

Draft registration overturned

By DEBORAH BELGUM
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — A federal judge, citing a legal technicality, tossed out regulations that require millions of young men to register for the draft and also said the government cannot selectively prosecute registration resisters.

In knocking out the government's case against 21-year-old David Wayte, U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter Jr. ruled Monday that the Selective Service System should have waited 30 days for public comment before enforcing a draft registration proclamation issued by President Carter in 1980.

"The court cannot close its eyes to the fact that the proclamation became effective a mere 21 days after it was published (in the Federal Register)," Hatter said in his ruling.

Hatter also ruled that the government had violated Wayte's free speech rights under the U.S. Constitution by prosecuting only vocal opponents of the draft. He also cited the government's refusal to turn over evidence, and its refusal under the doctrine of executive privilege to allow White House counselor Edwin Meese III to testify.

It was unclear how Hatter's ruling would affect the registration process or the four men convicted of resisting registration. The government says 8.9 million men have complied with the act, while 585,000 men have failed to sign up.

U.S. Attorney Stephen Trott said the judge's order would be appealed immediately to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

If the appeals court reverses Hatter's decision, the indictment against Wayte will be reinstated and proceedings will resume, Trott said. He had no further comment.

Mark Rosenbaum, one of Wayte's attorneys, said he was "pleasantly stunned" by the ruling, and believes if it is upheld on appeal, the nation's entire draft registration system may be invalid.

"It means the whole draft is out," he said. Rosenbaum said that if Hatter's decision is upheld, the convictions of four other draft resisters could be overturned.

Wayte, a former philosophy student at Yale University, said, "I am very happy right now because the judge has dismissed the case... I think this is a big victory for us and a big setback for the Selective Service system." See Draft, page 2-A

Lamesa man killed

LAMESA (SC) — A long-standing family feud erupted into gunfire early Sunday morning, leaving a 19-year-old man dead and a 20-year-old man in jail.

Jose Guadalupe Gomez of Lamesa was being held in Dawson County Jail in lieu of $75,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Fred Vera.

Police say Refugio Castillo of Lamesa was pronounced dead at the scene at 1:10 a.m. by Vera.

The shooting occurred at approximately 12:45 a.m. Sunday morning on the parking lot of Mary Ann's Convenience Store on Seminole highway.

According to police, Castillo had been driving by the Gomez residence when Gomez followed Castillo to the store. Officials say four shots from a .38 caliber pistol passed through the windshield of Castillo's car and two through the passenger side as Castillo was hit five times.

Services for Castillo will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at St. Margaret Mary's Catholic Church with Father Jose M. Arribas, associate pastor, officiating.

Survivors include his mother, Gloria Barron of Lamesa; his father, Marcelino of Lamesa; five sisters, Oralia Aguilera, Susan Vera, Esmeralda, Rita and Pearl, all of Lamesa; four brothers, Edward, Paul, Valentine and Pat, all of Lamesa; and his grandmother, Virginia Granado of Lamesa.

DOWN HOME AGAIN — Space shuttle Columbia lands on the runway at Edwards Air Force Base in California this morning, completing its fifth space voyage. It's now time for an overhaul for Columbia. Challenger goes up next.

Columbia touches down after disappointing flight

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Space shuttle Columbia broke through desert cloudcover at dawn today and returned to Earth for the fifth time in just 19 months. The mission milestone: establishing the American ship as a commercial cargo carrier.

Landing was smooth and right on the centerline. Mischievously, Commander Vance Brand asked Mission Control: "Are we down now? Are we on the ground?" The reply: "Absolutely. It was beautiful."

"You certainly lived up to your motto, Welcome home," said ground communicator Roy Bridges. "Yes sir. We Deliver," said Brand.

We Deliver. That was the NASA slogan, in orbit and on Earth, all through the flight. At one point, after deploying two commercial satellites, the cargo handlers waved a sign that added: "Fast and Courteous Service."

The crew arrived home elated with the satellite deployments, but disappointed by a canceled space walk. Landing seemed unproblematic, and everyone was full of wisecracks as work crews "safed" the vehicle.

Thirty minutes after touchdown, the astronauts — Brand, Robert Overmyer, Joseph Allen and William Miller — stepped from the ship that had been their home for five days. Waving and smiling, they bounced jauntily, one after the other, down a stair ramp and made a walkaround inspection of Columbia.

With more than 10-million miles on the odometer, Columbia's return crowned five flights for the world's first reusable spacecraft and its owner, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Columbia is now scheduled for an overhaul and the next three flights will be flown by Challenger, now completing final modifications.

Brand guided Columbia through high clouds and calm winds, sun sparkling off the craft, to touch down on Runway 22, a 15,000-foot concrete skirt that sits on California's Mojave Desert.

For re-entry, mission specialist Allen rode in the cockpit, while Lenoir strapped himself into a seat on a lower deck.

He and Overmyer got the "go for deorbit burn" early this morning, and at 5:33 a.m. Pacific time they triggered the rockets high above the Indian Ocean. "On time, good burn," confirmed Brand as the ship headed into Earth atmosphere.

The braking rockets slowed the shuttle's 17,400-mile-an-hour orbital speed and started it from 184 miles high on a long, blazing descent back to Earth. Columbia plunged into the thickening atmosphere on a course that took it over the Pacific north of Hawaii and across the California coast.

Autoland computers guided the craft to about 40,000 feet and then, well above cloudcover that quit at 15,000, Brand took over.

He put Columbia down 30 seconds early, at 6:33 a.m., just seven minutes after sunrise.

Columbia kicked up dust to end a postcard-perfect landing.

Is Houston the hub of power in Texas?

By TERRY LEONARD
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — The avenues to power here are as congested as the freeways and traveled by men as oily smooth as the product of this boom town's principal industry.

Third in a series

This city is high-rise, high-rent and high-powered. It is the can-do capital of Texas. And in a state where big money talks, Houston is a place where it shouts.

Houstonians comprise about half of the top vote-getters in an Associated Press survey of 168 influential Texans asked to identify the most powerful Texans.

They are rich, mostly self-made people who etched their names on this town and gave it more clout than the other tall Texas cities.

"It may be the traditions of Houston" that are responsible for its disproportionate influence, said former mayor and now Chamber of Commerce President Louie Welch.

"It was established in an unlikely swamp with mosquitoes, high humidity and shallow draft water. It became a deep sea port by going out and getting an ocean and pulling it in," said Welch.

But whatever the reason, this sprawling city that soars above the coastal plain is bulging with influence.

Vice President George Bush is a Houstonian, as is former Gov. John Connally, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and White House Chief of Staff James Baker.

Houston developer Walter Mischer got more votes than any other Texan who has not held public office. And the AP survey gave high marks to Welch, retired shipping and construction magnate George Brown, super banker Ben Love, Mayor Kathy Whitmire and Houston Post Chairman and Editor Oveta Culp Hobby.

Houstonians, contends Mischer, wield more influence because they participate more.

"Best I can tell, there seems to be more entrepreneurial people in Houston than in any other place in the state."

"You can do anything you're big enough to do down here," he said. "What makes Houston so great is there is no restrictions — everybody is accepted. If you have been here four generations or not doesn't make a damn."

Mischer is a short, graying, spectacled man with a far-sighted approach and a Midas touch in business. He runs his multimillion-dollar empire from a roll-top desk pushed against a wall in a modest office adorned with a Southwestern landscape painting.

Draft

In his decision, Hatter said he recognized the widespread effect that a decision granting defendant's motion to dismiss due to the illegal promulgation of the proclamation will have on this nation's Selective Service registration program.

But he said the government failed to prove Wayne had not been the subject of selective discrimination in the prosecution of draft registration resisters.

Persons prosecuted for failing to register have consisted solely, not largely, of vocal non-registrants," Hatter noted.

The inference is manifest that the defendant has been singled out for prosecution because he exercised his First Amendment right to free speech," the judge wrote.

Before Hatter's decision was released, the government announced it has shifted tactics in its crackdown on men who haven't registered. The government said Monday it would scrutinize Social Security rolls and tax records in an effort to catch more non-registrants.

Hatter ruled that Carter's presidential proclamation on July 18, 1980, ordering all young men to register for the draft within 30 days of their 18th birthday was invalid because the initial registration period began nine days too soon.

The Selective Service Act passed by Congress says the public has to be given 30 days notice before any presidential proclamation based on the act can take effect, Hatter said.

He said Carter did not waive the 30-day requirement in his proclamation, and that government arguments that the error was made in "good faith" and should be ignored were "meritless."

The former president, who arrived in Los Angeles on Monday night to tape a television program today, could not be reached for comment. A spokesman said Carter had gone to bed and declined to wake him.

In Washington, Thomas K. Turnage, director of the Selective Service System, could not be reached for comment because he has an unlisted telephone number. Kim Hoggard, a spokesman at the White House, said there would be no immediate comment on the ruling.

scape and a portrait of toiling campesinos.

He is a bed-rock conservative entrenched in the belief that what is good for business generally is good for Texas, the nation and the Free World.

"If business does well," explains Mischer, "everybody will do well. If they don't do well, all the people working for them don't do well and taxes don't get paid."

"But most of all, Mischer is a participant, a man who unabashedly uses his personal fortune and magnetism for what he deems the public good — a sunny business climate.

"Through his business acumen, Walter has assembled tremendous and far-reaching economic power and he is not hesitant to contribute — to those causes, political or philanthropic, which he thinks are just," said one West Texan who asked not to be identified.

If Houston, as one influential insider said, is the Super Bowl of political fundraising, then Mischer is a starting quarterback.

"He has succeeded George Brown and the late Judge (James A.) Elkins as the jefe of Houston conservative politics. He can raise vast amounts of political money because his support provides such credibility in the business community. I have never known him to ask for much in return; he genuinely seems to want conservative government for his own sake," said a political consultant in Austin.

