Water hazard top priority for council

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring could lose its water supply for an "extended" time if a potential problem is not corrected, says Public Works Director Tom Decell and Colorado River Municipal Water District officials.

The Big Spring City Council members will discuss the hazard at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

The city's main raw water line traverses south from Lake Thomas to the filter plant and crosses under the Birdwell Lane bridge over Beal's Creek. The water line's position concerns both Decell and the city's water supplier (Colorado River Municipal Water District) because, if repairs are needed, the city's entire water supply — as much as 15 million gallons on a hot summer day — would be halted, Decell said.

"If something were to happen, if the line broke or sprung a leak (under the bridge), in order to repair it we would have to remove the bridge and work in an awful lot of water. And we wouldn't have any knowledge of what the problem was until the bridge was removed," Decell said.

CRMWD General Manager O.H. Ivie said in a memo to City Manager Don Davis that "if nothing is done, I can envision a condition developing whereby the City of Big Spring could be completely out of water for an extended period of time. We stand ready to assist the city in this work and would strongly urge you to proceed posthaste."

"If a leak of any magnitude developed in the line at that point, it would be a time-consuming, laborious job to repair," Ivie said. CRMWD also would not be able to supply the city's water requirements while repairs are made, he said.

Decell said he learned of the hazard from Ivie and has discussed with him what precautionary measures the city should take.

Decell and Ivie agree the most practical method would be to patch around the submerged portion of the pipe and run an elevated line over Beal's Creek. Decell said the workers could span the creek with 27-inch concrete cylinder pipe supported by pilings and connect the old pipe to the new elevated portion with compound joints.

CRMWD promised to assist the city by providing a portion of the engineering, placement of the pipe, and connection to the existing line.

Decell said the project should cost from $12,000 to $15,000 and that sufficient funds are available in the Capital Improvements Program Water, Sewer and Street Phase I. "We have some very tight budget constraints within the Water Distribution area, however, the total loss of all available (water), save and except about one million gallons a day that could come from the O'Barr Wells, is the alternative on which we are gambling."

Decell said in a memo to the council that CRMWD's "concern for this is so great, that they will be willing to fund it and let us make our monthly payments on our water bill."

In other matters, the council will:
• First reading of an ordinance that requires licensing and regulating city bail bondsmen.
• Approve specifications and give permission to advertise for bids to replace a sewer jet for the Distribution and Collection Department of Utilities. Decell says "the present sewer jet has been on first line duty since 1976, and has for the WASHINGTON — President Reagan is poised to announce his decision on deploying the huge new MX intercontinental missile, with all signs indicating he will choose a closely spaced basing scheme that faces opposition in Congress.

Administration sources said in advance of Reagan's announcement, expected late today, they understand he has accepted a recommendation to place 100 MX weapons in super-hardened launch silos spaced about 2, 43 and 7.

'Army of God' men arrested in abortion doctor's abduction

By NEIL McLAUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Federal authorities were searching for a third member of the "Army of God" accused of kidnapping and threatening to kill an abortion clinic operator and his wife unless they stopped performing abortions.

Two other men charged in the August kidnappings were arrested Sunday, three months after Dr. Hector Zevallos and his wife were released unharmed after eight days in captivity.

After abducting the couple, the culprits sent authorities rambling "epistles" laced with Biblical quotations and references to abortion, signed "The Army of God," police said.

Authorities arrested Wayne Allen Moore, 18, of New Caney, Texas, at a friend's home here Sunday. Later in the day, Moore's brother, Matthew Maxson Moore, 20, was arrested in Alvin, Texas.

A third man identified as Don Benny Anderson, 41, of Pearland, Texas, was still being sought, said Joseph E. Ondrula, special agent in charge of the FBI's central Illinois office.

Anderson is believed to have been in Springfield as late as Friday, but his current whereabouts are unknown, Ondrula said.

All three men have been charged with violations of federal extortion and illegal travel laws, Ondrula said. As far as investigators can tell, Ondrula said, the Moore brothers and Anderson are the only members of the "Army of God" and the only people involved in the abduction.

"The motive, as was stated in the epistles, is the abortion issue," Ondrula said.

But Frederick Hess, U.S. attorney for the southern district of Illinois, said investigators aren't sure why Zevallos, 52, and his wife, Rosalie Jean, 45, were kidnapped.

"At this point in time, I don't believe we know what is in the minds of the men," Hess said.

Zevallos had operated the Hope Clinic for Women Ltd. in Granite City. The clinic is still open, but Zevallos plays a less active role in its activities, clinic officials say.

The FBI said the three men threatened to kill Zevallos and his wife if they continued to operate the clinic after their release.

The three men maintain Texas addresses. Ondrula said, but they have traveled frequently and can be considered "transients."

Harrelson testifies in own defense

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO — Convicted hit-man Charles V. Harrelson testified today he believes federal agents investigating the assassination of Judge John H. Wood Jr. set up his arrest on state weapons and narcotics charges in early 1980.

his own defense of a federal charge that he shot Wood to death for a $250,000 fee, said that two of his friends who were cooperating with the FBI may have planted guns and drugs in his car prior to his arrest.

He also testified he was high on narcotics and believed he was about to be killed on Sept. 1, 1980, when officers finally took him into custody about 15 miles east of Van Horn in West Texas. He had held a .44-caliber Magnum pistol to his throat for several hours.

"I don't know whether they arrested me or rescued me," Harrelson told the jury. "I was really messed up. I was 40,000 feet and climbing," he said in response to a question from his attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr., about whether he was high on drugs at the time.

Harrelson testified he believed he had been followed by federal agents

Sandhills

Not as local to the Sandhills area but found in the park museum are remains of camels who died in the West Texas desert during an abortive Army expedition that tested dromedaries as pack animals in the 1850s. Also unearthed were shark's teeth from eons ago when Texas was a seabed.

Seemingly, the sea could be just on the other side of the sugar-fine sand dunes, park rangers say. "But here we are in Texas," Mrs. Grissom says.

The Sandhills, located just off Interstate 20 between Odessa and Monahans, is a sparkling break from the flat plains, and at one time was a refuge for Indians. Indians fleeing the white man during Spanish incursions 400 years ago "escaped into the Sandhills. They also knew how to dig down a couple feet to find water," Mrs. Grissom says.

Now, the area attracts a wide range of enthusiasts, from naturalists to archaeologists, who in 1952 found the remains of a Jumano Indian boy buried in the dunes.

When the oil boom of the mid-1970s spread to West Texas, Monahans — six miles to the west — didn't have enough housing for oilmen moving into the area. "We had some just living in the park, in tents. One even bought an air conditioner for his tent," Mrs. Grissom recalls.

But living in the Sandhills has its drawbacks, despite the great beauty of the area. Temperatures in the summer often exceed 100 degrees by midday. A wind usually blows, however, modifying the dry heat that prevails in West Texas.

Sometimes, the winds get fierce and play havoc with the dunes. A sandstorm that Mrs. Grissom recently witnessed whipped up such a fury that the Sandhills "looked like a volcano were running up and down the dunes," she said.

One dune almost exploded before her as the winds carved a new mountain of sand: "It looked like a volcano erupting," she said.

Mrs. Grissom, who has lived among the dunes since 1954, is proud the Sandhills have attracted attention to their ecological diversity: "We had 118,311 visitors this last year and that's up 34 percent over the previous year."

She revels, too, in describing the park, saying the tiny Havard shinnery oak's foliage during fall often glowed "ruby red," but laments any destruction of "the prettiest little grove you can find."

Also, she says the fact that the pint-sized oaks can co-exist — indeed, stabilize the dunes with their expanse of ground-holding roots — among a sea of dunes in West Texas, is something few fully appreciate.

"This is the only place in the world like this, but few know about it," she said.

for some 500 miles from Houston and that, during a previous stop at a service station, someone had placed "an incendiary device" beneath his automobile.

He said he stopped the car and began trying to shoot off the muffler, where he believed the bomb may have been placed. The bullet ricocheted and shot out his tire.

At that time, he told the jury, a Culberson County deputy sheriff arrived and he held the gun to his throat, demanding that someone he knew be present before he would surrender.

"I put the .44 under my chin and told them I wanted someone there who knew me and could attest to the fact that I was in one piece when they took me into custody," he testified.

