Rodeo winners Four-night competition closes

By MIKE DOWNEY Staff Writer

A slight girl on a big horse captured the imagination of the crowd at the 49th Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo Saturday as Rolynne Key of Gail rode to a firstplace finish in the barrel race.

Ms. Key finished with the best overall time of 17.36 seconds, edging Thursday night's winner Jacqueline Moore of Utopia who raced to a 17.52 second time. Connie Kirby of Comanche, Okla., finished third at 17.57 seconds. The barrel race went one go-round with competitors going for the best time.

In the men's competition, Scott Hopping of Lubbock continued a bad-luck streak with riding stock. Hopping was aboard a saddle bronc Thursday night that struck a wall and was killed. Saturday night, Hopping collided during his bronc ride with Bubba Goodo, one of the riders who helps herd stock after the rides.

SADDLE BRONC

Derek Clark of Colcord, Okla., captured first place in overall competition of two go arounds in tight competition with a combined score of 147. Clark competed Wednesday night as did second-place Rick Carpenter of Jasper, Ala., with 146 points. George Anderson of Cushing took third with 145 points. Anderson competed in Thursday's performance.

Friday night's competitor Raymond Gross rode his way to the top finish with a score of 76. The Bryan cowboy was competing for the top time in one go around. Dave Appleton of Snyder and Kris Brown of Eastland tied for second with a score of 76.

BULL RIDING

In the toughest and perhaps most popular event, Friday night rider Ken Wilcox of Greenbriar, Ark. bucked his way to the top money with a 78 score. Menard cowboy Bart Wilkinson edged into second place with his Thursday night ride of 77. Champion Don Gay from Mesquite and Dave Robbins of Belton tied for third with scores of 73.

Nominee would replace resigning Alexander Haig

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan and his key aides conferred Saturday at Camp David with a surprised George P. Shultz, while top administration officials described the new secretary of state as a "team player" in contrast to Alexander M. Haig Jr.

After a 21/2-hour meeting with Reagan in the shade of a pine tree, Shultz came to Washington and told reporters, 'I can work 'sympatico' for him and with his administration.'

The secretary of state-designate said he saw the job "as an opportunity to do what I can to advance the cause of peace, freedom and justice in a world so troubled and so anxious to hope for a good future."

Only four hours earlier, Shultz arrived at Dulles International Airport from London and was whisked to the presidential retreat for a meeting with Reagan and some of the top aides with whom Haig had battled.

There he met with the president, national security adviser William Clark, with whom Haig had had differences, presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, and White House chief of staff James A. Baker III. The three aides flew with Shultz for a working lunch on a terrace outside Aspen Lodge, Reagan's cabin.

One senior foreign policy White House adviser stressed that Shultz, who headed the Labor and Treasury departments during the Nixon administration, was a "team player'' who "commands widespread respect overseas." This official and others, who requested anonymity, emphasized that Shultz' nomination would not mean any changes in foreign policy.

The reference to Shultz' ability to get along was an apparent contrast with Haig, whom feuded often sometimes publicly - with top administration officials.

"Maybe the idea of having to work with colleagues was not acceptable to him," suggested a White House official who would not be named. "It's a big load, when you want to make all the decisions and call all the shots. It's hard to stand up under that kind of stress.

Before leaving London, Shultz told reporters that his nomination "has come as a pleasant surprise.

The 61-year-old Shultz is president of the Bechtel Group, Inc., one of the world's largest private engineering and construction firms. Shultz would be the second current Cabinet member from Bechtel, which has major contracts in the Arab world. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger is the other.

As sheets of rain inundated Howard County again last night, area farmers stricken by last night's rain and earlier hail and flooding may gain relief from a littleknown provision of the 1981 U.S. farm bill.

State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, in conjunction with U.S. Sen. John Tower and the National Cotton Council, is attempting to drum up support in the High Plains area and in Washington for disaster payments to area cotton producers.

A provision of the Food Act of 1981 allows the secretary of agriculture, John Block, to allocate disaster payments to producers if an economic emergency has been created. The payments can be made to aid economic recovery.

Shaw said the hail and flooding this year could mean the third bad year in a row for area cotton producers, who suffered low prices last year. "Three bad years could be hail, wind and rain. In Howard County, Agriculture Extension Agent Don Richardson has estimated 80 percent of the county's cotton was affected by the spate of bad weather

Richardson said 20 to 25 percent of the crop had been wiped out just by hail and wind.

In Mitchell County, the prognosis was a 70 to 80 percent loss of cotton, officials there said.

Emergency relief to Howard County and the High Plains area may be forthcoming, following a visit from Secretary Block or representatives from the USDA office. Shaw said a movement is afoot to get Block to travel to Texas to gauge the disaster. An agricultural team from Washington may be in the state as soon as Monday, ac-

With hail, wind and rain already damaging crops, the forecast for the area calls for more thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Service. Late Saturday, Big Spring received sixty-five hundredths of an inch, according to measurement by Red Thomas on East 13th, and sixty-nine hundredths, according to Boyce Hale south of the city.

Buck Graham of Coahoma reported no rain there while Mrs. Larry Shaw said a trace fell at her home near Knott yesterday afternoon.

GREEK CURE

Big Springers try it to fight their cancer

> By CAROL DANIEL Staff Writer

She had a year and a half to live. At 37, she could look forward to 18 months of vomiting, of forgetfulness, of pain. Without treatment, she had six weeks. At the most.

Discarding medically-approved cancer treatment methods, she decided to risk an unorthodox method. It involved a strenuous journey to a foreign land, spending large sums of money and taking injections of a mysterious serum from a man whose methods respected American cancer specialists labeled as 'quackerv

She was taking chemotherapy at Scott and White in Temple last December when doctors told her the cancer had mestastesited to the bone. The insidious disease had spread to her leg and back. She took radiation treatments for the pain. They didn't help.

She traveled even farther from her home in the Luther community for treatment at M.D. Anderson in Houston. The doctors there increased the chemotherapy dosages.

"It hits four hours after the injection," she said. "I would throw up and throw up and throw up. It was the sickest you've ever been in your life. I was goofy all the time, couldn't even remember conversations I'd just had.

There was no evidence of any reduction of the cancer, even with the massive dosages of chemotherapy she received.

She couldn't take it any longer.

She decided, with no discouragement from her doctor, to try an unorthodox method.

The first of March she made arrangements and, accompanied by a friend, flew to Athens, Greece, to seek a cure, or just some relief, from Dr. Heriton (Harry) Alivazatos.

Dixie Leonard is but one of many from the United States who have made the trip to Greece seeking an escape from the horrors of terminal cancer.

Alivazatos is a Greek microbiologist whose cancercure method has been compared by some in the medical profession, to unproven "cures" such as laetrile, vitamin C, cultured milk and Hoxsey herbs.

The doctor and his serum, dubbed the "Greek cure," have drawn attention from a large number of Permian Basin residents who recently have sought his treat-See Greek, page 2-A

As with many other "unproven methods" the content of the serum remains a mystery, shared only with the Greek Minister of Health to protect the formula, the doctor claims Alivazatos has never formally reported his research results in professional literature. Scientific evidence to confirm the anti-cancer properties of his product are lacking. Because his research data have not been published, many cancer specialists in the states see no basis for evaluating or retesting his claims.

But Americans continue to flock to Athens, encouraged by rumors of 99 percent cure rates, and on their return declare themselves everything from 100 percent cancer-free to, like Dixie, just "feeling better

Sitting in her business office in the Big Spring Industrial Park, Dixie said she feels better now than she has since she began taking chemotherapy. The pain in her neck and back are gone, she said, and although she must use a cane to walk, the pain in her right leg is lessened.

Alivazatos helped her in another way, Dixie said. She feels now as though she can get on with her life and enjoy it.

'I feel much better, ten times better mentally," she explained. "There's less pain, much less pain ... My health, attitude and mental outlook are all improved. Before, I couldn't do anything, didn't want to do anything.

Though she enjoys life again, and says she has a "better chance," Dixie doesn't claim to be cured. She hasn't seen a doctor to confirm any reduction in the cancer and says she will not unless she begins to hurt again. But she has lived, relatively pain-free, almost three months longer than experts predicted.

She shrugged her shoulders and added, "I would say it's a lot mental, a lot medicine, a lot just believing."

Alivazatos treats both his Greek and American patients in his combination home-office in a three-story building in Athens.

Patients climb 34 marble stairs to the third floor to a crowded waiting room and often sit for long stretches of time until the doctor can see them. There are no appointments, no receptionists, no nurses and no lengthy forms to fill out.

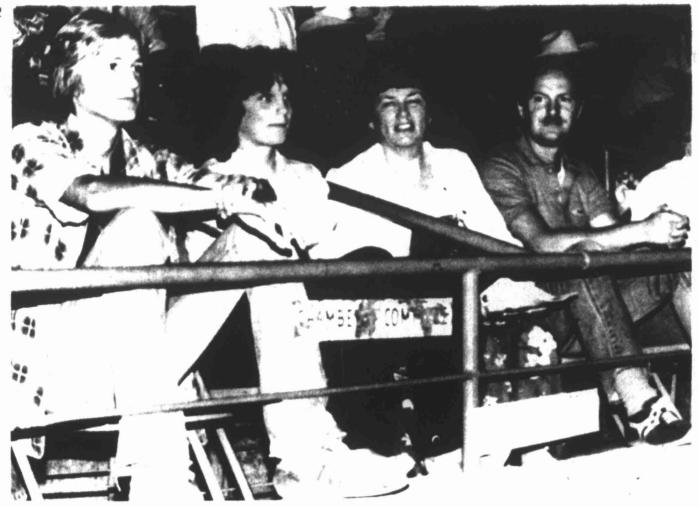

The doctor takes a blood sample, tests it and from that single test determines the location and severity of the cancer. His patients have said the doctor is amazingly accurate on both counts. Without previous knowledge of her case, Dr. Alivazatos told Dixie her cancer was lymphatic, as had been previously diagnosed, and had spread to her neck, back and right leg

The doctor assigns a numeral indicating the severity of cancer in the body ranging upward from a cancerfree 2.5. Dixie's was 6.05 upon her arrival in Athens, the doctor told her. After 20 serum injections, one a day every day, excluding Sundays, Alivazatos told her she was down to 2.5, cured.

To be certain the serum will be effective, the patient not hot or cold baths and sex only in moderation drink "lots and lots" of water to flush out the dead cancer cells and avoid alcohol, salt and acidic foods.

Those from Big Spring who visited the Greek doctor seemed to form a respect for the doctor and his treatment

Most of us who have gone to Greece have seen that it's a blessing, not a miracle or anything ... But without question, they feel that the man has something in the way of a cure for cancer," explained Dale L. Austin of Big Spring. Dale recently returned from taking his father-in-law to Greece and has spoken to the Rotary Club about the "Greek cure." 'The fact is, people's lives have increased in quality if nothing else," he said. "I've come to realize he is not a quack. Austin said that although he doesn't want to sound like he's "for him," he's "just trying to put facts as I know and understand them. I'm not saying he has a cure for it, and I'm not saying he does not. I am saying I believe he has something to say. Cancer specialists in this area disagree. Dr. Eric Svenson, medical oncologist and department head of the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center, told Midland Memorial Hospital medical staff that recipeints of the mysterious injections are not being cure of cancer and are losing valuable treatment time. Svenson presented X-rays of several cancer cases that showed either an increase or existence of the

Amid the crowds at the Friday performance of the Big Spring Rodeo were the glad "victims" of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Hold-up. The chamber hold-up program invites a passing tourist family to spend the night in Big Spring with free lodging, food and entertainment

Mr. Miller, a supervisor at TEC, an electronics manufacturing company in Tucson, said his first thought when he saw the DPS trooper was "Oh, no, not me!" But he said he really enjoyed the whole experience. "I think it's a great idea," he added.

Mrs. Miller, who works at HLS Auto Parts Distributors, agreed the hold-up was great. She said the family was on vacation returning from Oklahoma City when stopped. Although the Miller's 17-year-old son, Rick, thought the Both Jackie and Rick especially liked the meal at the Brandin Iron. "The dinner was good," Rick said. "There was so much food," Jackie added, spreading her arms.

Mrs. Miller, who is from Scotland and has a lovely accent, first met her husband while the two were in Chicago. 'I was a nanny for a millionaire's children,'' she said in Scottish-shaded English. Mr. Miller, who was in the military at the time, said she was herding five kids around when he met her

The Miller stayed Friday at the Mid-Continent Inn with flowers from Faye's Flowers. The family were the guests of the rodeo association at the rodeo. disease after the patients had returned from Greece. Fear of cancer, fear of treatment side effects and loss of hope when given a limited time to live cause cancer patients to flee to Greece, Svenson said.

Svenson also urged clergymen to counsel patients not to go to Greece. He said the "greatest misconception is that there is no hope for the cancer patient."

Dr. R.R. Patel, a cancer chemotherapy specialist at Malone-Hogan, said he "doesn't actively" encourage or discourage patients who have failed to respond chemotherapy from going to Greece, but "I still think it's a waste of money, though," he added.

Patel said he didn't foresee Alivazatos or his serum being accepted by the medical society until he "clarified his methods."

The American Medical Association hasn't officially voiced rejection of the supposed "cure," Patel said. "They just ignore it" as one of many unproven methods "like snake oil and Indian dances.

"If my mother were terminally ill, my recommendation to her would not to be to see Dr. Alivazatos," he added.

Even the man in the United States who probably knows him best, Eldon Jewett of Baron Travel Agency in Fresno, Calif., said "Frankly, I don't think he has an absolute cure.

"What he has is a possible alternate treatment that I think would be good to be tested and found out if its effective or not," said Jewett, who documents the cases of Americans who visit Alivazatos

Jewett said his doctor friend has been harrassed by "every kind of promoter in the world" and calls a letter circulating through the states claiming a 99 percent cure rate totally "supercilious."

"It's nonsense," he added "and the rumors of him seeing three to five thousand patients per year is physically impossible. It's just rumors, just garbage."

The serum should be tested as a feasible alternative to radiation and chemotherapy treatments by three or four organizations in the states who could say "yea or nay," to it's release here, Jewett said.

Jewett said his only interest in Alivazatos' serum is from "the standpoint of finding out if it is a feasible alternate.

"I'd rather not send people over there," he said. "If they ask me, I say there's a 50-50 chance it will work."

Alivazatos plans to offer his serum for tests in the U.S. within the next 30 days and has suspended treatment of Americans until he can begin operating here, Jewett said.

Alivazatos' former patients in this area evidently are supportive of the idea.

Chemist jailed in drug arrest

A 32-year-old chemist for Cosden refinery was arrested by Fort Worth officials on suspicion of manufacturing and selling methamphetamine and amphetamine, according to Big Spring police detective Sgt. Roy Osborne.

Gary D. Branum of 1110 Johnson, a Cosden employee since March 1981, is being held in lieu of $200,000 bond at Tarrant County Jail after being arrested at his home here, officials said.

Osborne, who assisted in the arrest, said Branum is believed to have manufactured and sold the drugs while a student at Texas Christian University.

After a long investigation, Fort Worth officials called the Big Spring police department and said they had a grand jury indictment against Branum "and wondered if we knew anything about him," Osborne said.

Branum was taken into custody Wednesday and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin, Osborne said. He then was transported to Fort Worth. Big Spring police detectives Osborne and Bill Price assisted a Tarrant County district attorney's investigator and a Fort Worth police sergeant in the Wednesday arrest, Osborne said.

Rain soaks Panhandle

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Torrential downpours hit the Texas Panhandle on Saturday, stalling dozens of cars in high water and stranding campers in Palo Duro Canyon for a time.

The National Weather Service reported 1.7 inches of rain within a matter of hours, but added that some areas noted up to three inches during the morning.

An undetermined number of campers were forced to seek high ground at the Palo Duro Canyon State Park after rising waters cut off roads leading into and out of the area, according to a park spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

But state highway department crews used sand to open up the roadways shortly after 1 p.m., leaving the park "in super condition," the spokesman said.

In Amarillo, streets were closed and overpasses were flooded during the worst portion of the storm, which included high winds and marble-sized hail.

Police received numerous reports of stalled cars, but no injuries were reported. Lightning also knocked out power in many homes and businesses, but electric service was quickly restored, officials said.

The storm was part of a front that extended across the Panhandle from New Mexico to Oklahoma.

Widely scattered thunderstorms dotted portions of East and Southeast Texas from Houston to Toledo Bend and extending 50 miles out into the Gulf of Mexico.

Fair to partly cloudy skies were reported across the rest of Texas with afternoon temperatures in the 80s and 90s.

The forecast called for a chance of rain across most of the state through early Sunday.

