SWCID tuition hiked 2,000 percent

DR. CHARLES HAYS
...explains tuition hike

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Big Spring's SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf received a harsh blow yesterday when tuition for out-of-state students set by the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System at $8,750 per year was confirmed by the Lt. Governor Bill Hobby's office.

"We're going to experience a terrific setback," said Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District. "I anticipate we're going to have somewhere around 50 to 60 students this fall at SWCID, instead of the 180 that we hoped for."

Out of the 180 students, 107 were expected to be out-of-state students, he said.

Without the out-of-state students, Hays said, "Our chances of getting federal appropriations will be severely limited, if not completely eliminated."

"It looks bad, but we're optimistic," Hays said. "Even though we may, indeed, lose most of our out-of-state students, we think that by good hard work between now and January, we can pick up another 50 to 60 Texas residents."

THE 2,000 PERCENT increase from the old tuition rate of $400 per year for out-of-state students came about as a result of Texas Senate Bill 892, co-authored by Senator Chet Brooks and Lt. Governor Hobby, which states the estimated cost of educating a student, not including room and board, and set the tuition at a level that will result in the institution collecting that amount.

The bill also says if the SWCID board doesn't abide by the ruling, SWCID will no longer be eligible for appropriated monies. "That's the teeth that were put in the thing," said Hays.

The legislation came into effect in May 1981.

WHY WASN'T something said or done about it then?

Hays received an advance copy of the bill, and went through it making note of several portions with which he did not agree.

"After I got through making my points, I picked up the phone and called Senator Brooks' top administrative aide, who was in charge of this particular bill for the senator," Hays said, "and I explained those points that I thought were really going to cause us some problems."

"He told me that it was the intent of the legislature that taxpayers in Texas ought not have to pay to educate people from out of state," Hays said. Hays said he had little quarrel with that reasoning, but he felt the difference in resident and non-resident tuition was extreme.

Nearly every SWCID student is sponsored by a state vocational rehabilitation person, Hays said. The rehab centers will pay "about $550" per semester for a student's education, he said.

"Now remember that this $8,750 is only tuition and fees — it has nothing to do with room and books — so you add another $1,650 to that," he said. "So you're looking at somewhere around $10,000 (for a year at school). You can expect a rehab counselor to authorize somewhere around $1,200. The kids are going to have to come up with the rest of it."

On July 27, Hays provided the Coordinating Board with the estimated operating budget and enrollment figures. The SWCID operating budget of $1,575,000 — divided by the anticipated 180 students — resulted in the $8,750 cost per student. Hays' letter also explained the possible effects on SWCID.

WHY NOT write sooner?

"They didn't ask me to," said Hays, "and I was not about to ask them to write this letter to me, because I knew by then that it (out-of-state tuition) was going to be high. The law states that I don't have to respond until I get that letter from the coordinating board. I was just hoping that they might not send it, but they did."

The board set the tuition on Aug. 4. Dr. Bill Webb, deputy commissioner for financial planning for the coordinating board, and the only member of the board intimately familiar with SWCID's situation, is currently enroute back to Austin from an educators' conference in Seattle and cannot be contacted for comment. The rest of the board is reluctant to comment because they are not familiar with the details of the case.

Hays said he and the staff at SWCID examined several possibilities to enable the students to sidestep the astronomical tuition, but none proved

Hays found no alternative

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Dr. Charles Hays and the staff at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf examined several alternatives to the 2,000 percent increase in tuition before receiving the final decree from the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System yesterday.

None of the possibilities proved to be a viable alternative to the $8,750 tuition per year set by the Coordinating Board for out-of-state students at SWCID.

The first possibility considered was financial aid from the college itself or the federal government.

"Even though we could put all our financial aid packages together," Hays said, "many of these kids can't qualify for federal aid and our financial aid packages. Some of them come from families which make pretty good money."

Another alternative examined by the staff hinged on a point of law.

"There is a law on the books," said Hays, "that says if you give a student a competitive scholarship, like an athlete, or choir, or band, or journalism, or whatever, those individuals that get that scholarship are exempt from out-of-state tuition."

"So, what we said we'll do is that we'll give every stinking one of them from out-of-state a competitive scholarship," he said. However, a state university that adopted the same stance a couple of years ago had to reimburse the state's money when the state auditor "nailed them," Hays said. "If we were to do that at this rate," Hays said, "the college would have to cough up $996,000. We can't afford to take that kind of a chance."

"Also, we researched the possibility of enrolling the out-of-state students in Howard College," said Hays. The law — which originated as Senate Bill 892 — only pertains to SWCID, and Howard College is not affected, Hays said. The fee for out-of-state students at Howard College is only $400 per year, he said. "We checked that out and that won't work because the bill says you can't send hearing students to SWCID. They wrote that in there to protect SWCID from our using their facilities and their supplies for our hearing students, but in this case, it backfired on us."

The net result appears to be that no student who is enrolled only in Howard College can attend SWCID.

So at least until the legislature changes the law, it seems that SWCID will have to abide by the law and charge out-of-state students $8,750.

Reese: W. Texas deserves power

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Saying "We need some help from West Texas," Republican candidate for the 28th Senatorial District James O. "Jim" Reese pledged to "stand up and say what's necessary" to shift some of the power in Texas to the west.

"The power in the legislature is centered on a 250-mile strip from Dallas-Fort Worth to Houston and San Antonio, because that's where most of the people are," Reese told the Big Spring Republican Women's Club Thursday.

Because the majority of the legislature is elected from that area, West Texas sometimes gets short-changed in legislative projects, he said.

With his previously-established contacts, Reese said he would be able to "start way ahead and get some things done."

One of the most pressing problems he sees, both for Texas as a whole and for West Texas in particular is water.

"We need to get Stacy (dam) built," he said, adding that he had been campaigning in favor of the project since he served as mayor of Odessa from 1968 until 1974.

He derided groups which have opposed the building of the dam because they say it would cover valuable archeological sites.

"If we don't get some water, Big Spring may turn into an archeological site," he said. "We will run out of water if we don't take steps to prevent it."

He stressed teamwork and convincing the rest of Texas that a serious water shortage will occur as vital issues.

Reese spoke briefly on crime, saying "as far as I'm concerned we need to put them (drug pushers) under the jail. We need tougher laws."

He also advocated a six-year review and "ratification" program for federal judges, with the president having the power to remove a judge from office. "We need to get some fuzzy-headed judges educated," Reese said.

The Texas Legislature "faces the most important session of the legislature in 40 years," Reese said, as the "New Federalism" program goes into effect. He said he was in favor of the program, saying it would be "better and cheaper" because programs would be implemented by the states rather than the federal government. "People who need help will get it and the freeloaders will get cut off," he added.

Another problem Reese sees facing Texas is declining oil and natural gas production and the accompanying drop in state revenues by 1990 or 2000.

"The problem will be how to finance the state," he said. "There are some real challenges facing us." But, he added, "I'll never vote for a state income tax."

Reese also spoke on the illegal alien problem facing Texans. Of the recent ruling that alien children may receive the same education as legal residents of the state, the senatorial candidate said, "it doesn't make sense to me."

The flood of undocumented workers entering Texas also came under fire from Reese.

"The problem has really gotten out of hand," he said. He favored a program to document workers on both sides of the border, and he favored amnesty for those aliens who have resided in the U.S. since 1972.

Reese declined to comment on the record about his opponent, Democrat John Montford, but took exception to Montford's backing from labor groups and lawyers' associations.

WATTER WOES ON WASSON — City water crew leader Alvin Atkinson wades in waist-deep water as he works to repair a burst water main on Wasson Road late Thursday afternoon. The ruptured water line caused residents of Quail Run Apartments and Coronado Apartments — among others — to be without any water for several hours.

Broken water line disrupts Wasson residents' evening

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

About 200 people and several businesses were without water for about four hours yesterday evening as city crews patched an eight-inch water line broken at a Wasson Road work site.

Apparently Price Construction workers "inadvertently" hit and broke a water line that runs parallel to Wasson at about 4:30 p.m. while removing concrete from an old storm drain, Public Works Director Tom Decell said. Water valves were turned off about 5:30 p.m., the line patched and water service restored by 10 p.m.

Signs popped up in laundromats advising apartment dwellers not to use the washers. One Quail Run resident bundled up some clothes and declared he had a date and was going "to my mother's and take a bath."

Price Construction "was replacing a storm drain and didn't know there was a water line there. And when they were tearing out the storm drain, they hit the water line," said Greg Thomas, head of the city utilities department.

Two apartment complexes with a total of 140 apartments, Quail Run at 2609 Wasson and Coronado Hills at 801 Marcy, and several businesses along Wasson were affected.

Price Construction contracted with the city to do construction and repair work on Wasson. The company is in the process of replacing the old storm drains, Decell said.

A hole about the size of a swimming pool was dug on Wasson by a city crew to "take out some old concrete from a culvert that was too high to match the proposed specifications" and had nothing to do with the broken water line, Decell said.

Decell said he received no complaints. "That's unusual in cases like this," he said.

Price Construction will pay for time and materials, about $425, Thomas said. Decell said he didn't anticipate any more water problems because "the two areas of potential water problems have already been basically worked around and worked above. Hopefully we will not have any more delays."

Union to settle refinery strike

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — The 3,000-member union representing most of the 3,500 workers striking Texaco's flagship refinery since January agreed to a 3 1/2-year contract Thursday that includes a 9 percent wage hike in 1982.

A majority of the members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Local 4-23 voted to accept the contract offered by Texaco management, union spokesmen said.

Details of the contract were not released after the vote, which came late Thursday night. Negotiators will meet Saturday to complete details on the approved contract proposal.

The union said it will not return to work until three other unions representing 500 workers agree to the contract.

Texaco has been operating the plant with supervisory personnel, spokesman Charles Rentz said.

Larry Stefflen, chairman of the union's workman's committee, said all court cases relating to the company's pension plan will be settled out of court.

Stefflen said many workers still harbored "hard feelings" toward Texaco as a result of the strike.

Rentz said after the vote, "We are pleased with the agreement. We feel the settlement in the best interests of the company, the employees and the community."

The contract also includes an across-the-board 90-cent per hour wage increase effective June 15, 1983.

Texaco and the union also compromised on an early retirement program proposed by the company to cut back on the work force at the refinery because of a decrease in oil consumption.

He reported two holes in the wall of the front room and one hole in the wall behind the front door. Lucero also told police that $80 in $20 bills and $25 in coins were stolen along with assorted clothes and towels. Lucero estimated the total loss to be $280.

McCarty and a passenger in the car were taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by Shaffer Ambulance and were treated and released, police said. McCarty was charged with DWI and traffic violations, according to police reports.

Board

won't know what the actual tax roll will be," Crockett said.

"Our efforts have been to decrease the (tax) rate on the total roll so revenues will be the same," Crockett said. "People have a problem with that, when they see their values going up and we tell them the revenues are not."

The board proposes to reduce the $1.27 rate from last year to 81 cents because they have estimated the taxable values of properties will increase 57 percent. Crockett said a $1.27 rate applied to the current tax roll results in 157 percent more revenue than the 81 cent rate, Crockett said.

"We have attempted to estimate taxes for the school district at the same level. We do not anticipate increased tax revenue," Crockett said.

"Bear in mind I did not say individuals may not have a tax increase," he said.

The role of the school board is to accept the value set by the Board of Revenue and then set the tax rate, Crockett said.

The net tax roll after exemption is proposed to be $629,656,350. Those exemptions include a 20 percent homestead exemption plus a $5,000 additional homestead exemption if the taxpayer is over 65. The board can approve up to a 40 percent exemption in addition to the $5,000. Also, if a taxpayer turned 65 since last year, he is eligible for an additional $10,000 exemption. Those who were 65 last year and applied for the exemption will have their school taxes frozen at last year's level.

Other exemptions are an agriculture use exemption and a disabled veteran's exemption.

In other business the board approved a 10-day contract with a semi-pro football team to rent Memorial Stadium for $1,000 per game. The Big Spring-based team is being recruited by Curtis Barnes of Houston and will play a maximum of 10 games on consecutive Saturday nights beginning Sept. 11. If the crowd exceed 5,000 people, the rental rates increase to $2,000. Additionally, the contract requires the team to carry $100,000 and $300,000 liability insurance policies. An individual contract should be negotiated with the school's concession organization, Crockett said.

In other action the board:

• Approved 17 new employee contracts, a net gain of six employees from last year.

• Accepted five resignations.

• Approved renewal of a delinquent tax collection contract with Bob Miller.

• Approved a free and reduced price meals schedule. The reduced-price meals for eligible children will be 40 cents for lunch and 30 cents for breakfast. Extra milk will be available to all children for 15 cents.

• Approved an increase from 87 cents to 95 cents as the reimbursement cost for extra-curricular transportation. The state average for a district this size is $1.11.

• Awarded bids to Bob Brock Ford for a $9,000 Granada for the athletic director's use; May and Duncan for $6,104 in band instruments; and Taylor Implement Co. for $8,525.36 for a tractor and mower.

SWCID

to be a viable alternative.

Hays said he questioned the Attorney General's office about the possibility of an out-of-state student suing SWCID for discrimination.

"How can you charge a handicapped student (who attends SWCID) $8,750 tuition and you're charging his colleague right next door to him from the same community and the same state $400 (to attend Howard College)?" Hays asked. The attorney general's office answered "the only way we can answer that is if it (a lawsuit) actually happens ... we don't know until it happens," he said.

The behind-the-scenes maneuvering is the main reason SWCID's problem hasn't been made public before, Hays said. "That's the reason that we haven't said anything to anyone, thinking that just maybe there might be a way that we could get it changed," he said.

