Waterline breaks disrupt residents

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

When the water goes off, life gets tougher. When a 12-inch water main ruptured Wednesday morning on Wasson Road, the water was cut off in the area from 9:30 a.m. to almost midnight. For the families affected, life became frustrating. One mother of three children, Barbara Figueroa of Muir Street, was upset because of the lack of warning about the water shut-off. "You can't raise kids like this," Mrs. Figueroa said. "You can't even give them a bath. We've had five or six breaks in about four months shutting off our water."

no water for bathing, not even water to clean a scraped knee. Mrs. Figueroa said. "It (no water) stops the normal functions of life. After five members of the family have been through the bathroom, imagine. And it's hard to cook a roast without water," she added. Another housewife from the area, who preferred to remain anonymous, said the aggravation of being without water was the main complaint. "No one tells you it's going off so you can draw water and then it stays off all day. One time my husband came in real sweaty and had to go to bed without bathing," she said. The water that instance came back on at 1 a.m., she said. "People who pay taxes pay for water. See Waterline, page 2-A

Telemeter malfunction blamed for water woes

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

A malfunctioning telemeter may be the cause of some of Big Spring's water problems and may be a potential fire hazard, according to anonymous sources. A city employee and a Big Spring resident said this morning that a division of the city's telemetry system — a system that monitors water levels in the city's water tanks — is not working. The city employee, who declined to identify himself, said that the water main break that occurred yesterday morning, and left most of the west side of town without water, actually occurred "the middle of the night before last." The break would have been noticed — and repaired — 10 hours earlier if the telemeter that monitors the water level in the state park area had been functioning, the employee and resident said. Davis told the Herald in June that the telemeter system was repaired after it had "been down for two or three years." The cost of repairs at that time were "a little under $6,000," Davis said. Although the taxpayers' cost and loss of water are matters of concern, See Telemeter, page 2-A

Gas station robbed of cash

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

An armed man wearing a stocking over his face forced a Bell gas station attendant into a back room and robbed the business of an "undetermined" amount of money last night, police Lt. John Wolf said. The 1630 E. Third station attendant, Sherry DeJesus, described the robber as a slender, six-foot, three- or four-inch tall white male in his 20s wearing blue jeans, a blue buttoned shirt and a stocking over his face, Wolf said. Ms. DeJesus told police the man pointed a small-caliber gun at her at about 9 p.m. and told her to lock herself in the back room of the station, Wolf said. Then the culprit stole an "undetermined" amount of 20s, 10s, fives and ones from the cash drawer, police said. Ms. DeJesus said that when she heard the front door bell sound, she left the back room and telephoned the police. Wolf said this robbery apparently was not well-planned, unlike the August 6 robbery of the Gregg street Safeway store. "It looks like a hurry-up job," Wolf said. Police do not know if the suspect left on foot, or in which direction he left the robbery site, Wolf said. Both Wolf and the station's district manager declined to say how much money was taken. "We are unable to convey that information. We're still working on it," the district manager said.

PUC staff recommends $304.5 million for Bell

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell, which wants a $471.5 million rate increase, is entitled to $304.5 million, according to the Public Utility Commission staff. The staff report was issued Wednesday in preparation for the rate hearing which begins Sept. 1. Don Butler, attorney for the Texas Municipal League, said TML will recommend $217.9 million in increases for Southwestern Bell. "I think ours is generous," Butler said of the TML recommendation. The telephone company wants $4.60 more per month for local residential service. TML opposes any increase in local residential bills, but favors an $88 million in hikes in long distance tolls. Southwestern Bell, facing increased competition in long distance, wants no increase in long distance rates. PUC spokeswoman Ronna Martin said the commission staff has not yet issued a recommendation on increases in costs for specific Southwestern Bell services. That report should be ready in two weeks, said Mrs. Martin. The staff recommendation is the largest ever at PUC. Southwestern Bell's pending rate case is the largest ever requested. Last year, when Southwestern Bell asked for $469.2 million and got $243.7 million, the PUC staff recommended $249.2 million. In the past two years, the three-member commission has approved rate increases less than recommended by the staff.

Shaw, Mauro start campaigns

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The two young politicians made their way through a small crowd of people gathered at the courthouse. They pumped hands and flashed smiles often calling people by first names and asking "how are you?" or "how are things going?" Even though it was the umpteenth time both of them had met with supporters and the press, enthusiasm was still very much a part of their manner. Garry Mauro, Democratic candidate for state land commissioner, and Larry Don Shaw, Democratic candidate for District 69, comprised the twosome as the hometown Shaw escorted Mauro on a brief tour of the Howard County Courthouse Wednesday during a stop in Mauro's campaign. For the 34-year-old Mauro Big Spring was another installment on his current 26-county campaign swing through West Texas. He is running against Woody Glasscock, R-Hondo, for the land commission office vacated by Bob Armstrong. Hard work and hustle helped him defeat state Sen. Pete Snelson in the June run-off and he hopes the same formula will carry him into the land office. In yesterday's press conference Mauro spoke about plans to expand the Veterans Land Program. Presently the program loans up to $20,000 to a veteran to purchase a minimum of 10 acres; however, Mauro advocates extending the use of the loans to veterans who are first-time home buyers. "Texas veterans should be allowed to purchase homes under this program using the money as a down payment," Mauro said. "In these days of high interest rates and expensive housing, we need to have a program which will allow our veterans to have the ability to purchase part of the American Dream — their own home." Mauro hopes to introduce legislation into the next regular session of the state Legislature that, if passed, will give him the authority to expand the land program. Mauro added that the expansion will not cost the "taxpayer a penny."

STATE REP. Larry Don Shaw spoke after Mauro and discussed his race against Rep. Jerry Cockerham, R-Monahans. The youthful Shaw faces two months of hard campaigning in a large district that stretches almost to El Paso County. "We have a hard row to hoe in our campaign with a tough race against a strong incumbent and that race will not be given to either one of us — it will be earned and worked for," Shaw said. Shaw pointed out effectiveness as the main difference between himself and Cockerham. He said at the time both of them entered the Texas House Cockerham chose to join team politics while he remained independent. Shaw said some of the House members told him he would not be effective in getting legislation passed because of his independence. "I proved I could remain independent, I passed more legislation than almost any other freshman in this past legislative session," he said. "I proved you can go down to the Legislature and you don't have to sell your soul to whoever's in power in order to be effective."

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL — Garry Mauro (left), Democratic nominee for land commissioner, and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, Democratic candidate for District 69 in the Texas House, spoke with supporters yesterday during a press conference at the Howard County Courthouse. Both candidates are into the final months of campaigning for their respective positions.

Q. Why did the chamber of commerce have two uniformed policemen guarding 150 people at the tax appraisal forum Tuesday night?

Bible Fund still short of goal

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Although the Bible Fund is $5,550 short of its goal, Dr. Kenneth Patrick, minister of First Baptist Church, has faith in the people of Big Spring. "It's been real good," Patrick said of the fund's growth. "There are good evidences that its going to go right on and reach our goal." The fund contained $8,450 in contributions this morning. This year's goal is $14,000. That sum, Patrick said, will be used "so that we will be able to provide Bible teaching in high schools in Howard County." The state will not provide funds to pay the salary of Bible teachers in public schools, Patrick said, and the Bible fund is a way to "see to it that Bible teaching is available to everyone." The cause is a popular one in Big Spring, Patrick said. "I've been real impressed with the support."

Clayton will attend Cockerham rally tonight

At last report Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton will be attending state Rep. Jerry Cockerham's dinner rally scheduled for today at 7 p.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Last Friday Clayton's press secretary Sherrie Lee indicated that Clayton would not be attending the rally because something "had come up." However, a check with Clayton's office yesterday revealed the four-term Speaker would be at the dinner.

Rep. Gib Lewis, who was to be a special guest along with Clayton, has said he will not be at the function because of prior business commitments. According to Coit Walker, a seating chairman for the event, tickets will be available for $5 at the door. The rally is open to all Democrats, Republicans and Independents who would like to meet and discuss issues with Rep. Cockerham.

Waterline

Continued from page one... "What's going to be done about the water problem? The city is evaluating the area for possible water line replacement, Public Works Director Tom Decell said. The cause of yesterday's water break was still being investigated, Decell said. "A couple of breaks in the area were attributed to construction," he said. "Water breaks are obviously unplanned," Decell said. He has told his departments to notify the media immediately after discovering breaks necessitating water shut-offs.

Telemeter

Continued from page one... cern, the employee and anonymous "resident" said they were worried most that the failing telemeter was a potential fire hazard. The two fear that firemen, unaware of a loss of water pressure, would not have sufficient water pressure to put out a serious fire. "We lost a lot of taxpayers' money on wasted water, but the fire hazard!" the resident said. "I'm concerned that if we should have a bad fire there would not be enough pressure for firemen to put it out," the employee said. The resident said he talked to maintenance workers at the waterplant who said if the telemeter had been working, workers would have been at the water main break site "a lot sooner than they were." The city employee said that he heard City Manager Don Davis say last night on a KBST news program that the telemetry system was functioning properly. "He (Davis) can look on the wall (at the plant) and see that it's not working," the resident said. Davis and Public Works Director Tom Decell declined to comment until looking into the matter further. Water Supervisor Dana Ehlen said Decell asked him to "get a complete report to him today. I'd rather he made any official statements." Water superintendent Johnny Bedford also declined to comment.

Major U.S. crime dipped in 1981

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of serious crimes reported to police in America declined very slightly in 1981, the first such drop in four years, FBI Director William H. Webster reported today. Last year, the total number of reported serious crimes was 13,290,300, down just 5,100 from the 1980 figures, according to the FBI Uniform Crime Reports, which are based on data submitted by law enforcement agencies covering 97 percent of the U.S. population. Because of an increase in population, the crime rate declined 1.7 percent, from 5,899.9 crimes for every 100,000 residents in 1980 to 5,799.9 crimes in 1981. The tiny decline in crimes, which amounted to the stabilization of crime totals virtually at 1980 levels, came during a year in which Attorney General William French Smith made violent crime his top priority. He proposed a series of tough new restrictions on criminal defendants, designed to put more of them in jail and keep them there longer. But nearly all these proposals are still awaiting action in Congress. The FBI reports include murder, robbery, rape, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft. The last annual decline in overall serious crime came in 1977, when the totals were down 3.3 percent from 1976. In 1980, crime jumped 9.4 percent over the previous year. Webster pointed out that overall serious crime was up 22 percent from 1977, and 61 percent from 1972. Indeed, the violent crimes of murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault were up 1 percent in 1981. Burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft, the property crimes accounting for more than 90 percent of all crimes, declined by 0.2 percent in 1981. Furthermore, a massive Justice Department study begun in the mid-1970s has learned through interviews with tens of thousands of Americans each year that one-third of all violent crimes in the United States are not reported to the police, and thus never show up in the FBI figures.

Exposure to dioxin leads to $58 million award for workers

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A jury's award of nearly $58 million in damages to workers exposed to the toxic chemical dioxin is being hailed as major victory by a veterans group involved in Agent Orange lawsuits. Thirty-two of the 47 plaintiffs in the case were awarded an average of at least $1 million each. The suit by former and present employees of the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. stemmed from a chemical spill from a ruptured tank car at Sturgeon, Mo., in January 1979. The plaintiffs, who participated in the cleanup, claimed their health was injured by the spill and that the railroad failed to warn them of the danger. The workers had complained of ailments that included dizziness, rashes, loss of memory, impotence, extreme fatigue and breathing problems. Attorneys for both sides declined comment.

Reagan may blacklist Dallas firm subsidiary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan plans to blacklist the French subsidiary of an American firm if it ships equipment to the Soviet Union in defiance of his pipeline embargo, informed sources say.

The action would avoid a direct confrontation with the French government, which has ordered Dresser France, a subsidiary of Dresser Industries Inc. of Dallas, to ship three compressors to the Soviet Union for use in construction of the 3,500-mile Siberian natural gas pipeline.

The Reagan administration has prohibited U.S. firms from providing equipment for the pipeline. Because of the two governments' conflicting orders, Dresser Industries says it is caught "between a rock and a hard place."

Meanwhile, dock workers at Le Havre, France, loaded three Dresser compressors destined for the Soviet pipeline aboard a French freighter. The ship was scheduled to leave for the Soviet port of Riga later in the day.

According to well-placed officials here, Reagan is ready to put Dresser France on a blacklist if it ships the equipment. That would mean the French subsidiary would be barred from importing specific items and technology from its parent firm — or from any other American suppliers of the same items.

One official, asking to remain anonymous, said this would prevent Dresser Industries from providing the banned items to its French subsidiary, but was "unlikely" to prevent the American firm from doing other business abroad.

By denying the equipment on the Soviets, Reagan hopes to bring pressure on Moscow to persuade Polish authorities to relax martial law restrictions on workers and political dissidents.

John Hughes, a State Department spokesman, said that if the Dresser shipments are made from France in defiance of the embargo, "sanctions will be enforced." But he would not specify their target.

"Obviously we regret it and we would prefer that it not happen but we are going to take actions that we consider appropriate," Hughes told reporters

THE DRESSER BUILDING — The Dresser Building, in downtown Dallas, is the world headquarters for Dresser Industries. The Reagan Administration may impose sanctions against the firm's French subsidiary if it defies a Reagan order not to help build a Soviet pipeline.

Bomb found on Pan Am jet

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The FBI and Brazilian police are investigating the second bomb aboard a Pan Am jumbo jet in 15 days. The first bomb exploded on a flight from Tokyo to Honolulu, killing a passenger, but the second was found and removed before it went off.

There were no immediate reports of any links between the two incidents.

"At present, authorities are evaluating the contents" of the bomb, which was found by a cleaning crew after flight 441 arrived here Wednesday from Miami, Pan Am spokesman Jeff Kriender told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from the airline's New York headquarters.

The device, in a plastic-wrapped black box, "is now in the hands of local authorities, plus the FBI," Kriender said.

