ARB certifies school district tax rolls

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Despite reservations about equality of values, the Howard County Appraisal Review Board today approved a certified tax roll for the county's three school districts. The information on the six other taxing entities is not completed yet, according to Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira.

The ARB will meet again to certify those, ARB Chairman Jimmy Ray Smith said.

With the certification of the school districts' rolls, an effective tax rate will be calculated for each entity by the district's tax assessor. Public hearings will be held if a governing body increases the tax rate more than three percent over the effective rate.

Smith, Gerald Harris, J.M. Sterling, D.A. Brazell, Jack Shaffer and Larry Pick met with Pereira in the commissioners' courtroom. Pereira told the ARB his office "did not want the school districts to wait" as the reason for completing the school districts first. Brazell added Big Spring ISD only had funds through mid-December.

Sterling pointed out his disapproval with the real property appraisal and the mineral value appraisal. "To me, there isn't any equality in this thing," Sterling said. "Our problem is equality... but we don't have the actual values."

Pereira said the appraisal office made good real property appraisals — a statement disputed by Sterling. "This appraisal is a joke," Sterling said. "I don't think there's any justification to approve this thing."

Shaffer disagreed with Sterling about the quality of the appraisal. "All I had heard was bad, bad appraisals before getting on the board," Shaffer said. Once on the ARB, Shaffer said he felt the appraisers "generally did a good job."

The ARB members were in agreement with their dissatisfaction with the mineral evaluations done by the Odessa appraisal firm of Pritchard and Abbott. Brazell pointed out the board had expressed that disapproval in its certification of the mineral values Nov. 15th.

"How are we going to resolve it?"

Reagan raps USSR arms policy

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Lifting the lid on secret arms control talks, President Reagan is accusing the Soviet Union of turning its back on his proposal to eliminate nuclear weapons from Europe.

In a report to the nation Monday night, Reagan sharply criticized the stance taken by Soviet negotiators, saying they had "shown little inclination" to reach an agreement.

But he also appealed to the Soviets to join in adopting measures to reduce the risk of nuclear war by accident or misunderstanding.

The central theme, however, was that the Soviets would react U.S. arms control proposals "unless we demonstrate the will to rebuild our strength and reduce the military balance."

The speech, which followed by a few hours an announcement that new MX missiles would be deployed in Wyoming, offered nothing dramatically new to curb the nuclear arms race.

In its first reaction, the Soviet Union sharply condemned deployment of the MX missiles.

Calling it a "new dangerous step" in preparation for nuclear war, the official Soviet news agency Tass said the plan would upset the "rough strategic parity" between the two countries by giving the United States an additional 1,000 nuclear heads.

The president, who accused the Kremlin of bad faith in arms control negotiations, focused his criticism on the SS-20 missile, calling it the most threatening of the Soviet nuclear forces.

"Although the Soviet leaders earlier this year declared they had frozen deployment of this dangerous missile," Reagan said, "they have in fact continued deployment."

He said the Soviets are adding a three-headed missile to their SS-20 arsenal each week, and now have 600 targeted on Western Europe, the Middle East and Europe while the United States has none aimed at the Soviet Union.

"The bar has gone through the roof," Reagan told his television audience while a graphics display flashed on TV screens across the land. A thick red line marked the Soviet buildup while U.S. blue remained at zero.

A year ago, Reagan offered his "zero-option" plan. Under it, the United States and its NATO allies would shelve the scheduled deployment of 572 Pershing II and cruise missiles in West Germany, Britain and Italy if the Soviets would scuttle their

Rate still remains below state, national averages

Local October unemployment rate up

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

For the first time in three months the Big Spring unemployment rate rose, according to local Texas Employment Commission office figures.

"The preliminary figures for October showed the rate to be 6.3 percent with 15,879 in the labor force with 1,008 people unemployed, however, 14,871 people had a job," said Gerald Damm, manager of the Big Spring TEC office.

Final figures for September showed the jobless rate at 5.4 percent which made for nine-tenths of a percent increase in October. September figures also showed 15,709 people in the labor force with 14,850 of those employed.

The overall economic slowdown and recession that has plagued most of the country is still to blame.

"Hopefully, the economy will be picking up soon. We've seen some oilfield activity beginning and we hope that will be reflected in the November figures," Damm said.

Damm also said cotton ginning season has created jobs that will help to lower next month's unemployment figures.

Big Spring, as it's trend has been for several months, is still below the October state and national averages of 8 percent and 10.4 percent respectively, according to Damm.

"Our job opening listings have been way down and if anybody has got any openings just give us a call," Damm said. "We've got good people out of work, these aren't just transients, these people have worked in Howard County for some time and it's their first experience without a job."

"They've been able to find work before, but with the things the way they are now, they're finding it tougher to find jobs, so we'd like to know about any jobs that are around."

Shaffer Ambulance seeking increase in service rates

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners approved, with conditions, a 22 percent increase in the cost of ambulance service for the county. The commissioners met in special session Monday.

Commissioners approved the measure only if funds are available (the county is still waiting for a tax roll), and if the city approves the increase for their part.

Shaffer Ambulance Service proposed a three-year joint contract with the county and the city at an additional monthly cost of $500 for the county and $1,000 for the city. This would raise the county's monthly subsidy to $2,000 and the city's to $4,000. Elliot Mitchell, the attorney representing the company, told the commissioners the increase is needed for several reasons.

"The increase in funding is needed to maintain the level of service in the county," Mitchell said, and to add new services. An advanced life support system, while more costly, is to be added to reduce deaths from heart attacks and major trauma, according to the company's proposal.

The company also proposes to increase its visibility in the community to aid in health awareness, Mitchell said. In addition, the company plans to purchase two new ambulances next year to replace aging vehicles. Mitchell said all five of the present ambulances have more than 140,000 miles each.

would d salary hikes and paramedic training for employees were also mentioned by Mitchell as explanation for the increased funding.

John Korell, president of Shaffer Ambulance, told the commissioners the service presently had a response time of three minutes within the city and 25 minutes to any place in the county.

In other action, commissioners learned the county's health and dental insurance, under Blue Cross Blue Shield, would cost more next year. According to a Blue Cross representative, the increase would be an extra $10.95 for each dependent carried on the health policy. An additional $2.79 would be added for each dependent on the dental policy.

Reagan

Euromissiles arsenal. The arms control negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland have been conducted in strict secrecy. But to make his point, the president lifted the veil a little and accused the Soviets of foot-dragging. "The Soviet Union thus far has shown little inclination to take this major step to zero levels," he said.

He also urged action at the negotiating table on his proposed treaty to cut by one-third the current total of U.S. and Soviet intercontinental ballistic missile warheads.

"Our proposals would eliminate some 4,700 warheads and some 2,250 missiles," Reagan said. "I think that would be quite a service to mankind."

In his appeal to the Soviets, Reagan suggested measures the superpowers could adopt to cut down the possibility of nuclear war by accident or misunderstanding.

These included advance notification of all U.S. and Soviet test launches of intercontinental ballistic missiles and improving the emergency "hotline" teleprinter between Washington and Moscow. And he offered the Soviets unspecified basic information about U.S. nuclear forces "in order to clear away some of the mutual ignorance and suspicion between our two countries."

"It still takes weapons to prevent war," Reagan said of his decision to launch 100 MX missiles which he rechristened "Peacekeepers" — within 20 square miles near Francis E. Warren Air Force Base in southeast Wyoming.

But he hinted the plan, which will not be operational until 1986, may be used as a bargaining chip in the Geneva talks. "The United States wants deep cuts in the world's arsenal of weapons," Reagan said.

"Let us reaffirm America's destiny of goodness and goodwill," Reagan said in a brief Thanksgiving message at the end of his speech. "Let us work for peace."

The long-awaited MX decision faces a doubtful future in Congress.

"Probably he's going to have one of his greatest legislative battles," said Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a close friend of the president and an MX supporter.

The last Congress, in an authorization measure paving the way for defense appropriations, barred the administration from spending any money to buy or base MX missiles until 30 working days after the president's decision.

Because the post-election session is not expected to go beyond Dec. 18, this would give the new Congress, with increased Democratic strength in the House, a chance to pass anti dense pack legislation.

Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., said the Wyoming congressional delegation would conduct field hearings "to study all the possible impacts" on the state's environment, society, and economy.

Simpson said he had "some ambivalence" about the president's decision. Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., said the MX "is not the sort of thing you seek for your state."

Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., said: "We did not lobby for the MX."

All three lawmakers said, however, they would support deployment of the missile system in their state if it is acceptable at the field hearings.

Harrelson explains federal evidence in Wood slaying

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO — Charles Harrelson says he can explain away all the testimony and evidence prosecutors presented to show he killed U.S. District Judge John H. Wood for a briefcase full of $100 bills. The money, he testified Monday, was simply the result of his life-long friend George Edward "Pete" Kay seizing the opportunity to give Harrelson credit for the assassination in a scheme to bilk high-rolling narcotics kingpin Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra out of his money. It was simply coincidence, he said, that his wife's car was parked at the airport in San Antonio on the day before Wood was killed and two weeks earlier was parked at the airport in Midland where prosecutors allege Harrelson was stalking Wood. He said he had never seen lawyer Chrys Lambros or taxi driver Wesley Coddington, two witnesses who testified they saw him in San Antonio hours before Wood's death. Harrelson is accused of killing Wood on May 29, 1979, for a $250,000 payoff from Chagra, who now serving a 30-year no-parole federal narcotics sentence. Prosecutors contend Chagra paid Harrelson to kill Wood because he feared the judge, nicknamed "Maximum John" because of the stiff sentences he gave drug offenders, would sentence him to life in prison. Harrelson is on trial with his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, and with Chagra's wife, Elizabeth. Mrs. Harrelson, 41, is charged with conspiring to obstruct justice. Mrs. Chagra, 28, is accused of conspiring to kill Wood and to obstruct justice. Chagra, 39, will be tried later for murder. Kay "told me that Jimmy had so much money he didn't count it — he weighed it," Harrelson told the jury Monday. "Reports were coming back to Texas how much money he was blowing and how everybody was tricking him out of his money." Harrelson described himself as one of the best "card mechanics" in the world and said he went to Las Vegas in April 1979 to cheat Chagra either at gambling or with a phony drug scam. He said it was not until after he appeared before a federal grand jury in October of 1979 and denied killing Wood that Kay told him he had claimed credit for the assassination as part of scheme to cheat Chagra out of money. Harrelson was convicted and imprisoned for 10 years for the contract killing of a Texas grain dealer and he said Kay used that conviction to convince Chagra Harrelson also had killed Wood. Harrelson said he believed the stacks of $100 bills he received from Chagra was the payment on a phony narcotics deal until Kay told him the real purpose of the money was to pay for a murder contract on Henry Wallace, the key prosecution witness in Chagra's pending drug trial. "I really couldn't believe Pete was really saying this to me," Harrelson testified. "I told him I didn't think I wanted to have anything to do with it." He said when he asked Kay why anyone thought he would kill Wallace, and Kay then told him for the first time that he told Chagra that Harrelson had killed Wood. "I saw a chance to do something to get in his pocket, so I told him (Chagra) that it was you (Harrelson) who killed Judge Wood," Harrelson quoted Kay as saying five months after Wood was killed. Joseph Chagra, who pleaded guilty to conspiring to kill Wood, testified earlier that his brother, Jimmy, was a "braggart and bombastic liar" who put a price on Wood's head while throwing hundreds of thousands of dollars around on Las Vegas card and dice tables in the spring of 1979. Joseph Chagra said both his brother and Harrelson had admitted to him their participation in the plot to kill Wood. But in tapes of conversations between the brothers at the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary, both said more than a year after the killing they were not actually sure Harrelson fired the fatal shot. Harrelson said his wife's car was in the Midland and San Antonio airport parking lots because he had loaned it to Kay in Midland and Kay drove it to San Antonio and left it at the airport. He said he flew to San Antonio and drove the car back to Dallas on the day before Wood was killed.

