley

By The Associated Press
Argentine artillery blasted British troops attempting their second advance on Stanley in as many days and forced them to retreat behind a smokescreen, Argentina said today. But British military sources said some British forces had reached the outskirts of the besieged Falkland Islands capital.

Meanwhile, Argentina and Britain announced they had accepted a Red Cross proposal for a neutral zone in Stanley for the protection of civilians and wounded as concerns grew for the safety of some 600 islanders believed still in the capital.

The creation of the zone is another sign that the decisive battle between Britain's estimated 9,000 troops and 7,000 Argentines is approaching. It followed by one day reports that two Falklanders had been killed and four others injured by British guns shelling Stanley. One of the dead was Susan Whitley, a 32-year-old schoolteacher who was seven months pregnant.

The zone is a one-block area around Stanley's red-brick, Anglican cathedral. Its spire is a landmark and the cathedral offers better protection against shellfire than the surrounding wooden houses, sources said.

On the battlefield, Argentina reported repelling another British drive on the capital Sunday, the second in as many days.

"During the afternoon between 3:30 and 4 p.m. English troops tried to advance over Mount Harriet. Our own artillery repelled them, obliging them to protect themselves with smoke screens and withdraw," Argentina's Joint Chiefs of Staff said in a communique issued early today.

The Joint Chiefs also said Argentina's air force hit British troops, vehicles and helicopters.

Israeli, PLO truce off

By The Associated Press
Israeli forces trapped guerrillas in West Beirut today after a spectacular tank charge led by Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, whose troops blocked all roads into and out of the Lebanese capital and left the Palestinians completely cut off by land, sea and air.

Sharon's men took the suburb of Baabda, site of the presidential palace, and some of his troops made a command post of the local police barracks. Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, rode to the edge of Beirut and said the PLO's nerve center was "isolated, encircled and cutoff."

One radical Palestinian leader vowed an epic fight to hold West Beirut if the Israelis entered. But the invaders made no immediate move on the PLO stronghold, and thousands of Lebanese welcomed the Israelis by shouting "shalom" and exchanging souvenirs.

Meanwhile, ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet stood by off the port of Jounieh, 16 miles north of Beirut, to evacuate Americans and "anyone else wanting to leave except armed Palestinians," U.N. officials said. But they said the Israelis insisted the 6th Fleet evacuate only Americans, and thus far none had left.

Reporters confirmed the Israelis controlled all land, sea and air approaches to Beirut. See Truce, page 2-A

No suspects in Kermit slayings

KERMIT (AP) — Investigators here have a composite sketch of a killer and leads still to check, but no suspects in the slaying of woman and her daughter who were buried in a shallow grave, a sheriff's department official says.

Police put together the composite sketch with information provided by a second daughter, who fled naked five miles to escape.

"We still don't have a suspect. We have a lot of people we're looking at, but no one we can call a suspect," said Winkler County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Mike Eggleston, who is directing the investigation.

Eggleston said Sunday that sheriff's deputies are protecting 14-year-old Selena Kay Elms, who reached help at an oil drilling site about 8 a.m. Friday.

The bodies of her mother and sister were found in a 26-inch deep grave next to a cattle-watering tank 16 miles southeast of Kermit.

Officials spent Sunday checking calls from citizens who thought they recognized the man pictured in the composite.

University. One visible aspect of a peace justice's job is the setting of bonds. Hefflin said many bonds are set at night on felony crimes when "the city folks are busy." On felony crimes such as criminal mischief, aggravated assault and so forth, the peace justice goes down to arraign an accused felon.

"I read them their rights — I'm not going to violate anyone's rights," Hefflin said. "Then I set bond after looking at the charge." If probable cause exists in the case, Hefflin said he then sets bond. Driving while intoxicated cases, or DWI, usually had $1,000 bonds with $2,500 for second offenses, Hefflin said, but other cases varied.

"On the rest of the stuff, we use our own consciences," Hefflin said. "Different cases take different solutions." He said murder usually was a $50,000 bond and burglary cases had high bonds because "it's a very bad crime when people are not safe in their homes."

The peace justice said he felt his place was in the office, an office that should be run courteously. "I want to be here and prepared for anything that comes. The majority of the people expect to be treated courteously," Hefflin said. "I treat everyone nice — I don't want to hurt anyone."

Since the peace justice must work closely with law enforcement, a good working relationship is important. Hefflin has no complaints about the local law: "The police department and sheriff's office are tops," he said. "We don't have any problems. I even like my secretary — she's a good one (Mrs. Lee Winchester)."

Although Hefflin feels he is fortunate to be a justice of the peace, one aspect of the job — unattended deaths — still bothers him when it involves friends.

"The most degrading thing there is, I think, is to go out (to rule) on a good friend," Hefflin said. "You never dream you'd go against something like that and you never know until you get there who it is."

Despite the occasional grimness, the peace justice job has its lighter moments. Hearing excuses for speeding in traffic court is interesting, Hefflin said, like the man who said he was speeding so his wife could get to a rest room. But his favorite is the marriage he performed at the Brass Nail. A small plane buzzed the facility as the signal to begin the mid-morning ceremony.

Hefflin said the job was not too much trouble to leave behind at the office except when the calls came in at night. He said he and his wife, Juanita, would take off sometimes and visit relatives. "I keep threatening to take up golf again. You can get the job off your mind on the course," Hefflin said.

insurance has to show cause as to why his license should not be suspended," West said.

One function of the peace justice which is often misunderstood is the ruling on deaths, West said. "We don't pronounce anyone dead," West said. "We hold an inquest to determine the cause of death. One of the first things they teach you in JP school is that you don't pronounce people dead; you determine the cause."

Ruling on unattended deaths is one aspect of the job West does not like. "A person's loved one has passed away and you see a lot of grief," West said.

Another aspect of the position requiring special attention is the setting of bonds. While a bond merely is to ensure a person makes a designated appearance in court, no guidelines exist for bonds on each offense, West said. "Each case is separate from the others," West said. "You go into the facts of the offense, is he married, have family — all are taken into consideration."

The caseload for a justice of the peace varies, West said. "Sometimes, it's extremely busy and sometimes not so busy. You have to take the night into consideration," West said. "You get various calls for individuals at night. You determine their urgency and go with each one individually and separately."

Phone calls and other aspects of the job sometimes make it difficult for West to leave the peace justice work in the office. "Depending on how heavy a load you have, it's hard to keep from thinking about the day ahead," West said. "But the only time I'm really concerned is when I'm out on a homicide case — it always bears on your mind."

When West does get away from the job, he especially enjoys treasure hunting. Using a metal detector to find various items and researching treasure legends are a favorite pastime of the peace justice. "I like just relaxing with coinshooting," West said. Coinshooting is a term for using a metal detector in an area to look for coins.

West said he often enjoyed these treasure-hunting excursions with his wife Rosemarie and their two daughters.

The peace justice said he likes his job. "Doing what I'm doing is very important, I feel," West said. "Without our work, cases would go up to the county judge which would overextend that office."

Police Beat Assault suspect arrested

Police arrested Jose Porras, 27, of Odessa on charges of aggravated assault and public intoxication at 12:49 a.m. Saturday at the Howard County Fair Barn, 625 Warehouse Road.

Porras was arrested after Richard Nunez of 710 N. Scurry reported to police that Porras stabbed him in the lower back during an argument.

Nunez was transported to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he was treated and released, according to a hospital spokesperson. Porras was transferred to county jail and released on $10,000 bond set by Peace Justice Lewis Hefflin, police said.

Eva Guzman of 1307 Kindle told police that at approximately 3 a.m. today someone broke her car window with a rock and stole 12 eight-track tapes worth $72, causing $150 damage to the vehicle, and then threw a large rock at her bedroom window causing $65 damage to the glass and screen.

Someone entered the Eagles Lodge, 703 W. Third, through the ceiling and stole an unknown amount of change and cigarettes from a cigarette machine sometime between 2 a.m. and 4 p.m. yesterday, police said.

