A TOUGH FIRST HALF — American All-Star Adam Johnkey (13) may have some grass in his eye or be hurting from a first half tumble at the Little Football League Super Bowl Saturday afternoon at Blankenship Field. The pain went away later, however, as the Americans rallied by the Nationals 34-22 in the high-scoring contest for third and fourth graders.

27 prisoners die in jail blaze

By DAVID McCORMICK
Associated Press Writer

BILOXI, Miss. — A fire set by a mentally disturbed prisoner in a padded cell filled the Harrison County Jail with thick, black smoke today, killing at least 27 prisoners and injuring 46 people, authorities said.

Six of the injured were in critical condition.

Some prisoners, awakened in the middle of the night by the choking smoke from the plastic cell stuffing, put rags beneath their cell doors in a desperate attempt to save themselves. There were 95 prisoners in the jail when the fire broke out.

"The smoke was really bad," said Biloxi Fire Chief Guy Roberts. "The fire wasn't real bad. We extinguished it right away, but the jail became filled with smoke and the jailer who was trying to let the prisoners out became overcome."

By the time officials got the keys from the jailer, the one-story brick-and-concrete building was filled with thick, black smoke and trapped prisoners were overcome, he said.

"The lights were still on but they weren't doing any good. All we could do was feel our way, feel under the bunks or wherever people were huddled," said Deputy Fire Chief Bruce Marie. "Some of them were trying to block the cells with rags to keep the smoke out before we got there."

Harrison County Coroner Ed Little said 25 men and two women perished.

The prisoner who set the fire was not badly hurt and was taken to a hospital for observation, officials said. The inmate was not identified.

The fire was started by a mentally ill inmate who had been brought in Sunday night pending a sanity hearing, said George Zatzko, the assistant warden.

Zatzko said the man ignited the padding which was "a type of polyurethane, I believe. I don't know exactly what it consists of."

The jailer, Tom Miller, was rescued shortly after the fire broke out at 1:31 a.m. and he was one of those in critical condition.

Marie said firefighters with air packs crawled on their hands and knees dragged many prisoners out, and Roberts said wreckers had to be used to pull bars off windows.

JAIL FIRE AFTERMATH — Twenty-seven prisoners were dead and at least 47 injured early this morning in a fire at the Harrison County Jail in Biloxi, Miss. Officials said the blaze began when an inmate in this high security padded cell set fire to a mattress. More than 90 prisoners were housed in the jail.

Marie said he could not hear the prisoners shouting and that most were unconscious when rescuers reached them.

"We were carrying them out like flies," Roberts said. He said he did not know why the prisoner ignited the cell.

Relatives of prisoners, red-eyed and haggard, came to the jail in this Gulf Coast city of about 50,000 people to get word on their loved ones.

Thirty-one people arrived at the emergency room at Biloxi Regional Medical Center, said administrator Tom Gee, who earlier had said 36 had

Council considers bingo tax

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring city councilmen may approve a two percent gross receipts tax on bingo games conducted within city limits. The council is scheduled to consider the proposal at their regular Tuesday night meeting.

Also, the council will consider leasing an empty firehouse on West 13th St. to the Howard County Ministerial Fellowship as an emergency shelter for "abused and neglected children."

Finance Director Tom Ferguson recommended in a memo that the council approve an ordinance levying a bingo tax. The Bingo Enabling Act provides that governing bodies in counties where bingo is legalized may impose a two percent tax on gross receipts over $2,500. This means all funds, including card sales, food and beverage sales and entrance fees.

Ferguson said the city will not administrate or collect the fees. The organizations conducting bingo games would be required to file returns with the State Comptroller's office on a monthly basis. The comptroller's office distributes the money collected — less a two percent administrative fee — at least two times a year.

Balloonists begin trip around world

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Maxie Anderson waved and said, "Let's Go," and his red, white and blue gondola shot off the launch pad for his third daredevil attempt to soar around the globe in a balloon.

Under the glare of about 15 floodlights, the Jules Verne lifted off at 12:53 a.m. CST Monday and quickly disappeared into the cold South Dakota sky as about 6,000 people watched.

Rising about 2,000 feet in 30 seconds, the ship quickly sailed out of view.

Anderson, who became the first balloonist to cross the Atlantic Ocean and North America, and co-pilot Don Ida were sailing across the northern United States and Canada early today and expected to arrive over the Atlantic Ocean somewhere off Nova Scotia about 24 hours after liftoff.

The liftoff was delayed about three hours when one of two hoses used to fill the translucent polyethylene envelope with helium cracked. "We were down to one lifeline, so to speak," said Jim Mitchell, project press officer.

If both tubes had ruptured, the liftoff would have been postponed, he said.

The balloon's envelope — about as thick as two dry cleaning bags — was finally filled with 250,000 cubic feet of helium that will expand to 490,000 cubic feet when the sun hits it, Mitchell said.

Anderson and Ida waved from the gondola and shouted, "Let's go! Thanks for everything," and they took off.

The Jules Verne is named for the science-fiction writer of "Around the World in 80 Days." But if their plans Mitchell predicted the balloon would cut across Minnesota and into Canada and head over the Atlantic in about 24 hours. Within about an hour of takeoff, the Jules Verne was at 22,500 feet and traveling about 45 mph.

The Jules Verne will be tracked at Bedford, Mass., said Mitchell.

Says he never envisioned bloodbath

Begin testifies in massacre inquiry

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Menachem Begin testified today he did not know in advance his defense minister sent Lebanese Christian militiamen into two Beirut refugee camps and never envisioned they would massacre Palestinians.

But in a 47-minute appearance before a three-man Israeli commission probing the September killings, Begin also testified he feared Israel's Lebanese Christian allies would seek revenge on Beirut Moslems following the assassination of President-elect Bashir Gemayel.

Begin's testimony supported Defense Minister Ariel Sharon's earlier statement that he decided to send Israel's Christian allies into the camps to hunt Palestinian guerrillas. Begin said he learned of Sharon's decision at a Cabinet meeting on the day the bloodbath began, Thursday, Sept. 16.

Sharon had testified he acted under a Cabinet decision to give the Christians greater involvement in the Lebanese operation, which began when Israel invaded Lebanon on June 6 to rout the Palestine Liberation Organization.

But the commission was puzzled about why, if fear of vengeance existed, Begin's government approved sending Israel's Lebanese Christian allies into the camps, where they massacred hundreds of Palestinian men, women and children.

"The fact is that it occurred to no one that atrocities might be committed," said Begin, flanked by two aides in the commission chamber at the Hebrew University Campus in Jerusalem's Jewish sector. He asserted this several times under repeated questioning.

He also swore that he was not warned by Israeli intelligence services of a possible bloodbath. Asked by commission member Ahron Barak whether they should have warned him, Begin said:

"I cannot, in such serious matters, say in advance what they should have told me. It is mainly up to their initiative. They are the ones who are doing the work."

New evidence also surfaced during the hearing that at least someone in Israel — military Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan — accurately foresaw a slaughter.

Commission member Yona Efrat, a retired general, quoted Eytan as telling the Cabinet an hour after the camp operation began: "The next thing that will happen is an outpouring of vengeance... It will be an outpouring the likes of which hasn't happened before. I already can see through their eyes what they're looking forward to."

Efrat apparently referred to testimony given by Eytan during a closed session of the commission. Appearing relaxed and good-humored, the 60-year-old Begin answered questions tersely and respectfully. Identifying himself at the start of his testimony, Begin said in Hebrew: "My name is Begin, Menachem, and my function is prime minister."

Sharon told the commission Oct. 25 that the sweep of the refugee camps was ordered stopped at midday on Sept. 17 — four hours before the meeting.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: School crossings

Q. Are the patrolmen at the schools only watching for speeders or are they supposed to watch kids, too?

A. According to Big Spring Police Chief Rick Turner, the police are there mainly for traffic control and violations in school zones. Officers are expected to take action if children are in the streets, but otherwise depend on their school education program to keep kids off the roads. All schools are patrolled on a rotating basis, Turner said. About 4-5 citations are issued daily, he added.

Bullet that killed Wood identified

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An FBI ballistics expert testified today that the bullet that killed U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. is the same kind of ammunition used in high-powered Weatherby Mark V hunting rifles.

Special agent Robert Sibert told the jury in the trial of three people charged in connection with Wood's death that he concluded from examining seven copper fragments and 11 lead fragments, that the bullet that tore into Wood's back was a .243-caliber, or a 6 mm, the kind used by sportsmen.

He said the fragments were consistent with a 100-grain "mushrooming" bullet fired by the .243-caliber rifle.

Sibert said a tell-tale sign that the bullet was fired from a Weatherby Mark V was the 86-thousandths-inch grooves he found on one of the fragments that a medical examiner removed from the slain judge's body. Prosecutors earlier introduced evidence that Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, bought a Weatherby Mark V rifle in Dallas 12 days before Wood was killed in San Antonio on May 29, 1979.

The barrel and firing mechanism of the alleged murder weapon have never been found, but prosecutors introduced into evidence the stock of a rifle found east of Dallas. They contend the stock was part of the weapon used to kill Wood.

Mrs. Harrelson is being tried for conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Her husband, convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, 44, is accused of murder for allegedly firing the fatal shot. Also on trial, for conspiracy to murder and obstruct justice, is Elizabeth Chagra, 28, wife of the man who allegedly paid Harrelson $250,000 to kill Wood.

Prosecutors this week began calling witnesses to tie up loose ends as the trial entered its fifth week of testimony.

Prosecutors have not yet called John Lee Spinelli, who occupied a cell adjoining Harrelson's in the Harris County Jail in late 1980.

Defense attorneys call Spinelli a "walking bug," in reference to Spinelli's testimony during a pre-trial hearing that he became a government agent in late 1980 and tape-recorded Harrelson's conversations at the jail.

Government lawyers are expected to try to introduce some of the tapes into evidence. Spinelli remains incarcerated at an undisclosed location.

Mrs. Chagra's husband, convicted narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, also is charged with murder. He will be tried separately later.