In other insurance business, commissioners decided to allow representatives of National Family Care Life Insurance Company to speak with county employees about extra cancer and heart attack insurance. County Treasurer Bonnie Franklin told the commissioners the county should consider placing the sheriff's office's volunteers under workman's compensation coverage. She estimated the cost at $881.15 for the Commissioners decided to place a maximum of six volunteers under workman's compensation in the sheriff's office. Commissioners also learned Western Marketing, the Conoco distributorship in Abilene, was going out of business before January. The county has a contract through April, 1983 for gasoline, lubrication oil and hydraulic oil with the company. New bids, only until April, were to be solicited from various companies, the

Cold front brings storms, colder days

By The Associated Press
A cold front blew into Texas early today, stirring up heavy thunderstorms ahead of its debut and dropping temperatures in its wake. Heavy thunderstorms drenched portions of North Central and Northeast Texas before dawn. A tornado touched down in the small Northeast Texas town of Bells about 4:30 p.m. Monday, but caused no damage, according to the Grayson County sheriff's office. The National Weather Service reported the twister caused some damage to barns. "We were told that there is some damage but we can't find any," said sheriff's dispatcher Scott Whitney. Skies over the rest of the state were generally cloudy with freezing drizzle reported in the northern portion of the Panhandle behind the front. Fog, drizzle and low clouds were noted ahead of the front in South and East Texas. Temperatures before dawn ranged from the 20s in the Panhandle behind the front to the 70s along the coastal sections. Winds behind the frontal system were northerly at 15 to 25 mph and southerly at five to 15 mph in advance of the front. The forecast called for much colder temperatures statewide by tonight. Showers and thundershowers were expected over South and East Texas and light rain and drizzle was possible behind the front. Some light rain, possibly mixed with snow, was forecast for the Panhandle.

Hard rain, wind and hail fell on parts of the central Mississippi Valley early today, while showers spread from the Great Lakes to the Northeast. Thunderstorms brought large hail, high winds and heavy rain across Arkansas and southern Missouri, while snow hit parts of Nebraska, with between 2 and 3 inches of new snow reported at Kimball. Showers stretched from the upper Ohio Valley and lower Great Lakes to northern New England, while overcast skies hung over much of the rest of the Northeast. Fair skies prevailed in the Southeast, and dense fog shrouded the southern Appalachians, and rain fell on northern Mississippi. Rain was forecast for later today across California and northern Arizona, turning to snow in the higher elevations, including as far east as the central Rockies.

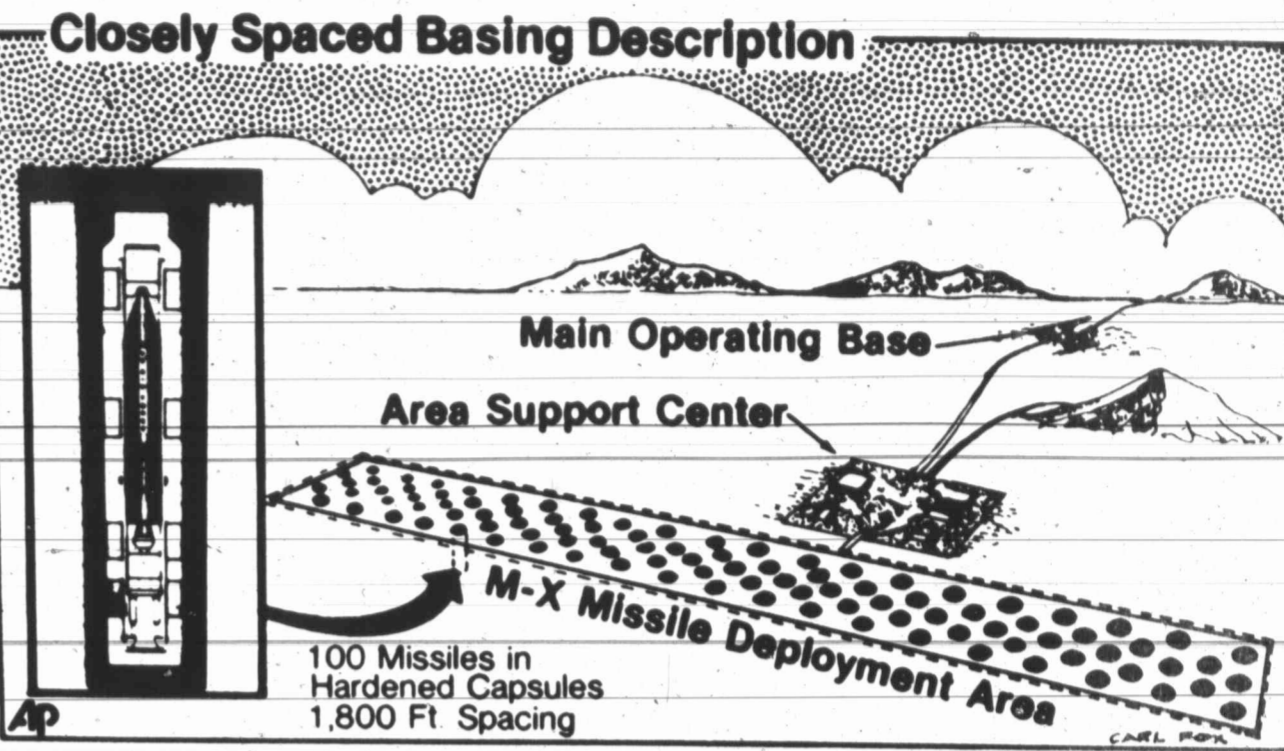

FORECAST
West Texas - Scattered light rain possibly mixed with snow today and spreading to the south tonight and Wednesday. Colder today and tonight. Highs 38 north to 68 Big Bend. Lows 25 north to 38 south. Highs Wednesday in the 40s.

EXTENDED FORECAST
West Texas - Cloudy and continued cold. A chance of rain extreme southwest. Lows in the mid 20s in the Panhandle to the mid 30s extreme south. Highs in the upper 40s in the Panhandle to the low 60s in the Big Bend valleys.

'We've lived under the gun'

Wyoming residents say they're not bothered by MX basing

By ROCH THORNTON
Associated Press Writer
CHEYENNE, Wyo. — This prairie town has been next door to a military target for almost 25 years, so residents are taking in stride the prospect of MX missiles joining the neighborhood. "We've always lived under the gun," said Mrs. Robert Gerard, whose husband is retired from the Air Force. She called President Reagan's proposal Monday to base MX missiles in Wyoming "not that startling." On the outskirts of this town of 47,000 is Francis E. Warren Air Force Base, which got its first intercontinental missiles in 1958. It now commands 200 Minuteman III missiles scattered in silos in Wyoming, Nebraska and Colorado. "I suspect we're a targeted area already whether we have the MX or not," said Gov. Ed Herschler, whose official residence lies within a stone's throw of the air base. The Democrat said he supports the proposal, but called it a mixed blessing, something like "a teen-age daughter coming home at 3 a.m. with a Gideon Bible under her arm." Reagan's plan, announced Monday, calls for 100 MX missiles to be located in Wyoming using a "dense pack" of missiles installed in superhardened silos 1,800 to 2,000 feet apart. The Minuteman III silos are separated by at least several miles. Support isn't universal. Sister Francis Russell, a leader of a regional anti-MX group, said she doesn't want southeastern Wyoming to become a strategic Soviet target and promised "a vigorous program of grass-roots education" in an effort to block its deployment. She is a spokeswoman for the Tri-State Coalition Against MX. State Rep. William Edwards, D-Cheyenne, said he is opposed "mainly because I don't have enough information to make a positive decision. Also, I feel that we may not need the MX anywhere." Edwards said the MX may cost much more than the current estimate of $26 billion and use more than the anticipated 20 square miles of land. "To those who say, 'We have the Minuteman so it doesn't make any difference if we get the MX,' I'd have to say from the economic standpoint that it makes a lot of difference," Edwards said. "We will have a $200 billion deficit in the next couple of years and my concern is that the Soviet Union could bury us in a weapons race," he added. High school history teacher Sydney Spiegel said all land-based missile systems are vulnerable to pre-emptive attack and the MX would be no exception. He is a member of the Cheyenne-based Wyoming Against the MX which opposes land basing of the MX. Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm said he hopes that Congress kills the proposal before it "imposes making Wyoming, and thus Colorado, the central target in the United States." Rancher Paul Etchepare, who owns much of the land where the MX would be based, said he supports the proposal. He said many ranchers already conduct their operations around Minuteman silos and share his sentiments. "I have absolute faith in our president," he said. Republican Sen. Alan Simpson said he supports the president's decision, saying national security is "an overriding concern."

CLOSE PACK INSTALLATION — This illustration shows the deployment of the MX missile in a close pack configuration which was recommended by the

Air Force. President Reagan in his address to the nation Monday, announced that he had accepted the recommendation.

Added GOP Rep. Dick Cheney, "I have no strong objections to putting the system in Wyoming if that is what makes the most sense from the standpoint of national security." Lt. Col. Tom Holycross, of the Office of Special Assistant for MX, said the site was picked because of the depth of water and rocks in the area, the existing missile command and the shorter range to potential targets. Bruce Hamilton of the Sierra Club said his group opposes the MX for "environmental, social and economic reasons," contending it would affect present land use, water users and communities. But Bill Budd, Cheyenne Chamber of Commerce president, said a poll of his members last week showed 75 percent favored bringing the MX to Wyoming.

Judge sets hearing in Houston on ex-CIA agent's return to U.S.

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has ordered a hearing next week to determine if former CIA agent Edwin Wilson was returned to the United States illegally. Wilson was convicted last week in Alexandria, Va., on seven counts of smuggling four pistols and an M-16 rifle to Libya in 1979. U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling scheduled a Monday hearing on defense allegations that the government collaborated with a friend of Wilson's to trick him into thinking he would be allowed safe haven in the Dominican Republic. Wilson was not allowed to get off a plane in the island nation, however, and was flown to New York, where he was arrested at the end of the flight last June. Justice Department attorney Karen Morrisette said the hearing was unnecessary because the question had already been decided by federal judges in Virginia and Washington, who refused to hold hearings on the issue. The Monday hearing also will determine whether there was a conspiracy between Wilson and two other men charged in the Houston indictment, Donald Thresher, 42, of Houston, and Edward Bloom, 73, of Pomona, Calif. The indictment accuses the three of shipping 42,470 pounds of the plastic explosive C-4 in unmarked five-gallon cans from Houston's Intercontinental Air-

100 observe Kennedy's death

DALLAS (AP) — About 100 people observed the 19th anniversary of President John F. Kennedy's assassination by gathering at his memorial near the site where he was mortally wounded during a motorcade. Just like during the past 18 years, Kennedy was remembered Tuesday — Nov. 22 — the day his presidency was cut short by a sniper in 1963. The Dallas County Democratic Party sponsored this year's service. The City of Dallas co-sponsored the service until 1979, when it dropped out because of low attendance. "Your memories churn," said the Rev. Mark Herbner, pastor of Mt. Olive Lutheran Church who spoke at the ceremony. "Memories of a young president and his family, memories of a rocking chair in the Oval Office, memories of unforgettable oratory."

