

POSSIBLE ABUSE SHELTER — The Howard County Ministerial Alliance hopes the Big Spring City Council will approve this old fire station at 2906 W. 13th to be used as a shelter for neglected and abused children. The shelter will provide abused children room and board until the proper juvenile agency decides the child's fate. The council meets tonight at 6:30 p.m. to decide on the matter.

Abused children Shelter sought to fill their needs

Johnny's mother can't handle everyday problems. Often she gets angry and hits Johnny. Professional counselors are helping Johnny's mother, but what happens to Johnny in the meantime?

In Big Spring there are few alternatives. Sometimes the child is enrolled in protective day care and returned to his home at night. If child abuse cases are severe enough, the child is taken from the home and placed with foster parents or taken 60 miles to an Odessa youth shelter.

But most of the time, the child is left with his abusing parent. "In all fairness, we can say that more abused children would be taken out (of their homes) if a (shelter) facility was close," says Victor Sedinger, minister of the Big Spring First Christian Church. "But since it involves so much paper work, all those man hours and emotional strain, too, some people (parents) are given the benefit of the doubt."

Sedinger serves as vice-chairman of a Howard County Ministerial Fellowship program called The Rainbow Project. He and four other members of the project's provisional board of directors are working to provide a shelter for abused, neglected and runaway children.

But is the case load in Big Spring enough to warrant such a facility? Chairman Tim Winn, minister of the Knott First Baptist Church, says research done with the cooperation of Texas Department of Human Research and child abuse case workers show a definite need for a protective shelter to "give them some place to go before decisions are made... a breathing space."

"We did research from April through September... We were told that if they (TDHR, county juvenile probation officer or police department) had a shelter available they would have used it for 12 kids per month... Statistics show the number increasing. In fact, it's almost doubling since last year," Winn said.

Winn — who, with his wife, is a licensed foster parent — says the shelter also is needed because "We just can't get enough foster parents involved to take care of our needs in Howard County. So our next alternative is an emergency shelter."

Initially, the Rainbow Project would provide room and board and house parents for abused and neglected children until the juvenile agency involved decides the child's fate.

Winn said the fellowship also hopes to provide shelter for runaways. "Now, with both local and state runaways, they just wind up in jail. That's kind of rough on a kid."

Later, they want to expand the program to provide emergency counseling for the children and "intervene with the families" through counseling or by helping them find "more exhaustive counseling," Sedinger said.

Sedinger said "Our contention is that each day we would house maybe three or more children... We're talking about a one week stay and no more than 30 by law."

2,700 reported killed in crash Soviet soldiers, civilians caught in Afghan mountain tunnel

By RICHARD BILL
Associated Press Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Up to 2,700 civilians and Soviet soldiers in a convoy died after a fiery collision in an Afghan mountain tunnel jammed with buses and trucks, Western diplomatic sources said today.

The diplomatic sources and Afghan rebels said Soviet soldiers outside the tunnel sealed it off at both ends after the explosion from the crash, apparently fearing they were under rebel attack. This blocked escape for those trapped inside who burned to death or died of asphyxiation, the sources said.

By one account from rebels, the lead truck of a Soviet convoy smashed head-on into a fuel tanker, causing a massive explosion that gutted at least 30 buses and cars in the Salang tunnel 70 miles north of Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan. The tunnel is a major thoroughfare to the Soviet Union.

There was no independent confirmation of the reports, which said the disaster occurred in early November. Neither the Moscow-backed Afghan regime nor the Soviet Union, which sent troops to Afghanistan in 1979 to help crush a Moslem rebellion, have commented.

DETAILS ON the reported disaster remained scant because the government restricts the movement of foreign correspondents. Information is gathered from diplomats in the capital Kabul, rebels and refugees fleeing into Pakistan.

Afghanistan's Radio Kabul has been broadcasting lengthy lists of death notices each night, without saying what the cause of death was, the diplomatic sources said. The diplomatic sources could not be identified.

The diplomatic sources, citing reports from the Afghan capital, said between 400 and 2,000 Afghan civilians were killed in the early November disaster in the 1.7-mile-long tunnel, 11,000 feet high in the Hindu Kush mountain range.

They said as many as 700 Soviet troops reportedly died, while another 200 were said to have been injured.

Bodies were still being flown from the area one week after the disaster, the sources said, briefing reporters here on condition they not be identified by name or by country. They described Kabul as a city in mourning.

"WHATEVER THE body count, there seems to be nobody in Kabul who has not lost a friend or relative," a source said.

In the Pakistani border town of Peshawar, guerrilla sources said they had heard that at least 700 people, mainly civilians, were killed. One source, who identified himself as Mohammad Yaqub Sharafat, said 450 Soviet soldiers were confirmed dead and Afghan civilian casualties were "in the hundreds."

Sharafat said at least three Soviet vehicles were destroyed in the tunnel blast. He said the Soviet convoy was coming from Haratan, a port city on the Oxus River dividing Afghanistan and the Soviet Union.

The sources said there were a variety of conflicting reports circulating in Kabul about the accident, believed to have occurred in the afternoon of Nov. 2 or 3.

LOOSE CHANGE — University of Idaho executive assistant Terry Armstrong scours the campus for pennies and dimes. The school in Moscow, Idaho hopes to have a $6 million endowment collected by 2089. Parking meters are prime spots for finding lost money, he says.

Penny pinchers save for school

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — When Terry Armstrong finds a penny on the ground or a dime in a phone booth, it goes to the University of Idaho instead of his pocket.

Armstrong and about 200 other people are saving money they find in odd places and giving it to the university for an endowment fund. So far, they've got $120, and their sights are set on $6 million — in a century or so.

"We call it the Found Money Fund of Idaho," said Armstrong, executive assistant to the university president. "About 200 of us true philanthropists donate all the money we find around town."

It all started with a penny in Armstrong's shoe.

"I walk a half mile to work and over the years picked up pennies or nickels and put them in my shoe for good luck," he said Monday.

One day in January 1981, Armstrong spotted 8 cents on the sidewalk in front of a sorority house. "I decided it was time to put all that money in a jar and see how much I could collect in a month," he said.

Armstrong's colleagues took to the idea and started depositing their "finds" in the jar. "In five months, we had $6 or $7 and realized we had to put the money to good use," he said.

Armstrong decided to start buying shares in Idaho's Fund for Academic Excellence, a general university trust fund that finances honors programs, special projects and faculty development.

Shares in the fund sell for $10 to $12, and each time the jar fills up, Armstrong buys a share in the name of the Found Money Fund. "We already have 10 shares of stock valued at $120," he said. "And there's another $12.05 in the jar."

"We're really smokin'," Armstrong said. "We've calculated it out and by plowing all the interest back into the principal, we'll have $5 million or $6 million by the 200th anniversary of the university — in 2089."

"And that's if we didn't collect another penny," he added.

Lawsuit filed against district clerk

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners agreed Monday to support 118th District Clerk Peggy Crittenden in a $500,000 civil rights lawsuit filed against her in her capacity as district clerk.

Commissioners met briefly in executive session during Monday's meeting with Mrs. Crittenden. After the session, commissioners said the county would remunerate legal expenses in the case since it occurred while she was working for the county. County Attorney Bob Miller is currently handling the suit before passing it on to an attorney in Abilene.

The suit was brought in Abilene federal court by a Texas Department of Corrections prisoner, Andrew Lee Butler, who claims a writ of habeas corpus he filed in 1978 was not handled correctly by Mrs. Crittenden's office. Butler was sentenced to 20 years in 118th District Court in 1977.

A writ of habeas corpus asks the court to show cause why a person is being held.

The suit claims the writ was held in the district clerk's office four or five months instead of being presented to the court within 35 days as required by law. According to the suit, this action was a violation of the Civil Rights Act and denied Butler his constitutional rights. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Abilene in early October.

Mrs. Crittenden has waived comment on the suit pending the completion of legal action.

Miller said today the answer to the suit would stress Mrs. Crittenden handled the suit correctly. "Filing was all she was supposed to do," Miller said. Claims the plaintiff was denied due process and access to the courts are incorrect, Miller said. He said the case was presented and overruled by then-District Judge Ralph Caton as well as the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Miller noted Butler had filed three other writs since 1978 and the last one

Dawson to decide on beer

LAMESA (SC) — After 75 years of being dry, Dawson County may possibly be wet in the near future as county commissioners yesterday unanimously approved a Dec. 4 election date to decide whether to approve beer sales in the fledgling town of Los Ybanez.

The petition for the sale of beer was submitted to the courts yesterday by the mayor of the town, Israel Ybanez. Ybanez has said in the past that the sale of beer in the community would help keep business in the county and cut down the overpurchasing and overabuse of the beer.

The petition carried 41 names — 12 names over the needed amount to make the document valid.

The election is planned to decide whether to permit the sale of beer in Los Ybanez for off-premise consumption only.

In October, Ybanez submitted a similar petition for a beer election, but it was rejected by commissioners because it called for an election that might include areas outside of Los Ybanez. The petition approved Monday restricts the sale of beer to only Los Ybanez.

Jules Verne fails over Canada

MIDLAND, Ontario AP) — Daredevil Maxie Anderson, his helium balloon deflated along with his dream of an historic round-the-world flight, says he's going to "call it quits and leave it to the next generation" to attempt the feat.

"I'm going to go back home and lick my wounds," said a disappointed Anderson after he and copilot Don Ida dropped the Jules Verne, its towering balloon leaking helium, into a farmer's field 15 miles outside this Georgian Bay resort town.

The disappointing end to their third attempt to fly around the world came at 4:30 p.m. EST Monday, less than 17 hours after a delayed but triumphant takeoff from Rapid City, S.D., on a trip that was to have lasted 10 days.

With the cheers from the crowd of 6,000 South Dakotans faded into the distance, and the balloon scudding silently over Minnesota, Anderson said he and his partner noticed helium was escaping through a small hole in the fabric.

The first hint that something had gone wrong came much earlier, when the pilots reported the balloon was unstable in flight.

