Local strikers wait on federal action

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Although the official word is that the Missouri and Pacific Railroad is operating 75 percent of its trains, the yard in Big Spring was quiet this morning.

Two members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers were patrolling entrances to the Missouri Pacific freight building, carrying signs proclaiming "legal strike."

The cause of the quiet railroad yard and the men's lonely vigil is an old bargaining tool—the strike.

About 26,000 railroad engineers across the country walked out on strike at 12:01 a.m. Sunday. Talks to end the strike broke down after dawn Sunday, with both sides accusing the other of failing to compromise. The dispute reportedly centers on whether the engineers, who traditionally have earned more than other crew members, should be able to maintain the wage differential under all circumstances. The industry is willing to agree to that condition, but wants a no-strike clause in return. The union refuses to give up any right to strike.

"Nobody knows (what will happen)," said Nowlin Teel, an engineer for 39 years, as he took a break from walking back and forth at the east street entrance to the building. "Reagan said last night if the strike wasn't settled in the morning he'd ask Congress to put us back to work. But it's not for sure they (Congress) will do it—it's an election year."

During the strike—the first nationwide rail strike in more than 10 years—a Mo-Pac spokesman said supervisors would be used as engineers and crew until the strike ended.

As five or six men walked out of the freight building and climbed aboard a waiting switch engine, Teel explained who they were. "Scabs," he snorted. "They're people who know a little about it (running trains). But what little they do know don't amount to nothing."

"They're going down there to switch

ON STRIKE—Nowlin Teel, an engineer with 39 years of experience on the Missouri and Pacific Railroad, is one of several local engineers on strike in support of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Crime hit 30% of U.S. homes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 30 percent of U.S. homes were hit by crime last year, making household crime one of the leading dangers to U.S. families, the Bureau of Justice Statistics said.

The Justice Department agency said in a report issued Sunday that about 25 million American households were touched by crime in 1981. That matched the 1980 figure, but it was below the 32 percent recorded in 1975, the first year the figures were compiled.

What kind of households are most likely to be hit by crime? The study said homes of blacks, homes of the wealthy and homes located in the downtown areas of major cities are likely targets.

The report said 10 percent of all households were touched by what the bureau calls "high concern" crime—burglary or violent crimes by strangers such as rape, robbery and assault.

"High concern crime was more common among black than white households and more frequent in urban than in suburban or rural homes," the bureau said. "However, it is about equally common among households of all income levels."

"Households are more likely to be hit by such crimes than to have a member injured in a motor vehicle accident, and they were more likely to have a member stricken by cancer or heart disease," the bureau reported.

The most common offense among homes hit by high concern crime was burglary—affecting about 7 percent of all U.S. households. About 4 percent had members who were attacked by strangers and one percent who were hit by both kinds of crime.

More than 20 percent of American households were hit by larceny in 1981, and about 7 percent were broken into or hit by burglary attempts.

About half the households hit by violent crime had members attacked in a simple assault, which the bureau considers "the least serious violent crime." The other half, about 3 percent of all households, had members who were attacked in a rape, robbery or aggravated assault, the study showed.

Rightists say they killed Palestinians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A shadowy rightist group calling itself "The Front for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners" claimed responsibility for the massacre of hundreds of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied west Beirut, Lebanon's leading independent newspaper reported today.

Egypt, meanwhile, recalled its ambassador from Tel Aviv signaling the sharpest rift between the two nations since they signed a U.S.-sponsored peace treaty in 1979, the first and only such pact between Israel and one of its Arab neighbors.

The recall, stemming from the Beirut massacre, was announced by the government news agency and confirmed by an official spokesman who declined to give details.

The newspaper An-Nahar quoted an anonymous caller, claiming to represent the front, as saying it was "responsible for the operation of mass killings in the refugee camps of Sabra and Chatilla."

"The front will continue action until no foreigners are left on Lebanese soil," said the caller, who spoke in Arabic, the paper said. It gave no other details.

It was the first reported claim of responsibility for the weekend massacre of hundreds of Palestinian civilians, which drew worldwide condemnation and triggered political turmoil in Israel.

Little is known about the group that also claimed responsibility for the August 1980 abortive attempt to assassinate U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean as well as numerous, bloody car bomb attacks on Palestinian and Syrian targets in Lebanon over the past two years.

The Palestine Liberation Organization and the Syrian government have claimed in the past that the front is an arm of the Israeli intelligence agency Mossad.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet, stung by worldwide condemnation and charges of com-licity in the savage bloodbath, issued a stinging rebuke early today, denying "with contempt" accusations that it was responsible for the massacre.

Opposition Labor Party leader Shimon Peres appeared on Israeli state television to demand the resignations of Begin and his defense minister, Ariel Sharon, and protests exploded across the Jewish state as well as on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Israel claimed its rightist Christian Phalangist allies did the killings, apparently in revenge for the assassination last Tuesday of their leader, Lebanese President-elect Bashir Gemayel.

A senior Israeli official was quoted by Israeli radio as saying Israeli forces allowed the Phalangist gunmen into the camps, thinking they would drive out PLO guerrillas hiding there. He said Israeli troops used force to stop the massacre as soon as they discovered it was going on.

Israeli troops "did not have any hint whatsoever they (the militamen) would carry out a slaughter," another official said.

Lebanon's U.N. Ambassador Ghassan Tuani said in a television interview Sunday on the CBS News "Face the Nation" that Israeli-backed renegade Lebanese army Maj. Saad Haddad's Christian militia forces were responsible. Haddad has been running the so-called "Free Lebanon" enclave along the Israeli border in southern Lebanon.

Both Haddad and the Phalangists denied any involvement in the killings.

FAIR ENTRIES—Members of the Howard County Fair canning division were working steadily this morning to collect all entries in the canning category. Shown

Fair contest winners picked

The envelope, please... The 10 winners of The Herald's "Best of the Fair" contest, geared toward schoolchildren, have been picked.

Each winner receives one free pass to the Howard County Fair running this week. Winners may pick up their tickets by stopping by our newsroom.

Here are the winners: Brian Poitevant, Tooter Trevino, Ingrid Hamilton, Chad Freeman, Laura Branum, Paula Morris, Angela Jones, Pam Cox, Heath Stuteville and Marc Schwarz.

Howard County Fair begins

Entries to the many contests at the Tenth Annual Howard County Fair were coming in this morning as preparations for the 4 p.m. grand opening continued, according to Fair Association President Paul Hopper.

Not enough people and not enough space were the main problems hampering the fair's opening, Hopper said. But the difficulties were being worked out, he added. The fair would open with "big smiles on our faces," Hopper said.

Today's schedule of events includes the judging of the women's department competition and the flower competition at 1:30 p.m. Of course, the grand opening is 4 p.m. At 5 p.m., the judging of the agricultural products is planned.

The Shrine Circus will hold its first performance at 3:30 p.m. at the fairgrounds.

The night events kick off with a 7:30 p.m. performance of the Hard Times Band. At 8 p.m., the second performance of the circus will be held.

One of tomorrow's featured events will be a horse farm tour and barbecue sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. The tour will leave in buses from the county fair barn at 8 a.m. Tuesday. Persons must pick up their tickets at the chamber office to partake in the meal. The tour will return to the fair barns in time for the noon meal.

Other events Tuesday include the Sew It With Cotton Contest and the fiddler contest. Tuesday is also free admission for all elementary students as well as persons from the state hospital and the nursing homes.

Senate may get to vote on school prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative Sen. Jesse Helms appears close to a preliminary victory in his effort to push school prayer legislation through the Senate this year.

Republican sources say vote counts taken late last week show the North Carolina Republican is likely to get the 60 votes he needs to limit debate on the proposal to restore prayer to the classroom.

That will not end the battle, but it will demonstrate that conservatives have the strength to get the prayer measure through the Senate if they are able to force a direct yes or no vote on the proposal.

A vote was scheduled today on cloture, the parliamentary term for cutting a filibuster to 100 hours.

As the Senate entered its fourth week of debate on New Right social issues, however, liberals said they have other parliamentary devices available to prevent a decisive vote on the popular prayer issue.

Helms' proposal would prohibit the Supreme Court from acting on any case in which a state legislature or state court decided that the voluntary recitation of officially-sponsored prayer in the classroom was constitutional.

Critics like Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., say the prayer bill is only the latest in a series of unconstitutional attacks on the independence of federal courts.

Last week, the New Right suffered a major defeat when the Senate set aside an anti-abortion package pushed by Helms. But both liberals and conservatives agree that school prayer has broad popular support, and would likely be approved in the Senate, and perhaps the House.

Liberals, including Weicker, and Max Baucus, R-Mont., said they would continue to battle Helms by calling up more than 600 amendments to the prayer proposal.

Meanwhile, in a weekend radio address, President Reagan gave momentum to the conservative drive to reverse the 1962 Supreme Court decision prohibiting officially-sponsored school prayer.

Reagan, however, is urging a constitutional amendment — not simple legislation — on the subject, a proposal which congressional sources said might be considered during a lame-duck congressional session beginning in November.

Republican congressional sources said Reagan's renewed interest was designed to counter negative political reaction to last week's abortion defeat. Reagan had personally lobbied on behalf of the abortion bill, but had little effect as some of the most conservative members of the Senate voted against the measure.

Showers cool off Big Spring

Big Springers awoke to the sound of gentle rain Sunday morning as a frontal system moving through the area triggered showers and cooler temperatures.

The U.S. Big Spring Field Station, the city's official rain gauge, reported forty one-hundredths as of 8 a.m. today. According to the National Weather Service the rain was caused by a cold front which moved across the state during the early morning hours.

The overcast sky kept the temperature in the 70s during the day allowing Big Springers some relief from the summer heat which has dogged the area through all of August.

Forecasters are predicting temperatures to remain in the 70s through Wednesday.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District reported five-tenths at its Big Spring pump station north of town. The CRMWD also measured two-tenths at Moss Creek Lake and four-tenths at Lake J.B. Thomas. No run-off was reported, according to Rod Lewis of CRMWD.

James D. "Red" Thomas said six-tenths fell at his home at 107 E. 15th. Today skies were cloudy and fog was reported in the area. The NWS is forecasting a 30 percent chance of showers today and Wednesday along with continued cooler temperatures.

Amateur abortions common in rural Texas, doctors say

TEXAKANA, Texas (AP) — The 75-year-old retired nurse said all she wanted to do was help women in trouble. But Bowie County deputies arrested Lillie Cheatham for practicing medicine without a license when she told a supposedly desperate young couple she would perform an abortion for the $27 they clutched in their hands. The man and woman were informants. "All I was trying to do was help women in trouble," Mrs. Cheatham said. "That's how I am." She was released on $5,000 bond and the case has not gone to a grand jury. Several doctors say the case illustrates a point often overlooked in Texas medicine: safe, legal abortions are available in the big cities — for a price that begins at about $150 — but poor, rural women often must resort to the illegal abortionist.

No federal aid or other welfare pays for terminating a pregnancy. "There is a certain demand for abortions that doesn't change," said Dr. George Coale of Houston, secretary-treasurer of the Texas Association of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. "If physicians won't do them, then somebody will. A similar situation, I'm sure, exists in Laredo, Brownsville and in other places in East Texas." "Any place where abortions are not accessible, someone will fill the demand," said the association's president, Dr. Raymond Kaufman of Houston. "Before it was legal to do abortions, this was very common. Some were done by physicians, some were done by nurses, some were done by midwives, and some were done by lay people."

Bowie County Sheriff Thomas Hodge said he fears someone will be hurt. "I sincerely believe she didn't have any set price, that she just set it according to what you could afford," Hodge said. "We don't know what her motivation is — if it is just helping people — but it is against the law and we have to enforce all laws."

Local 4-Hers named award winners in state contests

Two Howard County 4-H members recently were named state winners in the 4-H Automotive and Citizenship Award Program, according to county Extension Agent Don Richardson. Cole Hunt and Scott Underwood have been awarded expense-paid trips to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago next November, he said.

Hunt and Underwood have both been active members of the Howard County 4-H program for eight years. They both are recipients of the Gold Star Award, the highest county award, Richardson said.

Hunt's automotive project program revolved around the restoration of a 1957 collector's model Chevrolet and the building to a Volkswagen dune buggy. A project with a classic 1969 Chevrolet Camaro was also cited for the first place award, Richardson added.

Underwood's second place citizenship award was given for his outstanding work in community service projects such as work with the National Council on Aging, the Retired Teachers Association and the Mobile Meal Program, Richardson said.

Hunt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hunt of Ackery. He is a member of the Knott 4-H Club. Underwood is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Underwood of Big Spring. He is a member of the Gay Hill 4-H Club.

