'Candy Man' execution is upheld

HOUSTON (AP) — A man sentenced to die on Halloween for poisoning his 8-year-old son with cyanide-laced candy lost a third attempt to stay the execution, but his lawyers vowed to take the case back to a higher court.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling on Wednesday refused to stay the scheduled execution of Ronald Clark O'Bryan, dubbed the "Candy Man" by fellow inmates for his crime.

O'Bryan, 37, could become the first convict executed in Texas since 1964 and the first ever to die by lethal injection. Since the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the death penalty in 1974, five condemned men have been executed.

Defense attorneys Will Gray and Stanley Schneider argued three potential jurors were dismissed improperly because they expressed reservations about the death penalty.

They also claimed the jury was not told to give consideration to favorable evidence presented during the trial's punishment phase nor adequately instructed on the range of punishment.

"We had 18 witnesses who got up and said he was a good, church-going fellow and the state presented nothing," said Gray, who also is handling appeals for 27 of the other 168 Death Row inmates.

Sterling rejected the arguments and refused to stay the execution. Previous appeals have gone all the way to the Supreme Court and were turned down each step of the way.

Gray said he will go back to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and then to the Supreme Court to try to stop the execution.

"You execute someone on Halloween so a judge can get some votes," Gray said of State District Judge Michael McSpadden, who last month ordered O'Bryan to die before sunrise on Halloween, exactly eight years after the boy's death.

McSpadden, who is running for reelection, told O'Bryan the Halloween execution date was "no accident. I picked it for you especially."

O'Bryan, a former Deer Park optician, was convicted of capital murder in the Halloween 1974 death of his son, Timothy.

The jury foreman at O'Bryan's trial said evidence that he murdered his son and intended to poison his daughter in hopes of collecting life insurance money was "overwhelming."

But O'Bryan has insisted he is innocent and said he won't change his story, even at his hour of execution.

"My last words would be no different than what I've said all along — I still maintain my innocence," he said.

Actor waltzes into Big Spring

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Terry Jastrow, a Midlander by raising, didn't set out to make his movie "Waltz Across Texas" a promotion for the Texas way of life. But, he says, if that's the way it works out, it suits him just fine.

"Waltz Across Texas," will premiere in Big Spring Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Ritz Theater, with proceeds the first night to go to the Big Spring United Way. It is a unique film. It deals with a love story between a West Texas landman in the oil industry and a geologist from the East, Anne Archer.

"One thing that 'Waltz Across Texas' is," Jastrow said Wednesday in Big Spring, "it's first and foremost a very entertaining, marvelously funny movie. But, at the same time, I think it's kind of a tribute to West Texas."

And a tribute to West Texas is something that Jastrow thinks has been a long time coming. He hasn't been happy with the light most filmmakers have seen Texas and Texans in lately.

"I felt that, for the most part, it's (the films) a bunch of junk — Datas and things like that," he said. "It seems to me to be only a concoction in the mind of some Hollywood producer about what Texas is like and what

"WALTZING" INTO BIG SPRING — Terry Jastrow, star of the new movie "Waltz Across Texas," made a swing through Big Spring Wednesday to promote his film and speak of his images of West Texas. The movie will premiere in Big Spring Saturday night, and Jastrow, his wife and co-star Anne Archer, and Josh Taylor (Chris Kostich of "Days of Our Lives") will be at the Ritz to sign autographs at 6:30 p.m.

Texans are like. I was really dedicated not to do any of that. I mean, I have a tremendous appreciation for Texas, and obviously, since growing up here, a certain awareness of what Texas is all about and what Texans are all about."

Archer, starred in the film — may have been part of a reaction by Jastrow to the harsh light films like "Hard Country" give to Texans.

"Hard Country," starring Jan-Michael Vincent, was rough on Texas, and Jastrow sees that as unfair.

"I hated 'Hard Country,'" he says with an air of indignation. "Despised that movie. When that came out... I went to screen it, and I despised everything about it — the story, the way they portrayed the people — I thought it was a cheap shot. There was no way I was not going to make this movie after I saw that movie."

"We set out to make an entertaining, interesting movie — not a message movie — but if, in the process, we clear up a few misconceptions and speak a little more honestly and more truthfully about what they (Texans) are all about, it would suit me just fine," Archer says, his blue eyes flashing and the words spilling out faster than normal for his Texas drawl.

Full-time municipal judge considered

Council faces 2 controversies

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring City Council members have two controversial issues on their meeting agenda tomorrow: replacing part-time municipal court judge Bobby West with a full-time judge and leasing of city-owned Airport hangar.

The council's regular Tuesday night meeting has been re-scheduled for 1 p.m. Friday because several councilmen plan to attend a Texas Municipal League convention in Fort Worth Tuesday.

West — part-time municipal court judge since his appointment by the council two years ago — is expected to be replaced soon with a full-time judge, due to what city councilmen are calling an "economic revamping" of municipal court.

Councilman Jack Y. Smith said the issue will be discussed in an executive session after tomorrow's public meeting.

"The council feels it is 'beneficial to the city to go to a full-time judge' because it would save the city an estimated $6,000 to $7,000 a year. Councilman

Larry Miller said.

Although he declined to name the person, Miller said a current city employee is considering accepting the position.

Councilman Russ McEwen said that if any action is taken it would be for economic reasons. "I'm satisfied with his work. We're not disappointed in West's job."

West told the Herald he felt it is "high time they had a full-time judge" because "the workload in city court is increasing more and more each week." He said he would not resign his peace justice position to become municipal judge on a full-time basis.

ALSO, THE council is scheduled to decide which of three companies will contract with the city to lease two soon-to-be completed hangars on the west side of Big Spring Municipal Airport. The issue generated more than an hour of discussion at the last city council meeting on Oct. 12.

The council plans to lease both hangars to fixed base operators (FBOs), companies that offer a variety of aircraft services including repair, fuel and storage.

Four companies — Trans Regional Air, H.M. Rickabaugh, James Massengill and O.L.L. — applied to lease the hangars from the city. However, Rickabaugh has withdrawn his bid since his employment with Trans Regional, City Manager Don Davis said.

The issue hinges on Massengill's desire for both hangars and Davis' contention that Trans Regional's current contract with the city automatically entitles him to one of the hangars.

Massengill's representative, attorney-at-law Gull Jones III, appeared before the council Oct. 12 and questioned Trans Regional's compliance with city FBO specifications. City Attorney Doyle Curtis has checked into the matter and "is of the opinion that Trans Regional's contract is valid," Davis said Tuesday.

The council tabled a decision on the matter until tomorrow's meeting.

Strake blames Hobby for poor highways, no water plan

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

A small but staunch crowd of supporters for GOP lieutenant governor candidate George Strake braved the blustery West Texas wind today to hear Strake praise them for their work but ask them to work a bit harder.

During the brief meeting, held on the steps of the courthouse, Strake outlined several issues he feels L.L. Gov. Bill Hobby has failed to address during his tenure.

"I would like to ask Mr. Hobby why our state highways are not at the standard they were 10-15 years ago. I think we need to look into improving our highway system," Strake said. "He (Hobby) has turned his back on the terrible condition of state highways."

Strake also criticized Hobby for failing to bring about a viable water plan for the state.

"Mr. Hobby campaigned against the last water plan and just recently he has announced that he is coming out with a water plan. Why has he waited so long to address the problem?" Strake said.

Strake also responded to an Associated Press story that quoted Gov. Bill Clements as saying Hobby would defeat Strake in November.

"I haven't read the story, but someone did read it to me over the phone and it sound like vintage Clements. I'm not going to change what I'm doing... This just gives me more incentive to run even harder," he said.

Strake ended with a plea for Howard County Republican supporters "to treat Howard County like it could be the difference in the election. Bill Clements won his election by only 16,000 votes, so one county does matter."

As the campaign winds to a close for Strake he is mounting a massive 108-city blitz during the last weeks before the Nov. 6 election date.

Shaw to debate Cockerham

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The race for the 69th Texas House of Representatives seat is building to a crescendo as both candidates, Rep. Jerry Cockerham, R-Monahans, and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, have agreed to a debate in Monahans Sunday.

Cockerham and Shaw were paired in a recent redistricting move and they have been campaigning long and hard to win a district that stretches 300 miles to the west of Howard County. This is possibly the only time the two will appear together to debate the issues.

According to Shaw's campaign aide, Susan Tron, the candidates will discuss interest rates, tax reform, utility rates and law and order.

Each candidate will have a three-minute opening statement, three minutes to discuss each of the above topics, two minutes of rebuttal time for each topic, and a three-minute closing statement.

The debate is set for 3 p.m. at Hill Park located at the intersection of Allen and Fifth streets.

Snowstorm paralyzes northern U.S.

By The Associated Press

A snowstorm that left vast cornfields of the Midwest a boggy mess surprised Michigan with up to 14 inches of snow by early today, knocking out the electricity for thousands of people and closing schools in four counties.

"I wasn't expecting this much this fast," said Marvin Taulbee of the National Weather Service in Marquette, Mich. "This was the first big one of the season."

In Ironwood, Mich., where 52 city workers were on strike, only the city's public works superintendent was available to operate a snowplow.

"He's the only one out," said city clerk Anita Zak. "It's heavy, wet snow, but we're keeping the highway and the main thoroughfare open."

The storm marched through the Corn Belt on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, snapping tree limbs, downing power lines and snarling traffic from eastern Nebraska to Michigan.

Two men were killed in separate auto accidents related to the storm.

Schools in parts of Michigan, South Dakota and Wisconsin were closed Wednesday.

- Award bid for a new in-house telephone system. Three bids were submitted and opened Tuesday from Advanced Telephone Systems of Big Spring, Midland's Communication Corporation of America and Southwestern Bell, Davis said.
- A request by First Missionary Baptist Church Pastor Robert A. Murray for a mobile chapel permit at 1209 Gregg.
- Award bid for employee uniforms. City Purchasing Agent Leonard Hadley suggests it be awarded to low bidder Mitchell's Custom Clothes and Tri-State Sales, a local company.
- Specifications approval and permission for the city to advertise for firemen's uniform bids. Fire Chief Jim Ryals said in a memo that he wishes to improve his men's morale by dressing them in "better looking" uniforms. The proposed uniforms are about $3.50 higher per set, but the cost will be offset by issuing two dress uniforms and one coverall rather than three uniforms, Ryals said.
- Permission to advertise for bids to sell and remove the Public Works office building, a World War I barracks, from the city service center complex at Second and Donley. Davis said the city proposes to move the present metal water office building to the service center and use it as a Public Works office. The move would be made after the new water office building is complete.
- Final reading of a resolution authorizing a cash reserve fund for the Industrial Park.
- Final reading of a resolution to lease Industrial Park building 1018 to Joe Speckles.
- Final reading of a resolution to lease 1,475 feet of Industrial Park building 1106 to Advanced Telephone Systems, Inc.
- Appointment to the Accident Review and Juvenile Boards and the Audit Committee.
- Discuss the status of the reappraisal efforts, an item tabled from the council's last meeting.
- Final pay estimates for water and wastewater line improvements, part of the capital improvements project phase I. Public Works Director Tom Decell said the final contract amount with Clouse Construction, Inc. is $589,166.50. Amount due is $44,124.17.
- Approval of $12,000 payment for the Big Spring and Howard County Juvenile Board, an agency funded 40 percent by the city and the rest by the county and school board.
- Discuss the Texas Municipal Retirement System. Personnel Director Emma Bogard said updating service credits and 10 year vesting would benefit city employees and help the city's employee retention rate. About 65 percent of city employees have been employed less than five years and about 15 percent have been employed five to nine years. Only 18 percent have been employed ten or more years.

Jastrow

"Waltz Across Texas" is a film about subjects close to Jastrow's heart — Texans and independent oilmen. He claims West Texas as his territory since he grew up in Midland, and oilmen are no further from his beginnings than the sound of his father coming home from work. Although Jastrow takes pains to explain that "none of it (the film) is really, actually, based on him, but all of it is based on an independent oilman — the business of oil from an independent point of view," his father "was, and is, an oilman." "It was always a very up-and-down kind of life," he says of his upbringing. "A very turbulent kind of rollercoaster existence. You know, there are those times when oil families are eating steaks and the next year, they're eating hamburgers. Ours was very much like that, too." And Jastrow himself spent time in the oil patch as a young man. "I worked at various locations outside of Odessa," he said. "The funny thing about it is that my mother used to wash my jeans every night and clean off my hardhat — stuff like that. She didn't want her kid out there getting too muddy." A little-boy light shines in his eyes as he says, "Took me about an hour to get them dirty again — I got zanded right and left."

TERRY JASTROW ...producer-actor

in the job."

THE MOVIE enabled Jastrow to set foot on a rig floor again after an absence of several years. "I loved it," he said. "Something about the smell and the sound." And the roughnecks operating the rig were "great" in the movie, he said. "No way you could cast an actor to give you that quality." "One of the things that's been consistently responded to about the film is how marvelously authentic it is, and how 'real' it is," he says. "...we shot it entirely in West Texas, not on some location or sound lot somewhere, and we used Texans. We used over 300 people working in the film. Linda Bond (a Midlander) was essentially the casting director and really gathered a marvelous collection of people from all the walks of life of business of West Texas from the roughnecks and toolpushers to geologists to business people and executives in wonderful offices. You get kind of a kaleidoscope of life, but it is true and actually West Texas." "Look, if what's there is so fascinating and so interesting, why camouflage it — why not use it to help the film?" Jastrow asks rhetorically. That atmosphere — the realities and risks of the oil patch, where everything is on the line — is something that Jastrow is comfortable with. Fresh out of college, he went to work for ABC Sports, rising to the top of the heap as the youngest producer in the history of American television at 22. He had been nominated for 14 Emmy awards, and admits there was "a certain amount of momentum there and a certain amount of security and said 'Anne, we're going to make a movie about the oil business.' She said 'great,' as in 'No kidding — what else are you drinking over there?' I said, 'No, I'm serious,' and I told her about it and she said 'Hey, that's interesting. Let's go do that.'" Jastrow is pleased, to say the least, to be working with his wife as co-star. "She was an honor," he says, pride tingling his voice. "She's one of the best actresses I know, and a very professional and talented lady. I think she's one of the ten best actresses in America today." Was it ever difficult to work with his spouse? "Not in acting," he says. "We have a fabulous relationship as actors. It's easy — we help each other a lot. It's tough as producers, though. I mean, there's so much at stake, economically and emotionally. The creative process is, by definition, subjective — opinions are involved. So, we push and holler and scream and bite on the creative side, but as actors we're smooth as silk," Jastrow says with a smile. When he finally sat down to view the finished product, surprisingly, his feelings were mixed, he said. "In some ways, it's a little painful," he said. "You know, you've bet so much of your time and money and emotion on something like that. But the over-riding experience for me is one of joy. Real joy." Most of the audiences that have seen the movie have also been pleased with the film, he said, and all the premieres have been for charities. "I just feel that Texas gave me a lot, and I'm thankful for it," he says as he explains the charity premieres. "To the degree that I can, I like to give something back. The charity in Dallas and the charity in Midland and the charity in Big Spring are damn worthwhile things, and this movie is the kind of movie that you can do a premiere with." A family film, then? "I don't think it's a family film in the sense that it's boring," he said. "I mean there's some nudity in it, a little raw language and there's a fight in there — all in the interest of trying to be authentic and not Pollyanna about it. But the general feeling is so positive and uplifting that it is very much a film to be considered by all people." Jastrow is already at work on his second film. Like "Waltz," this movie will be about a subject loved by Texans — high school football. And, like "Waltz," he will draw on his beginnings in Texas. "I think most creative people do that (draw on their beginnings) in the beginning," he said. "I don't want to be limited to that or pigeonholed in that, but, as Darrel Royal says, 'you dance with what brung ya.' And I know these two worlds — the oil industry and high school football to be fascinating material for an interesting movie." So, Jastrow hopes to continue to waltz across Texas and Hollywood during a promising career.