After passing over the Great Lakes, Anderson said, the adventurers decided there was no choice but to land. The balloonists radioed an emergency signal and the Canadian Forces base at Trenton, Ontario, dispatched a helicopter and short-takeoff airplane to track the Jules Verne, a base spokesman said.

ABRUPT END — The gondola of the Jules Verne sits in a farmer's field Monday in Hillsdale, Ont. American balloonist Maxie Anderson, far left, called an end to his around-the-world trip after the balloon began leaking air over the Great Lakes.

Harrelson may have urged witnesses not to talk

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The man accused of the contract killing of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. professed his love for two female witnesses during secretly recorded conversations and urged them not to talk to the FBI.

Prosecutors continued today to play tape recordings of Charles V. Harrelson's telephone and jail visiting room conversations with the wife of a friend and another woman who hired him as a bodyguard.

Harrelson, identified on the two recordings made in November 1980, complained to Jo Ann Robinson of spending an hour in an

FBI lineup and "... being pent up with that scum, those FBI agents."

He said he tried to avoid touching the men and took a shower after meeting with the agents, whom he said had "J.C. Penny suits and affidavits faces."

"God, I hate them," he told Mrs. Robinson, the wife of Harrelson's friend Hampton Robinson III.

Later the same week, the tapes showed Harrelson again talking with Mrs. Robinson, and her baby crying in the background.

"We can show her (the baby) by example what life is all about so she won't grow up with all these hangups people have,"

The tapes showed Harrelson telling Mrs. Robinson and wealthy El Paso businesswoman Virginia Farah how much he loved them and how much he abhorred people who talked to the FBI.

Both Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Farah have testified for the prosecution in the trial of Harrelson, his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, and Elizabeth Chagra.

"I love you so much," Harrelson told Mrs. Robinson in a Nov. 18, 1980, telephone conversation recorded by the FBI. "I love you, I miss you."

"I dream of you every time I go to sleep," he told Mrs. Farah the next day in another recorded telephone conversation. "... Virginia, I love you."

Harrelson and his wife, seated two chairs apart at the defense table, did not look at each other while the tapes were played, but afterwards he went to her and whispered something before both were taken back to jail for the night.

Harrelson, 44, is accused of killing Wood on May 29, 1979, for a $250,000 fee. Mrs. Harrelson, 41, is charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and Mrs. Chagra, 28, the wife of the man accused of paying for the judge's murder, is charged with conspiring to kill Wood and to obstruct justice.

County court sets resisting arrest trial

Jury selection completed this morning for the trial of Michael and Raymond Ford in Howard County court. Michael Ford, 24, and Raymond Ford, 18, both of 1607 Bluebird, are charged with resisting arrest during a Sept. 19th incident at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

According to police reports, officers had asked the older Ford to move his vehicle from blocking the emergency entrance at the hospital. Police say he responded with obscenities and assaulted officers when he was placed under arrest. The younger Ford was arrested for hindering the arrest of his brother.

Testimony in the case is expected to begin this afternoon or Wednesday morning.

Probation commission requests more funds

By JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Adult Probation Commission, citing a record number of adults on probation, will ask the 1983 Legislature to double its 1982-83 budget.

Agency officials said Monday they will ask legislators for $101 million for the coming biennium, almost double the present two-year appropriation of $51.9 million.

As of Sept. 30, 168,563 persons were on probation in Texas. More than half, about 52 percent, were placed on probation following felony convictions, according to Dick Lewis, a commission spokesman.

Four years ago, 117,609 adults were on probation, he said. The number of adults on probation in Howard, Glasscock and Martin counties also has increased during that four-year period. Last September, 767 adults were on probation in the three-county area, an increase over the 1978 total of 398.

More than half of the adults currently on probation in those counties, 460, were convicted of felonies. The number of probationers statewide could swell to 221,000 by 1985, according to agency projections.

"That's a hell of an increase over the next couple of years," Lewis said. "If anything, our estimates may be conservative, and that's kind of frightening, too."

The number of probationers is expected to continue growing, he said, as law enforcement, jurists and prison officials search for ways to alleviate overcrowding at the Texas Department of Corrections.

On the average, he said, each probation officer has a caseload of about 147. The commission's recommended standard is 100 probationers per officer.

That's one of the problems commission officials hope to rectify with the 1984-85 budget requests, which would increase a four-year-old formula rate of 50 cents per probationer to 60 cents in 1984 and 65 cents in 1985.

CRMWD releases latest delivery figures for area

If the Colorado River Municipal Water District deliveries in the last two months of this year as much as match those of 1981, the district will surpass 18 billion gallons this year.

Another substantial increase in deliveries occurred in October, boosting the total to 15,802,094,445 gallons during the initial 10 months. Of this, 13,773,441,200 gallons went to municipalities — up 5.35 percent.

The total of 1,430,778,376 gallons delivered in October was up 3.94 percent over the same period last year. The bulk of this was in municipal deliveries of 1,229,929,000 — up 5.42 percent for the month.

The October city record included Big Spring with 208,129,000, down 1.96 percent; Midland 326,330,000, down 6.75 percent; Odessa, 590,633,000, up 35.64 percent; Snyder 86,170,000, up 11.18 percent and Stanton 10,060,000, up 37.75 percent.

Shelter

The provisional board's proposed budget is $55,000 a year, Sedinger said. "I've been told by several people that amount is low. We'll have to watch and make the most out of our funds."

The funds for the proposed budget would come from private donations, Sedinger said. "We're looking for private funding exclusively. Basically, we'll be asking for local congregations to underwrite operating costs."

"It's a massive undertaking," Sedinger said. One step the board has taken is to find a suitable facility for the shelter. They believe they've found it in an empty firehouse on West 13th. Sedinger is scheduled to make a formal request to lease the building — owned by the city — at tonight's city council meeting.

"It's an impressive structure, well built, although it's been vandalized," Winn said. "It's at least 20 years old and needs some renovations."

Winn said the board's next step is to contract Buckner Baptist Benevolent, Inc. of Lubbock as administrators and file for the license under that company's name.

Then the provisional board will set up a permanent board consisting of four clergymen and five community leaders. "We've just about filled (the board) already. I've heard nothing but positive responses to this project," Winn said.

"This is one of the things I feel strongly about," Sedinger said. "I have two kids of my own ... I don't think kids by and large are able to protect themselves from physical abuse. They need help."

"While I can understand times are hard, social pressures and economic pressures can add up, there is no excuse," Sedinger said. "Yet I know abuse exists and I know we need this shelter."

was denied with orders from the appeals court to refuse further appeals unless they contained more cause for appeal. He called the case "frivolous."

In other action, commissioners approved a joint city-county civil defense contract. County Judge Bill Tune said the CD, under director Larry Miller, had worked up a comprehensive emergency management plan for the area. Commissioners unanimously approved the resolution.

Commissioners also canvassed ballots from Tuesday's general election. County Clerk Margaret Ray told the commissioners the election cost approximately a dollar a vote with expenses expected to climb over $8,000. A total of 8,608 persons voted in Howard County.

After discussing problems with janitorial service, commissioners moved to seek bids for cleaning service in the courthouse following specifications written by Auditor Jackie Olson. The 13th was set as a deadline to receive bids.

Police Beat

Firearm theft cases reported

Police received two reports yesterday of stolen firearms. Norma J. Clark of 1903 Johnson told police someone stole a .25-caliber automatic pistol from under her mattress last weekend and Marvin E. Williams of 1007 S. Lancaster told police someone stole a $250 12-gauge shotgun from a closet in his house. Williams also said the thief stole a shotgun case and a jar of coins.

Police reports also showed the following:
• Larry Klemppner of Chandler, Ariz. told police someone stole two brown leather suitcases containing clothing from his car parked at Motel 6 room 86 between 11 p.m. Sunday and 5:30 a.m. yesterday.

• Neal Roberts of 1404 S. Rannels told police someone stole two $100 bicycles and a $200 Honda motorcycle from his yard last weekend.

• Juana H. Jordan of 506 Douglas was admitted to Cowper Clinic after her vehicle collided with a vehicle driven by Mozell Newton of 801½ Pine. The accident occurred at Douglas and Sixth about 12:35 p.m. yesterday.

• Vehicles driven by Jerry D. Hudson of 1112 Sycamore and Daniel Heckler of 4202 Parkway collided at Eighth and Rannels at 8:25 p.m. yesterday. Police cited Hudson for an expired license plate and disregarding a stop sign. Police reports indicate Heckler was injured and treated at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

• Vehicles driven by Rene A. Valdez of 632 N.W. Third and Anthony L. Caldwell of Fort Worth collided at N.W. Fourth and Trades at 12:05 p.m. yesterday. Valdez was cited for failure to yield right-of-way. No injuries were reported.

• Vehicles driven by Patsy B. Curry of Snyder and Leah L. Walters of 3702 Hamilton collided at 600 S. Main at 4 p.m. yesterday. Police cited Curry for making an improper start from a parked position. No injuries were reported.

Sheriffs Log

Man sentenced to 2 years in prison

Robert Douglas Woodcock, 18, of Toledo, Ohio, is in Howard County jail pending transfer to state prison. Woodcock was given two years in the Texas Department of Corrections yesterday after his probation from a theft conviction was revoked in a hearing before 118th District Judge Jim Gregg.

• Sheriff's deputies arrested David Bailey, no age given, of Whip-In Campground, on suspicion of assault. Following arraignment before Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin, Bailey was released after posting $1,000 bond.

• Benny Gonzales Deanda Jr., 18, of 400 N.W. 11th, pleaded guilty in county court to revocation of probation. Records show he was given credit for 22 days in jail and fined $10.

Kremlin maneuvers as Brezhnev weakens

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's health is so poor that he is only in symbolic charge in the Kremlin while three top contenders jockey to succeed him, according to U.S. intelligence estimates.

The three are Yuri Andropov, former head of the KGB, the secret police; Konstantin Chernenko, the failing leader's closest associate in recent years; and Victor Grishin, head of the Communist party in Moscow.

A fourth erstwhile contender, Andrei Kirilenko, 76, is himself in poor health and no longer considered in the running. Intelligence sources here said Kirilenko will be dropped from the ruling Politburo when it meets Nov. 15 and also will be taken off top defense committees.

