ARB meetings test appraisals

by MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer
The Howard County Appraisal Review Board began hearing the first of its 700 registered taxpayer protests today in a planned week-long meeting at the county courthouse. The ARB is expected to hear approximately 25 persons a day. Prior to hearing the first protest, the board, composed of chairman Jimmy Ray Smith, Gerald Harris and J.M. Sterling, set other days for protest hearings. The board moved to convene Aug. 28th to the 10th. The ARB planned to set other times as needed. The board asked Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira why so many protests had been lodged.

"I can't explain why," Pereira said. "Some people were told not to talk to our appraisers." The chief appraiser estimated close to 2,000 people met with the appraisers from Aug. 2nd to Aug. 13th. He told the board the office would continue to meet with persons this week.

The informally-dressed ARB, seated around a table in a corner of the county courtroom, met with Roger Miller first. Representing the appraisal office was Pereira and

Local tax appraisal meeting scheduled

Howard County citizens will have a chance to meet and discuss among themselves the new tax appraisal values Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Howard County Fair Barn, according to Cecil Gilstrap, coordinator of the gathering.

Gilstrap, who said he was acting on behalf of all people affected by the tax appraisal, said the purpose of the meeting will be to discuss various alternatives for combating the new values placed on properties.

Gilstrap urged all Howard County citizens to attend the meeting, and he predicted that several county commissioners and other elected officials would be in attendance.

Reagan to speak tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan takes his case for a tax increase before the American people tonight after lobbying members of Congress to vote for the legislation he says is vital to the nation's economic well-being.

Reagan, scheduled to make a broadcast address from the Oval Office at 7 p.m. CDT, said Sunday, "I have a feeling that the economic recovery will be very much delayed and we could even see interest rates start up again if we don't get this package."

Administration officials said they do not have enough votes to pass the $98.3 billion bill yet, but are confident they will get them before the final tally late this week.

For consumers, the bill would double the eight-cent a pack tax on cigarettes, increase taxes on telephone services and on families with large medical bills, and institute tax withholding on interest and dividends.

Reagan scheduled more meetings today with Republican lawmakers and put the finishing touches on his speech. It will be carried live on television and radio by ABC, CBS, NBC, as well as by Cable News Network and The Associated Press Radio network.

Deputy presidential press secretary Larry Speakes said today's meetings were one-on-one sessions with about six congressmen.

He also said Republicans should not underestimate the importance of the vote to Reagan.

"I do think it is an important leadership question and all Republican members of Congress should realize that it is important to the president's program, important to the party and important to success in the fall elections," Speakes said. "Because that is the only way we're going to get recovery."

Reagan lobbied during lunch Sunday with a group of 35 Republican congressmen who were invited to Camp David for hotdogs, hamburgers, baked beans and a presidential appeal.

Air-conditioned Army vans ferried the lawmakers from the White House to a nearby landing strip downtown, where three Marine helicopters picked them up and whisked them to the mountaintop retreat.

As they returned, there was no sign Reagan had won any converts. Some said they were keeping an open mind or were inclined to support the administration, and others said they already had been planning to vote for the bill.

There seemed to be general agreement, though, that it was an honor to visit Camp David.

"I've been in Congress 18 years. I've never been to Camp David before, and I was impressed to be invited and grateful to be invited, may I say," said Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., senior Republican on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee and a supporter of the bill.

Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., said it was his first trip to the presidential retreat after 16 years in Congress.

SEARCH IS OVER — Police look over the car where Antonio Garza and his wife were found fatally shot in San Antonio. The couple were found with a suicide note, bankruptcy papers, an empty wallet and a rifle nearby. The couple had been searching for work from Ohio to Texas.

Jobless man kills wife, self; blames economics

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Out of work, out of luck and out of money, Antonio C. Garza and his wife left their bankrupt 27-year-old aerial mapping firm in Ohio hoping to find work in Texas, friends and relatives said.

They found none. Police found the couple fatally shot Friday in the front seat of their car with a suicide note, bankruptcy papers, boxes of belongings, an empty wallet and a rifle.

The note, which compared the current recession to the economic hardships of the 1920s and 1930s, said government economic policies had contributed to the couple's demise.

"We came to San Antonio to work, not to die," read the note in Garza's shirt pocket. "But Reagan economics has nothing trickling down to us." "I have gone as far as I can go with our lives. My wife, Kay, and I are hard-working people that have been reduced to beggars almost," police said the note read.

"Both of them were very hard-working people. They really tried to make a go of things. They tried so hard and things just seemed to be going downhill," said

Casseta Dunch, a neighbor of the Garzas in Galena, Ohio, where the couple lived on a five-acre plot for 10 years before moving to Texas last month.

"They were good people as far as I know," Mrs. Dunch said Sunday. "I would never say Tony would do something like this. He just wasn't the type."

"He seemed to be happy. Nothing seemed to bother him that much. ... It's such a shock to know those people all that time and then to hear that," she said.

Authorities said Garza apparently turned his high-powered rifle on his wife, Kay, believed to be in her 40s, and then shot himself.

Bexar County medical investigator Roy Aguilar said Sunday both Garzas died of a single gunshot wound to the head. The deaths were ruled murder and suicide, Aguilar said.

Garza's brother-in-law, Chris Gomez of Brackettville, said Sunday relatives still are not sure why Garza killed his wife and himself.

"He was a good, hard-working guy. We just don't know how this could happen," he said.

Gomez said the Garzas had been living in motels since they arrived in San Antonio in July. The couple will be buried Tuesday in Brackettville, where Garza grew up, he said.

Attorney takes issue with column

Guil Jones III, lawyer for the Big Spring Independent School Board, took issue Monday morning with a column written by Herald editor Linda Adams in Sunday's paper.

He defended a recent meeting of the board which was closed and which apparently contained a discussion of litigation although the attorneys were not present.

Mrs. Adams had maintained in her column that the discussion should have been open to the public when the lawyers were not present, in keeping with the Texas Open Meetings Act.

Jones said, "The strict wording of the statute talks in terms of consultation with the attorneys, not just discussion of litigation, you're correct there."

Gene Autry's hometown for sale

TIOGA, Texas (AP) — During an auction here in October, $100,000 worth of antiques and an oversized bit of Gene Autry memorabilia will be on the block.

His hometown. Downtown Tioga, once a famous mineral water spa where turn-of-the-century trains stopped 10 times a day, will be sold to the highest bidder.

But Autry, who said in an interview from Palm Springs, Calif., that he is still fond of the place, won't be here for the bidding.

"Maybe if I was 40 years old, I might think about buying it, but not at this stage of my life," the 74-year-old former movie star said.

"I lived there the better part of my young life, and I think you always have a soft spot for your childhood home," said Autry, Tioga's favorite son and the owner of the California Angels baseball team.

Lawyer, oilman and land developer Jim Wendover owns the Tioga town square. He spruced up the dilapidated buildings, bought a bunch of antiques, and started an antiques trading center.

Now, he says, "I'm tired and retired."

Tioga is the hometown of the "Singing Cowboy" — but a little Oklahoma community carries his name. Berwin, Okla., was rechristened Gene Autry, Okla., when he bought a ranch nearby in 1941.

The development boom that spread from Dallas to surrounding areas passed by Tioga, just as the trains did after the mineral water spa faded.

Fourteen of the 18 downtown buildings, along with the $100,000 in antiques, will be sold Oct. 2 at the bidding. Downtown Tioga will go in 13 parcels covering a little more than six acres.

"This is a big deal for us," said auctioneer Pat Long of Kaufman, who will handle the sale along with Mike I've told you. But when you have a board, the only way a board thinks is by discussion by themselves," he said.

"Now the whole reason for that consultation exception to the Open Meetings Act is to guard the attorney-client communication privilege. And if the board cannot discuss the attorney's communication amongst themselves, in other words, if the meeting has to be opened back up while they talk about what the attorney told them, you're going to lose the privacy of that communication," he said.

Jones added, "Now it's my impression that indeed what was discussed when we went out of the room was a continuation of what was being discussed when we left the room and that was the matter of the advice that we were giving them. So I think all of that is still sheltered by the attorney-client privilege and therefore by the 'consultation with attorneys' exception to the Open Meeting law."

 Jones said the reason he had not returned the editor's phone calls Friday was that "I was going back to the books to see if there have been any cases construing that, and there are not."
 Jones also questioned the source, the Media Law Handbook published by the State Bar of Texas in 1980, which Mrs. Adams quoted in her column.
 "That handbook is not meant to be a legal treatise," Jones said. "It's meant to be the very broadest of guidelines for the meeting. They don't purport to analyze the law in detail and to try to explain its application to detailed factual situations. I wouldn't read it too literally."
 The meeting in question occurred on Friday, July 9 (not Thursday, July 8, as Mrs. Adams mistakenly had recalled) and involved a pending desegregation suit against the school board. The board later, in open session, voted to reject a proposal which would have resulted in settlement of the suit. The proposal, among other things, would have sent rural school children to Bauer Elementary instead of Washington Elementary.

Howard County Fair space now available for reserve

A number of booth spaces are available for exhibitors and displayers at the 10th annual Howard County Fair, according to fair association president Paul Hopper.
 Some 20-25 booths are open on a first come, first served basis for the fair, which will run Sept. 20-25, Hopper said. Contact Janie Blissard at 263-1263 to reserve booth space.

