OIL lays off 165

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Oilfield Industrial Lines of Big Spring dismissed 165 workers Thursday and Friday in a "significant" reduction of its work force, said chief operations officer Richard Fackler this morning.

Contract welders, traditional gypsies of the oil patch, comprised 55 percent of those let go, Fackler said. The remainder were "mostly indirect, support function laborers," those not directly involved in O.I.L.'s manufacture of drilling rigs (such as truck drivers and crane operators), he said.

"But you've got to understand," Fackler said, "we've built 60 percent of the rigs in the oil patch this year. We're the only major manufacturers operating at this time — we still have 500 people working here — that's probably as many as all the rest of the manufacturers combined."

"It's a negative instance, but the results are positive," he said. "The reason we do things like this is to keep the company strong."

Out of the 29 rigs built for the oil patch in the first half of 1982, O.I.L. built 16, Fackler said.

Several rigs are currently stacked in various stages of completion on O.I.L. grounds. Most of those have already been sold, Fackler said, and the completion of the rigs was one of the factors in the decision to lay off the welders.

In addition, O.I.L. is facing a slower second half of the year's activities, Fackler said.

"We've had a successful year," Fackler said. "We just had an inordinately large percentage of that year in the first six-month period."

"The oil patch has really slowed down," as regards drilling and the demand for new rigs, he said, and "we cannot continue to build at that rate with the depressed oil patch economy and seasonal adjustments coming up. We will have built 22 rigs by the end of the year — that's a lot of rigs."

As a result of O.I.L.'s drilling program and "innovative financing" (the company sells a rig, then provides a site and work for the drilling company to enable them to pay back the financing of the rig), Fackler said the Big Spring company is "still growing."

Fackler said he expects 1983 to be slower than 1982, but adds "We'll still be here — we'll be there with bells on."

The firm's plans for next year are "totally dependent on what happens in the oil patch," he said, but "we're managing for the future fairly aggressively."

The Big Spring firm has a commitment to the future, Fackler said. "We're hiring new executives, new engineers and new salesmen," he said. "We're getting some heavy hitters in here, and the fact that they're coming is an indication of the degree of optimism. We want to hire the best people we can find, and it's an opportunity for us — there are so many available right now."

Should the oil economy turn around as Fackler hopes it does, some of the 165 people terminated this week could be rehired, he said.

"Obviously, you don't always hire back contract welders," he said, due to the nomadic nature of their profession. "But as there is a requirement (for the others), we'll call people back."

COCKERHAM MEETS SUPPORTERS — State Rep. Jerry Cockerham (facing camera), Republican candidate for Texas House District 69, greets a couple of supporters at a dinner rally held last night in Dorothy Garrett

Man killed in car, truck collision

A 64-year-old Big Spring man was killed and his daughter severely injured when their car was struck by an 18-wheeler about noon Thursday, police said.

Deciderio L. Hernandez of 705 N.W. Eighth was pronounced dead at Malone-Hogan hospital at 3:15 p.m. yesterday by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. His daughter, 18-year-old Guadalupe G. Hernandez of the same address, was admitted to Malone-Hogan and is in stable condition following surgery, a hospital spokeswoman said.

John Korell of Shaffer Ambulance Service said that when the ambulance arrived at the scene, Mr. Hernandez was unconscious and Ms. Hernandez was trapped in the vehicle. Mr. Hernandez had no visible injuries but was having difficulty breathing when he was transferred to the hospital, Korell said.

Peace Justice Heflin has ordered an autopsy of Hernandez.

Police said the Chevrolet Monte Carlo driven north on Birdwell by Ms. Hernandez and a Western Star 18-wheeler driven east on FM 700 by John T. Midkiff of Route 3 Box 62 collided at 11:59 a.m.

The semi hit the car broadside and pushed the car about 180 feet uphill into a parking lot east of the 7-Eleven building, police said.

According to police, Midkiff claimed his vehicle's brakes were not working when the accident occurred and three witnesses said they heard Midkiff blow his horn as he went through the intersection. However, police said they found no skid marks and the brakes were functioning after the accident.

Police said they cited Midkiff for failure to stop for a red light.

Stocks rally again

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading exploded to a record 137.33 million shares on the New York Stock Exchange as the market surged to another broad rally Thursday. The Dow Jones industrial average pulled back from above the 900-point level but still closed at its high for the year.

It was the fourth straight session that NYSE turnover topped 100 million shares, and the fifth time in history. The previous record volume of 132.69 million shares was set Aug. 18.

Big Board volume also set a weekly high, despite having another session to go. As of Thursday, turnover for the week was 475.49 million shares, compared with the previous record 455.13 million shares last week.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 160.45 million shares, also a record.

"This is amazing," Jack Baker, head of equity trading at First Boston Corp., said after the Big Board's bell ended the wild trading. "There are still such tremendous pools of cash available that are pouring into this market."

Nearly 1,200 NYSE-listed issues moved ahead, with gainers holding about a 3-1 lead over losers. Technology, steel, auto, chemical and drug stocks paced the advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 9.99 points Wednesday after suffering a 16.27-point setback on Tuesday, closed with a 7.52-point gain at 892.41. It had stood at 903.16 at 2 p.m. before falling back.

Still, it was the measure's highest closing since Dec. 4, 1981, when it finished at 892.69.

BILL CLAYTON attends Cockerham rally

Cockerham asks for local support

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

State Rep. Jerry Cockerham of Monahans, Republican candidate for Texas House District 69, took a long stride toward establishing support in Howard County last night at a dinner in his honor. A crowd of approximately 225 people billed as "Democrats, Republicans and independents" attended the rally at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The crowd was treated to a speech by four-term Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and short statements by five Texas House representatives who were on hand for the event. Special guests at the rally besides Clayton were Reps. Ray Keller, D-Duncanville; Jerry Clark, D-Buna; Charles Evans, D-Ft. Worth; Randy Pennington, R-Houston and Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge.

A beaming Cockerham, who was obviously proud of the turnout, called on his supporters "to hit the streets" for him. "It's going to take hard work from you and me to win this election," he said. Cockerham faces Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring for the 69th

District seat.

Cockerham said he won his last election with the support of conservative Democrats and independents and he hopes to build "a coalition of various political backgrounds" to do the same in the November general elections.

Speaker Clayton, who has become a legend in Texas politics, echoed Cockerham's words by urging those present "to get involved in the representative form of government."

"It's frightening when people don't vote and express themselves," Clayton said. "For the representative form of government to work you have to be involved and you have to take a stand — and that goes for leadership too — and this man (pointing to Cockerham) is not afraid to take that stand."

Clayton told the audience the election's outcome would depend on the way Cockerham's supporters involved themselves between now and November.

"As I look up and down the aisles here I think that if each person got 10

UTPB president to step down

ODESSA — University of Texas of the Permian Basin President Dr. V.R. Cordozier announced today he will step down as president and will transfer to another University of Texas system institution. His new position has not yet been announced.

Cordozier said his request to transfer to another UT system component stemmed from opposition to his support of four-year status for UTPB.

"Although four-year status has drawn support in the Permian Basin, early this year vigorous opposition from a few people began to emerge, and it became apparent that the question would become highly controversial," he said.

Only 'good cause' protests accepted by ARB

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Only taxpayers who can show "good cause" will be able to file protests with the Howard County Appraisal

Review Board after today, according to Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira.

The state property tax code only allows 20 days to file protests after the appraisal records are submitted to the ARB, Pereira said.

"I really gave them (taxpayers) 30 days," he said. The chief appraiser said all other protests would be on a one-to-one basis from now on. "I'll take no more in the mail after today," Pereira said. Business was slow this week in the appraisal office, he added.

The state property tax code does provide that the ARB can accept late protests if the taxpayer can show good cause why his protest was not filed on time, Pereira said.

However, the ARB has to stop accepting protests at some point or it will never complete its work, says Debbie Wheeler of the State Property Tax Board in Austin. If problems still exist in the appraisal records, they can be handled even after the tax roll is certified, Ms. Wheeler said. "The ARB does not stop meeting after the roll is certified," she said.

The problems faced by Howard County are not unique, Ms. Wheeler said, since all counties with so many years between appraisals have experienced problems. "It's impossible to catch all the errors in an appraisal that old (1958)," she said. "The first year going through reappraisal is tough especially with old records. People should work with the appraisal office."

One question being raised in the county concerns agricultural-use valuations which were not included on the appraisal notices. No special consideration is planned for appeals on agricultural-use values, according to Pereira.

City investigating telemeter rumors

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Did the city's telemetry system — a system which monitors water levels in the city's water tanks — possibly break down, causing some of its water problems of late?

No one knows for sure right now, but Public Works Director Tom Decell is hard at work finding out if the telemeter has been malfunctioning recently.

