

Jobless rate tops 10%

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment nationwide hit 10.1 percent in September, the first time the double-digit plateau has been breached since America was emerging from the Great Depression in 1940, the government reported today.

After months of steadily rising joblessness, which eclipsed the previous post-World War II recession highs, the unemployment rate jumped 0.3 percentage point last month.

Behind that fractional rise, however, was the loss of 450,000 more jobs, said the Bureau of Labor

Statistics

Some 11.3 million Americans were out of work in September, the bureau said. And an additional 1.6 million people, a record, fell into the government's "discouraged worker" category — those who have given up trying to find jobs.

The agency also reported that the number of Americans forced to accept part-time employment, for lack of better jobs opportunities, soared to 6.6 million, another record.

Today's grim unemployment report was certain to fuel additional anti-Reagan rhetoric as Democrats campaign in the fall congressional elections, now less than a month away.

The 10.1 percent jobless rate was the highest since the nation registered an annual unemployment average of 14.6 percent in 1940.

With one in every 10 eligible people out of work in September, however, the jobless picture wasn't nearly as grim as in the depths of the Great Depression in 1933, when one in four was jobless. Then, the annual unemployment rate was 24.9 percent.

Although unemployment in the United States climbed above 10 percent today for the first time since 1940, advance fears of the high rate did not stop investors from a buying frenzy on Wall Street in the busiest day ever on the New York Stock Exchange.

City catches rain

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Big Spring was pleasantly washed early this morning by a thunderstorm that reportedly contained some light hail. The official rainfall was .45 of an inch, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture Big Spring Wind Erosion and Soil Conservation Unit.

The rain brings the yearly rainfall total to 13.63 inches, below the normal yearly 15.55 inches, an experiment station spokesman said. The USDA facility is located on Interstate 20.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District reports the pump station located north of the city received .20 of an inch. The Lake Thomas Dam facility recorded just .10 of an inch.

The Boyce Hale residence on the southwest side of Big Spring received .67 of an inch with some pea-sized hail mixed in. Over on East 13th Street, James "Red" Thomas reported .60 of an inch fell.

Elbow Elementary School reports receiving .70 of an inch at about 6:30 a.m. today. Other rainfall reports in the area show other areas were not as fortunate.

The Knott Producers Gin reported just a sprinkle of rain with no measurable precipitation. Richie Tubb at Lomax reported a trace of rain fell at around 7 a.m. today. Coahoma High School estimates the area received approximately a quarter of an inch. Forsan High School said the area received a light shower.

Steer fan is high spirited

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Although school spirit is usually left to cheerleaders, pep squads and bands, there's a movement in Big Spring to get the whole community actively supporting the Big Spring Steers.

Last week Julie Shirey, a local music teacher, started calling people she knew in neighborhoods all over town and asked them to decorate their mail boxes and yard lamps with black-and-gold crepe paper streamers. Then she requested they decorate the yards of 15 neighbors. Soon the idea of building school spirit caught on and all over town black-and-gold streamers could be seen fluttering in the wind. Approximately 1200 yards were decorated.

Parents, junior high students, townspeople and ex-football players helped string up the decorations.

"I wasn't surprised they did it. I knew they would. Most of the time people would do things like this if they were only asked to," Mrs. Shirey said. "After it got started I had people calling me saying 'no one has decorated my neighborhood yet,' so I just told them to do it themselves."

Mrs. Shirey said she received support of people "who broke their backs" in an attempt to spread the word.

JULIE SHIREY
...catching the spirit

"I worry about this town. Everybody blames the coaches or the boys and when they lose a few times the fans let down, but everybody has to get involved and support them even when they lose," she said.

Mrs. Shirey said her first calls were to people who didn't have children in the school district. "The kids know their parents are behind them, but they need the support of people who don't have any connection with the high school," she said.

She said out of 90 people she contacted only one person turned down her offer to further the school spirit cause.

Although last night's rain obliterated most of the streamers around town, Mrs. Shirey is confident the spirit lives on.

"It served its purpose and got spirit going — it was something good to do," she said.

Montford meets the people

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

It had the feel of an old-fashioned picnic. There were pretty girls, homemade ice cream and plenty of visiting going on between the people.

However, if one studied the scene closely, a man in a dark blue suit moved around the room shaking hand and exchanging pleasantries. It was a homey political rally designed to give Howard County voters a chance to meet informally with John T. Montford, D-Lubbock, a candidate for the 28th State Senatorial seat.

Montford's special guest of the night was State Senator Ray Farabee, who currently is Howard County's senator. Recent redistricting has moved Howard County out of Farabee's responsibility beginning in January 1983, but he was on hand to endorse Montford.

"It's nice to come back here to where people know the importance of politics," Farabee said. "Too many people don't care and too many counties don't understand how important it is to be involved in the political process."

Farabee urged those in attendance to look closely at the representation of Howard County and elect a candidate who is not a "single interest politician."

Shaw trailing money-wise

By Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Rep. Jerry Cockerham, R-Monahans, is the winner so far in the money race against Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring.

Both are vying for the District 69 House seat.

Shaw, who was paired with Cockerham during redistricting, reports receiving $29,846 in campaign contributions so far this year, according to reports filed this week with the secretary of state.

A bit ahead is Cockerham with contributions totaling $34,660.

The Monahans minister also is ahead slightly in the spending category. He lists total expenditures of $28,872, compared with Shaw's $22,956.

Of the money poured into Cockerham's campaign, a small part came from the Jerry Cockerham Re-election Committee. Committee treasurer Judy Nichols of Monahans reports collecting $2,215 and spending $1,728 since the group began its work in 1981.

During the period from April 16-Sept. 23, Shaw collected numerous contributions from political action committees (PACs) of special-interest groups.

Those included $2,000 from a trial lawyers' PAC; $1,000 from a PAC controlled by the manufactured housing industry in Texas; $500 each from a Texas Educators PAC, life underwriters PAC, American Petrofina employees PAC and a group of conservative businessmen in Houston; $300 each from independent auto dealers, certified public accountants and a group called Texas YAW C.A.P. Volunteer Fund Committee of Dallas; $250 each from independent bankers and the

READY FOR GARAGE SALE — These four Girl Scouts prepare for a garage sale to be held Saturday at the Westside Community Center at 1311 W. Fourth from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The girls, whose troop meets at the center, are, from left, Alicia Villa, April Diaz, Dolores Enriques and Michelle Molett. All proceeds of the sale will go to the United Way.

Westside Center more than just a place to play

(Editor's note: This is the third in a weekly series of articles about local organizations funded by the United Way.)

The Westside Community Center has been a part of the Big Spring Community since the early 1940's. It was originally started by a group of church women who saw the need for some supervised after-school recreation for the kids who lived on the westside of town, hence the name of the center.

Since that time the center has grown in many ways. The Church Women United, who had supported the center with their volunteers, money and prayers, saw an opportunity to make the Westside Center more than just a place to play, so in 1969 a board of directors of interested persons in the community was chosen and the center has been operating under a board of directors since that time. Articles of incorporation were filed with the state along with all other necessary papers to make the center a non-profit organization. Since that time it has moved into the large building now in use at 1311 W. 4th Street. (The building formerly was Webb Hospital building.)

Not only do the kids have a place to come to in the afternoons to play, but educational programs also are offered each afternoon except Mondays and Fridays. These programs include arts and crafts, choir, brownies, junior girl scouts and reading. Other programs include 4-H projects, summer programs, and cub and boy scouts "as soon as we can find a leader for these last two programs," said Mrs. Madeline Boadle, executive program director of the center.

"Since we believe in the family unit, we started the Westside Day Care Center, which now functions under its own board of directors," she said. "We offer adult programs such as the Texas Drivers License School which is taught by troopers from the Texas Department of Public Safety, Aerobic Exercise Classes, Free Blood Pressure Checks, Sewing, Cooking and any kind of informative programs to help the family in any way."

One such program will be the "Operation Tighten Up" program to be presented Oct. 14, at 7:30 p.m. by Texas Electric Service Co. "This program will show ways to tighten up your homes to save on your energy bills," Mrs. Boadle said. Also planned for early 1983 are programs for defensive driving, and a rape crisis seminar.

According to the by-laws and articles of incorporation, there is no charge on any services or programs offered by the Westside Community Center and all persons are welcome regardless of their race, creed, religion or financial status.

The center also is doing the Medicaid Medical Transportation Program for the Dept. of Human Resources. This program is transporting Medicaid recipients without means of transportation to doctors' appointments locally as well as to Stanton, Midland, Odessa and Lubbock. Recipients needing these services are asked to call 24 hours in advance to make appointments. "We do not transport emergency cases," Mrs. Boadle said.

The present board of directors include Dr. Jim Shelton, president; Steve Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Clyde Thomas, Dolores Hull, Arlyne Johnston, Dolores Norred, Margaret Brazel, Joe Dawes, Polly Mays, Willie Dee Jones, Rev. Keith Wiseman, Frog Koger, Mel Prather, Pat Dunham and Madeline Boadle. The center has one full-time worker and three part-time workers. Program volunteers are also needed and appreciated.

SPEECH CONTEST WINNERS — Stan Ray, 17, left, of Robert Lee, and Calvin Wimmer, 18, of Snyder High School, were named winners of the Farm Bureau Free Enterprise speech contest last night at La Posada restaurant. Ray is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip Ray of Robert Lee and Wimmer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wimmer of Snyder. They both advance to the state competition in pursuit of a free trip to Washington, D.C.

GOP office opens

Speeches by Rep. Jerry Cockerham and state Senate candidate Jim Reese among reams of campaign leaflets, brochures and buttons kicked off the official opening of the Howard County Republican headquarters this morning.

Howard County Republican Chairman Charles Beil told the 30 people who gathered at the 215 W. Third office that the headquarters are much needed to "render what influence we can to the public."

Reese also emphasized the importance of the Republican headquarters saying Howard County votes are vital to his election campaign. "We'll be winning or losing with what you do right here ... It's doggone important to get the work done this year."

Focalpoint

Action/Reaction: Biting question

Q. What is the difference between alligators and crocodiles?
A. One difference is alligators have shorter and broader snouts than crocodiles. A second difference is the first and fourth teeth of a crocodile protrude outside of the lower jaw while all a 'gator's teeth are covered when its jaws are closed.