BUT JASTROW wasn't happy. "Live television is a very demanding thing," he said. "Your nerves get a little frayed and I became a little rude, a little pushy — you know, when you come from West Texas, those are pretty foreign personality traits. So, I decided, instead of going for the immediate glory, to do something that would make me happy and bet on the if-come." "Waltz" is his first film under his own banner, but he likes that independence and the accompanying responsibility. "We were talking about a co-production deal with Warner Brothers, but the problem with a studio is that control comes with money," he said. "If they put money in the film they begin to have a say about it. We wanted to make the kind of movie that we wanted to make, and we felt very well equipped to make it." In doing so, Jastrow stepped out a limb, one as spindly as a mesquite tree in Midland. "I don't think I'd recognize any other condition," he laughs. "I mean, whatever the circumstances are, I do not now and never have played it safe. It's a wonderful risk, very much as in the oil business. If it goes good, we're the people who stand to make it, and if it goes bad, I'm the guy who's got myself on the line for it. I like that kind of excitement in life, and as long as my wife is willing to go along with me, by God, I'll roll that dice." He's been rolling the dice ever since the idea for "Waltz" came to him on a sleepless night. "ISN'T IT funny how creativity can come at the strangest times and in the strangest ways?" he asks. "I was in London doing a telecast for ABC Sports and I couldn't sleep, and this idea was rumbling around in my mind. It just sort of all came together, like 'Hey, what if.... and suppose.... and then what happens if this would happen, and the narrative just kind of gave birth to itself.'" "I wrote it down and called Anne,

Halley's comet sighting reported

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Halley's comet, seen by man before Christ was born, has been spotted a billion miles away on its first return to the solar system since 1910, still only a speck but "right on track." The comet, named for English astronomer Edmund Halley, appears in some records as far back as 87 B.C. It was last seen by the naked eye in May 1910, when its brilliance stretched across the night skies with a tail millions of miles long. Scientists at the California Institute of Technology said Wednesday they had seen the comet through a 200-inch telescope, ending an informal contest to be first to spot the rare visitor. The astronomers said the comet will not be visible to the naked eye until the first day of 1986. Halley's Comet, which orbits the sun approximately every 76 years, is due to approach within 90 million miles of Earth in early 1986, closer than the 93 million miles between the Earth and the sun. Caltech astronomers David C. Jewitt and G. Edward Danielson said they first spotted the comet last week from the Palomar Observatory near San Diego and double-checked the discovery Monday. "We know where it is now and it's right on track," Danielson said. Jewitt said the comet is a solid block of ice, with the tail to develop from gases released when the comet warms as it nears the sun. At a news conference, Jewitt said scientists hope to be able to learn more about the universe by studying the comet, which contains material relatively unchanged by time. The Soviets, French and Japanese are planning to launch space probes to photograph Halley's as it passes. The Reagan administration canceled a U.S. intercept as too expensive, but observations are planned with the space telescope scheduled to be put into orbit in 1985.

Nurse of the Month

Diana Nichols believes in doing things in a big way and in a short time. She has been all smiles lately, and she has every right to be. Within a space of 10 days she has given birth to her first born, a darling baby girl, and shortly before that she was named Hall-Bennett Hospital Nurse of the Month for October and Nurse of the Year for 1982. For the latter honor Charles A. Weeg, administrator of Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital, presented her with a plaque in absentia at one of the hospital's annual picnics held on September 25, 1982. ## Student injured in fight

A Rannels Elementary student was treated and released at Hall-Bennett Hospital after a fight this morning with a passing motorist. According to Big Spring Police Sgt. J.D. Carter, a youth had been kicked in the face "pretty bad" after he had stood in front of a passing student's vehicle. A fight ensued after the driver got out of his vehicle, Carter said. No arrests have been made at this point, he said. The injured youth was identified as Victor Martinez by a hospital spokesman.

- Big Spring police report they arrested Betty Rodriguez, 29, of 1405 Settles in connection with the theft of merchandise in Gibson Discount Store Wednesday at 5:45 p.m. According to police reports, a store employee observed a woman taking $34.91 in items from the store without paying. Ms. Rodriguez was released from custody after posting a $2,500 bond, according to Howard County sheriff's records.

- An employee at Dewees Exxon Station on West Highway 80 told police a man took gas and other items from the station and left without paying at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday. The various items were valued at $17, he said.
- Evelyn Bertran, 3610 Calvin, complained to police a man she knows cut the front tires of her vehicle while it was parked in her driveway at 3:40 a.m. today.
- Tamara Slate, 634 Manor, told police four rings and a gold watch, all valued at $990, had been lost out of a pocket while she was in a physical education class at Big Spring High School.
- Police arrested two teenagers following a report from the manager of K-Mart concerning a theft of goods. The thefts occurred at 7:05 p.m. Wednesday, according to police reports.
- Vehicles driven by Fernando Molina Ledesma, 1711 Mobile, and Jonathan Lynn Kerby, 2517 Fairchild, were in collision at the intersection of West Highway 80 and Wright Street at 8:29 p.m. Wednesday. Police report Ledesma was cited for failure to yield right of way. Kerby was cited for not having liability insurance. Police say Kerby also reported he was injured.
- A vehicle driven by Edwina Stuard O'Neal, Southland Apartments, and a parked vehicle owned by Clemente C. Sanchez, 513 N. Goliad, were in collision at 1900 Johnson and E. 20th at 1:16 p.m. Wednesday. Police say Ms. O'Neal was cited for backing without safety.
- Vehicles driven by Vanessa Ann Golden, 2718 Ann and Russell Dean Hodnett, also 2718 Ann, were in collision in the 200 block of 10th Street at 11:35 a.m. Wednesday. Police say Ms. Golden was ticketed for failure to yield right of way.

Arabs, Israel offer plans for Mideast peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-ranking Arab League delegation and Israel's foreign minister are here today to lobby on behalf of their conflicting strategies for achieving peace in the Middle East.

With interest mounting in an expanded multinational peacekeeping force for Lebanon, Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir requested a hastily-arranged meeting today with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

Israel does not want the multinational force near its border. But Lebanese President Amin Gemayel suggested in Paris Wednesday that the 3,800-man force in Beirut be increased to "about 30,000 troops" and given responsibilities outside the Lebanese capital.

Gemayel, who conferred with President Reagan Tuesday, said his visits to the United States, France and Italy had "the specific objective of extending the role of the multinational force" the three nations have deployed in Beirut since the end of September. About 1,200 U.S. Marines are part of that force.

The Lebanese president also repeated his demand that Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian forces withdraw from his country.

Shamir's presence in Washington is regarded as somewhat awkward by U.S. officials, since an Arab League delegation, headed by King Hassan of Morocco, also is in the city on a visit planned long in advance.

Although Lebanon will be the focus of the Shultz-Shamir meeting, the quest for an overall Mideast peace probably also would be discussed, a U.S. official said.

The Arab delegation will meet with Reagan on Friday to discuss Arab and U.S. proposals for achieving a Middle East peace. Israel has rejected both plans.

The Arab nations want a separate Palestinian state in the West Bank and Gaza Strip — territories occupied since 1967 by Israel. Reagan's plan, unveiled on Sept. 1, calls for Palestinian self-rule in association with Jordan.

Israel has said it will never give up the West Bank. Hassan said upon his arrival at Andrews Air Force Base Wednesday that achieving a lasting peace will be difficult and time-consuming.

"We are realists and we know we cannot in a few days or a few months find solutions for a problem which is 40 years old," the king said. "Our mission is to listen to the explanations of President Reagan and to explain to him our plans," he said.

Shultz, who greeted Hassan at the airport, lauded the objective of the king's trip, which he said is "a joint and lasting peace throughout the Middle East." Other nations represented in the delegation are Jordan, Syria, Algeria, Tunisia and Saudi Arabia, which were sending their foreign ministers.

Shamir met twice with Shultz in Washington last week to discuss a troop withdrawal from Lebanon, and U.S. officials said privately they didn't think another high-level meeting was needed at present.

"It's the Israelis that want this," said one. "We saw no particular use for it." The official speculated that Shamir wanted to discuss the results of Tuesday's meetings involving Gemayel, Reagan and Shultz.

A senior official had told reporters Tuesday that Morris Draper, Reagan's special Mideast envoy, probably would meet with Shamir in New York Thursday to report on the Gemayel visit.

SEARCH FOR TYLENOL SUSPECT CONTINUES — Kenneth Walton, left, eastern regional director of the FBI, and James Sullivan, New York Police Department detective, are shown at a press conference in Manhattan Wednesday. FBI agents and city police are continuing the search for a couple who lived at New York's Rutledge Hotel for more than a month.

Cyanide suspects elude authorities

NEW YORK (AP) — Police laid out a dragnet for James W. Lewis, described in Illinois as a "prime suspect" in the Tylenol killings, but at the same time they questioned whether Lewis was in Chicago when the deaths occurred.

Meanwhile, authorities said a man resembling Lewis was turned away from a cheap downtown hotel only 90 minutes before police closed in.

More than 100 FBI agents and 30 city detectives combed the city Wednesday after learning that Lewis and his wife had apparently slipped through their fingers. "If they're in the city, we will find them," said Deputy Assistant FBI Director Kenneth Walton.

Lewis, 36, is charged in a federal arrest warrant with trying to extort $1 million from McNeil Consumer Products Co., the manufacturer of Extra-Strength Tylenol. Seven people died after swallowing Tylenol capsules that had been laced with cyanide.

He was last seen a week ago at the Rutledge Hotel, a cheap hostelry where he lived with his 35-year-old wife, Leann, for six weeks.

That included the time of the Tylenol deaths in Chicago, reported between Sept. 29 and Oct. 2. "We think they stayed here (New York)," said Chief of Detectives James T. Sullivan. "We don't think there was traveling back and forth (to Chicago). The woman was working regularly during that time and her husband was seen with her."

But Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner repeated Wednesday that Lewis was still considered "a prime suspect" although "not the only one." He said authorities received reports of the couple being seen in Chicago during the period New York authorities say they were in their city.

Walton said Mrs. Lewis, who worked as a bookkeeper at a New York real estate office during the couple's stay at the hotel, may have a kidney ailment, and agents checked local hospitals.

New York police said they were investigating reports, based on an airline ticket purchase and a statement Wednesday by a Port Authority police officer, that Mrs. Lewis may have flown to Boston.

Boston police arrested a woman Wednesday night on a bad check charge and questioned her about the Tylenol case because she bore a resemblance to Mrs. Lewis and had some Illinois identification, said spokesman Tom Santry. However, police spokesman Brian Mc Masters said today investigators had determined there was no connection between the woman and the Tylenol case.

Authorities were also looking for a car they said the Lewises may have, a brown 1969 AMC station wagon with Missouri license plates.

The manager of the Rutledge, who asked not to be identified, described the couple as "quiet people."

Government claims he sought $60 million

De Lorean taped during 'drug discussions'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John De Lorean, held today on $5 million bail, offered half his failing car company to an undercover agent posing as a drug dealer in exchange for profits from a heroin and cocaine deal, according to a government videotape.

De Lorean, the flamboyant executive who left General Motors Corp. to "show them how to build cars," was arraigned Wednesday on charges of conspiring to possess 220 pounds of cocaine for distribution.

Videotapes of him meeting with undercover agents show he hoped to generate $60 million by selling heroin and cocaine, Assistant U.S. Attorney James Walsh said at the arraignment.

On the tape, De Lorean held a bundle of South American cocaine he thought would save his car company and murmured, "This is better than gold. This came just in the nick of time," the federal prosecutor said.

De Lorean, unshaven and appearing haggard, listened silently during proceedings Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Volney Brown. His attorney, Bernard Minsky, said De Lorean would plead innocent to all charges.

De Lorean's wife, international model Cristina Ferrare, embraced her husband after he was led into the federal courtroom in handcuffs and sat silently as Brown scheduled a Nov. 1 preliminary hearing. Bail was set at $5 million over heated objections of Walsh, who asked for $20 million and described De Lorean as "a staggering and astronomical bail risk."

As he was walking to the arraignment, he was asked by a reporter: "How are you holding out?" He replied: "Fine, so far."

After the arraignment, he was taken to the Terminal Island federal prison, where he was held overnight. Also charged in the case were William Morgan Hetrick, 50, owner of a Mojave, Calif., aircraft service company, and Stephen Lee Arrington, 34, of San Diego, described as an associate of Hetrick. Both were charged with possession of cocaine for distribution.

Hetrick was being held in lieu of $20 million bail, but Arrington's bail was reduced by Brown from $500,000 to $250,000.

In an affidavit filed to support the government complaint, FBI special agent Jerry G. West described an alleged scheme calling for De Lorean to put up $1.8 million to buy and sell "heroin from Thailand and cocaine from South America as a means of generating large amounts of capital to be put into De Lorean Motor Co."

West's affidavit outlined a series of meetings in Washington, D.C., and Los Angeles between De Lorean, Hetrick, undercover agents posing as drug dealers and an unidentified "cooperating individual."

The talks, which West said were secretly videotaped, led to a meeting Tuesday at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel where De Lorean was shown a suitcase containing 44 pounds of cocaine. Shortly after the meeting, De Lorean was arrested outside the hotel, located near Los Angeles International Airport.

De Lorean, 57, who told the British Broadcasting Corp. two days earlier he would keep his company alive "no matter what," apparently was willing to give up 50 percent of the De Lorean Motor Co. in order to keep it afloat, West said.

According to West's affidavit, De Lorean's $1.8 million to buy the drugs for resale would be complemented by a $3.2 million investment from a drug "distributor."

Blood found on glove of missing executive

DALLAS (AP) — A laboratory test has revealed that a glove belonging to missing businessman Edson E. "Ted" Beckwith was stained with human blood, according to a Texas Ranger.

However, the test did not indicate how recently the glove had been stained with type O blood, according to Texas Ranger Lloyd Johnson.

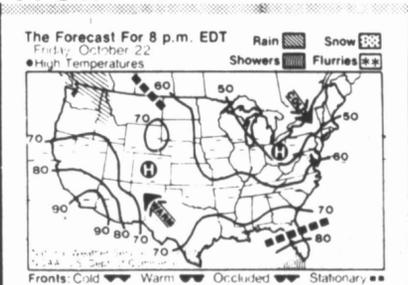

"It could have been a week old or a month old," Johnson said Wednesday. "Now we need to find out what kind of blood Mr. Beckwith has."

Beckwith, a financial consultant and former executive vice president with Braniff International, disappeared Oct. 14 while driving from Omaha, Texas, to his North Dallas home.

Beckwith left Dallas on Oct. 12 to consult with one of his clients, an oil equipment company in Omaha. Authorities said Beckwith left Omaha en route to Dallas for his wife's birthday celebration.

His abandoned car was found on a rural road in Brashear, about 75 miles east of Dallas, last Friday by a Hopkins County deputy sheriff. The keys were found in the ignition and Beckwith's blue sports jacket was hanging on a hook in the back seat, authorities said.

SMU's all-white male club planning to disband

DALLAS (AP) — The president of an all-white students' club at Southern Methodist University says the group has disbanded in the wake of student criticism and national media attention.

"Students for Equality is completely dissolved," club president James T. Robison said in a letter to SMU officials Wednesday.

But Robison declined to state why the club, which lasted only two weeks, disbanded.

"Considering the present circumstances, the Students for Equality request the student senate to withdraw recognition of our organization," Robison wrote.

Originally named the Association of White Students, the group was formed to fight "reverse discrimination" at SMU through abolishing special programs for minorities and women.

Joe Dooley, Student Senate president, said he received a letter from Robison Wednesday morning asking the senate to withdraw its recognition of the group.

"At this point, he's given us no reason why," Dooley said. Robison has "gone into seclusion," said a pledge at the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house where Robison is a member.

Dooley said he thought the national publicity the group received and pressure on campus were behind the move.

"He felt he was never going to get his cause or educate everyone to what he wanted to say because ... no one liked them," Dooley said.

"I think it's very good that they have disbanded," he added. "Now we in the student government and in the administration can go on with one of our top priorities, that of affirmative action at SMU."

Dooley said no formal vote by the senate was necessary.

"If an organization wants to disband, then they are," he said. "As far as we're concerned, they're no longer recognized at Southern Methodist University."

SMU president L. Donald Shields refused to interfere with the decision by the senate Oct. 5 to recognize the group. Students had protested the move.

A meeting Tuesday to question Shields about the 25-member group was attended by more than 100 students.

Fan proud of the Steers

To the Editor and To Big Spring,
The Steers were on the low end of the score last week. So what! They were still winners. Winners don't quit and those boys did not quit. Are you, the people of Big Spring, going to quit? Not me.
I have been backing the Steers for over 30 years through good years and bad. I have seen how the people support them when they are winning and I have seen how they "support" them when they are losing. I am proud of our boys no matter what the score is, as long as they do their best, then hold up their heads and be proud of who they are.
For the record I am very proud of them now and to you, the people of Big Spring, I say, Don't let our boys down. This week is Homecoming so let's fill Memorial Stadium to overflowing and the Big Steers will do the rest. "Rack the Rebels" The South (Midland Lee) is not going to rise again this week.