FORECAST

WEST TEXAS: Scattered thunderstorms through Monday, Lows Sunday night 60s except low 70 south. Highs Monday mostly 90s except near 107 Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy with a chance of thunderstorms mainly north. Warm to hot afternoons. Highs in 90s except near 106 Big Bend valleys. Lows 60s north to the 70s south.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will likely save a lot

Israelis escalate W. Beirut warfare

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Israeli warplanes attacked a Syrian missile battery Saturday in the first fighting reported since announcement of the latest U.S.-arranged cease-fire. An armored column closed in on the Beirut airport as Israeli troops strengthened the siege around Palestinian guerrillas in west Beirut. Jets screamed overhead on reconnaissance missions and Lebanese soldiers were ordered to report to their army units immediately, indicating their entry into west Beirut might be imminent. Hundreds of refugees fled south and north in search of sanctuary. PLO chief Yasser Arafat toured his devastated enclave and expressed skepticism that the U.S.-mediated truce, announced Saturday night, would hold. "Every two or three days, they (the Israelis) declare a ceasefire, only to break it shortly afterward," he said.

The Israeli military command said its warplanes returned safely to base after destroying a new SAM-6 missile battery Syria had moved into the Bekaa Valley in eastern Lebanon. No casualties were reported.

Israel has insisted that Syria cannot bring in new missile batteries. The military command did not say when the one attacked early Saturday had been set up.

Arafat also rejoiced over the resignation of Secretary of State Alexander M, Haig Jr., calling him the "pillar in the Reagan administration on which (Israeli Defense Minister Ariel) Sharon relied in his scorched earth strategy in Lebanon.'

"American civilization, American human rights here we are," Arafat cried as he toured bombed-out neighborhoods. Men and women dashed out of their demolished houses to hug and kiss the stubble-bearded leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Senior political sources in Jerusalem said Israel's invasion army had to move quickly -- perhaps in 24 to 48 hours - lest the Reagan administration adopt a tougher line toward the Jewish state following the resignation of Haig, Israel's staunchest backer in the U.S. Cabinet. Analysts said the Israelis probably would overrun the airport before storming into the adjacent Palestinian camp of Bourj el-Barajneh in case Israel decides to move in on the PLO nerve center.

Beirut newspapers reported mediation efforts were under way on a formula to move the hitherto inactive Lebanese army into west Beirut while the guerrillas pull back into the camps on the city's southern rim.

The army would then collect the PLO's heavy arms from the camps while a multinational force is set up to police a 25-mile guerrilla-free security zone adjoining Israel's northern border in southern Lebanon, the papers said.

The west Beirut sector has been controlled by the PLO and its leftist Lebanese militia allies since the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war

Syria snuffed out the war and its 30,000 "peacekeepers" have remained in Lebanon since, but had increasingly attacked Israel's Christian allies rather than policing the civil war armistice as they were supposed to do.

LONG RUNNING LOVE AFFAIR - Belle Louisa Brit, 81, of Jenkintown, Pa. holds the teddy bear she received as a child in 1906. The bear's dress of percale was made by Brit's grandmother. Brit was among the thousands of teddy bear lovers who flocked to the Philadephia zoo for the teddy bear rally.

Teddy bear fans rally in Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — More than 1,000 people brought their fantasies out of hibernation and joined a parade Saturday as Philadelphia became the city of bruinly love for "America's First Great Teddy Bear Rally

Bears wearing dresses, hats, visors and formal suits - and posed on bicycles, in toy cars and in cages wound through the Philadelphia Zoo with the help of proud adult and child mentors.

The beloved bruins ranged from the size of a thumb to 5-foot-8 and many were taller than the children who were carrying them.

The rally was sponsored by the zoo, which borrowed the idea from a similar event in Britain, where in 1979 a nobleman with the title of the Marquess of Bath held the first great international teddy bear rally at his estate in Wiltshire.

The marquess could not travel here, but he sent his favorite stuffed bear, Clarence, in the company of an official escort, said zoo spokeswoman Kathy Lincoln. Clarence had his own airplane seat for the trip.

It's a two-day affair, and zoo officials were predicting a total weekend turnout of 15,000. Admission to the zoo is $3.50, but anyone with a toy bear in tow gets in for $1 less.

Zoo attendance for Saturday was put at 12,000, higher

Hail

A severe thunderstorm soaked the space shuttle Columbia and pelted it with hail Saturday on the eve of its final test flight. Officials said they hoped there was no damage to prevent an on-time liftoff at 11 a.m. EDT Sunday.

At one point, officials said they would move back a service tower to make sure, then said the job might be possible using ground-based inspection devices. Although moving the tower in and out would be time consuming, no immediate impact on the launch schedule was expected because the countdown was in a scheduled eight-hour hold.

of their forthcoming tax cut, just as the Reagan administration predicted. But that may no longer be a welcome prospect for an administration now counting on consumer spending to lead the way out of the recession.

During last year's debate over President Reagan's supply-side tax cut, Democratic economists warned that people would just use the money to buy more, and thus rekindle inflation. But administration economists insisted people would save more, resulting in lower interest rates and stimulating economic expansion.

As the July 1 change in the tax law nears, however, the two sides seem to have switched. And with unemployment at a 41-year high and demand squashed by high interest rates and the recession, concerns about inflation have evaporated.

During past times of higher inflation, lower interest rates and relatively cheap credit, consumers had fewer reasons to save. Now, with savings interest rates running as much 10 percentage points higher than inflation, people are saving rather than buying.

The mid-year 10 percent reduction in personal income tax rates will inject an estimated $32 billion into the economy over the next 12 months. For the average worker, it amounts to a $5-a-week increase in take-home pay, the Internal Revenue Service estimates.

A cost-of-living increase for Social Security recipients, also due July 1, is expected to pump another $10 billion or so into the economy over the next year.

The phrase "supply-side" stems from the belief that cuts in tax rates will encourage increased investments in ventures that expand the supply of goods and services, and will not refuel inflation by stimulating increasde demand for a fixed supply of goods.

"The assumption of a recovery is based on the belief that supply-side economics is wrong, that people will spend their tax cut," says Barry Bosworth, a leading economist in the Carter administration.

"The funny situation we find ourselves in is that if the supply-siders are right ... we're headed for a depression, because there will be no economic stimulus." he added. "If the supply-siders are wrong, we're saved."

That analysis distresses the few remaining supply-side advocates in the administration. "It's pure, unadulterated nonsense," laments Norman B. Ture, a Treasury Department undersecretary for tax policy.

UN wants Israelis out

UNITED NAT ONS (AP) - The General ssembly adopted a resolution Saturday demanding that Israel withdraw its troops from Lebanon immediately.

The United States and Israel cast the only votes against the resolution, which was sponsored by Syria and about 50 other Third World and Arab nations. The vote was 127-2 with no abstentions. Twenty-eight members were absent.

The United States vetoed a French-sponsored resolution in the 15-member Security Council earlier Saturday after lengthy consultations. That resolution would have called on Israel to pull its forces back six miles from Beirut, preparatory to a complete withdrawal.

The U.S. delegate said the veto was cast because the draft did not call on the Palestinian guerrillas in Beirut to lay down their arms.

public view is to be had, clung to an estimate of an expected half-million people.

"On time tomorrow," predicted a top NASA official. The ship has never launched on time — it was an hour late last March and days late on the two 1981 flights.

"Our T-0 forecast for tomorrow is mostly scattered clouds and about 20 percent chance of rainshower activity," said Capt. Donald J. Greene, the shuttle weather officer. He said the only concern was a delay in launching that would bring liftoff time into the afternoon when thunderstorms generally strike the Cape. Astronauts Ken Mattingly and Hank

Hartsfield flew practice landings Saturday and attended flight briefings. They were to be awakened Sunday at 5:30 a.m. and climb into Columbia's cockpit at 8:50 a.m. If all goes well, the flight will end in a patriotic burst of red, white and blue at Edwards Air Force Base in California next Sunday, the Fourth of July

A grisly kind of humor

Hardly had the British invaded the Falklands than there were tales of $-\operatorname{gasp}!$ - atrocities on both sides. It seems that the Argentines had stocks of napalm, and dropped some on enemy paratroops. It seems further that the British were using nasty cluster bombs and white phosphorous grenades - and, what may be worse, forcing captured Argentine soldiers to clear minefields in violation of the Geneva Convention of 1949.

SUCH REPORTS OF FOUL DEEDS and unholy instruments of death exude a kind of grisly humor. They provoke the sort of laughter heard on Olympus when the gods observe men slaughtering each other in combat — much as in ancient times, though things are ever so much more sophisticated now. No one can reasonably oppose any attempt, through custom or formal convention, to temper the horrors of modern war. If it can be agreed that napalm — or poisonous chemicals, to cite another example — are not to be used, so much the better. If an international agreement rules out requiring prisoners to do such dangerous things as clearing minefields or putting out munitions dump fires, let's hope this will be honored. As the saying goes, every little bit helps.

THERE IS A DEEP and inescapable irony, though, in imposing such limitations. The irony lies in their selective nature.

Death from a fragmentation wound in the belly may be more desirable than death from some horrible gas. Then again, it may not be — and in any case, it is a hard choice.

A remotely fired missile capable of sinking a battleship and incinerating or drowning its crewmen: is that somehow less devilish than troops hurling white phosophorous grenades at their enemies? Is there any compassionate logic in foreswearing napalm yet not restricting use of nuclear weapons that can destroy civilizations?

:- We must have them rolling in the aisles on Olympus.

A travel brochure I have known

In a box at home is a travel brochure I've had for more than a decade. It's tattered and falling to pieces after all these years; I've worn it out from looking at it. But I think we've still got a few good times left.

I guess it was the outward appearance of this brochure that attracted me first. A bird's eye view of turquoise pools sprinkled with fresh hibiscus blossoms; a man and woman sunbathing on a rock deck surrounded by jacaranda trees.

TURN THE PAGE. A close-up view of another turquoise pool, more pink hibiscus blossoms. Two couples on a wooden deck; behind them the ocean and some steep cliffs jutting into the sea. Large cool drinks. This page is entitled "The Closest Place to Heaven on Earth."

Next page is "The Unforgettable." Every casita has its own private swimming pool and terrace, the brochure says. "200 pools! No two are alike and all are screened by flowering shrubs and vines. Your pool is sprinkled with fresh hibiscus blossoms each day ... each evening it is lighted underwater for your moonlight dip. Breakfast here in the warm sun; enjoy cocktails with magnificent views of an Acapulco sunset. Swim day or night, year round, the air and water are always warm and pleasant.

Next page: "The Unexpected." A picture of a special hotel suite with an indoor-outdoor pool. Let me see if I can set the scene for you. A beautifully tanned, bikinied woman is reclining on a chair inside a glass-encased porch. She's got a flower in her toe. To her left is a huge arrangement of sliced watermelon and other tropical fruits. To her right is the inevitable turquoise pool with more pink blossoms. A man is half in the pool, half out, his head resting on a window ledge, he's either asleep or died and gone to heaven. On the other side of the glass is the same swimming pool, but it's outside and overlooking the ocean. Next page: "The Unbelievable." More pictures of an amber sunset creeping over the bay and the blue Pacific Ocean. "Dress is always informal in Acapulco," the brochure says. "No coats or ties are necessary.'

Next page: "The Improbable." Your own private jeep. Yes, your casita comes with a jaunty pink jeep that you can jump in and run around exploring. Go to a bull fight, a cock fight, burro polo games, the zoo. "Explore. Discover great open beaches, old fishing villages. Visit the native market. Go to a jai-alai game. And shop in downtown Acapulco...'

"And remember, there's no tipping ever at Las Brisas." (Yes, if you hadn't guessed already, that's the name of the hotel, ranked by Esquire Magazine as one of the 29 greatest hotels in the world.)

Mustn't forget the food. Pictures of the buffet include hugely stacked tiers of shrimp, lobster and other gourmet delights. You're supposed to eat it in your bathing suit under the awning with the sea foaming close by.

The last pages are just pictures of para-sailing, skiing, skin diving, sailing - complete equipment and instruction available.

THAT CONCLUDES our tour of Hotel Las Brisas in Acapulco Bay. It loses something without the vivid color photos, but I think you get the idea

I've never been there, but then again I've been there a thousand times - had some real swell times too. Maybe I'll really get there someday, but sometimes I wonder if I should. What would I do for a dream then?

If I don't get there before I die, just bury me with the brochure clutched in my hands, and a smile on my face.

Dear Editor:

What makes a town grow: Expanding business — new housing good schools - recreational facilities - good streets - but most important of all, good citizens.

In your newspaper on Wednesday June 23, you were critical of our city council for awarding a bid to Price Construction, Inc. for street improvements. These are all good citizens, including Sonny Price of Price Construction and I want to make you aware of a few things Mr. Price does for our community.

He employs 347 people (taken from this week's payroll) and most of these are local. He pays taxes in Howard County and spends as much as possible' with local businesses in operating a large maintenance shop and office building: "Inerefore"sthe benefits from a local contractor being awarded the city street improvements are many. In the seven years I have worked for Mr. Price, I have seen him do many things for our friends in Big Spring. Ask some of the Little League leaders who he has donated the caliche for their parks. One family from South Dakota ran out of money last summer trying to get to the jobs in the oil patch. They had five children and all were sleeping in a van. We didn't need help at the time but Mr. Price gave the man a job and they are still working for him and doing great. Ask these people about this man you picture as such a bad guy. I can give you many more examples of his benevolence.

Cancer. Malignancy. Tumor. These are words that cause most eople to freeze with fear. Many with opvious symptoms of cancer will not visit a physician until the eleventh -bour, such is their anxiety. Still others will accept without question any treatment, no matter how drastic, that the doctor prescribes for a tumor. Cancer is probably the most frightening medical diagnosis that can be made; the patient is alarmed, the family is jolted, and sometimes the physician as well is scared, according to Dr. Steven Lehrer, author of "Alternative Treatments for Cancer

Several studies have shown that many doctors and medical students have little faith in our ability to cure cancer, in spite of the two million cancer patients healed annually by conventional medical methods.

This terror and suffering associated with cancer - especially incurable cases - allows the propagation of worthless cancer remedies.

Worthless remedies often receive their biggest boost from controversy, because controversy is news. Confrontations between the medical "establishment" and those who oppose it make good reading, good viewing, and stimulating conversation.

Though the newspapers, television networks, and book and magazine publishers spend much time telling people about quackery, this negative information sometimes has a promotional effect by putting the quack and his cure in the public eye.

Better communication between doctors and patients is needed. Admost every cancer patient who chooses an unconventional method of treatment has at some point consulted his own physician, according to the American Cancer Society.

A doctor's honest, informed answers to a patient's questions about an unproven or worthless method of treatment often can help the patient see how the facts have been twisted or fragmented. But indifference, ignorance or hesitancy reinforce the patient's interest in what he heard or read about the unconventional treatment

Cancer is on the rise. As infectious diseases such as pneumonia are brought under control with antibiotics and other new drugs, people live longer and the cancer incidence increases. In the United States today, deaths from cancer are exceeded only deaths from heart or kidney disease, according to the ACS. One person in four will have cancer during his lifetime. Three hundred thousand Americans will die from cancer this vear

Why do they get cancer?

In spite of the billions of dollars that have been spent on research, the cause of cancer, as well as its cure, eludes us. We know that there are chemical and structural differences between the normal cell and the cancer cell, but their exact significance remains unclear. Physicians say there are three reasons why we are saving more cancer victims. More cancers are being diagnosed early because of greater public awareness. More patients are being treated early, especially within four months of diagnosis. And doctors now have many new diagnostic and treatment tools, especially new drugs and highenergy radiation, that are effective against cancer.

The most commonly chosen parameter to measure survival and indicate curability of cancer is the five-year survival rate. Five-year survival is a good manner of judging cure after cancer of the stomach or rectum. For other cancers, such as tonsil, tongue, and larynx, two-year survival gives a very good estimate of cure. But such lesions as breast cancer and malignant melanoma can recur after five years. Ten-year survival is a better way to judge cure of these tumors, according to Lehrer. Cancer patients can take three important steps to assure themselves the best chance of surviving their disease, Lehrer continues.

First, know cancer's danger signals. Sudden change in bowel habits, abnormal bleeding, changes in a wart or mole, breast lumps, or hoarseness that persists for more than two weeks should receive a physician's prompt attention.

Second, regular checkups are important. These should include a chest X-ray, sigmoioscopic exam of the rectum, and, for women over 40, a breast examination with X-ray mammography, since the slight risks of mammography are greatly outweighed by the potential benefits. A Pap smear of the cervix should be done on all adult women.

Third, if cancer or signs of it are discovered, a large cancer center should be sought out for further diagnostic efforts and treatment.

We plan to show Carter and Tip O'Neill driving by an unemployment office in a long limousine, and when they see the lines outside they start laughing their heads off. And we will have the two of them walking through a school lunchroom watching the kids eating catsup and chuckling to each other.'

The Republicans started slapping their thighs. The chief said, "Gentlemen, we've come to the right agency. You people can have our account. Now let's run it up the flag pole and see how it plays in Peoria.'