Authorities probe extortion demand linked to poisonings

CHICAGO (AP) - Authorities are investigating an attempt to extort $1 million from the makers of Tylenol, but they doubt the demand was made by the person responsible for seven cyanide deaths in the Chicago area, a law enforcement source in Washington said today.

"It's a long shot that this is the work of anything other than a kook," the source said. "Our guess is its totally unrelated to whoever did the poisoning. These tag-alongs happen all the time."

The source refused to be identified either by name or department.

The Chicago Sun-Times and Chicago Tribune both reported today that a man sent a letter to the manufacturer of Extra-Strength Tylenol threatening more poisonings like those that killed seven people if a $1 million ransom wasn't paid.

The newspapers said the FBI is taking the alleged extortion attempt seriously, and has asked a bank to turn over the records of one of its customers - a Chicago businessman and formerly successful stock broker who suffered recent financial "reverses."

The newspapers and the source in Washington said the letter directed the money be put into a certain bank account in the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co.

"We just traced the bank account number and it turned out to be closed, but registered to a formerly successful stock broker who had suffered considerable financial reverses," the source said. "Nobody has proved, however, that he wrote the letter."

The source said the letter was undergoing laboratory analysis in an effort to pin down the identity of its author.

"The killings were a very subtle and secretive crime and it's doubtful that would be topped off with the flagrant ignorance of a payoff scheme with an identity attached to it," the source said. "Obviously this hasn't been totally eliminated but we are concentrating on other things. We have a lot of lead going in this case and we are not at a standstill."

In other developments in the case Thursday, Chicago police said there was no apparent connection between the cyanide death of a student in Philadelphia and seven Chicago-area deaths from cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol last week.

Where to send Tylenol

McNeil Consumer Products Co., the manufacturer of Tylenol pain reliever, has offered to exchange all Tylenol capsules, both regular or Extra-Strength, for Tylenol tablets, which have not been involved in any of the poison taintings in Illinois or California.

The company said consumers who return their full or partially empty capsule bottles will receive coupons for an equivalent bottle of tablets, along with a check for their postage costs.

The address is: Tylenol Exchange, P.O. Box 2000, Maple Plain, Minn., 55348.

Police Beat

Shotgun blast injures man

Police said an east side man received minor injuries when someone fired two shot gun rounds at the 1514-B Sycamore residence he was visiting last night.

Dennis Daugaard of 610-B E. 17th told police someone shot at the residence about 8:30 p.m. and pellets from the second blast struck him in the face, neck and shoulder. Daugaard was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital. No arrests have been made in connection with the incident.

Police reports also showed the following:

- Robert Lee Dorton, 37, of New Mexico was arrested yesterday afternoon at 800 W. Third on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, speeding, no driver's license and no liability insurance.

- Terry Lynn Kate, 27, of 805 E. Eighth was arrested yesterday afternoon at the Gregg street Safeway store on suspicion of theft over $5. She was released after paying an $85 fine.
- Julian Ramirez, 33, of 608 N.W. Third was arrested last night at 104 N.W. Fourth on suspicion of criminal trespass. He paid a $60 fine and was released.

Sheriff's Log

Deputies make bad-check arrest

Howard County sheriff's deputies say they arrested Robert T. Metz, 22, of 407 Alyford, in connection with a county warrant charging issuance of bad checks. Metz was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Bobby West and released after posting a $1,000 bond.

- Robert Lee Dorton, 37, was released after posting a $1,000 bond in connection with a city arrest for suspicion of driving while intoxicated. Dorton was arraigned before West who set the bond.

"You have to elect someone who will be concerned with Big Spring, Howard County, Howard College, the veterans hospital, industrial development and you have a great opportunity to elect John Montford, who will serve the interests of the people," Farabee said.

Montford told the crowd of 100 that he was determined to "bind together" the people of his West Texas district into a viable force in Austin.

"We have the greatest agriculture based economy in the state, we're number one in energy production and we have the top people. We're going to make those people in Austin and Dallas realize that there's still a lot of Texas west of Interstate 35," Montford said.

State settles felon-voter dispute

AUSTIN (AP) - Secretary of State Daid Dean has agreed not to "attempt to interfere with any person's right to vote" because their name appeared on an inaccurate list of felons which was sent to voter registrars.

The agreement was part of a settlement reached in a voting rights suit filed in Brownsville.

Dean said Friday he never intended for the lists to discourage minority voters. "That's absolutely against everything I'm for," he said.

Dean also said he has no plans to try again to remove convicted felons from voter rolls, at least not using the method that led to the lawsuit.

The list sent to voter registrars was compiled using the Department of Public Safety's criminal history

Telephone Co. workers, and hospital employees.

Individual contributions included a $4,052 loan from the candidate to his campaign; $2,000 from Bob J. Perry, Houston; $500 each from Cunningham Oil Co. of Big Spring and Judge Frank Sandel of Big Lake; $300 from Mr. and Mrs. B.R. Watson of Monahans; $250 each from Marianne McLaughlin Weidemann of Austin, Terry L. Schul of Crane, Harry Lucas Jr. of Houston, J.W. Thrasher Jr. of Monahans and $200 from Mr. and Mrs. Bentley B. King of Monahans.

Israel to soften its demands

By Associated Press

Israel scrapped a demand for immediate withdrawal of PLO forces still in Lebanon after the United States reportedly pressured it to compromise. But the Israelis insisted the guerrillas leave in a phased pullout along with the Israeli and Syrian armies.

At the same time, officials in Jerusalem said Thursday that Israeli forces would not complete their evacuation before the armies of Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization leave.

They also said the Israelis would not leave southern Lebanon without a security agreement with the Lebanese government.

The Maariv newspaper said Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government softened its terms in response to an appeal from Washington, where U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib is consulting with Reagan administration officials on efforts to rid Lebanon of all foreign armies.

Israel's ambassador to Washington, Moshe Arens, said Thursday that he thinks all foreign forces will leave Lebanon in three to four months. He spoke at a symposium of the Washington forum, but a State Department official said later that Arens' remarks were not based on any pullout agreement.

Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon was quoted on state radio as saying Israel would not pull out of a 25-mile-deep security zone in southern Lebanon until it completed a security agreement with the Lebanese government.

However, the broadcast said Sharon did not repeat Israel's previous insistence on a formal peace treaty with Lebanon.

Syria has an estimated 30,000 soldiers in eastern Lebanon, remnants of a force that entered in 1976 under an Arab League mandate to police the armistice following Lebanon's 18-month Moslem-Christian civil war.

The PLO is believed to have 7,000-10,000 fighters remaining in eastern and northern Lebanon, areas outside the sweep of Israel's June 6 invasion. Thousands of PLO guerrillas were evacuated from west Beirut in August and September after a protracted Israeli siege.

Israel rolled 95,000 men into Lebanon to rout PLO forces it said threatened the Jewish state's northern frontier. It is not known how many Israeli soldiers remain in Lebanon.

In Beirut, Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan unveiled his new Cabinet Thursday, made up entirely of political newcomers.

TRINKET TRIUMPH — Two campaign workers for Richard Trumka, candidate to lead the United Mine Workers, show off the trinkets they hope will induce the union's rank-and-file to vote for Trumka over incumbent Sam Church in the election next month.

Trumka's trinkets

Miner sells them to finance election

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP) — The campaign office is crowded with posters, T-shirts, hats and jackets, all for sale and all adorned with the slogan "Why Not the Best?" Rich Trumka is running for the presidency of the United Mine Workers on the proceeds.

The Trumka trinkets are part of an elaborate money-raising operation by the 33-year-old UMW lawyer who has promised to accept political contributions only from rank-and-file miners.

That promise, his campaign officials say, is one of Trumka's most powerful weapons in a bid to unseat incumbent UMW President Sam Church, who has not made a similar distinction in his fundraising.

"Who's (Church) owe when he's done?" asks Trumka campaign manager Joe Corcoran. "We're going to owe the rank and file. Sam Church is going to owe a lot of outside interests."

If Trumka succeeds, he can thank, in part, the light cast from a commemorative safety lamp for his victory.

Three of the lamps, each inscribed with "Why Not The Best," are being raffled by campaign workers. The chances are $2 each.

Clemmy Allen Jr. is behind the lamp sale and the other memorabilia that is bringing the cash into Trumka's coffers.

"We figured we would need to raise about $200,000 to run an effective campaign," said Allen, who as financial director monitors all Trumka fundraisers in each of the union's districts. "Everybody's told me that it's going to be so difficult to raise money from the rank and file. That it couldn't be done. And we've done it," he said.

Another chunk of money has come from a campaign-run lottery. Although such a lottery is illegal in Pennsylvania, where the state-run lottery is the only sanctioned one, no legal action is being contemplated by the state attorney general's office.

As of Sept. 3, the campaign had come up with $171,447, a figure that Allen said would grow to at least $200,000 by the Nov. 9 election.

Besides the hats and T-shirts, Allen is hawkling lapel buttons, jackets and chances at winning the lamps as well as a belt buckle, a gun and gun cabinet, and sets of mugs and pitchers.

Not only do the items add needed dollars for the campaign, he said, but they gain miners' allegiance to Trumka and his slate of candidates, which have been endorsed by 449 locals — to Church's 283.

"When a guy spends a $1 to buy a ticket, or $10 to buy a mug, he's making a personal commitment to the campaign," he said.

Archbishop ordered to leave U.S.

DETROIT (AP) — A deportation agreement between the U.S. government and Romanian Orthodox Archbishop Valerian Trifa, a Nazi sympathizer accused of inciting riots that killed hundreds of people during World War II, could lead to similar deals, a federal official says.

"I would hope that the other defendants will take notice," said Allan A. Ryan Jr., director of the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations.

Trifa, 68, agreed Thursday to be deported after admitting he lied to immigration authorities 32 years ago to cover up his fascist sympathies when he entered the United States.

Trifa's attorney, William Swor of Detroit, said his client would like to relocate in Switzerland. Trifa wanted to avoid "dragging it on... He's old and ill," said Swor. "It was a no-win situation."

Heinz Wey, consul at the Swiss Embassy in Washington, said he could not predict whether the archbishop's request would be granted.

"Switzerland is not very eager to accept convicted ex-Nazis," Wey said.

Trifa has denied inciting anti-Semitic violence, but acknowledged that when he entered the United States he concealed his activities in the Iron Guard, a pre-World War II anti-Semitic group.