Blue Law is silly law

Dear Editor,
I would like to know what can be done about the Blue Law. It seems ignorant to have a law which allows alcoholic beverages to be bought on Sunday, but a person cannot buy some necessities on that day.
Sometimes it is necessary to purchase items from the "Prohibited" list. What is worse is if you work in a grocery store and try to explain to customers the law. It is sad the abuse employees tolerate because of ill-mannered customers and silly laws.
Our police officers should be allowed to use their training to help people, not going after people who might need something for their children or other "prohibited" items.
Thank you,
BETH HANCOCK

Chamber chided on Blue Law

Dear Editor,
It would seem to me that the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce has its priorities mixed up. Apparently a great deal of time and effort is being expended to enforce the Blue Law because "they're in violation of the law."
If one reflects just a brief moment on illegal activities which go on in Big Spring, on Sundays, under our very nose one could name several. Prostitution, the recent articles in the Herald specifically stated that the prostitute arrived in Big Spring at 4 a.m. on Sundays. Drug pushing, I doubt drug pushers observe the Blue Law. The Bars are open, that's not against the Blue Law. I fail to see why not. One local bar even has a big ad campaign for "Specials" on Sundays thereby encouraging young people to drink. The city even issues itinerant vendors licenses to people who openly display drug paraphernalia on the "main drag" of Big Spring.
In these times of high unemployment, poor economy, and failing businesses, it is counter-productive for the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce to waste its time, effort and hard-earned funds to keep stores from opening on Sundays. These stores are giving jobs to local citizens, increasing business and giving people who work all week a chance to shop.

I venture to guess that the reason for the strong campaign to enforce the Blue Law is that a few local businessmen, who contribute to the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, don't wish to open on Sundays and don't want their competition to open. This is the real reason and it has nothing at all to do with the principle involved in enforcing the Blue Law.
I'm not saying the Blue Law shouldn't be enforced. Come on, Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, get your priorities straight.
The Chamber tries to attract business to our community. They won't do it this way.
Very truly yours,
PATCRADDOCK

Rein in the Republicans

Dear Editor,
Republicans are saying that things are getting better. BETTER? They were saying that in 1929 too. If you're not old enough to remember the times in 1929 and 1930, you had better listen to some one who went through it.
Texas is not a Republican state. I have been here all my life, and I know how times have been under the Republicans. Back in 1929, I had a good job. I had my home paid for. And in three years I didn't have a home and I didn't have a job. I had a wife and four children.
We've got to get Texas back on the Democratic track.

You know, one little snowflake by itself doesn't amount to very much. But in cooperation with a whole lot of others, it can block a freeway.
We need to get out and vote to get the Republicans out. Be sure to vote Democratic in November if you have any hopes for the future.

Muckrakers are cowards

Dear Editor,
I'm tired of reading the advertisements in newspapers and seeing on television the announcements of "Scandal" books being published about dead U.S. presidents and their mistresses, the latest announcement being about Lyndon B. Johnson.
The people who collaborate on these wait until the president is dead, but not before the president's wives are dead.
Don't they have any feelings for their former first ladies?
True, they do not leave themselves vulnerable to a lawsuit, but to me, they are cowards for not writing their exposes while the subject is alive.
The only president these vultures haven't swooped down on is Harry S. Truman because there was nothing from which they could make money!
America is supposed to be a country of Christians, not a place to capitalize on some else's failings.

Keep unions out of Texas

Dear Editor,
Jim Reese did not say that Montford had the support of labor, "the working men and women." He said Labor, the big Union bosses who have put hundreds of thousands of dollars into Montford's campaign fund. Now Montford is obligated to unionize all businesses in Texas.
C.G. GILSTRAP
FM 700

The reason Texas is better off financially than any other state is that we still have "right to work laws." As a man from Michigan said yesterday, "When Texas goes Union, it will be 'down the drain' like Michigan" where the Auto-Workers Union has priced the workers out of jobs.
The Liberal faction of the Democratic Party, with the support of the AFL-CIO, feminists, radicals, and the Lesbian-Gay alliance, bears no resemblance to the traditional Democratic Party Texans have always voted for, but they are counting on Texas Democrats not to know what is going on and continuing to blindly vote a straight ticket. We had better wake up and elect conservative Democrats and Republicans who are trying to keep Montford and the Liberals from achieving their goal of making Texas a "closed shop" in 1982. Stick to the Texas way.

'City dads' are criticized

Editor's note: The last part of this letter was inadvertently omitted when it appeared in Monday's paper. The letter is reprinted in its entirety.

Dear Editor,
Our Esteemed Taxing Board has now come up with another of their schemes. They now want people to pay this year's taxes on a voluntary basis, based on last year's tax rate, until this year's tax rate is set. Then they can set the tax rate at any amount they want to, then send you a bill for the difference.
You know these people must think we rode into Big Spring on a load of watermelons. But, I am sure this plan came straight from City Hall, Mr. Davis and Company are squealing, like pigs under a gate. If you run the big spenders out of money, sometimes they will go stark raving mad.
Big Spring is the only town in West Texas that is having this trouble, ask yourself, "why?" The City last year raised your taxes 28 percent, but did our turkeys tell the people this; not at all.
I think now would be a good time for the recall on everyone of our esteemed City Dads. They no longer represent the people of Big Spring. They now think they are a power above us dumb sucker taxpayers. This is the same way in which our Federal Government has done.

Our city dads took an oath of office that they would uphold the laws of the land and protect the Constitution of this State to the best of their ability, then went back to their seat and violated our constitutional rights with their little peddler's permit. Which is to protect a few of our businessmen because they have their prices too high and don't want any competition. But, our city dads said they were protecting us from the outside world. Maybe they think we rode in on pumpkins instead of watermelons.
All you people who put your name on the tax roll back now is the time to take these stars out of office. We now have competent people to run in their place. Call Ph. 263-1037. Now is the time to stop this business once and for all. If the School Board doesn't shape up and do something about this liberal Tax Board they appointed we can recall some of them also.
By the way, Mr. Brazel, this whole tax bill was introduced by one of our old liberal Democrats by the same old lies they always use. "We want fair and equal tax," this was what the bill read when it was sent to the people, and you wonder why we don't believe the old Democrats any more.

not bother going through the difficulties of arranging for you to spend time with both of them. Don't feel that you are a problem or a nuisance — they obviously believe you are worth whatever practical problems there seem to be because of their divorce.

But I also want to point out something very, very important. It is this: God loves you with an everlasting love. His love is far greater than any human love will ever be, even in the best of situations. The most important thing you can do as a young person is commit your life to Christ, and accept God's love for you. God loves you so much that he was willing to send his only Son to die on the cross as a sacrifice for your sins. Now he wants to come into your life and make you part of his family. Just imagine — you can be child of God, part of his family forever!
Learn to walk with God every day. Begin by committing your life to Christ, and then pray to him each day and read his Word, the Bible. The greatest discovery any human can make is the truth that God loves him — and that can be your personal experience as you give your life to Christ.

Presidential quiz

"Okay, sir, here is your quiz for the next stop. The people are mad as hell out there because they have an 18 percent unemployment rate. Where does your heart go?"
"Out to them. As long as one person in this country is jobless I will not be satisfied."
"Good, who is to blame for the high unemployment rate?"
"There is enough blame to go around for everybody. But we are at least doing something about it, unlike those big spenders in Congress who got us into this mess in the first place."
"Where is the recession?"
"It's bottomed out and we are recovery-bound, thanks to lower interest rates, lower inflation and confidence by the people on Wall Street who are willing to back our programs by investing in the great American free enterprise system."
"What must we avoid to get people back to work again?"
"A quick fix, which may temporarily put people back to work, but will never solve the severe economic problems that I inherited from an irresponsible opposition party that has been on a drunken spending binge for four decades."
"Why did they spend this money?"
"Because it wasn't theirs. It was the American taxpayers'."
"What do you believe in more than anything else?"

"The American dream."
"And how can we achieve the American dream?"
"By staying on the course which I have set, and by passing a constitutional amendment guaranteeing a balanced budget, which will permit us to live within our means."
"Who is preventing us from having a balanced budget?"
"A small group of selfish men in Congress who are willing to sell our birthright to satisfy the greedy pressure groups who feel the federal government must solve all their problems."
"What will put people back to work?"
"My tax program which encourages business to invest in new plants, expand production and give the consumer more money in his pocket to spend on goods."
"What have you done to address the double-digit unemployment rate?"
"I have just signed a job-training bill which will make it possible for a million people to learn new trades and skills to prepare them for the prosperity which is just over the horizon."
"What will they have to do until they find a job?"
"Show patience and forbearance. I can't turn around overnight what the opposition has done in the past 40 years to put the country in the shape it is in today."

"How much of the unemployment in the country are you willing to take the blame for?"
"When I came into office it was 7.5 percent. Now it's 10.1 percent. I'm willing to take the blame for 2.6 percent of it. Can I read a letter from a 9-year-old boy in Madison, Wisconsin?"
"Sure, go ahead."
"Dear Mr. President, 'My father doesn't have a job and neither does my mother. But I am not one of those who marches to the drumbeat of doom and gloom. I know it isn't your fault that the dark cloud of unemployment lies over the land. Please don't let Congress spend any more money on wasteful programs that will only return us to big spending and big taxing and double-digit inflation which has caused the pounding economic hangover America is now suffering.'
"Signed, Donny Schmidlapp"
"And what do you say to Donny?"
"I say, Donny, I hear you. I only wish you were old enough to vote."
"Well, that takes care of the unemployment issue. One more question and then we'll let you take a nap. What didn't you come to Washington to play?"
"Party politics, as usual. And most of all I did not come here to further mortgage the future of the American people just to buy a short-term political popularity, by sweeping our problems under the table."

Around the Rim

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Last night, I was watching a Midland TV station and caught a weekly show called "Mumbling About Midland," a half hour special focusing on Small, er, Tall City lifestyle. This week's guest was a representative group of athletes, students and administration from Midland Lee High School. The subject was playing Big Spring in football tomorrow night.
Normally I would have switched channels to "I Love Lucy" or something but when they mentioned Big Spring, I fine-tuned the color and turned up the volume.
The show's host is Jack Hammer who also anchors KMUD's evening news. Joining Jack this week were students Emerald Greene and Lupe T. Esquilla, linebacker Bubba "Bad News" Washington III, and quarterback Milton Whimple, coach Ted "Ted" Tedford and principal Oliver Z. Fontinelli.
The show went approximately like this...
"Good evening and welcome to 'Mumbling About Midland,'" Hammer began, introducing his guests.
"The big news at Lee this week is the Big Spring football game. The Rebels are coming off of a 27-0 sandwich job at the hands of Odessa Permian and face a Big Spring team which is the best this area has seen in a dozen years."
"Emerald, what's the talk around Lee High?" Hammer asked.
"Oh, like everyone's talking about this totally awesome team Big Spring has this year," Miss Greene replied.
"Like, they are supposed to be really tubular. At least that's what Amy and Andrea say and they know everything. Do you know who Eddie Wilson went out with last..."
"Uh, right Emerald," Hammer interrupted. "So the student body is expecting a tough game with Big Spring?"

"Totally. And those Steers fans...gag me with a spoon!" she said, wriggling up her nose and sticking out her tongue. "Amy and Andrea say they would totally gross out if we lost to Big Spring."
"Okay. Thank you, Emerald. And now Lupe...say what does the 'T' stand for anyway," Jack asked.
"Eeeeh, like, it's for 'Tiptoe,' man," Esquilla answered. "Like once I got some new choos and I was so happy, I danced all day and all night for a week. I got work in a nightclub I was so good. Like I made so much money, I bought a new '63 Impala."
"Right. So, what do hear in the school halls," Hammer quizzed.
"Eeeeh, like these are some bad dudes over at Big Spring. We ain't messin' with those hombres, no way man. I'm stayin' here with Tony and Frankie and cruising Delgado's grocery, man," the Lee student answered.
"Thank you, Lupe. And now Bubba, er, Mr. Washington..."
"Yeah, it better be 'mister,' chump," Washington growled.
"Yes sir! You're 6-6, 235 and rated a blue-chipper by the college scouts. Will the Big Spring game be one of those games where you really impress the recruiters?" Hammer questioned.
"Right on, microphone lips. Those turkeys don't have no chance. No way. Bubba is 'Bad News,' man. I chop 'em, I pop 'em, I rip 'em, I roll 'em. Can you dig it?"
"Catchy. What do think of their hard-hitter, Danny Stephen?" asked Hammer.
"That dude's playing? Dynamite Dan? Oh, no, man. We lived next to each when we was kids and he whipped my tail everyday. Oh, no, man. That's really bad news. Where's my momma..."

"Take it easy, Blubba. Okay, Mr. Whimple...Mr. Whimple? Mr. Whimple?" Hammer called as he began looking all over the studio for the Lee quarterback.
"He's over here hiding behind the curtains," squeaked Miss Greene. "And he won't come out either. Steers scare him."
"Okay...so, coach Tedford, what do you know about the Steers and what will Lee have to do to win?" Hammer queried.
"Whaaal, aah thenk mah boys will haave their haands full. Big Spring is mightee goodd. They kin run, they kin paas, they kin plaayy deefense. How kin weee win? Ain't nooo way."
"Great game plan, coach. And now finally to Mr. Fontinelli. Sir, how secure is your job if Lee loses this game?" Hammer smiled.
"Mr. Hammer, addressing this question you have presented, I find it most difficult even to begin ascertaining the relevance of the fact..."
"Mr. Fontinelli, in ENGLISH, please," Hammer broke in.
"Say, hey, I'm on the street if Lee gets beat," Fontinelli replied.
"Well, you heard it straight from Lee High first. Planning on going to the game? Don't. Tuning in on the radio? No one's broadcasting the game. Find a good movie, go to the mall, discover another oil well."
"That's our show for tonight. Next week, we learn if Mojo magic can hold up on Halloween. This is Jack Hammer, saying 'If the news makes you blue, just pop the top of a cold brew.' Thank you and good night."
"Great show, huh? Boy, isn't that Emerald a doll! See what you miss by living in Big Spring?"

Billy Graham

Her parents are divorced

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My parents are divorced, and sometimes I feel like a ping-pong ball. I will live with my father for a few months, then go to be with my mother for a few more months, then go to be with my mother for a few more months, then go to be with my mother for a few more months, then back to my father, etc. Sometimes I think I'm just a bother to everybody. — F.S.P.

DEAR F.S.P.: I am deeply sorry for your situation, and unfortunately the rising divorce rate in our country has made our story all too common.

Perhaps your question will cause some family to think more deeply about their plans for divorce, and realize the importance of working to rebuild the marriage instead of taking the route of divorce. Many think divorce is the easy way out for a troubled marriage, but that is seldom the case.
I suspect that your parents might actually be surprised to hear your feelings. I think they would probably point out to you that they both love you very much; if they didn't, they would not bother going through the difficulties of arranging for you to spend time with both of them. Don't feel that you are a problem or a nuisance — they obviously believe you are worth whatever practical problems there seem to be because of their divorce.

Learn to walk with God every day. Begin by committing your life to Christ, and then pray to him each day and read his Word, the Bible. The greatest discovery any human can make is the truth that God loves him — and that can be your personal experience as you give your life to Christ.

White House denies highway jobs program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says it knows of no plans to establish a $2 billion program — advanced by Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan — to put jobless Americans to work repairing the nation's deteriorating bridges and highways.

"As far as I know, there's nothing being done on that," White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Wednesday. "We don't go for quick fixes."

Speakes, traveling with President Reagan on a Midwest campaign trip, made the comments after Donovan said in New Jersey that such a program was under consideration.

"We cannot continue to let our highways and bridges fall into disrepair," Donovan told a group of Rotarians in Whippany, N.J. "It's a country-wide problem that has not gotten the attention of the nation."

A high-ranking Labor Department official said that Donovan first mentioned the proposal last year to the White House Cabinet Council on Economic Affairs.

The source, who asked to remain anonymous, said Donovan "first began working on this within the inner circle of the administration about a year ago. He saw this unemployment thing coming up and thought this would be a good cushion to take up the slack."

"It hasn't exactly cleared the White House" the source said. "It's not a fait accompli."

Donovan said he is negotiating with the administration and that the program has a "better than even chance" of being accepted.

Reagan hands out election plums

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Armed with more pre-election plums for farmers, President Reagan is launching a political rescue mission for Republican Gov. Charles Thone, an early and ardent Reagan backer facing a tough challenge in his race for a second term.