CRMWD revenues on target

Revenues are right on target and expenses are substantially under budget estimates for the first seven months of the year, according to the Colorado River Municipal Water District's latest operational report.
 Receipts of $6,265,001 were $127,000 over estimates, and operational costs of $3,699,197 were $329,000 under the budgeted amount, the report said.
 The $499,935 spent for electrical energy brought to $2,311,428 the total operational expenditure for this service in 1982. The total is about $200,000 more than for the same period last year, when 400 million gallons less water was pumped.
 July revenues included $869,004 from cities, $37,641 from rural users, $132,036 from oil companies, $13,521 from recreational facilities and $2,021 from miscellaneous sources.
 The $3,699,197 difference between revenue and expense goes to debt service.

Applications for enrollment in the mid-management program at Howard College are being accepted this month, according to Doris Huijbregtse, director of the program.
 The program is designed for employees with management aptitudes and interests who wish to work toward a two-year degree.

 Students receive three semester hours credit during each of four semesters for attending a weekly one-hour seminar in addition to their on-the-job experience. Other classes are regular three-hour college courses.
 Persons who are supervisors or who wish to become supervisors and want additional training should call 267-6311, extension 223, between 10 a.m. and noon or 263-6525 after 5:30 p.m.
 Registration for the fall semester at Howard College is scheduled for Aug. 25-26. Classes begin Aug. 30. For further information about registration call the admission office at 267-6311, extension 234.

Appraisal

 Appraiser Weldon Peeples Miller told the ARB he paid $35,000 for his home at 103 Washington Place last year which had been appraised at $55,335. Peeples said the appraised value was based on market values in the area.
 "Would you take $40,000 for it?" Chairman Smith asked. Pepera said his office would use current market information when available. Since Miller said he paid $35,000 a year ago, the ARB moved to adjust the appraisal to $40,000.
 Miller also protested his farmland valuation, which was set at $450 an acre. Farmers may have their land valued for agricultural use or productivity rather than market value, according to the state property tax code. Miller said his land did not show the ag-use figure and the market value was too high. "Why is land in Howard County higher than Martin County?" Miller asked the chief appraiser.
 Pepera told the ARB he had reworked all ag-use figures since more than 1,600 applications had been filed the last weeks of July. He quickly calculated Miller's ag-use figure — at $116 an acre based on the $450 an acre market value figure.
 Board member Sterling protested the $450-an-acre market value, saying that Pepera had "overshot" market value for agricultural land. Pepera said the appraisal office could not do every operation individually, but used an average. "We're obligated by law to put stuff on at market value," Peeples said.
 Sterling moved to use $400 an acre for market value. The lower per-acre figure would also lower the taxable ag-use figure for Miller, Pepera said. With this motion, Miller's planned 15-minute appeal ended after 35 minutes.
 An angry Dr. B. Broadrick of 1510 Dayton followed Miller before the ARB. Broadrick denounced the appraisers, saying "You guys don't know what those houses are worth." He told the board his home, originally built for $35,150, had been appraised at $148,000.
 Armed with drawings of his home and carport and comparable figures from other homes, Broadrick told Pepera "If you want my house (at $148,000), you can have it. There's no way I'm paying $3,000 in taxes for a three-bedroom house."
 The ARB moved to adjust the home and land to $98,944, a figure readily agreed to by Broadrick. "How can people who are professionals miss 33 and a third percent on a house," Broadrick asked. The ARB also adjusted a second house on Indian Hills Drive from $79,715 to $70,000.
 A third taxpayer protest on a $12,000 appraisal of a house on State Street was lowered to $8,000 on the recommendation of Smith who said he had purchased a house on State for $8,000.
 The first four taxpayers who appeared before the ARB had not met with the appraisers in the appraisal office. Pepera and Peeples said adjustments would have been made on those particular cases had the persons met with them.
 The ARB continues to meet with taxpayers from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Friday.

Tioga

 Jones of Gainesville. "How many times do you get the chance to auction off a town? I've sold everything from beer cans to heavy equipment, but I've never sold a town."
 Wendover's wife, Mignon, said she expects Tioga to grow when Lake Ray Roberts, which will border the town on the three sides, is completed in 1986.
 "This joint is going to jump. There's no doubt about that," she said. "It just depends on how much cash someone wants to put into it."
 But some of the town's 500 residents disagree, and they also don't like the Wendovers' publicity about selling the town.
 "Tioga is just a little hole-in-the-wall, but it's our hole-in-the-wall," said Nadine Graves, who runs Joe Graves Grocery & Feed, the only old-time business left on Main Street. "No matter who buys it, they can't come in and push us around."
 Wendover, who began buying up the town in 1972, says he doesn't know how the townspeople feel about the sale.
 "We don't communicate on the same frequency," he said. "It took me five years here before I figured out what 'bob war' was."
 "Bob war" is Texan for "barbed wire," he now realizes.
 "Don't get me wrong, they're good people," said Emory Guest, 77. "I like the Wendovers — course, I don't like him so well. I don't know why exactly — he's a lawyer, you know."

Police Beat

Armed robber holds up gas station

A man armed with a blue steel automatic pistol netted almost $600 when he robbed Harris Texaco service station, Interstate 20 and Highway 350, last night, police Lt. John Wolf said.
 Robert Walker, an employee at the station, told police a man entered the building at 10:25 p.m., pulled a gun on him and took $586.82 in 20s, 10s, fives, ones and change. The suspect also stole 15 or 20 gas purchase credit card slips, placed the money and slips in a paper bag he brought with him, and left on foot, Walker said.
 Walker described the robber as a 6-foot, 1-inch tall black male in his twenties wearing a blue T-shirt, jeans. He was barefoot, Walker said.
 Police said they found a pair of shoes and a blue T-shirt inside a pickup truck, possibly by the robber, about three blocks from the robbery site. Police said the vehicle was reported stolen out of Fort Worth and had been hot-wired, Lt. Wolf said.
 Walker said he didn't see the man drive up to the station or drive away after the robbery. The suspect left the site walking east, Walker said.
 Police reports also showed the following:
 • Police said they arrested 17-year-old Andy Esquivel Guzman of 1501 Stadium Saturday on suspicion of aggravated assault and burglary of a habitation.
 Peace Justice Lewis Heflin set bond at $10,000 and $15,000 for each charge.
 The arrest was made about 80 minutes after a 30-year-old woman told police a young Mexican male entered her house, threatened her life by convincing her he had a knife and hit her on the head and face.
 The suspect was arrested on the 1300 block of Lexington at 12:15 a.m. Saturday. Police said he fit the description the woman gave them of a young male with long hair, 5-foot, 6- or 8-inches tall, wearing a light colored shirt and Levis.
 • Howard Raymond Vanstienburt, 21, of 709 1/2 E. 12th was arrested on suspicion of reckless driving at 2:15 a.m. today in Denny's Restaurant parking lot, E. Fourth and Birdwell. Police said they saw the suspect run a red light, make three complete spins and jump a curb.
 • Peter Abel, 25, of 505 Lancaster was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, attempting to flee and elude a police officer and speeding at Pronto Grocery, W. Highway 80 and Third at 4:57 a.m. today.
 • Dan and Ann Wilkins of 605 Highland said someone stole a CB radio, equalizer, knife and two eight-track tapes from a car parked in their driveway between 1 a.m. and 1 p.m. yesterday.
 • James Cabe of 1600 Indian Hills said someone stole 20 eight-track tapes from a car parked at Highland Mall between 11:30 a.m. and 12:20 p.m. yesterday.

PLO withdrawal is predicted

By The Associated Press
 U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib returned to Beirut today with major concessions from the Israeli government and Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan predicted the withdrawal of the Palestinian guerrillas would begin at the end of the week "at the latest."
 "We're in the process of putting final touches on the agreement. I can assure everyone that the gap has nearly vanished," Wazzan said on national television after a one-hour meeting with Habib.
 Wazzan, a key intermediary in Habib's mediation effort, said the Cabinet had been asked to convene its regular weekly meeting on Wednesday and he hoped the announcement of a final agreement would be made at that time. Foreign Ministry sources said a tentative deadline of Saturday had been set to start the evacuation.

Redfish ban

It's helping the fish but hurting commercial fishermen

PORT MANSFIELD, Texas (AP) — A state law enacted to protect the dwindling populations of trout and redfish in the Gulf of Mexico has bolstered the number of fish, but shrunk the ranks of fishermen, state officials say.

Fishermen in Port Mansfield, many of whom have given up fishing for carpentry or painting, say the law approved by the Legislature in September was not needed.

"The law was passed for the fat cats, the sport fishermen," said Augie Monjaras, a local fisherman. Monjaras contends sport fishermen lobbied for the law so they would have exclusive fishing rights to redfish and trout.

"There wasn't a shortage of redfish. As far as I'm concerned, the bay was overrun with redfish and trout," Monjaras said. "But I don't think we will ever be allowed to catch redfish commercially again."

The law makes it a misdemeanor offense for restaurants and fish wholesalers to buy redfish and trout from Texas commercial fishermen, although they can buy redfish from out of state. Fishermen may not catch more than 10 redfish or 20 trout a day.

Supporters of the law say it has increased fish populations that were endangered by commercial catches.

Data from the wildlife commission shows that commercial fishermen caught about 2 million pounds of redfish in Texas waters in 1974 and 1975. By 1979, that figure dropped to just over 820,000 pounds.