"This is the first time in 30 years a person has been ordered deported for fascist activities... and it won't be the last," Ryan said Thursday at a news conference, following the trial that began Monday before Immigration Judge Bellino D'Ambrosio.

Ryan said his office is investigating 210 known fascist immigrants living in the United States. Twenty-five of those cases are in the courts.

The settlement requires Trifa to leave the United States within 60 days after receiving travel documents.

Trifa is the spiritual leader of the Romanian Orthodox Episcopate, a 35,000-member church based in Grass Lake, Mich.

VALERIAN TRIFA Accused of Nazi support

Harrelson placed at slaying scene

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Shortly before U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was shot in the back, a San Antonio attorney ran "smack dab into" alleged assassin Charles V. Harrelson across the driveway from where the fatal shot was fired, a prosecutor says.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn revealed Thursday in his opening statement in the trial of Harrelson and two women that lawyer Chrys Lambros would place Harrelson at the scene of the May 29, 1979 killing.

Ms. Lambros, who lived in the same luxury townhome complex as Wood, left her apartment about a hour before Wood was slain and met Harrelson in a carport area, Jahn told the newly impaneled jury.

Jahn said the government also intended to call several witnesses who saw a man fitting Harrelson's description at the DiJon Plaza townhomes the morning Wood was assassinated and a gold-colored automobile speeding from the scene.

Harrelson's attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr. of Brownsville, countered in his opening statement that his client — who previously served a 15-year state sentence for another hired killing — did not shoot Wood and that during the trial he intended to name the real killer.

Sharpe did not reveal disclose the name. U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions scheduled testimony to begin Monday and recessed the trial after the opening arguments.

Wood's widow, Kathryn, was expected to be among the first prosecution witnesses. Jahn contended a gold car registered to Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, Harrelson's wife and co-defendant, had been parked at the San Antonio International Airport on three separate occasions during May 1979, while Harrelson allegedly "stalked" the judge he is accused of killing for a $250,000 fee.

But Sharpe said he would prove Harrelson and his wife were 300 miles away in Dallas watching television when the program was interrupted by a news bulletin saying Wood had been assassinated.

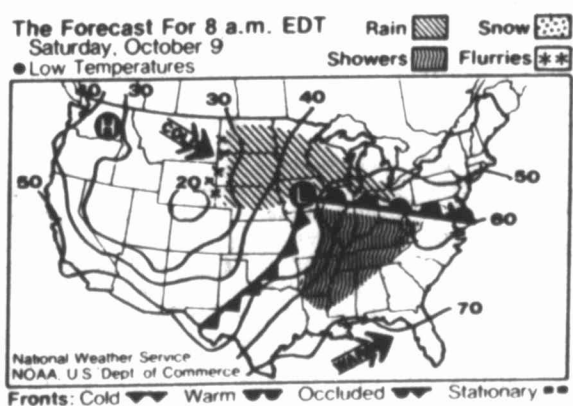

The defense attorney said he would develop during the trial, expected to last four to eight weeks, an alternate scenario on how Wood was shot to death.

The money allegedly paid Harrelson by El Paso narcotics kingpin Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra in June 1979 was not a "payoff" for Wood's killing, as the government alleges, but instead part of a "scam" Harrelson was using to bilk Chagra on a dope deal, Sharpe told the nine women and three men jurors.

"The story is a simple one," Jahn earlier told the jury. "It is a story of fear. It is a story of greed and a story of murder. Jimmy Chagra was fearful of Judge Wood because of his sentencing procedures."

Chagra, 39, was scheduled for a narcotics trial before Wood, known as "Maximum John," when Wood was shot. Prosecutors say Chagra feared Wood would give him a life sentence.

Showers dot Texas

By Associated Press

Scattered showers and thundershowers dotted wide sections of Texas today as an autumn-like weekend shaped up across the state.

Very heavy thunderstorms were noted in the Hill Country and West Texas. Other showers stretched across sections of East Texas, with the heaviest downpour located near Lufkin, and along the coastal plains.

Skies were fair to partly cloudy over the rest of Texas.

Temperatures before dawn were mostly in the 60s and 70s. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 59 at Marfa to 79 at Corpus Christi.

Mystery subs

Now there are two...

BERGA NAVAL BASE, Sweden (AP) — Search craft dumped more depth charges into Hors Bay early today, escalating their frustrating hunt for a suspected Soviet-bloc submarine believed trapped just outside Sweden's top secret Musko Naval Base, the navy said.

Spokesman Capt. Sven Carlsson confirmed that the submerged submarine had tried to escape blockaded Hors Bay Thursday afternoon and that a second alien sub was spotted lurking outside the bay. But he denied press reports that the cornered sub's breakout attempt succeeded.

"We have had several interesting indications during the night that show the sub is still in the bay," Carlsson told reporters. He said searchers dropped more depth charges overnight but would not elaborate.

Carlsson said all Swedish search units were back in the principal target area today concentrating on the hunt for the submerged sub, which has defied their efforts to force it to surface for a week.

The Swedes, who have become increasingly sensitive about alien submarines prowling their coast, say they want to interrogate the vessel's officers before allowing it to leave.

In its report today, Dagens Nyheter, Sweden's largest national newspaper, said a second foreign sub was spotted by sonar creeping toward Hors bay, prompting the navy to dump more depth charges to stop the new intruder from aiding the cornered vessel.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has denied sending subs to the area, about 20 miles south of Stockholm. Most observers believe the submarine, or submarines, are from the Soviet bloc.

Feeling good about Big Spring

You may have noticed a new slogan popping up on the radio or in conversations around town: People are saying, "I Believe in Big Spring."

It's more than just a coincidental thought. It's a campaign being promoted by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce business committee to encourage a positive attitude about the town, its economy and its future.

In the words of business committee member Jerry Reid, "We know there are problems, but we think a lot of times there is a bad attitude about Big Spring. We're trying to fight that."

The campaign involves advertising promotions in the Herald and on local radio stations. "We hope the idea gets around by word of mouth," Reid said.

We do too. Although we certainly don't believe in burying our heads in the sand and pretending there are not serious problems that need to be worked on, we do think there is a lot more right with Big Spring than there is wrong with it. This should be recognized. The idea should be passed along.

IT'S TRUE the local economy has sagged in recent months as a result of a slowdown in the oil industry, but compared to many other parts of the country, Big Spring is in very healthy shape.

We don't think it requires a lot of effort to "feel positive" about Big Spring. The work done by the Salvation Army and other charities in helping the needy is notable. The Industrial Park is holding its own in the face of the oil crunch.

And, in a more casual vein, the mighty Big Spring Steers are off to their best start in years.

The "I Believe in Big Spring" promotions shouldn't be an attempt to whitewash our problems. It should be a way to get a good look at the many good fortunes we really do enjoy here.

Let's mix mud to sling

"Negative Political Ad Agency, may I help you?"

"This is Chaps Dunbar. I'm running for senator this November and I was calling to inquire about your negative political ad campaigns."

"Just a minute. You want to speak to Mr. Slinger."

"Slinger, my campaign seems to be in a little bit of trouble and I was hoping your people could come up with a few dirty TV commercials to help me get well in the polls again? I was very impressed with the one I saw the other night for Bill Damadun, in which you filmed an actor who looked like his opponent, Horace Lager, pushing an old lady down the stairs in her wheelchair and a voice said, 'That is Horace Lager's answer to Social Security.'"

"Yes. We're very proud of that one ourselves. We had to use six old ladies before we got it right. Thank God for Medicare or we would have gone over budget. Do you know we had more protests on it than any negative commercial we've ever done? But our surveys indicate that 87 percent of the people now believe Lager pushes old ladies down the stairs."

"What can you do for me?"

"Give me a little background on your opponent."

"He's a former congressman named Flap who has been traveling around the state promising the people jobs, prosperity and an honest government — the usual stuff. Trouble is, he looks like a young Jimmy Stewart and the people think he can do it."

"You got any dirt on him we can use in a TV commercial?"

"He played left tackle at college, and was once penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness."

"What else?"

"We couldn't find too much stuff on him after that."

"Okay, we'll take the testimonial approach. We won't show Flap in your commercials. But we'll show people who support him."

"What's so dirty about that?"

"Well get a clip of Castro ranting and raving and waving his hands. Then underneath we'll run subtitles of what he's supposed to be saying — something like, 'If Americans elect congressman Flap to the Senate, you will make me the happiest dictator in the world.'"

"That's pretty negative. I'll tell you what seems to be a big issue here. Crime in the streets."

"We can hang that one on Flap. We'll show a guy being mugged in the park, and then we'll show a clip of Flap smiling and shaking hands with workers as they leave the gate of a factory. Our announcer will intone, 'Congressman Flap cares more about freeing criminals than he does about protecting the victims of crimes.'"

"I don't get it."

"Most factories look like prisons, and nobody will know the people he is shaking hands with aren't inmates."

"That is about as dirty as you can get," Chaps chuckled.

Slinger said, "Did you see the mean one we ran last week, in which we used the ex-wife of Dick Tanquary, who is running for Congress, and she said into the camera, 'I lived with him for 20 years. Now you people really are experts when it comes to slinging mud.'"

"Any candidate who thinks he can win an election these days by being affirmative is crazy."

"How much do you charge?"

"Our standard 60-second smear is $15,000. If you want us to film a look-alike of your opponent sticking up a Brink's truck, or running over a dog it will be five grand extra."

"I'm willing to spend the extra money. No one will ever say when Chaps Dunbar ran for office he didn't go first class."

Billy Graham

Christianity isn't anti-woman

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: A woman on television the other day said that religion is the strongest force against the equality of women. She said religion always suppresses women and keeps them from being fulfilled. How would you answer this? — B.L.W.

DEAR B.L.W.: I do not believe this is at all true for the Christian faith — and in fact the opposite is the case. Historically the Christian church has often exalted the place and importance of women in God's plan for his people.

When Christians have failed to do this, it is because they have failed to see what the Bible teaches about God's love for all — both men and women — and his perfect will for all who put their trust in Christ. "There is neither male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 3:28).

That does not mean I would necessarily agree with the goals the person you are quoting seems to have for women. I know this is a controversial area, and my desire is that we look carefully at what the Bible has to say. I am impressed, for example, by the wide variety of things women in the Bible were able to accomplish. Deborah was a judge and a military leader (Judges 4); Esther was queen of the Persian Empire and saved the Jewish people from a terrible holocaust (Book of Esther); Lydia was a successful merchant (Acts 16).