Reagan, who arrived here late Wednesday from a day of campaigning in Illinois, was the drawing card today at two fund-raisers for Thone and at a Republican rally at the city auditorium.

And in another pre-election pitch to farmers, White House officials arranged a ceremony here for Reagan to sign legislation expanding the authority of the agriculture secretary to convert government-owned grain stocks into alcohol fuel-gasohol.

In remarks prepared for the rally, Reagan said, "For farmers trapped in that vicious cost-price squeeze, our progress against inflation and interest rates spells R-E-L-I-E-F. It can make a difference."

Nebraska labor organizations, meanwhile, said they would set up a soup kettle outside the auditorium during Reagan's appearance to demonstrate the plight of the unemployed.

After asserting Wednesday that, "I didn't cause this recession," Reagan said today, "Here in America's heartland, farmers are still paying dearly for the mistakes of the past."

"The sky-high inflation and interest rates of the late seventies and that mistaken Soviet grain embargo led to a vicious cost-price squeeze and lost markets," said Reagan. "Confidence in America as a reliable supplier was shattered."

"With your help," Reagan added, "we're putting the pieces back together."

White House officials, asking not to be quoted by name, said Thone is in trouble in part because he underestimated his opponent, Democrat Bob Kerrey, a Vietnam War hero making his first bid for elective office.

After jumping out to a 25-point lead in statewide polls last March, Thone now trails Kerrey slightly, according to a survey by the Omaha World-Herald.

"He wasn't prepared for a serious challenge," one Republican strategist said of Thone. "He could use the help."

Reagan was happy to oblige, officials said. Thone was the first Republican governor to back Reagan in the 1980 presidential primaries.

Reagan's Nebraska pitch to farmers followed by a day his appearance at a muddy farm in Jacksonville, Ill., where he announced that federal loan rates for farmers were being cut to 11.5 percent from 13.25 percent and he unveiled a credit program to encourage foreign buyers to purchase American agriculture products.

Reagan also boasted about lifting the grain embargo early in his administration and his announcement last Friday offering to increase grain sales to the Soviet Union.

Stock exchange criticized over silver crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange is being criticized for failing to detect the silver crisis that developed in the market in 1980.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, in a staff report released Wednesday, said the exchange didn't get sufficient information from its member brokerage firms and failed "to be alert to the potential of a crisis situation as it developed."

The exchange's inability to foresee the crisis was due to its belief that the firms it monitored would "provide candid, accurate and complete information to the exchange staff, promptly and spontaneously."

But, it said, "This assumption proved false." It called on the exchange to adopt stronger controls in conducting its surveys of member firms.

Several brokerage firms also were criticized for letting the wealthy Hunt family of Texas build up huge silver holdings and for lending family members large sums of money without taking a close look at their overall finances.

The report blamed those decisions on senior officials of the firms and said that as a result, the brokerages faced large losses if the Hunts defaulted on their accounts.

The collapse of the silver market occurred when the price plummeted from $50 an ounce in January 1980 to $10.80 an ounce at the end of March 1980.

At that time, the Hunts held an enormous share of the silver market, including holdings of the metal and futures contracts. A futures contract is an obligation to deliver or receive something on a specified future date at a specified price.

In taking a futures position, the Hunts made a small deposit on each contract compared with the value of the silver they controlled. They also borrowed against their silver.

When the price of silver fell, the Hunts were caught in a financial squeeze, as were some of the brokerages.

In Dallas, Thomas Whitaker, spokesman for Nelson Bunker Hunt and Herbert Hunt, said the brothers "accurately and fully responded to every request for financial information made by the lenders. In no case did anyone loaning money to the Hunts fail to get their money back."

The Hunts held their silver accounts with six broker-dealers registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission: Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc.; Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc.; Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.; A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc.; E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc.; and Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis Inc.

As a result of its review, the SEC staff urged in its report that the commission change some of its rules to require brokerage firms to limit the amount of their exposure to losses from a single customer and to discourage customers from concentrating holdings in a single commodity.

Meanwhile, Bache Group Inc., parent of Bache Halsey, said it agreed to accept a censure and $400,000 fine by the New York Stock Exchange for alleged violations of exchange rules in handling silver futures trading in 1980.

Grandma is rattled by babysitting chores

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I am going crazy over this problem. First of all, my husband and I have been married 30 years, have eight children and raised them all by ourselves. Now we want to enjoy each other and do things we never got to do when we had a family to raise.

Our trouble is the grandchildren. We love them very much, but we just don't want to raise any more children. We are in our 50s and we're tired. Our two older sons have five kids between them, and they are always begging me to keep their kids. They won't take no for an answer. These kids are from 5 years old to 1 year old, and they are a handful! I have given up my weekends to take care of these grandchildren, and my husband is ready to blow his top. Now my sons are hounding me to take care of their kids while they work! That's five days a week, Abby. I just can't do it. (I had surgery not too long ago and I'm not back on my feet yet.)

How do I get it through their heads that I can't handle it? One of my sons said he never thought he'd see the day when I'd turn my back on my own grandchildren, and that really hurt me a lot.

Please answer in the paper because they read your column.

TIRE MOM: Your problem is not your sons, it's you! You haven't learned how to say no to your own sons and make it stick. Start now to say no with a firmness and conviction that leaves absolutely no doubt that your no means NO, and not "maybe" or "yes".

It won't be easy to convince your sons that you're no longer a soft touch, but you can do it if you try. And don't let them lay a guilt trip on you, Mom. You're not "turning your back on your grandchildren," you are telling your sons to raise their own kids — like you raised yours. And it wouldn't hurt to enlist the help of your husband. Two voices are stronger than one.

If you hate to write letters but don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Some thoughts for smoking moms

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I pray you will write something on smoking and address it to young mothers. I have observed mothers smoking while feeding their infants. I spoke to one and told her she was endangering the child's health. She said that no way could this harm the baby. Please set the record straight, and make it strong! — T.S.F.

Certainly, this mother is harming the infant. If nothing else, she is harming it by harming herself. She places herself at greater risk of heart disease, stroke, lung cancer and emphysema. She is also harming the baby in a direct way by smoking in its presence. The infant inhales the smoke.

Furthermore, enough nicotine would get into her breast milk to affect the baby, were she nursing it. Thus, the baby gets a double dose. If that isn't strong enough, I might add that the most absurd health-endangering habit a person can cling to. When it affects those too young to protest, then there ought to be a law. That's strong stuff, but, I think, justified.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Every month or so my fingernails grow in with pits in them. What causes this? I used to take pride in my nails. Now I hide them. Any suggestion? — K.C.

I wish I could tell you just what your problem is. I cannot. The medical problem most closely associated with nail-pitting is psoriasis. You don't have any of the skin symptoms, do you? Other skin conditions can be accompanied by nail-pitting also. I am thinking of atopic dermatitis, or fungal infections, as examples. Minor pitting may be found in otherwise perfectly healthy individuals, and some families may be prone to the condition.

Ireland fears renewed guerrilla warfare

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Authorities are predicting a new surge of Irish Republican Army violence now that voting has ended for a new 78-member provincial assembly, centerpiece of Britain's latest attempt to defuse the civil war in Northern Ireland.

The voting Wednesday was marred by a bomb blast in Belfast and the second attempt in two days on the life of Protestant leader James Molyneux. There were no casualties in the bombing and Molyneux escaped unharmed.

Initial results from the balloting were expected later today, with the final tally due Friday evening.

Authorities fielded 25,000 troops and police to oversee the election, Britain's first attempt to restore limited autonomy in Northern Ireland since it took direct rule of the province 10 years ago. Those forces remained on guard today amid predictions of possible new violence.

Police said intelligence reports indicate the militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army and its Marxist offshoot, the Irish National Liberation Army (INLA), planned to intensify a campaign of "death and destruction."

The Provos scaled down guerrilla operations during the three-week campaign while their political front, Sinn Fein, made its first election bid under its own banner since the Provisional movement was formed in 1969.

During the campaign, Sinn Fein warned the "armed struggle" would continue despite the movement's foray into politics.

Well-informed Catholic sources said hardliners among the Provos were pressing to rekindle the guerrilla offensive. Police intelligence reports said the extremists have stockpiled explosives in preparation for fresh attacks.

The INLA was not involved in the election and claimed responsibility for at least eight slayings during the three-week campaign.

A caller claiming to represent the INLA said the organization planted the bomb found Wednesday at a house where Molyneux spent the night.

Police defused the crude firebomb left on the windowsill at Molyneux's sister-in-law's house in the Belfast suburb of Crumlin.

The INLA said earlier it bombed the headquarters of Molyneux's Official Unionist Party on Tuesday.

Molyneux and several of his party's candidates escaped shortly before the blast.

The overwhelming Roman Catholic IRA and the INLA movements are fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the Protestant-dominated province with the mainly Catholic Irish Republic after 60 years of partition.

In organizing Wednesday's vote, Britain sought to build a framework that would give Ulster's 500,000 Catholics a say in the running of a province where Protestants outnumber them 2-1.

Preliminary reports from election officials indicated a turnout of around 60 percent of the 1 million eligible voters.

That was considered a low turnout, reflecting widespread uncertainty over how effective the planned assembly would be in ending 13 years of sectarian and political bloodshed.

Britain also hoped to restore limited social and economic powers to Northern Ireland. But Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior stressed that these powers will be handed back only if 70 percent of the assembly, including Catholics, agree.

Colombian author wins literature Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Gabriel Garcia Marquez of Colombia, author of "One Hundred Years of Solitude" and a stream of other works chronicling death, betrayal, despair and government repression, won the 1982 Nobel Prize in literature today.

The Swedish Academy cited the 54-year-old author "for his novels and short stories, in which the fantastic and the realistic are combined in a richly composed world of imagination, reflecting a continent's life and conflicts."

Garcia Marquez, whose novels have sold more copies than any other contemporary Spanish-language author, lives in exile because he believes the Colombian army wants to arrest him.

Garcia Marquez, who has supported leftist causes, has traveled frequently to Cuba, and last year fled to Mexico, saying the army suspected him of arranging for Cuba to train Colombian guerrillas.

The writer, said to be influenced by Cuban leader Fidel Castro as well as by American novelists William Faulkner and Ernest Hemingway, has long been living in exile in Paris, Spain and more recently in Mexico.

His foremost and most widely read work was the vivid epic "One Hundred Years of Solitude." It tells graphically of the "imaginary" land Macondo, a chronicle of the Buendia family during a political war that started in 1948 and left as many as 200,000 people dead. The book was published in 1967 and has sold more than 5 million copies.

Its opening line: "Many years later, as he faced the firing squad, Colonel Aureliano Buendia was to remember that distant afternoon when his father took him to discover ice."

Other major works by Garcia Marquez are "The Autumn of the Patriarch," 1975, "No One Writes to the Colonel," 1961, "The Evil Hour," 1962 and, most recently, "Chronicle of a Death Foretold," 1981.

"With his stories Gabriel Garcia Marquez has created a world of his own which is his microcosmos. In its tumultuous, bewildering yet graphically convincing authenticity it reflects a continent and its human riches and poverty," the academy said.

"Perhaps more than that, a cosmos in which the human heart and the combined forces of history time and again burst the bounds of chaos — killing and procreation."

The academy said that "death is perhaps the most important director behind the scenes in Garcia Marquez' invented and discovered world."

The writer, who has been threatened with death by extreme rightists in his native country, said in a recent interview that he started writing by coincidence and that he found that writing was "a suffering, a torture."

Garcia Marquez was first published in the Bogota newspaper El Espectador in 1947 when some of his short stories appeared in the daily.

Battle brewing over natural gas

By WILLIAM GARLAND
States News Service
WASHINGTON — The battle over natural gas looms again in Congress as clearly as a prairie thunderstorm darkening the horizon.

No banks of rain-bearing clouds hover ominously over the Capitol, but lobbyists, congressmen and analysts are putting together and circulating what they hope will be fertile seeds for arguments next year.

In interviews with some key industry officials in Washington, as well as some lobbyists on the other side of the energy fence, three issues emerged as central to the developing tussle over how to price and sell natural gas:

- the option of decontrolling all production of natural gas on a quickened schedule.
- the possibility of new taxes on natural gas as a result of any decontrol.
- the smoothing out of costly contract problems between producers and pipeline companies.

The stakes in the battle range into the billions of dollars for natural gas producers, pipeline companies, utilities and consumers. It is less clear what the outcome of such a battle might be for consumers than for the others.

But the stakes will be higher for Texas, the nation's traditional leader in the production of both gas and oil, than for any other state. The decline from last year in oil and gas drilling has had sharp effects on almost all aspects of the economy in most regions of the state.

The effects of the battle on Corpus Christi, with its rich production of the fossil fuel, could be tremendous.

In 1981, 26 billion cubic feet of natural gas was produced within the city limits, according to James Conn, Corpus Christi's petroleum superintendent. That production was done by both major and independent oil companies.

Many in the industry cite higher prices for natural gas as a necessary ingredient in bringing the oil and gas industry out of its current downturn. They describe the current glut in the gas market as a "deliverability problem" and say that deregulated prices would stimulate a market currently entangled in lopsided controls.

The powerful Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition, with more than 200 members of Congress, already has sworn to take one of the major issues into the special session of Congress after Thanksgiving.

They want Congress to force producers to renegotiate contracts with pipelines, taking out so-called "take or pay" provisions that they blame for higher natural gas prices in much of their areas. Those provisions force many pipelines to buy gas at higher prices even if they don't need it for their customers.

But the industry appears to envision the contract dilemma as a new chip in the game, replacing a windfall profits tax on natural gas (which its spokesmen reject) as a trade-off for decontrol. Industry spokesmen are adamant in their desire to save serious consideration of that issue until next year.

More recently, Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, has picked up the banner of decontrol and tried persistently, and some say futilely, to unite the industry beneath it.

BALLOONING AT GREAT WALL. — American publisher Malcolm Forbes and a team of U.S. balloonists inflated a hot air balloon in the Great Wall in Peking, China Wednesday. This is the first attempt by foreigners to fly a balloon in China. The group had their first free flight in Xian recently.

Candidates plant for farm votes

By PHILLIP SWANN
States News Service
WASHINGTON — Texas politicians will have a tough row to hoe this November if they fail to reap the farm vote.

This week, they began to plant the seeds:

- Gov. William Clements flew to Washington this week to discuss the state's ailing farm economy with President Reagan, Agriculture Secretary John Block and House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Mission.
- A group of Texas Democrats who are supporting Clements' opponent, Attorney General Mark White, traveled across West Texas this week attacking the governor's farm record.

- Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who is being challenged by Rep. James Collins, introduced legislation last week that would give aid to farmers during farm embargoes. Bentsen also announced the formation of an 83-member "Texas Farmers and Ranchers for Bentsen" committee.
- About two dozen farmers and their families drove their tractors to a weekend rally at the state capitol to protest economic conditions. Speakers, including Democratic agriculture commissioner candidate Jim Hightower, called for a coalition to stem the increasing number of farm bankruptcies.

The message is clear: The sagging farm economy has emerged as one of the most important issues in this year's state races. Farmers, who are facing their worst year since the Depression, are angry, and angry people usually turn out at the polls to vent their frustrations.

"Every effort will be made to line up (farmer) votes," says Ed McKay, director of national affairs for the Texas Farm Bureau. "We have a lot of farmers and ranchers in trouble and upset."

National farm experts say that Republicans this year could be hurt by an outpouring of protest in November. Many farmers are unhappy with President Reagan's opposition to higher support payments and other programs that would offer immediate relief.

This especially bodes ill for Texas Republicans, because farmers in the state traditionally vote Democratic. The farm vote could be the difference in a close contest, such as the Clements-White race.

Clements' trip this week was a clear signal that he feels he needs the farm vote. It was a perfect vehicle for him to show that he is concerned about the slumping farm economy.

"The governor feels that he's going to have to shore up some of the agriculture support," said David Senter, national director of the American Agriculture Movement.

In a reference to Clements' huge campaign

warchest, Senter added: "Clements can't buy the farmer's vote."

Bill Dunn, a spokesman for White, says Clements has never had a "farm policy" and must go on a publicity tour to win the farmers' support.

But not every governor can stop by at the White House to have a little farm talk with the president. And Clements wisely brought several Texas farm leaders and a campaign television crew with him to Washington, prompting one Agriculture Department official to say, "We've got 50 governors, but thank goodness only one is from Texas."