Prosecutors accuse Jimmy Chagra in a plan to pay Harrelson to kill Wood, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences, so that the judge could not preside over his criminal enterprise trial. Chagra was subsequently convicted in another trial.

HEADING TOWARD GOAL — Sherrie Bordsoske, executive director of the United Way, stands on the Big Spring Fire Department's "Green Machine," with several other participants in the UW drive. Pictured here, standing left, are City Fireman Ken Davidson, who reports a contribution of $4,000 from city employees, and Hooper Sanders, special division chairman and chairman of Texas Electric, which reported $2,600 from employees. At the top right is Perfecto Caudillo Jr., of Western Container, a group which contributed $3,070.

Bell announces basic rate hike

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Come Tuesday, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. residential customers are likely to be paying $3.25 more a month for basic phone service.

Bell officials notified the Public Utility Commission last week that the company intends to put so-called bonded rates into effect Nov. 9 while awaiting a final rate decision from the three-member commission.

A final decision on Bell's record $471.5 million rate hike request is not expected until sometime in January.

Increases in one-party business charges are expected to range from $3.85 in the smallest cities to no increase in Houston.

The temporary rates, which will be subject to refund if they are higher than those eventually approved by the PUC, still must receive the commission's stamp of approval before they can go into effect, commission spokeswoman Ronna Martin said. That approval could come late Friday or Monday, she said.

"The rates we will implement under bond generally follow recommendations made by the PUC staff shortly after hearings began on our request in September," Bell Vice President Paul Roth said. "We feel those recommendations are a reasonable compromise until the PUC makes a final decision."

Rates to be implemented under bond will total about $292 million on an annual basis, Roth said, with $208.1 million of that coming from the local exchange basis. The remainder would come equipment connection and other charges.

arrived. Gee said five of the injured there were critical.

Gee said the injured at Biloxi Regional included 20 prisoners, eight firemen, one policeman, one security guard and one ambulance worker.

At the Gulf Coast Community Hospital, executive director Harold Boyer said 14 people had been admitted for smoke inhalation and other injuries, and one was in critical condition. Eleven prisoners, one jailer and two policemen were at the hospital, he said.

At Gulfport Memorial Hospital, one prisoner was in satisfactory condition with burns, a spokesman said.

Investigators were on the scene in downtown Biloxi, said Marie.

"It's a building that's hard to ventilate" because of the heavy security, said Marie. He said the building is 15 to 18 years old.

"We thought we would have to go through the windows to get an escape route, but we kept sending people in with air packs and they started bringing them out," he said.

Some prisoners were still in their cells, "but they were all over the building."

"I know every effort was made to release those who were locked up," Marie said. "It's nothing like I've ever seen in 20 years of firefighting. The smoke was about the worst I've ever seen. You could hardly see at all."

Zatko said the cell material had been tested by the fire department before installation and he was unsure how the inmate managed to get it burning. "It had to have been a awful hot fire for that material to catch," he said.

He said deputies had "smelled smoke and the smoke detectors went off. They went back there to investigate and when they opened that door, it (fire) just flashed out on them."

Nathan Leblanc, a Biloxi policeman hospitalized after pulling several inmates from the jail, cried as he awaited attention from medical personnel.

UTEP professor found dead with throat slashed

EL PASO (AP) — A 50-year-old University of Texas-El Paso psychology professor has been found dead with his throat slashed, police said.

UTEP professor Jack Parker Landrum was found dead Sunday afternoon, splayed on a bed in his three-bedroom home. He was found by a male friend, said Lt. John Lanahan.

Police, who said they have no suspects, reported it was the third incidence of violence in connection with the college professor. In 1969, Landrum was stabbed during a struggle with an unknown assailant at his apartment. Police said he was robbed of $50 and had his car keys stolen.

Last May, Landrum — a UTEP professor since 1966 and former teacher in Amarillo — was attacked by a man he met at a local bar, police reported.

Neighbors in the quiet suburb where Landrum lived said the professor often had visitors. Neighbors also reported Landrum's former roommate was seen driving past his home earlier this week, prompting them to think there had been a reconciliation.

HCJCD committee to meet

The Affirmative Action Committee of the Howard County Junior College District will meet at 3 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 11 in the Tumbleweed Room of the Dora Roberts Student Union Building.

The purpose of the committee is to monitor the practices of the district in hiring, training and promoting personnel and to assist the administration in its efforts to execute the Affirmative Action plan of the district.

The meeting is open to the public. Any matters coming under the jurisdiction of the committee may be brought up at the meeting. A student, employee or other citizen may present matters for consideration in writing or request a personal hearing by contacting any member of the committee.

Members of the committee are Julia Trevino, George Taylor, Angel Ramos, Jimmy Robles, Dan Shockey, Mary Dudley and Doris Huibrigg.

Council

Also, First Christian Church Minister Victor Sedinger will appear as spokesman for the fellowship's request to lease — rent-free — a city-owned building across from Airport Elementary. The proposed shelter would provide short-term care for non-criminal children in the custody of the Texas Department of Human Resources, the Howard County Juvenile Probation Officer, or the Big Spring Police Department.

Tim Winn, minister of First Baptist Church in Knott, said in a letter to City Manager Don Davis that the fellowship estimates an average of three children would occupy the building each day.

Calling the program "The Rainbow Project," Winn said "a rent free agreement may not seem to recompense the city for use of the property, (but) we believe that the services rendered to the community ... will more than repay the people of our area."

In other matters, the council will:

- Consider an ordinance regulating bail bondsmen in municipal court. The ordinance — recommended by City Attorney Doyle Curtis — would require bail bondsmen to deposit a minimum of $1,000 with the city treasurer.
- Hear the first reading of an ordinance amending the water rate from 95 cents to $1.25 per 1,000 gallons.
- Award the water office building construction bid to one of 14 contractors who bidded. In addition to the water office, the building will house the Housing Assistant Payment Program office and the municipal court.

- Hear an emergency reading of an ordinance designating Airbase Road Elementary School as a school zone and establishing speed limits.
- Hear the first reading of an ordinance that increases cemetery, parks and recreation fees; increases Parks and Recreation Board to 10 members; and provides that three absences in 12 months by board members constitutes a resignation.
- Consider leasing Northside Day Care building, N.E. Eighth and Main, to Mr. and Mrs. R.T. Bell. The Bells want to operate a child care center at the site. Mrs. Bell currently works at Westside Day Care Center and her husband is a Howard County sheriff's deputy.
- Adjourn into Executive Session to discuss personnel and legal matters.
- Consider renewing Wayne Basden's livestock permit at 1100 Thorp.
- Give permission to advertise for Christmas turkey bids. The city gives turkeys to city employees at Christmas.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow in Big Spring City Hall, Fourth and Nolan. The meeting is open to the public.

Colorado City police report prowler suspect shot Friday

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Colorado City Police Chief Ed Wheat reports his investigation is continuing regarding the shooting of a 26-year-old man early Friday morning.

According to police, Juanita Kelly of 968 E. 14th St. notified officers early Friday morning she had shot a prowler.

Wheat said the unidentified man was "trying to obtain entry into the home where Mrs. Kelly was staying with her three-year-old child."

Police reports indicate Mrs. Kelly fired a warning shot, then a second shot, which hit the man in the abdomen.

The man was taken to Root Memorial Hospital where he is recuperating following surgery.

No charges have been filed at this time.

hold up, Anderson and Ida will complete their 17,000-mile flight in eight to 10 days.

Anderson, 49, a mining executive from Albuquerque, N.M., flew with two others across the Atlantic in the Double Eagle II in 1978. Anderson and his son, Kris, flew the Kitty Hawk across North America in 1980.

He tried twice previously to circumnavigate the globe.

A February 1981 launch from Egypt got to India, when a leak prevented the balloonists from gaining enough altitude to cross the Himalayas.

In December 1981, the balloonists tried to re-launch from India but got only 30 miles before paint used for numbers on the balloon ate through the polyethylene and they were forced to land.

Ida, 49, is a tree nursery owner from Colorado. The pair are financing the trip themselves. Mitchell said it runs to "several hundred thousand dollars."

Mitchell said the balloon can go up to 25,000 feet and carries a transponder, a device to help air traffic control radar locate it.

The 8-foot-high gondola is painted in red, white and blue, said Mitchell, "because Anderson is a patriotic guy."

"This was a particularly exciting liftoff" because of the delay, Mitchell said.

He said the second, good tube was a little short for the job, so Gov. Bill Janklow, who was on hand, ordered in a state utility truck with a "cherry picker" — a metal basket for lifting workers to high places.

State police today estimated about 6,000 people were in and around the Stratabowl — a natural amphitheater not far from the Black Hills — to watch the liftoff. The Stratabowl is about 10 miles southwest of Rapid City.

Sheriffs Log

Howard County sheriff's deputies are still investigating a shooting last night that sent two men to local hospitals. The incident took place at the Latin Quarter on the Snyder Highway at approximately 10 p.m. yesterday.

According to Deputy Paul Silva, sheriff's deputies Allen Parrish and Carl Thurman arrived at the Latin Quarter to find Sussano Alvarez, 20, of Big Spring lying in the parking lot bleeding from two gunshot wounds. Silva said Alvarez was transported to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he remains in satisfactory condition. Alvarez was shot in the upper left arm and upper left thigh, he said.

Two wounded in nightclub shooting

Silva said he had not talked today with Joe Louis Ontiveros, who was also wounded in the incident and currently in Cowper Hospital. The investigation continues into the matter, Silva said.

- John David Doll, 25, of 1301 Mt. Vernon, posted $1,000 bond in connection with a driving while intoxicated arrest.
- Randall L. Hyden, 22, of 2204 Grace, posted $1,000 bond in connection with a DWI arrest. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West.
- Jose R. Munez, 34, of 901 N.W. 3rd, posted $1,000 bond in connection with a DWI arrest. Bond was set by Peace Justice Lewis Hefflin.

Police take runaways into custody

Three 15-year-old runaways from Houston were arrested Saturday night at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop as children in need of supervision. The juveniles — two boys and a girl — are in police custody and the parents of two of the juveniles have been contacted, police detective Pat Dunham said.