It was reported to The Herald yesterday by anonymous sources that the telemeter had not been functioning during a water break Wednesday morning, thus handicapping a speedy repair process. The sources also were concerned that firemen, unaware of a loss of water pressure, would not have sufficient pressure to put out a major fire.

"I've got a stack of reports on my desk right now and I'm going through trying to decipher them," Decell said this morning. He said he sent people out to investigate the situation, but it probably would be "late afternoon" before he has any answers about the telemeter.

Decell hinted that followup investigations might be needed to establish just what, if anything, had occurred within the system.

He said he had no early indication "of what was going on."

City Manager Don Davis said he would "probably be calling a press conference to clear the air" on the rumors surrounding the telemetry system.

Special session debated

AUSTIN (AP) — For any Texan who doesn't think Gov. Bill Clements' call for a Sept. 7 special legislative session will provide fuel for autumn political campaigns, there's this from Attorney General Mark White, Democratic candidate for governor:

"This is a crystal-clear example of Clements' incompetence and inability to manage the affairs of the state of Texas."

Clements yesterday called the legislature back for the third special session in 14 months. This time the problem is the state's unemployment fund, which, as a result of increasing joblessness, is being drained.

The governor wants legislators to approve a federal government loan to pump up the fund. He also wants lawmakers to change the state formula that could spark a massive Oct. 1 increase in employers' tax payments into the fund.

That increase — estimated to be as high as 2,700 percent — would be triggered by the current formula, which requires an increase when the fund drops below $225 million.

"By recouping, recovering some of the dollars we have sent to Washington, we can avoid this intolerable increase that has been discussed previously," Clements said, referring to a Texas Employment Commission estimate that the tax would jump 1,800 percent on Oct. 1.

The tax stands at $6 per year per employee for companies with a good record of keeping people on the job and thus not collecting unemployment benefits.

"There should be no doubt in anybody's mind that whatever measures we finally end up with...

Action Reaction: Executors

Q. If three males are named in a will as executors to share equal but joint power, are they called tri-executors, joint executors or co-executors? What if one of the three is a female?

A. Co-executors would be correct for the three males, Howard County Judge Bill Tune says. Anytime more than one person is involved, co-executor is used, he said. Executrix and co-executors would be used if one of the three was a female, Tune said.

Business failures at 50-year high

NEW YORK (AP) — The failure of 572 businesses last week was the highest corporate casualty count in 50 years and was up 71 percent from the same week a year ago, a private credit-information service reported.

The surge in business failures in the week ended Aug. 19 surpassed the previous 1982 peak of 548 recorded in the week ended June 17 and was "at the highest level since the early 1930s," said Dun & Bradstreet Corp.

The mid-August spurt increased the average weekly failure rate to 459 compared with 318 in the same period a year ago. The last time there was a higher business failure rate was 1932, when the weekly average was 612, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

For the year so far, 15,133 businesses have closed because of financial difficulties, up 44 percent from the 10,492 failures in the same period a year ago.

There were 7,564 failures in 1979, 11,742 in 1980 and 17,040 in 1981. The highest annual failure total since World War II was the 17,075 recorded in 1961.

Reagan issues warning on defying Soviet pipeline ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, blacklisting two French companies, is warning other firms against defying the U.S. embargo on pipeline shipments to the Soviet Union.

The administration quickly issued a temporary order Thursday forbidding the export of all U.S. goods and services to the French companies after three compressors for the controversial Siberian natural gas pipeline were loaded on a freighter bound for the Soviet Union.

It was the first shipment of goods to Moscow in apparent defiance of the president's embargo. The British engineering firm John Brown Ltd. is scheduled to make a second shipment of embargoed goods early next week.

Reagan imposed the embargo in June to protest the military crackdown in Poland.

In blacklisting the French firms, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the action represented "a measured response that we hope will dissuade other firms from violating U.S. regulations."

Action will be taken against other companies if suspected violations occur, he said in a statement.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, with the vacationing president in California, said the action would "set the tone of the way we would deal with any problems of this type that we see in the future."

Lionel Olmer, the Commerce undersecretary for international trade, told a news conference temporary restrictions were placed against Dresser France, a wholly owned subsidiary of Dresser Industries Inc. in Dallas, and Creusot-Loire, a private French firm that is a prime contractor on the pipeline. The administration opposes construction of the pipeline.

The denial orders mean, he said, the companies "as of this date lose their privilege of receiving exports from the United States of all manner of equipment, services and technology."

"We feel confident that Dresser France, like Dresser Industries, has done nothing in violation of that order," said Dresser vice president Edward Luter in Dallas. "What it did was under compulsion."

Luter said the parent company would be hurt by continued blacklisting of its subsidiary. "It will affect Dresser France's ability to fulfill other orders, orders in allied nations," he said.

The blacklist order will remain in force until a fuller investigation of the allegations is completed, Commerce Department officials said. Still to be investigated is the extent to which the French government participated in the shipments, Olmer said.

BUSH DEFENDS BAN — Vice President George Bush, speaking to an American Legion convention in Chicago, defended the Reagan administration's ban on export items that would aid the Soviet natural gas pipeline.

PLO overland evacuation starts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian-commanded units of the Palestine Liberation Army began the first overland evacuation from Beirut today, travelling to Syria in 207 cars, trucks, jeeps and mini-buses crammed with furniture and festooned with photographs of their leaders.

While the convoy carried the PLA forces to a joyous welcome from Syrian troops stationed in the mountains of eastern Lebanon, 19 more truckloads of Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas arrived at the U.S.-controlled Beirut port to board the Cypriot passenger ship Sol Georgios for Syria.

As usual, there were conflicting estimates of the number of guerrillas leaving on the seventh day of the PLO dispersal to new homes in the Arab world.

A PLO commander said 750 members of Yasser Arafat's mainstream Al Fatah group and other PLO factions were leaving on the Sol Georgios. But Lebanon's state radio said 700 were leaving and an Israeli army spokesman in east Beirut put the figure at 600.

The overland convoy, which rolled out of Israeli-encircled west Beirut through the Galerie Semaan intersection about 6 a.m., carried about 1,500 troops and officers of the 3,500-man PLA Hittin Brigade, according to a count by Lebanese army troops at a west Beirut checkpoint.

Maj. Gen. Amir Drori, commander of Israel's invasion forces in Lebanon, zigzagged in a Land-Rover across the convoy's route as it wound through the hills to Bhamdoun, the last Israeli-held town on the Beirut-Damascus highway 12 miles from the capital. Later he told reporters there were 1,300 Palestinians in the convoy.

There was no way to reconcile the different counts.

Five jeeps of Italian troops escorted the Palestinians down the highway to the Syrian border, 31 miles east of Beirut, to protect them from attack by Christian militiamen.

Chilean cabinet asked to resign

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Augusto Pinochet asked his 16-member civilian-military Cabinet to resign Thursday, little more than four months after the government was reshuffled.

No reason was given, but Minister of Government Gen. Julio Bravo said a new Cabinet would be announced next week and that present ministers would continue in their positions until replaced.

The Cabinet change comes at a time of recession resulting in record numbers of bankruptcies and high unemployment.

Pinochet, an army general and head of the military junta, had changed his Cabinet April 22, firing Treasury Minister Sergio de Castro.

De Castro headed the University of Chicago-trained economic team that had moved to implement free-market strategies.

The system gave Chile six years of growth in excess of 7 percent annually from 1975 to 1981, but encountered trouble this year as international credits dwindled along with the value of the country's exports.

Was Marilyn murdered?

L.A. detective says he has evidence proving she was

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A private detective says he will give prosecutors a tape recording that will provide "major evidence" that film star Marilyn Monroe was murdered and did not commit suicide.

Milo Speriglio also told a news conference Thursday the tape he will turn over to the district attorney's office next week will reveal who killed the blonde actress.

He claimed the recording was made in Miss Monroe's bedroom and one of two men heard talking says, "Now what do we do with the body?"

Speriglio said the purported tape is in the possession of "an extremely reliable source," whom he refused to identify.

Miss Monroe's telephone was also bugged on the day she died 20 years ago, he added, but evidence that she was murdered will stem from the room tap.

FORMER CORONER'S aide Lionel Grandison also attended the news conference and elaborated on his previous claims that strange circumstances surrounded Miss Monroe's death.

Grandison insisted that he saw the late star's purported missing red diary when her body was taken to the coroner's office, and that the diary contained references to President John Kennedy, then-Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Cuban leader Fidel Castro and organized crime figures.

Grandison said that following the death, then-Coroner Theodore Curphey gave "carte blanche" to "four or five unusual visitors" to review the files on Miss Monroe. He described the visitors as "heavyweights, federal investigators or CIA in my opinion."