Someone stole a $300 air conditioner from the Life Baptist Church, 1106 S. Nolan, between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Sunday, police said.

Someone stole approximately $125 in change from pool tables, pinball machines and cigarette machines at The Other Place at 800 W. Fourth between 1:15 a.m. and 9 a.m. Sunday, police said.

Three adults and three children drove into DeVore's Exxon service station at Interstate 20 and Lamesa highway to have a flat tire fixed and stole a large four-way lug wrench at 12:40 a.m. today, according to police.

Laurie Moore of 1606 Main reported to police that someone pried a lock off a door of her home and stole a $120 portable black and white TV between 1 p.m. and 10 p.m. yesterday.

Morgan and Martha Watson of 501 Donley told police that at 12:18 W. Third at approximately 5:20 p.m. yesterday someone known to them hit Mrs. Watson on the face.

A Buick Apollo driven by Luis Sotillo Villa of 306 N. Francis in Stanton and a Pontiac Phoenix driven by Steven Escanuelas of 604 W. Fifth collided at the intersection of W. Eighth and S. Ayford at 6:21 p.m. yesterday, police said. Maria Escanuelas of 604 W. Fifth, a passenger in the Pontiac, was transferred to Malone-Hogan Hospital by Shaffer Ambulance where she was treated and released, according to a hospital spokesperson. Villa was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way, police said.

A Chevrolet Camaro driven by Robert Cameron Tolle of 2104 Alabama and a Chevrolet Vega driven by Paul Ray Flannell of 106 Scurry collided on the 1700 block of FM 700 at 10:24 p.m. yesterday, according to police. Flannell was ticketed for having no liability insurance, police said. No injuries were reported.

A Toyota pickup truck driven by Charles Kip McLaughlin of 803 W. 14 and a Toyota pickup truck driven by Michael Wayne Kruse of 1506 Stadium collided on the 1800 block of Gregg at 5:50 p.m. yesterday, police said. No injuries were reported.

A Chevrolet Impala driven by Damon Michael Price of P.O. Box 1721 and a GMC truck driven by Peggy Deratt Craven of 500 E. 23 collided at the intersection of Goliad and E. 23 at 12:41 p.m. Sunday, police said. Price was ticketed for having no liability insurance, police said.

DWI charge nets man jail time

Herbert Charles Lewis, 34, of 2636 Langley was released from Howard County jail Saturday after serving three days for driving while intoxicated. According to sheriff's office records, Lewis paid a fine of $171 and was released.

Francisco Aguirre Montano, 35, of Stanton posted $1,000 bond after being charged with driving while intoxicated, according to sheriff's office records.

Cesar Portillo, 26, of 1500 Virginia, was released on bonds totalling $1,200. Portillo is charged with DWI and not having liability insurance. Bonds were set by Justice of the Peace Bob West.

proaches to Beirut, and said the guerrillas were trapped in a 10-square-mile area of West Beirut.

Sharon told Israeli radio the main purpose of the Israeli encirclement was to block any attempt by the Syrian army to return to the Lebanese capital, and head off the escape of Palestinian guerrilla leaders.

Sharon did not say what the fate of these leaders would be. "We have no plan at the moment to go into Beirut," he said, but the future of the guerrilla leadership "is a problem we will have to think about."

With Israeli tanks at the presidential palace in Baabda and the Beirut airport surrounded by Israeli guns, Lebanese President Elias Sarkis formed a six-man committee to try to cope with the "grave situation" in his war-ravaged country, where nearly 10,000 people have been killed in eight days.

The Israelis seek to drive the PLO and the Syrians out of Lebanon and create a Lebanon friendly to Israel, as existed before the 1975-76 civil war.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said his army had no intention of taking Beirut, but Moslems in West Beirut, where the Palestine Liberation Organization has its command center, feared a bloody assault.

A PLO-Israeli truce collapsed Sunday just 12 hours after it took effect. PLO chief Yasser Arafat appealed to Israel for another truce.

The Israeli advance into Beirut was spearheaded by a lightning tank charge led by Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon into Baabda overnight to take the town without a single shot fired.

"We have not come to fight you," Sharon told Lebanese military police protecting the presidential palace. "We have come to save the Lebanese people from the Syrians and the Palestinians."

Eytan told Israeli radio the guerrillas "have suffered very heavy losses and their leaders — at least some of them — have fled."

1,000 arrested outside the UN

NEW YORK (AP) — Police arrested and dragged away more than 1,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators today after they attempted to "stop business as usual" at the United Nations missions of nuclear powers.

It was the largest mass arrest in a political demonstration in the city's history, according to Deputy Police Commissioner Alice McGillion.

Thousands of black-helmeted, nightstick-carrying officers were queued up outside the missions. Many of the protesters, singing "We Shall Not Be Moved," were carried on stretchers to waiting police buses after they went limp in "non-violent disarmament blockades."

The arrests came two days after a giant disarmament rally that drew 750,000 people to Central Park for the largest political rally in U.S. history. There were no arrests at Saturday's rally, timed to coincide with a special U.N. session on disarmament.

"If they prevent people from their right of going to work or walking on the sidewalk we'll take them in," police spokesman John Clifford had warned before today's demonstration.

Three thousand officers were mustered as the June 14 Civil Disobedience Campaign launched its blockades beginning at 8 a.m. outside the missions of the United States, Soviet Union, China, France and Britain.

In addition, police dispatched teams of approximately 300 officers each to the missions of South Africa and Israel, said Deputy Police Inspector Robert Burke. He termed the two nations "hidden nuclear powers." A group called the Direct Action Coalition announced plans to blockade those missions. Their actions were not connected with the planned morning protests, organizers said.

At the U.S. mission this morning, protesters were arrested five at a time, with others stepping up to take their place as they were hauled off for booking.

Dick Myers, 33, of Philadelphia said he was not afraid the arrests would hurt the anti-nuclear weapons cause.

"In the past anyone who took action to change the status quo alienated people," he said. "Martin Luther King alienated people. Gandhi alienated people. The Kennedys alienated people."

Demonstrators at the Chinese mission carried flowers and sang, "We shall not be moved."

Police at the Soviet mission closed a section of Third Avenue to traffic after more than a 100 demonstrators lined up at barricades.

C-City proposal for new bank approved

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A group of Colorado City men announced Friday that the U.S. Comptroller has approved an application for the Citizens National Bank in C-City.

Max Shaw, proposed president and spokesman for the bank, said he received official word of the approval and he was "delighted."

"We are finalizing plan now and hope to be open for business in 90 to 120 days," Shaw said.

Organizers for the new bank which will be located on Interstate 20 and Hickory Street in C-City include George Walker, Scott Smith, Max Shaw, Eddie Piland, Bobby Nobles, Tom Neff, R.J. Hoback, Dr. Charlie Graham, Warren Anderson and Woody Anderson.

Doctor says Hinckley planned the shooting

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prison psychiatrist says John W. Hinckley Jr. planned the shooting of President Reagan, partly to "get back" at his family.

Defense attorneys today will cross-examine Dr. Sally Johnson, who has testified that Hinckley was neither insane nor in a fantasy world when he shot Reagan and three other men March 30, 1981.

"John was never so disturbed or distraught that he was unaware of what he was doing or why he was doing it," she said Saturday at Hinckley's trial.

"He had a great deal of control" over his behavior and suffered only from relatively minor personality disorders, she testified.

Mrs. Johnson is a staff psychiatrist at the federal correctional institution at Butner, N.C., where Hinckley was given four months of psychiatric evaluation after the shooting. In some of her earliest interviews with him, the psychiatrist said, the defendant talked about his reasons for the assassination attempt.

FBI seeks prison escapee

DALLAS (AP) — A 34-year-old federal prison escapee remained at large today despite police roadblocks, after he fired four shots at a police patrolman.

Norman Carl Brooks of Greenville eluded officers who were chasing him through Pleasant Grove in Dallas on Sunday. He turned his car 180 degrees and fired into Dallas police Sgt. R.D. Jackson's car.

Brooks also fired one shot at an FBI agent. FBI roadblocks were later posted on all major Dallas-area highways.