The first commercial was made CBS and NBC refused to air it, but ABC decided it needed the money. Also, the independent stations put it

To everyone's surprise it wasn't selling Reaganomics. The head Republican honcho called up Belch in anger. "Our warehouse is full of supply-side economics. Our sales are just a trickle. What's wrong?"

"It takes time for a negative message to sink in," Belch told him defensively. "You have to play it over and over again."

"Baloney," the Republican said. 'Everyone thinks we're doing a commercial for probate lawyers. We keep getting calls from people asking if we will write their wills. Besides, every time the damn thing shows it reminds the voter we're in a recession."

"But you people said you wanted to blame all the country's economic troubles on the Democrats.'

"You guys couldn't sell a Chrysler car to Lee Iacocca.

"Look," said Belch desperately, 'maybe the commercial isn't doing everything we hoped it would. We'll change the campaign by being more positive. We could show the President eating jellybeans in the Oval Office, and then looking into the camera and saying 'The question you have to ask yourselves is, "Are you better off today than you were four years ago?"

"Don't bother," the Republican shouted. "Your agency is fired." "But why?"

"Because, thanks to your stupid commercial, everyone in Peoria is going to vote for the Democrats.

Imprisoning is expensive...

Texans often are proud to point out various areas in which our great state surpasses many entire countries. There is one category, however, in which Texas' achievement should be a source of embarrassment: The Texas prison population of more than 33,000 inmates is considerably larger than any other state's and is larger than the entire prison population of any country in the world except the U.S., the Soviet Union and South Africa.

Estimates are that, at current admission rates, the inmate population of Texas prisons will more than double to a total of 70,000 by 1990, a mere eight years away. Housing for that many prisoners would require additional prison construction totaling $1.5 billion to $2.5 billion in the next few years, and even that, of course, would not solve a constantly-worsening situation.

In addition to these construction costs, it currently costs approximately $5,000 annually per inmate to run the prison system, and that doesn't include the lost earnings of the people sent to prison, the loss of taxes the inmates would pay if they were outside and employed, nor the cost of welfare to provide for many of the inmates' families.

In short, while the natural inclination (which I've shared) is to put violent criminals, repeat offenders and drug dealers away for lengthy stretches behind bars, this appraoch is extremely expensive. And there is increasingly uncertainty among liberals and conservatives alike about whether or not this is even the most effective approach to fighting crime. In fact, West Texas Sen. Ray Farabee, whose Senate State Affairs Committee recently released a study of the legislature's options on the prison question, stated bluntly during the May special session, "If you think putting more people in prison deters crime, I don't think you can substantiate that."

and an an a first and a state of the state o

So what are the options? Essentially, these:

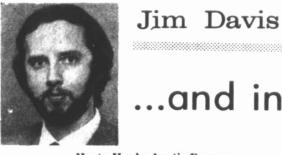

· Increase the use of probation, with varying degrees of supervision including some who would be required to spend nights in halfway houses.

· Diversion of certain types of offenders into programs or facilities other than maximum security prisons (including medium security facilities, for instance, or even halfway houses for minor parole or probation violations).

· Shortened sentences, with the inmates being released to perform community services and - or pay restitution.

Any and all of these alternatives to the current practice of sentencing increasing numbers of convicted criminals to sentences averaging 10.6 years would save Texas taxpayers a great deal of money. There are questionable aspects to these options, of course, and before embracing them, we should examine them closely in light of other states' experience.

The governor is expected to appoint a commission to examine the options, and I'll be looking forward to carefully examining its conclusions.

...and in hands of the state

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - State officials are dancing jigs of joy over a federal appeals court ruling that overturns several parts of U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's order against the Texas Department of Corrections.

And they began maneuvering immediately to take advantage of the political opportunities of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals findings. That's particularly true of Gov. Bill Clements and Attorney General Mark White, bitter political foes and who will face off in the governor's race in November.

The victory for the state is only a partial one, however. While knocking out some specific points of Justice's order for prison reform, the appeals court upheld his general finding that conditions in Texas prison amount to cruel and unusual punishment.

That hardly leaves Texans much on which to be proud. But after years of losses on the issue of prison reform, state leaders and prison officials understandably welcome any victory.

Only the most rabid prison reformers agreed with every requirement that Justice placed on the state prison system. The judge, widely hated in conservative circles for his activist role in a variety of cases involving the state, practically took over operation of the prison system

He obviously believed just about everything that prisoners had to say about the conditions of their confinement, without remembering that the witnesses were not necessarily truthful types nor impartial.

Prison officials didn't set any great example for veracity either. Every criticism was taken as an affront and made them more intransigent. They denied for years that they used inmates called building tenders to discipline other prisoners and then quietly agreed to abolish the system they said hadn't existed.

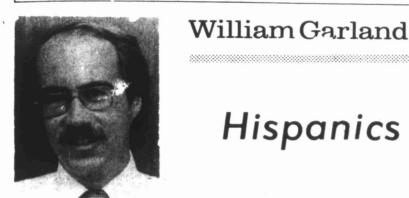

The appeals court slapped Justice's wrist for going too far in trying to reform the prison system himself. Its opinion said Justice and his appointed special master on prison reform must "respect the right of the state to administer its own affairs as long as it does not violate the constitutional.

But the opinion also warns state officials to recognize the duty of the federal court and the special master "to ensure the restoration of constitutional conditions of confinement in the Texas Department of Corrections."

The appeals court opinion which will stand unless appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court and overturned, offers state leaders and prison officials several possibilities for further actions.

They can calim vindication of their past stands on the prison system and do only the minimum required by what is left of the court order. That would allow the politicians to make a lot of political mileage out of the prison issue and help the egos of prison officials who have felt abused in the past.

Or, they can accept the order as a chance to calmly and rationally look at the prison system

Hispanics are wary of recent victories

States News Service

WASHINGTON - It's been a big two weeks in Washington for Hispanics with key victories in the Supreme Court and Congress, but there is no vocal celebrating among their leaders here.

Because of the nature of one of those victories, Hispanic leaders have voiced a fear of "backlash," especially in Texas and the Southwest where the impact of the decisions and legislation will be felt most strongly.

First came a major U.S. Supreme Court ruling that gives the children of "undocumented residents," or "illegal aliens," the right to public education in Texas and other states.

Then came congressional passage of the Voting Rights Act with virtually everything in it the Hispanics wanted. A second Supreme Court decision this week cleared the way for Hispanics and other minorities to more directly challenge hiring and promotion procedures.

The ruling on education, which knocked down a 1975 Texas law, is the one stirring the most concern, but not ust among Hispanics who praise the decision but warily await a response from the state and Congress.

protested.

Sen. John Tower, E-Texas, has taken the lead in trying to put together what he called a "federal assistance package' to help at least with the expense of educating new students in schools in Texas and elsewhere as a result of the ruling.

He has formed a task force of staff members from his office and the offices of other senators, including Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to come up with legislation to defray the administrative costs of complying with the decision

Legislation sponsored by Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, to provide such aid is before the House

Antonia Hernandez, associate counsel with the Mexican American Legal Defense Fund which successfully argued the education case before the Supreme Court, said she and other Hispanics don't believe there will be an influx of new illegal residents from Mexico.

"Most people don't realize that only 50 percent of the undocumented (residents) come from Mexico," she said.

United Latin American Citizens, agreed that the negative impact in Washington could come on the immigration bill pending in Congress.

"That's the fear, the fear that people will become more restrictive in an immigration policy but more importantly in a sense of their willingness to listen to the complexities of the immigration debate," said Torres.

He said negative reaction from congressman to the Supreme Court ruling could surface by way of an immigration bill which could reduce the number of legal entrants to the United States, make it more difficult to legalize current illegal residents, legitimize "a further targeting" of people who appeared be undocumented because of skin color and apperance, and initiate a uniform identification system, such as identification cards

"The backlash is a very simple one," said Torres. " 'Let us be more restrictive. Let us identify and go after the undocumented (residents) more aggressively.

"The repercussions, the ripple effect, affects said Carmela G. Lacayo with the everyone. Hispanic Institute of Public Policy in Los Angeles. "I would venture to say there's going to be quite a a lot of backlash. While the ruling is extremely positive in the Hispanic community, some people are going to see that as a solidifying of Hispanic power, and I don't think the Hispanic community is ready to deal with that (backlash)

Panel to map Fed's 1983 monetary policies

NEW YORK (AP) — More businesses are failing each week than in any period since the Depression. But at the same time, government analysts estimate a resumption of economic growth is under way after six months of painful decline.

A little-known panel of 10 men and two women will play an important role in determining whether the future holds more pain or economic relief when it meets privately and without fanfare on Thursday.

The group is the Federal Open Market Committee, the policy-making arm of the Federal Reserve Board composed of the seven members of the central bank's Board of Governors and the presidents of five of the 12 regional Federal Reserve banks.

The committee is to review its current monetary strategy and map out tentative plans for 1983 policies in preparation for a mid-July presentation to Congress by Fed Chairman Paul Volcker.

A tighter monetary policy would keep pressure on high interest rates and hold back economic growth, while a more relaxed stance would allow rates to fall but would raise fears or a resurgence in inflation. How important are interest rates?

Ruiz says he was framed

HOUSTON (AP) - David Ruiz, the inmate who initiated the histoic lawsuit against the Texas prison system, says officials are retaliating by framing him for crimes he didn't commit.

In a motion filed Friday, Ruiz asked a federal court judge to stop Travis County officials from prosecuting him on a November 1981 robbery charge.

An Austin jury acquitted Ruiz Thursday on a misdemeanor marijuana charge, one of three charges he contends county officials trumped up.

In December, another robbery charge against Ruiz was dismissed. He still faces prosecution on another robbery charge, but argued in the motion the charge was concocted by law enforcement officials out of "revenge, pure and simple.

The lawsuit against the Texas Department of Corrections prompted U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler to order major changes in the state prison system.

Ruiz claimed officials conspired to slander the reform order and to warn other inmates what could happen to a prisoner 'who has the audacity to sue TDC" or testify against it.

Ruiz asked Justice to add to the list of defendants in the TDC lawsuit all officials who allegedly conspired to harass and frame him after he was paroled in prison in July 1981.

Among those named were Travis County district and court-at-law judges, county and district attorneys, Sheriff Doyne Bailey, Austin Police Sgt. James Kortan and the Texas Board of Pardons and Parole and its chairman, Ruben Torres.

Kortan denied the allegations. Others named in the lawsuit could not be reached for comment

Mormons marshal against child abuse problem

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Leaders of the Mormon Church are marshaling their forces to combat an increase of reported child abuse in a state where 70 percent of the residents are on the church's rolls.

Bumper stickers reading "Have You Hugged Your Kid Today?" are common here, and the church espouses the joys of family life. But the nation's 34th most populous state ranks 13th in per-capita reported child abuse cases, with four reported incidents per 1,000 population in 1980.

The problem is a growing one in the state of 1.5 million. From 1979 to 1980, the last state and federal figures available, reports rose nearly 20 percent, from 4,702 to 5.859

"It creates a sense of anxiety. You wonder who among them are Latter-day Saints (Mormons) and why they would be involved in such behavior," said Bill Bush, the church's commissioner of social services.

Bush said church leaders are "marshaling their forces" o confront the problem.

We're doing everything we can think of to teach fathers and mothers not only the sacredness of rearing children, but how to effectively parent," Bush said. 'We're very concerned about it. We'll study the situation further and come up with our recommendations.

Church and state officials say they don't keep records on the number of child abuse cases referred to state agencies by church Social Services. But Bush said church leaders tell him "there appears to be an increase in this kind of thing.

Mormons believe "spirit children" in Heaven are waiting to be born, and parents are urged to adhere to the Old Testament injunction to "be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth."

Those beliefs can lead to early marriages, large families and emotional stress, social workers maintain. The church estimates each Mormon household in Utah contains 4.6 people. The average American household has 2.75.

But Elliott Landau, a University of Utah educational studies professor and family therapist, said while child abuse may be growing among Mormons, it is not necessarily an indictment of the church. "Statistics show that less than half (of Mormons), about 40 to 45 percent, are active members.

But, he added, "The stress of having a lot of kids can induce abuse, both physical and emotional.

State and local social service agencies are being swamped, said Gerald Smith, with the state's Child Welfare Unit.

"I'm just blackly pessimistic about it," he said. "Lack of maturity and selfishness are pandemic. Smith said low-income, large families, and young parents are stress factors of "high frequency" in child abuse cases he investigates.

"If the LDS Church was able to influence the people I deal with, I wouldn't have a job. But they just don't," Smith said. "They're not reaching the people I deal with.'

Reluctant witness case viewed as landmark appeal

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) - Mary Lou Anderson was under a death sentence with nothing to lose when she agreed to testify against Feryl Granger, her partner in the 1978 execution-style murder of her parents in nearby Sugar Land.

As a reward for helping prosecutors win a death sentence against Granger as well, her punishment was reduced to 50 years in prison, and with that, most folks in this quiet town on the shores of the Brazos River figured the case was closed

But after Miss Anderson got off death row, Granger appealed and won a new trial - and then, to the dismay of prosecutors, she refused to repeat the testimony so crucial to the state's case against him.

What happened next, according to District Attorney Bill Meitzen, is now the basis for a landmark appeal that he feels could change the way prosecutors treat couples accused of committing crimes together.

When Miss Anderson refused to testify at Granger's second trial, Meitzen simply brought out the old transcripts of her testimony from Granger's first trial and read them to the jury. Granger was convicted again.

"Her lawyers were telling her there's no way I could win the trial without her testimony, so she thought she had me over a barrel," Meitzen recalled. "Fortunately, we had a very wise district judge who let me put in her prior testimony.

Defense attorneys protested that such a use of prior testimony was illegal. They argued the only way Miss Anderson's previous statements could be introduced as evidence would be if she were unable to show up in court because she had moved out of the state or was too sick, or dead.

The question, which attorneys say has never been tested in Texas, is now in the hands of the 13th Court of Appeals in Corpus Christi, and Meitzen said he expects a decision by the end of the year. He admits if the court throws out Miss Anderson's prior testimony he will have no case against Granger.

accomplice's testimony must be backed up by at least one other witness in a capital murder case. At his second trial, he was convicted of simple murder and sentenced to life in prison

If he wins a third trial on the previous testimony issue, "We'd have to turn him lose. A killer will be walking the streets again, looking to kill somebody else," Meitzen said.

The bodies of Miss Anderson's father and stepmother were found tied, gagged and each shot several times in the head in their Sugar Land home Jan. 3, 1978. Prosecutors said Granger murdered the couple in a plot to share proceeds from a $10,000 insurance policy with Miss Anderson, a convicted hot check writer who was facing a prison term unless she made good on about $6,000 in worthless checks.

More important, Meitzen said, is the effect Granger's appeal could have on the often delicate negotiations between prosecutors and defendants accused of participating in the same crime.

Prosecutors must decide whom they want to go after and whom they want to bargain with in exchange for testimony, the district attorney said.

Recovered wallet sparks memories

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A billfold which vanished 25 years ago turned up behind a wall in the old Tarrant County courthouse and revived a flood of memories for a 71-year-old woman whose sister's earlier life is portrayed in its contents.

The billfold belonged to Elsie Reeder Yoes, who either lost it or had it stolen years ago. Mrs. Yoes died three vears ago at age 64.

A construction crew discovered the wallet last week and turned it over to her sister, Dorothy Reeder, 71.

"I remember when she lost this because there was a Humble credit card in it," Ms. Reeder said. "We didn't know where to call to get it replaced. I guess they gave her another card with another number on it

Sure enough, the billfold contained a Humble credit card that expired in 1958. Along with it was a picture of Donnie Reeder, Mrs. Yoes' son, in a Cub Scout uniform. And there were more photos of another son, Sandy, when he was 15 and sporting a stylish crew cut.

"Now that's Donnie when he was in elementary school. He's a rock musician now," Ms. Reeder said. "And that's Sandy when he was, I think, 15. He almost 40 now. He was a precocious brat. He started school before he was five. His mother had to pay tuition because they didn't have kindergarten back then.

Amber Mills, a secretary for the construction company that found the billfold, tracked down Ms. Reeder when she found Donnie Reeder's name on the back of the picture.

Mrs. Mills hit the jackpot on her first call out of all the - Reeders listed in the Fort Worth phone book.

The billfold's contents were in perfect condition, having been preserved in the dusty, dry space behind a wall of what used to be a men's restroom.

memories for Mrs. Yoes' sister. "She was a delightful little lady," Ms. Reeder said of her sister. "She had to stand straight to be five feet tall and she weighed 90 to 95 pounds. We had fun. Ms. Reeder said watching professional football now revives memories of her sister.

"We both loved the (Dallas) Cowboys. We'd call the referees you-know-whats from our TV chairs," she said.

'Last fall, I watched football games and hollered and carried on. Then I'd think about her. It's been three years and I still miss her."

