Inflation growth slows to a crawl

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Sharp new declines in mortgage rates helped hold inflation in September to a scant 2.1 percent, calculated annually, the government said today. It was the smallest advance in five months.

Gasoline costs, reflecting abundant supplies of oil, fell 0.1 percent, although food prices were up 0.5 percent, the Labor Department said in its new report on the Consumer Price Index.

Mortgage interest rates fell 1.5 percent. As a result, consumer prices rose at an annual rate of 4.8 percent for the first nine months of the year. If held to that pace for the rest of 1982, the advance would match the 4.8 percent of 1976.

Inflation was 8.9 percent in 1981 and 12.4 percent in 1980.

The new figures are the last government price announcement before the Nov. 2 elections.

But inflation — already tempered markedly from the double-digit levels of previous years — has not been a political millstone for Republican candidates. Rather, the GOP has taken credit for the improved inflation results and pointed to the figures as a sign the administration's economic program is helping.

Indeed, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said in a statement that the new report indicates "this nation is on a steady course of lower inflation."

"The signs of economic recovery continue to appear in building-block fashion. While the economy is still weak, there is steady improvement and we expect stronger performance in the near future."

And President Reagan, campaigning in Raleigh, N.C., for Republican House candidates, told a rally that, "as of today," inflation is "back to where it was in January of 1977, when Gerald Ford left office."

He went on:

"We are clearing away the economic wreckage dumped in our laps.

"Now, of course, you would never believe that if you listen to the drumbeat of doom and gloom from our critics. They say this economy is on its knees. Well, you know something, if the economy is on its knees, that's quite an improvement because two years ago it was flat on its back."

Private economists, though, attribute the slowing in consumer price increases to the serious recession, which has sent unemployment soaring to its highest level since 1940.

In addition, oil and grain supplies have been plentiful.

In today's report, the department said consumer prices rose a seasonally adjusted 0.2 percent in September, after climbing 0.3 percent in August and 0.6 percent in July.

Not since April had prices risen at such a slow 0.2 percent.

If prices rose for 12 straight months at September's rate, the yearly gain would be 2.1 percent after seasonal adjustment.

DENVER — Colorado stores were urged to pull extra-strength Excedrin capsules from their shelves after a man became ill from taking a capsule of the pain reliever laced with toxic mercuric chloride, authorities said.

After the poisoning Monday, state health officials advised residents to stop taking Excedrin and return what they have to the stores.

"I want people at home to put it in plastic bags and not touch it any more than they have to" in case police need to check Excedrin bottles for fingerprints, said Dr. Barry Rumack, director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Control Center.

He said handling capsules containing mercuric chloride, used in mercury batteries, fireworks and dyes, would probably not poison anyone who did not swallow them.

Larry Gomez, Denver district director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said he lacked authority to order stores to quit selling Excedrin, but called for voluntary action and said federal agents were checking store shelves for other tainted capsules.

At least one supermarket complied with requests to remove the Excedrin capsules from sale. All brands of medicine capsules were removed from the shelves of an Albertsons supermarket in Denver late Monday, said an employee who asked not to be identified.

The Excedrin incident was the latest in a rash of product taintings around the nation since seven people died in Chicago near the beginning of October after taking cyanide-laced capsules of Extra-Strength

Market still sliding Dow shaky after worst day since 1929

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — The stock market continued its steep slide early today as traders blamed uncertainty over interest rates for the previous day's decline, the largest single-day drop since the crash of 1929.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which tumbled 36.33 points Monday, shed another 5.52 points to 989.61 in the first half-hour of trading today. Monday's tailspin cost the stock market more than $50 billion in value.

The decline was the Dow Jones average's largest single-day drop since it fell 38.33 points on Oct. 28, 1929. The average had soared more than 250 points this year since Aug. 12.

Although traders blamed uncertainty over interest rates, analyst Howard J. Abner of Abner Herrman & Brock Inc. said the drop was "an overdue correction in stock prices" in a "highly volatile market."

The consumer price figure, which is an inflation rate of 2.1 percent if calculated annually, reflects declines in mortgage rates and gasoline costs, the Labor Department said. The Consumer Price Index increase held inflation to an annual rate of 4.8 percent for the first nine months of the year.

Consumer prices rose 8.9 percent in 1981 and 12.4 percent in 1980.