Registration deadline nears for general election voters

If you don't have an orange-colored voter registration card, you are not eligible to vote in the Nov. 2 general election. The deadline for registration is Oct. 1. The place to register in Howard County is the courthouse in the tax assessor-collector's office on the first floor.

CRMWD reports good fiscal condition due to low costs

The Colorado River Municipal Water District finished August in a comfortable fiscal condition due in part to operation costs lower than budget estimates and higher revenues.

Revenues for August were $1,043,656, the first time that a single month had topped the million-dollar mark. This brought to $7,308,615 the revenues for eight months, or $294,000 more than estimated for the period.

On the other hand, operating expenses of $649,534 pushed to $4,345,310 the costs for the year. This was $259,109 less than estimated for the period. The big contributing factor was that power costs fell well under estimates. In August energy cost $497,624, making $3,009,211 for the year, or $302,000 under budget estimates.

Primary reasons for this savings was an alternation of pumping patterns. In August, for example, the heaviest demand occurred on the west end and had to be satisfied to a greater degree with Ward County well water, which, due to proximity and lower lift, is less costly to produce. The eight months power bill, however, is $636,666 more than for the same period last year. Last year electric energy through eight months accounted for 65.64 percent of operational costs; this year the figure is 69.29 percent.

Revenues were based on sale of 2,095,725,880 gallons of water, of which 1,230,299,000 came from Lake J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence, or 58.73 percent of the total. For the year, however, the total of 9,163,845,547 is 72.38 percent of the total. The distortion is shown in August total for well field production which was 26.79 percent of the total, whereas for the year this amounts to only 16.77 percent of the total.

Portillo to governors: U.S., Mexico should link economy

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — President Jose Lopez Portillo, warning that a prolonged financial crisis in Mexico will hurt the United States, has urged the Reagan administration to study "some system of linking our economies."

In an indirect appeal for greater U.S. assistance, Lopez Portillo told the governors of U.S. and Mexican border states Sunday night, "if we don't resolve our liquidity problem, we can neither pay our creditors in the United States nor buy goods there. And I ask, is it beneficial for anyone to take things to that point?"

The Mexican leader chose the opening of the third annual border governors' conference for his first address to a U.S. audience on Mexico's mounting difficulty in paying an $80 billion foreign debt, owed mostly to U.S. banks.

Since early August, Lopez Portillo's devaluation of the peso, nationalization of Mexican banks and imposition of exchange controls have sharply reduced the flow of Mexican shoppers into the United States, crippling U.S. commerce along the 1,700-mile border.

The governors of California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas came to this two-day meeting with their six Mexican counterparts to discuss ways of softening the impact of those measures on U.S. businesses.

Acknowledging that "our frontier is in a crisis," the president called for "good will and understanding" along the border.

He said the measures were needed to halt a flight of $23 billion taken mostly to the United States by "unpatriotic Mexicans" over the past three years. This outflow, he said, more than doubled all foreign investment in Mexico and, along with declining oil prices and high interest rates, bled the treasury of foreign exchange needed to pay its debts.

"The resources with which Mexico can resolve its liquidity crisis are inside the U.S. economy, but they belong to Mexicans," he said. "I ask that we put our minds to studying the possibilities of setting up some system of linking our economies to restore that symbiosis that was so splendid in the past."

Lopez Portillo, who has long favored a far-reaching economic agreement with the United States, offered no specific proposals in his speech.

Instead, he urged the Reagan administration to heed the warning of developing nations at last October's North-South economic summit conference at Cancun, Mexico, that the plight of the poor will hurt the rich.

The Reagan administration has agreed to give Mexico an emergency advance payment of $1 billion on future oil deliveries for the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve and is guaranteeing another $1 billion in private bank loans for Mexican companies to buy American agricultural products.

Brown said the proposal for a linked economy "has elements of a U.S.-Mexican common market" — an idea he favors and accuses President Reagan of ignoring.

Police Beat

81-year-old woman arrested

Police said they arrested 81-year-old Isabella Smith Moore of 1212 Madison Saturday afternoon on suspicion of driving while under the influence of drugs and possession of a controlled substance.

The arrest was made at 4:22 p.m. after the Buick Skylark Ms. Moore was driving struck a gas meter and a trash dumpster in an alley on the 1500 block of Canary, police said.

The arresting officer said he found three bottles of prescription drugs without the required prescriptions in the suspect's possession.

Ms. Moore was transferred to Howard County jail on $1,000 and $5,000 bonds set by Peace Justice Bobby West, police said.

Police reports also showed the following:

• Daniel R. Sullivan, 21, of 2630 Hunter said a white male known to him shot him in the upper left leg with a handgun at 1401 Aylford Saturday night.

Sullivan said the incident occurred about 9:20 p.m. after he went to the suspect's residence to talk. Sullivan said the man tried to drag him with a motor vehicle before shooting him.

Sullivan was admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital and is in stable condition, a hospital spokesman said.

• Joseph Dilberto, 21, of 106-B E. 15th was arrested on suspicion of aggravated assault at 9:30 p.m. Saturday and transferred to county jail on $10,000 bond set by West.

• Four people were arrested in Malone-Hogan Hospital parking lot at 11:10 p.m. yesterday. Arrested on suspicion of disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and hindering a lawful arrest were Raymond Ford, 18, of 1607 Bluebird and Carolyn Renea Ford Neal, 25, of 334 Carpenter Courts, Fort Ord, Calif.

out a few cars," Teel said, adding that a train which earlier had moved out of Big Spring with a similar crew had delayed. "It's still on the ground," he said.

As an automobile drove slowly past Teel's picket line, he said the man driving the car had been by a couple of times earlier in the morning. "He doesn't know what to do," Teel said. "They (railroad officials) probably have been calling him to come to work."

The car continues past. The driver has decided not to cross the picket line — at least, not now. Simon Terrazas, chairman of the strike committee for the BLE's Big Spring-based District 212, said all 42 of his area's engineers were off the job and an estimated 350 to 375 other unionized rail employees were honoring the picket lines in the region. "My understanding is that the wages are either settled or close and the main issue is this right to strike," he said in an early Monday interview.

Teel echoed his union leader's feelings, saying, "the only thing I know of that we got mad about here was that they had it where we couldn't strike — that would break the back of the unions. We wouldn't have anything to bargain with."

Terrazas predicted that the government would end the strike, but said he expected Congress to allow bargainers to have another chance to talk before acting to end the strike.

With Sunday normally the slowest day for freight shipping, the impact won't be felt immediately by local businesses, Terrazas said. "You've got a three-day to a week time period before it'll start hurting any local individuals."

Wet-dry issue divides tiny town

FARMERSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The small, family-owned Mexican restaurant doesn't look menacing, but a Baptist minister says Gringo's Fiesta is a threat to the way of life.

A beer battle is brewing in tiny Farmersville, a nearly bone-dry community of 2,350 in North Texas.

The owners of Gringo's Fiesta avoided the dry rules in the town by operating as a private club and selling beer, wine, pina colodas and margaritas to customers. After all, says Jack Dickerson, "A Mexican restaurant isn't complete without beer."

But the Rev. Milton Magness of the First Baptist Church is leading a drive to shut down the restaurant, which is located around the corner from his 100-year-old church.

"Whatever they call it, it's an open taver right on the town square," Magness said.

"We're a sleepy town in a number of ways," he said. "Before the club went in, my 9-year-old daughter would come get a dollar and go to the restaurant and get some taco chips and Coke. Now they have happy hour in the afternoons."

Magness, who collected 420 names for a local newspaper ad asking that liquor sales be stopped, promised to continue his campaign until the club's liquor license is up for renewal next August.

The furor infuriates Clyde Dickerson, who opened Gringo's Fiesta four years ago with his wife, Betty, and son, Jack.

"This is like something from 1928," Clyde Dickerson said. "We don't run a beer joint. We're 90 percent food and 10 percent liquor. The citizenry as a whole didn't react until the Baptist preacher started in."

The Dickersons received their private club license Aug. 4 and have 199 members who paid $10 dues. The restaurant is open to the public, but only club members can buy liquor.

"It's quite a contrast to be on one side of the law all those years, then made out to be on the other side," Dickerson said.

Magness said his ads may continue. "This is not a church fight or a Baptist fight," he said. "I guarantee them a hassle. When it even gets close to August, I'll do my best to get people in the city to protest."

Wilson, La Grange senator, dies of cancer at age 43

HOUSTON (AP) — State Sen. John Wilson, popular and well-known populist politician who fought a losing battle with lung cancer for two years, died here Sunday night. He was 43.

Wilson, D-La Grange, was elected assistant presiding officer of the Texas Senate, third in line as executive head of the state, during the recent special legislative session, and was re-elected for the interim until the 1983 Legislature begins in January.

He never got a chance to serve as governor-for-a-day, a mostly ceremonial appointment accompanying the honor. Funeral services for the millionaire rancher, who served eight years in the Texas House before being elected to the Senate in 1980, will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in La Grange.

Tentative plans call for a memorial service to be held in Austin.

"My feelings go so much deeper than just caring about you," Wilson told fellow senators on Sept. 7 in a speech that had many of his colleagues near tears, "and my feelings for this state go so much deeper than just caring about it."

He had to be helped to rise from his wheel chair so that Gov. Bill Clements could swear him in.

"The foundation — the principles — upon which this great country was founded are more alive and well in Texas than anywhere in the world. Those principles are democracy and freedom and free enterprise and Christianity."

Rail talks break off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industry and union bargainers broke off face-to-face negotiations after less than three hours today, making more likely government intervention to halt the nationwide rail strike.

Although a federal mediator said the bargaining would continue through his auspices, the president of the union representing 26,000 striking locomotive engineers said the negotiations had ended "as far as the railroads are concerned."

"Obviously the railroads have never had any intention of coming to an agreement," union president John Sytsma said.

Federal mediator Kay McMurray said while he remains hopeful of a possible settlement, the situation is serious and he anticipates "some sort of action by Congress."

Charles Hopkins, the industry's top negotiator, said the situation "is essentially unchanged" since Saturday night. He said the strike is costing the economy $1 billion a day "and rising."

"I do not see a prospect of settlement," he told reporters as the two sides ended face-to-face talks.

At the White House this morning, spokesman Larry Speakes said Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis was meeting with congressional leaders on possible legislation to end the strike and would report to President Reagan later in the day.

He said the administration was "still hopeful" a settlement could be reached without government intervention.

As union officials showed up today for the talks, they speculated there was a good chance that Congress would move to force an end to the strike, but added they remained hopeful of a settlement.

William Wanke, the union's chief negotiator, said, however, the engineers remain "adamant" about their insistence that an agreement must assure their wage differential compared to other train crewmen.

Asked whether he expected government intervention to end the walkout, union president John Sytsma replied: "I think the prospects are very excellent...I would expect it at this point."

He added that if Congress acts, "we'd have to live with it."

When Hopkins arrived, he said only, "I wish I could be optimistic but it's hard to be."

The talks collapsed shortly after dawn Sunday, seven hours after the engineers began walking off their jobs, bringing to a halt most of the nation's freight rail traffic and many Amtrak passenger trains in the South and West.

Throughout the day Sunday, federal mediators met with the two sides separately in hopes of finding areas of agreement. But by the evening, Robert Harris, chairman of the National Mediation Board, said the participants were too exhausted

Honduras guerrillas still hold 80 hostages

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras (AP) — Crack anti-terrorist troops were sent to the Chamber of Commerce building here, where guerrillas demanding the release of prisoners repeated threats to execute an estimated 80 hostages, including two Cabinet ministers, officials in this industrial city said.

The Papal Nuncio for Honduras and Nicaragua, Andrea Cordero de Montezemolo, arrived from Nicaragua Sunday and a top Honduran official said it was hoped he would aid negotiations between the rebels and the government.

About 10 guerrillas shot their way into the building Friday evening where 105 people, mostly businessmen, were holding an economic conference. One guard was killed and two men wounded in the takeover at San Pedro Sula, 110 miles northwest of the capital of Tegucigalpa.

At least 19 hostages have been freed and at least three more have escaped although there are conflicting reports on specific numbers. The guerrillas and government said two American citizens were being held along with about a dozen other foreigners but a U.S. Embassy spokesman said no Americans were in the building.

Carlos Armando Colomer, a 33-year-old banker who escaped Sunday, said "the situation inside is horrible because initially — the night before last — we suffered the panic of a shoot out and now it's expected that the army will assault the place to free the hostages."

Col. Daniel Beli Castillo, head of the country's public security forces, said he was unaware of any plans to take the building by force but admitted elements of the crack anti-terrorist Cobra battalion were on the scene.

Scores of armed soldiers were posted around the one-story building.