"Brezhnev keeps going up and down, but each time he comes back he comes back at a lower level of energy," said one U.S. official who watches Kremlin developments closely.

"He's able to cope, and it's clear that he may go on for a number of years still," the official said recently. "But his abilities to manage all the complexities of government are decreasing over time."

Another official who also keeps tabs on the Soviet hierarchy said of Brezhnev: "He's always been in bad shape."

The Soviet leader, 76 next month, no longer chairs committee meetings. "He really isn't running the country anymore," said this knowledgeable official. But he said the Kremlin decided it was preferable to retain Brezhnev in office than have an open fight over succession.

The Soviet leader's infirmities, and the quiet struggle over succession, obviously are of acute interest to the Reagan administration.

There is a growing consensus that despite the infighting, the Soviet decision-making process remains vigorous — largely through the combined strengths of Andropov, Chernenko, Andrei A. Gromyko, the veteran foreign minister, Dmitri Ustinov, the defense minister, and Nikolai A. Tikhonov, the premier.

They are said to set policy and get Brezhnev to approve it, although there is no formal agreement on how to keep the Kremlin operating when the president is absent or unable to function.

"I don't see any sign at all of paralysis," said a U.S. official as he described the largely informal Soviet arrangement.

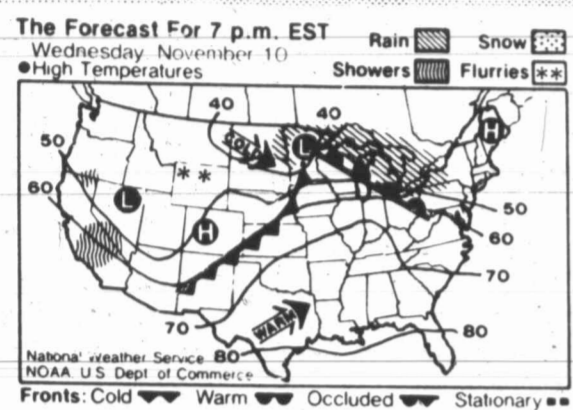

Ironically, despite hard-line rhetoric from Moscow, a number of U.S. policy makers interviewed recently are convinced that during the transition period the Soviets might be more inclined to reach arms control agreements with the United States and follow a less belligerent course around the world.

They see precedents in the 1953-54 and 1965 periods, after the death of Josef Stalin and the forced retirement of Nikita Khrushchev, when the Soviets masked internal uncertainty by showing an interest in reaching understandings with the West.

Cott Blacker, a Soviet military analyst at Stanford University, referred to the process recently as seeking "a kind of breathing space."

Weather

Cool, cloudy days forecast

By The Associated Press

Cloudy skies moved in over much of Texas early today as moisture from the Gulf of Mexico promised to bring humid conditions to the state.

A band of low cloudiness stretched from the coastal bend into Central Texas. High clouds covered most eastern and western sections of the state.

Clear skies were the rule across the Lower Rio Grande Valley and West Texas.

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from 32 at Marfa to 67 at Galveston.

The forecast called for cloudy to partly cloudy skies statewide with a chance of light rain through tonight across West Texas.

SNOW BLANKETED mountainous areas of California and Nevada early today, as a winter storm warning was posed for the southern Sierra Nevada and the Tahoe Basin.

Rain dampened lower elevations of Arizona and New Mexico.

Skies were cloudy over much of the West, the Great Plains and the Mississippi Valley. Rain and drizzle spread from Kansas and Nebraska to northern Illinois and Wisconsin.

Skies were generally clear elsewhere, except for some cloudy cover in the Northeast.

More rain was expected today in the Southwest, the Pacific Northwest and Western states, and across the Plains and into the Great Lakes region.

Scattered showers were predicted for southern Florida, and snow for was expected in northern Maine.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 23 degrees in Hibbing, Minn., to 75 degrees in West Palm Beach, Fla.

NASA confident of timely liftoff

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The space agency voiced confidence that Columbia's first commercial mission will lift off on time Thursday despite a leak in the space shuttle's steering system that interrupted the countdown.

Engineers were evaluating the problem overnight and expected a final decision today on whether the countdown would continue, leading up to a scheduled liftoff at 7:19 a.m. EST Thursday.

A statement issued Monday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said experts as a precaution were analyzing the leak found Sunday in a backup helium regulator in the system of 44 small jets used to steer Columbia in orbit.

"Engineers believe the test will show that leakage through the regulators is at a low enough level to permit use of the system in its normal configuration for the ascent phase of the mission," it said.

If officials decided to replace the leaky unit, the flight might have to be delayed several weeks because of the need to return the spaceship to its hangar for repair work.

Backing its confidence, NASA directed the four astronauts who will man Columbia's first satellite-hauling trip to fly here today from their training base at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

Commanding the shuttle's first four-man crew is veteran astronaut Vance Brand. The others are space newcomers — Pilot Robert Overmyer and mission specialists William Lenoir and Joseph Allen.

The leak was detected Sunday and the faulty unit was deactivated, with its function assigned to another system. Helium is used to pressurize fuel lines.

Troubleshooting the problem delayed the countdown by seven hours, but crews gradually were making up the lost time and expected to be back on schedule sometime today.

While the engineers probed the problem, workers Monday night conducted a major step in the countdown — pumping liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen into the tanks of Columbia's power-producing fuel cells.

The weather outlook for a Thursday launch is favorable, with a forecast of good visibility, light winds and a temperature of 72 degrees.

The four astronauts spent several hours Monday in a shuttle simulator in Houston, practicing liftoffs and landings. Later, they did some proficiency flying in T-38 jet planes.

The major goal of the mission is to place in separate orbits two commercial communications satellites built for Satellite Business Systems of McLean, Va., and Telesat Canada, Inc. They are the first in a long line of customers who have signed on to pay NASA for shuttle launch services.

Lenoir and Allen have the responsibility for monitoring the satellites and ejecting them with spring devices from the ship's 60-foot-long cargo bay. They also will take the first shuttle space walks when they step together into the open bay on Sunday for 3½ hours of space suit and other tests.

SATELLITES ABOARD SHUTTLE — Technicians check satellites that will be launched from the space shuttle prior to the closing of the cargo bay doors Sunday. The mission is slated to begin Thursday.

Panel looks at ways to save system

Social Security taxes to rise for 10 million

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — While a blue ribbon panel considers ways to hike Social Security taxes or reduce benefits to bail out the troubled system, nearly 10 million American workers and their employers already are getting word that they will have to pay $3.6 billion more in Social Security payments next year.

The Social Security Administration announced Monday that under an automatic adjustment mechanism, the ceiling on wages taxed by Social Security will be lifted from $32,400 to $35,700 on January 1.

That means the 9.8 million workers expected to earn more than $32,400 in 1983 will face a payroll tax hike of up to $221.10. The maximum tax will be $2,391.90.

The change was based on the increase in the national wage level, as reflected in workers' W-2 forms sent to the Internal Revenue Service. The average wage rose from $12,513 in 1980 to $13,773 last year.

Congress in 1972 provided for the automatic increases in the amount subject to Social Security tax at the same time that it linked benefits to the Consumer Price Index.

The agency also announced that beneficiaries aged 65 to 69 will be able to earn $6,600 in 1983 without losing benefits, up from $6,000 this year. Those under 65 will be able to earn $4,920 without penalty, up from $4,440, and those 70 or older will be able to earn any amount without losing benefits starting with the month they turn 70. Currently those 72 or older are not penalized for earnings.

Meanwhile, the National Commission on Social Security Reform released a laundry list of reform ideas, including a later retirement age, a variety of ways to tax Social Security benefits, changes in the cost-of-living formula and higher levies on whiskey and gasoline.

Those were among 97 options laid out in a background book prepared by the staff of the 15-member panel, which begins a three-day meeting Thursday to hammer out its recommendations.

There were no proposals for making Social Security voluntary or getting rid of its so-called "welfare" aspects, such as spouses' benefits or extra benefits for low-income workers.

The list suggests ways to revamp the system, providing estimates of savings and how much each idea could contribute to eradicating Social Security's deficits during the 1980s and over the next 75 years.

Social Security's old age fund, which had to borrow for the first time in history last month to cover the November checks, faces shortages of $100 billion to $200 billion during the rest of the 1980s.

The Medicare trust fund, now healthy, is expected to hit bottom sometime between 1988 and 1995. A separate blue-ribbon panel was sworn in Monday to address its problems.

The paper estimated that the system over the next seven years could save:

- $110 billion and reduce nearly 30 percent of its long-term deficit by forcing all government and non-private employees into the system in 1984.
- $133 billion by making the payroll tax 7.5 percent in 1984 instead of leaving it at 6.7 percent.
- $134 billion by making people pay income tax on Social Security benefits once they get back as much as they paid to the payroll tax.

—$56.1 billion by including half of the benefits in adjusted gross income for federal income-tax purposes. They would be treated like unemployment benefits, and 50 percent would be taxable if the total income exceeded $12,000 for an individual or $18,000 for couples.

—$41 billion by making employers pay Social Security tax on their entire payroll. The tax now is levied for both employers and employees on income up to $32,400.

—$100 billion by limiting the annual cost-of-living hikes now linked to the Consumer Price Index to 4 percent in 1983 and 1984, then increasing benefits at the rate that workers' average wages rise, minus 1.5 percentage points.

—$103 billion by giving cost-of-living hikes equal to the Consumer Price Index minus 2 percentage points.

—$20 billion by delaying the cost-of-living hikes one month a year for three years.

Witness backs Pulitzer lesbian charge

By JOHN THOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — A last-minute mystery witness in the surprise-laden Pulitzer divorce trial says he saw Roxanne Pulitzer, wearing a sheer nightgown, in bed with socialite Jacqueline Kimberly — who was wearing nothing at all.

The judge in the divorce case termed it "very damaging testimony" to Mrs. Pulitzer's claim that she and Mrs. Kimberly never were lesbian lovers.

Speaking in a calm monotone, Steve Anderson, the mustachioed former mate aboard the Pulitzers' 75-foot yacht, testified Monday that he stumbled across Mrs. Pulitzer in bed with the 32-year-old Mrs. Kimberly.