"I guess I am a participant, but it is not a self-serving deed," said Mischer. "I try not to be involved in the function of government. The people I work for and with know I am sincere and not self-serving."

"I support the guy whether Republican or Democrat, that I think can do the best job. It is important that he be conservative. That the guy is capable and a man of integrity. The guy I hate is a demagogue."

In 1980, Mischer helped sponsor a dinner that raised a record $2.7 million for then-Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan. Last year he collected $750,000 for Bentsen, a Democrat, and last spring sponsored a rally that raised $3 million for Gov. Bill Clements.

"The cost of campaigning does bother me. We have thought a lot about that, but nobody can come up with a solution that would be somewhat fair. ... I don't know what the answer is," said Mischer. And despite his phenomenal gift for raising money for conservative candidates, Mischer has emerged as one of the few influential Houstonians with no vocal political enemies.

"I don't try to punish anybody who disagrees with me politically," said Mischer. "That's everybody's business."

Mischer may have succeeded Brown as the boss of Houston conservative politics, but the enormously wealthy 83-year-old retired head of Brown & Root remains a force in Texas.

"George Brown is still the primary bellwether of the group of people in Houston who, in any informal association, can raise more money for a political or public cause than can any other group in Texas," said one survey respondent.

He was a member of the controversial 8-F crowd, a half-dozen powerful businessmen who met regularly in suite 8-F of Houston's Lamar Hotel.

The group — depending on who you listen to in Houston — was either puppetmasters pulling political strings for personal gain or master builders concerned only with the betterment of Houston.

"If you didn't have this group on your side, by George, you might win the election, but you'd have a hard time," former Mayor Lewis Cutler once told a Houston newspaper.

"The 8-F group was issue-oriented," contends Welch. "I am confident candidates for governor would seek the support of the members of that group. You had to look for support from that group, but they were not always together, they supported different people."

Brown's controversial ties to the powerful politicians went beyond his membership in the 8-F crowd. He amassed a personal fortune, which Forbes Magazine estimated to exceed $100 million, from a global business empire that relied heavily on government contracts.

In 1942, the Internal Revenue Service began an investigation into what it called excessive contributions by Brown and his late brother, Herman, to the senate campaign of George's good friend, Lyndon Johnson. No action was taken after the inquiry ended suddenly in 1944.

Later, Johnson would boast about all the dams and defense work he secured for Texas, work often per-

American Petrofina Inc. recently announced engineering changes involving the transfer of engineering personnel from Couden Oil and Chemical Co. to Big Spring plant to Fina's corporate headquarters in Dallas and Port Arthur.

A company spokesman said the reduction in the Big Spring engineering group is in line with the curtailment of certain petrochemical production activities at that location.

Moving to Dallas will be Kenneth Hamby, Neal Abernathy, Phil Carruthers, Ken Applegate and Greg Noske. Making the transition to Port Arthur will be John Walls, Mike Angelle, David Hamilton, Mike Sides, Karen Taylor, David Yeats and Fran Bordofsky.

Fina also announced that John Stevenson, a native of Amarillo, will be moving to Big Spring to take over as assistant refinery manager, and Jeff Morris will take over duties as plant engineer of the Big Spring plant.

Colorado City man sues city

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The City of Colorado City has been sued by a local man who charges the local police with detaining him without justification on Nov. 3, 1981.

According to City Manager Rick Crowley, Raul Gomez has filed the suit against the city and five former members of the C-City Police Department. Named in the suit were officers Edward Tercero, Elias Franco, Calvin Davenport, Billy Ray Williamson and former police chief Jimmy Roundtree.

Gomez contends in his suit that Tercero used excessive force in arresting him on the night in question. Roundtree and the city are accused of negligence in training and supervising of employees.

The suit does not ask for a specific amount of damages.

U.S. Border Patrol taking applications for job openings

From now until Dec. 31, 1982, the office of personnel management will be accepting applications to take the written examination for GS-5 Border Patrol Agent positions with the federal government.

To apply, obtain form 5000AB from the Marfa Border Patrol Sector Headquarters or any Border Patrol Station. Be sure to enter the city and state of the test location of your choice.

Send the completed form to Office of Personnel Management, San Antonio Area Office, 643 E. Durango, HemisFair Plaza, San Antonio, 78205. Written examinations will be administered nationwide in February 1983.

Mickey Smith, Federal Women's Program Manager and Frank Cantu, Federal Hispanic Coordinator, will be at the Big Spring Border Patrol Station on Dec. 16 from 8-10 a.m. to furnish further information to interested parties.

The positions are open to male and female applicants. Duty stations are along the southern U.S. Border with Mexico, with many of them located in small, isolated communities.

Murder witness takes stand in Sharp trial

LUBBOCK (AP) — A young girl who saw her mother and sister killed was naked and seemed dazed and terrified when she finally got help, saying a man named "Mike" murdered them, the man who found her says.

Frank Crawford Jr. testified Monday in the capital murder trial of Michael Eugene Sharp.

Sharp is accused of abducting Brenda Kay Broadway, 31, and her daughters, ages 8 and 14, from a Kermit carwash June 10, taking them to a remote corner of Winkler County, and killing the woman and younger child.

The 14-year-old, Selena Kay Elms, naked and her arms bound, escaped by running five miles over the scrubby plain to an oil rig.

"I saw a naked woman on the northeast corner of the area (rig), and she was yelling did we have any clothes she could have," said Crawford, who was working on the oil rig. "I got a blanket to take out to her and I noticed her arms were tied behind her back."

"She was kind of in a daze," he said. "She'd look up at you and look right through you. She said that her mother and sister were killed and I said, 'Who did this?' She said a guy named Mike. She kept looking around like she was looking for something real bad."

Crawford testified Miss Elms had what appeared to be rope burns on her biceps and cuts, scratches, bruises and abrasions on her entire body.

Winkler County Deputy Mike Eggleston discovered the bodies of Ms. Broadway and her daughter Christi Michelle buried in a shallow grave near a windmill, he said.

Eggleston testified he talked to Miss Elms at the hospital in Kermit, and she described the man she said killed her mother and sister.

Sharp was arrested in Sweetwater, Eggleston said, after investigators got a tip that he was on his way to Louisiana.

Testimony in his capital murder trial, which was moved from Kermit to a change of venue, started Monday.

Early in the day, two Kermit women testified Sharp unsuccessfully tried to pick them up the night of the murders.

Lee Mary Armeno said Sharp tried to get her to leave a Kermit night club with him about 9:30 p.m., three hours before Mrs. Broadway and her daughters were abducted, according to investigators.

Suspect nabbed for stolen suit

Police said they arrested 26-year-old Rodney Lee Moon of Thrifty Lodge Motel room 112 yesterday morning on suspicion of possession of a prohibited weapon and public intoxication.

Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt set bond this morning at $15,000.

The suspect was arrested on the 1000 block of South San Antonio and taken to the police department, police said. During inventory of the suspect's possession, police said they found brass knuckles with a knife attachment.

Police reports also showed the following:

• Lionel Ernest Smith, 25, of Minot, N.D. was arrested yesterday morning on suspicion of theft over $20 and under $200 at J.C. Penney department store in Big Spring Mall.

The suspect was arrested after he attempted to get a refund on a suit that was reported stolen from an Abilene J.C. Penney store.

Cloudy to partly cloudy skies greeted sunrise today across Texas as light drizzle dotted portions of the middle coast.

Temperatures hovered near the freezing mark before dawn in the northern Panhandle, while readings were in the 40s and 50s over the rest of Texas.

Winds were mostly from the south, blowing at speeds of five to 15 mph.

The forecast called for increasing cloudiness and a warming trend through Wednesday. Light rain was expected to spread across most of the state by tonight and early Wednesday.

RAIN FELL on the extreme Southeast and Northwest early today, with snow farther inland over Washington state. Snow also fell in parts of the extreme Northeast.

The Southeastern rain was confined to parts of Florida, and the rain in the Pacific Northwest was accompanied by a gale warning. The rain turned to snow as temperatures cooled inland, and snow also fell in the mountains of New England.

Cloudy skies covered much of the upper Great Lakes, western Indiana, eastern Iowa and the southern Plains.

Scattered showers were forecast for later today over the southern half of Florida, northern California and the Pacific Northwest, and rain and snow were expected over northern Montana, with fair skies across the rest of the nation.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 a.m. CST ranged from 15 in Elmira, N.Y., to 76 in West Palm Beach, Fla.

Bush, Andropov meet

Sign of thaw in Soviet, American relations

By MARC ROSENWASSER
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — For the first time in months, there are signs of a slight thaw in U.S.-Soviet relations. Since the death of President Leonid I. Brezhnev, both the White House and Kremlin have put out tentative feelers and toned down some of their shrill rhetoric of the past two years.

President Reagan visited the Soviet Embassy in Washington Saturday to express condolences over Brezhnev's death last Wednesday, then announced the end of sanctions against the Siberian gas pipeline to Western Europe.

On Sunday, Vice President George Bush, in Moscow for Brezhnev's funeral, expressed the "fervent hope" for reduced arms spending by the two superpowers. And on Monday, the new Soviet Communist Party boss, Yuri Andropov, pledged in Red Square during Brezhnev's funeral to cooperate with any nation that showed similar interest.

All this led up to 30-minute meeting Monday afternoon in the Kremlin between Bush and Andropov — the highest-level contact between the two countries in more than three years.

An Eastern European source said he believed the meeting was a sign of a "softening of the sharp tensions that had built up between the two countries."

"Maybe," the Eastern European continued, "they can use this meeting to modify their positions to accommodate one another."

