

Runaway stocks rally

Big surge confounds Wall Street analysts

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock and bond prices soared and interest rates dropped sharply in the nation's financial markets this morning, continuing the runaway rally that has confounded many Wall Street experts.

In the first half-hour of trading on the New York Stock Exchange, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 8.09 points to 952.35.

On Wednesday, the widely recognized indicator of stock price trends scored its second-best gain ever, gaining 37.07 points to 944.26. That nearly matched the record rise of 38.81 points on Aug. 17.

Trading was extremely heavy at the New York Stock Exchange. Numerous stocks were delayed in opening because of the volume of orders reaching the exchange floor.

In the bond market, meanwhile, prices of long-term government bonds jumped about $20 for every $1,000 in face value in early trading today, reflecting a sharp drop in prevailing levels of interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average has now risen more than 22 percent in less than two months. Buyers have continued to clamor after stocks despite evidence in many government statistics that the economy, rather than recovering, might have actually grown even weaker in August and September.

On Friday, the Labor Department is due to report on the unemployment rate for last month. Many private economists expect the data to show 10 percent of the work force out of jobs for the first time in more than 40 years.

Few analysts professed to have a full, ready explanation for the paradox. Some skeptics insisted the rally made no sense whatsoever, except as the prelude to a collapse — like the "false" rally in late 1929 as the Depression of the 1930s was approaching.

Most agreed there was an element of unreality to a day like Wednesday when the prices of Eastman Kodak Co., Teledyne Inc., Texas Instruments Inc. and Lockheed Corp. all rose at least $7 a share.

"This is a buying panic by investing institutions who are rushing into blue chip stocks because they expect lower interest rates," said Charles Jensen, an analyst at the firm of MKI Securities Inc.

Some interest rates, in fact, did not decline much or at all Wednesday. But one important one, the rate on federal funds — short-term loans between banks — dropped to 8 percent from 10.25 percent Tuesday. The fed funds rate is frequently more volatile than other interest rates.

Whether rightly or wrongly, some Wall Street professionals evidently interpreted the drop in the fed funds rate as a signal that the Federal Reserve had decided to encourage interest rates to keep falling.

Separately, Richard Pratt, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, declared that legislation recently passed by Congress to help banks and savings and loans could lead to mortgage interest rates as low as 12 percent in a few months. Home mortgage rates now average about 15 percent.

If Pratt's prediction is realized, it could provide a strong stimulus to the housing industry, said David Blitzer, chief economist at the investment advisory firm of Standard & Poor's Corp. "Interest rates are behaving surprisingly well," Blitzer said.

To some bearish observers, falling interest rates are a symptom of a sick economy, rather than any cause for rejoicing.

SORE POINT — The horned toad isn't getting his fair share of nice things out of life these days. In fact, the little critter, who hopped into a solid spot in Texas folklore, may be verging on extinction.

Horn toad blues

Lil feller's bristling over his fate

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Texas is losing one of its ugliest natural resources.

Kiss — if you dare — horned toads goodbye. Herpetologists say phrynosoma cornutum is on the wane. Thanks to professional collectors, lizard-loving little boys, two-ton automobiles, spreading cities and possible chemical contamination, horned toads are no longer as plentiful as they once were.

As recently as 10 years ago, backyards in San Antonio were havens for the little round lizards. No grade school show-and-tell session was complete without them.

But like cheap gasoline, gold and marital longevity, they are becoming harder to find. Horned toads have even been placed on the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife's protected species list.

Unfortunately, experts say, little can be done to return them to their former glory. In fact, one herpetologist went so far as to declare the urban horned toad "doomed."

Their squat, ugly, spine-studded appearance has caused them to be called horned toads, horny toads or horny frogs.

They are actually horned lizards, tiny descendants of such armored dinosaurs as the stegosaurus and triceratops.

Joseph Laszlo, reptile supervisor at the San Antonio Zoo, said the lizards are so delicate even the zoo does not try to keep a live one on display.

"You just look at them and they die," he said. Laszlo explained horned toads need very high temperatures to exist. As with most reptiles, they are incapable of controlling their own body heat.

That unfortunate biological fact leads them onto the hot black asphalt of Texas highways, Laszlo added, where they are locked in life-and-death battles with steel-belted radials.

Horned toads seldom win. They are relatively slow, he said, and are easy prey for children fascinated with their prehistoric appearance.

When captured by youngsters, they are often taken into an environment considerably cooler than what they require to survive, Laszlo said. "They also eat a lot. You would need to supply them constantly with ants," which constitute most of their diet, he said.

To make matters worse, they are finicky. Horned toads only eat certain types of ants.

But the biggest problem, Laszlo believes, lies with man's use of insecticides.

"Something, somehow is disrupting their environment," he said. "They are not running out of ants, but insecticides are somehow harming them."

Dr. Joseph Collins, a renowned herpetologist with the University of Kansas at Lawrence, disagrees. He blamed commercial animal collectors, not chemicals.

"Chemicals can't get to them," Collins said. "Chemical runoff primarily affects aquatic animals. Horned toads get their moisture by licking dew off surrounding plants."

"By the time chemical poisoning gets around to horned toads, we're all in trouble."

They are "holding their own" in the more desert areas of the Southwest, Collins said, but in states like Texas, which are undergoing explosive urbanization, "I'm afraid the little guys are doomed."

Bruce Thompson, a program leader assigned to "non-game" wildlife, said his agency has the power to cite anyone caught with a horned toad. "They can be fined between $100 and $200 for a first conviction," he said. The department issues permits to capture them for scientific purposes only.

County clerk sets record

Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray said yesterday her office collected a record $124,228.87 in fees for the fiscal year of 1982.

The fees are collected in approximately 20 different transactions made in the county clerk's office, Mrs. Ray said.

The record amount topped 1981's $108,406, she added. The areas bringing in the most money for the county were recording, $51,454.82; certified copies, $25,516.15 and mental health fees, $15,760.

Mrs. Ray also reported the yearly total from the county court. Fees collected in misdemeanor fines, probate cases, mental health cases and civil fees totaled $109,979.47, she said. The grand total recorded by the county clerk's office is $234,208.34.

No link in cyanide deaths

By Associated Press

Authorities believe there "is not any connection" between the cyanide death last April of a man in Philadelphia and seven deaths from cyanide-contaminated Tylenol in the Chicago area, Chicago's police superintendent said today.

Superintendent Richard Brzezczek said authorities made that conclusion on the basis of the latest report regarding the death of a University of Pennsylvania graduate student.

"According to the latest reports we got this morning, there is not any connection between the two," he said in a telephone interview.

Philadelphia police had again interviewed an associate of William Pascual, whose April 3 death had been ruled a suicide, Brzezczek said. He said authorities there concluded "there was no tie" to the continuing investigation into the seven deaths in the Chicago-area of people who had taken contaminated Extra-Strength Tylenol.

Earlier, Brzezczek said authorities investigating the deaths in the Chicago area wanted to question a man who "popped up" in connection with the death of William Pascual, and Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner said the case offered "promise" for possible leads the deaths in the Chicago area last week.

Pascual's death originally was ruled a suicide, but Philadelphia police reopened the case after the Chicago poisonings and discovered that a bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules found in his apartment contained cyanide that was not detected in the initial investigation.

The Chicago Sun-Times today quoted unidentified police

TYLENOL — Investigators say the death of a Philadelphia man isn't linked to seven Chicago people who died from cyanide-tainted Tylenol.

Stanton station robbed; local man safe

STANTON — Two white males robbed the Fina Truck Stop and Cafe Service Station on Interstate 20 of more than $400 at gunpoint last night, said Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders.

Saunders said the lone attendant on duty last night, Robert Neighbors, a 48-year-old Big Spring man, said the two pulled up about 10:20 p.m. in a blue 1973 Chevrolet station wagon with a luggage rack on top.

Saunders said Neighbors described one man as being about 30 years old, 5-foot-7-inches, 165 pounds, with dark hair and a dark beard. He was wearing blue jeans and a black-and-red flannel shirt, Saunders said. The other man was described by Neighbors as approximately 24 years old, 6-foot-1-inch and 150 pounds, also wearing blue jeans.

"The older one pulled out a pistol and pointed it right at his (Neighbors') head," Saunders said. "He said, 'Don't touch any switches or buttons or I'll blow your head off.'"

Saunders said Neighbors was instructed to open the cash register, walk into a small office in the building and shut the door.

The two men took the money from the register and left, Saunders said, and Neighbors remained in the office for "four to five minutes, then went to the phone and called the operator, who called me."

Saunders and his men sent out a state-wide bulletin and erected roadblocks immediately, he said, but as of this morning, neither the men nor the car had been located.

Saunders said the robbery was apparently not related to a robbery at the Exxon Service Station across Interstate 20 two weeks ago.

Hinckley won't try assassinating anyone again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. says if he is ever released from the mental hospital where he is confined, he wouldn't attempt another assassination.

In a four-page letter to CBS News released Wednesday, Hinckley said he will be ready to leave the institution "just as soon as I have a little more love in my heart and a little less Jodie Foster on the brain."

Hinckley was committed indefinitely to St. Elizabeths Hospital here last June after a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity in the shooting of President Reagan and three other men on March 30, 1981.

Hinckley's letter also said he believed his assault taught the Secret Service a valuable lesson.

"Because of me, the Secret Service is much better these days. I showed them how utterly simple it is to attack the president. I couldn't believe how easy it was to get so close. I kept waiting for something or someone to interfere with me but no one gave me a second glance. And I thought to myself my whole life has been leading to this moment. I can't back out and cheat destiny."

Police Beat

Toddler assault reported

Police said they arrested a Big Spring man yesterday in connection with the aggravated assault of a two-year-old boy on the east side of town.

The man, 57-year-old John D. Steelman of Motel 9 room one, was arrested about 4:30 p.m. on suspicion of aggravated assault.

Police arrested the suspect after the boy's mother, Diana Fierro of 307 State, told police a man she didn't know came to her house and told her son he would give him "some money" if the boy would "stick his hand out of the window," police reports said. When the boy reached out the window, the man tried to cut the boy with a knife, police reports said.

Police reports also showed the following:

• Two men were arrested yesterday in connection with the theft of a microwave oven from Baptist Temple Church, 400 11th Place. The men, 27-year-old James St. Clair, also known as Norris Jeffery of 1515-B Wood, and 20-year-old Michael Higdon of Desert Hills Trailer Park 311, later were released pending further investigation of the case.

The men were arrested after Cheryl Poitevint of 3623 Calvin told police a black male came by the church to ask for money between 2:30 and 3 p.m. yesterday. Ms. Poitevint said he left the area on her request and she later found the $300 oven was missing. Police said they found the oven in the men's possession.

• Mary Francis Hooper, 41, of 1611 State was arrested yesterday morning on suspicion of theft under $5 at Furr's Super Market, 900 11th Place. Ms. Hooper was released after paying a $40 cash bond.

• Norma Morrow of 1415 E. Sixth said a white female known to her stole a set of diamond wedding rings, a 14-karat diamond ring, clothing, luggage and keys worth about $3,000 from her residence about 10 a.m. Tuesday.

• Ann Weaver of 601 Washington told police today that two Hispanic males on a motorcycle pulled down the crepe paper designs she placed around the high school yesterday "as soon as she could get it up." Ms. Weaver had decorated the area with black and gold crepe paper for Friday's football team rally.

• Police answered a call from a man at 1612 Avion who said he shot a skunk that "charged" him. Police received four other calls about skunks sighted on the east and south sides of town near Young, Nolan and Parkway streets.

• A man and woman received minor injuries yesterday when the Yamaha motorcycle they were riding skidded on an oil and diesel spill near East FM 700 and Birdwell. Jeffrey E. and Cindy Prouse of 1905 Wasson were treated and released from local hospitals after the 4:25 p.m. accident. Prouse apparently lost control of the bike when it struck the oil slick. Police said a truck had spilled the oil and diesel combination on the west bound lane of E. FM 700.

• Sheriff's deputies arrested Mark Sitton, 32, of 1401 Sycamore, on a county warrant of issuance of bad checks. Sitton was arraigned before Heflin and released after posting a $750 bond.

Howard County sheriff's deputies say they arrested Judy Cook, 31, of 1107 E. 4th, in connection with a county warrant for issuance of bad checks. Ms. Cook was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin who set bond at $1,000. Records show she posted bond and was released.

• Sheriff's deputies arrested Gerriann Lawson, 27, of 2516 Fairchild, in connection with a county warrant for issuance of bad checks. Records show Ms. Lawson paid a fine of $26 in Peace Justice Bobby West's court and $92.19 in bad checks to the Hot Check Department.

• Sheriff's deputies say they arrested a juvenile in reference to a request from the juvenile probation office Tuesday afternoon.

• Martha Ann Vanderbilt, 17, of 1001 N.W. Fourth, posted a $1,000 bond to be released in connection with a theft charge. Bond was set by West.

Cyanide

sources as saying a search was being made in the Chicago area for an associate of Pascual, but authorities warned the investigation is still "raw."

The associate, described in newspaper and broadcast reports as a dental student at the University of Pennsylvania, drew attention after Philadelphia police received an anonymous call saying the dental student "knows something about it (the death)," the Chicago Tribune reported.

In an interview on the "Today" show, Brzezczek said "there is a gentleman that popped up" in the Philadelphia investigation last April "that we're interested in talking to."

Asked if there were any links between the Chicago and Philadelphia deaths, he replied, "The one link that could possibly be talked about is the fact that there's some indication that the person we want to talk to who's somewhere in the Philadelphia area may have some association with the city of Chicago."

Fahner, heading an investigation into the Chicago-area deaths from cyanide-tainted Extra-Strength Tylenol, said

Wednesday the Philadelphia development "offers promise ... in terms of a Chicago angle," but warned "caution is in order" in trying to link the two sets of events.

Brzezczek said authorities did not have a suspect "we can tie some evidence to" in the cyanide deaths.

Philadelphia police said Wednesday that preliminary tests at the time of Pascual's death from cyanide poisoning — ruled a suicide when a note mailed to his mother was found — showed nothing unusual in the Tylenol capsules found in a shoe at his apartment. But tests this week found some of the capsules contained cyanide, said police Chief Inspector Frank Seafid.

Pascual's widow, Kathleen Burkhalter, was quoted in the Philadelphia Inquirer today as saying she didn't believe her husband killed himself. "There was no motive," she said. "He was not depressed."