Congress facing automatic pay hike

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Unless Congress votes against it, House members and senators will get an automatic annual cost-of-living increase of up to $16,648 beginning Dec. 17. Even before the start of a lame-duck congressional session next week, there have been calls to block the salary hike which would also benefit senior executive branch employees. Though many members of Congress say that industry would pay them far more than their $60,652 annual salaries, there is no issue more politically volatile than congressional pay increases, and some sources predicted the hike will never take effect. Rep. Denny Smith, R-Ore., said he will introduce legislation to keep a lid on the current salary level. "How in the devil can Congress even consider giving itself a hefty pay increase at a time when Americans are paying the highest taxes in history and suffering personal and economic hardship." Or as one congressional staff member who requested anonymity said, "A pay raise would look very bad with 11 million people out of work. The public memory seems to be very long on this issue." The amount of the pay raise without congressional action is disputed. For five years, there has been a cap on congressional salaries. Each year, the president recommends a cost-of-living increase for all federal and congressional salaries, but Congress, fearful of voter reaction, has denied itself the pay hike. Because of varying interpretations of the law covering federal salaries, the increase will either be 4 percent of the current annual salary, ($2,426), or 4 percent of what the annual salary would have been had the inflation increases been allowed to go into effect over the past five years, ($16,648). A simple 4 percent increase would raise congressional salaries to $66,662; the larger increase would make them $77,300. Staff specialists on pay in the Senate Government Affairs Committee say the law calls for the lower increase; some members of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee say the larger hike is called for. Meanwhile, higher paid federal workers would also receive an increase Dec. 17, and some could end up with higher salaries than members of Congress get now. But sources said Congress is unlikely to permit that, so whatever is done will keep salaries of both branches roughly aligned. Although Congress has been reluctant to grant itself a straight pay raise, there have been attempts to provide other indirect benefits. The Senate has lifted

How to lose 13 tons of fat

Imagine losing 13 tons in six months. The gray whales of the North Pacific do when they make their annual migration from the feeding grounds in the Bering Sea and Arctic Ocean to the nursery lagoons off Mexico and Baja California. This round trip of 12,000 miles is the longest migration made by any mammal.

When the gray whales leave their northern feeding areas as the seas begin to freeze, they are heavy with fat. A 45-foot whale (slightly longer than the average cross-country passenger bus) may weigh 45 tons. They find little food along the migration route or in the warm waters where the cows bear their calves.

By the time the whales start back to the feeding grounds in the spring, they are thin and emaciated, having lost 20 to 30 percent of their body weight. For the 45-ton whale, this loss can total 13.5 tons, an aggregate of 27,000 pounds.

Just like the doctor says: eat less and get some exercise if you want to lose weight (sounds like a whale of some good advice to us).

I don't have power to change

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I try and try to correct my many faults, but I just seem to lack the willpower to change. I'm afraid I'll never be able to be a better person. Why do some people find it so easy? — D.C.

DEAR D.C.: Yes, some people may seem to have more personal discipline than others. But even if you had more personal discipline, I am convinced you would still have the same frustration — you want to do better, but you do not have the power to change.

That is why the Christian faith is good news. Becoming a Christian is not a matter of trying to turn over a new leaf or trying only by your own self efforts to change your life. Instead, the Bible tells us that God alone can change us, and he will help us change as we yield our lives to Christ every day.

How does God work in our lives to change them? First, when we come to Christ we have a new motive for living. We no longer are living for ourselves, but for Christ. When we begin to understand what he sacrificed to bring salvation to us, then we have a new desire to give up our own selfish way of living and become his servant. "For Christ's love compels us, because we are convinced that one died for all... And he died for all, that those who live should no longer live for themselves but for him who died for them and was raised again" (2 Corinthians 5:14-15).

But God also helps us change because he gives us new power and strength. When we come to Christ the Holy Spirit — who is God himself — comes to take up residence in us. As we yield to Christ every day and seek his will in our lives, the Spirit helps us.

Christ wants to come into your life and help you change. Will you let him into your heart today? You can do that as you take a simple step of faith and turn to Christ. He will come into your life, and be with you every day as you follow him.

What to skip

"Journalism is literature in a hurry."

— H.L. Mencken

Americans are being slammed with more news now than they can possibly take in. We simply don't have time to wade through the pages and pages of stuff about what's going on in the city, the state, the nation and the world.

And since there are so many newspapers in the world printing so much news so fast, a lot of things get repeated. We only have so much time to check up on the news, so we have to be very careful about what we spend time reading.

You only go around on news in life, so there really isn't enough time to read anything about Brooke Shields. Or Brooke Shields' mother. I don't know if they print stories about Brooke Shields' father; if they do, don't read any.

Headlines can be a good indication of what not to read. If it's a story about a missing hound and the headline reads "Dog gone" ... give it a miss. If the story is about reptiles and the headline is "Snakes alive!" don't hesitate to turn the page.

It's easy to judge pictures, too. If it's the hottest day of the year, glide over the shot of the polar bear lying by the pool with his tongue hanging out. If it's raining, you can be sure you'll see some picture of a lady standing soaking wet with her umbrella turned inside out. I think that was the second picture ever taken by a newspaper photographer.

Also, watch out for the dog-catching-the-frisbee-in-his-mouth-at-the-park-on-a-spring-day shot. That was the first newspaper photo ever made and was great back when it appeared in the London Times in 1779. It's wearing a bit thin now.

But that's not it. Newspapers, especially small-town newspapers, fall into the often unavoidable trap of printing pictures of three smiling men in business suits turning over the first shovel of dirt at a construction project.

Also, don't look at pictures of two guys shaking hands while one gives another a check. Unless, of course, you recognize one as your congressman and the other as an Arab sheik, and if the picture is grainy and out of focus.

Then we come to sports. There are many cliché traps lying in wait here, but they can be avoided. Pass up stories telling you what a sweetheart George Steinbrenner really is. Or if they use the phrase "America's Team." If the headline to a story is "Coach cautiously optimistic," you know what to do.

Back in the news pages, don't read any interviews with presidents of huge utilities who praise the free enterprise system. And if a world leader calls summit talks "frank and fruitful," skip on by the story.

And never ever, ever read any story about how to read a newspaper.

Election night in Russia

As I predicted six months ago, Yuri Andropov became the new General Secretary of the Communist Party. But last Thursday was still one of the most exciting election nights in Russian history.

"Good evening. 'Welcome to Soviet Broadcasting System's election night coverage, I'm Dan Ratevich, and we have tonight Lesley Stahlingrad, Dimitri Brinksley, Igor Brokaw, and Ilyich Moyers, giving you latest results on exciting election for successor to Comrade Leonid Brezhnev, who just went to the great Politburo in the sky."

"Lesley, we hear you have early report from Odessa."

"I do, Dan. Odessa polls closed just two minutes ago, and the 'SBS Exit Poll' indicates big victory for Communist Party there. Odessa has always been bellwether for how rest of country will go. The big turnout for Communists in Odessa means encouraging sign for Communist Party in other parts of Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

"Igor, how are we doing in Minsk and Smolensk?"

"Our exit polls in Minsk and Smolensk indicate possible landslide for Kremlin."

"How do you explain this?"

"Exit pollsters found voters very unhappy with no food in shops, shoddy consumer goods, no housing, and rotten winter. They say they voted Communist to send a message to Moscow."

"Dimitri Brinksley, how do you read these results so far?"

"Is sign Soviet people are fed up with system and want change. Our SBS breakdown shows old people are worried about social security, women don't like nuclear arms race, young people want Soviets out of Afghanistan, and factory bosses are against government regulations. It all happens in off-year election."

"Let's go to Ilyich Moyers for in-depth commentary on what this means for presidential candidates."

"We shouldn't read too much into early election results, Dan. Although it is now predicted Yuri Andropov, former head of KGB, got 99 percent of votes in his district, he still has an image problem. Andropov is household name in Soviet Union, and while everyone is still scared silly of him, he is dull speaker and has no television appeal. Konstantin Chernenko was handpicked successor by Brezhnev but is 71 years old and may be considered too young for the job. Moscow has built up war chest from military which puts other candidates at big disadvantage when it come to buying television time. At the moment head of Soviet Union is still up for grabs."

"Lesley, you have new results from Ukraine."

"Yes, Dan. The Ukraine, with three percent of the votes in, is going heavily for Andropov. This is one of the places the KGB Political Action Committee concentrated on because farmers were very unhappy with Chernenko's refusal to buy enough grain from the United States."

"Dimitri, you wanted to say something?"

"I would just like to say the large dissident vote in Siberia that the Pravda News Poll had predicted didn't materialize. Despite appeals from the 'Voice of America' the dissidents stayed home, and that could account for the overwhelming sweep of the Communist Party in Dudinka, where Viktor Grishin counted on a low turnout."

"Igor, you've been watching Tashkent. Any trends there we should be aware of?"

"They seem to be having some trouble with the voting machines in Tashkent, and at the moment SBS is listing this district as the only one in the Soviet Union 'too close to call.'"

Soviet officials hard on tourists

WASHINGTON — Americans who plan to travel to the Soviet Union should expect to be hassled by Soviet authorities, especially if they have any ideas of contacting Russian dissidents. The good old days when Western tourists were welcomed are apparently gone.

Paranoid as ever, the Kremlin is apparently afraid that even the most well-meaning tourist may not be content to visit museums, czarist palaces, the Bolshoi Ballet and other innocent, state-approved attractions, but will want to talk with the tiny number of dissidents with courage enough to meet foreigners.

Apparently it's not only Americans who are suspect in the KGB's eyes. Government sources told my reporter Andrea Siegel that the secret police have stepped up surveillance of Canadians and West Germans as well.

The harassment takes the form of tailing the supposedly dangerous tourists, monitoring their telephone conversations, photographing them on the street, hauling them in for questioning and subjecting them to humiliating body searches. It's a throwback to the old days of Stalinist suspicion of anyone or anything foreign.

The situation got so bad, in fact, that the State Department was considering issuing a travel warning last summer to American citizens contemplating a trip to the Soviet Union. Instead, Foggy Bottom decided to wait until the tourist season wound down. But if the treatment of American tourists continues to deteriorate next spring, an official warning remains a possibility.

Some of the harassment — obviously official inspired — has been merely picky-picky. For example, customs agents confiscated an amber necklace that an American woman had bought in a state souvenir shop last September, explaining only that it was too valuable to be taken out of the Soviet Union.

A female student who visited Russia in August was embarrassed by a customs official who read her diary aloud and asked her personal questions. A rabbi had his prayerbooks confiscated with the peculiar explanation that they had become the property of the officially atheist Soviet government.

Sometimes the harassment is more than just embarrassing. On occasion, the KGB gets physical. Americans who are picked up for questioning find that they are not allowed to contact U.S. consular officials, as the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Consular Convention requires.

Some of these unlucky tourists were detained overnight, and one person was held for more than a week, according to government sources.

Two members of an official Canadian delegation protesting treatment of "refuseniks" — Soviet citizens who have been refused permission to emigrate — were physically assaulted in September. One suffered a black eye and the other had his face stepped on by anonymous assailants outside an apartment building they were about to enter.

Police who were summoned to the scene showed far more interest in the identity of the dissidents than the two Canadians were trying to visit them in their assailants. The delegation, headed by former Foreign Minister Flora MacDonald, eventually left Russia under the unofficial protection of some American Marines from the U.S. Embassy.

The KGB thugs are unimpressed with a visitor's V.I.P. status. The wife of Rep. John Porter, R-Ill., was strip-searched on her way out of the country. She reported that the two Russian women kicked her legs while they "searched my body cavities." Another woman in the group, an aide to Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., was also subjected to a blatantly unsanitary intimate examination.