One bullet hit the left rear passenger door of Jackson's car, about three inches below the window, officers said. Another struck the driver's door and the third hit the left-rear passenger-side window, pierced the rear-view mirror and shattered the front windshield.

Union switch?

DALLAS (AP) — More than 1,000 ground employees of Southwest Airlines are voting by mail this month whether to switch to the Teamsters union, a move organizers for the current union say could cripple the airline.

The 1,050 ground employees now belong to the International Association of Machinists.

An anti-Teamsters group pushing the Machinists' cause noted the Teamsters' representation of Braniff International employees and said in its literature that joining the Teamsters could "eventually cripple our very successful airline."

The group's literature also says the Teamsters are courting Southwest workers to make up dues income lost when Braniff folded last month.

Marvin Schlinke, president and business manager of Teamsters Local 19 in Grapevine, denied the charges.

Schlinke said the Machinists union "doesn't defend its employees' rights very aggressively," and that the Teamsters have been pursuing Southwest workers for more than one year.

Lightning causes oil tank fire near Colorado City

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Turbulent weather was responsible for lightning striking an oil tank battery binned by Pat Barber two miles west of Cuthbert early Saturday morning.

Six units from the Colorado City Fire Department responded to the call and firemen managed to douse the flames twice, only to have the fire reignite. Efforts to put out the fire occurred at approximately 8:30 a.m. some five hours after the fire started.

Fire department personnel managed to save three-fourths of the oil in the tank and also kept the flames from spreading to a second nearby tank.

BSSH hires a physician

Big Spring State Hospital Superintendent Albert Keene Smith has announced the recent appointment of Dr. Juan Garcia as unit physician for the hospital's West Psychiatric Unit.

Garcia, a psychiatrist certified by the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, currently serves the hospital on a part-time basis.

A native of Madrid, Spain, Garcia earned his medicine degree in 1956 from the Medical School at Madrid University. Upon graduation, he moved to Paris, France where he served his residency in psychiatry at the Sainte Anne Psychiatric Hospital.

More recently, he has been an assistant professor of psychiatry at the State University of New York at Stony Brook as well as chief psychiatric consultant for the medical surgical hospital at Northport, New York.

He and his wife are the parents of three children. The family plans to join him in the near future.

Weather

Showers in Rio Grande

By The Associated Press

Isolated summer showers developed today in the lower Rio Grande Valley, and evening thunderstorms, some possibly severe, were expected over much of the state.

A few thunderstorms continued to linger in the Panhandle and north of the Big Bend area early today. Much of South Texas was cloudy, while the rest of the state was fair. Morning temperatures were in the 60s and 70s.

Some severe thunderstorms were expected in the Panhandle and south plains late this evening. Otherwise, the forecast calls for partly cloudy and warm weather today.

FORECAST

WEST TEXAS: Scattered late afternoon, nighttime showers, thunderstorms east of mountains. Few severe Panhandle, south plains late this evening. Otherwise, partly cloudy, warm to hot afternoons through Tuesday except fair southwest. Highs today mid 80s north to near 100 Big Bend. Lows near 60 north to mid 70s south. Highs Tuesday near 80 north to near 100 Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST

WEST TEXAS: Mostly fair except occasional clouds and widely scattered thunderstorms north Wednesday. Continued very warm. Highs 80s Panhandle to near 100 Big Bend, cooling to 70s Panhandle and 90s Big Bend by Friday. Lows 50s Panhandle to near 70 Big Bend.

Salvadorans resent US pressure for reforms

By SAM DILLON
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — U.S. pressure on El Salvador to form a government acceptable to the Reagan administration and follow through on its agrarian-reform program is creating a widely felt anti-American backlash here.

The United States views the land-reform program as vital to keeping peasants from siding with leftist guerrillas fighting in the countryside in an attempt to take over the government.

"What we're witnessing is a wave of anti-Americanism that has never been experienced here before," said one U.S. Embassy official, requesting anonymity.

Unlike some other Central American countries, El Salvador has never had direct U.S. military intervention and never developed the "Yankee Go Home" attitude seen elsewhere in the region.

A recent full-page ad in the morning newspaper Diario de Hoy accused U.S. Ambassador Deane Hinton of "blackmailing us with your miserable aid, which only keeps us subjugated in underdevelopment so that powerful countries like yours can continue exploiting our few riches and having us under your boot."

The ad was placed by leaders of the Women's Crusade for Peace and Work, loosely aligned with the ultraright Republican Nationalist Alliance that controls 19 seats in the new 60-member Constituent Assembly.

The U.S. alliance with Britain in its war with Argentina for control of the Falkland Islands also has heightened anti-American feelings here.

Salvadoran officials speak carefully of U.S.-Salvadoran tensions.

"The image of the United States has deteriorated a great deal here," said Alejandro Gomez Vides, a Salvadoran undersecretary of foreign relations. "But the United States is still our principal ally and we hope this will continue."

For more than two years, major Salvadoran policies, including the agrarian, banking and foreign trade reforms and the March 28 Constituent Assembly elections, have been heavily influenced by the United States.

After the elections, a widely held Salvadoran view was that the United States imposed a national-unity agreement on four rightist parties and the Christian Democrats, then hand-picked Magana, who has no known political-party associations, as the provisional president.

Congressional action May 26 to slash U.S. aid after the Constituent Assembly suspended the land reform program unleashed some public criticism and a torrent of private mutterings.

Some sources said Salvadoran rightists are so angered they are talking about renouncing U.S. assistance, as Guatemala did in 1977 when the Carter administration attached human rights conditions to foreign aid. However, many officials say their country would not survive long without continued U.S. economic and military aid, $236 million of which already has been sent here this year.

GUARDED MOMENT — Vice President George Bush bows his head in prayer as two Secret Service agents keep watch during a rally of Southern Baptists in the Superdome in New Orleans Sunday night. A special bullet-proof glass partition was installed for Bush who spoke to a crowd of 40,000 in the giant facility.

Saudi oil policy

Shouldn't change after king's death

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil policy, which steers much of the world's economy, is not expected to change quickly in the wake of King Khaled's death, economic and political analysts say.

As holder of the largest oil reserves in the world, Saudi Arabia probably will continue to seek stable oil supplies and prices in order to prolong the oil era, analysts said after Khaled's death was announced Sunday.

But the dominant member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries may suspend its campaign to forge a long-term OPEC pricing plan until a realignment of the Saudi power structure is complete, said Nadav Safran, a professor of government at Harvard University.

Eventually, that restructuring could produce some unexpected changes in Saudi oil policy, Safran and other Middle East specialists said. Pressure on the Saudis to abandon their moderate stance on prices has mounted with the escalation of tensions in Iraq, Lebanon and other Arab countries.

But, says Safran, "The Saudis will do it slowly. They will not commit themselves to anything in long-term policy until that is completed."

Crown Prince Fahd became king Sunday after his half-brother Khaled, who was 69, died of a heart attack.

"Fahd probably has been the dominant voice on oil policy in the past, and I think he will keep control over this area," said William Quandt, a senior fellow at the Brookings Institute in Washington, D.C., and a former National Security Council staff member in the Carter administration.

"I don't think the Saudis are in a position to do anything dramatic on oil policy, such as threaten to use the 'oil weapon,'" Quandt said. "There will be a continuity of personnel there, and one should expect continuity of policy."

Safran said, however, that a redistribution of power among other members of the Saudi royal family could produce internal conflicts.

"If that happens that can have consequences for everything — economic, oil and all policies," he said.

TANKS DISPLAYED — Israeli soldiers show journalists Sunday one of the brand new Soviet T82 tanks from the Syrian army that was destroyed last Wednesday in El-Fatah valley when Israel's armored forces raced up the

Israelis watch war on TV

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — In what one TV critic called "Israel Television's finest hour," the state network is bringing frontline coverage of the Israeli invasion and the horrors of war in Lebanon into the homes of Israelis.

"Seldom has any country, involved in a critical war, shown such films of the anguish it was inflicting on innocent old men, women and children," wrote Jerusalem Post TV critic Philip Gillon.