"Between 10:30 and 11 (Thursday morning) is when we got the final word from the Lt. Governor's office," said Hays. "Until I got that, I really didn't have anything conclusive to say. I was fearful that if we preempted the members of the legislature by 'sicking the press on them,' then they would completely turn off to us.

"We visited with just about everyone who's receptive to visiting, and they say there's not anything that can be done because it is law," said Hays. "The legislature is not in session, and they're the only people who can change the law."

"We're asking for some $6 million from the legislature for SWCID in order to build dormitories and do some major renovations out there," said Hays.

"I believe that we're going to have to doubletime it between now and January and really 'shake the bushes' to find the potential students in the state of Texas and get them here," Hays said. "We're going to get our total staff together and every person who is a potential student to SWCID will know that we're here and that we want them. Sometimes, we function best under stress, and we're under stress, we think."

"We hope to have 100 students Jan.

1, when the legislative session starts," he said, "and that will enhance our requests for the monies that we're asking for."

WILL THE teaching staff be cut back?

"No, I don't think so," Hays said. "Of course, we're funded for this year, so their salaries are already under contract and they'll be here this year. The way I see using those people is for recruiting. If they don't have a class, then what they're going to need to do is help us get out and recruit students." In January of this year, SWCID employed 47 persons including administrators, faculty and staff.

IS THERE ANY danger of SWCID folding?

"I think there could be if we all just folded our hands and said that's too bad," Hays said. "But I'm not inclined to do that. I believed from the very beginning that SWCID was very necessary and that it was a real answer to those individuals who are not going to be able to go to college otherwise. That need is still there."

Inflation climb at 7% in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, fueled by the biggest gasoline price hikes in eight years but restrained by the sharpest food cost declines since 1976, rose at an annual rate of 7.1 percent in July, the government said today.

Gasoline costs, picking up momentum after falling earlier in the year, rose 7.9 percent last month, almost twice the increase posted in June and the largest jump since March 1974, the Labor Department said.

But food prices tumbled 1.5 percent, the biggest drop since February 1976. Falling prices for beef and veal accounted for much of the decline.

July's overall increase seemed moderate, however, in comparison with the 13.3 percent rise posted the month before.

Even with the sizable increases in June and July, inflation at the wholesale level was running at a modest annual rate of 3.1 percent for the first seven months of this year — well under the 7 percent of 1981 and 11.8 percent of 1980.

At the White House, deputy presidential press secretary Larry Speakes said the administration was pleased by the today's report.

"This seems to confirm that we are making progress against inflation," he told reporters. "This is an indicator that does show we are making progress in our economic program."

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board reported the nation's industrial production declined in July for the 11th time in 12 months. The drop, though, was only 0.1 percent, the smallest of all the declines.

Economists are still predicting that wholesale-price inflation for all of 1982 will be about 5 percent.

Buttressing that argument, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics revised its estimate of April wholesale price activity to record a 0.1 percent drop. The revised April figure, following declines of 0.2 percent in February and 0.1 percent in March, means that wholesale prices fell for three straight months for the first time since early 1967.

Overall, the Producer Price Index for finished goods, the official name for the wholesale price measure, rose a seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent in July.

If prices rose for 12 straight months at July's rate, the yearly gain would be 7.1 percent after seasonal adjustment. The annual rate reported by the Labor Department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public.

Half-day kindergarten attendance explained

Half-day kindergarten parents may be confused as to which school their youngsters may be attending this fall because of the addition of the half-day program at Marcy Elementary School, according to Helen Gladden, elementary curriculum coordinator for the Big Spring Independent School District.

Here is the attendance area for students at Kentwood: All rural students and students residing in the Washington Elementary attendance area will attend the 8:30-11:15 a.m. session at Kentwood. Students will be picked up at the Washington campus (some rural students may have ridden another bus to this campus). The kindergarten bus will then carry these students from Washington to Kentwood.

Students residing in the Kentwood and Moss Elementary school attendance areas will attend the 12:15-3 p.m. session at Kentwood. Students living in the Moss Elementary area will be picked up at the Boydston and Moss campuses and delivered to Kentwood. After school is over the students will be bused back to Boydston and Moss. The bus stops are located at the rear of Boydston, and on the west side of Moss.

Here is the attendance area for students at Marcy: Students who live in the original Marcy attendance area (base housing in the Coronado division) will attend the 8:30-11:15 a.m. session at Marcy. There will be no busing for these students.

Students who live in the former Airport and Park Hill attendance areas and those who live in the College Heights (including the former Cedar Crest school) area will attend the 12:15-2:55 p.m. session at Marcy. Bus service will be provided to and from the Airport, Park Hill and College Heights campuses.

Finance corporation given green light

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Board of Directors voted yesterday at a regular meeting to begin the creation of a Multi-County Finance Corporation to issue tax-exempt, low interest housing mortgage funds.

"It's going to take a while to get it off the ground," said Pam Hammit, spokesperson for the board. "But they voted to go ahead with it."

All other items on the agenda were "passed with favorable comment," Ms. Hammit said. Those items included:

• A resolution accepting the revised Area Agency on Aging Annual Plan.

• A resolution giving favorable review and comment to a grant pre-application from Volunteers of America for Midland Housing for the Elderly and Handicapped Project.

• A resolution authorizing the executive director of the board to submit a request for proposals for the 1981-82 Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Audit.

10,000 Poles march, dispersed by police

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — About 10,000 jeering Solidarity union demonstrators marched on Communist Party headquarters in the Baltic port of Gdansk today, but they were dispersed by riot police firing tear gas, water cannon and flares, witnesses said.

The protest erupted as Poland entered its ninth month under martial law.

Police charged the crowd as it approached party offices and fired flares and charges of water, the witnesses said by telephone from Gdansk, where Solidarity was formed during shipyard strikes two years ago.

The rioters, who had begun to march from a rally at the shipyard gates, fled the police onslaught into the winding sidestreets of Gdansk's old town, jeering and flashing protest signs.

Nuke submarine protestors vow to continue fight

SEATTLE (AP) — While 14 demonstrators face fines and jail terms for their futile attempts to block the Navy's first Trident nuclear submarine en route to its home base, protest leaders vowed to continue the fight against nuclear arms.

The USS Ohio arrived safely at its base in Bangor on Thursday. "There will be continued vigils, and we will continue to present the problem to the public," said Paula Thurston of the Peace Blockade media center in Port Ludlow.

At arraignment Thursday night in U.S. District Court here, nine protesters were charged with failure to obey Coast Guard orders and five were charged with violating a Coast Guard security zone.

If convicted, they face up to five years in jail and a $50,000 fine.

Supporters of the protesters jammed the courtroom, singing, "All we are saying is give peace a chance."

The 14 were released without bail pending an Aug. 31 hearing.

The USS Ohio, the nation's deadliest nuclear missile-armed submarine, sailed into the base Thursday morning past a flotilla of protest boats that were swept aside by Coast Guard vessels using fire hoses several miles ahead of the submarine.

One small motorboat did slip through the Coast Guard security net to circle the 560-foot-long sub, however, and protest organizers said the three people aboard made it back to shore without being arrested.

Coast Guard officials were not sure what happened to the protest craft, Petty Officer Dale Miller said.

The arrested protesters, taken by bus to the courthouse in Seattle, were greeted by about 100 cheering supporters who demonstrated outside the downtown building for most of the afternoon.

The Coast Guard said that in addition to the arrests, 17 people were detained for a few hours at the Trident base in Bangor before being released outside the base gates.

No charges are planned against them, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Gene Hoff. They were detained because their boats were being towed out of the area just before the Ohio arrived, said Chief Warrant Officer Paul Scotti. The boats were in the Navy's custody.

SEATTLE DIE-IN — About 100 people staged a "die-in" in Seattle yesterday to show support for protestors who tried unsuccessfully to block docking of the nuclear sub Ohio.

"In this situation we were sorting out people who were violators and people who were not violators," Scotti said.

No injuries were reported, although some protesters were swept overboard when high-pressure water hoses blasted a protest boat that the Coast Guard said tried to ram a Coast Guard vessel.

About 50 protesters had set out in two large sailboats and 20 smaller craft shortly after dawn to await the Ohio in Admiralty Inlet, north of Hood Canal.

The Ohio never slowed or changed its course after starting its run to the base on Hood Canal, about 40 miles west of Seattle.

About five hours after it surfaced early Thursday in the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Ohio was nudged into dock by waiting tugs as a Navy band played and a crowd of several hundred waved American flags.

Protesters who were not detained returned to their camp at Oak Bay.

"I'm disappointed we didn't get closer," said Jim Snyder, 30, of Seattle, shivering under a blanket. "We accomplished something larger. Maybe people will realize Trident is the most destabilizing weapon in the world."

A second Trident submarine, the USS Michigan, is due at the base next summer.

Cease-fire in Beirut

By The Associated Press

A new cease-fire won by the personal intervention of President Reagan gave west Beirut a respite from Israeli bombing today, and American, Lebanese and Palestinian officials turned their attention back to the negotiations over withdrawal of the PLO guerrilla army.

The cease-fire held through the night in Beirut, but the Tel Aviv military command claimed PLO guerrillas fired light arms at Israeli soldiers in the area of Aamq in eastern Lebanon. It said the Israelis returned the fire without taking any casualties.

Reagan, described as "outraged," demanded the cease-fire in a 10-minute telephone call Thursday to Begin after deciding Israel's attacks on the ravaged Lebanese capital had "gone beyond reason," a U.S. official said.

Begin announced the bombing was called off, and the 10-hour pounding by Israeli warplanes — the fiercest yet in Israel's nine-week-old drive to crush the PLO — stopped at 5 p.m.

Lebanese police said today at least 156 people, mostly civilians, were killed and 417 wounded in the raids, and they expected to toll to climb.

PLO communiques said 44,000 bombs were dropped by the divebombers warplanes and at least 600 houses collapsed in the Chatilla and Bourj el-Barjaneh camps, rendering the camps uninhabitable. Beirut radio stations said more than 100 more buildings were destroyed in the city proper, already a scene of massive devastation.

Israel reported two of its soldiers killed and 41 wounded in fighting during the 24 hours ending at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Palestine Liberation Organization official Jamil Hilal said in west Beirut today that the PLO had told U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib there are 7,100 PLO fighters that must be evacuated from the war-ravaged Lebanese capital.

Habib also has a breakdown of how many guerrillas will go to each Arab host country, "but I don't have this breakdown," Hilal told reporters. Estimates of the PLO strength in Beirut had ranged from 6,000 to 9,000 and Israel has demanded an accurate count.

Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, a key intermediary in Habib's peace effort, was impressed by the speed and firmness with which Reagan won the cease-fire, and is expected to resume the talks he suspended Thursday, sources close to Wazzan said.

Israeli newspapers quoted Prime Minister Menachem Begin as saying he still was confident the PLO evacuation would begin next week.

The Israelis warned that the cease-fire "depends on mutuality." But Radio Israel said Begin and his Cabinet decided to take no action that might endanger the diplomatic process which the fourth successive day of devastating Israeli bombardment brought to a halt.

Because of the bombing, Lebanese officials suspended Habib's evacuation negotiations, in which they act as intermediaries with the PLO. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan emphasized to Begin that Habib's efforts had been halted "when they were at the point of success."

"The president expressed his outrage over this latest round of massive military action" and "made it clear that it is imperative that the cease-fire in place be observed absolutely in order for negotiations to proceed," Speakes reported.

Wazzan said the "unwarranted and unprovoked" air attacks were "clear proof that Israel is determined to destroy" Beirut.

The United States joined the other 14 members of the U.N. Security Council in unanimous approval Thursday night of a resolution demanding strict observance of a cease-fire and Israeli cooperation in allowing U.N. observers to operate in Beirut.

The Security Council also demanded Israel lift its three-week-old blockade of food, fuel and water to west Beirut, but Israeli soldiers continued to bar these supplies from the Moslem-dominated sector today.

Ex-manager robs bank, kills self

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — The masked man who herded five bank tellers at gunpoint into a vault, demanded money and then shot himself dead after being cornered by police, turned out to be the bank's former manager.

Davis Nelson Stevens, 39, had resigned his job at the bank two months ago. He had been manager of the Conway branch of Conway National Bank until 1981, when he became security chief of the bank.

"I just could not accept it," head teller Jan Dembnicki said after learning the identity of the man who had held her and the other tellers at gunpoint. "As far as I'm concerned, to everyone he was reputable and upstanding."

Stevens was a former president of the North Myrtle Beach Rotary Club and counted the county police chief among his friends.

The incident at the bank just north of Myrtle Beach along U.S. 17 began early Thursday when Stevens apparently let himself into the bank with a key to the front door and hid in a supply room, said FBI agent Jon Armstrong.

Bank employees began arriving for work around 8:10 a.m. Twenty minutes later, Stevens, wearing a camouflage suit and with his face masked with a towel that had eye holes cut in it, stepped out of the supply room. He was armed with a .38-caliber pistol and forced the tellers into the vault, Armstrong said.

The man demanded money, got an unspecified sum, and left the vault, telling the women to stay inside. Stevens apparently entered a small closet near the bank's entrance to change into street clothes, the agent said.

Horry County and North Myrtle Beach police, who arrived on the scene, began a search. They heard a noise in the closet and entered the occupant out.

The officers heard a shot. Inside they found Stevens, with a gunshot wound to the temple. He was taken to New Hanover County Memorial Hospital in Wilmington, N.C., where he was pronounced dead.

