Shaw wins big victory

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The 69th District of the Texas House of Representatives will be represented by Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, who won a decisive victory over his GOP opponent Jerry Cockerham in yesterday's general elections.

With 102 of 111 precincts reporting this morning, Shaw had amassed 15,236 votes or 66 percent of the ballots to Cockerham's 7,565 or 33 percent of the votes.

Shaw carried his home county of Howard by a wide margin, garnering 77 percent of the votes cast, and Shaw upset Cockerham in his home county of Ward 1,584 to 1,551 votes.

Shaw won Howard County precincts by a margins as large as 90 percent as Cockerham failed to dent Shaw's hometown support.

The scene last night at the Shaw camp was one of jubilation as family and friends enjoyed the sweet taste of victory.

A stunned, but happy Shaw celebrated with supporters as well-wishers bestowed the 29-year-old farmer with hugs and smiles and congratulations throughout the evening at the Brass Nail Restaurant.

Shaw had expected a tight race, but as results rolled in from each county it became apparent his victory bordered on landslide. Shaw also followed all of his Democratic friends into victory as the Democratic Party swept the statewide elections.

"I'm surprised," Shaw said as he tried to catch his breath between phone calls. "After redistricting I had two counties in the district that I was familiar with and 11 new ones. I figured my only chance to win was to lead in Howard County and word hard in all the others.

"We worked really hard because my name ID (identification) was as low as 20 percent in some places. I'm surprised and pleased by the turnout, and a lot of credit goes to my staff, volunteers and supporter who had faith in me," he said.

Shaw also had good words for Jerry Cockerham saying, "I wish Jerry the very best and I compliment his campaign. In the seven or eight years I've been involved with campaigns, I've never seen anyone work harder than Jerry.

"We fought a real hard race" and now it's time to bury the hatchet and work on the problems of West Texas."

Shaw said Cockerham, who was subdued by the defeat, said, "I respect the American voting system, the people have spoken and we humbly submit to their decision. Now we hope to work for the good of West Texas."

Shaw said he plans to "take a few days off" and then tie up a few loose election ends before preparing for another session of the Texas Legislature in January.

Shaw won the right to represent a massive district that stretches west to El Paso County. Included in his district are Howard, Hudspeth, Culberson, Jeff Davis, Reeves, Ward, Loving, Winkler, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Glasscock, Howard and Borden.

White wins Bentsen defeats Collins

Texas Democrats shattered Republican dreams Tuesday for another four years in the governor's mansion and set back for years the GOP's hope for true two-party politics here.

Without exception, Democratic candidates defeated well financed Republican nominees including Gov. Bill Clements, the first GOP Texas governor since Reconstruction.

Clements, 65, who liked to brag that he was a businessman, not a politician, fell before Democratic Attorney General Mark White, 42, who Clements called a career politician.

Also winning big was U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, 61, D-Texas, who got a third six-year term despite a $3 million challenge thrown at him by Republican Jim Collins, 66, a Dallas congressman.

"The people turned out in extremely high numbers," said a jubilant White.

Reports from the News Election Service indicated a turnout of almost 3 million, compared to the 2.3 million voters when Clements was elected in 1978.

"The Republican Party in Texas is now relegated to where it was 10 to 15 years ago," said former Gov. Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde, who started White in state politics.

"The utility issue, I think, was the turning point," said White. He bore down heavy in closing campaign appearances on soaring light bills and blamed Clements for letting the Public Utility Commission favor the big power companies.

In an emotional news conference after midnight, Clements told supporters, "It looks as if we will indeed have a new governor of Texas. Rita and I wish Mark White success for all Texans. There is nothing else to say. That's the way it is."

Bentsen said: "I have said all along that there is no Republican economy or Democratic economy. If we are to end the recession and get our country back on track it will require the highest degree of cooperation among business, labor and government."

With 98 percent of the state's precincts reporting, White had a 54 percent edge over Clements with 46 percent. Bentsen piled up 59 percent of the vote to 41 percent for Collins.

Clements carried Dallas County, but White got a good vote there. White

Democrats picked in Howard County

Howard County voters contributed to the Democratic landslide statewide by selecting Democrats in all but a handful of precincts. More than 56 percent of the county's 15,367 voters turned out for the election that saw no Republican candidates win in the county.

With 98 percent of the state vote tallied, Democrat Mark White leads with 54 percent of the vote. Howard County went for White with 56 percent of the vote. Governor Bill Clements only carried four of the county's 21 boxes, two of those by less than one percent.

The United State Senator's race is going to Senator Lloyd Bentsen (D) with 59 percent of the vote. Howard County tallied 62 percent for Bentsen and only 36 percent for challenger Jim Collins (R).

In local Texas legislature races, Representative Larry Don Shaw (D) swept all Howard County precincts by garnering 77 percent of the vote over Republican Jerry Cockerham. In the 69th District, Shaw captured 66 percent of the votes.

John Montford (D) easily defeated Jim Reese (R) in the 28th District Texas Senatorial race by garnering 62 percent of the vote in Howard County and in the district. Montford won all precincts in the county.

Big Springer Carol Hunter failed in her attempt to be elected to the State Board of Education for District 17. Mrs. Hunter won just four precincts in Howard County as she lost the county and the race to Jewell Harris of Abilene.

Harris wins handily in state board of education race

Jewell Harris of Abilene soundly defeated Carol Hunter of Big Spring in their race for the District 17 seat on the State Board of Education.

With 409 of 452 precincts in the district reporting, Mrs. Harris, a Democrat, had 72,212 votes to Ms. Hunter's 37,421.

"I'm just delighted to have won," Mrs. Harris said last night. "I'd like to thank all the people who worked for me and supported me. I promise to serve with efficiency and dignity, and I'm looking forward to working for the boys and girls ... for the people."

Ms. Hunter failed to carry Howard County, her home area. Mrs. Harris gathered 4,645 votes to the former Big Spring Independent School Board of Trustees president's 3,614. Percentage-wise, Mrs. Harris, a retired school teacher and Texas State Teacher Association official gathered a 65-percent share of the vote.

Efforts by the Herald to contact Ms. Hunter last night and this morning were unsuccessful.

Montford has easy victory

Lubbock County Prosecutor John T. Montford rode a Democratic tide to a resounding victory over former Odessa mayor Jim Reese in an embittered race for State Senator District 28 in last night's elections.

With 225 precincts of 229 reporting, Montford was leading Republican Reese with more than 62 percent of the votes.

"We feel pretty good," Montford said late Tuesday night. "We were pleased with the results from Howard County."

Results from Howard County polling places showed Montford winning with 5,204 votes, or 62.10 percent, to Reese's 3,099, or 36.98 percent.

"I've got a lot of good strong supporters here (in Howard County) who worked real hard for me," Montford said. "I counted up the other day, and we made over 35 trips to Howard County (during the campaign). I guess hard work really pays off. I promise we won't forget those people's help."

The hard-fought race took a bitter turn Friday, when the 52-year-old Reese filed a libel suit against Montford and a group of the Democrat's supporters. He alleged that charges

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Libertarians

Q. What is the Libertarian Party platform?

A. One Libertarian candidate said the philosophy was "everyone ought to be free to do whatever he wants to do as long as it does not interfere with the rights of others." Examples include opposition to federal regulations, no drug laws, no compulsory school attendance. Cutting government's role in people's lives as well as cutting government spending are basic beliefs.

City accepts assistant manager's resignation

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring assistant city manager, Paul Feazelle, resigned yesterday after eight years employment by the City of Big Spring to become city manager of Lamesa. Feazelle's last day in the office will be Nov. 19, according to his letter of resignation.

Davis said "We don't yet know how we're going to handle" filling Feazelle's position and that he was in no hurry because "people on the (city) staff can assume some of his responsibilities. We've got some time to work on that before he leaves. We'll take time to find a qualified person to take his place."

Feazelle said "I hate the thought of leaving Big Spring, but this career opportunity is one I cannot pass up." Feazelle said he feels qualified to be a city manager because he has "been in my current position four years" and his father was in city management 40 years. "It's been a part of my life all my life." Feazelle was originally employed as administrative assistant.

Davis said "I'm very happy and

Lester Roloff killed in plane crash

By KEN LANTERMAN
Harte-Hanks News Service

NORMANGEE — Corpus Christi evangelist Lester Roloff and four women were killed Tuesday morning when the single engine craft Roloff was piloting crashed in a field three miles north of here.

The 68-year-old Roloff, a fire-and-brimstone preacher and owner of three homes for troubled youth, has been in an eight-year licensing battle with the State of Texas over the homes.

He and the women were killed upon impact when their 210 Cessna Centurion went down at about 10:30 a.m., according to officials at the scene of the crash, which is about 30 miles north of Bryan.

A Federal Aviation Administration official from Houston, who arrived at the scene late Tuesday afternoon to inspect the wreckage, said he could not comment on the cause of the crash.

A cold front was passing across the state near the time of the crash, but officials would not say immediately that the weather may have affected flying conditions.

The four women reported dead were Susan Lynn Smith, 28, Elaine Wingert, 30, Cheryl Palmer, in her early 20s, and Enola Slade, also in her early 20s, according to Department of Public Safety Communications Officer Sam Saxon.

Roloff and the four women left Corpus Christi at 8:30 a.m. to fly to a speaking engagement at Calvary Baptist Church in Roosterville, Mo., Tuesday night, said a spokesman with Roloff Evangelical Enterprises.

Gov. Bill Clements said he was shocked upon learning of Roloff's death. Roloff had claimed to have helped win the governorship in Clements' first election bid in 1978.

"Brother Roloff was a singularly dedicated and committed individual whose ministry and devotion gave productive new lives to thousands of wayward, neglected and underprivileged youngsters who had been literally written off by society," Clements said.

"I am proud and honored to have known him and to have had his friendship and support during the last four years. He contributed much to his church and his state. I will miss him as my friend. He was a great Texan doing God's work."

Texas Attorney General Mark White, who obtained an injunction in 1979 from a state district judge to close Roloff's homes if Roloff did not obtain a state license, expressed sorrow at the news of the accident.

"It is a great tragedy," White said. "We all pray for his family and friends."

DPS troopers Ron Wood and Rick Pringle were the first officers at the scene.

"Our office in Bryan received a report from FAA officials that there was a possible plane crash in our area," said Wood. "Just outside of Normangee we received word that the plane had been spotted."

Roloff's aircraft came to rest in a clearing of a heavily wooded area about one mile off a muddy, rain-drenched red-dirt road three miles north of Normangee.

The plane lay on its back, stripped of its wings, with its tail ripped off. Wood said the wings and the tail were found about one mile farther back into the woods.

"All of the bodies were in the plane when we arrived at about 11:15 p.m.," Wood said.

Bibles, leaflets with Roloff Evangelical Enterprises printed on them, cassette tapes, coats, jackets, luggage and other personal belongings were scattered about the plane's fuselage.

The fuselage itself was caved in along its left side and, like a stick pressed flat into the field's deep red mud, one of the plane's wheels was smashed into its belly.

The aircraft's engine was ripped from its mountings and the prop was half-buried in a small crater.

"It appears that the plane bounced into that position," Pringle said, referring to the distance between the prop and fuselage.

George Burlage of the FAA in Fort Worth said Roloff's plane disappeared from radar at 10:18 a.m.

About that time, R.L. Lamb, who lives near the crash site, said he was outside in his garden.

"I was outside picking beans when I heard what sounded like a big clap of thunder or a big gun going off," Lamb said, adding that he didn't see the craft go down.

Oliver Adams, who lives a mile away, said he heard "a low flying plane and then it popped two times." But Adams said he didn't hear the crash.

Jim Seelye was test driving his new motorcycle in a pasture nearby. "But I didn't see or hear anything," Seelye said.

AN EVANGELIST — Lester Roloff is shown in this 1979 photo preaching at his church outside Corpus Christi. Roloff was killed Tuesday when the Cessna 210 he was flying crashed near Normangee, Texas. Gov. and Mrs. Bill

Clements are shown listening to him preach. The 68-year-old Roloff was involved in an 8-year battle with the state and Governor-elect Mark White (then state attorney general) over licensing of his homes for wayward youths.

Police Beat

Glass found in candy bar

A Big Spring woman found crushed glass in a package of bite-size Butterfingers purchased in a local store, police Lt. Alvis Jeffcoat said. The woman took the contaminated package to Malone-Hogan hospital yesterday to be examined after she found one of the candy bars contained glass, Jeffcoat said.

Jeffcoat urges parents to check all Halloween candy for contamination and, if any is found, notify police for further investigation.

Police reports also showed the following:

• Vada Long, 31, of Graham was arrested yesterday on an unauthorized use of a motor vehicle warrant. Peace Justice Lewis Heflin set bond at $15,000.

• Felix Martinez Hipolito, 58, of 712 N. Iowa, Lamesa, was arrested last night on suspicion of transporting alcoholic beverages without a permit. State Alcoholic Beverage Commission Agent Sam Smelser arrested the suspect about half a mile north of town on U.S. Highway 80. Hipolito was released after posting $1,000 bond set by Heflin.

• James Darwin Sims, 56, of Sterling City Route Box 46 was arrested last night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released after paying a $1,000 bond set by Peace Justice Bobby West.

• Elizabeth Morin, 22, of 507 N.E. Ninth was arrested yesterday on suspicion of theft under $5. She was released after paying an $85 fine.

Gibson Discount Center, 2309 Scurry, store security detained the suspect for police custody after they recovered $16.91 worth of cosmetic items.

• Ruben Juarez, 21, of Northerest Apartment 41, 1002 N. Main, was arrested last night on a disorderly conduct warrant and a traffic warrant. He was released after paying a $60 bond. The traffic charge was dropped.

• A 71-year-old man — R.C. Nichols of 1111 Coachman — was admitted to Hall-Bennet Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon after the car he was driving collided with a vehicle driven by Betty G. Muniz of 610 N.W. Eighth. Nichols was released in "fair" condition this morning, a hospital spokesman said.

Police reports indicate that a passenger in Nichols' car — 25-year-old Brian Stebner of 2213 Lynn — also was injured. None of the local hospitals had records of treating Stebner.

The accident occurred at N. Aylford and N.W. Fifth about 2:45 p.m. yesterday. Muniz was cited for no driver's license, failure to yield right-of-way and no insurance.

• Vehicles driven by Loretta I. Ringhofer of 702 W. 17th and Anita M. Zarrhea of 307 E. 23rd collided at Nolan and 19th at 3:40 p.m. yesterday. Police cited Zarrhea for no driver's license, no insurance and failure to yield right-of-way. No injuries were reported.

• Vehicles driven by Maria K. Womack of 1404 Scurry and Steven R. Brackeen of 300 Tulance collided at Circle and Vines at 10:15 p.m. yesterday. Womack was cited for failure to yield right-of-way. No injuries were reported.

• Vehicles driven by Vera J. Nidiffer and Robert D. Myer of 3308 W. Ninth collided on the 300 block of Scurry about 11:40 a.m. yesterday. Nidiffer was cited for improper backing. No injuries were reported.

84 mph winds hit

Texas coastal areas

PORT ISABEL (AP) — Ferocious winds gusting at 84 mph and pelting rains roared through this small coastal community and South Padre Island early today taking residents and vacationers by surprise and leaving extensive damage and flooding behind.

Three women and one man ranging in age from 37 to 70 were admitted to Valley Community Hospital in Brownsville with back or shoulder injuries, according to Valerie Bateman, house supervisor.

The woman, who sustained a shoulder injury, was listed in stable condition while the men with back injuries were in guarded condition today, Mrs. Bateman said.

One man was admitted to Valley Baptist Medical Center with broken ribs. He was listed in fair condition, said supervisor Paula Cruz.

Twelve people were treated and released from the two hospitals, according to the spokeswoman.

