New Big Spring police chief hired

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring's new chief of police will be a 34-year-old man with 11½ years experience in law enforcement, four as Richland Hills police chief, and who has been employed with Daniel Construction Co. in Borger for the past year, City Manager Don Davis announced today.

Richard (Rick) A. Turner accepted the position last Friday and will begin work with a $31,500 salary on Monday, July 26, Davis said. He will fill the office vacated last April by former Chief of Police Elwood Hoherz.

Turner's police experience includes employment as an officer at the Nacogdoches police department, employment at the Madison County sheriff's office, five years as patrol sergeant at the Huntsville police department and four years as Richland Hills police chief. Turner left the Richland Hills department in 1981. He and his wife Kathy live in Borger.

Davis said he interviewed four of the 52 applicants for the position, including some "local folks."

Turner holds a Bachelor of Science degree in law enforcement from Sam Houston State University and has recently submitted his master's degree thesis to SHSU.

Davis said Turner was especially successful with "community involvement" in Richland Hills and initiated programs such as Neighborhood Watch.

"I think Rick brings with him a high level of formal education, a high level of integrity and a great degree of proficiency. I think under his guidance we will be able to initiate...create...some innovations in the (police) department," Davis said.

He added that Turner is a "progressive administrator...a creative individual" and "has a very dynamic personality."

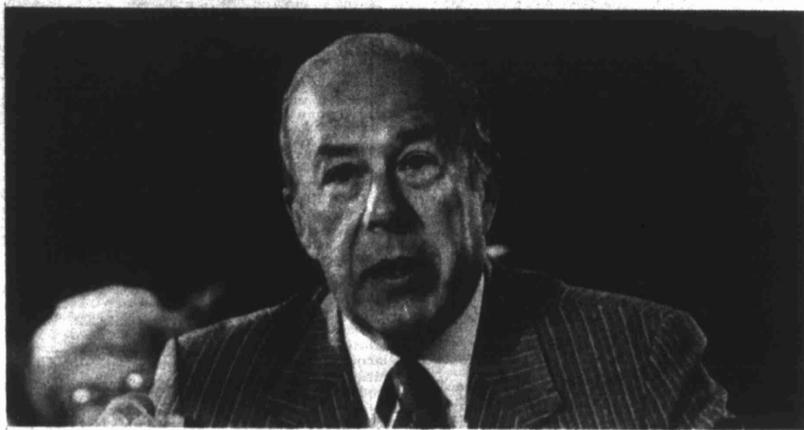

The Richland Hills department was in "a great deal of turmoil" when Turner "went in and turned it into one of the better departments in Tarrant County," Davis said.

Turner's relatively young age does not reflect on the job he will do, Davis said, because he "will be able to relate well to the younger officers and with his training and experience will relate well with older officers, too.

"The only thing that bothered me is that I couldn't find anything wrong with him," Davis added.

Commenting on Lt. Bob Dugan's performance as acting police chief, Davis said, "I think Bob did a good job while serving over there. And we are proud to say Bob is doing well now...we are hoping he has a speedy recovery and are anxiously awaiting his return to the department."

Dugan said today that he was hospitalized last week after suffering a mild heart attack and that it "should probably be tomorrow morning" before he is dismissed from Malone-Hogan. He added that he is looking forward to returning to work, but it would be "several weeks anyway" before he is able to do so.

APPEARANCE AT HEARINGS—Secretary of State-designate George Shultz begins his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday on Capitol Hill in Washington. Shultz told the panel that he would not rule out dealing with the PLO.

Shultz raises possibility of direct dealings with PLO

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Calling for a "strategy of confidence" in dealings with the Soviet Union, Secretary of State-designate George F. Shultz said today the United States should neither seek confrontation with the Soviets nor shrink from criticizing them.

"I think we should make it clear that, depending on Soviet behavior and how they conduct themselves, we are prepared to have as constructive and beneficial a relationship as possible," Shultz told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the second day of his confirmation hearings.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., the committee chairman, said he planned a vote later in the day, and it appeared virtually certain the panel would recommend confirmation by the full Senate.

Assistant Republican Leader Ted Stevens of Alaska said the Senate would act quickly, possibly by Thursday.

Shultz, a former secretary of labor and treasury in the Nixon administration, was nominated by President Reagan after Alexander M. Haig Jr. resigned from his State Department post over policy differences that have not been fully explained.

Describing his view of U.S.-Soviet relations, Shultz said, "It should be not a strategy of aggression, not a strategy of confrontation, but a strategy of confidence, strength and realism about what they are trying to do."

"If we identify a pattern of behavior we think is wrong, we should say so," he said. "We don't need to be flamboyant about it, but we should be clear."

"We should not get ourselves in a position of fearing to say what is reality because it might bother somebody," he said.

On another issue, Shultz said he opposes setting a date for the termination of arms sales to Taiwan.

Haig, in one of his last acts as secretary, submitted language to the White House for a joint communique with China to settle the dispute over arms sales to Taiwan. Conservatives have charged that the one of the alternatives submitted by Haig declared that the sales "will eventually be terminated."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a strong supporter of Taiwan, asked Shultz if he favored continued arms sales to Taiwan with no cutoff date.

"Yes, sir," Shultz replied.

Goldwater is not a member of the Foreign Relations panel, but was invited to sit in. He is chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

On Tuesday, Shultz said the United States should deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization only if it "becomes something other than the PLO we have known."

City council hears pitch for funds to boost tourism

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

In a presentation designed to prelude a Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce request for an increased share of a motel-hotel tax used by the city and chamber, chamber member Richard Atkins told the city council last night that the chamber is "telling the West Texas story and getting people to come, and stay, in Big Spring."

According to City Manager Don Davis, the chamber's Convention and Tourist Development Committee plans to ask the council at a future meeting for more of the funds generated by the four percent motel-hotel tax. The increased share of the funds will be used to expand that committee's activities.

Council members last night were given a slide presentation reviewing the financial expenditures and the effectiveness of the Convention and Tourist Development Committee over the past year. The presentation and slide show were given by Atkins and chamber Executive Director LeRoy Atkins.

The four percent tax is spent by the city and chamber according to strict guidelines set by the Texas Legislature, according to Davis. The city uses the funds for maintenance of the city auditorium, Dora Roberts Community Center, amphitheater, Heritage Museum, Pottion House and the historic spring. The chamber's share is used for advertising, recruiting of conventions and soliciting tourism.

Atkins said the committee has distributed throughout Texas 30,000 pieces of literature promoting Big Spring's attractions in only nine months. Capital also has been expended for an exhibit module and three slide presentations that may be set up at various conventions and meetings to promote Big Spring as a convention and tourist spot, Atkins said.

The funds are "viewed as seed money" enabling the chamber to help an organization start an event and enable it to sustain "that event on its own," Atkins said.

Atkins pointed out that "tourism is now the number one industry in Texas. We're only second in the nation behind California... for every five people we get to stay, times 365 days in the year — that's equal to an industry with a $100,000 payroll."

Councilman Larry Miller questioned the effectiveness of the committee. "When you say this, this is great... but I've heard a lot of businessmen say to me... that only three businesses gain from (conventions) — motels, gas and restaurants."

Atkins explained that there is a "multiplier effect... by the time (the money) gets through turning over" the money generated by a convention is multiplied by seven. "Before the first turnover, yes, I'll agree with you there. But then, that's not counting retail sales."

In other business, the council awarded a bid for protective clothing for city firefighters. The Texas Legislature mandated minimum specifications for fire equipment that will become effective January 1, 1983.

The total bid for 51 coats, trousers and helmets was awarded for $15,020.50 to Fire Appliance Co. of Texas out of Wichita Falls. This figure is below the budgeted $18,000.

The council also honored city building inspector Dewey Byers with a proclamation citing 30 years of service to the city. Byers began working on the city survey crew in 1952 and became building inspector in 1963.

Additionally, the council granted 74-year-old Mrs. Evelyn Barnard's request for a mobile home permit at 1207 E. Sixth.

Israelis stage mock raids

By The Associated Press

Israel jets roared over Beirut today in mock divebombing raids on the Palestine Liberation Organization's retreats, and U.S. and Lebanese mediators tried to break a deadlock on how and where to evacuate the PLO guerrillas.

Palestinian gunners fired anti-aircraft barrages as waves of low-flying warplanes swooped over Yasser Arafat's encircled enclaves in a fresh reminder of the massive Israeli invasion force poised outside west Beirut.

Israel has threatened to storm the guerrilla-held area unless the PLO leaves Lebanon.

But there were no bombing runs reported in the first mock air assaults on the Lebanese capital in a week, and a U.S.-sponsored cease-fire generally was holding.

The mock raids came a day after PLO and Lebanese sources said Arafat would order his 8,000 fighters cornered in west Beirut to surrender their heavy weapons and evacuate by sea under U.S. 6th Fleet escort if Washington recognizes his guerrilla group.

U.S. agreement to this demand would be a stunning setback for Israel and a triumph for the PLO, which has teetered on military defeat since Israel launched its massive invasion of Lebanon June 6 to crush the guerrillas.

The United States has refused to recognize the PLO until it accepts

Israel's right to exist.

Despite the latest cease-fire declared Sunday, the PLO and Israel accused each other of minor violations. The military command in Tel Aviv said six Israeli soldiers were ambushed and wounded late Tuesday in a hail of bazooka and light arms fire near the town of Aley, nine miles southeast of Beirut.

A PLO communique said guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese allies penetrated Israeli positions Tuesday night, lobbed grenades, killed or wounded 15 Israeli soldiers, wrecked one tank and destroyed an armored troop carrier.

The rightist "Voice of Lebanon" radio station in Christian-controlled east Beirut said Israeli helicopter gunships chased the ambushers into pine woods forests overlooking Aley, but did not mention casualties.

Bad check, good horse spells a repossession

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Probably everyone has heard of cars being repossessed, but a registered quarter horse?

Buster McCartney, special investigator in the Howard County district attorney's office, did "repo" a horse yesterday after the office received information a bad check was used to buy the horse.

McCartney said the horse had been purchased with a bad check June 26 at a horse auction. Since bad checks over $200 are felonies prosecuted through the district attorney's office, he went out to impound the horse.

The special investigator said an arrest warrant probably would not be issued in this case since the horse will be returned (returning merchandise bought with a bad check does not, however, mean the check passer always can avoid prosecution).

McCartney said the animal was resting comfortably and would be returned to its owner.

Ailing infant almost survived

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

To look at a picture of 21-month-old JaCoby Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bishop of Sand Springs, one would have never thought the smiling, healthy infant was suffering from a rare liver disease.

Since his sixth month of life JaCoby had been battling a genetic ailment which caused an abnormal amount of sugar to be stored in his liver and colon. He only hope was to have a liver transplant that would give him a chance to live; however time ran out on young JaCoby before a compatible donor could be found. He died Tuesday at a local hospital as the disease was just too strong for such a small boy.

JaCoby's parents had just moved to Sand Springs this week and his father, Gary, was to begin work with The Herald July 15. But JaCoby's story began in Bryan in 1981 when he was diagnosed as having glycogen storage disease type IV.

The doctors said the youngster would never crawl, walk or talk, but he made them eat their words in January 1981 when he took his first steps at age 16 months. And he learned to talk two months later.

He was doing so well doctors postponed a liver transplant, which they considered to be his only real hope. However, the disease began to take its toll this March and after tests, arrangements were made with a Pittsburgh hospital for a transplant.

JaCoby's operation was scheduled whenever a donor became available, but his strength ran out before a suitable match could be found.

JaCoby was well loved in the Bryan area as funds had been set up to help with the family's medical expenses. Jet transportation to get him to the Pittsburgh hospital whenever a donor

Local blood drive scheduled Saturday

A blood drive was held at Emmanuel Baptist Church, located at 22nd and nan-caster yesterday evening for Geneva Reaves, a local cancer patient.

Reaves has been in isolation at Malone-Hogan Hospital since July 8 due to her vulnerability to infection caused by chemotherapy. After Mrs. Reaves is released from Malone-Hogan Hospital and is able, she will travel to M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston where she will be put in isolation for eight weeks.

"We are doing it (the blood drive) because we love her," said David Womack, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church. The blood gathered from the drive will be used to replace the blood Mrs. Reaves uses at M.D. Anderson Hospital.

The United Blood Service in San Angelo will perform the drive. Those wishing to donate blood for Mrs. Reaves may do so at the Big Spring Mall, Saturday or at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center on any Monday. If you want Mrs. Reaves to receive your donation please request it when donating blood.

State school ordered to not release teen

DALLAS (AP) — Officials at a state school for the mentally retarded have been ordered to stop releasing a Dallas boy suspected of sexually attacking at least seven girls while on leave from the school.

Family court Judge Pat McClung on Tuesday prohibited the Fort Worth State School from allowing the boy, 16, to leave the school grounds or visit his home "for any reason."

The boy "is a danger to himself or others," McClung said.

McClung said he hoped the order would show school officials "the glaring deficiencies in their programmatic approach to this child."

A hearing in the case is set for July 21.

School spokeswoman Brenda Witt said the school had not received copies of the court order by this morning.

She said she could not comment on that specific case because doing so would violate his privacy. She said the school runs a program for mentally retarded juveniles accused of violent crimes, and that these youths also were allowed to go home because "this is a rehabilitation facility, not a prison."

"They usually have been accused, but not convicted of anything," she said.

The boy involved in the court order was referred to juvenile authorities in 1979 when he was suspected of rape and sexual molestation. In November 1979 he was diagnosed as mentally retarded, and was committed to the Fort Worth school a month later.

Court records show that the boy was suspected in two sex offenses on April 1, 1980 and May 10, 1981, while he was on leave from the school.

After these alleged attacks, Dallas County prosecutors sought a court order barring the boy's release, but the case was settled in October when school officials agreed not to let the boy go without notifying the judge and prosecutors in advance.

Victims of three rapes and two attempted rapes here identified the boy Monday from a photographic lineup, police records show. The attacks allegedly took place on June 26 and 27, and July 10 and 11. The girls were 10, 11, 12, 13 and 16 years old, assistant District Attorney Hal Gaitheer said.

Gail rancher on U.S. tour

Robert Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rich Anderson of Gail, recently was selected by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association to attend a Young Cattleman's Leadership Conference, July 18-23.

The conference is sponsored by the National Cattleman's Association.

Anderson will join 23 other young men across the nation in Denver on July 18 for the beginning of a tour that will take them across the nation to Chicago, Indianapolis and Washington D.C.

The group will visit the Denver NCA offices, the automated beef box operations in Montford, Colo., and the research facilities of Elanco Products Co. in Indiana. A specially scheduled two-day visit to Washington will allow the men to visit with their local congressmen.

The conference is designed to assist in the development of future leaders of the beef industry and to give the young men a chance to participate in issues facing the industry.

Mitchell JP decision looms

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County commissioners have set the wheels in motion for naming a new justice of the peace precinct one.

At a meeting Monday night, Judge Bill Carter explained applications for the position will be taken until July 23 and interviews will begin July 27.