Police said the hostages included Economy Minister Gustavo Adolfo Alfary, Treasury Minister Arturo Corleto Moreira and Central Bank President Gonzalo Carias Pineda. The guerrillas have made eight demands, including the release of about 80 people they say the government holds as political prisoners.

Honduras has said repeatedly that it holds no political prisoners.

The three-man negotiating team includes the nuncio, the bishop of Tegucigalpa, Monsignor Jaime Brufau and Venezuelan charge d'affaires in Honduras, Hugo Alvarez. The government says they are autonomous but has indicated must clear any deal with authorities prior to its acceptance.

Amilcar Santamaria, a spokesman for Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova, said Sunday evening that the guerrillas had not yet presented their demands officially to the three negotiators.

Officials meanwhile are presenting the crisis to foreign journalists here as further evidence of alleged attempts by Nicaragua and by Salvadoran guerrillas to destabilize the fledgling civilian government.

Weather

Showers roll in from coast

By Associated Press

Scattered showers and thunderstorms stretched from the Upper Gulf Coast to the Hill Country in South Central Texas this morning, and that's where they will stay today, forecasters say.

Elsewhere, low stratiform clouds covered most of the southern tip of the state, the Panhandle, and Southwestern Texas. In the north, skies were fair.

The thunderstorm activity is expected to continue over much of South and East Texas through Tuesday.

Winds were northeasterly to easterly statewide at 10 mph or less Monday morning.

Temperatures were seasonably mild with readings in the 50s in the Panhandle and the 60s and 70s across the rest of Texas. The cool spot was Amarillo at 54 degrees; the warm morning spot was Galveston, where it was 79 degrees at 4 a.m.

Swedish voters return Socialist party to power

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Social Democratic Party of former Prime Minister Olof Palme, back in power after six years, swept the elections with promises of more jobs and greater worker control of Swedish companies.

Speaker of Parliament Ingemund Bengtsson was expected to ask outgoing Conservative Premier Thorbjorn Falldin to remain in the government as a caretaker until the new Parliament elects a prime minister a few days after it convenes Oct. 4.

Palme, a United Nations disarmament expert and a mediator in the Iran-Iraq war, was widely expected to be chosen to lead the country, observers said after Sunday's election.

Preliminary returns showed the Socialist camp, the Social Democrats and the Communists, won a comfortable 186-163 majority over the three non-Socialist parties in the 349-seat unicameral legislative body. In the 1979 elections, the non-Socialists held a fragile 175-174 majority.

Informed sources said he would retain about half of the ministers from his government that was ousted in the 1976 general elections, the first Socialist Democratic defeat at the polls in 44 years.

The Social Democrats, lashing out at an unemployment rate of 3 percent and austerity measures in a country where full employment is the norm, want to stimulate declining industrial production and create jobs through a vast public investment program. Spending would be partly financed through a 2 percent increase in the Value Added Tax (VAT).

The outcome indicated that many voters did not seem to worry about the prospect of more taxes or a controversial Socialist Democratic proposal for so-called wage-earner funds, which would buy shares in corporations and be run by trade unions.

Palme has said the proposal, which the Social Democrats say would create investment capital, could be introduced by 1985 after negotiations with non-Socialists and industry representatives.

But non-socialists and industry, fearing the proposed funds would take over companies in the long run, are categorically refusing to negotiate on the matter.

Former top Carter aide says Iran wanted CIA to execute the shah

ATLANTA (AP) — Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, the Iranian ex-foreign minister who was executed last week, met with Hamilton Jordan after the hostages were seized and said the crisis could be solved if the CIA killed the shah, the former White House aide says.

Jordan, who has just written a book about his term as White House chief of staff under President Carter, said in an interview published today in the Atlanta Constitution that he met Ghotbzadeh in the Paris home of Hector Villalon, a French lawyer who acted as an intermediary.

The Iranian foreign minister said at a late-night dinner that he sought the meeting, despite the grave risks, to "penetrate the wall of people surrounding the president" who Ghotbzadeh believed had failed to brief Carter accurately, Jordan said in the interview.

Jordan wrote about the incident in his political memoir, "Crisis," but didn't use Ghotbzadeh's name. He said in the interview that he had promised the former Iranian official he would not reveal his identity. Ghotbzadeh met with Jordan in defiance of the Ayatollah Khomeini's ban on meeting with U.S. officials.

"I regret that it doesn't matter now," Jordan said.

Ghotbzadeh was convicted of plotting to overthrow the Iranian government and was executed Sept. 15.

In his book, Jordan says the meeting took place in February 1980, four months after the U.S. Embassy was taken over and nearly a year before 52 American hostages came home from Iran.

Jordan says he dismissed the idea as "totally out of the question," but talks with Khomeini's secret representative about ways to end the crisis continued until the failed U.S. rescue mission in April 1980.

U.S. asserts soldier defected

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)

— An investigation by U.S. forces has concluded that an American soldier who recently crossed the border into North Korea did so voluntarily, shouting in Korean "I'm coming, help me" to North Korean troops patrolling their side of the demilitarized zone.

But the U.S. command, announcing Sunday the results of a three-week investigation, said the soldier's "motivation for defecting to North Korea could not be determined."

Pfc. Joseph T. White, of St. Louis, Mo., crossed the border Aug. 28, becoming the fifth American defector since the 1953 Korean war armistice and the first since 1965.

The command, emphasizing it did not know the motives of White's defection, said a search of his personal belongings turned up a large amount of North Korean propaganda leaflets and newspaper articles about life in North Korea. It also said that when he left his post, he took with him his M-16 rifle equipped with a grenade launcher, ammunition, night vision glasses, notes from communication electronics operating instructions, and some unclassified information on a radar and sensor system.

Except for the rifle and ammunition, all the items were recovered later in the morning of Aug. 28 when White's duffelbag was found, the command said.

The 20-year-old soldier, a member of the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division, was on police duty at a guard post named Ouellette inside the demilitarized zone when he was reported missing. The post is one of two fixed positions inside a narrow South-North corridor manned by American troops in the 2.5-mile wide buffer zone.

The fair is for the people

When the Tenth Annual Howard County Fair rolls into action at 4 p.m. today, the participants will be continuing a tradition that stretches back to the Middle Ages. Villages, in those olden days, gathered together for friendly competition ranging from jousting to eating to just seeing how their neighbors had fared over the year.

THE MODERN TRADITION of fairs and fairgoers has changed somewhat, but the basic spirit is still prevalent. As county fair association president Paul Hopper said Saturday, people working together is the biggest thrill of the whole fair.

Unlike other events that occur throughout the year, a fair is something that harkens back to our democratic roots also. It is for the people and by the people. No one is paid for their work on the fair association board for the year-long preparations for the week-long event. In most cases, even the basic services such as electricity and so forth are provided at costs or lower.

PROFIT IS NOT the intent of a fair; enjoyment and entertainment are. As Hopper said, the fair is limited only by the people. It stands and falls with the will of the people.

Go to the fair. Something on one or all of the days of the fair is for you. From the carnival to the numerous competitions to the stock shows to the circuses, someone has prepared something with you in mind. Participate in the tradition.

Reader urges people to vote

Dear Editor: I would like to urge all citizens of Big Spring and Howard County to go to the polls this November.

It takes only a few minutes to register and 5 minutes or less of your time to cast your vote. If a candidate has no opponent and you do not agree with his views, just leave the place blank. Votes are counted and your agreeing or not agreeing with a candidate will make a difference. Our country is in deep trouble and it will take every citizen to help set us on a path that we can all live with.

When it takes a court order to obtain any type of help from our elected officials it is time for the citizens to express their opinions and act. Quick tempered and disrespectful officials we do not need.

Compassion and helpful information is not too much to ask of our elected officials.

Thank you,
EDYTH PEDRO

Noday

Americans are in love with 5 p.m. and the weekend because it allows them the chance to be away from work. Everyone looks forward to having some time off to do whatever he may enjoy.

As for myself I have trouble with leisure time. First of all I have trouble deciding what to do with it. Someone will ask me what I'm doing on a particular weekend and I feel guilty if I say "nothing." I feel dull saying I'm doing nothing. I want my plans to sound like fun, but doing nothing doesn't sound like fun, it sounds boring.

Sometimes I use a weekend to work around the house and catch up on all those things I let slide during the week. However, that always seems like I'm working and not relaxing like I should be. But I just can't relax knowing I have a bunch of things to do, so I do them.

ON THE OTHER hand, if I use my time to just lay around the house and read a book or watch a couple of old movies I feel like I'm goofing off. I always feel like I should be doing something constructive even when there's nothing to do.

I had a college professor who said there should be one day during the week called "Noday" which would be set aside for nothing. People wouldn't be allowed to do anything that mattered. A person wouldn't have to worry about getting out and mowing the grass or straightening up the house because it wouldn't be allowed on Noday. Just think, you could sit there and watch the grass grow or wallow around in a messy house and not care. On Noday everyone could be frivolous and carefree.

SOMETIMES I go overboard on trying to have fun on my time off. This summer I thought I would make the most of my leisure hours by signing up to play softball. My team played in a few weekend tournaments and a couple of times, because the tournaments are usually played around the clock, I had to get up at 5 a.m. to play. I never get up at 5 a.m. so I certainly didn't feel like I was relaxing as people hit speeding softballs at my head during dawn's early light.

Another bad thing about having time off from work is having to go back to work. No one really feels like getting back into the groove on a Monday morning especially if you have a bad job or have had a lot of fun on the weekend. Vacations are even worse.

ALTHOUGH there are quite a few things to help me save time in the American lifestyle I never seem to be able to take full advantage of them. There are express lanes, drive-in windows and microwave ovens to shave minutes off the day so I'll have more time to myself. Only I never use these extra minutes for leisure, but rather I schedule more things on my agenda.

Television may be to blame for all my problems. On TV people are always putting a little weekend in their weeks or having nights that are kind of special. I always feel like I'm missing something because TV makes me think special moments are happening all the time even though I know that isn't true.

If there was only some way to balance time off between being constructive and being carefree. I just don't know if there's a way to do it.

It seems to me that a person would have to be either a workaholic or a bum to get along. Workaholics never take leisure time and bums never take time to work.

I don't suppose it really matters. Whether I'm working or goofing off — there never seems to be enough time to do each one justice.

Joseph Kraft

The mid-term specter

WASHINGTON — A specter haunts the mid-term congressional elections. It is the specter of political stalemate.

The ghost could become a reality with a big win for the liberal Democrats. It is that possibility that imparts general significance to last week's fight over the supplemental appropriations bill, which Congress passed over the President's veto.

Normally, supplemental appropriations bills are special cases of only limited significance. The President, having underestimated expenses, goes to the Congress, hat in hand, asking a favor. The Congress, with no good alternatives, goes along grudgingly. The President is very glad. If only because getting another supplemental through would be so hard, vetoes are almost never cast.

RONALD REAGAN, however, isn't your normal President. He comes from the right wing of the Republican Party, and he believes strongly in its ideology. So when realities forced him to favor a tax increase that separated him from the right wing, he wanted back badly. Vetoing the supplemental appropriation for fiscal '82 came easy. The President, complaining about too little for defense and too much for social spending, called it a "budget buster" and embraced his own.

The Democrats saw their opening. In the House, they plastered the President with charges of favoring the rich over the poor and the strong over the weak. "The President wants us to make a choice between weapons and handicapped children," Speaker Tip O'Neill put it in debate. He mustered 220 out of 233 House Democrats. With 81 Republicans also going against the President, the veto was easily overturned.

The Senate, because of the Republican majority, had been expected to save the President. But Republicans from industrial states, especially those up for re-election this year, suddenly turned defensive. Only one — Hayakawa of California who is leaving the Senate — stayed with the administration. Twenty-one broke with the President, enough to overturn the veto by a single vote.

STILL, REAGAN had achieved his main political purpose. He had fought and bled for the right wing. He had, as a bonus, been spared the awful fight that would have ensued if he had been obliged to go for another supplemental. So he could have dismissed the loss as easily affordable — a Pyrrhic defeat.

Instead, as he did when crossed by the Europeans on the Russian pipeline and by the Israelis on the bombing of Beirut, Reagan got mad. In a speech in Utah, the President brandished the threat of vetoes galore. "They better practice at that," he said of the Congress, "because they're going to get a chance to do that every time they spend an appropriation down that is over the budget. I'll veto it."

An invitation to be twice-born could not have pleased the Democrats more. Over the weekend they decided to rush to the floor a billion-dollar program for creating construction jobs. "The costs of unemployment," Tip O'Neill said, "now outweigh the costs of putting people back to work."