Eventually El Paso businesswoman Virginia Farah, a former employer, was brought to the scene and Harrelson was taken into state custody. Last year he was sentenced in Houston to 40 years on state weapons and narcotics charges.

On April 15 he was indicted on charges he killed Wood on a murder contract let by imprisoned narcotics trafficker Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra.

Harrelson, who Sharpe said may be on the stand until the Thanksgiving recess, is the 101st witness and the 18th called by Sharpe in the trial that began on Sept. 28.

The government rested its case after presenting 83 witnesses and 281 exhibits.

Harrelson is on trial along with his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, and Elizabeth Chagra, the wife of the man accused of financing the contract killing of Wood.

Mrs. Harrelson, 41, is accused of conspiracy to obstruct justice and Mrs. Chagra, 28, is charged with conspiring to kill Wood and to obstruct justice.

Chagra, 39, will be tried later on murder and murder conspiracy charges. His lawyer-brother Joseph Chagra, 35, already has pleaded guilty to a murder conspiracy charge and has testified for the prosecution.

During his testimony Friday, Harrelson told jurors he had been a gambler since he was 12, in trouble with the law since he was 21 and a free man for only two years since 1968.

He said he had been accused of murder twice before and convicted once. He testified that he was acquitted on charges he killed Houston carpet executive Alan Berg in May 1968 and convicted and sentenced to 15 years in prison for the July 1968 contract killing of Hearne, Texas, grain dealer Sam Degelia.

1,800 to 2,000 feet apart in the West, probably at Warren Air Force Base, Wyo.

Reagan will discuss the MX in a nationally televised speech. It will also cover arms control matters and relations with the Soviet Union.

The entire MX project is expected to cost about $30 billion.

Such a deployment pattern would rely on a theory called "fratricide" to assure the survival of the missiles. According to the untested theory, incoming Soviet warheads would disable each other through blasts, radiation or debris and most of the MX weapons would survive to launch a retaliatory strike.

What makes fratricide work, the experts say, is the close spacing of the MX missiles, which narrows the Soviet target area.

The close spacing concept, which the Air Force calls "dense pack," is a dramatic departure from past missile deployment plans, including the Carter administration's scheme.

The sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said they expect Reagan's package to include a number of "growth options," which might be built into the system in the 1990s if the Soviets develop ways to counter closely spaced basing.

Among those options is "deceptive basing," a method of distributing MX missiles among additional holes.

Last week, sources said, Pentagon specialists and the Air Force were asked to come up with a way to scatter 100 MX missiles in up to 300 holes. Such deployment would force the Russians to guess where the missiles are.

That option was said to have been favored by Thomas Reed, a top Reagan weapons advisor. However, sources said these late studies were abruptly halted over the weekend.

- Approve specifications and give permission to advertise for bids for a heating and air conditioning system separate from city hall.

- Second and final reading of an ordinance amending the water rates.
- Second and final reading of an ordinance increasing Parks and Recreation fees.

- Discuss construction of a new boat ramp and parking area at Moss Lake. The project's cost exceeds a $16,100 state grant the city originally planned to use.
- Award a bid for fire department uniforms. Fire Chief Jim Ryals recommends the bid be awarded to Martin's Uniforms of San Antonio with the low bid of $4,520. The council had budgeted $5,500 for the uniforms. The uniforms will not be purchased until the tax roll is certified.

- Appoint Parks and Recreation Board members.

Economist sees $200 billion federal deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit could balloon to $200 billion in fiscal 1984 unless the government substantially curbs spending, President Reagan's top economist says.

Martin S. Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said Sunday that the deficit for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1, "will be somewhere between $150 and $200 billion if there are not significant actions by Congress and the administration."

Although administration officials have hinted in recent weeks that the deficit could soar, Feldstein's red-ink estimate marked the first time a senior administration official has publicly acknowledged a problem of that magnitude.

The White House economist, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," also said that despite the economy's serious problems, "the foundations are really there for an economic recovery... I think the economy is now ready to recover."

But Feldstein was unwilling to predict when the long-overdue upturn would occur. He said he held little hope for much progress on the unemployment front. The jobless rate, now at a 42-year high of 10.4 percent, will hover "somewhere around 9 percent" next year, even assuming a moderate recovery, he said.

"Those numbers reflect what would happen if there were not significant actions to bring down spending and shrink the size of the deficit," he added. "What has to be done is to slow the growth of spending, bring down some of our spending programs."

He refused to suggest where savings should be made, saying that the president has yet to make those decisions.

The budget deficit nearly doubled from $58 billion in fiscal 1981, to a record $111 billion in fiscal 1982, which ended in September. The deficit for the current fiscal year, 1983, is expected to set a new record at between $150 billion and $170 billion.

According to administration sources, Reagan has ordered his budget office to find approximately $30 billion in non-defense spending cuts for 1984.

Many of his advisers and congressional leaders are pressing for tax increases and cuts in the president's record defense spending plan in addition to domestic cuts to reduce red ink. But so far, Reagan is resisting those calls.

In fact, the president is giving serious thought to a proposal to move up next year's 10 percent cut in income tax withholding from paychecks to Jan. 1, rather than keeping it to the July 1 schedule. The Treasury Department proposal is designed to put nearly $15 billion in consumer pockets to help trigger a recovery, but it could also increase the deficit by nearly $15 billion.

Feldstein opposes accelerating the tax cut because he said it would increase the deficit and lead to higher interest rates.

Meanwhile, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said on the ABC television program "This Week With David Brinkley" that moving up the tax cut "would increase the deficit. It seems we ought to be focusing on ways to reduce the deficit, not on ways to increase it."

Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he wasn't consulted by the White House before the administration floated the idea.

"My guess is it won't happen," Dole said, adding that he didn't see any enthusiasm in Congress for such a plan.

Three burglaries reported to police

Police received three burglary reports yesterday. Howard Junior College student Freddie Fierro told police that someone stole $1,588 worth of stereo equipment from his dormitory room between 1 p.m. Friday and 10:30 p.m. yesterday.

Leslie Coffman of 1519 Kentucky told police that someone stole two stereo speakers, $136 in cash, $600 worth of jewelry, a $250 watch and a $250 vacuum cleaner from her residence.

Someone broke into the Elbow Room nightclub, 2711 Wason, stole two cases of beer and an undetermined amount of money, and damaged two pool tables and two pinball machines.

State rejects rock 'n' roll beer

AUSTIN (AP) — Joe Edwards can't sell his Rock & Roll beer in Texas because the state's Alcoholic Beverage Commission says there's no proof the man on the label sold his soul for Rock & Roll.

The commission cited false advertising in banning the sale of the beer, which has a label depicting the fictitious character Johnny Longshot, a rock music fan who proclaims, "I sold my soul for Rock & Roll."

"How can anyone prove they sold their soul for rock 'n' roll?" asked J.M. McCarthy, a commission representative.

Police reports also showed the following:

- Charles R. Phillips of Gail Route Box 245-A said someone took his 1975 Ford pickup truck from the Church of Christ parking lot, 1401 Main. Phillips said he left the keys in the truck.
- A 19-year-old woman said a person she knows threatened to kill her. The woman said this person has harassed her several times since August.
- Someone assaulted another 19-year-old woman about 2:15 a.m. today on a public street, 11th Place behind Malone-Igan Hospital. The woman told police her assailant pulled her hair and punched her body with his fist.

"For someone to prove that claim, they'd have to be dealing with realms that I'm not aware of."

In 1980, the commission rejected 148 of 4,100 beer, wine and spirit labels submitted for approval, McCarthy said.

Edwards, who invented Rock & Roll beer to promote his St. Louis tavern, said, "I have a feeling that if the label said 'I sold my soul for Texas football,' they (the commission) might have accepted it."

Edwards, 36, said the beer is sold in Missouri, Illinois and northern California.

Ground leveling on the project has already gotten underway and Saturday's ceremonies will be held indoors so all senior citizens will be able to attend.

Reagan to nominate new chief of VA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today made the long-delayed announcement that President Reagan will nominate Harry N. Walters, a veteran who never served in combat, to head the Veterans Administration.

If confirmed by the Senate, Walters would succeed Robert P. Nimmo.

Walters, 46, is now assistant secretary of the Army for manpower. His nomination as VA chief was held up more than two weeks because several influential congressmen complained they had not been consulted.