He said the device had been deactivated, but a Brazilian police spokesman said earlier that federal police detonated it after they took it to a state police yard.

The police spokesman said officers from the General Department of Special Investigations exploded the device to determine its strength.

Federal police refused to say whether there were any suspects in the case.

Brazil's Globo radio network said the bomb was planted under seat No. 29 in the passenger cabin of the Boeing 747. Kriender said the airline had "no idea" where it was found.

The airline spokesman said the jetliner had been thoroughly checked after arriving in Miami as flight 99 from London on Tuesday.

New York mob trial in hands of jury

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal jury has begun deliberations in the trial of five alleged members of the Bonanno gang described by a defense lawyer as "five little fishes" the government is trying to frame on murder and racketeering conspiracy charges.

The jury got the case shortly after 7 p.m. Wednesday. After first going to dinner, the jury deliberated one hour and retired for the night.

U.S. District Judge Robert Sweet reminded the jury of six men and six women there had been 23 days of testimony, and he read off the names of 61 government witnesses they had heard.

The defendants were charged with conspiring in a pattern of racketeering that included robbery, dope, book-making and the murders of three members of the mob and the attempted murder of a fourth. The gang once led by Joseph Bonanno is now headed by the imprisoned Philip "Rusty" Rastelli, prosecutors say.

The maximum penalty on conviction is 20 years in federal prison.

In his final arguments, Irwin Klein, lawyer for Antonio "Boots" Tomasulo, 56, asked the jury, "Do you think by any chance if you convict these defendants you will have stamped out the Bonanno 'family'?" Of course not.

Klein said actor Marlon Brando wouldn't have taken the movie role of "The Godfather" if he knew that "these five little fishes represented the Bonanno family."

Lewis Cohen, attorney for Nicholas "Nicky" Santora, 39, asked the jury, "Is there any proof before you that there was anything at all to indicate that Mr. Santora was more than just a neighborhood bookie?"

Defense attorney David Breitbart said the FBI spent $2 million on a five-year investigation of organized crime, only to come up empty-handed. So, he maintained, the FBI threw together a case against the defendants, one without foundation.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Louis Freeh told the jury to consider the power of "the Bonanno 'family' of La Cosa Nostra — the power these defendants respected."

Weather

Showers over Southwest

By Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms lingered over the Southwest early today, continuing mainly over New Mexico, while showers and thunderstorms dampened areas in the upper Midwest and a few showers touched the lower Missouri valley and Maine.

Elsewhere, fair skies prevailed over the Pacific Northwest, the southern Plains and east of the Mississippi.

Wednesday night an inch fell at Escalante, Utah, in one hour. Locally heavy rains Wednesday also hit southern Arizona with flooding east of Yuma.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from a low of 42 at Minot, N.D., to 87 at Fort Worth.

CIA sees slowed Chinese growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA analysts forecast that declining oil production will seriously limit China's industrial growth, at least until prospects for coal and offshore oil improve during the late 1980s.

"Energy constraints alone will slow the industrial growth rate to between 3 and 5 percent annually through 1985, compared with 9.6 percent in 1975-1980," concluded a study by the intelligence agency's Office of East Asian Analysis.

The report was part of a summary of papers released Wednesday by the congressional Joint Economic Committee, assessing China's "Four Modernizations" drive to upgrade industry, agriculture, military forces, and science and technology.

Another study prepared by CIA analysts found that China's military modernization program is making "limited progress" but still has far to go before Peking attains an up-to-date fighting machine.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the committee, said that despite advances since the death of Mao Tse-tung in 1976, "China faces serious economic problems. Agricultural production is barely keeping up with the population. Oil production peaked in 1979 and has been declining, and energy can be expected to be a constraint on growth for the next few years."

"The defense burden has been rather moderate, outlays having been reduced or kept level in the past several years. But there are pressures to increase defense allocations. Such a change in policy could have serious consequences for the economy," Reuss said in releasing the studies.

CIA analysts Robert Michael Field and Judith A. Flynn noted that both Chinese and Western perceptions of China's industrial prospects have "changed drastically" since then Premier Hua Guofeng announced an ambitious 10-year plan of economic modernization in March 1978.

Planners in Peking, "who were counting on continued high growth in oil output to fuel and finance the modernization program — found that oil prospects had been seriously overstated," they wrote.

Rather than increasing by 10 percent annually as had been projected, Chinese oil production actually peaked at 148 million tons of coal equivalent in 1979 and is now expected to drop to 126 million tons by 1985, Field and Flynn said.

The analysts forecast that this would bring a continuing "downward drift" in China's heavy industry through the mid-1980s, while light industry grows at a rate of about 8 percent annually over the same period. They added that the tight energy supply will probably force Peking "to intervene repeatedly in the allocation of fuel."

Wayne Williams' father raps son's defense

ATLANTA (AP) — Wayne B. Williams became antagonistic on the witness stand because his lawyers told him to, and he will claim inadequate defense in his appeal of his conviction in the Atlanta slayings case, his father says.

Williams, 24, was convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison for the slayings of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the 28 slayings of young blacks over 22 months that terrorized the city.

When questioned by defense lawyers during the 9-week trial, Williams appeared placid and collected. Under three days of cross-examination, however, he became antagonistic, a reaction that prosecutors later used to argue that he had a killer's "Jekyll-Hyde" mentality.

But Homer Williams, the father of the convicted man, said Wednesday that the change in character was a purposeful one encouraged by defense lawyer Alvin Binder.

"He did as he was told," the elder Williams said. "He was at the mercy of his attorneys."

Binder resigned from the defense team Monday, citing his health. Homer Williams said that Binder quit because he no longer wanted to represent his son.

Homer Williams did not say whether his son was dissatisfied with just Binder or with former counsel Mary Welcome, whom his son fired after his conviction Feb. 27.

Jet skids off runway, burns

TOKYO (AP) — A Nansai Airlines Boeing 737 was almost totally destroyed by fire after skidding off the end of a runway on a southern Japanese island today, but a quick evacuation prevented any serious injuries among the 133 passengers and five crew members, authorities said.

The domestic airliner skidded about 100 yards off the end of the runway at Ishigaki, a small island southwest of Okinawa, and burst into flames after going through a fence and hitting a patch of shrubbery, the authorities said.

A stewardess and an elderly female passenger were hospitalized for treatment of bruises, while 40 other passengers have been treated and released from the island's hospital, a hospital official, Giko Kabira, said.

Reports from the scene said the small number of injured was "miraculous." The fire burned for more than an hour and destroyed two-thirds of the aircraft before being extinguished.

"Circumstances surrounding the fire are still not clear, but it appears that one of the two engines caught fire after the plane landed," said a Nansai Airline official at Naha, identifying himself as S. Koki.

Japan's Kyodo news service said the plane's pilot, Hirota Nishizaki, 40, a former Air Defense Force pilot, had logged 1,660 flying hours in a Boeing 736, predecessor of the Boeing 737, and had a total of 7,708 flying hours.

2 Poles carry out hijacking

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Two Poles who hijacked a Polish airliner by claiming they had a bomb actually were carrying candles wrapped in paper to make them look like dynamite, Munich's chief prosecutor said today.

"The dummy bomb was made very well," said prosecutor Heinz-Erwin Stocker, adding that the two men also attached batteries and a red button to the "explosives" to lend them an air of realism during the hijacking Wednesday night.

The hijackers — identified only as Frantisek S., a 25-year-old unemployed man; and metalworker Ryszard P., 27 — remained in Munich and will be charged with endangering air traffic, Stocker said. They told the crew of the hijacked plane that they wanted to live in West Germany, but have not formally applied for political asylum, he said.

Polish radio reported that the hijacked plane, which belongs to the government airline LOT, landed in Warsaw at dawn today with 71 of the original 74 passengers and the crew of eight.

Draft resister says he couldn't explain his actions properly

SAN DIEGO (AP) — College student Benjamin Sasway said he wanted to tell a jury why he failed to register with the Selective Service System, but was allowed only to say his decision was a "personal and moral" one that he does not plan to change.

Sasway, 21, is the second person tried for failure to register for the draft since the end of the Vietnam War. His case was expected to go to the jury after closing arguments, scheduled for today.

The Humboldt State University student repeatedly declared on the witness stand Wednesday he had knowingly failed to register.

He had, in effect, turned himself in July 24, 1980 when he wrote a letter to President Jimmy Carter declaring he would not register.

Although the jury heard Sasway affirm Wednesday that he had not registered and would not, he never explained why.

U.S. District Judge Gordon Thompson Jr. had ruled earlier that motive was not relevant to the issue of whether Sasway intended to violate the law.

But Sasway's attorney, Charles T. Bumer, tried anyway, repeatedly asking the young defendant the reason for his actions.

Each time the question was asked, Assistant U.S. Attorney Yemin Annen objected. Her objections were sustained.

Finally, Bumer asked Sasway: "You would like to be able to tell the jury why you made this decision, wouldn't you?"

Sasway answered, "Yes." But the matter went no further.

Under cross-examination, Sasway indicated his reasons for mailing a protest letter to the president on the day he was supposed to mail a draft registration card.

He said his decision was "a personal and a moral one."

"You knew that all you had to do was sign a card to register, didn't you," Ms. Annen asked.

Sasway replied, "I felt that simply signing the card was not the extent of the issue involved."

Earlier in the day, jurors were shown excerpts of television interviews showing Sasway discussing his decision and his views on the military. All references to the possible penalties he could receive were deleted. Thompson had ruled it was irrelevant that Sasway faces a $10,000 fine and five years in prison.

Thompson has instructed the jury not to read or watch news accounts of the trial. But all of the jurors indicated when they were chosen Tuesday they had heard about the case.

Thompson also ruled irrelevant the number of men born between 1960 and 1964 who have not registered since Carter reinstated the registration system by proclamation.

At Sasway's pretrial hearing last week, Selective Service attorney Edward Frankle said 8.6 million young men have registered, and another 700,000 have not.

About 50 people who oppose draft registration have staged marches or stood silently, dressed in black, in front of the federal courthouse each day of Sasway's trial.

Curbing auto thieves

Stealing cars is no longer something kids do for fun. According to the September Reader's Digest, auto theft is a well-organized business that robs Americans of 1.1 million cars a year — or one every 28 seconds.

It's profitable too — returning about $1.7 billion annually to its perpetrators.

Professional thieves who do the stealing usually are filling orders for crooked parts dealers who are trying to cash in on the climbing prices for fenders, hoods, doors and other car parts.

Because so many stolen cars are "chopped up" for their parts, chances of owners recovering them are slimmer than ever, reports Thomas R. Brooks, author of the article. He says that about 45 percent of stolen autos "disappear for good." Back in the 1960s when joyriders did most of the stealing, nearly 90 percent of the cars were recovered quickly.

Not all cars are stolen for their parts. There's a lucrative market in selling the cars intact. Says Brooks: "In New York City one racketeer stole 21 cars and started a rent-a-car business. Detroit poachers stole 23 cars, including three police cars, and used them to expand a taxicab company. A Los Angeles operation racked up $1.2 million in resales before the police broke it up."

Despite the fact that car theft is on the rise and that even the mob has begun to muscle in on the business, law enforcement authorities and auto salvage experts say there are some things car owners can do to help curb the problem:

- Use an etching pencil to engrave the vehicle identification number in hard-to-find spots on the car.
- Always lock your car and take your keys. Perhaps surprisingly, one out of every five cars is stolen because people forget to do one of the two — or both.
- Don't leave the license or registration in the car, and leave the auto's title at home. These documents can be used to help sell a car fraudulently.
- Use special locks and alarms. Many auto-insurance companies give discounts to car owners who install such anti-theft devices.
- Finally, says Brooks, "curb your greed." The market for stolen goods "now rivals legitimate business because thousands of ordinary citizens are hungry for a bargain... a terrific deal may mean it's crooked. If instinct tells you a car is hot, don't buy it."

As the wire churns

One of the advantages of The Herald's newly-acquired computer system is that everyone can read all the wire stories.

Sometimes, the Associated Press sends some strange stuff out to its subscribers.

For instance, take a look at these gems. All of them were gleaned out of a single day's wire stories, and as far as I can tell, are for real. Some of the names have been changed to protect the innocent (me) from a libel suit.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says the United States must be able to survive Soviet nuclear strikes over an extended period, even though the Reagan administration is opposed to waging a long nuclear war.

Come on, Caspar, who ever heard of a "long" nuclear war?

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — After years of listening to American pop heroes, German youth has found a music of its own — almost. It's the New German Wave — Teuton punk.

Punk has taken West German teenagers by storm. In the words of one popular song, they "dance the Mussolini" and "the Adolf Hitler," bobbing up and down like sleepwalkers to the records they buy by the hundreds of thousands.

This summer's big hit, "Da Da Da," consists, for example, of those three words repeated for almost five minutes. In between, the band, Trio, roars, "Ich liebe Dich nicht, Du liebst mich nicht." ("I don't love you, You don't love me").

Composer Stefan Remmler, who claims in interviews with music magazines to draw inspiration from television commercials, says he dreamed this one up when thinking about modern relationships.

"I think it's a very intelligent text," he maintains.

Well, I suppose if he really does draw inspiration from television commercials, the lyrics probably do seem intelligent.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Places, please." The stage manager's usual warning to actors that the curtain's going up. But at Jones Beach Theatre, they're also warned the stage has gone up — or down. It floats on water in a small bay in Long Island, N.Y., right near the Atlantic Ocean. Both tide and stage can go up or down by as much as four feet before the players take that final bow.

Lynne Stuart, an ex-actress, laughed. "It does sound a little strange at first to hear, 'Places, please,' then: 'There are four tide steps on the front pontoon tonight.' But you get used to it."

"For example, you come out and find the orchestra pit underwater, with seaweed in there," she marveled.

Brisk ocean breezes also must be considered, she said. All the sets must be built to withstand the wind blowing in from the Atlantic, "but they can't be too solid or heavy because they'll sink the pontoon they're on."