By itself, Andropov's very decision to see Bush and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, after Reagan decided against attending the funeral, could have been interpreted as an expression of interest in finding a compromise with the United States.

But the 68-year-old Soviet leader appeared to go beyond that.

Tass quoted him as telling Bush that the Kremlin is "prepared to build relations with the United States on the basis of full equality, non-interference, mutual respect for the interests of the peoples of both nations, and the improvement of the international situation."

This, after saying in Red Square only hours before during a eulogy to Brezhnev that the Soviet Union is "always ready for honest, equal and mutually beneficial cooperation with any state that is willing to cooperate."

One Western diplomat said he was "struck" by the moderate tone of Andropov's remarks there.

Still, experts believe the differences between the two countries are so great over so wide a range of issues that there is unlikely to be a rapid improvement in relations.

No agreement is immediately in sight in Afghanistan, where an estimated 100,000 Soviet troops have been fighting Moslem Afghan guerrillas for nearly three years. The United States insists that the Soviet Union withdraw its troops. The Soviets insist that the Americans end

Both Washington and Moscow are taking steps to build up their conventional and nuclear military might. Progress is reported slow in Geneva, where negotiators are bargaining the reduction of medium-range and strategic nuclear weapons systems.

Polish leaders have yet to lift martial law after 11 months, though there is increasing talk that the decree will be removed soon.

West Germany urges superpower summit

WASHINGTON — West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, suggesting the time might be right for improving Soviet-American relations, says President Reagan should seek an early summit with Communist Party leader Yuri Andropov.

After several hours of discussions with Reagan, Kohl said at a news conference Monday night that he would recommend a superpower summit if there were adequate preparations.

Earlier, however, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said there was no indication that a summit would be held anytime soon.

"The standard criteria would be whether something could be achieved there," Speakes said.

While suggesting that a relaxation of tensions in the post-Brezhnev era may be possible, Kohl said it would be "absurd" to assume that a change in Moscow's top leadership post will mean a change in the system.

Speaking of Andropov, named Friday to succeed Leonid Brezhnev, Kohl said, "We'll have to wait and see to try and sound him out on what line he is going to take." Brezhnev died Wednesday.

Kohl met over breakfast today with Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.; John Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Richard Lugar.

A Senate aide said interest rates were being discussed. Sitting in on the meeting was Arthur Burns, U.S. ambassador to Germany and former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Kohl then headed for New York, where he to give a speech and hold separate meetings with American Jewish groups and with U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Kohl appeared at the news conference dressed in the tuxedo he wore to a private White House dinner hosted by Reagan earlier in the evening.

In a joint statement issued after their two-hour lunchtime meeting, Kohl expressed appreciation that Reagan lifted the sanctions he imposed on U.S.-licensed European firms participating in the Soviet pipeline project.

Shifting deductions for saving

Plan now to save on your 1982 income taxes

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A little planning in the next few weeks can save you a lot of money on the federal tax return that's due in April.

The key to success lies in making the most of your deductions — itemizing them if you can get more than the standard amount and timing your spending to take those deductions when they're worth the most.

Second in a series

Speeding up your spending for deductible items could be a particular help this year. Tax rates are going down as a result of the 1981 Economic Recovery Tax Rate and that means 1982 deductions are worth more than 1981 ones.

The first thing to do is figure out whether it's worthwhile to itemize. The standard deduction — officially called the zero bracket amount — is $2,300 for a single person and $3,400 for a married couple filing jointly. If your deductions add up to more than that amount, you should itemize.

Suppose you are married and expect deductions of $3,300 this year and again next year — $6,600 over two years. At first glance, you'd be better off with the standard deduction each year — $6,800.

Assume, however, you can move some of those deductible items into 1982, boosting your total for this year to $3,800 and dropping next year's to $2,800. You itemize this year and use the standard $3,400 deduction next year. You've trimmed your taxable income over two years by $7,200.

If you expect a big boost in your income next year, you might want to defer your deductions, since the higher your income, the higher your tax bracket and the more the extra deductions are worth. A married couple with an income of $25,000, for example, is in the 29 percent tax bracket; an extra $400 of deductions cuts their tax bill by $116. A couple with an income of $40,000 is in the 39 percent bracket; an additional $400 in deductions is worth $156.

Thomas W. Crawford, a partner in the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., said, however, that "if you don't anticipate any drastic change... what you want to probably do is accelerate your deductions into the earliest year possible..." And Crawford said there are lots of things middle-income taxpayers can do to speed up those deductions.

The interest on a mortgage, for example, is usually included in the payment due early in the month following the period in which the interest is actually accrued. Your December interest is included in the mortgage payment due in the first days of January. Make that payment Dec. 31 instead of Jan. 1 and you can deduct the interest on your 1982 return. (Note: You cannot prepay 1983 interest in order to get a deduction; you can deduct only that interest which accrued in 1982.)

Among other things you can do: Consider early payment of your 1983 real estate taxes. You ARE allowed to prepay those taxes. Suppose you normally get a real estate tax bill in February. Pay it before the end of this year and you have another 1982 deduction.

Do you expect your 1982 withholding to be too small to cover state or local taxes, meaning you will owe money on April 15? Estimate the payment and send it in before Dec. 31. It's a 1982 deduction.

Are you planning a major purchase like an automobile? Make it this year instead of next so you can deduct the sales tax on your 1982 return.

Charitable contributions are generally deductible in the year when they are made. If you're considering a gift to a charity, make it — and deduct it — this year instead of next. If you make regular gifts every year, consider doubling this year's contribution and skipping next year's.

Medical bills also may offer an opportunity for flexibility. And Sidney Kess, director of tax planning and policy for the accounting firm of Main Hurdman, said that there is a dual reason for speeding up medical deductions. Not only are this year's deductions worth more because of the decline in tax rates, but it will be harder to deduct medical expenses in future years because of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982.

Under current law, you can deduct any out-of-pocket medical expenses which exceed 3 percent of your adjusted gross income. You also can deduct half of your premiums for health insurance, up to a maximum of $150.

Starting in 1983, you will be able to deduct only those expenses which exceed 5 percent of your adjusted gross income. There will be no separate deduction for health insurance premiums; they will be lumped with other medical expenses.

If you can schedule a visit to the doctor or dentist in December instead of January — and you pay the bill before the end of the year — you can include the out-of-pocket cost in calculating your 1982 deductions.

Denton frees 20 inmates from crowded jail

DENTON (AP) — About 20 people accused of crimes ranging from burglary to felony drunken driving are free today as Denton County complies with a state order to reduce its jail population.

Denton County District Attorney Jerry Cobb said Monday he ordered his staff to offer unusually lenient plea bargains and dismiss marginal cases in order to meet the state's deadline Saturday for reducing the jail population to 42.

What an assistant district attorney called, "our blue light special on plea bargains," cut the jail population to 36 Monday.

"Some of the people in jail probably got a fairly good deal," Cobb said.

Cobb said the leniency did not extend to inmates considered dangerous. But the prosecutors decided not to extradite from Arizona a man wanted on attempted burglary charges and offered a probated sentence to a man jailed on three felony counts of driving while intoxicated.

The Texas Commission on Jail Standards ordered the jail population reduced after a recent meeting with the county's five commissioners.

The county commissioners court has not decided where to build a new jail or how to pay for it, even though the jail standards commission told them more than two years ago that the jail was overcrowded.

The jail population has reached 80 in recent months, forcing inmates to sleep on the floor.

Dangerous inmates will be jailed in other counties at a cost of up to $50 a day, Cobb said.

"If they decide not to build a jail, the hell with them," Cobb said of the commissioners. "Let them pay to send them (prisoners) somewhere else."

The county commissioners have approved a preliminary plan for an $8-million, 250-inmate jail, but have not agreed whether to finance it through voter-approved bonds or certificates of obligation, which could be issued without an election.

What Americans were really saying

On election night the TV analysts were quick to tell us that "Reaganomics" had taken a beating and that the administration would have to change its way of doing things.

According to this analysis, the President has pursued an "ideological" policy marked by huge tax and spending cuts, which have allegedly failed to revive the economy. The public by its vote Nov. 2 supposedly gave a negative verdict on this program, signaling a desire to revive the tax-and-spend approach of the New Deal era.

Careful review of the election suggests a different reading. It would be more accurate to say the public likes this idea of tax and spending cuts, and the President's effort to achieve them. The problem is that, because of political pressures in the Capital, adoption of such policies has been badly hindered.

Despite the wailing of the spending interests, the Federal budget has not in fact been cut. Spending for fiscal '82 came in at $728 billion — more than 70 billion higher than outlays for the year before. The Federal share of national output in '82 reached a new high point — 24 percent of the Gross National Product.

Likewise for the so-called "tax-cut" adopted in 1981. As we have previously reported, that cut was actually a partial rollback of a continuing series of increases imposed on inflationary bracket creep and legislated hikes for Social Security. Even when the program is fully in place, the average taxpayer will be paying as much or more in taxes than before it was adopted.

Against that backdrop, the Reagan program has been a fairly modest effort to slow down the rate at which the government gobbles up the earnings of its citizens. There is little doubt that the public wants that rate to be slowed, and would be appalled to know the extent to which the spending forces have been able to frustrate the President's efforts.

Republican difficulties in the recent election stemmed from the fact that too little has been done to redress concern about the matters, rather than too much. The automatic spending hikes built into the present system, and the power of the special interest groups, have kept the spending totals rising, forcing a number of GOPers this summer into backing an unpopular tax increase. The results of this process have not been good for the economy, or for officeholders held accountable for them. Reading electoral tea leaves is a risky business, but a sensible view would turn the conventional analysis upside down: Rather than rejecting tax and spending restraint, the electorate was voicing frustration at not receiving enough of either.