FRANKLY CONFUSING: Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., won reelection on Nov. 2, but his Republican opponent, Charles Sherwood, and his Democratic primary opponent, Jim Boyd, have complained that Jenkins violated the rule against sending out franked congressional mail during the 60 days prior to a primary or a general election.

What makes the Jenkins case confusing is that, for a while last summer, there was no official date set for the Georgia primaries. Because of disagreements over reapportionment, the primaries were postponed; Georgia congressmen were told on June 16 that the prohibition on franked mailings was lifted, and would be reimposed at a date to be announced later.

Jenkins delivered a letter to the Commission on Congressional Mailing Standards for approval on Aug. 11; it arrived at the Folding Room to be mailed out on Aug. 24. But, meanwhile, the primary date had been set for Aug. 31.

Jenkins contends that the mailing was out of his hands before he knew the new primary date. But the Majority Printer's office told my reporter Carolyn Farrar, "Even if it's printed up, that doesn't mean it has to go out." The Franking commission is expected to thrash the matter out when Congress reconvenes.

Highway jobs bill planned

Bipartisan proposal expected to win quick approval

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Republican and Democratic leaders, anxious to combat the nation's 10.4 percent unemployment rate, intend to develop a bipartisan highway jobs bill that can win swift approval in the lame-duck session of Congress.

President Reagan has yet to endorse such a proposal, which congressional officials said Monday would be financed through an unspecified increase in the federal gasoline tax.

But Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., declared: "I think we can work something out and I think the odds are good the president will support something we can work out."

Baker, the top Republican in Congress, commented after meeting with Congress' leading Democrat, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts.

"Our first priority must be to put the millions of unemployed back to work," O'Neill said in a written statement after the meeting. "To meet this goal, it is necessary for both parties to work together. Sen. Baker and I agreed today that we would schedule action during the current session on a highway bill."

BAKER AND O'NEILL met to set an agenda for what is expected to be a three-week session of the House and Senate beginning on Nov. 29.

On another issue, Baker said a proposal under consideration at the White House to stimulate the economy by moving up the 10 percent personal income tax cut scheduled for next July is all but dead.

"I think we've already had the debate" on that proposal, he said. Reagan said last week he was considering the idea, but he has not yet formally proposed it, and there is no discernible enthusiasm for it in the House or the Senate.

As for the gasoline tax increase and highway measure, no details were mentioned.

But Baker said he and O'Neill agreed to draft a plan that would be patterned after a proposal that Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis has made to Reagan.

That plan would increase the current 4-cent-a-gallon federal gasoline tax to 9 cents, providing an estimated $5.5 billion for what officials say would be 320,000 jobs for highway and mass transit repair.

Baker and O'Neill pushed the proposal to the top of their agenda because unemployment was a major issue in the November election. Many officials expect joblessness to rise even higher than the current 10.4 percent, and administration officials concede it will remain high by historical standards for many months, even with an economic recovery.

EVEN SO, Martin S. Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, cautioned Reagan last week that Lewis' proposal could add to inflation without providing an immediate improvement in the unemployment rate.

While Reagan has not yet approved Lewis' plan for submission to Congress, Baker indicated he expects him to.

But Baker made it plain he intends to push the highway measure anyway. If Reagan opposes it, he said, "I would argue with him."

Baker, talking to reporters after a 45-minute meeting with O'Neill, said the session was marked by an unusual spirit of cooperation.

But there apparently were limits.

O'Neill made it clear that in addition to the highway bill, he intends to push for passage of a second jobs-creating bill in the three-week lame-duck session.

"Sen. Baker will work with us in developing this initiative," O'Neill said in his written statement.

But Baker told reporters that the second measure O'Neill referred to probably would not clear both the House and Senate.

Both houses also will debate legislation authorizing the Reagan administration's program of aid to certain Caribbean Basin countries.

Ex-FBI safecracker charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — H. Edward Tickle Jr., an FBI safecracker until he was fired, faces charges he knowingly transported stolen jewelry and then tried to cover up the crime.

Tickle, who was dismissed Monday from his job at FBI headquarters after his indictment was announced, is scheduled to appear today before U.S. District Judge Barrington

D. Parker in Washington. Tickle was free on $5,000 bond set by U.S. District Judge James Cacheris in Alexandria, Va. Separate federal grand juries named him in three indictments in the District of Columbia and one in Alexandria. The ex-agent's lawyer, Kenneth Michael Robinson, said his client would plead innocent to the charges.

Synthetic fuels agency can't spend its money

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The government agency created to hand out billions of dollars of subsidies to spur development of synthetic fuels is in an unusual position — it's having a hard time spending the money.

One of the reasons is that the front-runners for awards by the Synthetic Fuels Corp. have developed the distressing tendency of pulling up lame at the finish line.

On Monday, Ashland Oil Inc. announced that it was withdrawing sponsorship of a multibillion dollar project to produce synthetic oil from coal in Breckinridge County, Ky. The decision apparently spells the end for the plant, which was to produce 25,000 barrels of synthetic crude daily. Ashland had been seeking $3 billion in federal loan guarantees.

Last month, Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) announced it was dropping out of a partnership that planned to build a $2 billion coal-to-gasoline plant in Gillette, Wyo. The remaining sponsors are working to keep the project alive by finding a company to replace Sohio.

Both those projects were the remaining finalists for awards in a round of solicitations that began back in the spring of 1981 with 63 proposals.

Ashland's announcement marked the fifth major synthetic fuels project to be canceled or indefinitely postponed since the onset of the world oil glut in 1980. That glut has held down the price of conventional oil and raised new doubts about the economics of synthetic fuel plants.

The corporation, created by Congress in June 1980, has yet to hand out one dime of its $15 billion in subsidies. With the problems experienced by its front-running candidates, it could be months before any actual awards are made.

Corporation officials are sensitive to criticism that their slow, methodical pace is one of the reasons the industry they are supposed to be helping is crumbling around them.

To combat that charge, the corporation's seven-member board is expected to announce at a meeting next week that it is signing letters-of-intent with a few of the 11 candidates remaining in the corporation's second round of solicitations.

The letters would not be the same as actual subsidy awards, but they would at least be more of a signal that assistance will be forthcoming if the projects meet certain conditions.

Some in the industry say the corporation is going to have to concentrate on smaller 10,000 to 20,000 barrel-a-day plants and be ready to put more government money at risk to entice industry to develop the technologies.

Dear Abby

Unwed mother must set family record straight

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 4 years old. I'll call her "Cindy." I was not married when Cindy was born. I'm still not. I would like her to know the truth about what happened between her father and me, but I think she's too young to understand—and also too young to keep it to herself. She's a smart little girl, very talkative, and tells strangers all our business, which should be kept at home.

She keeps saying she wants her daddy. I have told her that her father does not live with us and never will. She asks where her daddy is, and I tell her I don't know, which I don't. (He never knew I was pregnant, which is the way I wanted it.)

Last week a friend overheard Cindy tell someone that she had a daddy but he didn't live with us anymore. (Her daddy never did live with us, which I'm sure she knew.)

Out of the blue my child later asked, "Were you and my daddy ever married?" I was so shocked, I said "Yes!"

How do I handle this, Abby? I love her so much and don't want her hurt. I've already told her one lie and don't want to tell her another.

How much should I tell her? And when?
ONTHE SPOT

DEAR ON: Cindy's question, "Were you and my daddy ever married?" indicates that she is much wiser than you suspect. Tell her the truth now, and stress the importance of keeping it in the family. If she talks, she talks. It's still the lesser of the evils. Children feel betrayed when they learn they've been lied to.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice as soon as possible. I have four small children. They are all right-handed except the baby, who is 22 months old. She appears to be left-handed, but my husband is forcing her to use her right hand.

When she tries to eat with her left hand, he gets mad and roughly pulls the spoon out of her little fist and shoves it in her right hand. Then he stands over her, threatening to spank her if she tries to change back to her left hand. He has her crying and upset over this every time she eats.

He says all his brothers and sisters were naturally left-handed, but his mother whipped them into using their right hands because "left-handed people are clumsy and stupid." We have had some heated arguments over this.

I just let the baby use whichever hand she wants (and it's always the left hand when her daddy isn't around), but I'm afraid this is making a nervous and confused child of her. Please put this in your column with some advice for my bullheaded husband. I need somebody to back me up.

RIGHT-HANDED MAMA

DEAR MAMA: All my consultants on child development confirm your opinion and mine. Allow your child to use the hand she prefers. Forcing children to be right-handed when they are naturally inclined to be left-handed can cause stammering or emotional problems. Your husband is not only wrong, he's cruel.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ETHICAL PHYSICAL THERAPIST IN OHIO": Sorry you found the headline on one of my columns offensive, but I do not write my own "heads." They are written by my syndicate editor and sent to all the newspapers that run my column, where they are often rewritten by a copy editor at the local newspaper.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Donohue

HypHEMA can result from eye injury

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you please write about "hypHEMA" of the eye? Is this like glaucoma? Or can it cause glaucoma? — B.E.

HypHEMA is a bleeding in the front chamber of the eye. The eyeball is a duplex structure. The front section is walled off from the rear section by the eye lens. The front chamber is filled with a clear, watery fluid — the aqueous humor; the back part with a more gel-like substance — the vitreous. Sometimes, and usually as the result of an eye injury, blood may spill into the front chamber. The decision about what to do about this situation depends on how much blood is there. Small amounts are rapidly reabsorbed back into the blood vessels. But if there is a large amount of blood present in the chamber, it may have to be evacuated.

If there is a great deal of blood, there may be a buildup of the total fluid volume in the chamber, leading to glaucoma. In any case, hypHEMA demands that the patient remain quiet for a time, lest the bleeding recur. And in all cases, mild or severe, an eye doctor should be consulted.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have read that aspirin can cause ear-ringing. Is this true, and if so how many aspirins would a person have to take a day to experience it? — K.O.

Certainly, many people use aspirin without experiencing tinnitus (ear noises). And not all of those who do experience it do so to the same degree. But yes, some people may be more sensitive than others, and experience the annoyance. Perhaps the person who must use a dozen or more average aspirin tablets daily (as many arthritics must) may suffer problems of high-pitched ringing of the ears.

But most people can tolerate aspirin well without undue symptoms. For further ideas about the problem of ear ringing, read the booklet "Ear Noises: Their Causes and Cures," which other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the difference between the term "erosion" and the term "ulcer"? This is in reference to the intestinal tract. — J.J.

You are referring, I am sure, to a peptic ulcer, which is ulceration caused by excess production of stomach gastric acid. The two terms may describe the degree of tissue-damage caused by the excess acid.

The intestinal tract has a top protective layer, called the mucosa. If the acid has not caused penetration through this layer into the underlying one, then it is described as an erosion. If there has been penetration through to the second layer, then it is called an ulcer. The mucosa layer has the ability to heal rather readily in comparison with the under layer.

Falling pound great for Americans in London

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Two years ago, a seat at a London theater cost an American tourist the equivalent of $24. Today, the seat, costing the same 10 pounds sterling it did then, is just over $16 for the American.

It's the same with a Marks and Spencer sweater or a Dover sole in a good West End restaurant — the fall of the British pound on foreign exchanges makes them cheaper for tourists.

"American executives in Britain are laughing themselves to the bank," said Harry Cressman, director general of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in London, whose membership includes more than 1,000 American companies. "The cheaper pound makes Britain a very attractive place to live."

But the pound's decline from a six-year high of $2.45 two years ago to $1.62 last Friday, after touching a six-year low of $1.59 earlier in the week, presents Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government with a dilemma.

On the one hand, the lower-valued pound makes British goods cheaper for foreigners; on the other, it makes foreign goods more expensive for the British.

It therefore endangers Mrs. Thatcher's battle against inflation, the cornerstone of her tight-money policies, although price rises will not show up in the inflation figures for four to six months.