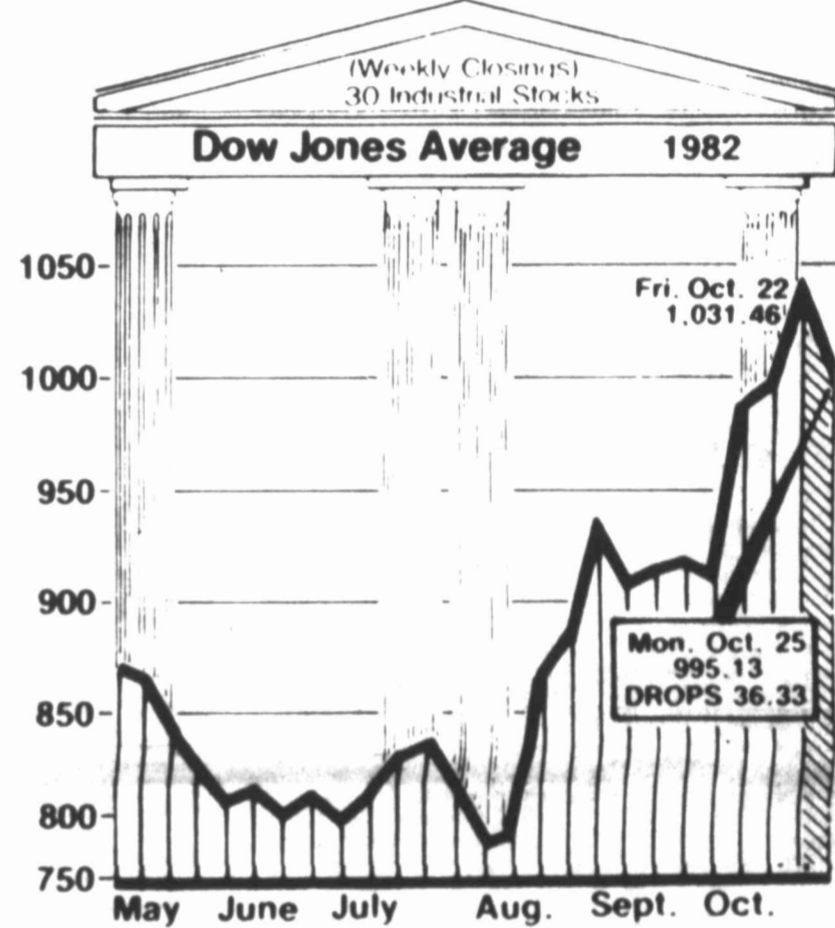

Mortgage interest rates tumbled 1.5 percent last month, while gasoline costs fell 0.1 percent, the Labor Department said. But food prices rose 0.5 percent.

The selling Monday in the stock market was touched off by fears that the Federal Reserve Board had stopped letting interest rates fall, analysts said. After intense speculation that the Fed would cut the discount rate — its loan rate to private financial institutions — the agency left it untouched at 9.5 percent.

That action "was the No. 1 reason in the hit parade affecting stock prices today," said Jack Baker, head of equity trading at the First Boston Corporation.

Monday's selloff erased more than $50 billion from gains recorded by the market in its rally of late summer and early fall.

But Peter Roussel, deputy White House press secretary, said other economic indicators, such as the Consumer Price Index due out today, should be examined before reaching any conclusions about the economy.

"We had one bad blip today, but we set other records last week," he said late Monday. "Let's see what happens tomorrow."

One broker said the market's recent wild fluctuations were testimony to a "manic-depressive" mood among professional money managers.

Once prices began to fall Monday, investors scrambled to cash in their recent gains, putting added downward pressure on the market.

"You've got to put today's selloff in its proper perspective," Abner said.

The ruinous 1929 decline occurred from a much lower starting point, so Monday's drop "amounted to only 3.52 percent, compared with 12.8 percent on Oct. 28, 1929."

Also, Monday's volume of 83.72 million shares on the New York Stock Exchange — well below recent trading days of 100 million-plus — suggested little of the atmosphere of the 1929 panic.

Changes in interest rates, which have fallen in the past few months, have become a powerful force on the market, because lower rates tend to make stocks more competitive with yields on fixed-income securities such as bonds.

Rabies scare hits Big Lake

BIG LAKE (AP) — An affectionate, lovable but rabid cat caused a rabies scare in this tiny West Texas town that was heightened when area hospitals ran out of vaccine.

City officials said the 27 children and adults who befriended the cat traveled 70 miles to San Angelo hospitals for vaccines last weekend, but eight were turned away when doctors ran out of the anti-rabies vaccine.

Available vaccine supplies also were drained in Abilene and more had to be ordered from state health officials in Austin, said City Secretary Tony Wille.

None of the residents have been found to have rabies, an almost-always fatal viral disease.

"There was no serum in Big Spring or San Angelo," said Tina Ajirogi, a sister of a man who was bitten by the cat. "What are we supposed to do, sit around and die?"

"This is a life-or-death matter," Mrs. Ajirogi said. "We're taking a chance if we don't take the shots."

More vaccine arrived Monday at Angelo Community Hospital, and the vaccine also was on re-order at Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital, spokesmen for the hospitals said.

Eight people, including five children, were not treated during the weekend because both hospitals ran out of the vaccine, said Nina Hallmark, the mother of one untreated child who compiled a list of those who did not receive treatment.

Officials feared the worst when the black and white cat, cared for and fed by neighborhood children, was found to have rabies, said Wille, who coordinated local efforts to prevent an outbreak in this town of 3,400 people.

"This cat was an affectionate, lovable stray that was in the neighborhood for some time," he said. "All the children were feeding it and playing with it."

"The people who have been affected have been quite concerned. In some families, the whole family has been involved," Wille said. "It's all kind of traumatic for them."

"I wasn't that worried about it until I talked to my pediatrician in Houston, and he couldn't understand why we hadn't got the shots," said Angela Dodd, whose two children also had not yet received treatment.