Grandison contends he was coerced by Curphey into signing the death certificate ruling Miss Monroe's Aug. 5, 1962, death a suicide by drug overdose. Curphey has denied the allegation.

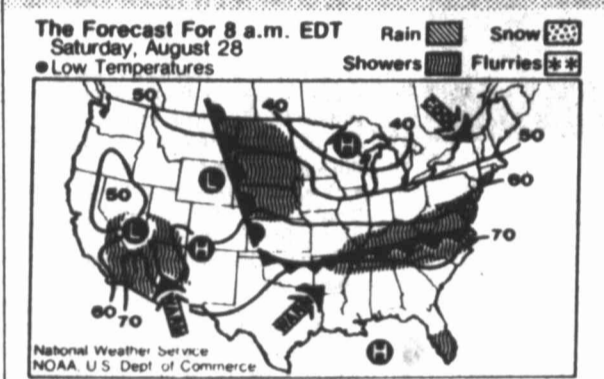

Grandison left the coroner's office in 1962 after being arrested on forgery charges for allegedly using a dead person's gasoline credit card.

AN ACTOR who knew Miss Monroe, Ted Jordan, claimed last week to have the journal but later said it was only a book of poems — and that it had been stolen from his car.

But Thursday night, Jordan said he really does have a diary — a book of poems, addresses and "entries" from 1959 — and will retrieve it from another state next week. Jordan telephoned The Associated Press and said he lied when he said the book was stolen from his car.

"It wasn't stolen out of my car," he said. "I had to say that. I got very, very frightened. I got lots of calls threatening me. I do have it. I'm not joking with you. I'm telling you the truth. I'm not trying to get publicity. I will produce it."

Prosecutor says Sasway conviction might spur draft signups

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A federal prosecutor says the conviction of 21-year-old Benjamin Sasway on draft evasion charges might encourage 700,000 draft-age men who haven't registered with the Selective Service to go ahead and sign up.

"I don't particularly enjoy having to take this type of case to trial because there are a lot of emotions involved, a lot of sympathy involved," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Yesmin Annen, after Sasway was convicted Thursday of willfully failing to register with the Selective Service System.

"I hope when other individuals see we are going to prosecute these cases, it will encourage others to register," she said.

The Selective Service System says 8.6 million men born from 1960 through 1964 have registered since President Carter renewed the registration program by proclamation in July 1980. The Census Bureau says 700,000 others may be eligible to register.

Sasway was the second man convicted of failing to register since the Vietnam War. A Virginia college student, Enten Eller, was convicted in a similar case last week and was given three years probation by a judge who ordered him to register for the draft or face prison.

In the Sasway case, the jury deliberated 50 minutes after a two-day trial.

When U.S. District Judge Gordon Thompson Jr. ordered Sasway to prison immediately, pending his sentencing hearing Oct. 4, Sasway's mother, grandmother and girlfriend burst into tears.

Sasway gave his family a reassuring smile before he was led away.

His attorney, Charles T. Bumer, said he would appeal immediately to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco to request that bail be reinstated and that Sasway be released.

Bumer plans to appeal the conviction on the grounds that Sasway's motives for refusing to register were not allowed as evidence of his intent, that he was a victim of selective prosecution, that draft registration is unconstitutional, and that the law setting up the system is faulty.

The judge had indicated Sasway could flee to Canada to avoid a possible $10,000 fine or five-year prison sentence, although Sasway has said he has made a moral choice not to register and that fleeing the consequences would be "selfish."

"I feel that he is aware of the fact that many of our people have gone to Canada when the chips were down," Thompson said. "He said he wouldn't, but in saying he wouldn't, he knows about it."

Thompson added: "We have patiently sat through this trial and listened to Mr. Sasway and his conscience, and while I respect his conscience, I do not respect his position, because it is against the law."

Outside the courthouse where about 50 supporters had demonstrated against draft registration each day of the trial, the defendant's father, Joseph, fought back tears, saying: "I hoped someone on this jury had some humanity and justice and compassion. I can't understand how they could look at a young man like Benjamin and equate him a criminal."

Ms. Annen told the jurors in her final arguments that Sasway "wants to be a martyr," but also "wants to walk out of this courthouse and continue to violate the Selective Service laws and flaunt it in the face of the government."

Bumer told the jurors, "In our history we have made heroes out of people who have looked the government in the face and said, 'no.'"

Be sure your bike is safe

Many of the state's bicycle deaths and injuries might be avoided if Texans would keep safety in mind when they buy a bicycle.

That's the opinion of Dan Sowards, head of the Product Safety Program with the Texas Department of Health.

IN TEXAS LAST YEAR, 62 persons were killed and another 2,734 were reported hurt in bicycle accidents, according to the Department of Public Safety. There were 2,692 accidents reported.

Sowards advises against buying a bicycle that cannot be adjusted to fit or one that the rider "will grow into later." "The rider should be able to straddle the bike with both feet flat on the ground, leaving no less than one inch between the crotch and the bike frame's top tube," he said.

He said there are two other types of clearance to watch for when purchasing a bicycle. "There should be at least three and a half inches of clearance between the pedal and the front fender or tire," he said. "This is important to prevent a toe from getting caught between the frame and the front wheel."

In addition, pedals should not touch the ground when the bike is tilted at least 25 degrees on a turn. This is to prevent the pedal from striking the ground and causing a spill.

CHAIN GUARDS ARE SO important that there are federal regulations requiring them on bicycles having single front and rear sprockets. "Shoe laces and loose clothing can catch between the chain and sprocket and cause a serious accident," Sowards warned.

The bicycle should be visible from every angle at night. It should have a front reflector, rear reflector, and pedal and spoke reflectors. Other good ideas include using a headlight and taillight, and sewing reflectorized tape on your clothing.

"You should always road test a bike before buying it," Sowards said. "Be sure the brakes give you quick, smooth, easy stops. If the bike has handbrakes, be sure the levers move easily."

Around the Rim

By CAROL HART

Coming home

They tell us that we're restless because prices are too high, salaries are too low, fighter planes blast each other out of the skies and innocent children starve in faraway corners of the world and here at home.

And I know it's not just me, because many of my compatriots complain of all the things I complain of: depression, a feeling of being out of place, a lack of initiative, and a general confusion about the direction we should take.

I like to get philosophical about it, and to think of us as members of "the lost generation," reminiscent of Gertrude Stein and her followers such as Hemingway, people who in the 1940s wrote about the feelings we complain about today.

Or, maybe some of us today are throwbacks of the 60s generation, restless people searching for the answer to "Who am I," and "Just what is the meaning of life, anyway?"

But eternal depression takes you nowhere but down, so the key may be to take the good with the bad, and look at the bad as a challenge, not as a barrier we can't cross.

WELL, ENOUGH of my philosophy of life. I don't think I have Hemingway worried about me joining him as a lost generation writer yet, but wanting to be a writer sort of led me back to the place I've always considered home: a newspaper.

I've been told newsprint gets into your blood. That must be true, because I haven't been able to get it out of my system yet.

When I left the Herald in February, I vowed never to return to another newspaper. But, after a few weeks on the outside, I began to miss the deadlines and the phone calls and the hustle and bustle of a newsroom. And when I heard the Herald had converted to computers, I couldn't stand it anymore. Thanks to a gracious managing editor, Linda Adams, I got to re-enter the world with which I'm most familiar.

BUT, WHILE on the outside, I learned a little more about the world which newspeople are supposed to write about. One is that everyone has problems to deal with, and most people are out there managing their lives the best way they know how.

That doesn't mean we don't make mistakes, but maybe mistakes aren't always that bad. Sometimes we learn more about the right way by doing something wrong first.

I learned that although I was tired of the constant fast pace of a newsroom, I really didn't dislike most aspects of the job. Everybody has things about their jobs that are unpleasant. And everybody works just about as hard as everybody else. If you think you've got a monopoly on hard work, like I used to think, just watch other people go through a day.

There are a lot of hard-working people out there doing an honest day's work and nobody really appreciates it. But if they understand the value of what they do, then maybe it's O.K.

I think, for today anyway, that I've got my career back on track. I'm really very glad to be back in a newspaper. I'm working for Tina Steffen in Lifestyle, and doing the church page. All of this keeps me busy 30 hours a week, and the rest of the time I go to school at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin. I doubt through all of this that I will fully discover "who I am," but it may be fun trying.

There's only one problem. I'm so cheered up I can't stand it, so how can I be a lost generation writer without the proper mixture of doom and despair? Oh, well, it's good to be home.

Leg-pulling in Ireland

"We're trying to get more tourists to come to Ireland," the man from the tourist office said. "We'd like to get Americans and we'd be much obliged if they would spend some dollars with us." "What does Ireland have to offer?" "That's a good question and I thank you for asking it. Ireland has closer ties with American than probably any nation in Europe. There are about 20,000,000 people of Irish descent in the United States, and I think there's a bond between us that no other country can claim.