Recent figures gathered by the commission show that redfish and trout populations have increased about 20 percent, based on the number of fish caught per hour, since the imposition of the ban, said Gary Matlock, assistant chief of coastal fisheries.

"There are a lot more redfish out there now. You can see them in the water," said Longview sport fisherman Victor Norman. "And we are catching a little bigger fish. I supported the ban, but the only thing I have against it is that it did throw a lot of commercial fishermen out of work."

"The only choices we have now are the drum, crabbing and floundering," said Ben Carrier, a Port Mansfield fisherman. "And you can't make much of a living doing that."

Carrier said his income fell from $700 a week to $200 or less since the ban was imposed. In Port Mansfield, the number of commercial fishermen has dropped from 40 to less than a dozen, Monjaras said.

Monjaras, a weathered man who has spent his life stalking the plump, tasty redfish that inhabit the warm waters of the Laguna Madre off the South Texas Coast, said he "just about went flat broke" when the law was enacted.

"At first, some fishermen tried to sell the reds on the black market, but I don't think much of that goes on now," he said.

But William C. Walker, coastal law enforcement supervisor for the commission, said some fishermen continue to catch redfish and trout and sell them illegally.

"There has been about a 40 percent increase in illegal fishing activity. We are talking about the number of cases (filed against fishermen) jumping from about 1,000 to 1,400 since the ban," Walker said.

About 25 to 30 fishermen are caught each month by commission patrols, he said. Game wardens have confiscated 72,800 pounds of illegally caught fish this year, compared 52,000 last year, and Walker said most of the contraband was redfish.

Outlaw fishermen generally use nets, which are illegal, and fish at night, Walker said. The fish are sold to wholesalers who falsify invoices so that records indicate the fish were bought from an out-of-state fisherman.

Most commercial fishermen now are working in oil fields as carpenters, painters or mechanics, said Brownsville fish wholesaler Pat Pace. Others, like Monjaras, say they will hang on, hoping that the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission will lift the ban in September 1983.

Pace said the fish have increased because of nature, not the law.

CLEANING HIS CATCH — Augie Monjaras cleans his catch of 10 redfish, the legal limit. The Port Mansfield fisherman used to make his living catching and selling the redfish, but since last September, after the state legislature banned commercial catching of redfish, they have become virtually worthless. Monjaras said he would give this catch away.

Small town hosts 'convention' for Hell's Angels

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

OFFICER'S GULCH, Colo. — The two big men got off their even bigger motorcycles and lumbered toward each other, arms outstretched and roaring like two happy grizzly bears.

They embraced until their bellies and sun-bleached beards touched. Then they kissed.

It was a typical greeting among the more than 200 Hell's Angels from a dozen states who gathered over the weekend at this U.S. Forest Service campground in the Rocky Mountains for their 10th annual "run."

Their arrival prompted apprehension and anticipation among the 1,200 residents of the nearby ski resort community of Frisco.

The apprehension was eased when Summit County Sheriff Bob Farris brought in dozens of officers from nearby towns to bolster his own 22-deputy force, but he and the biker leaders said they expected no trouble.

"We have enough problems of our own at home. Why would we want to come out here to Colorado on our vacation and start problems?" said Al Abono of Richmond, Calif., one of the run's organizers and one of the few Hell's Angels who would speak with reporters or let his photo be taken.

The anticipation was mostly from bar, restaurant, motel, liquor and grocery store owners looking for a share of the tens of thousands of off-season dollars the bikers will spend during the 10-day run, which formally opened Saturday.

"They're real polite, a lot better than the skiers who come in during the winter," said Mary Winnale, kitchen manager at Smokin' Willie's, a saloon that was paid $10,000 in advance to feed 100 Angels two meals a day during their stay.

Bob Cook, the bar manager at Smokin' Willie's, said he ordered 60 cases of Budweiser this week instead of the usual 16. "I heard they like to drink Budweiser," he said.

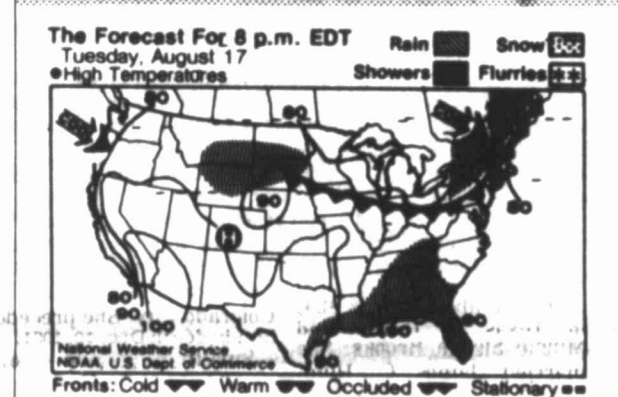

For the most part, the Angels kept to themselves, talking motorcycles and shooting pool in town or gathering around their campfires at Officer's Gulch.

Several, wearing their black leather jackets and sleeveless denims with their winged-skull emblem, were on constant guard at the barricaded entrance to the campground. The only outsiders allowed in were park rangers and the man driving the beer truck.

The Hell's Angels gathering differed from annual conventions by other business or fraternal groups in that the Angels had no formal meetings. They also brought their wives and children.

And, the Angels buy strictly American. Instead of designer jeans, imported beer and Japanese transportation, it's strictly Levis Strauss, Budweiser and Harley-Davidson.

Weather

Storms don't cool Panhandle

By The Associated Press

Scattered heavy thunderstorms from Wichita Falls northward into the Texas Panhandle did little to ease hot, dry weather developing across most of the state today.

Isolated heavy storms in the Panhandle brought .02 of an inch of rainfall at Amarillo and kept early-morning temperatures cool. But readings should reach into the high 90s later today, with a few 100s in the desert southwest, North Central Texas and the Red River valley.

More thunderstorms were predicted for the upper coast and West and Northwest Texas.

Scattered thundershowers swept out of the Rocky Mountains into the western and southwestern Great Plains early today. Considerable thunderstorm activity prevailed from Missouri and Arkansas into the southern Ohio and Tennessee river valleys.

A few isolated thundershowers settled over Virginia and eastern North Carolina, as well as around the coast of Florida and over Mississippi and Alabama.

Lightning Sunday touched off a fire that destroyed an office building at the University of Missouri in Columbia during a storm that dumped more than 4 inches of rain, authorities said.

The storm dropped as much as 6 inches of rain on other portions of central Missouri.

The National Weather Service forecast sunny skies for most of the nation today. Thunderstorms were expected across the Gulf states to the Atlantic coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 50 in Bradford, Pa., to 87 in Phoenix and Yuma, Ariz.

Polish premier sees Brezhnev; union supporters plan march

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski went to the Soviet Union today for talks with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev as Solidarity supporters planned demonstrations to commemorate the founding of their union, suspended by the martial law regime.

A brief report by the Polish news agency, PAP, said Jaruzelski "flew to the Soviet Union for a meeting in the Crimea" with Brezhnev.

The official Soviet news agency Tass noted the Polish leader's arrival and said he had come to the Soviet Union for "a short working visit." When Czechoslovakian leader Gustav Husak and East German government head Erich Honecker visited recently for talks with Brezhnev, Tass said they were "on holiday."

Jaruzelski's trip was not announced in advance. It comes on the second anniversary of the formation of a Gdansk strike committee that led to the creation of Solidarity in the Baltic port city 15 days later. Solidarity was the Soviet bloc's first labor union independent of Communist Party control.

In Gdansk, squads of riot police barred access to the towering, 130-foot monument to Polish workers slain by government forces during food riots in December 1970. The memorial has become a focus of dissent and protest in the port where, on Friday, police fired tear gas and water cannons to disperse about 10,000 demonstrators.

Gdansk was rainy and calm this morning.

There was speculation that Jaruzelski's visit to Crimea suggested Soviet leaders are anxious about the most recent civil disturbances. Police also took action Friday against protesters in Warsaw, Wroclaw and Krakow.

One knowledgeable, veteran source, however, characterized the meeting as "ritual consultations."

"They always run around like this when Brezhnev's vacationing in the Crimea," the source also said. "It's not that unusual."

The PAP dispatch did not say how long the two leaders will confer in what will be their second meeting since the Jaruzelski regime imposed martial law last Dec. 13, suspended the union and arrested thousands of its leaders.

Jaruzelski secured pledges of further Soviet economic assistance during two days of talks with Brezhnev and other Soviet leaders in Moscow, in early March.

Solidarity leaders still at large are urging peaceful protests against martial law for the next two weeks, culminating in nationwide demonstrations Aug. 31 on the anniversary of the birth of the labor federation. It enrolled an estimated 9.5 million workers who kept the country in turmoil with demands for sweeping economic and political reforms until the Communist government cracked down.

There was no police interference Sunday as scores of Poles in the capital quietly demonstrated support for the outlawed union with a tribute to its chief, Lech Walesa, who has been under house arrest since martial law was proclaimed.

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

The survivalists

Meet Joe. He gets off work on Friday at his accountant's job in Dallas and goes home to unwind with an article in his new issue of Soldier of Fortune magazine about the Ingram machine gun. Or he decides to order some newly developed freeze-dried foods from an Army surplus catalog. He considers purchasing a few daggers balanced for throwing. You never know when those might come in handy in hand-to-hand combat.