Official says Abilene bank suffered $5 million deficit

ABILENE (AP) — Abilene National Bank says it had a $5 million deficit in its capital equity fund on June 30 and the new chairman of the bank says any such deficit is "typically a sign that the bank is insolvent."

The chairman, Robert Semple, succeeded Don Earney in the job after the bank was taken over Aug. 6 by Mercantile Texas Corp., a Dallas-based holding company that owns 23 banks. The takeover came after federal regulators said the bank was in danger of failure.

Earney, in a campaign attacking a story The Dallas Morning News published July 9 about loan problems at the bank, said the bank was "not in jeopardy" and was "strong, solvent and financially sound." Semple said Thursday that the June 30 deficit is listed in a document stating the bank's condition as of that date, but the statement wasn't signed until Tuesday and reflects information not known to bank officials June 30.

Semple said that after the newspaper's story, examiners from the U.S. controller of the currency office identified loans they considered as potential losses. He said the bank wasn't notified of these until one to two weeks before the takeover.

Because of the newly identified potential loan losses, the statement of the bank's condition as of June 30 had to reflect $37 million set aside to cover the possible losses, he said. That figure is $32 million more than had been allotted for that purpose and dropped the overall capital equity figure to a deficit of $5 million, he said.

The terms for the federal approval of Mercantile's acquisition of Abilene National included that Mercantile Texas would immediately pump $20 million into the bank.

"The federal regulators' philosophy is that a bank should always have sufficient capital to support the level of loans, other investments and deposits," Semple said. "And they felt Abilene National did not meet that requirement."

Semple said that with the capital from Mercantile Texas, Abilene National's total equity capital is now about $15 million. He noted that that does not include money that might be recovered from the reserve for loan losses, he said.

In addition to the money added by Mercantile, the bank also got a five-year, $50 million deposit from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. FDIC officials said that the terms of the deposit — according to an estimated based on current rates — mean the loss of $11 million in interest for the FDIC.

Semple said he is aware of no indication that Earney and the other bank officers knew on June 30 or in early July that the bank's condition was as bad as portrayed in the statement of condition filed Wednesday. Earney could not be reached for comment Thursday.

According to Earney, Abilene National lost $50 million in deposits the day the Dallas Morning News story was published, and he blamed the story for the flood of withdrawals. Earney said the story exaggerated the bank's loan problems.

Mexicans protest 60% inflation

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of demonstrators marched through downtown Mexico City Thursday night protesting the cost of living that has soared with an inflation rate of 60 percent.

An estimated 8,000-10,000 people carrying banners and chanting anti-government slogans tied up rush-hour traffic for an hour beginning at 5:30 p.m. The march began at the Monument to the Revolution, turned onto Paseo de Reforma, the city's major boulevard, and ended at the Labor Ministry.

Many banners read, "Down with Prices, Up with Wages."

The march was led by hundreds of members of the Mexican Unified Socialist Party carrying red-and-yellow banners decorated with emblems of the hammer and sickle. The party, Mexico's largest left-wing group, won six percent of the vote in the general election July 4.

The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party won 74 percent, with the remaining votes scattered among other parties.

Lions Clubs are knights of blind

Since its founding in 1917, Lions Clubs International has been best known for its help to the blind and sight-impaired. The efforts of Lions Clubs in this area gained even greater impetus in 1925, when Helen Keller asked the Lions to become her "Knights of the blind in the crusade against darkness."

The more than 1.3 million Lions in 153 countries worldwide now help the deaf as well as the blind; build and maintain community facilities such as parks and playgrounds; sponsor vocational training in underdeveloped countries; drill wells and provide food in drought-stricken areas; and in countless other ways fulfill their commitment to community service.

BUT EVEN WHILE helping others, Lions continue to be "knights of the blind." In the United States, for example, Lions operate or largely support the majority of the country's eye banks. Last year, more than 14,000 people had their sight restored with corneas provided to hospitals by Lions' eye banks.

The Lions of India, with financial assistance from the Lions of Europe and the U.S., yearly operate dozens of "eye camps," where thousands of people are helped with everything from eye glasses to cataract operations.

Aided by a grant from the Lions Club International Foundation (LCIF), the Lions of Hawaii, the Philippines and Indonesia have worked with Helen Keller International in its efforts to combat nutritional blindness (xerophthalmia), which affects 250,000 children a year in Asia alone.

NOR DO LIONS forget the immediate needs of their own communities. Literally millions of people have received free eye examinations and glasses courtesy of the local Lions Club. Those already blind have been given braille typewriters, white canes, guide dogs and a variety of other aids to mobility, education and employment. Many public libraries also own their large-print book collections to the generosity of Lions.

In these and many other ways, Lions have kept faith with Helen Keller and remain her "Knights of the Blind."

Dusk

The old man sat on the unpainted front porch of the little five-room frame house where he had raised seven children, watching the young son of his eldest daughter play in the dust underneath the live oak tree.

All his children were grown now, gone their separate ways, and he obstinately resisted their efforts to persuade him to move from the old home place into town where, they insisted, he would be "happier."

"There's nothing there for me," he thought to himself as he watched the youngster catch doodlebugs in the shade. "I've always liked it here, and I can take my walks without someone watching me like a darn mother hen. Besides, I finally gave in and got that blamed telephone, so the kids can check up on me when they like — you'd think I was their kid instead of it being the other way around."

He wasn't sure exactly why, but he had always resisted change. When the kids were growing up during the depression — minus their mother, who was killed in an early automobile accident — there hadn't ever been enough money for the conveniences, and now he was fast approaching 70 and very set in his ways. He got along fine with what he had, and he guessed maybe the kids and grandkids kind of enjoyed going back to the old ways when they visited.

HE SPAT an amber stream of Garrett's Sweet Snuff through a crack in the porch into the dust below, disturbing the border collie lying in the shade underneath. Maybe he should have changed things some — he still drew his water by hand out of an old well, there was no air conditioning, and an old outhouse was still in use out back — but he liked things that way. It was all he'd ever known, except for his visits to the children, and he saw no reason to change it.

Oh, he'd bought a radio several years ago, but about the only time he listened to it was to hear which of his old friends were in the hospital now.

His favorite spot around the house was the porch — he'd sit there for hours in the evening, listening to the locusts, watching the chickens dash about the yard in pursuit of Junebugs and thinking about times, people and places past. With nightfall, he'd raise his tall, lanky frame out the straight-backed, twine-bottomed chair and go inside to his concave nest of a bed.

The youngster, who had tired of disturbing the doodlebugs in their dusty funnel-shaped homes and was enticing the chickens to follow a hookless fishing lure through the grass, came out here often. The two of them sometimes sat on the porch and lowered a string into a coffee can of captured grasshoppers, "fishing" and catching their multi-colored quarry when they grasped the lifeline with six-legged desperation.

USUALLY, THOUGH, when the youngster decided to go fishing, he went up to a small stock tank past a tree where the old man's World War I helmet lay rusting among other memorabilia of a full life. Sometimes the old man would go along, sitting on the bank beside the homemade diving board his boys had built and watching with bright eyes from underneath his sweat-stained felt hat as the boy wrestled with his half-pound versions of Moby Dick.

From his visits to the tank, the boy had decided that the old man loved to fish — he was actually indifferent to the idea, but when the youngster bought him a jar full of live-dead pickled minnow fishbait for a Christmas present, he accepted it gracefully, a smile creasing his face below his hawk-like nose. He kept the jar on his fireplace mantle until the boy forgot about it, then threw it away — he was tired of looking at the accusing, unseeing black eyes of the scaly dead critters.

The youngster's mother arrived, and after a brief chat, they left. The old man sat in his chair on the porch until darkness crept into his domain from the east, then went inside.

The thought that he would die a few years later never crossed his mind — neither did the idea that the youngster would grow up to remember him with love and write about him.

Is it Reagan's recession?

A year ago, Congress enacted what was billed as the biggest tax cut in history — a three-year measure serving as the cornerstone of President Reagan's economic program. At the time, hopes were high that it could produce a quick reversal of the economy's declining fortunes. It didn't. Today, Reaganomics is almost universally regarded as not merely a disappointment, but a disaster.

That perception isn't hard to understand. The prime rate is 15 percent, the unemployment rate is 9.5 percent, and the 1983 federal budget deficit threatens to exceed $140 billion. The economy is in the worst recession since the 1930s.

But this administration's economic record is not all gloom. It's easy to forget that at one point in Jimmy Carter's term, the annual inflation reached 18 percent — raising, for the first time in the United States, the prospect of Weimar-style hyperinflation. It's easy to forget only because in the first half of 1982 inflation was down to an annual rate of 5.1 percent.

THE CURRENT downturn has been labeled the "Reagan recession," but the President didn't inherit a healthy economy. It was Jimmy Carter who introduced Americans to the 21.5 percent prime rate — a record that still stands. In Carter's last year in office, the consumer price index rose by 14 percent. And the long-term problem of economic stagnation goes back at least two decades.

The price of progress against inflation has been high unemployment. But this is inevitable. Since 1974, inflation has averaged 9.4 percent per year. It should come as no surprise

BEIRUT — The overcast of war — a blinding, choking, churning thunderhead of smoke and sulfur — apparently has somewhat affected the vision of my press colleagues.

They have tended to see the forces of Yasser Arafat as heroic, war-to-the-death defenders fighting against Israeli aggression. The truth is less exalted.

The massive Israeli onslaught, which roared into Beirut and swept before it Arafat's stunned, mangled troops, may have been excessive. But the Palestine Liberation Organization came to Lebanon 11 years ago as armed encroachers, uninvited and unwanted — terrorists who came to dinner and refused to leave.

They turned Beirut into a devastated city long before the Israelis arrived to finish the job. PLO militiamen helped themselves at gunpoint to what they wanted. They used the electricity and water, the roads and schools without paying taxes.

They moved into homes and buildings, sometimes confining the owners to a small corner of their own homes or kicking them out altogether. It wasn't uncommon for PLO troops to confiscate automobiles in the streets, making sudden pedestrians of the stranded owners.

On my way to Arafat's headquarters, a PLO guard nudged my taxi driver with a rifle and asked for some gasoline. The driver, his face white with fear, quickly agreed and watched in dismay as the PLO drained his gas tank. I had to appeal to Arafat's high command to give back a quart of gas so he could drive me to my hotel.

I found Yasser Arafat in his basement bunker, smiling serenely, surrounded by the shattered remnants of his forces. He had the advantage of being born ugly. For ugly he was — stunted and ungainly, with a hint of deformity. This apparently has given him a compensating enlargement of brains, tenacity and guile.

He seemed to revel in his ugliness, to carefully cultivate an unkempt look. His scuffed, gray-jowled appearance and macho, chaotic style appeared to be purposeful, adding an aura of drama to his presence. I wondered idly how he managed to maintain his scraggly stubble constantly, as if he hadn't shaved for five days.

ARAFAT IS a magnificent fraud who made sweeping exaggerations with the air of a man of destiny. He took me on a personal tour of a hospital that had been struck by an Israeli shell. He showed me films of Israeli bombings. He spoke to me intensely about the plight of the Palestinian people.

He easily convinced me that the Palestinians are a tragic people. But I left Lebanon with the feeling that the PLO has merely added to their other crucial problems.

The first is the growing appetite of the federal government, which diverts resources away from productive uses. In 1965, about 13 percent of Americans' personal income went to Washington; today, about 20 percent does. The economy's problems, not coincidentally, have multiplied during the same period. Reagan's spending and tax cuts are intended to arrest Leviathan's growth — though not, unfortunately, to reverse it.

REAGAN HAS also dealt with a more subtle but no less dangerous threat. This is the recent dramatic rise in marginal tax rates, particularly on middle- and upper-level taxpayers, who are the source of most savings and investment. Until the second stage of the tax cut took effect in July, a married taxpayer with two children and an income of $50,000 a year, living in California, faced a marginal rate of 57 percent. The same taxpayer would pay 51 percent in West Germany, 49 percent in Japan, 36 percent in Switzerland, and 28 percent in France.

The likely effect of these high U.S. rates is destructive. Anyone who has to pay more than half of the next dollar he earns in taxes is thus encouraged either not to earn it or else to shelter it in some wasteful, loophole-protected scheme. Either way, the economy suffers.

Reagan's program is intended to spur growth through the only reliable means known: a stable currency, a tolerable level of taxation and a free private sector. Will it work? Of course it will work. But given the impatience of Congress and the public, the more pressing question is this: Will it have the chance?

Not too young to accept Christ

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am only nine years old. Am I too young to accept Christ into my life? — N.W.

DEAR N.W.: No, you certainly are not. Jesus loves you, and he wants to come into your heart.

On one occasion a group of children were brought to Jesus. His disciples were disturbed by this and wanted them to leave, but Jesus replied, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these" (Matthew 19:14). One of the Apostle Paul's most reliable helpers was a young man named Timothy. Paul reminded him that "from infancy you have known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus" (2 Timothy 3:15). Timothy apparently came to know Christ at an early age.

So don't let the fact that you are young keep you from Christ — instead learn to follow him right now. I have met many, many adults who have come to know Christ late in life, and have said they would have given almost anything to have come to know him when they were young.

Here is how you can receive Christ — and how anyone, regardless of age, can receive him into their lives. First, you need to understand that you are a sinner in God's eyes and you need to be forgiven of your sins. The Bible says, "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

Then you need to realize that God has made it possible for you to be forgiven and for you to come into a personal relationship with him. He sent Christ to die on the cross for your sins. What must you do? You must receive him by faith into your life.