I wonder what goes through an actor's mind as he gets ready to go onstage. Life preserver around his neck?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two highway patrol officers crashed into each other while leading President Reagan's motorcade, suffering broken bones.

"One of the motorcycle officers slowed to turn left and the other officer rear-ended him causing the motorcycles to go down," said Erickson.

The accident took place at about 2:45 p.m. Tuesday as the motorcade was turning onto the Santa Monica Freeway to take Reagan to a doctor's office for a routine hearing examination.

Even if Reagan didn't hear the crash, he must have seen the red faces. I wonder who got the ticket?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Austin city councilman was charged Tuesday with discharging a firearm in the city limits after he told police he repeatedly fired a high-powered rifle at snakes in his apartment.

Police reported they found no snakes but a green garden hose had been pierced by an apparent gunshot and the front left tire of the councilman's 1977 Buick had been pierced by a gunshot.

Israel and the odious analogies

Why do so many people compare Israel to Nazi Germany? That is the question raised by the Irish writer (Conor Cruise O'Brien, who finds the analogy "peculiarly odious," which of course it is.

The invasion of Lebanon has filled the newspapers with loose talk of another Holocaust, this time allegedly inflicted by Jews on Palestinians. In the words of one American journalist, "Incident by incident, atrocity by atrocity, Americans are coming to see the Israeli government as pounding the Star of David into a swastika." Others predict that West Beirut may be to the Palestinians what the Warsaw ghetto was to the Jews.

THE PROBLEM with the analogy is that Europe's Jews were no threat to Nazi Germany, while the PLO is an armed enemy of Israel. The Israeli invasion is outrageously disproportionate to the threat, but a threat did exist. It is not the Palestinian people, but (regrettably) Palestinian nationalism that Manachem Begin would like to eradicate.

O'Brien admits that some of the horror at the carnage in Lebanon is sincerely humanitarian. But he says that "other critics, particularly the ones who are most excited right now must, I think, be motivated by some kind of anti-Semitic feelings."

That is one explanation, no doubt partly valid. There are others that O'Brien overlooks. One is that the currency of hyperbole has been debased. Analogies to Hitler have long been popular on the extreme left, as when the graffiti-writers spelled "Nixon" with a swastika replacing the middle letter. Among some inarticulate people, the only way to register disapproval is to invoke Nazism.

This is apparently the case among some Israelis, who should know better. Recently, when El Al employees protested a new ban on Sabbath-day flights by refusing service to Orthodox Jews, the workers were compared, absurdly but inevitably, to the Nazis.

ANOTHER REASON for the analogy is that human beings have a natural taste for irony and will strain to find it. That is why many people will gleefully believe that any prominent evangelist is secretly a sexual libertine, or that policemen are generally dishonest. What could be more paradoxical than Jews behaving like Nazis? The image is so rich in irony that the credulous will accept it without evidence.

But the main source of the comparison is Manachem Begin. This should come as no surprise. Begin refers to the Palestinians as "two-legged beasts" and says of the civilian victims of the invasion: "They deserved it." Sentiments like those don't induce comparison with Mother Teresa.

Nor have Begin's policies on the West Bank helped to erase his authoritarian image. Arab newspapers have been closed down, elected Arab mayors have been dismissed, and more than a thousand books have been banned — not the telltale signs of a libertarian order.

Amnesty International's most recent annual report criticizes the government for a variety of human rights abuses, including "the arrest and conviction of prisoners of conscience... the use of administrative measures to physically restrict individuals and to detain them without trial... and the use of excessive force by security forces to quell public disturbances."

THEN THERE IS the matter of Begin's past. Conor Cruise O'Brien should know that the first comparisons with Hitler came not from anti-Semites but from Jews. In 1948, several prominent Zionists, including Albert Einstein, Hannah Arendt and Sidney Hook wrote a letter to The New York Times characterizing Begin's party as "closely akin in its organization, methods, political philosophy and social appeal to the Nazi and Fascist parties."

That accusation was based largely on his membership in the terrorist Irgun Zvai Leumi prior to independence. The Irgun was responsible for the bombing of the King David hotel, which by accident or by intent killed 91 people. It also perpetrated the 1948 massacre of more than 200 Arabs (many of them women and children) in the village of Deir Yassin.

Do those crimes, or his current policies in Lebanon and one the West Bank, make Begin a Hitler? Of course not. The Irgun atrocities were isolated instances. It ordinarily attacked only British military installations. Begin is the elected head of the only parliamentary democracy in the Middle East. Though his war has been savage and his repression in the occupied territories harsh, neither has aimed at genocide.

Billy Graham

Foreigner is lonely

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am from another country, and I am studying in this country for several years. I became a Christian in my country through American missionaries, but I am having a hard time feeling comfortable in any of the churches here. I am very lonely and desperately need Christian fellowship. What do you suggest I do? — Z.T.

DEAR Z.T.: There are tens of thousands of international students studying in our nation, and many of them are like you — lonely and maybe even confused by our culture. And many also are like you in that they are Christian believers — while many more are very interested in learning about the Christian faith.

Before I answer your question, therefore, I hope some of my readers will think about ways they can help people like yourself. Many churches are near colleges and universities, and they should ask God to show them how they can befriend students from other countries. (A helpful free guide about ministering to international students can be obtained from International Students, Inc., P.O. Box C, Colorado Springs, Colorado 80901).

The first thing I want to do is to encourage you to stay close to Christ, even when you have no close Christian fellowship. God loves you — the proof of that is that his Son was willing to undergo the loneliness of the cross for you. And he has promised, "Never will I leave you; never will I forsake you" (Hebrews 13:5). Are you spending time alone each day with God in prayer and Bible study? Perhaps God is using this time to show you your need of relying on him and drawing closer to him.

Then pray that God will lead you to Christians with whom you can have fellowship. The churches near you may do some things differently than those you have known in your own country — but that does not mean they have any less of a love for Christ. And you should also see if there are some interdenominational student groups on your campus, such as Campus Crusade, Inter-Varsity, Navigators, or another group that upholds Christ and the Bible. God has his people everywhere — pray that he will help you find them.

Thoughts

The world is divided into people who do things and people who get the credit. Try, if you can, to belong to the first class. There's far less competition.

—Dwight Morrow

of a buddy who claimed he had been beaten and robbed by militiamen, Sharqi warned the cops that "something would happen" if they didn't give back the money.

"This behavior brought on a serious response" from the Russians, who "demanded that the man be returned home," according to the commander's report.

Though the embarrassment of his indiscretions clearly weighed heavily on Commander Mugadam, he also had some complaints about their hosts. There was, he reported, a shortage of Arabic translators. The PLO trainees had to sleep 10 to a room, which "caused difficulties." And some of the courses ended before the departure date, whereupon the Russian tutors simply started over again.

In the future, the commander suggested, those chosen for training in the Soviet Union should be "of high quality, who are capable of representing (us) outside." He added that "it is preferable to lower the number in order not to harm the quality."

Meanwhile, Arafat will have this problem to ponder: How you gonna keep 'em down on the desert after they've seen Russia?

Strike may hit Ohio's largest daily paper

CLEVELAND (AP) — The union representing the reporters and editors of The Plain Dealer agreed early today to meet with a federal mediator and hold off temporarily on its strike against Ohio's largest newspaper, union officials said.

J. Steven Hatch, executive secretary of Local 1 of The Newspaper Guild, said the union for about 250 reporters and editors of The Plain Dealer — the only newspaper in Ohio's largest city — had planned to set up picket lines at 8 a.m.

But Hatch said he received a plea early today from Kay McMurray, the head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, for another meeting.

"He strongly suggested that we hold off one day," Hatch said. "He asked our bargaining team to meet with mediators at 6:30 (a.m.) which we will do. Pickets will not go up until and if we decide that there's nothing there."

On Wednesday, Leo Ring, the chief bargainer for the newspaper, said after a federally mediated negotiating session that "there will be a strike," and he said he thought it could last up to six months.

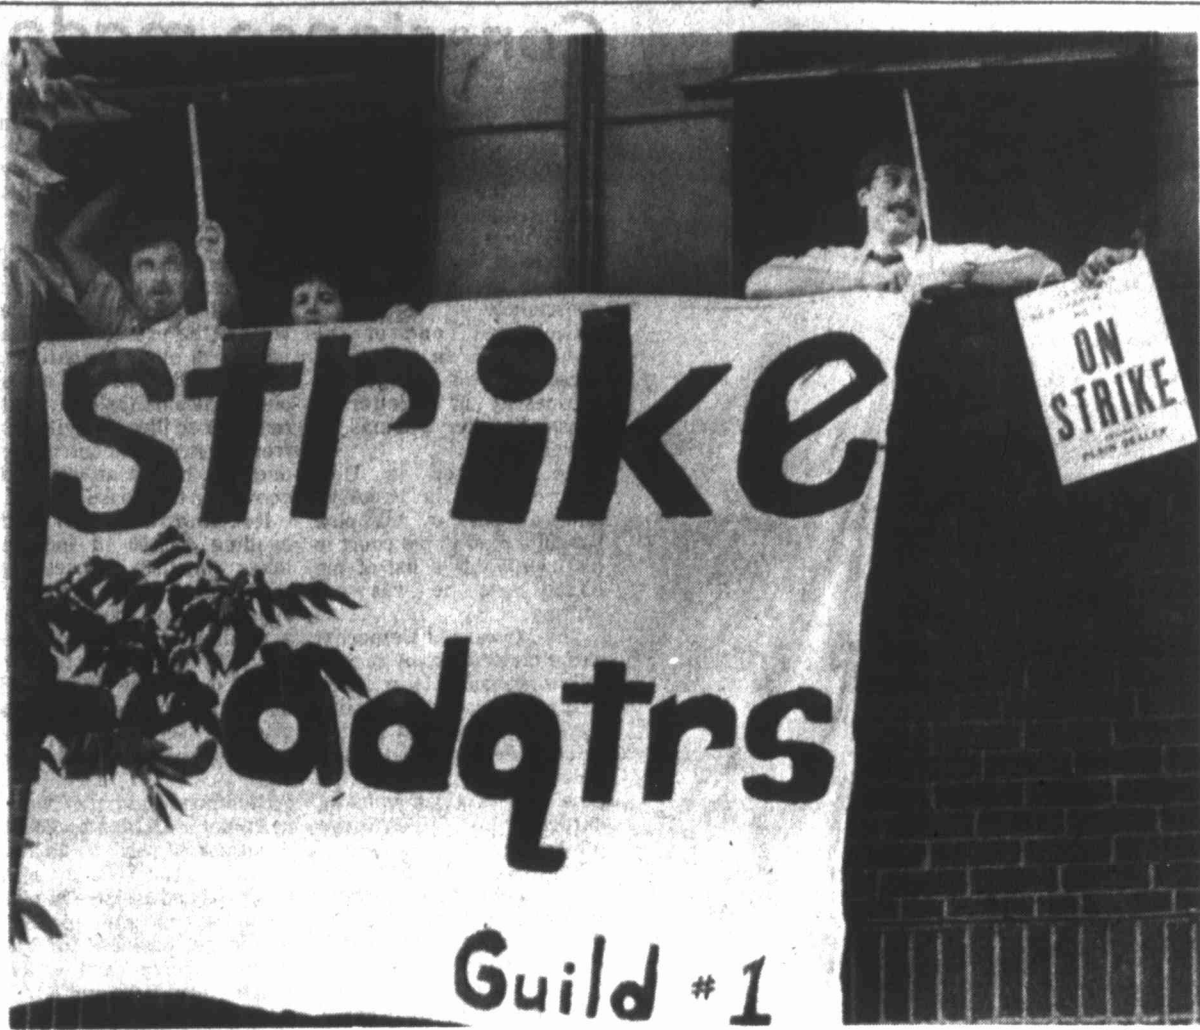

Today's Plain Dealer was published and delivered. News of the threatened strike was printed in a six-paragraph story on the front page.

The last strike at the morning Plain Dealer was in 1974, and lasted 49 days.

Negotiators in the Plain Dealer talks reached tentative agreement on non-economic issues, but said they were far apart on wages. No further talks were scheduled.

The current top minimum wage for reporters is $520.20 a week.

Management offered $28.54 a week more in salary in the first year of a two-year contract and $21 in the second year. The union sought $83.23 for the first year and $48 in the second.

SETTING UP SHOP — Newsroom employees of the Cleveland Plain Dealer unfurled a banner identifying their strike headquarters Wednesday night. A strike scheduled for this morning was postponed.

Nation's biggest daily, unions find agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — The Daily News and the last two of its 11 labor unions reached agreement today on cost-reduction measures that newspaper officials say are necessary to save the nation's largest general-circulation daily.

The accords were disclosed after marathon negotiations between the newspaper and the Newspaper Deliverers Union were completed at 4 a.m. They represented the final step for the paper's owner, the Tribune Co. of Chicago, to save the paper from folding.

The Tribune Co. had told the unions last April that the News needed to eliminate the equivalent of 1,340 jobs to save some $50 million a year.

Gregory Thornton, vice-president and director of industrial relations for the News, and Murray Schwartz, president of the independent deliverers union, announced the agreement.

Thornton also disclosed that agreement had been reached earlier with the Printing Pressmen.

Both agreements were subject to approval of the unions' membership, officials said. Schwartz said his members would meet Monday, and that his bargaining committee had approved the agreement unanimously.

Thornton said the News now "looks forward to full agreement" to settlement of the remaining issue — an extension of the contracts with all 11 unions. The News has proposed extensions starting March 31, 1984, that would put the unions under contract for three additional years, with increases in weekly pay totaling $100 during the added term.

Now Cities wants merger with Oxy Pete

NEW YORK (AP) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. spurned twice in a courtship of Cities Service Co., sweetened its offering by an estimated $500 million and won Cities' consent in a corporate marriage to create the eighth-biggest U.S. oil company.

Cities' board of directors accepted the revised Occidental offer, valued by analysts at $4.3 billion, at an emergency meeting Wednesday night that culminated nearly two weeks of bargaining and wrangling between the two companies. The Cities directors on Monday had rejected an Occidental tender offer based on $50 a share for 49 percent of its stock. That tender offer began last Thursday, and Occidental said it is continuing at the higher price.