After that he practices a few judo exercises, runs a couple of miles and prepares for a weekend in a secluded cabin near Possum Kingdom honing his survival skills.

In the wilderness, stockpiling food, learning basic mechanics and mastering a variety of self-defense techniques. Self-defense is a euphemism for killing anyone that tries to mess with them and their modern-day bomb shelters.

The survivalists have given up hope and are preparing for the worst. These guys are real pessimists. Some have already plotted escape routes from ravaged cities to secluded cabins. Once they reach their wilderness havens the survivalists are prepared to live self-sufficiently.

This means arming themselves and family members and booby-trapping the area in case marauding bands of former urbanites who were not prepared for the big blast come nosing around. Plaques inscribed with "only the fittest survive" probably will hang over the fireplace in most of these cabins.

Holley said in his article that an Air Force manual entitled "How to Kill" was popular reading among the survivalist set. Holley also said there is one man in Colorado who has stockpiled 20 surplus Army tanks and organized an army of 300 men, including explosives experts, engineers and teachers. He said this army practices rendezvousing with 15 minutes' notice at a secret hideaway.

ONE CULTURAL historian has said that the survival mentality is growing because with all the pressures people experience today — economic recession, violence, an escalating arms race — that they assume the world is going down the drain and there is just no hope for a turnaround.

It appears that the only way these survivalists can deal with such a gloomy outlook is to take control over their own little piece of the world. They want to be where inflation can't get to them or where they won't have to hear reports of war in the Middle East. They are tuning out much as the young people in the late 1960s, except they've tuned out to a isolated station. The people of the '60s protested to have things changed for the better, while the survivalists' actions confirm that things can't be changed for the better. They are without hope and that is sad.

In Holley's article concerning the survivalists, he said he would rather die trying to change the world into a better place than to hunker down in a remote cabin somewhere and wait for the end. I agree with Holley. Hope is one of the few driving forces that we have left and to abandon it is surely to give up living.

Survivalists might want to consider the old football saying "quitters never win" instead of "only the fittest survive."

ACCORDING TO an article written the recent edition of The Texas Observer by Joe Holley, survivalists are people who believe in the imminent demise of civilization whether it be by nuclear war, economic chaos or environmental disaster. They are committed to being ready for the end.

Holley says around the country, especially in the West and Southwest, these survivalists are building cabins

Mike Downey on right track

Dear Editor,

I was deeply touched by two articles that appeared in the Herald on August 11.

One was titled "Situation calls for death penalty," the other was "Moments of truth."

In the first article the writer asks what our world is coming to, when innocent people are being killed. The writer also states we should ask what we can do to eliminate the worry of it happening again.

I don't think there is an easy answer to this. I don't think we really need to start dealing with the problem on an international level, though.

Why don't we just start asking questions about this problem in our corner of the world: the U.S.A. and down to the nitty-gritty, BIG SPRING.

Since I came to Big Spring two years ago, several murders or attempted murders have happened right here in our city. What could have brought one of our citizens to the point of hate to take another person's life? Was it that he was deprived of his basic needs or that space in this world he is entitled to as a human being?

We are all human and some of us are not strong enough to cope in a normal way with anger and frustration. This is no excuse for murder and it must be punished. But before we sit in judgment, let's examine all the facts. All problems start small, even those of the world.

I for one will ask myself from now on every night before going to bed: Did I push someone into a corner from which he couldn't get out? Or did I close my ears to someone's cry for help?

Mike Downey touched part of our problem in his article, "Moments of truth." Please reprint it, it was warm and beautiful. God bless, Mike. You are on the right track.

Sincerely,

MARIANNE H. BROWN

Speaker offers his services

Dear Editor,

When Mr. Lloyd Bentsen was here I arose and asked why he wanted to throw at least 5,000,000 people out of work by voting to lock up Alaska. I was almost shouted down.

Since I was unable to make my point, I would like to make a 15 or 20-minute presentation before any service club or interested group on the potential of Alaska. My license plate carries the word DENALI which means the high one is the Athabaskan Indian name for what is now Mount McKinley.

Sincerely,

Constitution is clear-cut

Dear Editor,

"It is my belief that there are 'absolutes' in our Bill of Rights, and that they were put there on purpose by men who knew what words meant, and meant their prohibitions to be 'absolutes'."

Justice Hugo Black,
The Bill of Rights,
35N Y. Univ.

The Constitution was written by men who knew what words meant. It says what it means, and it means what it says. The English language has not changed much, in the last 193 years, therefore the Constitution says today what it said in 1789, when it was ratified.

Anyone who states that they have studied the Constitution and can interpret it to suit their own needs doesn't have a dictionary at hand.

"Ambiguity of language is to be distinguished from uninterpretable and inaccuracy. For words cannot be said to be ambiguous unless their significance seems doubtful and uncertain to persons of competent skill and knowledge to understand them." Black's Law Dictionary 5th Edition p. 73.

Mr. DeAnda is not alone in his thinking of the interpretation to suit our own needs. There are nine "appointed" judges in Washington D.C. and several "appointed" federal judges over the land who think the same way.

The 1st Amendment states "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Nine "appointed" supreme court judges have declared this to mean "separation of church and state" and, that we cannot have prayer in our schools, or teach our children that God created All Things.

The key words here are respecting and establishment. I have at hand a 1938 Webster's Home and Office Dictionary.

1. Respect-n. res-pekt; regard; attention; esteem; or its expression; respectful demeanour; due attention; favor; partiality; respected character; relation; v. to regard; to relate to; to honour or esteem. Respecting. Respects.

2. Establishment-n. es-tab-lish-ment; the act of establishing; settlement; allowance; that which is established; permanent civil or military force; a place of residence or business; household equipment; and institution; the Church of England and the Church of Scotland established by law.

No ambiguity in the 1st Amendment and no separation of Church and State. It simply means that no one denomination will be given power over all other denominations as in the past and as is practiced in many nations today.

This is only one amendment and only one example of the Unsurptions of power by "appointed" officials under the guise of "interpretations." The Constitution was interpreted when it was written and it said what it meant and meant what it said.

Thank you,
TROY NELSON JR.
Rt. 1 Box 576

Federal Reserve questions raised

Dear Editor,

The following are excerpts from testimony presented in the Washington State Senate regarding a resolution challenging the constitutionality of the Federal Reserve and demanding an independent audit be conducted. The resolution was introduced by state Senator Jack Metcalf and was passed March 11, 1982.

Sen. Guess: How does the Federal Reserve create money?

Sen. Metcalf: This will have to be an oversimplification; the actual operation is very complicated. However, this is an accurate summary of what happens.

The federal government is going into debt about a billion dollars a week. Where does that money come from?

The government prints a billion dollars worth of interest-bearing U.S. government bonds, takes them to the Federal Reserve; the Federal Reserve accepts them and places $1 billion in a checking account.

The government then writes checks to a total of $1 billion.

The crucial question is: "Where was the $1 billion just before they touched the computer and put it in the checking account?"

The answer: "It didn't exist." We, the people, allow a private banking system to create money at will — out of absolutely nothing — to call it a loan to our government and then charge us interest on it forever.

Sen. Quigg: Are you saying the Federal Reserve Act gives to the national banking system as a whole the power to create money, in addition to what you have said about the Federal Reserve specifically?

Sen. Metcalf: Yes, the fractional reserve system implemented under the Federal Reserve Act of 1913 allows the banking system, as a system, to create money — to expand the money supply.

The authority to expand or contract the money supply by changing reserve requirements, given to a private banking system, puts our whole money system in jeopardy.

I would urge you to remember the quote from Thomas Jefferson that I placed on your desks in the last

Many years later da Vinci was painting a picture of Judas. He had found an appropriate model: a criminal with a dissipated countenance, repulsive in its sinister ugliness.

Something about the model struck a chord of long-buried memories and brought them struggling to life again. "Where have I seen that profile of that face before?" he asked.

Then the horrible realization dawned upon him with all its stinging bitterness.

"No! No! God!" he cried. "It can't be! And yet... those eyes! That face! That profile!" Turning to the ugly evil-looking man with a Judas face, da Vinci asked: "Your name is...?"

"Pietro Bandinelli. But drunkenness and sensuality have changed me from a Christ model to a Judas... bound for hell." It was but a striking illustration of the age-old truth enunciated by the apostle Paul! The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is life everlasting in Jesus Christ our Lord.

Ten worst problems listed

Dear Editor,

I have come to the conclusion that all the people running for office in the State, Federal and Local Government should, by law, be required to know the U.S. Constitution and what it stands for.

Be it a Republican or a Democrat the politicians in Washington are putting the final touches to destroying America and the American dream.

Here are 10 of the worst problems facing this nation today. Whether you're a Democrat or Republican, while you read these think about what is happening to your freedom.

1. An alarming rate of inflation which is wrecking the stability of the American economy.

2. A deteriorating money system which has no gold or silver base, as required by the U.S. Constitution.

3. A fantastic national debt of "trillion dollars" with interest payments of more than 100 billion dollars per year.

4. A policy of deficit spending which is passing along this generation's extravagance to be paid for by the next generation, something the founding fathers said was immoral.