Tylenol capsules have been withdrawn from the market nationwide, although investigators say there is virtually no chance the contamination came during manufacturing.

Texas-made Tylenol cleared

AUSTIN (AP) — Federal and state officials say cyanide contamination in Tylenol capsules blamed for seven deaths in the Chicago area did not occur in a Texas plant that manufactures the drug.

Robert L. Henna, director of the food and drug division of the Texas Health Department, said officials have cleared the plant, located at Round Rock, about 30 miles north of Austin.

"I don't see any possible way it (cyanide) could have gotten into the capsules during the manufacturing process," Henna said Wednesday night.

Anthony J. Whitehead, an inspector with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said it would not be possible for an employee to contaminate the drug.

Whitehead said human hands never touch the capsules, which are filled, bottled and packed by machine. Huge quantities of the poison would be needed to add cyanide to the capsules through the machines, he said.

"From everything we could tell, there is no feature of the process that would allow for even the intentional contamination of capsules at the plant," Whitehead said.

Henna said he saw no need to examine death records to see if any cyanide-related deaths can be tied to the use of Tylenol.

Since the first deaths were reported last week in Chicago, state health department officials have been busy answering telephone inquiries, checking Tylenol capsules turned in by the public and investigating suspicious deaths, Henna said.

But Henna said none of the deaths have been connected with the drug.

A&M announces energy discovery

By Harte-Hanks News Service
Texas A&M University chemists have developed a system to economically separate hydrogen from water using the power of the sun — a breakthrough that could change the worldwide energy industry.

Dr. John O'Mara Bockris, director of A&M's Hydrogen Research Center, said the potential applications of the system are "immense."

Bockris has long predicted that scientists would eventually find a cheap way to produce hydrogen fuel from water.

The extracted hydrogen can be burned like gasoline in an automobile engine or like natural gas in a power plant, but it is pollution free. Burning it simply turns the gas back into water, which itself can be used again and again as a fuel source.

Bockris will meet today with reporters from across the nation to explain how two of his assistants at the center — both of whom came to A&M only a year ago — discovered a method of separating the gas from water at a rate that provides enough hydrogen to make the fuel price competitive with others.

Ed Walraven, an A&M spokesman, said the technology developed by Dr. Marek Szklarczyk and Dr. A.Q. Contractor, could be used to produce hydrogen that would cost as little as $1 for the equivalent of a gallon of gasoline.

But the same hydrogen fuel could be used to light, heat and air-condition whole cities by using it as a substitute for natural gas, fuel oil, coal and nuclear energy to operate electric power plants.

The gunmen escaped with the equivalent of $400,000 paid in exchange for hostages taken at the bank and another $80,000 seized from a bank safe blown open while the gunmen held police at bay for 15 hours.

Authorities resorted instead to widespread publication of a composite sketch of one of the gunmen and to playing a tape-recording of his voice over national television and radio.

Soviet, Chinese relations thawing

The conflict between the Soviet Union and China is still one of the most confusing and potentially dangerous on the foreign scene. Now there is question as to how the United States should play its role

The Soviets' overture to China to discuss improved relations between the two nations aroused the West's interest in a hurry. As the United States once held the "China Card" in its confrontations with the Soviets, China may play the Russia card. However beneficial an accord might be to Peking and Moscow, the two governments face ideological differences that keep them worlds apart.

BY CONTRAST, China's quarrels with the United States over arms sales to Taiwan and its disagreement with Britain over Hong Kong are pale. Since China's leaders received the proposal to meet with the U.S.S.R. from Soviet president Leonid Brezhnev, they have gone to great lengths to endorse the theory of better relations between the two countries. But at the same time they insist this is an idea whose time has not yet come.

The Chinese list four major obstacles to normal relations. They include the presence of Soviet troops in Mongolia, the buildup of Soviet forces along the Soviet-Chinese frontier, Moscow's support for Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia and the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang summed up by saying China wants to rebuild good relations with the Soviets but, in the same breath, called the Soviet Union the No. 1 threat to world peace. Still both sides have something to gain by dropping the enmity toward each other.

THE COST in money and manpower of the confrontation on the Soviet-Sino border detracts from their efforts to meet internal development and modernization goals. Closer ties with Peking would give the Soviets an opportunity to exploit tensions in the U.S.-China relationship over the issue of arms sales to Taiwan.

But even in that respect, the United States has an edge over the Soviets. Although the Chinese often complain about U.S. arrogance, it is never with the bitterness with which they accused the Soviets of trying to dominate China in the 1960s.

To the Chinese, the Soviet Union is an aggressive superpower, the United States a defensive superpower. This is typical of Chinese distinctions. In admitting that a high-level Russian delegation was coming to Peking for preliminary talks, the Chinese point out that, while they agreed to meet with the Soviets, they did not invite them.

Sad news

While sifting through bound copies of the Herald this week in search of sports information, I got a sinking feeling of desparation as I re-read the stories under the headlines.

The sports pages themselves haven't been so cheerful lately with the NFLPA strike usually making top headlines. But as bleak as life is for some people without pro football, it seems so trivial compared with all the other ills our state, our nation and our world are suffering these days.

How do you feel when you read stories like...

"CHICAGO — Mayor Jane Byrne banned the sale of all Tylenol in Chicago on Saturday and hundreds of frightened residents turned in bottles of the medicine to police stations as cyanide planted in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules claimed a seventh victim."

"NICOSIA, Cyprus — A bomb made of 330 pounds of TNT blew up in truck parked in Tehran's main square killing at least 60 people and wounding 700 in nearby hotels, restaurants and double-decker buses, Iran's state radio reported Saturday."

"NAPLES, Texas — An unemployed steelworker, enraged after an argument with his wife, killed her 5-year-old son and critically wounded three other young boys before turning a gun on himself, police say."

"HOUSTON — A federal judge has refused to set aside the Halloween execution of a Death Row inmate known as the "Candy Man," but said he could reconsider his decision. Ronald Clark O'Bryan has been ordered to die by injection on Oct. 31, exactly eight years after he poisoned his 8-year-old son with a cyanide-laced candy treat."

"HOUSTON — Two men have been charged in Arizona in connection with a threat to blow up a Gulf Oil Chemicals Co. refinery if the company did not pay extortionists several million dollars, the FBI said Saturday."

"WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — A prison guard went on a shooting rampage in two communities Saturday, killing seven children and six adults before surrendering to police who had surrounded him in a vacant house, officials said."

"A 'copycat' inspired by the cyanide-tainted drugs that killed seven people in Chicago may have been responsible for strychnine-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol found in a California drugstore, authorities said."

"BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Lebanese Army swept into a Palestinian refugee camp at dawn today and arrested dozens of people in the second such raid in West Beirut in two days, radio stations and military sources reported."

What is going on with us? It seems that no place on earth is safe from someone or a group of someones bent on abusing a civilized way of life. In the last two years, we've tried to gun down four people that were trying to preserve some sense in life — Anwar Sadat, John Lennon, Ronald Reagan and Pope John Paul II. Two of the four attempts were fatal (the anniversary of Sadat's assassination was Wednesday). Fortunately, the other two failed.

Now it seems the weapons are being turned in any direction and aimed at anyone. Regard for life has plummeted to an all-time minimum. Add this sad news to our economic woes, world hunger, human rights and struggle to avoid an all-out nuclear war and very few days are good days.

I guess we'll all forget about the grave situation we're falling into when the Texas-OU game starts, we take our quarters to the video arcade or make bets on who'll win the World Series. But we better pay attention to the crumbling way of life around us or nothing will be left to give thanks about when the holiday arrives.

Bailing out the farmers — still

When Agriculture Secretary John Block last week announced increased aid for grain farmers and reduced aid for dairy farmers, he evoked predictable responses from both groups. What he didn't evoke was the question other Americans should be asking: Why should the federal government provide so much help to farmers in the first place?

In the war against federal spending, American farmers qualify as conscientious objectors. Since President Reagan took office they have not merely held their own, but actually gained ground. Price-support levels have been raised for nearly every crop the government subsidizes — which is to say, nearly every crop. Federal spending on what is known in polite circles as "farm income stabilization" is about three percent higher in the 1983 budget than in 1981.

If you want an idea of Washington's priorities, compare the increases in subsidies to farmers with the Agriculture Department's other major program — food stamps. Spending next year on food stamps will amount to $9.5 billion, down 17 percent from 1981.

The higher price supports and other help are justified as a response to the recession and record harvests, which have put farmers in their worst straits in years. In fact, higher price supports will encourage more of the over-production that has driven prices to their current levels. And higher federal spending will do nothing to lower the interest rates that are squeezing debt-heavy farmers.

In any case, farmers are not the only people in economic trouble these days. So the only rationale for giving them special help is the biblical maxim: to those who have, even more will be given.

Long before the current hard times, farmers profited from an array of programs that make the Chrysler bailout look like a chapter out of Adam Smith. What other businessmen have their prices guaranteed by the federal government? What others can sell everything they produce to Washington if no one else will buy it at an acceptable price? What others get low-interest federal loans for everything from operating expenses to home buying and electrification?

This is not to say that farmers don't work hard, or that they don't provide essential commodities. But a lot of other Americans work just as hard and produce crucial goods — without all these privileges. So why should farmers get them?

Farm residents, contrary to myth, are not appreciably poorer than their city cousins. The original farm programs were inaugurated to help close a wide income gap between urban and rural Americans. In the 1930s, the typical farm family made only about a third as much as other American households. But over the last ten years, per capita farm income has amounted to 97 percent of the national average.

In 1980, the average farm household had an income of $23,622. Among families who rely mainly on farming for their income (which excludes part-timers and hobbyists), the average income was $34,000, about 50 percent more than the national median. With an average net worth of about $300,000, farmers also generally boast greater wealth than non-farmers.

You might expect the federal government to channel most of its assistance to small, struggling farmers. In fact the opposite is true. Commodity programs reward production: the bigger and wealthier the farmer, the more help he gets. Farmers with annual sales of $100,000 or more constitute only 12 percent of all farmers, but they get nearly a third of all direct government payments. Three out of every four farmers have sales of less than $40,000 a year, but they get only 38 percent of the federal cash.

In other words, farm programs benefit mainly the well-to-do. But that's not the worst of it. One purpose of the federal government's involvement in agriculture is to raise the price of food. And the burden of higher prices is heaviest on the poor, who have to spend an unusually large share of their income for necessities like food. The system makes for an odd sort of income redistribution.

Defenders portray these programs as a bulwark against the growing corporate incursion into agriculture. But only a tiny fraction of American farmland is owned by corporations, and most of these are small family corporations set up to avoid estate taxes. Most of the publicized ventures into farming by large companies have been abandoned as failures. Besides, farm programs which reward size are more likely to attract corporations than to repel them.

The truth is that agriculture, glorified as the last bastion of self-reliance, has been more heavily subsidized than any other sector of the economy. Congress apparently thinks past folly is the best guide to future policy: if some federal aid is good, more must be better. It makes more sense to ask if it isn't time for farmers to finally stand on their own.

God can ease mental problems

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am depressed and having a lot of mental problems right now. How can God help me with these problems? — S.S.R.

DEAR S.S.R.: God loves you, whether you realize it or not, and he wants to help you in this difficult time. Don't be afraid to turn to him. You can take strength from the words of Jesus: "Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light" (Matthew 11:28-30).

That is why the first thing God wants to do for you is to encourage you. He wants to convince you in a fresh way that he loves you with a love that is everlasting and unchanging.

Are those merely empty words? No! I know that God loves you because he was willing to send his only Son to die on the cross for your sins. He wants you to accept his love by inviting Christ into your life by faith. If you have never taken that step of commitment, I pray that you will do so right now.

Then God wants to help you in other ways as well. I have many friends who are psychologists or psychiatrists, and they tell me that there are many, many causes of depression. I would not, therefore, suggest any specific answer to your problem. (Sometimes, for example, depression may be caused in part by physical problems or chemical imbalances in our bodies, and I hope you have discussed your problem thoroughly with your doctor). But in my experience depression often has a spiritual dimension to it; and God wants to help you get help for this. Perhaps a skilled counselor who is sensitive to spiritual things could be of special assistance here, and you should not have any hesitancy in asking God to guide you to the help you need.

Whatever the causes of your problem, God wants to encourage you and strengthen you. Learn what it means to walk with him every day by praying and reading the Bible, and then serving him by helping others.

FBI cages Mafia bosses

WASHINGTON — Four top members of the Joseph Bonanno crime family will be sentenced in New York tomorrow on racketeering charges. This is the latest chapter in an amazing story of FBI success in crippling the Mafia bosses.

According to an internal FBI synopsis, 1981 and 1982 were banner years in the dogged campaign against La Cosa Nostra. "The majority of the 'bosses' and the hierarchy of the major families across the United States were indicted or convicted," the document states.

Furthermore, the summary notes, "major investigations are currently ongoing on several other families as well as on the new leaders who have emerged to replace those already convicted."

A review of court records and Justice Department files by my associate Tony Capaccio shows the FBI's claim is not idle boasting. Here is an area-by-area report on the success of federal investigators and prosecutors:

•New York City. Four of the five Mafia families have been crippled. With tomorrow's sentencing and the murder of three other top members, the Bonanno family hierarchy appears to be in total disarray. Acting boss Philip Rastelli has supposedly been running things from prison since the mid-1970s.

Alphonse Persico, boss of the Colombo family, is currently a fugitive after a loan-sharking conviction. His brother Carmine, the acting boss, is in prison for parole violation.

Frank Tieri, boss of the Vito Genovese family, was convicted of racketeering in 1980 and has since died. Family members John Russo and Tino Flumara are in prison, and the Genovese control of the Fulton Fish Market and much of the East Coast commercial fish distribution has been cracked.

Robert DiBernardo, a big man in the Carlo Gambino family, was convicted with 40 others in a nationwide pornography ring after a lengthy FBI investigation.

Pennsylvania. Russell Buffalino, boss of the state's northern crime family, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for civil rights violations and tampering with a federal witness.

In Philadelphia, internecine warfare has decimated the ranks of the Angelo Bruno family over the last two years. Raymond Martorano, a top Bruno capo, has been indicted on narcotics charges.

Buffalo-Rochester. The entire mobster hierarchy is behind bars after conviction for racketeering and obstruction of justice. One top leader, Frank Frassetto, drew a 30-year sentence.