Vickie Daniel sues

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) - Vickie Daniel is suing her sister-in-law and eight corporations in an effort to resolve ownership of property in the $732,000 estate of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., the husband she was acquitted of murdering.

Mrs. Daniel's lawyer, C.J. "Buddy" Hanby, said Friday the suit was filed after lawyers failed after a year of negotiating to settle differences.

Named in the suit were Mrs.. Daniel's sister-in-law and executor of the estate, Jean Daniel Murph, of Richardson, and eight corporations established by the late legislator before and after his November 1976 marriage

Lawyers for the estate claim Daniel had $691,000 in separate property assets with $126,000 in liabilities, Hanby said.

Community assets accumulated during the couple's stormy four-year marriage were set at $41,000 and liabilities at $26,000, Hanby said. Lawyers said Mrs. Daniel was entitled to $7,500 settlement, one-half the net nunity assets, Hanby said

Mexican trucks are Brownsville's problem

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Dozens of Mexican tank trucks roll through neighborhoods of this border city daily, hauling potentially hazardous petroleum products and chemicals from the local port to the international bridges leading into Matamoros, Mexico.

They travel truck routes through densely populated, low income neighborhoods near downtown. The heavy vehicles frequenty lack license plates and rarely have signs describing their contents.

'We don't know who owns them. We don't know what's crossing," said Ben Torrez, city health director. "They make a dash into the city and make a dash back in a matter of hours.

A faulty truck valve caused 20 gallons of liquid sulphur to spill onto a downtown street June 7. Lunch hour traffic was blocked for more than an hour. The incident prompted Torrez to call for greater control over the hazardous transports

The sulphur spill was termed minor by police and fire officials. The chemical solidified instantly after spilling. It was chipped off the pavement, loaded into barrels and disposed of by the fire department, Torrez said.

We could have had a high hazard there if it had stayed in liquid form and soaked down the storm sewer and gotten into the water system," Torrez said. "It was rather good fortune that it was what it was.'

Officials say there have been no serious incidents or explosions involving a Mexican tank truck, but they add the danger exists.

In addition, railroad cars filled with hydrofluoric acid, anhydrous ammonia and other toxic substances pass less than 50 feet away from residences and businesses.

Many cities face similar dangers from hazarous chemicals traveling through town but local officials say their problem is compounded by trying to deal with foreign vehicles.

Torrez said he and other city officials want to know what substances are being transported, when the shipments come through and any other information that might better prepare emergency crews for a disaster.

The Mexican transport trucks cross the border empty and travel 10 miles to the port of Brownsville, where there are chemical plants and petroleum refineries.

Under an agreement between the government of Mexico and the state highway department, the trucks may operate with Mexican plates provided they carry proper insurance, observe weight requirements and other regulations, said Lt. Lytle Archie of the Department of Public Safety's license and weight division.

However, the DPS has only two troopers from the weight division in the Brownsville area and they cannot check every truck operating from the port daily.

> First Federal Savings MAKES

The troopers do not work inside the city limits.

Once inside the city, the trucks are subject to city weight and inspection requirements. Motorcyle patrolmen frequently stop trucks with unlicensed drivers, expired license plates or no plates and other violations, said police Sgt. Andy Torres.

"We impound the vehicles until they get the problem cleared up. Usually it takes a couple of days," Torres said.

Abel Zapata, city fire marshal, said he is concerned about the trucks since neither the police department nor fire inspectors can check every vehicle.

"It worries me that they're coming through congested areas with leaking tanks," he said. "A person could be crossing the street, drop a cigarette butt on the site and that's it.

He said his inspectors occasionally will see trucks leaking oil or other substances and will call the police department to escort the tanks outside the city limits.

Aside from the sulphur spill, city officials said they could remember only one other incident several years ago in which anhydrous ammonia leaked from a train car. The leaked was discovered quickly and no one was injured, the said

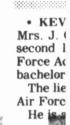

A new international bridge would be needed to route the railcars and trucks away from residences.

Al Cisneros, port director, says he has been lobbying for that proposition since 1970.

Farabee wants to modify insanity plea

State Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls has announced he intends to introduce legislation to modify the insanity defense in the next session of the Texas Legislature.

"The public reaction to the Hinckley case illustrates how the defense, as it is sometimes used, undermines public confidence in our criminal justice system,' Farabee said.

Farabee said "the details of the legislation have not been formulated, but that several options are available. Michigan adopted a verdict of 'guilty but mentally ill' in 1976 as an alterantive to a finding of insanity, and three other states have followed suit. Idaho recently abolished the defense altogether. The American Bar Association is also working on a report on this subject.

Demos seek party vision

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Democrats called Saturday for an early U.S.-Soviet summit on arms control, endorsed a nuclear freeze and mocked the "Reagan recession" by suggesting that Republicans ask voters this fall if they're better off now than in the Depression.

Party members also approved a statement describing Israel's invasion of Lebanon as an opportunity to bring a "lasting peace" to that war-torn country and "greater security" for the Jewish state.

In workshops designed to produce a party vision of America mid-way through President Reagan's term, Democrats also adopted language that said the Equal Rights Amendment is a "Democratic issue" and supported an end to discrimination against homosexuals.

Not all the attention was on the issues, however, as California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. endorsed his fellow Californian, Sen. Alan Cranston, for the 1984 presidential nomination.

Cranston is one of seven unannounced presidential hopefuls vying for attention at the three-day Democratic Party conference that concludes Sunday.

In all, there were seven committees meeting to draft party positions on defense and foreign policy, the economy, the environment, crime, federalism, helping the poor and agriculture. All of the position statements are expected to be approved in a single vote Sunday.

The proposed resolution on arms control calls on Reagan and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev to meet "as soon as possible." It came as part of an overall position paper predictably critical of the administration's foreign policy and calling for a nuclear weapons freeze.

But with party leaders taking pains to maintain the appearance of a united party, the freeze statement glossed over specifics.

"It's no secret there's a big difference within the Democratic Party on the issue of the nuclear freeze. ... We Democrats are cordially agreeing to cordially disagree." said Ben J. Wattenberg, a member of the foreign policy workshop panel.

Wattenberg is an ally of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who is supporting a proposal in Congress that calls for a freeze after the United States has achieved parity with the Soviet Union. The Jackson proposal has been endorsed by Reagan.

A rival proposal, backed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, favors an immediate freeze, believing that nuclear parity exists between the two superpowers.

The economic statement criticized Reagan's budget and tax policy as unfair and declared, "Our immediate, pressing challenge is to spur recovery from the Reagan recession and to put Americans back to work.

It called for a limitation on the three-year income tax cut Reagan won from Congress a year ago, with no taxpayer receiving a cut of more than $700 a year.

On the Rio Grande

River guides bring desolate area back to life

By STEVE BREWER Associated Press Writer

TERLINGUA, Texas (AP) - Sitting on the porch of the old Chisos Mining Co. building here, watching the wind spin clouds of dust as dry as ground bone, it's hard to imagine tons of water rushing madly through the mighty canyons of the Big Bend.

Yet, housed in the building is the major float trip outfitter for the Rio Grande, which only miles away is churning its way to the Gulf of Mexico.

A sign hanging from the roof of the porch says, "Far Flung Adventures, World Wide Headquarters." Occupying a worn wooden bench on the porch, smoking Marlboros and emptying cans of Lone Star, is Mike Davidson, 29, co-founder of Far Flung. "The population has increased 1,000 percent since I moved here, which is only from three to 30," Davidson said. "It's still hard not to call it the ghost town."

Davidson's company is in large part responsible for the resettlement of Terlingua, a town that was abandoned in the 1940s after area mercury mines were flooded.

For thirty years, the town sat virtually empty, the vellow adobe buildings drying and falling apart under the relentless sun. Then, in 1975, Davidson, an avid outdoorsman since childhood, came to the area to take a raft trip down the Rio Grande, through Big Bend National Park.

'My partner, Steve Harris, had started rafting in California," the former construction worker said. "I was amazed. I said, 'You mean I can get paid for camping and traveling down the river and eating good food?' I went on a two-week trip with Steve. We had a lot of time to talk about it.

The result was the founding of Far Flung in 1977.

I don't think we really thought about the future when we started it," Davidson said. "We said we'll just camp out and see what happens. Then the guy who owned this place rented us a place at his ghost town. We had saved some money and it was real cheap to live for a good while.

We met people over at Big Bend Park who liked us and helped us out because we were one, real safe, and two, real concerned about our impact on the river," he said

The blossoming of the company surprised the owners nearly as much as it did everyone else. Now, the company employs as many as 20 river guides and took 300 people floating down the river in May.

"We have people out on the river all the time," Davidson said. "This is about like a base camp."

An old warehouse used by the mining company was re-roofed and is used to store the deflated rubber rafts, oars and food supplies. Headquarters is in the back of the mining company office - which also holds two restaurants, a store and a motel office.

Tourists embarking on a float trip meet Davidson's boatmen in Terlingua and are driven 17 miles to Lajitas, where the raft trip begins. The average trip is two days and one night and ends just beyond Santa Elena Canyon, a narrow gorge between cliffs that are Mexican on one side and American on the other

'We also have a trip that's three days and two nights," Davidson said. "The larger trip suits those who are extremely curious or extremely lazy."

The guide sits in the middle of the raft, armed with pars to direct the boat through the fast-moving

Associated Press photo RUGGED LIFE — Mike Davidson, co-founder of Far Flung Adventures in Terlingua, relaxes on a front porch in the old ghost town at Terlingua. Davidson and current. Paddling by the tourists is optional.

"We encourage participation," Davidson said. "They help us tote their stuff. But we have a lot of older people - people 80 years old - who can't paddle. It's not necessarily that strendous, but they have the option of just having everybody sit and letting the guide paddle."

Lunch consists of fruits and cheese and the guide prepares a steak dinner at the overnight campsite.

As whitewater goes, the river is not that hazardous, although Davidson said, "There are a few interesting places we have to negotiate."

The one "significant rapid" is a stretch in Santa Elena Canyon called the Rockslide.

"It's a technical rapid which means you have to make several decisive maneuvers," he said. "No matter how many times I go down the slide, I always scout it first

"I saw a couple of guys in a little rubber raft not too long ago and they headed right into it. I hollered, 'Hey, uh, aren't you guys going to take a look at it first?' They said, 'We've been through here before.' I said, 'OK, you damn fools.'

"When we made it through there, they were standing over on the bank all wet and smoking cigarettes like you do when you've just had a scare.

Davidson, a wiry man with the deep tan of the outdoors, said he has had a few scares in the Rockslide. where the dashing water forms suckholes and hydraulic pulls through the big boulders.

"People die there," he said. "I've known a couple of people who were knowledgeable boaters get into real trouble in there when the water is high. But nobody has died there who had a life jacket on.'

Taking that kind of risk is exciting for many and Davidson says he gets 40 to 50 applications a year from people who want to be boatmen, despite the living conditions in the area.

"The living conditions are very primitive," he said. "I've got a little adobe house with no electricity and no running water.

"But it's a very stimulating place to be. We have people putting down roots in the area, buying land and things.

Most of the people in Terlingua found living quarters the same way Davidson did - pick an adobe ruin, put a roof on it and move in.

After Davidson and Harris moved into the area, Billy Pat McKinney and his family bought the ghost town and slowly are developing it as a tourist community.

"They're doing what they can, but it's expensive to fix up these old buildings," Davidson said. "This was a thrown-away town before they came down here."

Although the ghost town now has life, it still remains among the most isolated places in the country. There is no television reception in the area, only an occasional Mexican radio station and no newspapers. The nearest town of any size is Presidio, 67 miles to the west. But Davidson said the residents find ways to entertain themselves

"Boredom is where you find it," he said, smashing a cigarette butt with a canvas hiking boot.

"I feel like there's very few people in the world who get to run the rivers all year round. I certainly can't think of anything else I'd rather do.

Robert Berry of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said millions of fish — four to six inches long — died late week by overcrowding the canals and depleting the water's oxygen supply.

Fish naturally migrate up bayous but get trapped in man-made canals, Berry said.

Berry said seagulls picked up some of the dead menhaden, but it would be up to island residents to remove the rest. He said many people were picking up the fish in nets and dumping them out in the bay.

It was the fourth large fish kill in the area this year, Berry said.

140 drug arrests

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) - Authorities said 140 people were arrested on drug charges during a weeklong sweep of three Southeast Texas counties.

Beaumont Police Capt. Joe Crutchfield said additional arrests were expected.

Two dozen state and federal agencies started searching June 18 for 192 people named in 225 sealed indictments returned by grand juries in Jefferson, Orange and Hardin counties.

Crutchfield, who heads this city's special services division, said the undercover investigation began in February.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Regional leaders of the Texas Republican Party were told Saturday that the GOP boom in the state, boosted by the 1984 national convention in Dallas, should last through the next presidential election.

We ve really got an opportunity this year," said national GOP committeeman Ernest Angelo, Midland, and with the national convention coming to Dallas in 1984 that gives us even more optimism in the presidential election

Angelo and State Republican State Chairman Chet Upman of Mineral Wells led a number of high party officials Saturday in urging the 62-member State Republican Executive Committee to go all out in November

We are in exciting times and I see nothing but optimism," said Upham.

We have a chance to put the Republican way before the p-ople and show that the Democratic way is not in step with in our state for the decade to come. The SREC met mostly to take care of routine party business Wayne Thorburg, executive director of the state Republican party, told the committee there would be TV advertisements from now until November stressing what he called the liberalism of Democratic political candidates and the Republicans' conservative ways.

'If we want to keep the Texas way of life we must vote Republican this year," said Thorburg. "That's what we are telling voters.

Upham warned that Texas Republicans must give Clements a "big margin" in the governor's race, "because if there is not a large margin at the top of ticket, LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) -Never mind that there's a new city law banning motorists from carrying alcoholic drinks in open containers. Business is booming at David Ervin's drive-in daquiri stand.

In fact, so many customers showed up at The Daquiri Factory on Friday that many of the cars got tickets for obstructing traffic, and as the afternoon turned to evening state troopers waved drivers on down the road if there wasn't room for them in Ervin's driveway.

Ervin, who also sells other frozen drinks, said many customers told him they were there to protest the new law, which makes it illegal for drivers or their passengers to carry alcoholic drinks in open containers or in resealable containers with a broken seal.

But he said the police attention probably drew a bigger crowd than he'd have had otherwise.

"Really, it's the best thing for my business they could've done," he said.

there may be a dropoff at the bottom of the ticket and we will lose some local candidates.

Angelo said Democrats had made a nationwide effort to gain congressional support by redistricting maneuvers. "But the reason the Democrats are more unified this year is because the conservatives have left the party and the Democratic liberals are unified." Angelo said.

Q. While visiting relatives, I've been reading your column. When I return home, we're going to sell our home. Could you offer some guidelines in choosing a real estate agent?

A. There are a number of areas you should look at in selecting a real estate agent since this may be the largest single financial transaction you nay make. Begin by investigating the agent's track record. Be sure the agent or the broker can advise you on all aspects of the real estate transac tion. How is the agent's reputation in the community? Ask whether the agent belongs to national, state and local real estate boards, organizations or associations. The agent should be familiar with the commun ple, it's movement and growth. Finally, the agent should exhibit a genuine concern for you and your goals.

Average gas bill to rise $4 under Lone Star request

DALLAS (AP) - The gas bill of the average Texan in the 536 cities and towns served by Lone Star Gas Co. will increase by $4 if the Texas Railroad Commission approves the firm's most recent rate hike request.

Lone Star asked for the rate increase Friday. The higher rates charged to its 1.2 million customers would earn the company $90 million more a year, the company said.

Lone Star said it needed the additional revenue to recover higher costs of gas, inflation-related increases in operating expenses and a reasonable return on increased amounts of property used to serve customers.

It also wants to pass along to customers 100 percent of the increased gas purchase costs the company pays above the cost of gas set in the rate case. Lone Star can now pass along 95 percent of that cost.

The increase would raise the city "gate rate" 68 cents for every thousand cubic feet (MCF) to $2.29, based on this past April's gas cost, Lone Star's application said. The city gate rate is the charge that Lone Star's transmission division charges its local distribution divisons for gas delivered for sale to residential and commercial Oklahoma. customers.

The higher rates would raise the average residential customer's bill - based on consumption of 6,000 cubic feet per month --- by about $4.

The monthly average cost of gas purchased by Lone Star increased 83 percent from $1.85 per MCF in February 1980 to $3.38 in April of this year.

The gas utility also filed a rate increase request in

Footnotes from County Library

A record summer for library activity

By REBBECCA TAYLOR

County Reference Librarian Summer is the busiest time for libraries and your Howard County Library is no exception. We the staff hope you will forgive a shortage of the quality service we like to give. The quantity of service we are being called upon to give is an an all-time high. This summer is a record breaker. The number of children enrolled in the Summer Reading Program is very large, and the attendance at the regular Activity Day is overwhelming; an increase of 50 percent over the last four years.