5. An overwhelming burden of stifling taxation which is now taking nearly half of all American earning power.

6. The strangulation of the free-enterprise system with over-regulation, over-taxation, and blatantly unfair competition from 700 government-owned corporations and more than 11,000 government-owned businesses which are usually subsidized and pay no taxes. Government regulation now costs the economy 126 billion dollars a year.

7. A federal bureaucracy of 3 million employees plus many more millions in government service on the state and local level. These now comprise one out of every five members of the American work force.

8. A federal Social Security System which was sold to the American people as "insurance" but which has turned out to be a highly discriminatory welfare program, now on the verge of bankruptcy.

9. A long series of radical legislative enactments in direct violation of the constitution, leading to the destruction of the American Dollar.

10. The worst problem by far: The 1913 transfer of power over the money and credit system of the United States from Congress to a consortium of private bankers operating under the name of the Federal Reserve Bank. The Federal Reserve has nothing to do with the Federal Government! The Federal Reserve is a private corporation.

Nearly all of our economic and political problems plaguing the United States are the direct result of the Federal Government indulging in practices which are entirely socialistic in their objectives and completely opposite to the success formula of the American founding fathers.

If Americans will elect a majority of Democrats and Republicans to Congress who are trained and dedicated Constitutionalists, the United States can be turned around and headed back toward a sound success formula.

Person is really worried

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I find myself worrying a great deal about things like coming persecution against believers and the antichrist. I guess I wonder if I am strong enough to keep my faith in such circumstances. — L.T.

DEAR L.T.: I suppose every thoughtful Christian has wondered how he or she would react if persecution were to come. But we must not let this constantly worry us — instead we should be sure that we are growing spiritually ourselves every day so we will be strong when difficulties do arise.

That is why you should do everything you can right now to strengthen your relationship with Christ. You will notice that when a windstorm comes, trees that have shallow roots are usually the first to be blown over. But the trees that have deep roots are most likely to stand. In the same way, make every effort to deepen your roots in Christ and his Word. That will not only make you a strong Christian, but a fruitful one as well. The Bible says that the man who delights in God's Word "is like a tree planted by streams of water, which yields its fruit in season and whose leaf does not wither" (Psalm 1:3). Spend time alone each day with God. Listen to the teaching of faithful Bible teachers and preachers.

But you also should not worry about this because God has promised that he will give us strength when times of testing come.

Dr. Donohue

Tunnel syndrome is curable

Dear Dr. Donohue: I contracted carpal tunnel syndrome from an injury to my left wrist and hand. I had numbness in my hand, especially while sleeping. I could run my finger down the hairless part of my hand, across the median nerve, and receive sensations between the second and third fingers. I lost use of my hand in that I was unable to make a fist.

Subsequently, I was treated to the fullest extent. I had deep massage, a nerve-conduction study, medication (Clinoril) and finally surgery. One item I forgot; I wore a wrist splint. I am now on post-operative status and doing fine.

I have heard from others both fact and fiction about this condition. For instance, that it is a woman's disease; that it means weak joints; that it comes on in old age; that it comes from repetitive use of impact tools. People ask me repeatedly about this condition. Give me the hows, the whys, etc. — T.C.W.

Your description of the symptoms, the treatment and the usual outcome of treatment in carpal tunnel syndrome is so good that I'm going to let it stand. I have written about it for years, and your description is better than mine, so I am stealing it. All I can do is pick up a few loose shreds to save my job.

Carpal tunnel syndrome is not a woman's disease. It is not a weakness of joints. It is not a part of old age. It can be caused by repetitive use of impact tools. It can also occur with rheumatoid arthritis, gout, diabetes, pregnancy and thyroid problems.

The median nerve you mention is the large one that passes through a tunnel of bone and ligaments as it travels to the hand. Any inflammation from any cause can narrow that tunnel (from scarring) and create the nerve problem, the sensations mentioned. Often, the thumb, the index, middle and part of the ring fingers are affected.

If the pressure on the nerve is not relieved, it can affect the muscles of the hand and make movement awkward. The Clinoril (an anti-inflammatory drug) and the other treatments did not work for you. The answer, as it so often is, was surgery to remove pressure on the nerve.

I'm glad to hear you are cured, T.W. Now can you do a nice description of hialal hernia for me? I've been working on that one for years.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I feel the medical profession has misled the public by giving cigarettes as the cause of cancer. It seems to me that if you have cancer and don't smoke the doctors are at a loss for something to blame it on. Therefore, they are relieved to have a smoker for a patient. — A.J.S.

A rather bizarre bit of logic, A.J.S. First of all, let's clear up the difference in meaning of the words "cause" and "factor." You use the word cause. No one knows the cause of cancer, but we do know several factors that are involved in its appearance, at least statistically.

The medical profession is not trying to mislead the public. We know that cigarette smoking is not the only factor. We know it surely plays some major role in lung cancer. Statistically, smokers have a much greater risk of getting cancer than do non-smokers. That's a bold fact. Yet, even non-smokers get lung cancer. For them, other factors are undoubtedly involved. Some smokers never get any kind of cancer.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Enjoyment of pain creates puzzle

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a man I'll call Rick, and we hit it off from the minute we met. He's a nice-looking guy who works at a health club during the day and tends bar at a classy club three nights a week.

One thing led to another, and he told me if we were going to have any kind of intimate relationship, he wanted to be perfectly honest with me. Then he said he was a "masochist." He said he likes to be "spanked" — hard! I told him I didn't care for violence. He said if he enjoys it, it's not violence. He asked me to go ahead and hit him, and I said no. Then he asked me to think about it. It sounds weird to me.

I don't know what to think of him now. I like him a lot, but I'm afraid if I go along with his wishes, he may try to hurt me. I was married to a wife-beater for a year and have had enough broken bones for one lifetime.

I'm 22 and Rick is 29. Is it dangerous to get mixed up with a masochist? And can you tell me more about masochism? I'm not sure I understand what it is.

WONDERING ABOUT RICK
DEAR WONDERING: You are wise to wonder. "Masochism" is a sexual perversion characterized by a desire to be physically abused in order to achieve sexual gratification. It can be dangerous, so do not agree to engage in any practice that you consider frightening, abnormal or weird.

DEAR ABBY: A couple we have known for many years visited us recently. We truly love them as friends, but the lady is a cleaning nut! Believe me, I am a very good housekeeper and I am not lazy, but just watching her digging in the corners wore me out.

I don't mind if a houseguest helps with the dishes or keeps the guest room picked up, but this friend was vacuuming and dusting the whole time she was here. She made me feel "dirty" and hurt my feelings.

Why would a guest come into someone's home and work like a horse? I wouldn't do this to my own family. Abby, please tell folks that when they're guests they should relax and not work so hard.

FEELING DIRTY IN KENTUCKY
DEAR FEELING: I'll tell them, but I doubt if it will help compulsive cleaners. Such people work like a horse, digging and cleaning, not because they think the place is "dirty", but because it provides an outlet for their nervous energy.

ELVIS REMEMBERED — Fans file past the graves of Elvis Presley (second from top), his parents and his parental grandmother early Monday. It is the fifth anniversary of the singer's death. The fans were allowed onto the grounds of Graceland for a candlelight service.

Thousands carry lighted candles past grave

By JERRY GRAY
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — More than 5,000 people, some weeping and placing kisses on the tomb, gathered at Elvis Presley's grave early today to mark the fifth anniversary of the rock 'n' roll singer's death.

The fans, most clutching candles, walked single file on the quarter-mile, winding driveway of Graceland estate to Meditation Garden, where the singer, his parents and grandmother are buried.

The graves are just south of the mansion where Presley lived.

A memorial service was planned later today across the street from the mansion, with admission $7 a person.

Earlier, there was intermittent drizzle as fans paused briefly at the grave. Through their tears, some kissed their fingers, then knelt to touch the grave, before kissing their fingers again.

"I think he's looking down; I think he's smiling real big right now," said J.D. Sumner, who was the leader of Presley's backup singing group, The Stamps Quartet.

"Elvis wouldn't have believed that the fans were this loyal," Sumner said. "I don't think that anybody that has ever been born, except for Jesus Christ, has fans this loyal. It's phenomenal."

Presley, whose hit songs included "Hound Dog," "Heartbreak Hotel" and "Jailhouse Rock," died Aug. 16, 1977, at the age of 42. The cause of his death was listed as heart failure.

After the fans held a brief prayer-and-hymn service at the gate, Billy Smith and Harold Lloyd, Presley's cousins, emerged from the estate carrying a candle and a torch. The fans began their march to the grave, some pausing to light their candles from the torch.

"I think he'd love it," said Marty Lacker, personal secretary and bookkeeper to Presley and best man at his 1967 marriage.

Watching the crowd gather, Lackey said, "He cared a lot about people, and I'm happy to see they cared about him. A lot of people, five years ago, thought it wouldn't last, but they just didn't realize what Elvis really meant to the world."

Presley and his wife, Priscilla, were separated in August 1972 and later divorced. They had one child, Lisa Marie.

Neither Mrs. Presley nor Lisa Marie, now 14 and the sole heir to her father's estimated $25 million estate, were in Memphis for the anniversary of Presley's death.

Graceland has been partially open to the public since June and normally averages 3,000 visitors a day. But there have been more than 4,000 visitors a day since Friday, and the daily tour schedule has been extended by four hours, officials at the mansion said.

The crowd was orderly and there was no trouble, said Memphis Police Lt. J.A. Dungan.