The sudden blow roofs off homes and damaged portions of condominiums, according to South Padre Island Mayor Minnie Solomonson. Recreational vehicles were destroyed or overturned and power lines were downed. Some debris-filled streets in Port Isabel were impassable and about 14 mobile homes in one park were thrown into a canal.

carried Harris County, but Clements got a good vote too. Bexar went to Clements by a narrow margin along with Tarrant but White took Cameron, El Paso, Hidalgo, Nueces, Orange, Travis and Wichita counties.

Three thousand voters were surveyed as they left the ballot box in an AP-NBC poll, and 80 percent of those who said they voted for White said unemployment was the major issue in the race. Clements supporters said the top issue was President Reagan's economic program.

Clements contended throughout the campaign that the race was not a test of Reaganomics. He said Texas was in much better economic shape than other states.

White blamed Clements for all of Texas' troubles from the oil industry's price slump to the credit crunch, from unemployment to high utility rates.

In other statewide Democratic-Republican races:

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, 50, Democrat, won another four-year term to go with his 10-year tenure as head of the Senate. He defeated Republican George Strake, 46, former Texas secretary of state.

Jim Mattox, 39, a Dallas Democrat congressman, won over Republican Bill Meier, 42, a state senator from Eules.

Comptroller Bob Bullock, 53, first elected to the job in 1974, defeated Republican Mike Richards, 45, a Houston state senator.

Democrat Ann Richards, 49, former Travis County commissioner, was the victor in a race with Republican Allen

Clark, 40, former aide to Clements, for state treasurer.

Garry Mauro, 34, former executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, beat Republican Woody Glasscock, 42, former mayor of Hon-do, for land commissioner.

Democrat Jim Hightower, 39, who ran a strong but unsuccessful race for the Texas Railroad Commission two years ago, defeated Republican Fred Thornberry, 45, a Texas A&M poultry expert, for agriculture commissioner.

Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, 60, a Democrat, decisively defeated Republican John Thomas Henderson, 75, a retired Austin real estate man trying to take Nugent's seat on the three-member commission.

meone of his quality and ability."

The assistant city manager is primarily responsible for city contract services, such as Moss Lake and the tennis center, and for internal administration of city employees, Davis said.

In other matters, Big Spring Police Chief Rick Turner intends "to cooperate fully" with an FBI investigation into the Aug. 31st shooting of an 11-year-old robbery suspect and Paul Feazelle will soon resign as assistant city manager, City Manager

Don Davis said.

Turner attended a weekly meeting yesterday between Davis and members of the news media and said he will cooperate with an FBI investigation requested by the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"I feel we have nothing to hide," Turner said. "I feel like the officer acted with discretion."

L.U.L.A.C. recently filed for an FBI investigation into the shooting of John Solis by Big Spring police detective Robert Stapp because "We believe they neglected the proper punishment to the officer," District 5 President Henry Guevara said. "We ask the police chief to release him from responsibility."

Turner said the investigation should begin "the latter part of next week."

Police say Solis was shot in the left leg after he fled the scene of a police stake-out in a dimly lit building near Planter's Cotton Gin, 102 N.E. Second made in ads in the Odessa American were untrue.

"We want this to be investigated to the nth degree. We're not trying to whitewash anything," Turner said.

"He certainly didn't let the truth hamper his efforts in the campaign," Reese said this morning, adding that he planned to pursue the Ector County libel suit even after the election.

"It was unnecessary," Reese said. "If you stay with the facts in an election ... I have no problem with that. But they resorted to lies. I chose not to do any of that sort of thing —

Everything I said about John was true."

Montford credited the Democratic turnout, along with the economic situation, for his victory.

And, he said, "We tried to run a positive campaign. It's tough, though — you have to bite your tongue sometimes."

Reese also credited the Democratic sweep in the elections for Montford's win.

"A reporter asked me last night, 'If you had it to do over again, what would you do differently?'" Reese said today. "I told him I'd pick a different year. I was surprised at the margin of Montford's victory. Based on that and the tremendous success the Democrats had in getting out their vote statewide, he probably could have won without resorting to smear tactics."

Lester Roloff killed in plane crash

By KEN LANTERMAN
Harte-Hanks News Service

NORMANGEE — Corpus Christi evangelist Lester Roloff and four women were killed Tuesday morning when the single engine craft Roloff was piloting crashed in a field three miles north of here.

The 68-year-old Roloff, a fire-and-brimstone preacher and owner of three homes for troubled youth, has been in an eight-year licensing battle with the State of Texas over the homes.

He and the women were killed upon impact when their 210 Cessna Centurion went down at about 10:30 a.m., according to officials at the scene of the crash, which is about 30 miles north of Bryan.

A Federal Aviation Administration official from Houston, who arrived at the scene late Tuesday afternoon to inspect the wreckage, said he could not comment on the cause of the crash.

A cold front was passing across the state near the time of the crash, but officials would not say immediately that the weather may have affected flying conditions.

The four women reported dead were Susan Lynn Smith, 28, Elaine Wingert, 30, Cheryl Palmer, in her early 20s, and Enola Slade, also in her early 20s, according to Department of Public Safety Communications Officer Sam Saxon.

Roloff and the four women left Corpus Christi at 8:30 a.m. to fly to a speaking engagement at Calvary Baptist Church in Roosterville, Mo., Tuesday night, said a spokesman with Roloff Evangelical Enterprises.

Gov. Bill Clements said he was shocked upon learning of Roloff's death. Roloff had claimed to have helped win the governorship in Clements' first election bid in 1978.

"Brother Roloff was a singularly dedicated and committed individual whose ministry and devotion gave productive new lives to thousands of wayward, neglected and underprivileged youngsters who had been literally written off by society," Clements said.

"I am proud and honored to have known him and to have had his friendship and support during the last four years. He contributed much to his church and his state. I will miss him as my friend. He was a great Texan doing God's work."

Texas Attorney General Mark White, who obtained an injunction in 1979 from a state district judge to close Roloff's homes if Roloff did not obtain a state license, expressed sorrow at the news of the accident.

"It is a great tragedy," White said. "We all pray for his family and friends."

DPS troopers Ron Wood and Rick Pringle were the first officers at the scene.

"Our office in Bryan received a report from FAA officials that there was a possible plane crash in our area," said Wood. "Just outside of Normangee we received word that the plane had been spotted."

Roloff's aircraft came to rest in a clearing of a heavily wooded area about one mile off a muddy, rain-drenched red-dirt road three miles north of Normangee.

The plane lay on its back, stripped of its wings, with its tail ripped off. Wood said the wings and the tail were found about one mile farther back into the woods.

"All of the bodies were in the plane when we arrived at about 11:15 p.m.," Wood said.

Bibles, leaflets with Roloff Evangelical Enterprises printed on them, cassette tapes, coats, jackets, luggage and other personal belongings were scattered about the plane's fuselage.

The fuselage itself was caved in along its left side and, like a stick pressed flat into the field's deep red mud, one of the plane's wheels was smashed into its belly.

The aircraft's engine was ripped from its mountings and the prop was half-buried in a small crater.

"It appears that the plane bounced into that position," Pringle said, referring to the distance between the prop and fuselage.

George Burlage of the FAA in Fort Worth said Roloff's plane disappeared from radar at 10:18 a.m.

About that time, R.L. Lamb, who lives near the crash site, said he was outside in his garden.

"I was outside picking beans when I heard what sounded like a big clap of thunder or a big gun going off," Lamb said, adding that he didn't see the craft go down.

Oliver Adams, who lives a mile away, said he heard "a low flying plane and then it popped two times." But Adams said he didn't hear the crash.

Jim Seelye was test driving his new motorcycle in a pasture nearby. "But I didn't see or hear anything," Seelye said.

AN EVANGELIST — Lester Roloff is shown in this 1979 photo preaching at his church outside Corpus Christi. Roloff was killed Tuesday when the Cessna 210 he was flying crashed near Normangee, Texas. Gov. and Mrs. Bill

Clements are shown listening to him preach. The 68-year-old Roloff was involved in an 8-year battle with the state and Governor-elect Mark White (then state attorney general) over licensing of his homes for wayward youths.

Police Beat

Glass found in candy bar

A Big Spring woman found crushed glass in a package of bite-size Butterfingers purchased in a local store, police Lt. Alvis Jeffcoat said. The woman took the contaminated package to Malone-Hogan hospital yesterday to be examined after she found one of the candy bars contained glass, Jeffcoat said.

Jeffcoat urges parents to check all Halloween candy for contamination and, if any is found, notify police for further investigation.

Police reports also showed the following:

• Vada Long, 31, of Graham was arrested yesterday on an unauthorized use of a motor vehicle warrant. Peace Justice Lewis Heflin set bond at $15,000.

• Felix Martinez Hipolito, 58, of 712 N. Iowa, Lamesa, was arrested last night on suspicion of transporting alcoholic beverages without a permit. State Alcoholic Beverage Commission Agent Sam Smelser arrested the suspect about half a mile north of town on U.S. Highway 80. Hipolito was released after posting $1,000 bond set by Heflin.

• James Darwin Sims, 56, of Sterling City Route Box 46 was arrested last night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released after paying a $1,000 bond set by Peace Justice Bobby West.

• Elizabeth Morin, 22, of 507 N.E. Ninth was arrested yesterday on suspicion of theft under $5. She was released after paying an $85 fine.

• Gibson Discount Center, 2309 Scurry, store security detained the suspect for police custody after they recovered $16.91 worth of cosmetic items.

• Ruben Juarez, 21, of Northcrest Apartment 41, 1002 N. Main, was arrested last night on a disorderly conduct warrant and a traffic warrant. He was released after paying a $60 bond. The traffic charge was dropped.

• A 71-year-old man — R.C. Nichols of 1111 Coachman — was admitted to Hall-Bennet Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon after the car he was driving collided with a vehicle driven by Betty G. Muniz of 610 N.W. Eighth. Nichols was released in "fair" condition this morning, a hospital spokesman said.

Police reports indicated that a passenger in Nichols' car — 25-year-old Brian Stebner of 2113 Lynn — also was injured. None of the local hospitals had records of treating Stebner.

The accident occurred at N. Aylford and N.W. Fifth about 2:45 p.m. yesterday. Muniz was cited for no driver's license, failure to yield right-of-way and no insurance.

• Vehicles driven by Loretta I. Ringhoffer of 702 W. 17th and Anita M. Zarrhea of 307 E. 23rd collided at Nolan and 19th at 3:40 p.m. yesterday. Police cited Zarrhea for no driver's license, no insurance and failure to yield right-of-way. No injuries were reported.

• Vehicles driven by Maria K. Womack of 1404 Scurry and Steven R. Brackeen of 300 Tulance collided at Circle and Vines at 10:15 p.m. yesterday. Womack was cited for failure to yield right-of-way. No injuries were reported.

• Vehicles driven by Vera J. Nidiffer and Robert D. Myer of 3308 W. Ninth collided on the 300 block of Scurry about 11:40 a.m. yesterday. Nidiffer was cited for improper backing. No injuries were reported.

84 mph winds hit Texas coastal areas

PORT ISABEL (AP) — Ferocious winds gusting at 84 mph and pelting rains roared through this small coastal community and South Padre Island early today taking residents and vacationers by surprise and leaving extensive damage and flooding behind.

Three women and one man ranging in age from 37 to 70 were admitted to Valley Community Hospital in Brownsville with back or shoulder injuries, according to Valerie Bateman, house supervisor.

The woman, who sustained a shoulder injury, was listed in stable condition while the men with back injuries were in guarded condition today. Mrs. Bateman said.

One man was admitted to Valley Baptist Medical Center with broken ribs. He was listed in fair condition, said supervisor Paula Cruz.

Twelve people were treated and released from the two hospitals, according to the spokeswomen.

The sudden blew roofs off homes and damaged portions of condominiums, according to South Padre Island Mayor Minnie Solomonson. Recreational vehicles were destroyed or overturned and power lines were downed. Some debris-filled streets in Port Isabel were impassable and about 14 mobile homes in one park were thrown into a canal.

carried Harris County, but Clements got a good vote too. Bexar went to Clements by a narrow margin along with Tarrant but White took Cameron, El Paso, Hidalgo, Nueces, Orange, Travis and Wichita counties.

Three thousand voters were surveyed as they left the ballot box in an AP-NBC poll, and 80 percent of those who said they voted for White said unemployment was the major issue in the race. Clements supporters said the top issue was President Reagan's economic program.

Clements contended throughout the campaign that the race was not a test of Reaganomics. He said Texas was in much better economic shape than other states.

White blamed Clements for all of Texas' troubles from the oil industry's price slump to the credit crunch, from unemployment to high utility rates.

In other statewide Democratic-Republican races:

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, 50, Democrat, won another four-year term to go with his 10-year tenure as head of the Senate. He defeated Republican George Strake, 46, former Texas secretary of state.

Jim Mattox, 39, a Dallas Democrat congressman, won over Republican Bill Meier, 42, a state senator from Euless.

Comptroller Bob Bullock, 53, first elected to the job in 1974, defeated Republican Mike Richards, 45, a Houston state senator.

Democrat Ann Richards, 49, former Travis County commissioner, was the victor in a race with Republican Allen

Clark, 40, former aide to Clements, for state treasurer.

Garry Mauro, 34, former executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, beat Republican Woody Glasscock, 42, former mayor of Hondo, for land commissioner.

Democrat Jim Hightower, 39, who ran a strong but unsuccessful race for the Texas Railroad Commission two years ago, defeated Republican Fred Thornberry, 45, a Texas A&M poultry expert, for agriculture commissioner.

Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, 60, a Democrat, decisively defeated Republican John Thomas Henderson, 75, a retired Austin real estate man trying to take Nugent's seat on the three-member commission.

In other matters, Big Spring Police Chief Rick Turner intends "to cooperate fully" with an FBI investigation into the Aug. 31st shooting of an 11-year-old robbery suspect and Paul Feazelle will soon resign as assistant city manager, City Manager

Don Davis said.

Turner attended a weekly meeting yesterday between Davis and members of the news media and said he will cooperate with an FBI investigation requested by the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"I feel we have nothing to hide," Turner said. "I feel like the officer acted with discretion."

L.U.L.A.C. recently filed for an FBI investigation into the shooting of John Solis by Big Spring police detective Robert Stapp because "We believe they neglected the proper punishment to the officer," District 5 President Henry Guevara said. "We ask the police chief to release him from responsibility."

Turner said the investigation should begin "the latter part of next week."

Police say Solis was shot in the left leg after he fled the scene of a police stake-out in a dimly lit building near Planter's Cotton Gin, 102 N.E. Second made in ads in the Odessa American were untrue.

"We want this to be investigated to the nth degree. We're not trying to whitewash anything," Turner said.

"He certainly didn't let the truth hamper his efforts in the campaign," Reese said this morning, adding that he planned to pursue the Ector County libel suit even after the election.

"It was unnecessary," Reese said. "If you stay with the facts in an election... I have no problem with that. But they resorted to lies. I chose not to do any of that sort of thing —

Everything I said about John was true."

Montford credited the Democratic turnout, along with the economic situation, for his victory.

And, he said, "We tried to run a positive campaign. It's tough, though — you have to bite your tongue sometimes."

Reese also credited the Democratic sweep in the elections for Montford's win.

"A reporter asked me last night, 'If you had it to do over again, what would you do differently?'" Reese said today. "I told him I'd pick a different year. I was surprised at the margin of Montford's victory. Based on that and the tremendous success the Democrats had in getting out their vote statewide, he probably could have won without resorting to smear tactics."

Blue Law makes him blue

Dear Editor,
Each time I receive the newspaper, I eagerly seek the Mailbag section. Being still a comparative newcomer to this enclave of West Texas, I have found your Mailbag a valued forum where "cries that arise from the wilderness" can be legitimately, publicly heard.

Mr. Hartzell's letter "Blue Law Limits Freedom" (11-1-82) has evoked so far one strong personal response. My response is that, if such an award is ever given, his letter be nominated as Big Spring Herald Mailbag's Letter of the Year! To give the author's views further credence, here is an account...