BLOCKING THAT program in the Senate, or by veto, is not going to be hard for the President. In most of the spending votes between now and the end of this Congress, the President appears to have the upper hand. But then come the mid-term elections.

A happy outcome would be a Democratic gain of about 10 to 15 seats. That would warn the President, but also keep the Democrats cautious. The two parties would have to trade on major matters. The gains achieved by the recent tax increase could be extended in a bipartisan assault on budget deficits.

But the Democrats could pick up 30 to 40 seats in the House. They would take that vote as a mandate against Reaganomics. They would push through spending programs for housing, for jobs, for health and lots of other things. The Senate, even with a Republican majority, would be in poor position to resist. Reagan really would have to fall back on the veto. The country would then be in for a spell of stalemate politics, likely to kill chances for economic recovery.

Billy Graham

Did emotions play tricks?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I accepted Christ into my life a few weeks ago. At first I felt pretty good about it, but then I began to wonder if it was really true or if my emotions had just played a trick on me. What do you think?—C.S.F.

DEAR C.S.F.: Your emotions can play tricks on you — and that is what is happening to you right now! At first, when you gave your life to Christ, you had some strong emotional feelings about the fact that you were now a child of God. Now the emotions have faded, but you are still a child of God.

Let me use an illustration. If you are married, you probably had strong emotional feelings towards your wife when you first became husband and wife. But I suspect there have been times when you haven't "felt" married, because the emotions have faded for a time. Did that mean you were no longer husband and wife? Certainly not! Your marriage depended on a fact — the fact that you vowed before God and others that you would be husband and wife. Your marriage does not depend on emotions, but on the fact you are married — committed to one another.

In the same way, when you put your faith and trust in Christ you became a child of God. How do I know that? I know it because God has promised, "Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved" (Acts 16:31). God cannot lie, and if you truly gave your heart to Christ as best you knew how, God has forgiven you and adopted you into his family.

I want to stress, however, now that you have come to Christ you need to learn to walk with him each day and grow in your relationship each day. Just as a marriage will grow stale if the husband and wife never communicate with each other and spend time with him. Set aside time each day — perhaps ten minutes at first — to spend with God by reading the Bible and praying. And get involved in a church where Christ is preached so you can come to know other Christians who can help you.

Doctors use election law loophole

WASHINGTON — The nation's organized doctors are determined to uphold their inalienable right to charge all that their patients will bear. For this cause, they have utilized a loophole in the federal election law to win elections and influence congressmen.

The American Medical Association wants Congress to strip the Federal Trade Commission of the authority to investigate and punish doctors whose monopolistic collusion may be keeping the costs of medical treatment skyhigh.

With the government regulators handcuffed, the medical fraternity's power to stifle cost-cutting competition would be virtually unchecked.

SINCE 1979, at least $830,000 in direct contributions from the AMA's political action committee has gone to congressmen who support the plan to protect the medical profession from FTC regulation. By law, a PAC's donation is limited to $5,000 to any single candidate for each primary or general election campaign.

But there's an exception to this provision that's big enough to drive an ambulance through: Contributions in the form of polling research are not computed at their actual cost. Instead, the value of a poll donated to a candidate is reckoned at either 50 percent or 5 percent of its cost, depending on how soon the poll results are given to the candidate.

Thus the AMA can give a favored candidate the results of a poll that cost many times the maximum permissible contribution, without violating the law. For example, a poll that cost $30,000 could be counted as merely a $1,500 campaign contribution.

Twenty-two members of Congress have been given the results of AMA polls that cost at least $465,534 to produce. The total amount reported on campaign contribution forms was just $47,783, barely 10 percent of the actual value of the polls.

Six congressmen reported the AMA poll donations at 50 percent of the cost. They were Reps. Bill Emerson, R-Mo., who reported $4,085; Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, $4,640; John Hiler, R-Ind., $4,182; Harold Sawyer, R-Mich., $4,737; Tom Pedtri, R-Wis., $4,787; and Toby Roth, R-Wis., $4,809.

Among the 16 AMA friends who reported only 5 percent of the true cost of the polls, six congressmen — Marvin Leath, D-Tex., Kent Hance, D-Tex., David Bowen, D-Miss., David McCurdy, D-Okla., Harold Volkmer, R-Mo., and Larry Craig, R-Idaho — appeared to get the best value for their cut-rate contributions. They got research that cost at least a total of $242,240, yet only had to report $12,112 in contributions.

One of the most expensive polls was the one the AMA ran for Leath. It cost $56,880, for which he had to report only $2,844 in direct contribution. In 1979-80, incidentally, Leath received $7,150 from the AMA for his primary and election campaigns.

The 5 percent declaration rate is especially useful to candidates who have already been recipients of the AMA's largesse. For example, Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., had already received $4,300 in direct donations from the AMA this year. A poll as costly as Leath's would have pushed him over the $5,000 limit, so he made do with a $13,600 AMA poll. He reported the minimum 5 percent valuation — $681 — leaving his total AMA contribution just $19 shy of the legal limit.

Footnote: AMA spokesman Peter Lauer told my associate Tony Capaccio that some congressmen asked the AMA to run polls for them, while in other cases the AMA volunteered. He described the polls as definitive, "benchmark" surveys designed to determine a candidate's re-election potential.

ARMS FOR THE ASKING: Israel has $5 million worth of weapons waiting to be claimed by a properly respectable exile group that will use them to overthrow the Sandinista government of Nicaragua. The arms shipment was bought and paid for by the late dictator Anastasio Somoza a few years ago when Israel had taken over from the United States as Somoza's military supplier.

Sources tell me the shipload of weapons was actually on the high seas headed for Nicaragua when it was ordered to turn back under pressure from the White House. President Jimmy Carter had decided Somoza was a lost cause.

Israel still has custody of the arms, and is reportedly trying to find an obliging Latin American government to vouch for one or another of the anti-Sandinista groups. Once the third country's seal of approval is granted, the Israelis will get the weapon to the annotated group.

Why this Israeli hostility toward the Sandinistas? It has to do with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The Sandinistas have apparently expressed solidarity with the PLO once too often. Israel and the United States are having their differences in the Middle East, but both governments agree on their distaste for the leftist regime in Managua.

ORDNANCE ORDINANCE: The ordinance passed by the town fathers of Morton Grove, Ill., banning possession of handguns has been upheld by both a state court and a federal district court. But the verdicts have been appealed.

Sources say that no matter which side wins the appeal, the case will be taken to the Supreme Court. The National Rifle Association and the National Coalition to Ban Handguns will pick up most of the tab for legal fees. The outcome is seen as a definitive decision on the Second Amendment's fuzzy guarantee of a citizen's right to own firearms.

WATCH ON WASTE: In the first days of the Reagan administration, the International Communication Agency (now the U.S. Information Agency) again commissioned a 30-minute movie biography of the new president. The non-competitive contract went to William Carruthers, an old Hollywood pal of the film's star. It was to be a rush job, to be finished in February 1981. Months passed; no movie. The agency finally called off the deal. Carruthers never finished the film; instead, he turned over a video-tape, which was deemed unusable. Carruthers was paid about $110,000 for his wasted effort.

WATCH ON WASTE: In the first days of the Reagan administration, the International Communication Agency (now the U.S. Information Agency) again commissioned a 30-minute movie biography of the new president. The non-competitive contract went to William Carruthers, an old Hollywood pal of the film's star. It was to be a rush job, to be finished in February 1981. Months passed; no movie. The agency finally called off the deal. Carruthers never finished the film; instead, he turned over a video-tape, which was deemed unusable. Carruthers was paid about $110,000 for his wasted effort.

Chapter hosts coffee

Beta Kappa Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International met recently for a coffee in the home of Helen Gladdin. The organization is for professional women educators.

Doris Huijbregtse, Janice Rossen, Andre Sink, Carol Stephens, Connie Gary, Reva Adams, Corinne Buckner and Jean Wilder, co-hostesses and officers, greeted teachers from Big Spring and surrounding school districts.

The coffee honored Agnes Currie, charter member. Other members honored this summer were retirees Arah Phillips and Eleanor Garrett.

Members were reminded of the Area XII Workshop in Lamesa. Dues for 1982-83 are being accepted. Membership submissions have been received and will be reviewed in October.

The chapter's next meeting will be held Oct. 9 at 3 p.m. in the Tumbleweed Room of Howard College.

Mother grieves over children

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print this, as there must be others who could one day face what we are facing if they don't take precautions to prevent it.

Our 16-year-old daughter is pregnant by our 15-year-old adopted son. She refuses to have an abortion because she wants the baby.

We adopted the boy when he was an infant and have raised him as though he were our own flesh and blood. Both children have been raised in the church, and I never dreamed this could happen to us!

My husband works the night shift and I had to be away for several nights with my sister who underwent serious surgery. Meanwhile, our son and daughter slept in the same bed because she said she was afraid. He said, "Mom, I'm sorry. It just happened. I couldn't help it."

My husband ran the boy off, and he has no one to go to. I am so distraught I don't know where to turn or whom to ask except you, Abby. What should I do now?

DEAR CRUSHED: You say your children have been raised in the church. Praise the Lord — that could be your salvation! And theirs.

Welcome the boy home, and forget blame, guilt, and what you should or should not have done. The future of your daughter and son and their unborn child are your first priorities now. See your spiritual and religious leader for family counseling. This concerns the entire family. God never gives us a heavier load than we can carry, so please do this now, and let me hear from you in three months. I care.

DEAR ABBY: While I was in the hospital last month, a fellow patient let me read your book, "The Best of Dear Abby." It made me laugh. It made me cry. It made me think. But best of all, it made me happy.

I want one of my own, and I would also like to buy one for my mother, but I can't find a single copy in Great Falls, Mont. Can you help me?

DEAR R.K.: Send me your name and address and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: A pox on the idiot who convinced so many office managers that the customer enjoys canned music while waiting for a busy telephone extension. It's bad enough to be put on "hold," but to be forced to listen to that terrible music infuriates me!

To all who are responsible for canned music on the telephone, please consider this:

1. I do not mind a few minutes of silence. I can meditate, doodle, or review what I am going to say when the service department finally answers.

2. I may be listening to my favorite opera, or watching "Hee-Haw."

3. Finally, the Muzak in my own office (over which I have no control) does not blend well with yours.

STICK IT IN YOUR EAR: The function of canned music on the telephone is not so much to entertain as to let the caller know that he's still connected.

CONFIDENTIAL TO J. IN PALM DESERT, CALIF.: In the immortal words of Thomas Paine: "What we obtain too cheap we esteem too little." In other words, don't give away too much, or you'll never be able to sell it.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), addressed, envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue

Doctor recommends test

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have bronchiectasis. Lately, I have experienced periodic bleeding (very small) and have been out of breath. Occasionally I expectorate phlegm. My doctor, a specialist, wants to do a bronchoscopy. I am 61 and very active. Should I curtail my activities? Is there a diet to stop the bleeding? Will vitamin K help my blood clotting? — Mrs. L.K.

Bronchiectasis is the loss of elasticity of the breathing tubes. It usually results from other lung problems, like pus-producing infections. Eventually, the tubes expand and just stay that way. Their elasticity has gone. Sputum production with chronic cough are symptoms, and often the sputum is tinged with blood from small erosions on the surface of the tubes.

In order to get a good view of the tubes, doctors use a special device, the bronchoscope. Also, a little dye is put into the tubes so that everything is outlined clearly on X-rays.

There's no cure for bronchiectasis, but there are things to do for it. You shouldn't curtail activities that do not leave you short of breath or cause coughing. There is no diet, and vitamin K will not help. Clotting is not your problem. Irritation of the surface of bronchial tubes. Preventively, you should be sure to have any future respiratory infection treated promptly so there is no further destruction of the tubes. There are medicines to keep your cough under control and to promote loosening of secretions and prevent pooling of them in the tubes. You should learn postural drainage techniques, ways of letting gravity assist in clearing secretions from the tubes.

You need the bronchoscopy examination. Other conditions can cause coughing and blood-tinged sputum, so you want to be sure the diagnosis of bronchiectasis is correct.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would appreciate knowing what the meaning is of the words "prominence of the ascending thoracic aorta." Is it dangerous? I am 65 years old. — J.J.

The aorta is the largest artery in your body. It leaves the top part of your heart, inches upward a bit (ascending part), then turns and arches downward (descending part) and proceeds downward through your chest and abdominal cavities. When the radiologist reads X-rays of the chest area, he may mention things like "prominence of the ascending thoracic aorta," and all he's telling your doctor is that he can see that part of your aorta more clearly than he usually does on such X-rays.

It does not mean something is necessary wrong. Structures can be more prominent in thin individuals, for example. So the statement is not about any illness.