The run on the pound — it lost 4 percent of its value against major currencies until an end-of-week rally — came just as Mrs. Thatcher had halved inflation to an annual 6.8 percent in a year, and was forecasting a 5 percent rate by early 1983.

The chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Geoffrey Howe, calmed some of the panic selling on foreign exchanges by saying the government still believed in "sound money." But he added that "exchange rates should reflect market forces," which the market took to mean that the Bank of England would not shore up the pound.

In the end, the bank did stop the slide at $1.60 which is evidently as far as it wants the pound to drop.

The reasons it has fallen from $1.70 a month ago and $1.80 six months ago, include these:

•Weak oil prices amid the recession have devalued Britain's North Sea oil bonanza. Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, has forecast a further drop in prices in 1983.

•A trans-Atlantic interest rate competition has made the dollar more attractive than the pound. The base, or prime lending, rate of British banks has shrunk from 16 percent in October 1981 to 9 percent today. U.S. banks quote 12 percent.

•With an election about a year away and unemployment at a record 3.3 million, Mrs. Thatcher has started to pump more government money into the economy.

Campaigners for a cheaper pound, now nearing its October 1976 all-time low of $1.56, include The Economist magazine which noted that since the mid-1970s British industry has become 35 percent less competitive because of the value of the currency.

Even though Mrs. Thatcher has succeeded in keeping down the number of labor strikes and curbing wage increases, British firms have not been able to match the prices set by the West Germans, Japanese and other competitors because of the pound's exchange rate.

The lower pound may turn an American executive's $50,000 salary into 31,250 pounds instead of 27,700 pounds six months ago, but for Britons going overseas the effect will be reversed.

For Americans coming to London, an average hotel room costing 35 pounds a night will now be available for $56, instead of $67 a year ago.

The Chamber of Commerce's Chessman said he expects many more U.S. firms to locate in the United Kingdom, already the biggest lure for U.S. overseas investment.

Mrs. Thatcher's Britain also works harder, with fewer union troubles, he said.

"Productivity has increased enormously in the past 12 to 18 months. The fact there is high unemployment has influenced the people to put out and work that bit harder."

Reagan angers French

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — President Reagan's hasty announcement that the United States and its European allies had reached "substantial agreement" on a new East-West trade policy has exacerbated America's already strained relations with France.

But in the process, American officials hope the United States has cemented its friendship with the new West German government and headed off a potentially embarrassing boycott of the ninth economic summit conference next year.

Some American officials worried that French President Francois Mitterrand, already angered by the U.S. trade sanctions against the Soviet Union, might decide to boycott the summit of industrialized nations, scheduled to take place in Williamsburg, Va., next spring.

If he were able to take Germany out with him, said those officials, speaking on condition they remain anonymous, the French could effectively sabotage the Williamsburg summit and embarrass the host government, the United States.

Reagan apparently knew the French had expressed reservations about any public linking of the new trade agreement with the anti-Soviet sanctions. But he nonetheless used the purported agreement as the rationale for canceling the sanctions he had imposed against the Soviet Union in retaliation for the crackdown in Poland.

The sanctions had hurt U.S. relations with its allies perhaps as much as they had punished the Soviet Union by delaying construction of the trans-Siberian pipeline. It is the European allies, after all, who expect to benefit from the pipeline that will supply them with a much-needed new energy source.

Sources said West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who met Reagan in Washington on Monday, had let it be known that he would be delighted if the sanctions were lifted before his arrival. And his government was most cooperative in pressing for agreement on the secret draft of the new trade policy toward the Soviet Union, a policy that no one has yet signed or even confirmed is on paper.

Partly to please Kohl — and also to get the gnawing sanctions issue behind him — Reagan used his regular Saturday radio speech to announce the trade agreement. And, with the agreement in place, he said, the sanctions were no longer necessary. So he lifted them immediately.

The French, apparently concerned that Reagan's announcement made it appear they had knuckled under to the United States on trade policy in order to win relief from the sanctions, announced they were not a party to any such agreement.

Reagan, described as "perturbed" by one aide and as "furious" by another, could not produce a document to prove the French wrong.

"HAVE YOU TRIED INSULATION?"
P&S Insulation can help lower fuel bills

Today's home-buyer is justifiably worried about spiraling heating and cooling costs — for this year, and the years to come. Gas companies have estimated that the average residential gas bill will be $1,609 per year by 1990. That's a 317 percent increase during this decade.

The problem is that a lot of your hard-earned fuel-buying dollars are going through the roof, unless your house is properly insulated.

Big Spring's P&S Insulation wants to help. Managed by Pat and Sue Warren, P&S Insulation will come to your home to check out the trouble spots. They'll fill every heat-leaking crack and crevice with pure white Insul-Safe II, the noncombustible fiberglass insulation from Certain Teed.

Insul-Safe II is designed to make a big difference in your fuel bills — a difference you'll feel during the coming cold months. Not only will it provide protection today for tomorrow's high energy costs, but its quality means excellent value. Because it's fiberglass it won't rot or decay, and won't cause any odors.

P&S Insulation will also show you how to qualify for a federal income tax credit. It's a fact: A well insulated home can cut the cost of heating bills. But it can also cut air conditioning costs in the summer months. The cost of insulation will be offset by these savings. It will pay for itself.

So give Pat and Sue Warren a call at P&S Insulation today. Their phone number is 267-1264. Call them before the cold weather really sets in.

Ball-Hawks slam Rams

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

The blue-clad Angelo State Rams should have felt at home when the Howard College jazz band struck up the theme from "Hill Street Blues" during warmups Monday night. But that was where the hospitality stopped.

Playing its most aggressive defense of the season and setting up five slams dunks, Howard College ran away from the Rams 113-89 in a non-conference game in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The win boosts the Hawks to a fast 7-0 start for the season while ASU tumbled to 1-1. HC plays in Abilene Friday at 4 p.m. against tough-as-nails Ranger.

The wham-bam-slam show brought the home crowd to its feet in the second half, especially when freshman Dwight Harris led a three-on-one charge down the court and turned a reverse slam on the Rams. Moments later, Leon Issac jammed two straight to give Howard a 27-point lead halfway through the final half.

"We played excellent on defense," coach Harold Wilder agreed after the game. "That was the difference in the ballgame. And it came against a good offensive team. We created a lot of baskets by our pressure defense and were able to get off two-on-one and one-on-one breaks. That's the best play in basketball."

It was the Hawks' night all the way. Nate Givens — who finished with a game-high 26 points — scored four points as HC ran off to a 10-2 lead. The margin increased to 17 points when David Lell sank two free throws at 7:32 to give the Hawks a 33-16 spread.

The largest first half lead was 20 points, 56-36, on a jump shot by the smooth-shooting Harris 29 seconds before intermission.

The closest ASU got in the second half was 14 points at 62-48 but that was just minutes prior to the dunkin' exhibition by Harris and Issac. In a spurt which saw the Hawks roar into an 83-54 lead with 11:52 to go, the two HC players jammed four shots as the biting Hawk defense set up each opportunity.

A 20-foot jumper by James Barnett with 5:08 to go pushed the Hawks over the century mark. The game slowed from that point as Wilder shuffled in players.

Howard reached 24-point leads several times after that, winning the game by the same margin.

In addition to the ball-Hawk defense, Howard passed the ball as well as it has in seven games.

"Our overall intensity was good and we passed the ball around and played unselfishly," Wilder said. "When we can play an up-tempo game like this, we can utilize all our depth."

Angelo was not without its moments as cat-quick guard Kevin Lomax continually set up easy baskets with deft passes under the hoop. He even found time to score 13 points himself.

Joining Givens in two figures for HC were Harris with 20, Issac with 16, Keith Wilkerson 11 and Reggie Childress with 10. Ken Dragas had 18 and Steve Russell 15 for the Rams.

Lobos upend uninspired Steers, 57-52

LEVELLAND — Down by 20 points in the third quarter, a late Big Spring High rally fell short as the Levelland Lobos edged the Steers 57-52 in the season-opening game for both teams here Monday night.

"We started executing our press the way we could," coach Archie Myers said of the comeback that saw BSHS close the gap to four points. "The scrimmages had gone well and the kids — they're not used to winning — they couldn't accept all the praising of them. They came up here with the big head."

The Steers had trouble with the Lobo inside size. Payne Scott, a 6-7 postman, scored 15 points and 6-5 Timmy Stephens added 10 more. The Lobos led by 12, 28-16, at the half.

"We work forgot the motto of winning...we weren't hungry enough," Myers added.

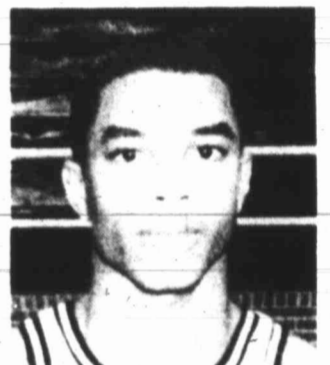

Jerald Wrightsil was the lone Steer in double figures with 25 but had only four points in the first half.

Big Spring plays again this weekend in the Tall City Classic in Midland.

LA Raiders overcome first half deficit, 28-24

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After nearly half of their first National Football League regular-season game in Los Angeles as the home team, it appeared the Raiders needed some magic to escape with a victory. That's exactly what they got.

Los Angeles Coach Tom Flores called it "Monday Night Magic."

The Raiders overcame a 24-0 deficit to defeat the San Diego Chargers 28-24 at the Los Angeles Coliseum, raising their record in nationally televised Monday night games over the years to 19-2-1.

"I don't know what it is about Monday night football," said Flores after his team raised its record to 3-0. "We're very proud of our Monday night record. Monday night football just brings out the best in us."

It didn't for most of the first half. The Chargers were in complete control until Ted Hendricks recovered fumble by Chuck Muncie at the San Diego 17-yard line with less than two minutes to play in the first half.

That was the beginning of the end for the Chargers, who fell to 1-2 in the strike-interrupted season.

The game completed the first weekend of action for the NFL's 28 teams following the 57-day players' strike.

Before the strike, the Raiders had played both of their games on the road. A Superior Court jury ruled last May that the team had the right to move from Oakland to Los Angeles, which it hurriedly did during the summer.

Following the fumble recovery by Hendricks, it took the Raiders five plays to get on the scoreboard for the first time. Quarterback Jim Plunkett fired a 1-yard scoring pass to tight end Todd Christensen on a fourth-and-goal play with 36 seconds remaining in the half.

Rookie tailback Marcus Allen of the Raiders, returning to the site of many of his greatest games while playing for the University of Southern California, scored twice in the third period on runs of 3 and 6 yards.

Then, following a missed 33-yard field goal by San Diego's Rolf Benirschke, the Raiders drove 80 yards in nine plays for the game-winning TD, which came on a 1-yard run by Frank Hawkins with 5:54 left to play in the game.

"We do play well on Monday nights, and not too bad on Sundays either," said Plunkett, who completed 18 of 25 passes for 163 yards. "Our play-calling wasn't the best in the first half. They gave us a lot of different looks and we made several mistakes. In the second half, we had the angles and blocked well."

The Chargers scored on their first two possessions, getting a 19-yard field goal by Benirschke and a 29-yard scoring pass from Dan Fouts to Dwight Scales. Muncie ran 2 yards for one touchdown and plunged 1 yard for another in the second period to give San Diego its 24-0 lead.

The Raiders won despite Fouts passing for more than 300 yards in a game for the 26th time in his 10-year NFL career, equaling the record of Johnny Unitas. Fouts finished with 25 completions in 42 attempts for 357 yards.