Boston-Providence. Raymond Patriarca, mob boss of New England, was indicted for attempting to gain illicit control of insurance companies for eventual defrauding. The indictment was dismissed on procedural grounds, but the Justice Department has appealed and the prosecution is still pending.

New Orleans. Carlos Marcello, one of the most powerful Mafia leaders in the country, was convicted in the FBI's "Brillab" sting operation.

Chicago. Anthony "Big Tuna" Accardo managed to beat a recent racketeering rap, but street boss

Joseph Lombardo was indicted with Teamsters president Roy Williams in a union corruption case.

The biggest mob-operated loan-shark operation in the windy city, run by James Inendino, has been shut down. Wiretap evidence showed that from 1975 to 1978, the sharks loaned $378,000 to 125 individuals at annual interest rates of 130 to 260 percent.

Milwaukee. Longtime boss Frank Balistreri and his lieutenant, Steve DiSalvo, have been indicted along with 10 other crime family members in an FBI sting operation. They are accused of extorting protection money from a G-man who set up a vending-machine company.

Cleveland. Mob bosses James Licavoli and Anthony Liberatore, along with underlings Thomas Lanci, Joey Gallo and Thomas Sinito, have been convicted on various racketeering, loan-sharking and bribery counts.

Detroit. Much of the mobster hierarchy has been in prison since 1979. Among the top-level Mafiosi convicted are brothers Anthony and Vito Giacalone, Vincent Meli and Raffaele Quasarrano.

One operation the G-men cracked was the extortionate takeover of the Rogersville, Wis., Cheese Co. Another was the use of a sanitation company to evade taxes.

Kansas City, Denver and Los Angeles. The entire top leadership of the Civella, Dragna and Smaldone families has either been indicted or already convicted of various charges.

In fiscal 1981, 82 mobsters were convicted. That creditable record pales in comparison with the fiscal year just ended. Figures are available only for the first six months of fiscal 1982, and they show 165 convictions of mobsters and associates.

White, Clements court ag vote

By Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements, fresh from a meeting with President Ronald Reagan and other federal officials on agri-business problems, gave Texas farmers and ranchers an impressive report of that session.

Addressing the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board convention, Clements said that he discussed topics including grain sales to the Soviets, Farm Home Administration loans, the peso and other agriculture issues in a day of meetings in Washington, D.C.

Clements, accompanied on his trip by a delegation of Texas agriculture experts and businessmen, said Reagan plans to advise the Soviets that there must be a sense of continuity to U.S. grain sales to that country. Those sales could eventually become long-term contracts, Clements said.

Concerning a proposal to extend some Farm Home Administration loans on a case-by-case basis, Clements said there will be an announcement on this issue within the next few days.

Earlier in the day, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Mark White also tried to court the farm and ranch vote in an address at another session of that convention. White, the state attorney general, is in a neck-and-neck race with Clements.

White tried to malign Clements' trip to Washington, claiming Texans never hear about Clements voicing the state's farm needs in the nation's capital except at election time.

Farm wives band together

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A group of Nebraska farm wives, frustrated by what they felt was their secondary role in debates over farm policies, gathered in 1976 to do something about their common concerns.

The result was WIFE — Women Involved in Farm Economics.

The women felt they were not being allowed to contribute to the efforts of male-dominated farm groups like the Farm Bureau or Grange, according to the president of the Nebraska chapter of WIFE, Luella Stevens of Gothenberg.

"I was kind of tired of setting up chairs, making coffee and being part of the cute little programs they would work out for the women at their conventions," said Mrs. Stevens.

From that small beginning in Sydney, Neb., WIFE now has 3,000 members in 18 states. And it is claiming growing influence in its struggle for a meaningful voice in farm economics.

"Farm women today are more educated, more sophisticated," said Mrs. Sydney Beck of Pansley, Ala., WIFE national vice president. "They do more on the farm, and they want to do more about the issues."

A month after WIFE was founded, it sent two busloads of farm wives to Washington, where they dressed in red to symbolize the plight of their family budgets. They but- tonholed members of Congress to express their anger over low commodity prices.

In contrast to the tractorcade protests of the American Agriculture Movement a few years ago, WIFE members are low-key. "We try to be positive. We research intensively, and then we just try to make our points in Washington," said Mrs. Beck.

WIFE still sends groups of two or three members to Washington every month (and they still wear red). Mrs. Beck said. "Each state takes a month and is responsible for sending someone. One of our biggest battles in getting money for the trips," she added.

What has WIFE accomplished since 1976? Mrs. Stevens said the organization can't point to specific pieces of legislation, but counts as its greatest accomplishment getting its foot in the door in Washington.

The chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas, calls WIFE an "effective" group because it is able to clearly communicate the plight of the farmer.

When they go to Washington, according to Mrs. Beck, WIFE members try to hammer home the message that many agricultural producers have to pay more to grow food than they get when they sell it. Eliminating that situation is the organization's major goal, she said.

As Mrs. Stevens put it to U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block when he visited Nebraska last spring, they ask officials: How does the government expect farmers to pay 1981 production costs with 1931 receipts?

Other objectives, Mrs. Stevens said, are to educate a government that WIFE believes does not respond "to the critical farm problems," to give producers a greater voice in shaping agricultural policy, to promote gasohol and further research and development of farm by-products, to encourage development of new markets for U.S. farm products and to guard against imports that harm domestic producers.

"It's a slow, slow process. You have to remember that we're (farmers) only 3 percent of the population. But we're starting to have an influence. They know us in Washington now," said Mrs. Stevens, who has visited the capital twice in the past year.

"Five years ago, we had problems even getting into congressional offices. Now, they seem to even welcome us," she said.

Area's young farmers cited

Members of the four-county chapter of the Area II Young Farmers of Texas received an attendance award at the Area Young Farmers Convention held recently in Wall.

The chapter has a membership of 17, according to Lon McDonald, the chapter's advisor. The award was given to the chapter with the highest percentage of members present at the convention.

Mitchell farmers strip cotton

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County farmers soon will be out in the fields stripping what's left of their cotton crop. Then the repair work will begin on fields damaged by early summer storms.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Director Don Stewart said "the July cotton is still developing, but there will be a little defoliating."

Soviets resume U.S. grain purchases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's re-entry into the U.S. grain market a week ago after an unexplained seven-month absence appears to be continuing at a fairly brisk pace.

The Agriculture Department said the Soviet Union has bought an additional 100,000 metric tons of U.S. corn for delivery in 1982-83, the seventh year of a long-term grain agreement.

Since the latest round of grain sales began on Sept. 28, the Soviets have bought more than 1.6 million metric tons of corn for shipment in the year which began on Oct. 1.

Sales last year totaled 13.9 million tons, including about 7.7 million of corn and 6.1 million of wheat.

On Sept. 28, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block announced that the Soviet Union bought 750,000 metric tons of corn for delivery in the year which began on Oct. 1. That was the first U.S. grain of any consequence sold to the Soviets since last March. It also marked the first grain sold for delivery to the Soviets in the seventh year of the agreement. The pact was originally for five years but was extended for one year in 1981, and recently for another year.

The agreement calls for the Soviet Union to buy at least six million metric tons of wheat and corn annually. An additional two million tons is optional, but if more than eight million tons is wanted the United States must give its approval.

Under the 1981-82 terms, the United States gave permission for the Soviets to buy up to 23 million tons — 15 million more than guaranteed by the agreement.

No specific bid has been announced for 1982-83, but Block said last week that there are "no restrictions of any consequence" on the amount of U.S. wheat and corn that the Soviet Union will be permitted to buy.

Dear Abby

Sparks fly when game is played

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are separated. When he comes to visit our 10-year-old daughter, I try to make his visits pleasant for all of us.

He is a smoker, I am not. He has agreed not to smoke in my house. However, he teases our daughter by asking her if she wants a cigarette, then he instructs her to get one out of the pack and put it in his mouth. (He doesn't light it.)

He knows I disapprove of this, but he does it in a joking way. Not wanting to cause any arguments, I say nothing. A few days ago, he put an unlit cigarette in her mouth. I had to leave the room to keep from telling him off in front of our daughter. Later when we were alone, I stated my objections. He brushed them off and said I was "overreacting."

Soon our daughter will be spending weekends with him, and I am worried that his "joking" with cigarettes will continue. And, of course, he can smoke in his own house.

Am I overreacting? Both my husband and I love this child. How should I handle this?

CONCERNED MOTHER: Tell your husband that you disapprove of the positive message he is giving your daughter with regard to smoking. Not only is he letting her think that smoking is OK, he is subtly encouraging her to smoke. The reason is obvious. He's trying to get your goat. Tell your daughter she is not to put a cigarette in her mouth, and forbid your husband to play any more cigarette games with the child.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a man who was married before, and we're having a major disagreement. He still wears his wedding ring, even though I have asked him to please put it away. He claims the only reason he wears it is because he "likes" it.

To my way of thinking, a wedding ring is more than just a piece of jewelry — it symbolizes something. Is my request unreasonable?

FOOLISH IN PHOENIX

DEAR FOOLISH: No. Your fiance is either consciously or unconsciously reluctant to "let go" of his first marriage. If you let him put a wedding ring on your finger while he is still wearing his, you are indeed foolish.

HELLO! What do you think of "Hello!" for a salutation for a letter?

EVY

DEAR EVY: Not much. Goodbye!

Dr. Donohue

Viral encephalitis outlook good

Dear Dr. Donohue: What can you tell me about viral encephalitis? My 21-year-old son was admitted to the hospital with this disease. I told our doctor that his grandfather died from this at the age of 34, but he said that was just a strange circumstance, that the disease is not inherited. Still, I am naturally concerned. Would there be any recurrence of this? Is there any inheritance of it? Is recovery complete? — Mrs. S.S.

Viral encephalitis is an infection and inflammation of the brain by a virus. There are a couple of ways the virus can get to the brain. It can be breathed into the lungs and get into blood, or it can be ingested into the digestive tract and then move to the blood and brain. Another way it can be introduced into the body is by direct injection through a mosquito bite, if the insect is carrying it. The mosquito-bite transmission route is the one found in those rare epidemics that can occur during summer months.

Whatever the route of transmission, the person has the same symptoms — headache (cephalgia), sometimes a stiff neck. His temperature may be high and he may appear lethargic or even lapse into a coma. It's this comatose aspect that gives the illness its other name — sleeping sickness. You also wonder (another part of your letter) about the spinal tap the doctor performed. That is the way the illness is diagnosed. A specimen of the spinal fluid is taken for analysis. If the person has encephalitis, the fluid will show evidence of inflammation.

Most patients recover from viral encephalitis, although in some forms it can be quite severe and even lead to death. Usually, the problem is so mild that the person experiences only the headache and fever. After recovery, which is usually complete, your son should have no recurrence. It is a temporary infection, pure and simple. I agree that it is a strange coincidence that his grandfather should have died of this. It is not inherited.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain what the term "a deformed duodenal bulb" refers to, and whether or not it is serious? — Mrs. A.L.

The duodenum is the first section of the small intestine, where it leaves the stomach. The duodenal bulb is the first part of the duodenum. The term you use means the doctor found some X-ray evidence of irritation there from some past problem. Incidentally, it is at the bulb where most ulcers are found, and if a person did have ulcers there scarring would be expected. Deformity of the bulb, then, is not an illness, although the scarring may make it difficult to detect problems there if they existed.

If you are having ulcer-type pain and the doctor wants to check that area as a possible site, there are other ways he can do it. He can pass a special scope down into the area and view it that way. But if you just have the X-ray finding and have no symptoms, there is no cause for concern. Your other questions are answered in the booklet "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed," which other readers can order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

March of Dimes to begin mail campaign

The 1983 March of Dimes Mail Campaign for the prevention of birth defects has begun, according to Dorene Zilberg, chapter executive for the Caprock Chapter of the March of Dimes, located in Big Spring.

"One out of every 12 infants born in the United States this year will be affected by one or more birth defects," Mrs. Zilberg said. This means that more than 250,000 or a quarter of a million newborns will die or suffer physical or mental disorders.

To combat the most serious child health problem, the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation supports national and local programs in research, medical services, public and professional education. In the Caprock Chapter, March of Dimes supported programs include: West Fest Carnival, Haunted House, Mother's March and Casino Night. By supporting the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation with dollars and time, people can help prevent birth defects. "We look to our community for financial assistance and for new volunteers to carry on this work. We would be grateful if people interested in volunteering would phone me at the March of Dimes office at 263-3014," Mrs. Zilberg said.

THE PRODUCER — Producer Philip Morris stands with some of his characters from the World of Fantasy Players, who will bring their rendition of "Cinderella" to Big Spring on Tuesday.

'Cinderella' coming to Big Spring Tuesday night

Local youngsters aged three to 93 will have an opportunity to see a masterpiece of modern stagecraft and costuming when the stage production of "Cinderella" appears here on Tuesday at 7:00 p.m. in Big Spring Municipal Auditorium. The local performance of this touring attraction is sponsored by Big Spring Rotary Club.

"Cinderella" is produced by Philip Morris, head of Morris Costume Co. of Charlotte, N.C., one of the largest theatrical costumers in the world. His World of Fantasy Players are now on their 16th annual tour of the United States and Canada and each year they bring out a live stage production of a classic fairy tale.

Morris started his theatrical career as a stage illusionist and magician, later developing his costume business, and is involved in the production of television commercials and as a consultant and technical adviser to many of the nation's largest theme parks.

He produced props, special effects and costumes for Opryland in Nashville, King's Dominion in Richmond, the "Six Flags" parks, Ringling Bros. Circus and numerous Shrine Circuses, and for the leading ice shows. He has produced life-like costumes for actors portraying Popeye, Mighty Mouse, Tom & Jerry as well as Frankenstein and the Mummy. His greatest skill lies in making bizarre characters of all types come to life realistically on stage.

The performance of "Cinderella" which will appear in Big Spring includes a number of quaint and lovable "animal" characters not found in the original tale. As with all of Morris' productions, these characters lend lively humor to the show and are, of course, of special delight to children.

The sponsors hope every family in the area with youngsters of appropriate age will take advantage of the opportunity to see this show.

TI, Continental will merge on Halloween

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas International Airlines will turn into Continental Airlines on Halloween, when the two carriers merge to become the seventh-largest airline in the country, company officials said.

Operating offices of the carrier will remain in Los Angeles, but most executive offices have been moved to Houston, said Continental Chairman Frank Lorenzo.