A 1959 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Walters served in the

Nineteen years later... Experts say Kennedy controversy still lingers

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — It is 19 years today since shots rang out during the downtown motorcade of President John F. Kennedy, mortally wounding him as he rode through the city that still bears the shame of his death.

Again, as always since Nov. 22, 1963, people will gather at the John F. Kennedy Memorial a block from the shooting site, and stand quietly during a brief service — and perhaps wonder.

Only last year, the body of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald was exhumed, dispelling two decades of theories that his grave was empty or instead held the body of a Soviet spy.

But a historian and former owner of a Kennedy museum here says that hundreds of other conspiracy theories regarding Kennedy's death still remain.

John E. Sissom said he will hit the college lecture circuit early next year to discuss some of those theories and to answer questions about the assassination.

The John F. Kennedy Museum which Sissom owned and managed for 13 years closed after last year's anniversary of the president's death. It was east of the Texas School Book Depository, where the Warren Commission said Oswald acted alone in shooting Kennedy with a semi-automatic rifle.

"I don't think that the exhumation stopped the speculation from conspiracy buffs," said Sissom. "They, of course, all have their own different opinions of what happened. We are aware of several hundred printed conspiracy theories, all different."

In testimony earlier this month, El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra testified in a San Antonio federal court that convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson claimed to have assassinated Kennedy.

But Chagra, testifying in Harrelson's trial in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., said he did not believe Harrelson's claim.

Chagra said Harrelson drew maps depicting where he was hiding when he shot Kennedy.

But the FBI has apparently discounted any involvement by Harrelson in the Kennedy assassination.

Marguerite Clavier Oswald believed that members of the U.S. government plotted Kennedy's assassination and that her son was framed because he informed the FBI of those plans.

Twenty cardboard boxes of memorabilia on the Kennedy assassination, saved by Mrs. Oswald, are being catalogued by the library at Texas Christian University.

Mrs. Oswald died in January 1981 and was buried next to her son in the Fort Worth cemetery.

A team of pathologists found "beyond any doubt" that Lee Harvey Oswald was buried in the grave marked with his name.

"There is no reason to ever disturb that body again. Ever," said Dr. Linda Norton, head of the team that examined the body exhumed in October 1981.

Michael Eddowes, British author and assassination theorist, had agreed to pay for the exhumation, contending that the body in Oswald's grave was that of a Russian imposter who replaced Oswald when he defected to the Soviet Union in 1959.

Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, had tried to legally force the exhumation because she believed the grave was empty.

Oswald was buried Nov. 25, 1963, one day after he was shot to death by Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby.

Oswald had defected to the Soviet Union after he was discharged from the U.S. Marine Corps. He subsequently returned to the United States after marrying Marina, then a Soviet citizen.

Assassination theorists have suggested that Oswald never returned, but his identity was instead assumed by a Soviet agent who resumed Oswald's life in America.

A congressional investigation said the assassination "probably" was the result of a conspiracy.

Conspiracy theories will probably always flourish, said Sissom.

"The reason is that all the evidence was circumstantial," he said.

His interest in the assassination prompted him in 1970 to open the museum, which contained books, souvenirs and newspaper and magazine clippings of the Kennedy years.

The museum, which he operated along with his wife, Estelle, closed after the building in which it was housed was sold to developers.

"Each day, of course, I receive letters from people wanting information on the museum and wanting to bring groups here," Sissom said. "But I think that the interest will always be there. For one thing, there is still a question mark in the minds of the public."

The Democratic Party of Dallas County will sponsor a brief service Monday at the Kennedy memorial, said Randy Read, assistant to County Judge Garry Weber.

A spokesman at the Kennedy birthplace in Brookline, Mass., said attendance there has increased steadily this month.

"We have had more people come here versus the beginning of the month," said Darlene Chickosky, National Park Service ranger. "So maybe it is in the back of some people's minds."

Man admits being spy, says treason needed

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. government "needs a few more traitors" to keep it honest, says a spy convicted of selling U.S. defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

Christopher Boyce said in an interview broadcast Sunday on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes" that he doesn't mind being called a traitor because his treason was necessary.

The son of a former FBI agent, Boyce said he became a spy for idealistic reasons. He also claimed to have information that the CIA had meddled in Australian labor strikes and helped topple the government of former Prime Minister Gough Whitlam.

"It's supposed to be an independent, English-speaking, parliamentary democracy," Boyce said. "And if we're not playing it straight with those guys, we're not even playing it straight with ourselves."

The United States government needs a few more traitors," he said. "Humanity needs a few more."

Boyce was convicted of selling secrets to the Soviets between 1975 and 1977 while he worked for TRW Defense and Space Systems Group, a major defense contractor.

He was sentenced to 40 years in prison and his childhood friend and accomplice, Dalton Lee, received a life sentence. But Boyce escaped from prison in Lompoc, Calif., and was free for 19 months before being captured by U.S. marshals in August 1981 at Port Angeles on Washington's Olympic Peninsula.

While he was hiding out, Boyce supported himself by robbing banks. He was sentenced to another 25 years in prison on 21 counts of bank robbery, conspiracy and firearms violations on May 31, 1982.

Roy Hofheinz, man behind Astrodome, dies

HOUSTON (AP) — Roy Mark Hofheinz, a politician, businessman and sports czar who became the driving force behind the world's first domed stadium, the Astrodome, has died at the age of 70.

Hofheinz died late Sunday after being brought to Twelve Oaks Hospital by ambulance, according to a nursing supervisor who asked not to be identified.

Cause of death was not immediately known, according to an employee of the Harris County medical examiner's office who asked not to be identified. A spokeswoman for Settegast-Kopf Funeral Home said early today that no funeral arrangements have been made.

Hofheinz was confined to a wheelchair after suffering a stroke in May 1970.

He once headed the Houston Sports Association, a group that pushed through a $33 million bond issue for the construction of the Astrodome and landed Texas' first major league baseball team.

He also served two terms in the Texas House, eight years as Harris County judge and made a political comeback as Houston mayor after building a fortune in real estate and radio.

Hofheinz was born in Beaumont, Texas on April 10, 1912. He was the son of a railroad employee. The family moved to Houston in 1923.

At the age of 22, Hofheinz was elected to the legislature in 1934. In 1938, he was elected Harris County judge and served two terms until 1944, when he retired to go into private business.

After building his financial empire, Hofheinz made a political comeback in 1952 as a late, but successful entry in the mayor's race. He served two terms in that post.

Along with a coalition of other wealthy investors, Hofheinz formed the Houston Sports Association in 1960. The association successfully pushed for the construction of the Astrodome and obtained a National League baseball team, the Houston Colt 45s.

The team became known as the Astros after the domed stadium, dubbed the "Eighth Wonder of the World," opened in 1965.

Hofheinz also developed an amusement park and hotel complex adjacent to the Astrodome, known as Astroworld, during the late 1960s.

Man died in hunting accident

NOVICE, Texas (AP) — Bernhardt Ruf of Clute died Sunday after apparently shooting himself accidentally with a shotgun during a turkey hunt, officials said.

Ruf, 37, was on a ranch about four miles north of this Coleman County town. He was pronounced dead at 8:23 a.m. Saturday by Justice of the Peace Roland Dunwoody on the southern edge of Abilene. Abilene Emergency Medical Service personnel said Ruf died before he could be transferred from a private vehicle to their ambulance.

Coleman County Chief Deputy Wade Turner said the probable cause of death was a single shotgun wound to Ruf's lower abdomen. He said foul play isn't suspected and that an autopsy is not anticipated.

Turner said Ruf was found lying next to a wounded turkey by four hunting companions on the Hudson ranch. He theorized Ruf was trying to kill the bird, by either shooting or clubbing it, when his double-barreled shotgun discharged about 7:30 a.m.

Ruf had arrived in Coleman County on Friday night, apparently in response to a hunting advertisement, and met up with four strangers with whom he spent the weekend. One of them, George Stilwell of Bowie, said Ruf disappeared after the men split up Sunday morning. Stilwell eventually found Ruf lying on the ground.

When asked if he was all right, Stilwell said, Ruf replied: "No, I shot myself."

Ruf was transported by his companions to a ranch house by a four-wheel-drive vehicle and then to Abilene by car.

Cancer studies put on back burner

The Reagan administration has unfortunately responded to heavy industry pressure by downgrading its program of scrutinizing some 2,415 chemicals.