At the same time, the Bible underlines that men and women were created by God with different physical and emotional abilities. It is wrong, therefore, to say that a woman is "fulfilled" only if she does exactly what men do. She has a uniqueness as a woman and she is fulfilled when she is able to become fully the person God wants her to be.

There is much more that could be said about the legal and social issues concerning women today, but the main point I would like to make is this: only in Christ can any human being — male or female — achieve complete fulfillment. God created every one of us for a purpose.

We may be successful and outwardly prosperous, but we will only be fulfilled when we find God's will for our lives and do it. And that can be true of each of us as we turn our lives over to God and let him rule in our hearts.

The game's feelings

Sportswriters are probably the most hated members of a newspaper's staff, sometimes justifiably so.

But most of the time, sportswriters are fans, just as the people who rail at the writer are fans.

The sports terms are easy enough to pick up, along with a basic knowledge of the game, but how can a fan or a sportswriter who has never experienced the game relate to the emotions — to the fear?

Some sports are impossible to understand unless you've been there as a player, and a sixteen or seventeen year old player simply doesn't have the words or the inclination to describe his feelings to anyone.

He — or she — can't understand the gut-wrenching fear in a 17-year-old's stomach as he waits for the Friday night kickoff.

All week long, the player has heard "How we gonna do Friday?" "Gonna get out there and kill 'em?" and "We're all depending on you."

Some players love the ferocity — from Wednesday until game time Friday, they're impossible to talk to, with every passing conversation turning to "The" game. Other players quietly give lip service to the upcoming competition, perhaps wishing "The" game wasn't such a big deal.

PREGAME FRENZY rises to a crescendo Friday afternoon, with a collection of yelling, screaming, trothing fans at a pep rally. While English and math teachers stand unnoticed in the background, the team is exhorted to win by cheerleaders and coaches, bands and fans.

Always, at least one player is called upon to give a speech — two or three minutes of gut-wrenching, sweaty-palmed mumbling about the glories of winning the game.

The combination is almost unbearable to high schoolers — a player would try to run through a cement wall if the coach asked him to immediately after a pep rally.

Instead of the action his system is clamoring for as soon as the pep rally is over, he is expected to go home and lie down until time to get ready for the game.

He lies down on the couch, eyes open wide. There's no way he can sleep — too many things are going through his mind. "How am I supposed to block that 215-pound lumox who plays over me?" "God, I hope I don't screw up — the coach will kill me, and I'll have to see it at least five times when we look at the films."

Finally, the hours pass and the player goes to the fieldhouse — usually far ahead of time, because it's at least something to do, and he still can't sleep or eat — the thought of food in that churning morass of a stomach sickens him.

Among the familiar smell of sweaty bodies, t-shirts and equipment, he feels more comfortable. The freshly-washed game jerseys and pants, along with a fresh t-shirt and jock, lie folded in the bottom of his locker.

HE GOES through the routine he has established, superstitious to the point that he won't change anything. All the time, his mind is feverishly working, trying to remember all the different defenses, all the audibles, everything about his opponent that he has seen in three to five films of the other team.

Knee pads in the pants first, then thigh pads. Hip and crack-pad last, then pull on the tight, stretchy pants. He sits down in his locker and pulls on the long game socks and clean game shoes, along with the fresh t-shirt — a welcome change from the smelly-stiff workout undershirt.

More waiting. He tries to find a quiet spot to sit or lie down, and in the darkened silence of his private cubbyhole, he secretly wonders inside his heart if tonight will be the night he is carried off the field in agony. Almost everyone on the team has been injured at some time, and he wonders if tonight the odds will catch up with him.

When the call goes out for receivers, quarterbacks and kickers to begin warming up on the field, he finishes dressing.

First the shoulder pads, then the game jersey, so tight that he has to recruit a freshman to pull it over his head. After tucking the cool nylon into his pants, he pulls on his arm pads. Then he pulls on his helmet, tasting the coppery smell of fear as he fastens the chin strap while walking through the fieldhouse door.

At last, it's kickoff time. As the player runs downfield, the nervousness finally disappears — he's too busy.

Or, on the other end of the spectrum, how can a youngster describe to a fan or a writer how he feels as he stands on the sidelines, wishing he was in the game. He wants the team to win, but at the same time, he can't help wishing desperately that the guy starting in front of him will screw up badly enough so he'll get a chance to play.

Sportswriters can't get it all right for the fans every time, and they have to concentrate on the game itself more than the emotions involved.

Anyway, you can't know the emotions unless you've been there.

Egyptian scandal threatened contract

WASHINGTON — Reagan administration officials, concerned about the possibility of criminal activity reaching high into Egyptian and American military and intelligence circles, seriously considered canceling a multimillion-dollar contract early this year. The only thing that dissuaded them, I'm told, was fear of offending the Egyptian government.

I reported a year ago on the suspicious circumstances surrounding the contract, which was awarded to the Egyptian American Transport and Services Corp. (EATSCO). This led the FBI and a federal grand jury to investigate the deal. They're trying to find out whether Egyptian and/or American government officials were bribed to assure that EATSCO got the exclusive contract to ship U.S. arms to Egypt.

The contract came up for renewal in April, and administration officials discussed canceling it. But it is traditionally up to the recipient country to select and oversee U.S. arms shipments, and there was a strong possibility that Egypt would resent this intrusion on its prerogative.

PENTAGON SOURCES told my associates Dale Van Atta and Indy Badwar it was this diplomatic consideration that caused the state, defense and justice departments to decide jointly that the contract should be renewed despite the cloud hanging over it.

The amount of money involved in the arms-shipment contract isn't peanuts. Shippers' charges are based on the value of the cargo carried.

Not all of the $3.5 billion in military aid promised to Egypt constitutes hardware, and EATSCO was not allowed to handle classified items and some planes. But the value of the shipping contract is still enormous.

According to the secret contract, EATSCO is entitled to charge "up to 9.875 percent" of the value of materials shipped. Egyptian sources suggest that an even more secret contract actually boosts the company's fee to 15 or 25 percent.

Most of the arms aid is provided on credit. As it has done for years with Israel, the government is planning to forgive some of these loans to Egypt — which means the American taxpayers are providing a lot of arms free, and also paying the shipping costs.

Up to Aug. 7 of this year, EATSCO had been paid $71.4 million out of the Egyptian credit amount, according to a Pentagon official. Another source said that EATSCO so far has shipped $750 million worth of arms. That would jibe roughly with the terms of the secret contract; under the supersecret contract, EATSCO would stand to collect up to $190,000 million.

On a single shipment of 16 tanks last summer, one of EATSCO's subcontractors charged $750 million worth of arms. That would jibe roughly with the terms of the secret contract; under the supersecret contract, EATSCO would stand to collect up to $190 million.

On a single shipment of 26 tanks last summer, one of EATSCO's subcontractors charges $750,000 for shipping and $118,000 for handling.

A big problem from the start was Egyptian officials' lack of experience in handling money and the bureaucratic paperwork that is involved in U.S. arms deals. They were used to the Russians, who simply accepted Egyptian arms requests and eventually dumped the stuff on the docks at Alexandria, practically unannounced. There was no oversight.

The Egyptians' procurement mission "is not real sophisticated yet," as a Pentagon source put it. When given bills to audit, for example, they simply rubber-stamped them and forwarded them to the Pentagon. When U.S. auditors began checking after my disclosures a year ago, they turned up discrepancies.

Because of the Egyptians' inexperience in U.S. bureaucratic methods, the No. 2 man at the Defense Security Assistance Agency in 1979, Erich Von Marbod, was assigned to expedite the process. One source said Von Marbod on arms shipments to the late Shah of Iran.

JOLT FOR JOBLESS: Millions of jobless Americans probably don't realize it, but they'll be giving part of their unemployment benefits back to Uncle Sam next April 15 in the form of income taxes.

As part of the administration's $100 billion tax increase, the rule governing taxability of unemployment compensation was tightened. A single person used to be able to make $20,000 in combined income and jobless benefits without having to pay tax on the benefits; for married couples, the total was $25,000.

But under the new regulation, the ceiling on combined earnings and benefits are $12,000 and $18,000. This means a lot more jobless will find they owe income taxes on all or part of their unemployment compensation.

Taxes will be owed on either the entire amount of compensation or on one-half of the excess of all income over the newly lowered ceiling, whichever is less. John May, author of an unemployment survival book, gives these examples: If you worked eight months and earned $12,000, then collected $2,400 in jobless benefits, you'll pay taxes on half of all your excess ($1,200) instead of on the full $2,400 in jobless benefits. But if you earned $16,000 and collected $2,400 in jobless benefits, you'll pay tax on all the benefits instead of on half the $6,400 you took in above the ceiling.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Anti-U.S. feeling in Argentina is apparently due to the military junta's mistaken assumption that it could count on White House support for the Falkland Islands adventure. The junta's misinformation wasn't coming from its ambassador in Washington, Esteban Takes. He is so respected by administration officials that on one occasion in June, when he expressed concern that the State Department wasn't conveying his views effectively to President Reagan, an unprecedented private meeting was hastily arranged with the president's national security adviser, William Clark.

Editor's note

Editor's note: The Herald does not necessarily always agree with the opinions expressed by syndicated columnists on its editorial page.

The column about farmers by Stephen Chapman which appeared on Thursday's editorial page is a case in point.

Chapman can be contacted by writing The Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc., 220 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017 or by calling 212-557-7800.

While the Herald does not always agree with editorial page columnists' opinions, it does believe in presenting a diversity of viewpoints so that readers can make up their own minds.

A follow-up story with farmers' reactions to the column is being prepared and will be published next week. Farmers who wish to be included should contact Mike Downey at the Herald on Monday by phoning 263-7331. Letters to the editor are also appreciated.

Incidentally, Chapman, a Harvard graduate, is a native of Brady, Texas.

Anxiety gnaws at evacuees' new lives

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The pleasures of an all-expenses-paid holiday are wearing thin for some of the 2,700 people evacuated from their homes after a chemical-laden train derailed more than a week ago, burst into flames and kept on burning.