Texas Air Corp., the holding company that owns Texas International, acquired Continental after a battle during which Continental's former president, Al Feldman, committed suicide.

Continental employees failed in an attempt to purchase control of their employer, and stockholders of both companies approved the merger at separate meetings July 13.

Lorenzo told a news conference Wednesday that the official merger of the two carriers follows agreements with pilots and clerical workers and a realignment of bank loans.

Under the new policy, Continental's loans — which include a four-year revolving credit agreement — will be realigned into a seven-year loan. "Existing collateral arrangements will be reorganized to provide security for a current short-term $48 million loan," Lorenzo said. That debt, loaned by a group of banks led by Manufacturer's Hanover Trust Company, New York, will also be paid back in a seven-year loan, he said.

"The only basic restructuring is of this one facility," he said.

Lorenzo also said an agreement with pilots will cut the company's costs by $45 million in 1983.

He also said Texas International's agents and clerical workers had agreed to disband their union. Continental workers are not represented by a union.

The airline will operate route hubs in Denver and Houston, he said.

The merged carrier will employ 10,000 Continental employees and 3,500 Texas International workers, officials said.

It will serve 81 cities, which Lorenzo said was the most of any U.S. airline, and carry 14 million passengers during the next year.

Continental lost $60 million last year. Texas International lost $47.2 million.

'Friends of Lawrence Welk' waltzing into town Oct. 15

"The Friends of Lawrence Welk," featuring stars from the Lawrence Welk television show, will be in Big Spring Oct. 15 for a one-night-only concert at the city auditorium.

The show, sponsored by the Spring City Theater, will begin at 8 p.m.

Featured in the concert will be the singing Otwell Twins, country stylist Ava Barber and accordionist Joey Schmidt.

The show will be presented in cooperation with the Texas Assembly of Arts Council. Tickets cost $5 in advance and $7.50 at the door. They may be purchased at Citizens Federal Credit Union and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office.

FW police probe crime spree

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police planned today to question four people arrested following an investigation into 80 cases of murder, rape, robbery and burglary that have terrorized the city's Poly neighborhood since June.

Those arrested include a 20-year-old man and three juveniles, authorities said. "They are suspects in all violent crimes that have happened in the Poly area in the past few months," said Sgt. J.E. Keith.

The violence in the 30-block neighborhood began last June when Ruby English, an 88-year-old widow, was found dead inside her ransacked home. Police said a 14-inch wooden rod had been stuck through her mouth.

The next month, 50-year-old Clifford Lewis was found beaten to death a few blocks away.

An 87-year-old retiree became the third victim on Sept. 31. Alexander Ewing was reading a newspaper aloud to his bedridden wife when assailants kicked in their door, beat the couple and killed Ewing by stabbing him in the chest, police said.

Mike Pruitt, a crime analyst, said Wednesday that each of the victims was white, but added that investigators consider race an insignificant factor.

"The victims are not black or white to these thugs," Pruitt said. "The important thing is that the victims are elderly. They are helpless people who cannot defend themselves from kids on the street who want to take over the neighborhood."

During the past four months, three elderly women in Poly have been raped, the homes of more than 60 retirees have been burglarized and 14 elderly residents have been assaulted during robberies, Pruitt said.

Pruitt said the average age of the crime victims in Poly is between 70 and 75 and that about 4,000 retirees live in the community. "But this can't be permanent," said Deputy Chief B.J. Kirkpatrick. "We just don't have that many people to spare."

Man found dead in ex-congressman's home

KODAK ADVANCES TOO — Kodak, along with Polaroid, reports its own advance: a very high-speed color negative (ASA 1000) film. Here, a technician inspects negatives made from the film.

Instant slides? Polaroid tries it

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A new process for producing instant slides is being unveiled by Polaroid, which hopes its entry into the 35mm film market brings some new snap to flagging sales.

The Polaroid Autoprocess 35mm System — to be exhibited at Photokina '82, an annual trade fair in Cologne, Germany — produces color and black and white slides in three minutes. It was first announced at the company's May 4 annual meeting where stockholders were shown slides made from the new film.

The new product includes a small lightweight unit weighing slightly more than a pound, a "processor pack" of chemicals and a 35mm slide mounter. Polaroid said starter sets, with a retail price of less than $100, will be available sometime early next year.

The film is exposed normally in the camera, then manually cranked with chemicals through the Autoprocessor, developing in one minute and ready for viewing and mounting in three minutes, Polaroid said.

Polaroid said the color slide film, called Polachrome, "exhibits some what higher base density and graininess than conventional film," but said the slides produce excellent color and resolution.

Gavatos believes the slide film is a potential moneymaker in the technical field, especially for companies that need quick slides of computer graphics.

NEW YORK (AP) — A young musclem who apparently killed himself in the luxurious apartment of former Rep. Fred Richmond had scrawled on his naked body in ballpoint pen: "I will always love you xoxox sin angel," police said Wednesday.

The dead man, described as medium height, with dark hair and a weightlifter's body, was found locked in a bathroom, a bottle of pills nearby.

Richmond, 58, who overcame a homosexual scandal to keep his seat in Congress but was forced to quit last August in a plea bargain related to other charges, was not home when the body was found Tuesday night.

The victim was identified tentatively as Gregory Bergeron, 21, of East 57th Street. Bergeron's home address is about a block from Richmond's Sutton Place co-op apartment. Pending results of an autopsy, the death was listed as suicide from an overdose of pills, said Detective Chief Rudolph Ponzini. The kind of pills was not known, he said.

Dr. Elliott Gross, the chief medical examiner, said after examining he body Wednesday that he would not issue a cause of death until after tests that would require from one to two weeks.

The dead man left two messages, one the scrawl on his chest that was in reverse, as if written while looking in a mirror. The other was a rambling letter that Ponzini said "was not an explicit suicide note."

The writing on his chest appeared to be from a ballpoint pen, police said. A police source said the note "showed great emotional turmoil."

Ponzini said Richmond evidently was in Washington and has not been interviewed. He said police were trying to set up a meeting.

Ponzini said police had received a call from a lawyer in Boston, Bruce Smith, who said he represented Bergeron and that his client used both the 57th Street and Sutton Place addresses. Ponzini said he did not know what Bergeron did for a living or why he had a lawyer.

Richmond reportedly left New York City on Monday. Bergeron, who was known to Richmond's maid and valet, came to the apartment at 4 a.m. Tuesday and went into a separate suite where he had stayed before.

The apartment, which Richmond has said was valued at $2 million, takes up the entire seventh floor of 25 Sutton Place. Richmond has said he furnished the apartment with more than $3 million in antiques and art.

His constituents, many of them black, returned him to Congress after the 1978 scandal in which he was accused of trying to buy sex from a teen-age black and an undercover agent in Washington. Charges were dropped when he agreed to undergo treatment.

On Aug. 25, Richmond pleaded guilty to income-tax evasion and marijuana possession. By agreeing to resign from Congress and not seek re-election, he saved himself from further prosecution.

Richmond will be sentenced Nov. 12, and could get up to seven years in prison.

Dawson soil, water board election set for Friday

LAMESA (SC) — An election for a director to serve Zone 4 on the Dawson County Soil and Water Conservation District Board is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 8 at the Tinsley Gin, announced E.L. Hendon, chairman of the board.

The election will be held at 10 a.m., but coffee and doughnuts will be served beginning at 9:30 a.m., compliments of Tinsley Gin. State law decrees that to be eligible to vote in this year's election of representatives of Zone 4, you must be 18 years old, own agricultural land within Zone 4, and be a resident of Dawson County.

Zone 4 of the district includes all of Dawson County west of Highway 137 and north of Highway 180. Current members of the board of directors of the Dawson County SWCD are the chairman, Hendon, vice chairman Jerry Swafford, secretary Terry Wristen, and members Darrell Merrick and Don Chiles.

The purpose of the Dawson County SWCD with headquarters in Lamesa is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on farm and ranch land within the district and to serve as a voice for farmers and ranchers on conservation matters and other issues affecting private property rights of landowners.

All conservation programs managed by the district are of a voluntary nature to the landowner or operator.

No more IRS walk-ins

MIDLAND — The Midland office of the Internal Revenue Service will no longer provide walk-in tax help, according to Robert Ray, the Midland IRS director's representative.

Ray said that IRS toll-free tax assistance is still available Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Taxpayers who wish to order forms or ask questions about federal taxes should call 1-800-492-4830.

Ray noted that IRS examinations would continue at the Midland office.

Unemployment

Pols await latest jobless figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are holding their breath. Democrats are waiting to pounce. President Reagan already has taken the offensive. And press release writers of the nation are gearing up for hard-hitting rhetoric.

It's all because the government is releasing new unemployment figures Friday that most economists predict will reach 10 percent, the highest jobless rate in 42 years.

With the mid-term election just three weeks away, the September statistics may prove to be a potent weapon for Democrats, who already contend that unemployment, which has hovered at a post-war record of 9.9 percent for the past two months — is the dominant issue of the campaign.

Although polls show unemployment is an important campaign issue, it is being played down at the White House, which insists the main issue is whether the nation should return to Democratic economic policies or stay on the president's conservative course.

When the statistics are released Friday, Reagan will be meeting in San Diego, Calif., with Mexican president-elect Miguel de la Madrid. Initially, the president planned to spend the day at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., and aides denied the plans were changed so he would not be vacationing when the jobless figures are released.

But at least a week ago the president took the offensive as he tried to prepare the nation for the possibility of double digit unemployment. And throughout the campaign, the Republican slogan — "stay the course" — has been geared toward encouraging voters to give Reagan more time.

The president echoes that theme on the campaign trail, saying the choice is between giving him more time or sliding into "another economic binge like the one which left us with today's pounding, national hangover."

Reagan acknowledges unemployment is too high. But he blames it on Democrats by saying it already was high when he took office (7.4 percent). Though he doesn't mention the recession very often, Reagan maintains his policies, which have resulted in a drop in inflation, eventually will also bring about a reduction in unemployment.

Railing against previous Democratic leadership, Reagan told one group in Richmond, Va., a week ago: "Right now, we're all paying the penalty of those tragic excesses. Nearly 11 million people are out of work and I share their suffering and frustration."

Communications director David Gergen said the unemployment statistic alone "does not tell the whole story and should not be regarded as a major point in the campaign."

Gergen added, "The reservoir of patience (for Reagan) still appears to be wide and deep and there's no indication that if the unemployment number jiggles up or jiggles down that it's going to have a major impact."

He said the White House strategy is, simply, "To try to keep things in perspective, to look at the broader picture." To that end, Reagan has been bragging endlessly about the drop in the rate of inflation and interest rates. His advisers, meanwhile, concede that recovery from the recession has not yet come about.

Gergen accused Democrats of trying to demagogue the unemployment issue, noting that some candidates plan rallies to spotlight the issue.

"It's hard to understand why they would celebrate with other people's misery, but apparently they do plan ... to try to make political hay out of it," Gergen added.

In fact, Democrats have been stressing the unemployment rate throughout the campaign. One Democratic television advertisement, for example, shows an unemployment line of the 1930s with the tag line: "Democrats will get this country back to work again."

They also have prepared an advertisement to be rushed out if unemployment hits 10 percent. And House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., often chides Reagan for refusing to support legislation that would create jobs.

In addition, the Democratic National Committee has furnished its candidates with advice on how to use the unemployment statistics to their advantage.

A memorandum to press secretaries of Democratic House members offers suggestions on "how you might structure media events for your district, or media market, to remind constituents of the devastating effects of Reaganomics-Republicanism."

It advises, for instance, "Arrange for your boss to appear at the local unemployment compensation office to talk with those who are the ultimate victims of the Republican policies."

Guru Gulch

Oregon commune turns into a city

RAJNEESHUPURAM, Ore. (AP) — The police force is decked out in burgundy. The garbage trucks are named Miss Piggy, Kermit and White Trash. A window at the city motor pool sports flowers and a poster of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. By law, every city council meeting begins and ends with a new joke.

The permanent population here is about 400, but the number has been more than doubled by people who come to work and he near Rajneesh, an Indian guru they consider their spiritual master. The population could decline when cold November rains and December snow pelt this former sheep ranch in the rock-covered hills 150 miles east of Portland.

A 2,000-acre commune city in the middle of the 100-square-mile ranch gained official status in a May 18 election, but delayed setting up municipal shop until the Aug. 10 election of a six-member city council — all Rajneesh disciples.

City hall is a trailer, where Mayor Swami Krishna Deva works from a cluttered desk. Outside, bulldozers, dump trucks, school buses and ambulances are at work in the growing city.

Disciples take new names when they join, often changing them legally. "K.D." as the mayor is known to virtually everyone, once was a Southern California psychologist named David Knapp.

Harry Hawkins and Marvin Pattenau were Jefferson County sheriff's deputies, but after working on the ranch during a festival, they applied to become the city's first police force.

Their burgundy uniforms blend in with disciples, who all wear clothing in shades of red. But they can be identified by their silver stars, holstered revolvers and because they lack the wooden "mala" bearing a picture of Rajneesh that all disciples wear.

"Who knows?" Hawkins laughed when asked if the officers would add the mala to their temporary uniform of burgundy jeans, shirt, vest and cap. A permanent uniform is being designed — also in burgundy. Their patrol car is a four-wheel-drive, burgundy pickup.

Ma Prem Sunshine said commune membership is not required for employees or private contractors. "If it happens, it happens," she said. "I had a solar consultant and one day I looked up and he was wearing red and a mala. Now he's Swami Anand Paul."

Hawkins and Pattenau have been deputized by two counties, so they can patrol the rest of "Rancho Rajneesh," as disciples call the ranch that was purchased in July 1981.

There are other earmarks of official status here — last week, the U.S. Postal Service announced it had approved a post office in Rajneeshpuram.

The city council is seeking a state liquor store and has established a commercial zone, now home to a boutique called "Noah's Ark" where souvenirs and clothing are sold.

Rajneesh preaches love, brotherhood and loss of individual ego, and subscribes to no organized religion. His commune city has become a tourist attraction, with some 350 tourists touring the commune by bus each month. The disciples ask a $2 donation they say covers costs.

1 year after Sadat: Doubts persist

Egyptians wonder about Mubarak, Sadat's successor

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — One year after the assassination of President Anwar Sadat, doubts are growing about the ability of his successor Hosni Mubarak to meet the challenges he has set for himself.