The encounter occurred in the spring of 1979 as he passed by a bedroom at the Pulitzers' lavish waterfront home on his way to make a phone call, Anderson said.

"I observed four legs protruding from the bed," Anderson testified. "Subsequently, one set of legs slid off and stood up. It was a naked woman ... it was Jackie Kimberly."

Then, Anderson, testified: "Out came Roxanne in a very sheer nightgown and asked what I was doing in the house."

On hearing the testimony, Mrs. Pulitzer threw her head back and laughed. But Palm Beach Circuit Judge Carl Harper termed the stocky sailor's statement as "some very damaging testimony to the wife."

Harper told attorneys for both parties that the 17-day trial, rife with charges of immoral and illegal conduct, would end by today.

"I've heard enough of this," the judge said wearily.

"This trial hasn't been a kissing contest,"

He said he expected no decision on the custody and property matters before Christmas. Mrs. Pulitzer seeks a chunk of her husband's fortune, which she estimates at $25 million and he says is a tenth that. Both parties want custody of their 5-year-old twin sons.

Mrs. Pulitzer, a 31-year-old brunette, has denied ever being in the same bed with Mrs. Kimberly. And Mrs. Kimberly, an ex-model married to Kleenex heir James Kimberly, has called rumors she engaged in homosexual relations with Mrs. Pulitzer "disturbing."

A drawn-looking James Kimberly also took the stand Monday on Mrs. Pulitzer's behalf. The 76-year-old tycoon said he and his wife were on a trans-American tour during the time Anderson claims he saw the two women in bed at the Pulitzer home.

Mrs. Kimberly was not present for her husband's testimony. Since Friday, she has been hospitalized at Good Samaritan Hospital for "exhaustion," and was listed in fair condition Monday.

"We were traveling just after the middle of May 'til June 10," testified Kimberly, sporting an earring in his right ear.

He said he and his wife stopped in New York, Washington, Indianapolis, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Las Vegas, Nev., on the trip. But he acknowledged that they had returned at least twice during their travels to their Palm Beach mansion.

He conceded that in April and May, "I presume I was (in Palm Beach) a good part of the time."

The Pulitzers also each made final, brief appearances on the stand.

This is Youth Appreciation Week

In 1954, a North Carolina group of Optimists decided too much attention was being given to the negative acts of youth and too little attention to the vast majority of youth accepting fulfilling roles as responsible citizens.

To bring about recognition of the positive actions and contributions of young people, Youth Appreciation Week was inaugurated.

Since its inception, this observance has grown to where it is now sponsored by Optimist clubs throughout North America. It has as its objective to publicize the fact that today's youth are not the selfish, lazy degenerates that too many adults fantasize. The vast majority of youth is well informed, concerned, willing and interested in becoming involved in efforts to improve our society.

While the vitality and spirit of youth need the wisdom and experience of adults as support in efforts toward the successful achievement of their goals, it follows that each adult has a responsibility to assist youth through the transitional stage toward adulthood. It is indeed important that we give the needed recognition to deserving youth, but we must not become complacent and overlook the necessity for continued personal dedication and involvement with community improvement.

Youth Appreciation Week is a vehicle through which all adults and youth may work together for the good of all.

Big Spring area Optimist Award winners will be revealed at a breakfast at the Holiday Inn at 7 a.m. tomorrow. Look for their names and pictures in tomorrow afternoon's Herald.

Billy Graham

I'm afraid
I'm in a cult

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have never been very active in my church, but recently I was approached by some people who came to my house and invited me to attend their group. I did this, and at first I was very happy, but now I believe I have become involved in a cult and it scares me. How can I get out of this? — Mrs. J.W.

DEAR MRS. J.W.: There are two things I urge you to do. First, I urge you to make a definite break with this group. This may take a great deal of courage on your part, because one of the characteristics of many cults is that they try to convince you that if you leave their group you will lose your salvation. This is not true, of course; we are saved not by belonging to an organization, but by Christ. Cults often have a strong leader who will try to sway you by his personality, but you need to face the reality of what has happened to you and leave it altogether. If you try to break away little by little, you will probably find it much more difficult and other cult members (who feel threatened by your action) will try to persuade you to stay.

Second, I urge you to give your life to Jesus Christ. When you examine yourself, you will probably see that you became interested in this cult because you had a spiritual hunger in your heart that you hoped they would fill. That has not happened, however, nor can it happen in any lasting way. There is only one way your spiritual hunger can be met, and that is by the God who created you. And he wants to come into your life. He has made it possible for you to know him, because he sent his only Son into the world to die for your sins and reconcile you to God.

Then get in a church where Christ is preached and where you can grow spiritually through the teaching and fellowship of other believers. Let the Bible become part of your life by reading it and memorizing it regularly. Jesus said, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you" (John 14:27). This can become real in your life as you open your heart by faith to God's only Son, Jesus Christ, who died for your sins.

Around the Rim

By RICHARD HORN

Political junkie

JUNKIE — (jung ke), noun. An addict. A person with an intense, irrational need for something.

When it comes to politics, my head tells me to vote conservative, my heart says vote liberal. For some reason, even when I agree with a right-wing issue, I find myself opposing it out of some deep-seated dislike for the way it is being presented by its supporters, or I vote against a candidate who will do the best job because I really don't like the guy.

This year I was determined not to fall into that trap. I voted for Bill Clements. I thought he could do a better job than Mark White. So how come I was so happy when White won?

Because of a lot of reasons that have nothing to do with what really matters in Texas. Bill Clements does not come across as a swell guy. He was so cocky about winning the governorship in 1978, about helping defeat Jimmy Carter in 1980 and about stomping Mark White this year that probably a lot of people (myself included) just wanted to see him fall. And fall he did.

But what does that have to do with high unemployment, the Public Utilities Commission, water and all the other woes facing the state?

Nothing. Voting out of grudge and revenge is one of the key symptoms of political addiction. You become less and less involved in the issues themselves and you get caught up in the drama of the fight.

THE SAD THING is that the way campaigns are run today, only a political junkie can keep a clear head up to election day. Nobody else can stand to keep their eyes and ears open.

Elections have become too massive. That is why many of the political activists of the 1960s have taken to growing marijuana in Colorado or are involved in grass roots campaigns that are easier to manage and keep track of.

Nationally and now in Texas, elections have become too nebulous.

Many Republicans around the state expressed disappointment, even bitterness over the high voter turnout. Republicans can not win in Texas if a lot of people vote. There are more Democrats. So they spend a lot of money knowing they can win ONLY if voter apathy is high. They almost start hoping people don't take an interest.

ON THE OTHER hand, you have a state full of conservative people, many of whom, believe it or not, vote Democratic because Abraham Lincoln was a Republican or because Daddy always voted Democratic or because, well, heck, they've always voted that way.

The biggest proof of political addiction in America can be seen in political action committees, especially in my longtime nemesis, the National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC).

Now to some extent I agree with many of the issues NCPAC supports with their wild glee. They are vitally interested in the issues (laws against abortion, school prayer, etc.), but to the exclusion of all else, including common sense, fair play and, it seems, candidates who can meet their agenda.

As well-meaning as their efforts can be, they attack them with such a vile attitude that they torpedo the issues. Almost every candidate NCPAC backed was beaten to a pulp last week and I imagine in the future a NCPAC endorsement would be seen as the kiss of death. Maybe then somebody can come along who can promote the issues without destroying them.

I wish this defeat would mean the end of NCPAC and all the other PACs, both liberal and conservative. I doubt it. Bill Clements spent $12 million this year, and you'd think that would show that votes cannot be bought through saturation campaigns.

BUT NEXT election, even more money will be spent. All voters hate campaigns, but a typical reason given for not voting for some candidates is that they failed to mount a good campaign and get their name and issues before the public.

I wish I could be more rational about my own politics, but it's all just a big mess. Without pro-football, there just isn't that much to stir our competitive juices and get our gambling instincts flowing.

I can feel it already... Who will run in 1984? Will Reagan seek reelection...?

Las Vegas is hurting

LAS VEGAS, Nevada — Every columnist has to go to one typical American town every fall to tell his readers what is really going on in the country. This year I chose Las Vegas, a nice friendly community situated in the desert somewhere between Salt Lake City and Phoenix.

I dropped into Caesars Palace, the local hangout, and sat around a crap table drinking coffee with some of the locals.

They told me Las Vegas has not been immune to vicissitudes of the economy. Business is way off, and unemployment is above the 10 percent mark.

"They're closing down blackjack tables left and right," a bearded dealer told me, "and half the roulette wheels have stopped turning."

Another old-timer said, "Our slot machines used to go day and night. Now we're lucky to have one shift working in the evening."

"A few years ago you used to have to wait two hours to get a seat in a poker game. Now you can walk into any place and they'll deal you a hand before you can take your money out."

"Things are that bad?"

"They've never been worse," a fellow in a cowboy hat said. "We got hookers that haven't worked in a year."

"I thought Las Vegas was recession-proof," I said.

"So did we. We always figured that no matter how bad things got people would come here to see Wayne Newton and forget their troubles. But we were wrong. People are staying home saying, 'Maybe next year, if things pick up, we'll go to Las Vegas and lose all our money.'"

"What is really killing us is Wall Street," a pit boss said. "When there was no action there, everyone came out here to shoot crap."

"Now the high rollers would rather gamble on the stock market than come to Las Vegas and bet on a sure thing."

"Another reason we're hurting," a cocktail waitress said, "is Atlantic City. They shouldn't have allowed casinos in New Jersey. It corrupts the people."

"It was a rotten thing for Jersey to do," the pit boss agreed. "When Bugsy Seigel built this town out of sand, he was given everyone's solemn word that Nevada would be the only state to have legalized gambling. Then Bugsy was hardly cold in his grave when Jersey reneged on its promise."

"We're not just worried about Atlantic City," the blackjack dealer said. "New York is talking gambling, Florida is talking gambling, even California is talking gambling. Every state that can't meet its bills is trying to find a new way of taking a taxpayer's money away from him."