Is it wrong to consider abortion?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have done some wrong things, and now I find I am going to have a baby. I feel like I'm unable to take care of a child, both financially and emotionally. Would it be wrong for me to seek an abortion? — B.I.

DEAR B.I.: Yes, it would be wrong. I know this is a controversial area today, and abortion is commonly practiced in our society. But I pray you will not add to whatever wrongs you have done by committing another wrong. Not only would it not solve your problem of guilt over your wrongdoing, but it would snuff out the little life that is growing within you. Bearing a child is a great responsibility and you should not take it lightly.

What, therefore, should you do? First, I want you to realize that God knows your situation, and he loves you very much. He also loves the little child. Yes, you have sinned against God, but he wants to forgive you and get you started in a new direction by his strength. You need his forgiveness and his wisdom, and therefore I urge you to turn to Christ. Confess your sins to him, and accept him into your heart and life as your Savior and Lord. Christ died on the cross to take away your sins, and "In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, in accordance with the riches of God's grace" (Ephesians 1:7). Don't turn your back on God any longer, but turn to him and let him take over your life.

Then I hope you will seek out a pastor or other Christian counselor who can help you deal with the problems you face. It may be, for instance, that it would be best for you to place your child up for adoption; there are many, many couples who are eager to adopt a child and give him a good home. You should explore all alternatives, and pray that God will guide you to make the right decision. Don't do something just because it is easy; do what is right, even if it is difficult. Let this be a turning point in your life. In the past you have lived without God; now let him be your guide the rest of your life.

Do Russians laugh?

Everytime something happens in the Soviet Union that attracts America's attention, like last week's death of Leonid Brezhnev, it's always the dark of winter.

Therefore our image of Russia is not a pleasant one. It's always cold and gray; the people are seen moving through town with their coats pulled up tight like they're running from something horrible.

We get pictures of them standing in massive lines to buy a package of sugar or a little bit of meat for dinner. They look miserable.

But that's not always the case. You can't say the media are trying to give us a bad view of life in Russia — it's just the Russian character is a little hard to understand.

One of the most interesting things about all the pictures from Russia after Brezhnev's death was the quiet reaction of the people. Remember how Peking was in a panic after Mao died? It wasn't that way in Moscow.

Maybe they were stunned. Maybe they were saddened, but knew things were in good hands. Then again, maybe they just didn't care. I think they cared, but they don't like to show how they feel. I've seen

Russians at a wedding reception, dancing to "Rock Around the Clock" (that's right, in English) like they were dancing to the "Blue Danube Waltz."

Their emotions lay underneath. In his book "The Russians," New York Times writer Hedrick Smith said you have to get Russians drunk to understand them.

After that, you find out what a good sense of humor they have and how they look upon all the long lines at the State Department Store (Russian initials G.U.M.) and all the favors to the upper crust of Soviet society with a shrug and a laugh.

Recently there have been reports of morale problems among Russian troops. It's probably easy to understand. They're being asked to fight for an ideology when all around them are signs that the ideology doesn't work.

"So this is the glory of Socialism..." they might be heard to say when they find out they can't have a shower curtain for their apartment because the Supreme Soviet forgot to put shower curtains in the Five Year Plan.

"Good joke, eh comrade? Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!"

THE BALLAD OF IVAN: A SOLDIER'S LAMENT

I went down to the Bolshoi on my last yearly spell
And said, "I'll take two tickets for tomorrow night's 'Giselle.'"
The manager, he grabs my arm and says, "You clear on out!"
"We got no seats for any non-commissioned Army loot!"
OH, it's Ivan this and Ivan that and Ivan there's the door
But it's "This way to the front, sir!" when the whistle blows for war.
The whistle blows for war, my friend the whistle blows for war.
And it's "This way to the front, sir!" when the whistle blows for war.

I went down to the local GUM to buy myself a hat.
The girl she ups and shrieks "You're all the same you Army brats!"
"Our clothes are just for Party men, the dignified, the great.
And if there's some left over, well, the line starts by that gate!"
OH, it's Ivan this and Ivan that and Ivan get in line.
But it's "Have my place, good comrade!" when the shells begin to whine.
The shells begin to whine, my man the shells begin to whine
And it's "Have my place, good comrade!" when the shells begin to whine

You talk of your democracy, you say all men are free,
But if we got equality, it's ruddy news to me.
I'm pushed around in Budapest, Warsaw and Zanzibar.
I might as well be servin' in the army of the czar!
For it's Ivan this and Ivan that and Ivan shine my boot
But it's a thin Red line of heroes when the guns begin to shoot.
And it's "Bless you, Comrade Atkinsov!" and anything you please,
But Ivan ain't a stupid fool, you bet that Ivan sees.

Remember the Redskins?

Our Washington Redskin car pool had a sentimental reunion the other night and it was amazing how many guys showed up. We hadn't seen each other since the last Philadelphia Eagles game in 1981. Some of us brought our wives, a few their kids, and one or two new girlfriends.

Most of us had lost some hair, except for Stevens who showed everyone his new transplant. Valenti had a bit of paunch on him, but still looked fit. Geyelin said in spite of arthritis he could sail his boat, and Bradlee complained of back trouble.

But none of us were as young as we were in the glory days of '81, when Califano, our all-pro station wagon driver, led us to victory Sunday after Sunday by ignoring every red light from Chevy Chase to the RFK Stadium.

It was really good to see the old bunch. Most of us had done very well, especially Rene Carpenter who had married a handsome, wealthy contractor from Georgetown.

Holbrook was still collecting compensation from Califano's insurance company after Califano tried to sidestep an ambulance taking an injured Dallas lineman to the hospital for X-rays.

Harwood's leg had completely healed from the Redskin-Cardinal game, when Califano backed into him while he was trying to get into the car in the RFK parking lot, and Dalinsky said he no longer suffered the whiplash injuries he sustained when Califano ran off the embankment of the Rock Creek parkway.

As with all reunions of this type, everyone tried to catch up on the other person's life.

"What are you doing on Sundays since you left the car pool?" I asked Bradlee.

"Chopping fire wood, raking leaves, painting the kitchen. I make a living."

Valenti said he had gone back to playing with his kids.

"Don't you miss the games?" I asked him.

"I did at first. Every time I saw a station wagon heading for the stadium I wanted to get in it. But now I don't think about it much unless it's a nice fall day and the leaves are turning red. Then I think of the Redskinettes waving their pompons and kicking their legs in the air and I want to cry."

Stevens said that after he left the car pool he took up tennis. "It's no substitute for sitting in the stands watching a football game, but it's still better than helping Liz around the house on Sunday afternoon."

Geyelin said he bought a computer and is now doing an inventory of everything he owns in his house. And Holbrook spends all his time reading the classified ads in the Sunday newspaper.

The saddest story was Califano's. Every Sunday at 12 o'clock sharp he gets into his car and drives to RFK Stadium alone. He said he just sits in the parking lot for three hours and then drives back home.

"We asked him why he did it."

"I want to be ready in case the NFL strike is ever settled."

No one had the heart to tell him that football as we knew it was finished, and our lives would never be the same.

And then, as usually happens at reunions after you ask each person how he is and retell the same old war stories, the party got maudlin.

We toasted the quarterback of the Redskins, though nobody could remember his name.

Then Dalinsky and Valenti got into a fist fight over whether Mark Mosley was a running back or the place kicker of the Washington team.

Califano turned bitter and complained that in 14 years of driving us to the games no one had ever offered to pay for a gallon of gas.

As the evening got late and the wine bottles got empty, we all vowed that we'd meet in 10 years or when the strike was settled, whichever came first. But we all knew whatever it was that brought us together was over. As Marcel Proust once said, "Once you break up a football car pool, you can't go home again."

Federal workers punished for citing radiation peril

WASHINGTON — You might think that employees who worry about the danger of the government's radioactive materials being spewed into the atmosphere or being dumped willy-nilly into inadequate disposal facilities would get respectful attention at least. But you'd be wrong.

Two employees of the Los Alamos National Laboratory who worried about the facility's safety measures wound up being fired or forced to quit. Here's their story: Melton Garcia was an industrial hygienist at the northern New Mexico laboratory. His job was reasonably straightforward: He was supposed to make sure that the air-filter systems in areas where radioactive material is processed actually worked.

But when he blew the whistle on potential health problems, Garcia says, he was harassed and passed over for promotion. His office furniture was dumped in a hallway and he was moved to an unheated trailer. He eventually quit in frustration.

When Garcia went to work at Los Alamos in 1978, he soon discovered that many of the filter systems designed to catch minute particles of radioactive material had not been given the annual inspections required by government and industry standards.

"A review of the history shows that many of the filter banks that are potentially loaded with plutonium, other radioactive substances and carcinogens have not been tested as required... for many years," Garcia wrote in an internal 1978 memo.

Los Alamos, Garcia wrote, "would be found negligent... if any of these systems were to release highly toxic contaminants through the exhaust stacks." In fact, Garcia wrote, a leak had already occurred, and one exhaust system had to be shut down due to a radiation leak around a faulty filter.

Garcia's forthright memo didn't please his bosses at Los Alamos. He told my associate John Dillon that nobody disputed his factual data. Instead, the laboratory officials ordered him to rewrite his memo.

The rewritten version of Garcia's scary memo contained the same factual information, but it deleted references in the original to lab negligence and the "absence or near absence of any testing during the past eight years."

Garcia's study was still embarrassing to the brass at Los Alamos. He noted that, while federal standards required annual checks of the laboratory's 434 filter banks, only 32 had been inspected in 1977 — and that was the best year.

"They got upset because I pointed out something they were very negligent in," said Garcia, who now teaches at the University of Arizona. "If I had gone there and just laid low — signed my name to everything — I'd still be there, and they'd still be exposing people" to radioactive material in the air.