The city was Big Spring. The day was Sunday. The time was six-thirty p.m. Our household ran out of plastic garbage bags. Off I hurried to the nearest Safeway's. There I found my plastic bags. En route to the check-out, I espied a handsome pair of socks. At the check-out, the garbage bags went through in the accustomed manner. But, lo and behold, the socks were seized upon, and the unfortunate socks disappeared into a shelf beneath the cash register. Profoundly surprised, I politely inquired the reason from the cashier. Sympathetically answered she, "Blue Law!"

Dear editor, and dear readers, I applaud the law that prohibits purchase of a Texas suitcase on Sundays. But, however, when this same law reaches a point where we Texans, let alone Big Springers, cannot purchase a mere pair of socks on a Sunday, I deem it a necessity for all of us concerned readers to begin questioning the extent of blueness of our so-called Blue Law. I therefore also applaud Mr. Hartzell's most perceptive letter.

Thank you.

Litter, litter everywhere...

Dear Editor,
I saw Mr. Cuthbertson's letter in the paper.
It is not just people in cars who litter.
I saw an old man about a year ago (in the neighborhood) pick up a brown grocery bag from the sidewalk, pick the trash on the grass, then throw the bag and its contents in the middle of S. Main street.

I was lucky that I was driving very slowly that early morning, otherwise I could have had a wreck. The man was mad, but he should have put the trash in the garbage can, not in the middle of the street.
If Mr. Cuthbertson wants some license plates number, he only has to walk two or three blocks on weekends and see the beer party on Gregg Street.

There is no way to pick up broken glass, unless it is swept (on a smooth surface). I have to pick it up in the grass myself. The people I hire won't do that kind of minimal job. (That is the little woman's job?)
The city dads are experts on loopholes. They should figure a way to make the store owners not to sell glass bottles (beers) to go, unless it is drunk on the premises. When the litterbugs are thirsty they will drink anything, so it would not lower sales of beer to go.

If we have to wait till a law is passed, it might be year 2000. Also why not mandate that the DWI spend a day to clean up the mess?

One state up north passed a law against glass bottles: within a year the state was clean. Big Spring is always behind on new ideas, why not make a change for the better for a change.

The unstayable course

WASHINGTON — Russia, China and the West Europeans are all taking their distance from the U.S. Simultaneously a confused but potent peace movement gains ground in this country.

So the Republicans can thank their stars foreign policy counts for so little in the midterm elections. For the source of most of the trouble lies in the strident, anti-Communist rhetoric of the President and his secretary of Defense.

Leonid Brezhnev himself read-justed the Soviet line on Wednesday in a speech pregnant with internal as well as foreign policy significance. Brezhnev appeared before a group that included the top military brass, Defense Minister Dimitri Ustinov, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and the members of the Party Secretariat thought most likely to succeed him — Konstantin Chernenko and Yuri Andropov.

"We shall not abandon," Brezhnev said, "our line... for detente." But he indicated that he was very close to writing off negotiations with the U.S. on arms control. Not only did he denounce the U.S. for "deepening tensions," he also flashed the green light for some costly projects long sought by Russia's marshals. He approved the modernization of weapons — notably planes, tanks and missiles — which showed so poorly in the Lebanese fighting. He also approved greater operational readiness. Thus, far from backing down under U.S. pressure, the Russians are increasing their military buildup.

China's move away from the U.S. has been outlined — by Foreign Minister Huang Hua, among others — as an "independent foreign policy." It features slashing attacks on this country for its military programs, for its policies in the Middle East and Latin America, and, especially, for its support of Taiwan. At the same time, the Chinese have resumed talks on a continuing basis with Russia about normalization of relations.

Deng Xiaoping, the top Chinese leader, has recently assured visiting Americans, including Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger, that the Sino-Soviet talks will not get very far — at least not if the U.S. comes off support for Taiwan. But, in fact, the negotiations continue despite Soviet rejection of Peking's demands that Moscow ease military pressures in Afghanistan, Vietnam and along the Chinese border. Brezhnev endorsed the dialogue in his pitch to the Soviet military.

Exactly what the Chinese are up to is not altogether clear. Certainly they are moving away from strategic cooperation with the U.S. If they are not moving toward Russia, they are at least shuffling the deck to show Washington that there is available, if Peking wants to play it, a Russian card.

As to the Europeans, they have long worried about being the battleground in a Big Two nuclear war. At least partly to have a voice in such matters, France built, and keeps modernizing, an independent nuclear force.

Francois Mitterrand, the Socialist president, has tended to align Paris with Washington on East-West security questions. But he has cooled since the Versailles summit, and he now leads the West Europeans against the U.S. in the fight over the building of a gas pipeline from Russia.

On Oct. 21, Mitterrand met in Bonn with the new West German chancellor, Helmut Kohl. The two discussed what Kohl called "questions of security." Mitterrand denied, in a way that invited suspicion, rumors that France offered to "associate" Germany with its nuclear deterrent. So at the very least it looks as though the French and the Germans, unsure of the U.S., are cooperating to build their own defenses.

One reason not to be sure of the U.S. is the peace movement. Proposals for a nuclear freeze are on the ballot in nine states, with good prospects of winning. A committee of Catholic bishops has issued a draft statement which invokes the Christian conscience even against those who "carry out orders" involving a nuclear attack.

Since neither the "freeze" nor the bishops can engage the Russians, their efforts seem somewhat off the point. But it is easy enough to understand the feeling of hopeless frustration behind their actions. The fact is that Ronald Reagan and his advisers are mainly responsible for the anti-nuclear movement in this country.

The President and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger keep saying the U.S. lags behind Russia in military strength, and even lacks the force to deter a nuclear attack. They push programs that would give this country "the capacity to initiate nuclear war, and the power to prevail in an extended nuclear conflict. They slide away from questions about targeting cities, and they charge persons in the anti-nuclear movement have been "manipulated."

Many serious people, in these conditions, can no longer confidently entrust to American leaders the management of nuclear weapons. That applies to Russians, Chinese, the Europeans, and even Americans. As long as the President and his secretary of Defense continue strident rhetoric about nuclear weapons, they will meet resistance in all quarters. They are putting this country in self-isolation, and working themselves on to an unstayable course.

Thrilling climax

IN OUR LAST EPISODE, Jonathan Thorheart was attacked by a wrecking ball, knocked out by gas and taken to Death Valley Memorial where he thrashed four men in hand-to-hand combat while trying to save his girl and the world. The year is 2090 in a world powered by solar energy. However, fate has left weather control an easy venue for evil.

Thorheart, a Class A Solar Weather Disrupter, has mental powers enabling him to stop weather control. Starfine, his beloved red-haired secretary, is now threatened by three tornadoes as the world is menaced by storms of a weather alternator only Thorheart can stop.

As we rejoin our hero, he is deciding between rescuing Starfine or the world.

Casting all doubt into the shrieking winds about him, Thorheart sprang for the distant figure of Starfine, realizing life in a world without her would not be life. Hurling across the sand, he encountered five more guards of the toad-like alternator.

Armed only with physical skills since weapons are useless in the alternator's field, they hacked and chopped and kicked in cruel attempts to slow Thorheart's gallant effort to save Starfine from triple tornadoes.

But with a strength born of desperation and anger, Thorheart dispatched one after another with a lashing of his massive muscles as he plunged by on his path of rescue.

Winds nearing 100 mph buffeted Thorheart as he neared Starfine. Despairingly, he saw her bound to a post as the winds and rains tore at her unconscious body. Cloaking himself in the tenuous fabric of his telekinetic and empathic powers, Thorheart moved to save her before he saved the world.

SUDDENLY, he fell howling to the ground, crushed from behind by a silent attacker.

Thorheart rapidly fought his way free, knowing every second brought his beloved nearer oblivion. As he scrambled to confront his attacker, he split his name: "Jefferson."

The director of Solar United Nations and Thorheart's superior dropped low to kick out Thorheart's legs even as the enraged Disrupter put the pieces together. Only Jefferson knew when he would be in his office. Only Jefferson knew he would rescue Starfine over the world.

As his mind raced, Thorheart barely evaded a hammering blow but staggered back in agony as two jets rocketed into his body. Jefferson evidently intended his minions to dispose of him, Thorheart thought, but hung around to ensure the job was done.

REELING from a series of crushing blows, Thorheart suddenly unleashed, snapping the silent Jefferson's head back. He spun away from a lunging Jefferson and bowed him with a brutal kick. As Jefferson shakily resumed a fighting stance, Thorheart realized the world was beyond aid if he waited any longer.

With the speed of a computer, Thorheart broke through Jefferson's faltering defenses to crush his head like a fragile vase. Not waiting to see the director crumble, Thorheart ran to wrench the bonds from Starfine. As she collapsed into his arms, the Disrupter heard the alternator begat the Storm.

Driven by an insurmountable hope and spirit, Thorheart turned inside to his mental powers. Locking synapses into a telekinetic state, Thorheart fought to warp the very molecules of the Storm to his bidding. Even as he battled, the Storm grew alarmingly to cover the continent, threatening civilization as we know it.

As the Storm's ebony darkness swelled in intensity, Thorheart continued to wrestle with the elements even as he staggered closer to the alternator. Getting closer, his empathic power erased its wicked force, ending future weather distortions, but the unleashed fury of the Storm was unabated.

Like a defiant worshipper before a leering god, Thorheart stood motionless, a mental storm boiling as nature's anger flailed and yelled in the heavens. Huge rasps of earth were ripped from nearby mountains to collide with frozen waters sucked from distant lakes.

THEN, WITH THE SUDDENNESS OF A TIDAL WAVE dashing itself to spray on a dock, it was over. The Storm died in gentle breezes and calm showers. Thorheart had won.

Thorheart opened his eyes to see Starfine's anxious orbs peering into his face, his head throbbing with the agony of containing the Storm.

The world and Starfine safe once more, Thorheart relaxed. The saved sun faded in the horizon as the two headed back to the city. THE END.

Credit where none was due

WASHINGTON — The frontline troops in President Reagan's war on waste and fraud in the federal government are the investigators who work for the various inspectors general.

They are dedicated, savvy professionals who can follow a paper trail through the bureaucratic jungle and nab corrupt or extravagant officials in their swivel chairs. But sometimes these investigative infantrymen are painfully embarrassed by self-serving superiors sitting comfortably on their rear echelons.

Take the case of Richard Campbell, recently retired, who worked for the inspector general at the Environmental Protection Agency. In a progress report to Congress for the period April-September, 1981, Campbell claimed credit for the indictment and conviction of two EPA employees and one ex-employee for cashing in $700 worth of phony travel vouchers.

"We devised a plan to arrest the former employee upon presentation of the false voucher and payment," the I.G. report boasted, adding perfunctorily that "assistance was obtained" from the Federal Protective Service, a police arm of the General Services Administration.

My associate Tony Capaccio tracked down the case file on the phony travel-voucher scheme and then read the EPA's proud claim to Leonard Hernandez, the criminal investigator who handled the case for the Protective Service.

According to Hernandez, the arrest of the ex-employee on May 1, 1981, was accomplished without any help from the inspector general's office. Of the inspector general's people, Hernandez said, "They did no planning of the arrest. They didn't know how to do anything." He said the inspector general's office did little beyond providing information on the former employee.

How, then, did the inspector general's claim of credit wind up in the report to Congress? A curiously frank message slip dated July 31, 1981, gives the answer. It was from James Conn, an official in the inspector general's office, to Ellis Cannady, the EPA investigator in the case.

"Dick (Campbell) wants to meet with us," Conn wrote his colleagues. "At the meeting, he wants us to advise how he can get credit for three arrests, three indictments and three convictions based upon your work in the GSA cases. No use arguing. His mind is made up. Your 'arrest' etc. will be published in the annual report no matter what."

In obvious disgust, Conn concluded: "Hell. Don't ask me. I work for him too."

And so it was that the EPA's I.G. office took credit for someone else's "collar" so that a bureaucrat could look good to Congress.

When Conn's note was read back to him, he said, "Obviously, I have no comment." Campbell said that since his office gave an "assist" on the arrest, it was proper to take credit. An EPA source viewed it differently, saying, "It was a case of one-man egomania. That's clearly what it was."

Footnote: This is not the first time that the EPA's inspector general has stirred up controversy. The current inspector general, Matt Novick, has been accused of whitewashing several investigations, and Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., has formally called for his resignation. Novick, incidentally, was not at EPA when the arrest records were fudged.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?: A lobbyist by any other name smells sweeter.

Billy Graham

I can't get along with folks

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I just can't seem to get along with other people. I have a string of jobs. In every case, I have either quit or been fired because I have not gotten along with my co-workers. Sometimes I hate myself for this but I don't know what to do. — C.J.

DEAR C.J.: The Bible tells us, "If it is possible, as far as it depends on you, live at peace with everyone" (Romans 12:18). This is sometimes very hard for us to do — and in fact I do not believe that we can do it apart from God's strength. But God can help you overcome this problem, and he wants to help you.

There may be many reasons why you have such a hard time getting along with other people. It may be, for instance, that you always feel like you have to dominate others or get them to do what you want to do. It may be that you resent anyone else telling you what to do or correcting you in any way. It may be that you get your feelings hurt very easily, or that you convey by your words and attitude that you are always right and everyone else is always wrong. There can be, in other words, many ways in which we offend people and do not get along with them.

But all of these (and many more forms I could mention) have one thing in common: they all demonstrate an attitude of selfish concern, and a lack of sensitivity to what others may be feeling. If I am always concerned about how people are treating me, it tends to blind me to the problems or feelings they may be experiencing.

I believe you have taken the first step by admitting you have a problem. All too often we tend to blame everyone else, and don't face the fact that at least part of the problem may be with us. But I am convinced the most important thing you can do is give your life to Christ and ask him to be Lord over every area of your life — including your relationship and your feelings. Have you ever come to Christ? If not, you can take that step of faith right now, and let him begin to teach you and help you. Then ask him to give you a new love for others — a new ability to see their needs and want to help them in practical ways. Christ can give you love and compassion, as you yield to him every day.

When your tires get worn down to 2/32 of an inch, you're 44 times more likely to have a flat or blowout during highway driving than before.

That's evidently the feeling of some of Washington's best-known special-interest pleaders when they make the required listing of their occupations on campaign-contribution forms.

My reporters Dorothy Wegard and Jack Hatfield checked hundreds of contribution forms submitted by dozens of lobbyists who made donations to members of the House Ways and Means Committee, and found only one who identified himself as "lobbyist." Some of the more imaginative euphemisms:

—Thomas Boggs Jr., whose law firm lobbies for more than 140 different interests, including most of the major oil companies and automakers, called himself a "self-employed convention planner."

Bob Lewis, alias Tumbleweed Smith, just returned from Austin where he serves on the media advisory panel to the Texas Commission on the Arts. Lewis and other media professionals from over the state reviewed grant applications to determine which projects merited funding. Bob's wife, Susan, has joined him in the operation of Multi-Media Advertising Company. Bob just completed the detail work needed to buy out his former partner, Carol Hunter.

Max Green has been invited to be on the speakers bureau for the National Federation of Independent Businesses (NFIB). This will make him available on the speaking circuit for business functions, meetings and conventions.

Big Spring has already been viewed as the playoff site for several possible football playoff games. The Athletic Committee of the chamber met Tuesday at noon to discuss the steps necessary to be ready to first get the playoff teams here and then to have successfully operated events. We've had nothing but favorable response to our hosting playoff games in the past and this helps us continue to attract them.

A luncheon will be held Monday between Southwestern Bell representatives, headed by Darlene Gifford, and selected citizens and chamber board members. This luncheon, planned by Bell, resulted from a protest filed by the chamber to the Public Utility Commission requesting no rate increases until Big Spring's service is improved.