13 horses found starved

(CLOVER, S.C. (AP)) — Thirteen Arabian horses left behind when their owners moved to Florida were found starved to about half their weight, with no hope of ever becoming completely healthy, the owner of a stable says.

They were "the skinniest bunch of horses I've ever seen," said Michelle Miller, owner of a horse boarding business, who is now caring for the animals.

When the horses were discovered, their bones nearly poked through the skin, their eyes had a blank, listless glaze and they were hardly recognizable as the well-bred Arabians they apparently are, Ms. Miller said Sunday.

"They were all so dull, just ruined for life," she added.

The Humane Society of York County obtained an arrest warrant from Clover Magistrate Gene Farris last week alleging cruelty to animals against the horses' owners, Daniel and Marilyn Beran, formerly of York.

The horses represent "the worst case of animal malnutrition I've ever seen," said the attending veterinarian, Dr. Charles Shackleton of Fort Mill. The yearlings were as small as normal 2-month-olds and some of the older animals were 400 pounds below their normal average weight, which is about 850 pounds.

The Berans, who lived in the area for four years, moved to Lovelock, Fla., about a month ago. They had planned to move the horses later, Mrs. Beran said Sunday.

The horses were "just fine" when her family left South Carolina, Mrs. Beran said.

"We are being unjustly accused. We hired two fellows to take care of the horses until we could move them — they're poor people and I don't want to get them into any trouble by naming them — but they evidently did not do their job," she said.

But Humane Society President Janet Sands, Shackleton and Ms. Miller said the damage could not have happened in the week between the Berans' departure and the horses' discovery.

"It would have taken a year to get that skinny," said Ms. Miller, who said the animals have improved at her stables, but will never completely recover in size, strength and spirit, she said.

The horses were discovered in a tin-roofed barn three weeks ago by some prospective buyers of the Berans' 72-acre farm near York.

Mrs. Beran said she and her husband are animal lovers who would never allow their horses to get in the bad condition they were reportedly found in.

NFL players put solidarity on line

When National Football League players put their solidarity on the line with a show of hands, only the Denver Broncos kept it from being unanimous.

Despite warnings of fines, the first 12 preseason games from Thursday night to Saturday night saw the opposing teams meet at midfield for symbolic handshakes.

"It is simply an act to signify solidarity," said New York Jets running back Bruce Harper.

But in the 13th game, between the Los Angeles Rams and Denver, the only handshaking was during the traditional captains' meeting before the kickoff.

The Rams said they intended to go through with the gesture backing the players' association in its bargaining with the league's Management Council, but the Broncos, whose player representative retired last week, did not.

Denver's Barney Chavous, temporarily filling in as the team's representative since Billy Thompson retired, said, "A few players got together and basically it was 'no.' We will vote for a representative next week and then things will be cleared up a little bit more."

"We voted yes," said Los Angeles player representative Carl Ekern.

Los Angeles veteran Jack Youngblood added, "We just couldn't make connections with the Broncos on it."

The Broncos have had several outspoken anti-union players, including veteran quarterback Craig Morton, who was not in Los Angeles for the preseason game, won by Denver 33-20.

Gene Upshaw, president of the players' association, criticized Morton in a June 11 letter and hinted that the quarterback might be punished in a game because of his anti-union sentiment.

But today, Upshaw planned to meet with the Broncos at their training camp at Greeley, Colo., in an effort to quash anti-union talk among the players.

Denver center Keith Bishop was the only player at the NFLPA convention in Albuquerque, N.M., to vote against striking.

There were also individual players who stayed on the sidelines while their teammates and opposing players met at midfield.

SHOW OF SOLIDARITY — Pittsburgh Steeler and New England Patriot players meet on the playing field Saturday and shake hands before their NFL exhibition game at Neyland Stadium at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville.

Curtis Dickey and Barry Krauss of Baltimore did not shake hands with the New York Giants and Tampa Bay's Matt Petzelka did not meet the Philadelphia Eagles. Eight Miami rookies and veteran Bob ville. This gesture is in support of the NFL Players Association but has become a point of dispute between the players association and owners.

Kuechenberg — the only non-union player on the Dolphins — also didn't participate.

Fan reaction was mixed in the 12 games that saw the players take part in handshaking demonstrations.

On the field Saturday, it was the Raiders 17, San Francisco 14; Cleveland 17 Detroit 16; Pittsburgh 24, New England 20; Atlanta 20, Minnesota 17; Baltimore 19, New York Giants 14; Tampa Bay 35, Philadelphia 7; Green Bay 21, New York Jets 19; Miami 24, Washington 7; Buffalo 14, Dallas 10.

Chicago is at San Diego in the only game tonight.

Chris Bahr broke a 7-7 tie with a 24-yard field goal in the third period and Marc Wilson set up a fourth-quarter touchdown by Greg Pruitt with a 76-yard pass play to Cleo Montgomery in the Raiders' defeat of San Francisco.

Cleo Miller scampered 8 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter and Matt Bahr added the conversion as the Browns edged the Lions.

Frank Collins scored on a 1-yard run with 2:58 remaining as the Steelers rallied to beat the Patriots before a capacity crowd of 93,251 in Knoxville, Tenn.

Rookie running back Michael Morton scored a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns on runs of 9 and 80 yards to lead the Buccaneers past the Eagles.

Rich Campbell threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Paul Coffman, while Eddie Lee Ivery and rookie Willard Reaves both scored on a 3-yard plunges, leading the Packers past the Jets.

Howard Jackson scored on a 1-yard touchdown run with 13 seconds remaining following a 45-yard interception return by linebacker Ricky Jones, giving the Colts their victory over the Giants.

Mike Moroski's 19-yard touchdown pass to Reggie Brown with 4:38 remaining gave the Falcons their triumph over the Vikings.

Jim Jensen tossed a 14-yard scoring pass and Andra Franklin scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 2-yard run as the Dolphins rolled past the Redskins.

Matt Robinson's 2-yard touchdown pass to halfback Arthur Whittington with 39 seconds to play carried the Bills past the Cowboys.

Quarterback Mark Herrmann hooked up with Steve Watson on an 81-yard touchdown play to ignite a 17-point third-quarter rally that boosted the Broncos over the Rams.

DOUBLE PLAY — Texas Rangers second baseman Bill Stein makes the throw to first base to complete a double play over the best efforts of Cleveland Indians right fielder Von Hayes to break up the play in Sunday night's second inning play at Arlington Stadium.

Indians take Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Cleveland Indians are not in the cellar of the American League East today, thanks to the Texas bullpen.

Entering Sunday's game with the Rangers, the Indians knew Toronto had beaten Milwaukee, meaning the Indians had to win to stay one-half game in front of the last-place Blue Jays.

The Indians won it by sending 11 batters to the plate in the sixth inning, pounding four Texas pitchers for five runs on five hits, two walks, a hit batter and Toby Harrah's sacrifice fly.

The final was Cleveland 6, Texas 4 and Indians Manager Dave Garcia was in no mood to explain the wild contest.

"I'll tell you what, don't try to figure out what happened," Garcia said. "We got a ton of hits (15), seven walks and four stolen bases, and only got six runs? And five of those in one inning? We hit into — what — four double plays? Unbelievable!"

Texas was ahead 3-1 when Cleveland erupted for its big inning. Texas starter Charlie Hough, 11-10, loaded the bases to open the sixth, but it was when Manger Darrell Johnson pulled Hough that the Rangers' trouble really began.

"If we had done the job out of the bullpen, it would have been a different story," Johnson grumbled.

Hough faced three batters and reliever Paul Mirabella faced two without retiring any of them, and all five eventually scored.

Offensively, Miguel Dilone starred for the Indians with four hits, two runs batted in and three stolen bases.

"I don't have any base-stealing secrets," Dilone said modestly. "I don't worry about the catcher. I just look to get a good jump on the pitcher and run hard."

He also refused to boast about his four-hit performance.

"I didn't hit the ball that well. They just dropped in," he said.

The Rangers had a chance at their fourth straight comeback win when they loaded the bases with one out in the ninth. But John Grubb's sharp liner went right to second baseman Larry Milbourne for an easy, game-ending double play.

"If that ball is three feet either way," said Johnson, "we've got two runs in, the score is tied and we're right back in it."

Sutton pitches Astros to win Healthy Cougar backs thrill Houston mentor

CINCINNATI (AP) — Houston's Don Sutton had billed his match-up against Cincinnati's Tom Seaver as "an old-timers game."

When the pair of 37-year-old pitchers took the mound Sunday at Riverfront Stadium, one of them looked like an up-and-coming right hander while the other looked his age.

Sutton struck out ten batters in eight innings and scattered five hits to notch his 253rd career victory with a 7-3 drubbing of the Reds.

"My control of all my pitches was as good today as it's been in my two years with Houston," said Sutton, 12-8, who has won three of his last four decisions. "I was lucky I had some runs to play with, and I was lucky I had good defense behind me.... That's a pretty darn good blend."

It was a different story for Seaver, who was going after career victory No. 265. The three-time Cy Young Award winner thought he had overcome a shoulder problem that kept him out of the rotation earlier this year — until he started warming up before the game Sunday and discovered a stiff shoulder.

"You think it might loosen up. I came in (to the clubhouse), got another stretch from the trainer, and went back out there. It didn't do any good," Seaver said.