The other conscientious Los Alamos employee who got fired for trying to do her job is Margaret Anne Rogers, a geologist who was hired in 1973 and was assigned the task of figuring out how safely the laboratory had disposed of its tons of radioactive garbage.

She did her job conscientiously — too conscientiously, as it turned out. She checked into laboratory records dating back to World War II and found that, in some cases, radioactive waste had been dumped indiscriminately and in poor locations. As a result, some areas were contaminated. Rogers recommended swift corrective action.

Instead of acting on Rogers' recommendations, Los Alamos fired her by eliminating her job. She appealed to an outside arbitrator, who ruled that she should be reinstated. The arbitrator found that Rogers had been fired for blowing the whistle on Los Alamos' unsafe dumping practices — in short, for doing her job. Rogers, the arbitrator said, was "taken to task for having voiced concerns about waste disposal practices."

The Los Alamos hierarchy ignored the arbitrator's order. Rogers was assigned to a "quality assurance" program, instead of to her old job, where she might have produced further embarrassing reports. A lab spokesman said he would not comment on either Garcia or Rogers, as both cases are currently in the courts.

PARTING SHOT: Robert Nimmo resigned as head of the Veterans Administration after coming under heavy fire for spending big bucks on office redecoration, personal air travel, chauffeured limousine service and other perquisites. And perhaps nothing in his extravagant tenure became him like the leaving of it.

Rather than have a farewell memo tacked up on the bulleting board, Nimmo sent a letter to all 228,500 VA employees expressing his "heartfelt appreciation" for their support during his 21 months in office. The document included the text of his letter of resignation to President Reagan and Reagan's response.

Nimmo's swan song cost the taxpayers $13,965.

The farewell missive did have one profound bit of wisdom in it. Nimmo stated: "A most remarkable attribute of the federal employee is the ability to provide dedicated and competent service no matter who is in charge."

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: New Mexico is not only the Land of Enchantment, but evidently the Land of High Hopes for offspring of successful politicians. The sons of two former Cabinet members, as well as those of two former members of Congress, recently ran for office in the Sun Belt state. The voters were unimpressed, percentage-wise. The sons of former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall and former Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., all lost. Only Mike Runnels, son of the late Rep. Harold Runnels, D-N.M., won. He'll be the state's new lieutenant governor.

Some aides to defeated Republicans are evidently anticipating that the increased Democratic majority will be pushing jobless benefits. Said one positive-thinking Republican staffer: "Looking on the bright side, with all these Democrats coming up here, it might be worth my while to be unemployed."

Dear Abby

Tragic tale could avert similar 'freak' accident

DEAR ABBY: We have just lost our little daughter. Because your audience is so wide, you might think it worth printing how our baby died so that other parents will know. We did all the things one is supposed to do to keep a baby safe. We put plug guards in the electrical outlets, locked up all our household cleansers, always used her car seat, etc. However, never did we think that a bathroom fixture might be dangerous to her! We were at her grandparents' house when she toddled off. We found her in the bathroom with her head face down in the toilet bowl. Although my husband worked and worked on her until the paramedics arrived, nothing could be done. It would have been the easiest of accidents to prevent — to always make sure everywhere she was that the toilet lid was down and the bathroom door securely closed. If only, we had known! The newspaper labeled it a "freak accident," and perhaps it was, but if it happened to our precious baby, it could happen to another child. It would help us to think that even one parent might be alerted to this possible hazard. MR. & MRS. J.G. IN PHOENIX

DEAR MR. & MRS. J.G.: My heart goes out to you. What kind and generous people you are to have written in your time of sorrow hoping to save some other child from the tragedy yours suffered. May God keep her in his loving care and give you the strength to bear the burden of your irreplaceable loss.

What a pity that you will never know how many toddlers will be saved because you cared enough to write.

chief of nursing services; Dr. Dolores Little, associate director; and Carol Wermuth, assistant chief nurse. The ladies are examining the different types of nursing caps.

Dr. Donohue

Can't gain weight

Dear Dr. Donohue: This is about my husband. He has tried everything possible to gain weight. He went to the doctor, and his thyroid is OK. The question I really wanted to ask is about steroids. A friend told him this is a sure way to gain weight, but are they safe? I've heard it is possible for them to make you sterile. If steroids are not the answer, do you have one for him? We don't know where to turn. — K.N.

Tell your husband not to listen to his friend's advice. That's not a sure way to gain weight. Some steroids will cause fluid retention in the body, and that is not the kind of weight gain your husband is looking for. The kinds of steroids this friend is speaking of are male hormones. Many serious side effects can come from their use. Liver disturbance is just one. Such drugs can also cause the male breast to enlarge. And they can depress the male's natural production of hormones, which can lead to sterility.

The simpler route to weight gain is adding a nutritious snack or two to his daily diet. If he could eat just 300 to 500 extra calories around 10 a.m. and another 300 to 500 calories around 3 p.m., he'd start putting on his desired weight. But steroids? Forget it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Just at what point in the illness called "shingles" can a person pass it on to another? — G.T.

This is not a common occurrence, but it is possible. The person with shingles has the live virus present in the blisters that form, so it is at this stage when it might be passed on. Then the virus would cause chicken pox. Shingles is a reactivation of the chicken pox virus which lives on in the body after the chicken pox has gone. Other questions on this subject are discussed in the booklet

"The Facts About Shingles." Readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son, who is 30, had a kidney stone, and now is told that he has polycystic kidney. Can you tell us something about this problem? — Mrs. E.

There are two forms of polycystic kidney disease. One appears in childhood, the other in adulthood. I am pretty sure you are speaking of the adult form, an inherited problem.

This form is often discovered because of pain in the kidney area or from the finding of a stone in the kidney. Stone formation often accompanies it. Cysts form in the kidney, and if they enlarge sufficiently they can so damage normal kidney tissue that failure of that organ may occur. With this disease, cysts often form in the liver as well, but those cause no great problem. (They do in the childhood form, however.)

Another complication is an elevation of blood pressure, which is often a consequence of any kidney disturbance. Treatment depends on just how much kidney function has been affected. If there is considerable loss of effective kidney tissue, then dialysis is considered, or even a kidney transplant.

There is, unfortunately, no way to stop the cysts from forming. There are instances where the illness has not made itself known until quite late in life — the 80s, even. There is also a wide variance in the degree and severity of it. Is there no one else in your family with this disorder? Usually there is a family history of it.

Program on South Africa presented to Garden Clubs

A program entitled "Floral Trails of South Africa" and a luncheon highlighted the day-long South Zone District One of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. meeting Nov. 9.

The program was presented by Mrs. Omar Herring and Mrs. W.T. Henderson, both of Odessa. The women recently traveled to South Africa on a tour sponsored by the Texas Garden Clubs, Inc.

The two women informed members and guests in attendance of customs, history, climate and characteristics of South Africa through a slide presentation and speech. Highlighting the presentation were photographs of the large variety of plants native to the area.

The women said the country has more indigenous wild flowers and plants than any other country in the world. Also an important industry, the country is rich in coal, platinum, gold, diamonds and other precious minerals and gems. Two of the world's largest diamonds were found in the country, one of which is the Star of Africa.

The meeting was Mrs. Clyde Angel's last meeting as zone chairman. It was held at Big Spring Country Club. Special guests in attendance were LeRoy Tillery and Clyde Angel.

In addition to the program and luncheon, District and Zone business was discussed, credentials and resolutions were reported, announcements were made and door prizes were presented.

GOP governors' views are mixed on gas tax plan

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Although Republican governors are expected to endorse a plan to increase the federal gasoline tax for a job-creating public works program, they have plenty of misgivings.

"I've never heard of increasing taxes to create jobs," said Gov. Pierre S. DuPont IV of Delaware. "If you want to fix the bridges and, Lord knows, they need fixing, we'd better do it."

"But to suggest that it's a jobs program to raise the gasoline tax, just isn't right," DuPont said Monday at a meeting of the Republican Governors Association.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, who has been pushing the plan, was scheduled to address the governors today.

Gov. James Thompson of Illinois, chairman of the association, said the program would be a good way of creating new transportation jobs at a time of high unemployment.

Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, however, called job creation "a poor reason" for raising the gasoline tax.

"It seems to me the straightforward thing to do if you need money to improve or maintain the roads you raise the user fee," Alexander said. "If you don't, you don't."

No final decision on the plan has been made at the White House but Richard Williamson, a presidential aide attending the conference, said, "I think the president signaled on Thursday at his press conference that he's looking at it very favorably."

Williamson said he thought a majority of the governors would support the program, especially if the tax increase would be phased out after five years.

The gasoline tax debate was the only policy question discussed during the two-day conference, which was dominated by rehashing the 1982 elections. Democrats picked up seven governorships for a total in January of 34 of the 50.

In both private and public sessions, GOP governors expressed unhappiness with the image of their party and with the expensive services provided them by political managers and pollsters.

Attending a closed breakfast meeting with the governors were pollsters Richard Wirthlin, Robert Teeter and Lance Tarrance and political consultant John Deardourff.

During the open session, Wirthlin, chief pollster for the White House, said unemployment was the key factor in GOP defeats in 1982.

"Unemployment was an 800-pound gorilla and we were in a rather small cage," he said.

Williamson said many governors were frustrated because they "believed Dick Wirthlin's 1980 comments that this (the Reagan victory) was a big realignment. Which was balderdash. It was a frustration against Carter plus an attraction to a guy who was seen as being anti-establishment."

Two governors — William Clements of Texas and Frank White of Arkansas, both of whom lost — recommended that the administration "get out front and talk Social Security," Williamson said. "I said Frank's advice is good but it's a little like pulling the pin on a hand grenade and sitting there with it."