In other business, a budget workshop was set for 1 p.m. July 20, the budget for the Mitchell County Tax Appraisal District was approved, and two tractors were bought from the lowest bidder, Costin Implement Co., at costs of $11,800 and $24,800.

In final action, election judges for the August biogen election and November general election were picked: Murrell Blasingame, precinct one; Doug Barber, precinct two; J.M. Munoz, precinct three; Mrs. Royce Beights, precinct four and Billie Ruffin, precinct seven.

Appointed absentee judges were Bob Ratliff and Bob Reily.

C-City flag corp wins

Shultz

Sources in the Middle East indicated that PLO leader Yasser Arafat was seeking recognition by the United States as his price for leaving Lebanon.

Shultz told the committee he shares the U.S. commitment to the security of Israel, but also believes that stronger ties with the Arabs are needed.

In his opening statement, Shultz said the plight of the Palestinians is "a central reality of the Middle East," and "the Palestinians themselves must participate in the negotiating process" to resolve it.

Asked whether this meant that he favored negotiating with the PLO, Shultz said, "If the PLO changes and becomes something other than the PLO as we have known it... certainly it is something that ought to be considered."

Shultz said he would not favor dealing with the PLO unless it forswears terrorism, recognizes Israel's right to exist and accepts two United Nations resolutions calling for Israel to swap territories it captured in 1967 for Arab recognition and secure borders.

The PLO has never explicitly recognized Israel's right to exist or accepted the two resolutions, which speak of the Palestinians as "refugees."

U.S. policy has prohibited negotiations between the United States and the PLO since 1974.

"I don't prejudge the question of who should be representing the Palestinians except to say that it should be what I think of as legitimate representation, that is, somehow stemming from the Palestinians themselves," Shultz said.

He said that if the PLO "got off this guerrilla kick, they are one voice of the Palestinian people. Whether they would be 'the' voice is another question."

Lebanese and Palestinian sources, who asked not to be identified, said Arafat was demanding recognition as a condition of abandoning Beirut by sea under escort of the U.S. 6th fleet.

Shultz said he supports Reagan's agreement in principle to send up to 1,000 Marines to help with the evacuation, provided it can be done "properly and safely."

It could save a lot of lives in Beirut... there is a lot to gain if it can be brought off," he said.

The PLO forces are surrounded and outnumbered by Israeli troops that invaded Lebanon to drive them out.

To help achieve a lasting Middle East peace, Shultz said, the Arab nations "need to feel there is some give on the part of Israel" on the question of Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank and Gaza.

There is a "perception in the Arab world" that the return of the Sinai to Egypt was done at the expense of the Palestinians in the other occupied territories, he said.

Asked about an interview in which Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon spoke of settling 70,000 Israelis on the West Bank in the next few years, he said, "It would be certain to set back the effort to deal properly with Palestinian needs."

'Hostage' cat back with owner but dispute is still unsettled

DICKINSON, Texas (AP) — A cat held "prisoner" for a month spent his first day at home since the surgery that left his owner and a veterinarian feuding over the bill.

"He's fine, he's purring," said Sharelle Overton, 19, who won back her cat, Tobias, at a 2 1/2-hour trial Tuesday. The orange-and-white feline attended the proceeding but seemed restless in his carrying cage, scratching against the door and crying.

The veterinarian who yielded the cat rejected a cash offer of $125 from Miss Overton to settle an unpaid surgery bill for the cat's operation.

Instead, Dr. Ron Ludwig told his attorney he wants to sue to collect the $275 bill and possibly more for boarding, post-operative care and attorneys' fees.

"Whatever happens, that's fine," said Miss Overton as she hugged her cat outside Justice of the Peace William T. Fuhrhop's court in this community south of Houston. "I've got my cat back, and that's all I care about."

Miss Overton filed the lawsuit against Ludwig last month, when the veterinarian refused to return Tobias because Miss Overton had not paid the $275 he demanded for emergency surgery to remove some fishing line the cat had swallowed.

"It is the judgment of this court that Tobias the cat be returned to its owner at this time," ruled Fuhrhop at the close of Tuesday's hearing.

The obviously healthy cat purred after Miss Overton took him from the cage and hugged him.

The controversy began last month when Miss Overton and four friends picketed Ludwig's clinic in nearby League City, Texas.

Ludwig testified he agreed to perform the surgery for an unspecified fee — with the operation itself costing $125 but not including medicine, X-rays and hospitalization.

Miss Overton contended Ludwig agreed to do the operation for no more than $125 but then demanded the higher price when she came to get Tobias on June 12.

It was revealed during Tuesday's hearing that Tobias had been held "prisoner" at a veterinary clinic in Houston, 45 miles away, owned by a friend of Ludwig's.

Fourteen cab drivers in Topeka, Kan., who read about the controversy in a newspaper sent a $275 check to Ludwig's lawyer hoping to free the cat. Ludwig's attorney, Rusty Verkin, said after Tuesday's hearing he would send the check back to the cabbies.

Seven people shot, one killed by sniper

LIVE OAK, Texas (AP) — A gunman shot seven people, killing one, authorities said.

Mayor Ralph Cullen said at least five, possibly seven, people were shot and one died.

Universal City police dispatcher Donna Dunn said seven people were shot in an apartment. She said the person who fired the shots was not a sniper.

The person who fired the shots was trapped in one of two houses in an area of apartments but no contact had been made with the person, who was believed to be a man, the mayor said.

State, county and local police converged on the scene.

Police Beat

Police said they arrested a 16-year-old male at 6:54 p.m. yesterday in connection with the burglary of a Michael Street residence last weekend. The arrest was made at Edwards and Gregg, according to juvenile officer Pat Dunham.

Gladas Johnson of 109 N.W. 12th told police that at 12:30 a.m. yesterday a man known to her removed a cassette player-radio from a Mercury Monterey parked at the T-Club parking lot on N.W. Fourth.

Someone stole a 55-gallon drum of grease from a Wommack Grease Service truck parked behind Jo-Boy's Restaurant, 1810 Gregg, according to police.

Jerry Hughes of 2521 Gunter reported to police that between 6 p.m. Monday and 9 a.m. yesterday someone knocked out the windshield and dented the right passenger door of his Toyota pickup truck parked at Hugh's Trading Post, 2000 W. Third and causing approximately $500 damage.

A Chevrolet Bel-Air driven by Norma J. Childs of 3305 Maple and a Ford Bronco driven by Rory D. Wortham of 2604 Cindy collided at West Highway 80 and F.M. 700 at 1:48 p.m. yesterday, according to police. No serious injuries were reported.

A Toyota Corolla driven by Charlotte B. Norman of 2004 N. Monticello and a Pontiac Grand Prix driven by Pamela J. Allen of 1907 N. Monticello collided in the 2000 block of N. Monticello at 3:40 p.m. yesterday, police said. Police said they ticketed Mrs. Norman for backing without safety.

A Ford pickup truck driven by Robert L. McCullough of Route 3 Box 124 and an Olds station wagon driven by Reynaldo G. Flores of 508 N.E. Eighth collided at South Gregg and West Second at 12:04 p.m. yesterday, police said. Police said they ticketed Flores for disregarding a red light. No injuries were reported.

Iran deploys its troops to 'liberate' Iraq

By The Associated Press
Iranian forces invaded Iraq and captured hundreds of Iraqi soldiers in a fierce drive to topple the regime of President Saddam Hussein, Tehran radio claimed today.

The official Iranian broadcasts, monitored in London, did not elaborate on the invasion reports, which could not be independently verified because both sides bar correspondents from the war front.

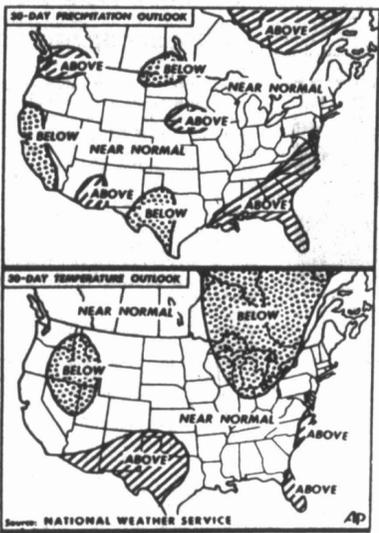

In an Arabic-language broadcast, Tehran radio claimed that hundreds of Iraqi soldiers had been captured in the offensive it said began Tuesday night.

They said Iraq's army "halted the enemy's advance on Basra sector ... and then launched its counterattack while the Iranian forces were retreating leaving behind large numbers of dead and wounded."

Canadian Press, in a dispatch from Tehran, said the communique reported heavy fighting in Iran's oil-rich southwestern province of Khuzistan, but did not give the precise location.

The news agency quoted the communique as saying Iranian troops would use the "liberation of Iraq" as a step toward their goal of freeing Jerusalem "from the claws of the aggressive, criminal (Israeli) Zionism."

Weather

Thunderstorms hit Panhandle

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms were scattered from southern Iowa to the Texas Panhandle and continued over Nebraska and Colorado today. Rain also fell in Wisconsin, Montana, Idaho and Illinois.

Storms also were widely scattered from Florida to Virginia. Fair skies covered much of the southern Plains, the Southwest, the Dakotas and a band from New England to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Cloudy skies covered the northern Pacific Coast. A 73-year-old man was killed when his car ran off an Independence, Mo., road in heavy rain and struck a utility pole. Communities around Kansas City, Mo., were pelted Tuesday with golfball-size hail and winds of up to 40 mph.

Slow-moving thunderstorms dumped heavy rains and hail on eastern Nebraska, downing a powerline in Petersburg and prompting a flash flood warning as Shell Creek spilled out of its banks.

Highs in upper 60s were expected along the Pacific Coast and much of the Pacific Northwest, while temperatures in the 70s were forecast from northern Minnesota to northern New England.

Plane almost filled to capacity

Violent winds cause of crash?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Pan Am jet crash that killed 154 people probably was caused by a combination of violent winds and an almost capacity load of passengers, baggage and fuel, a New Orleans newspaper reported today.

A National Transportation Board spokesman, Brad Dunbar, said, "We don't comment on that sort of thing," when asked about the copyright story in The Times-Picayune, The States-Item.

The story quoted unidentified federal investigators. Pan Am Flight 759 crashed Friday afternoon shortly after takeoff from New Orleans International Airport in a torrential rainstorm on a flight from Miami to San Diego, via New Orleans and Las Vegas.

The death toll aboard the plane was 146, including an unborn 7-month-old fetus added Tuesday by the Jefferson Parish coroner. Eight people on the ground died when the Boeing 727-200 slammed into Kenner in suburban New Orleans, destroying or heavily damaging more than a dozen homes in the second-worst U.S. air accident.

The first three lawsuits in the crash were filed Tuesday, asking for a total of $88.5 million.

The suits included a $15 million judgment sought by Gabriel Trahan Jr., whose wife and 4-year-old daughter died when the plane reduced their home to rubble. Trahan's 16-month-old daughter, dubbed the "miracle baby," was found alive in the smoldering ruins.

Trahan's suit named Pan American World Airways, Boeing Corp., the Federal Aviation Administration and their insurers as defendants, accusing them of "ignoring the obvious danger in taking off under extreme weather conditions."

The Times-Picayune, The States-Item quoted unidentified investigators as saying violent changes in wind speed and direction known as wind shear, and a payload of nearly 172,000 pounds — the flight's listed capacity — probably caused the crash.

The NTSB says two wind shear advisories were broadcast shortly before the jet took off, and noted the crew decides whether to depart.

"A pilot who elects to take off despite wind-shear warnings can, as a precaution, build up greater speed and climb at a shallower angle than normal," the newspaper said.

"An investigator said Tuesday that Flight 759's payload, though not exceeding the legal maximum, was so heavy it might have impeded lift-off in adverse conditions," the newspaper said.

There was no evidence of human error in the control tower, the newspaper also quoted investigators as saying. It quoted Dunbar as saying no trace of alcohol or drugs was found in the bodies of crew members.

NTSB officials have refused to speculate on the cause and refused to reveal contents of cockpit tapes until transcripts are released.

On Monday, investigators discovered the Pan Am cockpit tape was of such poor quality that FBI specialists had CLEAN-UP CONTINUES—National Guard and civilian bulldozers push what was once a home into a pile for removal Monday in Kenner, La. The clean-up operations continued today as the investigation into the cause of the crash revealed that violent weather may be to blame to help enhance them.

The NTSB suggested Tuesday that many cockpit voice recorders in use aboard commercial aircraft should be replaced because they are technologically outdated.

The agency also suggested the FAA conduct random checks to learn whether recorders are working properly.

The board said the cockpit tape contains "background conversations which apparently came from the machine's failure to erase previous conversations ... sufficiently."

Meanwhile, a funeral service was scheduled for today in nearby Metairie for the wife and three young sons of Robert Giancontieri.

Sandy Giancontieri and her sons Robbie, 7; Ryan, 4, and Christopher, 4 months, were killed when Flight 759 slashed through their home. Still in the window of the Giancontieri home had been a sign — "It's a boy!" — placed there after Christopher's birth.

At a briefing Tuesday night, NTSB Vice Chairwoman Patricia Goldman said investigators would mount "cherry pickers" today to examine trees clipped by the jet as it took off toward the east from the airport's east-west runway. Investigators hoped to determine the angle of the plane's descent, she said.

Reagan policy challenged

Lawyers say Haitians could be free in days

By JOHN-TOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Some of the 1,800 Haitians held behind wire and locked gates may be free before the end of the week, according to the attorneys who successfully challenged the Reagan administration's detention policy.

"They should start leaving within the next several days, and certainly in the course of the next two weeks," said Ira Kurzban of the Haitian Refugee Center Inc.

A more cautious prediction was made Tuesday by Beverly McFarland of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

She said the Haitians could be out in the next two to three weeks, explaining that volunteer agencies must complete screening to place the Haitians with sponsors.

Hours earlier, a three-judge panel of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta refused to block a release order issued last month by U.S. District Judge Eugene P. Spellman for Haitians confined in camps in six states and Puerto Rico.

The Miami judge ruled the Haitians were illegally interned when the government failed to provide advance warning of its decision to confine them. He ordered release "forthwith" while the Haitians await federal hearings on applications for political asylum.

In Washington, Justice Department spokesman Art Brill declined comment when asked whether the government would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Associate Attorney General Rudolph Guiliani had insisted before the appeals panel that the stay was critical to prevent a mass arrival of Haitians and other illegal aliens on American shores.

The Rev. Gerard Jean-Juste, a leader of Miami's 40,000-member Haitian community, called the appeals court decision "a total victory for the long-suffering Haitians."

He lashed out at the "sick whites" and "Watergate mentality" of the Reagan administration for what he described as a racist immigration policy.

He urged the government to grant legal resident status and monetary compensation to the Haitians, many of whom risked their lives in rickety vessels to travel from their impoverished island home to the United States.