"You can't do the best at your job because you're worried about what's happened to your home," said Columbus McSwain, one of about 200 families staying in motels here and in Hammond.

Early on Sept. 28, residents of the small town of Livingston in southern Louisiana were evacuated after 43 cars of an Illinois Central-Gulf freight train derailed, setting off a series of explosions and fires from cars loaded with dangerous chemicals.

McSwain, a 44-year-old pipefitter, his wife, their 16-year-old daughter and his mother-in-law spent the first several days with their son but moved into a motel Saturday when the railroad began picking up the tab.

"It's not like a vacation. We didn't plan to do this," he said. "And it's hard on the family. There is nothing for them to do. You just look at them, and you know they're about to break down and cry 'cause they want to go home."

The fire was still burning Wednesday, and state police said they weren't sure when residents could return home. Authorities also have been unable to say whether individual homes were caught in the fires or damaged by the escaping chemicals.

Troopers say the evacuation order won't be lifted until all the derailed cars have been removed and there is no danger from toxic fumes.

Under special authority from the governor, troopers can arrest anyone who tries to sneak past the barricades to get home. Five have been caught and are free on bond.

"We're all mad. It's the not knowing when we can go home and what we'll find," said Terry Spinks, adding she'd rather be at her job at the IGA grocery in Livingston instead of at the Holiday Inn in Hammond.

"They're telling us the area isn't contaminated, but we know it is," she said. "And what about the nightmares? They can't pay for that."

Her husband, Will, noted it was bad enough living near a hazardous waste disposal site south of town.

"We don't want to raise the kids in Livingston now," he said.

Children fear they are missing so much school that they'll have to make it up this summer. The school in Livingston remains closed, and nearby Walker High was closed while being used as a refugee center.

School bus service also is disrupted because the drivers can't get to their buses in town.

The railroad has set up a claims office to help displaced residents, providing them with money for food and clothes. They eat in motel restaurants and family members sit around the pool, watch television or visit relatives.

Those with out-of-town jobs go to work. But for some, the work is disrupted, too.

"I hang sheetrock," said Spinks, "and I can't get home to get my tools. This cost me a duplex last week, and I've got a truck stop I'm supposed to start on tomorrow."

While some evacuees are bitter, many are philosophical.

"Some people can't understand that the evacuation is for the safety of the people," said Lee Martin, who operates a sawmill in Livingston. "I'd like to go home, but saving one life would make this all worthwhile."

June McDonald and her family of five are staying with her mother-in-law in Springfield.

Dear Abby

Father cares for child

DEAR ABBY: In the summer of 1979 I met and fell in love with a boy I'll call "Joe." He was 23 and very handsome and charming. I had just turned 17. I was a virgin and had always planned to wait until I was married to have sexual relations, but Joe put a lot of pressure on me so I finally gave in because I didn't want to lose him.

I didn't use any birth control and got pregnant. Joe and I broke up and he left the state before I knew I was pregnant. I didn't know where he went or how to contact him. I never thought to ask him his last name. It just never came up.

Anyway, I had my baby alone and put "father unknown" on the baby's birth certificate. Well, last week Joe showed up. He was surprised to hear about the baby and wants to help any way he can and be a father to "little Joey." He is willing to help with my expenses like day care so I can go back to school, work part-time and get off welfare.

He also wants his name on the baby's birth certificate, but he's afraid that he will have to pay back welfare for the money I was paid for the last two years. Is that true? It amounts to about $15,000. Thank you.

NEEDS HELP IN TEXAS

DEAR NEEDS HELP: The rules and regulations of welfare departments vary in each state. Your caseworker can answer your questions. I think the welfare deparment would be delighted to learn that the baby's father returned and is willing to assume the responsibility of supporting his child.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter you apologized for your "thoughtlessness and insensitivity" to "Brown and Burning," because of your response to "Cooled Off in Coos Bay." ("Cooled Off" was having trouble responding to her husband's sexual advances, so you suggested that she fantasize that he was Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds and Paul Newman rolled into one.)

"Brown and Burning" wrote to say that the three glamour models you listed wouldn't do for her because she happened to be an Afro-American woman, and why didn't you include at least one black male?

Abby, you also failed to include a Latin-American, Chinese, Japanese, American Indian, Eskimo and several other ethnic minorities.

Since I am of Chinese, Japanese, Polynesian and American Indian origin, I would also appreciate your mentioning at least one representative of my national origins. Admittedly, by having to do this, you might somewhat dilute the point you are making, but at least you wouldn't be guilty of discrimination.

MULTICOLORED AND BURNING

Dr. Donohue

X-rays not always needed to pinpoint pain

Dear Dr. Donohue: Inasmuch as muscles, tendons and ligaments do not show on X-rays, how does a physician determine which are affected, in the legs, arms, back, etc. when there is pain there? You are terrific on detailed explanations. I would appreciate a nice long one on this. — N.N.

How about a nice semi-long to short one?

You don't need an X-ray to diagnose every ache or pain. It's not that difficult, for example, to distinguish pains arising from ligaments or tendons from those of muscular or joint origins. Muscles are large and easily felt, and they're in different places than tendons and ligaments. All you really have to do is feel and squeeze a muscle to know where the pain is, if it's coming from there. Strike a pose like Charles Atlas, flexing your arm. You can feel the bulge in your upper arm. That's muscle.

Ligaments, on the other hand, are found only around joints. So if the pain is felt around a joint, it could be a ligament or the joint itself. If it is from the joint, an X-ray might show the problem - a break, etc. If the X-ray doesn't show any joint disturbance, you might deduce that it is one of the unseen problems - cartilage, ligaments or tendons.

Now, of course, tendons are the mooring lines to hold muscles in place and attach them to joints. You can see tendons on the back of your hands when you clench your fist and open the hand again. To diagnose a tendon injury, the doctor puts his hand over the tendon to see if it's tender to the touch or if it hurts when you move it. I hope you get the idea.

Dear Dr. Donohue: For us salt-restricted people, can you list some of the various forms of salt found in most prepared foods? I mean chemical names like sodium nitrite or sodium nitrate. — P.K.H.

The ones you name are very common forms of salt - sodium. Some of the others you'll find on labels include monosodium glutamate, sodium chloride, sodium bicarbonate, sodium benzoate. Really, the word you are looking for is sodium, no matter what the companion term used with it. It's all salt. Sodium is the factor in high blood pressure, so the less of it we get the better off we are.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have decided to have my fallopian tubes cut because I don't feel I should have more children. What is bothering me is this: I have heard from various women that if you have your tubes cut, you can expect to have your entire uterus removed in four to five years. They claim there is a high incidence of cancer among those who have had their tubes out. Is that true? — J.P.

I never heard this, and I have no reason to suspect any of it is true.

October is Handicapped Parking Awareness month

Not a parking place in sight, except for the empty handicapped parking spot in front of the supermarket. You pull into it, take care of business, get back in your car and are on your way when you notice someone starting from the far corner of the parking lot in a wheelchair.

Imagine the person in the wheelchair struggling back across the lot with a bag or two of groceries.

Many people don't need handicapped parking places, but use them anyway. Perhaps they don't even understand why handicapped people require "the best spots on the lot" to park their cars.

A handicapped parking place is a necessity for a disabled person. People whose disabilities make it tough for them to get around - who have "mobility impairments" - need to park close to where they want to go.

It may be a pain in the neck for an able-bodied person to walk a much longer distance with a loaded shopping bag in each hand. But think about someone carrying a heavy load over that same distance on artificial legs. That can cause serious pain, perhaps even bleeding. And a person wearing prosthetic legs is more susceptible to falling than an able-bodied person.

People with wheelchairs, walkers, leg braces or artificial limbs need ramped curbs near their parking places so they can get to the sidewalk.

A driver can't squeeze a car in right next to another car in a tight parking spot if he or she has to juggle a wheelchair out of the backseat and set it up on the ground before leaving the car. Room is needed alongside the automobile to get all that done. People with crutches, walkers and similar devices need that room too.

That is why handicapped parking spaces are set up with extra space on either side of the automobile. When someone parks too close to a wheelchair-bound person's car, the person in the wheelchair could be stuck until the other driver returns. The same holds true for those who use walkers, crutches, prosthetic legs and other mobility aids.

Fourth, there are safety considerations. People who suffer mobility impairments cannot move as quickly as able-bodied people. They can't just jump out of the paths of negligent parking lot drivers. Nor can they avoid other hazards as easily as able-bodied pedestrians.

Finally, mobility-impaired people are stuck with their automobiles as their only form of transportation and they have to get around town just like everyone else.

Mobility-impaired persons don't want to be prisoners in their own homes any more than anyone else would want to be.

Handicapped people need the specially adapted parking places. The Disabled American Veterans have designated October as Handicapped Parking Awareness Month and request the non-disabled public to refrain from parking in the designated spaces.

More people replace roofs themselves

Nearly 2 million Americans replaced their own roofs in 1981. A building products firm says that half the re-roofing jobs in the country were done by do-it-yourselfers.

'Friends of Lawrence Welk' to appear here

"The Friends of Lawrence Welk," featuring stars from the Lawrence Welk television show, will be in Big Spring for a concert sponsored by Spring City Theatre Oct. 15 in the City Auditorium. Show time is 8 p.m.

Headlining the event will be the Otwell Twins, country singer Ava Barber, and accordionist Joey Schmidt.

"Friends of Lawrence Welk" is presented in cooperation with the Texas Assembly of Arts Councils. Tickets, priced at $7.50 at the door and $5 in advance, may be obtained at Citizen's Federal Credit Union and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

David and Roger Otwell appeared weekly on the "Lawrence Welk Show," and are natives of Tulla. They've performed at Disney World, Disneyland, in San Diego, Calif. and Gatlinburg, Tenn., and other places.

Ava Barber began singing professionally at age 10, and later became a regular on the "Lawrence Welk Show."

Joey Schmidt, yet another Lawrence Welk discovery, joined the Lawrence Welk show as a teenager. Since then, he has performed at Lawrence Welk Village near Excondido, Calif., and has recorded albums with Welk and Myron Floren. He plays the drums, trumpet, saxophone and synthesizer.

New member added to the Nichols family

Mr. and Mrs. David Nichols, 100 Virginia, announce the birth of a daughter, Natalie, at 12:30 p.m. Oct. 2 in Midland Memorial Hospital.

Natalie weighed 7 pounds, 7 ounces at birth and was 19 inches long.