Western diplomats say the government still has not devised a clear strategy for dealing with inflation, flagging productivity, shortages and other economic problems Mubarak branded his top priority.

In foreign policy, Mubarak has maintained Sadat's peace with Israel and has expanded contacts with the United States. But relations with Israel have sunk to a new low following the Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

Despite several overtures from Cairo, no Arab state has restored the diplomatic links severed with Egypt following the 1979 peace treaty with the Jewish state.

The government said this week that the threat from Moslem fundamentalists, the group that murdered Sadat on Oct. 6, 1981, was strong enough to warrant one year's extension of the emergency law which curbs constitutional rights.

"Mubarak's term of office is like a play," said one Western diplomat who asked not to be identified. "We've had the first act, where the problems have been defined. Now it's intermission and we're waiting for the second act to see how those problems will be solved."

There is evidence that many ordinary Egyptians are anxious about Mubarak's ability. Although no opinion surveys about him are available, the appearance of several new, unflattering jokes reflect skepticism if not sinking popularity.

One has Mubarak, a famous singer and famous belly dancer arriving from abroad at Cairo airport without passports. The singer and belly dancer prove their identities by performing and are allowed in the country.

When the guard asks Mubarak what he can do to prove himself, he answers: "I can't do anything. 'You're in,'" replies the guard.

Nevertheless, Western diplomats and many Egyptians praise the 53-year-old former air force commander for steering the country through difficult months following Sadat's murder, and for dismantling what some describe as the imperial overtones of the Sadat era.

Mubarak, sworn in eight days after Sadat was gunned down at a military parade, moved quickly to release journalist Mohammad Heikal and hundreds of others who had been jailed for criticizing the late president.

The new leader abandoned Sadat's practice of frequent stays in posh presidential guesthouses. He held public meetings with opposition figures to underscore what he called a commitment to democracy.

Mubarak also paid tribute not only to Sadat but to president Gamal Abdel Nasser, Egypt's charismatic leader through the first decades of the post World War II era.

Sadat had played down Nasser's role, partly because of Nasser's anti-American posture but also because it detracted from Sadat's own stature.

Mubarak also directed the nation's newspaper editors to lessen criticism of other Arab leaders. Sadat had done the opposite.

In a more subtle overture to other Arabs, Mubarak began delivering speeches in classical Arabic, the language of the Koran, rather than in the Egyptian vernacular.

These popular moves, largely public relations maneuvers, were capped last April 25 when Israel returned the last part of the Sinai Desert captured in the 1967 war. For the first time in 15 years, Egypt's flag flew over all Egyptian territory.

Since then, however, Egyptians have grown concerned over the lack of decisive plans to tackle the country's formidable economic and social problems.

Soon after taking office, Mubarak called the economy his top priority. But except for raising prices on some luxury goods, and moving to restrict imports, he introduced few reforms.

Arabs aren't Israel's only problem...

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — "Drive Slowly," croons Arik Einstein, Israel's top pop singer. Einstein is in a hospital following a car crash, and radio stations are playing "Drive Slowly" over and over to remind Israeli drivers how dangerous they can be.

Einstein was seriously injured, but was luckier than the 16 people who died in accidents in the same week his car was hit by a bus in downtown Tel Aviv.

Israel's small population makes it especially sensitive to every Jewish death, and road fatalities often make frontpage news.

Drunken driving is not a problem. "The social problem that manifests itself most obviously, on our roads is aggression," says Moshe Amirav, head of the Road Safety Council.

As in most Mediterranean countries, macho bedevils Israeli highways. Drivers tend to take offense at being passed or trapped behind slow vehicles. The 56-mph speed limit, though rigidly enforced with heavy fines and license suspensions, is frequently disregarded.

Another problem is the heat. Few cars are air-conditioned, and drivers are reluctant to stop and bake in the sunshine. Moreover, many roads are narrow, badly marked and inadequate for the rising number of cars in Israel, which has doubled in the past decade to one for every three families.

Israel has the world's highest accident rate, although not the worst death rate. It has half as many deaths as the United States, but a third of the number of cars per capita, according to Transport Ministry figures. Britain has the same fatality rate as Israel but has two times more cars.

More than 14,000 Israelis have died on the roads between 1948 and 1981 — 1,500 more than were killed in wars and terrorist attacks.

Some Israeli experts point to a sharp increase in road deaths immediately after every Mideast war. They say battle stress could be a factor, or the fact that many civilians, just released from reserve military service, have trouble shaking off the lawless habits they pick up in battle zones.

"We are very concerned to protect our people on the battlefield but not adequately concerned by the war on our roads," Amirav said in an interview. He said the national preoccupation with defense had put traffic problems low on the national agenda.

He pointed to figures showing that Israel spends only $14 per person on road safety, and $2 of that sum on improving roads. U.S. figures are more than 10 times higher, he said.

"Israel's roads are a disaster," he said. He said there were 16 outdated two-lane roads linking major cities and carrying 10,000 cars a day. A five-year road improvement plan was rejected by the Treasury as too expensive, he said. Meanwhile, road accidents cost the economy 5.2 billion shekels ($186 million) in state funds in 1981 alone, he said.

Poor Ted. Nothing's gone right since Sunday. With Wednesday's rain, the Cards have a good chance of marching into Atlanta with a 2-0 lead. But no wonder the Braves are in the playoffs. The coaching staff is full of former St. Louis greats — Joe Torre, Bob Gibson, Dal Maxvill.

And don't forget Ted himself. He's a bird, too.

The district football stats are out and Big Spring is still doing quite well, thank you.

The Steer defense has a firm lock on second place behind Permian. Big Spring has given up just 865 yards in five games and only 505 on the ground (101 per game). It will face the league's No. 4 offense this week in Odessa High (978 by ground and 346 by air) which has piled up 1,324 total yards. Big Spring has totaled just 901 yards in five games.

Leading rusher for Big Spring is Danny Stephen with 190 yards for a 4.3 average. The Steers didn't score on offensive touchdown last week but moved the football in huge chunks on 1:13 minute drive that resulted in Carl Green's field goal.

Jay Pirkle. The sophomore continues to play years behind his current status. He scored the game's only touchdown on a pass interception and then kicked the daylight out of the ball when he had to punt.

He kicked seven times for a 46.6 average and now is deadlocked with Odessa's Warren Kruse for the league leadership. Should the offenses get bogged down tomorrow, watch for a duel between these two guys. The team with the best kicking game could win the game.

Receiver Dale Crenshaw is third in the league with eight catches (behind Chuck Dickenson's 13 for Midland Luther Johnson's nine for Lee) for a 13.9 average. Quarterback Adam Rodriguez is now No. 2 behind Brent Kelley of Permian. He's thrown for 353 yards but is still looking for his first TD toss.

By the way, homecoming is next week. There's a community pep rally Tuesday night at Highland Mall. Bring your BSHS spirit to the bonfire event.

Continuing with football, how about a couple of area games this week.

Forsan will load its Buffaloes up and herd them up to Ackerly to battle the undefeated Mustangs.

Forsan is a pretty solid team, losing only once by a 6-3 count to Bronte and tying up Robert Lee 7-7. Sands, meanwhile, has rolled over folks with the double-barrel rushing attack of Robbie Creswell and Santos Ybarra.

The question here is how good is Sands. The defense has been tough but Forsan has a lot of players in uniforms, Class AA experience and some big folks.

Then there's Coahoma and Colorado City. Both teams have battled the best AAA teams around in pre-season and once they've gotten back in their own class, they've done well.

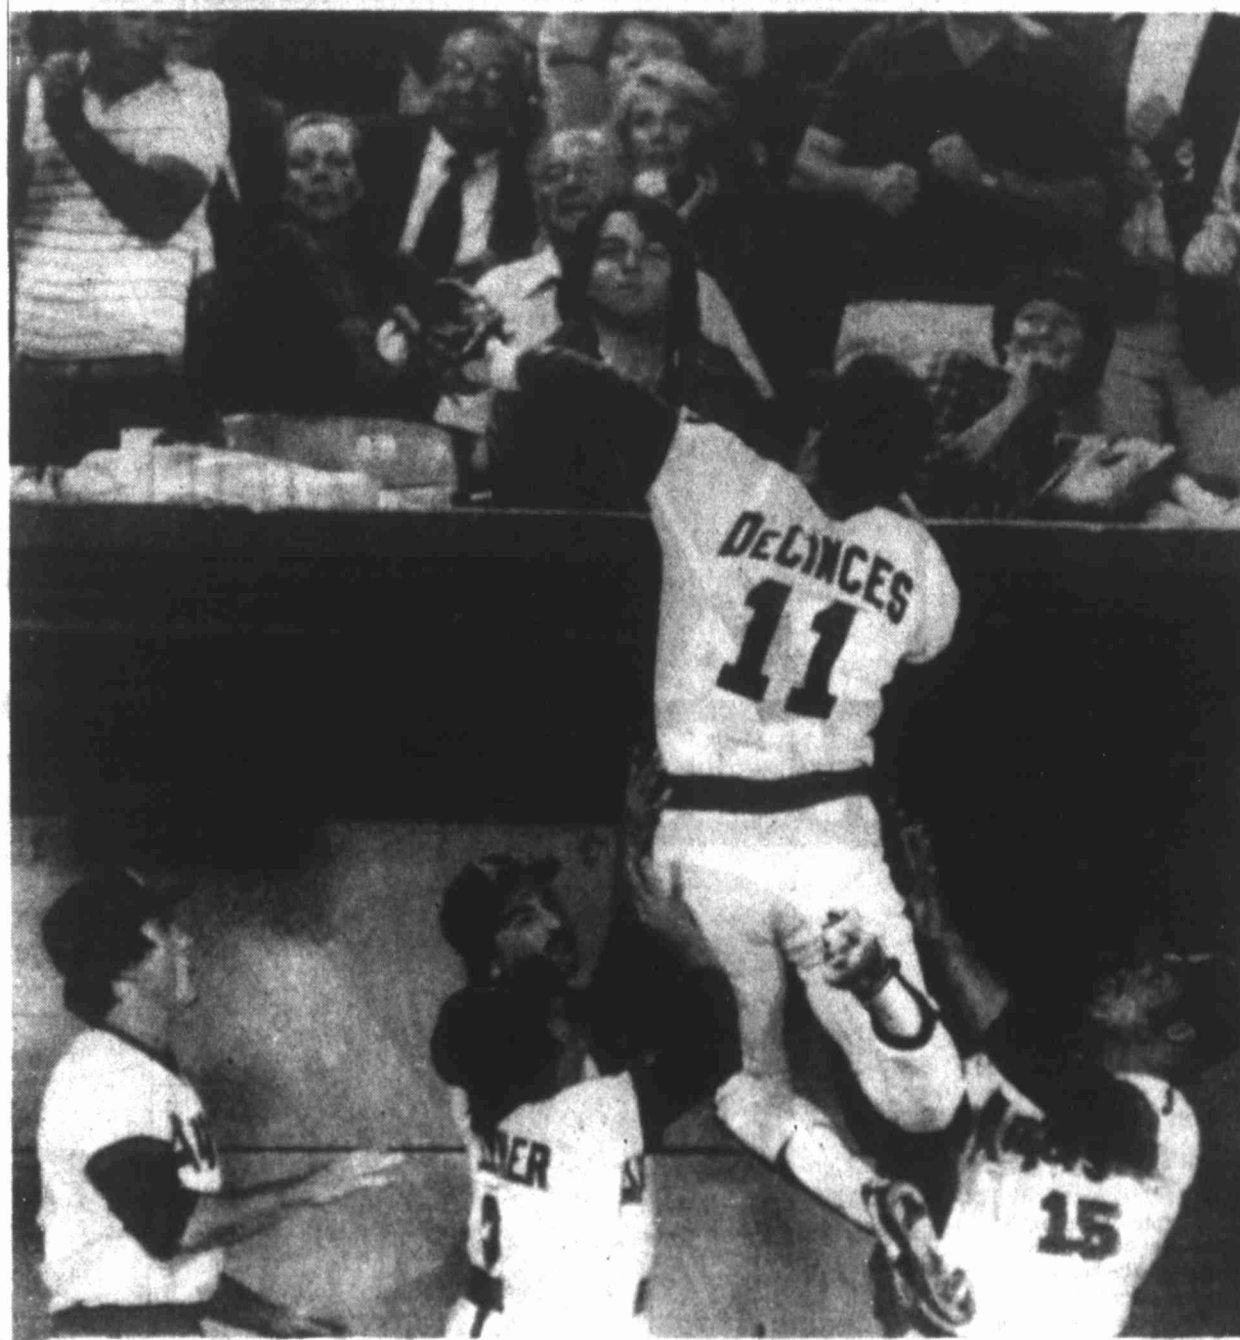

C-City is now 2-3 after an 0-3 start and Coahoma is also 2-3, losing this last week to No. 9 Denver City. It'll be a dead-even matchup and an intense game. Coahoma has the home field advantage and homecoming incentive.

Both are games we football pickers would like to avoid this week.

From the Herald Hole-in-One Scrapbook, news from the Big Spring Country Club. Sam Thurman used a five-iron to knock in a shot on the 159-yard No. 7 hole this week. Watching him were Tom Sotuh, Bill McClendon, Dick Pfeiffer, Hudson Landers and Dr. Howard Schwarzenbach.

That's quite a crowd. And speaking of golf, the LaJet Classic began today in Abilene and could be one of the PGA tour highlights for the year. Lee Trevino is healthy, Jay Haas is hot and Tom Watson is just there being Tom Watson. Get over to Abilene if you have a chance to catch the best golf on one of the best courses around.

Kison handcuffs Brews 4-2

CLOSE BUT NO CIGAR — California Angels third baseman Doug DeCinces gets some help from his teammates as he goes after a foul ball by Roy Howell Wednesday night in Anaheim. DeCinces couldn't reach the fifth inning pop foul but the Angels didn't need the out to take a 4-2 victory over Milwaukee and a 2-0 lead over the Brewers in the American League Championships.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Kison was the forgotten man of the California pitching staff during much of the 1982 season. But come September, the lanky right-hander was rediscovered. And come October, he's hurled the Angels to within one game of the World Series.

Kison fired a brilliant five-hitter and retired the final 13 batters he faced Wednesday night as the Angels took a 2-0 lead over Milwaukee in the American League Championship Series by beating the Brewers 4-2.