POLICE CHIEF WHO REMEMBERS — Chief Thomas G. Coffey of the Nyack, N.Y. police department stands in his office Monday with a poem from the New York State Police and a resolution from the New York Legislature honoring two of his men slain Oct. 21, 1981 in a Brinks armored car holdup.

The night the terrorists came

Village remembers botched Brinks robbery

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer
NYACK, N.Y. — On a recent Saturday night in this tiny village police nabbed a man who failed to pay a bar bill, picked up a lost dog and saw the operator of a church bingo game safely to the night deposit.

It's the kind of place where the cop on the beat probably lived here most of his life, like Edward O'Grady who left for a hitch in the Marines and then returned to patrol the streets where he delivered newspapers as a boy.

"It's still one of the only areas where if you drive by at night you'll see a policeman walking by checking all the locks," says shopkeeper Frank Mancione.

But Nyack's 23 police officers now know about more than lost dogs, bingo deposits and other police routine. They know about terrorism. And they now know how to reload their weapons in seconds.

On a crisp October afternoon a year ago today two officers on a routine call became the first in village history to die in the line of duty, outnumbered and out-gunned by desperate suspects in a botched Brink's armored car heist.

Since then, some things have changed in this mile-square village of 6,700 people bounded by the Hudson River and rolling Palisades highlands.

"We're vulnerable and we don't think of ourselves as vulnerable," said Carol McIntosh, a Nyack real estate.

"It's really brought home that the community I grew up in that used to be rustic and quiet and countrified is no longer that," says Robert P. Lewis, village justice. "It's nothing more than an extension of New York City."

Two main streets — Main Street and Broadway — criss-cross in this 100-year-old Victorian-style village 13 miles north of New York City, a conservative area that voted against President Lincoln's re-election and now is home to artists, craftsmen and actress Helen Hayes.

When an armed robbery is reported in the county, Nyack police routinely cover the intersection of Route 59 and Mountainview Avenue where the New York State Thruway is visible for miles.

That is where police on Oct. 20, 1981, pulled over a van carrying members of the Weather Underground and the Black Liberation Army after a $1.6 million armored car holdup in Nanuet in which a Brink's guard was killed. Six robbers jumped out, automatic weapons blazing, catching police by surprise.

Officer Waverly Brown had no chance to fire. Sgt. Edward O'Grady emptied his gun but was felled as he tried to reload.

At 12 North Broadway, the police department occupies a tiny quadrant of the two-story brick building. Last year, a visitor could walk in and shake hands with the desk officer. Now, bullet-proof glass intervenes. The door opens only if an inside buzzer is pressed.

"I think we learned a lesson from this incident. Now we are much more wary," said Chief Thomas G. Coffey, a burly man with a .357 Magnum sidearm and a badge, like those of his men, ringed with a black mourning band.

Like his men, most of Coffey's police experience is in burglaries, domestic disputes, traffic problems and checking the village's 400 parking meters. They issue an average of 215 parking tickets a day.

Excluding the Brink's killings, there have been three homicides in Nyack in four years.

From his desk drawer, Coffey pulled a small black cylinder of six bullets. In police parlance, it is a "speedloader," a staple in many departments but not in Nyack until this year.

THE SPORTS CAR — John De Lorean shows one of the first models of his stainless steel gull-winged sports car in New York in April, 1981. De Lorean was arrested in Los Angeles Tuesday in what the FBI said was an alleged $24 million cocaine smuggling scheme designed to save his flagging company. The Ireland plant where this car was built announced Tuesday it would close because of heavy losses.

De Lorean's drug arrest

Maverick wanted to show the world 'how to build cars'

By KATHY HORAK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — John Z. De Lorean, the maverick auto executive who once vowed to show the industry "how to build cars," had a flair as shiny as his stainless steel sports car.

De Lorean was arrested Tuesday in an alleged $24 million cocaine-smuggling scheme the FBI said was an attempt to save his flagging company.

Longish silver hair tops his craggy, handsome features and 6-foot-4 frame, still taut at age 57. His penchant for Gucci tailoring marks a taste for the sweet life that included a fleet of 25 automobiles.

A health nut who dyed his hair, De Lorean divorced his first wife and married model Kelly Harmon, 23, then divorced her for another model, blue-eyed Cristina Ferrare.

He spent periods of bachelorhood in the company of other glamorous notables — Nancy Sinatra and Candace Bergen among them.

But despite his glittering lifestyle, he also claimed something of a blue-collar social conscience, hoping his factory near Belfast, Northern Ireland — which the British government said Tuesday it was closing for good — would ease sectarian strife.

BEFORE LEAVING General Motors Corp. in

1973 — or being fired, as insiders suggested — he said in a speech, "In our affluent society, it seems to me we should have done a better job of sharing success with those less fortunate and also with those denied the equal right to achieve on their own."

De Lorean, who faces a possible 15-year prison term if convicted of conspiring to distribute cocaine, was born in Detroit on Jan. 6, 1925, the son of an immigrant worker for Ford Motor Co., and grew up in a working-class neighborhood.

He was fascinated by the automobile as a boy, although it was a music scholarship that put him through Lawrence Institute of Technology. By 1962, he was helping create cars as an engineer for the now-defunct Packard Motor Co. In four years he was chief of Packard research and development.

Sensing the company's impending demise, he moved to GM's Pontiac division and quickly exhibited equal facility with technology and marketing. His engineering credits include some 200 patents and patent applications.

Those talents shone again in 1975, when he launched De Lorean Motor Co. with some $120 million in venture capital from sources as diverse as the conservative British government and television entertainer Johnny Carson, who invested $500,000 in 250,000 shares of stock.

He created the $25,000 DMC-12 two-seater sports car with doors that opened vertically in the gullwing style of a flying bird.

At GM, De Lorean had joined the Pontiac division as director of advanced engineering, then followed a mentor, Elliott M. "Pete" Estes, as chief engineer. At 41 he was named division general manager — the youngest man to hold that post in the corporation's history.

Pontiac's market share jumped from 4.8 percent in 1968 to over 9 percent a decade later and GM handed DeLorean another test: general manager of its sagging Chevrolet division.

BY 1971 Chevy dealer profits had soared 400 percent. De Lorean collected more than $550,000 in salary and bonuses that year.

Named a $650,000-a-year vice president of GM's North American car and truck operations in 1972, his brash style began to grate in the button-down corridors of GM's plush 14th floor.

After seven months at the top, he left GM in 1973. His explanation: "It was boring."

In 1974 he handed journalist J. Patrick Wright a stack of internal GM reports that initiated Wright's 1979 book, "On a Clear Day You Can See General Motors." After its publication, De Lorean disavowed it, even though he called it "accurate."

Teens more sexually active around world

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sexual activity and pregnancy are increasing among adolescents in both rich and poor nations, but scant attention is being devoted to the problems that result, says the medical director of a worldwide family planning group.

Medical and social problems that often accompany young motherhood, plus hazards of sexually transmitted diseases among the young are "a whole neglected area," said Dr. Pramilla Senanayake of the International Planned Parenthood Federation in London.

"THESE GIRLS are producing babies when they're still babies themselves," she said before addressing the 10th World Congress of Gynecology and Obstetrics here. "I see pregnant girls as young as 13 or 14. This is a girl who is producing a child with the first or second or third egg she has ever produced."

The condition seriously threatens "the life and health of a young woman" and the unborn child, Mrs. Senanayake said.

Young mothers are much more likely to bleed, have prolonged labor and other delivery problems. The rates of spontaneous abortion, premature birth, low birth weight and infant mortality are much higher among adolescents than adults, she said.

Society often winds up supporting the unmarried mother and her child, Mrs. Senanayake said. Also, a young mother may never finish her education or develop her talents, she said.

MRS. SENANAYAKE, a native of Sri Lanka, said "a very long and slow and tedious process" of education tailored to different cultures is essential. "Neither the adolescents nor sex are, in themselves, the problem ... It's how society copes with them."

Many industrialized nations frown on sexual experimentation among youngsters, she said. But in some rural areas of developing countries, society encourages marriage and children soon after puberty.

First Lady, Sinatra do duet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big tent on the White House lawn was hardly a soundstage for the duet Nancy Reagan and Frank Sinatra performed to promote the first lady's book on the Foster Grandparents program. At times, the two were barely audible.

But the audience of nearly 800 invited for the mini-concert and box lunch of sandwiches, potato salad and brownies on the South Lawn Tuesday was enthusiastic nonetheless.

Accompanied by a chorus from the District of Columbia public schools, Mrs. Reagan and Sinatra sang "To Love a Child," which Sinatra has recorded as part of the promotion effort for the program.

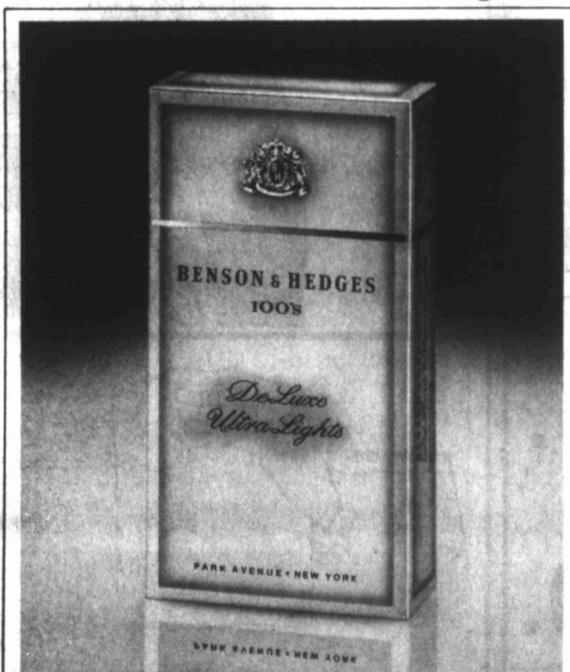

Proceeds from the book, also titled "To Love a Child" and written by the first lady with West Coast writer Jane Wilkie, will go to the program, as will any profits from the record.

The federally aided program utilizes about 18,000 elderly people to help more than 50,000 disabled, abused and neglected children around the country.

Sinatra, a personal friend of the Reagans, flew to Washington from Atlantic City, N.J., where he opens an engagement tonight.

Dallas Zoo vet saves exotic animals

By LAURA RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — Dr. Bonnie L. Raphael's smallest patient weighs two-thirds of an ounce. The largest weighs two-and-a-half tons.

She deals in life and death in extraordinary forms, in odd couplings and unnatural acts aimed at keeping the world's exotic animals alive and kicking, crawling, climbing, flying, swimming or slithering.

She hopes to help a giraffe give birth to an okapi. The cross-genus breeding experiment is perhaps Ms. Raphael's most startling task as the veterinarian at the Dallas Zoo, where she takes care of 2,000 animals. But almost all of her job is odd.

"I don't like to see animals used solely for man's benefit. That's one thing that drew me to zoos and wild animal medicine. What we're doing with our breeding programs is trying to save animals from extinction, although sometimes the public doesn't see that," she said.

What we're trying to do here is save animals from extinction. The public doesn't always see that.

And although she is convinced "a human life is more important than an animal life, I think animals need more champions watching out for them."

The small blunt hands of the short, slight, 32-year-old woman have performed delicate fiberoptic surgery on tiny flame-faced tanagers, South American birds that are the smallest creatures in the zoo.

Those hands also have pounded the leathery hide of the zoo's biggest beast to prepare the 5,000-pound asthmatic Nile hippopotamus for an injection.

Ms. Raphael has treated deadly poisonous snakes, given shots to hostile apes, and performed a Caesarian section on an iguana.

One of only about 40 full-time zoo veterinarians in the United States, she spends about half her time practicing preventive medicine — performing tuberculosis tests, controlling parasites, trying to isolate sick animals, taking blood samples.

About 30 percent of her work is treating the sick, and 20 percent is breeding, which is "what it's all about" in the changing life of American zoos.

"So much of zoo medicine is not written down — it's zoo vets carrying around clinical knowledge in their heads," she said. "That's changing as zoos become more and more involved in conservation."

"The Dallas Zoo started as a menagerie in 1904, and most of the construction you see today — the barred cages and concrete floors — was done by the (Works Progress Administration) in the 1930s. Then, the idea was just display. There was no emphasis on conservation, breeding, not even education. We all accept zoos as recreation, but there's a much more important role."

The goal of zoos like Dallas' that participate in the national Species Survival Plan of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums is to breed endangered species in captivity to "keep some around for future generations to see, and — we hope — one day reintroduce them to their natural environments."

Dallas had a record number of animal births in 1981, Ms. Raphael's first year on the job. Several rare and endangered animals — a lowland gorilla, klipspringer antelope, lesser panda, and an okapi — were born, and a young pygmy hippo, which is vanishing in the wild, is pregnant.

The okapi birth was something of a coup: the only one in the country this year. The Dallas Zoo prides itself on being a "forerunner in a world effort" to maintain the strange, chocolate-colored animal with a pin-striped rump and legs, whose survival in its native Zaire is doubtful.

That's where a crippled, cow-hocked okapi named Miracle comes in.

Miracle was born in the Dallas Zoo, but she is not on display because a hip problem makes her wobble. She has trouble walking now, and spends much of her time lying in her hay-filled stall in a back-lot stable, calmly turning her huge, long-lashed brown eyes on the occasional stranger.

"She is not strong enough to carry a pregnancy, she's not an attractive animal, and basically she's just wasting her life," Ms. Raphael said. "But she's still valuable in terms of potential offspring."

The Dallas Zoo, working with Texas A&M University and the Oklahoma City and San Diego zoos, hopes to use Miracle as an okapi embryo factory.

Embryo transplantation is common today in the cattle industry, where it is used to get large numbers of valuable pure-bred animals from one mother.

The mother is given hormones that stimulate her to produce dozens of eggs. She is artificially inseminated, and the fertilized eggs are flushed out before they can attach to the uterine wall. The embryos are then implanted in a less valuable animal, a surrogate mother that carries the pregnancy to term.

Basically the same techniques are to be tried on Miracle, but there's a hitch: All okapi are rare, none are "less valuable," and the beast that looks a little like a zebra and a lot like an antelope has only one relative — the giraffe.

Cross-genus embryo transplants have not been tried before. But both the giraffe and okapi have 14-month gestation periods, and the Oklahoma City Zoo has a female giraffe they are trying to make willing.

She and Miracle are being trained to stand quietly so the procedure can be done without anesthetic.

The San Diego Zoo is doing the hormone research, and Dr. Dwayne Kramer, a large animal reproduction specialist at Texas A&M, is a consultant on the project.

It's a delicate and messy business, involving daily rectal palpitations of large and edgy animals, and the taking of daily urine samples. The beasts' reproductive cycles must be synchronized, and no one knows if the months of effort will pay off. The first attempt is about six months away, Ms. Raphael said.

"It's not the easiest thing to keep going, but what you have to decide is what your commitment to a project like this is," she said. "We're looking at every possible avenue of getting these animals on the ground."

"With any birth, you get this wonderful feeling. That's what it's all about. And this would be — well, a miracle."

BOY HERO — Scott MacKenzie, 7, mauled by a dog after he saved his younger sister and a friend from the same fate, waves to the hospital staff recently after release from a hospital. Scott was honored in Galveston Wednesday night.

7-year-old hero still feeling scars

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
GALVESTON — Wearing an honorary sheriff's badge, cowboy boots and a big grin, 7-year-old Scott McKenzie arrived to a hero's welcome in Galveston Wednesday.

The boy, still bearing scars from a mauling at his home in the St. Louis suburb of Ferguson, Mo., ran into the arms of Galveston County sheriff's Lt. John Leonard and hugged the lawman about the neck.

"Well, here's our hero," said Leonard. Scott required more than 1,000 stitches to close extensive wounds caused when a half-wolf, half-Husky dog mauled him in his backyard. The attack occurred after the youngster guided his sister and a young friend to safety.

Scott arrived with his parents, Charles and Elizabeth McKenzie, and two sisters, Casey, 9, and 3-year-old Carrie, the young sister whom Scott rescued. The family will be treated to a round of parties, tours, fishing and fun during five days in the island city.

The dog, which weighed about 100 pounds, chewed off Scott's left ear, a third of his lower lip, a fourth of his upper lip and part of one eyelid. The boy has undergone eight operations and faces about 10 more. In November, doctors will remove from his rib cage some cartilage to be used to rebuild his destroyed ear.

Galveston County sheriff's deputies organized the campaign to honor the boy, and he and his family are being flown here courtesy of a Texas airline.

Proceeds from tickets sold for the dinner-dance honoring the boy will be donated to the McKenzie family to pay for extensive medical bills.