The rabies scare began Tuesday when a man was bitten by the cat, which had recently had a fight with a group of dogs, Wille said.

A veterinarian in Big Lake killed the cat and sent its head to Austin where tests determined Friday that the animal had rabies, said Wille.

"The thing is, we just don't know how long it had rabies," he said. "It is quite likely that the exposure level was less than was thought. There are a lot of people being vaccinated on the supposition that a lot of small children were exposed."

The shots must be administered in a painful series of injections over 21 days.

Medical experts believe only three people have survived

United Way totals up from last year

The United Way of Big Spring has reached approximately 25 percent of its goal, according to United Way executive director Sherrie Bordsfske.

Contributions to the United Way have reached $56,920 so far, she said, far ahead of last year's total at this time, $21,964.

"It's looking good," she said this morning, "we're way ahead of last year, and all the biggest ones (contributors) haven't come in yet."

Ms. Bordsfske said the organization hopes to reach its goal of $220,000 by mid-November.

The Out-of-Town division has collected $5,239 to date; the Pacesetters, $17,900; the Special division, $21,514; the Metropolitan division, $3,804; the Professionals, $3,457; the Rural division, $1,215; and the Residential division, $3,790.

Police, troops in gunfight

Belfast tense after three men slain

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Undercover soldiers and police, jumpy after three men were slain in an apparent round of sectarian revenge-taking, mistook each other for terrorists and fought a blazing gunbattle in a Belfast street.

The shootout late Monday started when a civilian reported spotting a man with a gun on York Street in a predominantly Catholic area. Witnesses said a carload of plainclothes officers roared in, ramming a car carrying a team of undercover soldiers and triggering the gun battle.

Passers-by dived for cover in shop doorways. Police said at least 20 shots were fired.

"Luckyly no one was hurt," a police spokesman said.

Earlier, the outlawed Provisional Irish Republican Army said it had "executed" a part-time Protestant militia sergeant kidnapped three days earlier. The killing was announced only hours after Protestant extremists bludgeoned a kidnapped Catholic to death and shot another dead in apparent retaliation for the militiaman's abduction.

The murders sent shudders through the divided communities. Many Protestants and Catholics in ghetto districts, fearing more vendetta killings, kept off the streets late Monday.

Province police chief Sir Jack Hermon branded the slayings "vicious primitiveness in its most depraved form."

He warned that rival extremist organizations were "intent on exploiting the emotional tension in the community by planning further acts of terrorism."

The new round of violence came during a period of heightened tensions among Northern Ireland's 1 million Protestants and 500,000 Roman Catholics following last week's elections for a 78-member provincial assembly.

Hardline Protestants who have vowed never to share power with Catholics won a majority, but the election also gave an unexpected five seats to Sinn Fein, the IRA's political wing.

A group calling itself the Protestant Action Force claimed responsibility for killing one of the Catholics, Peter Corrigan, 47, and warned it would step up attacks on the IRA and its sympathizers.

Police later reported two attempted kidnappings, one against a Protestant man who broke free from his assailants as they tried to push him into a car.

In the Catholic enclaves of Ardoyne and Short Strand, ringed by Protestant territory, young men kept a lookout for Protestant gunmen who have prowled the neighborhoods recently. Police stepped up patrols in the fringes of ghettos where death squads often make hit-and-run raids.

De Lorean's lawyers wrangle over bail terms

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorneys for John Z. De Lorean are wrangling with prosecutors over the value of the auto executive's San Diego County estate, in an attempt to pledge it as bail collateral to free him from prison.

A hearing to reduce De Lorean's $5 million bail on drug trafficking charges was canceled Monday. Instead, defense lawyers Joseph Ball and Alan Croll met with representatives of the U.S. attorney's office to discuss terms to win De Lorean's release from the Terminal Island penitentiary.

In Detroit, meanwhile, the De Lorean Motor Co. filed a petition for reorganization and protection from 15 creditors under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, attorney Lawrence Snider said. The company is incorporated in Michigan.

De Lorean, 57, was arrested at a hotel at Los Angeles International Airport Oct. 19 on charges of conspiring to possess 220 pounds of cocaine with intent to distribute.

The same day, the British government closed the plant in Northern Ireland that produced De Lorean's stainless steel sports car. Britain had invested $138 million in the plant.

An affidavit by FBI Special Agent Jerry West said De Lorean, a former General Motors Corp. vice president, "discussed the importation and distribution of heroin from Thailand and cocaine from South America as a means of generating large amounts of capital" for his company.

West said De Lorean agreed to surrender half his company in return for $60 million from a cocaine deal.

Also arrested in the case were William Morgan Hetrick, 50, owner of a Mojave, Calif., aircraft service company, and his purported associate, Stephen Lee Arrington, of San Diego, 24.

Bail for Hetrick, described by the FBI as a major cocaine distributor, was set at $20 million. Arrington was held in lieu of $250,000 bail.

De Lorean was required to post $250,000 in cash and put up property worth the remaining $4.75 million to be freed. Defense attorneys said his 48-acre estate outside San Diego is worth $5 million, but by Monday government attorneys had not agreed.

"We didn't come to any agreement," Ball said after the conference in the office of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Walsh. "We're both getting more appraisals" and would resume talking this afternoon, he said.