The March of Dimes will receive the proceeds of a Children's Fashion Show scheduled for Saturday, November 20 at 10:00 a.m. at the Dora Roberts Community Center. Highland Pontiac Datsun is sponsoring the event with the clothes being furnished by Elegant Elephant, Grandmother's Delight, Spoiled Rotten, and Miss Texas Shop. Tickets will be available for $4.00 (adults), $2.00 (children), beginning tomorrow at any of the stores listed above. Special guests will be Miss Piggy and the Rainbow Connection... and Santa Claus. Another twist will be a Miss Piggy Contest with prizes given for the first through fourth place winners. Tomorrow all Vocational Education Students at Big Spring High will have the opportunity to hear LeRoy Tillery, Chamber Executive, and Gerald Damm, Texas Employment Commission Director, discuss job opportunities and future outlook in the Big Spring area.

The chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, which oversees radio and television broadcasters, has called for total deregulation of the industry. Chairman Fowler called on the nation's broadcasters to join him in his campaign to remove the industry from all federal control, including basic licensing procedures that determine who is allowed to own a radio or TV station. What this means is there would no longer be political speech rules, no content guidelines, no fairness doctrine. The broadcasting industry would be treated the same as the newspaper industry under the First Amendment.

27 voted to state education board

By KRISTING GAZLAY
Associated Press Writer
Incumbent Democrat Virginia Currey maintained her lead in her quest for reelection to the State Board of Education, but several of the 27 races for the board were too close to call early today. Mrs. Currey still faced a threat from former Republican state Rep. Clay Smothers, who campaigned by blasting her stance against textbook censorship. With only a handful of the Dallas-Fort Worth area precincts reporting, Mrs. Currey had 19,729 votes, or 63 percent, compared to Smothers' 10,725 votes, or 35 percent.

Voters statewide elected 27 members to the board, which sets the policies followed by the Texas Education Agency in administering public education. Board members also select the textbook committee that reviews and selects books for public school use, and hear appeals of disciplinary action against students and teachers.

Several candidates were elected without opposition: E.R. "Bob" Gregg Jr., of Jacksonville, William Byrd of Duncanville, Laura Tynes of Waco, Ruben E. Hinojosa of Mercedes, James H. Whiteside of Lubbock and Manuel B. Bravo Jr. of Laredo.

Democrat Wayne Frederick of Orange defeated Republican Don Hall of Jasper; Democrat

Margie Ward West of Amarillo defeated Republican Zoel G. Allen of Perryton; Democrat Mrs. A.T. Leveridge Jr. of East Bernard defeated Republican Eleanor G. Buller of Pattison; Democrat Wayne Windle of El Paso defeated Republican James L. Goldman and Libertarian Victor "Buddy" Douglass Jr., both of El Paso; and Democrat Jewell Harris of Abilene defeated Republican Carol Hunter of Big Spring.

There were incomplete results in these races: Democrat William N. Kemp of Houston vs. Republican Louise Panzarella of Humble and Libertarian George W. Marsden of Kingwood; Democrat Will D. Davis of Austin vs. Republican Thomas W. Matthews of Luling and Libertarian Harry Jones of Austin; Democrat Paul Stevens vs. Republican B.V. Thompson, both of Fort Worth; Democrat Mike Fernandez Jr. vs. Republican Lou Lowther, both of San Antonio; Democrat William Jennings Teel II of Big Lake vs. Republican J. Murphy Horton of Midland and Libertarian Sandra Keen of Mertzon; Democrat J.R. Hardin of Beasley vs. Republican Linda Howell of Missouri City and Libertarian Bob Yausy of Houston; Democrat Carroll Teague of Pasadena vs. Republican Kaie Potter of Houston and Libertarian Janet Calvert of Pasadena; and Democrat Mrs. J.O. "Pat" Shannon of Fort Worth vs. Republican Kent Grusendorf of Arlington and Libertarian Paul R. LeGalle of Lewisville. Election results were not provided for the candidates with only minor-party opposition: Republican Reg McDaniel of Dallas; Democrat Paul Mathews of Greenville; Democrat Don Cook of Mesquite; Republican Joe Kelley Butler of Houston; Democrat William H. Fetter of LaMarque; Democrat Volly C. Bastine Jr. of Houston; and Democrat Mary Helen Berlanga of Corpus Christi.

Board members normally serve six years, but because of redistricting new members will not know the length of their terms until the first board meeting in January. There, they will draw to ensure staggered elections in future years.

PLAIN OR CANDIED? — Big Spring Business and Professional Women have begun their annual pecan sale. Shown with just some of the pecans are Lois Eitzen, left, finance chairman, and Mamie Roberts, president. The pecans come in two varieties — plain and candied. Cost is $1.50 per one-pound package (plain) or 12-ounce can (candied). The pecan sale is the major fund-raising project of the B&PW, with most of the money being used for scholarships and other charitable purposes. To buy the pecans, contact any B&PW member or call 267-7137.

Dr. Donohue

Hemochromatosis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My 37-year-old son has hemochromatosis. He has high blood iron. His blood and urine samples are being studied further. You had an article recently about Wilson's disease, a copper buildup problem in the liver. Why can't a medication be perfected to rid this liver of excess iron? Also, I have a 41-year-old son who will not have blood tests taken to determine if he has the same iron problem. Should he? — E.E.G.

In hemochromatosis, too much iron is being absorbed into the blood from food in the digestive tract, and it ends up being stored in body organs. Ordinarily, there is an automatic regulation of blood absorption. When the level in the blood reaches a certain point, absorption stops. People with hemochromatosis don't have this control. They continue to absorb iron into their blood, and it eventually settles out into the liver, pancreas and the heart. The problem most often surfaces between the ages of 40 and 60. I might mention here that the condition may be inherited, so your other son should be tested.

The consequences of the extra iron absorption are basically three-fold. In the pancreas, the iron accumulation can affect insulin production and cause diabetes. Heart problems can be caused if the iron becomes excessive in the heart muscles. Finally, if iron is built up in the liver, cirrhosis results.

Today, the principal treatment is to remove the extra blood iron by drawing off blood at regular intervals. There is, in fact, a medicine that binds iron to itself and permits it to be eliminated with urine. However, it doesn't take very much iron out, and must be used quite often. It's called deferoxamine, and is given by injection.

The treatment is best initiated as soon as possible, hence the desire for early detection, before organ damage has occurred. Your son and your son's children should be examined.

Dear Abby

Sexual instinct sometimes ignores society's taboos

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Crushed," whose 16-year-old daughter became pregnant by her 15-year-old adopted son, made a point that too few people are willing to acknowledge. All human beings are sexual beings — like it or not. We are born with the instinct to function sexually, so why all the denial? Sex between siblings is taboo. It usually (but not always) occurs when the older person exploits the younger one out of curiosity or in search of sexual gratification. When children are sufficiently mature physically to reproduce — and the sperm meets the fertile egg — pregnancy occurs. The egg doesn't know (or care) if the sperm is a relative.

Incest is far more common than most think. I know. It happened in our family. I was a 15-year-old boy (young man, actually) when my 9-year-old precocious sister came into my bed one night while we were home alone. Our parents were respectable, churchgoing, middle-class people. They never told us anything about sex. All we knew is what we'd picked up from the other kids.

What went on between my sister and me didn't last long, fortunately. But it did happen. The guilt and shame lasted a lifetime, although we never talked about it. I am 72, and my kid sister died last year at 66.

Why am I writing this? Because I hope some "respectable" parents who are too shy to tell their kids about sex will see this.

Most parents assume that their kids will "naturally" abstain from having sex with a sister or brother because they will "know" it's wrong. Not true. Kids will naturally explore and experiment unless they are taught not to. And even then, the opportunities for it should be minimized and all temptations removed.

I know this is much too long for your column, so go ahead and cut it to suit yourself, but please get the message across.

ANONYMOUS IN MINNESOTA

DEAR ANONYMOUS: It's long, but I'll not cut a word. It's well worth the space. Thanks for writing.

Parliament opened amid pageantry

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Amid traditional pageantry, Queen Elizabeth II today formally opened a new session of Parliament for what could be the last time before the ruling Conservative government calls a general election.

Among other things, the queen announced the government's plans to sell off more state-owned industries, notably the British Telecom telephone and communications giant, and British Shipbuilders, and to encourage private generation of electricity.

The queen outlined a no-surprise legislative program planned by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's administration in the coming year. Mrs. Thatcher is widely expected to call an election by next fall before her 5-year term expires in May 1984.

The speech is an annual event in which the monarch reads a text prepared by the government, outlining legislative plans for the new session of Parliament. The Commons later today was to begin a five-day debate on the speech.

The monarch read her speech to assembled legislators, peers in scarlet robes edged with ermine, and diplomats — Westerners in morning suits and white ties and Middle East ambassadors in white head-dresses.

She declared the government was determined to stick to its tight monetary and fiscal policies ... including continued restraint in public spending," despite Britain's record 13.8 percent unemployment.

"My government are deeply aware of the anxieties and distress caused by unemployment," she said.

According to tradition, Mrs. Thatcher and Labor Party opposition leader Michael Foot, along with other legislators from the 635-member House of Commons, stood behind a barrier at the foot of the Lords chamber where the queen spoke. Members of the elected Commons, where the government wields political power, are barred by protocol from entering the House of Lords.

Mrs. Thatcher, her 37-year-old administration riding high in opinion polls, apparently plans a light legislative program ahead of a possible bid for another five years in office.

The moves to sell off more state-owned assets were in line with her expressed determination to encourage private enterprise.

The announcement followed the $253 million sale last year of the state's majority shareholding in British Aerospace, and sales of state-owned chemical, freight and cable corporations. A 51-percent share of government-owned Britoil, the North Sea oil exploration and production company, goes up for sale this month.

Labor has sharply criticized the sales of profitable state-owned enterprises. There are no takers for ailing corporations such as British Leyland car company, British Rail and British Steel Corp.

In a brief reference to the Falkland Islands, the queen said Britain would maintain "an appropriate defense force" on the British-inhabited archipelago long claimed by Argentina.

"At a later stage, they (the British government) will consider in consultation with the islanders, their political development and security," the queen said, making no reference to Argentina.

Marines await orders

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The first deployment of U.S. Marines into Christian east Beirut failed to materialize today and the Marines were still waiting at the airport at nightfall for their marching orders.

A spokesman said the Marines would not go into east Beirut after dark.

Their movement apparently was delayed by

Lebanese soldiers moving into the eastern sector earlier today and threatening to arrest Christian militiamen refusing to lay down their arms. It appeared to be the government's first full-scale effort to take control of the sector which has been run by the militias for the past eight years.

Phalange militia spokesman Fadi Hayek said his men would cooperate with the Lebanese army setting up positions at key points, but would not disarm until ordered to do so by President Amin Gemayel.

At sunset, 12 Marines in four jeeps remained at the international airport in Moslem west Beirut, ready to roll into the sector.

MODERN ART — Realization of the Franco-American sculptor "Arman," this 18-meter high tower statue made of 60 different cars molded in 1500 tons of concrete, was built in the Park of Contemporary Art Center in Montcel, France, south of Paris. It took to months to assemble the tower.

Two Demos join Senate; GOP still controls

By MIKESHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Democrats elected two new faces to the Senate, but their attempt to make the midterm elections a referendum on Reaganomics left Republicans in firm control.

Critical Republican victories in California, Virginia, Missouri, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Connecticut and Minnesota more than offset Democratic upsets in New Mexico and New Jersey.

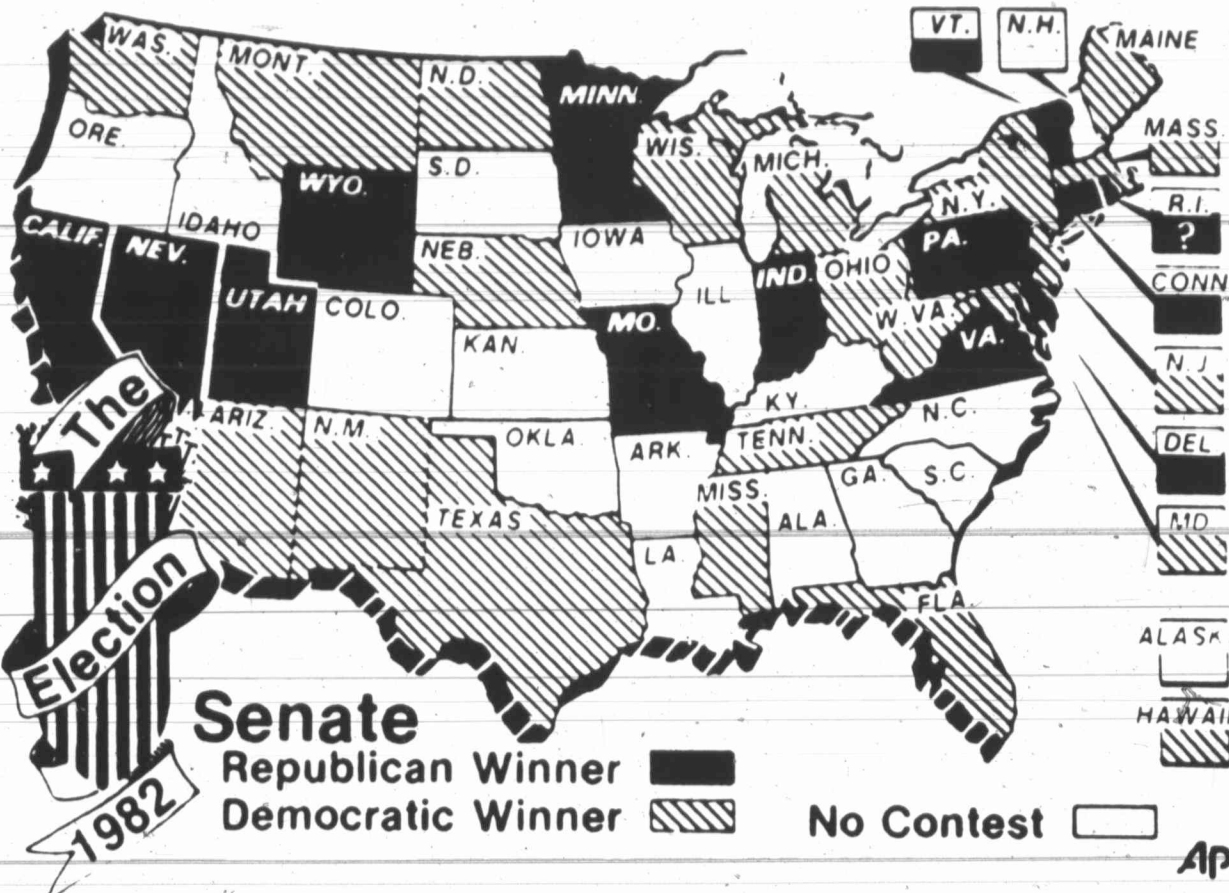

Republican Sen. John Chaffee led by a narrow margin in the only undecided race, in Rhode Island. A GOP victory there would leave the Senate count the same as before the election, 54 Republicans and 46 Democrats.

Incumbency, more than Reaganomics, seemed the deciding factor in the 33 Senate races: 27 incumbents were re-elected and one leading, and two lost, one from each party. No incumbent was running in three races.

As the final, absentee ballots were being counted in the lone undecided race, Americans appeared to have given mixed signals on whether they want more of Reagan's economic programs or a change in course.

They re-elected eight Republican incumbents, but a big block of the president's biggest Democratic critics — including Edward M. Kennedy, of Massachusetts, Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia — also were given new terms.

Republicans won two of the three open seats including California, where San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson beat colorful if enigmatic Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

SENATE RACES — The Democrats took 20 Senate Races in Tuesday's election. Republicans won 13, but Rhode Island was a Republican question mark with ballots still to be counted.

After the 1980 conservative sweep, Republicans talked of widening their eight-vote Senate majority for generations to come. Although that clearly did not happen, Democrats had little success convincing voters to blame the recession and high unemployment on the president's economic program and turn out his backers. The most obvious exception was in New Jersey, where Democratic businessman Frank Lautenberg sought to link Republican Rep. Millie Fenwick with Reaganomics and finally came from behind to win. Although a moderate on social issues, Mrs. Fenwick supported Reagan's program of budget cuts, and Lautenberg's victory was a personal setback for the president, who made a campaign stop in New Jersey.