The teams weren't scheduled today with the best-of-five series moving to Milwaukee for Game Three on Friday. Left-hander Geoff Zahn will attempt to complete a California sweep against Milwaukee right-hander Don Sutton.

Fourth and fifth games, if necessary, will be played Saturday and Sunday, respectively. But the Brewers have to win Friday or their season is over.

And their challenge is obvious considering no team in the 13-year history of league playoffs has ever come back to win from an 0-2 deficit.

Kison, who didn't start a game for the Angels between June 22, when he was sidelined briefly after a line drive by Johnny Grubb of Texas hit him in the leg, and Sept. 14.

When he did return, it was to the bullpen, where he made 16 relief appearances after angrily rejecting a suggestion that he pitch himself into shape in the minor leagues.

The trouble didn't stop there for the 32-year-old Kison, who was rumored to be on the trading block. At one point, it was reported that he was going to the New York Yankees in exchange for Tommy John, whom the Angels later acquired for three minor leaguers.

"I don't put a lot of emphasis on rumors, reports or sources close to the team," said Kison. "I'm sure my name was brought up, but until something happens, a ballplayer doesn't have any control over it. So rather than get myself mentally exhausted over it, I just kept pitching."

When he returned to the Angels' rotation after 82 days without a start, he didn't blow the opportunity, shutting out the Chicago White Sox. He won two more games before the end of the regular season, enhancing his reputation as a superb September performer.

"For many years with Pittsburgh, I had the fortune, the opportunity, the chance to play with a ballclub in a pennant race," said Kison. "That's the only reason I can think of for my September record."

The Brewers could probably think of another reason after being stymied for the second straight night by a veteran California pitcher; John limited Milwaukee to seven hits in an 8-3 victory by the Angels Tuesday night.

"Bruce pitched a great game, that's all there is to it," said losing pitcher Pete Vuckovich, who wasn't bad himself, yielding only six hits, none of them after the fourth inning. "A great September pitcher beat us."

Kison wasn't the only player with a late-season reputation to inflict damage on the Brewers. Reggie Jackson, the Angels' Mr. October, broke one playoff record and tied a league playoff mark with a booming homer to straightaway center in the third inning.

The blow gave him 18 playoff RBIs, breaking the record he shared with former New York Yankees teammate Graig Nettles, and six homers in league championship play, tying him with George Brett of Kansas City.

Afterward, Jackson was asked if he deserved the title "Mr. October."

He replied: "I'd like to share it with the whole ball club. Just send me the check."

Jackson's homer gave the Angels a 3-0 lead. They had scored twice in the second inning on Tim Lincecum's bases-loaded single to left and Bob Boone's suicide squeeze bunt.

The Angels made it 4-0 in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Boone. The Brewers got their runs in the fifth on one of two hits by Charlie Moore and a two-out, two-run inside-the-park homer by Paul Molitor.

Moore was at second when Molitor lined what appeared to be a sharp single to center. However, California's Fred Lynn failed in an attempt to catch the ball at his shoetops and while right fielder Jackson chased the ball down at the center field fence, Molitor circled the bases with only the second inside-the-park homer in league playoff history. Nettles hit the other one in 1980.

But that was it for Milwaukee as Kison, who walked none and struck out eight, didn't allow the Brewers to get another runner on base.

"He threw a hell of a game," said Moore. "He got his pitches where he wanted them, mixed them up very well and made us chase a lot of bad balls."

"He's a very deceptive pitcher with a deceptive motion," said Molitor, who also mentioned that the Brewers went after several pitches out of the strike zone.

Vuckovich blamed himself for the loss, saying, "Coming out of the chute, I put us down. I've got to take the blame, it's that simple."

Faced with having to win three straight games, the Brewers still expressed hope.

Cards, Braves to try it again

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A restart is pending, but Manager Whitey Herzog says his St. Louis Cardinals already have an edge over the Atlanta Braves in the National League Championship Series.

"We were one run down. Any time you're one run down and get rained out, it's to your advantage," said Herzog following Wednesday's weathered-out opener to the best-of-five series. "There's no doubt it's a break for us."

While Herzog counted his blessings, Atlanta counterpart Joe Torre had trouble accepting the timing of home plate umpire Billy Williams' decision to suspend play.

"I don't think the game would have been called that quickly during the regular season," said Torre after watching his Braves hold a 1-0 with one out in the bottom of the fifth inning when play was stopped. "I have no animosity. It's a playoff game, and he knew they wanted to complete it."

Probably disappointing the Atlanta manager the most was the groove into which knuckballer Phil Niekro had settled just before the rains struck with the game just two outs short of being official.

Niekro, rocky at the start, wiggled out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the St. Louis first. He also survived Lonnie Smith's two-out triple in the third because Tommy Herr, the Cards' leadoff batter, was caught stealing after a single.

Williams, an umpiring veteran of 20 major league campaigns, defended his decision to scrub the contest after Ozzie Smith grounded out to start the St. Louis fifth.

"I didn't want anyone criticizing, whether it be the umpires or anybody else, that we played just to get two outs," Williams said. "I would have handled the situation the same — whether it was 0-0, 10-0 or, as it was, 1-0."

A heavy downpour ensued once the teams had left the field. About 2½ hours later, when it failed to subside, Williams ordered the game played over at 7:15, CDT, tonight. Niekro, a 43-year-old pitcher who had waited since 1969 for a return to the NL playoffs, made no effort to disguise his dejection.

"I think any pitcher would be disappointed at being that close," said Niekro in respect to the baseball rule that robbed him of victory. "It's been 13 years. I could have waited four or five more hours."

Herzog said Niekro's absence on the mound for the Braves, possibly until Saturday, would work to his club's advantage.

"I'd have to say it favors the Cardinals. It favors us because Niekro can (now) pitch one time," the St. Louis (See 'Cards get' on page 3-B)

Trevino is healthy for LaJet

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Lee Trevino's rags-to-riches career, a saga that has become a part of the American sports legend, was in jeopardy until his solid performance in the Texas Open.

He was — going into the San Antonio event a week ago — considering instant retirement from the game he has played with such flair and flavor.

"That's probably the biggest test I've had since I've been playing golf," Trevino told The Associated Press before teeing off today in the first round of the $350,000 LaJet Classic.

"If I had played in pain again, if the pain wasn't gone, if the problem hadn't been corrected, I probably would have retired, and retired this year," Trevino said.

Those thoughts are gone, however. Surgery, performed in August, to correct a pinched nerve in the back which produced constant pain, proved to be successful. There was no pain in the back. And Trevino, winner of five major championships, a member of the World Golf Hall of Fame and one of the most popular players golf has ever known, had one of his best performances of the year.

He shot a 6-under-par 274, closing it out with a final-round 64, his best of the season. He tied for 18th and won $2,519, the first check he'd won in three months.

"Hell, if I'd putted a little better Friday and Saturday (he had 69 putts for the two days) I could have won the tournament," said Trevino, whose last tour title came more than a year ago in the Tournament of Champions.

This season has been the worst of his career, the result of that painful pinched nerve that occurred shortly after his last victory in May of 1981.

"The pain was constant," he said. "It took me two hours after I got up in the morning before I could tie my shoes. I couldn't practice. I couldn't play. All I could do was crawl off the golf course and go lay down."

Other major standouts include the holders of the game's four major titles, Tom Watson (U.S. and British Opens), Craig Stadler (Masters) and Ray Floyd (PGA), along with defending champion Tom Weiskopf, Jay Haas, winner of his last two starts, and two men who have won three times this season, Lanny Wadkins and Bob Gilder.

OU's Wilson healing up for Saturday's Texas game

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Senior tailback Stanley Wilson returned to practice as Oklahoma continued preparations for its game Saturday against 13th-ranked Texas in Dallas.

Wilson, who had been sidelined with a separated shoulder suffered in the Iowa State game, did not take part in contact drills during practice Wednesday, but did work out with the Sooners' offensive unit.

Coach Barry Switzer appeared pleased with his team's practice efforts.

"We had a better practice today than we did on Tuesday. Our attitude and spirit seem to be picking up, just as it always does for the Texas game," Switzer said.

Defensive end Kevin Murphy was limited in practice due to a sore knee, but the rest of the Sooners injured appeared to be healed.

Linebacker Thomas Benson and noseguard John Blake, who were slowed last week due to injuries, should be available for full duty Saturday.

Switzer said that while the injury situation seems to be improving, he still is concerned about some of his key personnel.

"It looks like everybody is starting to heal up, but you can't really tell in limited contact situations," he said. "Murphy has been playing well for us and we need him at full strength. Wilson looks like he's moving okay, but it's difficult to see how well he is until someone hits him."

Sense of urgency seen as strike erases more games

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pro football strike is in its 17th day with no end in sight, no new talks in the offing and the time ripe for one side to do something dramatic to end the impasse.

The growing urgency for a breakthrough became apparent Wednesday when the National Football League announced formally that the upcoming weekend's games had been called off. It was an announcement that also had been made for each of the two previous weeks, but this time there was an added note. League officials said they will attempt to reschedule only two weeks of strike-victimized games.

"Since three regular-season games have not been able to be played and in view of previous announcements that a maximum of two weekends of games could possibly be made up in the event of a prompt settlement, this means at least one weekend of games has been lost for the season," the NFL said.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle and other league officials have said there was sentiment among owners not to resume the season unless at least 13 of the 16 scheduled games could be played.

Hours after the league had called off this weekend's games, the NFL Management Council, the club owners' negotiators, spurned the union's offer to resume negotiations later this week.

In a message to the union, the management negotiators said further talks "would produce no constructive results" while the union's demand for a wage scale remained on the table. The wage scale has been the major obstacle in the negotiations and triggered the first in-season walkout in the league's 63-year history.

Union chief Ed Garvey and his aides failed to sell the wage scale concept to the management council's executive committee, consisting of six club owners, Tuesday in what was billed as a non-negotiating meeting. The club owners have avoided the bargaining table despite calls from the union for their presence.

Wednesday night, the management council said the owners had not changed their position to leave the bargaining to negotiator Jack Donlan and the council.

There have been no official negotiations since last Saturday when three days of talks ended with no hopeful signs apparent.

Garvey is pictured by his aides as ready to submit the dispute to private mediation, while Donlan continued to call for federal mediation.

Though the two sides were not battling across a bargaining table, their courtroom skirmishes continued. A federal judge on Wednesday barred teams from filing suit at the state level to block the participation of their players in a series of union-sponsored all-star games.

At the same time, he denied a union request for a temporary injunction to prohibit the teams from interfering with the union games. U.S. District Court Judge John Garrett Penn said that temporary restraining orders obtained by five clubs in state courts were invalid and that any further litigation by the league or the individual clubs would have to be filed in federal court here.

Penn's ruling brought to an immediate halt the legal efforts of Dallas, Philadelphia, Buffalo, St. Louis and Miami to use state courts to bar their players from the all-star games.

On Tuesday, facing a steadily rising number of lawsuits filed by teams around the league, the union postponed the first game of the 20-game series, to be played here at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, from this Sunday to Oct. 17.

Heartened by Penn's decision, Doug Allen, a union official proclaimed, "We are going ahead with the games."

"It is a major step forward," said Garvey. "We have at least forced them to centralize the battle."

Penn said the public's interest would not be served by "piecemeal litigation."

Allen said the ruling would "end the harassment of players in the field."

Wednesday evening, NFL attorneys filed notice in U.S. Court of Appeal of their intention to file an appeal in hopes of overturning the decision.

Attorneys for the league were especially upset with Penn's failure to rule, at this time, that all portions of the players' contracts were valid.

"I'm disappointed and surprised at the judge's ruling that he couldn't enforce the contracts," NFL attorney James McKay said.

Union attorneys had argued that those portions of the individually-negotiated contracts that barred players in participating in non-sanctioned league games had been invalidated by the expiration of the union's collective bargaining agreement with the league on July 15.

While he denied the union's request for a temporary restraining order to bar the owners' attempts to halt the all-star games, Penn said that while it was premature to rule on the question of the contracts, "substantial issues" have been raised to question their validity.

Herzog doesn't like Niekro's motion

ST. LOUIS (AP) — What his hitters have been unable to pick up in Phil Niekro's pitches, says Whitey Herzog, umpires should be able to discern in the Atlanta Braves veteran's delivery.

The St. Louis Cardinals manager voiced his claim after Wednesday's rained-out opener of the National League Championship Series, insisting the Atlanta Braves hurler balked "at least seven or eight times." Not surprisingly, his opinion spurred dissent.

"If you watch the replays, I think you'd have to say he didn't stop," said Herzog after studying Niekro's consistently quick moves toward home plate, one leading off the stretch to Tommy Herr's being thrown out during an attempted steal in the third inning.

"Rule 8.05, Paragraph M in the rulebook is very explicit about that. It says the pitcher has to completely stop," Herzog said. "There's no doubt in my mind with Tommy he didn't stop. But he's been doing it for years."

Niekro, in response to Herzog's charge, said simply, "I don't know of a pitcher in baseball that hasn't been called for a balk."

"I've been doing it for 18 years (in the majors) and 24 total," the 43-year-old knuckleballer said, however. "It (motion) is the same I've been doing in the past."

Siding with Niekro was plate umpire Billy Williams, who said he discussed the Atlanta hurler's deliveries with fellow arbiters during the contest.

"His stop was good enough for them, as it was for myself," said Williams, "and I told Whitey. It's aimed at our judgment if he came to a complete stop. Some pitchers in throwing are coming down and lifting their leg — which is a balk."

Unable to win disputes at home plate with Williams after Herr was thrown out and while Keith Hernandez of St. Louis was batting in the first inning, Herzog remained adamant nonetheless.

"They've got different rules and rules for different pitchers, that's all," the Cards' pilot said. "If my pitchers failed to stop, they'd all be called for balks."

pilot said. "We're going to lose our best pitcher (Joaquin Andujar), too. You're saying that that game was going to end 1-0, but I'm not sure it would."

A decision on when Andujar will next pitch will hinge on the outcome of tonight's rescheduled first game at Busch Stadium and Friday night's second game in the best-of-five series, also in St. Louis, said Herzog.

St. Louis veteran Bob Forsch, 15-9, will oppose Atlanta rookie Pascual Perez, 4-4, tonight. Torre said Niekro may return Saturday, when the postseason confrontation shifts to Atlanta Stadium.

"Whenever he wants me to pitch again I'll be at the ballpark," said Niekro. "I've come back the day after sometimes. When you get to this point in your career, I don't think it really matters."