Police reports also showed the following:

- John D. Doll, 25, of 1301 Mount Vernon was arrested yesterday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and transferred to Howard County jail.
- Troy Osborn, 22, of 1800 Winston was arrested yesterday on traffic warrants. He was released after paying fines.
- Doyle Lamb of 554 Hillside said someone stole about $1,200 worth of items from his work shed between 4 p.m. Nov. 4 and 1:40 p.m. yesterday.
- Department of Public Safety Officer Dean Richardson said someone threw a large rock at his patrol unit's windshield between 5 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. yesterday.

Columbia readies 1st working mission

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The countdown for space shuttle Columbia's first operational mission began without a hitch, but its windows still needed to be washed before the scheduled Thursday blastoff.

"It's not a priority item, but it's got to be done," said Mark Hess, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, after the countdown began Sunday for the shuttle's first commercial trip.

While grounded, Columbia's windows accumulated a film of dirt that could hinder the astronauts' vision and fuzzi up photographs. Technicians were scheduled to clean them today.

Today's timetable also called for activating Columbia's power-producing fuel cells, pressurizing fuel tanks and reviewing flight software items stored in the computer memory banks.

The fiery liftoff, scheduled for 7:19 a.m. EST Thursday, will be Columbia's fifth trip into space, but the first for "business for which the space shuttle was intended," said veteran astronaut Vance Brand.

After four previous test flights, the shuttle will carry its first payload — two commercial satellites to be launched into orbit.

Satellite Business Systems Inc. and Telesat Canada, Ltd. each is paying NASA $10 million to carry the two communications satellites.

The SBS satellite is scheduled to be released eight hours after liftoff. The Canadian payload is to be ejected Friday.

"The four earlier trips tested the vehicle and proved it works; our job is to make it start paying for itself," said Brand, who will command the four-man crew aboard the upcoming mission.

The four astronauts who will make the journey were in Houston today concluding months of training at the Johnson Space Center. They will fly here Tuesday morning to make final preparations for the launch.

The crew will be the largest ever launched in a single spaceship. Never have more than three people left Earth together, although as many as five have been together in orbit in linked-up vehicles.

Brand was on one of those five-person flights — the 1975 joint journey by three American astronauts and two Soviet cosmonauts. With him this time will be three space newcomers: pilot Robert Overmyer and mission specialists William Lenoir and Joseph Allen.

Lenoir and Allen will monitor the payloads, each weighing 7,200 pounds, conduct 90-minute countdowns for each and trigger the spring devices that will fling them out of the ship's cargo bay into orbit.

On Sunday, Lenoir and Allen are to take the first space walks of the shuttle program and the first by American astronauts in nine years. They will spend 3½ hours in the open cargo bay, testing space suits and shuttle systems and evaluating tools and techniques for future crews.

The four men will spend five days crowded into a space not much roomier than a large motor home. "We'll probably line up at the water fountain," said Brand.

Soviets honor revolution; Brezhnev threatens retaliation

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW — President Leonid I. Brezhnev, celebrating the 65th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, extolled Soviet military might and warned that aggressors would face "a crushing retaliatory strike."

But, in a tough speech at a Kremlin reception attended by U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman, Brezhnev added that the "essence of our policy is peaceableness, the sincere striving for equitable and fruitful cooperation."

Revolution Day, commemoration of the 1917 revolt that led to the founding of the Soviet state, was celebrated in Moscow Sunday with the traditional display of the Soviet Union's military brawn.

Hundreds of thousands of Muscovites jammed Red Square to watch the display of military hardware rumble across the cobblestones. Soviet generals displayed two weapons never seen before at the parade — an improved surface-to-air missile and an updated armored personnel carrier reportedly used against insurgents in Afghanistan.

Square: "The aggressive forces of imperialism, primarily the U.S.A., have led the intensity of their military preparations to an unusual level, are fanning the flames of armed conflicts in different regions of the world, and irresponsibly are threatening to use nuclear weapons."

At the Kremlin reception, Brezhnev said: "We shall do our utmost to see to it that those who like military ventures should never take the land of the Soviets unaware, that the potential aggressor should know: a crushing retaliatory strike will inevitably be in for him. Our might and vigilance will cool, I think, the hot heads of some imperialist politicians."

Neither Brezhnev nor Ustinov explicitly mentioned President Reagan in their remarks, in which they reiterated Soviet intentions to seek negotiated arms reductions.

Brezhnev said, "The Soviet Union will continue persistently fighting for detente, for disarmament. We shall be building up efforts to avert the threat of a nuclear war ..."

"Addressing the foreign representatives, present here, I should like to emphasize that the essence of our policy is peaceableness, the sincere striving for equitable and fruitful cooperation with all who want such cooperation."

printed by the government newspaper Izvestia.

"On the occasion of the national holiday of the Soviet Union," he said, "I would like to convey congratulations on behalf of the American people to the people of the Soviet Union. The United States will continue to work in the name of peace and relations with the Soviet Union, which are based on mutual restraint and respect of principles of international rights."

Besides Brezhnev and Ustinov, other members of the ruling Politburo on the review stand in Red Square included Yuri V. Andropov and Konstantin U. Chernenko. They are widely regarded as contenders for the presidency if Brezhnev, whose health is declining, should die or become incapacitated.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Viktor V. Grishin and Mikhail S. Gorbachev were also present.

As on other recent occasions, Politburo member Andrei P. Kirilenko was notably absent. He reportedly has retired for health reasons, but there has been no official announcement.

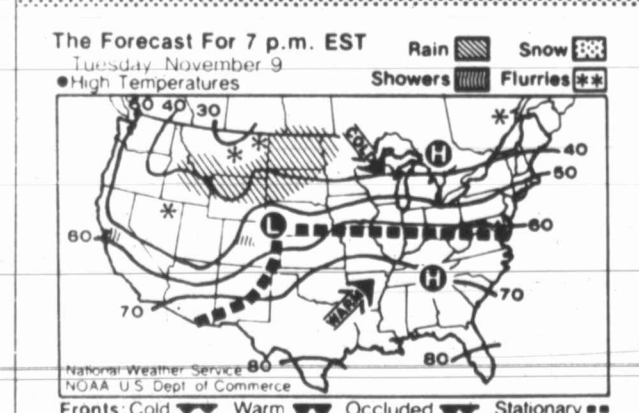

Television coverage of the parade did not show a closeup of Brezhnev as he struggled to climb stairs to the reviewing stand. Later closeups of him, however, showed he was wearing glasses.

The ambassadors from China and New Zealand also were among the foreign dignitaries in attendance.

Cloudy skies enter Texas

By The Associated Press
Cloudy to partly cloudy skies crept across Texas early today, but the state was free of rain.

Temperatures before dawn were mild, with most readings in the 50s and 60s. The mercury dipped into the 30s and 40s over the High Plains and Panhandle.

Winds over South Texas were mostly from the south, blowing at speeds from five to 10 mph. Variable breezes were reported across the rest of the state.

The forecast called for partly cloudy skies, warm temperatures and windy conditions through Tuesday. Afternoon highs were expected to reach the 70s and 80s.

RAIN WAS SCATTERED from Arizona and southern California, across Utah and Nevada and in Oregon and northern California. Rain also fell over parts of Florida and Iowa.

Today's forecast called for rain over northern California and the northern Pacific Coast with rain and snow showers scattered from the upper and central Plateau to the northern High Plains.

FORECAST
West Texas — Cloudy and mild through Tuesday. Widely scattered showers north tonight and north and southwest Tuesday. Highs in the 70s. Lows tonight 45 north and north and southwest and 50 elsewhere. Highs Tuesday 65 north and 70 elsewhere.

School superintendent is beaten after action against football team

FARMERSVILLE (AP) — The boys who play football here took it hard when they were barred from the district playoffs for using an eligible player. But some grown men took it harder.

They beat up the school superintendent.

Superintendent James Dickson was "still very sore, but feeling better" Sunday after two men who said they wanted to discuss the "football situation" attacked him at his home.

The District 14-2A executive committee voted to forfeit all of the Farmers' games after Dickson informed them of an ineligible player on the 7-1-1 squad. Dickson gave the bad news to students at the Friday afternoon pep rally.

The players "took it about the way you would think they would take it," Dickson said. The Farmers lost that night to Pottsboro, 21-0.

The next day Dickson was beaten unconscious by two "rather large" men in their late 20s or early 30s, according to assistant police Chief A.H. McKimzey.

"There was lots of disappointment, and I suppose probably some mad people out there, but I can't imagine getting your revenge in that way," said McKimzey. "He (Dickson) was only doing what was right."

Dickson suffered a concussion and deep bruises on his head and chest from the beating, which left him unconscious for about half an hour.

The ineligible player was starting senior center Jamie White Shannon, son of Farmersville's new coach Stan Shannon, who brought the Farmers back after a 3-6-1 season in 1981. The Shannons, who had not found a house in Farmersville, lived in Rockwall, 20 miles away.

Farmersville is "pretty much a football town, especially when they're winning," said McKimzey. "Last year was a disaster, and this year we were doing great."

School officials said they understood the disappointment, but thought that Dickson was right to investigate players' eligibility.

"We're certainly in support of our superintendent," said Tom Lovell, president of the school board. "It's very unfortunate for the students — here we had a winning ball club and a chance to go on greater and better things — but the image the administration depicted here is a step in the right direction."

"As the students get older, in years down the road, they'll realize that honesty and character is what it's all about. And as long as we have an administration that's exhibiting these characteristics, I think we're in good shape."

Farmersville Police Chief Jim Lovell, who is not related to the school board president, said Dickson was leaving his house about 10:30 a.m. Saturday when two men asked to talk to him about the forfeiture.

"They were in their late 20s or early 30s, and they were rather large," McKimzey said. "One was 6-foot-3, about 220 pounds, and the other was 6-foot-1, about 210 pounds."

Great American Smokeout coming

More than 52 million Americans still smoke. Nine of every 10 of them contacted in surveys have said they would like to quit. But giving up cigarettes isn't easy — and procrastination seems to reign.