"We don't even think of Americans as tourists. To most Irishmen, they're 'visitors,' and since the average Irishman thinks the only one who makes any money on tourists are the hotel-keepers, they don't regard Americans as commercial targets. Therefore, as a visitor, they must give him courtesy. Since the American isn't treated like a tourist, he enjoys being one."

"Aren't the Irish great ones for pulling an American's leg?" "That's a good question and I thank you for asking it. You see, there is a certain type of American who wants to know about leprechauns, fairies and the like, and who treats the Irish like the Little People.

"Now when that type arrives, the Irish feel it is only fair to pull the fellow's leg in all directions."

defend. The more we take from the common wealth for its defense the smaller it becomes."

— Navy Secretary John Lehman described the administration's love affair with the Pentagon lightheartedly but succinctly. Asked by a Nader interviewer about the jar of jellybeans on his coffee table, Lehman said: "Well, there is quite a sweet tooth in this administration for the military."

— Jeane Kirkpatrick, the outspoken ambassador to the United Nations, was once an ardent feminist, though she now speaks of the "extremes of women's liberation fever." In a 1974 book, she commented on the dearth of women in politics in terms that would strike some Reagan supporters as downright subversive. She wrote that it would be necessary "to abandon the notion, still supported by some influential religious denominations, that men are the natural governors of society, that women are unfit for political or religious or social leadership." She also urged abandonment of the idea "that there is something ineffably incompatible between femininity and the pursuit of power, that femininity is inexorably associated with the submissiveness of female to male."

— Frank Carlucci, the often-controversial deputy defense secretary, has the distinction of having been the subject of a hostile 167-page book published by the Communist Party of Portugal while he was our ambassador to Lisbon—a feather in any conservative's cap. "It will take some time for our people to know about the high price that the country paid for the activities that Carlucci developed in Portugal," the Communist authors wrote.

The Nader profile also recounts a little-known act of heroism by Carlucci when he was an embassy official in the Congo in the early 1960s. He came to the rescue of a carload of Americans who had been surrounded by an angry mob after accidentally killing a bicyclist. Carlucci leaped into the crowd and distracted it while the Americans escaped. He was beaten, slashed and stabbed in the neck, and barely got away himself.

— Anne Gorsuch, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, resolutely puffed Marlboros while discussing carcinogens with the Nader interviewer. She is described as "a terse, tough attorney whose general litany divulges little to interviewers...in style and substance, Gorsuch rarely gives an inch."

— Federal Trade Commission Chairman James Miller III has been accused of being a patsy for the business interests he is supposed to be policing. In a living demonstration of the Biblical mote-in-the-eye syndrome, Miller identified the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Maritime Commission and the Agriculture Department as "captives" of the industries they regulate — yet denied that his own agency had succumbed to this old Washington regulatory malady.

— Thorn Aucter, head of the businessman's nemesis, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, dismissed a federal study that associated nearly 40 percent of all cancer with workplace exposure, saying the "data is probably soft." But it turned out he hadn't read the report.

— Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, who spent most of last year assuring Congress the budget would be balanced by 1984, once wrote: "The events of the 1970s raised the question whether an administration can, in the course of a couple of years, get control over the government's expenditures."

— Interior Under-Secretary Donald Nodel once said of the environmental movement: "Over the past several years, it has fallen into the hands of a

Billy Graham

Flip-flopping commitment

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't understand myself. A few weeks ago I really wanted to commit my life to God, but now I don't seem to have very much interest in it. Do you think I can ever really turn to God now? — C.L.

DEAR C.L.: Although I have said it many times in this column, let me repeat it: the most important thing in life is our relationship with God. God put us here for a purpose, and as long as we are separated from him we will never know the joy and peace that comes from fulfilling his will. Nor will we know the joy of eternal life with him.

That is why I am deeply concerned that you turn to Christ right now without delay. For one thing, you never know what might happen to you. Many people think, "Some day I'll give my life to Christ, but not now." But the months and years go by and they never come to Christ, and then death comes — often unexpectedly — and it is too late. Also — as you are experiencing — when we turn our backs on God once, it becomes that much easier to do it again the next time he is speaking to us. The Bible warns us that our hearts can become so calloused and hardened toward God that we can almost not hear his voice. I pray that this will not happen to you — as it tragically does to so many people.

The fact that you have written me suggests that you really want to know Christ and give your life to him. Don't depend on your feelings — they can deceive you, and Satan would try to make you think that you are too far gone to come to Christ. But that is not true. Christ stands ready to receive you, if you will turn to him. Even now he is at work in your heart to convict you of your sins and your need of him.

Look at Christ's love for you. He died on the cross so you could be saved, and he has said, "whoever comes to me I will never drive away" (John 6:37). Right now I urge you to get on your knees, confess your sins to God — including your indifference and lack of interest — and invite Christ to come into your heart. He has promised to come in and make you his child if you will only receive him.

Dr. Donohue

Artery balloon used in technique

Dear Dr. Donohue: An acquaintance of mine, who has angina pretty bad, has asked me to write you about something she read in a magazine. It involved a new treatment for angina, one that makes artery bypass surgery obsolete. Can you discuss it if you have run across it? Apparently, it is new, and her doctor does not seem too familiar with it. — Mrs. R.R.

I think I know what your friend means. It is a technique that is in its infancy and still being evaluated for effectiveness. I don't like to engage in discussion of experimental medicine in this space, a fact I have made quite clear on other occasions. It's like recommending a great restaurant, and then having to tell the person that unfortunately it isn't open and that you really have never been there. But I have received other mail on this subject, so I feel it does bear some comment. The technique is called angioplasty. All that means is plastic surgery of blood vessels.

You probably have heard of how X-ray pictures are made of arteries serving the heart muscle, the ones that are blocked in angina pectoris. A small tube is snaked through one of the large blood vessels, up to the heart's vessels. Through this tube, the surgeon introduces a dye material. That permits nice contrasty pictures of the arteries. That is called angiography.

Angioplasty is a variation of this theme. The small tube has a fine collapsed balloon on the end. When the tube is in the correct position, where the blockage is, it can be inflated. The idea is to try to break up that blockage. Often the block is from a clot, something that frequently occurs in a heart attack. It causes deficient blood supply and the death of heart-muscle tissue. With angioplasty, a clot-dissolving drug can first be squirted through the tube. Then the balloon can be opened.

As I mentioned, the technique is being evaluated.

Information please

NEW YORK (AP) — Many people want better, more reliable information about the products and services they buy, according to one manufacturer.

A nationwide survey, conducted for General Electric, found that 71 percent felt information about products was confusing. Sixty percent added that information supplied by manufacturers was useless.

Dear Abby

Garment makes reader see red

DEAR ABBY: Some women who have been raped complain bitterly when the police suggest that perhaps they "asked for it" by wearing provocative clothing.

I take my religion seriously, but this morning at Mass a young woman who was the lay distributor for the Eucharist marched up to the altar wearing a red dress with slits on both sides revealing her legs up to her thighs! The altar is on a dias 18 inches higher than the surrounding floor. I found it disgusting and offensive to say the least.

The priest would not have been out of order had he sent her back to her pew. Perhaps he didn't notice, but we in the pews certainly could see too much.

I do not endorse a return to mid-Victorian standards, but neither can I condone such exhibitionism.

What are such people thinking of if not displaying their wares? And why are we so surprised when somebody takes the bait?

SIGN ME GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: The woman you found offensive was inappropriately dressed for Mass. But you are dead wrong to assume that men rape women because they are turned on by provocative clothing.

Rape is a crime of violence, designed to humiliate and degrade. It is rarely motivated by sexual desire.

The way a woman is dressed is irrelevant. Little old ladies in their 80s, dressed in flannel nightgowns, have been raped!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

New York advertising executive gives advice to women in business

COLUMBIA, Miss. (AP) — Jo Foxworth, author, public speaker and advertising specialist, gave her "Nine Commandments for Women in Business" when she spoke here recently.

Appearing at a celebration christened "Jo Foxworth Day" by Marion County, an area settled by her ancestors before the Civil War, she recited her commandments:

—Thou shalt try harder; thou needst not be only No. 2.

—Thou shalt know when to zip thy lip and listen quietly.

—Thou shalt not attempt to hide behind thine own petticoat.

—Thou shalt speak softly and carry no stick except lipstick.

—Thou shalt serve thy lady boss as graciously as thou servest any man.

—When success cometh, thou shalt not get too big for thy bustle.

—Thou shalt watch thy language; there may be gentlemen present.

—Thou shalt not match martinis with the men.

—Thou shalt save thy sex appeal for after five, even though thy C-cup runneth over.