Under the agreement, Occidental would buy about 45 percent of Cities' common stock for $55 a share in cash, or a total of $1.9 billion. Following a merger of the companies, Occidental said it would acquire the remaining shares by swapping a package of securities with a value estimated by analysts at $2.4 billion.

The agreement is subject to review by either the Justice Department or the Federal Trade Commission and by shareholders of both companies.

Gulf Oil Corp. backed out of an agreement to buy Cities for $4.8 billion earlier this month after the FTC raised antitrust objections. Gulf's withdrawal sent Cities executives scrambling for another merger partner to avoid a collapse of its stock price. Cities stock did not trade Wednesday because of uncertainty about the outcome of the Cities board meeting. The stock closed Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange at $45 a share, up $2.25.

If the merger is completed, the new company would rank in annual sales just one notch below General Electric Co., making it the nation's 12th-biggest industrial concern and the eighth-largest oil company behind Atlantic Richfield Co. Occidental currently is the 13th-largest oil company and Cities-ranks No. 20.

Cities is attractive to many oil companies for its domestic oil and natural gas reserves, its gas pipeline subsidiary and its refining and marketing operations. The company operates a network of about 6,000 gasoline stations in the United States. Occidental has no gasoline marketing operations in this country.

Colorado S&Ls buck depressed trend

DENVER (AP) — The state's savings and loan associations "recorded a strong showing" during the first half of 1982, despite a depressed housing market and a slowed Colorado economy, an official said.

Charles Henning, executive vice president of the Savings & Loan League of Colorado, said Wednesday that savings and assets in the associations are at higher levels than they were a year ago, bucking a national trend.

He said the 46 savings and loan associations in Colorado loaned $620.5 million during the first six months this year and increased their savings portfolios by 4.7 percent to $8.3 billion. During the same period, he said, the national average savings increase was just 2.4 percent.

Loan portfolios at the Colorado associations rose 10 percent during the same period.

by less than 1 percent during the first six months this year, Henning said, but loan portfolios nationwide dropped by more than 1 percent during the same period.

Paul Newman's salad days find dressing

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Paul Newman fans who may never have the chance to join the actor for dinner will soon be able to taste one of his homemade recipes.

For years, the blue-eyed movie star and race-car aficionado has combined his favorite ingredients into a salad dressing that he served to his family and gave to friends as holiday gifts. For years, his friends told him the tasty concoction was good enough to sell.

He has taken their advice. On the shelves of at least two stores in southwestern Connecticut, customers find clear glass bottles bearing labels with portraits of Newman's smiling face wreathed in herbs and vegetables.

Inside each bottle is Newman's own recipe — a vinaigrette dressing made of olive oil, soybean oil, red wine vinegar, water, lemon juice, spices, salt, dehydrated onion and garlic. It's called Newman's Own, and customers are gobbling it up.

"We've had it about three weeks and we've already sold 10,000 bottles," said Stew Leonard Jr., who works at Stew Leonard's Dairy in Norwalk, a family-run store near Newman's home in Westport.

Even though Newman's Own costs as much as 30 cents more than the store's other popular brands, it's selling like crazy, Leonard said.

Dave Kalman, whose Advantage Food Marketing Corp. of Port Washington, N.Y., is sole U.S. distributor for the dressing, said his company was not ready for the response to the product.

"We weren't going to even announce that the product exists until Sept. 15," said Kalman. Newman's Own has had "no advertising and stores are selling thousands and thousands of bottles of the stuff," he said.

Kalman's company plans to test market the salad dressing in the Northeast, then go nationwide.

THE ACTOR'S DRESSING — It's called "Newman's Own," a concoction by the actor Paul Newman. The salad dressing is being sold at a store in Connecticut and is selling very well. Plans are to market the dressing nationwide. The actor had been making batches at home for years before deciding to market it.

Conscience made Richmond resign

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Rep. Frederick Richmond says he resigned from the House of Representatives and pleaded guilty to tax evasion and marijuana charges "on the basis of the counsel of my conscience."

Richmond, one of the richest men in Congress, turned in his resignation Wednesday in a letter to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

He appeared in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn and, as part of his plea bargain, read to the court in his own words a list of the illegal acts he was admitting.

The 58-year-old Democrat came under scrutiny in 1978 following incidents in which he sexually propositioned a 16-year-old boy and an undercover policeman. Charges against him in that case were dropped when he entered a treatment program.

Bea Dolen, head of the elections board, said Richmond missed the Aug. 13 deadline for getting his name stricken from the Sept. 23 primary ballot and "can only be removed by court disqualification."

Richmond agreed not to accept renomination should he win in the November general election.

A few hours after the resignation, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Ethics Committee, announced that an investigation into Richmond's affairs was being dropped because his resignation left the committee without jurisdiction.

Richmond's guilty plea and resignation came in return for a promise that he will not be prosecuted on a variety of other allegations, including that he had aides obtain cocaine for him; that he obtained illegal payments from a firm he controlled; and that he put an escaped convict on the House payroll. Richmond admitted evading $50,000 in income taxes in 1981, possessing marijuana and illegally supplementing the salary of a civilian employee of the Navy by arranging to pay $7,420 in college tuition for his daughter "to show my gratitude for services performed for me and my staff."

Richmond said the Navy man, not identified by court documents, was a liaison between the Navy and Congress and assisted him in obtaining information that helped get business for the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which is in his former district.

He stood erect, head slightly bowed and hands neatly folded in front of him as he answered "guilty" to each of three counts.

Richmond declined to talk with reporters as he left the courthouse, but said in a statement: "I have taken these actions on the basis of the counsel of my conscience.

FRED RICHMOND
Congressman resigned

"These acts to which I have pled guilty were irresponsible, unnecessary, foolish and wrong." He asked his constituents to "understand and respect my motivation in resigning and in not seeking re-election."

Richmond could receive up to seven years in prison and $20,000 in fines at his sentencing by a judge Nov. 12.

Although the deal apparently would halt the investigation of Richmond's affairs, U.S. Attorney Edward Korman, who prosecuted the case, told Judge Charles Sifton that he reserved the right to bring the findings of the grand jury before the sentencing judge.

Korman described Richmond as "a fairly tragic figure whose long public career has come to an end," but added that "the American people believe the federal government has acted vigorously in prosecuting corrupt government officials."

Ted Turner says CNN will start to make money

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Cable television magnate Ted Turner predicted Wednesday that his Cable News Network channels, now losing about $1 million a month, will turn around financially in 1983.

Turner, who started the 24-hour all-news cable television broadcasts from Atlanta on June 1, 1980, attributed the loss in part to expansion of his news operations over the past year. That expansion included establishment of a second, headline-style news service in January, known as CNN2.

The two services lost about $1 million in July, said Turner. He added that expenses for his news operations this year have been up about 90 percent over 1981.

"Next year, we should break even or show a profit on the news operations," said Turner. And, referring to Turner Broadcast System Inc., the parent company of CNN, he said, "Overall, the company is in the black."

He reported his radio network service, which went into operation April 1, consisting of the audio portion of CNN2, has been breaking even.

Turner was in Connecticut to help promote a local news broadcast to be inaugurated on Sept. 13 during the hourly two-minute break in CNN services. The broadcast will originate from radio station WELI and be offered to Storer Cable System's 46,500 customers in Hamden, New Haven and West Haven. It's believed to be the first time such a TV news service has been offered through a radio station, Turner said.

Volcano may pose threat to ski resort

MAMMOTH LAKES, Calif. (AP) — Scientists say a tongue of molten rock may be moving up beneath this high Sierra ski resort and residents must be prepared if a volcanic explosion blocks the only road out and white-hot cinders rain down over the scenic valley.

"Mammoth Lakes is literally surrounded by volcanoes and they have been active in the past few hundred years," Dan Miller of the U.S. Geological Survey said Wednesday. "I think we can expect future eruptions in this area — whether they will occur in our lifetimes, we can't say."

Miller, chief of the volcanic hazards project for the area, and other geologists addressed a conference at Mammoth High School. They said they don't know if an eruption will occur and certainly aren't forecasting one, but the threat nevertheless is there.

The Geological Survey in May issued a formal notice of potential hazard here. The "statement of concern," the lowest of three warning levels, means essentially that scientists aren't sure what's going on, but they're paying very close attention.

Scientists cited such things as more earthquakes, especially swarms of small ones that move progressively nearer the surface, the appearance of at least one significant steam vent in the mountains and a vast bulge that has raised much of the area about 10 inches.

Those changes, they said, suggest volcanic stirrings, although no one knows where it's heading.

Meier sues to block Mattox campaign ads

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Republican Bill Meier asked a Dallas court Wednesday to stop his Democratic opponent, Jim Mattox, from implying that he is the current attorney general.

Meier told a Capitol news conference that Mattox campaign advertisements, that said "Jim Mattox, Attorney General" were "a blatant violation of the election code."

"The voters have a clear choice in this race. They should not be confused by fraudulent advertising," Meier said.

Later, Mattox replied that the suit was "a publicity stunt, a cheap way to get news coverage. It only cost him $60 to file the suit."

Mattox said the suit was 'a publicity stunt, a cheap way to get news coverage.'

"Anyone who looks at my ads in their full context understands that I am a congressman, have been for six years and am proud of it," Mattox said.

Meier said a civil suit was filed in 191st District Court, Dallas, asking for an injunction to stop Mattox from using any political advertising that implies he is currently the attorney general.

A hearing on Meier's petition was set for Sept. 3. Meier held up several copies of advertising that he said Mattox had used in the first and second Democratic primaries from which Mattox emerged the winner. "An issue like this, which Jim Mattox will label as minor, may have been the difference in the runoff election

DIRTY POLITICS? — State Sen. Bill Meier of Euless said it was dirty politics for U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas to mislead voters into thinking Mattox is the current attorney general in Texas. Meier, who faces Mattox in the attorney general race in November, unveiled the charge against his Democratic opponent in Austin yesterday.

where Mattox squeaked by John Hannah by 1.5 percent of the vote," Meier said.

Meier said he had not seen Mattox using the advertisements in the general election campaign, "but I want to stop it now. He has campaigned this year using this false advertising and it affects the way voters think about all candidates."

Meier said he filed a civil suit because his only interest was to stop Mattox.

"Whether there is a criminal violation (of the state election laws) that is a matter for the Dallas district attorney," he said.

Dr. Donohue

Hand surgery

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have Dupuytren's contraction in my hand. I can't straighten out my fingers and my hands are almost in a fist. I have no pain with it, and I was able to work with my crippled hands till I was 65. I still can do almost anything, but I feel embarrassed when I have to shake hands with people and they can see that my hands are this way. I would like to operate and straighten out my fingers and have normal hands, but I would like to know my chances of success and if it is worth it at my age. I am now 68. I am in good health and otherwise have no problems. Is the operation dangerous? — H.B.

I can answer all the questions you ask, except the key one — is it worth it? That calls for subjective judgment. If it is important for you to have it done, I would say yes, it is worth it. Why not? You are young at 68. That age is looking younger to me with every passing birthday.

Now, is it dangerous? No. Is it successful? Almost always. Let's look at just what Dupuytren's contracture is. There is a string (tendon) attached to each finger. This runs across the palm and ties to one of the forearm muscles. When the muscle contracts, it pulls on the finger. It bends.

As the tendon passes from the forearm muscle it goes through a dense tissue wrapper called the fascia. If the fascia changes, grows hard or shrinks, that exerts pressure on the tendon, too. The finger bends and may hold fascia changes, grows hard or shrinks, that exerts pressure on the tendon, too. The finger bends and may hold down in that position. That is Dupuytren's contracture. Usually the ring and little fingers are the ones bent (down toward the palm). It happens to men more than women, in fact about eight to 10 times more often. The problem also tends to run in families.

In the operation, the surgeon releases the constricting fascia. I see no reason why you should not have had this done years ago. You can have it done now, and probably ought to.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You have spoken on diverticulosis. I was treated for this some time back. Can this actually cause bleeding, which I have been experiencing? — A.R.

Indeed, it can. Depending on where the intestinal pockets are located, the bleeding can be great or little. Inflammation of those little pockets can cause bleeding. So can unrelated problems — such as hemorrhoids or malignancy.

Why are you guessing about such an important symptom as this? It's not the kind of thing you want to be writing to a medical columnist about. You want an immediate examination.

I have written on this subject so much, perhaps to the point of reader nausea, that I am going to have to refer you to the booklet available, which goes into your other questions. It's called "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." A copy is on the way, and other readers can have one by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents. Any well-stocked library should have medical texts in lay language with good references to this very common problem.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Mrs. Williams to be honored on birthday

Mrs. Williams is the mother of Weldon McElreath of Lubbock, Bill McElreath and Jess McElreath, both of Fort Worth, Irene Williams Ringener of Big Spring, and Ronnie Williams of Seminole. She has 10 grandchildren.

District 17 PTA workshop is planned

Special guests in attendance during the meeting were Dorothy Coleman, District 17 president, and Carolyn Myers of Odessa, District 17 vice president.

Plans were made for Big Spring Council PTA to host the workshop. All PTA members and anyone else interested in the welfare of children and youth are invited to attend the workshop.

Nurse to be honored for her retirement

A retirement reception for Lorraine Shirley, R.N., will be held at Malone-Hogan Hospital Wednesday in the hospital classroom from 2:30-4 p.m. Friends are invited to attend.

Mrs. Shirley began working at Malone-Hogan Hospital in 1953. She was head nurse on one of the floors and was honored as the hospital's Dr. Frist Humanitarian Award in Aug. 1980. Mrs. Shirley was trained at Columbus Nursing School in Great Falls, Mont.

"Losing an employee like Mrs. Shirley creates a void in our hospital, and I'm sure, for our patients who will return and find her gone. We wish her the very best," John Bingham, hospital administrator, said.