If Niekro was unhappy, the emotion expressed by St. Louis third baseman Ken Oberkfell was the opposite.

Oberkfell, asked if the rainout were a break for the Cards, replied: "I don't know. We'll find out. I'm not complaining."

Niekro, who was forced to mix his dancing knuckleballs with fastballs and sinkers to keep St. Louis off the scoreboard in the early innings, held a slim edge over Andujar.

Atlanta's run came in the first inning. After Claudell

Washington hammered a leadoff double to left-center, Rafael Ramirez sacrificed and Chris Chambliss singled home Washington following Dale Murphy's groundout.

"It wasn't going to be a five-inning game anyway," said Chambliss philosophically. "Knucksie (Niekro) could've pitched a shutout or they could."

Atlanta third baseman Bob Horner also refused to identify umpire Williams as a culprit.

"Somebody had to make a judgment. It was fixing to rain hard," said Horner. "I'm going to put it out of my mind and just go out and play tomorrow."

Today's forecast was for partly sunny skies and no rain as the two clubs prepared to start over after being victimized by only the third rainout in NLCS history.

It also was the first contest washed out at Busch Stadium since June 23, 1979. Last year's fifth game of the NL playoff between Montreal and Los Angeles was set back by rain, as was a 1973 game between Oakland and Baltimore in the American League.

Torre, in lamenting further the Atlanta cause, said, "I just know two outs should have been given a chance to be gotten, but I'm not bitter about it."

Said Herzog: "If we'd had a 2-1 lead with two outs in the fifth inning, it would have been a ballgame. We've played the game as is for 100 years, and it's just something that can't be resolved."

Teagle discovers tough Rocket negotiations

HOUSTON (AP) — Terry Teagle's dream of playing for the Houston Rockets in the National Basketball Association may have come true a few years too late.

Instead of cashing in his first-round selection to become an instant millionaire, Teagle is discovering the Rockets' management is taking an austere approach to negotiations.

Rockets President Ray Patterson recently completed high-stakes negotiations on former center Moses Malone's contract and says he's not about to be swayed by a rookie who has never bounced a ball in an NBA game.

"If the Rockets are not going to be pressured into giving big sums of money to Malone, we are certainly not going to be pressured by Terry Teagle," Patterson said. "I feel that what we have offered him is in line with salaries around the league and it's going to stand up."

Teagle continues to work out alone at a YMCA while Patterson and agent Lance Luchnick haggle over Teagle's contract.

Disputes halts work for Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee stopped refurbishing work at the city's Memorial Coliseum because of a dispute with the Coliseum Commission over alleged conflicts in its contract with the Oakland Raiders, Los Angeles County Supervisor Pete Schabarum revealed Wednesday.

Schabarum released a July 9 letter from Olympic General Manager Harry L. Usher to M.J. Frankovich, president of the Coliseum Commission. It said the Olympics committee believes its 1980 contract gives it control over all coliseum facilities during the 1984 summer games, including special boxes to be constructed for the National Football League team.

Usher contended the Coliseum Commission later agreed to split Olympic box ticket revenue with the Raiders in violation of that contract.

"We negotiated our contract in good faith with the Coliseum Commission two years ago and we assume the Coliseum Commission is going to honor our agreement," Usher said.

Schabarum noted that one critical work stoppage in the multi-million dollar renovation involved electrical improvements to ensure enough power for more sophisticated scoreboards to be used both by the Raiders and during the Olympics.

On Wednesday, Frankovich said commissioners want Olympic officials to discuss the issue directly with Raiders' managing general partner Al Davis. The Coliseum commission has no direct control over the boxes, he said.

Frankovich and another commissioner, Stan Sanders, maintained the work stoppage and admitted lack of negotiations wasn't serious because renovations were expected to be interrupted anyway for reasons they didn't specify.

the teams have split five-and-five with the winner in seven of those games decided by a seven points or less. Bears led Houston 21-0 last week before Cougars came back to secure 21-21 tie. SMU went 4-0 and won eighth straight with 38-10 whipping of North Texas, in a game that featured the longest pass play in South-west Conference history (96 yards from Jeff Courtwright to Craig James). Mustangs lead SWC in total offense (433.5) and rushing (347.2) while Bears are eighth in total defense (387.2) and ninth against the rush (224.5). Bears' Alfred Anderson fifth in SWC rushing (92.5 yards per game), behind conference leader Dickerson (171.7), who's second nationally. SMU quarterback Lance McIlhenny expected to start after missing North Texas game with foot injury.

Texas Tech (2-2, 1-1 in SWC), 2 p.m. CDT - Both teams seeking second consecutive SWC win in the 26th renewal of the series. Razorbacks dominate the rivalry with 21 victories and have never lost to Tech in Fayetteville. Red Raiders facing second SWC road game, after taking first conference win in two years, a 24-15 decision over Texas A&M. QB Jim Hart led Tech's third quarter surge with three TD passes to overcome an 8-0 halftime deficit, running back Anthony Hutchison also aided the cause, totaling 132 yards against the Aggies' conference-leading rushing defense. Arkansas defense started in the second shutout of the season, a 35-0 win over TCU, allowing the Horned Frogs only 65 yards total offense and two first downs.

Hogs lead the SWC in total defense, giving up 3.9 yards per play, and rushing defense with a 82 yard-per-game yard index. UA defense was key in '81 contest versus Tech as linebacker Teddy Morris' fourth-quarter interception TD sealed the 26-14 win for Arkansas. Offensively, Hogs rely on QB duo of Brad Taylor and Tom Jones, third and fourth, respectively, in SWC passing stats and running back Gary Anderson who returned to the line-up against TCU.

SMU (4-0, 1-0 in SWC) at Baylor (2-1, 1-0 in SWC), 7 p.m. CDT - SMU leads in the 64-game series 32-25-7 but you couldn't tell it from the last ten years when

Duttine: Masterful actor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "To Serve Them All My Days" opens the 12th season of "Masterpiece Theatre" Sunday on public television. The 13-part miniseries is based on the novel by R.F. Delderfield.

John Duttine stars as an idealist teacher, discharged from the army for shellshock, who arrives at an English boys' school after World War I.

Duttine was voted Britain's best television actor in 1981 for his role as David Powlett-Jones, the Welsh miner's son who goes from the trenches of the Western Front to a remote school as an "unqualified" history teacher.

"The biggest influence in his life is the headmaster who is there when he arrives," says Duttine, who was interviewed on his first visit to the United States.

"He comes home from the war badly shellshocked and lost. He fought in a war he didn't understand, and he was deeply moved by the death and horror he saw," the actor says.

He's also lost because his Welsh mining background hardly qualifies him for the environment of an upper-class boys school.

The headmaster is played by Frank Middlemass, who was Marmeladov in a previous Public Broadcasting Service presentation of "Crime and Punishment."

The three women in David's life are his first wife, Beth, played by Belinda Lang, Julia Darbyshire (Kim Braden), a teacher with whom he has a romance, and Christine Forster (Susan Jameson), a would-be socialist politician who finally brings him happiness.

Charles Kay plays Alcock, an arrogant, pedantic bigot who later becomes headmaster.

The series was partially filmed in Wales, and the school was in Dorset.

"It was toward the end of the term, so we got to use some of the boys," Duttine says. "We taped this instead of filming it, so I think our crew was more used to sports than drama. We had a rugby match in the first episode which I think they enjoyed very much."

Duttine says he had worked with the director, Ronald Wilson, on three other occasions, and Wilson called him and asked him to read for the part.

"I'm grateful that he thought of me, especially since I'm not Welsh," the actor says. "I had to cultivate an accent quite quickly. I had a dialogue coach and the man who plays my brother is Welsh. I started with a strong accent and it moderated. I didn't want to lose it entirely and I had a bit of a battle about it."

Duttine, who lives in London with his wife and two-year-old son, was John the Evangelist in the NBC miniseries "Jesus of Nazareth." He recently completed a starring role as a terrorist in the movie "Who Dares Wins," about England's crack SAS troops.

He has starred in numerous British productions and plays a newspaperman in his own series, "The Outsider."

Duttine has had no experience with England's public schools, as private schools are called in Britain. In fact, he professes not to be academic at all.

"The one passion I had in school was acting," he says. "There was one teacher who thought I might make a go of it. I spent my last years in school doing every play I could."

'The one passion I had in school was acting. I spent my last year in school doing every play I could.'

His first job after drama school was playing three characters in "Hamlet" for the Citizens Theatre Company in Glasgow, Scotland.

Duttine was born and raised in Yorkshire, and it's there that he does "The Outsider."

"It's very provincial and I play a man who comes in from London and becomes a newspaper editor," he says. "Southerners are regarded with suspicion in Yorkshire."

MASTERFUL ACTOR — John Duttine, voted Britain's best television actor in 1981, returns to the PBS screen Oct. 10 in the 13-week "Masterpiece Theater."

Stage workers and producers in agreement

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Behind-the-camera movie workers and producers reached a tentative agreement early today on a new contract, averting a threatened strike that could have halted production of motion pictures and most prime-time television programs.

The three-year agreement for the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and the basic crafts unions was reached with the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers after 10 hours of bargaining.

The new agreement, retroactive to Aug. 1, calls for an initial 6 percent wage increase followed by a 4 percent raise on Feb. 1, 1983, and 7 percent more on Aug. 1, 1983, and Aug. 1, 1984, for a total 26.2 percent increase compounded over the length of the contract, said union spokesman Mac St. Johns.

Mail ballots will be sent to 20,000 IATSE members and the 7,000 members of the basic crafts, with the ballots due to be returned 10 days later, St. Johns said.

The contract also calls for increases in health and welfare benefits.

Earlier, union president Walter Diehl had warned that Wednesday's meeting would be the last unless progress was made, raising fears of the third major walkout against the motion picture industry in two years. Actors struck in 1980 and writers struck in 1981.

The union's 23 locals represent cameramen, art directors, soundmen, makeup artists, grips, electricians, scenic and title artists, and other behind-the-scene production workers.

New stunts, new records: same ol' Guinness formula

NEW YORK (AP) — Records are made to be broken, whether by the woman who ate 100 yards of spaghetti in less than 28 seconds or the man facing a 10,000-year prison stretch.

And when they are, the annual "Guinness Book of World Records" is there to preserve them in all their glory or oddity.

The familiar circus sideshow of the fattest and shortest remains in the new edition released yesterday.

But the 1983 version adds the happy achievements of Salus and Minnie Newquist of Ft. Smith, Ark., for their 82nd wedding anniversary; and the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, the Notre Dame University president whose 90th honorary degree outdid the previous record of 89 set by the late President Herbert Hoover.

Dudley Wayne Kyzer of Tuscaloosa, Ala., earned a mention that he probably doesn't want. He owns the world's longest prison sentence — 10,000 years for a triple murder.

Presumably happier at her own length-related entry was Donna Maiello, who munched her 100 yards of spaghetti at Ann and Tony's Restaurant in New York City on May 22.

The book, which has just passed its 28th anniversary and is in the 21st U.S. edition, claims a record of its own. General editor Norris McWhirter writes in the preface that "global sale of this book in 23 languages has now become the highest of any copyright book, fiction or non-fiction."

Belgian-born Sheila Dena Al-Fassi, 23, made the newest Guinness edition by filing a record $3 billion alimony claim in Los Angeles last February against Sheik Mohammed Al-Fassi, 28.

A less dubious honor went to Broadway's Marian Seldes, dubbed "most durable actress" after she appeared in all 1,793 performances of "Deathtrap" during its four-year run.

There also were new stunts in this year's version. Mel Robson, 40, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, won a record for blowing up a meteorological balloon to a diameter of eight feet in 1 hour, 46 minutes last March 11.

And Dave Sheriff of Rugby, England played his one-man band into the record book last Jan. 25-27. The band — at least three instruments played at the same time — played on and on, for 50 hours and 48 seconds.

Skipping along, Guinness says Steven Couch and Graham Clarke of Chelmsford, England, were in the longest recorded hopscotch marathon, 90 hours in May.

Howard College celebrated its 36th anniversary September 30. President Hays decided that was an appropriate time to have a caucus of community leaders to give input and ideas for strengthening Howard College's role in the community. The caucus was held Friday with a good cross-section of our people represented. Two highlights of the day's activities were the brand new slide presentation about the history of the college, and the entertainment at lunch by the New Dimensions, the college musical group led by Joe Whitten. Note to club program chairpersons: contact Joe Whitten or Linda Woodley to have the slide presentation or music group for your club program.

Barbara Claxton, president of the City Council PTA, just presided over a very successful District 17 PTA Workshop at which 108 parents and educators registered. Ninety of these were from out of town, coming from as far away as Alpine and Monahans to hear topics discussed ranging from assertive discipline to communications between child and parents.

Julia Shirey is an example that just one person can make a difference. Last week, Julia was frustrated by the lack of outward evidence of spirit toward the high school football program. She sat down and thought it over and decided to take the initiative. She mounted a one-woman campaign to CATCH THE STEER SPIRIT. She got a map of the city, pinpointed someone she knew in every neighborhood, then, all by herself, began calling and asking them to buy a roll of black and gold crepe paper and put it in their mailbox, light fixture or some object in their front yard and in the front yard of 15 neighbors. She received the commitment they would do this by today from 70 people. These 70, by tonight, will have strung crepe paper streamers in front of 1120 homes. One person's enthusiasm and commitment does make a difference.

The University of Texas Board of Regents will meet in Arlington Friday to take action on whether to recommend that UTPB become a four-year institution.

The Internal Revenue Service has just released statistics that reveal the number of small businesses owned by women is on the rise, increasing almost seven percent from 1979 to 1980. As of 1980 22 percent of all sole proprietorships were owned by women.

The committee will begin meeting soon to work on the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce community awards which include Man and Woman of the Year. If you have suggestions, call one of the committee members: Sidney Clark, John Taylor, Mary Joy Cowper, Granville Hahn, or Annie Matt Angel.

The Chamber board voted at its last meeting to become a part of the BizNet, a new telecommunications network transmitted from the National Chamber's Washington headquarters via the RCA communications satellite Satcom IV. BizNet subscribers have their own "dish" receivers and has the added feature of two-way communication. This means that members of the audience can question speakers via audio hookup in certain situations. BizNet is already on the way to becoming a major force in the way business communicates and affects political and public policy decisions. Scheduled programming began this month and is exclusively business-oriented. It includes news reports, analyses, political projections, international trade information, small business reports, appearances by top government officials discussing priority issues, the status of litigations, information on effective management of state and local chambers of commerce, and reports on legislative activity at the state and local level.