"Any needed behavioral change always seems easier to accomplish when someone joins with you in making the change," says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

This is an ideal time to join the millions of Americans who intend to take a day off from smoking on Nov. 18, the day of the 'Great American Smokeout.'

The Smokeout annually focuses public attention on cigarette smokers from coast to coast.

It's their day. The Smokeout is an upbeat, good-natured effort to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours, if only to prove to themselves that they can do so. Everyone enjoys watching and encouraging them while they try.

During last year's Smokeout, three of every 10 cigarette smokers either cut down or cut out smoking for the day.

Persons desiring to find out more about the "quit smoking programs" and the Great American Smokeout should contact the American Cancer Society. A toll free number in Austin is 1-800-252-9174.

Cabinet spares no expense

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's "Cabinet of Millionaires" has lived up to its title. Despite explicit presidential orders to show restraint on the refurbishing of their private offices, the Cabinet members have lavished the taxpayers' money on decor and doodads.

The president wanted to set an example of "a government that lives within its means." But the wealthy Cabinet secretaries interpreted that to mean within their means. Unfortunately, they're not using their own money to install luxurious creature comforts at the office; they're using yours and mine.

To a millionaire, of course, the amounts spent are peanuts. But just compare some of their expenditures on luxurious trifles with the amount of income tax withheld from your paychecks.

A General Accounting Office report, not yet released to the public, gives some examples of Cabinet extravaganzas:

—Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige spent $17,140 on such fripperies as dimmer switches for his office lights and the repainting of his chauffeur's room. The millionaire businessman evidently has a thing about locks. He spent $350 having the locks changed on his floor, another $463 on repairs and replacements, and $76 for copies of 30 keys.

—Secretary of Education Terrel Bell wants to phase out his department, but he apparently wants to go out in style. He managed to spend $10,272 revamping his office; $6,279 of that was for painting his own elegant suite.

—One mysterious item in Bell's redecorating splurge was $18 to have two flagpoles shortened by three inches apiece. A department spokesman explained that the flagpoles were too tall for the secretary's office.

—Samuel Pierce, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, found his kitchen sorely lacking in gourmet items. He spent $103 for a food processor and $160 for dish towels, potholders, peeples and a fancy set of knives. A HUD spokesman said the hardware was needed for official entertainment.

—Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis bought 24 dozen wineglasses and two dozen beer mugs for a bargain price of $286, and spent several hundred dollars on picture frames. A department spokesman explained that the glassware was needed for entertainment, and that the existing stock had somehow worn out. "You have to replace that sort of thing," he said. "Glassware is used on a daily basis. It becomes worn and it becomes necessary to replace it."

—The GAO auditors found that the Transportation Department had spent a grand total of $32,797.17 to spruce up the offices of four top officials. But the department spokesman challenged that figure. "Eight thousand dollars approximately was misused," he said. "Miscused" is bureaucratic jargon meaning that the GAO counted funds spent by the previous Democratic administration — which, presumably, was also responsible for wearing out all those wineglasses and beer mugs.

Subtracting the "miscused" amount and the money spent on other officials' offices, the spokesman arrived at a mere $1,693 for Lewis' own office.

In all, the Cabinet secretaries went through more than $68,000 of General Services Administration funds on the redecoration of their offices, according to the GAO. But sources told my associate John Dillon this was by no means the total amount of government funds spent for office elegance at the V.I.P. level.

The GAO ran individual audits only of DOT and HUD to see how much of their own agencies' money was spent by Cabinet and sub-Cabinet officials. HUD's expenditure came to $23,046; DOT's was the aforementioned $32,797.17.

Who was the most frugal Cabinet member of all? Interior Secretary James Watt. He laid out just $18 — to replace some coat hooks on his office doors.

HOMES FOR THE HOMELESS: The Israeli government has been widely accused of trying to drive all Palestinians — not just troops — out of Lebanon. The accusers pointed to the razing or bombing of Palestinian homes in Israeli-occupied territory as evidence of this intent.

In fact, the State Department, in a secret cable in late September, expressed concern about the possibility of a mass migration of the refugees to Syria. They were apprehensive about a possible exodus, saying it "raised the prospect of permanent partition."

This prospect could have been encouraged by the Israelis, and such a migration would result in fewer Palestinians to challenge the Israeli position.

But the Israelis have now offered to provide solid housing for some of the 60,000 homeless Palestinians, in spite of the Lebanese government's reluctance to encourage continued Palestinian residence. Israel has offered 200 to 500 prefabricated concrete dwelling units for the homeless Palestinians in Lebanon.

The prefabs would be in addition to the 10,000 tents the United Nations is putting up for the refugees.

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

Fading away

Veteran's Day was always a special occasion at my home when I was growing up. Some of my earliest memories are going to visit the V.F.W. post in Stamford on Veterans' Day with my Dad and sitting on a tall bar stool and listening to the guys alternately talk about and try to forget two World Wars and Korea.

My Dad always talked proudly about being a "WW II vet'ran," and although he regretted having to take three years of his life to fight the war, he was glad he had served his country. He felt his contribution to the war was purposeful for he had acted to keep America free. And I think most of the men at the V.F.W. felt the same way — the war years were a necessary evil to preserve the American way of life.

Veteran's Day was always a time when my Dad got out his old Stars and Stripes newspaper with the headline "Germany Quits" emblazoned in the biggest type I've ever seen. Occasionally, he'd drag an old, battered suitcase down from the attic and show me his uniform stitched with patches, ribbons and insignias while he talked of the war. There was always something intensely riveting about this ritual. I was both proud and romantically mesmerized by my father the soldier.

Veteran's Day was when he, and all the town merchants, put out a tall American flag in front of their businesses. And it was also a day when most of the war veterans gathered with their families at the V.F.W. to celebrate their victories.

It was almost like a family reunion with kids running loose and drinking too much soda pop, lots of food and a lot of old war stories.

BACK THEN the war was fresher in everyone's mind and so the service seemed more meaningful than it does today. I suppose it did because the veterans were younger then and actively involved in celebrating their own accomplishments. It was their day and they danced and laughed with a proud gleam in their eyes.

As time went on the veterans got older and an alarmingly number of them succumbed to heart attacks and bad health. "Another old soldier has faded away," my father would sadly intone upon hearing about one of his buddies.

The celebrations at the V.F.W. began to shrink and after a few more years it had altogether faded away like all those soldiers. Even my father sometimes skipped a year or two now and then before he got out the Stars and Stripes to peruse Germany's surrender.

THEN THE Vietnam war came along and new veterans were added to the list, but things just weren't the same. The U.S. people didn't accept these warriors with celebrations and festivities the way they had the old veterans. The war was an unpopular one with no clear-cut purpose. No victory gardens or VJ-Day for these veterans. Instead of helping to bolster the celebrated ranks of veterans, it seemed the old veterans just got older and the new veterans faded into anonymity.

After Vietnam, war was an unpopular subject with Americans and I think the veterans suffered for lack of recognition. Time, which can be an ugly eraser, made some folks forget about the sacrifices men like my Dad made for "the American way." One of my uncles died in the "big one," another has a heart condition more than likely caused by the war and another's hands shake because of a beach-front assault.

There's not much of a way we can adequately thank them for their risks. I know we give them pensions, schooling and medical care, but we may be forgetting the richness contained in a personal "thank you."

There are getting to be fewer veterans every year — my old soldier faded way almost three years ago — which makes it even more important to make an effort to attend a Veterans' Day ceremony and honor the veterans.

Big Spring's ceremony is Thursday at 11 a.m. at the VA Medical Center. It's only one hour for one day out of the year, so why not go and show them you care — it's the least any of us can do.

Mailbag

Reader backs police officer

Dear Editor,

The letter from Lt. Braun of the Salvation Army which appeared in Thursday's Mailbag expresses my feelings exactly. I am not acquainted with any of the principals in the incident for which Officer Stapp is being censured, and I know nothing about it except what has been reported in the Herald, but it seems to me that the officer was doing his duty to the best of his ability.

Regardless of the criminal's age, size, or racial origin, if he had not been sneaking around at midnight engaged in an act of crime he would not have been fired. Besides, if the officer had really meant to harm the fleeing suspect, surely he could have done a better job of it than 4 pellets in the leg, for heaven's sake!

It is my opinion that Officer Stapp did the kid a favor. It could completely change his ideas about the desirability of a life of crime. Up to this point it's been all velvet, nothing to worry about. But now he has seen the other side of the coin, and it may be just the lesson he needed. At least it has been demonstrated that the Law means business.

I commend Lt. Braun for letting the public know about Officer Stapp's fine work with the young people of all races, and I fully support Officer Stapp in his efforts to uphold the law.

Parking for the handicapped

Dear Editor,

Have you noticed, lately, how many unconsiderate, contemptible, fully ambulatory people who are so lazy that they park in the handicap spaces?

I have asked several, who parked in the set-aside spaces, why they were parked there and the reply, usually, was "well it was empty." Little did they care if in the car behind them was a handicapped person. Their motto seems to be, "So what, I was here first."

I think that our city councilmen should be petitioned to enact legislation that would give the police authority to issue a citation to any non-handicapped person who parks in a clearly marked space reserved for the physically handicapped. A program should also be initiated that would make the handicapped's car readily identifiable by the police. Example: a bumper sticker "front and rear." These identifiers should be available, only, at the station. All cars without such identification should not qualify for parking in the set-aside spaces.

I have talked to several merchants and most of them agree that such a policy should be in effect. They also agree that the set-aside spaces should be designed by the merchant concerned.

Ignore the circular aspects

Dear Editor,

I've come to the conclusion that death does not touch the average person until the necessary occurrence is perceived. The perception of the self as an eternal being is easily accepted and projected outward toward others, nullifying the dark ideas that chase around our heads each night.

In order to read a meaning into life we must ignore the circular, and perhaps, deadening aspect of it. Circular in that nothing occurs. No time passes. Each mistake is made again, regardless of proper civilized intent, whether or not we realize it. The mistake can be disguised or otherwise made again regardless of the value put upon it by our emotional memories. In effect, the reality of the situation exists only to the sensorial recipient, i.e., the subjective self, erasing all past and (Stress AND, due to the circular nature of life) future memories.