Crime Stoppers reward

Judge tells defendant to reimburse reward

SAN ANGELO (AP) — With a bit of a twist on the adage "crime doesn't pay," a state judge ordered a man convicted of a marijuana charge to reimburse the organization that paid a $200 reward for his arrest.

District Judge Earl Smith ordered Kevin C. Gill, 25, to reimburse the Crime Stoppers program for the $200 it paid to an informant.

Gill pleaded guilty Tuesday to possession of marijuana.

Tom Green County Assistant District Attorney Dick Alcala said the state will be seeking reimbursement for Crime Stoppers rewards "on a regular basis" in cases where defendants are found guilty.

Gill, of San Angelo, was arrested March 19 with Eugene Caswell, 30, after police searched their home after a telephone tip to the anti-crime program. He was sentenced to three years probation and fined $250 in addition to the reimbursement.

Policeman Russell Smith, a crime prevention officer, said the $200 will be put back into the Crime Stoppers reward fund. The program has paid out $6,325 in rewards this year, he said.

Stiffer DWI sentence appreciated

Maybe — just maybe — the good guys are going to start winning a little more often. The recent decision by a Howard County jury to assess a tougher sentence for a driving while intoxicated conviction could mark a change. This change, of course, would not be a county where people were afraid to do anything, but a county where firm justice was always administered.

Howard County has had, in some areas, a reputation of being overly lenient in criminal sentencing. This reflection on the law and justice system of the county is unjust in many cases, but perhaps the time has come for that to change.

A jury is a microcosm of the community, a miniature replica of the entity that is "the people." The people of a jury possess the same fears, the same hopes, the same convictions, as their neighbors and their friends. The recent tougher DWI sentence may mean the time has come to take responsibility for the actions of persons in the county.

Criminal sentencing does not always mean unfeeling, uncarving blind punishment. A criminal sentence can be an example of saying "You have done something that threatens not only the well-being of our community, but your own self. Take this time to change." Whether a 15-year sentence for armed robbery or six-months probation writing hot checks, the opportunity is there for an individual to take responsibility for his actions.

A single jury trial in county court may not mean anything has changed in people's minds. But hopefully from this small thing, big things may one day come. Only the people can make those bigger things happen.

A question of geography

Why do American secretaries of State have so much trouble with the White House? It's nothing more than a question of geography. In the good old days the State Department was located in the Executive Office Building, which is right next to the White House and considered part of it now. All the secretary would have to do is cross an alley and walk into the Oval Office.

But then someone in the White House, years ago, got a brainstorm. If they could move the secretary of State down to a swamp called Foggy Bottom, he'd think twice about bugging the President over some silly matter concerning foreign affairs.

The White House used the excuse that it needed the Executive Office Building to house its own staff. To add insult to injury, they built a new State Department, which was the ugliest piece of architecture in Washington. But it served its purpose because it kept the secretary of State from easy accessibility to the boss.

Although State is only about 15 blocks away from the White House, the secretary might as well be stationed in Paraguay.

This is what happens to all secretaries of State since they moved out of the EOB.

The President sees his White House staff every day.

"Top of the morning to you sir," they say to him.

Now it goes without saying that a person who says "Top of the morning" to the President every day is going to have more input than a Cabinet officer who has to taxi over to the White House twice a week.

No President spends all his time just signing bills, and making speeches at prayer breakfasts. He is only human and likes to chew the fat with people. Who does he chew the fat with? His White House staff, of course. He isn't going to call up the secretary of State and say, "Hey, come over and have a beer."

Even if he wanted to, the White House staff members, jealous of their turf, are not going to let an outsider like a secretary of State become part of the inner circle.

Not only is the secretary kept away from the President for bull sessions, but the staff goes to great lengths to see that he doesn't get to see the President too often when it involves affairs of state.

The first rule is that a secretary of State must always call the President before he comes over.

The conversation could go like this: "This is the secretary of State. I have to see the President of the United States."

"I'm sorry sir. The President is in an important meeting with Charlton Heston. Can anybody else help you?"

"No, I have to talk to the President about China."

"Haven't you already talked to him about China?"

"I have to talk to him again."

"He has a terribly busy schedule. We could fit you in a week from next Thursday for 10 minutes."

"It's urgent."

"We can't move it up any sooner. But if we have a cancellation we'll call you back."

After the White House aide hangs up he turns to another White House aide and says, "Can you imagine the gall of the man? He thinks he can just call up, and see the President on 48 hours' notice. What kind of administration does he think we're running?"

"They're all alike," the other White House aide says. "They believe just because we let them sit in on Cabinet meetings, they can have access to the President any time they want to. If there is one thing I hate, it's a pushy secretary of state."

And that's how it's been ever since the State Department moved to Foggy Bottom. And thus it will always be until the secretary of State gets an office back at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, so he can see the President every day and say as the lowliest White House staffer does now, "Top of the morning to you, sir."

Billy Graham

Person wants to be accepted

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My problem is that I will do almost anything to get people to like me. I am a Christian, but I find myself doing things that I know are wrong just so other people will accept me. How can I overcome this? — K.K.

DEAR K.K.: I suspect that this is a far more common problem than most of us realize, although you may have it to a greater degree than some people. But most of us naturally like to be liked, and it is difficult for us to stand against the stream of popular opinion and do what is right when most people are doing wrong.

The most important thing I can say to you is to put Christ first in your life. Yes, you have yielded your life to him, but have you fully committed your life to him as best you know how? In other words, Christ's approval should be first in your life. Jesus said, "Seek first his kingdom and his righteousness" (Matthew 6:33). You need to make a settled commitment to Christ to seek his will in your life above all else. Don't try to be on both sides of the fence, as it were, trying to please God but also trying to please others. The Bible warns us against being "a double-minded man, unstable in all he does" (James 1:8).

Also, you need to realize just how important it is for you to be faithful to Christ. Christ wants you to grow more like him each day — but you are blocking God's will for your life when you compromise and do what is wrong. Remember too that others are watching you. They need Christ, and yet you will never have an effective witness to them if you do not show by your actions and words that you honor Christ above all else.

One other thing might be good for you to think about. Why do you seek so desperately for others to like you? Maybe you feel a need for love in your life and think you will win it in this way. But that is wrong. You need instead to realize afresh just how much God loves you. Grow in his love — and you will as you put him first in your life.

My experience has been that many people actually admire a person more who stands for what he believes, even if they do not agree with it. Make a new commitment to serve Christ, and let him take care of the consequences.

Summer magic

"Summer's here and the time is right for racing in the streets."

This excerpt from a Bruce Springsteen song contains allusions to two of the strongest elements of American life: summer and cars. Even stronger than the "waiting for the weekend" syndrome, the lure of summer and all that it promises gives hope to the hopeless, strength to the cunning and third-degree burns to everybody else.

Of course, the country's love affair with the automobile has continued unabated since the first black Ford crept off the assembly line.

The appeal of summertime has not been limited to this generation. Any cursory study of history will yield the almost-bizarre fascination with the hottest months of the year. The popularity of the season of the sun can be traced back to those frontier days when everyone spent winter cramped into small, smelly log cabins. No wonder summer was the time of excitement and so anticipated by all.

FREEDOM — the freedom to roam unencumbered by burdensome clothing or fear of chilly nights — in the outdoors is the primary draw of the season. Throwing off the bonds of the elements to tear across the scenery has to be considered part of the American heritage. How many Russians or Kurds can one imagine relaxing in a pair of cut-offs with a Frisbee and a hot dog?

Traditionally Americans have saved the summer for their vacations, another element adding to its popularity. As much as some people enjoy their jobs, getting away is not only desirable but necessary. Summer means escape, a balm for the wounds inflicted by civilization. Unfortunately, most of America tries to "get away" in June through August.

Far too many people view a summer vacation as forced relaxation, something spit through gritted teeth: "We're going to have fun if I have to beat the kids to death." But summer is not always the negative — the time can be for the exotic. A trip to Somewhere, U.S.A. or Anytown Over There can be a light, making a tedious life bearable.

Of all of the things which summer promises, this is its strongest pull — the siren-call of possibility. Whether the ever-promised European trip or the date with the blonde, this summer could be, might be, may be the time for anything to happen. Naturally, everybody knows the summer will go like all the rest: maybe a little tan, an improved tennis game, some time off.

But somewhere in the recesses of the mind lurks the feeling something could happen. This might be the summer when everything finally falls together. Make the big decision; rearrange the furniture; try that new hairdo; write the Great American Novel; build the extra room; read the complete works of Zola; win the Publishers Clearing House Contest.

SUMMER IS A beacon for hope, for magic. And what better symbol for that magical promise in summer than the car — a giver of lightning speed, an equalizer that makes the small tall, the weak sleek. The car is the external hope that summer promises to make true.

The auto has always been more than just transportation, but during summertime, motor vehicles expand into uncharted dimensions for the young and the unvanquished. Wheels mean a person can get to somewhere or get away from somewhere. Whatever dreams need shaping or nightmares need shaking, the magic of summer burrs in the spark of an engine tearing down a deserted highway.

Admittedly, finding dreams in internal-combustion vehicles or magic in weather can be construed as ridiculous by many. Actually the representations are not important, whether summer or cars or bagels. The important item is the hope, the desire, the emotion. Without them, the fate is that of the aching victims found in a Springsteen tune:

"Some guys they just give up living — And start dying little by little, piece by piece — with the eyes of one who hates for just being born."

Thoughts

Vacations are a little like love: anticipated with relish, experienced with inconvenience — and remembered with nostalgia.

—The Pennant

Be virtuous and you'll be happy? Nonsense! Be happy and you'll begin to be virtuous.

—James Gould Cozzens

If there is any sin more deadly than envy, it is being pleased at being envied.

Cocaine ring in Congress

WASHINGTON — More than 15 members of Congress were customers of a cocaine ring that operated on Capitol Hill, the ringleaders have told narcotics agents. Nine of the accused legislators have been identified by at least three drug peddlers.

Witnesses have given testimony before a federal grand jury, but the prosecutors are under political pressure to drop the investigation. Their excuse is that the Justice Department has a policy of prosecuting pushers but not users.

Informants told my staff of the illegal drug operation 15 months ago. They said it was run by congressional aides under the noses of the men and women who had passed the drug laws. Narcotics had been delivered directly to congressional offices, they alleged.

But proof was needed. My staff put the informants together with undercover investigators. Then we arranged with Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., a member of the House Narcotics Committee, to provide a cover for the agents. They succeeded in penetrating the congressional narcotics ring. A year later, they raided the home of a Washington attorney and arrested three ringleaders. They also seized a stash of cocaine worth at least $250,000.

Under intensive interrogation, the pushers (one a former page) began spilling names. Their information has been scrutinized and presented to a federal grand jury.

Meanwhile, a preliminary report on the investigation, stamped "Personal and Confidential," has been submitted by Dornan to the Narcotics Committee. "I was originally approached to participate in this investigation," the letter states, "by two staff reporters, Mr. Jack Mitchell and Mr. Indy Badhwar from the office of syndicated columnist Jack Anderson in March of 1981. They had access to informants and investigators involved in this inquiry. "To stress the far-reaching consequences of this investigation," Dornan's letter continues, "I would like to summarize the progress of the probe to this point. I was asked to cooperate with an investigation into the alleged use of cocaine by a number of congressional employees. I agreed, and on April 19, 1982, after a 12-month investigation, Washington residents Douglas Marshall, Troy Todd and Robert Finkel were arrested, and a large quantity of high-quality cocaine was seized by the police.

"From a series of interviews following this arrest, it became apparent that Hill employees and possibly Members of Congress were involved in the illegal distribution and use of narcotics. I feel there is every reason to continue this investigation regardless of the fact that Members of Congress might be involved.

"It would be the height of hypocrisy," declares Dornan, "if we were to stand back from this volatile issue because of the potential political overtones. However, the prosecutors from the Major Crimes Branch, U.S. District Court of the Department of Justice, apparently feel otherwise, according to the briefing given to me. They have indicated that it is their policy not to prosecute users. This baffles me...."

The confidential letter lists nine members of Congress — "each named by at least three sources" — and reports "at least half a dozen others have surfaced." Of the nine, three are from California, one from New York, one from Massachusetts, and one from Maryland. Two are former congressmen; only one is a senator.

Two of the congressmen identified as cocaine customers, Dornan reports, are also implicated in "an FBI investigation concerning alleged homosexual activities with congressional pages."

The letter calls for congressional hearings, with use of subpoenas to get any "evidentiary material" that might be held back.

School board is commended

Dear Editor: This is in answer to Barbara Fletcher's letter in Monday's (7-12-82) paper.

Ms. Fletcher, you, as nearly everyone else in town, did not understand the issue at all.

As in any controversial issue, you will always find a few "hot heads" that mouth off without knowing the facts.

This happened at the School Board Meeting on Thursday.

I am here by putting you in the same class of un-informed persons.

I, for one, do not take kindly to being called a redneck or bigot.

I was and still am fighting for the few precious freedoms we have left in this country, namely the freedom of choice.

I am not a bigot and Ms. Fletcher I would advise you to get your facts straight before you start calling names.

My daughter goes to Washington School where the children are integrated. Her seat-partner was a little black boy. This did not bother her or me. All our children go to school to learn regardless of where the school is, who the teachers are, or what the races are.

I am just sick and tired of the federal government telling us what to do. Ms. Fletcher you are heading toward Socialism so fast that if, we the people, do not stand up for the freedoms we now have, they will be gone before my little 4th grader goes to High School.

So, Ms. Fletcher in my opinion if you are not intelligent enough to realize, your being able to openly state you're leaving Big Spring, are exercising a freedom that under Socialism you would have taken away, then; I cannot say I am sorry to see you go.

Shultz' firm creates own 'foreign policy'

Dealing with foreign governments is an everyday enterprise for the Bechtel Group Inc., the secrecy-shrouded corporate complex that may be the world's largest construction firm.

Whether building a new city in Saudi Arabia, a half-billion-dollar resort in Malaysia or a nuclear power plant in Taiwan, Bechtel pursues a "foreign policy" of its own, a policy centered on profits, not on national interests.

Profits and foreign policy create a volatile mixture for all multinational corporations. The nomination of George Shultz, president of Bechtel, as Ronald Reagan's secretary of state raises questions about Bechtel's operations around the world and Bechtel's effect on future U.S. policies.

But Bechtel officials don't see the Shultz nomination as having a major impact on the company's role.

"I don't think Bechtel will have any more influence than in the past," Harvey Brush, the company's executive vice president, said in an interview last week.

Many questions at today's Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the Shultz nomination will focus on Bechtel's long and profitable relationship with Saudi Arabia and other OPEC members. In Saudi Arabia, Bechtel is now building a $3 billion airport at Riyadh and a whole new city at Jubail that could cost as much as $20 billion.

Its Middle East links have gotten Bechtel entangled twice with U.S. policy and politics.

Last year, the then-manager of Bechtel's Washington office sent a letter to members of Congress advocating the sale of AWACS, advanced radar planes, to Saudi Arabia.

Recently, Bechtel's effort to sidestep U.S. law prohibiting compliance with the Arab-backed boycott of companies doing business with Israel was set back by the U.S. Supreme Court. The court refused to free the company from a consent decree barring it from taking part in the boycott.