He was back in the clubhouse after just nine pitches. Dickie Thon and Terry Puhl started the game with doubles to produce a run, and Seaver walked Ray Knight on four pitches. That was enough.

"On the first pitch, he threw me. I knew something was wrong," Knight said. "There was something different in his delivery. He didn't have any arm speed at all. It looked like all the pitches he threw me were changeups. They weren't."

"It's a shame to see a guy I watched for those years (in Cincinnati) labor like that. It was obvious he was in pain. There was no velocity on the ball."

"I was expecting fastballs the way he used to throw them to me; he'd challenge you," said Thon, who went 4-for-5 with three doubles and two runs scored Sunday. "He threw me two balls away, and I was kind of confused. They were a changeup and a breaking pitch.... He looked like he was hurting."

Seaver, 5-13, said he'll rest the shoulder and hope he can pitch again before the season is over.

"It would help psychologically more than anything," Seaver said. "It would help with the kinds of work I have to do over the winter to get ready for next spring."

The Astros scored twice in the first inning off Seaver and reliever Charlie Leibbrandt, then added three runs in the third with the help of a pair of Cincinnati throwing errors and coasted. Sutton left the game tired after the eighth inning with the Astros ahead 7-1, happy about his fifth-hat work but concerned about Seaver's condition.

"Here's a guy who's a real legend and has taught us all some lessons about pitching," Sutton said. "It hurts me to see somebody who I respect hurt."

Elsewhere, it was San Diego 6, Atlanta 5 in 10 innings; San Francisco 8, Los Angeles 6; Philadelphia 3, Montreal 1; St. Louis over Pittsburgh twice, 12-5 and 5-2, and the Mets split with the Cubs, winning 5-4, then losing 6-5.

Norris' PGA win sets Hartford record

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Tim Norris' first victory on the PGA Tour will be remembered for more than being the ice-breaker for the 24-year-old who has been touring for less than two years.

His 259 total was a record for the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open, and only two strokes shy of an all-time PGA tournament record set by Mike Souchak in the 1955 Texas Open.

"I would have liked to have broken that record," he said Sunday after his six-stroke victory. "Maybe next year, maybe next week. They say you're first win's the hardest."

Norris set two-, three- and four-round records on the par-71 Wethersfield Country Club course en route to collecting the $54,000 first prize — more money than he has won since joining the tour in early 1981.

Tied for second were newly crowned PGA champion Ray Floyd and Hubert Green.

Green, who had been the defending champion, said the 19-under par 265 he and Floyd shot "wasn't bad."

But it wasn't low enough to catch Norris. "I kept waiting for him to fall down and break his leg," said Green. "Maybe he's got four or five legs, I don't know. He sure showed us. I want to shake his hand and get his autograph."

Norris' two-total of 127, three-round 193 and final 259 — 25 under par — were all the lowest scores shot in the 31-year history of the GHO, played on the shortest course on the tour, 6,534 yards.

The final day of the tournament, Sunday, the Fresno, Calif. native shot a 5-under-par 66 on eight birdies, including four in a row, and three bogeys. Norris was 27 under after 14 holes, but shot bogeys on two of the final four holes.

"He faltered a bit toward the end," said Floyd, who won last week's PGA championship in Tulsa, Okla. "But, he really played a solid round of golf. He certainly is to be congratulated."

Floyd, who was as close as one stroke off the lead after the first round, had trouble putting and dropped 10 shots behind Norris midway through the final round.

"I think it was a respectable showing for me after coming off a major championship win and I'm pleased with my finish," said Floyd. "I don't guess you can ever be unhappy with a second."

Norris, finishing only his fifth tournament after missing the first 14 events on the tour because of a hand injury, led Floyd by four strokes and Green by five going into the final round.

Daniel adds fifth LPGA tour title win

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Success will never go to the head of Beth Daniel, who is the first player to win five titles on the LPGA tour this year.

She captured the $125,000 WUI Classic Sunday by eight strokes with a tourney record 12-under-par 276, despite shooting a final round 73.

Daniel, who had 68, 68, and 67 for her previous rounds, earned $18,750 to boost her total to $199,298 for the year. She owns the one year record, $231,000, earned in 1980 when she was player of the year. Last year, the 25-year-old Charlotte, S.C. native collected $206,977.

Ayako Okamoto, 31, a leading performer on the Japanese LPGA tour registered a 68 to gain a share of second place at 284 with little-known Martha Hansen, who had a 69. Lynn Adams, another non-winner on the tour was one over at 73 for a fourth place total of 286. Pam Geitzen (71) and Barbara Barrow (73) tied for fifth at 287.

"I'll never let my success interfere with my goals on the tour," explained Daniel, who broke the tournament record of 279, established by Debbie Austin in 1977 and equaled two years later by Judy Rankin when Beth was runnerup. "I haven't won the U.S. Open, I haven't won the LPGA Championship and I haven't won the Dinah Shore. Don't worry, I'll never have an incentive problem out there."

Not even after earning over $200,000 for a third straight year?

"There's always an incentive in golf," replied the 5-foot-10 blond, who missed the LPGA 72-hole tournament record (271 by Hollis Stacey in 1977) by five strokes.

Healthy Cougar backs thrill Houston mentor

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Coach Bill Yeoman is hopeful that at last he can look forward to more excitement and fewer medical reports from the Cougar backfield.

For the first time in almost a year, quarterbacks Audrey McMillian and Lionel Wilson are healthy at the same time.

Wilson stepped into a hot seat in the second game last season when McMillian, the starter, went down with a season-ending shoulder separation. Wilson responded by leading the Cougars to a 7-4-1 record, including a loss to Oklahoma in the Sun Bowl.

As the Cougars go into the 1982 season, McMillian has healed and once again is challenging for playing time.

It is a sight Yeoman enjoys.

"We will be a little more stable at that position than we've been the last couple of years," Yeoman said. "What makes it a little more palatable is that Audrey will be right there if, say, Lionel is not having too good a day.

1982 Preview

"It won't be quite the crisis that it has been."

Having two experienced and healthy quarterbacks will help the overall offense, Yeoman says.

"We will be more adept at throwing the football because our quarterbacks are more knowledgeable," Yeoman said. "We have really been plain vanilla for such a long time. We couldn't do anything that gives us a chance to excite people."

"I think we should be more fun to watch."

Speed at running back also is returning to the Cougars.

"We haven't been the fastest things in the world the past couple of years at running back," Yeoman said. "We haven't really had a burner since (Alois) Blackwell."

Dallas Wiggins and Ernie Wesley will make up in speed what they lack in size.

The Cougars will have plenty of speed at flanker, where David Roberson will replace Lonell Phea. "He kind of supplanted Lonell," Yeoman said. "He has the same kind of speed and maybe a little better change in direction."

The offensive line, anchored by tackle Maceo Fifer, returns in act from last season.

The Cougars have a veteran defensive secondary returning but must replace both defensive ends and fill the graduation loss of Terry Monroe at tackle.

Greg Harmon and Victor Mitchell will be the ends and Simon Fletcher has moved from end to replace Monroe.

James Brown will step into Donnie Love's strong safety spot as the only newcomer in the defensive secondary.

'Trapper John's' Dr. Riverside becomes a bit more civilized

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES — When an actor plays a character who is stuffy and pompous you can bet he's going to wage a campaign to change him to warm and lovable.

Loretta Swit made such a transformation on "M-A-S-H." She's no longer Hot Lips Houlihan, but is Maj. Margaret Houlihan. You can bet if Larry Linville had stayed we'd be finding Frank Burns adorable.

Actors want to be loved. It's no less true on CBS's "Trapper John, M.D." a sort of delayed spinoff of "M-A-S-H." in which Charles Siebert plays an updated (and more civilized) doctor.

In the first few years of "Trapper John," Siebert played Dr. Stanley Riverside as a likable but officious chief of emergency services at San Francisco Memorial Hospital. His purpose in the show was to be a thorn in the side of Trapper John, played by Pernell Roberts, and Gonzo Gates, played by Gregory Harrison.

But Dr. Riverside has also been undergoing change. Some of the stuffing has been coming out of his shirt.

"He's more human now, but it's hard to say how he's changed," Siebert says.

"I've lived with it so much and am so much a part of it that the lines get blurry. There has been a deliberate effort on my part to make him a more acceptable human being without losing the comic edge. I also think the public accepts more. They like to predict the outcome."

Siebert was interviewed while sitting on the deck of "The Love Boat," although the nearest deep water was 15 miles away. Actually, there was a piece of the deck here and a piece there on the sound stage at Goldwyn Studios. He was making his second appearance on the ABC comedy series.

"I have a big romance with Connie Stevens," he said. "She plays a mind reader. We fall in love, all in nine minutes."

"Obviously my character's marriage is rather shaky. He comes on the ship to think things over. He sees her and falls in love."

"I was going to say it was because it's a medical show, but not all medical shows make it," Siebert said. "It's a compelling environment that people can latch on to. They've either been in a hospital, or they've never been and never want to."

"The light blend of serious subjects has caught on. And Dr. Riverside is the lightest one on the show. We've gotten into serious melodrama, but we've always kept pulling back — with a soupçon of giggles. It seems to be right for the times."

Siebert was a regular on the series, "Husbands, Wives and Lovers," and had recurring roles on "The Blue Knight" and "One Day at a Time."

He said he moved to Los Angeles after exhausting all the work possibilities in New York.