Life consists of existing in eternity. To relax and not question is the end. To not question authority smacks of puppyry and self-denial. But also of a happiness that cannot, at times, be understood by others due to the inability to reach out in a true need to find this joy. The puppyry commences when the strings are given over in resignation, yet hope, to God. An enduring hope that will never be extinguished. The outer self is forsaken to the inner power that reveals itself, once the search has begun; the outer, other self is perceived as, perhaps, ugly, foolish, beautiful or wise or any other combination of adjectives — the inner self holds the spark of intellect and self-teachings that others will never, in you, bring to the surface. To the surface, then, comes the self-discipline, the perception of the world around you as basically your own, in that it is your own perception, yet can be manipulated by self-control and channeling of the forces that can either use one or be used by one.

To be tossed around like a paper cup is one of the most fitful nights that I have ever spent in my one day of life and death. In your one day of life and death, rise early, complete your task, then retire to paradise.

I've been bad to my parents

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have been very rebellious against all kinds of authority, including my parents. I know this is wrong, but somehow I can't seem to do anything about it. How can I deal with this? — P.B.

Dear P.B.: We all tend to be rebellious at times, even if we happen to be rather passive in our personalities. The reason is that we want to run our own lives, and we resent anything which seems to threaten our independence.

Let me answer your question by looking first at the question of why we are this way. The problem, you see, is basically a spiritual one. Yes, there may be other aspects to it; you may, for instance, have a particular problem with this if your parents have been rather strict. But at its heart our rebellion against authority is a sign of a deeper problem: our rebellion against God. The Bible teaches us that when the human race was originally created by God there was complete trust and fellowship between God and man. But man was not a puppet; he could choose to rebel, and he did. He decided that he would turn his back on God and live his life without him. (You can read about this in the third chapter of Genesis.) Since that time we have each tried to live without God — running our own lives, trying to get by with as much as we think we can, being independent from him. The Bible says, "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

In other words, it is our nature to want to be independent, even when we know it is wrong or foolish to do so. It is true in our relation to God, and sadly it is true in our relations with other people.

That is why I hope you will get on your knees before God, confess your sins to him, and ask Jesus Christ to come into your life and become your Lord. Ask him to help you love your parents as you should and to help you respect and honor them instead of being rebellious. Ask him to take away the selfishness in your heart and to help you want to do what is right. "Honor your father and your mother" the Bible says (Exodus 20:12), and God will help you do that as you turn to Christ.

BEST BUREAUCRATS: In four consecutive years, Jeanne M. Colachico has won awards for outstanding performance.

Colachico is an equal-opportunity specialist with the Defense Logistics Agency's New England region. She doesn't just sit at her desk waiting for complaints; she goes out looking for new ways to find government jobs for minorities, women and young people.

She visited 14 area high schools to explain federal job possibilities to students and advisers, and helped them master the complexities of government application forms. Then she followed up by contacting agency personnel offices.

Thanks to a vigorous effort to reach the Hispanic community, Colachico achieved a 400 percent increase in hiring among this minority group. Though Colachico is proud of her performance awards, the recognition she treasures most is a desk plaque presented to her by the local Hispanic Council. It reads, in Spanish: "Honor to the Deserving."

WHAT TO WEAR — These women have solved the problem of what to wear to upcoming events sponsored by the Big Spring Symphony Association, including "Command Performance," by the Midland-Odessa Symphony Orchestra set Thursday in the Big Spring High School auditorium, and "Deathtrap," a Broadway play set Nov. 19 in Municipal Auditorium. Pictured above, from left, are Janice Rosson, dressed in a taupe-colored crepe blouse that features a high neckline which buttons down the side, a tan wool blazer and a pleated plaid skirt. In the middle is Susan Conrace, wearing a white silk overblouse with a lace inset and black velvet pants, and Joan Beil, wearing a blue suede cloth dress, fuchsia blouse and channel quilted blue suede cloth jacket with a fuchsia piping. The women are members of the Big Spring Symphony Guild.

Dear Abby Check hearing loss

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to "Miserable," whose husband refuses to wear his hearing aid and says he hears "just fine," shows that you have no idea what it's like to live with someone who has a hearing problem. You said, "Quit nagging him. Maybe he's trying to tune you out. One of the most precious rights a person has is the right to be left alone."

My husband also claims he hears "just fine" — that everyone else mumbles. Meanwhile he turns the TV volume up so high, the rest of the family is forced to leave the room.

In social situations he asks me to repeat everything that's being said. Consequently, I miss half the conversation because I'm busy yelling in his ear. I could go on and on.

I think you owe that woman an apology, Abby.
ANOTHER MISERABLE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I owe her more than that. I owe her a more helpful answer, and here it is:

"Dear Miserable: Go right on nagging your husband until he consults an audiologist who will evaluate his hearing disorder and help him correct it medically, surgically or with a hearing aid."

Anyone who wants up-to-date information about hearing loss and available hearing help should write to: Hearing, Box 1840, Washington, D.C. 10013. The information is free, but please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: With Christmas coming soon, our problem must be faced, and we don't know how to handle it. To lay it right on the line, with the economy the way it is, my husband and I can't afford to send Christmas gifts this year. (To tell the truth, we still owe for last year's Christmas gifts.)

We don't want anybody to give us gifts this year because we can't afford to give any. But how do you tell people that, Abby?

OVERDRAWN IN DETROIT

DEAR OVERDRAWN: Come Thanksgiving, write a note saying, "We are thankful for folks with whom we can be honest. We're not in a position to send Christmas gifts this year (no do we expect gifts), but please accept our love and sincere good wishes for a joyous and blessed holiday."

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 3823, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue Controlling asthma

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 58-year-old daughter has developed asthma. I thought she was hyperventilating. She could hardly talk, and was in such pain. I don't know anything about this kind of sickness. Can't I help her when these attacks come on? Is it dangerous for her? A relative she was visiting in another state called me and said, do you know your daughter has asthma? I had no idea until then what it was. She is a chain-smoker. — M.B.

Why doesn't she have an examination to learn just what is wrong with her? There are other causes for breathlessness besides bronchial asthma. For example, a heart condition can lead to breathing difficulties. That kind of asthma is called cardiac asthma, and it requires different treatment.

Now if she does have bronchial asthma, you will be able to help her by remaining calm and making sure she gets the medication she needs. I should mention that bronchial asthma is the kind that occurs because of constriction of the breathing tubes. Allergy is frequently involved, so she might be tested for that.

Once your daughter gets on a regular schedule of bronchial asthma medicine, her attacks should become less frequent and less severe. Many asthmatics lead a very active and productive lives. There is a period of adjustment and there may be times when the breathing difficulties are worse than usual. But she can carry medicine to abort an attack. Asthmatics can usually sense when they are going to have trouble. When attacks are really severe and long-lasting — an asthmatic may need to be hospitalized to get intravenous fluids and drugs.

Asthmatic attacks almost always involve bouts of coughing. You do not mention coughing in your letter. That and the fact of your daughter's age make me urge you to have her examined to find out for sure just what is causing these sudden breathing difficulties.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a leg ulcer. What causes a person to have the body chills and fever, and then have the leg turn red and swell up hard and get hot? I mean it is the skin that gets hot. Can you help me? — D.D.D.

I've said here on numerous occasions how really impossible and even foolhardy it is to attempt diagnosis from written communication. That still applies, but I do want to suggest that your ulcer is almost surely infected. I base that thought on your very graphic description of your body chills, fever and the redness and swelling. That would indicate to me that the germs from an infection are getting into your bloodstream. It can be quite serious if left untreated. So, if your symptoms have not already caused you to see a doctor by the time you read this, get on the phone right away and make an appointment. You will need antibiotics for the infection.

For the moment, your other questions are moot, but I'll touch on them (from a part of your letter deleted). Yes, poor circulation can be one of several causes of such ulceration. And, yes, severe varicose veins can be part of it. You need good circulation for healing to occur, so that cells there can be nourished to form new tissue. Otherwise an infected ulcer may never heal. Whatever is causing your ulcer, something can be done about it — all the more reason, I guess, for you to get attention promptly.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Donohue's booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

The Mu Zeta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Oct. 25 in the home of Marian Burbee. The Ritual of Jewels ceremony was conducted for Sherry Hampton.

Members were asked to sign up to work at the seafood sale to be held Nov. 13 at Highland Mall parking lot from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Reports were given on the Indian Bread sale during the arts and craft festival. The social chairman reminded members of the next social which will be Nov. 13.

Connie Edgemon won the raffle. Lisa Murphy presented the program. The next regular meeting will be Monday in the home of Carla Shaw.

The chapter held a Preferential Tea Oct. 31 in the home of Diane Turner. Brenda Carr, Nancy Osmulski and Paula Wilson were welcomed as pledges of Mu Zeta. Marilyn Collins was also welcomed as a transfer pledge from New Mexico.

Guests and members were served Halloween treats. Members were reminded of a city-wide pledge ritual held Thursday at the Farm Bureau office. Peggy Payne won a kitchen witch as a door prize.

Club members discuss food drying methods

The Big Spring Garden Club met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. S.M. Anderson. Mrs. Spencer Wolfe gave a presentation on drying foods.

Mrs. Wolfe said that foods have been dried for centuries. She introduced as a guide to drying food the book "Garden Ways to Food Drying," by Phyllis Hobson.

The process to blanch food or vegetables is to run through a blender or slice very thin, then lay the item out to dry. Any food can be dried. After drying, set in a cold dark place. It is easier to dry foods than to can them, Mrs. Wolfe said.

Mrs. E.W. Greer presided over the business meeting. She reported that gifts for the Big Spring State Hospital should be brought to the Dec. 1 meeting at 11:30 a.m. at the Spanish Inn.