In Missouri, on the other hand, incumbent Republican John Danforth squeaked out a narrow victory over state Sen. Harriett Woods, a Democrat who also made an issue of Reaganomics.

In the biggest Senate upset, New Mexico's Democratic attorney general, Jeff Bingaman, unseated incumbent Republican Harrison Schmitt, one of the president's most consistent Sunbelt supporters.

Reagan made New Mexico, a wellspring of hardcore support for the president, the last stop of the 13 states in which he campaigned for congressional candidates.

But Schmitt, a former astronaut who had been considered vulnerable from the start, apparently made a tactical error in the last days of the campaign with television ads accusing Bingaman of recommending a pardon for a convicted killer and not pressing for conviction of inmates involved in a riot at the state prison in 1980.

Bingaman countered with documents showing release of the prisoner had been sought by the federal government in return for his testimony in a major case involving the murder of a federal judge. Bingaman also emphasized that he had headed an investigation of the prison riot and referred cases to the local district attorney for prosecution.

In the only other loss by a Senate incumbent, Nevada Democrat Howard Cannon, 70, was defeated by former state Sen. Chic Hecht, who successfully exploited a split within the Democratic party in the state.

In Connecticut, incumbent

Republican Lowell Weicker beat Democratic Rep. Toby Moffett in a battle of liberals in a liberal state.

Moffett sought to paint Weicker with the brush of Reaganomics, but Weicker ducked, saying his Senate battles on social issues like busing and abortion showed his liberal credentials were intact.

In a victory for a solid Reagan supporter, 35-year-old Republican Rep. Paul Trible of Virginia narrowly defeated Democratic Lt. Gov. Dick Davis to take the seat now held by Harry F. Byrd, the Senate's only independent.

Byrd was counted among the Democrats for organizational purposes, so Trible's victory was a pickup for the GOP majority.

Trible, an intensively aggressive politician, said Davis was too liberal for conservative Virginia in a race marked more by personal attacks than debates on the issues.

In another close race, incumbent Democrat George J. Mitchell came from behind in Maine to beat Republican Rep. David F. Emery. The GOP challenger made a number of campaign blunders that were exploited by the easygoing Mitchell, who often is compared in Maine with the popular Edmund Muskie.

The power of the incumbency was demonstrated in nearly two dozen Senate races where well-known veterans were returned with comfortable margins no matter their positions on Reaganomics.

Byrd easily defeated conservative Republican Rep. Cleve Benedict, who said the minority leader had become too liberal for the Mountain State during his ascent to a position of power in Washington.

Brown, Bradley lose in California

By DOUG WILLIS
AP Political Writer

LOS ANGELES — Republican George Deukmejian today defeated Democrat Tom Bradley in the highest race for governor in California history, while Republican Pete Wilson defeated Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. for the U.S. Senate.

With 97.5 percent of the vote counted, Deukmejian led Bradley, who would have been the nation's first elected black governor, by 58,892 votes out of 7.3 million votes counted.

About 200,000 ballots remained to be counted — most of them in Republican strongholds where Deukmejian ran well.

Wilson, the 49-year-old three-term mayor of San Diego, defeated Brown by 50.9 percent to 45.4 percent, dealing a crippling blow to Brown's hopes of making a third bid for president.

Three minority party candidates split 3.7 percent.

While Wilson thanked his supporters emotionally for "the great privilege of representing you in the United States Senate," a stoic Brown stopped just short of conceding.

"I am prepared for whatever the verdict is," Brown told reporters early today.

Wilson had 3,685,166 votes to Brown's 3,289,077. Deukmejian led Bradley 3,677,345 to 3,618,453 — 49.07 percent to 48.29 percent, with three minor party candidates splitting the rest.

Deukmejian and Bradley ran on almost identical platforms of controlling state spending, reducing regulations and building new partnerships between state government and business to stimulate jobs.

Wilson's victory left Brown, the dominant figure in California politics for the past eight years, with few political options after a spectacular career that saw him elected governor at age 36 and a candidate for president at 38.

In the Senate race, Brown ran against President Reagan's economic record, which he attempted with limited success to link to the moderate Wilson.

Electroshock therapy measure loses in ballots

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Opponents of electroshock therapy appeared to have gained their first ballot victory ever, and they voiced hope it will spark a nationwide movement.

The measure, which would ban the use of electroshock in this city of 108,000, was favored by 17,861 voters and opposed by 11,142 in early returns, Alameda County election officials said. Results were based on returns from 87 of 122 precincts, or about 71 percent of the precincts.

Former mental patients and others who contend the treatment can permanently damage the brain put Measure T on the ballot.

Melvin Sabshin, director of the American Psychiatric Association which campaigned against the measure, said he feared the concept of a referendum on medical issues might catch on among the general public, which might not have enough information to make a decision.

The measure says the required patient consent is obtained under conditions of coercive conditions.

The psychiatric group contends that the last hope of severely depressed patients.

In Berkeley, the treatment is given only at Herrick Hospital, where officials said it was administered to about 63 of 1,500 mental patients last year.

The ballot measure made use of the treatment a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $500 and six months in jail.

Wh

Aide says Reagan to stay the course

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — President Reagan's chief of staff acknowledges the administration may have to compromise more because of Democratic gains in the House, but insists the president can "stay the course" and still push his programs through Congress.

"We think we can do it. We stay the course, you bet your life," said James A. Baker III.

An "upbeat" Reagan kept mum about the election results, but senior administration aides were trying to put the best possible interpretation on the Democratic gains in the House.

None was claiming victory. At best, they said the losses in the House were no greater than they had been predicting privately. However, their public predictions said they might hold House GOP losses to fewer than 20.

But it appeared GOP losses would be greater. Democrats had won 235 House seats and were leading in 31 other races for a possible gain of 23 seats. Referring to the coalition of minority Republicans and conservative Democrats who were crucial to Reagan's victories on economic issues in the House over the past two years, Baker said:

"It's going to be tougher to bring that coalition together, but we are going to be able to bring that coalition together from time to time. It is clear the president is not a lame duck. I don't see modifications occasioned by this election at this point in time."

"The president will be able to lead this country effectively over the next two years," said Baker, Reagan's chief political and congressional strategist.

Still, Baker said, "he may have to compromise some more."

With Democrats calling the election a referendum on Reagan's economic policies, and voters going to the polls against a background of a 10.1 percent unemployment rate, White House aides took pains to stress that the GOP losses in the House did not mean the president's program was being rejected.

Baker said Reagan "does not see this election as a repudiation of his policies or a repudiation of his program."

"I think there's an endorsement so far as the Senate races are concerned," he said.

Reagan's coalition drew upon 269 members of the House — 192 Republicans and 77 Democrats, most of them "boll weevil" conservatives from the South.

Baker said White House projections indicated that — even with the Democratic gains — Reagan still would be able to call upon a bipartisan coalition strong enough to get his economic program through the 98th Congress.

"We do have the Senate and we will be able to push the president's programs in the Senate," Baker said. He added that if Reagan fails in the House, he will count on winning when legislation reaches conference committees of the two chambers that are created to work out differences in measures each has passed.

Reagan spent election night in the White House family quarters, with Baker, Vice President George Bush, other top aides and long-time political friends and advisers.

"The president has watched the returns throughout the evening," Baker said in a visit to the White House press briefing room at 11 p.m. "When people he campaigned for and supported win, he's been happy about that. When the reverse has happened, he hasn't been as happy."

By White House figuring, Reagan traveled 32,816 miles since July, 1981, to campaign in 17 states for more than 30 candidates, most of them running for the Senate or governorships.

"His mood is upbeat," Baker said, adding in a reference to the Senate returns. "He's encouraged by some of the results."

"Our number one priority of retaining the Senate will be accomplished," he said.

Armadillo race a success

LAMESA (SC) — Lamesa's First Armadillo Races were a success this weekend, with many teams entered and the competition provided amusement for a large crowd in attendance.

Winners of a $100 first prize and a traveling trophy were named in both men's and women's divisions of the races. The men's winner was a team from Gebos Distributing Company and the women's winner was a group from the First National Bank of Lamesa.

A mechanical bucking bull set up on the premises also provided action and thrills for riders and spectators.

NCPAC misses most targets

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — The National Conservative Political Action Committee, which gained notoriety in 1980 for shooting down Senate liberals, missed nearly all its targeted incumbents for 1982 despite a multi-million dollar campaign of negative advertising.

Another well-financed conservative group organized by Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina fared as poorly despite its equally impressive campaign chest, as 15 of 18 endorsed House and Senate candidates went down to defeat and two others were trailing in tight races.

NCPAC — known as "Nickpack" — spent an estimated $4 million to repeat the controversial campaign technique it pioneered so successfully in 1980 — tough political attacks on 34 Senate and House members targeted for defeat.

But the ploy seemed to backfire this time, and even some of the challengers who stood to benefit from NCPAC's independent campaign said their cause was hurt.

Fifteen of the 17 senators on NCPAC's hit list were re-elected Tuesday night and one other clung to a narrow lead. Only one target lost Democrat Howard Cannon of Nevada.

The story was the same in the House, where 16 of 17 targets won re-election and the 17th was leading.

Surviving the NCPAC attacks, easily in most cases, were 13 Democrats: Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts; Paul Sarbanes of Maryland; Robert Byrd of West Virginia; Lloyd Bentsen of Texas; Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio; Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York; George Mitchell of Maine; Jim Sasser of Tennessee; Donald Riegle of Michigan; Dennis DeConcini of Arizona; Quentin Burdick of North Dakota; John Melcher of Montana; and Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii.

Republican targets Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and Robert Stafford of Vermont also were victorious in their re-election bids, while fellow Republican John Chafee of Rhode Island held a narrow lead.

Among the House Democratic leaders to best NCPAC attacks were Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas; Majority Whip Thomas Foley of Washington; Appropriations Committee Chairman Jamie Whitten of Mississippi; Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois; and Budget Committee Chairman James Jones of Oklahoma. NCPAC had spent more than $200,000 against Wright and more than $100,000 against Jones. NCPAC, one of the most effective political fund-raising organizations in the country, spent more than $650,000 to defeat Sarbanes and more than $500,000 to oust Kennedy, but each won handily.

In fact, NCPAC's campaign against Sarbanes became a major issue in that race. Sarbanes repeatedly assailed the questionable tactics of an outside political force, while GOP opponent Lawrence Hogan disowned the conservative group, which had endorsed him.

"We were victims of an unprecedented assault by extremist forces which came into this state trying to manipulate the voters," Sarbanes said in his victory speech Tuesday night.

In 1980, NCPAC spent more than $1 million in its then novel negative campaigns against six Senate liberal Democrats and later claimed credit for the defeat of four of them: Birch Bayh of Indiana; John Culver of Iowa; George McGovern of South Dakota; and Frank Church of Idaho. Targets Thomas Eagleton of Missouri and Alan Cranston of California were re-elected.

Flush from its victory and extensive media attention, NCPAC announced an expanded list of Senate and House targets for 1982.

NCPAC also ran a more traditional positive campaign on behalf of 62 House and Senate candidates. It fared better in this campaign, seeing the election of two of the five Senate candidates it endorsed and 28 of 57 House candidates it backed.

Helms' conservative group, the National Congressional Club, saw all four of its Senate candidates go down in defeat. Only one of its 14 endorsed House candidates was victorious, although two others were trailing by very slim margins.

Other special interest groups had mixed success in their campaigns to elect friends or defeat enemies. Their level of success generally rose with the number of incumbents they endorsed, a trend resulting from the fact that only two senators and 20 House members lost re-election bids.

DEMOCRATS TAKE STATES — Democrats triumphed in gubernatorial races across the country. Early today the Democrats had won 27 states, the Republicans eight.

Democrats take statehouses in nine governor's battles

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Democrats toppled Republicans from governorships not only in Texas, but in eight other states and held onto power in New York.

The results were mostly bad news for President Reagan, whose economic policies were major issues in many states where Republicans lost. Democrats won 27 of the 36 races at stake. That would give them a net gain of seven statehouses, when added to the seven Democratic seats that were not up for election this year.

Democrats took power from Republicans in nine states — Alaska, Arkansas, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, Texas and Wisconsin.

The California victory by state Attorney General George Deukmejian, coupled with a GOP win in New Hampshire, let Republicans claim two seats held by Democrats. In a race where more than 7.3 million ballots were cast, Deukmejian won by a margin of about 53,000 votes over Bradley, the mayor of Los Angeles.

By daybreak, the last race in doubt was in Illinois, where Republican Gov. James Thompson clung to a lead of approximately 30,000 votes among 3.4 million counted in his bid to stave off a challenge by former Sen. Adlai Stevenson.

Republican Party chairman Richard Richards said a loss of five governorships was his "worst-case" scenario.

The victories gave Democrats a broad, grassroots power base for the 1984 presidential campaign.

In Idaho, Democratic Gov. John Evans won a second full term after running neck and neck with GOP Lt. Gov. Philip Batt.

Democrat James Blanchard emerged the winner in Michigan after an all-night count of the results of his race with Richard Headlee. It was supposed to have been an easy Democratic win in the state with the nation's highest unemployment.

In Alaska, hotel owner William Sheffield, a Democrat, won by a healthy 47 percent to 39 percent margin over Republican Thomas Fink.

Onetime segregationist George Wallace made a political comeback in Alabama and won a fourth term with the help of black voters. Three other former governors — all Democrats — got their jobs back in Massachusetts, Arkansas and Minnesota.

Voters in Iowa and Vermont defeated the only women running for chief executive this year and kept the nation's governorships an all-male fraternity.

Of the 36 governorships at stake, Democrats won 26 and were leading in one other. Republicans won eight and were ahead in Illinois. If those trends held, the governors' lineup would be 34 Democrats and 16 Republicans, since each party held seven seats that were not contested this year.

In Nebraska, Vietnam war hero-turned-war protester Bob Kerrey stopped Republican Gov. Charles Thone's bid for a second term. Thone lost despite a last-minute campaign trip by Reagan to Omaha.

Democrat Toney Anaya kept New Mexico in Democratic control and became the nation's only Hispanic governor.

In New York, liberal Democrat Mario Cuomo, the lieutenant governor, emerged the winner after a see-saw battle with millionaire businessman Lewis Lehrman, a disciple of Reaganomics whose only criticism of the president was that his policies were too timid.

Likewise, in Texas, Clements was an strong supporter of Reaganomics, and the president returned the favor by making two campaign trips to the state.

Accused inmate 'begged' warden

GALVESTON (AP) — A prison inmate says he begged a warden to take him back to the main prison unit as the two men panted near a creek during a break in their death struggle.

But Eroy Brown testified Tuesday that Wallace M. Pack ignored his pleas to take him "back to the house."

"He said, 'You're going back to the building all right, nigger.' And then he jumped me again," Brown said.

Brown, on trial for the second time in Pack's April 1981 drowning, said the warden tried to drown him first. But Brown said he threw Pack off and held his head underwater, then let him up and asked him to take him back home.

Brown and special prosecutor Mack Arnold reenacted the battle on the courtroom floor. Pack's drowning followed the shooting of prison-farm manager Billy Max Moore. Brown contends he killed the man because they were going to torture him.

"You intentionally held him under water, didn't you?" Arnold said.

"No sir," Brown replied. "My intention was to keep him off of me. I let him up once and he wanted to keep on fighting. What was I supposed to do?"

Brown said he did not know how long it took to drown Pack.

"I was acting out of passion," he said. "I wasn't keeping up with time. I just laid on top of him to keep him from putting me back up underneath there."

Walker County Deputy Sheriff Dale Myers, who interviewed three inmates who were nearby shortly after the killings, took the stand after Brown stepped down.

Brown's first trial ended with a jury deadlocked 10-2 for acquittal.

EYE OF THE TIGER — Howard College postman Reggie Childress (32) eyes the hoop on a drive inside the lane against Ranger Tuesday night. Behind in their defense are Jerry Thomas (00) and Ronnie Smith (33). The Hawks won the season-opening tilt, 92-86.