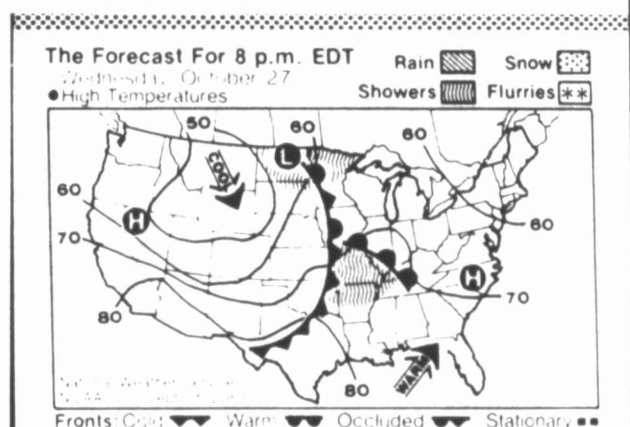

Ball said Monday his client could be free "within one or two days" because "we have the cash available."

De Lorean's long-time civil attorney, Bernard Minsky, indicated the flamboyant auto executive was anxious to leave prison but understood the complications. De Lorean "sounds great," Minsky said.

WITNESS FOR PEACE — Peter Owens, 2, places one of 2,228 crosses in the ground during the 10th annual Witness for Peace ceremony at Belfast City Hall Sunday. Each cross represents one of the 2,228 victims of sectarian violence in Northern Ireland. The boy's aunt, Ann Owens, died in a Belfast explosion in 1972.

Thatcher government threatened

Britain embroiled in another spy scandal

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer
LONDON — Harold "Kim" Philby, Guy Burgess, Donald Mclean — the roll call of treachery in Britain's spy network stretches over three decades of cold war with the Soviet Union.

On Monday, lawmakers demanded that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher answer questions about a possible new addition to the list — a Russian-language interpreter who reportedly spied for the Soviets at Britain's top-secret electronic espionage center.

The United States has long complained of what it called British blunderings that allowed the Soviet Union to penetrate Western intelligence.

Now U.S. officials have leaked to the press what they claim is potentially the most damaging episode of all, one in which Moscow allegedly was fed a rich diet of top-secret information for 13 years.

THE SCANDAL focuses on the secret Government Communications Headquarters at Cheltenham, nerve center of a worldwide network of surveillance bases and satellites said to be run jointly by British intelligence and the U.S. National Security Agency.

On July 7, Geoffrey Arthur Prime, 44, reportedly a former translator of Russian at Cheltenham, was arraigned in a British court on espionage charges described by a prosecutor as "of the gravest possible nature."

Britain's stringent 1911 Official Secrets Act prohibits full disclosure of details.

Mrs. Thatcher was expected in Commons today in a routine appearance to answer legislators' questions about current issues and was expected to be questioned about the Prime case.

Considering the government's stony silence so far, however, it was not likely she would be willing to reveal many details on the latest allegations, which surfaced Sunday in a New York Times report from Washington.

According to U.S. officials quoted by The Times, Prime worked at the center from 1968 to 1981 and had access to highly classified information on intercepted Soviet communications.

With his help, the Soviets could have altered their secret codes and fed the West misinformation for more than a decade, the account said.

LONDON PRESS reports said the United States requested a comprehensive report on the case and was alarmed and annoyed when Britain failed to produce one.

"If American intelligence is accusing Britain of damaging security leaks to the U.S.S.R., we can be pretty sure they know what they are talking about," The Standard, London's evening newspaper, said in an editorial Monday.

"This is one area in which the United States is professional and the British are a bunch of bumbling amateurs," it said.

Britain's spy agencies — the intelligence-gathering MI6, also known as the Secret Intelligence Service, and the counter-espionage MI5, or Security Service — have embarrassed a succession of British governments.

Most of the damage has been traced to a small group of intellectuals at Cambridge University who were converted to communism in the 1930s.

Among them was Anthony Blunt, a world-renowned art historian who acted as a talent scout for the Soviet KGB while serving as a wartime intelligence officer for Britain.

While a professor at Cambridge during the 1930s, Blunt belonged to a shadowy society known as the Apostles. Student members who came under Blunt's influence included Guy Burgess, Donald Maclean and Leo Long. Each was to become a Soviet operative.

By the time the government publicly identified Blunt in 1980 as a former Soviet spy, he was art historian to Queen Elizabeth II.

Clements backer says White used espionage

By JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A backer of Gov. Bill Clements threw another log on an already hot issue Monday, hinting that Clements' Democratic challenger engaged in political espionage to obtain a four-year-old letter on utility regulation.

"In the Panhandle we don't steal other peoples' personal mail, but I guess things are different in other parts of the state," said former Amarillo Mayor Jerry Hodge. Hodge was referring to a letter he received from Clements four years ago. In the letter, Clements, then a candidate for governor, promised to seek elimination of the fuel adjustment fee imposed by Texas utility companies. That monthly fee enables utilities to pass on the cost of fuel to its customers.

Clements now favors leaving the provision intact. His Democratic opponent, Mark White, released a copy of the letter last week to bolster his claims that Clements is "flopping" on the issue.