"Maybe you're being too pessimistic," I suggested. "Surely most Americans have a sentimental attachment for Las Vegas that they don't have for any other town. After all, you replaced Niagra Falls as everyone's favorite tourist attraction."

"Crap shooters don't have sentiment. All they need is a green felt table and a pair of red dice, and they don't care where they are."

"If they put 10 slot machines at Chicago's airport, we could be out of business tomorrow," the man in the cowboy hat said.

"Do you people blame Reaganomics for the lousy shape the town is in?" I asked.

"What's Reaganomics?" the waitress wanted to know.

"It's President Reagan's plan for getting America back on its feet. It includes tax cuts for everyone, incentives for industry, a big cut in government spending, and eventually a balanced budget."

"What are the odds in Washington he can do it?" the pit boss asked.

"Right now they're 10-to-1."

"Tell the people in Washington if they fly out here, we'll give them 30-to-1 and all drinks are on the house."

Jack Anderson

Changes could hurt elderly

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is planning to loosen the federal inspection procedures for the nation's nursing homes, despite solid evidence that somebody has to make the operators meet minimum standards on safety, nutrition and health care for their elderly patients.

The nursing homes get their funds from Medicaid payments by the states and the federal share of the $16 billion total was $5.7 billion. Hard-pressed state governments obviously can't afford to lose this federal stipend, so they have to accept U.S. standards of care.

If federal regulations are relaxed, nursing-home patients will find themselves at the mercy of local politicians, with all their susceptibility to pressure from the well-heeled home proprietors. Five years ago, I reported the squalid conditions at some of the biggest nursing homes in Texas — the inevitable result of greedy owners and venal politicians working in cahoots.

Last year, Texas authorities took a giant step; a grand jury returned 38 indictments against the Houston-based Autumn Hills Convalescent Center Inc. The charge: murder by neglect.

Four of the indictments were thrown out by a judge, but 34 are still pending. The indictments allege that eight elderly patients died between March 1978 and April 1979 because of negligent care in one of the corporation's 17 homes.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., asked the General Accounting Office to check the financial records of Autumn Hills, particularly the books at its Texas City home, where the eight patients died. The GAO's unreleased draft report states that reimbursement requests for expenses submitted by Autumn Hills' central office "included significant amounts of unallowable and questionable costs."

The GAO investigators found that the Texas City nursing home had "a history of not complying with government standards for nurse staffing." They reported that "on numerous occasions over the three-year period from 1978 through 1980, the home failed to have a sufficient number of nurses on duty to provide the levels of nurse staffing required by government standards."

For example, the GAO's search of the home's records for January, June, and October of 1980 turned up 32 days when the home failed to meet federal nursing requirements. "In our opinion, the frequency of nurse shortages raises questions about the level of nursing care provided to Texas City home residents," the GAO report concluded.

The GAO sleuths determined that almost 20 percent — nearly $250,000 — of the costs claimed by the corporation's central office for reimbursement was either unallowable or questionable because documentation was lacking. One clearly improper claim was $6,485 for a trip to Manila by the corporation's president and his wife.

The auditors also questioned the legality of Autumn Hills' claim of $34,758 for employee lunches, dinners and drinks; $8,469 for Christmas parties for employees and business vendors, and $4,908 for flowers and liquor. These expenses were described as home-office advertising and promotional costs.

Autumn Hills President Robert Gay told my associate Tony Capaccio that the admittedly critical nursing shortage was "not a problem we created, but a problem for the whole United States." He said the GAO was referring only to licensed nurses of Texas City, and insisted that "overall, the home has been overstuffed."

Gay said the costs questioned by the

Dr. Donohue

Most migraines atypical

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am an 18-year-old female and have been diagnosed as having atypical migraines. Could you please elaborate on this? What causes them and are they very common? I'm on Inderal four times a day. Thanks. — R.L.

The term, atypical, when applied to an illness, means the symptoms do not conform to those considered classic. Migraine headaches were first described as including premonitory signs (warnings of onset) such as mood change, drowsiness or hunger pangs 24 hours before the actual headaches themselves. Added to this may be visual changes — sparkling lights or loss of one part of the eye's visual field. These premonitory signs are followed by the one-sided, throbbing pain, often with vomiting or nausea. That is the classic migraine. In fact, that's what it's called, "classic migraine." But as time went on it became apparent that there were variations on the classic migraine theme, which could still be termed migraine because of the common blood vessel behavior involved. The headaches of either classic or atypical migraine occur because of an intense narrowing of blood vessels, followed by their expansion and throbbing with each beat. So, any headache accompanied by the alternate narrowing and expansion of the blood vessels in the head is called migraine. Since yours does not have the classic premonitory signs mentioned, it is called atypical.

As a matter of fact, most migraine headaches are of the atypical kind. The propranolol (Inderal) you are taking is given to control the blood vessel behavior and prevent the headaches. I do hope it is working well for you. More information about headaches can be found in the booklet "How to Tame Headaches." For a copy write in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I would like to know about tryptophan, and whether it is a good sleep aid. — Mrs. C.D.C.

Tryptophan is an amino acid, one of the building blocks of protein. There is some evidence that a gram of tryptophan helps bring on sleep. In larger doses, it is being tested for use in depression. The only serious effects seem to be nausea — if it's taken in large doses. Please remember, these effects of tryptophan are still being studied. I am NOT encouraging you or anyone else to run out and buy some. For the last word, let's wait for the final reports.

FOR READERS: I recently have received an address for the National Huntington's Disease Association, for which I have requests. It is: 128 A East 74 Street, New York, N.Y. 10021. I understand they conduct public information programs about the illness.

Dear Abby

Problem children

DEAR ABBY: In July 1980 you printed a fine article about "problem children." The Lancaster (Pa.) County Association for Children and Adults with Learning Disabilities is now conducting an awareness campaign, and a rerun of that letter would help us enormously. Thank you.

PAT DEMMY, ASSOCIATION SECRETARY

DEAR PAT: Here's the letter:

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago, I wrote to you concerning a problem we were having with our son who was then in the third grade. His teacher told us he was having difficulty keeping up with his class because he couldn't read. (She even hinted that he might be "slightly retarded.") She said he was also a discipline problem and she couldn't recommend him for the fourth grade.

I wrote to you in desperation, and you suggested I write to the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities. I did, and want you to know that this organization has helped us enormously. Our "problem child" is now a high school senior who qualifies for college.

Abby, please acquaint others with this wonderful group. Had it not been for you, we never would have known about it.

GRATEFUL IN ELIZABETH, N.J.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Thanks for this opportunity to advise other parents to take a closer look at their "clumsy" 3-year-old who can't sit still and seems hard to handle, or the slow learner who's a trouble-maker and disrupts the class.

That child could be brighter than average but afflicted with a learning disability that is treatable if detected early.

A letter requesting information can be sent to: The Association for Children and Adults with Learning Disabilities, 4156 Library Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15234. It is not a high-pressure group and does not solicit public funds. It helps by sending educational material. The organization is non-profit, so when writing, please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: Please add this suggestion to your annual fire prevention article: "And if a child is burned, contact any Shriner."

We budget $81,460,000 for our three burn institutes to treat children up to the age of 18 free — regardless of race, color or creed.

Pass this along, Abby.

J. AUSTIN VINCENT, THOMASVILLE, GA.

DEAR J.A.V.: For years the Shriners have been famous for their crippled children's hospitals, but their burn treatment centers are relatively new. Any child who has been disfigured by fire qualifies for free treatment. Contact any Shriner.

Holiday fashion show set

Through the March of Dimes presentation of a "Fantastic Christmas Fashion Fun Parade," healthy children are helping children with birth defects — both the unborn and the newborn.

The children's fashion show will be held Nov. 20 at 10 a.m. at Dora Roberts Community Center. A selection of children's clothes from two years old to pre-teens will be shown with Christmas music accompanying. Special guests "Miss Piggy," "The Rainbow Connection" and "Santa Clause" will join in the parade.

Mrs. Barbara Holdampf, chairman of the March of Dimes executive committee, will emcee the show. Mrs. Clyde Angel will be a guest of honor.

Christmas fashions will be provided by "Elegant Elephant," "Grandmother's Delight," "Spoiled Rotten Children's Boutique" and "Miss Texas Shop."

Another attraction at the event is the "Miss Piggy Contest" with four prizes for the different age groups.

The entire event is sponsored by Bill Lasater of Highland Pontiac, Datsun, Chrysler, Plymouth, Dodge and Dodge Trucks, Inc. and Mr. H. McMillan of McMillan Printing and Office Supply.

Tickets are available at all four clothing stores at $2 for children and $4 for adults. All children must be accompanied by adults.

Meteorite crashes into living room

SPACE CHUNK — A rock tentatively identified as a meteorite is displayed on a table at Wethersfield, Conn. police headquarters after it was recovered from the home of a local resident. The object smashed through the roof of the home, but the occupants were not injured.

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Either a softball-sized meteorite plunged through a roof and landed in the living room — or else a local family has enemies in high places.

Police are assuming it was a meteorite.

Robert Donahue and his wife were sitting in their suburban home watching TV in another room when the rock smashed through the roof Monday night, landed in the living room and "bounced" into the dining room, said police officer Alan Powers.

It was "slightly bigger than a softball," he said.

Police had received numerous phone calls from callers reporting they had seen "bright lights and then heard an explosion" — phenomena associated with meteors rushing through the atmosphere.

The Donahues' rock was taken to the police station and authorities said they would be investigating to try to determine its origin.

Meteors — some huge rocks, others tiny specks — bombard Earth's atmosphere at the rate of one million an hour.

Oil lobby launches war against higher taxes

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

HOUSTON — The oil industry lobby is mounting a spirited campaign against higher oil taxes, claiming it already is over-taxed and that a further burden would endanger the nation's energy security.

"We can and must show that our industry is not — cannot be — a magic source of endless revenue," Charles J. DiBona, chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, told the trade group's annual convention Monday.

DiBona said new taxes on the oil industry would discourage domestic oil production, lead to a greater reliance on imported oil "and ultimately cause shortages and higher consumer prices" for energy.