The government has had the policy of trying to remove from the environment all substances which may "initiate" the cancer process. This policy has been written off by Secretary of Health and Welfare Richard Schweiker, who says it is not always "possible or practical."

The department now wants to encourage the intake of vitamins, most importantly vitamin A precursors and vitamins C and E.

Chemical, plastics, petroleum and other industries have for years opposed attempts to link cancer with workplace exposure to certain chemicals believed to be cancer-causing.

Any test that seems to prove a substance's involvement in cancer has been knocked down and ridiculed as being inconclusive or filled with flawed logic — or just a plain bother.

THE IMPORTANT thing is not that a certain substance may cause cancer — we simply don't know what causes it, or how to cure it completely. Yet we can't stop over 1,000 people from suffering a long, slow, painful death from it.

Any work against a mysterious, seemingly incurable but nonetheless common disease should transcend convenience to industry, considerations of the balance book, even political and economic ideology.

A 1979 White House report estimated that 20 to 38 percent of all cancers could be linked to occupational exposure to carcinogens. The report also said that more research was needed because amny cancer risks have not been linked to specific agents.

The federal government should take the lead in this, not sweep the problem under the rug.

More of life

Two recurring themes of existentialism are life lived at the highest pitch of passionate commitment, and consciousness of death as a factor determining the manner of our lives. I take these themes to mean death is a terrific motivator.

An awareness of mortality makes one realize that life isn't an unlimited supply on a shelf somewhere. When something becomes scarce it becomes more precious and treasured. Life should be that way, but oftentimes it isn't.

We put off, reschedule and postpone things because there's always good tomorrow to lean on. We don't take risks to better our personal and professional lives because there's always next month or next year. If we were more aware of the Big Sleep we wouldn't wait so long most of the time to reach out and get the things we want.

Jean-Paul Sartre, a noted existentialist, has written "there is no reality except in action." This means each person must fulfill himself through an ensemble of acts which makes a statement about that person's life. We have the choices and we must make them or we have done nothing.

I'm not saying we should resort to hedonistic anarchy and go wild grabbing any pleasure that satisfies our whim that day. But we should be true to our feelings, and pursue those things comfortable and right for us. Too much of the time we are poured into molds manufactured by someone else who knows nothing of our goals and dreams.

If we all knew the date we were going to die, we'd do many things differently with our lives. Some of us would get more serious, some more silly, some work harder, some call in sick more, but whatever we did we'd do it with more passion. Life would mean more.

It's too bad when we're young we think we're invincible. Death is light years away. However, as the years go by we begin to know that we won't go on forever. Then there's a lot of signing accompanied by "I should've done this" or "I wish I'd done that."

A simple awareness that the end is always closer than we think could help many of us live "fuller lives." I don't mean get paranoid and start watching for snipers or become afraid to go out at night. Then life becomes a burden.

However, death should be used as a positive factor. One can make his commitment to God stronger or increase his enjoyment in things like good health, a pretty day or a good friend.

It is frightening to be aware of one's own death, however, it must be considered to motivate us to act on the choices we have at our disposal.

Death doesn't have to be a big wall we smack into at the end, but rather it can be an eye-opener.

Letting Begin go gently

WASHINGTON — A series of hammer blows has suddenly struck the government of Menachem Begin. The ruling coalition in Israel has now been weakened to the point where it might not survive the year intact.

The American interest is to let Begin go gently. That means working with the Israelis where feasible, while avoiding the confrontations that practically force the prime minister to dig in behind new redoubts of internal support.

The inquiry into the Beirut massacre presents the most weighty threat to the Begin government. The study is going forward with an impartiality and thoroughness unknown to most other countries. In particular, the cloak of national security is not being used to obscure unpleasant facts. Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, in his testimony, was repeatedly refused when he requested that, for reasons of national security, the hearings be made secret.

The conclusions of the commission, of course, remain to come. But the prime minister has persuasively denied early awareness of the massacre. Military officers have testified to advance apprehensions. So responsibility bears down on the crucial link between the military and the civilian authorities — Defense Minister Sharon.

Sharon's position is further weakened by the explosion which blew up an Israeli-occupied building in the Lebanese city of Tyre last week. The death toll included 75 Israelis. That increases by nearly a fifth their total number of fatal losses in the Lebanese campaign. It thus emphasizes the cost of that operation, and makes it increasingly unlikely that Sharon can continue in office. The departure of Sharon would at a minimum entail a major reshuffle of the cabinet. In view of the government's narrow majority in the Knesset, and the number of splinter parties, the likelihood is that a cabinet shift would lead to new elections. That, in turn, would make all kinds of combinations possible.

More immediately, the discrediting of Sharon has eliminated him as a possible successor to Begin as head of the Likud Party, and the government. Begin has been strongly against passing on the mantle to the defense minister. With that danger discounted, he can think more easily about his own retirement.

The recent death of the prime minister's wife comes into the picture at that point. The couple were exceptionally close. Had she lived on in bedridden, there is a good chance he would have resigned to be at her side. Even now it is a question whether he will continue to hold office long.

The last thing the U.S. wants to do is to force Begin to hang on. But that is precisely what would happen if those Americans who want to punish Israel for the Lebanon invasion, or the massacre, or something else, have their way. For their way involves confronting the Israelis on the matter of dealing with the Palestine Liberation Organization, or the settlements on the West Bank.

But at this point such confrontation puts the order of issues upside down. The immediate requirement is to bring King Hussein into negotiations on the future of the West Bank. Once that happens, no Israeli leader — not even Begin — can stay out. In that context, progress on the PLO and the settlements comes readily easily. Until then, however, Begin will just turn combative and carry on with increased support. He will make other Israeli leaders look like traitors.

In the meantime, however, Lebanon offers plenty of other business for the U.S. to do with Israel. The government of President Amin Gemayel has been given plenary powers by the parliament. A multi-national force, with a contingent from this country, assure the government's sway in and around Beirut. The Lebanese army is being re-equipped and trained by American instructors. It should soon be able to take over the sector of southern Lebanon which Israel considers vital to its security. When that happens, there is removed one of the two major obstacles to Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon.

The second major obstacle is the presence of Syrian occupation troops in Lebanon. The Lebanese have asked the Syrians to get out, and the Syrians have said they will, provided the Israelis leave first. Philip Habib, the President's personal negotiator, has been in touch with President Hafez Assad, and believes the Syrian leader wants to get out. So the problem is to organize a concerted Israeli-Syrian withdrawal. Which is precisely the kind of diplomatic operation in which Ambassador Habib excels.

So there is a clear order of priorities in the Middle East. Ridding Lebanon of the occupation by Israeli and Syrian troops is front and center. Once that is achieved, everything else becomes much easier. Especially if the government of Israel, with its formidable negative powers, has been softened.

Time to make own commitment

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I was brought up in a very religious home and always felt very secure in my faith. However, now I have gone out on my own and now I'm not sure of anything anymore. Can you understand why I feel this way? — G.B.

DEAR G.B.: Yes, I can understand why you feel this way. I also am thankful that it seems to bother you, because it tells me you are willing to look at this and come to know God in a personal way.

What exactly has happened to you? Let me use an example that might help. During the years that you lived with your parents they provided food for you every day. I imagine you more or less took it for granted, in fact. But now you are out on your own, and you have discovered that food does not just automatically appear on the table three times a day. At one time your parents fed you; now you must feed yourself.

This is not a perfect example, I realize, but this is what you must do spiritually as well. At one time you took for granted your parents' religious faith. But now it must become your own. You must take the steps that are necessary to appropriate it for yourself.

This is a very important principle. Each of us must come to the point that we make our own commitment to Christ. We cannot depend on the faith of our parents or anyone else; the decision is ours. What does that mean, therefore, for a person to be a Christian? It means that you realize God loves you and that he has done everything possible to bring salvation to you. His Son died on the cross for your sins, and he wants to come into your life and make you his child.

Don't believe in Christ just because your parents believed him — although be grateful for the foundation they gave you. Believe in Christ because the Gospel is true. "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me" (John 14:6). Begin at the beginning by asking Jesus Christ to come into your life, even if you do not understand everything right now. Then get into the Bible and into a church where Christ is proclaimed and feed your spiritual life.

The rise of a KGB hardliner

WASHINGTON — Despite the Kremlin's not-so-subtle disinformation campaign to paint Yuri Andropov as a moderate, or even a liberal, the new boss of the Soviet Union is a hardliner whose elevation means rough times ahead for the long-suffering Russian people and the rest of the world.