Abolishing the pass-through provision is one of White's chief campaign issues.

Hodge said only three people had access to the letter, adding none of them would have given it to voluntarily to the White campaign.

"Let me put it this way," said Clements' spokesman Tony Garrett. "Jerry had the original copy of the letter, but now he can't find it. You take it from there."

White spokesman David Lindsey, meanwhile, refused to name the source of the letter.

"We didn't steal the letter," Lindsey said. "We got it from a source and it was completely above board. It wasn't stolen and it is absurd for someone to suggest it."

Lindsey said the letter is proof that "Clements is obviously trying to back track on it when he has had four years to do something about it, but hasn't. All he's done in those four years is appoint people to the Public Utility Commission who are out to protect the utility industry."

Garrett doesn't deny Clements has altered his stance on the issue.

"It was popular back in 1978, but after studying it he discovered it couldn't be done. They (utilities) still have to recover their costs. What White is saying now is what we were saying four years ago, before we knew better."

Bond is denied for two charged in cocaine flight

LAFAYETTE, Ga. (AP) — Two men were being held without bond today and five others on bonds of $5 million following the seizure of $300 million worth of cocaine at a northwest Georgia airport, authorities said.

The seven were arrested early Monday by federal and state agents who said they confiscated a plane load of South American cocaine.

FBI agents said the twin-engine Piper-Navajo-Panther arrived from Colombia about 12:45 a.m. with 647 pounds of "very high grade" cocaine. Gunfire was exchanged as the officers closed in, but no one was injured, said FBI agent Al Millard.

The seven men — including the pilot, co-pilot and five men waiting on the ground — were charged with violating federal narcotics laws, Millard said. U.S. Magistrate Clinton Morgan denied bond for John Oscar Luck, 52, of Clarkston, Ga.; and Franklin Crump, 44, of Alpharetta, Ga.

Morgan set bonds of $5 million for Ralph Larry Pace, 24, of Cumming, Ga.; William Page Vicary, 48, of St. Claire Shores, Mich.; Gene Claude Easterling, 50, of Cayce, S.C.; Charles Donald Boldin, 43, of Clarkston, Mich., and Johnny Ray Moore, 50, of Houston, Texas.

Prosecutors said Luck already was out on bond in connection with the bombing of an Atlanta strip club in August. They said Crump was out on bond on a motor vehicle theft charge.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Wisebran had asked Morgan to deny bond to all seven, arguing that each of the men had the financial resources to leave the country.

After setting bond, Morgan scheduled a preliminary hearing on Nov. 2 for the seven, who were being held in the Floyd County jail today.

Millard said agents "do not know what connection" the latest seizure may have with either of those cases.

Oil profits showing recovery

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite mixed profit reports, oil company earnings are showing improvement because of a relatively stable prices and demand, analysts say.

"We have the beginnings of an improving trend that should, I think, continue in the next two quarters," said Alvin Silber, who follows Exxon and other international oil companies for the investment firm Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, said Monday its profit for the three months ended Sept. 30 was down 0.5 percent from the third quarter last year. Exxon earned $1.07 billion, its lowest total for any third quarter since 1978.

Even so, the mixed summer-quarter results of Exxon and other oil companies marked an improvement over spring, when oil prices plummeted and demand was weak worldwide. The new increases softened the industry's substantial declines for the first nine months of 1982.

Among companies that operate mainly in the United States, Atlantic Richfield Co. reported a 3 percent increase in profits and Union Oil Co. of California said it had a 10 percent rise. Atlantic Richfield is the seventh-largest U.S. oil company and Union Oil-California is No. 16.

Phillips Petroleum Co., No. 9 in the United States and with substantial overseas operations, was down 31.6 percent.

Of the other major companies reporting results Monday, Getty Oil Co. said its earnings fell 13 percent. Amerasia Hess Corp. reported an 84 percent increase and Ashland Oil Inc., mainly a refiner, was up 54 percent in its fiscal fourth quarter.

Exxon said it earned $1.07 billion, or $1.23 a share, compared with $1.075 billion, or $1.25 a share in last year's third quarter. Revenue fell to $25.3 billion from $27.6 billion.

Of Exxon's major petroleum operations, its overseas refining and marketing business suffered the biggest reversal, falling to a profit of $13 million from $264 million a year earlier. Its U.S. refining and marketing profits nearly tripled.

For the first nine months of the year, Exxon said profit tumbled 29 percent to $3.2 billion, or $3.68 a share, from $4.5 billion, or $5.21 a share, in the comparable 1981 period.

Atlantic Richfield reported net income of $446.9 million, or $1.76 a share, compared with $433.5 million, or $1.73 a share, in the third quarter last year. Revenue slumped 4.3 percent to $6.7 billion from $7 billion.

For the first nine months of the year, Atlantic Richfield earned $1.24 billion, or $4.91 a share, up 3 percent from the $1.20 billion, or $4.30 a share, reported for the first three quarters of last year.

Phillips said its net income for the first nine months of this year fell 33.5 percent.