The business world is still male turf, she said, adding that "the men invented business and the men run it. They have no intention of relinquishing any part of their own territory to anybody, regardless of the biology involved."

Survey tells of consumer preferences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers would rather buy clothing made in the United States than foreign-made garments, and they are concerned about imports displacing American jobs, a nationwide survey indicates.

Two-thirds of 1,350 consumers interviewed by clothing and textile experts at the University of Missouri, Columbia, said they read labels to see where clothing is made, and almost two-thirds said they believed it was important to buy clothing made in the United States.

Only 6 percent thought imported clothing was better than that produced here. Nearly three-fourths said imports were displacing American jobs and over half said their concern over this influenced buying decisions.

Agents nabbing record number of illegal aliens

EL PASO (AP) — U.S. Border Patrol officers here are arresting illegal aliens in record numbers — as many as 1,200 a day — as Mexicans attempt to flee their country's troubled economy.

Alan Eliason, chief agent of the Border Patrol's El Paso sector, said more illegal aliens have been arrested in the area in August than in all of the same month last year.

By midnight Wednesday, 14,951 aliens had been arrested, compared to a total of 14,037 in August 1981.

Tuesday set a one-day record when officers arrested 1,205, Eliason said. That broke a record set Monday, when 989 were caught.

The previous high was 951 aliens apprehended on July 4, 1978.

"We've had our hands full," Eliason said. He added that officials believe the recent devaluation of the peso "is a significant contributing factor."

The peso's value was virtually cut in half Aug. 5 when the Mexican government announced it no longer could support the ailing currency on the international money market. Unemployment in Mexico is about 40 percent this year, and inflation is climbing at a rate of 60 percent.

"People are saying, 'It's just too tough in Mexico. I'm going north,'" Eliason said. "The peso devaluation is making more people think that way."

Also, it is harvest time for many crops north of the border.

"The aliens who are thinking of coming over here know when the main harvest seasons are," he said. "It just enhances their desire to cross. But not all of them are looking for farm labor. They're looking for any kind of work they can find."

He said that virtually all of the captured illegal aliens have opted for voluntary deportation rather than lengthy deportation hearings. When an alien agrees to be deported, he usually is taken to one of the international bridges and released on the Mexican side, Eliason said.

The El Paso sector encompasses West Texas and southern New Mexico, but the chief agent said most of the apprehensions have been in downtown El Paso, where border crossers can blend in easier.

Broadcasters may donate air time to political parties, FEC says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Broadcasters may give away air time to political parties as long as they do it fairly, the Federal Election Commission ruled on Thursday.

The 5-1 decision declared that donating broadcast time is not the same as making a political contribution and thus removed a cloud which had hung over a practice the industry has engaged in for decades. Federal law forbids political gifts by corporations, including news organizations.

Although Thursday's ruling deals specifically with air time offered by the Democratic and Republican parties by an Atlanta "super station," it has broader implications.

The biggest impact may come in the booming cable television industry as more and more cable programmers and operators seek to fill air time and appeal to specialized audiences.

The case arose after Turner Broadcasting System Inc., through its station WTBS-TV in Atlanta, offered the Democratic National Committee and the Republican National Committee two hours of free air time each to be beamed by satellite to cable systems across the country.

"Providing two hours of free time to both major political parties to discuss issues, to attempt to show the differences between the two parties and to encourage support of political parties is a vital part of covering and commenting upon political campaigns," the commission said.

John Summers, executive vice president and general manager of the National Association of Broadcasters, hailed the decision as "a tremendous victory for the public because it will permit broadcasters to fulfill their responsibility to see that citizens are fully informed on political issues."

The FEC decision deals only with election law aspects of the issue and does not affect Federal Communications Commission rules which encourage stations to make time available to candidates. It also does not affect the FCC's equal time and fairness doctrine rules.

Since 1925 federal law has banned corporations, labor unions and national banks from contributing to political parties or candidates, but exceptions were carved out in the new Federal Election Campaign Act expressly for the news media.

Until Thursday, however, the commission had held to a narrow view that only normal news functions were exempt.

2-year canoe trek takes pair into U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than two years ago, Verlen Kruger and Steven Landick picked up homemade canoes and set off on a journey that has taken them 19,701 miles on three oceans, the Great Lakes and most major American rivers.

It's billed as the longest voyage of its type ever undertaken, and they plan to keep paddling until they're home in Lansing, Mich., for a total distance of 28,043 miles.

"I was a plumbing contractor and I suspect I'd still be in that rut," said Kruger, 59 a white-bearded man with a weather-worn face.

"I'm living a completely different lifestyle. We're seeing things, and our imaginations and ambitions are being stretched in ways that never would have been otherwise ... I have no ambition to go back and start punching a time clock."

The two began the voyage April 29, 1980, at the headwaters of the Missouri River in Redrock, Montana. From there, they paddled past St. Louis and Chicago, through four of the Great Lakes and east through New York, Canada and Maine.

Then they pointed the 17-foot, one-man canoes south along the Atlantic coast to the Florida Keys and swung up to the Mississippi River. The pair became the first known to paddle the full length of the river upstream, about 2,300 miles, in only 83 days.

They continued on into Canada and Alaska, where winter storms forced a five-month delay. During the lull, they rounded up some financial backing and enjoyed family reunions.

"That's the toughest part for me, being separated, because I was pretty happy at home," Kruger said.

They don't talk much while they're paddling because words don't carry over brisk winds and turbulent waters, so they think and daydream instead.

"You're out there in the fog and you're looking at a compass all day long, and you've got to be able to tune your mind into different things," said Landick, 29. "It's just a sophisticated way of daydreaming, I guess."

For the last few months, they have been traveling down the Pacific Coast, staying between a quarter-mile and 5 miles offshore.

On their best day, they covered 64 miles. On their worst, a strong wave knocked Kruger out of his canoe and swept it away. His son-in-law kept him afloat in the cold, turbulent ocean for 90 minutes until the Coast Guard arrived.

The boat was returned by fishermen who found it several days later about 90 miles south of the mishap. After two weeks' rest, they set off again.

After a brief stop in San Francisco, the pair intends to continue along the Pacific coast to Mexico, then battle the Colorado River upstream to the Grand Canyon on the last leg of their journey to Michigan.

GE recalls coffeemakers due to potential fire hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Electric Co. is recalling some of its drip coffeemakers because of a potential fire hazard, the Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Thursday.

The commission said GE has reported receiving 400 reports of overheating, countertop damage or fires involving the machines. About 200,000 of the coffeemakers, all manufactured before 1978, are in use, according to the company.

The coffeemakers will be replaced by GE, the commission said. Those in question can be identified by the catalog number on the bottom of the coffeemaker and the date code stamped on the outside of the metal blades of the electric plug.

The recall affects the following models:

- Catalog number B1-3385-0 and B1-3382-0 with a date code between 634 and 717.

- Catalog number B1-3390-0 and date code between 704 and 717.

- Catalog number B1-3387-0 or B2-3387-0 and date code between 618 and 822.

The CPSC said people who own those models should stop using them, unplug the units and contact GE for details of the replacement program. Owners can telephone General Electric, toll free, at 800-626-2000.

Typhoon kills 4 in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Ellis ripped across the east coast of Japan's southernmost main island of Kyushu today, leaving four dead, two missing and 24 injured, police reported.

Ellis dumped up to 27 inches of rain in eastern Kyushu and caused widespread flooding in 13 states across western Japan.

Police said 137 landslides were reported, 20 houses destroyed, 985 houses flooded and six bridges washed away.

Enthusiasm rules Steer scrimmage

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

If intensity was what Quinn Eudy wanted, if enthusiasm was what Quinn Eudy wanted, if hard hitting was what Quinn Eudy, the Big Spring head coach should be a happy man today.

Playing the scrimmage as if the district championship was on the line, the Steers battled the Sweetwater Mustangs to a 3-3 deadlock in scoring. Twice Big Spring was stopped inside the 10 but the things that ended those scoring threats can be worked out later the BSHS coaching staff thinks.

"We are going to learn to run, to hit, to wrap-up and be a first class operation," Eudy told a tired but happy group of Steers after the two and a half hour scrimmage Thursday night in Memorial Stadium. "We are going to play one game...one minute...at a time. In the morning you're going to be tired and sore. But when you got tired tonight, you got better."

The long scrimmage tested each team's endurance and both squads were up to the challenge. Great offensive bursts and equally tough defensive stands were seen both early and late in the scrimmage.

Sweetwater scored first with its No. 1 offense as Thomas Goodman scored on a two-yard run. The scoring run capped a long drive that was sparked first by a pass interference call on Steer cornerback Scott Eggleston. The big plays came through the air as quarterback Scott Richardson hit Fabian DeLeon with 22 and 15 yard gains.