Actually, anyone who thinks a man who ran the KGB for 15 years could be a liberal must also believe in the Tooth Fairy. The KGB is a combination of the CIA, the FBI and the Bureau of Prisons — but without any legal restraints whatsoever. The head jailer is now in charge of the entire country.

For years, our intelligence agencies mistakenly thought that no one with a KGB background could hope to rise to the top of the Kremlin heap. At most, they believed, Andropov would have veto power over any would-be successor to Leonid Brezhnev.

As I reported three years ago, the CIA evaluated Andropov's position this way: "Any serious contender for the job of general secretary must ensure that he has the tacit approval of the security organ if not its active support." Within the last year, however, Western intelligence began to rethink its assessment of Andropov's chances. In fact, as early as last May, I reported my intelligence sources' hunch that Andropov would be the one to grab the brass ring on the Kremlin merry-go-round.

The CIA may have been slow to consider the possibility that Andropov would be Brezhnev's successor, but it was never under any illusions about the nature of the beast. In November 1979, sources told my associate Bob Sehrman that Andropov is "an astute, ruthless party bureaucrat whose cold and calculating attitude" fit him well for his job as KGB boss. Any notion that he has softened since then is dangerously wishful thinking.

What this means for Soviet-American relations is that detente is dead. As long as Andropov is in charge at the Kremlin, the United States can expect a tough Soviet policy on all fronts. The man who supervised the crushing of the Hungarian uprising as Soviet ambassador in 1956 can hardly be expected to take a lenient position on Poland or other resistive satellites.

The big question now is how long Andropov will remain in charge. I've seen secret CIA reports on his health; he is far from robust.

At 68, Andropov is a relative stripling by the standards of the Soviet gerontocracy. But he has serious health problems. In 1966, he suffered a heart attack, and in the mid-1970s he required surgery so major that he spent 10 weeks in the hospital, according to the CIA.

Power, as Henry Kissinger fondly believed, may be the ultimate aphrodisiac; it may also be the ultimate tonic. Brezhnev was in frail health for years, yet he never relinquished his grip on the Soviet power apparatus. Andropov can be expected to be every bit as tenacious now that he has reached the pinnacle.

In the Byzantine atmosphere of the Kremlin, no one can relax in the top job. The other old men Andropov beat out will not give up easily.

But Andropov still has the ace in the hole that put him where he is: the loyalty of the KGB. The men who run the Gulag Archipelago now have one of their own in control for the first time in Soviet history, and they're not likely to abdicate their newly enhanced power and prestige.

DRESS RIGHT: Starting Dec. 1, the 110 inspectors in the Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining will be required to wear uniforms, and some of them aren't at all pleased by the gussy-up effort.

One inspector sourly suggested that if the field troops have to wear uniforms, then the director of the office should also be required to. And another filed this complaint with his bosses:

"The OSM inspectors would be similar to Park Rangers chasing the elusive Yogi Bear. We would be likened to zookeepers with whips taming the animals in the cages.

"The next step after uniforms is the issuing of guns to complete the Police Power concept. Instead of issuing a Notice of Violation, a warning shot would be fired. Authorization to fire fatal shots would probably be reserved by Interior Secretary (James) Watt."

One inspector even complained that he was allergic to the $250 polyester uniform. It did him no good; he was issued a cotton one.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: When the Arthritis Foundation took over a two-story building in Atlanta for its new national headquarters, it had to install an elevator to accommodate arthritics who can't negotiate the stairs. What's odd about the lack of an elevator is that the building's previous owner was the Otis Elevator Co. The elevator installed was an Otis.

"Blue Monday" is evidently a well-founded expression. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, more people commit suicide on Monday than on any other day of the week. Saturday has the lowest score in suicides — but the highest in motor-vehicle deaths, 83 percent more than on Tuesday, the lowest day. Saturday is also the day when most murders occur; its average is 74 percent higher than Wednesday, the lowest in that respect.

Dear Abby

Callers trip on language barrier

NOTE: The first letter (signed "Another Miserable Wife") in the Monday, Nov. 8 issue of Dear Abby contained an incorrect zip code in Abby's answer. The correct address at which readers can obtain information about hearing problems is: Hearing, Box 1840, Washington, D.C. 20013 — Not 10013 as was originally sent.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a student nurse in Chicago, I used an effective method of dealing with unwanted attention, whether it came from an obscene phone call, men trying to pick me up in the Loop or panhandlers who hung around the train station. I pretended I couldn't understand English!

No matter what was said to me, I rattled off two sentences I had learned in my high school German class. The ones I used were: "Let's go to the library" and "I would go with you but I don't have my notebooks."

I kept repeating these sentences in a perfect German accent as though I really knew what I was talking about, and I was left alone immediately. This worked with telephone solicitors, people trying to sell me siding, roofing, magazine subscriptions, etc.

The only difficult part was keeping my face straight while delivering this spiel in German. (I heard some unusual comments from people as they hung up or walked away.)

Any high school student who is currently learning a foreign language could teach you a sentence or two for this purpose. So many people speak Spanish today, I think it might be wise to pick some other language. Auf Wiedersehen!

SHERRY IN WATSEKA, ILL.
DEAR SHERRY: Bitte spreche kein Deutsch in Milwaukee (or parts of Pennsylvania) or your little kunst will be kaput!

(Translation: Please don't speak German in Milwaukee — or parts of Pennsylvania — or your little trick will be finished!)

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say something in your column about letter-writing? Some people seem to think that they cannot send a letter to a friend or relative unless it is long, so they put off writing until they have time to write 10 or 12 pages.

I don't know about others, but to me, a short letter now is a lot more appreciated than a long letter later.

DEAR DOTTY: I agree. Most long letters are so long the recipients put off reading them until they have more time.

*******
If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue

Things that go "thud" in the chest

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you explain P.V.C.'s (heart palpitations)? I have them and my doctor says I've had the situation that causes them all my life. I am now 62. They never bothered me until the last few months. I also have high blood pressure and have been taking medication for it. — P.L.D.

Premature ventricular contractions happen to almost everyone sometime or other to some degree. And they are exactly what the name indicates, a heartbeat that occurs before it should — prematurely. After such a premature contraction (beat) there is a slightly prolonged pause before the next normal beat comes. During that tiny pause, the heart chamber has filled with more blood than usual. Then, when the normal beat does come, there's more blood to empty from the chamber. So you feel it as a more forceful pumping — a sudden thud in the chest.

Stimulation from such things as nicotine or caffeine can produce the premature beat, and they do tend to become more frequent as we get older. If they are not markedly frequent (occurring one right after another) and if there are no other signs of heart disease, P.V.C.'s are no cause for alarm.

And, yes, you probably have had the situation all of your life, as your doctor explained. If your doctor has been able to determine that your heart is otherwise normal, this should not worry you. One other thought: You mentioned taking medicine for high blood pressure. Are you taking a diuretic? If so, and if that is lowering your potassium level, that might explain premature beats. So you really should report the situation to the prescribing physician. That is a problem easily overcome with alternation of medicine.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am considering a tubal ligation to prevent future pregnancy. How certain can a woman be that it will work? I have heard of some women becoming pregnant after having the ligation. — Mrs. T.S.

It has been estimated that anywhere between two and six women of every thousand who have the tubal ligation may later become pregnant. In some instances, the woman may already have been in a very early stage of pregnancy at the time the procedure was done. In a smaller number, the tubes may have reopened during the healing process following the surgery.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, send for the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Rainbow girls host dinner

Big Spring Assembly 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, had an appreciation dinner in conjunction with their Thanksgiving Dinner Nov. 9 in the banquet room of the Masonic Temple.

Parents of the girls attended as special guests. Other guests were members of the Eastern Star, Masons and advisory board members who worked with the assembly in the concession stands at the football games.

The tables were decorated with cornucopias overflowing with fruit and vegetables. In the center of the room was a shock of feed and pumpkins.

Following the dinner, the Rainbow assembly held its business meeting with the worthy advisor, Amy Dwire, presiding. Guests included Becky Johnson, grand representative from New Mexico to Texas, Mrs. Jerry Hollowell, grand visitor, and Margaret Hollowell, worth advisor, all from Midland, and Michelle Hendricks, grand representative from Mississippi to Texas, from San Angelo.