SCARY ADVENTURES — March of Dimes Poster Child Becky Walker, pictured left-center, is dressed in her Halloween costume and explores the Haunted House located in the Big Spring Mall with some of her friends, Rick Miller of Greater Big Spring Rotary Club and Jett Moore, Haunted House Project chairman. After being approached by a horrible beast, Becky Jo and Barbara Herald photo by James Iley. Holdampf, pictured right, make sure the creature won't bother them again. Ms. Holdampf is the chairman of the executive committee of Caprock Chapter, March of Dimes. The Haunted House, co-sponsored by the March of Dimes and Greater Big Spring Rotary Club, will be held tonight through Saturday in the mall.

Marriage gets off on right track

SKAGWAY, Alaska (AP) — When Al Huntley and Terry Roberts decided to get married aboard the historic old White Horse and Yukon Railway, they never expected a Tunnel of Love would add suspense to the ceremony.

The Rev. Kenneth H. Newell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Skagway, thought he had the marriage vows timed perfectly to complete the ceremony before the train passed from Alaska into Canada's Yukon Territory, where his legal authority to perform marriages is void.

Just four miles from the Canadian border, the vows were halted when the steam engine and the vintage 1890s parlor car carrying the wedding party plunged into the total darkness of a tunnel. Newell had just started to say, "By the powers vested in me by the state of Alaska," when the train slipped into another tunnel.

A long minute and a-half later, Newell quickly finished his sentence. "I now pronounce you man and wife." The marriage was legal, but only by a mile or so. In fact, by the time the first champagne cork was popped, the wedding train had passed into Canada.

Newell chalks the close call up to experience. "Next time I'll just start the ceremony a little sooner, and pronounce the couple man and wife as we enter the tunnel," he said. "That will give them a full minute of absolute darkness and privacy for their first wedded kiss."

New scholarship fund established

COLLEGE STATION — A leadership project undertaken by the 22,680-member Texas Extension Homemakers Association has resulted in establishment of a new scholarship for youth of Texas.

The scholarship, which brings to seven the number provided annually by the association, has been named in honor of Mrs. Florence W. Low of Bryan, retired former assistant director for home economics with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The leadership project is part of our 10-year plan to improve the public and create more awareness of our organization. This project involved collection of favorite recipes of Texas Extension homemakers for publication in a cookbook. Requests for the book, "Texas Taste Treasures," have been so great that the book is in its second printing," reports Mrs. Billie McCraw of Raymondville, association president for 1981-82.

"Funds from the book sales will assure that each of our scholarships can be increased to $600 in 1983, and increase of $50 each over the current level. In addition, each scholarship will continue to increase at the rate of $50 annually until reaching the $1,000 level," McCraw says.

Recipes in the book came from every county in Texas, she said. At the county level, each recipe is checked carefully for nutritional information, and this information is included with the recipes. The book is organized by major food groupings, and the nutritional information should be especially helpful to family menu planners, McCraw said.

The first recipient of the Florence W. Low Scholarship will be named in May, 1983, and will be announced during the State 4-H Roundup in June. Along with the announcement, the winners of the Maggie Barry, Helen Swift, Bonnie Cox, Edna Trigg, Lola Wheeler and the President's Scholarships, currently funded by the association, will be announced.

Nominations for the youth scholarships come from all Extension districts of the state. Winners are selected by the board of directors of the Extension Homemakers Association.

Mrs. Low served as assistant director for Extension-home economics for 14 years until her retirement in 1975. Her career as a home economist spanned 41 years. She served as an extension agent in Henderson, Lamar and Fayette counties, as a home management specialist and acting specialist in landscape gardening, as a home economics leader for the Cooperative Extension Service in Maryland for four years, and taught high school home economics in Athens.

She headed the American Home Economics Association for two years and won numerous awards at the national and state levels. "Progressive Farmer" magazine named her "Woman of the Year" for her leadership activities. Mrs. Low remains active in community and civic affairs in the Bryan-College Station area.

Recipe books may be obtained from Naomi Hunt, Howard County extension agent.

Today's maternity clothes are no longer second-class fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — "Flaunt the fact you are pregnant, but do it with savvy, with taste, with a polished, complete look from head to toe," advises Barbara Schlaks, an authority in the maternity fashion industry.

As pregnant women's lifestyles have changed, so have their fashions, notes Ms. Schlaks, a fashion consultant to maternity boutiques.

"Maternity fashions have grown up. They're no longer frilly or adorable," she says. "Now they have clean lines, sophisticated looks. The pregnant woman today is older, more mature, more confident. She can't afford not to look fashionable — she's often holding down a career."

With more women having their first baby at 30 or later, designers are creating maternity collections to suit women who need and want more and better clothes, and who can afford them, she explains.

"The smock just doesn't make it, either for the woman staying home or deciding to combine career with motherhood," Ms. Schlaks says. "When she looks good she feels good."

It's important that women should know how to accessorize — when in doubt, keep it simple — to achieve the proper balance, with the right makeup and hairstyle, adds Ms. Schlaks.

"It's nice to know the pregnant woman has options," says Ms. Schlaks, "everything from sweat-wear and dancewear...to evening wear, including the little black dinner dress, and current trend-setters."