The Reagan administration's biggest political blunder was its proposal to deal with Social Security financial problems through a combination of tax increases and benefit cuts, Williamson said.

Braniff meets with four unions in deadline race

GRAPEVINE (AP) — Negotiations between Braniff International and three of its four major unions dragged on after midnight Monday as the company struggled to meet a deadline crucial to its joint venture with Pacific Southwest Airlines.

PSA spokesman Bill Hastings said representatives of the International Association of Machinists walked away from the bargaining table about 7 p.m., but said he did not know what the union's objections were.

"Hopefully we will get back with them first thing in the morning and get back to work as quickly as possible," Hastings said from his San Diego office.

Earlier, he had said any delay past the Monday midnight deadline for reaching agreements with the four unions could endanger the joint venture.

"We'll certainly talk beyond that point," he said, "but if we haven't got anything by then, it endangers the time-line we have developed."

"If they don't do it tonight, it's not a good sign," he said, adding that in early reports on the negotiations "there was a tone of optimism, except for the machinists."

The International Association of Machinists is Braniff's second-largest union, representing some

1,800 workers. Union leaders have said they are unhappy with the cuts in pay and fringe benefits Braniff is proposing to get the joint venture off the ground. The IAM said the contract offer was "so substandard that no one can live with it."

Braniff, which suspended operations May 12 and filed for federal bankruptcy court protection from its creditors a day later, tentatively has agreed to a joint venture with PSA that would get about half of Braniff's 60 planes back in the air and put some 1,500 former employees back to work, flying under the PSA name.

About 8,500 Braniff employees lost their jobs when the airline shut down.

Crucial to the joint venture agreement are "highly productive" contracts with Braniff's unions representing the pilots, flight attendants, Teamsters and machinists.

The flight dispatchers union — which represents about 30 employees — agreed to a contract Friday, Hastings said. He said he did not know how many of the dispatchers would get jobs in joint venture.

"Before we can proceed we have to have an idea of what the cost structure is going to be," said Hastings. "If we don't have agreements within the cost parameters, there will not be a joint venture."

Mississippi River contamination probed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana Attorney General William Guste is investigating evidence that illegal dumping of radioactive waste has contaminated the water and seafood of the Mississippi River, a television station reported.

Two tests of river water taken in New Orleans in 1979 and 1980 found high concentrations of the radioactive isotopes iodine 131 and chromium 51, WWL-TV reported Monday night.

A followup test Aug. 5 by the Department of Health and Human Resources found varying quantities of radiation in river sediment, shrimp, fish and crabs, the station said.

No isotopes were identified in that test, WWL-TV said, and testing continued.

Guste, interviewed on the program, said his investigation has yet to determine the extent of the threat.

"I feel there's no reason to panic either with respect to our drinking water or our seafood at this time," he said. "But there is a need to conduct a thorough investigation..."

Guste said one conclusion reached from the investigation is that the state must do a better job of enforcing its pollution laws.

"We need to really find out more about what's been going on. We feel there hasn't been adequate monitoring, and that there needs to be more monitoring and more testing and more investigation to determine the source of this radioactive material."

The attorney general said evidence indicated the contamination was entering the river between New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

Arthur Tamplin, a biochemist in Washington, said the concentration of radioactive isotopes found in the river is significant.

"You're talking about a great big river substantially polluted by a radioactive material," Tamplin said.

Criticize U.S. weapons policy

Bishops clash on anti-nuke document

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

WASHINGTON — Several Catholic bishops are criticizing a proposed pastoral letter challenging U.S. nuclear weapons policy, with one claiming it minimizes the "horrible sufferings" of those living under dictatorships.

But whether the differences voiced at the National Conference of Catholic Bishops are as extensive as they are blunt remains uncertain.

In any case, the opening debate on Monday among the nation's Roman Catholic bishops on a planned and provocative repudiation of using nuclear arms produced some sizzling ecclesiastical fireworks.

Archbishop Philip M. Hannan of New Orleans assailed the draft as minimizing "the horrible sufferings ... of those enslaved by Communism and other dictatorships." He also said it wasn't balanced with "the aggression and repression of the Reds."

But Archbishop Raymond G. Hunthausen of Seattle hailed the document as reflecting the "spirit of Christ," and called the current strategy of nuclear deterrence "idolatry" and "profoundly anti-Christian."

The subject was laid aside for Tuesday's sessions on other business matters, with discussion of it resuming Wednesday and Thursday. About 300 bishops are attending the conference.

At Monday's session, the pope's representative in this country, Archbishop Pio Laghi, admonished that the bishops act only with "the greatest possible unanimity" on such a sensitive issue.

If their teaching is "either muted or fractionalized," he said, it "would not serve the best interests of either the church or the world." But he offered "my encouragement" to the effort.

Several bishops branded false published reports that Pope John Paul II or other Vatican authorities had sought to curb or tone down the proposed pastoral teaching letter.

Such reports "are just not true," said Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Chicago, head of a committee which has shepherded the document through more than a year of hearings and drafts.

He and others said that while the Vatican was being kept fully informed about the pastoral letter, there has been no pressure applied from there.

The draft letter calls for a nuclear freeze, condemns any threat or intention to use nuclear weapons as immoral, and says even possession of such weapons as a deterrent is tolerable only if steps are being taken toward mutual disarmament.

The 105-page document also condemns any first use of nuclear weapons or their targeting on bases near population centers — both now features of U.S. nuclear strategy.

In the opening debate, Cardinal Terence Cooke of New York said the document has "great potential ... for seriously dividing our church and nation."

But Hannan, the bishop from New Orleans, said, "The letter ignores completely our duty to defend Western Europe." This echoed a criticism by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger that the United States and its NATO allies, without the option of a nuclear response, lacked adequate defense against conventional attack.

On the other hand, Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia strongly defended the letter as recognizing "the current harsh realities," the obligation to resist tyranny and the right of self-defense.

But he said "weapons of massive destruction which attack not only the unjust aggressor but also vast numbers of non-combatants, exceed the limits of the right of self-defense, and as such merit unequivocal condemnation."

FCC taking more trips

WASHINGTON (AP) — One year ago, the Federal Communications Commission faced a rather bleak financial future thanks to President Reagan's budget proposals. Belts were tightened throughout the agency, including the travel accounts of the seven commissioners.

Congress, however, failed to approve the president's FCC budget recommendation for fiscal 1982 and the lid was raised on those travel accounts.

Now, 1½ months into a new fiscal year, Congress has still not approved the type of budget cuts recommended by the administration and a review of the FCC's internal spending shows the domestic travel account for the agency's seven members has been raised again.

The increase comes at the start of a three-year experiment approved by Congress allowing the agency to accept travel reimbursements from industry groups.

The latest increase brings the travel allocation from $5,250 last year to $7,000 this year for each commissioner's office, and from $10,500 to $14,000 for the chairman's office. The new totals roughly match the amount budgeted in fiscal 1980, before President Reagan assumed office.

Those budget figures do not include the cost of sending commissioners or staff officials to represent the United States at various international meetings.

Save energy with a heat pump.

If you're planning to install a new heating or cooling system, consider a high-efficiency heat pump. It's an energy-saving, year-round alternative.

The heat pump provides year-round heating and cooling, using only electricity. During the winter, it extracts heat from the outside air (even very cold air contains heat) and brings that heat inside where it's needed. In the summer, the heat pump is a regular air conditioner, removing unwanted heat from the inside air.

The heat pump is the most efficient combination heating and cooling system that can be installed in your home today.

To learn more about the heat pump, call your air conditioning contractor. And when you call, ask about the year-round heat pump that qualifies for a bonus check from Texas Electric.

BSHS's Randle lauded

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Big Spring High senior Sylvia Randle was named to the District 4-AAAAA first team all-district team for the 1982 season.

Randle was the lone Lady Steer named to the 13-member team.

The honor squad was dominated by co-champions Midland High and San Angelo Central, each placing three players on the first team. Midland's Sheila Christian was named the 4-5A Most Valuable Player while teammate Denise Lanz was recognized as Sophomore of the Year.

Coach Linda Jolley was selected Coach of the Year.

Randle was the most consistent player on a Big Spring team that went 6-8 in league play and finished fifth among eight teams. The Lady Steers were 4-3 in the second half, losing only to playoff-bound Midland and San Angelo and falling to third place finisher Cooper.

Big Spring won six of its final 10 matches.

"I think she really deserves the honor," said first-year head coach Becky Holliday. "She was a setter and hitter both and was our most consistent defensive player."

SYLVIA RANDLE
...4-5A first team pick

"She was the one that held our team together," she added.

The BSHS co-captain played on the varsity two seasons.

Midland and San Angelo finished with identical 12-2 district records with MHS winning a playoff for first place. While SAC was beaten out of the state playoffs early, Midland advanced to the regional tournament before losing.

Midland players on the team were Christian, Melinda Rascke and Penny Griffin, all seniors. Central placed senior Yvette Guerrero and juniors Monica Bradley and Val Schlaudp on the honor team.

Stephanie Sorrells and Carolyn Gibbs — a junior — of Permian were first team picks from Permian. Renee Pierce of Odessa High, Claudia Gonzales of Abilene, Mona Bidwell of Cooper and Felicia Faras of Midland Lee rounded out the team. All are seniors with the exception of Faras.

Big Spring will return five varsity players next fall. Graduating along with Randle are Sharon McCalister, Lesley Overman and Shell Rutledge.

The Lady Steers finished third in the district race in 1981.

Kim's life said 'very critical'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The neurologist attending boxer Duk Koo Kim says he will decide "within a few days" whether to take away the support system keeping the 23-year-old South Korean alive.

Dr. Lonnie Hammargren said examinations on Kim have shown "no sign of brain life" since he was carried unconscious Saturday from the outdoor arena at Caesars Palace.