HC runs, guns to win

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Running and gunning like a whirlwind out of control, the Howard College Hawks rode Nate Givens' 29 points to a 92-86 season-opening basketball victory over Ranger College in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Howard hosts the Sul Ross junior varsity at 8 p.m. Thursday in its next encounter of the early season.

Flashing signs of brilliance at times and sputtering like an engine out of tune at others, Howard gave the home crowd a preview of what's to come this season with its aggressive man defense and offense that moves the ball quickly upcourt and to the hoop.

"As time passes, we'll develop more consistency," said HC head coach Harold Wilder. "The keys in the game were good pressure on the ball by (Leon) Issac and (Danny) Grayson and our overall teamwork. Ranger was formidable opponent."

Both teams played typical opening-night games. There were 50 fouls called, numerous turnovers and occasional out-of-control individual play — particularly on the part of the Rangers. Howard, though, played the smoothest and the effort showed up on the scoreboard.

The Hawks began the game with some unstoppable offense, blazing off to a 23-10 lead with 11:51 left on a drive to the basket by Givens. HC's patience waned on offense and Ranger was able to get back in the game at 25-23 on a layup by Mike Bell who totaled a game-high 33 points.

Bell's game plan was simple — go to the hoop. The all-conference and all-Region V choice from last year represented over one-third of the Rangers' offense.

Howard opened up a 10-point lead again at 37-27 with 4:26 left in the half. Givens hit a layup and then fed freshman Keith Wilkerson on a soft shot to give the Hawks a 51-38 intermission bulge.

Howard had its troubles scoring early in the second half as Ranger closed the score to 60-55 with a 16-9 scoring binge capped by another basket by Bell with 12:38 left.

HC led 62-55 when Issac scored, Grayson hit a free shot, Reggie Childress sunk a three-point play and Antoine Morris tipped in a miss to make it 70-57 halfway to the finish.

Ranger got as close as 78-71 before Howard widened its lead to 91-80 on a shot by Childress.

The final score was as the closest the Rangers could get.

Wilder substituted freely throughout the game, getting a look at several freshmen. Wilkerson, showing a good right-handed hook inside, tallied 12 points while Dwight Harris connected from the 12-15 foot range for 16 points.

Givens, however, was the man. The top returning scorer in the WJCAC powered his way inside, leaving Issac open on the perimeter to can 18 points.

"We played with a lot of intensity," Wilder said. He was pleased with the aggressive play, all the way down into his bench. "We have a good bench. It will be an asset to us as the season progresses. Actually we have eight or nine good players. They will contribute as time passes."

Queens crown Ranger 72-51

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Howard College coach Don Stevens could afford to smile after Tuesday night's season-opener. After all, he found out Nell Haskins hasn't lost anything. Janene Berry is really something and his bench could be everything.

Looking awesome at times and struggling at others, the Hawk Queens used their quickness and the 29-point shooting of Haskins to subdue Ranger College 72-51 in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"It was typical first game...we played pretty good in spurts," Stevens said after it was over. "This is one of the best Ranger teams I've seen in years. I guarantee you they'll be tough as the season goes on."

The Hawk Queens could also be tough if Tuesday night is an indication of the defending Region V champs can do.

Haskins was unstoppable on her short jumpers. She was on the boards, grabbing 12 missed shots. And her free throw shooting looked much sharper than last year as she canned nine of 10 tries.

And then there is Berry, the freshman playmaking guard trying to fill the departed sneakers of Kelli Mull. Although she's just 5-4, the guard from Farwell was all over the court. She used her quickness to pick up several steals and her ballhandling to guide the Hawk Queens upcourt.

"She is the heart and soul of our offense," Stevens said. "She's cool and intelligent. She was my No. 1 prospect when I was recruiting. And she was just average tonight."

And finally, there's the HC bench which performed better than even Stevens had hoped. "I was real pleased with our depth," he smiled. "It's hard to come in and play in spots but we did that tonight. Kari Robinson did a good job and so did Della Brown."

Robinson is a freshman from Coahoma while Brown hails from neighboring Stanton.

It didn't look good at the start. Ranger led 5-0 and the Queens didn't score until 17:18 when Haskins hit her first two free throws. HC grabbed the lead at 15:47 and the game stayed tight until a Haskins turnaround gave the Hawk Queens the lead for good at 15:13 with 9:32 left.

Suddenly the lead grew to 27-15 as Haskins scored eight points. HC led at the half, 33-23.

Ranger got within eight at 39-31 at 14:48 but a minute later it was a 15-point spread when Haskins completed a three-point play.

After the Rangeanns drew to within 60-48 on three free throws, the Queens sped off to their final 21-point margin as newcomer Celeste Van Auken scored twice and Brown sank the last four points of the game.

"Our zone was what hurt them," Stevens pointed out. "Our man was working at first but then played a 1-3-1 and 2-3 zone and switched from one to the other. They didn't know what to do."

The defense stopped Ranger as the visitors could hit 28 per cent of its shots (19 of 67). Howard managed 42 per cent after hitting only 33 in the first half.

Part of the success has to go to 6-6 Susan Cordell who made her presence known with nine blocked shots. She also contributed 10 points to the offense, the only other Hawk Queen in double figures.

Kathy Walton led Ranger with 14 points while Crystal Amey had 11 and Roxy Jackson 10.

American's Cy Young goes to Brewer hurler

NEW YORK (AP) — Right-hander Pete Vuckovich, a model of consistency on Milwaukee's American League championship team, today was named winner of the AL's 1982 Cy Young Award.

The mustachioed pitcher, who had two eight-game winning streaks as he carved out a nifty 18-6 record, became the second successive Milwaukee hurler to win the award. Reliever Rollie Fingers was last year's AL winner.

The 30-year-old Vuckovich beat out Baltimore's Jim Palmer for the prize, recording 87 points to 59 for the Orioles' right-hander. Kansas City relief ace Dan Quisenberry was third with 40 points, followed by Toronto's Dave Stieb with 36.

With two writers voting in each AL city, Vuckovich had 14 out of a possible 28 first-place votes. Vuckovich also received four votes for second and five for third. Palmer had four firsts, 12 seconds and three thirds.

Under the voting system conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America, a first-place vote is worth five points, second place three and third place one.

Vuckovich, a 6-foot-4, 220-pounder who was obtained in a multi-player trade with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1980, rattled off eight straight victories early in the season and then eight more from July 24 to Sept. 20 to help the Brewers' run for the East Division title.

Vuckovich pitched 2232.3 innings, compiling a 3.34 earned run average and hurling nine complete games. In the past two seasons, Vuckovich has piled up a 32-10 record for the best percentage in major league baseball.

A native of Johnstown, Pa., who currently lives in Conemaugh, Pa., with his wife, Anna, and their two sons, Vuckovich completed his sixth major league season in 1982. Before coming to Milwaukee, he played for the Chicago White Sox, Toronto Blue Jays and the Cardinals, where he won 39 games in three seasons. For the Brewers last year, he was 14-4.

Palmer, a three-time winner of the Cy Young Award, had a 15-5 record for the Orioles in 1982 and a 3.13 ERA. Quisenberry,

PITCHER PETE VUCKOVICH
...second Brewer to win award accorded four first-place votes, had a league-leading 35 saves for Kansas City while Stieb, who received five votes for first, posted a 17-14 record with Toronto.

Cleveland's Rick Sutcliffe, the AL ERA leader at 2.96, got the remaining vote for first and finished fifth in the voting with 14 points.

Others receiving votes were California's Geoff Zahn with 7 points, Boston's Bob Stanley (4), Bill Caudill of Seattle (4) and Dan Petry of Detroit (1).

Mavericks shoot down Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — For at least two young Dallas Mavericks, the lessons of last year's 28-54 season are beginning to pay off.

Second-year pros Jay Vincent and Rolando Blackman each scored 19 points Tuesday to lead the Mavericks past the Houston Rockets 113-103 in a National Basketball Association game.

"I learned a great deal last year," Vincent said. "I just hope I can learn as much this year. As a team, I think we've progressed a heck of a lot."

Blackman, whose eight-foot turnaround jumper with 5:18 remaining in the third quarter put the Mavericks ahead to stay, 68-67, credits greater familiarity with the Mavericks' strategy for his improvement. "I feel more comfortable with (Coach Dick) Motta's system," Blackman said. "I know more about the team and players. I feel more confident."

Two baskets by Calvin Murphy brought Houston to within a hair with 7:18 to play in the game, 94-92. But Vincent's three-point play with 5:24 left capped a 10-2 Dallas spurt that put the Rockets away.

The 0-3 Rockets, meanwhile, are having their problems.

Mark Aguirre added 16 points for the 2-1 Mavericks. Caldwell Jones led Houston with 21, while Wally Walker added 18 and Allen Leavell 17.

Pumpkin pie is not only recipe for vegetable

By TINA STEFFEN

We've had another request by a reader searching for a recipe. This time, Mrs. Buster Weaver of Route 1 asks for help from the Recipe Exchange in locating a peanut butter pie recipe. Mrs. Weaver says "My husband ate a slice at a public family outing, and raved over it. I have tried in vain to find who made it, no luck."

Any readers who have such a recipe are urged to send it to the Recipe Exchange, care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431. Remember, the Recipe Exchange is designed for our readers, so if you have recipes to share or recipes you'd like to find, let us know.

Today's page gives a variety of recipes using pumpkins. Although Halloween is behind us now, pumpkins are still a popular fall and holiday item to use in pies or soup. Here are some ideas for pumpkins.

CREAMY PUMPKIN RICOTTA PIE

2 eggs
1 cup ricotta cheese
1 can (16 oz.) solid pack pumpkin
1/2 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 tps. pumpkin pie spice
1 tsp. vanilla
1 small can (5 1/2) evaporated milk
1 nine-inch unbaked pastry shell
Vanilla yogurt and pumpkin seeds for garnish, optional Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Beat eggs lightly in a large bowl; beat in cheese until smooth. Stir in remaining ingredients until well-blended. Pour into prepared pastry shell. Bake at 375 degree oven for 45 minutes. Cool completely on wire rack. Just before serving, garnish with yogurt and pumpkin seeds if you wish. Yields one 9-inch pie.

PUMPKIN ORANGE TRIFLE

1 (10 3/4 oz.) loaf pound cake, cut into 1/4-inch slices
1/4 cups orange-flavored liqueur
2 large oranges, peeled, sectioned and chopped (about one cup)
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cups orange juice

1 (14-oz.) can sweetened condensed milk, not evaporated milk
1 (16 oz.) can pumpkin (about two cups)

1 Tbsp. grated orange rind
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
2 cups (1 pint) whipping cream, whipped

Additional whipped cream and orange sections, optional

Line bottom and side of two-quart glass serving bowl with two-thirds of pound cake slices. Sprinkle with two tablespoons liqueur; spoon 1/2 cup chopped oranges over bottom. Set aside. In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over orange juice; let stand one minute. Over low heat, cook and stir constantly until gelatin dissolves, about five minutes. Remove from heat. In large bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk and pumpkin; stir in rind, cinnamon, nutmeg, remaining liqueur and gelatin. Mix well. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon one-half mixture into prepared bowl; top with remaining cake slices, chopped oranges and pumpkin mixture. Chill three hours or until set. Garnish with whipped cream and orange sections if desired. Refrigerate leftovers.

PUMPKIN RUM CUSTARD
1 cup sugar
4 eggs

1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
1/2 cups water
1 (16 ounce) can pumpkin, about two cups
1/2 cup light rum
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 to 1/2 tsp. ground ginger
whipped cream, optional
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In skillet, over medium heat, cook sugar, stirring constantly until melted and caramel-colored. Using eight to ten 6-ounce custard cups, pour about 1 Tbsp. caramelized sugar on to bottom of each. Or use one 9-inch round layer cake pan; set aside. In large bowl, beat eggs; stir in remaining ingredients except whipped cream. Mix well. Pour mixture into prepared custard cups. Set cups in shallow pans; fill pan with one inch hot water. Bake 50 to 60 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cool completely. Invert custards onto serving plates. Garnish with whipped cream if desired. Refrigerate leftovers.

NEAPOLITAN PUMPKIN SQUARES
1/4 cups margarine or butter
1 1/2 cups ginger snap cookie crumbs (about 28 cookies)
3 eggs

1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk
1 (8 oz.) container sour cream
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cups orange juice
1 (16 oz.) can pumpkin (about two cups)
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/4 tsp. salt
whipped cream and orange twists, if desired
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium saucepan, melt margarine; add crumbs and mix well. Press onto bottom of 9-inch square baking pan. In medium bowl, beat eggs; stir in 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk and sour cream.

Pour into prepared pan. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until set. Meanwhile, in medium saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over orange juice; let stand one minute. Over low heat, cook and stir constantly until gelatin dissolves, about five minutes. Stir in remaining sweetened condensed milk, pumpkin, cinnamon and salt. Continue cooking and stirring until mixture thickens slightly, about 5 to 10 minutes. Spoon over sour cream layer. Chill three hours or until set. Cut into squares to serve. Garnish with whipped cream and orange twists if desired. Refrigerate leftovers.

PUMPKIN CHEESECAKE BARS
2 cups unsifted flour
3/4 cups firmly packed brown sugar
1/2 cups chopped pecans or walnuts
1/2 cups margarine or butter, melted
3 eggs, beaten
2 tps. vanilla extract
1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese, softened

1 (14 oz.) can sweetened condensed milk
1 (16 oz.) can pumpkin (about two cups)
2 tps. pumpkin pie spice
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium bowl, combine flour, sugar, 1/2 cup nuts and margarine until crumbly. Stir in one egg and one tsp. vanilla; mix well. Press onto bottom of 15 by 10 inch jellyroll pan. Bake 15 minutes. Meanwhile, in large mixer bowl, beat cheese until fluffy. Beat in sweetened condensed milk, remaining eggs, pumpkin, pumpkin pie spice and remaining vanilla until smooth. Pour over prepared crust; sprinkle remaining nuts on top. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until set. Cool to room temperature; cut into bars. Store in refrigerator.

PUMPKIN TEA BREAD
1 cup solid packed pumpkin
1 cup grated zucchini
3/4 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/4 cup oil

1/4 cup melted butter or margarine
2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup chopped pecans or walnuts
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a large bowl combine pumpkin, zucchini, sugar, eggs, oil and margarine; mix well. In separate bowl, combine flour, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon and salt. Add dry ingredients to pumpkin mixture, mixing only until flour is moistened. Stir in nuts. Spoon into well greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake 60 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan. Yields one loaf.

CREAMY CHEESE FILLING
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
3 Tps. margarine or butter, softened
Combine ingredients. Beat until light and fluffy, with wooden spoon or electric mixer at medium speed. Spread between slices of Pumpkin Tea Bread.

PUMPKIN QUICHE
1 can solid pack pumpkin

1/2 pound bacon, cooked, crumbled
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1 jar (2 1/2 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 can (13 fl. oz.) evaporated milk
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 Tps. flour
10-inch unbaked pie shell
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine pumpkin, bacon, onion, green pepper, mushrooms and eggs; mix well. Gradually add milk, stirring until blended. Toss cheese with flour. Fold into pumpkin mixture. Pour into pie shell. Bake 60 minutes or until knife inserted near center of pie comes out clean. Yields 10-12 servings.

NOTE: Quiche filling may be baked in two regular 9-inch frozen pie shells. Place cookie sheet on lowest oven rack; preheat oven and cookie sheet to 375 degrees. Divide pumpkin mixture in half. Pour into two frozen pie shells. Bake 50 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. After baking and cooling, unused quiche may be wrapped securely and frozen. To serve, thaw, unwrap and bake at 300 degrees until heated through.