Especially for working women, she suggests investing in a menswear-inspired three-piece outfit, which has practical value as well as a clean-line look: an elongated, hip-length jacket, a classic skirt — "2 inches below the knee, the most flattering and safest length" — and a ruffled blouse, soft and feminine to take away from the masculine look. A dress, trousers and jumper complete the versatile wardrobe.

"These pieces can be turned into a number of outfits," Ms. Schlaks points out. "The biggest investment is the jacket, which works with the dress, pants, skirt and jumper. A different blouse or shirt with the suit make a tailored look; the skirt and blouse combination can work on its own.

"Wear clothes that speak for the lifestyle you lead," she says. "Whether sportswear or a suit, have it all put together properly, not piece-y, but complete."

"I can't see busting out of your (regular) clothes and being uncomfortable, with maternity clothes that are easy, versatile and look sophisticated," she says. "And they're not boring."

Haunted House opens

The March of Dimes Caprock Chapter and the Greater Big Spring Rotary are combining to produce a frightfully outstanding "haunted house" at the Big Spring Mall Oct. 26-28.

The house will be open from 6-10 p.m. Thursday and from 6 p.m. to midnight Friday and from noon until midnight Saturday. Admission is a $2 donation.

Danger may lurk in medicine chest if old medications not removed

On the surface of things, it might appear that the reason a medicine chest is thus called is that it's a good place to store medicines. Not so, according to the Food and Drug Administration.

Potential danger lurks when there's medicine in the medicine chest. One reason bathroom medicine chests are usually right over the sink, and accessible enough to tempt the curiosity of children who live in or visit your house.

To help you know not only how to child-proof your medicine chest, but to keep it safe and up-to-date for adults too, the FDA has a free reprint from its magazine, the FDA Consumer. For your copy of "What's in Your Medicine Chest," write to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 645K Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Even if there aren't any children in your household, the medicine chest is not a good place for drugs, since the warm moist atmosphere of the bathroom can cause some drugs to deteriorate. Ideally, both prescription and non-prescription drugs should be kept in a cool, dry place.

What else should be kept in that cool, dry place will depend on the makeup of the family. If there are young children in the family, you're likely to need baby aspirin, anti-bacterial topical ointments, and medicine to treat symptoms of diarrhea. Almost every family will want to keep aspirin or a non-aspirin pain reliever on hand.

No matter what the age of your family, avoid overstocking drugs. Some drug products lose potency on the shelf over time, especially after they are opened. Other drugs change in consistency. Ideally, supplies in the medicine chest should be bought to last over a period of no more than six to 12 months.

Be sure to review the contents of your medicine chest every six months and discard old supplies. Also be sure that any new prescriptions you get are clearly dated.

Tablets that have become crumbly, medicines that have changed color, odor, or consistency, or are outdated should be destroyed. Empty the bottle of medicine into the toilet, flush it down and rinse out the bottle. Don't put leftover drugs into the trash basket where they can be dug out by inquisitive youngsters. Newly purchased drugs that don't look right should be returned to the pharmacy. Drug products that have lost their labels also should be destroyed.

And, as a final safety precaution, always keep the telephone number of the local poison control center, doctor, hospital, rescue squad, fire and police departments near every phone in the house. Tape emergency phone lists wherever you keep medicine and emergency supplies, as well as inside the bathroom medicine chest door.

Dr. Donohue

Punctured lung

Dear Dr. Donohue: How long does it take a punctured lung to heal? Why do I still have discomfort after eight months? — Mrs. B.

By punctured lung, I am guessing that you mean pneumothorax, which I shall proceed to discuss.

Pneumothorax means that air from the lung has leaked into the double-ply covering that surrounds the lungs. That's the pleura. It's rather like the interior space between the plies of the grocery bags you get. The space between the plies is amply lubricated to permit easy gliding of the structures when the chest moves, as in breathing.

Now when small blisters (bullae) form on the lung surface, the stage is set for possible pneumothorax. If a blister breaks, lung air can escape into the pleural space. Such blisters can form rather easily and are found in otherwise healthy young adults, for example. When lung air seeps into pleural space, it cannot get out, and as the space enlarges it presses on the good lung and collapses it. When a great deal of air escapes, it must be evacuated from the space, so a tube is inserted to draw it out.

If the amount of air in the space is small, it can be left alone to be eventually absorbed. Because the entire process has irritated the pleural lining to some extent, you can expect pain for a few weeks to a few months. If the irritation continues much longer (as it has in your case) re-evaluation is required. There are ways to seal the space so it doesn't cause discomfort.

Adolescents need privacy

Most adults treasure the right to enjoy a degree of privacy — adolescents need the same privilege, says Diane Welch, family life specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Highlights of year theme of banquet

"Pathways to Future" was the theme of the Howard County 4-H Clubs 1982 Achievement Awards Banquet held Oct. 9 in Howard College Cactus Room.

During the annual banquet, outstanding 4-H members and leaders are honored for their accomplishments of the year. Adult advisors honor two adult leaders as the county's Outstanding Adult Leaders. Two 4-H members were awarded the highest award a 4-H member can receive at the county level — the Gold Star. Outstanding 4-H Members and Friends of 4-H awards also were presented.