Partly at Shultz' urging, Bechtel has also attempted to create more favorable attitudes toward its clients among the American public. It has underwritten at least one film, a book and a traveling cultural exhibit, all of which portray Arabs and the Saudis in particular in a favorable light.

With Shultz at State and former Bechtel executive Caspar Weinberger at the Defense Department, critics have asked whether Bechtel's views will sway the course of American foreign policy on Israel and the Arab countries.

The government's Mideast policy is only one area that affects Bechtel. Others include:

—U.S. policy on nuclear proliferation. Bechtel helped build nearly half of the nuclear power plants in the United States. It would like to build more around the world, but U.S. policy has put a damper on such efforts. Bechtel has said it is pushing for changes in that policy.

—The area of trade sanctions as a foreign policy weapon. Shultz has spoken out in the past against the use of trade sanctions, which could limit the company's foreign sales.

Some of Bechtel's public problems arise from its immense size, involvement in dozens of countries around the world and its penchant for secrecy.

Bechtel reported 1981 revenues of $11.4 billion, which would make it the 26th largest industrial company on the "Fortune 500" list if it were included. One trade magazine ranked it as the largest construction firm in the world in 1981. But Bechtel is privately held, with all the stock owned by 58 people, officers or directors of the company. It does not report its profits, although one published estimate put the 1981 figure at $150 million.

Now the company has 113 major projects — each worth more than $50 million — under way in 21 countries. Bechtel, with a current workforce of 119,000, has built major projects in more than 100 countries. It played a major role in building the Hoover Dam, the Alaska pipeline, the San Francisco and Washington subways and the San Francisco Bay Bridge.

Bechtel often works directly for foreign governments, another potential source of problems.

"Outside the United States, a good bit of what we call industry is government-owned. So the governments become our clients," said Brush, now the No. 2 Bechtel executive, directly under Stephen D. Bechtel Jr., whose grandfather founded the company in 1898.

With the slowdown of the nuclear power industry in this country, about half of Bechtel's business now comes from outside the United States, up from only about 6 percent in 1970.

Bechtel executives like to say their company is a service company, providing the people and services needed by their clients, including the foreign governments.

"I don't think you can say we have a foreign policy in the same way as a government does," Brush said. "We look for business in any area of the world. And when you get business, you have to be a good neighbor."

Open for business

Congratulations to Lucille Sterling and her CowBelles committee that put together the successful Agriculture Round-Up and Symposium last Saturday. I am sorry that every food consumer in the West Texas area was not there to get a better understanding of what is facing our ranchers and farmers who are trying to feed America!

Thanks also go to John Weeks and Harold Wilder of the Howard College staff and to the food service division of the college who handled all the facilities and technical needs of the round-up. The coliseum is such a great place for large meetings. We need to spread the word every time we are connected with a group planning a meeting. Get them to come to Big Spring for their meetings and conventions.

IN 1876, the Methodists in Indiana were holding their annual conference. At one point, the president of the college where they were meeting said, "I think we are living in a very exciting age. I believe we are coming into a time of great inventions. I believe that one of these days men will fly through the air like birds."

"This is heresy," the bishop told him. "The Bible says that flight is reserved for the angels. We will have no such talk here!"

After the conference, the bishop, whose name was Wright, went home and was greeted by his two sons, Orville and Wilbur.

Various social limits-to-growth movements remain the biggest obstacle to progress. People who are almost religiously anti-technological, self-righteously superior in their judgements, won't let you build a road or a refinery or a port without running a regulatory gauntlet. It used to take the U.S. government 30 months to put up a building. Now it takes 10 years for the same building. The U-3 spy plane flew within nine months after being authorized. Today it would take nine years to get the same plane in the air.

That kind of red tape strangles the system and discourages innovation. (U.S. News and World Report)

A university professor asked 600 students in his psychology classes: "What is your most difficult personal problem?" Three out of four replied, "Lack of confidence."

Lee Iacocca of Chrysler said it: "The Japanese allow American cigarettes to be sold in Japan as long as they get only 1 percent of the market, and as long as they are advertised in English. Can you imagine the screams of anguish if we made Toyota run all their ads in Japanese in this country?"

MOTIVATOR OF the month: The starting point of all individual achievement is the adoption of a definite purpose and a definite plan for its attainment.

Some quotable quotes worth remembering. Henry Ford: "If you think you can or can't, you are right." Mark Twain: "All you need in this life is ignorance and confidence." Earl Nightingale: "The difference between a career and a job is about 20 hours a week."

Women now have families, serious careers

When the managing directors of Marsh & McLennan met in Washington last April, Pam Newman took the Eastern Airlines shuttle from New York to be there. Being there was part of her job. Being more than nine months pregnant was not.

"I like having children," said Mrs. Newman, who with her lawyer husband also has a 6-year-old daughter. "But traveling is essential to my job."

This time, baby obliged mother's career. Pam Newman's only problem in Washington was "getting through doors." Her son was born five days after the meeting and she was back at work as a managing director of the insurance brokerage two weeks later.

Twenty years ago, it's unlikely Pam Newman would have gone so far — in her travels or her career. Even 10 years ago, she might have been expected to stay home to care for her children.

But 30 years after William H. Whyte's bestseller "The Organization Man," the title no longer applies. More women are joining the corporate world, to dictate letters instead of just taking them.

Of the nearly 47 million women in the U.S. work force, 3.1 million are classified as managers by the Census Bureau. That's nearly one manager in four, almost a 50 percent increase in the past decade.

Women's liberation, civil rights legislation and economic necessity — from two-paycheck families to divorced mothers — have created this new breed of women. Armed with credentials and ambition, they are saying that being a woman, a wife and a mother is no reason to abandon dreams of reaching the top.

The numbers at two companies exemplify the trend.

In 1970, there was one woman for every 30 officers or managers at Xerox. A decade later, there was one for every seven. And at IBM, there were 2,735 female managers last year — 700 more than just two years earlier.

They come prepared, too. Women now account for more than 20 percent of all MBA enrollments whereas 15 years ago the number was almost negligible.

When Gulf Oil Corp. published a women-owned business directory recently, it listed 1,500 companies. In Washington, D.C., there's an investment firm called Julia Walsh & Sons.

Many corporations are changing the way they care for their employees. Children are starting to join the car pool with mom and dad, heading for company-sponsored day care centers. Two hundred and fifty corporations take advantage of the tax benefits of child care assistance under the Economic Recovery Act of 1981 by offering everything from on-site day care centers to subsidies for child care.

Companies are finding the changes to their advantage. At Intermedics, a medical products company in Freeport, Texas, absenteeism and turnover have dropped since its on-site day care center opened three years ago.

Women still climb the corporate ladder more slowly and for less money than men. Salary statistics tell part of the story: Only 0.8 percent of full-time working women earn $25,000, compared to 12 percent of such men.

A Harvard Business Review survey of 2,000 executives done 17 years ago tells another part — one most male managers are now reluctant to openly admit. Of those surveyed, 51 percent of the men believed women were " temperamentally unfit for management."

A recent three-year study by the Wellesley College Center for Research on Women found that despite a greater number of women in management, qualified young women were not being promoted into senior management, in part because female junior managers don't get the same feedback from male superiors as aspiring young men.

As a result, women tend to feel they have to try harder.

GTE rates to be set today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The three-member Public Utilities Commission planned today to review a hearing examiner's report recommending a $49.1 million rate increase for General Telephone Co.

GTE, which serves 1.3 million Texans, wants $110.6 million in increases.

The company request includes $30 million in increases in long-distance tolls and $43 million more from basic monthly residential service.

Specific increases in residential service would vary by city. In Garland, the largest city served by GTE, the company wants $17.05 a month for the service that now costs $11.15. The hearing examiner recommended $16.90 a month for Garland household service.

The company also wants a 20-cent charge for directory assistance calls above three per month.

The San Angelo-based telephone company filed for the increase in January.

Today's rate hearing opened with testimony from

GTE customers who said the company provides poor service. Hearing Examiner Jacqueline Holmes agreed there are "many problems."

"The examiner, frankly, was shocked by some of the stories of substandard service still being experienced by customers of General," she said in her report.

Dear Melanie:
I am always pleased to hear from my young friends who share my fondness for horses. Although it was sad news to learn of the passing of your horse, Sassy, I know you will have wonderful memories of her for years to come. I want to thank you for thinking of my horse Little Man. I will miss him.

With my best wishes now and in the years to come,

Sincerely,

Ronald Reagan

Miss Melanie Mann

Girl receives letter from Reagan

By TINASTEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor
When 13-year-old Melanie Mann read about the death of President Reagan's horse, Little Man, she knew how he must have felt. Her own horse, Sassy, died March 13. "I was sorry about his horse dying," she said.

what her family did. She hoped he would get the letter, but she never realized he would send her a picture of him on his horse with a reply.

"It wasn't like he was the president," she said about his message to her. "It was like he was a person like I was with a pet."

Melanie wrote the president to express her sympathy. She told him about her horse's death and "I was really excited when I got it," she said. "Mother thought the most I would get was a letter. She didn't think I'd get a picture too." She said her mother was just as excited as she was and wanted to tell everybody about it.

Reagan said he was pleased to hear from her and learn about her horse. He said he enjoyed hearing from "young friends" who share his fondness for horses, and he wanted to thank her for thinking of his horse. Melanie plans to keep her letter and photograph with her for the rest of her life. After all, it's not everyday someone gets a letter from the president.

Melanie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judge Fauber, Sterling City Rt., and R.W. Mann Jr. of Dallas. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.C. Alexander of Colorado City and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Mann Sr. of Dallas.

Dr. Donohue

Today's diabetes diet more liberal

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 56 years old and have just been told that I am a "mild diabetic." My doctor has given me a diet to follow, which I think is nice of him, but I was disappointed that he didn't prescribe any medicine for this disease. Do you think I am getting the old-fashioned treatment? Should I see another doctor? I do not want any of the complications from diabetes that I read so much about. I would feel much better having medicine to help me. — Mrs. F.T.

Don't worry about not having to take medicine. Stick to your diet. Your doctor is suggesting the cornerstone of diabetes treatment, especially for that kind of diabetes that occurs later in life. More than 80 percent of people with that kind of diabetes are overweight. If you lose weight, your body will be able to respond better to the insulin your pancreas is now making for you, even though that may not be as much as a normal person makes.

Being overweight enters the picture because fat interferes with the action of insulin, either the person's own or that supplied as medicine. Furthermore, just losing weight will improve your ability to tolerate sugar and still lower the level of your blood. Just believe me about that. So don't be disappointed. Be glad.

A few words about diabetes diets in general for other readers. These diets have become much more liberal than they were in the past. The key consideration is in getting about 50 to 60 percent of all calories from carbohydrates. In the past, carbohydrates were very severely restricted. Those carbohydrate calories should be of the starch variety (pastas, etc.) and also from foods high in fiber. The diabetic's protein requirement is the same as anybody else's. An important aspect in such a diet, however, is the curtailment of fats eaten, both cholesterol and the saturated fats of animal origin. No more than 20-percent of calories should come from fats. So lose that weight you need to lose, Mrs. F.T., and I'll bet your blood sugars will be normal or near normal in a short time. Then both you and your doctor will have reason to rejoice.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been to a hand surgeon and have been diagnosed as having carpal tunnel syndrome. I have already had two injections of cortisone for it. I was wondering what the chances are for this working on me. Also, I am working a second job cleaning offices for five hours, vacuuming, etc. I was wondering if this job could be causing my problem or worsening it. If I could quit putting this pressure on my wrist would my problem go away? — V.K.

We'd better let others know what we're talking about. On the palm side of the wrist there is a large nerve. It enters the hand through as tunnel of bone, ligaments and tendon tissue. Carpal means wrist. If that tunnel gets smaller the nerve is pressed. The result is carpal tunnel syndrome, tingling in these fingers: part of the ring finger, middle finger, index finger and thumb. This can cause a person to drop objects, having difficulty writing or typing — a general clumsiness with that hand.

People who use their hands often in work — those who may work with vibrating tools, for example — sometimes get the problem. But there are many other causes, including all things pregnancy.

If it is caught early, just protecting the wrist with a splint may suffice. Cortisone injections may bring relief, but they won't help if the person keeps re-injuring the tunnel area. You have to rest the wrist. If all these methods — the rest, splinting or cortisone — do not help, it's time to think about widening the tunnel surgically. That almost always solves the problem once and for all.

Mrs. Darden honored with shower

Mrs. Todd Darden, the former Melody Choate, was honored with a miscellaneous wedding shower June 29 in the Fellowship Hall of East Fourth Street Baptist Church.

Mrs. M.L. Kirby, Mrs. Ben Hill, Mrs. H.D. Stewart Jr. and Mrs. Dick Davis, the hostesses presented the honoree with a set of porcelain coated aluminum cookware with silverstone interiors.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a blue cloth edged in wide white lace. The table was centered with a miniature bride and bridegroom under an archway entwined with flowers and net on an oval reflector that was encircled with blue roses. Blue candles in crystal holders flanked the centerpiece. White satin streamers with the bride and bridegroom's names in blue letters were draped over the front of the table. Blue wedding bells with miniature sprays of Bells of Ireland were tied with blue satin ribbon and attached to each corner of the table.

Special guests included the bride's grandmother Mrs. Vera Graf, her husband's step-mother Mrs. Aubrey Darden and his grandmother Mrs. Lena Darden. Corsages were presented to the honoree, mother and grandmothers. The bride's mother, Mrs. Wade Choate, was unable to attend.

The couple was married April 3.

Dear Abby Sisters' sour notes ruin harmony

DEAR ABBY: My daughter and her husband are well, happy and prosperous. They have been married for 20 years and on the surface seems ideal, but here is the problem:

They have three daughters, 18, 17 and 13. The two older girls, who are 16 months apart, have always been very competitive. It was our hope that as they grew older this rivalry would fade, but it seems to have intensified instead.

The 18-year-old is very jealous of her younger sister, and she's making life miserable for the rest of the family. The 17-year-old just goes along, having a wonderful time, and does nothing to alleviate the situation. Both girls are very happy and popular. The 18-year-old has had the same steady boyfriend for three years. He comes over, they watch TV and sometimes they go out for a hamburger or a movie — nothing terribly glamorous.

The 17-year-old has been dating for only six months, but her boyfriend sends her flowers, takes her to expensive places and is giving her the royal treatment! The 18-year-old is understandably very envious, and she takes it out on the entire family, sulking, slamming doors and giving us all the silent treatment.

As a grandmother to these girls, it's very hard to listen to my daughter crying about the unpleasant atmosphere at home. She doesn't know how to handle this and has asked me for my help. I don't know what to tell her, so I am asking you.

OUT OF IDEAS

DEAR OUT: The older girl is hurting and needs to express herself candidly to someone who is sympathetic and non-judgmental. She needs to be assured that while her jealousy is understandable and nothing to be ashamed of, sulking, slamming doors and taking it out on the entire family is childish and unfair. Family members can't help her. She needs to unload on a professional counselor. Recommend it. Everyone in the family will benefit.