"We're still doing some tests and we want to wait a couple of days to see how they work out," before disconnecting the life support system, Hammargren said Monday.

Disconnecting the system would bring death to the 23-year-old Kim "within a matter of minutes," Hammargren said.

The neurologist said he was consulting with other specialists in the Las Vegas area in the tests being conducted.

The boxer's mother and two of his brothers were to fly here tonight. Mrs. Yang Sun-Yo, who on Monday said she could not afford the trip, was given financial assistance today by the government of President Chun Doo-Hwan. Until her arrival, Kim's manager, Hyun Chi Kim, who is not related to the fighter, has permission to make any decisions regarding Duk Koo Kim.

The neurologist said he would be making a decision on the life support system "in a matter of days — it certainly won't be weeks."

The hospital continued to report the same prognosis for Kim that was first given Saturday night — "very critical, probably terminal."

Kim was critically injured when he was knocked out by Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini in the 14th round of Saturday's nationally televised World Boxing Association lightweight championship fight.

Kim was placed on a life support system following 2½ hours of surgery to relieve a massive blood clot.

Hammargren met at the hospital Monday with Nan Shin-Cho, a member of the Korean consulate from Los Angeles. The two discussed Kim's condition and contacts with relatives in Korea.

Hammargren said Sunday he would have the final say on when the life support system is removed.

"You really have to look at it as what you would do if it were your own family," Hammargren told a news conference. "I think that's the final decision."

Mancini's manager, Dave Wolf, said the Youngstown, Ohio champion spent several hours at the hospital Sunday night, talking with Kim's people. The injured fighter has not been allowed any visitors.

Earlier Sunday Mancini had attended mass and prayed for Kim.

"He's still so upset, we're not even discussing the future," Wolf said Monday when asked about Mancini's career plans. "That's so far beyond what we are able to deal with right now."

"I have no idea how he will bounce back," Wolf said of Mancini. "This thing is going to affect him the rest of his life, not just his boxing career. He's a very sensitive man and it's wounded him very deeply."

The match's promoter, Bob Arum, repeated Monday his call for a study as to how boxing deaths can be avoided.

"We've got to make sure we take steps to avoid something like this in the future, and that we not just throw a lot of bull around," Arum said.

He called for softer gloves or some type of headgear that could be worn without impeding the boxer's vision.

Go-between optimistic, Garvey saying no dice

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Martha, a running back turned lawyer who last weekend became a mutually agreed-upon go-between for the National Football League owners and players, believes a settlement in the 57-day-old strike could come today.

But his presence in the talks was about the only thing mutually agreed upon Monday night. Neither side expressed his optimism. And neither agreed on just what the problem was.

As midnight approached, Martha stood in the lobby of a midtown Manhattan hotel and said: "Sometime this evening we should have an all-inclusive agreement." Unbeknownst to him, though, union chief Ed Garvey was at a different hotel, firing a salvo at the owners for what he called their "union busting" and claiming the Management Council had pulled back earlier offers. "There is not a deal that is even close," he said.

And shortly thereafter, Jim Miller, the Management Council's public relations director, observed from his office: "We're not too close together" and said the owners' offer had been "restructured," not reduced.

Then Martha's optimism waned a bit. "I thought we were going to get together earlier in the evening, but things got late," he said. "I am still optimistic, but it won't be tonight. Some of the (management) people were disappointed at the remarks Ed made at the press conference. I am still optimistic for a settlement tomorrow."

The sudden surge of activity was accompanied by the disclosure of Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys and chairman of the NFL's Competition Committee, of contingency scheduling for the rest of the season, a plan calling for a 10-game season and a full playoff slate employing midweek wild-card games.

Garvey insisted key portions of the owners' most recent proposal had been withdrawn by the Management Council, that it had reduced severance pay for older players, eliminated incentive bonuses and reneged on an agreement to reinstate with back pay player reps cut before the strike began. "That actually reduced their last offer substantially," Garvey said, "while we have moved considerably in their direction."

But Miller said the owners, in their four-year, $1.313 billion offer, had simply taken money from several areas to satisfy union demands for more money in others. And he denied the Management Council had ever agreed to security for player reps.

Monday's developments followed nine days of virtual inactivity, during which Garvey repeatedly tried and failed to bring the Management Council back to the bargaining table. The owners' negotiators had walked away from it the night of Nov. 6 — mediator Sam Kagel went home to San Francisco that night, too — and said it had no intention of returning unless the union moved markedly from its position.

Over the weekend, Garvey met with Kay McMurray, the head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, a reversal of the union's previous stance against the FMCS's involvement. And McMurray, in effect, took the owners' side, saying: "I don't think they (the two sides) will meet soon, not unless the ballplayers move further from the position they've already taken."

That's when Martha, a running back for the Pittsburgh Steelers (1964-69) and Denver Broncos (1970) and now vice president of the National Hockey League's Pittsburgh Penguins got involved as a messenger between the union and Management Council. The Penguins, like the NFL's San Francisco 49ers, are owned by the DeBartolo family. On Monday night, Garvey said Martha's optimism was misguided and called him "someone from management."

On Monday, the National Labor Relations Board rejected a union request that it seek an injunction to force the Management Council to bargain "in good faith," an action which would have forced the owners' negotiators back to the table.

Still pending, and set for a Nov. 29 hearing before an administrative law judge is an unfair labor practice complaint alleging the Management Council attempted to bypass the union and bargain directly with the players.

UNION'S ED GARVEY
...solution not so near

Schramm said the season would resume Sunday if an agreement was reached by Wednesday. The 10-game schedule would include two weekends affected by the strike, with playoff berths decided by conference rather than division records.

In another development, Chicago Bears offensive tackle Ted Albrecht filed a class-action suit Monday on behalf of himself and all other players on the injured-reserve list.

The suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, says that since Albrecht and about 150 other players entered into a standard NFL contract, they are entitled to pay despite the strike. The 27-year-old Albrecht was injured in preseason play.

The suit says the contract requires that if a player is injured in the performance of his services for the team, he "will continue to receive his yearly salary for so long, during the season of injury only and for no subsequent period."

HC Queens win fifth straight, 74-59

RANGER — Nell Haskins continued her 20-point or better scoring play and the Howard College Hawk Queens won for the fifth time this season with a routine 74-59 victory over Ranger here in the Ranger Classic Monday.

The Queens now play Weatherford and hope to claim a second tournament championship this season. Howard won the McLennan Classic earlier in the month.

Haskins scored 27 points, Pam Roberson 14 and point-guard Janene Berry 11 as the Queens turned an eight-point halftime spread into a 15-point victory.

"It was kinda methodical," said head coach Don Stevens. "We played everybody. We've had a week's layoff and didn't look too sharp. These are good games for us before we play in the Hawk Queens Classic this weekend."

Haskins dominated the boards, adding 18 rebounds to her 27 points. The sophomore Queen has scored above 20 points in all her games as HC has raced off to a 5-0 start.

Haskins has scored 128 points already in five games for a 25.6 average. Her top game came in the season-opener against Ranger when she scored 29 points.

The Queens have now beaten RJC three times, winning the first meeting 72-57 and topping the RangeAnns 76-51 last week.

The Queens open tourney play Thursday at 8 p.m. against the winner of the Ranger-Dodge City contest, slated for 12 noon. The tournament concludes with the championship game at 7 p.m. Saturday.

HORNED FROG COACH F.A. DRY
...sudden firing shakes rebuilding program

Dry look is out TCU fires six-year coach

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas Christian was looking for its 28th head football coach while the 27th coach, F.A. Dry, prepared for his final game at the helm of the Horned Frogs.

Dry was fired Monday, effective next Sunday, by Chancellor William Tucker. Dry has two years left on his contract at some $50,000 a season.

The 37 Horned Frogs play Texas A&M in College Station on Saturday.

Athletic Director Frank Windegger estimated the Horned Frogs would have a new coach in about three weeks — with speculation running from Leon Fuller of Colorado State to the small college ranks with Jim Wacker of Southwest Texas State.

Dry announced his dismissal after six years at the TCU helm in a telephone call to The Associated Press, saying "They gave me a chance to resign, but I told them I had more class than that."

TCU is 12-50-3 under Dry, who came to TCU from Tulsa in 1977.

"I'm not bitter. I feel like I've got too much class to be bitter," Dry said. "But TCU didn't give us a chance this year. They (the critics) started in on us the second week of the season."

Noting the termination was effective Sunday, Dry said wryly, "... I guess they wanted to be sure I brought the team back from College Station."

Windegger said TCU was demanding a winning program. TCU went 2-9 during both of Dry's first two seasons, and then went 2-8-1, 1-10 and 2-7-2.

"It was the wins and losses. F.A. is a good man and he brought more talent here, but this is a harsh business and F.A. knows it," Windegger said.

TCU beat Utah State, Rice and Baylor, but lost three SWC games by a total of nine points. The Horned Frogs led Texas at halftime Saturday, but eventually fell 38-21 thanks to a rash of second-half turnovers and a dropped potential touchdown pass.

"We were just on the verge of turning this program around," Dry said. "We were so close for this to happen."

"We thought F.A. would turn it around this year," Windegger said, "but he was snakebit, or whatever you want to call it."

Tucker admitted Dry had little talent when he replaced Jim Sofner and said "he has done much to rebuild the program. He is a man of integrity and I appreciate what he has done for the institution."

"TCU is not a win-at-any-cost institution," the chancellor said. "We do, however, want to enjoy winning seasons and become a consistently tough competitor."

Wins too few, too seldom

By DENNEH FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Twenty-four hours before he was fired, F.A. Dry still held out hope he would be retained as Texas Christian's head football coach.