Nixon's political pointers

Ex-president airs views, meets with former aides

MEDAL OF HONOR WINNERS — M. Sgt. Roy P. Benavidez, Clint Brown and Staff Sgt. Cleo Rodriguez (left to right) salute the American flag at an American GI Forum Veterans Day parade in Houston's River Oaks. All three men have been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon, on the talk show circuit to promote a new book, has offered some pointers on foreign and domestic policy to the Reagan administration.

The 37th president of the United States, the nation's only chief executive to resign from office, aired his opinions in an interview broadcast over the weekend on the Cable News Network while discussing his latest book, "Leaders."

On the Middle East, Nixon sharply criticized Israel's decision to increase its settlements on the West Bank.

"Those settlements are inconsistent with (U.N.) Resolution 242," he said. "They're inconsistent with the whole spirit of the whole Camp David business.... They cannot be tolerated...."

"In the interest of Israel and their future, we've got to do something very positive and very direct with regard to Begin on this particular issue," said Nixon, although he did not say what steps he would take if he were still president.

"He's (Begin) either got to knock that off or he risks, in my view, the all-out support that the U.S. has always provided for them when they needed it," the former president said.

On Saturday night, Nixon also attended a party in honor of the 10th anniversary this week of Nixon's re-election, the biggest presidential electoral vote landslide in American history.

In attendance: Nixon's former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, former attorney general John Mitchell, former press secretary Ron Ziegler and counselor Charles Colson, among others.

The former president, who left office in disgrace eight years ago during the Watergate scandal, said Reagan should stick with the third year of the tax cut, scheduled for next summer.

But Nixon also urged Reagan to cut defense spending.

RICHARD NIXON... busy promoting new book

"You can cut a lot of fat off, you can save billions of dollars, and it should be done," said Nixon, "and (Defense Secretary Caspar) Weinberger should bite that bullet rather than having it forced on him."

However, Nixon cautioned that only "fat" should be trimmed from defense spending. "You cannot cut the muscle at a time that (Soviet President Leonid) Brezhnev is taking a very belligerent tone," he said.

Turning to the election, Nixon downplayed Democratic gains scored last Tuesday.

"It was a defeat. We would have preferred that it had been better. But with 10 percent unemployment, the Democrats expected, and perhaps rightfully so, that they would be having a great victory. But instead of getting a knockout, all they got was a split decision."

And he predicted that Reagan will run and win re-election to a second term in 1984.

Following the interview, Nixon reportedly carried the theme of his book on international figures, "Leaders," to the reunion dinner at a Washington hotel ballroom later that night.

Reporters were barred from the gala. But asked afterward what Nixon said at the dinner, his brother Edward replied, "He was looking at the future, as he has been doing lately a great deal. He expressed a hope for the people who were here that there are a lot of us who can still have a role of leadership."

Those closest to Nixon, presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, and chief domestic adviser John Ehrlichman, did not attend. But Kissinger arrived after the meal to mingle with Ziegler, Colson, Nixon's longtime secretary Rose Mary Woods and others.

John Dean, Nixon's one-time counsel, said through a public relations spokesman in Los Angeles that he was delighted to be left off the guest list.

"I'm just surprised that the school of scoundrels would hold a class reunion," he said.

Soviet backfire bombers simulate attacks on U.S. carriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet navy has sent its advanced supersonic Backfire bombers on simulated missile attacks against U.S. aircraft carriers for the first time, according to American naval officials.

The officials also report that "just recently, the Soviets began conducting Backfire operations over the Sea of Japan, adding a new dimension to the threat to the sea lanes in that area."

Navy officials said this when asked recently about persistent reports that Soviet naval leaders have begun making wider use of the twin-engine Backfires, the most modern long-range bombers in use today.

Since these planes first appeared in the mid-1970's, U.S. naval strategists have warned that the sophisticated swing-wing Backfire bombers and their air-to-surface missiles pose a potentially serious danger to U.S. carrier battle groups and other warships protecting vital sea lanes.

The Backfire maneuvers simulating missile attacks occurred in late September and early October

New energy czar faces uphill battle

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Donald Hodel is the country's newest energy czar, but the way the Reagan administration views energy policy — energy corporal might be a more appropriate title.

Whatever the title, he may have the toughest job in Washington.

He has been picked to head an agency President Reagan has already trimmed substantially and wants to abolish altogether.

He will face a hostile Congress which delighted in raking his predecessor over the coals for perceived policy failures. The most unkind critics claim the administration doesn't even have an energy policy.

Both critics and supporters readily agree that energy policy has changed dramatically from the days when President Carter rallied the American people to conserve and develop solar and other renewable energy sources with his "moral equivalent of war" speech.

Gone is the multimillion-dollar program to ration gasoline during shortages.

Gone is the program under which the federal government regulated the thermostats in 2.8 million office buildings and stores.

Gone or trimmed substantially are government programs set up to nurture dozens of energy technologies ranging from windmills to ocean currents.

The Reagan administration has moved aggressively to get the government out of the energy business and let the marketplace work.

Departing Energy Secretary James Edwards counts that as his greatest achievement.

"We changed the crisis mentality of the American people over energy policy and redirected government's role," he said in an interview before leaving office.

To the administration, the signs of success are everywhere:

—Gasoline prices, which climbed to $1.40-a-gallon after Reagan's decision to remove the remaining price controls, dropped 18-cents-a-gallon in the next year.

—Oil imports this year are 16 percent below the 1981 level and 53 percent below the peak reached in 1977.

—The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is in disarray with members struggling to prop up a $34-a-barrel oil price in the face of increased cheating among some countries.

Despite the current rosy outlook, Hodel will have to deal with an increasingly restive Congress which has stymied many of the administration's initiatives of late.

One of the reasons Hodel was picked for the job was his record of strong support for nuclear power while serving as head of the Bonneville Power Administration.

The White House is counting on Hodel to shepherd through Congress bills to finally solve the problem of disposing of high-level nuclear wastes and streamline the current licensing procedure for nuclear plants.

Also on the administration's agenda is a renewed attempt to speed the decontrol of natural gas prices and get a reluctant Congress to buy Reagan's plan to abolish the Energy Department it created only five years ago and move most of its functions to the Commerce Department.

The administration is also under attack from outside experts who say the current supply surplus could evaporate quickly, plunging the country once more into gasoline lines.

"The substantial reason for the current fall in energy demand is not conservation but the effects of the worst recession since the Great Depression," says Harvard energy expert Dr. Daniel Yergin.

In a new study, Yergin predicts the world could be hit by a third oil crisis as early as 1986 as the economy improves and supplies tighten.

However, Edwards and other administration officials don't see another oil shock on the horizon. An Energy Department study released the week before Edwards left office forecasts a 43 percent drop in net energy imports over the next 20 years.

The difference in the two projections revolves around how much of the current decline in energy consumption is due to permanent conservation efforts — such as more fuel-efficient cars and factories — and how much of it is due to a depressed economy.

Optimists say 75 percent of the energy decline is permanent while the pessimists say only 25 percent is lasting.

Supreme Court plans to rule on auto airbags

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether someday all new automobiles sold in the United States will have to be equipped with air bags or automatic seat belts.

At issue for the justices is whether federal safety regulators acted arbitrarily and capriciously when they lifted future requirements for such passive restraints in cars.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington ruled just that — and imposed a September 1983 deadline for the restraints.

The Reagan administration and the auto industry have urged the appeals court to delay the deadline, and those requests currently are under study.

Automakers, including the largest U.S. and Japanese manufacturers, claim it would be impossible to meet the court-imposed 1983 deadline.

They contend that the deadline would halt most production and put some automakers, including Chrysler, out of business.

"Passive restraints" include an air bag built into a car's dashboard that would inflate on significant impact, and seat belts that automatically wrap around front-seat passengers as they enter a car.

On other subjects, the justices:

—Refused to allow the sale of sexually explicit materials from an Ohio bookstore's back room. The court turned away claims that the prohibition, part of a nuisance-abatement order against the Avenue Book Store in Tallmadge, Ohio, is a constitutionally impermissible "prior restraint" of free speech.

—Agreed to decide whether a South Dakota man can be sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole for writing a phony $100 check. In a case that could prompt other states to pass habitual-offender laws, the court will review a ruling that even though Jerry Helm had been convicted for six previous non-violent crimes his sentence for the bad-check conviction was unconstitutionally too harsh.

—Left intact the 1980 bribery conviction of Wanda Brandstetter for offering $1,000 to an Illinois lawmaker to vote for the now-defunct Equal Rights Amendment. Without comment, the court rejected the claim that the law under which Ms. Brandstetter was prosecuted was impermissibly vague.

—Agreed to decide when police acting without a warrant may search purses and shoulder bags taken from people under arrest.

NFL in state of gloom

NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Garvey, chief of the National Football League players union stayed behind after management's chief negotiator Jack Donlan and mediator Sam Kagel had checked out of the hotel where they had endured eight fruitless days of talks.

While the gloom created by the continued inability to settle the players strike extended into Commissioner Pete Rozelle's office, with the commissioner talking Sunday about releasing the block of hotel rooms reserved for the Jan. 30 Super Bowl Game, Garvey continued to sound hopeful about the season being resumed.

The union leader's optimism that a settlement will be reached is based on pragmatic view: "You don't throw away a $600 million industry."

Garvey also says he thinks the future of the season could be decided by midweek. "I think we will set up a meeting with Jack and one or two others within the next three days," he said. "I think someone will have to put a deal together and then see if it flies with us and it flies with them. I don't say it will be an easy sell, but it will happen."

Among those who seemed to disagree with him was Art Modell, the owner of the Cleveland Browns, who said, "Speaking for the Browns, I would rather give up the season than make a deal with I can't live with downstream."

"Some club owners are very unhappy with the offer we have already made." If we go any further, we would be committing suicide.

Garvey does not envision a settlement coming in a media-besieged surroundings of previous negotiations. It won't be a formal, mediated session. "I think we are beyond that now," he said.

When the strike talks collapsed again on Saturday night, for the second time in two weeks, and when the Management Council, bargainers for the owners, packed up and left the hotel, and Kagel followed them Sunday, the union vowed to stay until the negotiations resume.

"The players will stay out until they get a fair collective bargaining agreement," said Garvey. "They just aren't going to put up with the old ways any longer."