But the five-day vacation may be the last fun for a while for Scott, according to his policeman father, Charles McKenzie. Scott faces a long series of operations when he returns to St. Louis.

And not all of the scars show. Since the attack, said McKenzie, Scott has changed.

"He has disciplinary problems, which he never had before," said the father. "He's OK for a while and then suddenly becomes uncontrollable. He's started a couple of fires also. One caused $1,000 worth of damage to a house across the street."

Scott goes under the care of a psychologist next year, said McKenzie.

Guns settle rural football rivalries

By DEBBIE MITCHELL
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

HAMLIN, Texas — In West Texas, where the cotton fields stretch as far as the horizon and high school football is the most powerful attraction for 150 miles, small-town rivalries run strong.

Manhood is to be proven and hearts won by fighting the boys from Stamford or McCaulley, Trent, Roby or Rotan. For generations, it has been a male rite of passage performed with fists and feet on dark country roads away from the vigilant eye of the local police.

But in recent years, the fighting has turned ugly and tragic. Guns have replaced fists. Since April 1980, three have died on the backroads of Jones and Fisher counties north of Abilene.

Wandell Williams, a 19-year-old graduate of McCaulley High School, was the latest to die — killed Oct. 10 by bullets from another youth's rifle.

A companion, Danny Benevides, a senior at McCaulley High School, was critically wounded. Four young people from Trent and Hamlin were arrested and charged with murder.

"This isn't the first time someone's been killed," said William Yeamans of Hamlin, one of the four arrested in the shooting. "If they got a gun — and most everybody carries a gun — you shoot them before they shoot you."

That reasoning was good enough for a Fisher County jury when in August 1980 it acquitted Charles Allen, then 21, in the shooting death of Billy Pena, 25. During a three-day trial, the jury found that Allen acted in self-defense when he fired on Pena as the other man pulled a shotgun from his truck.

However, Williams was unarmed and sitting in the back seat of an Oldsmobile sedan when he was killed.

"They followed us out of town, driving real close. We stopped on the roadside and they pulled up to block us off," Yeamans said. "One person in our pickup started shooting. When we were going down the road, someone hollered they seen a gun in the car. Maybe that's why they shot. I just don't know."

Craig Whitley, 18, of Trent; his half-sister, Belinda Nell Turner, 22, of Hamlin; and Charles Eddie Adams, 20, of Trent, also were arrested and charged with murder. All except Whitley were released from the Jones County Jail in Anson after posting their $25,000 bonds.

"It is not anything new to have rivalries between these little towns," said Woodrow Simmons, district attorney's investigator for Jones County. "But this is a senseless killing. There wasn't any reason for this to happen."

Although early reports attributed the killing to a football feud between Trent and McCaulley, Yeamans said even he's not sure what started the fight between his friends and Williams' buddies. The two groups had been at a party when the altercation began. Both groups left the party to end up together on the highway.

"I don't matter what the fight is about — girls, a football game or just a personal grudge. These boys are all the time fighting — McCaulley and Trent, McCaulley and Hamlin, Hamlin and Rotan," said Hamlin resident Don Hall. "We did it when we were young, but everything goes — guns, knives, all the kids have them."

Hamlin Police Chief Ronnie Hill says he's aware of the problem, but he says he doesn't know what to do.

"In rural areas like this, there is a lot of small game to hunt and everybody carries a rifle or shotgun in their pickup," Hill said. "It's perfectly legal to carry a rifle and with snakes and what-have-you in the country, it's necessary. It's just unfortunate that the boy's dead."

Father finds child he thought was dead

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who says he believed his son had died of leukemia was reunited with the boy a day before the child was to be put up for adoption.

Juvenile Court Judge Robert B. Baum set aside an earlier order Tuesday in which he had taken away Robert Wayne Deane's parental rights over his 5-year-old son, Robert Jr., and allowed the child to go home to Orlando, Fla., with his father.

Deane said his estranged wife had told him the boy was dead.

"The boy was just thrilled to see his dad," said Linda Thompson, an attorney for the Harris County Child Welfare Department. The child was taken into that agency's protective custody Nov. 6 after social workers determined he had been beaten.

Baum made his order after social workers were unable to locate the boy's parents. Deane's wife, Gina Deane, had told welfare personnel her husband had abandoned the two of them and said she did not know where he was, Ms. Thompson said.

If the order had not been set aside, the boy might have been adopted when it became final today, Deane's attorney Stanley E. Topek said.

Deane testified his wife called him two weeks ago and said she was in Quebec. He said when he asked her about their son, she told him the boy had died four days earlier from leukemia.

The news almost drove Deane "nuts," Topek said. But Topek said Deane was able to locate his wife's mother, who told him the boy was in Houston with the welfare agency.

Topek said Deane last saw his wife in August 1981 when the woman took Robert Jr. and left. Deane testified he has heard from his wife since only through phone calls from other cities in which she often asked for money.

He said he always asked about his son and offered to send money for airline tickets so the woman and child could return to Orlando. At one point, Deane said, he hired a private investigator to track the pair down.

Layoffs expected at Texaco plants

PORT NECHES (AP) — Officials of Texaco Asphalt say they expect to lay off about 35 employees at the plant here and about 450 at a Port Arthur refinery next month in hopes of increasing efficiency by trimming personnel.

Texaco notified unions at the plant several weeks ago that layoffs could be instituted beginning Nov. 19 — 100 workers at Port Neches and about 1,000 at Port Arthur. But those figures were trimmed because of the agreement by some employees to accept lump sum payments to quit voluntarily, said Texaco spokesman Charles Rentz.

About 60 to 65 workers signed up for an incentive plan designed to increase attrition at the asphalt plant, and more than 400 employees signed up for a similar incentive program for refinery workers, Rentz said.

The plan provides a payment of $4,000 to employees agreeing to give up their jobs. The cash settlement is in addition to other benefits employees may be qualified for, Rentz said.

Some refineries have shut down, and others have cut back on production because of the sharp drop of demand for gasoline and other petroleum products, he said.

Yessir. Those Redbirds showed Milwaukee that speed indeed is better than the foamers and homers. Baseball's championship has returned to one of its most famous cities, home of Musial, Dean, Gibson and Brock.

Meanwhile, back in Atlanta, Ted Turner has to watch the Series...without his Braves and on a different channel. Now that the seven games are gone, he can count the money he's lost sponsoring those pro football all-star games.

*****

Back to football. Picking games around the area this week is just plain foolishness.

Forsan and Klondike. The big, run-ya-over Buffs against the lightning-quick Cougars. And then there's Roscoe at Sands. Will the real Mustangs please stand up? Here's a breather...Eden at Garden City. Can the 'Kats knock off the state's No. 5 team?

If you think you know who'll win those games, give me a call. Even Shalina — my gypsy consultant — can't get anything out of her crystal ball for those games. And who's going to win the SMU-Texas game. SMU should but those Longhorns are tough at home...

*****

The district stats are out and Big Spring stumbled a bit last week.

The Steer defense slipped to No. 3 among 4-AAAA teams after giving up 310 yards to Cooper in a 37-15 loss. Midland moved ahead of Big Spring but just by 11 yards. The Steers are now forced to shut down Lee to that No. 2 standing back.

Punter Jay Pirkle slipped behind Darrell Kruse of Odessa but two percentage points but the BSHS sophomore has kicked the football 11 more times than his opponent.

The good news is junior receiver Dale Crenshaw. Crenshaw had caught 13 passes to rank second behind Luther Johnson of Lee and Chuck Dickenson of Midland. Crenshaw and Johnson will be the stars of the show tomorrow night when the Steers host the Rebels in a homecoming battle.

Finally, the state pollsters got it right. After ignoring Permian for six weeks, they put Mojo in their right place...at No. 1. Permian has not only gone undefeated but has yet to surrender a single point in league play and has given up just 880 total yards all year.

*****

From sideline to ringside, an update from the Howard Co. Boxing team.

Coach J.V. Martinez is excited about his heavyweight boxer Dan Chandler. Chandler won a title at the 2nd Annual Five-Star Boxing Championship earlier this month in Amarillo and then scored a TKO to claim the Regional Super Heavyweight Championship last weekend in Lubbock.

Gene Dukes also won a runner-up title in Amarillo. The HC team is back in action this weekend in Levelland.

*****

Time is flying towards those cold winter months and that means swimming and basketball, two more sports events for this thin-haired writer to cover.

The Howard College Hawks and Hawk Queens open up a winterful of action Nov. 2 at home against Ranger, hit the road and don't come back until their respective tournaments later in the month.

The Big Spring High swim team begins its fall schedule today against Permian. The dual meet season culminates next year with the district meet. Coach Harlan Smith is expecting his team to continue its climb to the top in the team standings.

*****

Remember, it's Big Spring High's homecoming Friday night. Should be a dandy game against Lee. C'mon Steer fans, no empty seats in Memorial. This is a big game. Big Spring can equal its 1970 record with one more win. Get out and make some noise.

Cards hit the jackpot

FLOCK OF CARDINALS ON THE LAWN — St. Louis Cardinals players race on to the field for the traditional post-game victory celebration following their 6-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Wednesday night. It was the first world championship for the Cards since 1967 and gave St. Louis nine world titles, the most by any National League team.

Sutter saves 6-3 win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baseball's world championship flag flies over St. Louis, a tribute to the meticulous planning and execution of Manager Whitey Herzog.

The Cardinals captured the title Wednesday night with a come-from-behind 6-3 victory over Milwaukee in the seventh game of the World Series that was typical of their brand of baseball.

They won with speed and defense and custom designed by Herzog for roomy Busch Stadium with its artificial surface. Home runs held no fascination for the Cards, who had the puniest homer attack in the majors in 1982 with just 67 of them.

They preferred to single and double the opposition to death and if they took a lead into the eighth inning, Herzog handed the ball to Bruce Sutter, perhaps the best relief pitcher in baseball.

After that, it was usually game, set, match.

That's precisely how they finished off Milwaukee's muscular Brewers, who led the majors with 216 homers but came out second best in this championship showdown.

The formula was right out of Herzog's textbook. He got seven strong innings from starter Joaquin Andujar and with a 4-3 lead, it was Sutter time.

"We have the best relief pitcher in baseball and we pay him a lot of money, so I figured I'd better use him," said Herzog.

Sutter delivered six straight outs and the Cards tacked on a couple of insurance runs in their last swing to clinch their ninth world championship — the most for any National League team.

Brews come up game short

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When the Milwaukee Brewers finally had run out of tomorrow, and a sea of screaming, red-clad St. Louis Cardinals fans surged onto Busch Memorial Stadium's green carpet, Paul Molitor put his arm around Bob McClure's shoulder.

"I just said that I never doubted that we were going to find a way somehow," said Molitor, the Brewers' third baseman. "Here we were with a lead and Pete Vuckovich pitching in and out of trouble. That's the norm for Vuckie."

"But after all those amazing, dramatic victories — the game we had to win in Baltimore and we did, the games we had to win from California and we did — maybe we just went to the well once too often," he said.

"We came up dry," he said. "But we'll be back."

McClure, the losing pitcher Wednesday night in the Cardinals' 6-3 World Series-clinching victory, agreed with Molitor.

"We lost one game," McClure said. "Everybody is feeling down. But I guess we have to try to remember all the other games we won this season."

"We got to the seventh game of the World Series and lost," he said. "As bad as all of us feel about it, we had to do a lot of right things just to get here. And we can only get better next year."

The Brewers have all winter to philosophize about their season. Wednesday was a time to feel and vent emotion, and second baseman Jim Gantner typified the Brewers' frustration.

Gantner grounded out in the seventh inning, then exchanged angry words with Cardinals' pitcher Joaquin Andujar along the first base line. Andujar moved toward Gantner, then was grabbed by plate umpire Lee Weyer and escorted toward the Cardinals' dugout.

"He (Andujar) kept pointing fingers at us, giving us the fist job, so I called him a hot dog," Gantner said.

"He wanted to charge me," he said. "If that's the way he tries to psyche himself up, maybe I should have called him a hot dog in the second inning so he might have lost his concentration."

"But I'm not taking anything away from him," he said. "I guess that's just the way he is. He's a great competitor and a great pitcher."

There had been much pregame speculation about the readiness of Andujar, who had been struck on the leg by a line drive in Milwaukee Friday.

"We watched him warm up tonight, and he didn't seem to favor the leg when he pushed off on his delivery," Brewers' outfielder Ben Oglivie said.

Whose homer provided one of the Milwaukee runs. "We knew then that he probably was going to be tough. And he was. I think he threw about as hard as when we faced him the first time."

But I was right on the plate and I thought it was plenty fair.

"But that doesn't matter because that wasn't what beat us," he said. "They still got a couple of big insurance runs in the eighth inning."

"They're a good club," he said. "They kept getting big hits. Instead of getting a sacrifice fly with runners on second and third, they would get a big hit. They kept pecking away."

"The third base umpire (Phillips) made the call and the home plate umpire (Weyer) concurred on the ground ball," Molitor said. "The last bounce it took was in fair territory. I don't really know if it crossed that invisible plane into foul territory before I caught it. It was close."

"But that wasn't what beat us," he said. "Lonnie Smith getting the double was the key to the inning. That meant two runners in scoring position with one out. That dug a pretty deep hole for us."

"You have to give the Cardinals credit because it was their kind of game," said first baseman Cecil Cooper. "They got two-out, two-strike hits, made contact, took the extra base."

They just did a variety of things."

Manager Harvey Kuenn said his players have every reason to be proud.

"They have nothing to hang their heads about," Kuenn said. "They can smile and laugh because they played like hell all the way. They're a great ball club. I'm not disappointed. We came from 7½ games back and won 96 games. What more could you ask?"

"I thought it was fair," Simmons said of the grounder.

"Dave Phillips, the umpire behind Paulie, and Lee Weyer called it foul."

had touched off the winning rally.

"It's still like a dream, really," Smith said. "It really hasn't hit me yet like it will in a day or two or maybe even in a week."

Smith said he had no doubt at the night's start that Joaquin Andujar, the winning St. Louis pitcher, would be able to perform well.

"When I found out that he hadn't been hit on the kneecap, I felt that he would pitch," Smith said in reference to the injury Andujar suffered when hit by a batted ball in Game Five.

"He's the type of guy who will battle."

Andujar said he blocked the pain from the sore right knee out of his mind, adding

Birthday boy shines in finale

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When the championship of baseball was on the line, Keith Hernandez decided to celebrate a birthday by christening an old friend.

"Even if it wasn't my birthday, I couldn't be happier," said the 29-year-old first baseman after delivering the hit that headed the St. Louis Cardinals to the World Series title Wednesday night. "It really hasn't sunk in yet. I'm not even sure when it will."

Hernandez, who had started off the postseason classic against the Milwaukee Brewers by going 0-for-15, found himself in an unenviable spot near the windup of the 6-3 victory.

The pitcher as he stood at home plate with one out and runners at second and third in the sixth inning was Bob McClure, a former high school rival and junior college classmate. Four deliveries later, with St. Louis down by two runs, Hernandez singled on a 3-1 count.

"I just said to myself that there's really not that much pressure," said Hernandez, whose hit off McClure produced a 3-3 tie.

"It's still you against the pitcher," said the manufacturer of the Cardinals' key Series hit. "I pride myself on being an RBI man. Clutch hitting has been the story for us all season."

Other Cards left to celebrate in a clubhouse which was soon flooded by champagne included Ozzie Smith, whose second single had touched off the winning rally.

"When I found out that he hadn't been hit on the kneecap, I felt that he would pitch," Smith said in reference to the injury Andujar suffered when hit by a batted ball in Game Five.

"He's the type of guy who will battle."

Andujar said he blocked the pain from the sore right knee out of his mind, adding

Porter named Series MVP; St. Louis had to battle back

But it wasn't all that easy. St. Louis kept wasting early chances and left six men on base in the first three innings against Milwaukee starter Pete Vuckovich. "I was thinking about all the men we left on base," said Herzog. "We had seven hits in a hurry and Vuckovich just kept pitching out of jams."

In the fourth, St. Louis scratched out a run with singles by Willie McGee, Tommy Herr and Lonnie Smith. It was typical Cardinal baseball. It took Milwaukee one home run swing by Ben Oglivie to get it back in the top of the fifth. It was a typical Brewer baseball.

In the sixth, Milwaukee took the lead with a rally that came right out of the St. Louis playbook. Jim Gantner opened with a double. Paul Molitor bunted for a hit and when Andujar threw the ball away for an error, Gantner scored.