Following Hawkins' touchdown, the Chargers moved to the Los Angeles 18-yard line. But Vann McElroy intercepted a pass in the Raider end zone with 1:56 remaining.

The Chargers had one more chance when Ray Guy of the Raiders couldn't handle a snap from center while trying to punt and was tackled at the Los Angeles 30 with four seconds left, but a desperation pass by Fouts into the end zone fell incomplete.

"It was a bitter pill to swallow," said San Diego Coach Don Coryell. "You have to, of course, give the Raiders great credit the way they came back and played the second half."

"I thought we looked great the first half, not so good the second. They were in the same situation we were, everybody got a little tired in the second half."

Allen led all rushers in the game with 87 yards on 18 carries. Kenny King added 68 yards on 13 attempts.

"We just stayed with our game plan," said Flores. "We didn't panic. We just felt we could put pressure on their defense and show some great play from our running backs. It was a very fine game. It was fun."

A crowd of 42,162, well below capacity of about 72,500, attended the game, which also was televised locally. There were 12,898 no-shows.

Sax is NL Rookie of Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When second baseman Steve Sax became the fourth consecutive Los Angeles Dodger to be named National League Rookie of the Year, his boss credited enthusiasm and ability — plus good luck.

The 22-year-old Sax termed Monday the "happiest day of my life" after the announcement by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The rookie broke into an infield that had been together 8½ seasons with Steve Garvey at first, Bill Russell at shortstop and Ron Cey at third, along with Lopes.

Sax succeeded pitchers Rick Sutcliffe (1979), Steve Howe (1980) and Fernando Valenzuela (1981) in capturing the Rookie of the Year honor. The second baseman tallied 63 points on a 5-3-1 scoring basis for 24 ballots.

Pittsburgh's Johnny Ray, named Monday as The Sporting News' National League Rookie of the Year, finished a close second with 57 points. Ray was followed by St. Louis' Willie McGee with 39 points and San Francisco's Chili Davis at 32.

"I think that there were so many good rookies in the league this year is a tribute to all of the teams," said Sax.

A native of Sacramento, Steve came to the Dodger organization in June, 1978, as its No. 9 selection in the free agent draft. He worked his way up through the minors and was hitting .346 at San Antonio when the parent club called.

With the Dodgers, he put together the second-longest hitting streak on the club for the 1982 season. He had 53 multi-hit games and he led the Dodgers in game-winning runs scored with 20.

He hit .282 in 150 games and broke the club record for steals by a rookie in a season with 49, despite being out much of September after being hit by a pitch that severely bruised his right wrist. Rudy Law set the old record with 40 two seasons ago.

Cobb waits for Holmes

HOUSTON (AP) — There is a serious side to Randall "Tex" Cobb, the always smiling, always joking challenger, who will try to lift Larry Holmes' World Boxing Council heavyweight crown Friday night. Cobb ducks a serious question with the same intensity he hopes to avoid Holmes' jab. Cobb likes to leave the impression a serious thought never passed through his brain. But Cobb got serious several times in spite of himself Monday as he went into final preparations for Friday's scheduled 15-round title bout in the Astrodome.

On the call for an investigation following the death of fighter Duk Koo Kim in a fight with Ray Mancini: "What are they going to say, that boxing is a brutal sport, that it is crooked? Big deal, is that a new story? "What happens in the ring is in the hands of God. I think Kim was lucky because he died doing something that he liked to do. I'm not looking forward to dying. I've got a good drunk coming up Saturday night. "But when I do die, it will be an act of God and not something that is done in the ring."

On the fact that he is a native Texan fighting in his home state and likely will be the crowd favorite: "The crowd will be there to see blood. That's what they pay their money for and they don't care if it's mine or his." On the surrounding hoopla that goes with a heavyweight title fight: "I only worry about two things, the man coming at me in the ring and the man that counts to 10. That's the only thing that I see."

That was about it for solemnity. Cobb took a clear decision, over writers trying to get a few more serious answers. "How do I feel about my training?" Cobb asked, repeating a question. "Thank God, it's over. That's exactly how I feel. I'll taper off from here. Thursday, I'll just hang out and talk though." Cobb makes no predictions on the length of the fight. "Hopefully I can get Larry to fall down early," Cobb said. "Hell, I get paid the same whether it goes two rounds or 15. He does have a few things going for him but I think it could go either way."

Seconds later, he changed his mind. "Now, it'll be no contest," he said, smiling again. "They may even call off the fight and just vote me the heavyweight champion." Cobb said he wouldn't be any more serious as the fight day approached. "I ain't worryin' about nothing darlin'. I pay my trainers to do the worrying and I get every nickels' worth out of them." Cobb appeared momentarily to lapse back into seriousness when asked if there were things he did care about. "Yeah," he said, "love, the Lord, life... and putting you guys on."

Schramm criticizes Garvey for backing up

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys president Tex Schramm has accused the executive director of the National Football League Players Association of trying to back out of a tentative agreement that ended the 57-day players' strike. Ed Garvey has called the 28 player representatives to Washington to discuss the tentative contract today. "Garvey is going back on a decision that was made," Schramm told The Dallas Morning News on Monday. "They voted last week to put it to a vote. I can't see the reason for the meeting."

Schramm also said that if the players decide to finish the season without a contract, the old collective bargaining agreement would go into effect — wiping out such newly negotiated provisions as severance pay, bonus payments, the revised playoff structure and increased playoff money. Garvey has predicted that union members will reject the tentative offer. The union's 1,500 members were due to vote on the proposal today, but Garvey said that vote has been delayed.

Meanwhile, Robert Newhouse, the Cowboys' player representative, said he will not be attending today's meeting. Newhouse said he is busy getting ready for Thursday's game against Cleveland — and he is tired of union activities. The Dallas Cowboys withstood the pressure of a fight game with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Sunday, but some of them couldn't take the heat of a whirlpool on Monday. "I sat in the whirlpool about one minute," said cornerback Dennis Thurman. "It was too hot. Some old lady was able to stand it, but I couldn't." The aches and pains from the first game in 57 days forced the Cowboys to abandoned their own whirlpool and seek soothing in a North Dallas health spa. The Cowboys spent the morning taking a team bath in 110-degree water.

Georgia, Penn battle may bring out No. 1

Penn State's jump from third to second in the latest Associated Press college football poll may have set the stage for a New Year's night showdown in the Sugar Bowl for the national championship between the Nittany Lions and top-ranked Georgia. But Penn State Coach Joe Paterno says the real national title game may be played Friday in State College, Pa., when the Lions battle fifth-rated Pittsburgh for Eastern supremacy. "I think the winner of the Pitt-Penn State game should play for the national championship — and it still may work out that way," Paterno said. "We're in the same boat Pitt is. This is a big game for both of us." The Panthers, ranked first for a portion of the season, will play No. 4 Southern Methodist in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1. "We still think we can win all the marbles," Coach Foge Fazio said. "We want to win so we can justify the faith the Cotton Bowl has in us." The Panthers, who began the season No. 1 but fell to eighth after an upset loss to Notre Dame, will be trying to end Penn State's national title hopes. A 48-14 blowout loss to the Lions kept Pitt from an unbeaten regular season and a possible national championship last season. "We'll have revenge on our minds," said Pitt tackle Jimbo Covert. "But revenge can only go so far. Ability has to take over after a while." "It will be a war," said Pitt quarterback Dan Marino. "They have a strong defense; they don't make any mistakes. We have to control the ball and keep their offense off the field, because they have such an explosive offense. But we think we can win." Georgia, the nation's only unbeaten, untied major college team, is seeking its second national title in three seasons. The Bulldogs were a near unanimous choice in this week's balloting, receiving 52 of 57 first place votes and 1,133 of a possible 1,140 points.

Oiler fans welcome Archie

HOUSTON (AP) — Newly acquired Houston Oiler quarterback Archie Manning has no illusions about having finally found a loyal home crowd despite his favorable reception in his first game as an Oiler. "It's a common thing, if Captain Kangaroo came out there as the second team quarterback they would cheer him," Manning said in response to his warm reception in Sunday's 24-10 loss to Pittsburgh. "The second team quarterback is always the most popular guy on the team. Just a few weeks ago I was in the same situation as Gifford is in now," he said. Manning recalls the catcalls when he was the starting quarterback for the New Orleans Saints before being traded to the Oilers shortly before the start of the 57-day NFL players strike. Now it is Nielsen's turn to feel the wrath of the fans. The Oilers struggled offensively until the third quarter against the Steelers before Nielsen directed a 75-yard drive leading to his nine-yard touchdown pass to tight end Dave Casper. After one more series, Manning got the call. Nielsen and Oiler head coach Ed Biles played down the quarterbacking maneuver. "I don't see why they shouldn't cheer an All-Pro," Nielsen said. "He's a great quarterback and I would cheer him myself. I'm just glad to have an association with him." "I felt like some time during the game Archie would play. We had driven for a touchdown on our first possession of the second half, then I threw a ball off my back foot and (Art) Shell intercepted, then I had a couple of passes batted back in my face and Archie came in. It's not going to effect my confidence. I'm the starting quarterback and I know it." Biles said it had been a part of the game plan all week that Manning would play. Manning said he knew nothing of the plans until he was told to get ready on the sidelines. "We decided early in the week that we would have to substitute freely," Biles said.

'Country Gold' a worthy replica

Television

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK — CBS dresses up Bette Davis' "All About Eve" in cowboy boots and jeans tonight in "Country Gold," a TV movie that is inferior to the original but still a good copy.

The classic story of the ambitious, conniving Broadway understudy travels down the road to Nashville's country-and-western circuit, and it comes up pickin' and grinnin'. The 1950 movie "All About Eve" starred Miss Davis as the aging actress and Anne Baxter as the deceitful protegee, who lied and seduced her way to stage stardom. A Broadway spinoff, "Applause," starred Lauren Bacall and Bonnie Franklin.

"Country Gold" has Loni Anderson as country-and-western headliner Mollie Dean Purcell, whose career is burdened by inner insecurities and external demands from fans and the Nashville community. Her public adores her, but the country girl in her longs for life back on the farm.

Linda Hamilton is Josie Greenwood, a newcomer on the circuit who has one hit on the charts but solid-gold ambition. She worms her way into Mollie Dean's life and confidence, then tries to steal Mollie's man, songs and success.

Each woman has a dark secret in her past, which is one way the movie tries to build intrigue. The more sophisticated original relied heavily on character exploration.

But the worst flaw of the catchy "Country

Gold" is its obligatory devotion to TV's pat, into-the-sunset endings. The new awareness and emerging self-confidence of Mollie Dean would have been satisfying enough, but the script required her to balance the federal budget, too.

Miss Anderson, the blonde star of "WKRP in Cincinnati," is a brunette as the private Mollie Dean. As the public Mollie Dean, the actress uses a bleach-white wig that could have come off Dolly Parton's rack.

Miss Anderson is a bit stiff in the role, but otherwise displays an affecting sensitivity as Mollie fights to maintain some semblance of a private life with her manager-husband Wade (Earl Holliman).

Holliman, Angie Dickinson's partner in "Police Woman," pops amphetamines as he drives his wife relentlessly to the top. "It's a tense business," he says.

Miss Hamilton, who appeared in the quickly departed series "King's Crossing," captures Josie's sugar-coated sweetness and underlying chicanery and ruthlessness. She has the look of the girl-next-door, but the shifty eyes of the dastardly banker who'll foreclose on the mortgage.

Dennis Dugan, who played the wacky Captain Freedom on four episodes of "Hill Street Blues," plays Darryl, Mollie's hair-dresser, costumer and friend.