"If they'd just give me one more year, I think we could turn the corner, we're so close to getting the program on solid ground," he said.

Then he added, "It doesn't look good, though, does it?"

Dry concluded the telephone conversation by saying, "I'll give you a call either way it goes since you're the only one who asked."

True to his word, he called The Associated Press Monday some 15 minutes after he had been fired, effective with Saturday's Texas A&M game.

F.A. Dry is like that.

He is a man of integrity, a man of his word, intensely loyal to his school, and a fierce competitor.

But Dry couldn't win consistently in six years at TCU, where there hasn't been a Southwest Conference champion since 1959. TCU's last winning season was 11 years ago.

The competitor in Dry understood winning. He had captured four Missouri Valley Conference titles at Tulsa.

You also learn a lot about someone on a golf course; avid golfer Dry competed like he was playing in the final round of the Colonial Invitational.

Once he drove a golf ball into a group playing ahead of him on media day in the TCU "F.A. Dry Open" and shouted, "Move along, now, we don't want to have to fine you boys for slow play."

Dry pulled off upsets at TCU.

In October 1981, TCU ended 22 years of frustration by finally beating Arkansas, a 28-24 shocker in Fort Worth. A classic celebration picture at the end of the game showed a beaming Dry with arms upraised in a victory "V" being lifted by assistant Charlie Frazier.

The next week Rice upset the still-celebrating Horned Frogs 41-28.

Did Dry raise administration hopes too soon for a still-struggling program?

Maybe.

When he took over from Jim Sofner, the Horned Frogs had just been through seasons of 1-10, 1-10 and 0-11.

Painfully, steadily Dry began to bring the Horned Frogs back from rock bottom. But a taste of success just made TCU backers hungry for more.

They reasoned that Grant Teaff at Baylor and Ron Meyer at SMU had brought SWC championships to church schools like TCU in six years or less.

There was increasing pressure for victories no matter how far down the Horned Frog program had plummeted.

"He has done much to rebuild the program," Chancellor William Tucker conceded.

Tucker, also mindful that TCU would undergo some criticism for another football coach firing, added, "TCU is not a win-at-any-cost institution. We do, however, want to enjoy winning seasons and become a consistently tough competitor."

College football is big business at major universities and TCU is no exception. For example, TCU and the other eight SWC schools will make about $1 million this year in television revenue from conference games.

There's a lot of gold and glory out there on the gridiron and TCU wants its share.

Now, TCU, risking criticism as being impatient and emphasizing winning over building a solid program, is looking for its 28th football coach.

Could Dry have ever won at TCU?

Who knows. But his record suggests they'll never find another coach who tried any harder.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 17, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you are articulate and able to express yourself with a greater amount of clarity and enthusiasm. But it's best to double-check conditions before making any changes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have new ideas that can be put in operation if you go to the right sources of information you need. Control your temper.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your intuition is very good now so be sure to rely on it more than usual. A brighter future is in the making.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listening closely to what associates say can help you get ahead. Be more concerned with your finances. Be practical.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to keep your word with fellow workers. Don't scatter your forces and get the results you want.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Exercise your special talent and command a larger income in the future. Be sure to budget your money carefully.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try not to disturb family ties in any way and do what will be most appreciated by them. Safeguard your reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get in touch with partners and improve routines so that you can command greater income in the future. Sidestep a foe.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your monetary status and know how to make it better. Make a new plan that will add to your present abundance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Concentrate on a new plan to gain your personal desires. Strive to have increased harmony with family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take some time to think about gaining your personal aims. Steer clear of one who likes to waste your time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find a better way of handling important business matters. A wiser attitude toward loved one brings excellent results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you know what is expected of you by associates and try to please them. Take time to engage in favorite hobby.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be full of ideas but has to be taught to differentiate between those that are good and those that are not. Give as fine an education as you can. There is a fine balance of mind and physical activity in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Pearson hints at retirement

DALLAS (AP) — Drew Pearson, the Dallas Cowboys' all-time leading receiver, said he is preparing to retire if offered a front-office position with the new United States Football League.

"The strike has taken a year from me, basically at the end of my career," Pearson said Monday. "If a sports management position came up that was worthwhile in a city I could enjoy with a certain amount of security, then I would definitely retire right now."

Pearson, who turns 32 in January, earlier said he planned to retire after the 1983 season.

But Pearson said the strike by the National Football League Players Association has made him re-evaluate his plans. He said he plans to contact the 12 USFL teams in search of a player personnel or public relations job.

Pearson said coming back next year, if the 1982 season is not resumed, would be too risky.

"Getting back in shape and getting the desire again is not the problem," he said. "When you're 32, people think you're over the hill... I've seen indications from a lot of other players with the Cowboys that once you reach a certain age, it becomes tougher for you to get accepted."

U-Texas looks only to Baylor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas will not be in Dallas to defend its Cotton Bowl football championship this year, and coach Fred Akers says he hasn't paid much attention to the other post-season games.

Asked Monday if he had a preference of bowls, Akers replied, "To beat Baylor."

The Longhorns have not defeated Baylor at Waco since 1972, and when they go there on Saturday Akers predicts "another real thriller, another knockdown, drag-out. That's usually what we have when we go down there."

Baylor, 4-5-1, will end its season Saturday. The Longhorns, 6-2, also play home games against Texas A&M on Thanksgiving and Arkansas on Dec. 4. Texas' 30-17 loss to undefeated Southern Methodist cost it a chance to return to the Cotton Bowl.

Akers was asked at his weekly news conference if beating Baylor was crucial to getting a bowl bid.

"I don't know," he said. "I haven't paid that much attention to the bowl situation."

Akers also was asked if Texas might get a bowl bid regardless of the outcome of the Baylor game, and he said, "It's a possibility."

With all-Southwest Conference and All-America teams to be announced soon, Akers was asked for nominations from his squad, and he named defensive ends Kiki DeAyala and Eric Holle, quarterback Robert Brewer, receiver Herkie Walls and offensive guard Doug Dawson.

"I think (offensive tackle) Bryan Millard might get some votes for some of our opponents," he said.

Holle injured his little finger in Texas' 38-21 victory over Texas Christian last Saturday and had surgery. He will miss the Baylor and A&M games and will be replaced by Ed Williams, said Akers.

He said Longhorn coaches had selected Brewer as the most valuable player on offense against TCU and DeAyala as the MVP on defense.

"I think they're on a roll," Akers said of Baylor. "For one thing, I think they're playing defense better than they suspected that they would."

DON, JEWELL ANDERSON ... can supply bookkeeping needs

Thomas Office Supply offers real bargains

Thomas Office Supply sustained some water damage in their store over the summer, and now they want to offer you some half price bargains on slightly damaged, but still valuable items.

These items include file drawers, stamp-mailers, ledger sheets, and other equipment.

The time is approaching when you need to think about preparing your business and home finances for the new year.

Thomas Office Supply, located at 101 Main, is your best bet for supplying your business needs. They have the new 1983 calendars in stock. These calendars are big enough for you to write appointments and reminders in for each day.

But it is also time to start thinking about bookkeeping both for 1983 and for when 1983 rolls around. Thomas Office Supply can outfit you with adding machines, calculators, financial records files, and all your bookkeeping needs. Their filing and storage cabinets are of excellent quality and work much better than a shoebox.

If you need a used typewriter for your schooled children, Thomas Office Supply has used typewriters of good quality and in excellent condition. Of course they have a good supply of new ones too, and they service whatever they sell.

Also included in the stock are desks, chairs, bulletin boards and chalk boards. They also carry plenty of desk supplies, including staplers, tape dispensers, and most anything else you would need in daily office chores.

Thomas Office Supply is owned by Lucille Thomas. She is assisted by Don and Jewell Anderson.

Stop by Thomas Office Supply today and let them help you with your office supply needs. Their telephone number is 267-6621.

ELDRED E. GRAY ... certified public accountant

Eldred Gray can help with income tax

Taking care of your taxes is a year-around job, and you need someone with the skills, experience and knowledge to make the taxes work for you.

Eldred E. Gray, located at 1606 1/2 Gregg, is just the person you need. He can help you get your records in order so you can get the most out of the tax laws.

ELDRED E. GRAY, a certified public accountant, has the understanding. He's just recently received information explaining the Economic Recovery Act, and he has the background necessary to pass that information on.

Eldred Gray is a self-employed accountant working in Big Spring. He's been a CPA for 15 years and has 25 years experience working with personal finances. He knows the best way to keep your finances in order, and when income tax time rolls around, he can help you get the most out of the deductions available.

IN ADDITION, he offers services for bookkeeping, money management and audits. Financing is a year-round job, not something for the night before income tax deadline. He can help you prepare.

Call Mr. Gray at 267-5938 or stop by his office at 1606 1/2 Gregg. He's there to help you.

No. 1 teams hold

By The Associated Press

Unbeaten Fort Bend Willowridge in Class 4A and Brennon in Class A nailed down first place finishes in their classifications in the final Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll of the regular season.

Willowridge, which advanced to the finals last year before losing to Brownwood, hogged 13 of the 14 first-place votes cast by the panel of sportswriters and sportscasters voting in the final ballot, which included only Classes 4A and A.

Odessa Permian in 5A, Post in 3A and Eastland in 2A, wrapped up regular-season play with No. 1 rankings in their last week.

Port Arthur Lincoln moved to No. 10 in Class 4A while which Lubbock Estacado replaced No. 3-ranked Carrizo Springs in the No. 8 position. Estacado completed a one-beaten regular season with a 12-6 victory over crosstown rival Lubbock Dunbar.

All teams in the Class A rankings won their games, and no new teams appeared in the top 10. Wink jumped from eighth to sixth following a 37-14 victory over Sanderson and Eden dropped from fifth to seventh after a 13-6 victory over Forsan.