If your doctor had heard a murmur when he listened to your chest, and then got a report of a prominent ascending aorta, it would make him think about the possibility of a bulge in the structure. It is for such reasons that casual notations by skilled radiologist can be so helpful to the physicians ordering the X-rays. It's like hiring someone to survey your back property. It would be helpful if he also noted incidentally that you had a good-sized patch of quicksand back there.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What kind of test is given to determine if lower backache is from Paget's disease? I know of one test in which dye is put into a vein. — J.D.H.

In Paget's disease of the bone, there is loss of bone substance at localized points in the skeleton. It is later replaced by irregular bone growth in those areas. The usual test is ordinary X-ray, and the enlargement areas can be seen. There is a thickening and increase of bone density compared with surrounding healthy bone. I have not heard of procedures involving dye in the veins to test for this disease, which is, incidentally, a fairly common one.

Florence Hall honored

Members of the Permian Basin Medical Society Auxiliary met recently and voted to honor Florence Hall, long-time auxiliary member, for her many contributions. A donation to the Howard County Library will be given in her honor.

In other business, the medical auxiliary voted to invite participation of local wives of dentists in its activities by adding a Special Friends category to its roster. Mrs. Rudy Haddad, president, said that upcoming auxiliary programs will cover legislation of interest to medical professionals and health and nutrition for the elderly. Other programs will focus on the police department, Doctors' Days activities and a traditional fund-raiser fashion show.

New auxiliary include Mrs. Bruce Cox, vice president; Mrs. Robert Remember, recording secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Roscoe Cowper, corresponding secretary. The next meeting is Oct. 20.

Swedish kids ahead of comrades

By BIRGIT LOFGRE Associated Press Writer STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Swedish children are well ahead of their comrades in the United States, Australia and Britain when it comes to questions on love, sex and marriage, a research report concludes.

This sophistication is attributed to Sweden's compulsory sex education and a more liberal attitude on sex, said assistant professor Gunilla Westin-Lindgren, leader of a research team at the Stockholm School of Education.

The Swedish study is part of a project led by Ronald and Juliette Goldman of La Trobe University, Melbourne, Australia. A thousand children aged 5 to 15 from Sweden, Australia, Britain and the United States took part in the study, embarked upon in 1978, and aimed at measuring the extent of children's sexual knowledge.

Sex education is compulsory for Swedish children from the age of 8, contrary to the other countries included in the study.

Education has obviously been efficient, since there was not much Swedish children did not know of sex-related matters at the age of 9, and they were generally two years ahead of the English-speaking ones.

Three-quarters of the Swedish children knew at the age of 9 how a baby is conceived and that the gestation period is nine months, while the children from the other countries did not grasp this until they were 11.

The sophisticated Swedish youngsters also gave the correct answer to the difficult question of "what decides if it's going to be a boy or a girl?" at 13, while the children of other nationalities needed another two years to sort things out.

One 7-year old English boy gave the answer, "It's priests. He baptizes babies," to that question.

Some of the discrepancies among the nationalities could be explained by cultural differences, Westin-Lindgren stressed.

Competing with the post office: not easy or legal

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1976, Patricia Brennan founded a company offering same-day delivery of letters within the Rochester, N.Y., business district for 10 cents instead of 13 cents a piece — faster and cheaper than the Postal Service.

Within three years, the P.H. Brennan Hand Delivery Co. was closed, after the Postal Service enforced laws giving it a monopoly on delivering mail.

"We did not even know we were in violation of the law," recalled Mrs. Brennan, who was then 21. She fought a legal battle all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court over the issue, but the court refused to hear her final appeal.

The Postal Service has forced many other letter delivery companies out of business, usually by notifying them that their service violated the "private express statutes."

"In most cases, requesting discontinuation is enough," said Postal Service attorney Charles D. Hawley. "They say, 'We didn't know there was anything wrong with it, but now that we do know, we'll stop....'"

The Pony Express of the 19th century, one of the most colorful chapters in American history, was a private enterprise. Riders took messages from Missouri to California by horseback before the transcontinental railroad rendered the service obsolete.

The Pony Express had a cooperative relationship with the Post Office Department, but when the mail agency acts to eliminate any competition, it can cite two centuries of precedents for its exclusive legal right to carry the mail, dating back to the Continental Congress of 1782.

Supporters of a Postal Service monopoly say there should be one nationwide postal system that serves everyone for the same prices. Thus, a letter to a remote area or one crossing the nation requires the same 20-cent stamp as traveling across town, even though the long-distance letter takes far more work.

These supporters say that if the monopoly were broken, private companies would accept only the profitable, easy-to-deliver mail and leave the rest to the Postal Service.

"The only reason to retain the private express statutes should be that they are needed in the public interest," Postmaster General William F. Bolger told a Senate hearing earlier this year.

"Even though postal services are now largely paid for directly through postage, the American people still regard their mail system as more than simply a matter of dollars and cents. They see its services as part of their rights as citizens," he said.

If there were a number of competing local or regional services, "How would mail exchanges be assured? How would mail forwarding be provided for the millions who move every year? How would the sanctity and security of the mails be protected? Would the public still be protected against the mailing of obscenity and the like and against mail-order deceptions?" Bolger asked.

Sen. Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho, is sponsoring a bill

EN ROUTE — Patricia Brennan of Rochester, N.Y., tried to compete with the U.S. Postal Service by offering her own mail delivery service. It didn't work. The postal service closed her company and others, enforcing laws giving it a monopoly on mail delivery.

that would repeal the statutes. He would like to see private companies competing against the Postal Service, even though he says the service is the best mail agency in the world and "has, for the most part, met our national needs quite adequately."

The Symms bill is given no chance of passage in the waning days of the 97th Congress. If the measure is given serious consideration next year, it likely will be opposed vigorously by representatives of rural areas, traditional supporters of the postal monopoly.

A Symms staff aide, who requested anonymity, said the bill was a vehicle for attracting ideas on possible ways to change the postal monopoly. The biggest boost for the Symms bill came from James C. Miller III, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, who said he favors allowing private companies to deliver letters.

The Postal Service already has competitors, but not in delivery of letters. United Parcel Service is the most notable of these, having passed the Postal Service in volume of parcel deliveries.

When asked if the P.H. Brennan Hand Delivery Co. ever lost a letter, Mrs. Brennan replied, "Not one and never late." She said that when the Postal Service threatened her customers with legal action, "I got more business than ever because many of my customers were lawyers," she said.

Fuel economy figures

At 50 mpg, VW leads in latest test results

WASHINGTON (AP) — Volkswagen, with an innovative diesel engine that will start and stop dozens of times during a typical trip, has cracked the 50-miles-per-gallon barrier to take No. 1 in the government's annual fuel economy rankings.

While Volkswagen was repeating its first place finish for the sixth straight year, U.S. automakers lost the foothold they had established in the economy race last year, when a domestic car cracked the top 10 for the first time.

The best Detroit could do in the 1983-model-year rankings released Sunday by the Environmental Protection Agency was No. 11 for two General Motors cars equipped with Japanese-built engines — a Chevrolet Chevette and its sister car, a Pontiac 1000.

Volkswagen is likely to cause quite a bit of talk in dealer showrooms this fall with its top-ranked diesel Rabbit, which bettered last year's rating of 45 mpg by five mpg.

To do that, Volkswagen equipped this version of the Rabbit with an engine that shuts itself off every time the driver takes his foot off the accelerator for more than 1.5 seconds. The engine automatically starts again once the accelerator is touched.

Volkswagen says this new feature should result in great fuel savings in stop-and-go city driving. Because the car will start far more often than others, VW is equipping it with a long-life starter motor.

On cold mornings, the automatic stopping feature will not kick in until the motor reaches operating temperature. The device can also be overridden by flicking a switch.

VW also returned to an old idea with this special Rabbit. Even though it has a four-speed manual transmission, it doesn't have a floor clutch. Instead, the clutch is electrically operated every time the driver touches the gear-shift lever.

Volkswagen said it will begin assembling this special version of the Rabbit at its Westmoreland, Pa., plant in December. It will produce 3,000 at first to test the market. Even though the car is assembled in this country, EPA still classifies it as a foreign car because more than 25 percent of its parts are imported.

This year, as last, diesel cars dominated the top 10 list. The top-rated Rabbit and seven other cars in the top 10 are diesel powered. Last year seven of the top-rated cars were diesels.

The Nissan Sentra and a VW Rabbit without the stop-and-start feature tied for No. 2 at 48 mpg. Nissan, Japan's second largest automaker, has sold its cars in this country for years under the Datsun label.

The highest-ranked gasoline-powered car, a Honda Civic, took fourth place with a 46 mpg rating. The only other gasoline-powered car in the top 10, a Toyota Starlet, tied for fifth at 44 mpg with an Isuzu I-Mark and another Nissan Sentra.

A Volkswagen Jetta and two more VW Rabbits rounded out the top 10 with 43 mpg ratings. All the top-rated cars have manual transmissions and are classified by the EPA as either subcompacts or minicompacts.

The Chevrolet Chevette and the Pontiac 1000, both with diesel engines made by Isuzu, posted the best mileage for a U.S. automaker at 42 mpg. The same car was No. 1 domestically last year and seventh overall at 40 mpg.

A new offering from American Motors, the Renault Alliance, came in next at 37 mpg with a gasoline engine along with two more diesel models of the Chevette and Pontiac 1000. Gasoline-powered models of the Dodge Omni and Charger and the Plymouth Horizon and Turismo round out the domestic top 10 at 34 mpg.

Ford's top-selling Escort had a 29 mpg rating, the same as the Plymouth Reliant, the best-selling Chrysler model. Chevrolet's popular Citation had a rating of 27 mpg.

The EPA ratings are based on a simulated urban driving cycle carried out on a laboratory treadmill. Because of criticism that past ratings were unrealistically high, the EPA has stopped reporting separate city, highway and combined mileage figures and now reports only the city ranking, the lowest of the three. Automakers can still use the other figures in their advertising, however.

The EPA said copies of its auto guide will be distributed in October. By law, dealers are required to make the guides available to customers.

For the second straight year the Maserati Quattroporte got the lowest rating, 8 mpg. The EPA said a Maserati owner driving 15,000 miles would pay $3,094 for gasoline compared to $450 for the owner of the highest-rated diesel Rabbit. The EPA's estimate assumes a cost of $1.65 per gallon for gasoline and $1.50 for diesel.

Natural gas price may rise, despite surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite oversupplies, natural gas prices will rise by 20 percent over the next six months because of relaxed federal laws, a consumer group says.

The Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition said in a study released Sunday that 16 of the largest interstate natural gas pipeline companies are boosting their rates by $2.3 billion. Pipelines owned by those companies serve states in all sections of the country.

The coalition said the rate hikes were occurring even though demand for gas has slumped because of the recession and there is such an overabundance that thousands of wells are shut.

"These massive pipeline rate increases demonstrate the fallacy of deregulation," said Energy Coalition Executive Director Robert M. Brandon. "At a time when there is a large surplus of gas, when demand has fallen, most pipelines are passing through gas price increases."

The coalition said pipelines, which transport gas from producing states to local natural gas distribution companies, have little incentive to shop for the lowest prices since the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission allows them to automatically pass on to consumers the costs of their gas purchases.

The process by which this is done is known as the purchased gas adjustment, which most pipelines file with the commission every six months. In it, they project what the increased cost of gas will be for the next six months. These increases go into effect automatically unless they are challenged.

The coalition's study analyzed the increases filed since July 1 for 16 companies. Those hikes total $2.3 billion, the coalition said, and will mean customers will be paying an average of $25 more over the six-month winter heating season.

However, the increases vary widely, depending on what pipeline is serving a particular area of the country, the study said. They range from 10 cents in Wisconsin to $38.20 in Washington, D.C.

The commission's practice of allowing the rates to go into effect with little scrutiny has come under fire in recent months and more and more of the rate petitions are being challenged by critics who charge the pipelines are defrauding customers by failing to bargain aggressively with producers.

The challengers have been particularly critical of pipeline purchases of gas from depths greater than 15,000 feet. That gas is completely removed from federal price controls and producers have been paying prices approaching $11 per thousand cubic feet. The prices of other categories of gas, still under price controls, average $2.27.

Producing companies contend that they were forced to bid high prices to assure their customers an adequate supply and many of these contracts have "take-or-pay" provisions which force them to pay for up to 95 percent of the gas whether they use it or not.

Stewart Macdonald, a spokesman for the Interstate Natural Gas Association of America, said his trade group, which represents pipeline companies, could not comment because it had not seen the Energy Coalition study.

The energy coalition is a national organization of 300 consumer, labor, and community groups that has been fighting decontrol of natural gas prices.