Pilgrim's progress loses a little wheel

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn. — Out the grimy, seldom washed window, a technocrat in a construction worker's hard hat is peering beneath our Conrail commuter car to see if any of the wheels have come off — or perhaps all eight of them.

The train to New York today will be a half hour late. The train to New York for the next 11 months will be a half hour late, provided of course there are no unscheduled delays (these are already programmed) due to derailments, frozen switches, power outages, breakdowns in the signal system, track repairs, washouts, whatever.

We have begun our inexorable slide into the blissful decrepitude of a banana republic, where time and timetables wait for all men. There is a balmy affinity between Conrail and the Caribbean, which Evelyn Waugh might have fashioned into one of his comic Third World novels.

Chapter One, for instance, might have dealt with the problem of the missing wheels, except that the reality of the situation is far loonier than any satirist could contrive.

You see, the Federal Railway Administration has decreed that every Conrail train on the New Haven run must stop to have its wheels inspected every 30 miles, because twice in the past eight months wheels fell off moving trains. A chap could look up from his Wall Street Journal and see a wheel going by in the other direction, a giant steel frisbee at play in suburbia or the south Bronx.

No big deal, really. The crisis-hardened commuters on this run have been smoked out, frozen out, parboiled when air conditioners failed, shot at by demented gunmen on the rooftops and been the targets of rock throwing vandals hiding behind the headstones in Woodlawn Cemetery.

To them, the train ride sequence across frozen Siberia in "Doctor Zhivago" was a marvel of Soviet planning and engineering that our junketeering congressmen ought to study.

The joke is that the disappearing wheels are not the penalty taxpayers must pay for failing to replace antique rolling stock. These are the newest commuter cars in the system, the M-2 air-conditioned cars purchased from General Electric less than a decade ago and introduced with great fanfare to say nothing of fare increases by the railroad bureaucrats. Some of them have been on the line less than seven years, but there they sit for 20 minutes in each direction for wheel inspection, while the old rusting prewar diesels go chugging by.

The fault, it seems, is in the ballbearings, which "malfunction" (don't work, in track walker parlance), cause the wheels to lock, heat up and eventually fall off. So now Conrail is in the process of replacing all eight wheels on each of its 244 M-2 cars, which should take 11 months, barring of course any unforeseen delays. Rail officials estimate the cost of axle and wheel work at $7 million to $8 million, although any offtrack betting agency will give you 40-1 odds the bill doesn't come in under $20 million.

Meanwhile, to continue our comic novel, a voice booms out over the intercom "this train will stop at South Norwalk and New Rochelle for wheel inspection." And sure enough, at this scheduled unscheduled stop, eight inspectors in hardhats surround the train and probe its smoldering underbelly with a heat-sensing rod that looks like a giant red crayon and almost is. Anyhow it melts at temperatures higher than 200 degrees and calls attention to any wheels about to defect and roll off on their own.

During this testing period, which lasts from eight to 10 minutes, passengers, unlike the wheels, are not permitted to "detrain." On the way home to Ridgefield, where I live, the inspection is conducted within a few hundred feet of the South Norwalk Station, the transfer point to the Danbury line. We would save at least 10 minutes, if they moved the inspection a little further up the line, but once the federal bureaucrats have spoken, no appeal to logic is permitted or even contemplated.

Water hazard top priority for council

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring could lose its water supply for an "extended" time if a potential problem is not corrected, says Public Works Director Tom Decell and Colorado River Municipal Water District officials.

The Big Spring City Council members will discuss the hazard at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

The city's main raw water line traverses south from Lake Thomas to the filter plant and crosses under the Birdwell Lane bridge over Beals Creek. The water line's position concerns both Decell and the city's water supplier (Colorado River Municipal Water District) because, if repairs are needed, the city's entire water supply — as much as 15 million gallons on a hot summer day — would be halted, Decell said.

"If something were to happen, if the line broke or sprung a leak (under the bridge), in order to repair it we would have to remove the bridge and work in an awful lot of water. And we wouldn't have any knowledge of what the problem was until the bridge was removed," Decell said.

CRMWD General Manager O.H. Ivie said in a memo to City Manager Don Davis that "if nothing is done, I can envision a condition developing whereby the City of Big Spring could be completely out of water for an extended period of time. We stand ready to assist the city in this work and would strongly urge you to proceed posthaste.

"If a leak of any magnitude developed in the line at that point, it would be a time-consuming, laborious job to repair," Ivie said. CRMWD also would not be able to supply the city's water requirements while repairs are made, he said.

Decell said he learned of the hazard from Ivie and has discussed with him what precautionary measures the city should take.

Decell and Ivie agree the most practical method would be to patch around the submerged portion of the pipe and run an elevated line over Beal's Creek. Decell said the workers could span the creek with 27-inch concrete cylinder pipe supported by pilings and connect the old pipe to the new elevated portion with compound joints.

CRMWD promised to assist the city by providing a portion of the engineering, placement of the pipe, and connection to the existing line.

Decell said the project should cost from $12,000 to $15,000 and that sufficient funds are available in the Capital Improvements Program Water, Sewer and Street Phase I. "We have some very tight budget constraints within the Water Distribution area, however, the total loss of all available (water), save and except about one million gallons a day that could come from the O'Barr Wells, is the alternative on which we are gambling."

Decell said in a memo to the council that CRMWD's "concern for this is so great, that they will be willing to fund it and let us make our monthly payments on our water bill."

In other matters, the council will:

- First reading of an ordinance that requires licensing and regulating city bail bondsmen.
- Approve specifications and give permission to advertise for bids to replace a sewer jet for the Distribution and Collection Department of Utilities. Decell says "the present sewer jet has been on first line duty since 1976, and has for the most accomplished the work for which it was intended."

- Approve specifications and give permission to advertise for bids for a heating and air conditioning system separate from city hall.
- Second and final reading of an ordinance amending the water rates.
- Second and final reading of an ordinance increasing Parks and Recreation fees.

- Discuss construction of a new boat ramp and parking area at Moss Lake. The project's cost exceeds a $16,100 state grant the city originally planned to use.
- Award a bid for fire department uniforms. Fire Chief Jim Ryals recommends the bid be awarded to Martin's Uniforms of San Antonio with the low bid of $4,520. The council had budgeted $5,500 for the uniforms. The uniforms will not be purchased until the tax roll is certified.

- Appoint Parks and Recreation Board members.
- Consider a livestock permit request from David Sutton, Chief Inspector Dewey Byers recommends approval of the permit.
- Consider a mobile home permit request at 1411 Johnson from L. B. Thomas. Byers said he found no objections from residents in that neighborhood.
- Adjourn into executive session to discuss legal matters.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow in Big Spring City Hall, Fourth and Nolan. The meeting is open to the public.

PTA City Council mulls convention

The Big Spring PTA City Council had their regular monthly meeting Nov. 10 and discussed the state PTA convention which will be held in Fort Worth beginning Sunday and continuing through Tuesday.

Several delegates are to attend the convention to represent Big Spring local PTA units and council. Twenty-two resolutions have been cleared by the Resolutions Committee for consideration by voting delegates at the 1982 state convention. The outcome of the vote in Fort Worth on these resolutions determines what issues the State PTA will support or lobby against in the Texas Legislature and government offices. Resolutions concerning tax free sales for PTA units, raising the legal drinking age, safety programs for "Latch-Key" children and the PTA's non-commercial policy are a few of the subjects which will be discussed.

Local PT units who sponsored Halloween carnivals reported success and said they will be able to continue with other projects.

The PTA City Council voted to endorse the Symphony Guild as a worthwhile organization and commend them on their work. The Symphony Guild is planning a children's concert in January and has asked for help from the PTA.

Members attending the meeting included Superintendent Lynn Hise, principals Jean Wilder, Wendell Ware and M.A. Barber, Christina Lawrence, first vice president, Marcia Rogers, council second vice president, Nelda Reagan, council correspondence secretary, Janet Murley, council hospitality chairman, Janice Mayes, school representative, and Brenda Brown, Vicky LaBarge and Donna Parker.

Rainbow girls host dinner

Big Spring Assembly 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, had an appreciation dinner in conjunction with their Thanksgiving Dinner Nov. 9 in the banquet room of the Masonic Temple.

Parents of the girls attended as special guests. Other guests were members of the Eastern Star, Masons and advisory board members who worked with the assembly in the concession stands at the football games.

The tables were decorated with cornucopias overflowing with fruit and vegetables. In the center of the room was a shock of feed and pumpkins.

Following the dinner, the Rainbow assembly held its business meeting with the worthy advisor, Amy Dwire, presiding. Guests included Becky Johnson, grand representative from New Mexico to Texas, Mrs. Jerry Hollowell, grand visitor, and Margaret Hollowell, worth advisor, all from Midland, and Michelle Hendricks, grand representative from Mississippi to Texas, from San Angelo.

The Big Spring Assembly went to Midland Nov. 6 to attend a school of instruction which was conducted by Mrs. Pearl Mills, supreme deputy. The school included groups from San Angelo, Brownwood, Abilene, Midland, Odessa, Fort Stockton and Big Spring.

Big Spring also reported collecting 4½ pounds of stamps. The stamps are used to aid missionary efforts.

What a bright idea!

Trevino-Rubio

Brenda Trevino and Raul Rubio Jr. are on a wedding trip to Ruidosa, N.M. following their wedding Saturday morning at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The Rev. J.P. Delaney, priest, officiated the 10 a.m. rite before an altar decorated with two 10-branch candelabra entwined with greenery and an arrangement of gladioli, spider mums and baby's breath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Trevino Jr., 613 Linda Ln. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raul Rubio, 111 N. Nolan. Connie Paradez, organist and sister of the bride, Phil Garza, guitarist and vocalist, and a group from

The gown featured a round neckline, a bodice embellished in lace motifs, straight organza sleeves accented with silk Venice lace motifs and a chapel-length train. To complete her ensemble, she wore a headpiece of bridal satin and Venice lace motifs which held a two-tiered ankle-length veil trimmed with lace.

Mary Anita Trevino and Alice Munoz served their sister as maid of honor and matron of honor respectively. Pat Mendoza, sister of the bridegroom, and Laura Mexia were bridesmaids. Stephanie Mendoza, niece of the bridegroom, and Andrea Paradez of Abilene, niece of the bride, were flower girls.

Carl Trevino, brother of the bride, was best man. Ring bearers were Peter Issac Paradez of Abilene, nephew of the bride, and Marvin Rubio, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsman were Lee Munoz, Larry Mendoza, Tony Rubio, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Alan Trevino, brother of the bride, and Moe Rubio, cousin of the bridegroom. Robert Rodriguez and Gabriel Franco were altar boys.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School. She attended Howard College and presently attends University of Texas of the Permian Basin. She is employed by C.R. Anthony Co.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is employed by Pat Gray Body Shop.

The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Cooper-Decker

Melissa Cooper and Eddie Decker exchanged wedding vows during a ceremony Saturday evening in the First Church of the Nazarene with Dr. Carl Powers, pastor, officiating. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Cooper, Route 3, and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Decker, 2200 Warren.

The couple was wed before an altar decorated with a brass arched candelabrum accented with greenery and peach ribbon. The candelabrum was flanked on either side by spiral candelabra, greenery and peach ribbon. The platform was lined with votive cups and greenery.

Organist was Nancy Wood. Vocalists included Cathy Weeks, Karen Spears and Nancy Wood.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin covered with Chantilly lace ruffles. A high neckline with the illusion of a V-neck was topped with matching lace accented with bridal pearls and off-set by short puffed sleeves and lace gauntlets. The old fashioned bodice was fitted with a torso waist. Her headpiece was a small circlet of ivory and peach rosebuds enhanced by ribbons and lace of the same colors.