Imagine that I wanted to give you a very nice gift. I paid for it, and I offer it to you as a free gift. But how does it become yours? It only becomes yours if you reach out and receive it. In the same way God has done everything to provide you with the gift of salvation.

Arafat's forces not heros

with fear, quickly agreed and watched in dismay as the PLO drained his gas tank. I had to appeal to Arafat's high command to give back a quart of gas so he could drive me to my hotel.

I found Yasser Arafat in his basement bunker, smiling serenely, surrounded by the shattered remnants of his forces. He had the advantage of being born ugly. For ugly he was — stunted and ungainly, with a hint of deformity. This apparently has given him a compensating enlargement of brains, tenacity and guile.

He seemed to revel in his ugliness, to carefully cultivate an unkempt look. His scuffed, gray-jowled appearance and macho, chaotic style appeared to be purposeful, adding an aura of drama to his presence. I wondered idly how he managed to maintain his scraggly stubble constantly, as if he hadn't shaved for five days.

ARAFAT IS a magnificent fraud who made sweeping exaggerations with the air of a man of destiny. He took me on a personal tour of a hospital that had been struck by an Israeli shell. He showed me films of Israeli bombings. He spoke to me intensely about the plight of the Palestinian people.

He easily convinced me that the Palestinians are a tragic people. But I left Lebanon with the feeling that the PLO has merely added to their tragedy.

It has been accorded the status of a government-in-exile by the United Nations. It is actually a confederation of revolutionaries — more than 40 different factions — which sometimes turn their guns on each other. In structure, the PLO resembles the American Mafia, with its rival but affiliated families.

IRONICALLY, the PLO has been training revolutionaries to overthrow the same governments which support and finance it. I found evidence of this in the rubble of an abandoned PLO outpost. The fleeing fighters had left behind passports, training certificates and other documents which proved that they were part of a worldwide communist conspiracy to spread terrorism throughout the Western world.

Strewn among the wreckage I found papers linking the PLO to revolutionary movements in Europe, Asia, Africa, South America, and of course, the Middle East. The passports showed the PLO agents had traveled extensively throughout the West.

I picked off the floor a trampled certificate attesting that Abdulla Muhammad had received military training in East Germany. Under a nearby pile of debris I found another document which appeared to be a Hungarian certificate issued to the same man.

I later spoke to a PLO field commander who said he had received his military training in the Soviet Union. He completed a six-month course, he said, with a thousand revolutionaries from several Western countries.

Rank-and-file PLO fighters told me they had trained in Lebanon with "foreigners" who later had returned to take the revolution to their homelands.

The Israelis showed me a document which they said was the minutes of a meeting between the PLO's Arafat and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. According to the Israeli translation, the two men addressed one another as "comrade," and Arafat reported on his efforts to promote Soviet interest in the Arab world.

At one point, Arafat pleaded with his Soviet supplier: "Isn't this an injustice, comrade, that I should stand facing the most advanced American weaponry with primitive weapons, whereas the Polisario has the most advanced weapons and missiles against simple Moroccan weapons?"

The truth is that the PLO had enough military hardware to equip a formidable modern army. In Israel, I saw vast stockpiles of weapons which the Israelis had captured from the retreating Palestinians. It was more than they could possibly assimilate.

But that is another story, which I will take up in a later column.

TALKING TO BEGIN — President Ronald Reagan talks to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin from the White House with Secretary of State George Shultz looking on. The president told Begin a cease fire is imperative in the Mideast.

Reagan rebukes Begin

Calls attack 'needless destruction'

WASHINGTON (AP) — After muffled criticism of Israel for weeks, President Reagan publicly expressed outrage over its attacks on west Beirut because he felt "enough is enough," a senior White House official says.

A stern-faced Reagan talked with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin by telephone for 10 minutes Thursday, saying the bombing and shelling of west Beirut imperiled the peace talks at a crucial stage and caused "needless destruction and bloodshed."

Reagan told the prime minister that Israel's latest attack — the fiercest yet in the nine-week war — was excessive and out of proportion, according to the White House official who requested anonymity. "Today was pretty direct," he said of Reagan's tone.

Until now, Reagan has been restrained in his public comments about Begin and Israel, fearing that criticism might make the volatile prime minister more defiant, and perhaps jeopardize the efforts of special envoy Philip Habib for the evacuation of Palestinian guerrillas from west Beirut.

The president's frustration apparently had been growing for weeks; on Aug. 1 he told reporters, "This must be resolved and the bloodshed must stop," and added: "I lost patience a long time ago." After Thursday's attacks brought a halt to Habib's negotiations, Reagan placed the call to Begin, and later let aides make his criticism public. "It had just gone on too long," the official said. "Enough is enough, it's just gone beyond reason."

As Reagan waited for his call to go through, he was called by King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, who expressed concern about developments in Beirut and asked the United States to do whatever it could.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan, in his conversation with Begin, "emphasized that Israel's action halted Ambassador Habib's negotiations for the peaceful resolution of the Beirut crisis when they were at the point of success. The result has been more needless destruction and bloodshed."

"The president made it clear," Speakes said, "that it is imperative that the cease-fire in place be observed absolutely in order for negotiations to proceed. We understand the Israeli Cabinet has approved a new cease-fire which is in effect."

"It must hold," Speakes said. The press aide said Reagan had been shocked Thursday morning when he learned of the Israeli bombardment.

Two administration officials, speaking anonymously, said Israel's actions threatened to undermine relations with the United States.

"Every time we have fighting of the type we had today, it makes it impossible for Habib to carry on his efforts," said one official. "You don't invest all of that and see it lost because of the actions of your friends and expect that not to have an impact on your relationship. One would think the Israelis are aware of that."

Israeli Radio said the United States had warned it would drop out of the negotiations if the attacks continued, and that the Begin government decided to halt the strikes to keep the talks going.

Speakes refused to say if Reagan raised any threat in his conversation with Begin. Sources who refused to be quoted by name said Reagan did not make any threats, such as to pull out of the negotiations or to cut off aid.

"If there was (any threat), it was very diplomatic," said one official, saying Reagan might have suggested that future attacks could damage relations.

Speakes said Reagan was aware before his conversation with Begin that an order already had been issued to halt the air strikes. Twenty minutes after their first conversation, Begin called Reagan back to say a complete cease-fire — including ground shelling — had been ordered.

Study sheds light on regrowth of severed fingertips, toes

WASHINGTON (AP) — New animal studies show that mammals including humans, can regenerate the amputated tips of fingers and toes if the wounds are not repaired surgically.

Dr. Richard B. Borgens, a biologist at Purdue University's School of Veterinary Medicine, said Thursday that his work with mice indicates fingertip regrowth in mammals depends upon the location of the amputation and how the wound is treated.

And Dr. Marcus Singer, a professor of anatomy at Case Western Reserve Medical School, said research with monkeys shows similar results.

Reports over the past decade have noted severed fingertips growing back in hundreds of human children and a few adults within a few months. But there has been little systematic study of how this regeneration takes place, Borgens said in a telephone interview.

Scientists are interested in regeneration because, if it could be controlled, they someday might be able to help people reproduce new limbs and other body parts lost to accident or disease.

Borgens said his work "strongly suggests" that doctors not sew a skin flap over an amputated fingertip, a common procedure, if the cut is above the first joint from the tip.

"There is a debate among physicians now on whether to sew the finger up or leave it alone, particularly for children," Borgens said. "My work tends to support the side that says leave it alone and see if it grows back."

Borgens said previous work with humans and animals shows that closing the wound with a skin flap always results in no regrowth and just a stump remaining.

In a report published today in Science magazine, Borgens said he amputated the tip of one toe on each front paw of 20 anesthetized mice.

The researcher made 20 of the cuts above the first joint and left part of the structure from which the toenail grows. The other 20 cuts were further down the toe through part of the joint. In 16 of the 20 foretoes amputated away from the joint, new tips regenerated and the toes returned to normal external appearance.

In the rest of this group, and in 19 of the 20 cuts near the joint in the other set, healing produced only a blunt stump, the report said. Slight regrowth was noted in one digit of the last group.

The researcher said that in the 16 cases of good regrowth, 10 had no toenail, three had abnormal nail growth and three appeared normal.

Singer said his research at Case Western with about a dozen monkeys produced results similar to Borgens' mice studies.

"We get regeneration if we don't cut too close to the joint," Singer said in a telephone interview. Borgens also said that "there is a correlation between the level where you cut, and the tissue that remains, and what you get back."

"If you leave a rudiment of what is cut in the remaining stump, such as a part of the nail bed or (foot) pad tissue, you will get that to grow back," he said.

In the human finger, he said, the bed of tissue out of which the fingernail grows extends below the skin almost to the first joint. If some of this bed remains after amputation, there is a chance the nail will grow back, he added.

"After all of these years of people noting fingertip regrowth in children, there has been surprisingly little research in the area," Borgens said.

House bans drilling for oil and gas in wilderness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists say House approval of a bill banning oil and gas drilling on millions of acres of federal wilderness land repudiates the Reagan administration's "development-at-any-cost" policies.

But industry groups are calling the House's 340-58 vote a "severe setback to the nation."

The House, reacting to the pro-development views of Interior Secretary James G. Watt, on Thursday approved the bill that would prevent any mineral leasing on some 34.4 million acres of federal land in the lower 48 states.

The land includes 19.7 million acres that have been designated as wilderness preserves. The remainder is land that is under study for possible wilderness protection.

But the bill still is far from final passage. While a similar bill, sponsored by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has been introduced in the Senate, no hearings have been held on it.

In addition, the chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, is one of Watt's top congressional supporters.

Nevertheless, the chairman of the House Interior Committee, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said he hoped the wide margin of the House vote would send "a very strong signal" to the administration that it should keep oil rigs out of the wilderness.

Watt, speaking to reporters in New York after the vote, said, "We're glad that there's some motion on the (Capitol) Hill."

But he indicated he was referring to his own limited bill to stop leasing and mining in wilderness areas for the next 18 years, a bill that has been called a fraud by environmental groups.

Watt said he was unfamiliar with the bill approved by the House. The administration has taken no position on the House bill, declining comment to reporters.

And Udall said the administration offered neither written nor spoken opinions on the measure at congressional hearings or private meetings with lawmakers.

The Natural Gas Supply Association called the House vote "a severe setback for the nation."

"The vote sends a clear signal... that the United States is not serious about developing its own energy resources... and is thus willing to remain the potential victim of an oil cutoff from politically unstable regions of the world," said H.E. Wright, the association's chairman.

But Charles Clusen of the Wilderness Society said the House action was "the most important conservation vote of the 97th Congress" and "a clear repudiation of James Watt's development-at-any-cost policies."

"The message couldn't be clearer, and I hope James Watt takes notice," said Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation. "The American people do not want their wilderness areas ravaged by haphazard exploitation and development."

The dispute over wilderness drilling has been simmering since shortly after Watt took office last year, when it appeared the secretary would move rapidly to open the wilderness for mineral exploration.

Watt finally agreed to a moratorium on lease approvals until the end of 1982 to give Congress time to review the wilderness law.

Plan sought for delivery of mail after nuclear attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several congressmen are ridiculing the Post Office's plan for delivering mail after a nuclear war, with one saying the proposal is "long on wishful thinking and short on reality."

But Jerry K. Jones, the Postal Service's general manager for prevention and planning, told a House panel Thursday that the plan is needed, although he conceded that no one can predict conditions after a war.

The plan, developed in the 1950s and revised last year, is aimed at maintaining as much organization as possible so that service could be reconstituted later, Jones said.

Retired Rear Adm. Gene R. La Rocque said, however, that "while neither snow, nor rain, nor heat nor gloom of night will stop the postal couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds, nuclear war will."

La Rocque, of the Center for Defense Information, added: "Planning for life after a nuclear war is like planning to live in hell — no one has the foggiest notion what it will be like."

Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., commented that, "You're setting up an elaborate system just to end up delivering bills. I think under the circumstances I wouldn't want a bill."

The manual establishes a chain of command so that the five regional postmasters general could take control if the Washington headquarters were unable to continue operations.

The service would concentrate on moving essential mail, and efforts would be made to assist other federal agencies in their operations, according to the plan.

Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Tex., chairman of the House Post Office subcommittee, said he questions the need for such a plan. It leads to the assumption that the nation can survive a war, when instead there would be devastation if nuclear weapons were exchanged, he said.

Naomi Hunt: Howard County's new extension agent—home economics

Howard County has a new county extension agent—home economics. Naomi Hunt of Breckenridge moved to the Spring City last week to take over the position previously held by Janet Rogers who resigned in April.

By coming to Howard County, Ms. Hunt was promoted to a larger county and more responsibilities in reaching people, county work and training agent trainees. She primarily will work with adults.

As an extension agent in the county, her duties are to help people improve their nutrition, increase their income and improve their family well being through all areas of home economics. The areas are food and nutrition, clothing and textiles, housing management, health and family stability.

Ms. Hunt will use a variety

NAOMI HUNT
...county extension agent—home economics of methods to reach people with the extension educational programs including holding seminars, workshops and short courses. She also will present educational programs for clubs and utilize the mass media.

One of her pet projects is helping the disabled consumer and she hopes to work with Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in that area. Her experience in the textile industry and in energy conservation has spawned a high interest in those areas as well.

Ms. Hunt's broad array of experience is impressive and fully supports her in her goals. She holds a bachelors degree in home economics from Colorado State University in Fort Collins, Colo. and a masters degree in family management—consumer science with a minor in textiles from Texas Tech University in Lubbock. She is working toward a doctor's degree in the same field and school as her masters. She also completed coursework at three other colleges and universities.