The Big Spring Assembly went to Midland Nov. 6 to attend a school of instruction which was conducted by Mrs. Pearl Mills, supreme duty. The school included groups from San Angelo, Brownwood, Abilene, Midland, Odessa, Fort Stockton and Big Spring.

Big Spring reported a collection of 310 bundles of hose to be used in nursing homes, the Big Spring State Hospital, and other places for stuffing pillows, making toys and making quilts and rugs.

Big Spring also reported collecting 4 1/2 pounds of stamps. The stamps are used to aid missionary efforts.

Kim Blount, worthy associate advisor, is charity project chairman. The project is for each girl to adopt a grandparent from Mountain View Lodge to do special things with during the fall and winter.

PTA City Council mulls convention

The Big Spring PTA City Council had their regular monthly meeting Nov. 10 and discussed the state PTA convention which will be held in Fort Worth beginning Sunday and continuing through Tuesday.

Several delegates are to attend the convention to represent Big Spring local PTA units and council. Twenty-two resolutions have been cleared by the Resolutions Committee for consideration by voting delegates at the 1982 state convention. The outcome of the vote in Fort Worth on these resolutions determines what issues the State PTA will support or lobby against in the Texas Legislature and government offices. Resolutions concerning tax free sales for PTA units, raising the legal drinking age, safety programs for "Latch-Key" children and the PTA's non-commercial policy are a few of the subjects which will be discussed.

Local PT units who sponsored Halloween carnivals reported success and said they will be able to continue with other projects.

The PTA City Council voted to endorse the Symphony Guild as a worthwhile organization and commended them on their work. The Symphony Guild is planning a children's concert in January and has asked for help from the PTA.

Members attending the meeting included Superintendent Lynn Hise, principals Jean Wilder, Wendell Ware and M.A. Barber, Christina Lawrence, first vice president, Marcia Rogers, council second vice president, Nelda Reagan, council correspondence secretary, Janet Murley, council hospitality chairman, Janice Mayes, school representative, and Brenda Brown, Vicky LaBarge and Donna Parker.

A battered independence day

Lebanon celebrates its freedom under fire

By KATE DORIAN
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon — Battered by war and occupied by foreign troops, Lebanon celebrated its independence day today. The newly rebuilt Lebanese army led a cheerful parade past thousands of people waving red, white and green Lebanese flags along the line that used to divide the capital.

President Amin Gemayel opened the celebrations with a speech Sunday night vowing to regain control of his country with the help of Western and Arab friends.

Smiling broadly, he reviewed the parade today from a stand a few yards from the line that divided his capital into Moslem and Christian sectors since the 1975-76 civil war until after the Israeli invasion last summer.

The Lebanese army, which now has about 20,000 men and new equipment provided by the United States and France, is re-establishing control over Beirut with the help of 4,000 American, French and Italian peacekeeping troops, it is re-establishing control in Beirut.

Gemayel, a Christian, sat in a cream-colored easy chair, flanked by Moslem Prime Minister Sufi Wazzan and Parliament speaker Kamel Assad, who is also a Moslem. The one-hour and 15-minute parade was part of Gemayel's efforts to promote unity in his patchwork republic of 17 officially recognized religious sects, which are further splintered along political and economic lines.

Lebanese tank crews and other military units marched double-time to the sound of bagpipe music across the "Palace of Peace" horse racetrack, whose grandstand was leveled by Israeli air strikes last August. The troops were followed by sports clubs, Lebanese Red Cross workers and a bicycle club.

Most of the buildings along the parade route were pocked by shells, bullets and rockets from last summer's Israeli siege of the PLO's stronghold in Moslem West Beirut and the preceding seven years of sectarian strife.

Gunmen marred the holiday by storming the main government building in the ancient city of Baalbek on Sunday, tearing down Lebanese national flags. State radio and television blamed the attack on hundreds of Iranian Revolutionary Guards.

No injuries were reported during the six-hour siege.

In his speech marking Lebanon's 39th anniversary of independence from France, Gemayel promised that the bloodied nation would regain full independence on its own terms with Western and Arab support.

"We will not negotiate on the basis of anyone else's security... nor will we give to those through negotiations what they failed to gain through force or war," Gemayel said in his nationwide broadcast on the eve of independence day.

He apparently referred to Israeli terms for withdrawing troops that invaded Lebanon last June to rout the Palestine Liberation Organization following attacks on Israel's northern settlements near the border.

Israeli demands include a permanent military watchpost atop Barouk mountain overlooking the Syrian-occupied Bekaa Valley in eastern Lebanon and the right to patrol Lebanon's airspace and territorial waters.

Lebanon has told U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib it rejects Israel's demands. Gemayel said Lebanon would negotiate "in the manner and level prescribed by our own national interests and dignity."

Gemayel said the "sympathy of friendly Arab states and the cooperation of other friendly countries," including the United States, will help Lebanon.

Communist Party begins filling Politburo vacancies

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW — The Communist Party Central Committee began meeting today to fill vacancies in the ruling Politburo in the last major leadership change likely before a new president is named.

Appointment of a successor to President Leonid I. Brezhnev was believed to be just a few days away. Brezhnev died Nov. 10.

Yuri V. Andropov, Brezhnev's successor as the party's general secretary, is widely believed poised to assume the largely ceremonial presidency and consolidate his grip on power.

But the names of Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, 73, and Brezhnev's protege Konstantin U. Chernenko, 71, also are mentioned as candidates for the job as head of state.

The Central Committee is thought to decide the presidency, even though the task lies constitutionally with the Supreme Soviet, or national Parliament, which opens its session Tuesday.

Brezhnev's death stripped the Politburo of its third top member since the January death of Kremlin ideologist Mikhail Suslov, who was No. 2 man behind the president.

The longtime No. 3 man, Andrei P. Kirilenko, reportedly retired or was ousted late last month. However, there has been no official announcement. Counting Kirilenko as a member, the average age of the Politburo is 70.3 years old.

Soviet sources said it was unclear if the Central Committee would numerically fill all three positions or just two of them when it meets today for the second time in 10 days.

Vladimir I. Dolgikh, 57, and Boris Ponomarev, 77, were considered the top contenders for the Politburo vacancies.

Andropov is said to be grooming Dolgikh, who has a successful background in heavy industry, to replace Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov, 77, and a Brezhnev protege.

Dolgikh is a non-voting Politburo member, a member of its Secretariat and chief of the Central Committee's heavy industry department.

Ponomarev is expected to be moved from candidate to full Politburo membership to assume the Politburo ideology portfolio, which Andropov had been handling before he was named general secretary. Suslov had it before him.

NFL returns: 'Pokes win re-opener

THE END OF NINE — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett (33) gets pulled down by Tampa Bay Buccaneers defensive back Cedric Brown after a 9-yard gain during third quarter action Sunday in Texas Stadium. The Cowboys defeated the Bucs 14-9.

IRVING, Texas (AP) — They were booed. They were outplayed. But the National Football League strike couldn't change one thing — they were still the Dallas Cowboys in the crunch.

Thanks to player representative Robert Newhouse's three-yard touchdown run on his only carry of the game, the Cowboys survived the bruising Tampa Buccaneers 14-9 Sunday before a paltry turnout of 49,578 fans with 13,439 no-shows.

It was the first time in 45 games Dallas didn't play before a sold-out house and the smallest since 1975.

Winless Tampa Bay, 0-3, beat Dallas, 2-1, in every department but the scoreboard.

The Bucs got more first downs, 21-13; rushing yards, 135-78; and passing yards, 247-107. The time of possession was 35:50 to 24:10, Tampa Bay.

But Tampa Bay drove into scoring position five times, settling for three field goals by Bill Capece and a critical miss and a fumble near the goal line.

The boos? Quarterback Danny White was heavily booed twice in the first half when the rusty Cowboys' offensive machine sputtered and stalled.

A 9-yard touchdown pass from White to Drew Pearson and Newhouse's tackle-breaking run up the middle in the third period turned the razberries to cheers.

"I think Tom Landry does a great job with his team, but they're not that more talented than us," said Tampa Bay Coach John McKay. "We moved the ball well and had our chances to win but couldn't get it into the end zone."

Tampa Bay linebacker Andy Hawkins said, "I don't think we could have played any better... I think it was the best game we played in three years."