DiBona gave little attention to the oil lobby's long and unsuccessful attempt to win congressional acceptance of faster decontrol of natural gas prices. That had been the central issue of the 1981 convention.

DiBona told a news conference Monday that Democratic gains in the Nov. 2 elections made it "obviously more difficult" to win congressional approval of a plan for accelerating the decontrol of gas prices.

The trade group favors an acceleration of the present schedule for ending gas price controls. Under the current law, natural gas discovered after April 20, 1977 will be removed from federal price controls by Jan. 1, 1985. Gas discovered before that date will remain controlled indefinitely.

The tax issue gained greater attention at the group's meeting of about 2,000 oil executives because of a court ruling that the windfall profits tax on domestic oil production is unconstitutional. U.S. District Judge Ewing Kerr of Cheyenne, Wyo., ruled last Thursday that the tax was unlawful because it is not applied uniformly; some Alaskan oil is exempted.

DiBona said the possible tax proposals in the next session of Congress included a new windfall profits tax on natural gas, increases in the existing oil tax, additional taxes on refineries, more gasoline excise taxes and oil import fees.

"The main victims of excessive taxes levied against oil producers would be energy consumers," DiBona said. "They would not have the petroleum that this industry could no longer afford to find."

DiBona charged that "neither the public nor the government" understands that a higher tax burden on oil companies would reduce their ability to spend money on domestic exploration and development programs.

"The results for our nation could be disastrous," DiBona said.

Camp Fire Girls' candy is recalled

LUBBOCK (AP) — The local chapter of the Camp Fire girls is looking for new ways to raise money after a needle was found in a cashew cluster, prompting a recall of all candy in the current drive.

"We believe it is our duty to issue a statement about our candy and to suspend our candy sale," said Louise Cummins, president of the Camp Fire Council of Lubbock.

A teen-age boy Sunday night bit into a cashew cluster and exposed a needle and 15 inches of thread, Mrs. Cummins said Monday.

"No one was injured and we believe it to be an isolated incident," she said.

The Camp Fire girls suspended a $30,000 fund-raising drive and offered refunds to people who have already purchased candy from Camp Fire girls.

Mrs. Cummins said the Lubbock council has no idea how much candy has been sold since the drive began Saturday.

Harte-Hanks appointments announced

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Richard M. Gozia has been named vice president and chief financial officer of Harte-Hanks Communications Inc., executive vice president Larry D. Franklin said Monday.

Gozia, currently vice president and controller of the wholesale bakery Campbell Taggart Inc. of Dallas, will assume his job with the publishing and broadcasting chain Dec. 6.

"Dick brings years of financial experience to this critical position at Harte-Hanks," Franklin said. "We are excited about the contributions he can make to our achieving our corporate goals for the 1980s."

Before joining Campbell Taggart, Gozia, 37, was audit manager of Arthur Young & Company of Dallas.

Tuesday Morning Quarterback

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

It's playoff time for Forsan and Stanton. After watching the glory years of the 1970's fade away, the Forsan Buffs went 7-2-1 and took second in the District 7-A North Zone. Stanton won a district title for the first time since 1950 by clipping McCamey 25-6. For Grady and Lamesa, it's only a matter of closing out the season. Both teams face tough tasks in the final game, with the Wildcats hosting No. 1 state-ranked Highland and the Golden Tors visiting top 10 ranked San Angelo Lake View.

Richard Gibson (Grady Wildcats) — On crushing loss to Lueders-Avoca — "It was something I feared all week. Our lack of speed in the defensive secondary to stay with their passing attack. They had the ball on our two and were fixing to close it out on us (win by 45-point rule) and we intercepted the pitchout and ran it back for touchdown. We scored two more touchdowns in the final two minutes of the game. I was pleased our kids didn't give up. They had the better ballclub. The better team won the game that night." — On bouncing back to play No. 1-ranked Highland — "They are 9-0 and have closed out every opponent except one. The run the ball very well but if you bring everyone up, they have a good passing attack. They have nine really good athletes. If they don't win state, I'll be very surprised. They are big, physical and disciplined. Our morale is not the best in the world and we're going to get out there and do our best."

Steve Park (Stanton Buffaloes) — On district championship win against McCamey — "We didn't play very well in the first half. The kids got together in the dressing room and some of them spoke up and decided they wanted to win. We had 50 yards of offense in the first half and had over 200 in the second. The ole defense shut 'em down when they had to. They had lots of offense." — On preparing for bi-district battle against Marfa — "We've never been in this situation here. We have one day extra playing on Saturday so we'll try to get some bumps and bruises well. They run mostly but they can throw the ball well. Their tailback Michael Rivera runs like the (Greg) Fisher kid of Big Lake. Offensively they are very similar to us."

Jan East (Forsan Buffaloes) — On breather in season finale against Loraine — "They did about what we thought they would. We were ahead 29-0 at the half. We broke a couple of long plays on them. We played the JVs on offense the whole second half but we left the defense in. We were a little disappointed they scored on us three times in the fourth quarter but our kids probably thought they had it won. For three quarters, we did a real good job." — On plans for playoff with No. 5 Eden — "We've seen them on four films. They have good quickness and speed. They will beat you with the big play... get a turnover and drive it 20 or 30 yards or break the long pass or intercept the ball and run it back. We have the opportunity to beat them if stop their offense. We're going with what got us here."

Jim Warren (Lamesa Golden Tornadoes) — On good showing against Andrews Mustangs — "We played well defensively. The kids were much more aggressive in the game. Offensively, we moved the ball for 185-190 yards but we never got it in." — On trying to solve San Angelo Lake View on second time around — "They look improved over what they were. Hopefully we are too. I know we're going down there and will get after Lake View. They've already clinched district and will play either Estacado or Dunbar. I don't how they'll approach the game. I sure they don't want any injuries or show much. But I feel confident they'll want to win the game."

UIL may allow TCIL competition

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The rulemaking body of the University Interscholastic League has voted to study an application to allow private and parochial schools to compete against the public schools of the UIL for district, region and state championships.

President William McArdle of the Texas Christian Interscholastic League had requested membership for TCIL schools in the UIL.

The 20-member UHL Legislative Council decided Monday to set up a study committee rather than simply deny the request or place it on a referendum to see what UIL schools wanted to do.

The committee also voted to hold hearings on whether to establish a "Super Conference" by elevating some Class 5A schools to 6A and whether to change the UIL prohibitions against basketball summer camps. Another topic for review will be whether to split Class A into two conferences.

The committee will include principals, school board members and school administrators. Hearings have been scheduled for Dallas-Fort Worth, Lubbock, Houston, San Antonio and Austin.

Is the NFLPA crumbling?

Saints want to play football

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Derided afterward by a New England colleague, the New Orleans Saints players sent a message to bargainers today that they were ready to resume playing football while details of a new union contract are "negotiated, clarified and defined."

Saints' player representative Russell Erxleben flew to New York on Monday night after his teammates voted 45-1 with one abstention — to accept "in principle" the latest offer by National Football League team owners.

In a statement critical of their own union, the New Orleans players invited other teams to follow their lead. "At present, the negotiations are a perfect example of what happens when players lose control of their union," said the statement. "We feel that the amount of money on the table is presented in a sufficient framework for reaching a compromise."

In their statement, the Saints' players also demanded that Commissioner Pete Rozelle "take an immediate active role in future negotiations."

"I'm glad it's him and not me. I know he's going to take a lot of heat on this," said Guido Merkens, the alternate Saints player representative, of Erxleben's latest New York session with union negotiators.

Weeks ago, Erxleben drew criticism for suggesting the National Football League Players Association should abandon its demand for a wage scale.

"I think they should all take urine tests — and blood tests after that," said Don Hasselbeck, the New England Patriots' players rep, after Erxleben and Merkens announced the Saints' vote.

It was a reference both to rumors of widespread drug use among the Saints in previous seasons and to the furor over management's insistence on testing for abuses.

Hasselbeck said the Saints vote on management's latest offer came as no surprise.

"The Saints were the only team without a player rep when we went over the document. Russell Erxleben left town early so he couldn't take any information with him. Therefore, some of the guys down there had to have been misled," he said.

However, Merkens said he attended the meeting Hasselbeck referred to even though Erxleben wasn't. "The union gave me two copies of the proposal," he said.

Also in New York, union chief Ed Garvey said players for 24 of the NFL's 28 teams rejected the offer. He said the others would, too, "once they see all the facts..."

Merkens said he considered it important that his teammates voted to accept the owners' latest offer "in principle," rather than voting outright to accept or reject it.

He said that meant the Saints players favored resuming the season while the details are, as the statement put it, "negotiated, clarified and defined."

"If we had voted to accept or reject, we would have unanimously rejected it," Merkens said. "The way it's presented, there are too many things that are vague and iffy. We just couldn't accept it as it is."

He said the only negative vote came from a player adamantly opposed to the owners' offer and the abstention was by a player who favored accepting it, but felt the vote should be kept secret.

SAINTS ACCEPT — Guido Merkens, alternate player representative of the New Orleans Saints, stands outside the Louisiana Superdome with a copy of the players' proposal to resume playing in the National Football League while contract negotiations with NFL owners continue. The Saints voted 45-1 Monday to accept "in principle" the latest offer by the owners.

Garvey discounts crack in solidarity

NEW YORK (AP) — The war of words continues in the National Football League players' strike, with union leader Ed Garvey discounting an apparent crack in the Players Association's solidarity by noting that 25 teams had rejected the owners' latest offer.

Garvey accused the owners of further "illegal tactics" Monday night at an NFLPA news conference and said that a vote by the New Orleans Saints in favor of accepting the NFL's most recent proposal in principle "is just one of 28 teams and we're not too concerned."

"Once they see all the facts, I'm confident they will reject it, too."

"Most of the teams felt there was not enough there to warrant a vote. Twenty-four teams rejected it in one way or another. (Another club voted against the proposal several hours after the news conference; the Houston Oilers said they would vote today and one other club had not reported its vote.)

"We are delighted that management's latest illegal tactic has failed," he said. "They players don't think it's a representative offer. They know it's not the bottom line."