Prior to coming from Breckenridge to Howard County, she was an extension agent in Stephens County, a research assistant and teaching assistant at Texas Tech University, a consumer affairs intern at Hoffman-LaRoche Pharmaceutical Co. in Nutley, N.J., and worked in a cotton grading laboratory in Plains Cotton Cooperative in Lubbock.

She also was an extension agent in Brisco County, a full-time farm homemaker on a cotton farm, assistant dietician at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo, a junior and senior high school teacher of home economics, math, english and physical education in Valdez, Alaska, and a Baptist Student Union director at Colorado State University.

When she isn't involved in her extension duties, she enjoys spending time with her 16-year-old son Ken, a junior at Big Spring High School, and being involved in several hobbies including flying private planes.

They also can come up with Louise Whitaker who recently was named Hospital Nurse of the Month for August at Hall Bennett Memorial Hospital.

When informed of the award, Ms. Whitaker said, "When I got my first touch of nursing as a student learner in the Distributive Education Program at Big Spring High School, I had no idea that I would one day be honored with this award. Being a nurse is my childhood dream come true."

Originally from Hamilton, she enrolled in the School of Vocational Nursing at Howard College in 1960 and graduated in 1961. Her goal is to be the best Licensed Vocational Nurse possible.

She has the responsibility of raising three children and of giving the patients entrusted to her the best of care. She plans to concentrate on doing an effective job in those areas. When her children are grown, she hopes to become a Registered Nurse

Newlyweds to be honored with reception

A reception honoring Mark and Lyuba Tiller will be held Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Fellowship Hall of Calabonia Church of Christ.

The couple was married Oct. 30, 1981 in the House of Weddings in Leningrad, U.S.S.R. Tiller returned to Big Spring Nov. 10 to await the arrival of his wife. He resumed graduate studies at University of Texas in Austin in January. Mrs. Tiller arrived in San Antonio Saturday.

The couple met in Leningrad in the summer of 1978 while Tiller was studying and traveling with the American Institute for Foreign Study. On his fourth trip to the Soviet Union, they applied for permission to marry. The date was set for Oct. 30, fulfilling a required two month waiting period. Tiller returned to Leningrad for the wedding but had to leave his bride after a brief honeymoon.

Mrs. Tiller is the daughter of Nikolai Alexandrovich and Vera Grigorevna Martensius of Kropotkin, U.S.S.R.

The reception will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Rodney G. Tiller, parents of the bridegroom, to honor the couple and introduce the new Mrs. Tiller to their friends and family.

B&PW chapter holds membership event

Two new members were welcomed into the club. They were Mary Ann Davis and Nancy McKee. Other prospective members present were Aurora Tobias, Alice Whelchel and Catherine Baca. Members discussed plans for the March of Dimes Westfest to be held Sept. 12 from 12:45 p.m. in Comanche Trail Park and the Big Spring State Hospital picnic for a unit of patients Sept. 14 at 6:30 p.m. also at Comanche Trail Park. Plans for the Christmas party to be held at the Brass Nail Restaurant and the club scholarship program also were discussed.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. at the Quail Run Apartment Community Room.

Dear Abby

Loudmouth lover tells too much

DEAR ABBY: My lover and I decided to live together before marriage, both having been married before. Although we love each other and get along well, there is one area that I find destructive to our relationship.

My lover insists on talking about his many sexual experiences over the last 20 years. He always includes names, places and all the graphic details. I have pleaded with him to spare me these stories because they upset me, but he tells me anyway. He has even related some of these experiences to dinner guests, who are shocked at his lack of discretion.

Some of his past "ladies" still live in our community, and I have to face them. He still keeps their pictures, and I see him looking at them from time to time.

Since these affairs occurred while he was married, some involved abortions. There were also instances in which he was accused of fathering children. I want to believe him when he says he has changed, but I feel threatened.

Can Don Juans mature and become faithful? Or will I be sorry if I go through with plans to marry him?

ANGRY AND UPSET
DEAR ANGRY: Whether your lover will be faithful to you in the future is not the point. The fact is that he seems obsessed—indeed proud—of his numerous sleazy affairs of the past. Furthermore, knowing that it upsets you, he persists in talking about them. Will you be sorry if you marry him? Yes—unless he agrees never to mention his past again and keeps his promise, which seems highly unlikely.

Dr. Donohue

Doctors hit medical grand slam

Dear Dr. Donohue: Several years ago I developed urinary tract infections. Numerous antibiotics were tried. I underwent many tests and took various medications over the years. I developed a vaginal infection on top of everything. I was a total mess. I was told I might even need an outside bladder to let that rest and heal. Finally, after many biopsies to eliminate cancer as a cause, I was told I had tuberculosis of the bladder. I was 35 when all this started.

I've had two years of intensive drug therapy for the bladder TB and am left with inconvenient side effects. I am trying to adapt.

After starting the TB drug, I noticed leg swelling, and my legs are still lousy. All the tests are good, however. The doctor calls my leg problem neuropathy and he said all he can offer me for it is sympathy. I hope you can comment on all this for me.

—Mrs. P.C.R.
Your very lengthy letter had to be condensed, and I do hope I got all the basic facts you put in it. I was very interested in your story. Arriving at a diagnosis of urinary bladder TB is a very tough challenge. When it is totaly wiped out, it may come back. But it does take time. Nerves grow and repair themselves very slowly. It's just the nature of the tissue. If you want an expert opinion, see a neurologist.

take TB medication, there can be nerve damage. That doesn't happen too often. As all luck would have it, it happened to you.

Now, whether the nerves will get better is hard to say. If a nerve has not been neurologist.

Record corn crop predicted...

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's still several months from being in the bins, but the way it looks now, farmers are headed for a back-to-back record corn harvest this fall.

Based on Agriculture Department surveys made as of Aug. 1, corn production is expected to be 8.32 billion bushels, 1.4 percent larger than the previous high of 8.2 billion bushels produced in 1981.

The huge harvest could mean a further growth in U.S. grain stockpiles in the coming year and more downward price pressure on financially stressed farmers.

A department official, who asked not to be identified, said after the report was issued Wednesday that it "almost assuredly will bring more outcries from Congress and commodity groups' for sharp acreage cutbacks in 1983.

Ron Gustafson of the department's Economic Research Service said another bumper corn crop could help encourage livestock feeding in the coming year.

Gustafson noted that many producers apparently have reduced herds or have held back on expanding to help pay off debts — at least until more is known about the 1982 harvest.

"We're just approaching the beginning of harvest in some of the southern areas, and we won't be getting into the harvest in the main Corn Belt areas until September, October and November," Gustafson said.

It was the department's first official production estimate for corn and a number of other key 1982 crops, including: Soybeans, a record 2.29 billion bushels, up 13 percent from 1981; cotton, 11.1 million bales, down 29 percent; and total wheat, 2.77 billion bushels, down less than 1 percent from last year's record.

The durum wheat harvest, much of which goes into the production of spaghetti and other pasta, was estimated for the first time this season at 144.2 million bushels, down 22 percent from last year.

Other spring wheat also was estimated for the first time at 529.6 million bushels, up 4 percent from last year.

Winter wheat, which is planted in the preceding fall, was estimated at nearly 2.1 billion bushels, down fractionally from the record 1981 harvest. That was down slightly from the July estimate of 2.12 billion bushels.

Overall, the department's Crop Reporting Board said that 1982 U.S. crop harvests are rated at 117 percent of the base year 1977, which is used for comparison. That matched the record all-crops production index of 1981.

Corn is the largest and most valuable farm crop grown in the United States and, as livestock feed, is a vital element in the production of meat, poultry and milk for American consumers.

FLOODED OUT — Robert Outley of Kansas City found the going a little tough last night as he tried to get inside a car at a downtown intersection. Heavy rain pounded the city, flooding some streets with up to four feet of water and causing one drowning.

...but prices may be lower than expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revised projections by the Agriculture Department show that farmers will get substantially less money for corn, soybeans and wheat than its experts projected less than a month ago.

Corn prices at the farm, for example, may be as much as 12 percent less than the department projected on July 13. Soybean prices might average as much as 10 percent below month-ago estimates, and 1982-83 wheat prices could be down 4 percent.

"The record U.S. feed grain harvest, prospects for another substantial buildup in stocks, and low-eligibility for price support loans, will put pressure on feed grain prices during 1982-83," officials said Thursday.

On Wednesday, the department estimated this year's corn harvest at a record 8.32 billion bushels, up 1.4 percent from the previous high of 8.2 billion bushels harvested in 1981.

A record soybean harvest and a near-record wheat crop also were indicated.

The department also said the Soviet Union's grain production and import needs have not changed from earlier estimates. The Soviet harvest is short for the third year in a row, meaning that record amounts of grain will have to be imported in 1982-83.

But the report said "prospects are diminishing" for additional sales of corn to the Soviet Union before the new crop is available for 1982-83 delivery.

The analysis said the huge harvest of corn and other feed grain "will boost the 1982-83 feed grain supplies by 12 percent" from 1981-82.

Looking at corn, the report said the average farm price for the marketing year to begin on Oct. 1 is expected to be $2.35 to $2.55 per bushel, compared to $2.50 to $2.90 projected a month ago. The average for 1981-82 was estimated at $2.50 per bushel.

If the supply and demand situation materializes as seen now, the carryover of old-crop corn on Oct. 1 will be about 2.08 billion bushels. With a record crop this fall, the corn inventory by Oct. 1, 1983, could be 2.79 billion bushels, the report said.

Dawson farm tour scheduled Tuesday

The Annual Dawson County Farm Tour will begin at 2 p.m. next Tuesday and will leave from Sam Stevens Farm Equipment Business, North Lubbock Highway.

Guest speakers on this year's tour will include Dr. Calvin Orr, nematologist and Dr. John Gannaway, cotton breeder with the Texas Agricultural Research Center, Lubbock and Dr. James Supak, area agronomist-cotton with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Lubbock.

The farm tour is sponsored by the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce, Lamesa Cotton Growers and the Dawson County Subcommittee of Crops chaired by Donald Volger. Other subcommittee members are: Lloyd Cline, Elwood Freeman, W.L. "Buster" Snellgrove, Bob Hale, Bill Meares, John Palmore, Dale Merrick, Herbert Green, D.V. Phipps, Jesse Stephens, Bradley Boyd, Ela Morris, Jim Beam, M.S. "Mac" Sellers, E.D. "Bo" Adock, and Bobby Warren.

According to Joe E. Wise, County Extension Agent all area farm producers and interested agri-business people are invited to make this tour.

Crop report optimistic

LAMESA (SC) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture released its first estimate for the 1982 Texas cotton crop today.

Many industry experts were surprised at the optimistic prediction of 2.5 million bales. Although considered high, the figure still represents a 56 percent decrease from the 1981 harvest.

The USDA said of the 5.7 million acres of cotton planted in Texas this year, about 3.8 million acres would be harvested. The remaining acreage was lost to disease and violent weather, which destroyed more than 2.5 million acres of cotton on the High Plains alone.

In Lubbock, a spokesman for Merrill Lynch said the USDA's optimistic report would weaken cotton prices at least temporarily when markets open tomorrow. He said cotton prices would likely remain depressed because world-wide demand was so low and cotton inventories, including huge carryovers from 1981 were high.

Court says woman can't prove she's Hughes' widow

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman's claim that she is the widow of the late billionaire Howard Hughes cannot be substantiated because she never had a marriage license, an appeals court has ruled.

Alyce Hovsepian had contended that she and Hughes were wed June 6, 1946, in New Jersey and that their marriage was never terminated.

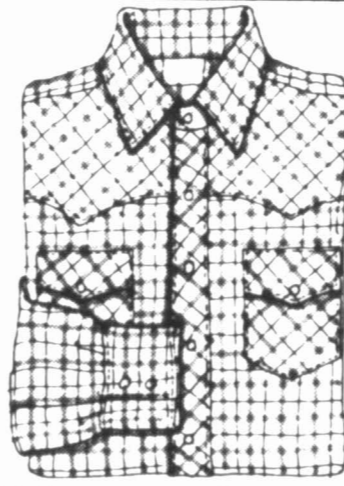

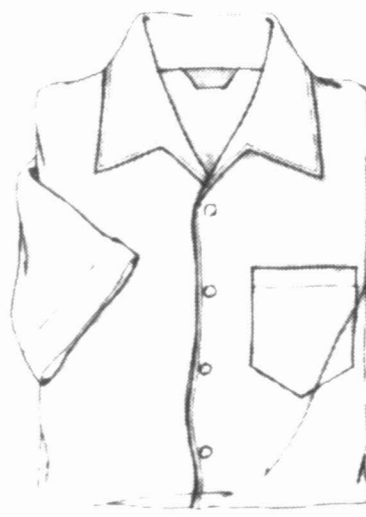

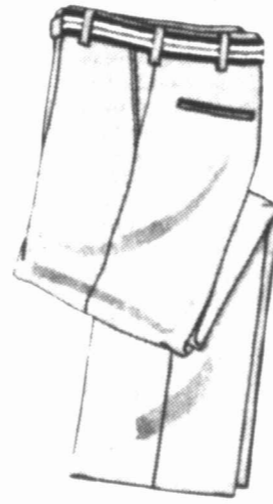

But justices of the court of civil appeals for Texas' 14th Supreme Judicial District pointed out in their opinion, issued Thursday, that Ms. Hovsepian had no marriage license and that New Jersey has never recognized common law marriages.

The opinion, signed by Chief Justice Curtiss Brown, supported the decision by quoting from a deposition Ms. Hovsepian filed.

"I did not know anything about getting a marriage license," she said. "I never applied for a marriage license. I had no intention of getting a marriage license. I did not know anything about it."