THE "HOUSE" CAVES IN — Cowboys running back Robert Newhouse (44) plows ahead for tough yardage in the fourth quarter Sunday against the St. Louis Cardinals. Trying to get a grip on the Dallas fullback are Elois Grooms (78) and Bruce Thornton (79). The Cowboys rolled to a 24-7 victory over the Cardinals.

White's TD tosses carry Dallas, 24-7

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Danny White threw two touchdown passes but knew where to give equal credit for a National Football League victory by the Dallas Cowboys.

"The key to the second half was the running game," said White after passing for 266 yards in a 24-7 triumph Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals. "If you don't establish the run, you haven't got anything."

Until Dallas, 1-1, was able to solve stunting defenses by St. Louis, also 1-1, the outcome appeared in doubt.

Then the Cowboys, aided by changes they made at halftime, sprang Tony Dorsett on runs of 9, 7 and 9 yards. The gallops opened paths, and a lengthy screen pass afterward quickly set up the go-ahead touchdown.

"As long as a team isn't establishing the running game, the linebackers can afford to play passes," said White, who tossed scoring passes of 29 and 24 yards to Doug Cosbie and Drew Pearson in the first and fourth quarters.

"We made some adjustments, especially in the line blocking," the Dallas quarterback said. "I thought the protection got better as the game went along. It was a matter of adjusting to what they were doing and hoping that the defense could hold them down."

At that, the Cowboys came close to falling behind after battling their opponent to a 7-7 standoff at halftime.

Neil Lomax, by rifling a 21-yard pass to Doug Marsh and sending Wayne Morris on a 9-yard run, marched the Cards to a first down at the Dallas 33 in the third quarter. Four downs later, however, the St. Louis quarterback wound up in Harvey Martin's grasp and was forced to ground the ball intentionally.

Ottis Anderson of the Cards also helped the Cowboys, dropping a Lomax pass in the open at the Dallas 45 preceding the Cowboys' awakening.

After Dorsett ripped off his three gains, White combined with Ron Springs on a 34-yard screen pass which carried to the St. Louis 6. Billy Joe DuPree scored one play later on an end-around, and Dallas mopped up with 10 fourth-quarter points.

White's touchdown passes came at conclusion of a 77-yard advance highlighted by his eight straight completions in the second quarter and in the final period following an interception by Everson Walls.

The Walls theft was the Cards' lone turnover but not their only mistake.

"We didn't play too smart," said Floyd Peters, the assistant St. Louis head coach.

By turning loose Dorsett for most of his 98-yard rushing net in the final two quarters, the Cowboys made amends for a 36-28 opening loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Meanwhile, the Cards wasted Lomax' 291 passing yards and Roy Green's 10 catches for gains totaling 170 yards. St. Louis' lone score came with 32 seconds left in the opening half on Lomax' 4-yard flip to Pat Tilley.

"In the second half, they got the big plays and we didn't," Cards Coach Jim Hanifan said.

To strike...or when to strike?

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League players' union stands poised to deliver a strike vote that could shut down the 1982 season as early as this week.

The nine-member executive committee of the NFL Players Association, meeting in New York today, must decide whether to call a strike that could begin as early as Tuesday or after the third week of the season, Oct. 3-4.

If the group votes to initiate a walkout at the end of Monday night's Green Bay-New York Giants game in East Rutherford, N.J., the first game to be affected would be Thursday when Atlanta visits Kansas City.

Union officials contend that at least 90 percent of the league's 1,500 players will support the walkout.

"A decision has not been made at this time whether to play the (Thursday's) game," said Jack Donlan, the owners' chief negotiator. "The decision to go ahead with the game will be made by the (league's) competition and executive committees."

A strike would be the first mid-season work stoppage in the league's 63-year history.

The owners' last financial offer, which they estimate is worth $600 million this year and $1.6 billion over the next five years, was rejected by the union's executive committee on Sept. 8.

An informal poll of the committee, conducted this weekend by The Associated Press, found near-unanimous support for initiating the strike this week.

Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director, said Sunday he will make no recommendation.

"The players will decide," he said. "It is their jobs they are putting on the line."

The NFLPA, which represents the league's 1,500 players, struck for six weeks in the summer of 1974, but the contract dispute was resolved during the exhibition season.

Negotiations on a new contract started last February. On Friday, when the talks broke off, Upshaw said the recent round of negotiations reminded him of the February sessions.

"It is the same old thing over and over. If I closed my eyes I could dream I was sitting in the hotel in Miami hearing them give the same old arguments, the same old positions," Upshaw said.

Although the union has dropped its most controversial demand — a fixed 55 percent of each team's gross revenue — both sides still are far apart.

The union now is seeking $1.6 billion over a four-year period to include 50 percent of all current and future television monies, a wage scale and creation of a central fund from which player salaries would be dispersed.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks once again brought out the best in Houston's Earl Campbell while quarterback Gifford Nielsen and the offense's first-half performance brought out the worst in Oilers fans.

Nielsen was booed in the first half Sunday and the fans' impatience also was reflected in the Astrodome graffiti.

One sign paid tribute to the Oilers as "The winning Oilers team" while another said "Do the fans a favor — strike."

But the fans were all cheering with 53 seconds to play after Nielsen directed the winning touchdown drive, capped by Campbell's 12-yard touchdown run, that lifted the Oilers to a 23-21 victory.

Campbell's touchdown brought the Oilers to a pulsating come-from-behind victory started after Seattle's Jim Zorn came off the bench to engineer two fourth-quarter touchdowns and give the Seahawks a 21-17 lead with 5:42 to play.

"I feel good enough about the final drive, but we should have put the game away earlier," said Nielsen, who finished with 17 completions on 38 attempts for 131 yards. "I was frustrated with our defense like Seattle's, you have to be patient."

Seattle Coach Jack Patera still was angered about an apparent interception by safety Kenny Easley during Houston's winning touchdown drive. Easley's theft was ruled out of bounds at the Seattle 2, and the Oilers went on to score.

"It wasn't close," Patera said. "He was at least a yard (in bounds). There was no decision to be made. We played well enough to win. I think it is a tremendous crime the way the game ended up."

It was the second consecutive year Seattle had been punctured by Campbell, who had not gained 100 yards since he faced the Seahawks 15 games ago. Campbell's touchdown run gave him 142 yards on 30 carries. A year ago, he had 186 yards on 39 carries.

Nielsen hit tight end Dave Casper with a 19-yard touchdown pass with 1:17 left in a lackluster first half, but Seattle tied it with 19 seconds to go on quarterback Dave Krieg's 40-yard pass to Byron Walker.

The Oilers put the Seahawks on the ropes in the third quarter with Florian Kempf's 24-yard field goal and safety Mike Reinfeldt's recovery of Krieg's fumble in the end zone.

Krieg left the game with an injured thumb and Zorn came on to direct a touchdown drive highlighted by a 23-yard pass completion to Sherman Smith off a fake field goal try on fourth down. Theotis Brown scored on a 3-yard run.

The Seahawks took the lead after cornerback Dave Brown recovered a fumble by Casper at the Oiler 19 and Zorn hit David Hughes with a 29-yard touchdown pass.

Zorn finished with eight completions on 12 attempts and 116 yards.

Steelers cage up Bengals; Broncs bust 49ers

When you hold Franco Harris to just three yards rushing, there's no way the Pittsburgh Steelers can win, right? Wrong.

Six times Harris pounded into the line, and six times the Cincinnati Bengals stopped him. So Harris grabbed a career-high 11 passes to help lead the Steelers to a 26-20 overtime victory Sunday.

NFL Weekend

"We never know who is going to catch the ball or run it," said Steelers Coach Chuck Noll. "This week, Franco was a big contributor as a receiver even though our running game wasn't doing very well."

Harris has made his mark in his 10 seasons of National Football League action as a rusher. Sunday, he saw something and the Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw took advantage of it.

"I came over to the sidelines and told Terry I was open," Harris said. "He just got me the ball."

Bradshaw didn't desert his other receivers. John Stallworth grabbed two touchdown passes, including a game-winning 2-yard catch with just 1:08 gone in the overtime period as Bradshaw completed 29 of 42 passes for 286 yards.

In the final game of the weekend and possibly the final game of the season, the Green Bay Packers traveled to East Rutherford, N.J., tonight to take on the New York Giants. The NFL Players Association has scheduled a strike vote for Tuesday, so the Packers-Giants game could be the last NFL contest this season.

At several cities, fans booed when the players demonstrated solidarity by shaking hands prior to the game. And at Chicago and Atlanta, when the home teams were losing, the fans chanted, "Strike, strike, strike."

"You saw two of the premier quarterbacks in the game," said Cincinnati wide receiver Chris Collinsworth, referring to Bradshaw and Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson, who completed 27 of 38 attempts for 323 yards. "You put these two on the field and there are going to be a lot of footballs in the air."

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, delighted with the Steelers' 2-0 record, also had praise for rookie kicker Gary Anderson. Anderson, picked up by the Steelers from the Buffalo Bills the week before the season started, sent the game into overtime with a 42-yard field goal with 35 seconds remaining. He earlier kicked a 25-yarder and two extra points.

Redskins 21, Buccaneers 13

Washington capitalized on numerous Tampa Bay miscues, including four fumbled center snaps, to top Tampa Bay as heavy rain drenched the field.

Mark Moseley booted field goals of 35 and 21 yards, set up by the fumbles of Bucs quarterback Doug Williams, and added a 19-yarder following a holding penalty against Tampa Bay late in the game.

Joe Theismann threw eight yards to Charlie Brown for a Washington TD, while Williams connected with Kevin House for a 62-yard scoring play.

Lions 19, Rams 14

Bob Thomas booted four field goals and Billy Sims rushed for 119 yards and caught five passes for 103 yards to lead Detroit over the winless Rams. Thomas was cut by the Chicago Bears two weeks ago and signed by the Lions. It was Sims' first start of the year following his preseason holdout.

Vince Ferragamo came off the bench for Los Angeles to replace the injured Bert Jones and led the Rams to two fourth-quarter TDs.

Raiders 38, Falcons 14

Marcus Allen scored on a 4-yard run and Jim Plunkett lofted a 30-yard touchdown pass to Cliff Branch 43 seconds later as the Raiders stopped Atlanta.

The Raiders' final TD came in the last six minutes when Archie Reese scooped up a fumble and raced 75 yards.

Eagles 24, Browns 21

Ron Jaworski rallied Philadelphia for three fourth-period touchdowns, the last one a 3-yard run by Leroy Harris with 22 seconds remaining, as the Eagles nipped Cleveland. The Browns had taken a 21-17 lead when tight end Ozzie Newsome grabbed a 34-yard touchdown pass with 57 seconds to go.

Jaworski finished the game with 25 completions in 41 attempts for 341 yards.

Chiefs 19, Chargers 12

Four field goals by Nick Lowery and Gary Green's blocked punt that was recovered in the end zone for a touchdown paced Kansas City over San Diego. Green, a cornerback, burst in from the left side and leaped high to block Maury Buford's punt on the 25-yard line. Dave Klug finally fell on the ball in the end zone.

Lowery now has seven field goals in the Chiefs' first two games.

Saints 10, Bears 6

Veteran quarterback Ken Stabler found Larry Hardy with a 10-yard touchdown pass and Toni Fritsch added a WATCH FRANCO CATCH — Pittsburgh Steeler running back Franco Harris (32) couldn't move on the ground Sunday against Cincinnati but caught 11 passes for 88 yards from quarterback Terry Bradshaw (12). Bradshaw hit 29 of 42 throws for 286 yards to lead the Steelers to a 26-20 overtime victory over the Bengals in Pittsburgh.

40-yard field goal as New Orleans blanked Chicago. The Saints scored the game's lone touchdown after marching 80 yards with the opening kickoff.

Jets 31, Patriots 7

Freeman McNeil rushed for 106 yards and one touchdown and New York turned three interceptions into 17 points as the Jets rolled over New England.

The Jets suffered a big loss, however, when All-Pro defensive end Joe Klecko tore tendons in his right leg and will be lost for at least 12 weeks. Klecko underwent surgery in New York Sunday night.

Broncos 24, 49ers 21

An 18-yard field goal by Rich Karlis on the final play of the game lifted Denver past San Francisco, the defending Super Bowl champions who are 0-2.

Former 49er quarterback Steve DeBerg came off the bench to throw two touchdown passes, the last one knotting the score 21-21. Then safety Dennis Smith intercepted a 49er pass to set up Karlis' winning kick.

Dolphins 24, Colts 20

Running back Tommy Vigorito raced 33 yards for a touchdown and Uwe von Schamann booted a 29-yard field goal to lead Miami over Baltimore. Placekicker Mike Wood led the Colts as he booted two field goals and passed for a touchdown after picking up a fumbled snap from center.