Garvey spent part of the day, the 47th day of the strike, waiting for the phone to ring. It didn't. Finally, he called Donlan, at the Management Council office. Donlan was home, spending the day with his family.

"If he wants to bargain," Garvey said, "he knows where to find us."

If Garvey sticks to his word, he'll also be on the phone sometime today — with the National Labor Relations Board, taking the necessary steps to get an unfair labor practice complaint issued against the management council.

Garvey and the union didn't take kindly to the management council decision to send out to the 28 teams a 4½-page synopsis of a 75-page document it gave to the union, one delineating its latest proposal. Any interested players, the owners say, can call their teams and get one.

That, Garvey says, is an attempt to bypass the union and negotiate directly with the players. And that, it continues, is illegal. Garvey is expected to advise the players that the synopsis — even the 75-page document — contains loopholes.

Donlan and Sargent Karch, the union's chief counsel, say the latest union move in the NLRB's direction will only hinder the already staggering bargaining process.

"It won't prevent the two sides from negotiating, but it will make it very difficult," Karch said. "Obviously I'll be involved as a witness or a lawyer or both. Jack will be involved. The same thing goes for their side. Ed will be involved. So will (union chief counsel Joseph) Yablonski."

"We're not talking about weeks," Donlan added. "It could be months. It could be years..." And even then, Donlan added, a ruling against the management council wouldn't substantially change the negotiation process.

Rozelle Sunday talked about the Jan. 30 Super Bowl date.

"Week by week, it is just trickling away," he said. "Theoretically, the Super Bowl could be moved. We don't have to have hotel rooms to play a Super Bowl game; all we need is a stadium and getting the Rose Bowl would not be a problem. But there are a lot of other factors involved with changing the date and every one of them is negative."

Rozelle added that sometime this week the league would inform the Los Angeles Convention Bureau that because the regular season might not resume, the NFL would release its commitment to approximately 5,500 hotel rooms it reserved for players, owners and members of the news media.

"We will tell them that they can seek optional business," Rozelle said. "If we don't we will have a lawsuit on our hands. But we'll also ask them to hold as many rooms as possible."

Rozelle said that he had received letters from Rooney Arledge, ABC News and Sports president, and Arthur Watson, president of the sports division at NBC, in which the two network executives said there would be problems in televising games rescheduled for after Jan. 30.

Staying behind in the hotel with Garvey were some of the player representatives. Among them was Mike Ozdowski, linebacker for the Baltimore Colts. He made about $14 in tips for an hour's worth of work.

That's considerably less than he used to make in autumn past, when he was careening around the field for the Colts. On Sunday, he spent the afternoon tending bar in the Summit Hotel in midtown Manhattan. He was killing time along with some other reps in doing chores at the bar. There was little else to do on the seventh Sunday wiped out by the strike.

ELWAY TO THE AIRWAYS — Stanford University quarterback John Elway throws just one of 22 passes completed in one quarter, an NCAA record. The effort was in vain as the Cardinal lost 41-27 to Arizona Saturday afternoon in Stanford Stadium.

Upsets!

Pitt, Hoggies, 'Bama burned

By The Associated Press

For the second year in a row, Pitt has surrendered the driver's seat in the race for college football's national championship. And Southern Methodist, Georgia and Arizona State, all of whom have been riding shotgun, are in a three-way scrap for the prize.

Besides top-rated Pitt, a 31-16 victor of Notre Dame, fifth-ranked Arkansas also suffered the first blemish on its 1982 slate, losing to Baylor 24-17. That reduced the ranks of teams with perfect records to the aforementioned three — second-ranked SMU, a 41-14 winner over Rice; No. 3 Georgia, which pounded No. 20 Florida 44-0, and fourth-ranked Arizona State, a sluggish 30-16 victor over winless Oregon State.

"The most important thing to us is who is No. 1 on Jan. 2. We intend for that to be us," said SMU tailback Craig James, who rushed for 130 yards and a touchdown and teamed with split end Gary Smith on a 62-yard scoring pass. Smith also caught a 28-yard TD pass from Lance McIlhenny, while Eric Dickerson rushed for 102 yards, including a 19-yard touchdown.

"Our players knew the Notre Dame score at the half," said Coach Bobby Collins. "I told them we can't go out and let down. As far as being No. 1, these kids are No. 1 in my heart, and I think they deserve to be No. 1."

But even Collins would be hard-pressed to argue with Georgia, whose supporters chanted "We're No. 1! We're No. 1!" after the Bulldogs shellacked Florida in what was supposed to be a close game.

And there was little talk of a national championship at Arizona State, which must face Washington next Saturday.

"After last week's emotional game against Southern Cal, it was hard getting up for this one," said quarterback Todd Hons, who ran for one of the Sun Devils' three touchdowns against Oregon State — Alvin Moore and Darryl Clack scored the others — while Luis Zendejas booted three field goals.

The three unbeaten-untied teams don't lack for challengers. Saturday's setbacks are the only losses for Pitt and Arkansas, while sixth-ranked Nebraska (8-1) trounced Oklahoma State 48-10, No. 7 Penn State (8-1) crushed North Carolina State 54-0, No. 10 Washington (8-1) nipped ninth-ranked UCLA 10-7 and No. 11 LSU (7-0-1) knocked off eighth-ranked Alabama 20-10.

Elsewhere in The Associated Press Top Twenty, No. 12 Florida State swamped South Carolina 56-26, No. 13 Clemson shaded No. 18 North Carolina 16-13, No. 14 Oklahoma downed Kansas State 24-10, No. 15 Michigan beat Illinois 16-10, No. 16 Southern Cal bombed California 42-0, No. 17 West Virginia edged Temple 20-17 and No. 19 Maryland nipped Miami 18-17.

Part of Notre Dame's storied heritage is bumping off No. 1-ranked teams, and Pitt became the latest to join the list. The Irish rallied for three touchdowns in the final period on a 54-yard flea-flicker pass from Blair Kiel to Joe Howard and runs of 76 and 7 yards by Allen Pinkett.

"First of all, we didn't punt the ball well when we had to," said Foge Fazio, who suffered his first loss as Pitt's head coach. "And we didn't catch the ball, and we kept the defense on the field. Thirdly, Notre Dame played a great defensive game."

NCAA

Although Pitt outgained the Irish 438 yards to 323 and quarterback Dan Marino didn't throw an interception for the first time all season, he didn't throw a touchdown pass, either, snapping his record string of 19 games with at least one TD loss.

The Nov. 20 Southwest Conference shootout between SMU and Arkansas lost some of its luster when Baylor's Alfred Anderson scored his third touchdown on a 4-yard run with 2:38 left to play, snapping a 17-17 tie and sending Arkansas to its 19th setback in 30 games at Waco.

Nebraska's Mike Rozier rushed for 251 yards — four shy of the school record — and four touchdowns against Oklahoma State. Rozier set a Nebraska single-season mark of 1,379 yards, while the Cornhuskers held Ernest Anderson, the nation's leading rusher, to 68 yards on 15 carries.

Jon Williams, Curt Warner and Tony Mumford each ran for two touchdowns as Penn State mauled N.C. State. Coach Joe Paterno, who said earlier in the week that "very few teams are better (than Penn State), if anybody," hinted that he thought the Nittany Lions should be No. 1 if they beat Notre Dame next Saturday.

LSU's No. 1-ranked defense held Alabama to six first downs and 119 yards — the first-half numbers were 0 and 32 — in beating the Crimson Tide for the first time since 1970.

Washington rebounded from last week's loss to Stanford and remained in the Pac-10 Rose Bowl chase by edging UCLA. The Huskies built a 10-0 lead on Jacque Robinson's 4-yard run and Chuck Nelson's 18-yard field goal and then withstood a rally by the previously unbeaten-but-tied Bruins.

Greg Allen rushed for four touchdowns and Kelly Lowery passed for two as Florida State (7-1) hammered South Carolina.

Three Bob Paulling field goals and Mike Eppley's 5-yard touchdown pass to Frank Magwood enabled defending national champion Clemson to down North Carolina for its sixth consecutive triumph after a 0-1 start.

Strike costs money, maybe careers

By The Associated Press

With the resumption of the National Football League season in serious jeopardy and millions of dollars already fumbled away, reaction to the latest breakdown in negotiations varied from expressions of hope to warnings of careers ended.

The strike has cost both the league and its striking players nearly $275 million through seven weeks. And, according to Tom Condon of the Kansas City Chiefs, who is a member of the NFL Players Association Executive Council as well as a lawyer, it might cost "a lot of players" their careers.

"Any time, a player has to be ready to give up his career," Condon said on ABC-TV's "Sportsbeat." "And so, a lot of players are in that posture, that this may be the end of their careers and they want to stick it out because they feel that we deserve a fair agreement."

To get any type of agreement, Baltimore Colts player rep Mike Ozdowski said, "one side or the other is going to have to give. I don't think the talks have reached a stalemate."

But Mike Lynn, general manager of the Minnesota Vikings, wasn't so optimistic. He called the current impasse "the grimmest it's ever been with the negotiators and the mediators packing up and leaving. Lynn added that the next two or three days would be crucial to the fate of the 1982 season.

It was Lynn's estimation that the strike was costing the Vikings about $1 million a week. It's hurting the three television networks which broadcast NFL games because substitute programming has not drawn the kind of high ratings the NFL attracts. Cities where games are scheduled are losing an estimated $2 million a week in hotel and restaurant revenue and concessionaires are losing an additional $2 million a week.

Pasadena, Calif., which is to host the Super Bowl on Jan. 30, already has committed a substantial amount of money to fixing up the Rose Bowl.

"We have stepped up our five-year plan and gone ahead with $5 million worth of improvements at the Rose Bowl and surrounding area," Mayor Loretta Glickman said. "This was done in anticipation of revenue from the Super Bowl game."

Still, neither NBC or ABC seem willing to shuffle their programming lineup if the strike is settled and the season extended beyond Jan. 30.

"We have commitments," said Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports, which is supposed to televise the Super Bowl and has lined up advertisers for the game at $385,000 per 30-second spot. "The advertisers are an important part of this relationship."