Rough week for Texas

36 died in what official calls a 'reign of terror'

By PHIL BRASHER
Associated Press Writer

A sudden outbreak of mass murder and the grisly discovery of victims of crimes in the past months has left Texas in the grip of what the state's chief law enforcement officer calls "a reign of terror."

The death count reached 36 in five days. The victims include bodies of persons killed earlier and discovered hidden in a well in North Central Texas and in shallow graves in the Houston area as well as mass murder incidents at Fort Worth and Grand Prairie.

The death count began late Saturday when Hill County officers began digging into an abandoned water well near the small North Texas town of Blum.

There were four mass murders by Tuesday, including one with as many as 22 victims — and by Wednesday morning police had arrested four men and killed one.

The outbreak of killings are "shocking" and "frustrating," according to Col James Adams, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"We're fairly effective," Adams said of the state's law enforcement, "but when you see where one man allegedly murdered 22 people you just have to recognize that police are unable to protect the public to the extent the public is entitled. It is frustrating."

"Crime is creating a reign of terror in our cities," Adams said, quoting Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger.

On Monday morning, the bloody trail moved north from Blum. As the workweek was beginning in the Dallas suburb of Grand Prairie, an enraged 49-year-old truck driver gunned down six people at three places where he worked, police said.

Police said John Parish, who died in a hail of police bullets, carefully planned his attacks. Friends of Parish said he believed he was mistreated at work — that he was "tired of being pushed around," they said. Parish's boss died as he sat at his desk.

"The man obviously had an agenda," police chief David Kunkle said of Parish. "He had a mission to accomplish."

HOUSTON POLICE said, however, a bus mechanic suspected of 22 murders in Texas, Michigan and Canada picked his victims at random, over a 10-year period.

Officers found the remains of a 25-year-old woman clad in a bra and one stocking and a second woman's body clad in panties and a bra this week. The victims were among nine women Coral Eugene Watts, 28, has admitted having strangled over the past year and a half, police said.

State District Judge Doug Shaver said Watts also is suspected of stalking and killing women in Austin and Galveston, Texas; Detroit, Ann Arbor and Kalamazoo, Mich.; and Windsor, Ontario — all because "he believes women are evil."

Ann Arbor police say they asked Houston authorities to watch Watts after he moved to Houston from Michigan in April 1981.

What happens here is that he goes out looking for people to stamp out evil, and the evil always to him appears in women, according to Jerome N. Sherman, a clinical psychologist who interviewed Watts in jail last month.

He said he has been trying to help the world since he was very young, trying to stamp out evil.

Headlines shifted back to North Texas Tuesday where a mother found her son's decapitated and sexually mutilated body at Fort Worth. Police responding to her call found four more bodies next door.

Junett Bryant told police she found her 31-year-old son, Ricky Lee, with his severed head tucked under an arm. His penis and testicles were found elsewhere in the house.

The assailant stabbed the victims repeatedly and may have shot and strangled them as well, police said.

Police in Wichita, Kan., arrested Larry Keith Robison, 25, of Fort Worth Wednesday morning while he was sleeping in a car behind a church. Fort Worth police were called after identification papers belonging to some of the five victims were found on him.

SECOND MAN CHARGED — Jerry Van Pendley became the second man charged with murder in connection with the discovery of skeletal remains inside a Hill County well — one of several alleged mass murders which occurred or came to light in Texas this week, police say.

AUTHORITIES IN Hillsboro working the Blum skeleton search are holding two men in connection with those slayings.

Henry Burton Merrill, a 52-year-old recluse described as "a mountain man," is jailed on murder charges. A Cleburne man, Jerry Van Pendley, was arrested Wednesday and charged with murder yesterday. Authorities said the victims were friends or drinking buddies of Merrill.

The mass murders demonstrate the need for stiffer sentences or even capital punishment, Adams said. "I just feel we really have to restore certain and prompt penalties for criminal conduct," he said.

Adams said he "saw a ray of light" in the execution in Virginia Tuesday of convicted murder Frank Coppola.

The news of death and terror affects far more people than its victims, psychologists say.

"There's a lot of things that happen to people who are exposed to mass violence," Robert Baron, a Purdue University professor and expert on human aggression, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"When they're surrounded by this, sure they shake their heads and of course they're shocked, but there's a desensitization factor," he said. "It loses its shock value for people."

Paul Paulus, a University of Texas at Arlington professor, agreed.

"As things like this appear to be more common, people react less strongly to them," he said. "We don't react as emotionally to them as we should."

Tarrant County Medical Examiner Dr. Nizan Peerwani termed the 48-hour period starting with the Grand Prairie shootings the worst two days for mass murder in the county's history.

His office received five shooting victims from Grand Prairie, the five stabbing victims from Fort Worth, two "routine" homicides from Fort Worth, four suicides, a drowning, a crib death, at least two auto accident victims and "several — I can't remember how many" other deaths that probably would be ruled natural.

Peerwani said the 16-body cooler was full and at least four bodies had been sent to funeral homes until the doctors could make room for them in the morgue. That compares to a normal day of six bodies on hand and three or four autopsies to perform.

"With all that, plus the pileup from yesterday (Tuesday), I just don't think we'll finish the Lake Worth autopsies today," Peerwani said Wednesday. He had stayed at the office until well after midnight Wednesday morning to finish the autopsies for the Grand Prairie shooting victims.

Officials crack down on smuggling of diesel fuel

EL PASO (AP) — Mexicans using everything from hidden tanks to waterbeds to smuggle diesel fuel into the United States have become the targets of a crackdown by the Texas comptroller's office.

Investigators say the wily smugglers are costing the state millions of dollars a year in uncollected fuel taxes.

"They use all of the imagination in the world," said Ray Gutierrez, the comptroller's supervisory investigator. "You name it and we've seen it."

"We've had people hauling sand with 55-gallon drums hidden under the sand or they'll take the back seats out of cars and put 100-gallon tanks under there. They'll build a tank into a fender. We've even seen them fill waterbeds with diesel and bring it across that way."

But the cleverness of the smugglers is only part of the problem for the investigators, who face bureaucratic red tape, greed and legal loopholes in their attempt to stem the flow of illegal fuel.

"We began to look at how much the state was losing," said John Moore, tax information director for the comptroller's office. "I've heard estimates as high as $100 million a year. I think it's more like 100 million gallons. At 6.5 cents per gallon, that's $6.5 million a year."

The attraction of diesel smuggling is profit. Sellers on the Texas side of the border can sell the fuel for more than three times the 31 cents a gallon they pay for it in Mexico. That makes smuggling fines seem like a slap on the wrist, Gutierrez said.

"These operators are telling the smugglers, 'Go ahead and do it and if you get caught, I'll pay your fine,'" he said.

Moore said the comptroller's office has filed 138 complaints against smugglers since April. All of them have pleaded guilty and paid fines of up to $200, he said.

He said the smugglers are Mexicans "almost to a man," but the sellers, who stand to make the big profits, are Americans who know there is little authorities can do to them.

Gutierrez said his office is looking for ways to keep diesel sellers from thumbing their noses at the crackdown.

"We're talking to our legal division and trying to get enough evidence to see if we can get after the permits of some of these people who are buying this smuggled diesel," he said. "We're going to try to put something together by next week."

There is no U.S. law against importing Mexican diesel fuel as long as the importers get a permit from the Department of Energy, pay 1.25 cents per gallon duty on it at the international crossing points and pay the 6.5 cents per gallon state tax when the retail sale is made.

Mexican law forbids the sale of large amounts of diesel and its export, but DOE spokesman Olga Ronkovich says, "As long as they're importing under our laws, we're not concerned with what is happening with the Mexican laws."

A Mexican customs official who asked to remain anonymous said he uses paid informants to watch for smugglers, but is only able to catch less than 1,000 gallons a week on the Mexican side.

State officials are concerned about the smuggled fuel because there is no way to confirm that taxes are being paid on the diesel brought in — with or without permits.

"In a normal United States sale, you establish an audit trail all the way from the wellhead to the pump at the truck stop," Moore said. "If you've got all your manifests lined up, you can count all these gallons and make sure everything matches."

The permits issued by DOE give the number of gallons that are declared, but Gutierrez said that information is not shared with the states and doesn't account for the fuel that slips through unreported. A DOE official in Washington said permits were issued for 405,000 barrels, or 17.01 million gallons, of diesel in 1981.

"For every reported gallon that comes across, there's probably five that are unreported," Gutierrez said.

Soviet housing

It's reported in short supply

MOSCOW (AP) — Viktor, a 39-year-old mechanic, has been divorced for more than three years, but he is still living in a cramped one-room apartment with his former wife Tatyana and their daughter.

His predicament is not uncommon. The Soviet Union is suffering from a housing shortage caused by the destruction of two world wars, rapid urbanization and — for decades — official neglect of the housing sector.

Viktor could move into a dormitory at his factory, but he prefers to remain in the apartment, hoping that he will eventually be allocated one of his own. He didn't want his last name used for fear of spoiling his chances.

In the Soviet Union, three quarters of all apartments are built by the state and allocated by local authorities or state factories. The rest are built by collective farms and housing cooperatives heavily subsidized by the state.

Millions of Soviets still live in dormitories or "communal flats," sharing kitchens and bathrooms with other families, despite a national construction program that claims to build 5,600 new apartments a day.

Many of these new apartments exist only on paper, however.

A RARE glimpse of the problem was given in April in a People's Control Committee report published in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

It said that an apartment block, "long finished on paper," turned out to be uninhabitable because it had no doors or windows, no floors, no sanitary installations and no heating.

Officials admit that only 80 percent of the urban population and "the majority" of rural dwellers have apartments or cottages of their own.

It will take at least another eight to nine years to do away with the housing shortage," Gennady Fomin, chairman of the State Committee for Civil Construction told the English-language Moscow News in early August.

Western experts doubt those predictions.

"They only think of the existing shortage, not of future needs," a Western diplomat said. "Every year newlyweds want their own apartments and divorcees want to move out of the family flat."

In 1981, 2.5 million weddings and more than 800,000 divorces were registered in the Soviet Union.

Most Soviet newlyweds start married life in already cramped apartments of one or the other set of parents. Divorced couples, like Viktor and Tatyana, may be forced to live together for years before one of them finds another place.

The shortage is aggravated by poor maintenance and the low quality of repair work.

Large-scale renovation is a major problem, judging by continuous newspaper reports of tenants' complaints.

Vechernaya Moskva, the newspaper of the Moscow city Communist Party and the mayor's office, recently reported on a case of renovation.

"When people moved back into their flats, they found that doors and windows wouldn't close, floors had large cracks and in some apartments electrical cables were hanging out of the walls," it said.

"Not long ago, one tenant, walking down the front stairs, missed his step, fell and was almost run over by a bus. Why? The renovation brigade built the front stairs in such a way that they came right to the curb."

Soviet citizens automatically assume that if they get a new apartment with bathroom and kitchen they will have to do all the finishing work themselves and that shoddy workmanship may require immediate repair work.

Many Soviet tenants still want to move to a bigger and better-equipped apartment. But the "living space norm," established in the Soviet housing law, of 100 square feet per person is no guarantee they are on the list to be assigned new accommodation when it is built.

Controllers blamed for PSA crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal safety board amended its findings today in the air collision four years ago of a Pacific Southwest Airlines jetliner and a private plane, saying that improper procedures by air traffic controllers contributed to the accident.

The collision over San Diego on Sept. 25, 1973, resulted in the death of 137 people aboard the two aircraft and seven people on the ground.

In its original findings, the National Transportation Safety Board concluded that the probable cause of the accident was the failure of the Pacific Southwest crew to maintain visual separation with a Cessna 172 aircraft.

The findings were strongly protested by the Air Line Pilots Association, which petitioned the board for a review, claiming that the PSA crew never saw the Cessna 172 and had received insufficient information about other planes in the area from air traffic controllers.

In a letter to pilots' association President J.J. O'Donnell, the safety board said it was amending its findings of probable cause.

The board said it had determined that air traffic control procedures relying on visual separation were also a probable cause for the accident. Those procedures, the board said, "played an equal role with that of the flight crew in the sequence of events that led to the accident."

But the board stood firm on its 1973 findings that major blame for the tragedy should be laid on the crew of PSA Flight 182. The board said the crew failed to maintain visual separation and failed to "inform the controller when visual contact was lost" with a nearby aircraft.

Senate debates immigration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, taking up the first comprehensive overhaul of the nation's immigration law in 30 years, began debate Thursday on a bill that would establish jail penalties for people who persist in hiring illegal aliens.

Sponsors said the measure would help the United States regain control of its borders by reducing the incentive for illegal immigrants to seek jobs here.

The bill also would set a ceiling of 425,000 new legal immigrants each year. In 1980, the United States admitted more than 800,000 immigrants, including the extraordinary admission of 135,000 Cuban and Haitian refugee "boat people."

The proposed legal ceiling would not include such refugees let in under special circumstances.

"I deeply feel that uncontrolled immigration is one of the greatest threats to the future of this nation," said Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., chief sponsor of the bill.

"Do not be anxious or fearful that we here repeat the wretched racist overtones of previous immigration reform in this country," he said.

This legislation, he said, is "simply the expression of the national legislature that we intend to clearly exercise that first function of a sovereign nation — to control its borders."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., opposing major provisions of the bill, said, "I believe we must be extremely cautious to avoid legislation that raises the level of intolerance and discrimination in our society."

Kennedy said the proposed employer sanctions could lead to widespread discrimination against minority groups, particularly Hispanics. He said employers would be reluctant to hire them for fear they were in the country illegally.