Unlike coverage of the Vietnam War by U.S. television, the Israeli reporting does not seem to be spurring a backlash among Israelis against the war.

Since the government began what it calls "Operation Peace for Galilee" on June 6 in a bid to stamp out Palestinian guerrilla attacks on northern Israel from bases in Lebanon, Israel Television has increased news and special reports to more than two hours daily.

At first, coverage, which is subject to the same military censorship governing all domestic and foreign media reports, was limited to bland shots of convoys of tanks, armored personnel carriers and troops moving north to the front.

A program Saturday night included a discussion of soldiers gathered around a tank expressing their feelings about the war.

And you thought taxes went down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most American families will pay more federal taxes than ever this year despite the largest income tax cut in history, the Reagan administration says.

A study by the Treasury Department concludes that for the average family, higher Social Security taxes and the effects of inflation will more than offset the 10 percent income tax cut scheduled for July 1.

As a result, most families will pay a higher percentage of their wages in federal income and Social Security taxes this year than they did before the three-year tax cut act of 1981 took effect.

The study blames most of the rise in tax bills to "bracket creep." The term refers to an inflationary bias in the tax laws under which a family's tax bill rises faster than its annual income. The result is that a larger portion of the family's income goes to the Treasury even though the family's inflation-adjusted buying power remains unchanged.

According to the Treasury Department analysis, the 1982 installment of the tax cut barely offsets the bracket creep that has afflicted taxpayers since 1980.

When increased Social Security taxes are counted, the average family winds up with a higher net tax bill in 1982. Many families will pay more taxes every year through 1988 as well.

The study was limited to families of four with one wage-earner making a gross income between $15,000 and $40,000 in 1982. A majority of families fall within that income range.

Pope John Paul's on the road again

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Less than 48 hours after his return from Argentina and only two weeks after his historic trip to Britain, Pope John Paul II carries his message of peace to Geneva Tuesday.

The pontiff's personal peace missions to Britain and Argentina, failed to halt their fighting in the undeclared Falkland Islands war, but John Paul said Sunday the trips had a "positive result."

The pope also told a crowd of 30,000 in St. Peter's Square he was ready to travel to war-torn Lebanon if he could be useful. He called for international aid for Lebanon and warned that there can be no lasting Middle East peace unless the Palestinians' "identity" is preserved.

A crowded itinerary awaits the 62-year-old pontiff who plans to make 10 speeches during his 12-hour stay in Geneva.

Official highlights include his appearance at the annual conference of the 148-nation International Labor Organization, a call on International Red Cross headquarters and a visit to the European Nuclear Research Center.

At the end of the program is an indoor Mass at the new Geneva exhibition center before an expected crowd of 35,000 in what would be the largest Roman Catholic service ever in the heartland of Protestant reformer John Calvin.

Elaborate security precautions are being planned for the visit, as has become the norm since attempts on the pope's life at the Vatican in May 1981 and again last month during a trip to Portugal.

...so is Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two days of rest following his European journey, President Reagan is returning to the White House only briefly and then hitting the road on back-to-back trips to Houston and New York this week.

Reagan was flying home this afternoon after relaxing at the presidential retreat at Camp David in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, which was soaked by rain over the weekend.

There were no appointments today on his schedule.

On Tuesday, he flies to Houston for a fund-raising dinner for Texas Gov. William Clements. Some White House staffers said privately they had hoped the Texas trip could be scratched because of the grueling 10-day European journey that Reagan completed late Friday. However, the Houston overnight journey is planned with a return to Washington Wednesday.

With his bags barely unpacked, Reagan heads out again Thursday, flying to New York to address the United Nations second special session on disarmament, which began last week. This was the conference Reagan had challenged Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev to address, but there was no sign the Soviet leader intended to make an appearance.

The president is due back in Washington the same day. Reagan was at Camp David when he learned Sunday of the death of King Khaled of Saudi Arabia.

The president said he was deeply grieved by the monarch's death. He praised the king as a man who "ruled his country with honor, dignity and wisdom, and whose goodness and understanding commanded the respect of all."

Bush praises religious right

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Vice President George Bush, in an unusual gesture from the Reagan administration, says the conservative religious movement deserves praise for trying to bring the nation closer to God.

Bush told a huge Southern Baptist rally on Sunday that instead of fearing or condemning the religious-political right wing, Americans should welcome it as "an essentially healthy development in our politics."

"I embrace the constructive contributions it can make to strengthening the United States as one nation under God," Bush told about 42,000 people in the Louisiana Superdome.

It was the first such explicit endorsement from the Reagan administration of political activity by conservative religious organizations.

Such groups — including Moral Majority, led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, and Christian Voice — widely backed Reagan's election, but have lately become restive that the administration is not following through on their goals.

Among those are steps to allow prayer in public schools and curb abortion. Such measures are pending or planned in Congress.

The rally also gave a rousing reception to evangelist Billy Graham, who recently came under widespread criticism for his positive remarks in the Soviet Union about religious vitality in that officially atheist country.

"I believed it was the will of God before I went," Graham said after a long, standing ovation. "I knew it was the will of God while I was there. Since coming back, I'm more certain than ever that God's will was in it. I'm sorry some things got mixed up."

Bush praised Graham for "carrying the gospel to the whole world."

Bush cited a long history of political religious movements, including the civil rights drives of the late Dr. Martin Luther King and the current campaign against nuclear weapons by many Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders.

Dear Abby

Driving weaves tale of grief, pain

DEAR ABBY: With all the kids out of school, I wish you would rerun the letter, "Please, God, I'm Only 17." I am 19 now, but when I was 16 I read it for the first time, and it made such a tremendous impression on me I have not exceeded the speed limit since, and I know I never will.

HAROLD IN NORFOLK, VA.
DEAR HAROLD: With pleasure:

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17
The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off — going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream. Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight, I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please ... somebody ... wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17! ***

How to eat right

Today, it seems everyone is interested in learning how to practice good nutrition. But there is a lot of confusion about just what good nutrition is.

"The confusion is understandable," says Dr. Judith Stern, associate professor in the Department of Nutrition at the University of California, Davis. Dr. Stern also is director of the Food Intake Laboratory Group.

Dr. Stern claims almost every day we are bombarded with publicity suggesting various dangers in what we eat. Friends and relatives advise us to try vitamin supplements or special "miracle" regimens. Bizarre "health food" and diet fads sweep the country. Dr. Stern challenges today's "nutrition chaos" in a simple and straightforward booklet, "Eating Smart: A Concise Guide to Good Health Through Good Nutrition."

Dr. Stern's booklet covers such topics as the macronutrients; fiber and what it can and can't do for us; vitamins and minerals; how to strike a good "nutritional bargain"; eating our age; slimming and food; and food shopping and storage.

To order a copy of Dr. Stern's informative booklet, send $1.00 to Turnaround Workshop, P.O. Box 8688, Clinton, Iowa 52736.

Dr. Donohue

Leukemia doesn't need treatment

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Question: I have been told by my doctor that I have chronic lymphocytic leukemia. My doctor and several friends seem to want me to believe that I will not have any ill effects from this disease. I don't want to bury my head in the sand, so to speak. I know a little about the different kinds of white blood cells and different leukemias, but I want to know when I will have symptoms, what they will be, and what the treatment for this is. I am in the early stages now, with a 20,000 cell count. — M.P.

Chronic lymphocytic leukemia is a disorder involving the lymphocytes, one kind of white blood cell. It is a form of cancer. Now, just because I have used that word, I don't want what follows below to be lost on you. So read carefully. It's normal for the word — cancer — to inspire terror.

There are hundreds of kinds of cancers. A few are quite severe. Some are not, and I am happy to be able to tell you that chronic lymphocytic leukemia is one of the latter kind.

Your doctor is following accepted medical practice.

Club officers installed

The Business and Professional Women's Club held its final meeting and installation for 1982-83 officers at the Holiday Inn, June 8, with Mamie Roberts, president, presiding.