DEAR ABBY: My son and his wife have arranged to adopt a Korean child who will be 9 months old when she arrives from Korea. Since the little Korean girl will obviously not be white, we anticipate a lot of questions about her race. Must we explain that she is Korean, and not Chinese, Japanese, Vietnamese or whatever? Some people are very curious and will surely ask. They will also want to know if she is an orphan, illegitimate, and other facts about her background. How much should we tell?

Also, would it be proper to send announcements to friends and relatives to let them know that there is a new addition to the family? And if so, would it be in poor taste to mention that the child is Korean?

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: An announcement is most certainly in order, and it would not be in poor taste to indicate that the child is from Korea. It isn't necessary to tell anyone the facts of the child's background and history. Simply say that the adoption was arranged through an agency that finds homes for Korean children.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Church donates blood to Geneva Reaves

A blood drive was held at Emmanuel Baptist Church, located at 22nd and Lancaster Tuesday night, for Geneva Reaves, who has cancer.

Mrs. Reaves has been in isolation at Malone-Hogan Hospital since July 8 due to her vulnerability to infection caused by chemotherapy.

After Mrs. Reaves is released from Malone-Hogan Hospital and is able, she will travel to M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston, where she will be put in isolation for eight weeks.

"We are doing it (the blood drive) because we love her," said David Womack, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church. The blood gathered from the drive will be used to replace the blood Mrs. Reaves uses at M.D. Anderson Hospital.

The United Blood Service in San Angelo will perform the drive. Those wishing to donate blood for Mrs. Reaves may do so at the Big Spring Mall, Saturday or at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center on any Monday. If you want Mrs. Reaves to receive your donation please request it when donating blood.

Ghosts, memories still haunt old Fort Davis

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer
FORT DAVIS, Texas (AP) — Trumpets sound "Assembly" and visitors to the Fort Davis National Historic Site can hear the ghosts of soldiers trooping onto the parade ground.

Clopping hooves and tramping feet mingle with the orders shouted by the fort adjutant. "Hall Columbia" and "The Star-Spangled Banner," played at martial time by an Army band, echo through the empty buildings of the fort.

Behind the buildings, the Davis Mountains rear stony fingers that dwarf the gravestones of the cemetery below.

The adjutant reads a message from President U.S. Grant, ordering flags at half staff for former President Andrew Johnson, who has died.

It's an eerie flashback into the past, all designed by the National Park Service to give tourists a feel of life at a military post on the American frontier. The sounds wafting across the empty parade field come from speakers concealed in one of the vacant buildings.

"We think the soundtrack adds a touch of realism to the fort," said park Superintendent Douglas McChristian. "It should provide a vivid memory for them."

McChristian sat in his office in the restored white barracks at the fort, watching visitors from across the country strolling past his open doorway.

"Last year, we had about 71,000 visitors," he said. "We're up 15 percent over that so far this year. People are adjusting to the price of gasoline and taking shorter trips."

"We have a lot of folks coming out of Midland-Odessa, Pecos and Fort Stockton. They're people trying to get off those hot plains and come into the cool mountains."

The fort sits in a wide canyon in the rugged mountains, within the city limits of the town of Fort Davis. At first glance, it looks like a village, with houses in neat rows and an American flag flapping in the breeze. But closer inspection finds the age of some of the buildings and the ruins of ones that no longer stand.

Visitors expecting a movie-set fort surrounded by a wooden stockade are disappointed.

"Stockades were fairly uncommon, despite what Hollywood would like us to believe," McChristian said. "That's the value of Fort Davis. It is one of the best of the Southwest forts. We have a generation of people here who have been educated by television and the movies, but the fort shows what it was really like."

Nearly 60 buildings or ruins make up the fort site, ranging from barracks to officers' quarters to bakeries and stables. Best preserved are the officers' quarters and barracks that were erected after the Civil War.

Fort Davis first was established in 1854 to provide protection for travelers on the Lower Road west to El Paso. At the time, area Apaches presented the biggest danger, but there also was bandits and Comanches who traveled south on the Great Comanche War Trail to Mexico.

The first fort began as temporary structures of pine and canvas. Later, a few stone structures were built.

The soldiers at Fort Davis fought Indians and helped protect travelers being drawn by gold to California until 1861, when the troops were sent to join in the Civil War and the fort was abandoned.

The Apaches used the interlude to wreak havoc in the area. When federal troops returned in 1867, the fort had been wrecked and burned by the Indians.

New stone and adobe structures were built and housed soldiers until the fort was closed in 1891.

"It was bypassed by the railroad," explains McChristian, a historian who specializes in frontier military history. "There were no more hostile Indians in the area. There was no reason to keep a post here."

The buildings of the fort remained in use by settlers in the area for another 40 years.

"Into the 1930s, people would move into these houses while they were waiting to get their own houses built," McChristian said. "One of the reasons they are in pretty good condition is because they were occupied so long. But during the '30s, the roofs were really beginning to crumble. People were coming over and scavenging material. There are doors and windows from the fort all over Fort Davis."

"Without the roofs, walls and doors, the winds were left to deteriorate."

In the 1960s, the government began a partial restoration of the buildings, replacing the roofs and, in some cases, the porches. Buildings that were beyond repair were left in their original condition, so the fort provides a spectrum of deterioration of the buildings.

"A big part of our job is keeping the visitors off the ruins," McChristian said. "We put some new signs. A lot of these foundations start off low to the ground so they look like a good place to walk. It's dangerous to the visitors because they can fall off a wall or it can crumble and literally bury them."

"That's why we dump a lot of money into interpretive programs — to try to raise people's awareness and sensitivity toward the park." During the summer, employees and volunteers in period dress staff the more important structures at the fort and explain to visitors what life at the Army post was like.

"There are two ways of approaching living history," he said. "In the first person method, the interpreter studies and actually portrays someone from that period. That's hard to do. We usually use the third-person mode. They stay in the 20th Century and just tell them about what it was like."

"In the officer's kitchen, for example, we have a servant ... who talks about the servants and how they were in a caste apart from the officers. She gives a lesson in the sociology of the frontier. It's subtle. She doesn't announce, 'We're going to have sociology now.'"

McChristian, who has been superintendent at the fort for two years, does much of the training of the interpreters himself, drawing from his research of the frontier — a hobby he has pursued since high school.

"If I wasn't doing it for a living, it would still be my hobby," he said. "It was an exciting part of our history."

Nineteen receive grants

CHICAGO (AP) — One recipient of a MacArthur Foundation "no strings attached" grants says he's "still coming out of a daze," but others among the 19 named already are making plans to travel or take new risks in their fields of interest.

Nineteen "exceptionally talented" people were awarded the grants of up to $300,000 to use over the next five years.

The awards announced Tuesday by the Chicago-based foundation have "absolutely no strings attached. They can use them in any way they want to," said Gerald Freund, director of the program.

A Chicago composer who was notified Thursday he was awarded $288,000 said Tuesday, "I'm still coming out of a daze."

"I know that the next five years are guaranteed ... If I want to take a year off and do a special project, now I can," said Ralph Shapey, a professor of music at the University of Chicago who has composed symphonic works for voice and musical instruments.

The recipients are in fields such as theoretical physics, filmmaking and anthropology, said John E. Corbally, president of the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, a philanthropic organization.

Alaskans receive their bread goods via overhead delivery

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Pie in the sky is no novelty to residents of the remote villages of the Alaska wilderness — they get it delivered every day along with their bread and cake.

With most of the tiny towns inaccessible by road or rail, Ralph Woll, general manager of the local Sunrise bakery, sends his 60 varieties of baked goods via airmail, flown by the territory's legendary bush pilots.

Woll's customer list sounds like a listing of our last frontier, including such metropolises as Quinhagak, Good News Bay, Platinum, King Salmon, Crooked Creek, Red Devil, Shungak, Egegik and Eek. Other typical customers are Jimmie's Store in Toksook Bay, Herb's Eskimo Shop in Shishmaref and The Little Russian Trading Company in Chuapbaluk.

The bakery, a subsidiary of ITT Continental Baking Co., airmails some 10 percent of its products to trading posts, general stores and people who cannot be reached any other way. Every Monday, the Anchorage post office receives more than 1,000 cases of bread for delivery via parcel post, with postage averaging about $3 per case.

Some towns like Kodiak get their baked goods in freezer vans, which arrive by ship for relaying to the supermarkets there. Customers in Sheldivia, an isolated seaside village located in Kachemak Bay, receive their deliveries via the Alaska State Ferry System.

Space program finally has past

Hollywood seeks NASA's right stuff

By HUGH A MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — On the recent July morning when the space shuttle Columbia was piggy-backed to Cape Canaveral atop a Boeing 747 after its final test flight, the New York Times had a story about film makers hunting through miles of old NASA film for a movie about our first astronauts.

The Ladd Company has embarked on a $17 million dollar movie version of Tom Wolfe's best seller "The Right Stuff" and wants to mingle historical stock footage with what the actors and directors create so the audience cannot distinguish the difference.

Can it be that the futuristic space program already has a past? Why it seems only yesterday that John Herschel Glenn, middle-named by his present parents for the 18th-century astronomer who discovered the planet Uranus, was up and going from Cape Canaveral on America's first orbital flight atop a fiery, frosted, trembling 90-foot Atlas missile.

And Lt. Col. John "Shorty" Powers, the voice of Mercury Control, was saying over the loud speakers at the press center, "We have liftoff." Then to cheers a little later, "We have a successful orbit."

There were more than 20 years ago, Feb. 20, 1962. There were tourist class flights before that in the frantic space race to catch up with the Russians. Alan Shepard and Gus Grissom went bopping down to the Bahamas on the head of an old Redstone rocket, which now probably but the bravest and most heavily insured Hollywood stunt men would dare to board in a movie remake. No wonder they're looking through the old film clips.

The film researchers and studio scenery people should have an interesting time re-creating the Cape Canaveral of two decades and more ago, especially Cocoa Beach, which was the frontier town of our space age, the Dodge City and Tombstone of another era of heroes.

The Cape's motels, in those frontier days on the borders of outer space, were all named for the various missiles: "Vanguard," "Polaris," "Starlight," where the NASA press headquarters was located, and "Saturn." The bartenders therein carried out the theme by shaking up space age drinks with names like the "Redstone Rocket," the "Atlas Highball," the "Titan Toddy" and the "Abort," guaranteed to knock you out of orbit with the kick of a retrorocket.

Seltzer man keeps bubbles bouncing

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sam Edelmans thrills over tiny, tiny bubbles tingling the tongue and tickling the throat.

Edelmans is one of America's last independent seltzer men, a rare purveyor of old-fashioned carbonated water for those purists seeking bubbling cold drinks, lively fruit juices, real whisky spritzers or simply the original no-calorie soda pop.

"I love seltzer. It's a good, clean drink," Edelmans says. "Good seltzer doesn't touch your tongue really. The bubbles keep the water dancing above your tongue."

Seltzer — water injected with carbon dioxide and bottled under high pressure to lock in the bubbles — was the rage of earlier decades when it seemed everyone was squirting dancing water into their glasses and the smallest American town had its own seltzer bottler.

Eastern European Jews, Italians, Czechs, the Irish and the English also enjoyed seltzer water. But the popularity of old-fashioned seltzer fizzed out after World War II with the mass bottling of sweet soft drinks.

Today, many remember seltzer water simply as comedy props for the Marx Brothers, the Three Stooges or Charabell on television's "Howdy Doody."

But others, turned off by the high price of sparkling water and the salt in club soda, are rediscovering seltzer.

To a seltzer man like Edelmans, bottled bubbling water found on some supermarket shelves is just a lot of gas. "My seltzer has far more bubbles," he boasts.

In a mostly self-storage garage, Edelmans bottles his seltzer in clear, blue and green decanters between 40 and 80 years old.

Edelmans packs his seltzer bottles in wooden boxes and delivers weekly to about 400 local customers who pay 60 cents a quart — and a hefty $20 deposit for six bottles.

Edelmans, 32, worked full time as a vocational rehabilitation counselor before last summer, when he bought out an elderly Pittsburgh brother and sister who had been bottling seltzer as a sideline to their soft drink distribution business.

He estimates he has invested about $30,000 into his one-man venture, dubbed Pittsburgh Seltzer Works.

To make his seltzer, Edelmans filters tap water and chills it in a large water cooler recovered from a battleship. Carbon dioxide is injected into the water at about 150 pounds per square inch before Edelmans fills his bottles by hand — about 150 bottles an hour.

Edelmans drinks a quart a day of his profits. He says the key to good seltzer is to chill it well.

"The colder you make seltzer, the more bubbles you get," he confides. "Dogs and cats also go crazy over seltzer. It must be the sensations on their tongues."

Birds in hand worth much to aviary owner

By ROBERT L. WILLIAMS
Charlotte News

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — When Mark Hoffman was still in school he bought a parrot, later tired of it, and sold it. A short time later he bought two more, decided to advertise the birds for sale, and the response was so great that he rushed out and bought several more birds simply to fill orders that kept pouring in.

The simple adventure was to determine Hoffman's career, for from that time his entire life has centered largely around birds. His aviary in Kings Mountain is now stocked with 4,000 birds from Mexico, Brazil, Paraguay and other Latin American countries.

His toucans, macaws, cockatoos, conures, parrots, finches and other ordinary and rare birds can be bought at prices ranging from $12.50 for a finch or parakeet up to $4,750 for a tame Hyacinth Macaw. The untamed version of the same bird sells for $3,600.

The birds are all closely segregated according to species and all are protected against chills, winds, diseases and other types of health hazards. All are housed in 9,000 square feet of sanitary cages that spread over the 10-acre establishment on Route 1, two miles outside Kings Mountain.

"I think we're the largest business of our type between Maine and Florida on the East Coast," Hoffman said, "and between here and California. I know of two places that have more space and a few more birds but none with a greater variety than we have here."

Hoffman, who is 27, married and the father of two boys, has been in the bird business for slightly more than four years. At present his sales are about one-fourth retail and three-fourths wholesale.

In addition to stocking and selling birds, Hoffman ships to pet shops and retailers in all states of the Union except Alaska. Before shipment, all birds larger than a cockatiel are surgically sexed by Hoffman to determine which sex the bird is, whether fully mature, and whether the bird is fully able to be used for breeding.

Birds are rather delicate creatures, and Hoffman takes great care to prevent disease outbreaks. He says that at no time since he has been in the business has there been a real threat to his stock.

"Newcastle disease, an acute viral infection characterized by pneumonia, has hit the general area previously," he says, "but we were untouched."

When he buys a shipment of birds, as much as $37,000 worth at one clip, the birds are quarantined at the shipping point. Then when they arrive at Hoffman's aviary, he immediately quarantines the birds and will not sell any of the stock until he is certain the birds are disease-free.