Kennedy also objected to proposed new limitations on legal immigration which he said, for the first time in the nation's history, could prevent immigrant families from being reunified in the United States.

Kennedy was the lone dissenter when the Senate Judiciary Committee approved the 166-page measure by a 16-1 vote last May.

Despite the measure's complexity and controversial nature, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said he hoped the Senate would pass it by today. Baker said he plans to begin consideration of other matters Monday.

Among other things, the measure would grant amnesty to millions of illegal immigrants already in this country and set in motion plans to create a possible national identity card to prove legal residency.

Chagra pleads Fifth Amendment during testimony in Wood trial

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The convicted narcotics trafficker charged with hiring a hitman to kill U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. in 1979 pleaded the Fifth Amendment Thursday when asked whether he discussed criminal activity with his attorney brother Joseph.

"I'm going to refuse to answer that on grounds it may incriminate me," Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, replied when prosecutor Ray Jahn asked whether he and his brother discussed any illegal acts.

Chagra spent two hours testifying at a pretrial hearing to support his contention that FBI agents violated his attorney-client privilege and his husband-wife privilege with Elizabeth Chagra by tape-recording their conversations at Leavenworth federal penitentiary.

Las Vegas attorney Oscar Goodman called his client to the stand to introduce a marriage certificate showing he wed Elizabeth Nichols on Jan. 15, 1978.

Chagra testified about two hours, but U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions closed the hearing to the public for most of the testimony.

It was the ninth time in eight days of testimony that Sessions asked the public and news reporters to leave the courtroom on grounds it was "completely and unescapably necessary" to protect the rights of a defendant.

The government previously filed a brief charging the Chagras' marriage was null and void because Mrs.

Chagra never had dissolved her alleged common-law marriage with Charles Sidney Chauvet in 1972.

Chagra testified he and Elizabeth Chagra began living together in the early 1970s and that his wife never told him that she and Chauvet considered themselves to be married.

"She told me she was his girlfriend and that was it," Chagra said.

Joe Chagra and Elizabeth Chagra are charged as co-conspirators in the May 29, 1979, slaying of Wood, who had been scheduled to preside at Jimmy Chagra's narcotics trial.

Jimmy Chagra is accused of paying convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson $250,000 to shoot Wood. Both are charged with conspiracy and murder of a federal judge.

Harrelson's current wife, Jo Ann, is charged with perjury and conspiring to obstruct justice in the case.

The government also alleges Charles and Jo Ann Harrelson were not legally married because Harrelson never dissolved a common-law union with Sandra Sue Attaway, and therefore were not entitled to marital privilege when their conversations were recorded at the Harris County Jail in Houston.

During his testimony Tuesday and Wednesday, Harrelson denied he discussed Wood's killing because he said he had no knowledge of the slaying.

Executed convict donates eyes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Frank J. Coppola donated his eyes to an eye bank after being told they were the only organ that could be used after he was executed, a friend of the convicted murderer says.

The eye bank could use the cornea to restore someone's sight or use the eye for research into the causes and cures for blindness.

Joe Ingle, director of the Southern Coalition on Jails and Prisons, said Coppola made the donation because "Frank cared for people."

Coppola was "happy to donate; that really pleased him," said Ingle, who was with Coppola until he was taken from his cell to be led to the electric chair Tuesday night at the Virginia Penitentiary.

An official at the Old Dominion Eye Bank in Richmond said the clinic does not confirm or deny when someone makes an organ donation.

Dr. Beverly Gates, a pathologist, said the body must be kept alive on a respirator for donation of such organs as the heart, kidneys, liver and lungs. The eyes do not require any artificial life support for a while after the brain dies.

Town mourns loss of 'Hobo Bob'

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP) — Robert Bittner was known here as "Hobo Bob" — a town fixture who spoke seldom, asked little and lived alone. He died after apparently stepping in front of a train, and now the town mourns.

"They would see him day in and day out. He smelled bad and he looked bad, but he was kind of the town bum," said police chief Jim Jones of "Hobo Bob."

Since then, Jones said he's been showered with telephone calls from residents asking about the 61-year-old.

Residents say Bittner apparently lived in Ontario for 12 to 15 years. But no one knew where he came from because he never talked about himself.

Jones and his men kept a protective eye on Bittner. And when a local charity wanted to give him Christmas presents, officers brought the gifts because he wouldn't take them from anyone else.

"Last winter he talked to me and said, 'If you run into anybody who wants to bring me a sleeping bag, tell them not to. I've got it already,'" Jones said.

Bittner scratched out a living by picking bottles and cans from garbage.

"I would meet him almost every morning and I really liked the little old man," said Gloria Crosby. "I'd been working up here for years and I spoke to him every morning. He spoke to me for the first time last spring."

For years, Bittner's home was an assembly of cardboard boxes under a loading chute at the stock yard. It was taken down six years ago, so Bittner moved his bedroll near the railroad tracks.

He lived there in the open, his skin blackened by his open fire.

"It's amazing. He's amazed me by his ability to sit up there in 30-degree weather year after year," said Union Pacific clerk Wayne Johnson.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE — Houston Oilers quarterback Gifford Nielsen (14) scrambles away from New Orleans Saints defensive end Frank Warren (75) during first half action Thursday night in the Astrodome. Nielsen guided the Oilers to a 22-20 victory, their first over the Saints in two years.

Nielsen, Houston top Saints, 22-20

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Gifford Nielsen saved the day for himself and Oilers owner Bud Adams.

Just as the boo-birds were warming up in the second quarter, Nielsen rallied the Oilers from a 13-0 deficit to a 22-20 victory over the New Orleans Saints Thursday night in the National Football League exhibition opener for both teams.

For Adams, it means he has bragging rights in the exclusive River Oaks section of town where he is a neighbor of Saints owner John Mecom Jr.

"Obviously, Gifford had very good poise tonight," Oilers Coach Ed Biles said.

Nielsen, who netted the Oilers only 22 yards in the first quarter, hit tight end Dave Casper with a 20-yard touchdown shot with 2:29 left in the game to secure Houston's first victory over the Saints in two years.

The Saints had taken a 13-0 lead on a 1-yard touchdown run by George Rogers and field goals of 44 and 39 yards by Benny Ricardo before Nielsen cranked up the Oilers early in the second quarter.

Nielsen hit tight end Tim Wilson with a 12-yard touchdown pass and free agent Florian Kempf kicked a pair of 37-yard field goals to tie the score.

The Oilers took a temporary 15-13 lead when linebacker John Corker tackled Saints quarterback Bobby Scott in the end zone.

Saints running back Hokie Gajan scored his first pro touchdown in the fourth quarter to give New Orleans its final lead and set up the Oilers' last rally.

"We played in spurts," Saints Coach Bum Phillips said. "We also made too many errors."

New Orleans' biggest error came in

	Saints	Oilers
First downs	12	14
Rushes yards	35 121	26 37
Passing yards	132	214
Return yards	41	55
Sacks by	2	3

Punts	5-42	7-43

Penalties yards	10 85	6 45

the fourth quarter when the Saints had 12 players on the field for a Houston punt, giving the Oilers a first down. This time Nielsen completed a 6-yard pass to Adger Armstrong for a first down and two plays later Nielsen hit Casper with the winning points.

The Saint's biggest loss may have been in the first quarter when quarterback David Wilson, challenging Archie Manning for the starting position, left the game with a knee injury.

He watched the rest of the game on crutches. Thirteen more exhibition games are scheduled in the next four days, including Cincinnati at Kansas City and St. Louis at Seattle tonight.

On Saturday night, it's Buffalo at Dallas, Cleveland at Detroit, Denver at Los Angeles Rams, Minnesota at Atlanta, the New York Jets at Green Bay, the New York Giants at Baltimore, the Raiders at San Francisco, Philadelphia at Tampa Bay, Pittsburgh vs. New England at Knoxville, Tenn., and Washington at Miami. On Monday, Chicago is at San Diego.

Players in the Redskins-Dolphins game agreed Thursday to shake hands before the kickoff in a show of solidarity for the NFL Players Association. The players union is involved in negotiations with club owners for a contract to replace the one that expired last month.

Miami Coach Don Shula said he was strongly opposed to the decision, and added that "I'll take whatever action that I deem appropriate if and when."

Shula said that what the players planned was "just a sign, which I don't think fits into what I'm trying to get done. I would be opposed to anything different that what I've always done with my football team."

Jim Miller, spokesman for the NFL Management Council, said players face a minimum fine of $100 for participating in any formal union demonstration at exhibition games.

Meanwhile, New York Giants player representative Beasley Reece said that NFL players would accept a money offer from management instead of a percentage of the gross.

"A substantial salary increase would be seen as a good offer," Reece said. "I'm sure the players would accept it even if it's not 55 percent. We'd just like a raise. I'd guarantee that would do it."

Reece said it isn't true that a percentage of the gross is mandatory. "Money is money — the formula isn't the important thing," he said.

Dolphins, 'Skins to defy rule

MIAMI (AP) — It would be a sight not so uncommon in sports, but taboo, nonetheless, in the National Football League.

Members of the Miami Dolphins and Washington Redskins announced Thursday they plan to shake hands in a show of union solidarity before the start of their exhibition opener Saturday night.

But, NFL officials say, if the plan is carried out to shake hands before the start of the game, the team members will be fined for defying a league policy against fraternization.

"The fraternization is not written into the collective bargaining agreement. It's been a long-standing league policy that it's on a club-by-club basis," Jim Miller, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council said Thursday after player representatives for the two teams announced the planned solidarity gesture.

"As far as the suspected incident, we've informed the clubs that anything that disrupts the game — and the game to mean from the time you get to the park until the time they turn the lights off is punishable under the maximum discipline schedule," Miller added. Miller said league officials have told players they face a minimum $100 fine for participating in any formal union demonstration at exhibition games, but stressed that the league would not try to keep the players apart.

And Ed Garvey, NFL Players Association executive director, said Seattle Coach Jack Patera had threatened to withhold one-half of the first regular-season paycheck of any Seahawk who shakes hands with the St. Louis Cardinals prior to their preseason game tonight.

Dolphins player representative Jimmy Cefalo said Miami players met for 35 minutes Thursday afternoon and voted "unanimously" to join the Redskins in the handshaking plan. Mark Murphy, Redskins player representative, said his teammates decided on a show of solidarity after learning that the Minnesota Vikings and Baltimore Colts were kept in their locker rooms until after the playing of the national anthem to keep the teams from meeting at midfield.

Cowboys' Walls awaits soph debut

DALLAS (AP) — Everson Walls believes he should have a bullseye painted in place of the star on his Dallas Cowboys' helmet.

"They'll be coming at me from the very first game... They'll still want to see if I'm for real," the cocky cornerback said in Dallas' Thousand Oaks, Calif. training camp recently.

As a rookie, Walls, was in the words of now retired veteran free safety Charlie Waters, "On another planet."

Walls, a free agent who grew up just two miles from the Dallas practice field, intercepted 11 passes and made the Pro Bowl in 1981.

Walls, who led the nation in interceptions in 1980 at Grambling, says he has been reminded of the so-called "sophomore jinx" during the off-season.

"I don't see why your second year should be tougher than your first season," he says. "I think the rookie year is more hazardous. That's when you get your career off to a start. If you fail then you may never get another chance."

Coach Tom Landry called Walls his big surprise of the 1981 season.

Does Landry look for a Walls drop-off?

"He can only get better," Landry says.

Walls will be on display along with the rest of the National Conference

Eastern Division champions Saturday night when the Cowboys host the Buffalo Bills in the annual Salesmanship Club charity game in Texas Stadium.

Landry believes one of the reasons Walls is so successful is his mental outlook.

"He gets beat on a play, but doesn't get down," says Landry. "Then he comes right back and makes a big play."

Walls never celebrates wildly like some defenders do when they've intercepted a pass.

"I'm like Coach Landry... I'm trying to think ahead to the next play," Walls says.

Sanchez dies in wreck

MEXICO CITY (AP) — World Boxing Council featherweight champion Salvador Sanchez had a fondness for cars. As he began to accumulate money through boxing, he bought nine of them. His favorite was a 1981 Porsche, and that was the car he was driving when he was killed in a three-car accident.

Police said the crash that killed Sanchez, 23, early Thursday occurred about eight miles north of Queretaro, a city 139 miles north of the capital.

When word spread that Sanchez, a national hero in his native Mexico, had been killed, police said "a great number" of people arrived outside the morgue in Queretaro to pay their respects.

Later Thursday, a police helicopter carried the body to his hometown of Santiago de Tlaxiaco, where the funeral was to be held today.

An official quoted the accident report as saying Sanchez's car crashed into the back of a truck loaded with two farm tractors. He said "excess speeding on the part of Sanchez" appeared to be the cause of the accident.

In a recent poll of boxing writers by The Ring magazine, Sanchez was ranked No. 6 among the best fighters in the world. He was called one of the great featherweights of all time.

Sanchez won the title Feb. 2, 1980, in Phoenix, Ariz., knocking out Danny Lopez in the 13th round. He finished with a 43-1-1 record, with 31 victories coming by knockout.