The Saints voted 45-1 with one abstention to accept the owners' offer and urged other teams to do the same, according to Guido Merkens, the Saints' alternate player rep.

"I look what I heard up there (in New York at Players Association meetings during the negotiations, which broke off Saturday night) and explained it to our players here as it was explained to me," Merkens said on ABC-TV's "Nightline." "We asked, 'What do you want to do, accept it in principle or reject it altogether? We think there is a workable framework there."

"It's not true that management persuaded us (on how to vote). We're trying to let the union reps know how the New Orleans Saints feel."

Garvey didn't seem worried by the New Orleans' vote.

"Twenty players met with (Saints owner) John Mecom Jr.," Garvey said, "and then the voted. The owners are seeing if they can sell their latest offer to the players by going over the head of the union."

Though he refused to identify the player, Tose said at a news conference that a player rep was told they "would break both arms and both legs if you don't stop being on television. And, not only that, but we'll violate your wife."

"We would have to conclude that Leonard Tose has lost it," said Garvey. "His comments reached a new low."

Georgia in 'Dawg days atop poll

For the second time in three years, the Georgia Bulldogs have climbed into first place in The Associated Press college football poll — thanks to Notre Dame.

In 1980, Georgia beat Florida 26-21 and jumped from second place to first when No. 1 Notre Dame was held to a 3-3 tie by Georgia Tech. The Bulldogs went on to win their only national championship.

On Monday, Georgia jumped from third place to first following a 44-0 rout of Florida, while Pitt dropped from first to eighth by losing to Notre Dame 31-16. The victory also boosted the Irish back into the Top 20.

Georgia, Southern Methodist and Arizona State, the only three unbeaten and untied major college teams, held the top three spots in this week's rankings, while Louisiana State jumped from 11th to sixth — its highest ranking since 1972 — and Arkansas fell from fifth to 10th.

"The call from the AP two years ago that we had won the national championship was much better than this one," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley. "Seriously, it will be a great point of pride this week. We play at Auburn and we'll find out if we're mature enough to handle a No. 1 ranking.

Last week, Pitt was first, SMU second and Georgia third, only three points behind the Mustangs. But Georgia swamped Florida and received 33 of 59 first-place votes and 1,150 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

SMU, which defeated Rice 41-14, received 19 first-place votes and 1,126 points, while Arizona State, a 30-16 winner over Oregon State, received five firsts and 1,049 points. The Sun Devils were fourth a week ago.

Nebraska moved up from fifth to fourth with one first-place ballot and 984 points for a 48-10 triumph over Oklahoma State. Penn State received the other No. 1 vote and 955 points after crushing North Carolina State 54-0.

LSU was sixth with 865 points following a 20-10 licking of Alabama, which dropped the Crimson Tide from eighth to 17th. Washington rebounded from its only loss of the season and edged UCLA 10-7, climbing from 10th to seventh with 779 points and dropping the Bruins from ninth to 12th.

Pitt, a 31-16 loser to Notre Dame, plummeted from first to eighth with 765 points. Florida State rose from 12th to ninth with 686 points by routing South Carolina 56-26. Arkansas, a 24-17 loser to Baylor, rounded out the Top Ten with 572 points.

The second 10 consists of defending national champion Clemson, UCLA, Notre Dame, Michigan, Oklahoma, Southern California, Alabama, Maryland, West Virginia and Texas. Last week, it was LSU, Florida State, Clemson, Oklahoma, Michigan, Southern Cal, West Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and Florida.

Besides Florida's demise, North Carolina fell out of the rankings by losing to Clemson 16-13. Notre Dame and Texas, which walloped Houston 50-0, both reappeared after a two-week absence.

Hawks, Queens win Monday

Hawks 110, WJC 100

WEATHERFORD — The Howard College Hawks took the ball and the game away from Weatherford Junior College in the last five minutes last night to end up on the top half of a 110-100 score.

"At halftime, it was 58-46 for Howard," said Hawk coach Harold Wilder. "It was just back and forth. With five minutes left, Weatherford took the lead — they were up 95-90. Howard went into a full-court press and got the ball away a number of times."

Nathan Givens hit 15 from the floor and 12 from the foul line to lead the Hawks with 42 points. He also pulled down 21 rebounds for his best game so far.

"Obviously, Givens had a real strong game. They had a 6'11" center, but we were still able to get the ball inside real good," Wilder said.

The Hawks are now 3-0, and play Ranger tonight at 8 p.m. in the Ranger Classic. Next home game for the Hawks will be Thursday night against McMurry.

Queens 76, RJC 51

RANGER — The dynamic duo of Howard College paced the Hawk Queens past Ranger Junior College 76-51 in Ranger Monday night.

Neil Haskins hit 11 of 15 shots from the floor to lead the Hawk Queens, and Susan Cordell pushed the reject button on 11 RangeAnn shots in a fine defensive effort.

"For the game, we shot our best of the year," said Hawk Queen coach Don Stevens. "In the first half, we shot 62.5 percent — extremely well — and we got a big lead early. For the game, we hit 33 of 62 (shots) for 53.2 percent. I was very encouraged."

Howard led 44-21 at halftime, and the RangeAnns never recovered.

Haskins led the scoring for Howard with 24 points, while teammate Hollie Holloway also scored in double digits with 19.

Sugar Ray to give it up?

BALTIMORE (AP) — The suspense over what the future holds for world welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard will end tonight.

With the same hoopla that precedes a multimillion-dollar bout, the 26-year-old Leonard will get into the ring to tell boxing fans whether he will fight again or throw in the towel.

Leonard has invited a host of entertainment and sports celebrities to the Baltimore Civic Center, the site of his first professional fight, for "An Evening with Sugar Ray Leonard."

His announcement will come six months to the day after he underwent surgery to repair a detached retina in his left eye.

"Probably Ray and Juanita (the champ's wife) are the only persons who know his plans," insists Charles Brotman, Leonard's publicist. "I'll be here Tuesday to find out, along with everyone else."

The elaborate plans, including the appearance of television sports announcer Howard Cosell as master of ceremonies and entertainer Wayne Newton, has been taken by some observers as a sure sign that Leonard will be saying goodbye to the sport that made him a millionaire in five years.

But some cynics have been quick to note that the handlers who carefully promoted Leonard's career might use the event to promote the fighter's return to the ring.

Just two weeks ago, Dr. Ronald Michels, the noted Johns Hopkins Hospital ophthalmologist who performed the retinal surgery, told reporters that Leonard had fully recovered from the eye injury.

Leonard says he is rested and in good physical shape, but tonight he will reveal whether he still has the desire for more ring victories.

The lure of a reported $15 million offer to fight middleweight champion Marvin Hagler may be too attractive for Leonard to pass up.

WILL HE RETURN? — World welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard will announce tonight in the Baltimore Civic Center whether he will return to fighting after surgery six months ago to repair a detached retina in his left eye. The 26-year-old Leonard has invited a host of entertainment and sports celebrities to the site of his first professional fight to hear his announcement.

Fight promoter Bob Arum says it's possible Leonard "would take it because it is $15 million, and that's a lot, no matter how much money you have."

But Arum predicted "he'd refuse it because he's accomplished what he wanted to."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 10, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is fine for thinking out a specific course of action under which you can successfully operate in the future. Be alert to new opportunities coming your way.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make plans to gain your aims in the minimum amount of time. Use your intuition for best results. Friends can be helpful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make plans to have greater abundance in the future. Be more sports-minded and diversify your activities.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can easily make progress now in career work. Strive to attain the prestige you deserve. Making new contacts can be helpful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get in touch with those who can assist you in regular duties. Do something thoughtful for loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show that you are most capable in handling financial affairs. Act in a positive manner in your business dealings.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find out what associates expect of you and follow through with your best effort. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can easily reach an accord with co-workers now and all goes smoothly. Strive for increased happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact good friends and show your loyalty to them. Find the right formula for handling your business affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Carry through with ideas you have in mind and gain the cooperation of associates. Avoid a troublesome person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good time to put new ideas to work that can help you to advance in your line of endeavor. Take no chances with outsiders.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of business matters early in the day for best results. Sundown could bring some unusual event, so be alert.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to be of assistance to others who have been loyal to you in the past. Take no risks where your good name is concerned.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who will do well at carrying through with detailed plans. There are hidden talents that could be brought to the surface through right handling. Teach good manners. A most successful future could result.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Book Exchange buys and sells fine books

If you are looking for books you can't find at popular book stores, and if you want them at a good price, there's a store in Big Spring tailor-made for you.

It's called the Book Exchange, located at 901 1/2 Johnson, and it is the perfect place for book lovers who are looking for that one certain book.

OWNED AND OPERATED, by Bea Walker, the Book Exchange has over 15,000 paperbacks to sell at half their list price. In addition, the Book Exchange will buy and trade slightly used books that are brought in.

The Book Exchange is a real inflation fighter. It allows you to buy books at a price much cheaper than they can be bought in regular book stores, and in addition will pay for old books that you've already enjoyed.

The Book Exchange only stocks slightly used books, ones that are still in good condition. They have books for every taste, from popular fiction to classics of literature, as well as gothic novels, mystery novels, and non-fiction books. They also stock a selection of hardback books.

Many of the books on the Book Exchange shelves are still on bestseller lists. There are books by Irving Wallace, Peter Benchley, Joseph Heller and Robert Penn Warren. If you enjoy romantic novels, The Book Exchange has a huge selection of Harlequin Romances.

FOR THOSE who collect comic books, there are many available that are available no place else. The Book Exchange also carries many children's books.

If you are looking for a hard-to-find book, The Book Exchange is a great place to browse and discover. They are moved to a new location at 901 1/2 Johnson and are open for business from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Come and look. You'll be surprised at the fine selection, and pleased at the finer prices.

Businesses talk of tyranny of northeast

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK — At their wit's end because of recession and the "tyranny of the northeast curve," business today often turns to the independent think tank for help in growing — through innovation, better marketing or acquisitions.