Mrs. Shirley is the wife of Tommy Shirley, mother of three children and grandmother of three grandchildren.

Dear Abby

Decision to 'hold' upsets fiancée

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 and John (not his real name) is 39. When we became engaged last March, I was thrilled because I'd been waiting for him to propose for two years. We agreed on an October wedding, but I went ahead and made all the arrangements — right down to having the invitations printed.

I've been paying for everything myself, but last night I asked John if he could help some. That's when he said some friends advised him to ask me to sign a statement saying everything he had before our marriage will be his alone. I told him I would sign anything and gladly. Then he said he still loves me but he wants to put our wedding on "hold" for a while!

Abby, we've lived together for nearly two years, so we're not exactly strangers. I love John and don't want to push him into anything he's not comfortable with, but our plans are made and the date is set. What should I do besides cry?

LOSING HOPE

DEAR LOSING: Be grateful that John admitted that he's not ready for marriage. (He's not). And since he suggested that you put the wedding on "hold," don't you be left holding the bag. Let John know that he's expected to share the expenses that have already been incurred.

DEAR ABBY: What does a mother do when she suspects her son has become a drug dealer? He doesn't fit the description of what one pictures a drug dealer to be. He is educated, clean-cut, well-mannered and dresses beautifully. He's 22 and still in college.

I wonder how he is able to drive an expensive new car, live in a beautiful apartment, travel first class and buy expensive clothes and gifts without working. He tells me he has done well on some "investments," but he knows I don't believe him.

Do I let him make his own mistakes? The price could be very high. He's my son and, of course, I love him.

NO NAME OR TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: If your son has chosen not to reveal the source of his mysterious income, there is nothing you can do about it. Eventually you will learn — to your sorrow, or your relief.

Once-booming Mexican trade dries up along U.S. border

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A year ago American border businesses reported rich Mexicans buying expensive cars, condominiums and merchandise with suitcases full of cash from Mexico's oil boom.

This week these same businesses are suffering in the wake of the second peso devaluation of 1982.

Malls along the border that as late as December were teeming with the nouveau riche from Mexico were almost devoid of Mexican customers who normally take shopping vacations in the United States during July and August.

"No Acetamos Pesos (We Don't Accept Pesos)" read signs hung on smaller businesses from Brownsville to El Paso. Bigger stores that were accepting the Mexican currency were doing so at extremely high rates of exchange pending the setting of a stable rate.

One San Antonio real estate agent reported she lost $1 million in condominium sales to Mexicans since the devaluation, and a local magazine that went into business a year ago to lure wealthy Mexicans shoppers to the United States confirmed it is folding.

"They just haven't got the money," said W.F. Pape, comptroller at Richter's Department Store in Laredo's nearly desolate Riverdrive Mall, situated on the banks of the Rio Grande and catering to Mexican customers. Mall sales dropped 65 percent.

"Plus along the border the exchange rate, if it exists, is bouncing like a rubber ball," Pape said. "There's just nobody in town. Our parking lot is pretty empty. Traffic is pretty slim. I haven't had a firm exchange rate from the banks since Aug. 12. It's just a wild guess where it is going. Nobody knows. Everybody's praying day by day that things will settle down," Pape said.

Pape said his store's business dropped 30 percent when Mexico devalued the peso last February, decreasing its value from 27 to the U.S. dollar to 48, but fell 60 percent after the second devaluation.

The latest devaluation drove the peso's value down to a low of 130 pesos to the dollar, until it gradually began leveling off this week in the range of 90 to 97 pesos.

That delivered a killing blow to virtually all trade from across the Rio Grande, Pape said.

"It was like there was a little panic," said San Antonio realtor Gail Gilliam who sells expensive condos. "I lost a million dollars worth of contracts in the first week" when the devaluation and accompanying money-exchange restrictions were imposed.

Ms. Gilliam said many of her customers, however, have reinstated their deals since the first week of Mexico's monetary crisis, but will carefully watch their cash flows in the future.

NO BORDER point was immune from the economic disaster.

Said Jerry Markham of a J.C. Penney store in McAllen, "Our Mexican trade is gone."

"You could walk up and down the mall and find the pesos anywhere from 85 to 1 to 130 to 1," said Markham, general merchandise manager for the store. "We're looking at probably 60 percent" decrease because of the lack of Mexican shoppers, he said.

Customs broker Arthur Brewer of Laredo said the restrictions imposed by the Mexican government to halt the flight of capital to the United States were particularly worrisome to people in his business.

"I've got two checks in my pocket right now and I can't collect them," Brewer said. "You can turn them in to a Mexican bank and they will cash them for pesos and then buy dollars. You might wind up with $4,000 back out of a $5,000 check. I prefer to hold them. If they'll do away with these exchange controls... I think they're even worse than the devaluation. If people cannot freely exchange money, I think they've got problems."

Roy Phillips, manager of Dillard's department store at Brownsville's Amigoland Mall, acknowledged the peso business was down but said they were getting some Mexican customers who "evidently have dollar accounts here in the United States."

Phillips said his store was accepting pesos at a 90-to-1 rate, hoping the currency eventually would stabilize in that range.

Al Cisneros, director of the Port of Brownsville, said the two peso devaluations coupled with the U.S. recession have contributed to a loss of about 1,000 jobs this year at the facility. The port and associated industries divide business 50-50 between shipments to the United States and to Northern Mexico, which does not have its own port.

Joe Lopez, head of the Downtown Merchants Association in Del Rio, said that he anticipated it would take longer for border business to get back to normal this time.

"They've adjusted to all the other devaluations so I don't see any reason why they won't adjust to this one. Of course, it'll probably take longer because it's a bigger drop than any one before and it happened more recent to the last one," Lopez said.

"I think it's important to understand that the peso needed to be devalued in order to have a realistic value vis a vis the dollar," Cisneros added.

Otis Parchman, chairman and executive officer of the First National Bank of Brownsville, added, "We're optimistic long-term. We think that Mexico is taking the type of measures to get things under control and over a period of time, Mexico has the resources to do that."

Cotton exchange chairman died of gunshot wound

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of the New York Cotton Exchange, who was found dead of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, was despondent over losing $60,000 during last week's stock market surge, colleagues told police.

Philip L. Hehmeyer, 37, left no suicide note, but his associates told police he was depressed over the losses he sustained by "selling short" — betting that markets would go down prior to last week, when the Dow Jones Industrial Average soared 81 points.

"There was some talk of money losses," said cotton exchange President William J. Donaghy. "If there are money losses, claims will be made against them in due course, but we don't have them yet."

But W. Thorpe McKenzie, Hehmeyer's friend and former roommate, said the $60,000 loss had "a devastating psychological effect on him."

His 10 years dealing stocks left Hehmeyer feeling "a certain amount of being shellshocked," McKenzie added.

Hehmeyer's body was found on the kitchen floor of his apartment by the building superintendent, who was alerted when Hehmeyer failed to appear at work.

Police said the apartment was locked and there was no indication of foul play. A shotgun was found beside him.

Robert Willis, a spokesman for the Manhattan medical examiner's office, said injuries to Hehmeyer's chest, heart, lung and kidney were self-inflicted, the result of a single blast.

"Why he did it, nobody can say," said Ernest Simon, an analyst at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. who knew Hehmeyer. "It may have been financial problems; it may have been personal. Who knows?"

Bruce Stoner, a spokesman for the Commodities Futures Trading Commission, which governs the cotton exchange, said in Washington he did not expect an investigation by the commission.

"The only way we would become involved is if manipulation of the market is involved," he said.

Donaghy said Hehmeyer, who planned to get married next month, was elected chairman of the board of the exchange two months ago.

"He was a very aggressive, strong working young man," Donaghy said.

Hehmeyer is survived by his parents and a brother. Services were scheduled for today.

Local tax rebate up

State Comptroller Bob Bullock recently sent checks totaling $208,324 to the city of Big Spring as its share of the one-percent city sales tax for August.

The rebate is up approximately $40,000 from this same time last year.

Statewide, Bullock sent checks amounting to $98 million to 967 Texas cities. Bullock's office reported rebates running nearly 12 percent ahead of last year's totals.

Other area towns rebates follow: Coahoma, $4,055; Lamesa, $65,590; Loraine, 1,301; and Colorado City, $25,805.

Jones appeal denied

An appeal to the Eleventh Supreme Judicial District Court of Appeals by Carroll Wayne Jones has been denied. Jones was sentenced Oct. 7, 1981 to 16 years in prison by a 118th District Court jury for rape of a child.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the decision by the court and said it found no errors in the trial.

Anti-war group says it found nuke warheads

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — A spokeswoman for a Christian anti-war organization said members of the group took four unarmed nuclear warheads from a weapons plant, but the Defense Department says the objects were not warheads.

The objects may have been non-nuclear components of a missile system, a Pentagon spokesman said.

The objects "were found in an exposed trash heap" at a General Electric plant in Valley Forge sometime in April, said Peggy McGuire, a spokeswoman for the Brandywine Peace Community, based in Media.

A report in the Philadelphia Daily News quoted other members of the group as saying the objects were taken from a loading dock at the GE plant during a late-night raid.

A GE spokesman at the plant said today that the company knew the cones had been taken from a fenced-in area, but said they were not worth doing anything about.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the cone-shaped objects were not classified and had a scrap value of a "few bucks." If the cones had been classified material, they "would have been under lock and security guard," the spokesman added.

Defense Department officials who saw a picture of one of the objects told the Philadelphia Daily News it appeared to be a component of the Mark 12A. The Mark 12A is a non-nuclear component of the Minuteman missile system.

"What they got is not the warhead itself but some of the components of the re-entry vehicle," James Freeman, chief of the Pentagon Armed Forces News Branch, told The Associated Press. The re-entry vehicle helps carry the warhead to its target, but is not in itself explosive.

"There is no nuclear stuff made up at that GE plant and there's no nuclear weapons handled there," Freeman said.

The Daily News carried a copyright photo of an object that it identified as one of the warheads.

One of the objects, Ms. McGuire said, was confiscated by GE security officers as it was being displayed during a demonstration at Drexel University in Philadelphia.

The other three are still in the possession of the anti-war group, Ms. McGuire said. She declined to say exactly where they are being kept.

Ms. McGuire said she has seen them and said they have been taken to other cities as a "prop" for peace demonstrations. She said one of them was displayed during a "vigil" at another GE plant located in St. Petersburg, Fla., shortly after the group acquired them.

Foster wants paper prosecuted for publishing 'threat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is weighing a request by attorneys for Jodie Foster to prosecute the National Enquirer for printing a possible "threat" by John W. Hinckley Jr. to kill the actress, a department spokesman said today.

"It's being looked at seriously," said department spokesman John Russell.

In its issue dated Aug. 24, the national weekly newspaper published a poem entitled "Bloody Love" which it said it had received from Hinckley. The article described Hinckley's fantasy of killing the 19-year-old actress with a knife.

Hinckley, who was found innocent by reason of insanity on charges of shooting President Reagan and three other men, has been committed indefinitely to St. Elizabeths Hospital here on the strength of psychiatric evaluations that he is mentally ill and possibly dangerous to himself and others, including Miss Foster.

Miss Foster's Washington attorneys, Nathan Lewin and Jonathan B. Sallet, could not be reached immediately for comment.

But the New York Times reported that Sallet sent a letter to Associate Attorney General Rudolph Giuliani saying "The Enquirer's outrageous actions demonstrate that it has committed a crime against the United States" and that "prosecution is necessary in order to stop Miss Foster from being tormented by threats."

Federal law makes it illegal to transmit in interstate commerce any threat to kidnap or to injure another person. The maximum penalty is five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Irving Younger, Washington lawyer for the Enquirer, was out of his office and could not be reached for comment. The Times quoted him as saying that Hinckley's poem was not a threat but a fantasy and that, given the personalities and public history of the case, the First Amendment protects the Enquirer's right to print it.

There was no indication when the department would reach a decision. But one Justice source, who asked not to be named, said "it would be difficult to prosecute the Enquirer, especially when the threat comes from someone who has been judged insane."

Evidence at Hinckley's two-months long trial, which ended on June 21, indicated that he had a long-term obsession with the actress. The government had recovered a letter which Hinckley wrote indicating that the March 1981 attack on Reagan was designed by Hinckley to gain her attention and affection.

PCB r irks

WASHINGTON — Both environmentalists and utility industry officials are unhappy with new rules requiring replacement of electrical equipment estimated to cost $1.5 billion over the next six years.

The rules, issued by the Environmental Protection Agency, are aimed at reducing hazards of contamination from leaking and capacitor toxic PCBs as a result of a 1976 ban.

Environmentalists attacked the requirement, saying it is not going far enough. Industry officials say it will be beyond their ability to replace so much equipment as quickly as the government wants.

For decades, polychlorinated biphenyls were widely used as insulators in electrical equipment.

Concerned by contamination and health studies, the EPA was forced to regulate PCBs in electrical equipment.

In 1980, a federal court overturned the rule after environmentalists attacked it for being too strict. The court estimated that 10 percent of PCBs remain in use.

In the new rules, after Oct. 1, 1982, electric capacitors containing PCBs in the public utility industry will be phased out. Industry officials estimate that half of the 2.9 million capacitors in use will be replaced.

The agency says after Oct. 1, 1982, transformers containing PCBs in areas where there is a danger of food or animal contact will be replaced.

Environmentalists say they were disappointed because the agency ordered a much more aggressive replacement of transformers backed down from its position that not just those transformers but the public, removed.

They cited a case showing that 439,000 pounds of PCBs are leaked annually and that 25,000 pounds are discovered.

Environmentalists say they were disappointed because the agency ordered a much more aggressive replacement of transformers backed down from its position that not just those transformers but the public, removed.

PCB rules irksome

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both environmentalists and the utility industry are unhappy with new government rules which will require replacement of an estimated 1.5 million pieces of electrical equipment over the next six years.

The rules, issued Tuesday by the Environmental Protection Agency, are aimed at reducing the hazards of contamination from leaking transformers and capacitors containing toxic PCBs as an insulator.