The network came about in part from the manner in which the established news media deal with business topics. It was not that business was being covered unfairly, but that the coverage was not extensive enough. This network gives business people the needed in-depth information and communications outlet.

Watch for more information about our involvement and our opportunities through the BizNet system.

Congratulations to Hooper Sanders who just celebrated his 25th year of service with Texas Electric Service Company. A luncheon was held in his honor Thursday by his associates at TESCO.

Rebekahs hear details of New York visit

Shoplifting suspects arrested

C-City ponders water treatment

The Big Spring Rebekah Lodge 284 met recently with Mabel Morrison, noble grand, presiding.

Sherri Wilson, secretary, read a letter from Sherri Bordofske of the United Way. Mrs. Bordofske requested permission to discuss the United Way drive with members of the Rebekahs.

Serving on the refreshment committee were June Wiggins, Margi Norwood, Timmie McCormick, Agnes White, Fay Gill and Frances Powell. It was announced that October birthdays will be celebrated Tuesday after the regular meeting.

The Stanton Rebekah Lodge 287 invited District Deputy President, Myrtle Gring, and local members to attend a meeting in Stanton Oct. 11. Plans were made to attend.

Mrs. Wiggins, lodge deputy, gave a school of instruction.

At a recent meeting, members of the Rebekahs heard Diana Johnson and George Bancroft discuss a visit to the United Nations in New York, Washington D.C., and Niagra Falls. The Rebekahs supported the two on the trip.

Police said they arrested three people yesterday in connection with shoplifting incidents at local stores.

A Gibson's employee, 17-year-old Martha Ann Vanderbilt of 1001 N.W. Fourth, was arrested about 8:15 p.m. on suspicion of theft over $5. Ms. Vanderbilt was transferred to Howard County jail after Peace Justice Bobby West set bond at $1,000, police said.

The suspect apparently had picked up a six-ounce bottle of Jontue cologne from the store's shelves, put it in her pants pocket and hid it in her work locker, police reports said.

Another 17-year-old female, Donna Carol Christensen of 1801 Settles, was arrested about 3:40 p.m. at Furr's Supermarket, 900 E. 11th Place, on suspicion of theft under $5, police said. Police said Ms. Christensen was released after paying a $50 bond.

She was arrested after security guard Randel Clark told police he detained the suspect at Furr's because he saw her place about $5 worth of makeup in her pants, police reports said.

Police said they also arrested Sandy Ceasel Chrisley, 29, of Route 4, Westminster, S.C. at 6 p.m. on suspicion of theft under $5, police said.

The suspect was arrested at Giant Food Store, 611 Lamesa Highway, after someone stopped him from leaving the store with three T-bone steaks stuck in his pants, police reports said.

Police reports also showed the following:

- Chester Frank Cordes, 40, of 1300 Ridgeroad was arrested about 1:38 a.m. today on suspicion of driving while intoxicated on the 300 block of Goliad. Cordes was transferred to county jail on $1,000 bond.

- Three San Antonio men were arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of soliciting without a permit on the 1300 block of Kindle.
- The three were Jeffrey Glenn Brooks, 18, of Route 8 Box 53; Oscar Esteban Andino Jr., 20, of 5102 Hitting Trail; and Mark Lynn Fulton, 19, of 314 W. El Monte. Andino was released yesterday after paying a $200 bond, police said.
- Someone forged and passed a stolen $330 social security check at Safeway, 1300 Gregg.
- Terry Bates of Route 2, Caldwell, Idaho, said someone stole a brown suitcase containing clothes and a shaving kit about 7:30 p.m. Monday at a 201 S. Gregg car wash. Bates said he had placed the case on the ground while he washed his pickup truck.

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Lee Head of the Fort Worth engineering firm of Freeze and Nichols presented a study of the water treatment plant when the city council wrestled with a number of problems last night.

Head stated the city's biggest problem is the distribution system, which will have to be improved to serve the community through the year 2005. With the various recommendations, the estimated cost of making those improvements is $1,750,000 over the next five to ten years.

Police chief Ed Wheat was on hand to discuss the problem of his force covering the city when one or more of the officers is out of town attending certification classes. Wheat reported several applications are on hand from persons wishing to join the reserve police force and they will be able to take certification courses in Sweetwater.

A screening committee for reserve police officers is comprised of Wheat, city manager Rick Crowley, and councilmen Robert Hoback and Jessie Munoz.

Dear Abby

Is girl developing too quickly?

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a beautiful 7-year-old daughter. Just before her fifth birthday, I started using underarm deodorant on her because she perspired like a grown woman, and the odor was unbearable.

Now we have another problem. I noticed that her breasts looked swollen. I felt them and asked her if they hurt, and she said yes, so I had to accept the fact that this was the beginning stage of breast development. I took her to a pediatrician who said she looked "normal" and there was nothing to worry about. Abby, at 7? I am about to have a nervous breakdown.

I am so afraid our little girl will become a fully developed woman too soon. She is only a baby in the first grade and she doesn't know anything about life. I often cry, worrying that the other children will start teasing her as soon as it becomes noticeable.

Please help me. Is there any way to stop this early development without hurting her?

DESPERATE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You don't say whether you live on a farm, a ranch or in a large city where you have access to a wide range of medical services. Your child should be seen by a competent endocrinologist who can explain exactly what is happening and how it should be handled, psychologically as well as medically.

Please send me your name and address, and I will refer you to the best help available near you. Please don't panic. While this is an unusual case, it is not unheard of.

DEAR ABBY: I have friends I'll call Dr. and Mrs. Johnson. I've always considered them very good friends, but now I have my doubts.

Last week I had a very nice write-up in the local newspaper. Today, while I was delivering some vegetables from my garden to her, Mrs. Johnson showed me their new litter of puppies, and lo and behold, there was my picture on the floor of the kennel with dog litter deposited on my face!

Should I be hurt?

CONFUSED IN CLARKSTON, WASH.

DEAR CONFUSED: Don't let it bother you. I'm sure my picture has been on the bottom of a lot of bird cages, and it doesn't offend me one bit.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Ready to Kill a Mockingbird in Anaheim" that there is a device on the market that will draw out not only the noise of the mockingbird, but barking dogs, loud stereos, wild parties, roaring cars, motorcycles, neighbors in their pool till all hours, bouncing tennis balls at 6 a.m. and snoring husbands.

It's an electric fan that produces a sound similar to running water or ocean tides.

OHIO BIRD-WATCHER

DEAR BIRD-WATCHER: Possibly. But it could create another problem: The sound of running water or ocean tides may find "Ready" groping his way to the bathroom all night.

DEAR ABBY: The person who is annoyed by the early morning mockingbird serenades should wear earplugs. To most of us, this marvelous songster has a repertoire that rivals having an orchestra seat at the Met.

Maybe that Anaheim grouch would be helped by a couple of highballs made with that new Mexican drink, "Tequila Mockingbird."

Howard County Fair cookbooks still on sale

Area cooks who haven't purchased a copy of the Howard County Fair Cookbook need not despair. A limited number of copies of the cookbook are still available at the County Extension Agent's office in the Howard County Courthouse.

Zula Rhodes, chairman of the women's division at the fair, said the cookbooks are being sold for $1.50 each, and the book contains more than 100 blue ribbon winners, as well as special recipes from area cooks and a section on bakery recipes. Other sections are breads and rolls, pies, cakes, candies and cookies.

There are "not too many cookbooks left" Mrs. Rhodes said, and added that someone would be in the county agent's office all this week to sell the books.

The cookbook is the culmination of many months work on the part of volunteers. Mrs. Rhodes began proofing and typing recipes last March in preparation for the fall publication of the book.

Fair officials are considering "dropping off a year" and not publishing a cookbook next year, Mrs. Rhodes said. But in the meantime, don't hesitate and miss the opportunity to obtain a copy of this year's cookbook.

Below is a sampling of the recipes which appear in the cookbook.

APRICOT NUT BREAD

Mrs. L. Z. Rhodes
Blue Ribbon, 1980
Put to soak for 20 minutes:
1 cup dried apricots, chopped

1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup orange juice
Cream together:
1 cup sugar
2 Tbsps. butter, margarine or shortening

1 egg
Sift together:
2 cups flour, all purpose
2 tsps. baking powder
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup chopped nuts

Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture and apricot mixture. Stir with spoon until well mixed. Add nuts and stir again. Place in greased and floured loaf pan 8x4x3. Bake in 350 degree oven for 65 minutes or until well done.

Hints:
Double recipe makes 3 loaves in 8x4x3 pans and seems to bake somewhat better.

Freezes well wrapped in foil — delicious and nutritious for breakfast.

Makes a super treat with cream cheese between slices.

ONE LOAF WHITE BREAD

Richard Meadows
Junior Grand Champion, 1980

1/2 cup milk
1 Tbsp. plus one tsp. sugar
2 Tbsp. margarine
1 tsp. salt
3/4 cup warm water
1 package active dry yeast
3 1/4 cups all purpose flour (sifted)

Scald milk, add margarine, sugar and salt. Cool to room temperature. Pour warm water into bowl, add yeast; dissolve thoroughly. Add room temperature milk mixture to yeast. Add 1 cup flour and mix thoroughly. Have remaining flour in bowl and add liquid ingredients. Mix with fork as much as possible and then knead with hands. Shape dough in ball. Place in greased bowl and roll the ball to grease the dough. Cover, and allow to rise until doubled in volume (about 1 1/2 hours). Punch down, fold sides to center, turn dough over. Allow to rise to doubled (40 minutes). Punch down, fold and turn. Place dough on board and allow to rest 10 minutes. Shape dough to fit into greased loaf pan. Brush with melted margarine. Cover. Allow dough to rise in loaf pan until doubled (about 30 minutes). Bake in 375 degree oven for 50 minutes. Baked loaf will sound hollow when tapped with knuckles.

Note:
Cinnamon rolls may be made with this recipe. With a small ball of dough pat out, brush with margarine, sugar, cinnamon. Roll up and bake at 375 degrees.

Dinner rolls may also be made with this recipe. Form a small ball with the dough and place in a muffin pan. Bake at 375 degrees.

SWEDISH TEA RING
Linda Alexander
Grand Champion Winner, 1980

Bread dough:
Mix together and let stand till yeast is dissolved completely:
2 cakes yeast
2 Tbsps. warm water
1 Tbsp. sugar

Mix all the ingredients below and let stand till shortening is dissolved:
1 cup shortening
1 tsp. salt
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups boiling water

Now add:
1 cup cold water

2 eggs well beaten
yeast mixture
4 cups flour
3 more cups flour

Dinner rolls:
Stir well. This will be a rather sticky dough. Cover and place in refrigerator. Take out amounts as needed and leave the rest in the refrigerator. This may be stored in the refrigerator for as long as 2 weeks. Roll out to about 1/2 inch thickness and cut with cutter dipped in flour. Dip the dough into melted butter.

Bake in a 400 degree oven for about 25 minutes or until they are a nice golden brown.

Ring:
The amount of dough used is determined by this size ring you want. I usually make 12-18 dinner rolls and a tea ring with the recipe.

To form the tea ring, roll the dough out about 1/2 inch thickness in a rectangular shape. Melt a half stick of margarine and pour it over the dough. Put a cinnamon-sugar mixture over the margarine. I usually use about a half cup of sugar to 1-2 tablespoons of cinnamon. Roll the dough lengthwise.

Turn the ends together and press to seal. Now the dough is in a circle, take a pair of scissors and clip 23 through in about 2 inch sections. Turn the sections a little on their sides, until it looks like a ring all around. Let rise 2 hours. Bake in oven for 30-40 minutes or until brown.

Decorate with frosting, nuts and cherries. I make a glaze of powdered sugar and a little milk, until it is the consistency you want for a glaze.

STRAWBERRY RHUBARB CUSTARD PIE

Betty Roberts
Grand Champion, 1980
2 cups cut rhubarb
1 cup sugar
2 cups strawberries, sliced
2 eggs
2 level Tbsps. flour

pinch of cinnamon
1/2 tsp. salt
Mix dry ingredients together and mix with beaten eggs. Fold in sliced strawberries and rhubarb which has been cut into fairly small pieces. Pour the combined mixture into a pie shell. Cover top with "regular" pie crust and crimp edges or sprinkle topping generously over the top and bake in 425 degree F. oven for 40 to 50 minutes. If using the crumb topping, I use strips of aluminum foil (shiny side in) around the edge of the crust and partially over the top of the pie because it gets browner than I prefer it to be at this temperature for the required length of time. Remove the aluminum foil the last 15-20 minutes.

CRUMB TOPPING

1/2 cup to 1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)
1/2 to 1 cup all purpose flour
1/2 tsp. cinnamon

"KALEIDOSCOPE" CHEMISTRY — Sands native Norma Caballero, left, and co-host Devin Duncan are launching careers in television journalism on "Kaleidoscope," a news show produced by SPC-TV at South Plains College in Levelland.

Sands grad learns ropes of TV news

She's not Barbara Walters yet. But Sands High School graduate Norma Caballero isn't worried. As the new co-host for South Plains College-TV's magazine-style talk show "Kaleidoscope," she may be on the brink of a career in broadcast journalism.

Miss Caballero, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Caballero of Knott Route in Big Spring, made her television debut Monday night, along with 1982 Reagan County High School graduate Devin Duncan, on cable channels in the Levelland area.

The show spotlights events in the Levelland area using a magazine-style presentation instead of the usual talking heads format.

Miss Caballero came to the program through radio. While at Sands High School she worked weekends and fulltime at KFNE (now KWKI) and KBYG radio stations in Big Spring.

"I had been at work an hour, totally green from lack of experience, when someone handed me a key and said, 'You sign on tomorrow,'" she recalls. But despite her inexperience she says she quickly caught on to the mechanics of radio, doing commercials, compiling news, weather and sports from United Press International and operating a reel-to-reel tape machine.

The experience came in handy as she had to audition for the "Kaleidoscope" spots. Vickie Edwards, publications assistant and co-sponsor for the program, said the co-hosts were picked "on the basis of poise, the ability to easily carry on a conversation and to look comfortable on camera."

Miss Caballero says she is not more aggressive than her co-host, but she is louder. She says she leans toward the Barbara Walters approach to interviewing.