"If there is a problem," he says, "the quarantine remains in effect until we have solved the difficulty. The entire building housing the birds will be closed off until good health conditions are restored. An outbreak of Newcastle, psittacosis, or herpes could wipe out my entire stock."

The Hoffman Aviary stocks 180 species of birds, some tame, others untamed. Hoffman describes a tame bird as one that can perhaps talk, one that will sit on the owner's arm, and one that will accept and return affection. He buys some tame birds but also does the taming for many others.

Hoffman says he is self-taught in all his areas of bird expertise. The hobby which began modestly has grown to the point that he has a monthly operating cost of $15,000. Hoffman says business is booming.

"Birds are ideal pets," he says, "if they are properly cared for. It costs little to feed them, they are relatively quiet — or may be, depending upon the bird — and they may be kept in buildings where dogs and cats are not permitted."

"And," he adds, "it's no fun to try to cuddle a goldfish."

Insects find mating game dangerous

NEW YORK (AP) — The male insect, often to his regret, has found that mating can be deceptive and dangerous. Now scientists are making it more so.

Entomologists, carefully observing the insect's mating habits, have come to the conclusion that the quickest way to a pest's destruction may be through his libido.

For example, there are fireflies of a particular species that go out in the evening looking for females of their genus. They can identify them by the fact that they make a specific flashing pattern. Female fireflies of another species, observing this, developed a set of signals that match the flashing pattern of their cousins. What happens when the males respond to the wrong set of signals? They are devoured.

Scientists reasoned that perhaps they could use the lure of love to trap and destroy insects before they could mate. For years they looked for ways in which they could reproduce those chemicals which insects release to communicate with one another. These chemicals signal such things as a desire to mate, the need to assemble and danger war-

In 1971, after 30 years of laboratory work, U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists identified and synthesized the gypsy moth's sex attractant, or pheromone. To date, about 200 pheromones have been synthesized.

Now pheromones are being used in pest control, according to Dr. Alberto R. Quisumbing, entomologist with the Health-Chem Corp., which has taken the gypsy-moth pheromone and encased it in a time-release dispenser. This dispenser is put into a trap — appropriately named Lure N Kill — and the sex attractant is slowly diffused over a period of months.

During this period, male gypsy moths get a whiff of the pheromone, fly into the trap and die before they can mate. As a result fewer females are impregnated and there are many fewer egg masses the following year. Not only are traps available for snaring gypsy moths, but there are others designed to lure the Japanese beetle and the bagworm. And more will be forthcoming.

The desirability of using pheromones for controlling insects stems from positive benefits not found in other methods, notes Quisumbing. For example, since pheromones are non-toxic substances, their use does not have any adverse effect on the environment. Also, their action is very specific. Pheromones are directed at particular pests, while beneficial insects are left unharmed.

In one of the most ambitious pheromone experiments undertaken, Health-Chem worked with the governments of Norway and Sweden to control the bark beetle which causes heavy damage to spruce trees. More than 600,000 traps were set out, baited with the bark beetle's pheromone. Norway and Sweden judged the project to be a success with more than 3 million trees saved.

Although it is not likely that pheromones will totally replace insecticides any time soon, they can be used in conjunction with them as part of an integrated pest-management program, Quisumbing points out.

PALACE SECURITY—A policeman stops and checks a car waiting to enter Buckingham Palace in London Tuesday where the queen was to hold investiture. Security at the palace is currently under scrutiny and is to be the subject of an inquiry following the intruder incident.

Queen's intruder to draw parliamentary investigation

LONDON (AP) — "A man was arrested in Buckingham Palace on Friday morning after entering the bedroom of Her Majesty the Queen," Home Secretary William Whitelaw said Monday in an extraordinary House of Commons statement recalling earlier times when court intrigue put many a British monarch in peril.

AN UNCONFIRMED report in the Daily Express said the intruder sat on the bed of Queen Elizabeth II around 3 a.m. Friday and the two talked quietly for 10 minutes until the monarch gained her confidence. The 56-year-old queen then summoned a footman on the pretense of getting the prowler a cigarette, and the servant hustled him away, the report said.

Whitelaw promised an immediate inquiry, describing himself "shocked and staggered" by the breach of royal security.

He gave no details of the incident, but told the Commons the House will admire the calm way in which Her Majesty responded to what occurred.

Lawmakers and the press asked "How could it happen," and the furor mounted when government spokesman Lord Elton told the House of Lords that the intruder was the same man charged Saturday with a June 7 palace break-in.

In the first incident, Michael Fagan, a 30-year-old drifter who entered the dock at Bow Street Magistrates' Court barefoot and in a dirty T-shirt and blue jeans, was accused of stealing a half-bottle of wine from the palace.

Whitelaw said the state prosecutor was studying possible charges connected with the Friday incident.

Security has been tightened at the palace since Friday, Whitelaw said, and Scotland Yard Assistant Commissioner John Dellow has begun an urgent inquiry into how the man got past armed soldiers, detectives, servants and electronic surveillance.

Whitelaw, in charge of police as Home Secretary in Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Cabinet, came in for ridicule when he said palace security had been tightened in the past 18 months after a series of royal scares.

Opposition Labor member David Ennals called it "uncomprehensible" that a man charged with breaking into the palace previously could do so again.

Labor's Roy Hattersley taunted, "You said security had been recently improved. Since that resulted in a man getting into the queen's bedroom, how bad was it before the improvement?"

One rank-and-file Conservative, William Clark, said that if the intruder had been a terrorist, the result could have been "catastrophic." Whitelaw said he agreed.

The Standard, an afternoon paper, reported without attribution that the intruder scaled a perimeter wall and a drainpipe to get at the window that led him into the queen's quarters.

THE DAILY Express said the offender sat on the royal bed just six feet from the queen, but did not indicate whether she was asleep when the intruder entered the second-floor bedroom.

The queen's husband, Prince Philip, was in a separate bedroom, it reported.

The queen appeared unperturbed by the drama. Accompanied by Prince Philip, she attended a 60th anniversary service for the British Broadcasting Corp. at St. Paul's Cathedral on Monday.

Mrs. Thatcher missed the event to hear Whitelaw's statement, and sat grim-faced, listening. The prime minister will meet with the queen Tuesday in her usual weekly audience with the monarch.

Only last year during the Trooping the Color ceremony, a youth fired six blank shots at the queen as she rode past on her horse.

There hasn't been a successful assassination bid by an outsider in the nine centuries since William the Conqueror seized the throne, according to noted historian A.J.P. Taylor, although going back to King Athelstan, first ruler of all England in 925, at least 10 monarchs have died violently in battle, at the hands of treacherous rebels at court, or by accident.

More recently, Queen Victoria escaped injury in six attacks during her 64-year reign, which also provided a parallel to Friday's incident in the shape of 15-year-old Edward Jones.

He sneaked into the palace in 1838 and lived inside for a year, stealing food at night and hiding by day until caught by a porter.

Two years later he was back, this time found asleep under a sofa in the queen's dressing room. He was sentenced to three months in jail as "a rogue." But the following year he broke in again. He got three months hard labor.

King Edward VIII, who abdicated and became the Duke of Windsor, was unhurt when a man threw a loaded revolver at him in Hyde Park in 1936.

In the queen's immediate family, Prince Charles and his bodyguard fought off a mentally disturbed naval lieutenant who entered the prince's bedroom and attacked him at the Royal Navy barracks in Portland in 1974.

Also that year, two policemen were wounded by gunfire when a 26-year-old man, Ian Ball, attempted to kidnap Princess Anne in London.

Falkland islanders describe battle's 'climate of fear'

By MARKS SMITH
Associated Press Writer

STANLEY, Falkland Islands — Argentine military police burst into Gerald Cheek's house and, holding his family at gunpoint, whisked him away to a detention center. Other Argentines in the occupied Falkland Islands begged and stole food, looted and burned and shot blindly at noises in the dark.

Although islanders say they suffered no physical maltreatment during the 10-week Argentine occupation, they describe a climate of fear that got worse as their British rescuers approached.

"At first their behavior was very good," said Rex Hunt, who was Falklands governor when Argentine troops invaded April 2 and who returned as civil commissioner after British troops recaptured Stanley on June 14.

But as the British fleet moved south, they got rather more fraught. A number of the Argentine conscripts behaved badly," Hunt said. "There was quite a bit of looting. Islanders returning to their homes were absolutely aghast at the state the Argentines left their houses in."

Several houses, a recreation hall and a public works maintenance building were burned down. Islanders say many homes were raided for food and some for valuables. Some residents reported finding excrement in their homes, and British military men said excrement was smeared on the walls of the Stanley school.

"After what they did, I hope I never see the bastards again," said Harold Rowland, the islands' financial secretary and the top civil official left in Stanley after Hunt was exiled to Britain.

"Basically," said Rowland, "the Argentines hid behind the population. They set up their gun emplacements right next to people's houses. They stopped people at random on the street. I suppose they hoped to intimidate us. But eventually, even the elderly people went smiling past the guards."

ONE OF THE first things the Argentines did after storming Government House on Stanley's waterfront April 2 was to warn prospective troublemakers.

Stuart Wallace, an employee of the Cable and Wireless communication company and former member of the islands' legislative council, recalled that on April 3, three jeeps carrying Argentine soldiers drove up to his house. An officer stepped out and warned Wallace his anti-Argentine views were known and, in Wallace's words, "They had ways of dealing with people who made any trouble."

Approval of new coach left to school board

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor
Superintendent Lynn Hise and athletic director Ron Logback will submit the name of a new varsity head football coach to the Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees at its regular meeting Thursday night.

Although Logback would not disclose to whom the job had been offered, he did say that Steer defensive coordinator Quinn Eudy had entered Tuesday's negotiations as a leading candidate for the job.

Quinn Eudy
...top BSHS
candidate

Prior to a late Tuesday afternoon meeting, the field of candidates was narrowed to one individual Logback said and the head coaching position was offered to him. The offer was accepted but final approval must come from the School Board.

The vacancy occurred Monday when second-year head coach Ralph Harris accepted a similar position at Marshall High School in Marshall. Although he did not name the new coach, Logback expressed his confidence he would continue the progress the local high school program has shown under Harris' leadership. The primary objectives in selecting a coach at this point, Logback continued, were to find a coach who would follow through with the ideas set down in spring drills and make the transition easiest for the players. "We don't want to short-change the seniors at all," he said. Fall workouts begin at Big Spring High Aug. 16 Logback added.

Striking out again: NL wins Classic, 4-1

MONTREAL (AP) — For the last 11 years, the National League has found a way to win the All-Star Game. This year, the American League supplied the formula. The frustrated Americans had pledged to win with speed on the bases, tight defense and tough relief pitching. That combination, spiced by Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion's two-run homer, was just how the Nationals built their 4-1 triumph Tuesday night.

Two vital statistics spelled doom for the AL, which now trails this series 34-18 with one tie and has lost 19 of the last 20 games.

Manager Billy Martin's club struck out 10 times against NL pitchers Steve Rogers of Montreal, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia and Mario Soto of Cincinnati, and left 11 runners on base.

"We had enough opportunities,"

WILLIE WILSON
...another strikeout victim

Martin said. "We just didn't capitalize."

Concepcion did, though, hitting a hanging slider from Boston's Dennis Eckersley into the left-field seats in the second inning to earn the game's Most Valuable Player trophy.

The AL took a 1-0 lead in the first against Rogers, scoring on hits by Oakland's Rickey Henderson, who had three singles, and George Brett of Kansas City, a wild pitch and a long sacrifice fly by California's Reggie Jackson.

"Reggie was a little under that ball or it could have been 3-0," Rogers said.

Boston's Eckersley mowed down the first five NL batters but was having some control problems. He walked Dale Murphy of Atlanta on four pitches, bringing up Concepcion.

"I felt I had lost a little," the Eckersley said. "I gave Concepcion a fastball and he fouled it back. Then I went to a slider and it was good-bye."

"I was looking for an off-speed pitch," Concepcion said. "I guess I got the head of the bat out on it."

In his last batting-practice swing, Concepcion had smashed a line drive into Olympic Stadium's lower left field seats. Eckersley's pitch wound up in almost the same spot.

"He yanked it," Eckersley said. "I was hoping it would hook foul. You know it's a bad pitch when you throw it. You say to yourself, 'Break!'"

Concepcion, who has only one home run this season, had put the NL in front and Manager Tommy Lasorda of Los Angeles thought the timing was every bit as important as the run.

"When you have two men out and nobody on base and then you get two runs, well, that's a big lift," said Lasorda, 3-0 as NL manager streak. "It came at a very opportune time."

An inning later, the NL was back for more. Pinch-hitter Ruppert Jones of San Diego led off with a triple that bounced off the base of the wall in right-center.

After Montreal's Tim Lincecum walked and stole second, Jones scored on Pete Rose's sacrifice fly, sliding across just ahead of Jackson's strong throw and tagging the plate with his hand as Chicago catcher Carlton Fisk lunged to make the tag.

That made it 3-1 and Carlton relieved Rogers for the NL. He struck out the side in the fourth, stranding two runners he had walked. In the fifth he surrendered a single to Henderson but then started a double play on Kansas City's Willie Wilson, as the NL erased two of baseball's fastest runners.

Soto relieved in the sixth inning and the AL trend continued — runners left on base and batters striking out. He permitted a leadoff single by New York's Dave Winfield but mowed down the next three hitters, finishing the inning by striking out Boston's Carl Yastrzemski. But the Cincinnati right-hander saved his best show for the seventh.

The Nationals had increased their lead to 4-1 in the sixth on a double by Al Oliver and an RBI single by Gary Carter as the two Montreal teammates gave the hometown crowd of 59,057 — third largest in All-Star history — something to shout about.

Detroit's Lance Parrish opened the seventh with a double for the AL. Soto then struck out Kansas City's Frank White on a changeup. Henderson stroked his third single and promptly stole second. But Soto fanned Wilson and Texas' Buddy Bell.

"I threw three changeups to White," Soto said. "I started Wilson with a fastball and then went back to the change. Bell, I threw him three or four changeups straight."

"When I'm in trouble, I go back to my change. I'm a fastball, change-up pitcher. My change-up is my second best pitch and I have confidence in it."

The AL wasn't done quite yet. In the eighth, Fernando Valenzuela walked two batters and San Francisco's Greg Maddux relieved Parrish hit a slow chopper over the mound. St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith, who had replaced Concepcion, dashed in and made a dazzling play to end the inning, stranding the ninth and 10th AL runners.

No. 11 came in the final inning when Henderson walked with one out. Lasorda went to his bullpen for the Dodgers' Steve Howe, who retired rookie Kent Hrbek of Minnesota. Then Tom Hume of Cincinnati came on to get Bell, ending the game.

Afterward, Lasorda talked with Oakland's Martin for a moment.

"I told him the victory would be a lot sweeter if we could have beat somebody else," he said. "That's because he's such a nice guy and a friend of mine."

SAX OVERTURE — New York Yankees baserunner Dave Winfield sends Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman Steve Sax up and over him during sixth inning action Tuesday in the 53rd All-Star game in Montreal. Winfield's hard slide prevented Sax from completing a double play, advancing Milwaukee Brewers baserunner Robin Yount from first.