"It was time to come out, time to look for something different," said Siebert, a native of Kenosha, Wis., and a graduate of Marquette University. He studied at the London Academy of Music and Art and remained an additional two years as a teacher and director.

"The first job he landed was on 'The Rockford Files.'"

"I was brand new to movies," he said. "Here was the classically trained Shakespearean actor. I spent my first day doing nothing but driving a car."

"The next day James Garner came up to me. I thought, 'here comes the compliment to my acting.' He said, 'You know, you're really a good driver.' That was my first accolade in Hollywood. After that I did an awful lot of driving."

Earl Scruggs still practicing

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Two, or three times a week, Earl Scruggs picks up his banjo and practices.

"Nobody will ever get old enough to stop learning," says the 58-year-old Scruggs, acclaimed as one of the greatest banjo players ever.

And that's why Scruggs has surrounded himself with some of the finest talent available — some fresh, youthful zest and some skilled savvy — on his last two albums.

Scruggs is currently working on an album with rising stars Lacy J. Dalton, Ricky Skaggs, Rodney Dillard and the Burrito Brothers. His current album on the market is "The Storyteller and the Banjo Man" with veteran country music entertainer Tom T. Hall.

For some 10 years, Scruggs used three of his sons in "the Earl Scruggs Revue." That group disbanded 1½ years ago so his sons could spend more time in Nashville instead of on the road at concerts.

"I feel I keep learning things from 'the Revue' and from the other artists on these albums," Scruggs said, as he sat in the den of his home in suburban Nashville.

Scruggs has returned to a more acoustical, straight country sound like he played with long-time partner, the late Lester Flatt, for more than 20 years before their 1969 breakup in a dispute over music. They were best known for "Foggy Mountain Breakdown," played in the movie "Bonnie and Clyde," and "The Ballad of Jed Clampett" from the television show, "The Beverly Hillbillies."

Scruggs describes the forthcoming album as "pure country, earthy music," and the album with Hall in the same vein.

In "the Earl Scruggs Revue," he used electrified music and played on college campuses with Top 40 groups such as the Doobie Brothers. It was a stunning departure from the traditional bluegrass sound he and Flatt, who died in 1979, had made famous.

But he's not necessarily returning full time to the Flatt and Scruggs style music and forsaking the more modern sound he and his sons produced.

"The 10 or 11 years I was with the boys was rewarding financially and very enjoyable," he said. "One has a tendency to get stale doing the same things. The most satisfying music to me is country music, but I like all forms of music if done well. If music is played, I like to jump in with it; the different types of music give me a challenge."

"I consider myself capable of doing more than bluegrass. I want to play what I feel good playing. I like to stay in a stream where the water is still flowing."

Man vs. machine

In chess, computers fast but not always best

By LILLIAN SWANSON
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH — Even though computers can consider more than 160,000 moves a second, Ron Zaffuto and his lucky cap outsmarted one of the best chess-playing electronic brains in a man vs. machine chess tournament.

After the first round Sunday, the score was Humans 2, Computers 0. A third match ended in a probable draw with the three-day contest entering its second day today.

The machines hum along, looking at thousands of moves in the time it takes a person to think of just one step. But one scientist says that doesn't mean computers have an unfair advantage.

"The human is a lot smarter at what he'll look at," said Hans Berliner, a senior research scientist at Carnegie-Mellon University, where the $2,600 tournament is being held. "But the machine is going to look at a lot of nonsense."

Four players qualified as experts by the U.S. Chess Federation are challenging the world's best chess-playing computers, linked by phone lines to terminals in the university tournament room.

Although none of the players on the first day said they had sweaty palms staring across a chessboard at a computer terminal, Zaffuto wore a lucky Pirates baseball cap for his match against Nuchess, the pride of Northwestern University. "It gives me confidence," said Zaffuto, 30, who answers customer complaints for United Parcel Service.

The competition is a warm-up for the second National Conference on Artificial Intelligence, starting Wednesday at CMU and the University of Pittsburgh. About 1,200 researchers and business executives interested in smart machines were expected to attend.

The Fredkin Prize Committee has a standing offer of $100,000 for anyone who designs a computer program that checkmates the world chess champion.

Berliner, the head of the prize committee, said a machine that clever won't be made before 1990. "But I feel it's almost certainly going to be handed out by the end of the century," he said.

"We're running annual events which test the best programs in the world to see how close we are to that goal," he said.

Although players can't "psych out" computers by screeching a chair across the floor or blowing cigar smoke rings, a machine can take advantage of human frailties, Berliner said.

"A lot of people are really scared of machines. They feel the computer can do everything, and they can't. The better the player you are, the more you see its mistakes," he said.

Human error kept Belle, the electronic top-seed, from competing. Belle's computer operators were delayed by travel arrangements and the match will be made up later, a university spokesman said.

Belle, designed specifically for chess at Bell Laboratories in Murray Hill, N.J., has a rating of 2,150 points, or expert level. Last year, Belle was beaten by a master level player, a step above expert.

Even so, Belle is no pushover. In her last 50 games, Belle has won more games against masters than she has lost. She's beaten every computer she's played in the last two years.

In a two-minute span, Belle can consider 20 million positions resulting from various combinations of moves, compared to about 100 positions a world chess champion would look at, Berliner said.

"I'll try to take advantage of its machine-like nature. But it won't miss anything obvious — you have to respect that," said Michael Goodside, 28, a computer engineer whose match with Belle is being rescheduled.

Seventeen-year-old Paul Resnick, whose match ended in a probable draw, said he wasn't relying on gimmicks to try to checkmate Duchess of Duke University. "If you really want to play well you have to make your best moves and assume your opponents will, too," he said.

HIPPO SNACK — Regina Burris, 4, and Mike Moriarty, both of Dallas, were spending a fun afternoon paddleboating around a pond in International Wildlife Park in Grand Prairie Friday afternoon when it looked as if they had become a meal for one of the park's inhabitants. The hippo, however, turned out to be just a fiberglass model and Mike and Regina were merely paddling around in it.

Man arrested on his wedding day

NORTH BELLMORE, N.Y. (AP) — A 24-year-old man arrested on the morning of his wedding has been charged with trying to kidnap the 24-year-old daughter of a New York City policeman from outside her home.

Glenn Ostrow was arrested early Saturday by Officer Patrick Friel and a band of neighbors who had a hunch the assailant would return looking for an antique watch believed dropped during the incident.

Ostrow was charged with attempted kidnapping and criminal possession of a weapon, then released on $15,000 bond in time to marry Susan Levy at a catering hall Saturday night, police said.

A woman who answered the telephone at Ostrow's house identified herself as his mother and refused to discuss the arrest. She said the father was being harassed.

Deborah Friel was returning home at 4:30 a.m. Saturday when a man with a knife grabbed her from behind, put an arm around her neck and ordered her to come with him, police said. The attack took place within sight of the woman's home.

Miss Friel struggled, screamed and escaped, but lost her pocketbook in the struggle. Several neighbors heard the commotion and peered out their windows in time to see her attacker fleeing.

After calling police, Friel and his daughter returned to the spot where she was attacked, recovered the pocketbook and noticed the pink-colored gold watch.

"It probably was an antique watch from his family, you don't see them around anymore," Friel said. "We more or less had an idea that someone would be back for the watch."

Friel's wife was peering out of her kitchen window about 8 a.m. Saturday when she saw a man fitting the description given by her daughter.

"My daughter screamed and said, 'Yes, that's him,'" said Friel.

Friel called local police, grabbed his gun and badge and went out to confront Ostrow. So did some neighbors, who emerged from their homes and pointed at Ostrow as Friel left his house to grab the suspect.

Way with words not for everyone, crossword champ says

NEW YORK (AP) — An analyst who has a way with words won the U.S. Open Crossword Puzzle Championship, but says he wouldn't urge his obsession on "those who lead a normal life."

Stanley Newman, 30, completed an intricate final puzzle in 13 minutes and 23 seconds to claim a $1,500 prize.

There's no secret to knowing that a "colorful Hopi Indian doll" is called a Kachina, or that an aardvark is an "ant antagonist," said Newman.

"I started out with a fund of trivial knowledge and I read a lot of reference books, encyclopedias and stuff like that." He added: "I wouldn't recommend it to those who lead a normal life."

He said he finishes the New York Times crossword puzzle in a few minutes each day as he waits for a bus near his Brooklyn home to take him to his Wall Street office. He once finished a Times puzzle in less than three minutes as co-workers timed him.

His form was even better than usual for the U.S. Open, he said. The answers were coming so quickly, "I was even frightening myself," he said. "I guess I peaked at the right time."

A crossword-puzzle addict since childhood, Newman says he's entered five crossword contests, winning three.

Newman was among 261 participants in the day-long U.S. Open competition at New York University on Saturday.

The contestants were the best of 7,700 people who filled out a qualifying puzzle in the March-April issue of Games magazine, the event sponsor. About 60 percent answered the puzzle correctly and were sent four more puzzles to solve within three weeks.

Just nine contestants finished all four without error.

Newman, with a bachelor's degree in mathematics and a master's degree in statistics, missed only one letter in the final contest. He wrote "elk" instead of "elf" for the clue "Arctic assistant."

Besides his cash award, Newman received an unabridged dictionary, a crossword puzzle dictionary and a 5-foot-8-inch pencil.