Her maternal grandparents include Mae Currie, 2805 Crestline, and Jerry Currie, Coronado Hills Apartments. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Don Nichols, Knott.

Great-grandparents include Commander (Ret.) Neel Barnaby, 804 W. 17th, and Ethyl Mundell, Big Spring.

Tylenol poisonings: $75 million loss to Johnson & Johnson

NEW YORK (AP) — The poisoning of Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules could cost Johnson & Johnson $75 million this year, analysts say, but most predict the giant company will bounce back.

The Tylenol tampering mystery, blamed for seven deaths in the Chicago area, has knocked nearly 10 percent from the value of Johnson & Johnson's stock.

Drugstore operators said sales of all pain relievers are down, but some consumers are seeking substitutes for Tylenol, the nation's best-selling pain reliever.

Already, three lawsuits have been filed in three of the Illinois deaths from cyanide-laced Tylenol capsules, seeking $35 million from Johnson & Johnson, its McNeil Consumer Products subsidiary — which produces Tylenol — and two stores.

Lawrence Foster, a spokesman for Johnson & Johnson, said Wednesday it was premature to discuss financial ramifications for the company.

"I don't think anyone really knows, and, besides, we have other, more pressing priorities at this time," he said.

The problems are affecting Johnson & Johnson even though authorities have repeatedly said they believe the capsules were poisoned after they left the factory.

Johnson & Johnson on Tuesday appealed to all stores in the nation to withdraw all Tylenol capsule products from sale. McNeil announced earlier this week it had stopped manufacturing Extra-Strength Tylenol for the time being.

McNeil's chairman, David Collins, said he doubted any permanent setback would result from the crisis.

Analysts also said they expected a rebound for Johnson & Johnson in 1983.

The episode threatens to interrupt a track record of rising profits in good times and bad at Johnson & Johnson, a manufacturer of health care, pharmaceutical and consumer products.

"They've lost a year's growth as a result of the Tylenol problem," said David Talbot, an analyst at the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert.

Over the first six months of this year, Johnson & Johnson's earnings of $298 million were up 20 percent from a year earlier, despite the recession.

Talbot said he had expected the company's earnings to grow by 18 percent for the full year, but has revised his estimate down by $75 million to about the 1981 level because of lost sales and the cost of the Tylenol recalls. He said Tylenol represented 6 percent of Johnson & Johnson's $5.4 billion in sales and 12 percent of its $468 million in profit last year.

But he said the company should be able to make a comeback. "It has two outstanding drug divisions and big sales forces ready to slap a name on a new product" to replace Tylenol if necessary, he said.

Richard Stover, an analyst at E.F. Hutton, predicted the Tylenol tainting would cost the company about $65 million in profits.

"Next year is anybody's guess. It's a lot like predicting the outcome of an election; the final chapter of what's going to happen has yet to be written," he said.

Neil Sweig at Shearson-American Express began recommending Johnson & Johnson stock Wednesday after it dropped to $39 a share from $46.12 on Sept. 29, the day before the first deaths were disclosed. In the heaviest trading of the day, Johnson & Johnson jumped $2.75 to $41.75.

Appearing Wednesday on the NBC-TV "Today" show, Collins said: "The confidence of the American consumer built this product (Tylenol). Nothing has changed. What has changed is that we have an insane individual or individuals out there who have elected to contaminate this product ... and we hope to reemphasize and reestablish consumers' confidence in this product."

Thomas Mammoser, a spokesman for Walgreen Co., said a survey of 22 of the company's 885 drug stores found sales of pain relievers and insomnia remedies were down more than 16 percent in the four days after the deaths were announced. At the same time, sales of over-the-counter drugs under the Walgreen label, including the company's equivalent of Tylenol, were up 40 percent, he said.

Marc Dworkin, vice president of marketing at Revco D.S. Inc., the nation's largest chain of discount drug stores with 1,600 stores in 28 states, said, "A lot of people have stopped taking any pain reliever in any form" pending the outcome of the case.

Klondike (3-1-1)

at Roby (3-2)

Klondike headed into New Mexico and came back with a tie against offensive-minded Jal. Roby has a solid team and a 3-2 record and as always, are small but talented. Lions generally are tough to be at home. Cougars are rolling now...defense has played well all year but offense has been kept under control because they haven't converted several scoring opportunities...they will need those to win here in the district opener for both teams...Cougars, having learned a lot last week, will win a high-scoring close one here. (Game time is 7:30 p.m.) KLONDIKE 29, ROBY 22

Colorado City (2-3)

at Coahoma (2-3)

Coahoma saw its two-game win streak snapped by unbeaten Denver City 27-6...a few weeks ago, the same corral of Mustangs panted C-City 49-5...this game will flow with emotion, especially from the home side as it is Coahoma's homecoming game...Coahoma has size advantage...both teams are not offensive powerhouse but C-City has hard-to-handle back in Larry Hamilton...Coahoma's defense has been stout all year but C-City boasts an experienced secondary...tough, tough game to pick but nod goes to Bulldogs who have just a little more muscle than Wolves. (Game time is 7:30 p.m.) COAHOMA 21, C-CITY 14

Sweetwater (5-0)

at Lamesa (1-3)

Lamesa played well for a quarter and a half against Snyder — gaining a 14-0 lead — but let things slip away to a 21-14 loss on the road...the Tors are playing better football than in the past but facing them this week is a good stable of Mustangs...Sweetwater runs consistently and has a good passing attack...the Mustangs are ranked among the state's best...Tors must play four solid quarters and get that homecoming spirit to challenge. (Game time is 8 p.m.) SWEETWATER 28, LAMESA 7

Eldorado (1-3-1)

at Stanton (2-3)

Stanton had been carried by its defense...last week the offense smothered Seagraves but the defense surrendered to long runs and the home team claimed the win, sending the Buffs to their third straight loss...Eldorado has some good size and a large number of players to choose from...if Stanton can get its offense and defense to play on same night, the Buffs could be tough...a district game for both teams, and a must win for Stanton in league play. (Game time is 7:30 p.m.) STANTON 16, ELDORADO 10

Forsan (2-1-1) at Sands (5-0)

Talk about earthquakes in California...this game is one of the headknockers of the year in the Big Spring area...Mustangs are off to 5-0 start after winning just one game last year...main reason in transfer in of running back Robbie Creswell and the building of an aggressive defense...Forsan stumbled in its first game (6-3 loss to Bronte) but the Buffs have looked better each week...in a comparison game, O'Donnell lost to Sands 24-0 while Forsan won 23-6...a game I hate to predict, but I have to go with Buff's size and experience over Creswell and home field advantage. (Game time is 7:30 p.m.) FORSAN 14, SANDS 12

Irion Co. (1-4)

at Garden City (3-2)

Garden City is humming now, having won two straight since last loss. Irion Co. is 1-4 but coach Stewart Cooper says the Hornets could be just as easily 4-1 if the breaks had gone their way...Richard Batla had another good week, tossing two touchdowns and scoring two himself...Garden City can go 3-0 in district with a win here...it's at home and should be a dandy one to watch is 7:30 p.m.) GARDEN CITY 26, IRION CO. 20

Water Valley (2-3)

at Greenwood (1-4)

Greenwood snapped its four-game losing streak with impressive win over Robert Lee...this week it's another district game against a Water Valley team that has already lost in league play to Garden City and earlier in year to Sands...quarterback Stu Burleson continues to be key to offense but coach Joe Longley needs better play from defense...homecoming victory here for the Rangers (Game time is 7:30 p.m.) GREENWOOD 20, WATER VALLEY 12

Texas-OU contest not on local TV

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two television stations prepared today to air this weekend's annual college football grudge match between the University of Texas and the University of Oklahoma.

UT officials announced Thursday that stations KTVV-TV in Austin and KXAS-TV in Dallas will broadcast the game live from the Cotton Bowl, beginning at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The game, however, will not be aired in Big Spring. Big Cable TV manager Jim Lancaster says "the game will not be aired in this area. I don't think that station (KXAS) is even carried by the microwave." Metroplex AM stations KLIF (1190) and KAAM (1310) will broadcast the game but whether they can be heard in this area is unknown. The SWC game between Arkansas and Texas Tech will be played at the same time on WFAA (570).

The game was not slated for network broadcast earlier because ABC decided Monday to show No. 1-ranked University of Washington and the University of California.

ARRIVING TOO LATE — Atlanta Braves Claudell Washington arrives at second base with style but it tagged out by St. Louis Cardinals second baseman Tom Herr on an attempted steal during the sixth inning of Thursday night's game in St. Louis. The Cards went on to win the National League Championships opener 7-0 behind Bob Forsch's three-hitter.

Forsch whiffs Atlanta, 7-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Chris Chambliss, the big first baseman of the Atlanta Braves, has been through the baseball playoff wars.

And the soft-spoken Chambliss says there's no reason for the Braves to worry about losing the first game of the National League Championship Series to the St. Louis Cardinals 7-0 Thursday night.

"It means they won the first game and they're one-up on us. The only thing we can do is try to get even tomorrow (tonight in Game Two)."

A St. Louis victory in the second game would leave the Cardinals in the position of having to win just one of three games in Atlanta to move on to their first World Series since 1968.

Since the division playoffs began in 1969, no team in either league has won the best-of-five series after losing the first two games.

"Your basic goal on the road is to split and if we can win tomorrow, we'll be right back where we started," said Chambliss, who was with the New York Yankees for the American League playoffs in 1976, 1977 and 1978.

Atlanta Manager Joe Torre agreed with Chambliss that the Braves had to turn their attention toward Game Two.

"It's very important. We want to get a split," said Torre, whose team owned a 7-5 regular season advantage over the Cardinals, including a 4-2 edge in St. Louis.

"No way do we want to go home down two (games) and have to win all three at home. We can, but we'd rather go back with a split."

Torre said after the game he was undecided about who would start tonight's game — knuckleballer Phil Niekro, who pitched 41-3 innings in the rained-out opener Wednesday night, or Tommy Boggs.

But St. Louis skipper Whitey Herzog, who has penciled in John Stuper as the Cardinals' starter, said he had no illusions about who would be on the mound for the Braves.

"I'm pretty sure he (Niekro) will be pitching and I'm sure he can come back," said Herzog. "We'll just try and win. I'm not going to worry about it. Hey, he's going to be tough with one day, two days rest."