Since 1978, the number of books has increased 28 percent. This has put a real strain on the support staff (two people). Recently, some of the load has been eased by the new computer-word processor. You will soon be finding the catalog cards for new books sooner than six weeks (or months) after their purchase. Time to produce the cards has been cut in half, but the staff and time to file them in the card catalog is still in the works

The service staff, the ones you see when you come in, consists of three full time librarians: reference, circulation and children's. Two part-time pages form the remainder of the staff. The six full time and two part-time member staff and the available floor space are the only things which have not increased since 1978.

In four years, the circulation has gone from 81,000 to 97,000 a year, a 20 percent increase. This year is already more than 2,000 circulations ahead of the end of last June. In a way, the astounding circulation for this summer is a help. With the lack of space on the shelves, the more books out, the fewer on the floor.

In June this year, we had the first day ever of over 1,000 circulations ... and another ... and another. Five days of near or over 1,000 items checked out - that spells exhaustion to a librarian. Only three days this summer has circulation been under 500.

You may view this article as a plea for your patience. If our responses are not as prompt, our smiles not as ready or interest not an enthusiastic as usual, we hope this article will help you understand why.

Pot-charged granny claims public support

HOUSTON (AP) - An 82-year-old greatgrandmother accused of growing marijuana in her vegetable garden says the public is for her even if the law has not been so far.

District Judge Michael McSpadden denied a defense motion to suppress evidence in the case - several mature marijuana plants uprooted from the woman's garden.

New Supreme Court justice wants non-partisan judges

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas has its first female fulltime state Supreme Court justice, who used her swearing-in ceremony to call for non-partisan election of judges

Ruby Kless Sondock took the oath of office Friday as well-wishers packed into the Supreme Court chamber gave her a standing ovation.

Gov. Bill Clements last week chose the 56-year-old Houston state district court judge to fill the vacancy created by James R. Denton's recent death.

Mrs. Sondock is not the first female appointee to the court. Three women were empaneled temporarily in 1925 to hear one case involving a men's club to which the three male justices as well as virtually every other male member of the bar belonged, disqualifying them from deliberation.

"Hopefully, my nomination, which represents a crossover in political parties, will be the impetus that will motivate concerned citizens to bring forward a meaningful and realistic plan for the nonpartisan election of judges in this state,' she said.

After Clements, a Republican, nominated Mrs. Sondock, a Democrat, Democratic leaders lost no time calling the move political.

Mrs. Sondock's ascension to the court puts Democrats in the position of replacing the only female member of the court with State District Judge Bill Kilgarlin of Houston, the candidate they chose to replace Denton on the ballot.

Because the filing deadline has passed, Mrs. Sondock could not run in the general election even if she chose to switch parties. The GOP has no candidate for the post.

"I know it's a historic first," said Clements in introducing Mrs. Sondock, "but the most important thing is the quality of this candidate.

Putnam and his chief financial officer, M. Philip Guthrie, disclosed in testimony during the hearing that Braniff was discussing a $50 million joint operating agreement with eight airlines, including Pan American World Airways.

Braniff still has $15 million in cash to contribute to the initial cost of putting Braniff's planes back on Braniff's old routes, Putnam said

King remains tennis queen

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King was still mistress of Wimbledon on Saturday at 38 years old, saving three match points and battling back to beat an opponent 15 years her junior at the All-England Tennis Championships.

The six-time Wimbledon champion, the oldest woman player in the tournament, defeated Tanya Harford of South Africa 5-7, 7-6, 6-3 in an up-and-down match played in four stages between rain showers.

For the fifth time in six days, rain disrupted the tournament, which ended the first week some 150 matches behind schedule. Officials planned to make up lost time by starting early and using all 17 courts of the All-England Club through the second week. They still hope to finish with the men's final on July 4.

The third round of the women's singles was completed, but more than 40 men were still waiting to play their second-round matches.

play defending champion John McEnroe in the next round. McEnroe and his main rival Jimmy Connors had already reached the third round.

It is 19 years since King was first frustrated by the rain on Center Court. In 1963, when she reached the final for the first time as Billie Jean Moffitt, the tennis was washed out on the Saturday final and she lost to Margaret Smith (later Court) two days later.

This time the rain kept interrupting the match, and it may have cost her the first set.

Rain fell as she served to save the set at 5-6. She asked for the match to be stopped, but the umpire told her to play on. King broke off play once to wipe her glasses, but she lost the game and the set.

At 4-5 in the second set, King trailed love-40 on her service and was on the brink of being eliminated. But she fought back with Saint back coerced?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A lawyer, representing former New Orleans Saints running back Mike Strachan, says prosecutors tried to coerce his client into helping a drug investigation by offering a plea bargain and threatening to add charges against him if he did not cooperate.

A new federal indictment came down Friday against Strachan, who was accused in a previous indictment of similar charges of selling cocaine to some current and former Saints, including 1981 National Football League rushing leader George Rogers.

Strachan's 12-count superseding indictmen d d not say who bought the cocaine, but the charges emerged in the midst of new u1 drug use by more than a dozen present or former Saints.

Strachan's lawyer, Dennis Jude Dannel, made his charges against prosecutors Friday, but U.S. Attorney John Volz would not comment on any deals.

"Dannel knows we cannot comment on any pretrial negotiations and, though he has violated the court's rule, I will not," Volz said.

Volz said no other indictments were expected in this investigation unless new evidence crops up.

He added that he is not inclined to push chargers against athletes who may have used cocaine and other drugs, but may prosecute their dealers.

'We are pincipally concerned in the people who supply the drugs," Volz said.

U.S. Magistrate Marcel Livaudais allowed Strachan to remain free under the $50,000 property bond he posted after the first indictment on May 21.

The new indictment charges him with conspiring with "other persons whose names are known and unknown to the grand jury to distribute cocaine," and with 11 counts of distribution between Feb. 4, 1980 and Jan. 4, 1982 attached to well-muscled bodies, Gaje proved that even the little guy has a chance in defending himself if he possesses the proper skills.

Tuhon Leo Gaje is an expert at the art of arnis. The appellation "tuhon" itself means "master." His skills have been developed in the art of weapon combat as opposed to the "open-handed" disciplines of karate and judo. With amazing fluidity, Gaje can simply disarm or dramatically destroy an attacker with bastons (a type of club made of rattan, bamboo or wood) or a endless variety of daggars and swords, each with a special degree of damage it may inflict.

THE AMERICAN public has only recently been enlightened to the fighting disciplines of the Orient. Karate and judo have become standard courses at a local YMCA or health club and actors such as Bruce Lee and Chuck Norris have brought their talents to the wide screen. Now Gaje and his instructors are introducing the martial art of arnis to this country, a form of combat. dance and recreation that has been part of Filipino history since the Spanish discovered the islands

Recalling the ghosts of Little League past

Not everyone in Big Spring was at the rodeo this week.

It was almost like the TV ratings wars, where one network pits its top show against the best from its rivals. Locally, that other channel this week was the annual city Little League Championship Tournament and you can be assured it drew a multitude of moms and pops to the four ballparks scattered around town.

The conclusion of this special series was scheduled for Saturday night. Unlike the tube, however, baseball games are not played under the shelter of the living room roof. Thus when the rains hit late yesterday afternoon, the thrilling climax between the American Hawks and the Texas Ponys couldn't be shown.

However disappointing it might all be - especially since the writer of this column was to do the color portion of KBST's radio broadcast and baseball fans will have to wait until Thursday for his radio debut - I thought a few glances back at the humorous past might cheer you up.

I made my professional start in journalism covering summer baseball in Abilene. This job has its funny moments and several of the heartiest chuckles have come from the Little League ballpark.

Why is it that most of the humorous times have come with the playing of the National Anthem?

One summer, another writer and I were covering a playoff game at Western Little League. It came time for the National Anthem and the youngster handling the record player asked everyone to rise and set the needle on the record. Alas, he had forgotten to turn the ancient machine on. Since it took several minutes to warm up, he couldn't play the record and turned white.

Quickly getting control of himself, though, he flipped on the mic and began, "Oooooooh, sayayay cannn yuuuuuuuu seecee ... " His voice quavering in total fright, the boy sang the whole thing solo. It was a remarkable job but one I don't care ever to hear again.

Dixie Little League, the pride and joy of Abilene, has always worked all details to perfection. Except the National Anthem.

At Dixie's old park, there was an even older record player and on it, a personally autographed copy to the National Anthem by Francis Scott Key. No, it really wasn't that old.

One year they finally picked up a new album with all sorts of patriotic music on it. Not sure just where the Anthem was, the lady handling the song-playing sometimes put on the wrong tune. "And now folks, would you please rise for our National Anthem," boomed the announcer. As the crowd put hands over hearts, John Phillip Sousa's famous march blasted over the PA system.

My favorite announcer was a fellow who did the city all-star tournament the last two years I worked for the Reporter-News. A youngster by the name of Jackson was playing center field for the Lone Star all-stars. He was a good selection, catching

It came down to late in the game and their opponents had men in scoring position. The batter lined a shot in the gap and Jackson was off and running.

"Batted down ... it's in the outfield," screamed the announcer. "IT'S CAUGHT BY JACKSON! WHAT A CATCH! HE'S LIKE A ROVING JACKAL OUT THERE, FOLKS!

A roving jackal? Never had I heard that term. That year and the next I kidded him about that one. Too much Marlin Perkins and Wild Kingdom, he explained.

It's not all limited to Little League. This past year, announcers had a blast trying to get the names of the Steers right. One poor fellow in Midland had no luck. "Next up, the second baseman, Beef Armadillo." I don't know if Beef got a hit that time, but we all got a laugh at the new pronunciation of Armendariz.

Someone in the office asked me what I was going to say when I got on the radio. Since I was doing the "color" part of the broadcast, I replied, "Well folks it's a lovely evening here at the ballpark. The setting sun is painting the western sky blue and orange. Tonight, the Hawks are wearing their green and white uniforms while the Rangers are decked out in white with red and blue trim."

Not bad for a green announcer, huh? Or is my future in broadcasting pretty gray?

Arnis simple but effective

one that adds to the importances of arnis in the development of the nation.

Gaje continues that arnis was used by the natives to keep the Spanish in check when their government pressed down too hard on the people. After winning the Spanish-American war, the U.S. got the Philippines - for the price of $3 a head. It was the best bargain struck since Manhattan Island was purchased from American Indians for $25 and Alaska was bought for two cents an acre.

The Americans had their troubles with natives also One account said a solider had been decapitated after shooting a Filipino with a .38 caliber handgun. The pistolmakers went back to the drawing boards and developed the .45 caliber gun that would guarantee stopping an attacker dead in his tracks ... before arnis could finish off the marksman.

ARNIS came to good use again in World War II. In addition to training soldiers with rifles, etc., the Filipinos made the art of arnis standard instruction. It came in handy when a shortage of firearms necessitated the use of swords, clubs and knives - the tools of the arnis fighter.

The Japanese boasted they could take the Philipines in three or four days. Instead, it took four months before surrender came

When the country was liberated by General MacArthur, and he returned after the war to tell Congress "give me 1,000,000 Filipinos and I'll conquer the world." Arnis had indeed made its mark on history and on the tactics of combat.

The history of arnis is important because the martial art is not so much a hobby as it is a tradition.

Gaje began his training at the age of nine, not from a local teacher or even his father, but from his grandfather, Conrado Tortal - recognized as one of the foremost masters on the island of Negros Occidental. Instruction is standard in the school systems and a required course at the universities

After years of study, Gaje moved to the United States in 1972 and was recognized by his governments as a certified master of arnis in 1975. He was declared an "ambassador" of sorts by Major General Fabian C. Ver, president of the National Arnis Association, to instruct outside his homeland

THE DISCIPLINE has grown quickly in this country. The first tournament was held in 1980 at the Playboy ticing, performing or participating in tournaments. resort in Great Gorge, N.J., with a full-contact tourney was held that same year at the United Nations.

Gilder take huge lead

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) - Bob Gllder scored an incredible double eagle on the final hole to finish off a 5under-par 65 and tie an all-time PGA Tour scoring record in Saturday's third round of the $400,000 Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Classic.

Gilder's fantastic shot — he holed out with a fairway wood — for a score of 2 on the par-5 finishing hole at Westchester Country Club - enabled him to complete three rounds at 192, 18 shots under par.

It tied the Tour's all-time scoring record for the first 54 holes of a tournament, set by Mike Souchak in the 1955 Texas Open.

Gilder's last-hole heroics, which occurred while the national TV cameras had cut away for a commercial, provided him with a six-shot lead over Tom Kite, who was in the unique and unenviable position of making birdie on the final hole and losing two strokes to the leader.

Kite, last year's leading money-winner and playing with Gilder in the last threesome on the hilly little course in suburban New York, had a 68 in the hot, humid weather. Kite completed 54 holes in 198, a remarkable score in almost any other tournament but a distant second to Gilder's scoring that have produced rounds of 64, 63 and

Peter Jacobsen, who entered the third round in a tie for second only three shots back, simply couldn't keep up with Gilder's record pace. Jacobsen managed a round of par 70 and was eight shots back at 200.

No one else was within 10 strokes of Gilder going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $72,000 first prize.

Wayne Levi, with a 67, and veteran Jim Colbert, with a 68, were tied for fourth at 202. Don Pooley was next at 203 after a 68.

Defending titleholder Ray Floyd had a 66 and was at 206. British Open champion Bill Rogers birdied five holes in a row over one stretch, had a 67 and was at 205, 5-under par and, incredibly, 13 strokes behind. Masters champ Craig Stadler was at 209 after a 71. Tom Watson, who won the U.S. Open last week, failed to make the cut.

Gilder, winner of the Byron Nelson Classic earlier this season, had a three-stroke lead over Kite and Jacobsen when the day started.

Kite made a run at him on the front side, scoring birdies on the fifth, sixth and ninth, but, he noted "Bob put one in on top of me on every hole.'

So there remained a three-shot difference on the back. and neither played particularly well on that side.

Gilder got it into deep rough a couple of times and made a pair of bogeys. So did Kite.

And then, on the 18th, when Kite seemed to still be in the race, Gilder holed out his 3-wood second shot from 251 yards for golf's most rare accomplishment, the double eagle. It was the first of the year on the pro golf tour and the first of Gilder's career.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros says he has put out the word that San Antonio wants a National Football League team sometime before 1990.

'I've made it clear to the NFL that I want a franchise,' the mayor said. "There's no reason why our citizens should cheer for another city's team when we are of the size and income composition to play ourselves.

Cisneros referred to the support local residents give the Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers, both of whose games are televised regularly in the nation's 11th largest city.

"I believe if a stadium existed in San Antonio right now, we'd give Phoenix a run for its money," Cisneros said Wednesday after meeting earlier in the week with mayors of NFL franchise cities in Minneapolis. Phoenix is one of several front-runne

He said behind-the-scenes dicussions on prospects for a stadium-sports center already have begun here with a number of local businessmen, but Cisneros declined to name them

Cisneros said he was not opposed to the city helping finance construction of a stadium as part of a publicprivate investment, but he said the city has to address drainage improvements before entering such a venture.

Cisneros said he attended the Minneapolis meeting at the invitation of NFL executive Don Weiss. He had called on Weiss in New York City earlier this year and has corresponded with him since then about San Antonio's interest in the NFL, the mayor said. The Minneapolis meeting was called to discuss... proposed legislation that would make it impossible for a franchise owner to pull out of a city without warning and would assure continued sharing of NFL revenues from radio, television and cable contracts by all participants, Cisneros said Cisneros said the two provisiions would make it possible for small or mid-sized cities to hold NFL teams. "There are cities much smaller than us who have teams," Cisneros said.

Homers pace Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)- In just 25 games rookie Dave Hostetler has hit as many home runs as any Texas Ranger did in 1981.

Hostetler ripped a two-run homer in the first inning Saturday night to ignite the Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Oakland A's.

"I don't know how many home runs-I'll hit, but I figure if I get to play regularly it should be at least in the 20s this season," said the 6-4, 220pound rookie with the big bat.

Hostetler has hit 10 homers since he was called up from Texas' Class AAA American Association Denver farm team May 28th.

Buddy Bell hit 10 home runs to lead the Rangers in that department last year.

Bell pounded his eighth homer of the year Saturday night and Billy Sample added a two-run shot as the Rangers overpowered the A's.

"I'm glad I'm off to such a good start." said Hostetler. "I knew I had to start fast because I wasn't certain how long they were going to look at Oglivie's two-run single came in the eighth after reliever Mark Clear, 6-3, the third Boston pitcher, walked three straight batters to load the bases. Rollie Fingers, 4-5, got the victory.

Trailing 8-2 after 41/2 innings, Boston tied the score with four runs in the fifth and two in the seventh.

HOUSTON (AP) - Steve Garvey and Ron Cey often have been blamed for the Los Angeles Dodgers' problems this season, but they would have to get a lot of credit for the Dodgers' victory Saturday.