Installing officer was Andrea Yarbrough, member of the Uptown Midland Club and District Eight Director of TFBPW Clubs. Ms. Yarbrough used the flower symbol installation service. The theme was "Follow my Rainbow and find your dreams."

Officers installed were Linda Adams, president; Mary Newell, first vice president; Audrey Wilson, second vice president; Bernice Gallaway, recording secretary; Laverne Clawson, corresponding secretary and Delphia Gordon, treasurer.

Linda Adams, incoming president, spoke of her plans for the year of "Getting things done." Her basic plan consists of four questions. They are 1) Where are we? 2) Where are we going? 3) How are we going to get there? and 4) How much is it going to cost?

Linda Adams, BPW 1981-82 Woman of the Year was presented a bronze Nike (Winged Victory), the national BPW emblem. Appreciation awards were presented to Chirin Chinoy, Edith Gay, Jeannette

From your letter, it seems that you are not being treated. Many people with your problem do not need treatment. That shows you the extremes in severity among cancer types.

C.L.L. is a disease of older people, with the average age of onset about 60. It is usually picked up in a blood test being done for some routine illness. With C.L.L., the numbers of lymphocytes in the blood are high. Your figure, 20,000, is not all that high. The count can go into the hundreds of thousands.

You are to be commended for not wanting to bury your head in the sand about this. But all you need do at this point is follow your doctor's instructions and follow through with scheduled visits to him.

Sometimes, the lymphocytes invade other places in the body, like the lymph nodes, or organs, like the liver and the spleen. And sometimes the bone marrow can be a site for them. There, they may cause an anemia by crowding out some of the cells that make red blood cells. If the lymph nodes are involved, that will be seen as prominent lumps, especially in the neck.

However, none of these things need happen. And should they, there are treatments — radiation and chemotherapy with drugs like chlorambucil and steroids. Aside from reporting to your doctor on schedule, you don't have to do much else. If you aren't feeling well, if you have a fever, or if you notice swellings, call him. The outlook for you, however, is quite good.

Extension club plans summer activities

The Centerpoint Extension Club made plans for summer activities at a meeting at the Kentwood Activity Center, June 8.

An End of the Year luncheon will be held at 11:30 a.m. at Kentwood Activity Center, June 22. It will be hosted by Mary Leek and Mattie Wren.

A picnic for the Big Spring State Hospital Ward 8 will be at noon in Comanche Trail Park, July 27.

Sept. 14 will begin the new year with new officers in charge. The nominating committee will be Zan Ryan, Faye Iron, and Lucille Petty. Each member should bring to suggestions for programs for the new club year.

Three cakes will be given to the patients of BSSH for the birthday party. The cakes will be made by Olza

Stamp, Pearl Coffee, and Mattie Wren.

The State meeting of Extension Home Makers will be in El Paso with delegates, Francis Gant, Altie Lee Underwood, and Francis Mason on September 14-16.

Nanny's celebrate anniversary Senior citizens play in tournaments

Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Nanny of Gail Rt. celebrated their 29th wedding anniversary Friday evening with a supper and surprise party. The party was hosted by the Nanny's children. They are Ed Nanny, Big Spring, Mrs. Fred (Carol) Leggett of Plano, Mrs. Jim (Linda) Gregg of Odessa. Unable to attend were children, Dee Nanny, U.S. Navy, and Arna Nanny of Plano.

Nanny has been employed by Cosden for 28 years. Mrs.

Nanny, the former Ruth Beckman, is employed by Big Spring Independent School District as a kindergarten teacher. They are members of Phillips Memorial Baptist Church. They have four grandchildren.

The Nannys met in Big Spring and were married June 12, 1953. The Rev. Carlos McLoed performed the ceremony. They are long time residents of Big Spring.

Senior Citizens of Big Spring have spent the last few weeks playing game tournaments at the Spring City Senior Citizens Center, Bldg. 487, in the Industrial Park.

Winners in the domino tournament were Dan Birdwell and Pat Duncan. Bill Smelser and S.A. Wilson won second place.

In 42, winners were Bill Smelser and J.E. Roach. Pat Duncan and Dan Birdwell won second place.

In the pool tournament, winners were Max Roberts, first place, and David Pennington, second place.

Each of the winners were awarded a trophy.

How to keep romance alive

It's human nature to want to date the ideal person — someone smart, funny, charming, athletic, popular, attentive and good looking. The problem is that just about no one fills that bill — and sometimes we allow our unrealistic expectations to get in the way of an otherwise perfectly nice romance, says writer Anita Shreve.

Many people feel that going out with someone who is popular or important will reflect well on them. The logic goes like this: "If my date is funny and smart and good looking and well-liked, then everyone will think I'm terrific, too." Of course, few people deliberately seek out a relationship solely to enhance their status, but subconscious motivations can be strong.

If you form your ideas of a perfect romance from books or love songs, you're likely to be headed for disappointment. Not many men, for instance, write love poems, send candy, or swoon at the sight of their true love. Nor does someone have to be read over heels for you every second for you to have a good relationship. Unfortunately, the inability of real people to meet the fairy-tale standards of romance is responsible for a large percentage of needless breakups — and later, for a large number of divorces.

When entering a new relationship, keep in mind that your date is only human and can't read your mind. If the person is not fulfilling your expectations, it may simply be that his idea of a perfect relationship is different from yours. That doesn't mean you should give up your dreams or lower your standards. If you yearn for a picnic in the park, speak up and suggest it. Rather than seethe because you never get flowers, you might hint that you're crazy about violets.

There is a difference between seeking a reasonable amount of attention in a relationship and expecting a person to change his personality and habits to conform to your ideas or standards. Being aware of that difference can save you a lot of misery and let you enjoy the pleasures of a real romance.

Balance life between jobs

What's job sharing, and how does it work? Job-sharing couples professionally share less than two full-time equivalent positions, says Diane Welch, a family life education specialist.

They are emerging as members of the clergy, journalists, teachers, social workers and people in administrative fields, she says. Job-sharing couples in general strive to achieve a balance between work and family while they still retain sufficient time for leisure, the specialist explains.

Welch is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Astronaut makes rare appearance

THANKING THE CROWD — Former astronaut Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, waves to the crowd after receiving a standing ovation from the graduates of the University of Cincinnati, during commencement ceremonies, Sunday. In a rare public appearance, Armstrong spoke for ten minutes, and urged the students to work to build a better world.

Median U.S. home price rose to $72,000 last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans typically spent $72,000 to buy new homes last year, agreeing to overall monthly payments of $816, according to a report released today.

The high cost of housing "slammed the door on millions of would-be home buyers and cast a pall over the American dream of home ownership," said the report by the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

The study found that the median home price rose from $58,000 in 1979 to $72,000 in 1981. As a result, median monthly housing expenses, including interest payments, taxes, insurance and utilities, grew from $550 in 1979 to $816 last year.

Median is the midway point in a series of numbers; half are above it and half below it.

First-time home buyers accounted for only 13.5 percent of the home buyers in 1981, compared with 17.8 percent in 1979 and 36.3 percent in 1977, the report said.

In addition to having owned a home previously, the typical home buyer last year was older, at 34, and had a bigger annual income, at $39,196, than in 1979.

Also, the buyer was more likely than in the past to be unmarried and to buy a condominium or an older home using a variable rate mortgage to close the deal, the report said.

Officials of the league, which represents some 4,000 S&Ls, said the study underscores the difficulties Americans faced last year in buying houses, and raises the spectre that tight housing market will continue.

"Housing market conditions in 1982 show little prospect for improvement, and the future trends ... promise a decade of difficulty for home buyers," the report said.

Roy Green, chairman of the trade group, called for changes in money and budget policies to bring down interest rates and for incentives to boost personal savings and increase the amount of money available for home loans.

The report, the third in a series of bi-annual surveys the association started in 1977, is based on information taken from more than 14,000 conventional mortgage loans on single-family homes made in the second quarter of 1981. The loans were randomly selected from 250 savings and

Toronto detectives reopen child death 'whodunit' case

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

TORONTO (AP) — A team of a dozen handpicked detectives backed by medical specialists has reopened the investigation of a horrible whodunit, the murder of at least four and perhaps dozens of infants in the cardiac ward of the eminent Hospital for Sick Children.