Environmentalists attacked the requirements for not going far enough while industry officials said it may be beyond their capabilities to replace so much equipment as quickly as the government wants.

For decades, polychlorinated biphenyls were widely used as an insulator in large electric equipment. Congress, concerned by growing PCB contamination of waterways and studies linking the chemical to cancer, banned all manufacture in 1979. The EPA was directed to regulate PCB equipment already manufactured.

In 1980, a federal court overturned the agency's first rule after environmentalists attacked it for allowing 99 percent of PCB equipment to remain in use.

In the new rule, the EPA bans after Oct. 1, 1988 the use of electric capacitors containing PCBs in areas where the public could be exposed. Industry officials said this definition would cover about half of the 2.9 million PCB capacitors in use.

The agency will also ban, after Oct. 1, 1985, the use of transformers and electromagnets containing PCBs in areas where there is danger of contaminating food or animal feed. Plant owners are required to make weekly inspections for leaks until they replace the equipment. The EPA estimated about 5,000 transformers would have to be replaced.

PCB contamination in 1979 from a leaking transformer at a slaughter plant in Billings, Mont., contaminated grease and animal food distributed in 19 states before the leak was discovered.

Environmentalists said they were disappointed because the agency did not order a much more extensive replacement of transformers and because it backed down from its earlier position that all capacitors, not just those accessible to the public, should be removed.

They cited statistics showing that capacitors leak 439,000 pounds of PCBs annually and transformers leak 25,000 pounds.

4 Eastern cops indicted for murder

BOSTON (AP) — Four suburban police officers were indicted Wednesday on first-degree murder charges arising from a motel brawl last month in which one man was killed.

The four policemen from Everett pleaded innocent in Suffolk Superior Court before Judge Paul K. Connolly. Bail was set at $10,000 surety or $1,000 cash and the cases were continued for pretrial hearings on Sept. 15.

The Everett officers indicted and arraigned were: John McLeod, William McClusky, John Macaude and Richard Aiello.

In addition to the murder charge, the officers face various counts of assault with a dangerous weapon and violations of civil rights.

The indictments were handed down by a Suffolk County grand jury that has been hearing evidence in connection with an early morning brawl July 23 at the King Arthur's Motel and Lounge, near the Everett-Chelsea town line.

Several people were injured in the fighting. One of them, Vincent Bordonaro, died a week later.

Tales of religious deprogramming divide husband and wife

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — She's seven months pregnant and hopes to be reunited with her husband, but Sandy Eilers says she won't return to the religious group from which both were taken, even if it means rearing her child by herself.

"I won't turn my back on him," Mrs. Eilers, 23, said Tuesday of her husband, Bill, 24. "I want to get him out, but I'm not sure how that will be accomplished. The group leader has undue control through a lot of fear and guilt."

The Eilers have told conflicting stories about the religious group to which they belonged near Winona, Minn., and the events that occurred Aug. 16.

On that day, the couple were pushed into a van and taken away as they emerged from a Winona clinic where Mrs. Eilers was receiving prenatal care. They were missing for a week.

False imprisonment charges were filed against five people Tuesday. Eilers said that he was held against his will and tortured.

"I would like to call it being rescued," Mrs. Eilers said.

Their case has attracted so much attention that both held news conferences Tuesday. Mrs. Eilers held hers at Unbound Inc., a halfway house here for former cult members where she is staying.

Eilers conducted his at the farm where they lived in Centerville, Wis.

THREE MONTHS ago, they joined the Disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ and lived on the farm, near the Minnesota-Wisconsin border near Winona, with another couple that also belonged to the group.

She said they joined up thinking "it was a fundamental Christian group. We were looking for a way to be closer to God, and we saw them as really sincere people."

But she described life within the group as strictly disciplined and said members believed God spoke through Rama Bahera, a former Hindu now living in Shawano, Wis.

"I believe mind control is used," she said.

She said her parents and her husband's parents arranged five days of deprogramming by "very comforting, sincere, caring people" and both of them decided to leave the group and come here for counseling.

She said "it was a great shock to me" when her husband decided to return to the group.

Eilers, reached Tuesday night, refused to be interviewed by telephone. He said he would stand by the statement he released earlier in the day.

"I was held against my will," he said in the statement. "I was tortured. I was handcuffed to a bed. I wasn't allowed to see daylight and I was choked."

"I had the cast twisted off my broken arm and it's because I do love the Lord Jesus," he said.

Mrs. Eilers said they were taken to the Tau Center, a retreat at the College of St. Teresa in Winona. The nuns who run the center have refused comment except to say that the center is not associated with the college.

But Eilers said "the nuns knew, the administration at the college knew, I was there. And I screamed loud enough when they were laying on top of me and choking me that I think just about anybody in that hall could have heard me..."

"They handcuffed me to the bed, and that's how I stayed for three days," Eilers said.

"His family was present with him, and I don't believe they would have let that happen," Mrs. Eilers said of her husband's reports.

"The deprogrammers were very comforting, very caring people. He's saying whatever they (the sect members) want him to say."

IN A telephone interview Tuesday from his home, Bahera said he is troubled by the incident.

"This shows the intolerance and ignorance of many people toward religion in America," he said. "Deprogramming creates psychological havoc. Something must be done about this."

In Minnesota, Winona County Attorney Jules Gernes filed charges of false imprisonment and conspiracy to commit false imprisonment against five people Tuesday as a result of Eilers' complaint.

The five appeared in court and were released on bond pending another appearance in Winona County District Court on Sept. 2. They are Mark Palmer, 28, of Orange, Calif.; Debbie Coy, 27, of Bradford, Pa.; Joanne Hanson, 56, of Austin, Minn., and Thomas Quick, 33, and Daniel Graham, 30, both of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

Mrs. Eilers said she will spend several weeks in Iowa City before returning to Minnesota, where she expects to live with her parents in Fairmont.

"I'm very happy except that my husband is still with the group. I'm myself again — I wasn't myself when I was with the group — and I'm happy about that."

Eilers said that "now it seems that my reward for what I've gone through is that I get my baby and my wife taken from me and it doesn't seem like anybody is going to do anything for me or do anything about it..."

News outlets losing cases but winning appeals, study says

NEW YORK (AP) — News organizations are losing more libel trials and being assessed "dramatically higher" punitive damages by juries, according to a new study. But three quarters of those verdicts are later set aside or reduced.

The study of 54 cases, prepared by the Label Defense Resource Center, also said news media defendants prevail in most libel cases, many of which never reach trial.

But it found that news media defendants lost more than four out of five defamation or invasion of privacy cases that went to trial. When the cases were tried before juries, the media lost almost nine of 10.

The study also found that after trial or appeal, three out of four anti-media verdicts and awards are reversed, set aside or reduced.

In a statement, the center complained of "the poor performance of media defendants at trials and grotesque, outrageously large damage awards" by juries.

"What we need to know is why the news media do so badly before juries," said Henry R. Kaufman, the center's general counsel. "Ninety percent is a very impressive loss ratio. We've got to talk to these juries and find out what's going on."

Thirty of 47 recent damage awards studied were for more than $100,000, with 12 for more than $250,000 and nine for $1 million or more.

Those figures represented an increase over those in a similar survey by a Stanford Law School professor, Marc Franklin, during the late 1970s.

Kaufman said the judgments may reflect juries' anti-institutional bias, rather than any grudge against newspapers, magazines or broadcast stations.

Awards usually are scaled down by judges, the study found. None of the $1 million awards has been upheld on appeal, and the size of judgments after appeal has not increased appreciably in recent years.

The Label Defense Research Center, which is supported by various news organizations, collects and issues information about libel and invasion of privacy claims.

Thursday Notes

Now it's the "About-face Braves," Braves fans. After a nosedive from a first-place flight in the National West standings, the Braves had leveled off and started gaining altitude again. Perhaps the spirits of Braves past have been reconciled now that Chief Noc-a-homa is back in his air-conditioned teepee.

Atta-boy, Ted Turner, America's still pullin' for ya. Except those folks in L.A. And maybe Bowie Kuhn, too.

Just when you thought everyone was thinking football, in walks Al "It's Better in the Bahamas" Valdez.

Remember back in May when Valdez had scheduled a benefit baseball game between members of the Big Spring Steers and local boosters? Remember that game being postponed because the Steers were involved in the state playoffs?

Remember Valdez rescheduling that same game for Father's Day but rain washing out his second try? Remember thinking the game would never be played?

Have no fear. Valdez has rounded up all available baseplayers — a few pretenders — to play at 3 p.m. Sunday at the BSBS diamond. Representatives from the Steers and HC Hawks will be on hand along with local sports boosters. The players will be divided into teams and the resulting hitting, fielding and pitching should be quite a treat.

Admission is $1 with all Little League ballplayers getting in free. Valdez will manage the "Longhorns" team while Steer baseball coach Frank Ibarra will manage the "Oilers." Jack Griffin and Hack Doe will officiate and everyone knows they never miss a call.

Even this sports writer will be on hand to play his favorite position...bench. And HC coach Bill Griffin will throw out the first pitch.

What more could a baseball fan ask for? Just a good seat. Be there early fans.

Speaking of fans, the Steer footballers debut tonight in a scrimmage against solid Sweetwater. The practice should get underway just after 7 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

If you haven't seen the Steers yet, you'll be pleasantly surprised with their aggressiveness and inspired play. The Mustangs are quarterbacked by Scott Richardson, a former Big Springer.

Get out and take a look at the Steers. You'll be hooked on the 'Horns.

Buried underneath a pile of football junk on my desk was a note from local female golfers.

Patricia Jones, a senior at Big Spring High, shot a 74 last week to win top honors at the Permian Basin Play Day at the Mission Country Club in Odessa. Martha Saunders won the second flight, shooting a low gross score of 86. Another Permian Play Day is set Sept. 16 at Ranchland Hills Country Club in Midland.

Flo Hallam turns in the publicity. Sorry your note got buried, Flo.

And finally, if losing Flo's golf wasn't enough, a name fooled me Saturday.

Still wheezing after running five miles, I typed in the results of the Roadrunners Classic and named Sherry Girard of Tucson the top female runner in the two-mile with her 16:19.0 time.

Well, I was wrong...sort of. In the mixed male and female division, the third place winner was a Christian Gribble in 16:03.0. Since I know Christian B. Showalter (CBS of KBST) is a guy, I assumed this Christian was also.

Wrong. Christian is a female and her time topped Sherry's by 16 seconds. So, Christian you're the female champ.

It wasn't Christian who pointed the fact out to me but her mother. That's because she's so proud of her daughter.

That's good enough reason for a correction of me.

ADAM'S LOOSE — Big Spring High quarterback Adam Rodriguez (11) tries to slip out of tackle during workouts against the Steer junior varsity. Rodriguez will start tonight against Sweetwater in the 7 p.m. scrimmage at Memorial Stadium.

BSHS, S'water scrimmage tonight

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

It's only the first week of school but already Big Spring High students are getting their first tests. Maybe not in math or history but for sure in football.

After three weeks of spring drills and two-a-days during August, Quinn Eudy and his staff get a chance to see what the Steers have learned when Big Spring scrimmages Sweetwater at 7 p.m. tonight in Memorial Stadium.

The projected two-hour workout will be the first test for the Steers under Eudy while Sweetwater gets a look at its material for the second time. The Mustangs scored six times and did not yield a touchdown in an earlier scrimmage against Clyde.

Does Eudy have anything in particular he wants to see tonight?

"We want to be very physical...have all eleven people running on the football and wrecklessly throwing their bodies around the field," Eudy answers. "We are expecting improvement in our technique play by play."

With several positions still up for grabs before the season opener next week at Snyder, Eudy and his coaches will be shuffling players in and out to get a look at everyone.

"We are basically wanting to look at the total offensive and defensive packages that we've put in to this point," Eudy explains. "It will be a learning-type scrimmage. We want to see if the kids have gained the knowledge we've expected them to. We want to see some improvement."

Eudy has picked a good opponent for the scrimmage. After years of bad luck in District 2-AAAA, the Mustangs have rebounded under coach W.T. Stapler and turned in a second consecutive 6-4 campaign last fall.

Leading the offense is junior quarterback Scott Richardson (5-11, 160) who will be directing the offense for his third straight year. Senior John White (5-9, 160) is the main ballcarrier in the wishbone attack.

The Mustangs will throw a six-man front at the Steer offense. The big horse is senior tackle Dave Hendrix (6-2, 230) along with fellow senior tackle David Jones (6-1, 210). Both are two-way starters, working the line on offense also.

"Sweetwater will be a very strong, physical football team," Eudy predicts. "Coach Stapler had tremendous success at Conroe and he sells kids on playing hard. They are definitely a threat to win that district. Their defensive and offensive lines are extremely strong."

Eudy hopes his Steers can defend the multiple weapons of Richardson who, incidentally, attended Big Spring schools during junior high before moving east.

"Their quarterback is an above average kid," Eudy says. The first-year coach will get a chance to see his defense react to both the run and the pass from the versatile Mustang attack.

First string offenses and defenses will clash first, each school running 20 plays. The second units will repeat the 20-play format before the Steers and Mustangs play a "game-condition" series to wind things up.

Junior varsity squads from both schools battle at 6 p.m. at Memorial prior to the varsity scrimmage. A few blocks away at Blankenship Field, ninth grade "A" and "B" teams play, also beginning at 6 p.m.

After tonight's scrimmage, the Steers have one more week of practice before opening the season at Snyder. District play begins Sept. 24 when Big Spring hosts Abilene High.

Giants stunned

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Doug Kotar didn't seem to realize the gravity of his brain tumor before undergoing surgery, according to his former New York Giants teammates.

Veteran linebackers Brian Kelley and Brad Van Pelt, who visited Kotar last weekend, said the recently retired running back was hoping to be on his feet in time for the Giants' Sept. 12 season opener against the Atlanta Falcons.

"He expected to be out of the hospital in two or three weeks and talked about making the Atlanta game," Kelley recalled.