Big Spring dominates trap

SAN ANTONIO — The Howard County 4-H five-man senior trap team of Paula Allen, John Guitier, Kelly Rogers, Ricky Long and Stan Parker won the State 4-H Trap and Skeet Shoot here last weekend. The five-man hit 340 of 375 targets. The duo of Shon Parker and Todd McKimney was third in the Junior Trap division with 87x100. Rogers won the Individual Trap competition, hitting 74 of 75 targets while Parker was second in the Junior Division with 48 of 50 with Gregg Newton fifth in the Sub-Junior Division with 46x50. Rogers also won the International Trap competition, smashing 49 of 50 targets. McKimney was fourth with 44x50. In International Skeet, Rogers tied for third place with 45x50. High Overall International Trap and Skeet Individual went to Rogers. In the skeet competition, Rogers and Long were second as a two-man senior team with Parker and McKimney taking fourth in the junior division. Rogers was fourth High Individual in the senior division while Newton was fourth in the sub-junior category. For the four-day competition, Rogers hit 146 of 150 targets to take High Overall Trap and Skeet honors. These same shooters dominated the West Texas 4-H Invitational Trap and Skeet Shoot earlier. The event was held at the Windy Hill Gun Club in Big Spring's Industrial Park with 13 clubs and 100 shooters participating. ## Newsome skips out THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Running back Timmy Newsome, disappointed because he was being shifted from fullback to tailback, has left the training camp of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. The 6-foot-1, 232-pound Newsome was considered a contender for the starting fullback spot when camp opened. However, No. 1 fullback Ron Springs has improved his blocking and veteran Robert Newhouse has made a strong showing.

CATCHING UP — Philadelphia Phillies catcher Bo Diaz is up and looking for some place to throw the ball during Thursday night's doubleheader with Montreal. The Expos swept the twinnings to knock the Phils out of first place in the National League East standings.

Tiant returns!

Veteran pitcher Luis Tiant gave his wife, Maria, an anniversary present, and had a little something for the California Angels, too. The 41-year-old Tiant, who was playing in Mexico just a couple of weeks ago, hurled the Angels to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins, boosting California back into the American League West lead over the idle Kansas City Royals. "We've been married 21 years today," Tiant, who is in his 19th season, said Thursday night between puffs on a cigar. "I wanted to win as a present to her." Brewers 7-4, Blue Jays 1-3. Gorman Thomas smashed his 29th and 30th homers of the season — one in each game — to power Milwaukee to its doubleheader sweep of Toronto. The twin victories increased the Brewers' AL East lead to 5½ games over the Blue Jays. In the first game, Thomas belted a two-run homer and Jim Gantner added a two-run double to back the five-hit pitching of Bob McClure as the Brewers won 7-1. Randy Lerch, 8-7, scattered seven hits through six innings to earn the victory in the second game. White Sox 2, Yankees 1. Jerry Koosman hurled a four-hitter and Tony Bernazard drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning as Chicago nipped New York. The victory was the 12th in the last 14 games for the White Sox, while the Yankees suffered their third straight loss.

Phils drop two

The Atlanta Braves are starting to sound exactly like a team that has lost not only ten games in a row, but its hold on first place as well. And, for a team that has made up 12 games in the standings in 15 days, the Los Angeles Dodgers are acting more than a little blasé about the whole thing. "The guys are going to have to start showing pride. This is character time. We've got to play hard now. We ought to be out there busting it. It doesn't seem to me that we are. We come in here some days and our uniforms aren't even dirty," said third baseman Jerry Royster of the Braves, who lost their 10th straight and 14th in the last 15 games Thursday by an 8-2 margin to San Diego. Dodgers 6, Giants 2. The Dodgers broke open a 2-2 tie with four runs in the eighth. A bases-loaded walk to Pedro Guerrero brought in the tie-breaking run, and then Cey Pedro got the game out of reach with a two-run single. Cardinals 3, Pirates 2. The Cards went into first place in the NL East by a half-game over Philadelphia as Lonnie Smith had three singles and drove in two runs and Bruce Sutter quelled a Pittsburgh uprising for his 23rd save of the season. Expos 6-8, Phillies 3-7. The Phillies yielded first place in the NL East to St. Louis after dropping a pair to the Expos. In the opener, Bill Gullickson, 9-9, scattered nine hits before getting last-out relief from Jeff Reardon, who notched his 18th save. Cubs 13, Mets 6. Steve Henderson, who lost his job as the Cubs' starting leftfielder earlier in the year, drove in four runs on four hits — including his first homer of the year — as Chicago scored their sixth victory in the last seven games.

Craven likes leading elderly to God

By RHONDA WOODALL
Church Editor

"I like being a minister because this is what God called me to be and I just like doing what he wants me to do," Claude Craven, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said. "I didn't decide to be a minister, God decided for me. I realized the only way I could be happy was to do what he wanted me to do."

Craven has ministered for 33 years. Last Sunday marked 17 years of Craven pastoring at Trinity Baptist Church. Previous to coming to Trinity Baptist he was a minister in Fort Scott, Kan. for 14 years.

"I believe first to be a minister you have to be called by God and you've got to love and understand all the people. You've got to deal with so many different personalities and so many problems, and you've got to handle each one with the utmost care and prayer. I think this is what is interesting," Craven said.

Craven recalls his most rewarding experience as being the time he led eight people over the age of 85 to the Lord. That occurred one year in the early 1960s. The oldest of the group was 96-years-old. "I get a great joy out of teaching the older adults in my auditorium class," Craven said.

How has Craven been improving his spiritual life? "I think that the early morning prayer with the staff and daily visitation and then seeing the results every Sunday in church has helped my spiritual life," he said.

"My goal for myself is to enrich my own life through daily communication with God and my goal for the church is to see souls saved and add to the church every week," Craven said.

Craven was born in Cadow, Okla. He attended Bible Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, which is now Arlington Baptist College in Arlington. Craven preached one year in Roanoke while he was attending college. He enjoys fishing and golfing.

Craven's family includes his wife Elisabeth and his five children, Mrs. Jeanette Moody of Connorsville, Ind., Mrs. Carolyn Schalk of Enid, Okla., Mrs. Patricia Hastings of Columbus, Miss., Dana Craven of El Reno, Okla., and Richard Craven of Texarkana.

"I love Big Spring and I love the church I pastor," Craven said.

Church news briefs

By RHONDA WOODALL
Church Editor

Dr. Patrick to speak at program

Dr. Kenneth Gene Patrick, will present the sermon at "A Program of Worship for the Whole Family" sponsored by the Baptist men and boys of the Big Spring Baptist Association. The program will be held in First Baptist Church of Coahoma, August 19, at 7:30 p.m.

The Big Spring Baptist Association consists of 31 churches between Coahoma to Stanton and Garden City to Knott with Big Spring as the center point.

The program will include Randy Anderson giving the call to worship, scripture and prayer by the Rev. Dr. Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church, will present his sermon on "The Family Unit: The Role Assigned Us in His Plan for the Family".

Duet featured at concert

Sherry Overton and Annette Xiques, both of Andrews, will be the featured duet at a Christian music concert to be held Sunday at 6 p.m. in the Baptist Temple Church, located at 11th Place and Goliad.

Miss Overton is a recent graduate of Howard Payne University in Brownwood and is training to be a nursing home administrator in Andrews. She has been singing and playing the guitar for six years.

Miss Xiques also attended Howard Payne and traveled with her family for eight years to several states singing. Her family has cut three records.

Mike Patrick, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Festival held in Abilene

The St. Vincent's Catholic Church, located at 2525 Westview in Abilene, will host the "Amistad Festival", August 15, from noon to 10 p.m.

Los Amigos of San Angelo will provide mariachi music. An outdoor dance will be held in the evening.

The festival will include food, games, mariachi music, a watermelon eating contest, an egg toss competition, horny toad races and other activities. During the festival there will be a series of drawings at 30 minute intervals for prizes.

The festival will end in the evening with $1,000 raffle. First prize will be $500, second prize—$300 and third prize—$200. You do not need to be present to win. Tickets are available for $1 each. Tickets may be purchased in advance by calling 677-1007.

Paper on nuclear war delayed for more consideration

WASHINGTON (AP) — weapons have been put off to allow more time for consideration.

Chicago's Archbishop-designate Joseph Bernardin, chairman of a committee preparing the document, says the new timetable calls for developing a second draft before the bishops' November meeting, soliciting wide responses to it, discussing it in November and afterward developing a third draft based on reactions.

It then would become subject to a vote either at a special 1983 meeting or the regular November meeting in 1983.

The "magnitude of the response" already received, he says, made more extended discussion and consultation necessary.

The proposed pastoral letter's preliminary draft condemns any first use of nuclear arms or their deployment against civilian centers, and calls for steps toward disarmament.

Organization will meet at Spanish Inn

Howard County Minister Fellowship will meet August 16 at noon in the Spanish Inn.

Creators of 'Fame' hope for fame

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — "Fame," which resembles "Hill Street Blues" in style and critical acceptance, is hoping for one more similarity — stardom.

Both series opened at mid-season to critical acclaim and less than splashy ratings, and both were renewed. But the police drama "Hill Street Blues" went on to capture a truckload of Emmy Awards and ultimately its ratings mushroomed.

With production now in progress for a full new season, the ending — happy or otherwise — has yet to be written for "Fame," which is based on the Alan Parker film about talented teens and teachers at New York's High School for Performing Arts.

Executive producer Bill Blinn and producer Mel Swope are optimistic — and obviously grateful to NBC and network president Grant Tinker, who as head of MTM Productions was once in their shoes when "Hill Street" started out.

"They were always very supportive," says Blinn. "They liked what we were doing. They didn't demand any insane changes in terms of the kind of show we were doing."

"Had we been canceled, I certainly couldn't have said we were treated unfairly, but I would have been a little surprised because none of the signs that a network gives off when they're talking about cancellation were forthcoming. It was all positive and supportive."

NBC has always had high hopes for "Fame," sending out reams of press releases quoting from the more glowing reviews, and openly comparing the series to "Hill Street" in its first season. The show's regulars have also done their part, spending much of the early summer doing publicity and pushing a record album of songs from the show — there are at least two musical numbers in each hour-long episode.

A producer-writer whose credits range from "Roots" to "Brian's Song," "Starsky and Hutch" and "The Rookies," Blinn, and Swope — who produced "The Partridge Family" and "Police Story" — were brought in by NBC after the pilot had already been made.

"We didn't like it either," the two men grinned in unison during an interview in the school cafeteria set, one of many "Fame" interiors housed in huge MGM-UA sound stages.

"The series does not reflect the pilot at all," said Swope. "We're not doing the movie," Blinn added. "We're using the characters, we're using the feel, we're using the setting, we're using the drive and the energy, but the movie was in essence a kind of very well done slice of life."

"We're dealing with a lot more structure," he said. "I think our stories are tighter — we have less time to tell a story."

Actor gets gumshoe role down

NEW YORK (AP) — Jake Rubidoux is a character for those who found Bill Devane tough to swallow as JFK in "The Missiles of October" and a bit overbearing as Sgt. Milt Warden in "From Here to Eternity."

Jake Rubidoux is a tough-talking private eye, and Devane has the part — with sneer — down pat.

The show is called "The Big Easy" — it's on ABC Sunday night — and the resemblance in name to "The Big Sleep" may be more than coincidental. It's an entertaining hour of television nonetheless, even more appealing for the Dixieland ambience of New Orleans.

Rubidoux is hired off a French Quarter stage — he plays the clarinet in his spare time — by Nunally Hayes to find the Texan's missing daughter. "He gets a tip from Walker Garrett, the inevitable gossip columnist, and in no time tracks the elusive Cynthia through New Orleans' Garden District to a lodge on Lake Pontchartrain."

That's when the fun starts. Nunally, it seems, is a hired killer after Cynthia. And Jake has a new client — himself. He's got to protect the young woman and find out who is paying for Nunally's seedy hotel room.

"I like to see the good guys win at least every other day," Jake assures the audience off-camera — the sneer is assumed — "and $200 a day helps if you like eatin'."

Mary Crosby plays Cynthia and Nicholas Pryor, who looks something like a fleshed-out Don Knotts, is Walker Garrett. Real-life heavy Hugh Gillin is the hired gunslinger, Lane Smith plays Jake's buddy, police Lt. Frank Medley, and Ja'Net Dubois is Gloria, who runs the Big Easy, the nightclub where Jake spends his free time.

The lush, humid-green setting is swell, and the story is not a bad one. "The Big Easy" is a cut above "Bourbon Street Beat," the old ABC series set in New Orleans and, presumably, shot on a backlot in Hollywood.

"Hardcase" on NBC an hour later that night is a gritty, unpleasant cop show set in the selfsame Crescent City. But for a riverfront GETTING ALONG FAMOUSLY — Producers Bill Blinn, right, and Mel Swope feel a talented cast and supportive network will make "Fame" a strong success during the upcoming TV season.

"Fame," although pitted against CBS' popular "Magnum, P.I.," actually has done better in the ratings since it premiered Jan. 7 than "Hill Street" did in its early days. But "Fame" has remained in the same Thursday night time slot. The time slot for "Hill Street" was changed about four or five times during its first season.

"I think our opening rating on the pilot was about what we averaged the rest of the year," Blinn said. "We had like a 25 percent share of the audience. And that 25 percent has more or less stuck with us throughout the year. But we have been unable for whatever reason to coax an audience away from 'Magnum, P.I.'"

"We're No. 2 and we try harder," Swope quips. "Clearly 'Magnum' draws a large male audience. I don't think our show is ever going to grab a huge male audience."

"I think we can build on teen-agers; we have a good sampling of women," he said. "In fact, advertisers like us a lot, and the judgment to renew, I think, had something to do with the fact that the right people are watching, the right buying public."

"We have a commitment for 22 episodes this season," Blinn says. "That's a full season of television. If we build just slightly on what we have now, I think we'll probably get a third year. If we trail off markedly, I don't see how NBC could justify renewing us. I think if I were in their place, I wouldn't."