Then Robin Yount beat out an infield single for his 12th hit of the Series — one shy of the record — but the only one he managed in the last two games. Cecil Cooper's sacrifice fly scored Molitor and made it 3-1.

Even though they had fallen behind, there was no panic on the Cardinal bench.

"We weren't afraid," said Darrell Porter, who was named the Series' Most Valuable Player. "We've got some people who can play and we had four innings left."

St. Louis decided not to wait for the final three. The Cards went right to work. With one out, Ozzie Smith singled to left and scooted to third on a double by Lonnie Smith. That finished Vuckovich and Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn brought in left-hander Bob McClure.

Herzog, playing the strategy game, pinch hit righty-swinging Gene Tenace for Ken Oberkell and McClure walked him, leading the bases.

That brought up Keith Hernandez, an 0-for-15 bust with two errors in the first four games of the Series, who had snapped out of his slump with three hits in Game Five and two more in Game Six.

Hernandez was celebrating his 29th birthday and gave himself a lovely gift, drilling a two-run single that tied the score.

"Some of the guys kept me loose during the slump," he said. "They got on me. Things like 'Did that gold glove turn to steel?' or 'Did that silver bat turn to Swiss cheese?'"

Now the Cardinals were even. But a moment later St. Louis had the lead when George Hendrick ripped another single to right.

Andujar, nursing a sore knee injured when he was struck by a batted ball in Game Three, retired the Brewers in the seventh. Coming off the mound, he exchanged words with Gantner and seemed ready to do hand-to-hand combat with the Brewer second baseman. Home plate umpire Lee Weyer bear-hugged the angry pitcher and steered him toward the Cardinal dugout.

"There were some pretty bad words," said Andujar, and when he repeated them, the only two useable here were hot dog. "I think he did this just because I was playing so hard. He's a smart player and I think he was just trying to make me mad because he knows when I get mad, I get wild. He knew that could get me out of the game."

But Herzog had decided that Andujar was already out of the game, the Gantner incident notwithstanding. The gospel according to Whitey is with a lead in the eighth inning you give the baseball to Sutter. He takes care of the rest.

"We had 92 victories in the season and Sutter had 36 saves and nine wins," the manager said. "That's half our victories. Anytime we got to the eighth and needed help, I sent for Sutter."

The reliever who looks like a mountain man with his scraggly beard, trumped into the game with his split fingered fastball and blew the Brewers away in the eighth. In the bottom half of the inning, the Cards added to their lead with a double by Lonnie Smith, an intentional walk and RBI-singles by Porter and Steve Braun.

The rally gave the Cards some breathing room. It delayed the celebration but that was all right. Cardinal fans had waited for this 14 years, since 1967 when Bob Gibson led St. Louis to its last world title. They could wait one more inning.

Sutter didn't keep them in suspense long. He mowed down the last three hitters, finishing with a flair by striking out the final batter, Gorman Thomas.

As he clutched the last strike, Porter bounded out from behind the plate and leaped into the pitcher's arms, touching off a mad, mad celebration.

It was the second save of the Series for Sutter, who also was credited with one of the Cards' victories.

"It's hard to believe," the pitcher said. "I know it probably won't sink in for a while. I imagine I'll be hunting deer this winter and all of a sudden it will sink in and I will let out a great big yell."

This Series didn't start out in a very promising manner for the Cardinals. They were shut out 10-0 on Mike Caldwell's three-hitter in the opener. But they came back the next night to eke out a 5-4 victory with Sutter getting the victory in relief. Porter drilled a key two-run double in that game and the winning run scored when Braun drew a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the eighth inning.

The teams moved to Milwaukee and Andujar handcuffed the Brewers in Game Three, winning 6-2. Herzog needed Sutter to nail down that victory after Andujar was hurt and that affected the Cards in Game Four. Leading 5-1, they saw the lead evaporate in a six-run Brewer rally in the seventh inning while Sutter remained in the bullpen.

That tied the Series at 2-2 and Milwaukee won Game Five behind a gritty performance by Caldwell and the second four-hit game of the Series by Yount. Now the Brewers needed one more victory for the World championship. But they never got it.

REAPERS OF THE REWARDS — St. Louis Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog (left) and Cardinals owner August A. Busch, Jr. (right) are presented to the team by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn after Wednesday night's 6-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Strike may really juggle schedules

COCKEYSVILLE, M. (AP) — It'll be NFL football ... or no football. For a while, at least. And in a while, if NFL football does return, it'll have a slightly different look.

For times and dates of your team's games, don't bother checking your tickets. The National Football League may juggle its schedule dramatically.

In a meeting of NFL officials Wednesday in New York, one which included Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys and chairman of the Competition Committee, the league wrestled with the problems of a strike-shortened season, specifically one of 13 of 12 games.

The existing schedule likely would be junked with teams playing as many games as possible against divisional rivals. The league also is trying to balance the number of road and home games and to deal with the problems of playing full slates of games even later than usual in winter and figuring out how to declare one wild-card entry with an unbalanced schedule.

The NFL's striking players, some of whom had visions of forming their own union-sponsored league, were thrown for a loss Wednesday in U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. It ruled the NFL could — if it desired — send union lawyers scurrying all over the countryside, fighting lawsuits.

The union, without the resources to mount a defense against that, threw in a small towel and cancelled its all-star league — perhaps forever.

It was the major development in the 30th day of the strike and the eighth day in this round of negotiations to end it.

At the bargaining table Wednesday, negotiators discussed pensions and insurance benefits. A member of the union's negotiating team said there was progress. Economic issues have been the thorniest in these talks, which were recessed Wednesday at 9:45 p.m. EDT.

A report floated early Wednesday by management, which said mediator Sam Kagel had told the union he didn't like its idea of a central salary fund, was shot down ... sort of ... by Kagel himself. The 73-year-old San Francisco lawyer, who issues brief statements and refuses to answer questions, couched his response in such terms that many people were wondering just exactly what he meant.

The union, whose strike has now resulted in the calling off of five regular-season weekends, staged two all-star games last weekend, the first two of a 20-game series designed in part to raise $1 million a week and in part to show the NFL just what united players could do.

Two more were scheduled next Sunday in Toronto and Monday night in Atlanta. The latter city, incidentally, is the home base of the Turner Broadcasting System, the cable television company which was bankrolling the union games. But the appellate court's decision convinced the union to cancel those two games, and probably the entire players' league as well.

Sutter earns his money again

do. I wanted to get the last out," said Sutter.

"I went out there trying to keep myself calm, trying not to get too excited. I was getting ahead of the hitters and keeping the ball down."

The World Series title was the second in three years for left fielder Lonnie Smith, who in 1980 earned his first championship ring while a member of the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I've been fortunate to be on two world champions. I never expected it, but I'm enjoying it. I just hope that I can be on some more," he said.

In his clubhouse office, Manager Whitey Herzog picked at a victory snack of spareribs and pondered the significance of the moment.

"I don't feel that excited about it," said Herzog, who perhaps like Ozzie Smith needed time to feel its full impact. "After seeing our ballclub last night come out smoking, I really expected this. They (Brewers) have got a good ballclub, but there are a lot of things we can do better than they can."

Sutter, considered the ultimate St. Louis weapon, said "steadiness and togetherness" were qualities which vaulted the Cards to the title.

"Even after we were down 3-2 in games, I thought we could come back," the bearded reliever said. "We were coming home to play on Astroturf. That's where our speed and our defense gave us the edge."

St. Louis catcher Darrell Porter, voted the Most Valuable Player of the Series, called the award "so wonderful I can't believe it."

"This was the most fun I've had in my career in baseball. I don't know what it's like yet," Porter said. "It's a dream come true. Any athlete wants to be a world champion, and we made it."

Oilers to play in Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY — Fresh off a 23-20 upset victory over the Longview Trailblazers, the Cunningham Oilers will travel to Oklahoma City Saturday night for its second semi-pro football game.

Piling up over 400 yards in total offense, the Oilers knocked off the United Football Teams of America league leader at home in their debut game.

The Oilers host the Dallas Texans at Memorial Stadium Nov. 20 in their first home game.

4-A-A-A-A-A Picks

By GREG JAKLEWICZ, Sports Editor

Midland Lee at Big Spring — Both teams are coming off disappointing losses... Big Spring saw its two-game district win streak end when the Cooper Cougars powered to a 37-15 victory in Abilene... Lee finally got its showdown with Odessa Permian but became Mojo's fourth 4-5A shutout victim by a 27-0 count... Steers slipped a notch in team defense, falling to third behind Permian and Midland High... Lee brings in the league's second most potent offense which has gained 1,616 yards in seven games... Clarence Smith leads the team in rushing with 276 yards while Paul Cox has gained 252... Cox and Mike Mercurio split time at quarterback with Mercurio throwing for 230 yards... favorite target is Luther Johnson who is topped rated receiver in league... Big Spring showing improving passing attack with Dale Crenshaw No. 2 in league in catching the football... Steers beat Odessa 10-7 while Lee lost to the Bronchos by the same count... Lee could be down after losing to Permian... if so, it'll cost them before BSHS homecoming crowd. (Game is 8 p.m.) BIG SPRING 17, LEE 14.

Odessa at Abilene — Odessa was blanked last week by Midland while Abilene gave San Angelo a tough time before falling 8-0 in the Concho City... injuries have bugged up the Bronchos... Abilene's Ron Lewis second in rushing with 636 yards... Eagles last in league defense... AHS is out of district race with three losses but they'll take Odessa down with them at home. ABILENE 28, ODESSA 12

Cooper at Permian — Cooper looked like the old Cougars in a rebound victory over Big Spring... Allen Gunter proved why he's one of top backs in district as a junior... the only problem is playing No. 1 state-ranked Permian... at home... and going against big Britt Hager and Mike Troglin spending most of the game on the sidelines but backups seem very adequate... have to go with Mojo but if they are to get beat, this just might be the game. PERMIAN 28, COOPER 24

The starting blocks are at the other end of the pool but coach Harlan Smith is hoping his Big Spring High swim team will be splashing in the right direction this afternoon.

Odessa Permian provides the competition as BSHS opens its District 4-AAAAA dual meet season at 6 p.m. in the local YMCA pool against Mojo.

Fielding perhaps his strongest team yet, Smith is anxious to see just what his swimmers can do after a month and a half of early morning practice sessions.

"I don't know what the outcome of the meet will be," Smith said Wednesday. "I don't know they got and they don't know what we got. So we'll see."

Smith has put his top swimmers on his relay teams. On the boy's medley relay will be Terry Bordofsky, Speight Grimes, Tim Plew and Cecil Wiley with Ben Parham, Scott Boland, Dan Deflitch and Chris Williams making up a second team. For the girls, Carol Davey, Rita Fleckenstein, Hartley Newell and Amanda Gauer will swim against Mojo.

Other swimmers in the boy's division are Willey and John Burcham (200 free), Grimes (200 IM), Williams and Robert Chase (50 free), Plew and Deflitch (100 fly), Mike Mindly (diving), Parham and Kyle McCain (100 fly), Boland and Brigham Martin (500 free), Bordofsky and Parham (backstroke) and Boland and Curtis McCain (breaststroke). Making up the freestyle relay are Plew, Bordofsky, Willey and Grimes with Williams, Kyle McCain, Chase and William Hale swimming on the second team. For the girls, the competitors will be Kelly Williamson and Veronica Parks (200 free), Charity Allen (200 IM), Williamson and Rhonda Pearson (50 free), Jonna Atchley and Lisa Salazar (diving), Newell and Allen (100 fly), Norma Luna and Pearson (100 free), Gauer and Parks (500 free), Davey and Laura Barraza (backstroke) and Fleckenstein and Luna (breaststroke).

Luna, Allen and Williamson swimming on a second group. Big Spring swims again Saturday at 2 p.m. against Seminole.

Is Mauch's job safe?

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — With the playoff loss still fresh in the minds of California Angels officials, Executive Vice President Buzie Bavasi says he isn't sure Manager Gene Mauch will be back next season.

"There's nothing definitive yet," Bavasi said after a 90-minute talk with Mauch on Wednesday. "Right now, Gene is our manager. We'll talk again in a couple days."

The Angels lost the American League playoffs to the Milwaukee Brewers after winning the first two of the series.

"If we had to make a decision today," Bavasi said, "it wouldn't be a good one. By that I mean the atmosphere isn't right. Every time we pick up the papers and see it's the Brewers in the World Series and every time we think about the money we're losing by not being there we become more disappointed."

He said the team lost about $1 million. "I don't think we should make a decision while there's still doubt in anyone's mind," he said.

He said Mauch, himself, is disillusioned with the way the series ended and may not want to come back.

TRYING TO FREE DRIVER — Big Spring Fire Department personnel try to free Enrique Reyes from his vehicle Tuesday night north of Big Spring. Reyes and another occupant were injured when he lost control of his pickup and crashed into a utility pole on State Highway 350.

Mishap sends 2 to hospital

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Staff Writer

A one vehicle accident approximately a mile north of the Big Spring city limits on State Highway 350 sent two local residents to the hospital Tuesday evening.

Enrique Reyes, 20, of 709 W. 18th St. and Kim Berry, 24, of Big Spring were admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital after the late model pickup truck Reyes was driving veered off the road and hit a utility pole according to Department of Public Safety trooper Jim Lasater. The vehicle was traveling south at the time of the accident which occurred at 7:25 p.m.

Reyes was admitted for observation while Miss Berry was treated and released.

"I was standing over here," said Edward Miller, pointing to a pickup in the driveway he was filling with gas, "when I heard a bunch of tires squalling. He was running off the highway on the other side and then started coming this way. I didn't see no more because I was heading the other way."

Miller said he saw the pickup first go off the right side of the highway. "He ran off the road down yonder and then he ran it back on. He was on the road twice. I heard him coming, too. He had it wound for sound."

The truck struck the utility pole at the left front entrance of Miller's driveway. "He hit way up on that pole. When the dust settled, the pickup was still rocking," he continued.

Miller found Miss Berry and said "she had a pulse beat, and then she didn't and then she started talking. I thought she was dead at first. I don't know how she got there," he added, after finding the Big Spring woman laying on the ground several feet from the closed cab of the pickup. Patrolman Lasater says the woman may have been thrown from the passenger side of the vehicle and the door shut again upon impact.

Big Spring Fire Department rescue units had to use "Jaws of Life" to pry open the driver's door and remove Reyes from the pickup.

Lasater said the occupants were fortunate not to strike the utility pole solidly. "He was in the process of spinning around when he hit it," the patrolman said.

Lasater said the vehicle was heading south on 350 and rounding a curve when he lost control of the pickup and went off on the right shoulder of the highway. He regained enough control of the vehicle to bring it back on the road but then lost control again and hit the utility pole.

Sheriff's Log

$50,000 in oilfield equipment recovered by sheriff's office

The Howard County Sheriff's Office recovered more than $50,000 in stolen oil field equipment yesterday, according to Sheriff A.N. Standard. The equipment was discovered stashed west of Big Spring by sheriff's deputies acting on a tip from a "middle man," Standard said.

The equipment — elevators, slips and wrenches — had been stolen from four oil rigs approximately a week ago, Standard said. Two rigs in Midland County and two in Howard County had been hit by thieves within 24 hours of each other, he said. No arrests have been made in the case, but the sheriff's office is following up several leads, Standard said.

• Sheriff's deputies took four juveniles into custody last night at 11:50 p.m. after discovering the four had taken a vehicle from Jack Lewis Buick and Cadillac Company.

The group was discovered on the Borden County Road, reports say. The four were arrested for suspicion of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, according to reports. Juvenile authorities were contacted, according to sheriff's office reports.

• Sheriff's deputies arrested three persons on separate charges on county warrants of issuance of bad checks. Johnnie Baker, 41, of Box 582 in Big Spring, paid a $25 fine and bad checks to be released. Vicki Hodnett Bumbulis, 21, of 906 S. Douglas, paid a $26 fine and bad checks totalling $69.49 to be released. Jose Perez Garcia, 39, of 1305 Utah, posted a $1,500 bond to be released.

• Margie Roberts, 25, of 204 Adicka in Dallas, remains in county jail following her arrest by sheriff's deputies last night for suspicion of public intoxication.

New faces arrive in area this week

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

At least seven new faces made this week's Big Spring area football honor roll.

It may have been the last chance for some of the coaches to relax as several big games are on tap for this Friday night. The two biggest feature No. 5 state-ranked Eden at Garden City and Forsan at Klondike. Both contests are key battles in District 7-A but involving teams in different zones. Eden and Garden City play in the south zone and Forsan and Klondike in the north.