The Cardinals, who have five playoff veterans on their roster to Atlanta's four, were nearly as calm in victory as the Braves were in defeat.

"We're just taking it one game at a time," said shortstop Ozzie Smith. "And we'll be happy to win one game at a time."

"It's an advantage being one-up, I guess," said third baseman Ken Oberkfell. "But you can say it doesn't mean nothing if we don't win the next one."

NL Championships

The key for St. Louis in the opener was right-hander Bob Forsch, who tossed a three-hitter and set the Braves down in order after Claudell Washington's leadoff single in the sixth.

The 32-year-old veteran, a .204 lifetime hitter, also drilled a pair of singles, had a sacrifice fly and scored a run.

"I'll be talking about the shutout tonight," said Forsch. "But by tomorrow I'll be talking about my hitting."

Willie McGee's triple and a sacrifice fly by Ozzie Smith staked Forsch to a 1-0 lead in the third. Had he been more alert, McGee could have logged the first inside-the-park home run in NL playoff history.

"That's the first time in a long time I've seen a guy run a home run into a triple," said Herzog.

But it was the Braves who made all the mistakes in the sixth inning, when the Cardinals put together six singles, a walk, a hit batsman and a sacrifice fly for five runs to knock out Atlanta starter Pascual Perez and his successor, Steve Bedrosian.

Stingy Steers meet bustin' Broncos

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

The team with the talent to challenge in the District 4-AAAAA race is doing just that. And they're gaining more believers each week.

Despite a 2-1 showing before district, the Odessa Broncos were not given much hope against Midland Lee in their league opener. But the Broncos upended the Rebels 10-7 and moved on to face Cooper. Not many gave the Broncos a chance again but it was Cooper that limped home with a 34-8 pasting.

Now comes a game with the Big Spring Steers and a chance to stay unbeaten with Permian (should Mojo hold off the Angry Orange of San Angelo). The only problem is the Steers are coming off their first district win in two years and boast the league's No. 2 defense.

"Odessa puts the pressure on on defense...they like to attack you," says Big Spring head coach Quinn Eudy. "This is the most important game of the year for us. It's the Super Bowl."

The Broncho offense scored just 34 points in its first four games. Then things fell together and Odessa matched that total in one outing against the Cougars.

The main thing for the Broncos is eliminating the turnovers. Odessa has the fourth best offense in the league with 1,324 yards but has been hampered by mistakes.

"Their offense against Cooper didn't surprise me at all," Eudy says. "They came through when they had to — they had 100 yards on that one play. Cooper let their quarterback run free and they hit Cooper in a good slant."

Three ballcarriers line up behind quarterback Albert Cruz. Still, he's the most potent weapon in the Odessa attack. He can throw the ball (as he proved with a 99-yard scoring toss against Cooper) and he can run with it (111 yards for 3.6 average).

Howard Harris is the leading rusher on the team with 231 yards for a 4.3 average. Charles Hunter has 184 more with Tom White close behind with 146 yards.

Blocking for all the backs is a front line that is not big but possesses enough size to go with speed to be tough. The average across the front five is 182 pounds per man.

Split end Thomas Taylor is Cruz's favorite receiver with six catches for 88 yards. But watch out for Cal Kendrick who caught the 99-yard bomb against Cooper.

"They've done a good job offensively," said Eudy. "They've corrected the turnovers that had stopped them before. They run the most complicated offense we'll have to face this year."

On defense, the Broncos operate from a 4-3 set. On the scouting charts used by the Big Spring High coaching staff, no position is listed as weak one.

"They have one of those 'come at you' type defenses," Eudy reports. "Their linebacking crew is good...they have two starters back from last year. Charles Hunter is 6-3, 190 and Joe Samford is 6-3, 200. Both are strong and mobile."

The Odessa secondary has given up only

JOHNNY SMITHWICK LOOKS FORWARD TO ODESSA
...offensive line blocking is job often overlooked

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

No one appreciates the offensive line. Well, at least that's the accusation made at writers and sports announcers. But you can bet the rest of the football team is thankful they're around and that makes Johnny Smithwick's job worthwhile.

Smithwick plays a tackle position on the left side of the Big Spring Steer offense. It's his job to read what the linebackers are doing and keep out nosy defensive ends and other assorted rushers when quarterback Adam Rodriguez is trying to throw the football. It's a job that often gets overlooked but one nonetheless essential to the offensive success of the Steers.

"I think we're the best in the district," Smithwick says. "We've been working on getting together. We've seen glimpses of how good we can be when we're together. We just want to do it all the time."

Smithwick's week went well as the Steers prepared for tonight's battle against Odessa High. "We did a lot of hitting and tried to learn the plays." As a tackle, he worked on his job to keep the linebackers away from Steer ballcarriers and ends from bothering the quarterbacks when they want to throw.

He started out playing on the right side but after a strong spring training he was moved to the left side. "You need to have quick feet and be alert. Being good means knowing who to take on. Yeah, the offense depends on us. Sometimes we can't get together and mess up a play. But then we say 'okay, it's my fault. No need to gripe.' That way we don't get down."

The Midland victory has given the Steers a lift but now all attention is focused on Odessa. "Our goal is just to keep on winning...don't stop...don't look back. (Odessa) is the most important game we have this week. It's the Super Bowl for us."

Besides playing on the offensive line, Smithwick works on kickoff returns and extra point plays. He also spells defensive tackles Monte Lamb and Doug Walker. "Yeah,

Lady Steers, JVs stun AHS in straight sets

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

What a difference confidence can make in a team.

Sporting a new mental outlook, a new face at the service line and new look at the net, the Big Spring Lady Steers destroyed the Abilene Eagles 15-2, 15-7 in the second half District 4-AAAAA opener for both teams.

The win avenged a first half defeat in Abilene at the start of district play last month. The victory also gives Big Spring three wins in its last four league matches.

The match was just as close as the score indicates. Big Spring scored the first three points of the opening set, dropped a point and then won 11 straight, eight coming with newcomer Tammy Yancey at the service stripe.

Yancey, a sparkplug for the junior varsity all season, kept Abilene off balance with her looping serve that dropped in on AHS when they least expected it. Three of the eight points scored when Yancey was serving came from the serve.

Meanwhile at the net, Paula Spears and Sylvia Randle were blasting away at the Eagles. When an AHS set was too close to the net, the Big Spring duo would reach and slap it back for winners at the startled Eagles.

Big Spring raced out to a 9-0 advantage in the second set with Yancey serving four winners and Shell Rutledge two. Abilene regrouped to close to the score to 12-7 at one point but two errors and Rutledge's spinning serve won the set and match for the Lady Steers.

"I changed the lineup and I'm more confident in it," said an obviously happy coach Becky Holliday after the match. "The girls are more confident in themselves."

As for stealing Yancey from the JVs, Holliday said, "I just brought her up yesterday (Wednesday). She has the skill to be one of my main players. She's consistent and showed a lot of confidence tonight."

With the way the Lady Steers looked Thursday night, what does the second half in store for Big Spring?

"If we continue to play like this, we can win the second half," Holliday predicted. "We've really pushed teamwork and talking. Lack of communication was our biggest problem before."

The junior varsity also got off to a 1-0 start with a 15-4, 15-12 victory. Debbie Holguin scored six points and Vickie Hallmann eight in the straight set victory. Taylisa Cork and Sheri Graham were recognized as top offensive players and Graham the leading defensive player in the match by coach Elaine Stone.

Both teams are in action again Tuesday when they travel to Midland (a team that went 6-1 in the first half).

BLOCK AT THE NET—Shell Rutledge (24) blocks a spike at the net by Abilene High's Bernice Robinson (5). Rutledge and the Lady Steers whipped AHS 15-2, 15-7 in the second half opener for both teams Thursday night in BSHS gym.

LaJet sub-par attack headed by Levi's 64

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Some ideal conditions — warm, sunny weather and the rare absence of west Texas wind that stripped the Fairway Oaks Golf and Racquet Club course of its natural defenses — helped Wayne Levi, Craig Stadler and Jay Haas lead the massive assault on par in the first round of the $350,000 LaJet Classic.

In all, 71 men in the field of 156 broke par 72 Thursday.

But Ray Floyd, the PGA champion vainly struggling to overtake Stadler on the money-winning list, was not among them.

Neither was Tom Kite, who's attempting to nail down a second consecutive Vardon Trophy in what may be his last start of the season.

Nor was Tom Watson, holder of the U.S. and British Open titles and leading in the race for a fifth Player of the Year title.

The weather didn't help them. Floyd, who has missed the cut in his last two starts, matched par 72. Watson, holding a narrow lead over Stadler in the standings that will determine Player of the Year, was one stroke higher. And the weary Kite had an opening 74 for the second consecutive week.

All must improve today if they are to qualify for the final two rounds of play

Saturday and Sunday. While they were struggling, however, Levi birdied six of his last seven holes for an 8-under-par 64 that set the first round pace and, he said, could have been better.

Levi, who has quietly collected more than $200,000 in earnings this season and recorded his fourth career victory early this year, missed putts of eight feet or less on his first five holes.

"I had a real good chance to shoot in the 50s if I'd made some putts early," he said. "But if I did, who's to say I would have made the late ones."

Mike Morley, who said he has "been in a reasonable slump," scored two eagles on his way to a 65 that left him alone in second.

Stadler, the Masters champion and leading money-winner, made a late rush with birdies on four of his last five holes for a 66 that put him only two shots back and in position to challenge for a fifth title of the season. He was tied with John Fought and Vance Heafner.

Haas, who has won his last two starts, again played without a bogey and recorded a 67. He now has gone 111 holes, over three tournaments, with only one bogey.

Steers game plan not changed this week

163 yards all year but Eudy says that won't change much in the Big Spring game plan.

"We'll still through when we have to," he predicted. "We can't let that stop us. They play an intimidation-type secondary. We just can't let them intimidate us."

Eudy sees his team sticking with the same game plan that has worked for three wins in five tries. Big Spring will run the football with fullback Danny Stephen and tailback Eric Sherman and pass when the situation dictates.

Quarterback Adam Rodriguez is rated No. 2 in the district and likes to go to Dale Crenshaw (8 for 11) and Robert Porras (5 for 10). Porras made the big catch that set up Big Spring's field goal against Midland.