Police thought they had the case solved more than a year ago when they arrested a nurse, Susan Nelles, and accused her of killing four children with large doses of digoxin, a heart drug which is difficult to detect in the body.

After a long preliminary hearing, a judge ruled last month that there was strong evidence of homicide — but no case against the 25-year-old Miss Nelles. He dismissed the charges against her.

During the hearing, testimony emerged of other "carbon-copy" deaths resembling those in which Miss Nelles was charged. The public did not become aware of the developments until weeks later, when the hearing ended.

As is frequently done in Canadian courts, the judge allowed reporters to attend the hearing, but banned publication of the evidence until the case against Miss Nelles was closed. When the hearing began in January, the sensational case disappeared from the Canadian press. It erupted again on May 21.

On that afternoon — just hours after the case against Miss Nelles was dropped — Ontario Attorney General Roy McMurtry announced that police would examine all deaths on the cardiac ward between July 1980 and March 1981, when Miss Nelles was arrested. The number was originally announced as 43, but officials now say they are looking at 44 deaths.

"You've got to go back and look at every case," Police Chief Jack Ackroyd said in a telephone interview. He said detectives are interviewing parents of the children who died and reviewing records, but he declined to describe how the case was going beyond saying that new evidence was emerging.

Police Superintendent Robert Bamlett said the 12 top detectives pulled together from the metro Toronto force for the case are working closely with forensic and medical specialists, including an expert on digoxin, Dr. Alois Hastreiter, retired head of pediatric cardiology at the University of Illinois Hospital.

The dismissal of charges against Miss Nelles and the sudden disclosure of the expanded scope of the case brought calls from political leaders and some parents for a public investigation of the deaths. McMurtry said a public inquiry could ruin chances of a successful prosecution and would have to wait until the criminal case is closed.

Health Minister Larry Grossman appointed a panel of outside experts to review current practices at the Hospital for Sick Children. There will be no public hearings and the panel has been told to steer clear of the police investigation.

'You've got to go back and look at every case...'

"We have not had an unexplained death in the Hospital for Sick Children since March 1981," said administrator J.E. Stibbards. "We have tried to emphasize that point."

The Hospital for Sick Children has been a respected medical facility for generations and a world-recognized leader in research. Its accomplishments include the development in 1932 of Pabulum, a nutritionally balanced precooked cereal, and more recently, breakthroughs in the treatment of spina bifida, a severe malformation of the spine that can lead to paralysis and brain damage.

The fourth-floor cardiac ward — the scene of the deaths — is a cheerful enclave populated by stuffed bears and prints of playful seals.

The ward holds 40 patients at a time, mostly infants, but some older children including a few teen-agers. The four children Miss Nelles was accused of killing ranged from 23 days old to just under one year.

The cardiac ward moved into its renovated quarters in July 1980, which is when the number of deaths began to increase. During the period in which the 44 children died, a normal mortality rate would have taken the lives of perhaps seven.

"In an institution like this, every death is reviewed," Stibbards said. Autopsies were conducted on 33 of the 44 bodies, but since a blood check for digoxin is not part of the routine, investigators have had to exhume some bodies to test for the drug.

Winning the air fare war

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A straight line isn't always the cheapest distance between two points in today's crowded, competitive and frequently confusing skies.

A 2,800-mile flight can cost less than one half the distance it may be cheaper to go from A to B to C than it is to go from A to B alone.

"You really do have to check all the airlines," said Sally McElwreath of Trans World Airlines. "You can have different prices on the same route."

You can sometimes wind up paying more for less. Here's an example:

Delta Airlines flies to London via the gateway city of Atlanta. A round-trip, excursion-fare ticket on a Delta flight from Tampa, Fla., to London with a stop in Atlanta en route will cost you $743. If you get on in Atlanta, your round-trip ticket will cost $852. The Atlanta passenger pays $109 more to fly about 800 fewer miles.

Competition is the cause of the confusion. Since 1978, the airlines have been allowed increasing freedom in choosing the routes they will fly and the prices they will charge. It's all part of the effort to deregulate the aviation industry.

Delta spokesmen said competition is the reason for the surface inequity in the Tampa and Atlanta fares. Pan American World Airways flies from Tampa to London via Miami; the current round-trip excursion fare to London from either Tampa or Miami is $730.

Delta did not want to lose Tampa passengers so it offered them a competitive fare. "There are hundreds of discount fares," said Delta spokesman Bill Berry. "They come and go." Berry admitted, however, that it is sometimes "hard to explain to a customer" why he or she is paying more for less.

The Southeast isn't the only part of the country where the fares may seem topsy-turvy. Airline fares never were based directly on the distance traveled; there was no fixed rate per mile. Today, however, distance is even less important than it used to be; popularity is the key to low price.

You can fly the 983 miles from Dallas to Orlando, Fla., on American Airlines at a one-way coach fare of $169; the 989 miles from Dallas to Salt Lake City will cost you $233.

"The key to all of this is the kind of competitive activity that exists" under deregulation," said American's Al Becker. Fares are not necessarily determined "by costs or even by sound business practices," he said.

WITH FANS LIKE THESE... — Fans at Sunday's game between the Minnesota Twins and the Texas Rangers poke a bit of fun at the two teams. Sunday night in Arlington Stadium.

The two teams are battling it out for last place in the American League. The fans loyalty appears to belong to the Cubs, a team in the National League.

Rangers pound Twins

American League

A's 7, Blue Jays 5

Tony Armas' two-run homer keyed a three-run seventh-inning rally and flashy Rickey Henderson stole four bases to pace Oakland over Toronto. He has a league-leading 62 steals in 61 games.

Losing 4-3, the A's broke through for their winning runs in the seventh following a rain delay of one hour, 29 minutes.

Henderson singled in the seventh, stole second and third, and then scored on a sacrifice fly by Dan Meyer. Armas then hit his seventh homer, off reliever Roy Lee Jackson, 2-5.

Tom Underwood, 3-4, was the winner with 32-3 innings of one-hit relief pitching. Dave Beard pitched the final three innings to gain his fourth save.

Angels 7, White Sox 4

Don Baylor's two-run double keyed a four-run eighth inning and Geoff Zahn hurled a six-hitter as California beat Chicago.

Trailing 3-2 after seven innings, the Angels scored four times in the eighth to sew up the game. Baylor's double off reliever Salome Barojas gave the California a 4-3 lead. Baylor scored from second on a single by Bobby Grich after an intentional walk to Reggie Jackson and Jackson then scored on Doug DeCinces' single off Jerry Kosman.

Zahn, 7-2, had a no-hitter and a 2-0 lead through 52-3 innings but the White Sox tied it then on an RBI triple by Bill Almon and a wild throw by catcher Bob Boone on a pickoff play. Chicago went ahead 3-2 in the seventh on Tom Paciorek's RBI single.

"Geoff moved the ball all around the plate," said Boone. "He kept it down and he had great control."

"You can't pitch any better," agreed Angels Manager Gene Mauch.

Mariners 7, Royals 1

Dave Henderson, Al Cowens and Jim Maler drove in two runs each and Floyd Bannister recovered from a line drive beaning to pitch seven strong innings as Seattle beat Kansas City.

Bannister, 6-4, was struck in the head by Willie Wilson's line drive in the first inning but recovered to throw him out and held Kansas City to five hits before giving way to reliever Larry Andersen in the eighth.

"It hit me in the side of the neck and dropped straight down," Bannister said. "It was just like college. A guy hit a line drive back at me, and it broke my wrist, but I picked the ball up and threw the guy out, even though I had broken my arm."

After Bannister was hit, he left the field for a brief examination, but he said there was no doubt in his mind he would continue.

"I was going to give it a try, let's put it that way. I would have had to pass out on the mound before they could take me out of there."

Padres sweep Astros

National League

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Baseball fans can boo a player one minute and give him a standing ovation the next, as John Montefusco has found out the hard way.