"That's why it's so shocking — because he was in such great spirits."

Kotar spent Wednesday in the intensive care unit of a hospital here run by the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey following a decision by doctors Tuesday not to remove the tumor.

The doctors, under orders from Kotar's family, were cautious in their public prognosis.

But a member of the Giants' offensive line, who did not want to be identified, said Coach Ray Perkins told the team that preliminary tests indicated the 31-year-old former Kentucky standout had six months to two years to live.

"When I went to see him, I was nervous about what to say. I expected him to be depressed," Van Pelt said. "Doug was very cheerful, telling us all about what will happen and how he would be going home in two weeks."

"I left the hospital feeling great. He had me believing that everything was going to be all right. Then, we got word yesterday on how things turned out. I just couldn't believe it."

"I think about it at night," Kelley said. "You never know."

Futile talks leading to strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Football League lawyers and owners appear headed on a collision course that could force cancellation of the final week of the exhibition schedule or delay the start of regular season.

Representatives for both sides, meeting for the first time in more than a month in an effort to reach a new collective bargaining agreement and avert a threatened walkout, broke off negotiations Wednesday after just four hours of talks.

About the only thing the negotiators could agree upon was the lack of progress at the meeting.

"The session was best described as futile," said Jack Donlan, the owners' chief negotiator.

"It is apparent the bargaining process is not working at this point," echoed Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association.

The failure to get the talks moving led Garvey to call a halt to the session and order an emergency meeting of the union's executive committee for Sunday in Chicago.

The committee, which includes union president Gene Upshaw of the Oakland Raiders and player representatives John Bunting (Philadelphia Eagles), Tom Condon (Kansas City Chiefs), Mark Murphy (Washington Redskins), and Stan White (Detroit Lions), has the power to call the players out on strike.

"We will discuss what action we will take. A decision will be made on strike at that time," Garvey said.

In light of the latest setback at the negotiating table, the owners will also reassess their strategy, Donlan said.

"We will have to re-evaluate our options for beginning the season," Donlan said.

Donlan noted that many owners have expressed reservations about starting the regular season — slated to begin on Sept. 12 — without reaching an accord with the players.

"Our concern is the scenario where the players would play an X-number of games then strike," Donlan said. "Some owners feel they would be doing what the baseball players did last year in financing a strike."

Donlan also raised the possibility of inviting a third party to intervene in the stalled negotiations.

"We will have to look at our position regarding the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service," he said.

Donlan and Garvey are both scheduled to testify before a congressional committee next week investigating the federal mediation service's lack of involvement in the dispute to this point.

The NFLPA's collective bargaining agreement with the league expired July 15. Prior to Wednesday, the two sides had not sat down together since July 23.

The main stumbling block to an agreement remains the players' demand for a fixed percentage of gross revenues. The players' union says that without the fixed percentage the owners will continue to cut costs by releasing older, higher salaried players.

At stake in the NFLPA proposal is a slice of the $168 million in revenues to be generated by the league from its lucrative television and radio contracts this year.

Leonard tosses KC by Texas, 4-3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Dennis Leonard had one thought in mind coming into Wednesday night's game against the Texas Rangers: stay away from Buddy Bell.

The last time Leonard, 8-3, faced the Ranger third baseman a Bell line drive back to the box fractured two fingers on his throwing hand May 21.

Leonard pitched around Bell in the critical spots Wednesday night and earned a 4-3 victory for the Kansas City Royals, moving them a half game behind California in the American League West.

With runners on third and second with two outs in the fifth inning, Leonard served up four straight outside pitches to Bell for a walk then forced Dave Hostetler to ground out.

It was Leonard's third straight victory on his comeback trail after missing 11 weeks. This time he went seven innings and scattered eight hits before Dan Quisenberry mopped up in the last two innings for his 29th save.

Amos Otis' eighth inning run-scoring single provided the go-ahead run for the Royals.

Catcher John Wathan knocked in two runs with a homer and scored another on U.L. Washington's double as the Royals beat rookie John Butcher, 1-3.

Texas scored an unearned run in the third inning when Kansas City second baseman Frank White made two errors on the same play. With a runner on second, Billy Sample hit a drag bunt directly at White, who bobbled it then threw the ball in the rightfield stands. Jim Sundberg doubled home the second Ranger run in the sixth and Hostetler knocked in the other run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

American League

White Sox 5, Indians 1

The contestant is Cleveland pitcher Len Barker and here is today's baseball quiz: "Len, how do you pitch a three-hitter, strike out nine and lose 5-1?"

"I guess by walking four guys in one inning, that's how you lose a three-hitter."

"Right on, Len. Care to try for the next plateau?" "The next time I throw one, I'm sure not going to lose."

Chicago parlayed the four walks off Barker, an error by Cleveland shortstop Larry Milbourne and Steve Kemp's two-run double into a four-run fourth inning. Winner Richard Dotson and Sparky Lyle combined on a six-hitter.

Lyle allowed one hit over the final 31-3 innings to notch his first save since being signed by the White Sox last Saturday after the Philadelphia Phillies released him.

Rudy Law led off the Chicago fourth with a walk and one load later Harold Baines and Greg Luzinski also walked to load the bases. Kemp then got Chicago's first hit, a two-run double to left-center. After a walk reloaded the bases, Milbourne batted Mike Squires' grounder for an error, allowing Luzinski to score, and Vance Law capped the inning with a suicide squeeze bunt.

Orioles 8, Blue Jays 3

Rookie Glenn Gulliver's two-run double, his first major league RBIs in 21 games, drove in the tying and go-ahead runs in a six-run seventh inning that rallied Baltimore over Toronto. Rick Dempsey started the winning rally with a single and also singled home the final run.

After Gulliver's double, Ken Singleton, who homered in the sixth inning, singled and Eddie Murray followed with an RBI double. After John Lowenstein was walked intentionally, Cal Ripken Jr. rapped a two-run single and Dempsey followed with his RBI hit. Toronto had four of its eight hits off Mike Flanagan in the second inning when Anthony Johnson hit a three-run homer.

Yankees 8, Twins 1

Graig Nettles hit a pair of two-run homers, giving him 1,002 runs batted in for his career, and Ken Griffey added a two-run blast as the Yankees romped behind the five-hit pitching of Shane Rawley and Rudy May. Nettles connected in the first and second innings.

Astros show Mets 'Howe' to do it

HOUSTON (AP) - Manager Bob Lillis has been getting a trial by fire, and his Houston Astros have been making sure he earns his money.

Close games have been a way of life lately and Wednesday's game ended the same way. The Astros staged off a ninth-inning rally by the New York Mets to take a 5-4 victory.

Winning pitcher Don Sutton (13-8) was coasting with a 5-0 lead and a four-hitter going into the ninth inning. But the Mets touched Sutton for three runs and reliever Dave Smith for another before Bert Roberge secured the final three outs to earn his third save.

It was the Astros' 12th victory in the last 16 games and raised the team's record at home since the All-Star break to 16-7. The Mets suffered their 10th straight setback.

Dodgers 11, Cardinals 3

Fernando Valenzuela, the pitcher, and Fernando Valenzuela, the slugger, teamed up to put the Los Angeles Dodgers on top again in the National League West.

"I was very surprised," said Valenzuela, who became the major leagues' first 17-game winner and belted his first career league home run Wednesday night, lifting the Dodgers to an 11-3 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

National League

"I'd never hit one, not even in the minor leagues," said Valenzuela of his solo shot in the fourth inning off loser Steve Mura, 11-8, which followed a homer by Bill Russell.

"I hit two one time in the Central League in Mexico."

Ken Landreaux aided Valenzuela by knocking in two runs with three hits. The Dodgers put the game away with a six-run ninth inning highlighted by two-run doubles by Steve Garvey and Bill Russell.

Cubs 2, Giants 1

Bill Buckner had two hits - giving him 10 in his last four games - while Randy Martz and Lee Smith held San Francisco to four hits and sent the Giants to their fifth straight loss.

Jim Barr, 3-3, took the loss.

Reds 1, Expos 0

Alex Trevino drove in the game's only run with an eighth-inning RBI single, while Bob Shirley and Brad Lesley combined to shut out the Expos on seven hits.

Losing pitcher Steve Rogers, 14-7, fired a four-hitter and lowered his National League-leading earned run average to 2.33.

Pirates 7, Padres 6

Jim Morrison's RBI single in the ninth gave the Pirates a comeback victory, and moved them into third place in the NL East, 5 1/2 games behind the first-place Cardinals.

Kent Tekulve, 10-6, worked the final two innings for the victory. Padre reliever Floyd Chiffer, 4-2, took the loss.

Phillies 11, Braves 9

Gary Matthews tied the game in the eighth inning with a three-run homer, then ripped a single in the 10th to drive home the game-winning run as the Phils snapped the Braves' six-game winning streak.

The Phillies' triumph negated a two-homer performance by Atlanta's Bob Horner. Ron Reed, 4-4, hurled four shutout innings of relief for the victory as the second-place Phillies moved to within two games of pace-setting St. Louis in the NL East.

Brewers to honor Henderson if and when — The Milwaukee Brewers plan to honor Rickey Henderson if and when he is named to the stolen bases, and expect it will be much more successful than the scene he left in Oakland.

Henderson just 90 feet short of matching Lou Brock's major-league record of 118 stolen bases in a season when he opens a four-game series in Milwaukee tonight.

The Brewers are understandably more interested in the East Division lead in pursuing an pennant than in Henderson's thievery.

His hosts, against whom Henderson has stolen 11 bases this year, have been making plans since he set a record.

Henderson was interrupted for a presentation of the Lou Brock Award and Brock was invited to town to participate in the ceremony, however, the A's were talking with Henderson Wednesday, declaring that Henderson would be available for interviews prior to a press conference this afternoon.

Henderson's teaming Tuesday night over what it was thought would be a record before the home fans of the Detroit Tigers.

Billy Martin accused the Tigers of interfering with Henderson's record when he was thrown out in the eighth inning by Oakland's Fred Stanley in the eighth inning.

Henderson would be filled ahead of Henderson's record when he was thrown out in the eighth inning.

Henderson singled, but was stuck on first base when he was thrown out of the game during the eighth inning.

Henderson was enough off second to get caught in a double play when Sparky Anderson suggested Henderson to clear the road for Henderson.

Henderson's turn to rage when he was thrown out in the eighth inning by Oakland's Fred Stanley in the eighth inning.

Lots of action in tonight's 'Massarati'

NEW YORK (AP) — Even before the opening credits, Massarati whips two black-clad martial artists with a tennis racket and his bare hands. It's a good sign that there will be plenty of action in "Massarati and the Brain," a made-for-TV movie that ABC will broadcast tonight.

Indeed, it's James Bond-style, good-guys-always-win adventure, and the really entertaining part is that barely a drop of blood is shed. Joe, the helicopter pilot, takes a slug in the shoulder toward the end of the two-hour film, but he's OK.

"It'll go with the hole I've got in the other one," he assures Massarati.

There is lots of shooting, a good car chase or two, a bear-like butler named Anatole and plenty of pretty girls with pouting lips and plunging necklines.

Massarati, played by Daniel Pilon, is the hero, but the real star is Christopher, his 10-year-old nephew whose bedroom is decorated with a picture of Einstein. Christopher, left with Massarati while his parents write a book, is The Brain. Julie, played by Markie

Post, finds "Mas" dangerous and high-paying work battling evil where it lurks. "Not bad for a soldier of fortune," she says, waving at his lavishly furnished mansion, "who's wanted in 18 countries." "Nineteen," Christopher chirps.

Peter Billingsley is Christopher, who helps Uncle Mas fight crime by providing him the mechanical advantage — a multipurpose ballpoint pen here, an electronic bug there.

Christopher Lee, malevolent in black leather trenchcoat, matching hat and round, steel-rimmed specs, is perfect as Leopold. "Massarati and the Brain" is good fun, and that's about it. Mas is tinny imitation Bond, and the dialogue is strictly comic-book.

"What is it?" Diana cries as a helicopter circles overhead.

"Time will tell," Mas, a wary eye to the sky, answers his worried companion.

Tax queries

Pereira fields questions from concerned taxpayers

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira of the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District fielded more than 60 questions from approximately 150 citizens at last night's tax appraisal forum organized by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

The orderly crowd was scattered on one side of Dorothy Garrett Coliseum while a six-man panel armed with microphones was seated at tables resting on a small stage. Two policemen stood quietly behind the assembly at the doors.

A panel answering questions at the forum included Pereira and three members of the HCCTAD board of directors. Chamber President Sidney Clark acted as master of ceremonies while County Attorney Robert Miller was on hand to handle legal questions concerning taxes.

The majority of the questions, all submitted in writing during the forum, were concerned with the appraisal process and the effects the appraisal would have on taxes. Although Pereira stressed he and his office were only responsible for valuations, he attempted to answer all questions about possible taxation.

Several questions reflected worry about the effectiveness of the recent reappraisal. Pereira answered one question about what areas, other than Kentwood and College Park, would be reappraised again. "We've already checked College Park and we're in there solid," Pereira said. "If anybody tried to take a weighted average, we're going to win."

The chief appraiser took exception to the phrase "glaring inconsistencies" at Kentwood and College Park in another question. "We have had a lot more people tell us we did a good job in Kentwood," Pereira said. "But we're going to check it."

Pereira answered another question about measuring errors by saying some homes had obstacles to accurate measurement like "some dogs, some fences — I told my people not to go inside fenced yards — some posted areas." He said most were correct in his way of thinking.

To the question, "Why is my home higher than my neighbor's?" Pereira said appraisers were instructed to record all aspects of a home from its age to additions to its neighborhood. Based on those determinations and allowing for depreciation, "hopefully we could get everybody in the correct class," Pereira said.

His office tried to hit for an average of placing homes at 85 percent of market value, Pereira said, but some homes would be over and some under. "There's not any such animal as a perfect appraisal," the chief appraiser said.

Pereira agreed with one questioner that a better job of appraising could have been done if appraisers had been able to check home's interiors. "The law does not allow us to demand entry," Pereira said.