And the Bucs still lost. Capece kicked field goals of 26, 27, and 26 yards but missed a 24-yarder that would have narrowed the score to 14-12 in the fourth quarter.

As it was, Tampa Bay was deep in Dallas territory in field goal position when the game ended. In fact, tight end Jimmie Giles caught a pass over the middle and fumbled it away to safety Mike Downs at the Dallas four at the final gun.

"It was important for us to win," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "If we had lost, and then had to practice Monday for the Thanksgiving Day game with Cleveland it would have been a difficult emotional test."

It was a remarkably injury-free game, considering it had been more than 57 days since the players had any contact.

On the Tampa Bay side, center Steve Wilson sprained an ankle.

For Dallas, the list was a little more lengthy. Defensive tackle John Dutton and end Harvey Martin bruised shoulders, defensive back Monty Hunter bruised a leg, and running back Tony Dorsett twisted a foot.

Dutton was the only player to leave the game and not return.

Reserve fullback Newhouse's touchdown run was a popular item with the Dallas players, who mobbed him after the score which put the Cowboys ahead to stay.

Wide receiver Butch Johnson said, "We wanted him to score to show the people who were coming down on Robert that we support him and the union."

Newhouse said, "It was a great feeling to score... the strike took a lot out of me."

Tampa Bay quarterback pierced the Dallas secondary for 258 yards by completing 23 of 42 passes but couldn't get the Bucs into the end zone.

"We did a pretty good job until we got inside the 20," said Williams. "But Dallas got it in and we didn't when it counted."

NFL Roundup

Mistakes, injuries... fans few

The mistakes were few, the injuries were few... and the fans were, too.

From Commissioner Pete Rozelle on down, the National Football League was worried that when the strike finally came to an end, the play would not be NFL calibre, that weeks of inactivity followed by limited preparation time would lead to injuries both numerous and serious and that the fans would turn away from the game.

On Sunday, after eight Sundays without the NFL, after a strike which lasted 57 days and reduced the season to a nine-game horse race to a 16-game playoff field, the game returned — in midseason form.

Most coaches and players agreed that the play on the field, if a bit rusty, was respectable, and, as it should be, entertaining.

And no more than the usual number of players hobbled off the field with the usual bumps, bruises, pulls and the like.

But, empty seats greeted the players, an indication of the fans' alienation of affection for what has become arguably the most popular and undeniably the most profitable of pro team sports.

Falcons 34, Rams 17
Steve Bartkowski of the Falcons hit 19 of 24 passes for 213 yards, including a 47-yard TD toss to Alford Jenkins. Andrews, who scored on a 19-yard run in the fourth quarter, gained 119 yards on 21 carries and 88 yards on eight receptions.

Bears 21, Cardinals 20
Super Bowl hero Joe Montana, victimized by his own fumble and interception that helped the Cardinals to the early lead, unleashed scoring passes of 6 yards to Russ Francis, 33 yards to Dwight Clark and 17 yards to Earl Cooper to wipe out St. Louis' 13-10 lead built on field goals following each of Montana's turnovers.

Jets 37, Colts 0
Freeman McNeil carried for 123 yards and scored two touchdowns, one of them on one of Richard Todd's two TD passes, as Baltimore — like the Rams — fell to 0-3. McNeil became the first back in Jets' history to rush for more than 100 yards in three consecutive games.

Redskins 27, Giants 17
Joe Theismann threw for first-half touchdowns of 1 yard to Otis Womley and 39 yards to Charlie Brown as Washington built a 21-3 halftime lead and fended off a late rally by the Giants.

Browns 10, Patriots 7
A driving rain washed away the coaches' chances to assess with great accuracy the performances of the Patriots and Browns in Cleveland.

Matt Bahr kicked a game-winning 24-yard field goal for Cleveland as time ran out.

Dolphins 9, Bills 7
Uwe Von Schamann's third field goal of the game, a 21-yarder with 1:51 gone in the final period, kept Miami unbeaten and dropped the Bills to 2-1. Von Schamann also kicked field goals of 42 and 29 yards in the second quarter.

Saints 27, Chiefs 17
Quarterback Ken Stabler, the NFL's most accurate passer, completed 13 of 18 passes for 126 yards and a touchdown in the Saints' upset of Kansas City. New Orleans also got TDs on a 15-yard pass from Guido Merkens to Wayne Wilson on a fake field goal and on a 1-yard run by George Rogers.

Steelers 24, Oilers 10
Terry Bradshaw threw for three TDs as the Steelers remained tied with Miami atop the American Conference at 3-0.

Bradshaw connected with Greg Hawthorne and Bennie Cunningham for 17-yard TDs, then found Jim Smith with a 27-yarder.

Bears 20, Lions 17
Rookie quarterback Jim McMahon, burned by an early Ray Oldham interception which helped the Lions build a 14-3 lead, rebounded with TD strikes of 11 yards to Ken Margerum and 28 yards to Emery Moorehead, then John Roveto's 18-yard field goal with five seconds left gave the Bears their victory.

Bengals 18, Eagles 14
Three field goals by Jim Breech and linebacker Reggie Williams' sack of Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski for a safety enabled the Bengals to build an 11-0 lead. Then Ken Anderson threw a 2-yard TD to Dan Ross before Philadelphia staged a belated comeback.

Packers 26, Vikings 7
Eddie Lee Ivey caught two Lynn Dickey touchdown passes, one a 5-yarder on a deflection off the hands of Green Bay fullback Gerry Ellis, as the Packers routed the Vikings.

Seahawks 17, Broncos 10
Jim Zorn threw a 34-yard pass to Steve Largent with 49 seconds remaining to give the Seahawks their victory over Denver.

NFL fans: thrill is gone

(AP) — In East Rutherford, N.J., John Cancellieri stood outside Giants Stadium trying to unload his tickets to the Giant-Redskin game. "The thrill is gone," he said. Outside Atlanta Stadium, the scalpers were trying to unload $13 tickets for $2. There were few takers.

The nation's football fans, who went eight weeks without the National Football League, sent the NFL a message Sunday: they can still do without it.

There were 115,386 no-shows at the day's 13 games and a total of 204,575 empty seats, meaning that the league played to about three-quarters of capacity. On the first weekend of the season, Sept. 12, there were 32,373 no-shows, and last year, the league played to nearly 94 percent of capacity.

Many of the fans who did show up were bitter about the 57-day strike, which left the league with a nine-game season and an expanded 16-team playoff format.

"The season is short, it's not the same," said Greg Mees of Sandusky, Ohio, who was at the Browns-Patriots game on his uncle's season ticket. "But I'm glad to see a football game."

"They wanted 55 percent of the gross; they're not worth five percent," Dick Winn, a Philadelphia Eagle season ticket holder for 23 years, said of the players. He left Veterans Stadium in the third quarter of the game between the Eagles and the Cincinnati Bengals and said he wasn't sure he'd be back again this year.

"We wouldn't be here today if we didn't have free tickets," said Dennis Dover, who was at the Houston Astrodome with his wife Connie to watch the Oilers lose to the Pittsburgh Steelers. Another Oiler fan, Nat Messer, said: "Personally, I would have liked the owners to have shut them down and cut them loose, not let any of the veterans play and sign all new players next year."

But other fans felt that once the anger abated, it would be business as usual. "I think people will complain, but they'll forget about it," said Ray Tinter of Cleveland. "I'm a football fan," said Frank Odum of Atlanta, a Falcon season ticket holder. "I think the people like me will keep coming to the games no matter what."

College bowl picture clears some

CAL'S WINNING TOUCHDOWN — Cal's Keyin Moen (26) leaps into the air after scoring Cal's winning touchdown with no time remaining to give Cal a 25-20 win over Stanford in Berkeley Saturday. Moen weaved his way through hundreds of people, including the Stanford band members who are running to get out of his way, to score the winning touchdown.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

While 23 schools accepted bowl bids and Notre Dame used the time-honored way of losing one — an upset loss — Stanford, annually one of college football's most paradoxical teams, found a unique way to stay home for the holidays.

It wasn't easy, but Stanford rarely does things the easy way. It took one of the strangest plays in history, plus the assistance of the Stanford band, for California to beat the Cardinals 25-20 after time had expired.

John Elway passed for 330 yards and two touchdowns, while Mark Harmon kicked two field goals, including a 35-yarder with four seconds left that put Stanford on top 20-19 and apparently into the Hall of Fame Bowl against Vanderbilt.