The northeast curve, as management planners explain, is the direction of projected sales or market share, and generally encompasses a good deal if not an excess of enthusiasm. In reality, the sales line often sags to the east. "Close the gap," said R. Donald Gamache. "We hear it all the time."

Gamache is president of Innotech Corp. In size, it isn't up there with Arthur D. Little, Stanford Research Institute, or Booz, Allen & Hamilton. But, like several other smaller think tanks, it seeks some of the same goals.

Generally speaking, that goal is to push the curve counterclockwise, and each think tank does it in its own special way, Innotech with a 4,000-member brain bank which, says Gamache, seeks by design what Edison did naturally.

When faced with a challenge many corporations feel they must go outside the company for new ideas. Otherwise, says Gamache, they find themselves looking in the same old directions and covering badly worn ground.

"When I cut open the heads of the research and development people at a razor blade company all I see are razor blades," he said. "They think razor blades. They've done it all. But we can add new bits and parts of information."

Says Irving Calish, chairman of the Trumbull, Conn., company: "Our business is the commercialization of an idea." Calish stresses "focus" as opposed to "random" and "discipline" rather than "chance." Innotech, he says, seeks "targeted innovation," the planned invention rather than chance discovery.

When a client presents a challenge, Innotech seeks information. "In Edison's day all the information on electricity was in a few books," Calish states. He agrees that Edison was unique, but he argues that Edison was preinformation explosion and didn't have to wade through masses of data.

After clarifying discussions between Innotech and the client, Innotech seeks out those in its brain bank who may possess the information needed.

The brain bank took years to build from searching through literature, interviewing, developing contacts with universities, and discussions with trade editors who are exposed to vast numbers of people and ideas. The company seeks those who have been involved with or exposed to change — political, social economic. Upheavals produce needs; needs produce ideas, the company believes.

From the brain bank is picked a team of knowledgeable people who are sent a briefing document and then paid an honorarium of $150 and expenses for spending a day cross-fertilizing ideas in the creative session rooms at headquarters. Discussions are recorded and probed for information and leads. Idea cards that participants drop into a trough are examined and the information distilled.

'Pimpernel' makes French Revolution look pretty, boring

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — History taught us that the French Revolution was bloody. Now, through CBS, we find that it also was a bloody bore. "The Scarlet Pimpernel," on CBS tonight, is a drowsy story of derring-do, but the three-hour movie has too many redeeming qualities to be totally dismissed. It boasts a first-rate cast that includes Anthony Andrews, who is becoming a blond-haired Errol Flynn, Jane Seymour, as a distressed damsel with tough choices to make, and Ian McKellen, as the sneering villain who is to be pitied more than despised. The costumes and sets look strikingly authentic. There's no generation gap here. In fact, early on when a crowd of blood-thirsty

Parisians are clamoring for more, TV viewers who have large bank accounts might want to head for the hills.

"The Scarlet Pimpernel" is based on a series of adventure stories written by Baroness Orczy.

The plot focuses on Sir Percy Blakeney, an English nobleman who feigns foppishness to mask the fact that he is really the heroic French aristocrat from the 18th century Cuisinart during the Reign of Terror.

Andrews, who played Sebastian Flyte in "Brideshead Revisited" and "Ivanhoe" in another lethargic classic on CBS, seems to have fun making Sir Percy as outrageous as possible. Andrews' Percy plays like Richard Simmons and sounds like Snaggletooth, the cartoon character who's always exiting stage left.

Despite this outlandish facade, Marguerite St. Just (Miss Seymour) somehow falls in love with him, passionately believing there's a man behind the minced ham.

Their marriage antagonizes Marguerite's longtime suitor, Chauvelin, chief agent for the Committee of National Security, which is committed to putting all the nation's noble heads in potato sacks. Chauvelin is played by McKellen, who received a Tony Award for his starring role in Broadway's "Amadeus."

"The Scarlet Pimpernel" is a pompous, yet picturesque period piece. But being taken there just doesn't end up being enough.

"A VERY DELICATE MATTER," ABC's

"Afterschool Special" on Wednesday afternoon, should be Exhibit A that a network can do sensitive, non-sensational drama about sexual issues.

The same movie concept in prime time, when ratings are very important, would not have been handled very delicately. It also probably would not have been very good.

The subject is venereal disease, and it's a program that will be educational for everybody. If parents have trouble talking to their kids about social diseases, then this film can certainly open some discussion doors.

Teen-ager Kristin Sorenson (Lori-Nan Engler), angry that her boyfriend, Greg, hasn't written all summer, is vulnerable and lonely on her birthday. She succumbs to the charms of camp counselor and has a one-night fling.

After camp, the counselor phones to suggest she have a medical exam because he's just discovered he had gonorrhea the night they were intimate. Before learning about this possibility, Kristin and Greg (Zach Galligan) had patched things up and also had been intimate.

Meanwhile, the viewer is told of the dangers of the disease, its symptoms, means of transmission, avenues for confidential diagnosis and treatment — all presented in the context of a pleasant, sometimes humorous, never exploitive story.

ABC can be proud of "A Very Delicate Matter."

Psychedelic Furs are New Wave group with something to say

•"FOREVER NOW" — The Psychedelic Furs. Columbia Records

The main difference between the Psychedelic Furs and all the clones of their sound — Flock of Seagulls, Men at Work, Human League — is that the Furs have something to say.

The Furs mix rock-piercing drums, swirling guitars and bizarrely-accurate lyrics with the other-worldly voice of Richard Butler for a truly distinctive sound. "Forever Now" extends the use of that sound although not always in a positive direction.

What other New Wave or pop group would have songs about banking, election-time politics, ghetto times and the despair of life itself?

fall on the floor." The infamous outlaw Ma Barker and her sons are dancing with toys as Butler desperately sings "I've been waiting all night for a girl like you ... I guess you'll have to do."

"Come on, run away" is the only escape, the only hope, in a world gone bad.

"Forever Now" fails when producer Todd Rundgren brings in his buddies to play the most bleating horns ever heard on a rock album. Not even the Furs' lyricism can overcome the blat on "Danger" and "Goodbye."

Other interesting images abound in other tunes. A Doors-like "No Easy Street" has the striking description of life on the tough side of town "back here in the litter

"Scandinavian Skies" — are personal, have strong if not always original melodies but have none of the half-baked world views that were so bothersome in such songs as "My Life," "Moving Out" and "Only the Good Die Young."

And for those who could barely tolerate Joel when he came on the radio, "The Nylon Curtain" makes an understanding of him a little easier.

Billy Joel is not easy to pigeon hole. He's not a lyrics-oriented rock 'n' roller like Bruce Springsteen or a "sensitive singer-songwriter" like Jackson Browne, yet somehow he manages to co-exist with both types.

He is, above all else, a showman — if he had never heard the Beatles or Bob Dylan, he probably would have made a name for himself as a Broadway songwriter.

That's the key to enjoying many of these songs. Take "Goodnight Saigon," a long, emotional remembrance of the horrors of fighting in Vietnam. Obviously not a personal song drawn from experience, it sounds more like a song from a play or movie about the war. To write the song, he had to get no closer to Vietnam than "Apocalypse Now" or "The Deerhunter."

Joel sets the mood with sound effects, first of a pastoral night scene, then of helicopters in the distance. His voice, high-pitched and strong, comes in over piano and acoustic guitar and grows stronger still with lines like, "And it was dark, so dark at night. And we held on to each other. Like brother to brother. We promised our mothers we'd write."

It doesn't seem like the kind of song a Vietnam veteran would write, but it works because of the feeling in the writing and singing.

Of all the songs, only "Allentown" and "Where's the Orchestra?" are typical Billy Joel stuff. The former is a strong story of a Pennsylvania steel town facing economic collapse. The latter, the closing cut, is one of those self-centered lounge-lizard songs of his that are so off-putting.

After these songs and the synthesizer-rich "Scandinavian Skies" and "Surprises," the album offers solid, if unspectacular pieces heavily influenced by John Lennon. "Laura" comes straight from the Beatles' "Abbey Road" sound. "Pressure," in which Joel gives himself a light British accent, strings together a lot of words and thoughts without saying much.

His fans may be put off by the more elaborate sound of "The Nylon Curtain," while those who swore they'd die before buying a Billy Joel album may find themselves living quite happily with it.

"President Gas" is an absurdly humorous depiction of politicians and elections, driven by an ominous bass underpinning and occasionally aroused by feedback-laden guitars and doomy drums.

This insistently-powerful tune lists the often-ridiculous steps elections drive men to perform ("Line up, put your kisses down ... President Gas on everything but roller skates ..."). "Everyday is happy days," the speakers cry, but Butler dismisses the entire process with "You'll believe in anything if you believe all this."

Bankers and the President are the targets of the title cut, a textbook New Wave tune replete with all the trappings. "A banker in a tired suit" stands in your coat and lies on your bed. President Gas goes tap dancing by the banker.

"For the banker, he's a thief/he isn't very honest, but he's obvious at least," Butler sings in his best razor-edged voice.

Bitter desperation tinges the chiming guitars and driving drums of "Run and Run." One of the album's strongest cuts, the tune opens with a joke that grows darker by the beat. "Go on, get Tarzan; go on, get Jane/Go on, get Superman; get Lois Lane/Hamburger Mary, she's got a gun."

The dark surrealism grows stranger as the singer sees "Yesterday there and I where morning never comes." In "Love My Way," Butler tells his love about the enemy: "There's emptiness behind their eyes/there's dust in all their hearts."

Although "Forever Now" does not have a tune as powerful as last year's "Pretty In Pink," a searing rocker about a girl used by everyone who still rises above it all — the album continues the evolution of the band's sound. Rock is not dead.

Even if you're unhandy, you can do something to help hold down electric bills.

Save energy and money at home by learning how to insulate, caulk and weatherstrip — it's easy when you know how. Just call us, or ask for our "Unhandy Person's Guides" on the comments portion of your bill.

It's important to learn ways to conserve energy, especially since we're having to pay more for fuels to make your electricity — partly because another of our contracts for low-cost natural gas has expired, but mainly because the price of all fuel continues to rise.

You can conserve and help hold down your bill by using the "Unhandy Person's Guides" from Texas Electric.