Some people aren't exactly crushed over the lack of pro football action, be it on Sunday afternoon or Monday night.

"I miss it, no doubt," said Sydney Hankoff, a 65-year old resident of Baltimore and a Colts' fan. "But when you come down to it, there are more important things in life."

Hankoff said that customers at the convenience store where he works "aren't exactly moping in their beer."

WANTING IN ON THE ACTION — National All-Stars Maurice Evans makes sure his headgear is ready to go Saturday afternoon during the Little Football League Super Bowl. His National teammates may have needed his help as they dropped a 24-22 decision to the American All-Stars in a game played at Blankenship Field.

Plea-bargaining fails for Morris

MIAMI (AP) — Court officials say former Miami Dolphins running back Mercury Morris sought a last-minute plea-bargain agreement with the state that would have guaranteed he serve only one year in prison.

Morris discussed the plea with state prosecutors and Dade County Circuit Judge Ellen Morphonios Gable before final arguments began in his trial.

The Miami Herald reported in Sunday's editions that Chief Assistant State Attorney George Yoss rejected the plea and that Gable called the request "ludicrous."

Morris was convicted by a circuit jury Friday and now faces a minimum of 15 years in prison.

The one-year sentence sought by the former National Football League star, who played for the Dolphins during their glory years in the early 1970s, was the same given former teammate Don Reese when he was convicted of selling cocaine in 1977.

Reese served one year in the Dade County stockade, where Morris and his attorney proposed that Morris serve his time. Judge Joseph Durant was criticized for giving Reese the lenient sentence.

Morris, however, will be sentenced under a 2-year-old law that leaves no discretion for leniency. Anyone convicted of trafficking in more than 400 grams of cocaine must serve a minimum 15 years without parole.

Morris, who remains jailed, was convicted of selling 456 grams to a Florida Department of Law Enforcement agent at his South Miami home. He is not eligible for an appeal bond because he is facing two other felony bad-check charges and was convicted of trafficking in cocaine.

Two co-defendants in the trial, Vincent Cord and Edgar Kulins, both pleaded guilty under plea bargain agreements in which prosecutors agreed to waive the minimum-mandatory 15-year sentence.

Yoss said Morris had been offered a chance to plead guilty two weeks after he was arrested on Aug. 18 and that plea discussions continued through the trial.

Aerobi-rhythm classes

Aerobi-Rhythm classes sponsored by the First Baptist Church Recreation Ministry begin Tuesday evening at FBC's Family Life Center.

The classes are offered each Tuesday and Thursday at 1 and 5:30 p.m. for beginners and advanced students. Cost is $15 per session.

To register, call the Life Center at 267-3633.

Hoop organizes

A meeting for adults interested in beginning an elementary basketball program for girls is planned for 7 p.m. tonight at the TESCO Reddy Room.

The program will involve girls in fifth and sixth grades.

GOT TO GET AWAY — Big Spring Steers quarterback Adam Rodriguez (11) tries to evade the take of Central's David Wilkinson (7) in Friday night's season finale. Rodriguez gained three yards on the first quarter run but the Bobcats gained a victory and playoff berth with a narrow 15-14 victory in Memorial Stadium.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 9, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Dramatic changes in activities are prevalent now. Maintaining an even keel could encourage others to pay you more respect. A time to improve your health.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Adopt a new plan that will bring you closer to your goals. Handling routines in a more modern way is wise now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid certain persons who do not comprehend your ideas. Handle private duties before joining group activities.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you feel you are not being properly rewarded for work done, find better ways for advancement. Don't neglect a credit matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to obtain facts and figures about a new outlet you have in mind. Try to be more economical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take time to handle personal matters and gain added prestige. Follow the good advice of loved one at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid an argument with an associate over a difference of opinion. Don't become involved in activities you don't like.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to routine duties but don't let your emotions get the best of you. Strive to be more efficient in your work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Engage in recreations that are not too expensive, otherwise you could regret it later. Good day to make new plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show that you comprehend the ideas of an influential person in your line of endeavor. Show more affection for loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go to the right source for the data you need. Avoid one who is detrimental to your best interests. Be alert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to use more modern methods if you are to get ahead faster now. Know what is expected of you by co-workers.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Maintain a more cheerful manner in handling routines and improve your image. Follow all regulations that apply to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful persons who can start new ventures in a precise way and carry through with them in a successful manner. Be certain that the efforts are trended in constructive channels.

WHAT'S IN THE FUTURE — Chrysler Canada Ltd. plants stand idle after Friday's walkout by some 10,000 Canadian autoworkers. Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca said last week, 'This is a deadly serious matter and we want you to have the facts before you begin a strike that will cripple the company and perhaps ruin it.'

Chrysler cuts 2,500 in U.S.; may provide jobless benefits

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. says it is considering providing unemployment benefits to the 2,500 U.S. autoworkers laid off today because of the strike at Chrysler's Canadian factories. Operations at 15 U.S. plants in four states are being cut back because they make parts for the Chrysler Canada Ltd. factories being struck by 10,000 workers seeking an immediate pay increase. United Auto Workers President Douglas A. Fraser said at a news conference Sunday he asked Chrysler last week to provide Supplemental Unemployment Benefits to the U.S. workers, and he intended to pursue the request today. Fraser also announced he will return to the Chrysler board of directors after the Canadian strike is settled. The Canadian strike, by Canadian UAW locals, began Friday after the company refused a demand for an immediate, substantial pay boost to narrow a $3-an-hour gap between Chrysler workers and Ford and General Motors workers in Canada. The workers now are paid the equivalent of about $7.48 an hour. Fraser's request 'will be given serious consideration,' Chrysler spokesman Bill Stempien said Sunday, refusing to elaborate. Under terms of the U.S. contract, U.S. workers usually receive only state unemployment benefits if they are laid off because of a strike, Fraser said. The amounts vary from state to state. The company-paid benefits, which amount to about 95 percent of a worker's pay, normally are allotted only to workers who are laid off because of a production slowdown or plant closing. Chrysler pays into the unemployment benefits fund under a formula based upon the numbers of hours worked per blue-collar employee. On Friday, Fraser took a leave of absence from the board to avoid an appearance of a conflict of interest 'during this sensitive time,' he said in a letter to the company. When Fraser joined the board in May 1980, he became the first union official to sit on the board of a major U.S. corporation. Fraser said he could not predict how long the Canadian strike will last. The company will not settle with the Canadians before settling with the 43,000 U.S. autoworkers who rejected a proposed strike pending renewed talks in January, company officials have said. Meanwhile, some employees of Ford Motor Co. of Canada stepped in to help the striking Chrysler workers improve the $65 a week they now receive from the union's strike fund.

Iran warns Saudis against oil war

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Claiming a fresh victory in its war with Iraq, Iran turned its sights on Saudi Arabia and warned Baghdad's chief financial backer against attempting an oil war with Iran's revolutionary government. Saudi Arabia, the largest exporter in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries cartel, has threatened that when OPEC meets next month, it will slash its prices to undercut Iranian oil sales. 'This threat is like (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein's threat — it is a complete bluff,' Iranian Oil Minister Mohammad Gharazi told foreign reporters Sunday. The news conference, at the Oil Ministry headquarters in Tehran, came hours after Iran announced its troops had punched six miles into Iraqi territory Saturday night in the second reported cross-border thrust in three months. 'I don't think Saudi Arabia is going to do the same thing Saddam (Hussein) has done,' Gharazi said. But he added, 'The conflict with the Saudi regime will not end. The Saudi government should be more careful.' Saudi Arabia claims Iran is undermining OPEC's efforts to sop up the world oil glut. The Saudis also are clearly nervous about Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's efforts to export his militant Islamic revolution to the conservative Arab nations of the Persian Gulf. In an effort to contain the revolutionary fervor of Persian Moslem Iran, the Saudis and several other Arab Moslem nations have loaned billions of dollars to Iraq's war effort. Nonetheless, Iraq has suffered sharp reverses on the battlefield. Iran has been undercutting posted OPEC prices by selling light crude for about $31.20 a barrel, $2.80 below the $34 benchmark price for a 42-gallon barrel of that grade of petroleum, industry experts say. Iran also has increased its exports to more than 2 million barrels a day, in defiance of OPEC quotas set last spring. The quotas pegged Iranian exports at 1.2 million barrels a day. Gharazi, a former governor of Khuzestan, the oil-producing province hardest hit by the 25-month-old war, opened the news conference with a 20-minute denunciation of the United States and Iraq. Staring fiercely at visiting reporters, he claimed the United States 'assigned' Iraq to attack Iran. By the end of the session, his attacks on Saudi Arabia became just as heated. In the latest battlefield accounts, the speaker of Iran's Parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, told a news conference Sunday that Iranian troops had breached the Iraqi border — reaching Tib, a town of 3,000, and an adjacent town, which he did not name. Asked whether the Iranian military might drive toward Baghdad, the Iraqi capital 170 miles to the northwest, Rafsanjani replied: 'We will not limit ourselves... We won't finish until they meet our conditions.'

The turbaned Moslem clergyman reiterated those peace conditions: withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Iranian soil, payment of reparations to Iran, and 'punishment' of Iraq's president. (An Iraqi military communiqué broadcast by Baghdad Radio and monitored in London acknowledged the Iranian invasion, but claimed Iraqi troops 'were dealing severe blows to the enemy.' Both sides announced heavy enemy losses in men and equipment, but neither disclosed its own casualties. (The battlefield reports could not be independently confirmed since the combatants bar foreign correspondents from covering the front on a regular basis.) Iran last struck across the border in July, storming toward Basra, Iraq's second-largest city. Iraq turned back the invasion in heavy fighting. Iraq invaded Iran in September 1980, seizing almost 8,000 square miles of territory. Since early this year, the Iraqis have been driven back by the repeated Iranian offensives. Iraq went to war in an effort to gain full sovereignty over the Shatt-Al-Arab waterway that forms the southern border between the two nations and is Iraq's only outlet to the Persian Gulf.