Here are some tips when using pumpkins

The start of the holiday season is officially here, and in conjunction with this special season, many cooks are turning to the holiday sections of their cookbooks in search of special dishes. Many fall recipes call for the use of pumpkins. Pumpkin pie is one of the most favorite recipes using the colorful vegetable, but there are many ways to take advantage of it. Fresh pumpkin should always be cooked. To prepare for cooking, wash the pumpkin, cut in half, scrape the seeds out then cube and peel. Cook the cubes in salted, boiling water until tender. It's best to drain and mash the cooked pumpkin while still warm. It can be used immediately or frozen until needed.

Electronic eye watches decaying downtown

By JOHN THOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The gray-bearded Hasidic Jew shuffled down the street in the hot sun, paused to rest, mopped his brow with his sleeve, looked up in the air — then smiled and waved his wizened fingers.

Thanks to a controversial space-age bid to stop rising street crime, the patriarch was on TV — just like the other strollers, shoppers, children and bench-sitters on the corner around him.

Five months ago, Miami Beach put a one-mile stretch of its decayed downtown on television in a controversial experiment, and police are pleased with the result.

"We're trying to create an omnipresence of police and a sense of total paranoia for the criminal," says police officer Thomas Hoolahan. "We want to increase the criminal's sense of risk as much as possible when he walks down a Miami Beach street."

But Sylvia Thompson, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Florida, says the whole notion smacks of George Orwell's novel "1984" and its theme, "Big Brother is watching you."

In Orwell's inhumane future crammed with all-seeing video eyes, "you had to live — did live, from habit that became instinct — in the assumption that every sound you made was overheard, and, except in darkness, every movement scrutinized."

Hoolahan, however, defends the surveillance by saying it's no secret. "We want people to know the cameras are there. That's half the point of it — we're not spying," he says.

The cameras were turned on in June, after city officials figured they would have to double Miami Beach's 282-member police force to properly patrol the dilapidated South Beach neighborhood.

Peering with 50mm eyes, the cameras beam their pictures to a monitoring room where screens display what's happening at street corners along Washington Avenue and Lincoln Road.

It's the same technology once used by Israelis to watch the uneasy frontier that divided Jewish from Arab Jerusalem. But what do the TV screens depict in Miami Beach?

"Golly, it's boring, like watching an abandoned car," admits 76-year-old Harold Birch, a retired-stereotyper who has spent more than 150 hours before the monitors as a volunteer.

In fact, police have never seen a televised crime in progress. "Not yet," says Sgt. Richard Izzo, in charge of the video technology.

But police call the cameras a knockout weapon in their psychological war against crime in South Beach. Crime is down in Miami Beach in 1982, and although Hoolahan has no specific statistics, he gives much of the credit to the five months of video surveillance.

Police have mounted on light and traffic poles 112 metal camera cowlings marked "POLICE." There are only 20 TV cameras inside those cowlings, but, "We can move them (cameras) from housing to housing," says Hoolahan. Only an expert can tell where the eyes are.

Along the two streets, frequent large yellow signs declare: "Television Police Protection."

"One woman, her purse was being robbed, and she pointed up to the camera and said to the guy: 'You're crazy; don't you know they're watching you.' He stopped and took off," Izzo said.

But there are problems. The crown jewel in the $600,000 surveillance system is supposed to be a rotating camera with zoom lens atop the 14-story Financial Federal Building that can zero in on action anywhere in a three-block radius. It's broken, Izzo says.

Water-lover makes home in lighthouse

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Emmett Wiggins says a love of the water inspired him to live in a 146-year-old lighthouse he towed 8 miles from the mouth of the Roanoke River to his home in Edenton.

Wiggins has spent many of his 61 years in boats, pulling riches from the seas in his marine salvage business. When a friend offered him the castoff government lighthouse in 1955, Wiggins began his biggest salvage operation ever.

Now he lives alone in the restored 1836 structure, a two-story house with cupola and wide porch that has been the subject of several newspaper and magazine articles and the focus of many paintings.

"I've just liked water all my life," Wiggins said in a telephone interview. He says he has been building boats since the fifth grade, when he assembled a kayak, and has always lived near the water.

Wiggins' lighthouse is the only one left in North Carolina. The others, such as the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse, are towering lights with separate houses.

Wiggins' house once held a light on top of its roof, 35 feet off the ground.

The original light was a whale oil lamp whose flame was magnified by a large prism-type lens manufactured in Paris in 1888. Wiggins still has the lens but now uses a light bulb instead of the whale oil lamp.

Moving the lighthouse took 36 hours, a crew of men and a little money, Wiggins said. The men loaded the house on a barge and moved it up the river to the head of Edenton Bay.

"I did nothing to it but install electric current and put water in it to make it livable," he said. "It's a very solid structure. Captains used to stay out here weeks at a time."

Wiggins said the light tenders kept logs like sea captains. From those logs, he said, he has learned that previous residents once watched Civil War battles, including the sinking of the ram Albemarle, a Confederate ship known for its speed.

"There were times when the captains in the lighthouse couldn't get out to the lighthouse unless they would walk out on the ice," he said. "Other times they were ice'd in out there. It got a little hungry."

Wiggins still does some marine salvage work. In 1960, he rescued 140 tons of marble from the Atlantic Ocean off False Cape, Va. The marble had been there since 1895, when a ship from Genoa, Italy, ran aground.

ENERGY SAVER — Mike Bowers, general manager of Cameo Energy Homes of Big Spring, recently was presented an EnergySaver Home Award. The award, given by Manville Building Materials Corporation, is for outstanding achievement in home energy conservation.

Andes survivors: Not heroes, not ashamed

By Douglas Grant

Associated Press Writer
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — In the decade since they survived 70 days in the Andes Mountains on determination, faith and the flesh of their dead comrades, 16 young men have blended into everyday life.

They work as lawyers, doctors, accountants, businessmen and engineers and get together often to talk about "total tranquility" about how they stayed alive after their plane crashed in the Andes, and by the memory of dead friends and loved ones.

Some of the survivors are now confronting the problem of telling the story to their children.

Some of his classmates are nephews of those who died and we're afraid one of these days one of the kids is going to say something like "Your daddy ate up my uncle" and we don't want him to find out that way," Soledad Inciarte said of her 2-year-old son.

"I don't want to give him the idea his father is either a hero or ashamed. I'm just going to try to explain honestly how it was — something I did not go looking for, but that happened and that I got out of as I was able to," said her husband, Jose Luis Inciarte, one of four plane crash survivors interviewed by The Associated Press.

The ordeal began Oct. 13, 1972 when a chartered Uruguayan Air Force Fairchild F-27 crashed while carrying the Old Christian rugby club to Chile. Seven of the 45 people aboard died at once, and others perished of injuries or of exposure and starvation amid the lifeless, snow-covered peaks.

"My life is divided into before the crash and after the crash," said the bearded and robust Gustavo Zerbino, manager of a Montevideo chemical company and at 29 still an active rugby club player.

Zerbino said he and the others "most were barely when they were rescued — total tranquility" about what they did to survive.

"The mountains drastically changed our scale of values," he said. "We hit fires with money in the Andes. Money may help attain goals, but it is not a goal in itself."

Like other survivors, Zerbino is a devout Roman Catholic who sees an analogy between the sacrifice of the Mass and his own in the Andes. "I spent 24 weeks in the Andes," he said. "None of the survivors encountered insuperable problems returning to society, although most saw counselors for a time."

"He was weird for a good while after returning," Mrs. Inciarte said of her husband, 34 and an agronomist with a dairy farm. She said

Prison hostages freed

STONEY MOUNTAIN, Manitoba — Four rebellious prisoners surrendered peacefully Tuesday and released their two remaining hostages unharmed after a 19-hour siege at the Stony Mountain federal penitentiary, Assistant Warden Russ McGill announced.

He said the four convicts could appear in court in Winnipeg, but a fifth prisoner, previously believed part of the rebel group, was not really directly involved.

The siege began Sunday night after a Halloween party at the prison when the convicts herded four guards into a cellblock containing 37 other prisoners and barricaded it.

Two of the guards were released Monday after complaining of headaches. Prison officials said one of the other convicts in the cellblock slashed his arm in an apparent suicide attempt Monday, but they said he was not one of the rebels.

McGill said three officials from the Federal Correctional Services in Ottawa had begun an investigation of the incident and therefore he could not say what demands the convicts made for what concessions, if any, had been made.

He said earlier the rebels were not trying to escape and denied suggestions that overcrowding and understaffing were the cause of the incident.

he was fascinated by colors and distressed by insects after living without them in the cold for more than two months.

"I hardly think about it anymore. Only around this time of year," Inciarte, a calm man with a broad easy smile, said in an interview in his home in an affluent Montevideo suburb.

The survivors and relatives of victims attend three special Masses annually — one on the date of the crash, one 16 days later to mark an avalanche that killed seven people and the third on the date Numa Turcatti died.

Turcatti could not bring himself to eat human flesh. He starved to death two weeks before the rescue.

"On the anniversary of the rescue, we have a big party," said Inciarte. At such times, he said, the survivors talk incessantly and almost exclusively of their common experience, sometimes as a kind of psychological unburdening and sometimes "like at a college class reunion."

Roberto Canessa, one of two survivors who hiked 10 days to bring help — officials had long abandoned the search — agreed to an interview after firmly, but amiably, interrogating the reporter.

"I like to know who I'm talking to, his motives and his character," said the 29-year-old physician in a small office in Montevideo's Italian Hospital. "We have at times been treated badly about the crash."

"I let his curiosity dictate the pace and answer as and unfairly by the press."

Canessa's 6-year-old son Hilario is starting to ask clearly as I can what he asks. There's no use in going beyond that he asks for now," Canessa said.

"We were at a farm yesterday and they were going to slaughter some sheep. I told Hilario there is not a nice explanation for everything in the world and that for people to have food and live, other things or animals must die," he said. "I don't want to give him the image of a superfather."

Canessa added, "We are just human beings, real people."

Canessa has flown over the mountains since the crash.

"I get a very mystical mixture of feelings near the mountains. I feel the presence of God. It is the grave of my friends," he said.

Fernando Parrado, who joined Canessa on the dangerous walk for help, was found minding his hardware store in downtown Montevideo, a shock of long blond hair across his forehead.

Parrado raced motorcycles and stock cars in the years after the rescue and toured Europe, sometimes in the company of celebrities. But he came home to marry and settle down.

Canessa, who shared Parrado's fast life for a time, described the two friends as "adrenaline addicts, trying to live intensely."

Parrado, 32, now writes on auto racing for a newspaper. At a cafe, he spoke of sacrifice, camaraderie and his unshakable self-confidence.

"If I did that, I can do anything," he said.

"I'm no preacher. I don't go around telling people to enjoy what they have while they have it, but that is what we learned."

Parrado says he had a vision in the Andes, and he later explored theology with priests and philosophers.

"What I found out was how little is known. There is nothing a priest can tell me about God. My experience is more profound than his."

"It is not like they teach you in catechism," he said.

Swedish adults return to school

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Ever fall 2 million Swedes — a third of the adult population — go back to school to learn everything from porcelain painting to political history.

Titles available among the 340,000 courses, or "study circles," include "Getting To Know Albania" and "Mushrooms We Find in the Woods."

Peter Engberg, secretary of the National Swedish Federation of Adult Education Associations, said actual enrollment was about 3.2 million annually, but because some take more than one course, "we estimate the number of participants at 2 million."

The Swedish government finances circle leaders, study materials and administration.

"Study circles are good because you don't need any knowledge beforehand to be able to participate and there is no pressure on you. It's all up to you," said Marianne Jensfelt, a 33-year-old job counselor who has attended more than a half-dozen study circles.

She studied Spanish for several semesters, took an introductory course in weaving and attended a seminar series on energy resources. She also took a course on the political system of Albania, followed by a trip to that communist country.

Typically, informal learning techniques are used — no grades are given, no formal qualifications are required of leaders, and a course's students may draw up their own plan of study.

By the same token, the terminology used in information brochures is designed to prevent association with traditional schooling.

Ex-drug user reclaiming his life

By DENNIS OASSANO
Minneapolis Tribune

WINONA, Minn. — "I had the rope around my neck."

That's how close Peter Oehler came to committing suicide in February.

There had been a week of snorting cocaine, smoking it, speedballing — mixing it with heroin and injecting it into his veins.

In one year, the 30-year-old dairy farmer from Winona estimated, he had spent $80,000 for cocaine. He had lied to his wife, Joey, run up debts and conned his father out of "a lot" of money, he said.

Oehler said he had sold cocaine to finance a habit so severe he was snorting it every five minutes. And the drug no longer had an effect. Oehler said when he began using cocaine at Breck High School in Minneapolis at age 15, he got euphoric. At the end, 15 years later, he said he used it merely to try to get over his depression.

"I couldn't feel any sorrow for Joey or anybody around me," Oehler said. "I was just a complete blah. Deep down, I was really hurting. I was confused. I knew I couldn't continue on the way I was."

Adding to the confusion was his loss of memory. He couldn't remember parts of his and Joey's wedding or much about the birth of their daughter, Alicia, who is now 4 years old.

One week in February after he took Joey and Alicia to visit Joey's parents and then returned home to his cocaine, a friend talked to him about seeking treatment. The next day, Oehler walked down to the basement of his home and put the noose around his neck.

"I was very, very sedated and I didn't know what was coming or going. I wanted to feel some real pain," he said, adding that he was paranoid. "It was like falling through a tunnel — I had no escape and everything was closing in on me."

But Oehler stopped and removed the noose because "I really wanted to live. I think I knew there had to be something better." So he entered treatment to rid himself of the psychological dependence that was ruining his life.

Oehler, a powerful man with strong arms and blunt farmer's hands, described his growing dependence on cocaine recently as he sat in the living room of the house on the 400-acre farm near Winona that he and Joey began renting in April.

Electronics forecast earthquake

TOKYO — Japan is increasingly turning to the wizardry of its electronics industry to catch the approach of major earthquakes and quell the social shudders that have accompanied damaging quakes of the past.

The electronic devices range from radio wave measurements of quasar stars — a means of detecting minute movements in the earth's crust — to radio broadcasts warning of an impending tremor.

Experts insist this technology may save thousands of lives when the next big one hits the geologically unstable and densely populated Tokai area of central Japan, including Tokyo.

Shizuoka Prefecture (state), located in the area most vulnerable to quakes, has estimated that in a worst-case scenario more than 97,000 people would be killed in the Tokai area along Japan's Pacific Ocean coast if a tremor the size of the Great Kanto Earthquake were to hit today.

In that 1923 disaster, which measured 7.9 on the Richter scale, 140,000 people were killed, many in the ensuing fires that consumed congested areas of wood and paper houses. That quake was followed by social chaos in which thousands of Korean residents in Tokyo, rumored to have poisoned well water, were murdered.

Adding to the concern is a well-known theory that major earthquakes recur in 60-year cycles, making the next one due in 1983.

Scientists have yet to master the art of prediction, but Japanese seismologists have high hopes in electronic systems which measure tiny changes in distances between hillsides and beaches, or islands and continental shelves. They say these movements in the earth's crust are one of the most reliable clues to earthquakes.

In a Geographical Survey Institute project, radio waves emitted by faraway stars called quasars are received by two earth stations on different "plates," or major segments of the earth's crust whose clashing are believed to cause earthquakes.

The institute, now working from temporary stations, plans to build permanent stations on Minami Torishima on the Pacific Plate, about 1,062 miles southeast of Tokyo, and on Chichijima on the Philippine Sea Plate, about 688 miles south of Tokyo.

Quasar measurements are accurate down to millimeters, even at distances between two points of more than 625 miles, institute officials said.

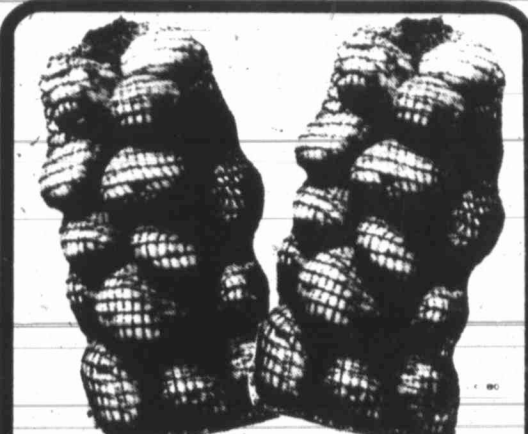

The institute is also experimenting with laser emitting and receiving stations that measure relatively shorter distances, such as between mountain peaks or islands in a carefully positioned network.