The Big Spring first string had a chance to score on its first try of the evening but Danny Stephen was stopped inches short of the goal line on a fourth down drive. His run with a pitch of 22 yards around left end and a 19-yard gain by Eric Sherman sparked the drive deep inside

Mustang territory.

The Steers scored their first touchdown with the No. 2 offense running the show. On the second play, George Bancroft slipped outside to the right side, ran through a few tackles and scampered 67 yards before being hauled down. Three plays later, Jay Pirkle went around right end from four yards out for the score.

On Sweetwater's final play with its second team, the Mustangs scored when Donald Jones scampered 25 yards for the touchdown.

Steer quarterback Adam Rodriguez wasn't happy when his unit failed to score on its first series. He did something about that situation when a second opportunity came. On the first play, he lofted a long pass to end Dale Crenshaw who gathered in the pass and made it to the two yard line before being tackled. Stephen went over on the next play to even the scoring at two each.

The Sweetwater No. 1 squad was held scoreless its second time around. A fumble recovery by Alan Trevino deep in his own end of the field stopped one drive that got a big boost when Richardson connected again on his patented "dunk" pass across the middle for 20 yards.

Big Spring went ahead for the first time with its second unit. After struggling twice, quarterback Ted Gillis got his group going. Pirkle ran seven yards, a dozen and then 30 on a draw all the way to the one. He scored his second TD of the night on the next play.

Sweetwater found the yards harder to get in its next try but finally got things together near the end of the series. After driving and stalling at the Big Spring 10, De Leon took a pitchout on a reverse and scored to tie the scoring war at 3-3.

The Big Spring first team offense stumbled out of the blocks on its last possession but Stephen suddenly found his running shoes after a roughing the quarterback call on the Mustangs. He burst for 22 yards twice to get the Steers inside the Sweetwater 10.

Rodriguez scored on a quarterback keeper from seven yards but a holding penalty wiped out the score. The drive died when Stephen fumbled a fourth down pitchout and Joe Head pounced on the loose football.

Sweetwater had one final chance to get a touchdown. Jerald Todd broke loose on a quick handoff for 65 yards to the Big Spring six but after a holding penalty, the Mustangs fumbled the ball away again to Trevino and had to march back upfield.

Sherman intercepted a Richardson pass to end one drive and Bancroft recovered a fumble by De Leon on the last play to preserve the scoring deadlock.

"I was happy with the scrimmage," Eudy said after the players broke for the buses. "The thing that made me feel good was that we got better and better as we went along. First and second teams."

"The kids going two ways did well...our conditioning is good and our mental attitude got better when it was time to get down to business."

What Eudy was happiest with was the enthusiasm.

"I saw some things that I've never seen before. Our mental attitude is tough. It was like they were saying 'I'm the only guy out here and I've gotta go...'"

The execution on offense and defense was ragged on occasions, Eudy admitted, but "eventually it will catch up with our enthusiasm."

The first-year coach praised his coaches for their work in getting the players in a positive frame of mind. He didn't single out any players as standing above the rest because "it was more of a team effort."

JUST A RAMBLIN' MAN — Big Spring fullback George Bancroft (45) escapes one tackle and is on his way to a 67-yard gain early in Thursday night's scrimmage with Sweetwater. Bancroft's long gainer led to Jay Pirkle's first touchdown of the evening as the Steers and Mustangs fought to a 3-3 tie in Memorial Stadium. James Iley photo

Kotar remains in guarded condition

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Former New York Giants running back Doug Kotar has regained consciousness, but remains in guarded condition in the intensive care unit at a hospital here after surgery confirmed he had a brain tumor.

Kotar, operated on Tuesday by doctors who found a large tumor they could not remove from the center of his brain, regained consciousness Thursday morning, said Giants spokesman Ed Croke.

Dr. Kim Sloan, the Giants' orthopedic specialist who assisted neurosurgeon Roger Couture in the operation, said to remove the mass would have severely endangered Kotar's life.

Sloan said Tuesday that he would not be able to say whether the tumor was malignant or benign until he received final laboratory tests on tissue samples, but he said it appeared to be "a poor type of tumor."

A spokeswoman for the hospital of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, where Kotar was being treated, said Thursday that she had no new information on the tissue sample tests.

Dr. Allan Levy, the Giants' team physician, said Thursday night he believed biopsy results would be available either today or Saturday.

Eagles face Falcons tonight

Vermeil worried about defensive 'chemistry'

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia Eagles, who have had one of the toughest defensive lines in the National Football League in recent years, have some new faces to greet opposing offenses this year.

New, but not necessarily better, and that has Coach Dick Vermeil worried.

"I've been a little concerned about what you would call the 'chemistry' of the defensive line," says Vermeil, whose team travels to Atlanta tonight for a preseason exhibition game. "The offensive line has been starting to assume a much greater share of the responsibility for setting the tempo in practice. That's always been dominated by the defensive line."

A persistent knee problem forced the retirement of defensive end Claude Humphrey and Pro Bowl nose tackle Charlie Johnson was traded to Minnesota after he disagreed with Vermeil's practice philosophy.

Nose man Ken Clarke and end Leonard Mitchell have been getting most of the playing time with the departure of Johnson and Humphrey. Carl Hairston and Dennis Harrison are the holdover starters at end.

"I miss them, but you have to learn to play without them," Clarke said of Humphrey and Johnson. "It's the nature of the game that people come and people go. We're working on it, and Carl, Dennis and myself are starting to jell. They have to get used to me being in the middle now. That's what training camp and the preseason are all about."

In tonight's other preseason game, Buffalo is at Washington.

Saturday night, Detroit is at Cincinnati, San Francisco travels to San Diego, Cleveland is at New Orleans, Seattle is at the Los Angeles Rams, the New York Jets battle the New York Giants, New England is at Dallas, Miami is at Kansas City, St. Louis is at Chicago, Minnesota is at Denver, Tampa Bay is at Houston and Baltimore travels to Pittsburgh.

Sunday's lone game finds the Green Bay Packers at the Los Angeles Raiders.

Atlanta goes into its game against the Eagles with Steve Bartkowski and Mike Moroski entrenched as the top two quarterbacks, but with a spirited competition for the No. 3 spot between Georgia Tech's Mike Kelley and Brian Broomell of Temple.

Hubert Oliver, a second-year man from Arizona who was a 10th-round draft pick by the Eagles in 1981, is making a strong bid to become Philadelphia's running back starter alongside Wilbert Montgomery. "He doesn't do anything half-speed," Vermeil says. "His work habits and intensity are something you've got to reward."

Buffalo is still playing without running back Joe Cribbs and wide receiver Jerry Butler, who have been holdouts during training camp.

Both Cribbs and Butler have valid contracts, but both want to renegotiate.

NFL calls federal mediator

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the threat of a players' strike hanging over their heads, National Football League owners have called on a federal mediator to help settle the contractual dispute between the league and the players' union.

Less than 24 hours after negotiations between the NFL and the National Football League Players Association were indefinitely suspended, the NFL Management Council sought the intervention of a third party to bring both sides together.

In a letter sent Thursday to Kay McMurray, Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, the owners formally requested the mediation service's assistance in reaching a new collective bargaining agreement with the NFLPA.

Officials at the mediation service refused immediate comment on the request, according to spokeswoman D.J. Yount.

In an interview earlier this month, however, McMurray said he looked forward to becoming actively involved in the negotiations.

The mediation service played a key role in ending last year's strike by major league baseball players.

Despite the mediation service's record in settling disputes, Ed Garvey, the union's chief negotiator, remained doubtful of a quick settlement.

"I don't think this is the answer. I think it is premature to get a mediator into the dispute when management doesn't have a serious offer on the table," Garvey said.

Despite his skepticism, Garvey said he would agree to meet with a mediator if McMurray called both sides together.

Meanwhile, Garvey has called for a meeting of the union's executive committee to map out new strategy in light of the breakdown in negotiations. The committee is expected to announce its plans for a strike at the meeting, scheduled for Monday morning in Chicago.

Royals stomp Rangers, 5-3

For the third time this year, the Kansas City Royals and California Angels are tied for first place in the American League West and Dick Howser says it should be that way through September.

"What is it, the 11th or 12 time we've been tied with those guys?" asked Howser after a 5-3 victory over the Texas Rangers Thursday night. "This thing just keeps changing hands."

Howser then added "I expect it (the race) to go right down to the final series of the season."

The Royals play Chicago in a three-game weekend series against the White Sox then come home for a lengthy home stand. Kansas City has 20 of its final 32 games scheduled for Royals Stadium.

Kansas City's final series is against

American League

Oakland.

Ranger Manager Darrell Johnson said, "If Kansas City is at home that much, you have to give them an edge. That (artificial) surface is where speed comes into play the most."