The triumph was the Dolphins' ninth in their last 10 meetings with the Colts.

Quarterback clubs to meet Tuesday

The Big Spring High and Coahoma High Quarterback Clubs have set Tuesday night meetings.

It's "Meet the Steers Night" for Big Spring as coaches, players and fans meet at 7:30 in the BSHS cafeteria. Varsity players will be introduced and will in turn introduce their parents. Film of Friday's 10-0 win over Levelland and a scouting reports on

Rec football meets

Team representatives and persons interested in the Big Spring fall industrial football league will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

BSHS honors team

Linebackers George Bancroft and Emmitt Barte share the Top Steer Award this week which honors the top Big Spring defensive player of the week.

Barte replaced injured starter Danny Stephen for the game and helped the Steers record their first shutout since 1977.

Other award winners were Jay Pirkle, both Hawk and Golden Spike Awards, and Carl Green, Bullett.

College biggies win big, big

For a change, college football's Top Twenty does not resemble a disaster area this week.

The only ranked teams to stumble were 10th-ranked Michigan — at least the Wolverines had the decency to lose to another member of the elite, bowing to No. 20 Notre Dame 23-17 — and 16th-ranked Clemson, which settled for a 17-17 standoff with Boston College.

Fifth-ranked Florida and No. 7 Georgia were idle and the only other Top Twenty team to win by less than a touchdown was No. 17 West Virginia, which held on to nip Maryland 19-18 when a two-point conversion pass with 1:38 left was overthrown.

But the weekend spotlight — or arlight, if you will — shone on Notre Dame.

Playing the first night game in the 53-year history of Notre Dame Stadium, the Fighting Irish began to erase the memory of last year's 5-6 disaster — the school's first losing mark in 18 years — with an impressive showing against Michigan.

Larry Moriarty rushed for 116 yards, including a 24-yard touchdown; Blair Kiel completed 15 of 22 passes for 141 yards, senior Mike Johnston kicked the first three field goals of his college career and Notre Dame's offensive line dominated Michigan's defenders while the Irish defense held the Wolverines' ground game to 41 yards.

While the Irish were putting the clamps on Michigan, defense also was the name of the game for No. 1-rated Washington, which held Arizona to 19 yards on the ground and beat the Wildcats 23-13 to celebrate its first week ever at the top of The Associated Press ratings.

"I thought our defense did a super job," Coach Don James said after two first-half fumble recoveries by linebacker Mark Stewart set up a pair of scoring passes by Steve Pelluer and the Huskies held Arizona to two field goals until a 50-yard touchdown pass play with three seconds remaining.

Elsewhere, runner-up Pitt, which slipped from No. 1 to No. 2 last week, made a bid to regain the top spot with a 37-17 victory over Florida State, the second half of which was played in a driving rain.

Third-ranked Nebraska warmed up for next week's visit to No. 8 Penn State with a record-setting 68-0 slaughter of New Mexico State, while the Nittany Lions hammered Rutgers 49-14. Rounding out the Top Ten, fourth-ranked Alabama trimmed Mississippi 42-14, No. 6 Southern Methodist downed Texas-El Paso 31-10 and ninth-rated Arkansas turned back Navy 29-17.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 North Carolina trounced Vanderbilt 34-10, No. 12 Ohio State beat Michigan State 31-10, No. 13 Arizona State defeated Houston 24-10, No. 14 UCLA mauled Wisconsin 51-26, No. 15 Miami shaded Virginia Tech 14-8 despite a shoulder injury that ended quarterback Jim Kelly's college career, No. 17 West Virginia edged Maryland 19-18, No. 18 Texas turned back Utah 21-12 and No. 19 Southern California whipped Indiana 28-7.

A torrential downpour hit Tallahassee, Fla., as the second half began with Pitt and Florida State tied at 17. The Panthers broke the tie when Florida State punter Kelly Lowrey fumbled the snap and then kicked the ball off the back of one of his blockers. Pitt's Art Lowery returned it 5 yards for a touchdown and Dan Marino added scoring pitches of 16 yards to Julius Dawkins and 3 to John Brown.

Nebraska set major college records by piling up 43 first downs and 883 total yards — the Cornhuskers rushed for 667 — against outmanned New Mexico State. Mike Rozier, who didn't play in the second half, carried 14 times for 149 yards and three touchdowns.

Walter Lewis fired TD passes of 80 yards to Jesse Bewdross and 26 to Jay Trojan and scored on a 16-yard run, while backup fullback Craig Turner scored three times as Alabama clobbered Ole Miss. Mississippi Coach Steve Sloan, who played and coached at Alabama, called this year's edition "the best Alabama team I have ever seen."

Eric Dickerson ran for 163 yards, including an 80-yard TD on the game's second play, and became SMU's all-time rushing leader with 3,169 as the Mustangs hammered UTEP.

Penn State's Todd Blackledge is in a rut — he can't do anything but throw four touchdown passes week after week. Blackledge did just that for the third game in a row, throwing 22 yards to Curt Warner, 10 to Gregg Garrity, 8 to Mike McCloskey and 7 to Kenny Jackson as the Nittany Lions crushed Rutgers. Mark Robinson started the scoring with a 92-yard punt return.

Tom Jones scored on a 1-yard run and passed 2 yards to Mark Mistler for another score as Arkansas held off stubborn Navy.

North Carolina's Kelvin Bryant sprained an ankle so reserve tailback Ethan Horton rushed for 201 yards and scored twice, once on a pass from Rod Elkins, to lead the Tar Heels over Vanderbilt. A 48-yard pass from Elkins to Victor Harrison snapped a 10-10 tie early in the third quarter.

Vaughn Broadnax barreled across from 3 yards out with 10 minutes left to break a 10-10 tie and Tim Spencer and Kelvin Lindsey ran for insurance tallies as Ohio State beat Michigan State.

Arizona State's defense set up three first-half scores with two fumble recoveries and a blocked punt to help the Sun Devils beat Houston. UCLA buried Wisconsin as Tom Ramsey passed for 260 yards and two TDs and scored a pair.

"HE SAYS HE'S PUMPIN' IRON... BUT I DON'T SEE ANYTHING COMIN' OUT."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"That's not a REAL sitter. It's our grandma. She LIKES to take care of us."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPT. 21, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you are under fine aspects and can make beneficial plans for the days ahead. Make whatever changes necessary to attain your goals. Use modern methods.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can advance more readily if you consult higher-ups for the information you need. Accept an invitation and have fun.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some higher-ups can give the support you need in a new project. Strive for greater efficiency in regular routines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good time to contact an influential person which could be profitable. Be sure to handle money problems wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be certain to keep promises made to others. Come to a better accord with the one you love. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show a more cooperative spirit with associates and listen to what they have to suggest before stating your own views.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to coordinate your efforts more intelligently with co-workers and get excellent results. Improve your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show your talents to the right people. Engage in amusement activities during your spare time and relieve tensions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Adopt a different attitude at home and establish more harmony there. Don't neglect important business matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can now make progress in your line of endeavor today by being more active and more sure of yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may have to make some changes if you want to improve your monetary standing. Use common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) One who does not agree with you in a business matter has to be won over before you get the results you want.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan what you should do to make your environment more charming. A new project you have in mind needs to be studied.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need special guidance and much education to be successful. There's a strong need for the company of others in order to express self fully. Teach to listen to what others have to say before taking any action.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Rookies rope Rangers

Brewers 14, Yankees 1

Paul Molitor drilled a three-run homer and Gorman Thomas added a two-run shot as Milwaukee tied a team record by scoring nine runs in the eighth inning, and sent New York to its eighth straight defeat, the team's longest losing streak since 1973. The victory, Milwaukee's fifth in a row, kept the Brewers two games ahead of Baltimore in the AL East.

Robin Yount added a two-run triple to back Don Sutton, 2-1, who pitched eight strong innings.

Orioles 4, Indians 2

Rich Dauer's two-out homer in the bottom of the 10th inning capped "Thanks Earl Day" in Baltimore.

The pregame festivities honored Orioles Manager Earl Weaver, who will retire at the end of this season. Weaver's No. 4 uniform was retired and the feisty manager even got a gift from AL President Lee MacPhail on behalf of AL umpires.

Once the game began, Mike Flanagan, 15-10, went the entire way for his seventh straight victory and 100th career triumph.

White Sox 8, A's 3

Greg Luzinski drove in five runs and Steve Kemp knocked in three to highlight Chicago's victory. Luzinski's big blow was a three-run double while Kemp had a two-run homer.

Jerry Koosman, the 38-year-old left-hander, upped his record to 10-6 with his fourth straight triumph.

Red Sox 6, Tigers 4

Carney Lansford's first career grand slam and Reid Nichols' two-run homer paced Boston.

The Tigers took a 1-0 on Lance Parrish's 29th homer in the fourth and held it until Nichols' homer in the seventh and Lansford's slam in the eighth.

Boston starter John Tudor, 12-10, struck out a career-high 11 in 7-3 innings.

Angels 5, Blue Jays 1

While the Royals hope for strong pitching, the Angels got it Sunday as Bruce Kison tossed a four-hitter in defeating Toronto.

Two wild pitches, a fly ball that got lost in the sun and fell for a triple and a two-run throwing error hurt

Pirates 8, Phillies 1

Manny Sarmiento pitched a six-hitter and drove in two runs as Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia. Sarmiento, 8-4, struck out five and walked one en route to his fourth complete game.

Mike Essler led the Pirate offense with a two-run homer, his 15th, off loser Mike Krukow, 12-11.

Braves 6, Reds 1

Rafael Ramirez, Claudell Washington and Jerry Royster drove in two runs apiece to pace Atlanta over Cincinnati. Ramirez singled to drive in the go-ahead run in the second inning, when the Braves scored four times off Bruce Berenyi, 8-18. Washington's two-run double capped the inning.

Pascual Perez, 2-4, relieved Rick Mahler in the third inning and finished up, surrendering two hits over the last 62-3 innings.

Cubs 7, Expos 5

Pinch-hitter Leon Durham slammed a two-run homer with one out in the eighth to boost Chicago over Montreal for a sweep of their three-game series.

Jody Davis led off the eighth with a single off reliever Bryn Smith, 2-2. One out later, Durham, batting for reliever Dick Tidrow, 8-3, connected for his 22nd homer.

Giants 4, Padres 3

Tom O'Malley's run-scoring single with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning lifted San Francisco over San Diego.

Reliever Al Holland, 6-3, was the winner, holding the Padres hitless over the last three innings.

Cardinals 3, Mets 1

With 33 saves, Bruce Sutter has been just about doing it all for the St. Louis Cardinals this year.

But he hasn't been doing everything, as witness the work of Doug Bair, a lower-profile reliever who has saved eight games for St. Louis this season.

On Sunday, Bair's standout work clinched the Cardinals' 3-1 decision over the New York Mets.

The streaking Cardinals, who have won seven in a row, now lead the National League East by 4½ games over second-place Philadelphia, which dropped an 8-1 decision to Pittsburgh.

Stuper, 8-6, shut out New York on four hits over the first six innings. After the Mets scored in the seventh, Bair came on to shut the door.

The Cardinals scored all they

Twins 9, Royals 4

Now the battle of the American League West begins.

The California Angels, who won Sunday, and the Kansas City Royals, who lost, are tied for first place. Each team has just 13 games left. And tonight, the Royals and Angels open a three-game series in California.

Who's going to win?

"I feel that we are exactly where we wanted to be at this point of the race," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser after Minnesota completed a three-game sweep of the Royals with a 9-4 victory. "We're going into California and we've got our three best pitchers going for us."

California Manager Gene Mauch is taking a different approach.

"I don't look at Kansas City as a series," said Mauch, whose Angels topped the Toronto Blue Jays 5-1. "I think of it as one game at a time."

Angels 5, Blue Jays 1

Run-scoring singles by Zisk and Gary Gray and an RBI grounder by Bruce Bochte accounted for three runs before Comer tried to slip a fastball by Mercado with the bases loaded. His hit marks one of the most optimistic starts since San Fran-

LA rallies past Astros

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Houston Astros did the Los Angeles Dodgers a large favor last week by winning three straight games from Atlanta, knocking the Braves out of the top spot in the National League West.

And tonight at the Astrodome, the Astros go against the Braves again in the start of a critical three-game series.

The Braves trail the Dodgers by 2½ games after the events of Sunday when, for a time, it appeared Atlanta would slash a game off Los Angeles' lead.

Atlanta had already won its game in Cincinnati, and the Dodgers were losing again to Houston. They were down to their last out, in fact.