Former all-American becomes new Steer basketball coach

Archie Myers, all-American at Howard College in 1972, has been named head basketball coach at Big Spring High School athletic director Ron Logback announced Tuesday.

Myers takes over for Ed Haller who retired from the teaching-coaching field at the end of the 1981-82 school year. Haller had served as head coach for three years.

Myers attended Howard during the 1971 and 1972 seasons, leading the Hawks in scoring both years. As a sophomore, he averaged 36 points a game to win the junior college national scoring race.

He scored over 50 points four times that year and scored 54 against Larry Kenon of Amarillo. Kenon later went on to star at Memphis State (losing in the NCAA championship to Bill Walton's UCLA team) and played for the San Antonio Spurs.

A standout at Eastern New Mexico, Myers entered private business before taking the assistant's job at Midland College in 1980. He helped head coach Jerry Stone guide the Chaparrals to the national championship this past winter.

"He has the background and the type of temperament to continue the improvement in our program," Logback said. "He's a positive individual and is strong character-wise."

Logback emphasized his experience at Midland would greatly benefit the Steers program. "He has tremendous ability for demonstration and coaching. His relationship with the kids was a prime factor in his selection."

Concepcion named MVP

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MONTREAL (AP) — Dave Concepcion said his wife came up with the idea and Luis Aparicio came by to give the inspiration for the home run that won him the Most Valuable Player award in baseball's 53rd All-Star Game Tuesday night.

The veteran Cincinnati Reds shortstop, one of the last remnants of the "Big Red Machine" of the 1970s, caught a Dennis Eckersley slider and deposited the ball over the 328-foot left field fence for a two-run homer that powered the National League to a 4-1 victory over the American League.

"It was one of the greatest thrills of my life," the stringbean Venezuelan said, clutching the Bowie Kuhn Trophy symbolic of the game's MVP. "I have played in four World Series and many All-Star games, but this was the first time I ever was MVP. Nothing so great has ever happened to me before."

Concepcion has hit only one home run this season in 328 at-bats — the lone homer against St. Louis — and had only a single home run in the four World Series in which he played.

"When I was named to the All-Star team, my wife (Diallia) said to me: 'David, this is your 13th year in the major leagues. Don't you think it would be nice if you could win an MVP award?' I was still thinking about that when I went to bat," Concepcion said. "I guess you might say I hit one for Diallia."

Concepcion said credit for

...happy all-star MVP

"Luis Aparicio came around to talk to me before the game," Concepcion said. "I was really thrilled to see him. He was the greatest shortstop who ever lived. I thought I would like to do something to make him proud of me."

Concepcion said he hit a ball into the same spot in the Olympic Stadium stands on his last swing in batting practice and admitted that clout still figured into his thinking when he stepped to the plate in the second inning with Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves on base.

"I turned to Manny Trillo (of the Philadelphia Phillies) and said, 'Manny, I'm going to hit this one out of the park,'" Concepcion said. "Manny just looked at me and laughed. He said, 'I won't be looking.'"

"I was confident when I went to bat that I would do it."

Paradez throws, bats American by National

American only undefeated Big Spring team

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

LAMESA — The American League won the All-Star Game Tuesday night.

Unfortunately for Billy Martin, the game the Americans were victorious in was played in the heart of Texas and not in picturesque Montreal.

Joe Louis Paradez broke open a tight game with a booming three-run home run in the top of the fourth inning and the American League All-Stars went on to defeat the National All-Stars 10-4 during the second night of the District III Little League All-Star Tournament.

In another second night game, Midland North Central bombed West Odessa 11-3 to advance into the second round. No Big Spring team is in action Wednesday but the tournament will enter its third night of play with Midland Tower testing Midland Eastern and host Lamesa battling Midland Mid-City.

Eastern won a Monday night game, a 9-0 decision over Big Spring International, while Mid-City rallied for four runs in the sixth inning to upend defending champion Texas League 7-6.

A pair of unearned runs in the third inning pulled National back into the game, cutting American's slim lead to 4-3. Robert Rodriguez had been keeping the Americans in check for three innings but things took a turn for the worse in the top of the fourth.

After getting the first out, Rodriguez walked David Kilgore and saw Kevin Pirkle reach on an infield hit. That brought up Paradez who has a made of habit of helping himself on the mound by wielding a big bat at the plate.

In the city championship game, he began his team's winning rally with the some daring base-running after drawing a lead-off walk. Tuesday night a walk was the furthest thing from his mind as he took a hefty swing at Rodriguez's first pitch.

Like the home runs hit by Texas Rangers rookie Dave Hostetler, the ball was a screaming line drive shot. National left fielder Lathy Williams could only look up, turn his back to the infield and watch the ball fly over the outfield fence. The homer, the first of the tournament, increased American's lead to 7-3 and all but put the game away.

Stephen Gonzales walked after Paradez and scored when Rodriguez walked the bags full and then issued a free pass to Gary Osburn to force Gonzales home. That was it for Rodriguez who was lifted in favor of reliever Donnie Barber.

The Nationals got a run back in the fifth when Lee Morris singled and scored on a wild pitch. The Americans added two insurance runs in the sixth as Aaron Allen knocked in a pair with his second two-RBI hit of the evening.

Paradez went the distance for the Americans, tossing a five-hitter and striking out nine. He walked just two batters and hit Williams in the foot with another in the fifth.

American scored twice in the first inning. Kilgore singled to lead-off the game and Pirkle followed with another basehit. Kilgore scored on a fielder's choice and Gonzales rapped an RBI single to make it 2-0 before the Nationals turned a double play on Leslie Robinson and retired Allen to get out of the jam.

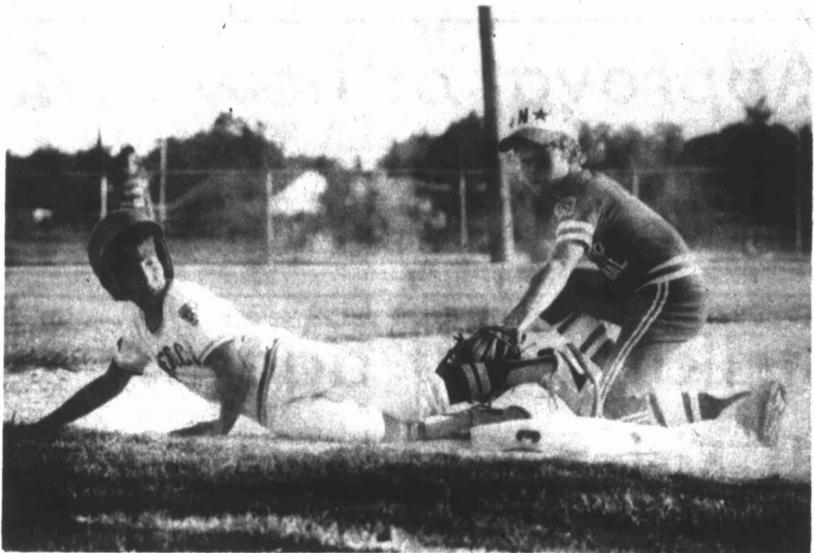

The Nationals got one of those runs back in the bottom of the frame when Brant Nichols doubled and continued around the bases on a pair of American errors. Matt Garrett also doubled but was left stranded at second.

After a scoreless second inning, American made it 4-1 in the third. Pirkle reached on an error and Gonzales rolled an infield hit ahead of Allen. The all-star from the Astros drilled a two-run double to give his team a three-run lead.

The Nationals came right back with a pair to stay close. With two out, Garrett reached on an error and scored on a hard double by Morris in the left-center gap. A passed ball moved Morris to third and a missed pick off there allowed him to head home.

That was before the home run by Paradez ended the suspense and made American the only Big Spring team left in the winner's bracket.

American plays again Thursday at 8 p.m. against

Rogers admits using cocaine while a pro

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — George Rogers, the New Orleans Saints' No. 1 draft choice and the National Football League's Rookie of the Year, admits he has used cocaine but won't do it again.

"I made a mistake and it will never happen again," Rogers told a news conference Tuesday in his first public response to reports of his drug use.

"I am sorry for what I did," he said. "I made a mistake, and I have to live up to that."

Rogers, who led the NFL in rushing and set a rookie record with 1,674 yards for the Saints last season, said he underwent testing and treatment for drug abuse last week at a Florida clinic.

His attorney Ed Holler and Saints coach Bum Phillips also appeared at the news conference, but neither would answer any questions regarding the cocaine scandal surrounding the team and the NFL.

Phillips said it was probably the most important news conference he had ever attended.

"I've been to a whole lot of press conferences in my years in sports — some bad, some good," he said. "I've never been to one as important as I think this one is."

"I think it's important for this football team, this town, the NFL."

"But it's more important for a bunch of individuals who have made a mistake — but not a mistake that can't be rectified."

Holler described Rogers' involvement with the drug as "a brief recreational use of cocaine."

Published reports last month quoted unnamed sources as saying Rogers told a federal grand jury in New Orleans he spent $10,000 on cocaine last season.

U.S. District Judge Veronica Wicker has issued a gag order for anyone who might be involved in a cocaine case involving former Saints running back Mike Strachan.

NFL talks continue

NEW YORK (AP) — A request by National Football League club owners that the current contract be extended beyond Thursday's deadline was being considered by union leaders as the two sides met for a second day in a row.

Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council and the club owners' chief negotiator, said if there is no extension, no unsigned player will be allowed into training camp.

Donlan said at last count there were 99 rookies and 71 veterans who had not been signed. The Baltimore Colts will be the first team to open camp on Friday, with the others to open next week.

Union negotiators made no immediate response to the extension request, and said it would be discussed at today's session.

Ed Garvey, the union's executive director, said he understood management's position, unsigned veterans could agree to accept a team's latest offer, or 110 percent of last year's salary, even after the July 15 deadline and still attend training camp.

Rookies could also accept a team's last offer after July 15 and report to camp.

"But all the players have to have signed contracts before they start working out," Garvey said.

The team owners at Tuesday's session, the first in more than a month, presented a package of proposals for a new contract.

Management offered to liberalize the game's free agent system, increase both minimum salaries and postseason pay and provide improved insurance benefits.

Players representatives, however, did not like the offer.

"It's totally insulting," said Gene Upshaw of the Oakland Raiders, president of the players' association.

Dick Berthelsen, general counsel for the union, said the offer was "essentially the same as they gave us in Miami in February." He said that according to his side's calculations, the new offer would result "in the owners spending less on the players in 1982 than they did in 1981."

Donlan, meanwhile, saw the offer as a good place to start bargaining.

"We took the existing contract and built upon it," said Donlan, after presenting the package of proposals during the first of three planned days of negotiations. "We feel this proposal is a basis for a settlement, but the response from the union was very distressing."

The owners' pay proposal, a $50,000 minimum salary for a fifth-year player and $30,000 for a rookie, is far less than $140,000 for fifth-year players and $75,000 for rookies that the players want.

Cubs lose 7-6 Tuesday to Shreveport

By The Associated Press

A two-run homer by Bill Foley in the first inning helped El Paso edge Jackson, 7-4, in Texas League baseball after the Mets made the first of their three errors on a potential double play ball.

In other action Tuesday, the Tulsa Drillers whipped the San Antonio Dodgers, 7-2, and the Shreveport Captains handed the Midland Cubs a 7-6 defeat. The Arkansas Travelers slipped by the Amarillo Gold Sox, 9-8.

The Cubs chalked up three home runs, but could not surpass the Captains' scoring edge. Midland had solo shots in the first by Joe Carter, his 14th, and Carmelo Martinez, his 16th. Mike Diaz hit his 16th, a two-run shot, in the sixth.

The winner was Bob Gendren, 1-0. The loser was Tim Milner, 0-2.

A variety of dishes to please your fancy

There is a correction and recommendation for the recipes contributed by the Gold Star Mothers published two weeks ago.

In the Easy Pie Crust recipe by Kathryn Thomas, the recipe calls for 1/2 cups flour instead of the 1/4 cup of flour that was listed. Martha Moody recommends cooks to use Crisco brand shortening when making Mama's Pecan Cake. She says it seems to work better with that brand.

The Recipe Exchange needs recipes from you and your organization. Please contribute your recipes by sending them to the Recipe Exchange, c/o The Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. People enjoy trying favorite recipes of local people. We need recipes from area residents too.

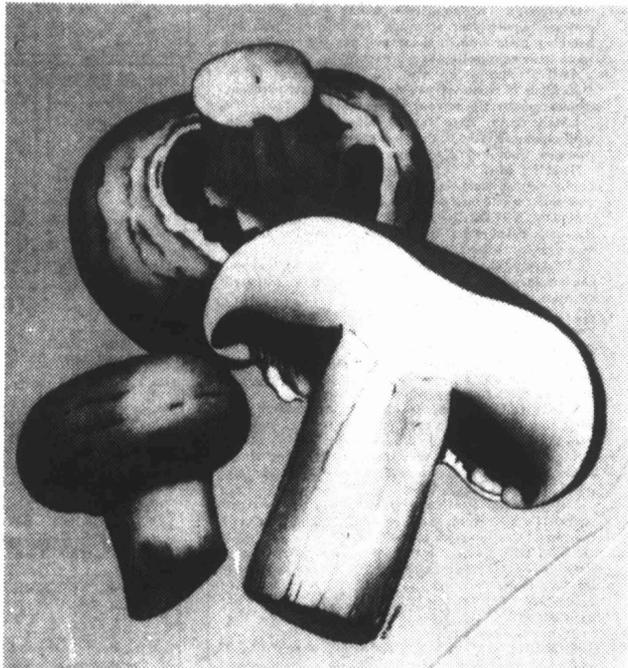

Below are a variety of dishes your family may enjoy.

BLUEBERRY CAKES
1 1/2 cups unsweetened frozen blueberries, rinsed and drained
Sugar
1 cup fork-stirred all-purpose flour

1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 large egg
1/2 cup milk

Put 1/4 cup of the blueberries in each of six 6-ounce custard cups; add 1 tablespoon of sugar to each cup and mix with the berries. Stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream the butter with 1/2 cup sugar and the vanilla; beat in the egg. Add the flour mixture and the milk; stir just until flour mixture is moistened. Spread over the blueberries. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center of the topping come out clean — about 20 minutes. Turn out of cups and serve with vanilla ice cream or whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

YEAR-ROUND APPLE PIE
Butter Pastry recipe follows
2 cups sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
6 medium about 1 1/2 pounds Granny Smith apples
2 Tablespoons butter, cut into small pieces
Make up the pastry and refrigerate as directed in the following recipe. On a pastry cloth, with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out half the pastry and line a buttered 9-inch pie plate with it; keep the remaining half of the pastry in the refrigerator. In a large bowl stir together the sugar, flour, cinnamon and nutmeg. Peel the apples, core and slice thin — there should be 6 cups; toss with the sugar mixture; turn into the pastry-lined pie plate; top with the butter.