First baseman John Wathan's two-run single in the eighth inning highlighted a three-run outburst as the Royals snapped a 2-2 tie.

Rookie Bud Black earned his fourth victory against as many losses, going seven innings and allowing five hits before giving way to relievers Mike Armstrong and Dan Quisenberry.

Quisenberry earned his 30th save by getting the Rangers out in the ninth inning on just one hit.

"Black pitched a hell of a game," said Howser. "He has been doing well as a spot starter. All I wanted was seven good innings out of him."

"Quisenberry was tired, but you've got to go to the best relief pitcher in baseball when you've got just one inning to go," he said.

For Black, it was his first victory since July 4.

"It feels good to contribute to this team," Black said. "My control is better now and I'm starting to get more consistent."

Knuckleballer Charlie Hough took the loss, his 11th in 22 decisions.

"Kansas City is a tough club," said Hough. "You can't strike out many of their players. You get two strikes on them and they still find a way to touch the ball."

The Rangers also left Arlington after Thursday night's game mired in sixth place, 23 games behind the Royals and Angels.

They meet Baltimore in a two-night doubleheader Friday.

Brewers 10, A's

Rickey Henderson likes being in the same category as Lou Brock. Gorman Thomas and the Milwaukee Brewers are a little different. They like being in a category all their own — atop the American League East.

Henderson continued his assault on the record books Thursday night, stealing his 118th base of the season in the first inning to equal Brock's eight-year-old major league single-season record for stolen bases.

It was the A's lone bright spot as Thomas knocked in six runs with a pair of home runs and an RBI single and Mike Caldwell handcuffed Oakland on seven hits as the Brewers whipped the A's 10-3. Coupled with Boston's doubleheader split with the California Angels, the Brewers now lead the AL East by five and one-half games.

Angels 10-3, Red Sox 1-4

Dwight Evans' capped a four-run third inning with a two-run homer and Bob Stanley pitched 61-3 innings of four-hit shutout relief as Boston won the second game. In the afternoon game, Brian Downing and Doug DeCinces homered to lead a 16-hit attack as Ken Forsch notched the 100th victory of his career by scattering seven hits.

The split dropped the Angels into a first-place tie in the AL West with Kansas City.

Orioles 12, Blue Jays 5

Eddie Murray blasted a pair of home runs, including a grand slam in Baltimore's eighth run third inning, and Rich Dauer and Cal Ripken Jr. added three-run homers as the Orioles romped to their sixth straight victory and sent Toronto to its eighth loss in nine games.

Yankees 7, Twins 2

Lee Mazzilli cracked a three-run homer and Rick Cerone delivered a two-run double during New York's five-run fifth inning as the Yankees posted their fourth victory in five games. Ron Guidry, 12-5, scattered nine hits in eight innings, while Rudy May pitched the ninth.

Mariners 5, Tigers 4

Manny Castillo's first major league home run snapped an eighth-inning tie as Seattle snapped a seven-game losing streak. Dave Revering and Joe Simpson also homered off Detroit starter Jack Morris, 14-13.

Morris has given up a league-leading 32 home runs this season, 11 short of the AL single-season record set by Pedro Ramos of Washington Senators in 1957.

TIES THE RECORD — Oakland's Rickey Henderson slides into second with his 118th stolen base of the season as Milwaukee's Robin Yount puts Henderson in a tie with Lou Brock for the all-time single-season stolen base record.

Henderson ties record

By MIKE O'BRIEN

AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE — Rickey Henderson's 118th stolen base of the season was unique — and not just because it tied the Oakland A's outfielder with Lou Brock for the major league single-season base-stealing record.

For the first time all season, Henderson stole a base after he had been picked off first base.

Puzzled by what he said was a different motion and delivery by Milwaukee pitcher Mike Caldwell, Henderson was trapped about 10 feet off first by the left-hander's snap throw in the first inning of the Brewers' 10-3 victory Thursday night.

But instead of retreating to first, into what surely would have been a tag by first baseman Cecil Cooper, Henderson broke for second. He made it safely, sliding head-first under the tag of shortstop Robin Yount, who took the throw from Cooper.

"I was surprised I got picked off and surprised I got to second base," said Henderson, adding his other reaction was "joy at being in the same category with Lou Brock."

Henderson, 23, stole his 118th base in his 126th game of the season. He has been caught stealing a major league record 39 times, but his success ratio is 75 percent.

Brock, the long-time St. Louis Cardinals' star who was here to witness Henderson's historic theft, had only 88 stolen bases by his 127th game when he set the record in 1974.

"Too many countdowns, too many countdowns," a weary Henderson muttered as he faced reporters after the game. He obviously wished he could have broken the record the same night he tied it.

Henderson, who singled to center leading off the game, said Caldwell used a different motion and delivery than he had shown in previous games.

"I was trying to pick up his motion from his feet, but he was locking his knee and I was freezing all the time," Henderson said.

"But I wasn't surprised he (second base umpire Durwood Merrill) called me safe because when I got down in the base path at second, the throw hadn't gone over my head," he said. "I thought I had a good chance to make it because the first baseman had to make sure he threw the ball over my head instead of hitting me in the back or in the head."

"I made a good move, but with that speed it didn't matter," Caldwell said. "That's why he has 118 stolen bases."

Henderson fled to right field, grounded out to short and fled to center in his other three times at bat. Caldwell threw only four called balls all night to Henderson, who leads the American League in walks with 106.

"He (Caldwell) was around the plate a lot and didn't get behind," Henderson said. "He made me hit the ball. The main thing he did was throw strikes and make me earn my way on."

After his steal of second, Henderson's first reaction was to go for the record by trying to steal third.

"I thought I had an opportunity to tie and break the record tonight, but when I got to second a left-handed hitter (Dwayne Murphy) was up," he said. "The manager and coaches said let's let the left-hander get you over to third by hitting to the right side and give us a chance to get ahead before I think about the record."

Henderson advanced to third when Murphy grounded out to second, then scored when Davey Lopes grounded to short.

The crowd of 30,896 gave Henderson a standing ovation as he trotted to the A's dugout. He paused to kiss his mother, who was in a box seat next to the dugout.

"She was more excited than I was," he said. "She chose the game of baseball for me."

That Henderson will break the record is considered inevitable, and he will try against Brewers' pitcher Doc Medich tonight.

TRYING FOR A STOP — Kansas City Royals second baseman Greg Pryor makes a dive for a hard hit grounder off the bat of Dave Hostetter of the Texas Rangers in the first inning at Arlington, Texas, Thursday night. Hostetter's hit went into right field for a single.

Astros drop 2 to Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — Moments after hitting his second two-run homer, Montreal Expos catcher Gary Carter was talking about the one that got away.

"In my first at-bat, I got a slider that I popped to the catcher," Carter said Thursday night. "I should have hit that one out, too. 'I was upset.'"

It was one of Carter's few mistakes against Houston Astros starter Vern Ruhle, 7-10, the man he victimized for his 26th and 27th homers — the second coming with one out in the eighth inning — in leading the Expos to a 5-3 triumph, completing a sweep of their National League baseball doubleheader.

The Expos won the first game 3-2 when Andre Dawson singled home rookie Bryan Little from second base with two out in the eighth inning. There was no other National League action.

"We definitely needed this," said Carter. "We battled back, and that's what we need to do. 'It gets us back in third place.'"

The Expos moved passed the Pittsburgh Pirates in the NL East race and crept to within five games of the pace-setting St. Louis Cardinals.

Montreal trailed 3-1 in the second game before Carter unloaded on a 2-1 pitch by Ruhle, with Dawson aboard after a single in the sixth.

"All Ruhle threw me in the first two at-bats were sliders," said Carter. "Then, on the third at-bat, he threw me a 2-1 slider and I guess I was sitting on it."

"On the second home run, he must have thought I'd be guessing fastball because he threw me a slider again, and I was waiting for it."

The blow made Jeff Reardon, 7-3, a winner for the second time in three hours. He worked two innings of two-hit relief in the opener before coming back in the nightcap. After the first two Houston batters reached base in the ninth, Woodie Fryman relieved Reardon and retired three straight for his 10th save.

An inning earlier, Dawson made a perfect throw from center field to nab Ray Knight at the plate and preserve the tie.

The doubleheader sweep left Carter tied with teammate Al Oliver for second place among NL leaders in runs-batted-in. Both have 88.

"It's a friendly rivalry," said Carter. "We're both out to try and help this club win."

Ayala to appear in court

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Boxer Tony Ayala Jr. agreed to interrupt his participation in a 28-day alcohol treatment program in California to appear at his arraignment on a felony charge of burglary, his lawyer says.