Once signs of a major earth upheaval are detected, authorities will inform local governments, many which have installed public address systems to warn residents of imminent danger.

1980 prison riot prosecutions nearing end

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. — When rioting inmates seized control of the New Mexico State Penitentiary for 36 terror-filled hours in February 1980, prisoners turned on one another with savagery and hate.

Grudges were settled in blood. Inmates regarded as "snitches" were tortured and killed by self-styled executioners who roamed the burning maximum-security prison.

Twenty-six of the inmates who died in the carnage were murdered and seven died from smoke inhalation, officials said. Corrections officers were held hostage and brutalized. The prison was left in smoking ruins.

The riot spawned the biggest prosecution effort in New Mexico history. As the effort draws to a close, attorneys for both sides say they think justice has been served.

But because it has been difficult to obtain accurate evidence and reliable witnesses from the riot, they also agree the convicted inmates have gotten lighter sentences than if the crimes had been committed outside prison walls.

"From my perspective, and I guess I have a bias, I always thought they were getting off a little light," said Tom Fiorina, who is in charge of the special prosecution office.

"In view of the riot situation and the facts and circumstances where getting any kind of punishment is difficult, I'd say that we've probably milked all the justice out of it that we could get," he said.

In more than two years of drawn-out hearings, trials and plea negotiations, four inmates have been convicted of first-degree murder in trials and 23 have pleaded guilty to crimes, said Charles Baldonado, chief special prosecutor. Charges against 13 prisoners were dropped.

Those convicted received sentences ranging from a few months tacked onto their existing prison terms to 30 years and life, Baldonado said.

But the prosecutors have been criticized for agreeing to plea bargain with inmates charged with riot-related crimes, including murder. One newspaper ran a headline that said, "Are state pen rioters getting away with murder?"

Fiorina said the plea bargains in some cases were the only way to ensure that inmates would be punished.

"It's difficult enough (to prosecute) when you have witnesses that saw a crime on the street on a nice, clear day," he said. "But when you're talking about a riot situation with all that smoke and confusion, it's even tougher."

"And when you're talking about a prison riot, you're talking about witnesses whose credibility often isn't reliable."

A good example of the predicament is the charges that were dismissed as the investigation progressed, Fiorina said. Twelve of the 13 dismissals were on first-degree murder charges.

"You take the initial statements and the indictments are filed," he said. "Then, you find five people who say they knew the guy was in another cellblock at the time. Then, the five people who told you they saw the guy somewhere else committing a murder say they aren't so sure."

"When it comes down to it then, you've got nobody who really saw it and you dismiss the charges."

Baldonado said the same conflicts apply to the plea bargains.

"You have a swearing match between the state's group of witnesses and the defense group of witnesses as to what happened," he said. "Plea bargaining is an economical and reasonable route to take."

Last stores leaving downtown

DETROIT (AP) — When Santa Claus waves to children Thanksgiving Day from a balcony outside the J.L. Hudson Co. store in downtown Detroit, he'll be waving goodbye.

His appearance traditionally climaxes the nation's oldest Turkey-Day parade, which annually attracts an estimated half-million people. And although it's likely Santa and the crowds will return for the 57th edition of the parade next year, Hudson's won't.

The "Big Store" — with floor space exceeded only by Macy's in New York — is closing in January, leaving the downtown area of the nation's sixth-largest city without a major department store.

Hudson's, a Detroit institution for more than 100 years, is blaming a 20-year sales decline at its downtown store for the decision. The firm has said it would concentrate on more profitable suburban stores.

"The size of the building and its age make it an expensive and inefficient arena to do business in," Hudson's Chairman P. Gerald Mills said when the closing was announced in July. "Consumers prefer a multifaceted shopping environment with several major anchor stores, a variety of specialty shops and nearby free parking."

Since then, he has declined to be interviewed about the fate of the store.

Sales at the downtown store have been falling steadily since 1953, from a peak of $153 million to $45 million in 1981, according to a confidential company memo obtained by the Detroit Free Press.

Hudson's was the nation's first major retailer to invest in the expanding and more affluent suburbs. In 1954, the family-owned company built what then was America's largest regional shopping center — Northland — some 13 miles northwest of downtown Detroit.

"Hudson's moved aggressively to the suburbs because that's where their market went... It's basic economics," says Monroe Greenstein, senior analyst at Bear Stearns Co. in New York.

Detroit had a predominantly white population of 1.8 million in 1950. Now the recession-wracked city has a population of 1.2 million, 63 percent black, according to the latest census, and an unemployment rate of more than 18 percent. The median income of a city resident stands at $17,033, "a significant decline" of $2,842 from 1969, says Gordon Lester of the U.S. Census Bureau.

Detroit city officials still are trying to reverse the decision by Hudson's, which merged in 1969 with Dayton Corp. to form Dayton Hudson Corp., a nationwide retailer based in Minneapolis.

But as Greenstein says, "In business, money comes first. Tradition second."

Tradition always was big at the family-owned Hudson's, "certainly one of the leading department stores in the U.S.," says author Robert Hendrickson, who wrote "The Grand Emporium," a book about the nation's great department stores. "You won't see another like it," he says.

The main floor at Hudson's downtown is a throwback to another era. High ceilings. Marble floors. Chandeliers. Lush red carpets. Elegance — from the perfume counter to the brass drinking fountains. A brewer's paradise.

The mezzanine is a maze of specialty stores in a nostalgic atmosphere: a flower shop, shoe repair, a counter for stamp and coin collectors and a card shop.

American football reaches Britain on new Channel Four

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Britain's first new television channel in 18 years debuted Tuesday, despite a storm of controversy over a bill of fare that ranges from American football and "I Love Lucy" reruns to punk rock shows and shocking movies.

Chief Executive Jeremy Isaacs predicts Channel 4 will win a 10 percent share of the viewing audience in this nation of 56 million by the end of its second year.

But, the veteran 49-year-old TV producer adds: "I know there are banana skins on every square inch of the pavement ahead, and the television adage says: 'If at first you don't succeed, you're fired.'"

Channel 4 goes on the air with a noncontroversial word game called "Countdown."

However, for those who tune in during prime-time tonight, the independent channel will feature "Walter," a movie with Ian McKellen in the title role of a mentally handicapped man who is seen sleeping with his mother's corpse and being sexually attacked by a crippled male midget.

A critic called it "one of the most shocking films ever seen on TV."

Launched with $177 million put up by Britain's 14 commercial TV production companies, Channel 4 has been charged by Parliament with the job of providing "a distinctive service."

But one marketing executive, criticizing the programming as being limited, claimed it was only "geared to punks, Rastafarians and the Irish."

Channel 4 is Britain's second commercial station. The other is Independent Television or ITV. There are two non-commercial channels, BBC1 and BBC2, run by the publicly funded British Broadcasting Corp.

The station already has gotten a double dose of labor trouble.

Actors are pressing for more money to make commercials, forcing Channel 4 to start out with fewer station breaks and an estimated revenue loss of $850,000 daily. Local technicians working on Channel 4 programs around the country are still negotiating for pay and work conditions.

Defending his station against critics, Isaacs said Channel 4 is "saying to people: 'You may not like all of what we're doing, but there's something there for you.'"

There's "Deep Roots Music," featuring Rastafarian reggae on Friday evenings; and "Irish Angle" on Sunday afternoons. For the punks, there's "The Tube" and several other rock shows.

But there's also a women-only view of current affairs, a physical fitness show, a soap opera set in a Liverpool public housing complex, a magazine program for pensioners and a consumer guide.

Cultural programs include Luciano Pavarotti singing "Idomeneo" in a telecast from The Metropolitan Opera in New York and the Royal Shakespeare Company's acclaimed dramatization of Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby."

Oyster war erupts again in Maryland

By CHRISTOPHER SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer

POCOMOKE CITY, Md. — For more than 200 years, Maryland and Virginia have battled for possession of oyster beds that cling to the floor of the Chesapeake Bay. Local residents call it an "oyster war," a conflict that recently has grown more hostile.

Earlier this month, gunfire from a Virginia boat wounded two Maryland watermen, and officials have increased bay patrols along the watery, zigzagging boundary that separates the two states.

Since 1785, when Maryland and Virginia first entered into a compact to regulate fishing in disputed areas, the seafood competition has been waged in the courts and occasionally at sea.

Some observers say the outbreaks of violence come in years, like this one, when the oyster catch is lean. Others say a disparity between the two states' fishing regulations aggravates tensions. Some blame the feisty, independent spirit of watermen and local residents' long memory of past shootings.

Thirty-three years after the last fatal shooting of a Maryland waterman, Elmira Ford, a resident of Crisfield on Maryland's Eastern Shore, still speaks angrily about it and doubts the dispute will ever be settled. "Not as long as there's oysters out there," she said.

"The heart of the issue is there's been bad feeling for centuries between Maryland and Virginia ... over this very touchy issue of sovereignty," said local historian John Wennersten. "Here in 1982, it's still a frontier mentality... These watermen, they're Indians without a reservation."

The latest incident involved Randall Burke and his brother, Ronald, both of Crisfield, who were hit by pellets on Oct. 5 while returning home from oystering.

Virginia authorities arrested 33-year-old Robert P. Clock of Parkley, Va., and 58-year-old Glenn C. Evans of Saxis, Va. — who live across the disputed Pocomoke Sound.

They were charged in Maryland warrants with assault with intent to kill and other violations. Both are free on bond and will likely fight extradition to Maryland, according to their lawyer, Daniel Hartnett.

In another incident, Virginia authorities are seeking the extradition of Luther Ray Sterling of Crisfield, who was named in a warrant charging felony power-dredging for oysters in the sound in July. He was indicted the day before the shooting incident.

Before dawn recently at a watermen's cafe in Virginia, oystermen muttered about the shootings. "They just got too bold," said Bob Martin of Saxis. "They're taking food off our tables," added Don Porter.

Maryland fishermen are allowed to use crane-like "patent tongs" to bite the bay floor and bring up oysters, while Virginia residents can only use hand tongs.

Maryland's oyster season opens on Sept. 15, about two weeks ahead of Virginia's — and Marylanders can work the bay six days a week until sundown, while Virginia residents must stop at 2 p.m. and work only five days.

Vernon Drewer, who operates an oyster packing company in Saxis, echoed watermen on both sides of the state line when he complained of lax law enforcement — noting that Virginia Natural Resources police do not carry guns.

"Like I was telling one of the (agency's) commissioners, he's got a bunch of meter maids out there," said Drewer.

Some Virginia fishermen have complained about a federal judge's ruling in a suit filed by Maryland watermen, opening up Virginia bay waters to crabbing by out-of-state fishermen.

Kuhn out and hurt

NEW YORK (AP) — A sleepy-eyed but undaunted Bowie Kuhn returned to his desk Tuesday, disappointed but not embittered that a minority of baseball owners denied extension of his contract as the game's commissioner.

He will continue until Aug. 13, the expiration date of his second seven-year contract, while an eight-man executive board seeks a successor.

"Am I bitter?" the 6-foot-5 onetime Wall Street attorney said, repeating a question. There was a long pause while he pondered the query.

"Bitterness" is a foreign word to me," he said. "Rancor" and "hatred" — they're not in my vocabulary. Hurt? Yes. And confused. When I knew that 70 percent of the owners supported me and knowing I have done a good job and baseball has made tremendous strides, I am naturally disappointed.

"I regret, too, that I will not be able to be a part of the great gains that I have envisioned for the game."

Kuhn was rejected by eight of the 26 clubs — the five decisive ones coming in the National League — at a meeting of owners Monday in Chicago.

He caught a plane and flew back to New York through a storm to find his family greeting him in a party atmosphere. He arose at 5 a.m., EST, Tuesday to meet live broadcast commitments with the three major television networks.

Returning to his 16th floor office in a New York skyscraper, he found the telephone ringing incessantly. He didn't duck anyone.

Kuhn said he could have saved his job if he had been willing to placate the hard core of his detractors and agree to compromise the role of his office.

"I could never do that," he insisted. "I firmly believe that baseball's survival depends on a strong commissioner. I don't think the game can be run by a two-headed monster as suggested."

Landry: NFL can still play

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry said on his weekly radio show Monday night if the National Football League Players-Association strike is settled soon a creditable season can still be played.

Landry added, however, "I'm really not optimistic about playing this week. I wouldn't have any problem with 11 or 10 games."

"But if you go below 12 games then you have to become conscious of division games."

Landry said he could put a team on the field Wednesday and still play this Sunday. "We wouldn't have any trouble getting our players back because most of them are in Dallas," he said.

TITLE FIGHT UNDER THE DOME—World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Larry Holmes, left, will meet Randy "Tex" Cobb (formerly of Abilene) for the title in the Houston Astrodome Nov. 22 or Nov. 26, depending on the NFL strike. Promoter Don King, center, brought the heavyweights together at a news conference in Houston Monday to announce the fight.

USFL gaining more optimism

CLEVELAND (AP) — The labor problem currently plaguing the National Football League would be welcome in the United States Football League for no other reason than it would be a sign of success, a top USFL official says.

"If we succeed, we'll have to unionize, no doubt about it; but if we fall on our butts, there'll be no reason for the players to form a union," said Peter Hadhazy, former general manager of the NFL Cleveland Browns and now the No. 2 man in the new league.

The word "failure" is not in Hadhazy's vocabulary when he discusses the USFL. "I don't think any of our owners would have come in without the understanding that we will someday be as good as the NFL," said Hadhazy, who was administrative coordinator for the NFL before joining the USFL for a salary reported to be near $250,000 a year.

Art Modell, Cleveland Browns president and Hadhazy's former boss, has speculated that the USFL would be a minor league for the NFL, which was in the 33rd day of a players-strike today.

"I can only assume Art was talking out of hope, not fact," Hadhazy said. "Anybody who even speculates that we will be a 'feeder league' for the NFL doesn't know what he is talking about. We plan to establish our own identity. It won't come immediately, but we are not going to be a bunch of ragamuffins."

The 12 USFL teams so far have signed about 1,000 players. The league is screening 600 applications from candidates for jobs as officials.

After the USFL's first draft of college football players Jan. 4, the teams will try to sign as many players as possible before the NFL draft in April.

Chuck Hutchison, a former Ohio State All-American and Cleveland Browns lineman, says the USFL has a sounder base than the defunct World Football League.

"The biggest difference between us and the WFL is that we have territorial rights when it comes to acquiring players," said the 32-year-old Hutchison, who is player personnel director and offensive line coach for the Oakland Invaders. "All 12 teams have five colleges in their area that they can draw from — two big schools, two medium schools and one small college players only from those schools."

Lillis wants Astros to jell

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Lillis, armed with a one-year contract to manage the Houston Astros, says the club needs to make some changes, but he gave no indication of plans for a major overhaul.

"The real challenge is going to be to put together a team that will jell and have the right chemistry," Lillis said Tuesday after he became the eighth manager in the club's 21-year history. "But when all is said and done, it comes down to wins and losses."

The Astros had more wins than losses under Lillis last season. The 21-year Astros employee took over as interim manager on Aug. 10 after Bill Virdon was fired. He led the Astros to a 28-23 record from there to the end of the season.

Lillis said he had learned a lot about baseball from his association with Virdon and other managers including Walt Alston, Grady Hatton, Leo Durocher and Harry Walker.

"I'll try to manage like Bob Lillis but I hope some of all of those managers will rub off on me," Lillis said.

Lillis said he didn't mind a one-year contract either. "Walt Alston (who managed the Los Angeles Dodgers for 23 years) always did very well on a one-year contract," Lillis said. "I feel if I do well, I won't have to worry about it. If I don't, no one will have to tell me."