Eden and Garden City are both sporting 4-0 league records as the Bearcats have charged back from a 1-2 start. Forsan is 1-1 in district play after a narrow 21-18 loss to Roscoe while Klondike is 2-0 after wins over Roby and Lorraine.

Quarterback Tim Cope of the Cougars had a good week against Lorraine, hitting eight of 18 throws for 197 yards and three touchdowns. Grady's big running back Lynn Key bulled over McCaulley for 145 yards and also had time to throw four pass completions. Coahoma played perhaps its best game of year, falling 19-18 to Crane when a two-point conversion in the final seconds failed. Running John Wilson had 140 yards on the night, bursting 72 yards for one of the Bulldog touchdowns in the first half.

Johnny Rodriguez was equally of value to Sands. The Mustang receiver broke and tackle and scored on a 37-yard touchdown pass from Alder Franco to get Sands back into the game against Roby. He then caught two more passes, one on a third and eight situation, to set up the winning touchdown as the Mustangs tipped the Lions 14-13.

On defense, Darryl Snell of Stanton linebacked his way into 17 tackle situations as the Buffs blasted Miles 43-0. Grady standout Randy Gutierrez led another night of terror, this time against McCaulley. He had eight solo tackles, was in on seven others, had three quarterback sacks and blocked a PAT try. Middle linebacker and noseguard Ramon Miranda was in on 19 tackles for Forsan while Garden City's Robert Hefner made 14 tackles from his defensive guard position. Coach Steve Park of Stanton honored his offensive line (James Bass, Tracy Spinks, Jimmy Leftwich, Bobby Almaguer, Polo Mendez, Tommy Esparza and Nicky Reyna) while coach Tom Ramsey of Colorado City liked the play of his line. Coach Jim Warren of Lamesa did not select honor players this week.

"HAVE YOU TRIED INSULATION?"

P&S Insulation can help lower fuel bills

Today's home-buyer is justifiably worried about spiraling heating and cooling costs — for this year, and the years to come. Gas companies have estimated that the average residential gas bill will be $1,609 per year by 1990. That's a 317 percent increase during this decade. The problem is that a lot of your hard-earned fuel-buying dollars are going through the roof, unless your house is properly insulated. P&S Insulation wants to help. Managed by Pat and Sue Warren, P&S Insulation will come to your home to check out the trouble spots. They'll fill every heat-leaking crack and crevice with pure white Insul-Safe II, the noncombustible fiberglass insulation from Certain Teed. Insul-Safe II is designed to make a big difference in your fuel bills — a difference you'll feel during the coming cold months. Not only will it provide protection today for tomorrow's high energy costs, but it's quality means excellent value. Because it's fiberglass it won't rot or decay, and won't cause any odors. P&S Insulation will also show you how to qualify for a federal income tax credit. It's a fact. A well-insulated home can cut the cost of heating bills. But it can also cut air-conditioning costs in the summer months. The cost of insulation will be offset by these savings. It will pay for itself. So give Pat and Sue Warren a call at P&S Insulation today. Their phone number is 267-1264. Call them before the cold weather really sets in.

Singing the blues

Local stores to heed enforced blue law

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

The managers of K-Mart and Gibson's discount stores say that, although they've violated it in the past, their current plans are to abide by the blue law.

K-Mart manager Jim Truitt said his store will close on Sundays and Gibson's manager Ed McCauley said that his store will remain open on Sundays, but with certain merchandise roped off by departments. The managers said their action is based on notification by the local police department saying the blue law will be enforced.

Truitt said although K-Mart stores in Midland and Odessa "stay open (on Sundays) because they don't enforce it," "we'll go along with it because people want it."

"Personally, I like being closed on Sunday. I think it gives us a nice day off," Truitt said.

Enforcement of the blue law came into question recently when the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce acted on complaints from "both stores and customers" by notifying the county attorney of three stores apparently violating the law, chamber president Sidney Clark said.

Police Chief Rick Turner said the department sent the stores — Gibson, K-Mart and C.R. Anthony's — letters saying the law will be enforced and that they could comply by closing either Saturday or Sunday or by not selling certain items on one of those days.

C.R. Anthony manager Tom Cauthorn said his store already closes on Sundays.

The blue law was first enacted in Texas in 1863 "on the grounds of the religious belief in the Lord's day of rest." Some say it's name originated because Puritans in the northeast printed their Sunday legislation on blue paper or because it was bound in blue. Others surmise it was because the legislation originated with "blue-nosed" Puritans.

Since 1961, at least 20 states have repealed their blue laws, leaving 20 states — mostly in the south and east — with the law on their books.

Revco and Eckerd's drug store chains and Gibson's, Southland Corp., Safeway, Alpha Beta, Winn-Dixie and other grocery store chains have attempted many times to push for repeal of the Texas blue law.

McCauley said "I believe it should be repealed. Anyone should be able to buy anything they want to seven days a week. Take a person that works six days a week. Sunday is the only day he can do minor repairs around the house."

"We had a guy come in Sunday. His hot water line broke. When he came in we told him we couldn't sell the items he needed. He said he guessed he'd have to go to Midland or Odessa. And we didn't sell to him."

But the two managers said their main concern now was to see that the law is applied to all stores, not just their own.

"If they're just discussing enforcement on three stores, then they're not enforcing it evenhandedly," Truitt said.

Truitt said he had not sent a crew to other stores to check on blue law violations, however "I probably will send some employees on Sunday to check on some stores like 7-Eleven, Furr's and Safeway."

Truitt said his store had been violating the blue law "until last week when we realized they would be enforcing it ... Gibson's had been open for the past six to eight months selling everything. So my bosses told me to open up, too. Now we'll be closed on Sundays."

McCauley said he also plans to send "someone," not necessarily an employee, to check local stores for violations. "When I was selling (prohibited) merchandise on Sunday, I went to other grocery stores and bought the same items I was selling. I never filed on those stores because (the law) was never enforced."

Each sale that violates the blue law constitutes a separate misdemeanor offense and is punishable by a maximum $100 fine on first conviction. Repeat offenses may get the offender a maximum six months in jail, a $500 fine, or both.

Treats goblins and other beastly things (including humans) love were submitted to the Herald Recipe Exchange this week. The recipes submitted are by a witch and the many people involved in the frightfully outstanding March of Dimes Haunted House at the Big Spring Mall.

The Haunted House will open next week to the public Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 6 to 10 p.m., Friday from 6 to 12 p.m. and Saturday from 12 noon to 12 midnight.

This Haunted House is a real spine-tingling experience, according to Dorene Zilberg, March of Dimes executive. She invites everybody to do something daring, something scary and come visit the Haunted House. A $2 admission fee will be charged with proceeds going to the March of Dimes.

Those involved in the Haunted House include the March of Dimes, Greater Big Spring Rotary Club, Future Homemakers of America, Student Council and Key Club.

Don't forget the Herald Recipe Exchange is your recipe exchange. In order for it to be a quality feature we need you to support it by submitting your recipes for others to enjoy. Many area residents delight in trying out new recipes that others have been successful with. In fact, one woman is seeking a recipe for Hummingbird Cake. She heard the cake was delicious, and she wishes to try it. If anyone has this recipe, please send it to the Herald Recipe Exchange, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

 1 cup sugar
 1/2 cup milk
 2 eggs
 1/2 cups softened butter
 1 cup chopped pecans

Sift together first six ingredients. Combine pumpkin, sugar, milk, eggs, in mixing bowl. Add dry ingredients and butter. Mix until well-blended. Stir in nuts. Spread in well-greased loaf pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 to 55 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Makes one loaf.

Club names high scorer

Mrs. Vernon Kent, 1608 E. 5th, was hostess in her home Oct. 15 for the Rook Club's regular meeting.
 Mrs. S.R. Noble tied with high score with Mrs. Kent. Roberta Gay was a visiting player.
 Tally cards were made with a Halloween motif. The next meeting is Nov. 19 in the home of Mrs. Hugh Duncan, 1600 Tucson.

Volunteer quarterly luncheon to be held

 Featured speaker will be A.K. Smith, superintendent of BSSH. Pre-luncheon music will be provided by Juli Hollar, music therapist.
 Those wishing to make reservations should call the volunteer office at 267-8216, ext. 535, prior to 5 p.m. Thursday.

Elks sponsor cookoff

The Past Exalted Ruler's Association of the Big Spring Elks Lodge will sponsor the first annual Chili Super Bowl Cook-off here Saturday.
 Prizes totalling $500 will be paid to the winning cooks. First prize is $175, second prize is $125, and third is $100. Two $50 showmanship awards are also offered.
 John Fort, president of the PER Association, said that W.D. Berry will coordinate the event. Proceeds will be used for various charities.
 Entries are limited to Howard County residents and Elks from West Texas lodges. Due to space limitations, only 50 teams can enter. An arts and crafts show will also be featured during the one-day event. A dance is scheduled for 9 p.m.
 Entry blanks are available at the Elks Lodge, 601 E. Marcy, after 3 p.m. daily. Entry fee is $10 and must be paid at registration. Deadline is Thursday at 5 p.m.
 Rules state that each contestant must cook 10 pounds of chili and donate half of that to the lodge for re-sale. All chili must be cooked from scratch on the grounds Saturday. Judging will be at 3 p.m.
 A cook's meeting will be held at 7:30 a.m. Saturday. Cooking will start at 8 a.m. Teams consist of a chief cook and four additional people. Individuals and organizations are eligible to enter. Complete rules are available at the Lodge.

United Health Care Center

Residents and staff of the United Health Care Center, 901 Goliad, are planning a Halloween Carnival from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday in the lower building of the nursing home.
 Janie Hale and Beverly Grant, Center employees, said that featured games will be the cakewalk, bottle toss for money, basket toss, bingo, fishing hole, darts and clown toss.
 Participants will also be eligible to register for free door prizes to be given away during the carnival. Prizes have been donated by local merchants. Chances on a half of a side of U.S. grade A beef will be sold for one dollar. The drawing for the beef is set for 9 p.m. Saturday.
 Proceeds from the carnival will go towards the residents' activity fund, to buy crafts, supplies, bingo prizes, refreshments for parties and Christmas gifts for residents without families.

Clement's backers campaign here

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Three West Texas former politicians showed up in Big Spring Monday to endorse Governor Bill Clements in his bid for re-election.

The three, former U.S. Representative O.C. Fisher of Junction, former State Senator Dorsey B. Hardeman and former State Representative Tom Massey, stood on Clements' past record. They avoided attacks of any kind on Clements' opponent, Mark White.

In fact, the only major mention of White was that he was "an unknown quantity," as Massey said.

Clements' track record received accolades from each man.

"He's been a good governor," said Fisher, "and I believe Texas would be better served if Clements were elected to serve the next four years. Everything that I think is of major nature... Clements has been on the right side."

"He's a fighter and a proven administrator," Fisher continued. "Texas would be wise to reward him with a second term."

"He's on the right track... on top of a lot of things," said Hardeman. "He's made a good governor so far. I like a businessman who will speak up and not quibble."

All three men cited Clements' powers as an administrator, his stands on education, crime and the right to work, and his interest in water for West Texas.

"Water is really the reason I volunteered to help the governor," said Massey. White had said "the governor wasn't doing a thing about water," Massey said, "and it irked me. I happen to know that under the governor's leadership, we've made more progress in planning in the last three years than in 15."

"He has appointed a blue ribbon task force to make plans," Hardeman said. "The Stacy Dam is the largest and most important project before the water commission in many years," he said, adding that Clements supports the completion of the dam.

As to why Democrats would support a Republican candidate for governor, Massey said, "My state, my community, has to come ahead of the party."

Phosphorous level waxes and wanes

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband went to a health clinic for a complete checkup. All the test findings were normal except for the blood phosphorous, which was slightly diminished — 2.1. I was told not to worry about it because the difference wasn't much. Can you explain to me just exactly what this phosphorous is in the blood for. What does it help? Must you eat certain foods to get it, and should my husband have further checkups to watch his level? What would the signs be of a low phosphorous level? — Mrs. J.D.

Phosphorous is one of the most abundant minerals in our body. In combination with calcium, it is part of the stuff of which bones are made, and it's also a part of every cell's outer membrane. And it plays a role in our body's total energy production. Important stuff, phosphorous.

However, a slight drop can be insignificant, especially that noted in a single spot test. Levels of it wax and wane in the course of a day. For example, if your husband had eaten a lot of sugar before the test, the level would be lower. Also, levels in men seem to get a bit lower with age. No, your husband's reading was not excessively low.

Now if phosphorous levels stay on the low side for prolonged periods you have to consider a long list of possible problems. Increased production of parathyroid gland hormones can be involved, or osteomalacia, a bone problem. A vitamin D deficiency can lower blood phosphorous, and so can certain water pills, certain antacids and alcohol. A person with diabetes may have a lower phosphorous level.

Persistent excessively-low levels can cause loss of appetite, dizziness, bone pain and muscle weakness. I would bet that your husband's one-time low reading was a fluke, but he should have it rechecked. I doubt he will need any special diet, because any reasonably balanced one provides plenty of phosphorous. However, foods high in it are dairy products (including eggs), cereals and meat.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE:

My doctor described my problem as "essential hypertension." If essential means something that is required, I am confused. The word must have a special meaning when used by doctors. If so, what? Please comment. — B.M.S.

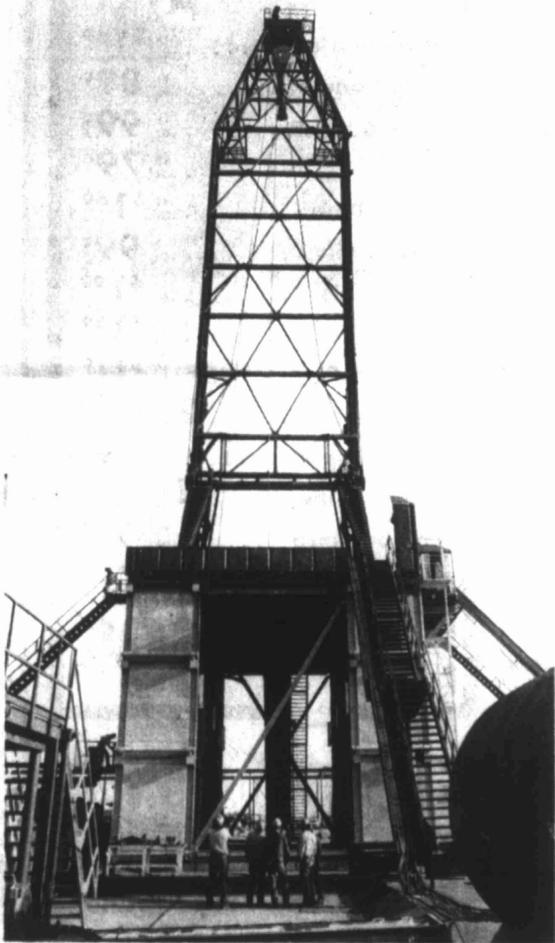

It does have a different meaning for doctors when speaking of a disease such as high blood pressure (hypertension). Essential hypertension is the most common kind of high blood pressure. It refers to a kind that has no specific factor to take the blame.

Sometimes, high blood pressure can be traced to a problem or group of problems. It is then described as being "secondary" to those problems. For example, a tumor of the adrenal glands can cause blood pressure to be high. That elevation of pressure is secondary to the tumor. When the tumor is removed the pressure returns to normal. That is just one example of secondary hypertension.

No cause can be found in your case, so your hypertension is essential, or primary. It is the garden variety of hypertension, the most common kind. But it doesn't mean you can ignore the usual helpful steps to control it, like salt restriction, etc. — in general those outside factors that play such an important role in any kind of hypertension.

THE BIG RIG — Oilfield Industrial Lines erected their biggest rig ever Tuesday at the Industrial Park. In case you're wondering just how big the rig is, O.I.L. chief engineer Ron Osborn says the rig is rated at 30,000 feet drilling depth, is powered by a 3,000 horsepower drawworks, uses two 1,600 horsepower mud pumps, and is rated at one and a half million pounds hook load capacity. If that doesn't mean much to you, the mast is 150 feet tall, and sits atop a 36-foot substructure. To grasp that visually, note the worker descending the stairs to the left and the worker on top of the stairs at the right center of the photo. Osborn said the rig, which carries a price tag of approximately $10 million, has been sold to the Western Drilling Company of Oklahoma City to be used in drilling gas wells in the Anadarko Basin of Oklahoma.