But hold the phone. Also, the trumpets, trombones, cymbals and drums.

Cal's Kevin Moen fielded Harmon's short kickoff at his own 45-yard line and began a bizarre series of laterals and pitchbacks that made it resemble a rugby contest. Richard Rodgers handled the ball twice before Moen got it back on the fifth and final lateral and weaved his way the final 25 yards or so through Stanford band members, cheerleaders and fans who thought the play had been whistled dead and the game ended.

"I didn't see what happened," said Joe Kapp, who led the Golden Bears to a 7-4 record in his first year as a coach at any level. "It doesn't matter. It counted for 6 and we won. The Bear just would not quit. The Bear would not die."

It mattered a lot to Stanford, which wound up 5-6 and out of the bowl picture.

Notre Dame, the nation's 18th-ranked team, was not beaten by a fluke play. The Irish, who could have gone to the Bluebonnet Bowl, were trounced by Air Force 30-17, which then replaced Stanford in the Hall of Fame Bowl. Four other members of the Top Twenty were beaten — two of them by other ranked teams — the biggest shocker Washington State's 24-20 upset of No. 5 Washington that knocked the heavily favored Huskies out of the Rose Bowl.

Elsewhere, No. 12 LSU swamped seventh-ranked Florida State 55-21 and won an Orange Bowl bid, while FSU settled for the Gator Bowl; No. 11 UCLA kept its Rose Bowl hopes alive by edging No. 15 Southern California 20-19; Ohio State stunned No. 13 Michigan's Rose Bowl-bound Big Ten champs 24-14 and second-ranked Southern Methodist had its perfect season ended in a 17-17 tie with No. 9 Arkansas that nevertheless gave SMU its second straight Southwest Conference crown and a Cotton Bowl berth, while sending the Razorbacks to the Bluebonnet Bowl.

While the Rose and Bluebonnet were suffering through lost weekends, the Sugar Bowl lined up a possible national championship showdown between Georgia and Penn State. They were first and third in last week's Associated Press poll and could be 1-2 this week thanks to SMU's tie.

The bowl lineup looks like this:

Sugar, Georgia-Penn State; Cotton, SMU-Pitt; Orange, Winner of Friday's Nebraska-Oklahoma game vs. LSU; Fiesta, Washington or Arizona State vs. Nebraska-Oklahoma loser; Gator, Florida State-West Virginia; Rose, Arizona State or UCLA vs. Michigan; Bluebonnet, Arkansas-Florida; Aloha, UCLA or Washington vs. Maryland; Sun, Texas-North Carolina; Holiday, Brigham Young-Ohio State; Liberty, Alabama-Illinois; Tangerine, Auburn-Boston College; Hall of Fame, Vanderbilt-Air Force; Peach, Iowa-Tennessee; Independence, Kansas State-Wisconsin; California, Fresno State-Bowling Green.

SMU salvaged a tie with Arkansas when Lance McIlhenny's 2-yard run with 2:51 remaining capped an 80-yard drive that was aided by a controversial pass interference call against Nathan Jones of the Razorbacks, moving the ball from SMU's 43 to the Arkansas 17.

The deadlock snapped the nation's longest winning streak at 14 games.

Washington had a 10-0 lead over Washington State before the Cougars rallied on James Matthews' 3-yard touchdown run, Cleve Casper's 6-yard pass to Mike Peterson, Tim Harris' 7-yard run and John Traut's 37-yard field goal with one minute remaining. Traut's three-pointer came shortly after Washington's Chuck Nelson missed a 32-yarder, breaking his NCAA record string of 30 in a row.

Dan Marino passed for three touchdowns and 252 yards in less than three quarters as No. 6 Pitt swamped Rutgers 52-6.

LSU won the Orange Bowl sweepstakes by routing Florida State as freshman Dalton Hilliard ran for touchdowns of 2, 1 and 28 yards after catching a 46-yard pass from Alan Risher to start the scoring. Hilliard thus set an NCAA freshman record of 16 touchdowns.

Clemson, the defending national champion, won't go bowling this year, apparently because of an impending probation. The 10th-ranked Tigers boosted their record to 8-1-1 by defeating South Carolina as Cliff Austin ran for TDs of 9 and 2 yards.

WHERE'S THE BALL — Kansas City Kings forward Eddie Johnson (8) has the ball stripped from his hands by Dallas Mavericks Jay Vincent (31) during first half NBA action Saturday night in Dallas. The ball was chased out of bounds and the Mavericks were awarded the ball by the referee.

Sonics' luck catches up

All the good things that happened to the Seattle SuperSonics during their 12-game winning streak finally caught up with them.

The Sonics, whose 12-0 start was the third best in National Basketball Association history, were drubbed 111-91 by the New Jersey Nets on Sunday night to end the streak three games short of the league record.

"You hate to have a game like this on your home court," Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkins said. "We didn't play well. We didn't shoot the ball well. We didn't play loose."

"Seattle's a great team but had one of those nights where nothing went well," New Jersey Coach Larry Brown said.

The best starts for an NBA team were 15-0 by the Washington Capitals in 1948 and 14-0 by the Boston Celtics in 1957.

some confusion and forced them into some very tough shots."

Blazers 129, Cavaliers 79

Portland registered the most lopsided victory in history in the romp over Cleveland as Jim Paxson scored 23 points and Darnell Valentine added 18 points, six assists and six steals.

The Blazers bested their previous biggest margin of 47 points against the New York Knicks in 1972 and for a while threatened the overall NBA mark of 63 points as they led the Cavaliers by as many as 59. The worst defeat ever was 162-99 by Los Angeles over Golden State in 1972.

Lakers 113, Nuggets 129

Los Angeles won easily although Denver tied an NBA record by scoring 100 points or more for the 129th consecutive game.

Jamaal Wilkes scored 13 of his 29 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Lakers, who never trailed in the game and led by as many as 25 points in the first half.

The Nuggets, who got 45 points from Alex English and 31 from Kiki Vandeweghe, trimmed the deficit to 104-98 in the third period and 124-118 in the fourth quarter, but the Lakers pulled away again each time.

Bucks 109, Pacers 98

Marques Johnson scored 29 points and Steve Mix added 20 after hitting his first seven shots as Milwaukee coasted to victory over Indiana.

The Bucks led by 31 points with eight minutes left in the game, but reserves scored only four points the rest of the way as the Pacers made the final score respectable.

Butch Carter led Indiana with 20 points.

NBA

In other NBA games, Milwaukee defeated Indiana 109-98, Portland embarrassed Cleveland 129-79 and Los Angeles outscored Denver 143-129.

Forward Buck Williams led all scorers with 23 points for the Nets while hitting 10 of 11 from the field. The man Williams guarded, Lonnie Shelton, was two for eight from the field, while Sonics guard David Thompson was one for 10 and center Jack Sikma three for 14.

Williams, rookie of the year in the NBA last season, said he learned something playing against Shelton a year ago. "Last year I played his game, pushing and shoving, and that got me into trouble," Williams said. "I outsmarted him. I played my own game and it worked."

Guard Otis Birdsong added 18 points for the Nets and stopped Thompson defensively.

"David just had an off night," Birdsong said. "They didn't go to him early and that threw him off. Larry Brown knows him well and gave me some pointers before the game. David has an incredible first step and that's what you have to watch out for."

Birdsong said the Nets weren't worried about the Sonics' streak.

"We were worried about our own," he said of the Nets' four-game skid. "I thought our defense caused them

A Public Service Announcement about over-the-counter medicines.

from
Dr. Arthur H. Hayes
Commissioner,
U.S. Food & Drug Administration

In recent days, we've all been shocked by criminal tampering with the medicines on our store shelves. Innocent products like Tylenol — products that are intended to help — have been used to hurt.

Government and industry are working together to provide packaging to lessen the chances that this sort of thing will happen again — either to the people of Chicago or to people anywhere in the country.

But we can't guarantee protection against everything that a sick mind might think of. You must help. When you buy medicines — or any product — be sure boxes are not opened or damaged. Look at seals or wrappings to make certain they're not torn. And, when you get home, check the product inside the package for signs of tampering. And alert your children to this problem, too.

We don't have to do without any of the medicines that make our lives more comfortable. But we can use a little extra care. That's a good rule anytime.

Presented as a public service by the Food and Drug Administration.