Then, dramatically, Pedro Guerrero slashed a bases-loaded double to left-center in the bottom of the 10th inning, the tying and winning runs raced home and the Dodgers pulled out another one, beating the Astros, 5-4.

So, instead of having their lead trimmed to 1½ games, the Dodgers cling to a 2½ game advantage heading into the final two weeks of the season. Los Angeles has 12 games left, Atlanta has 13 remaining.

The Dodgers' latest victory was a stunning one. After being blanked the night before, they were trailing again, 3-0, when Ron Cey sent a charge through the near-capacity crowd of 48,110 with a three-run homer in the sixth, a whistling liner that crashed into the left field pavilion.

Then, when the Astros pushed across a run in the top of the 10th, it appeared the Dodgers were about to squander another strong pitching job by Fernando Valenzuela.

In the bottom of the 10th, trailing, 4-3, the Dodgers got a runner on first, but there were two outs, when Ken Landreaux singled to right off reliever Frank LaCorte, 1-5. That brought Steve Garvey to the plate, and he walked, only the ninth time he's walked all season (other than eight intentional passes).

The Astros brought on Bert Roberge, a noted fork ball pitcher, to work to Guerrero, who is having his

Haas suddenly wins tourney

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jay Haas scored an unexpected victory in the Hall of Fame Classic, but faces the longest wait in the history of golf to defend his title — 22 years.

Haas, 28, turned back stubborn John Adams with a routine par on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff for the title — the fourth of his career — in the Hall of Fame Classic Sunday.

The lame-duck tournament drops off the PGA Tour next year. It will be replaced on the schedule by a $1 million event in Las Vegas. And the Hall of Fame and Pinehurst will host, in lieu of a regular tour event, a seniors' tournament. Haas won't be eligible for play on the over-50 circuit until the year 2004.

The victory, however, came as a pleasant surprise to Haas, a nephew of former Masters champion Bob Goaly, and will serve to brighten up his off-season.

"I hadn't played much in the last couple of months, and what I had played, I hadn't played very well," said Haas, who came out of the pack with a no-bogey, 5-under-par 66 in the

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

Try to use energy intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.

This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation.

'Hill Street Blues' tops Emmys with 6 awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's "Hill Street Blues" dominated the Emmys for a second year. Ingrid Bergman won an award for her final performance, and many of television's top honors went to shows that were canceled or had close calls.

Miss Bergman, who died of cancer Aug. 29, was named best lead actress in a limited series or special at the 34th Television Academy awards Sunday night for her portrayal of Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir in "A Woman Called Golda." The syndicated miniseries was also named best drama special.

"Hill Street Blues," the realistic police drama that combines violence and comedy, won six Emmys, two short of last year's record number. The win gave a much-needed lift to NBC, long stuck in the ratings cellar, and boosted the network to the top with 20 Emmys.

ABC was next with 18 awards, CBS got 12, PBS won five, and three went to syndicated shows.

A disappointment for NBC was "Fame," the critically acclaimed but low-rated show about aspiring performers that the network hoped would gain attention the way "Hill Street Blues" did last year. The show won only one award Sunday night — to Harry Harris for directing — to add to the four awards it picked up in the earlier-announced technical and craft categories.

"Barney Miller," axed by ABC after eight years, was named best comedy series.

Michael Learned won as best lead actress in a drama series for her portrayal of Mary Benjamin in "Nurse," canceled by CBS.

Nancy Marchand, the aristocratic publisher Mrs. Pyncheon on "Lou Grant," was named best supporting actress in a drama series for the fourth time. That show also was dropped by CBS amid sagging ratings and controversy over the politics of star Ed Asner.

"I was told that the theme of this show is one big happy family," Miss Marchand said, "but I represent either the prodigal son or an abandoned child."

"Taxi," winner of two acting Emmys, was canceled by ABC after last season — but NBC snatched it up and the offbeat comedy will continue. Awards went to Carol Kane, best lead actress in a comedy series for a one-shot appearance as Latka's immigrant bride, and Christopher Lloyd, best supporting actor as the spaced-out Rev. Jim Ignatowski.

"M-A-S-H" wasn't canceled but it will leave the air after 10 years this fall on CBS — the producers have decided to quit while ahead. Star Alan Alda won his third Emmy for outstanding comedy actor as Hawkeye Pierce, and Loretta Swit won her second best supporting actress award as Maj. Margaret Houlihan.

Miss Bergman's award was accepted by one of her daughters, television newswoman Pia Lindstrom, who said, "I really do feel she deserves this award, although the competition was strong. I think she also deserves the award for her performance off-camera. She displayed the same dignity and courage that Golda did."

The three-hour award show at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium ended with an emotional tribute to Kate Smith, one of TV's earliest variety stars. She was pushed onto stage in a wheelchair by Bob Hope, joining the audience in singing "God Bless America," a song she made famous, and wiping a tear from her eye at the end.

"Hill Street Blues" was named best drama series for the second year, and repeat Emmys went to Daniel J. Travanti as best lead actor in a series for his role as Frank Furillo, the patient precinct captain, and to Michael Conrad as best supporting actor, for his portrayal of Sgt. Phil Esterhaus, a man with an eye for the ladies. The show also won awards for writing, film editing and sound mixing.

"This means more to me than last year's," said Travanti. "I don't believe in 'good,' 'better,' or 'best.' I do believe in magic. This is almost too much but I'll take it."

NBC's "Marco Polo," the opulent eight-hour miniseries that retraced the route of the 13th Century Venetian merchant from Europe to China, was selected best limited series.

"Night of 100 Stars," a dazzling spectacular staged at Radio City Music Hall for ABC, was best variety, music or comedy program.

Mickey Rooney was named best lead actor in a limited series or special for his performance in CBS' "Bill" as a spunky retarded man fighting for a normal life.

Penny Fuller's role as the British actress who befriended the deformed "Elephant Man" on ABC was named best supporting actress in a limited series or special. Sir Laurence Olivier won his fourth Emmy as the aristocratic Lord Marchmain in "Brideshead Revisited" on PBS.

JUBILANT WINNERS — Loretta Swit and Alan Alda shared victory Sunday night in the Emmy Awards ceremony. Ms. Swit won an Emmy for outstanding supporting actress in a comedy series while Alda received his for outstanding lead in a comedy series.

New TV series begin to appear

NEW YORK (AP) — With all the hubbub over the two TV movies about the royal romance between Charles and Diana, a couple of family shows slipped by: "The Powers of Matthew Star" last Friday and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" Sunday.

"Matthew Star" starts with the bright lights and sounds of "E.T.," but it really borrows creatively from that original alien and friend to mankind, Superman. Young Peter Barton, he of the dreamy eyes and the Pepsodent smile, has Superboy's black hair and broad shoulders, but he's not allergic to Kryptonite. Barton plays Matthew Star, who came to Earth from his native Quadris after tyrants killed his royal parents.

The destiny of this prince is to harness his powers of telepathy (reading minds) and telekinesis (willing objects to move) and regain his throne. While on this backward planet, he wants to lead a regular teen-age life, go to school and chase girls.

Matthew also must deal with an Air Force general, who knows his secret, and intergalactic enemies. Kids won't have any trouble spotting the bad eggs from Quadris. They sneer a lot.

Walt Shepherd, another Quadrisman, is here to protect him from the world's dangers. He saved Matthew's life by bringing him to America. It's certainly a different role for Louis Gossett Jr. after his forceful performance as the drill instructor in "An Officer and a Gentleman."

Gossett remains the thorough professional, relating his serious outer space story to the general without laughing, or making us laugh. And he even gets to remind viewers that there's more to life than drugs, computers and video games.

Quadris' technology may be 100 years ahead, but pills haven't replaced food, he says. "We don't want to lose the romance of living."

In Friday's episode, Matthew used his powers to prevent a school bus crash. That respectful approach to vehicular violence contrasted with the way timeslot competitor, "The Dukes of Hazzard," treats careening cars.

For that reason alone, "Matthew Star" is better entertainment for children. Although the show is limited drama, it does have warmth and Gossett.

"Matthew Star" was to have been a Sunday sacrifice to "60 Minutes" last year, but Barton suffered third-degree burns from an explosion on the set, delaying the series.

CBS also jumped the gun on the Sept. 27 new season with "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers." In the future, it will be a Wednesday night series.

This is a rare hybrid, a musical-western. It's based very loosely on the 1954 movie that came to Broadway this year, but quickly fell in a pothole. The idea of characters breaking into song doesn't work on the ranch, even if songwriter Jimmy Webb is involved.

Webb's "Galveston" was recognizable in several numbers, but the lyrics weren't memorable: "Hannah your a married lady, and I'm your man," la la la. One foot-stomping square dance number did raise the energy level a bit.

Contest brings culture to Indy 500 city

INDANAPOLIS (AP) — For Mihaela Martin, the debut of the International Violin Competition of Indianapolis meant a gold medal, cash and a concert at Carnegie Hall. To civic leaders, it added a new feature to the city's face — culture.

"It was as if Indianapolis had turned from the Indianapolis 500 to the 1,000 fiddlers," said Josef Gingold, an Indiana University music professor who presided over the 11-member jury for the event. "If this isn't an international competition, I don't know what is."

"It's going to be one of the most important competitions in the world," said Ms. Martin, a 23-year-old native of Bucharest, Romania who was awarded the competition's top prize Sunday. "It's important for me because we can go on and build a career."

The top prize carries with it a $10,000 award, a medal and a series of concert bookings in North America and Europe, including Carnegie Hall in New York City and a tour with the BBC Symphony Orchestra of London. Ms. Martin also will make a violin recording for Vox Cum Laude records.

Ms. Martin also captured special awards for her performance of the Paganini Caprice No. 11 and for her performance of an original work composed for the competition by Juonas Kokkoken of Finland.

Ms. Martin was one of six finalists who performed to packed houses over the weekend. Second prize went to Idr Kavafian, 29, of New York City; third prize to Yuval Yaron, 29, of Israel.

People's Court: Lights, camera... justice?

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that Superman has gone to the movies, Robert Young has been canned by Sanka and Lou Grant's subscription has run out, who's left on television to defend truth, justice and the American way?

A case can be made for the honorable Judge Joseph A. Wapner, who dispenses televised justice on "The People's Court," while eager adversaries tangle with truth and assert the American right to air one's dirty linen in public.

"My gut feeling is that everybody's ambition is to be seen, and this is an opportunity to be star for a day," says Wapner, 62, a retired California judge. "What we have is real people who prove that truth is stranger than fiction. We'll never run out of cases. People will always have problems."

"People's Court," beginning its second year, culls through the voluminous pending small claims files in California and offers litigants a chance to tell it to the judge... on TV.

The producers seek articulate, attractive adversaries. They can dress any way they want, but are told to avoid brown, which doesn't photograph well.

The litigants agree to accept Wapner's ruling, and the show pays the judicial award, plus appearance money. Essentially, there's no risk, only the possibility of national humiliation.

"At first the lack of liability and the chance of frivolous complaints concerned me," says Wapner. "But how many people get judgments in the courts and can't collect?"

The popularity of "People's Court" attests to America's affinity for eavesdropping on the bickering couple next door. When the case is good or the characters interesting, the result is lively, legitimate theater.

Like "The Case of The Birthday Stripper," the defendant hired a stripper for her boyfriend's birthday. The stripper sued because she wasn't paid. Among other things, the defendant contended that the plaintiff wore a bikini bottom rather than a skimpy G-string. She offered photos of her boyfriend and the stripper. "He looks all smiles to me," said Wapner.

Judgment for the plaintiff.

It's this common-sense justice that has made Wapner a national celebrity, with a Hollywood status symbol: his own fan club. The show is syndicated in 131 markets, and Wapner even gets to dispense dubbed justice in Thailand and Malaysia.

The silver-haired veteran of 20 years on the bench looks like the judge central casting would have sent over. He grew up in Hollywood and dated Lana Turner. His father was a practicing attorney on TV's "Divorce Court."

But Wapner doesn't primp or clown for the cameras. "I'm not an entertainer. I'm a judge, pure and simple," he says. "What you see is what you get. There's absolutely no rehearsal, no script. If the jokes are no good, it's my fault. If the decision is no good, it's my fault."

"What I like are good, meaty legal situations where I can explain points of law," he says. "When I was sitting in small claims court, I never could explain my decisions. We just sent postcards with the decision to eliminate the possibility of physical violence."

In one case last week, the defendant in a fender-bender brought Polaroid pictures that were too dark to be discernible. "If he wanted to prove his point, why didn't he take more pictures?" Another victory for the plaintiff.

Which goes a little way toward evening TV's legal scorecard after years of defendant invincibility on "Perry Mason."

"That show wasn't real," says Wapner. "As you can see, courts aren't run that way."