The kicking game will be a featured phase of this game. Darrell Kruse of Odessa and Big Spring's Jay Pirkle both own 40.6 averages punting. Kruse, however, has punted just 19 times and Pirkle 30. Eudy believes it was the kicking game that kept Big Spring out of serious trouble against Midland.

IF YOU ARE THINKING OF REMODELING?

THE LIGHT TOUCH

By Sherry Wegner

According to a survey on what people worry about, it showed that 40% of our worries never happen, 30% have already happened, 12% are health worries, 10% are misc. worries & only 8% of our worries are real concerns... which proves that 92% of our worries are a waste of time! Now I'm going to worry about wasting so much time worrying...

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 9, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to organize your thoughts so that you can easily gain your desired objectives. A time to make plans that could give you more abundance in the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care you don't jeopardize your present security in some way. Make the day a happy one by being more cheerful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what is expected of you by family members and make an attempt to work more harmoniously with them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle routine tasks but be careful in motion. Take health treatments so that you have more strength and vitality.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend to personal affairs early in the day and take any delays in your stride. Obtain valuable information you need.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure you schedule your day well and plan sensible social activities for the evening. Improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep appointments with friends and show them you are able to rise above difficult situations. Take no risks in travel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to be more efficient in your line of endeavor. Take some time today for any health treatments you may need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have inspired ideas and can easily express yourself at this time. Attending a social affair can be most enjoyable now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Analyze your true position in life and know exactly where you are headed. Maintain harmony with family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a decision about a long-time problem and discuss it openly with persons involved. Remove obstacles in your path.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Know what you want to do and then go after it with conviction and get the results you want. Control your temper.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put those ideas to work that will help you get ahead. Sidestep one who wants to lead you in the wrong direction.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will be one of those charming young persons who should have a fine education and learn a great deal since later in life many problems have to be coped with and your progeny will be well equipped to handle them.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

No heartache surpasses that of earnest parents trying to mold the character of their child... and seeing daily the ominous signs of failure. But all the urging, pleading, coaxing and punishing we can muster is unlikely to change the course of a life that lacks spiritual backbone.

Who can drive a crooked nail?

The sooner religious training begins, the earlier its results become evident in a child's attitude and behavior. Your child's readiness to respond to parental encouragement and discipline is merely the reflection of those deeper qualities of personal integrity which spiritual growth will foster.

Let your place of worship help you raise your family. God never meant you to try it alone!

Church enters rebuilding era

By CAROL HART
Church Editor

Out in front of Dr. N.H. Franklin's home, located on the grounds of Baker's Chapel AME Church, you will see a step-ladder, buckets of paint and a variety of tools. It's rebuilding time at the church, and Dr. Franklin, minister of Baker's Chapel, is working with parishioners to make repairs both on the building and on programs offered through the church.

"A preacher has to get his hands dirty," Dr. Franklin says. "He can't sit behind a desk. I want to let these people know I'm interested. I want to see the church grow, and it will grow," he says with optimism.

The AME in the church's name stands for African Methodist Episcopal. The AME church has a rich history, Dr. Franklin says. "We came out of the Methodist Church in 1787, following a protest between blacks and whites." The church, founded by Richard Allen, broke away from the St. George Methodist Church in Philadelphia, and parishioners called their church Mother Bethel Church.

But the church "is not just for blacks. We have a lot of whites" in congregations throughout America and overseas," Dr. Franklin explains that the African in the title of the church was put there because the church was founded by black people.

The local church was founded by the Rev. Henry Baker in 1929, and is located at 911 N. Lancaster.

Dr. Franklin, who's initials stand for Nineveh Hartsel, also has an interesting background.

"I was born in Mineola," he recalls. He later moved to Dallas, where he attended high school, but left before he graduated.

"I was a run-away at 13," he says. He returned home, and to school, but left again at 17, while enrolled in the 12th grade. He didn't allow himself to become idle, but instead opted to join the Army, a career he followed for 20 years.

While in the military, "I took advantage of every opportunity offered to me." He took and passed his G.E.D. high school equivalency exams. He then attended the University of Maryland, the University of Colorado, and Burton College, a seminary, in Colorado. He obtained his BA and MA degrees in Colorado, and got a doctor of divinity degree at seminary.

During this time he was also climbing in the military. Dr. Franklin served as an enlisted man for 15 years, but received a direct commission as an officer while stationed in Okinawa. He was taken from first sergeant to first lieutenant, because President Kennedy authorized an incentive program for blacks in the military. "My I.Q. was high enough that I qualified. I was promoted to captain before I retired in 1966."

The military took him to posts across the United States, Korea, Okinawa and Germany. But he says that serving the church was his real ambition.

DR. N.H. FRANKLIN
...new pastor

"I first got the calling (to church work) when I was about 13. After I went into the military, I worked in many churches. Then I began to study, to make preparations" for entering the ministry full-time.

"I was a drop-out, but I had always wanted an education." He not only studied in various universities, but attended Adjutant General school at Fort Benning, Indiana, and graduated from an Army cook and baker's school.

After leaving the Army, Dr. Franklin went to St. James AME church in Dallas, his home church, as an associate pastor. He later was pastor at churches in Rosebud, Hubbard, Odessa, El Paso, Abilene and Amarillo, before being assigned to Big Spring.

Dr. Franklin feels "the Church is moving in the right direction," but adds he fears "religion is on the wane in our society today. We as ministers have our work cut out for us. We have to be more sympathetic towards our parishioners."

Dr. Franklin also feels he doesn't always "preach just what the people want to hear. They want to hear good things, no hellfire and damnation."

He feels "theology is fine, but we need to stick to the gospel."

Dr. Franklin will soon be joined here by his wife, the former Margaret Milligan. Dr. and Mrs. Franklin were married Sept. 25 in Amarillo. Joining the couple here will be Dr. Franklin's step-daughter, Jessica.

His first wife is deceased, he explained, and he has six children in the Dallas area. They include Nineveh Hartsel Jr., a parcel post employee, Kenneth Rhea, who works with the Post Office, James, supervisor of the laundry department at a Dallas hospital, Timothy, who attends school, daughter Sandra, and Charles, who, following in his father's footsteps, is associate pastor of the St. James AME Church in Dallas.

Dr. Franklin says he has found people in Big Spring to be "real congenial. The people here are beautiful." But the gregarious preacher says "I don't meet any strangers. I've never felt inferior. I'm an avid reader, and I've worked all my life. I believe in doing things."

Society names officers

The newly elected and installed members of the Ladies Altar Society at St. Thomas Catholic Church held their first meeting at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the church youth hall.

Meeting was called to order by Mrs. Orlando Tercero, president. Other officers are Mrs. Tereso Molina Sr., vice president, Mrs. Leo Esconedo, treasurer, Miss Mary Chavez, secretary, and Mrs. Carmen Gonzales, assistant treasurer and reporter.

Kitchen working groups were revised and some changes made. There will be four groups preparing the food during the Sunday night bingos. Group captains for the next year are Group I, Mrs. Lupe R. Gonzales; Group II, Mrs. Gavina Nunez; Group III, Mrs. Lupe Padilla; and Group IV, Mrs. Jesusita Lopez.

A benefit breakfast to aid Lupe Yanez, a member of the society stricken with cancer, was discussed. The breakfast was slated for Oct. 24.

Mrs. Lupe Saldivar will be in charge of the Guadalupana Fiesta set Dec. 12.

Mrs. Lupe R. Gonzales will be in charge of the flowers for the church, and will also be in charge of aiding members who are ill.

Serving refreshments for the Nov. 2 meeting will be Lupe Saldivar and Patsy Tercero. The door prize was won by Paulita Martinez.

Missionary league meets

The Lutheran Women's Missionary League, West Texas Zone, traveled to Pecos recently for the Fall Rally. Groups from Andrews, Big Spring, Fort Stockton, Kermit, Midland, Monahan, Odessa and Pecos attended.

Theme of the program was "To God be the Glory, For Great Things he hath done." Pastor Willman of Andrews gave the opening devotion, to serve the Lord with gladness to the Glory of God with our hands.

During a sermonette Rev. Aldler of Kermit shared Bible references.

Sharon Burke, Midland, who attended the LWML convention June 22-23 in Corpus Christi, gave the report of activities and projects adopted for the Texas district.

Mrs. Amalie Long, Monahan, presided for the business meeting and election of officers. Newly-elected president is Mrs. Mina Fitting. Emma Knighton is secretary-treasurer. Officers were installed by the Rev. Archibald of Monahan.

Mrs. Fitting will represent the zone at the Christian Home Seminar in Oklahoma City, Okla. Another retreat is planned in April, 1983, at the Baptist Encampment in Stanton.

Attending from Big Spring included Ruth Oppgaard, Shirley Reid, Janette Bentley, Leighrene Kohl and Evelyn Pachall.

Church of God women meet

Women of the First Church of God met recently to plan an all-church Thanksgiving dinner Nov. 21. Plans for the Christmas Bazaar Nov. 5 and 6 were also discussed. Hettie Minix, unit president, presided. The group studied Pluralism. The study, entitled "Richness in Diversity — Melting Pot or Salad Bowl," was directed by Betty Reagan, missionary education director. She was assisted by Anna Smith and Kathryn Thomas.

With the salad bowl theory, individual ingredients do not lose their identity as they would in a melting pot. Each give something to the total — color, texture and flavor.

Jean McCray, spiritual life director, closed the meeting. The group will meet again Nov. 1.

'Confronting Christ' is theme

"Confronting Christ" will be the theme of revival services set Oct. 13-17 at Phillips Memorial Baptist Church, 408 State, beginning at 7 p.m. nightly.

Dr. Max Brown, director of Texas Baptist Human Welfare Coordinating Board, will be guest evangelist. Dr. Brown has more than 20 years of pastoral experience to bring to the pulpit.

Cecil and Becky Garner will conduct the singing. Garner is minister of music at College Baptist Church.

Laymen's retreat slated

Twenty-five members of the First Church of the Nazarene will attend a Laymen's Retreat this weekend at Camp Arrowhead near Glen Rose.

Speaking will be Dr. Leslie Parrott, president of the Mt. Vernon Nazarene College in Ohio. Clarence and Wonda Hawkins are on the District Laymen's Retreat Board and are serving as registrars for this year's event, according to Dr. Carl Powers, pastor of the local church.