Questions about exemptions, Pereira said, should be referred to the taxing entities. He did say the basic homestead exemption of $5,000 could be increased another $10,000 if a person is over 65 years of age or disabled. The individual taxing agencies also had the option of giving a 40 percent homestead exemption, he added.

The elderly are protected under the law in that they can apply and receive their exemptions up to April, 1983, Pereira said. He hoped persons did not wait that long, however.

What happens to the values of taxpayers not protesting before the appraisal review board? "If the ARB consistently says I'm too high (in an area), I think I'd tell you I'd go back and recheck," Pereira said. He suggested people who are bedridden or disabled write him or the ARB.

If values go down, will homes be reappraised next year? Pereira said he had asked his board for a two-year cycle of reappraisal and expected it to be approved. "Basically our plans are to re-do everything every two years."

A question about when taxes will be due if the tax roll is certified late was answered by Pereira and County Attorney Miller. Pereira noted taxes can be paid by October, but are delinquent in February. Miller said delinquency and penalties are postponed for 21 days if tax notices are mailed after Jan. 10.

Miller also issued a warning to citizens who are thinking about not paying their taxes because of disagreement with the appraisal or the law itself. An appeal does not affect delinquent taxes, he said. A person must pay the part not in dispute or pay last year's amount while appealing through the courts or whatever, he said.

Failure to follow the process and pay taxes will result in the dismissal of your appeal, he added. The county attorney was reading from the state property tax code.

HCCTAD Board Chairman Roy Watkins answered a question about the budget of the tax appraisal office. He said the first year of the office had a budget of $375,000, a figure determined by receiving bids from various appraisal firms. Watkins estimated the taxpayers saved about $100,000 by using an "in-house"

WORRY OVER REAPPRAISAL AND TAXES — Part of the crowd at the chamber of commerce tax appraisal forum held last night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum was listening carefully to Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira and members of the Howard County

Consolidated Tax Appraisal District board of directors. The chamber of commerce sponsored the event to allow citizens a chance to ask questions about values placed on their homes.

Agricultural use valuations on property were not included on the appraisal notices due to the number of late applicants, Pereira said. The persons who applied in the first four months of the application period can now get those figures, he said. The others would be completed soon, Pereira said, but people would not get another 20-day period to protest those values to the ARB, however.

EXPERIENCE IN CONTROLLING PESTS
...David Foster of Foster's Pest Control

Foster's Pest Control now open for business

Bugs of Big Spring beware - Foster's Pest Control Service is now in business in town. Co-owner David Foster has vowed: "I'll kill anything that doesn't have two legs and crawls or has wings."

While he qualifies that statement to exclude children and - at this stage - termites, Foster and his co-owner (wife Patsy) are currently prepared to handle all indoor pest problems. He also has the equipment to exterminate pests on outdoor ornamental trees and shrubs. Foster is no stranger to insects; he has a master's degree in entomology from Texas A&M University. He has been employed for the past seven years as entomologist with the state agricultural extension service. He presently is the extension agent-entomologist for the Howard, Martin and Midland counties.

"A city this large has a need for another pest control business," Foster said. He noted the current problems in the city were elmleaf beetles and bagworms in outdoor plants while lawns were plagued by white grubs. Foster's Pest Control Service is doing business in the evenings and Saturday only at the present. Foster says he is certified and insured with the state pest control board. He is working from his home at 1600 East 5th Street and can be reached at 263-6470.

Kathy Viccinelli assumes new post

Dear Abby

Phobia keeps woman inside

Kathy Johnson Viccinelli has been named Coordinator of Volunteer Services at the Big Spring State Hospital, according to A.K. Smith, BSSH superintendent. Mrs. Viccinelli's appointment was effective Aug. 16.

Mrs. Viccinelli is a former BSSH employee, having worked for five years as director of education services. In 1974 she was appointed to the joint position of coordinator of staff development and director of education. She held this position until her resignation in July, 1979.

Mrs. Viccinelli has a Bachelor of Science degree in elementary education from the University of El Paso and a Master of Education degree with a specialization in Guidance and Counseling from Sul Ross State University in Alpine.

While in Houston, Mrs. Viccinelli served as coordinator of family services for the Texas Treatment Center for Autism and as director of Family Time Foundation, a United Way Agency.

"We feel extremely fortunate to regain Kathy's service at the hospital," Mr. Smith said. "She has an excellent knowledge of and working relationship with people and organizations within the community. Moreover, with her five years' experience at the hospital before, she is familiar with the needs of the patients and will be welcomed by many friends on the staff."

"It is good to be breathing West Texas air again after three years of the closeness of Houston," Mrs. Viccinelli said. "I am certainly looking forward to renewing old acquaintances and making some new friends in this job."

McClure honored at shower

Lisa McClure, bride-elect of Gary Bayes, was honored with a bridal shower in the Signal Mountain Room of Coahoma State Bank Aug. 17.

Hostesses were Lanelle Witt, Helen Fortenberry, Willie Fortenberry, Janis Willborn, Vernell Lilly, Beverly Martin, Velma Reid, Doris Banks, Betty Johnson, Joy Fowler, Freddie Greenfield, Mary Ann Holman, Sue Fowler and Jeffie Phinney. They presented Miss McClure with a vacuum cleaner and a navy and cranberry corsage.

The table was covered with a navy cloth with a lace overlay. The centerpiece for the table was a cranberry candle encircled in a ring of navy and cranberry flowers.

The couple plans to wed Sept. 4 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fryar, grandparents of the bridegroom, Knott Rt.

Descendants host three family reunion

Descendants of the Walker, Patterson and Franklin families met at the Civic Center in Colorado City Sunday for a family reunion with Toby and Onella Sanderson as host and hostess.

Jackie Brackeen was elected president for the coming year.

Family members provided a covered dish luncheon. An invocation preceded the luncheon, lead by Paul Sweatt.

Attending from Big Spring were Paul and Ruth Sweatt, Travis and Jackie Brackeen, DeWitt and Leroy Day, Neil Walker, Odell LaLonde, Fannie Franklin, Helen Walker, Stella Walker and Nina Sheeham.

Rook players tie with high score

Mrs. W.E. Singleton was visiting player during a meeting of the Rook Club Thursday in the home of Mrs. H.M. Rowe, 1425 E. 8th. Mrs. G.T. Adams and Mrs. C.R. Mond tied with the high score. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be at 2 p.m. Sept. 3 in the home of Mrs. G.T. Adams, 507 Johnson St.

It is a real challenge and I will appreciate the help of the hospital staff and town people in continuing a strong volunteer program at the hospital.

Big Spring State Hospital serves 12 community based Mental Health - Mental Retardation clinics. They are located in Andrews, Lamesa, Seminole, Post, Big Spring, Colorado City, Sweetwater, Pecos, Snyder, Brownfield, McCamey and Monahans.

Mrs. Viccinelli has been joined in Big Spring by her husband, Louis, and son Shane.

DEAR ABBY: If I weren't a Christian with three young children to raise, I would have ended my life. I am in my 30s, divorced and on welfare because I am unable to leave my house to go to work. I am normal in every other respect, but I panic when I get more than a block away from home. I haven't been to a movie or out for dinner for over two years. I'm attractive, but I gave up dating two years ago because it was hard to explain to a man that I was too terrified to leave my house.

I have been to psychiatrists and psychologists, and they tell me I have "agoraphobia," which means, "fear of open spaces." I joined a support group, but all I got from it was the comfort of knowing there are a lot of other people with the same problem.

My total income from welfare is $770 a month, and it's a miracle we even make it through the month. I want more than anything in the world to get well so I can get a job and take care of my children. Is there any hope for me?

DESPERATE IN L.A.

DEAR DESPERATE: Yes. Write to the New Beginning Foundation. It's a non-profit, charitable corporation formed to help agoraphobics. It offers a step-by-step program designed to rehabilitate people who suffer anxiety attacks when they leave the security of their homes. There are no drugs, medication or deep analysis involved. It's a self-help program that begins by playing cassettes at home.

I have investigated this organization and found it to be legitimate, sincere and effective. Many who have been treated by this method have reported excellent results. Write to: New Beginning Foundation, 1551 North Western Ave., Suite 229, Los Angeles, Calif. 90027. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. And please write to me in six months and give me a progress report. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading your new book and I loved it.

I forced myself to read the chapter titled, "Smokey the Bore," but it's the best thing that ever happened to me. I haven't given up smoking yet, but you'll be credited when I do. I've cut down on the number of cigarettes, and by reading that chapter every night I think I can finally quit.

CORY BRINDLE

DEAR CORY: Your letter made my day. Thanks for writing.

Winning recipes of Chicken Cooking Contest featured

An art consultant from Indiana won the $10,000 top prize in the 1982 National Chicken Cooking Contest Aug. 18 for a recipe which combines chicken and sauerkraut topped with Swiss cheese.

Mrs. Marcia G. Adams of Fort Wayne, a 47-year-old mother of two grown sons, prepared "Baked Chicken Reuben" in the 34th annual Chicken Cook-off held at the Loew Anatole Hotel.

The National Chicken Cooking Contest is sponsored by the National Broiler Council. Fifty-one finalists, one from each state and the District of Columbia, prepared their prize-winning chicken recipes in individual mini-kitchens set up in the hotel's Khmer Pavilion. A panel of 15 national food experts spent more than five hours tasting to determine this year's five best recipes.

The winning recipe was named for the familiar sandwich because it contains many of the ingredients normally found in the Reuben.

Next year's contest will be held in Birmingham, Ala. Entries for the next contest may be submitted at any time prior to April 1, 1983. Information can be obtained by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Chicken Contest, Box 28158 Central Station, Washington, D.C. 20005

BAKED CHICKEN REUBEN
Marcia Adams
Fort Wayne, Ind.
First Prize

4 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved and boned
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 can (16 ounce) sauerkraut, drained
4 slices (each about 4x6 inches) natural Swiss cheese
1 1/2 cups bottled Thousand Island salad dressing
1 Tbsp. chopped fresh parsley

Fold wax paper over chicken; press chicken lightly, making sure sugar-pepper mixture adheres to surface of chicken. In frypan, place 1 tablespoon of butter and melt over medium high heat. Add chicken and cook, turning, about 3 minutes or until brown. Remove chicken and set aside. In same frypan, place remaining 2 tablespoons butter; melt over medium low heat. Add mushrooms and garlic; saute for 2 minutes. Add flour; stir until smooth. Add chicken broth, wine and chives; cook stirring, about three minutes or until sauce thickens. Return chicken to sauce in frypan and simmer, uncovered, over low heat about 18 minutes; turn occasionally. Chicken is done when fork can be inserted with ease. Stir in cream, paprika and salt; heat 2 minutes more. Place one piece of chicken on each slice of toasted bread and spoon sauce over chicken. Makes 4 servings.

Allison Ingram named runner-up

Allison Kathleen Ingram, Beauty Pageant held in Arlington Aug. 7-13. The first runner-up to Miss Dainty Dixie Doll at the Silhouettes of America

Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley Ingram of Ackerly.

Allison was named Miss Dainty Dixie Doll in competition in Big Spring earlier this year. During the Arlington competition, she won four first place awards out of a possible seven in modeling categories, plus a silver medal for second place Model of the Year in addition to the first runner-up trophy. Modeling competition was not broken down into age groups but included ages 3-17.

Mrs. J.C. Ingram hand-made Allison's original Brazilian costume for the native country category. A potpourri of multi-colored ruffled tiers accented the broadcloth costume of pink, yellow, orange, blue and green. It had off-the-shoulder ruffled sleeves. A handmade fruit basket turban made by Allison's mother completed the ensemble.

For the famous personality competition, Allison portrayed cartoon character Pepe La Pheu, an amorous little French skunk who pursues a reluctant cat. This original costume was hand-made by Patsy Fryar of Ackerly.

Allison wore blue jeans, a plaid shirt with red fringe, brown roughout chaps, black cowboy boots, spurs and a straw western hat for the Particular Sportswear Contest.

Her winning two-piece beach suit with matching cover-up was strawberry print.

Watch for football guide

The Big Spring Steers and 10 area football teams begin the 1982 season in just one week. College football is just around the corner (can SMU claim another SWC title?) while the pros are entering a third week of pre-season action despite ominous warning of a strike.

Facts, features, numbers and schedules on local, area, college and pro football are contained in the Big Spring Herald's annual football tab which comes out in Friday's edition. No football season is complete without it.

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS
How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You
During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.
Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.
This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation.

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Mitchell County Grand Jury returned 12 indictments against ten persons, plus one sealed indictment yesterday.

Those indicted were: Daniel Monty Deoca, DWI-second offense; Sammy Gonzales, escape, theft and burglary; Joe Guerrero, burglary; Raul S. Garcia, theft; Thomas Aurthur Whitesides, Jr. and Lorenzo G. Rodriguez, both DWI-second offenses; Trinidad Chavez, Jr., convicted felon in possession of a firearm; Ronaldo Arispe and Juanita Arispe, both charged with possession of marijuana and Ralph Eugene Evans, failure to stop and render aid.

Also charged were Edgar S. Hesskew, who was indicted for theft by worthless checks.

Prison camp picks employee of quarter

Mrs. Marianne Roemer, secretary, has been selected as Employee of the Quarter at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

According to officials at the camp, the award is presented to an employee who has demonstrated above average or outstanding performance or who has provided a special service or contribution to a special program.

Mrs. Roemer was selected for the Employee of the Quarter ending June 1982. Marianne is employed in the Sunrise Unit, Unit Management Section of the institution which is primarily responsible for the casework and correctional inmates.

During this quarter, she consistently exhibited an outstanding degree of energy in performing assigned tasks. The tremendous volume of paperwork involved in her job was always completed in a timely manner and has been of the highest quality.

Marianne's consistent high performance of normal work duties, combined with her reputation both inside and outside the institution for turning out quality and timely paperwork — at times without the second position filled — has qualified her as Employee of the Quarter.