Cey had a single and two doubles, and Garvey added a pair of singles in a 4-1 triumph over the Houston Astros. "I think that you can trace back and find that when I'm hot, the team responds well and becomes hot also." Cey said. "When I do the job, it's a given, when I don't, it's a focal point." "I picked up my swing and the team has picked up also," said Garvey. "The lack of production has been partially my fault, but it's not fair to point fingers at Ron and me in a team situation. We don't want to take credit for the wins or blame for the losses."

In addition to Cey and Garvey, pitchers Dave Stewart and Steve Howe also got some credit in beating their former teammate, Houston's Don Sutton. Stewart, 3-4, limited Houston to four hits in 52-3 innings, and Howe, who earned his sixth save, gave up only one hit the rest of the way.

Cardinals 4-2, Cubs 1-1

CHICAGO (AP) - Jim Kaat allowed four hits in six innings in his first start of the season to lead the S.t. Louis Cardinals to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs and a double-header sweep Saturday.

Keith Hernandez singled in the Cards' first run in the opener and also singled and scored in the ninth for the 4-1 triumph.

Kaat, 43-year-old left-hander, upped his record to 2-1 and was nicked for a run in the first on singles by Ryne Sandberg and Keith Moreland. He didn't allow another run before departing for a pinch batter in the seventh

Pirates 14, Expos 5

MONTREAL (AP) — Pittsburgh capitalized on a seventh-inning error by Montreal shortstop Chris Speier to score two unearned runs and break a 4-4 tie and Willie Stargell capped an eight-run outburst the next inning with a two-run pinch double as the Pirates blasted the Montreal Expos 14-5 Saturday night.

A 19-hit attack helped the Pirates win their third game in a row and send the Expos to their fourth consecutive setback.

The unearned runs in the seventh came off starter Charlie Lea, 6-3. Enrique Romo, 4-1, the third of four Pittsburgh pitchers, was the winner.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Mike Schmidt slammed a tie-breaking tworun homer in the eighth inning, powering the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-4 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of Saturday's twi-night double-header

In the opener, rookie catcher Ozzie Virgil drove in the winning run with a fifth-inning single and Marty Bystrom scattered nine hits for his first complete game in more than a year as the Phillies won 4-3. The loswer was Randy Jones, 6-7.

CINCINNATI (AP) - An unusual two-error play that allowed Dan Driessen to score from first base gave the Cincinnati Reds a 2-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

Tom Seaver, 4-8, gave up only three hits over eight innings. He surrendered a run on two hits in the first, then settled down and pitched no-hit ball until the eighth, when Biff Pocoroba singled. Tom Hume pitched the ninth inning for his 16th save.

Haynie pulls into lead

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) - Sandra Haynie popped three birdies in the first five holes Saturday and shot her way past faltering JoAnne Carner to lead after three rounds of the $200,000 LPGA Rochester International.

Haynie shot a 3-under-par 69 despite bogeying No. 18her only miscue of the round - for a one-shot lead and 54hole total of 209. She led Nancy Lopez and Carner.

Havnie, a 39-year-old LPGA Hall of Fame member, has 40 victories to 34 for Carner, who would qualify for the honor gallery by winning here. Lopez birdied the last hole for her third straight round of 70 and Carner struggled in at 3-over-par 75. Carner, 43, played the first 42 holes without a bogey but

Traditional powers control World Cup

MAGRID (AP) — The upstarts who made it the biggest soccer championship ever have fallen from the World Cup. From now on it's a slugout among the sport's traditional powers, the Europeans and South Americans.

Algeria, the biggest surprise of the 24-nation first round and the last outsider in the running, watched in frustration Friday as West Germany beat Austria 1-0. It ensured the advancement of both, eliminated the Algerians on goal difference and prompted charges of impropriety.

The crowd at Gijon jeered, shouted "fix" and tried to storm the field in protest. The Algerians needed an Austrian victory, a draw or a lopsided West German victory to advance to the 12-team second round.

After Horst Hrubesch's 10th minute header gave West Germany a 1-0 lead, the game's pace slowed abruptly. Both sides maneuvered in midfield, preserving a mutually suitable result.

Benali Sekkal, president of the Algerian Soccer Federation attended the game and called it "Scandalous and immoral." He demanded disqualification of both teams, but there was no formal response by the Federation of International Football.

England, already qualified for Round Two, beat Kuwait 1-0 on the final day of the opening round, knocking the Kuwaitis out and enabling France to move up. Northern Ireland beat Spain 1-0. lifting both into the second round and sending Yugoslavia home.

Spaniards who packed Seville's 47,500-seat stadium alternately cheered and jeered their team. Then they poured into the streets for an all-night celebration of its achievement backing into the second round ahead of Yugoslavia on goal difference and avoiding the first early elimination of a home team in World Cup history.

Spain joins England and West Germany, perhaps the best European teams, in Group B in the same second round

A far weaker threesome - Austria, France and Northern Ireland — is in Group D.

Groups B and D open round-robin play Monday in Madrid while Groups A and C, filled earlier this week, play in Barcelona. The two Madrid group winners will meet in one semifinal and the two Barcelona winners in the other, setting up a July 11 final.

Cup holder Argentina and tournament favorite Brazil ended up in Group C with Italy. European dark horses Belgium, Poland and the Soviet Union make up Group A.

l-star tilt North tops South

HOUSTON (AP) - Mike Hunsucker of Desoto slammed a triple in the top of the 10th inning to knock in the winning run as the North downed the South 5-4 Saturday in the 9th Annual Texas High School Baseball Coaches Association all-star game

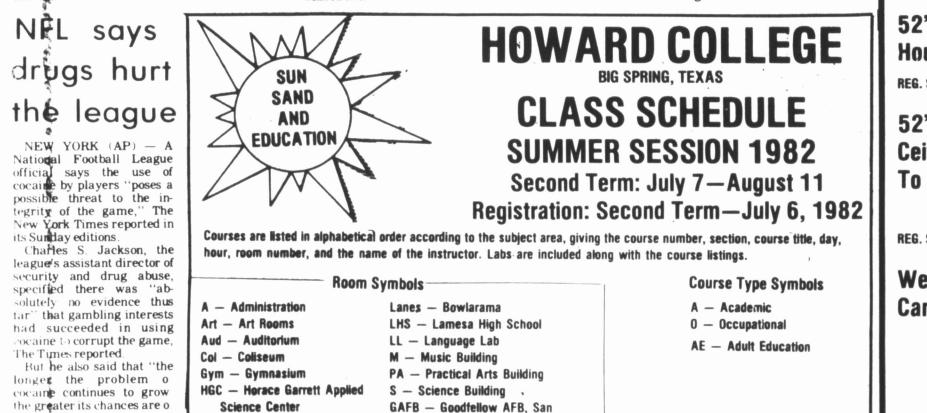

Lubbock Coronado's Jay Lindstrom led off the 10th with an infield single and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Jay Cleveland of Amarillo Tascosa Hunsucker then clouted to the Astrodome centerfield wall a 1-0 pitch from losing pitcher Eric Boudreaux of Houston Strake Jesuit, allowing Lindstrom to score. Hunsucker also had two singles and scored a run.

The fourth pitcher for the North, Rick Dillman of Lubbock Monterey, picked up the win. Dillman pitched the final three and one-third innings, allowed one hit, struck out two and walked two.

Ralph Kraus of Plano hit a sacrifice fly and North Mesquite's James Darnell had an RBI single to put the North ahead 2-0 in the fourth. A run-scoring single by Ray Crone of Waxahachie in the fifth and a wild pitch that allowed Hunsucker to score in the sixth made it 4-0.

The South countered with a four-run seventh inning. Two walks, two errors, an RBI double by Houston Westbury's Mike Scanlin and a wild pitch enabled the South to tie the game and send it into extra innings it occurring.

I don't think any player ever sold out a game for a bottle of gin," said Dr. Walter Riker, the league's medical consultant for drug ibuse

But Dr. Riker said that waine is something else, "It's like a time sting. bomb.

According to the Times, NFL officials expressed irs that a cocaine dealer with organized crime conections could offer drugs ee to a player or players with the intention of fixing a game

Jackson and other league offcials told the newspaper 'hat only 17 players had been identified as "chemically depedent" on cocaine. But Jackson said "it was quite possible" that as many as 40 to 50 players in the league had a "chemical dependency on the drug'' and that hundreds of the league's 1,500 players are using it, many of hem regularly.

These figures do not come as a shock to me," Jackson said in an interview. The figures just tell me there's a lot of work to be done.

The use of cocaine by professional athletes has been documented over the past few years. But its profile was raised considerably in recent weeks when Don Reese, a former defensive lineman for three NFL teams, said in a national magazine article that cocaine had wrecked his career and that the drug now "controls and corrupts the game.

He did not say that any games were fixed. Then, Thursday, it was reported by a New Orleans newspaper that several current and former members of the New Orleans Saints, including 1981 NFL rushing leader George Rogers and quarterback Dave Wilson, have told federal investigators they regularly purchased cocaine from former Saints running back Mike Strachan, under indictment on drug charges, and a convicted drug dealer.

South Plains farmers survey weather damage

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Hail, heavy rains and high winds destroyed a sizeable portion of crops in the South Plains last week, and young crops also were lost to severe weather in the Panhandle, Rolling Plains, Trans-Pecos and West Central Texas says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In his weekly report on Texas crops, Pfannstiel estimated crop losses at 50 percent or more in some counties of the South Plains, with cotton suffering most of the damage

He said farmers are already replanting cotton acreage to grain sorghum and soybeans because the season is too far along to plant cotton again. Damaged cotton is being replanted in the Trans-Pecos area and in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas where farmers have a somewhat longer growing season, Pfannstiel said.

Wheat harvesting was slowed by rains in the plains, especially in the Rolling Plains where much of the crop remains to be harvested. Heavy weed infestations also are causing harvesting problems in that area. These delays have caused some custom harvesters to move northward into Kansas and Oklahoma, Pfannstiel said.

Recent rains have also slowed wheat tharvesting in North Central and Northeast Texas while 50 to 80 percent of the crop is in over West Central Texas.

Harvesting of a good hay crop continues over the state, with some second cuttings under way in eastern counties. Alfalfa harvesting remains active in some parts of the plains

Most crops in eastern, coastal and south central areas need rain for continued growth while those in South Texas are maturing. Farmers are still planting some peanuts and soybeans in coastal areas, with lack of planting moisture causing delays, noted Pfannstiel

Insect problems are increasing over parts of the state, with grasshoppers heavy in ranges in the Rolling Plains and increasing in central areas and certain pests increasing in late cotton and grain sorghum in central and coastal areas.

Livestock and forage conditions remain good over most of Texas although rain is needed in coastal, south central and some eastern counties, said Pfannstiel. Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions. PANHANDLE: Hail, high winds and tornadoes caused heavy crop damage in some locations. Wheat is maturing, with some early harvesting. Cotton and grain sorghum planting is about complete. Recent rains have boosted range conditions but some areas remain dry. First hay cuttings are about complete.

SOUTH PLAINS: Heavy rains, hail, high winds and blowing sand caused extensive crop damage the past weekend. Crop losses are estimated at 50 percent or more in some counties. Lost cotton acreage is being replanted to grain sorghum and soybeans because it's too late to plant cotton again. Ranges remain in good shape.

ROLLING PLAINS: Some cotton was lost to heavy rains and hail last weekend and is being replanted. The rains also delayed wheat harvesting, and some custom harvesters have moved into Oklahoma and Kansas. Heavy weed infestations have also caused harvesting problems. The wheat harvest ranges from 25 to 90 percent complete. Grasshoppers are heavy over the area, damaging ranges and young crops.

NORTH CENTRAL: Rains have caused some delays in wheat harvesting. Most grain sorghum is headed and cornlooks good. Insects are increasing in cotton. Peanut planting continues. A good hay crop is being harvested along with peaches. Livestock look good and have adequate grazing.

NORTHEAST: Scattered rains have slowed wheat harvesting. Most crops are now making good progress following earlier adverse weather. Sweet corn is about mature. A good peach harvest continues and garden vegetables are in full production. Livestock and grazing conditions are good.

FAR WEST: Some young crops were severely damaged by hail and other adverse weather late last week. Most damaged cotton is being replanted. Thrips are heavy in some young cotton. Cabbage, potatoes and onions are being harvested in some counties. Ranges are fair to good. Hornflies are heavy in cattle. Some spring lambs are moving to market.

WEST CENTRAL: Hail damaged some crops last weekend, so some cotton and grain sorghum are being replanted. Wheat harvesting is 50 to 80 percent complete, with generally good yields. Livestock and grazing conditions are good but weeds are beginning to cause problems for sheep. Some spring lambs are moving to market, with prices down. Peach harvesting continues.

CENTRAL: Cotton is starting to bloom in some areas, with boll weevils and fleahoppers increasing. Mide are increasing in lae grain sorghum. A good first cutting of hay is being harvested. Grasshoppers are heavy in some counties. Livestock and range conditions are good EAST: Most crops and pastures need rain. Sorghum is heading and cotton is fruiting. Second cuttings of hay look good. A fair peach crop is being harvested. Livestock remain in good shape, with markets showing some strength.

UPPER COAST: Dry conditions are hampering crop and forage growth. Some farmers are still planting peanuts and soybeans, with lack of planting moisture causing delays. Hay harvesting is in full swing, with good yields. Webworms and walnut caterpillars are heavy on pecan trees in many counties.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Most crops, pastures and ranges need additional moisture. Grain sorghum is turning color and cotton is starting to bloom. The corn crop looks good. Harvesting of a good hay crop continues. The peach harvest is generally poor over the area.

SOUTHWEST: Crop, range and livestock conditions are good to excellent but moisture is still short in some areas.

Farmers pay more debt interest

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers paid $13.1 billion interest on debts last year, a 24 percent increase from less than $10.6 billion paid in 1980, says a new Agriculture Department report.

Taxes, on the other hand, held about steady at $2.7 billion in 1981, the department's Statistical Reporting Service said Thursday.

The figures were included in a summary of a report to be issued later this summer - Farm Production Expenditures for 1981. More than 9,800 farmers and ranchers were interviewed in the annual survey.

Altogether, the report said, farmers spent about $138.5 billion on production expenses last year, up 1.5 percent from $136.4 billion in 1980. The category of interest and taxes - all because of the interest hike - rose the sharpest

However, the largest single expense category was farm services at $21.1 billion, down slightly from $21.3 billion in 1980. Farm services include hired custom work, veterinarian services, insurance and rents.

Dollar outlays also declined in several other categories including feed, and livestock and poultry purchases. Most other groups were higher.

Farm services accounted for 15.3 percent of the total farm expenditures last year, followed by feed, 13.7 percent; seeds, plants, fertilizer and agricultural chemicals, 12.8 percent; interest and taxes, 11.4 percent; livestock and poultry, 11.2 percent; and autos, trucks, tractors and machinery, 9.7 percent.

(Part 2 - Child Support)

Child support, unlike alimony, is not deductible by the spouse who pays it nor is it income to the one who receives it.

Payments for child support must be clearly stated as being for child support in the written divorce σ agreement. For example, a written statement requires the husband to pay $9,000 a year for support of his wife and two children. Payments are to be reduced by 1/3 when each child reaches majority. marries or dies. This wording implies that $3,000 is for alimony and $6,000 is for child support; however, since the agreement doesn't "fix" anything for child support, the entire $9,000 is deductible by the husband as alimony and taxable to the wife as income

Child support payments are a factor in determin-ing which parent is entitled to take the dependency exemption for the children. Generally, the parent who has custody of the child for the greater part of the year is entitled to an exemption for the child. However, the exemption belongs to the noncustodial parent in two situations: (1) if that parent provides at least $600 toward the child's support during the year and the divorce decree or written agreement states that that parent is to be given the dependency exemption, or (2) if the non-custodial parent provides $1,200 or more of support for the child during the calendar year and the former spouse does not show that he or she provides more for support. That parent can then take an exemption for the child even though the divorce decree or written agreement gives the exemption to the other

The tax bracket of each parent following the divorce should be a consideration in determining payment amounts and exemption allowances. Seeking the assistance of an accountant at this point in the divorce will eliminate conflict later on and provide for larger after-tax income for both parents.

Scent of scandal is still strong at Teapot Dome

- 8-B

By ROCH THORNTON Associated Press Writer

MIDWEST, Wyo. (AP) — Three generations of rawbound ranchers have watched the cattle drives stir up the Wyoming dust since the days when Teapot Dome became for millions of Americans the nation's strongest symbol of political corruption until Watergate.

The memory remains. And so do the scandals at Teapot Dome, the huge federal oil reserve in central Wyoming. In the latest incident, a California man was given two years' probation last week for his role in a kickback scheme involving oil royalties on the reserve.

But all the scandal hasn't affected John Beaton who's fived for more than 60 years in the shadow of Teapot Rock.