The bride carried a bouquet of ivory and peach roses, gypsophytas and baby's breath tied with ivory lace and a peach ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Vanessa Cooper, Teresa Welch and Cecilia Ward, all of Big Spring. Flower girls were Tiffani Ward and Kasi Welch, both nieces of the bride.

Groomsman were Rod Mitchell, Houston, Kary Richardson, Brownsville and Kevin Kyler, Austin. Ring bearers were Jamison Ward and Kaegan Welch, nephews of the bride. Usher was Bill Arancibia of Lubbock.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the Fellowship Hall of the First Church of the Nazarene. "HAVE YOU TRIED INSULATION?" P&S Insulation can help lower fuel bills

Today's home-buyer is justifiably worried about spiraling heating and cooling costs — for this year, and the years to come.

Gas companies have estimated that the average residential gas bill will be $1,609 per year by 1990. That's a 317 percent increase during this decade.

The problem is that a lot of your hard-earned fuel-buying dollars are going through the roof, unless your house is properly insulated.

Big Spring's P&S Insulation wants to help. Managed by Pat and Sue Warren, P&S Insulation will come to your home to check out the trouble spots. They'll fill every heat-leaking crack and crevice with pure white Insul-Safe II, the noncombustible fiberglass insulation from Certain Teed.

Insul-Safe II is designed to make a big difference in your fuel bills — a difference you'll feel during the coming cold months. Not only will it provide protection today for tomorrow's high energy costs, but it's quality means excellent value. Because it's fiberglass it won't rot or decay, and won't cause any odors.

P&S Insulation will also show you how to qualify for a federal income tax credit. It's a fact. A well-insulated home can cut the cost of heating bills. But it can also cut air-conditioning costs in the summer months. The cost of insulation will be offset by these savings. It will pay for itself.

So give Pat and Sue Warren a call at P&S Insulation today. Their phone number is 267-1264. Call them before the cold weather really sets in.

Check packages before buying over-counter drugs

Recent incidents such as the Tylenol tragedy in the Chicago area have raised concern about the possibility of over-the-counter medicines being tampered with. While the incidences have been relatively few, the Food and Drug Administration and drug makers are working on ways to provide more tamper-resistant packaging.

However, it may be several months before product and distribution details are worked out and the improved packages begin to appear on shelves. In the meantime, FDA is urging consumers to examine any over-the-counter drug package that they buy to be assured that it hasn't been tampered with.

Here are some precautions you, the shopper, can take: When you go to the store shelf where the drug product you seek is located, take a look at the entire group of packages of that product or brand. Do all those in one group look alike? Look for damage, broken seals, and other appearances that any have been opened. If the cover is closed with a tab, inspect it for signs it may have been opened. Plastic packaging should show no breaks.

Examine packages for dirtiness or unusual stains or watermarks. Compare the price stickers and printed information on containers. Do any look out of place, out of date or unlike others?

If the package is of clear plastic or other transparent material, check the lid and any seals.

Sugar substitute expected soon

A new sugar substitute — aspartame — is expected to be on the market in about six months. It was approved recently by the Food and Drug Administration. The new product is made up mainly of two amino acids, phenylalanine and aspartic acid. These, along with other amino acids, are the normal building blocks of protein in foods consumed as part of any health diet.

Phenylalanine and aspartic acid, combined in a certain manner, produce an intensely sweet-tasting substance called aspartame. It is about 180 times sweeter than sucrose (sugar).

Aspartame has FDA approval for use as a sweetener in the following foods:

- Dry, free-flowing sugar substitute for table use in package units not to exceed the sweetening equivalent of 2 teaspoonfuls of sugar.
- Cold breakfast cereals.
- Chewing gum.
- Dry bases for beverages; instant coffee and tea; gelatins, puddings and fillings; and dairy products and toppings.

FDA approval is based on four additional conditions regarding final product labeling and the manufacturer's record-keeping:

- Any food containing aspartame must display a warning statement for phenylketonurics (persons sensitive to phenylalanine, much like diabetics are to sugar) that the product contains the substance.
- A statement not to use aspartame in cooking and baking must appear on label. Aspartame breaks down when exposed to prolonged heat, with a consequent loss of sweetness.
- If a food containing aspartame is represented to be for special dietary use, as might be expected of a low-calorie product, the food must be labeled in compliance with FDA's special dietary foods regulation.
- The manufacturer is to monitor actual usage levels of aspartame for the FDA.

Advantages that aspartame is supposed to have over other non-nutritive sweeteners are that it is virtually indistinguishable from sugar in taste, has no bitter or metallic aftertaste, and seems to act like a flavor enhancer for some fruits, as monosodium glutamate (MSG) does for high-protein foods.

Group offers booklet

Four years of health workshops in northern New Mexico have resulted in "Menopausal Self Care Manual," a booklet published by the Santa Fe Health Education Project.

Women from the three main cultural groups in New Mexico, Hispanic, Native American and Anglo, have taken part in the workshops. Their backgrounds may have been different, but their experiences with middle age and menopause were very similar.

The booklet includes chapters on natural remedies, estrogen replacement therapy, hysterectomies, self care and birth control. A separate section of the booklet gives information for organizing menopause support groups and workshops, provides materials for photocopying, lists a bibliography and gives sources for additional inexpensive materials.

The Santa Fe Health Education Project is a non-profit group which regularly publishes a Spanish/English bilingual Health Letter. It was the strong response to their Health Letter on menopause and estrogen published in 1977 which led to the series of workshops that resulted in the writing of the booklet.

The booklet, available in both English and Spanish, is available from the Santa Fe Health Education Project, P.O. Box 577, Santa Fe, N.M., 87501, for $4.20, which includes postage and handling.

The bridegroom's table featured a chocolate horseshoe cake with the bride and bridegroom's names on it. A chilled drink was served from a large cowboy hat. The table was covered with a burgundy cloth with gray overlay.

Members of the houseparty were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Small, Mr. and Mrs. Wendel Payte and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Coltrane. Serving at the bride's table were Shannon Fike, Trudy McCandles, and Polly Connelly. Serving at the bridegroom's table were Jana Gibbs and Karla Wester.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard College. She is employed as a secretary at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin at Madison and Texas A&M University in College Station. He is employed at Oilfield Industrial Lines, Inc., as chief engineer-field service.

of Karla Wester. Mrs. Carl Small was also hostess.

Following a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, the couple will reside in Colorado City.

Cord safety rules offered

Most of us take electricity for granted. Our homes are filled with electrical appliances and tools which keep us warm, cook our food, light our rooms, and entertain us. But every year, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, thousands of people receive hospital, emergency room treatment for injuries associated with electrical fires or shocks. Hundreds die in these accidents. Electrical fires and shocks can be caused by overloaded or broken cords, or poor connections. If too many appliances are plugged into an extension cord or circuit, the electrical load may exceed its rating and the wires may overheat, baking and cracking or melting the rubber or plastic jacket on the cord. The result may be a "short circuit." This occurs when one wire of the cord touches another. The ensuing extremely hot spark can cause a fire. If people touch the exposed wires, they could be severely burned or even electrocuted. Yet many electrical fires or shocks could be easily prevented by taking a few simple precautions when handling electrical cords.

tools and appliances. "The misuse of extension cords — such as children putting cords in their mouths, overloaded cords, worn or damaged cords and tripping over cords — is a prime cause of accidents in the home. With the proper use of extension cords, however, it's possible to eliminate many of these hazards." Some tips from this expert:
• Buy extension cords with safety closures which cover the unused outlets.
• Insert plugs fully in the outlet so that the prongs are not exposed.
• Discard old and cracked, or worn and damaged cords.
• When disconnecting cords, pull on the plug, not the cord.
• Use special, heavy duty extension cords for high wattage appliances, such as air conditioners and freezers.
• With outdoor tools and appliances, use only outdoor extension cords manufactured to resist heat, cold, sunlight, abuse and moisture.
• Teach children not to play with plugs or outlets and not to unplug cords.
• Keep cords away from heat and water.
• For space heaters, toasters and irons, use only extension cords marked for use with these appliances.
"Electric cords are necessary for the convenient and efficient use of electricity in our modern world," specialists say.

Dear Abby

Callers trip on language barrier

NOTE: The first letter (signed "Another Miserable Wife") in the Monday, Nov. 8 issue of Dear Abby contained an incorrect zip code in Abby's answer. The correct address at which readers can obtain information about hearing problems is: Hearing, Box 1840, Washington, D.C., 20013 — Not 10013 as was originally sent.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a student nurse in Chicago, I used an effective method of dealing with unwanted attention, whether it came from an obscene phone call, men trying to pick me up in the Loop or panhandlers who hung around the train station. I pretended I couldn't understand English!

No matter what was said to me, I rattled off two sentences I had learned in my high school German class. The ones I used were, "Lets us go to the library" and "I would go with you but I don't have my notebooks." I kept repeating these sentences in a perfect German accent as though I really knew what I was talking about, and I was left alone immediately. This worked with telephone solicitors, people trying to sell me siding, roofing, magazine subscriptions, etc.

The only difficult part was keeping my face straight while delivering this spiel in German. (I heard some unusual comments from people as they hung up or walked away.)

Any high school student who is currently learning a foreign language could teach you a sentence or two for this purpose. So many people speak Spanish today, I think it might be wise to pick some other language. Auf Wiedersehen!

SHERRY IN WATSEKA, ILL.
DEAR SHERRY: Bitte spreche kein Deutsch in Milwaukee. (or parts of Pennsylvania) or your little kunst will be kaput!

(Translation: Please don't speak German in Milwaukee — or parts of Pennsylvania — or your little trick will be finished!)

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say something in your column about letter-writing? Some people seem to think that they cannot send a letter to a friend or relative unless it is long, so they put off writing until they have time to write 10 or 12 pages.

I don't know about others, but to me, a short letter now is a lot more appreciated than a long letter later.

DEAR DOTTY: I agree. Most long letters are so long the recipients put off reading them until they have more time.

If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue

Things that go "thud" in the chest

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you explain P.V.C.'s (heart palpitations)? I have them and my doctor says I've had the situation that causes them all my life. I am now 62. They never bothered me until the last few months. I also have high blood pressure and have been taking medication for it. — P.L.D.

Premature ventricular contractions happen to almost everyone sometime or other to some degree. And they are exactly what the name indicates, a heartbeat that occurs before it should — prematurely. After such a premature contraction (P.V.C.) there is a slightly prolonged pause before the next normal beat comes. During that tiny pause, the heart chamber has filled with more blood than usual. Then, when the normal beat does come, there's more blood to empty from the chamber. So you feel it as a more forceful pumping — a sudden thud in the chest.

Stimulation from such things as nicotine or caffeine can produce the premature beat, and they do tend to become more frequent as we get older. If they are not markedly frequent (occurring one right after another) and if there are no other signs of heart disease, P.V.C.'s are no cause for alarm.

And, yes, you probably have had the situation all of your life, as your doctor explained. If your doctor has been able to determine that your heart is otherwise normal, this should not worry you. One other thought: You mentioned taking medicine for high blood pressure. Are you taking a diuretic? If so, and if that is lowering your potassium level, that might explain premature beats. So you really should report the situation to the prescribing physician. That is a problem easily overcome with alternation of medicine.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am considering a tubal ligation to prevent future pregnancy. How certain can a woman be that it will work? I have heard of some women becoming pregnant after having the ligation. — Mrs. T.S.

It has been estimated that anywhere between two and six women of every thousand who have the tubal ligation may later become pregnant. In some instances, the woman may already have been in a very early stage of pregnancy at the time the procedure was done. In a smaller number, the tubes may have reopened during the healing process following the surgery.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, send for the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.