Montefusco was the winning pitcher for the Padres as San Diego completed a four-game sweep of the Houston Astros with a come-from-behind 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros Sunday.

But some early shakiness by the Padre right hander caused San Diego rooters to take out their frustrations on Montefusco, though Manager Dick Williams didn't let the crowd affect his decision to stick with his pitcher.

"They were yelling and screaming for Dick to get me out of there, but he just kept throwing me out there and told me to go get em," said Montefusco. The boos may have been the loudest when Astro starter Nolan Ryan lined a run-scoring single to center in the sixth inning to give Houston a 4-2 lead.

Ruppert Jones' solo home run in the Padres' half of the sixth reduced the Astro lead to 4-3 and a combination of San Diego speed and two Astro throwing errors provided the tying and winning runs in the seventh.

Tim Flannery's lead-off single enabled Montefusco to stay in the game to bunt the runner over, and he successfully sacrificed Flannery to second.

Alan Wiggins singled to left to score Flannery and produce a 4-4 tie.

Wiggins then stole second, and when catcher Alan Ashby threw the ball to center, the Padre rookie kept running. When Tony Scott's throw to third was low and skipped into the Astro dugout, Wiggins came home with the winning run.

"Those kind of things happen," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "They seem to be happening to us too often, that's one reason why we're not winning."

Montefusco, who worked 72-3 innings before giving way to Gary Lucas, won his fifth against four losses and left to loud cheers from the Padre fans. Ryan fell to 5-8 despite striking out nine Padres in 61-3 innings of work.

"This is the most games I've won in four years," said Montefusco, who was 2-3 last season, 4-8 in 1980 and 3-8 in 1979.

"I think I said at the beginning of the season that if I win five games, I'm a cinch for comeback player of the year. I've got my five games and there's still a lot of the season to go."

Ray Knight's fourth homerun of the season, a two-run blast in the first inning, gave Houston a 2-0 lead. Ryan walked Wiggins in the Padres half of the inning and he stole second and came home on a single by Gene Richards.

Richards, like Wiggins, stole two bases. After Phil Garner's triple and a Montefusco wild pitch gave Houston a 3-1 lead, Jones' single drove in Richards, who had walked and stolen second.

Wiggins has 23 steals in 25 attempts and has been successful on his last 14 tries. "You just have to be a little careful about picking the pitch to go on when they're looking for you to run."

The victory put the Padres just 1 1/2 games behind frontrunning Atlanta in the NL West. The Padres won six of their last seven.

Expos 5, Cubs 3

Another day, another game ... and another loss for the Chicago Cubs.

And Cubs Manager Lee Elia has only one explanation for the streak that has reached 13 games and tied a club mark set in 1944.

"We're snakebit," he said Sunday after the Cubs dropped a 5-3 decision to the Montreal Expos in 10 innings.

Montreal's Tim Wallach provided the telling blow, cracking a two-run homer with two outs in the 10th after the Cubs had rallied from a 3-0 deficit.

"We hit the heck out of the ball today," Elia said, "but it always seemed to be right at someone. I'm proud of the way they played today. "They worked their tails off. You can't do much more than that."

Reliever Woodie Fryman, who retired the Cubs in order in the 10th, earned his fourth victory in six decisions. Reliever Willie Hernandez, 2-4, took the loss.

Leon Durham smacked his sixth home run of the season, a two-run shot in the fourth to tie the game a 3-3.

Reds 4, Dodgers 2

Bruce Berenyi ended a five-game losing streak with relief help Tom Hume.

Berenyi, 5-6, gave up six hits in seven innings before giving way to Hume in the eighth, who went on to record his 12th save of the season.

While Berenyi was solving his problems, Los Angeles starter Burt Hooton continued his slump. Hooton, 1-4, lost his third straight game, giving up eight hits and four runs in only three innings.

Hooton has allowed 47 hits and 23 earned runs in only 252-3 innings since tossing a one-hitter April 29.

Cincinnati got two runs in the first when Eddie Milner doubled, and later scored on Ron Oester's infield groundout. Larry Bittner also had a run-scoring single to drive in Dave Concepcion, who had doubled.

The Reds added two more runs in the third when Cesar Cedeno was hit by a pitch, Paul Householder singled and both scored on Alex Trevino's single.

Los Angeles got one run in the fourth when Ken Landreaux scored from third on a wild throw from Householder in right on Steve Garvey's single. The Dodgers added another in the seventh when Steve Sax scored on Pedro Guerrero's infield grounder.

Giants 2-1, Braves 1-5

The Braves saw two winning streaks come to an end, but were able to make amends against San Francisco.

The Giants, led by Jack Clark's 11th homer of the season to lead off the sixth, won the first game of a doubleheader to snap Atlanta's five-game winning streak. It also marked Atlanta's first defeat on the road against a West Division opponent this season following 13 straight victories.

In the second game Dale Murphy hit a two-run homer to help the Braves gain a split.

Murphy's homer, which gave him a major-league leading 19, came in the first inning, giving the Braves all the runs they needed off losing pitcher Altee Hammaker, 3-4.

Atlanta's Rick Camp, 4-3, registered his first victory in four years as a starter, working 52-3 innings and allowing one run. Gene Garber finished up, retiring nine straight batters before giving up a single to gain his 11th save of the year.

Rennie Martin, 2-3, was the winner in the opener, working 81-3 innings. Greg Minton came on in relief to register his 10th save.

Atlanta opened the scoring in the second on a leadoff homer by Bob Horner, his 11th of the year. The homer was the sixth straight hit for Horner, who went 5-for-5 Saturday.

The Giants tied the game off loser Ken Dayley, 2-3, in the fourth on Chili Davis' one-out single, Clark's walk and Darrell Evans' single.

Horner walked in the fourth, but his streak ended when he struck out in the sixth. He doubled in the ninth and, after striking out in the first inning of the second game, reached base three more times with a single and two walks.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Don Zimmer needed that. Just three days ago he thought he had been fired when he received an urgent telephone call on his day off. Instead, it was General Manager Eddie Robinson who got the ax.

Sunday, the Texas Rangers gave him a season high run production in a 10-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins — their first laughter since April.

"I don't care if it (the victory) had been over Arlington High School I would have taken it," said Zimmer. "The only thing I've had to laugh about lately is my own jokes."

The Rangers pounded three Minnesota pitcher for 16 hits, scoring seven runs on eight hits in the first inning with rookie Dave Hostetter's two run homer the highlight.

"That kid has a chance to be a great one," said Zimmer. "He hits shots like Frank Howard used to."

Hostetter, obtained from Montreal along with Larry Parrish in the trade that sent Al Oliver to the Expos, is tied for the club lead in homers with four. He has only been with the team since May 28th.

"I was really surprised by the trade," said Hostetter. "You know how this business is about rumors. I went all the way through spring training without even hearing one."

Hostetter hit his homer off Jack O'Conner, 0-2, who only lasted two-thirds of an inning.

"We were in the Expo organization together and I knew how he pitches," said Hostetter. "I was happy to get a fast ball."

Hostetter's homer traveled some 380 feet. He muscled one 454 feet Saturday night in a 4-3 Texas victory.

"I'm glad I'm off to such a fast start here," he said. "I feel very comfortable at the plate and I've tried to be selective with the pitches I hit."

Doc Medich, 4-5, went 62-3 innings, allowing nine hits. Rookie centerfielder George Wright, who had three hits, singled and scored on Lamar Johnson's double to leadoff the Ranger first. Hostetter followed with his fourth homer.

Singles by Leon Roberts and Larry Parrish and a walk to Don Werner set up Mark Wagner's two-run single. Wright singled again, off reliever John Pacella, to produce the sixth Ranger run and Doug Flynn drove in the seventh.

The other Texas runs came on a double play grounder in the second, Wright's sacrifice fly in the fifth, and a Wright triple and a Doug Flynn single in the eighth.

The Twins scored once in the fourth on a double by Ron Washington, a single by Kent Hrbek and Randy Johnson's sacrifice fly.