"You know the road?" he says, pointing toward the oil reserve — focus of a 1924 bribery scandal that shook the Warren G. Harding administration.

"That's where they used to work the roundups," he said. "My Dad has seen 12,000 and 13,000 head of cattle right there "

Beaton, who tends a sprawling Angus herd on the high plains, knows the outlines of the 58-year-old bribery scandal and later events at Teapot Dome. He graciously accommodates the tourists who sometimes stop at the unmaculately kept Teapot Ranch headquarters to photograph the rock.

But he makes no effort to attract them, and has turned down lucrative opportunities to lease his land for oil development.

"We have a heritage to protect," he said. "Coal and oil can be used up and then they're gone."

Grass, he said, lasts forever. He may be right.

According to Ken Goltz, Department of Energy supervisor for the reserve, Teapot Dome is on the downhill side of its productive life, which peaked in 1981. In 30-35 years, he said, the field will be empty of oil recoverable by today's methods.

Reaton's ranch has produced sheep or cattle every year since it was homesteaded in 1903. And he is optimistic hystock production will continue long after the oil under Teapot Rock is gone.

Early settlers named the crumbling sandstone butte leapot Rock because it had a protruding "handle" and "sport." Both have since fallen off, victims of wind and tain Officially known as Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 3, Teapot Dome has also produced controversy and scandal out of proportion with its importance as an oil reservoir.

Oil magnate Henry Sinclair was accused in 1924 of paying Interior Secretary Albert Fall $100,000 to lease NPR No. 3 to his Mammoth Oil Co.

Fall resigned and was jailed for taking a bribe while Sinclair was jailed for jury tampering and contempt of Congress. The Supreme Court revoked the Mammoth Oil tease and the 85 wells drilled at Teapot Dome were capped m 1927

The very name Teapot Dome means political corruption to a lot of people," said Wyoming historian Bill Bragg. "It was a case of graft, pure and simple.

I don't know what it is about the Naval Petroleum Reserve but somebody always thinks they can be had, unless it's the feeling that the government can always be had," he added.

FLASH! Look Who Won Another $2000 From Coca-Cola Playing Peel-A-Fortune

An elated Dan Stone of Gail, Tex. exchanges his lucky Coca-Cola cash caps that spelled the word HOMERUN $2000.00 check from Mr. Weldon Bennett, Big Spring Coca-Cola Sales Center Manager. Also pictured is Dewain Williams, owner of Williams Oil Field Construction in Vealmoor, Texas where Mr. Stone purchased his 12 oz. can Coca-Cola that had the last letter needed to complete the spelling of HOMERUN. Ever since your local Coca-Cola bottler began the Peel-A-Fortune game early this year, many of your friends and neighbors have been collecting letters of the alphabet from bottle caps and can tabs of Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, Tab and Sprite. They have been trying to spell the lucky words, HOMERUN, TOUCHDOWN, POINT, OR COKE in hopes of winning a prize or instant cash up to $2000.00 from their local Coca-Cola Bottler. Now, Mr. Stone of Gail, Texas has successfully spelled the word HOMERUN in accordance with the Feel-A-Fortune rules and has become the third $2000.00 Coca-Cola instant cash winner in 1982. You can be a winner, too. This weekend, when you stock up your summer supply of soft drinks, look for bottle caps or can tabs of Coca-Cola, Mr. Pibb, Tab or Sprite, with $$$ on the top. Under each specially marked cap or tab is a letter of the alphabet. All you have to do is spell one of the lucky words on the game card and you can win a prize or instant cash up to $2000.00 just like Mr. Stone. Even if you don't spell any of the winning words, you are a winner because you have provided your self and your family delicious, refreshing Coca-Cola or its allied brands of Mr. Pibb, the #1 selling soft drink in Big Spring and the Permian Basin. Coca-Tab or Sprite ... Cola ... the one others try to challenge or compare themselves to, whether they are number 2 or 27. Coca-Cola ... the one others want to be when they grow up ... The Real Thing. Coca-Cola ... the one everyone associates with a winner. Just ask any of the following $1000.00 winners in last year's Coca- Cola instant cash contest: Royce Brooks, Roberto Garcia, Forrest Ward, Ken Lenoir, all of Abilene, Charlotte Davis of Hawley, Zeke Davila of Colorado City, Eddie Lou Phernetton of Coahoma, RUSSELL WALKER AND MRS. REX C. TALBOTT OF BIG SPRING, Mrs. Gene Bishop of Midland, Tony Gallegas of Lamesa, Shannon Ash and Gustavo Hernandez of O'Donnell, Rob Baize and Dale Bradley of Lubbock, Larry Dearing of Hereford, John Barbee of Dublin, or Johnny Matthews and Harry Shapiro of Breckenridge, Texas.

Teapot Dome made headlines again in 1973 when a California congressman accused private oil companies of tapping the 9,481-acre reserve with wells drilled just outside its boundaries.

The Navy had to drill offsetting wells to keep the private wells from draining the reserve.

Earlier this year, Frederick R. Williams pleaded guilty and Douglas E. Rawson was convicted in a minor league bribery scheme involving oilfield subcontracts at Teapot Dome. Williams got 30 months in prison and four years' probation while Rawson was sentenced June 17 to two averas' probation.

At the conclusion of that trial, an assistant U.S. attorney hinted that a broader federal investigation into reserve operations was under way but refused to give any details. Meanwhile, the Kansas City Times said in April that full scale production is rapidly depleting the federal oil deserves at Teapot Dome and Elk Hills, Calif., despite low prices and a worldwide oversupply of oil.

The Times said the government was continuing production because of pressure from oil companies and refiners and the government's need for cash.

Femix and Scisson Inc. of Tulsa, Okla., operated Teapot Dome under a federal contract from July 1976 until last September, when its contract ended.

3-year-old's fish story is a tall tale

MILWAUKEE: (AP) — Three-year-old Adam Schultz bas a fish tale almost as tall as he is.

The boy, son of Dennis and Judy Schultz of Cudahy, Wis, recled in a 4-pound northern pike that measured 26 mches long \sim just four inches shorter than Adam stands turnself

"The bobber went down, and we thought maybe it was just caught in the weeds," Mrs. Schultz said. "When we saw what it really was, we couldn't believe it."

The Schultzes took Adam and his sister fishing Wednesday at a lagoon in a county park.

"We thought we'd take the kids out and let them catch a couple of bluegills," Mrs. Schultz said.

But Adam snagged the big northern pike and hauled it nearly to shore before his family helped him bring it in all the way

Adam was fairly calm until he got a good look at the size of the fish, Mrs. Schultz said.

"Then his eyes got really big and he started jumping around," she said. "The other people at the lagoon said it was the biggest they've seen anyone pull out of there.

After bringing in the fish, Adam said, "OK, I want a can of soda now," according to his mother.

Hinckley verdict goes against voter attitudes en and and the set of the

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - A sardonic sage observed long ago that the Supreme Court follows the election returns, and the instant political backlash against the John W.

Hinckley Jr. verdict shows why he said it. Justice is supposed to be blind to political moods. But when judges or juries make decisions that go sharply against the attitudes of voters, office-holders and candidates, issues are born or escalated.

It is happening now in the Hinckley aftermath. It won't make any difference in the case of the man who tried to assassinate President Reagan, crippled White House press secretary James Brady, and wounded a policeman and a Secret Service agent.

He is not guilty by reason of insanity, and that's that.

But it will make a difference in Congress. And it will be a case in point as candidates talk law and order in the 1982 election campaign. That issue has been part of the conservative revival; it ranks high in surveys about the concerns of voters. California voters underscored the issue earlier this month in a referendum vote to limit the rights courts have granted criminal suspects, strengthen the hand of police and prosecutors and restrict the insanity defense.

"No matter whether the Constitution follows the flag or not, the Supreme Court follows the election returns," wrote Finley Peter Dunne, dispensing homespun homilies as Mr. Dooley at the turn of the century.

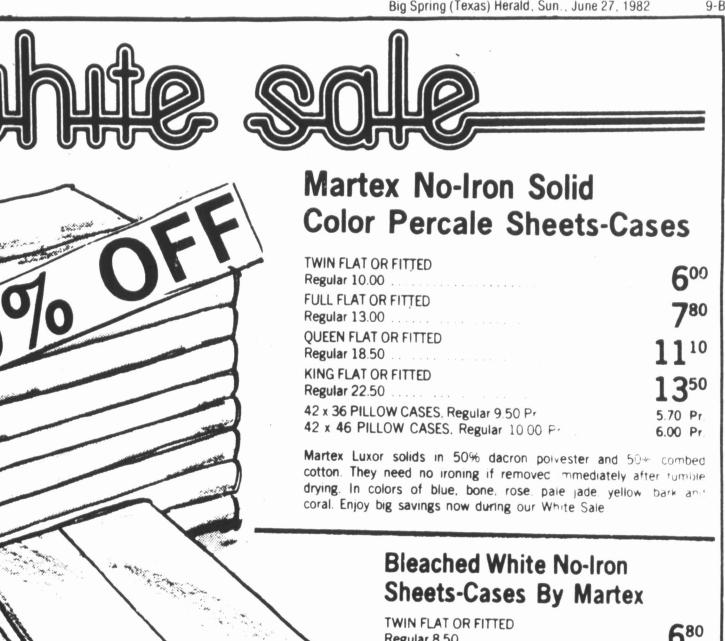

The insanity plea that succeeded for Hinckley had not been a central issue in the law and order debate. It is now, but that probably won't last. What will is the fact that a man whose lawyers admitted he did the shooting, in an assassination attempt Americans saw on national television, was found not guilty - for whatever reason.

Almost every voter has heard, or read, a horror story about a criminal convicted, sentenced, and released to commit new crimes. Reagan, who refuses comment on the Hinckley verdict, has said he knows of 12 murderers who were released from California penal institutions and subsequently were responsible for 34 more deaths. He didn't explain further, and his aides always declined to identify the people involved.

Revisions in the federal criminal code await Senate action, and that is being expedited in the wake of the Hinckley verdict. One of the measures involved would alter the insanity defense so as to create a presumption of sanity in federal court trials. Defense lawyers would have to prove their client insane. In the Hinckley trial, the prosecution had to try to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the defendant was sane.

British actor recalls co-star Ronald Reagan By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Special Correspondent LONDON (AP) - Richard Todd, that fine British actor, as heading to work at a West End theater on a recent summer evening when he heard the boom of an artillery battery in Hyde Park "I thought of myself: My how things change and how the world goes around. We both had the same chances, and here we are. Well, I'm happy, and I hope he is." Todd is starring in "The Business of Murder," now in its 17th month at the Mayfair Theater. Ronald Reagan, his co-star three decades ago, was in his 17th month in this business of the presidency, receiving a 41-gun salute on his way to be a house guest of the queen at Windsor Castle on the eve of a historic address to the Houses of Parliament In 1948, they co-starred in a movie, "The Hasty Heart," and used to ride together every day past this same park to and from Elstree Studios just outside London. "That was one of the nice things Ronnie did for me right at the beginning," Todd reminisced in his backstage dressing room before donning his murderer's makeup. "I was an unknown quantity, a newcomer, and he was a big international star, living at the Savoy, where he would be picced up and delivered by a studio car. Richard Todd had the lead in "The Hasty Heart" and won an Oscar nomination for his sensitive, unforgettable portrayal of the lonely, friendless Scottish soldier dying of a kidney wound in a field hospital. Reagan had the supporting role of the American, known simply as "Yank." Todd lit up a big cigar and looked into the past through a cloud of smoke hovering over the tattered play posters on his dressing room wall. "I seem to remember, although my mind may have since invented it, that Ronnie was sizing me up at that first lunch, being a bit apprehensive. There is a tendency now to denigrate his acting career, which is very unfair. He was an establshed leading man, and I was straight from repertory, what you call stock. Here he was hanging his reputation on the line, supporting an unknown actor on whom the whole play depended."

"Ronnie showed no resentment at all. He was thoroughly professional and always kind," Todd continued. "He handed me everything and never hogged a scene.

The two kept up their friendship when Todd went to Hollywood for several films. "He had married Nancy, and I had dinner at their home in Los Angeles. Ronnie had become president of the Screen Actors Guild and, as such, was on the fringes of politics. I knew he was going to run for something eventually. It was sort of a project in his life. If someone had said to me at that time, some day he'd be president, I'd have not been all that surprised.'

From Carpenter's 'Thing' you will find no escape

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Staff Writer

For this fan of horror movies, one essential element is necessary to separate the ordinary from the excellent. "The Thing," the latest from scary movie master John Carpenter, employs the decisive factor.

In the classic "Alien," occupants of a futuristic spaceship are faced with an enemy and have nowhere to run. Confined to their ship, they have to defeat the alien being on that playing surface or die.

Movie Review

The same "no escape" factor exists in "The Thing" and makes the movie very credible. Too many movies force their stories and the characters do not take advantage of possible "outs" to keep from getting in trouble. As in "Alien" and the highly successful "Poltergeist," the men of an Antarctic exploration station must fight off their enemy right at home. There are no options for running away. There is no escape.

The movie has a welcome Carpenter flavor. The man behind "Halloween," "Halloween II," and "The Fog," Carpenter spices up his movies with his imagination and reality, suspense, humor and a classic ending. Never does a audience leave the theater with a clear conscience. The story does not end with the credits.

All of these tools are employed in "The Thing," showing this week at the College Park Cinema.

The plot concerns a team of Americans researching among the snow, ice and gale-force winds of the South Pole. Strange behavior by the neighbors - Norwegian scientists - causes the men to check out their camp. They discover a grisly body — a thing — which is beyond simple description. It contains all the organs of a human but is deformed. Apparently it was undergoing some sort of cell division when it was destroyed.

They bring the find back to camp and keep it until something weird happens. One of their huskies has the same transformation happen to it. They destroy it with a flame-thrower and do the same to the remnants collected at the Norwegian camp. But it's too late ... the alien organism has invaded the camp.

Blair, the smart-guy of the group, figures out that this organism takes on the form of the body it has invaded. He realizes one of men in the camp has been infected and if it spreads to the rest of .he world, the globe would be entirely controlled in 27,000 hours. (1,125 days or around

Before the helicopter goes, the men make another trip to little Norway and fined a huge spaceship in the ice. Estimates have it as 100,000 years old. Alas, the arrival of the thing to earth is explained.

It's a great find and would make history on the outside world. The only problem is surviving first.

The remainder of the movie deals with the Thing knocking off one of the crew members after another. It finally comes down to two members who blow the whole camp skyhigh with dynamite. They've figured out The Thing would like to return to its frozen state until it is rescued again and has another chance to multiply. At the risk of their own lives, the men destroy their lifesupport.

Story over? No way. One of the men - Chiles disappears and is apparently lost during the blast until he reappears from among the debris. Was he infected before the Thing was destroyed? That's just one of the many questions the audience ponders as it leaves for the exits.

Gary Spence — nature photographer

He chases birds to get pictures

By TINA M. STEFFEN Lifestyle Editor

Gary Spence does more than just like birds. He studies and photographs them. When he talks about birds and photographing them, his face just lights up with excitement.

Gary began birdwatching with binoculars and later moved on to photographing the birds he saw. "I've been interested in birds since I was in the second grade," he said. "I would look at bird books and thought it would be a fun thing to do. Gary received honorable Nature photographers, such as Elliott Porter, inspired Gary in his hobby. 'Porter is one of the best. After I saw them (Porter's pictures), I said I'd like to take pictures of that quality. Looking at other people's (pictures) you can get an idea of how you compare to them qualitywise." He uses his comparisons to improve his photography.

"The picture you don't remember taking may be the best one. Sometimes you know when you've got a good picture. If the picture is going to look like the way it looks in the camera and the exposure and light is just right, you are going to take good care of the roll because you have something.'

Why does he like photographing birds? "Birds are everywhere. You never get bored. If you get bored you can go out and take pictures of birds. Birds will cooperate with you more than people will most of the time. Mammals are hard to find ... that is just luck or chance. Everybody can take a scenery picture. It's not going to move and you don't have to chase it around."

CARES FOR PLANTS - Edna Womack loves plants. She is a member of the Rosebud Garden Club and the Big Spr-ing council of Garden Clubs. Mrs. Womack spent the past 30 years trying to clean up Big Spring while others litter and destroy her efforts.

Edna Womack keeps Big Spring clean

By TINA M. STEFFEN Lifestyle Editor

"Ive been trying to clean up this town for 30 years," Edna Womack says.

Mrs. Womack, among others, is bothered by the fact that people don't care for things. She said people litter everywhere and seem to have no pride in their city. "You finally get disgusted and quit," she said in reference to some who have given up clean-up efforts. "I never do give up and I never would. It would be awful if no one cleaned up the city.

"Litter is a sore spot with me," she said. "I get mad at people when they don't clean up." Mrs. Womack participates in a Citizens Patrol for Litter. In the patrol, she watches for littered yards and lots that are eyesores to the public and reports them to city officials. The city officials in turn push to have the areas cleaned. "Don Davis (city manager) is good about pushing the clean-up efforts of the patrol," she said. "If we find something dirty, we stay on their backs until it's taken care of."