Roll out the remaining pastry a little larger than the top of the pie plate; place over apples; seal edges well with your fingers — fluting will not hold its shape. Cut 6 to 12 one-inch slits for vents. Cover the edge with a 2- to 3-inch strip of foil. Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 425-degree oven until apples are tender and pastry is browned — 55 minutes.

Remove foil around edge about 30 minutes before the end of the baking period and place a sheet of foil on the lowest rack of the oven to catch any syrup that may bubble over. Serve hot with vanilla ice cream or cheddar cheese.

Butter Pastry: Into 2 cups all-purpose flour, with a pastry blender, cut 1 cup two 1/4-pound sticks butter until the size of small peas. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of water at a time you'll need about 4 tablespoons altogether and mix with a fork until the pastry can be pressed into a ball; chill for at least 30 minutes before using as directed in the Year-Round Apple Pie recipe.

CHOCOLATE PIE
1-3rd cup sugar
2 Tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup milk
1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 cup sour cream
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
8-inch graham cracker crust
In a 1 1/2-quart saucepan stir together the sugar and cornstarch; gradually stir in the milk, keeping smooth. Add the chocolate. Over medium heat, stirring constantly, cook until mixture shows it is boiling because it bubbles and sputters and mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Off heat, with a wire whisk, gently stir in until blended the sour cream, then the vanilla. Turn into the graham cracker crust. Refrigerate until set — several hours or overnight. Makes 6 servings.

MAMIE EISENHOWER'S FUDGE
This is a large-size recipe
4 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 Tablespoons butter
13-ounce can evaporated milk, undiluted
12-ounce package 2 cups semi-sweet chocolate pieces
Three 1-ounce packages sweet baking chocolate, cut into pieces
Two 7-ounce jars marshmallow creme
2 cups coarsely chopped

MUSHROOM TARTS
2 1/2 cups fork-stirred all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2-3rds cup butter
1-3rd cup sour cream
1 egg, slightly beaten
Mushrooms mixture, recipe follows
Into the flour and salt, with a pastry blender, cut the butter until the size of small peas. With a fork stir in the sour cream and then the egg until blended. Press into a ball. Using 1 rounded teaspoon of the dough for each, press over the bottom and sides of small muffin-pan cups (each 1 1/4 inches across the top and 3/4 inch deep). Make sure the dough slightly overlaps the edge of each cup, because it shrinks during baking.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden — 12 to 15 minutes. Cool slightly and remove from cups to a wire rack; cool completely. Fill shells with the mushroom mixture. Arrange between sheets of wax paper in layers in a freezer container. Store in the freezer. At serving time, bake on a cookie sheet, unthawed, in a preheated 400-degree oven until very hot — 12 minutes. Remove tarts to paper towels for a minute or so. Serve hot. Makes 48.

MUSHROOM MIXTURE
1/4 cup butter
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, finely chopped
2 Tablespoons minced scallion
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy cream
In a 10-inch skillet melt the butter; add the mushroom and scallion; over high heat, stirring almost constantly, cook until wilted — about 5 minutes. Off heat, stir in the flour and salt. Gradually stir in the cream, keeping smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Cool before using as a filling for the baked tart shells.

REFRIED BEANS WITH TORTILLAS
1 pound (about 2 to 2 1/4 cups) dry pinto beans
Water
2-3rds cup chopped (medium-fine) onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup bacon fat, see Note
8 six-inch corn tortillas, heated
Shredded iceberg lettuce
Diced tomato
Sour cream
Sliced scallions
Cover the beans with a generous amount of water (at least 6 cups) and soak overnight; drain and discard the soaking water. Into a 5-quart saucepot, turn the beans, 6 cups fresh water, the onion, garlic, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil; simmer, covered, until the beans are tender — 1 1/2 hours. Drain, reserving 1 1/2 cups of the liquid.

In a large skillet heat the bacon fat. Add the beans; mash with a potato masher, if available and cook slowly until all the bacon fat is absorbed. Continue cooking, adding the reserved 1 1/2 cups liquid — 1/4 cup at a time — and stirring often, until the liquid is absorbed. Makes about 4 cups.

Mound the refried beans on the tortillas; top with the lettuce, tomato, sour cream and scallion. Serve at once. Makes 8 servings.

BEER BATTER FISH
Good served with ketchup for dipping.
1 1/2 pounds sole fillets
2 large eggs, separated
2-3rds cup flat beer
1 cup fork-stirred all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 Tablespoons butter, melted and cooled
Cut the fillets into strips about 3 inches long and 1 1/2 inches wide; dry well on paper toweling. Beat the egg yolks until thickened and lemon color; gently beat in the beer; add the flour, salt and paprika; beat gently until smooth. Beat the egg whites until stiff; fold into the flour mixture. Dip fish strips into the batter and fry, without crowding, in hot deep fat (370 degrees) until golden brown — 2 to 3 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

TOMATO RIBS
The barbecue-style sauce is thick and flavorful.
3 pounds (about) beef chuck short ribs, cut in 8 or 16 equal pieces
1 to 2 Tablespoons oil
1/2 cup chopped (medium fine) onion
3/4 cup ketchup
1/2 cup water
1/4 cup cider vinegar
2 Tablespoons sugar
1 Tablespoon chili powder
Remove excess fat from surface of ribs. In a large ovenproof saucepot heat the oil; add the ribs and brown on all sides. Stir together the onion, ketchup, water, vinegar, sugar and chili powder; pour over the ribs. Bake, tightly covered, in a preheated 350-degree oven, turning the ribs once mid-way, until tender — about 2 hours. Skim off excess fat. Makes 4 servings.

REFRIED BEAN DIP
Easy to put together when the refried beans are on hand.

2 cups refried beans
1/4 cup tomato sauce
1/4 cup prepared taco sauce
4 ounces jack cheese, shredded medium-fine
Tortilla chips
Into an attractive casserole (or similar utensil) that can be used on the surface unit of a range, turn the beans, tomato sauce, taco sauce and cheese. Heat very slowly, stirring often, until the cheese is melted. Serve warm as a dip with the tortilla chips.

SAUCE TARTARE
As it is often made by French Canadians.
1 cup mayonnaise, preferably homemade
1 Tablespoon finely chopped capers
1 Tablespoon finely chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives
1 Tablespoon finely chopped cornichons (unsweetened pickled gherkins)
1 Tablespoon minced parsley
Just before serving, stir together all the ingredients. Or mix ahead and store, tightly covered, in the refrigerator. Makes 1 1/4 cups.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when secondary matters require your attention. Formulate a plan for handling them without delay and get the results you want. A new project needs more study.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to be meticulous in whatever you do today and get excellent results thereby. Spend your money wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Taking the proper health treatments will make you feel better and improve your appearance. Show others you have wisdom.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what is desired by family members and establish more harmony at home. A new outlet needs further study.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy at the tasks ahead of you and do them in a precise manner. Don't neglect important correspondence.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Cut down on expenses and you can easily add to present abundance. Show increased devotion to loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take the necessary treatments so that you can improve both health and appearance. Engage in more social activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Forget all that social meandering today and get right down to the work that has to be done. Evening is fine for romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan time to think over what your true aims are and figure out the best ways to gain them. Attend a group affair tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care of unfinished duties early in the day. Don't overlook a pressing bill. Think along logical lines.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go to the right sources for the information you need. Making new contacts can bring interesting results now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try a new approach to have more accord with associates. Be sure to keep your promise. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss mutual aims with associates. Take time to improve your appearance. Use your own excellent taste.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she could easily become a perfectionist but is likely to be intolerant of others who are not similarly endowed, so teach to make allowances for the shortcomings of others. Give ethical and spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

NANCY

"NO--I ALWAYS LOSE YOUR IOUs"

"WHEN YOU PAY IT BACK, DIG UP THE ROCK"

"NO, BUT IT'LL HELP ME"

"LOLLY, WHY ARE YOU SITTING AT YOUR DESK DOING NOTHING?"

"SOMETIMES I WONDER WHY I EVER BECAME A REAL-ESTATE AGENT"

"BECAUSE AT TIMES I USED TO WONDER WHY I BECAME A HOUSEWIFE"

"I'M SORRY, FRIEND, I RECKON ALL THEM PRODUCTS ARE JUST FINE, BUT I STILL AIN'T BUYIN'."

"I SEE, WHAT ABOUT THE FIFTH ONE?"

"THE TRACYS, LIKE SO MANY AMERICAN FAMILIES, SPEND A QUIET EVENING WATCHING TV--"

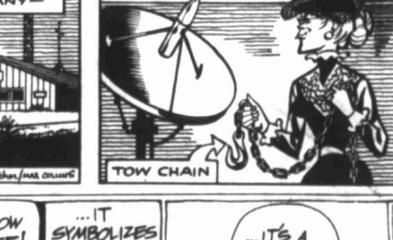

"AND TAMPA? ARE THE KIDNAPPERS STILL HOLDING HER?"

"BE BOLD! OVERWHELM HER! SHOW HER YOU'RE THE MASTER!"

"THEIR SUBURBAN AREA IS SERVICED BY A SMALL CABLE TV COMPANY--"

"WHOSE 'DISH' ANTENNA PICKS UP PROGRAMMING OFF SATELLITES IN SPACE?"

"Jib, you're supposed to use the door!"

"More pictures... or more of me?"

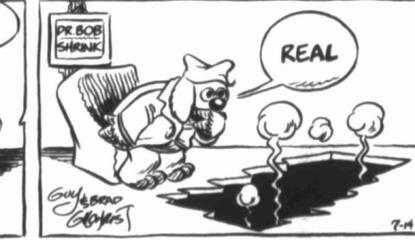

"A BOWL!... HOW APPROPRIATE!"

"...IT SYMBOLIZES PLENTY FOR ALL!"

"IS MY WEIGHT PROBLEM REAL OR IMAGINARY?"

"REAL"

"THE SLIGHTEST THING GETS YOU DOWN; IT DIDN'T USED TO JUST STOP ANY THINK OF ALL WE WENT THROUGH OVER THE YEARS..."

"THE THING WE WENT THROUGH... MOST WAS MY MONEY"

"I DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO WITH MY WALLET WHEN I TAKE A SHOWER"

"YOU DON'T TRUST ME!!"

"I'D LIKE 5 CLAMS WORTH OF RAIN."

"...UH... THE VERTICAL IS 5 CLAMS EXTRA."

Senior Leaguers win in Abilene

— Jack Nicklaus, USA, (left) and Tom Weiskopf, USA, discuss the course here today, where they will both play in the Open Golf Championship starting on July 15th. Weiskopf won the Championship at Troon in 1973, while Nicklaus has won the Championship three times.

ABILENE — The Big Spring 13-year-old Senior All-Stars whipped Abilene North Eastern 14-7 Tuesday night to remain undefeated in the regional tournament being played here.

Meanwhile, the 14-15-year-old All-Stars dropped a 1-0 decision to Abilene Senior. They face elimination in the tournament when they play again tonight at 8 p.m. against Winters.

Mitch Griffin drove in three runs with a double and single while Jerry Paradez and Carey Fraser each drove in two runs to pace the Big Spring all-stars in the win over North Eastern. In the third inning Griffin rapped a bases-loaded double to send Big Spring into a 7-7 tie.

The locals then fell behind 11-7 in the fourth but scored seven times to take the lead for good.

Big Spring won its open 17-11 Monday night over Anson. Mike Sparks tossed the victory in that game.

Paradez again was the key man at the plate, driving in five runs with a single and double. John Hart drove in three runs with three singles while Griffin, Sparks and Deeg Young each collected two RBI's. Oddly enough, all 17 runs were scored in the first inning.

Big Spring tests unbeaten Abilene Thursday at 8 p.m.

For the 14-15 all-stars things were so sweet. With game tied 0-0, Abilene began a rally. A fly ball went between center fielder Tommy Gartman and right fielder Doug Walker. The ball almost fell between the two but Gartman made a stab at it but couldn't get it to stick in his glove. A run scored on the miscue to give Abilene the victory.

Jay Pirkle tripled in the first inning but was left stranded. The only other Big Spring hits were by Chris Harwood and Chris Lamb as Abilene's Don Hood tossed a three-bitter and struck out 14 batters.

Mark Walker fanned nine Abilene batters.

Watson, Golden Bear meet again in Britain

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson, on the list of the walking wounded earlier in the week, are on the mend and ready to hook up in another duel, this time in the 111th British Open golf championship.

The ancient event begins its 72-hole run Thursday on the Royal Troon Links, stretching some 7,067 yards through gorse and heather along the Firth of Clyde. The most international of all the world's major events, it has drawn a field of 150 players from 27 nations.

Aside from the host British, the largest contingent, 32, is from the United States, the nation that has dominated this event in the years since World War II.

Leading that deeply talented contingent are Nicklaus and Watson, who engaged in a final holes confrontation for the U.S. Open only four weeks ago, with Watson winning on a dramatic, chip-in birdie on the 71st hole.

And, it would be no surprise if, when the British Open comes down to its last few holes Sunday afternoon, it is still another Nicklaus-Watson matchup.

Recent history says it's very likely. Either Nicklaus or Watson has been first or second in six of the last seven British Opens and, in 1977, only a few miles down the coast, engaged in that incredible shootout at Turnberry, with Nicklaus playing the last two rounds 65-66 and losing to Watson's closing 65-65.

Britain's legal bookies agree it could happen again. On the eve of the championship, Watson was installed as the 4-1 favorite and Nicklaus listed as the second choice at 5-1.

Each is seeking a fourth British Open title, which would match the most by an American. And each comes into this one with his game in order, with confidence and enthusiasm high and despite a scare early in the week with no physical problems.

Watson skipped practice Sunday with the recurrence of a chronic problem with the little finger on his left hand. He couldn't grip the club.

"Everything's fine now," he said Wednesday, however. "I just took some aspirin and it cleared up. I've been able to play practice rounds the last two days. No trouble."

Nicklaus, too, had some physical problems.

"I had a touch of the flu over the weekend," he said Wednesday. "I'm over it now. Just a little weak, and that's clearing up, too." Watson, now the winner of six major professional titles, has taken three American events this season, is second on the year's money-winning list.

Spurs may lose play of Corzine

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs may lose the services of towering center Dave "Lumberjack" Corzine, a free agent who has agreed to the terms of a reported multi-million dollar offer by the New Jersey Nets.

A Nets spokesman confirmed Tuesday that Corzine had signed an offer sheet. She declined to discuss terms of the offer that three San Antonio newspapers reported was a five-year contract for $650,000 a year.

Corzine's agent, Herb Rudy of Chicago, said the New Jersey offer would be sent to the Spurs in "the next few days." But he said Spurs president Angelo Drossos has shown little enthusiasm for matching the offer.

"We're going to have to have a cap on salaries or complete revenue-sharing so that the teams in smaller markets can compete," Drossos complained after hearing reports of the high salary offer by the Nets.

The 6-foot-11, 265-pound Corzine averaged 10.1 points and 27 minutes a game as starting Spurs center George Johnson's backup. He led the Spurs in rebounding with 7.8 a game.