The 19-year-old junior middleweight, ranked No. 3 by the World Boxing Association, was scheduled to be arraigned before state District Judge Mike Machado today on the burglary charge. Ayala's lawyer, Alan Brown, says his client — depressed that his wife temporarily left him — got drunk and disoriented and wandered into the wrong house.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEA INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, AUG. 28, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to make sure you carry through in a conscientious manner with whatever agreements you have made. Make a point to show that you are interested in the welfare of others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure you get your marketing done early so you will have more time for recreation later. Spend money wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Strive for increased harmony with family members. Study your financial position and make plans for improvement.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to home affairs and improve the quality of your life. Don't jeopardize your present security in any way.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to improve your property in some way and add to its value. Engage in your favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to gain the favor of those who are related to you. Communicating with others can lead to good things at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can handle private matters wisely with the help of a clever person you know. Establish more order around you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your environment and make plans for improvement. Complete any creative activity you are working on.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to complete your routines with fewer interruptions and more efficiency. Be more tolerant of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good friend can point out new outlets that could be profitable for you. Take treatments to improve your appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to handle your obligations in a most efficient way—and don't quibble over small matters. Be wise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listen to the good ideas of others and profit by them. Don't lose your temper over a matter that displeases you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use your fine artistic talent to improve your environment. Be more willing to cooperate with neighbors today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who naturally likes to please others and this quality could lead to a happy and prosperous life. Direct education along teaching lines for best results. Give ethical and religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

WHY THEY GET AWAY!

Fishing is relaxing... sometimes too relaxing!
It's embarrassing to explain that the big one got away because you took a little nap with your rod in the sand.
It's no different explaining why souls get away.
There is a special worship time in the churches of our land... the time for parents and youngsters to keep a vital appointment with God. There's so much truth for kids to learn. And so many convictions for grown-ups to apply in everyday life.
In selecting his first disciples Jesus talked bluntly to those of us who understand fishing. He expects us to be "fishers of men!" Bring your children to church every week.

Kalas challenges stereotypes

By CAROL HART
Church Editor

Steven Kalas's office at the First United Methodist Church looks a little different from the way some people might perceive a minister's study to be. Interspersed between books and posters is a radio tuned to a top-40 station. A Robert Plant album sits on a nearby shelf. A sign on the door says "Laughter is the shortest distance between two people."

STEVEN KALAS
...associate minister, First Methodist Church

On his desk, Kalas has a calendar, which he jokingly refers to as "my brains," filled with entries reminding him of people he must meet and places he must go during the month. As an associate minister of First United Methodist Church, Kalas must assume many roles.

When speaking of his duties as an associate minister at First United Methodist, Kalas makes reference to Keith Wiseman, pastor of the church. "I'm lucky to work for a guy who is very willing to let associates share in all aspects of the ministry."

In a "typical" week, Kalas says he counsels those who seek guidance, visits the sick and shut-in members of the church, and also actively assists during worship services at the church, sometimes giving the sermons. He also is actively involved in coordinating a young married couples class, primarily because "I am a young married couple," he says with a laugh.

Kalas is married to Lou Anne Wise, minister of the Coahoma Methodist Church. The two have been married since June of 1981, and came to Big Spring shortly after.

"A lot of people ask me if it's hard" to be married to someone in the same line of work, Kalas says. "Anytime two professionals marry, regardless of what they do, it's hard. We're both professional people, but we're careful about scheduling our time so we'll have plenty of time together."

Kalas said that the couple long ago decided that "Friday night was our night." Each week, barring emergency calls, the two "make a date with each other," Kalas says.

Kalas first considered the ministry when he was a freshman in college. During his senior year, while finishing a degree in psychology, he decided he did indeed want to pursue the ministry.

Following graduation from Northern Arizona University, Kalas enrolled in the Perkins School of Theology, a seminary located on the grounds of Southern Methodist University in Dallas. He and his wife met while students there.

Kalas was attracted to the ministry because "I'm primarily interested in work to help people the way I know I can. If I was a professional psychologist, I would exclude about 90 percent of the people who need the help the most, due to cost. The ministry is most visible, most accessible to the most amount of people."

When asked what he enjoys about his career, Kalas taps his finger to his mouth and pauses, then says there are many aspects he enjoys. "I get a tremendous sense of personal satisfaction doing what I know I should be doing," he says. "As I get older, I realize that many people never find the vocation they really want to be doing."

Specifically, he adds, he enjoys interpersonal contact, and the chances to help people, because "I love people."

What does he dislike? Kalas pauses again, then says "I dislike the preconceived notions that so many people have about ministers. Sometimes when I'm with strangers I avoid telling them what I do, because they will never come to know me as I am. Here's an example. Recently someone looked at my wife and me and said 'you never fight, do you.'" Kalas shrugs his shoulders in dismay.

"That part of my job is lonely. People forget the struggles, the fears, the doubts, the incredible shortcomings" that plague people in the ministry. "I like people to remember that although we lead a church service we also attend the service. We need it just as much as anybody else."

Kalas says that, for now, "I belong in a parish ministry," but he adds "you do what God wants you to do. I'm always open to going back to school," or pursuing some other form of work, even if "God wants me to work in a Dairy Queen," he says with a smile.

'Bridge' to appear at local church

"Bridge," one of America's best known gospel groups, will be in concert at First Baptist Church, 705 Marcy, at 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

According to Joe Whitten, minister of music at First Baptist, the singers are being brought to First Baptist as a part of an anniversary celebration for pastor Dr. Kenneth Patrick. A dinner and special concert will be held at 5 p.m. Sunday for members of the congregation, but the 8:30 p.m. concert is open to the public, Whitten said.

The 12 musicians who make up Bridge come from several states across the U.S. They travel to more than 350 concerts every year, a journey which takes them more than 100,000 miles. Members of the group are chosen from more than 1,000 applicants auditioning yearly.

Five vocalists are supported by a rhythm section including keyboards, guitar, bass, and drums, plus other musicians who play trombone, trumpets, flugel horns, saxophones, flutes and other wind instruments.

Image of the Beast

Hillcrest Baptist Church will show the movie "Image of the Beast" at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The movie, based on the Revelation account of the end days, depicts what the world will be like after the rapture of the church.

The public is invited. Hillcrest Baptist Church is located at 2000 FM 700, across from Malone-Hogan Hospital. A nursery will be provided.

Lutherans to offer course

A "refresher course" of 16 classes of Bible-based instruction is to be taught at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 9th and Scurry.

An organizational meeting for the sessions is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the fellowship hall at the church. The course is to be taught by the Rev. Carroll C. Kohl, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church.

Classes are free and persons participating are under no obligation. Church officials say that the Bible will be the only textbook used in the course. A question and answer period

Bible lessons offered over phone

ORLAND, Fla. (AP) — The call goes out early every Sunday morning: Pick up the telephone and get on the line; time for the conference-call Bible lesson.

Twenty-four Orlando shut-ins — elderly or handicapped people confined to their homes — are participants in Sunday school classes held on a telephone hookup.

The pilot program conducted by Marion and Bee Landis of First United Methodist Church is patterned after a similar program in Pensacola. It's designed to help those physically unable to attend church.

Class members listen in on conventional telephones while the Landises conduct the lessons by a speaker-phone at the church. Members can reply to their teachers and join in discussions along with everyone else on the 25-line hookup.

The class lasts half an hour and costs the church $37.23 — for telephone charges.

And it's already so successful, there is a waiting list for others who want to join. Members of the "Listen and Hear" class were selected by church leaders who visited many of the home-bound church members to tell them of the experiment.

"We have known many of the class members for years," says Mrs. Landis, a former public school teacher. "That makes it very nice for us and for the whole class because I think we are all more at ease."

'Singspiration' slated

A quarterly Singspiration is scheduled for 6 p.m. Sunday at the First Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster.

Jerry McGuire, music director, will be in charge of the program. The Sanctuary Choir, soloists, duets, trios and quartets will be featured, and as an added attraction, the congregation will join in for a sing-along.

According to Dr. Carl Powers, pastor, the fifth Sunday event has proven to be a very popular service.

Sunday school will begin at 9:45 a.m. with Dell McGuire directing. Dr. Powers will speak at the 10:45 a.m. worship service, having just returned from a trip to Tennessee, Oklahoma and Wyoming.

'Somebody Sunday'

The First Baptist Church of Coahoma has declared Sunday as "Somebody Sunday." The church is hoping with this emphasis on reaching people to have 150 people in Sunday School, says Danny Curry, pastor.

Rev. Curry says the Sunday School hour is a time of Bible Study for all age groups ranging from toddlers to senior adults. The church offers three pre-school classes, including a nursery, five classes divided according to ages for the school age children and youth, and five adult classes, including a class for singles and young marrieds.

The Sunday school hour begins at 9:45 a.m. each Sunday, Rev. Curry said. The morning worship service begins at 11 a.m.

On "Somebody Sunday" there will be a church wide meal after the morning service.