"You know the city and Garden Clubs can only do so much." Mrs. Womack is a member of Rosebud Garden Club and is active in the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs. The city, Chamber of Commerce and Key Club back the Garden Clubs in their efforts to clean the city and beautify it. Mrs. Womack commends the Key Club for cleaning out the "big spring" every year and mentions how people are constantly throwing trash and large objects into the spring. Once the Garden Clubs placed cement benches in Comanche Trail Park. The next day someone had thrown them into the Spring. "Someday I'd like to see Big Spring clean and beautiful," she said. "And it can be done if the people would just do it."

ALTHOUGH SHE IS upset at the destruction and vandalism of the Clubs' efforts, she enjoys thinking of ways they have beautified the area and how they plan to keep making Big Spring a nice place to live.

It was the Garden Clubs that spearheaded Mrs. Womack's efforts and dedication to clean up Big Spring. Mrs. Womack became involved with the Garden Clubs in 1942. "All my life, I arranged flowers and grew them. I loved growing plants. One of my girl-friends asked me to join the Rosebud Garden Club in 1942." Another friend talked her into becoming a master judge. It takes much studying to become a master judge, she said. Master judges are experts in the area of gardening and horticulture and they judge flower shows and give lectures. Mrs. Womack is interested in flower arranging and horticulture, she says, and speaks primarily on those topics in the West Texas area.

Mrs. Womack also is an international judge. By being an international judge, she can judge shows abroad. "That's the fun thing, judging in other places besides where you live. It's fun judging anywhere." Once she went to a flower show in Tokyo, Japan. "It was the prettiest place I've been in all my life. The Japanese perfect everything." She said they even perfect their floral and plant arrangements by wiring each individual stem so that it stands just right.

Along with the Garden Clubs, Mrs. Womack has canvassed the town to keep it free of litter and full of colorful plants and trees for years. Club members have cleared land at Cottonwood Park (formerly known as Roper Park), planted trees - many in memory of other people, and planted, cleaned and replanted the planters in the downtown area. "People will use them to deposit anything in including diapers," she said. At one time she and her Garden Club friends planted 14 Junipers downtown.

The Garden Clubs spent hours cleaning up Big Spring for the centennial celebration. As one of their centennial projects, they planted a Texas Star design of red, white and blue flowers in Comanche Trail Park. "It didn't last long though because of the vandalism there," Mrs. Womack said.

Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs and the city received numerous plaques for beautification efforts during the bicentennial year and in 1974 and 1975. The plaques were presented by President Gerald Ford, Mrs. Dolph (Janey) Briscoe and Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Next year club members plan to have a man from Snyder come and speak to them. Snyder was one of the cleanest cities in the United States once, Mrs. Womack said. They want to find out how the man did the task of cleaning up Snyder and try to do it here.

ANOTHER MAJOR project of the Garden Clubs that began this year is presenting scholarships in honor of Johnny Johansen. Johansen is a landscape architech and was active in city administration. He never is too busy to help the Garden Clubs with their projects and has contributed much effort to all city beautification projects, Mrs. Womack said. The scholarship will be awarded to students at Howard College who wish to study anything having to do with garden-related land management

The Garden Clubs foster education and primarily are concerned with environmentalism - water and soil conservation, air pollution and horticulture. They sponsor students for speech and essay contests each year with environmental topics. This year, Johnny Hatch was their contestant in speech contests. He advanced and won 2nd in the state competition and was the local clubs' first contestant to advance to state.

Projects are funded by the proceeds of their calendar, silk flower arrangement and plant sales and luncheons. "We spend every dime we make for beautification through the council and our own clubs," Mrs. Womack said.

"It is a real challenge to grow things here because of the climate," she said. The climate is too dry for most plants. "We planted 100 Slash Pines in Cottonwood Park. The city still goes down and mows it (the park). And we painted the barrels. It's no wonder they call Garden Club Women 'those little women in tennis shoes," she laughed.

Dear Abby Wife's dog is not problem

DEAR ABBY: Before I entered into my second marriage, I had a small dog. The dog is housebroken, does not get on the furniture, rai ely barks and is in no way destructive.

Now, after four years of marriage, my husband informed me that he has never liked dogs in the house, and he insists that the dog be put outside on a permanent basis. He issued an ultimatum - either the dog goes or he does.

Naturally, I am heartbroken over this. My husband gave no indication of his seemingly deep-rooted feelings prior to our marriage, or even during the time we have been married up to now.

We've always taken the dog on trips whenever possible, and it was so well-behaved that one hardly knew a dog was around

I am wondering whether to let my marriage go down the drain over a dog, or if I have to give up my beloved pet. My husband was well aware that I had an "inside dog" when he married nie. Please comment but don't use my name or city.

IN THE DOGHOUSE

DEAR IN: It strikes me as strange that your husband has lived upcomplainingly for four years with a dog in the house, and suddenly he's giving you an ultimatum - the dog or him.

If you really care for each other, you will get counseling and resolve the real problem.

I think your husband is using a four-legged animal as an excuse to take a two-legged walk.

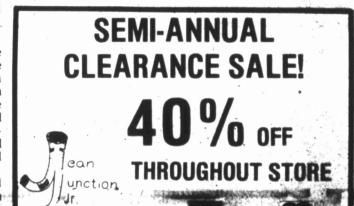

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago my husband, whom I loved very much, left me for another woman. I was heartbroken. I had a dear friend who was very supportive of me when I was going through this, but in my deep grief I couldn't stand to see her so happily married, so I told her that her husband had somebody else, too.

I'm sure she didn't believe me, but she didn't get mad at me, and it was never mentioned again. However, after that we drifted apart, and now we rarely see each other unless we meet accidentally on the street or in a store.

I am now happily married to a fine man and the lie I told keeps bothering me. I miss the friendship we used to have. This is really getting to me. Should I break down and tell her the truth? Or just try to start the friendship all over again and not mention it?

SORRY DEAR SORRY: If you want to revive the friendship, tell her the truth, apologize and clear the air.

- A. Nothing.
- Q. How does one register?
- A. By going to one's favorite store's Bridal Registry and filling out a form similar to the one shown in this booklet. As gifts are purchased for you the store will record them on your form.
- Q. When should I register?
- As soon as possible. A minimum of 3 to 4 months before the wedding.
- O. What if I don't know what I want yet?
- A. A store bridal consultant will help you. She will show you patterns, color schemes and styles and make suggestions and give you the advice you need.
- Q. Do I have to register everything at once?
- A. No. The consultants in these stores would like to see you come back for several visits. They advise you to take your time choosing the things and the patterns you plan to live with.
- Q. How do I let people know where I am registered?
- A. Many people will ask your mother, relatives or close friends what you need. Have them spread the word.
- O. Is it a lot of trouble to register?
- A. Not at all. Remember the time you take to register and select your gift will save you endless time returning gifts. What's more, you will receive gifts you want and need, items you have selected rather than ones you hate and have to go through the trouble of returning.

Dr. Donohue

Be alert to hot-weather injuries

Dear Dr. Donohue: We were having a normal softball game, but the temperature got pretty hot, and I, being the superstar, was, of course, putting on a show. Then suddenly I felt weak and really began sweating, more than you'd expect normally. I felt nauseous and chilly at the same time. Was this heat exhaustion or heat stroke, or what? What is the best treatment in such cases, as I imagine it happens to others? - J.H.

Yes, indeed, J.H., hot weather is a danger to the health of active people in certain situations. Whenever you exercise in hot weather, you are creating a new problem for your body. It has not only the heat from normal organ and other activity, but the new load presented by the overworking muscles. They are generating a lot of heat by themselves. You can make more than a thousand calories of heat for every hour your exercise, and more if you are the superstar, I would imagine. To get rid of this heat, the body opens circulation to the skin. There, the warm blood loses its heat to the cooler air. Then you sweat and evaporation of that sweat takes away more of the internal heat being generated.

However, when it is hot and humid, neither of these biological tricks works. I would bet a small sum that your episode occurred in this kind of weather. Am I right? In such a setting the scene is set for heat injury.

The least serious injury is muscle cramping. When this happens, get to a cool place and drink all the water you can comfortably. Then rest for 12 hours.

A more serious injury is heat exhaustion. You feel weak and sweat copiously (sounds like what you had). You may be nauseated. Your skin gets pale, cool and moist. Again, the thing to do is to cool yourself promptly. Sponge in a bath of cool water. Drink plenty of fluids. After this, you have to rest - for up to two or three days. Your body has been put through quite an ordeal in heat exhaustion.

The most serious injury from heat is heat stroke. This is a true medical emergency. The person may be disoriented, incoherent and his skin gets hot and unusually dry. Sweating most often actually stops. Body temperature gets quite high.

This lesson in all of this, of course, is to be on guard against heat injuries. Don't continue to play any sport when you start felling woozy.

Focus on the family

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Sun., June 17, 1982 7-C

By NINA MAHON County Extension Agent H.E.

Credit is so common today that almost everyone uses it in some form. Have you ever borrowed money from a friend or neighbor? Do you use electricity? Do you have a telephone?

If you said "yes" to any of these questions, you have used credit. You probably have spent money you borrowed. from a friend and paid it back later. You use electricity or a telephone in your home before you pay the company for its use. These are all examples of credit.

Credit is a service that allws you to use and enjoy the things you need or want today by promising to pay for them later.

Credit is offered by stores and other businesses. It gives customers the privilege to "buy now-pay later." Businesses may say you can "charge it," "finance it," and have a presently a special fragment of the second second

"buy on time" or "use a payment plan." It is all credit. No matter what it is called, it is important for everyone to understand what it means to use credit. When you use credit, you promise that you will use future income to pay for goods, services, or money that you have the use of now. You are responsible for having the money to pay when you should. But you make other promises too, when you use credit.

When using credit, you have these responsibilities:

+To pay back the amount of money you borrow or the cost of what you are buying, PLUS an additional charge for the use of the money or for the time you take to repay. (Sometimes, if you repay all of what you owe within 30 days you may not have to pay any additional charges.)

Almost everyone uses credit

+To pay all of the money you owe, regardless of personal crises or unexpected situations.

+To make your payments on time. If you are late with a payment, you may be asked to pay all the money you owe immediately

+To not sell items you are buying until ALL payments are made. You can use the item, but it still belongs to the seller. +To give back what you are buying if you cannot finish paying for it.

You will lose the money you have already paid. You may even have to pay MORE money if the creditor is not able to sell the item for the amount you still owe on it.

+To be responsible for any damage done to what you have bought on credit if you must return it. Before using credit, you should be sure you can meet these responsibilities.

Wedding

MRS. CURTIS LEE BAILEY ...formerly Lisa Ann Martin

Martin-Bailey

Bailey are on a trip to San Diego, Calif. following their garden wedding Friday evening in the home of the bride's parents. The bride is the former Lisa Ann Martin of Ackerly. The Rev. Roy Havens, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Ackerly and the Rev. Marvin Gregory, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Clyde, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Martin Jr. of Ackerly. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bailey of Pagosa Springs, Colo.

Vows, written individually by the bride and bridegroom, were exchanged before a white gazebo covered with airy white silk flowers and greenery. On each side of the gazebo were two baskets of fresh white daisies. Flanking the baskets were two candelabra decorated with greenery, white silk flowers and white candles. The aisle was designated by a white picket fence entwined with fresh green ivy. The ranchstyle fence was decorated with white lace and yellow and white gingham bows. Lace and gingham bows also were used to decorate the trees and many fresh plants were used in the wedding area.

Kim Colwell of Lubbock

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Lee were bridesmaids. Ramsi Watkins of Roswell, N.M., cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Reed Criswell of Abilene was best man. Groomsmen were Kendon Wheeler of Waco, Ron Colwell of Dalhart and David Lange of Lubbock. Dustin Gaskins of Knott, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer. Telling children about divorce a COLLEGE STATION Parents can help their children deal with divorce, one of the most traumatic events in a child's life, second ridy to death, says Dorthy Taylor, a family life education specialist.

Taylor explains that there are three important steps in helping a child through these times

1) Understand that divorce does impact children,

2) Choose a "least stressful" time to tell them, and 3) Guide and assure children through the period after the divorce.

Taylor is with the Home Economics Program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System

For children, divorce, like death, is the "loss" of a loved one except the parent is not dead -- just gone, Taylor explains.

Research suggests that the really difficult part for voungsters, however, is the conflict surrounding a divorce, not the divorce itself, she savs.

Once parents understand how divorce affects children, the next important step is choosing the best time to tell them about it in the least damaging way, the specialist

Thoughtful planning for this step will set a "coping" direction for the adjustment period to follow, Taylor adds. Here are her suggestions:

Make sure the divorce is certain before you even think following that "final, ferocious" quarrel.

Berth - A real and war and a - 3 . 1.

When the time comes to tell the children, it is best for both parents to tell them. At this point, tell the children immediately so they will not feel left gut - or be told by outsiders

Tell the truth - evasions and half truths only return to haunt both parents and children.

Recognize that emotional disturbances, such as fidgeting, restlessness, withdrawal, thumb sucking, bed wetting or excessive crying may be your child's response to the tension associated with divorce.

Difficult as it may be, the explanation should come from both parents, if possible.

Words come hard, but tell the child in a manner appropriate for his age and level of understanding.

Above all else, help the child understand that he did not cause the divorce - many children suffer tremendous feelings of guilt thinking they have somehow caused their parents' divorce.

When children plea for a reunited family, don't confuse the issue with long explanations about how the other parent is "wrong" or "no good." This only forces children to "take sides." And in the long run, this hurts a child. Children need both parents.

Finally, remember just as a widow is apt to exaggerate the dead spouse's virtues, divorced persons tend to magnify the other partner's faults, Taylor notes.

Dine with the traditions of Tell City.

Traditions are a big part of Tell City. They include a fine-furniture tradition, based on more than a century of furniture crafting. The traditional Andover maple finish is practically a classic. Warm and mellow, an enduring favorite for both the way it looks and the way it wears. Tell City design, of course, is a tradition that goes back to very Early America. Carefully researched to preserve the original spirit, it is tastefully adapted to the homes and needs of Americans today. These designs have become a tradition with many families. Being open stock, they let you choose exactly what you want and add to it in the future. See Tell City. See how easily you can start your own family tradition.

How to decide when it is time to diet by using weight charts as guides

Ideal weight charts are good j guides in determining a range of weight for healthy people, but as averages they cannot reflect individual differences in body build, body composition, metabolism, or physical condition.

Plumpness is no longer considered a sign of prosperity in our society, and being overweight has become something of a drawback. More important, recent studies indicate it just isn't healthy to be overweight. It is widely accepted that being overweight increases your risk of developing diseases such as diabetes, hypertension and heart disease.

One of the ways to determine if you are overweight is to try a 'pinch test.'' Gently pinch the loose skin on the back of your upper arm and at your waist. If you pinch more than inch, you are probably somewhat overweight.

Also, your stamina and general health are indications.

And you can use those ideal weight charts, imprecise though they are, to check if you are overweight. Most doctors agree that if you weigh up to 20 percent more than the maximum for your height and frame, you're overweight. If you weigh 24 percent more than the maximum, you're considered obese.

Jules Hirsch, M.D. and expert on obesity states, "I like to tell people that their ideal weight is their weight at the end of long bone growth — when they were 18 or 20 vears old, assuming they weren't overweight at that time. If you do decide to diet, it is advised that you do it gradually and systematically. Women should not go on diets when they are pregnant, have emotional difficulties or ill. Exercise is a very important part of dieting. Dr. Hirsch notes, "Exercise not only can burn up excess calories, but, contrary to popular belief, actually helps lower your appetite.

Dark tan it can age you fast

Don't fall for the Madison Avenue pitch that deep, dark tans make people young, healthy and vigorous. Not so, says a Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine dermatologist.

"We live in a sun worshipping society, where deeply tanned people are admired and regarded as healthy," said Stephen Kessler, D.O. "In reality, deep tans wrinkle and age the skin before its time nd present the threat of skin cancer." And, of course, sun can burn. Dr. Kessler's advice is to wear a sunscreen lotion (the best available is marked SPF 15) if the skin hasn't been exposed to sun for a while. Continue to wear the sunscreen over a period of weeks until the skin tans. Then the tan will be a protection from normal summer sun exposure. The TCOM faculty member urged the use of History of Silverplate Are you lucky enough to have received some silverplated items as wedding presents? Treasure them. Silverplating dates back to the early nineteenth century, when it was the technique used on religious icons in the Russian Orthodox Church. During the Victorian era, it was the choice of royalty. Today silver-plating involves bonding pure silver onto a base metal, which serves as the strengthener. Here at the ACCENT SHOPPE, we consider silverplate the affordable alternative to silver perfect for all your entertaining purposes.