Gold star recipients for 1982 were Jamie Phillips and John Guitart. Phillips worked with many projects and excelled primarily in sheep. He's held club and county council offices and was an outstanding junior leader. Guitart was instrumental in establishing the shooting sports program, and won many honors in this area. He also held club offices and was an enthusiastic junior leader.

Recipients of the Outstanding Adult Leader Awards were Patricia Hall and Paul Allen. Mrs. Hall has been a leader for 10 years in the Knott 4-H Club. She devoted her time to method demonstrations, beef projects and support of 4-H activities through junior rodeo and omelet events. Allen, a Howard County Commissioner, is active in livestock association and works with 4-H shooting sports project club. He is a leader in Coahoma 4-H Club.

Paula Allen and Cole Hunter were recognized as Outstanding 4-H members at the banquet. Their nominations were submitted for competition at the district level to select two outstanding 4-H members in extension district six.

The Friend of 4-H Award was presented to Dr. Hank Thompson and Gail Earls for their help, time and support of the Howard County 4-H program. Thompson is an area veterinarian. Mrs. Earls is secretary for the Howard County Extension Service.

Approximately 93 4-H Achievement Awards were presented in the areas of shooting sports, citizenship, clothing, beef, lambs, poultry, swine, horse, livestock judging, automotive, public speaking, safety, foods and nutrition, home and family life and leadership.

Dear Abby

'Dear Abby' seeks advice

DEAR ABBY: I've always been the "Dear Abby" in my group, and now I'm writing to you for your advice. I've been living with "G" for nearly two years. He's 29 and has been divorced for three years. I'm 24.

The problem is "G" refuses to make any kind of commitment to me, but I'm totally committed to him! We never spend any holidays together. He always goes to his ex-wife's to be with her and their 5-year-old son.

He says he cares for me and doesn't want us to break up, but he just can't commit himself to anything yet.

He calls his ex-wife to talk to his son and ends up talking to her for an hour. I have the feeling that "G" is trapped in an emotional bind with his ex mainly because of their son. I make nearly as much as "G", but he is paying off a lot of old debts, plus child support, so I carry the bigger share of the load financially — rent, utilities, groceries, insurance, etc.

What is your advice? I love the guy, but I don't want to waste the best years of my life in a relationship without a future.

DEAR "M": I don't have a crystal ball, but from your letter I see no "G" in your future. He's not "trapped" in an emotional bind — you are. Your love for him is preventing you from doing what you ought to do for your own sake. Say goodbye to "G", and run like "h"?

DEAR ABBY: I have been married and divorced three times, and am engaged to be married to a man who has been divorced. We both have grown children.

We had planned to be married quietly out of state, but a friend of ours wants us to have a big wedding and reception for all our family and friends. Would this be appropriate under the circumstances? Please help us make the right decision. We want to do the right thing.

FORTYISH BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: For a couple who have been to the hitching post a total of four times, I think a quiet, out-of-state marriage would be more appropriate.

DEAR ABBY: Last week I received the following commercially printed announcement in the mail (made-up names):

"James Smith and Nellie Brown are celebrating nine years together with the marriage ritual on Oct. 25, 1982. For this new stage in our lives we have chosen the names of 'John and Nellie Born.' We ask your love.

Abby, can you please tell me what this means? Is it an invitation to a wedding? Is it a legal name change? Or what?

I can't keep up with the younger generation. I don't know whether to send a card, gift, or just accept it as an announcement of some sort.

NELLIE'S CONFUSED AUNT

DEAR CONFUSED AUNT: Accept it as an announcement. If it were intended as an invitation, the time and place of the "marriage ritual" would have been included.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Now, from this distance I cannot tell whether your current discomfort is indeed, a result of your former lung problem. It's time for you to go back to your doctor for re-examination.

I have mentioned only one cause of pneumothorax. There are many others. For example, a broken rib can puncture a lung and let air into the pleural space.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"WILL YOU TELL HOTDOG TO GET OFF MY LAP!?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"You said our friend Mr. Tippit is part Indian. Do we know anybody who's part cowboy?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 27, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day and evening if you stick to conservative principles and do nothing to upset present conditions. Be sure to keep promises made to others and advance your good name.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study the work that is ahead of you and be certain to make right decisions. Follow the advice of an expert.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't postpone any work that has to be done even though it may be annoying. Keep plugging away to gain your personal goal.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you do what a higher-up expects and gain benefits. Attending a meeting could prove helpful to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to study new interests that have brought others greater success and could do the same for you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have many new ideas which require study to know which are best to put in operation. Try to build up your bank account.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Come to a better accord with associates and increase harmony. Obtain data you need from the right sources.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You could be at odds with others now and you must do something constructive to establish a better relationship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attend to bothersome work early in the day and you'll have time for more important matters later. Be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Put your ideas to work and increase harmony at home. Family will begin to appreciate you more.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you want to visit with friends today, pick only those who can be trusted. Then you can have a most enjoyable time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Confer with financial experts and make plans to be more prosperous in the future. Show increased affection for loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make long-range plans to have greater abundance in the future. Health treatments can give you more vitality.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be interested in whatever has been found workable in the past, so give a good standard education and much success can be attained. Give good religious training early in life. A fine person in this chart.