A hit batsman, singles by Hrbek and Johnson, a double by Mickey Hatcher and Gary Gaetti's sacrifice fly got three more Twin runs in the sixth.

"We needed a game like this and I hope it's a sign of something good," said Zimmer.

For the Twins, it was their 21st loss in their last 23 games.

Brewers 13, Tigers 5

The Milwaukee Brewers have put the hop back in their hitting.

"It was just like the 'Wallbangers' from the West Coast," said Manager Harvey Kuenn Sunday after the Brewers walloped 18 hits, five of them home runs, to bury the Detroit Tigers 13-5.

The Brewers fell into a slump after returning home last week. But they've scored 33 runs in the last four games while winning three of them. Sunday's power display included two homers by Gorman Thomas and one each by Don Money, Robin Yount and Ben Oglivie.

Thomas hit his 11th homer of the year with Yount on base in the first inning and Oglivie followed with his 12th, giving the Brewers a 3-0 lead.

Connors takes Queen's Club

LONDON (AP) — John McEnroe's ankle and his tennis game are not 100 percent, although Jimmy Connors may have something to do with the latter.

Connors whipped McEnroe 7-5, 6-3 Sunday to collect the $24,000 first prize in the Stella Artois Grand Prix championship, marking the first time in four years that McEnroe has failed to win the grass court event.

"He (McEnroe) can play better," said Connors about the match at London's Queen's Club. "He missed a few shots that he normally would not have missed."

An injured left ankle may have had something to do with those misses, but McEnroe would not use the injury as an excuse.

"It is still not 100 percent, but it had nothing to do with the way I played today," said McEnroe.

The New Yorker said his serve hurt him more than the ankle.

"I have served well some days, and not so well on others," said McEnroe. "I am just sorry I did not play better in the final."

Connors won the 11th and 12th games to win first set after losing his service while ahead 5-4. The Belleville, Ill. left-hander broke McEnroe with the score tied 2-2 in the second set and closed out the match by breaking McEnroe again in the ninth game.

McEnroe, who slammed eight aces but had four double faults, will have to improve his play if he hopes to defend his title at Wimbledon, which opens June 21.

He and Connors are expected to be named the top seeds at the famed tournament, which has been hit by a number of defections in the men's ranks.

Five-time champion Bjorn Borg is skipping the event because the Association of Tennis Professionals has said he must play in qualifying matches. That's because the Swede did not play in the required number of tournaments this year to enter.

Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, the hottest player on the tour, is not playing at Wimbledon because he says he's allergic to grass, while Argentina's Guillermo Vilas and Jose-Luis Clerc will not travel to England because of the Falkland Islands dispute.

Paletti dies in Canada's GP

Piquet wins without elation

MONTREAL (AP) — There was no joy in Nelson Piquet as he went through the victory ritual after the tragic Canadian Grand Prix.

The 29-year-old Brazilian stood on the victor's platform, sipped the winner's champagne and smiled at the compliments from race officials. But there was no elation at gaining his first official victory of the Formula One season, a feat clouded by the death of Italian driver Riccardo Paletti.

Paletti, who would have been 24 on Tuesday, drove his Osella racer into the rear of the stalled Ferrari of polesitter Didier Pironi of France at the start of Sunday's race on the circuit named for Canadian driver Gilles Villeneuve, who was killed in May while attempting to qualify for the Belgian Grand Prix.

Paletti, from Milan and starting only his second Grand Prix, died about two hours later at a Montreal hospital of massive internal bleeding.

Three other cars also were involved in the crash at the start that brought out a red flag stopping the race. But none of the other drivers were injured and the 70-lap race was restarted more than an hour later.

Piquet, the defending world champion, started fourth and quickly sped past Pironi — in his team's backup car — and the Renaults of Frenchmen Rene Arnoux and Alain Prost to gain the lead on the ninth lap.

He stayed there the rest of the way, cruising easily through the second half of the race and crossing the finish line 13.799 seconds ahead of Brabham teammate Riccardo Patrese of Italy.

AFTER THE CRASH — Crewmen work to free driver Riccardo Paletti from his Osella Ford after dousing the fire that enveloped his car when he collided with Didier Pironi of Ferrari at the start of the Canadian Grand Prix in Montreal on Sunday. Paletti later died from his injuries.

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 15, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Conditions do not seem to be breaking as you would like and you are inclined to be in an argumentative mood. Strive for more harmony with co-workers to gain your objectives.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to June 19) A higher-up is looking for someone to blame so be sure to stay out of this person's way. Strive for increased happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Leaving present duties for something new is not wise at this time. Make the evening with congenials a happy one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day to check your credit and to take care of important bills. Follow the good advice of a financial expert.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you keep your end of an agreement you've made with a friend. Making changes now is unwise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Although you may be in a bad mood at this time with duties ahead of you, attend to them cheerfully for best results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is best to attend to regular routines first before engaging in worthwhile recreation. Use common sense.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The situation improves at home but you still have to use more tact to gain your objectives. Don't neglect your health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't be resentful if an associate wants you to do more work than you had expected. Sidestep any arguments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your ideas may not be as good as you think, so be careful in all your dealings. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do not involve yourself in a civic matter at this time. Show more cooperation with associates and increase harmony.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You could feel hemmed in by circumstances beyond your control so do only those things that are within your power.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Look within yourself for answers you need to puzzling situations instead of relying so much on the ideas of others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will be able to accomplish a great deal in public life once the personal motives are understood by others. Much ability at detail here which is the key to success. Teach to understand the true value of money.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Small company crafts world-famous boots

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles has two pair. Prince Philip owns one, as do golfer Lee Trevino, singer Robert Goulet, actor Tommy Lee Jones and baseball great Mickey Mantle.

But Santa Rios, the 82-year-old owner and operator of the tiny Rio Boot Co., says she has never worn a pair of her product.

For 47 years, the company has been turning out bits of South Texas tradition two-by-two — the best cowboy boots, some say, money can buy.

"Not me, I never wear them," she said. "The first pair of shoes (her husband Abraham) made for me, well, I didn't like them. So he said, 'Never again.'"

President Dwight D. Eisenhower used to wear a pair in the White House — a gift from Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Rios doesn't advertise, but customers keep coming to the shop Abraham Rios began as a shoe repair store in this tiny Rio Grande Valley town 19 miles north of Harlingen.

"I've had all the kind of boots you can have, but none of them compare with that of these people do," said Eddie Dwyer Jr., a Corpus Christi Xerox sales manager who owns ten pairs of Rios boots.

"They make the best boot you can put on your feet," Dwyer said. Abraham Rios didn't live long enough to see the coming of Texas chic, a fad that Mrs. Rios said doubled business in two years.

Mrs. Rios' 38 craftsmen cut, shape, sew and tack together 100 pair a week, and the company has a 4-month backlog of orders, she said.

"When we started, it was just me and my husband and one or two workers," she said. When her husband died, Mrs. Rios took over the company.

Rios Boots range in price from $185 for a pair of everyday cowhide stompers with no fancy stitching, to $2,000 for a pair of alligator boots with rows of ornate patterns sewn into the uppers.

The fit is guaranteed, she said, and if the customer isn't pleased, another pair will be made.

"We have a lot of satisfied customers, but we make them satisfied," Mrs. Rios said. Anteater and alligator are the most popular skins for boots today, she said.

At Rios, the buyer selects a leather from the menagerie of hides: calfskin, unborn calf, water buffalo, ostrich, kangaroo, caribou, shagreen, ring-tailed lizard, anteater and elephant.

Next, the customer chooses from a rainbow of colors and textures, seven different toe styles, six different heels and three different scallops — the top of the boot.

"We have a customer who wears nothing but elephant," Mrs. Rios said. "He's got 25 pair."

Not everyone is thrilled about the exotic footwear. David Thompson, deputy zoo director in nearby Brownsville, said that although the hides used are legal, it's "a sad situation."

FBI agents check boot-makers from time to time, Thompson said, to make sure they aren't illegally using the hides of endangered species.
