Teamsters president convicted

CHICAGO (AP) — Teamsters union President Roy L. Williams and four other men were convicted today of conspiring to bribe Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev.

The six-man, six-woman U.S. District Court jury returned its verdict at the beginning of the fifth day of deliberations, which lasted almost 27 hours.

As Judge Prentice H. Marshall read the verdicts, Williams sat impassively and there was little reaction from the other defendants or their families.

Chicago crime syndicate figure. They were accused of conspiracy, interstate travel to further bribery and wire fraud.

Cannon and Williams both took the stand as defense witnesses during the eight weeks of testimony. Both denied any bribe was offered or accepted during a Jan. 10, 1979, meeting at the senator's Las Vegas office.

The government charged that the five conspired to bribe Cannon with exclusive rights to buy a prime piece of land in Las Vegas at a reduced price in return for his help in defeating trucking deregulation legislation.

Cannon was not charged, and the bill became law with his support. Cannon, who last month lost a reelection bid, declined comment on the verdict.

On trial with Williams, 67, were Allen Dorfman, 59, a millionaire insurance executive and former consultant to the Teamsters' Central States Pension Fund; Thomas O'Malley, 46, a pension fund trustee; Andrew Massa, 65, a former trustee; and Joseph 'Joey the Clown' Lombardo, 53, a reputed

Council agrees to 3-year contract

Shaffer Ambulance subsidy increased

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

After a 30-minute discussion with audience members, the Big Spring City Council agreed last night to a $1,000 monthly subsidy increase for Shaffer Ambulance, Inc.

The council agreed to a three-year contract that increases the city's monthly subsidy to $4,000. The proposal will be considered again at the Dec. 28 council meeting after four areas of the contract are clarified.

John Korell, the company's president, also has asked the county to increase its monthly subsidy from $1,500 to $2,000.

Korell said Shaffer will spend the extra money on employee training and new equipment to upgrade ambulance service. Korell said he wants to employ a more expensive Advanced Life Support service that reduces the death rate related to heart attack and major trauma. Before council members voted on the proposal, Mrs. Ruth Penner of 2 Highland Cove objected to an increased subsidy until "we can be sure the people are properly trained."

Mrs. Penner said she brought 15 witnesses to an incident which demonstrated Shaffer's "incompetence." She said Shaffer took 45 minutes to arrive at the scene of a man's heart attack, failed to bring oxygen or a stretcher, and an ambulance attendant panicked at the scene because she lacked cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) training.

"I'd hate to have someone I loved be permitted to die" because the ambulance crew didn't know CPR," she said.

Local attorney Elliott Mitchell, accountant Charlie Lewis and Dr. Bruce Cox appeared on Shaffer's behalf.

Mitchell called Mrs. Penner's account "one woman's version" and said he knows two witnesses whose version contradicts her description. Korell also denied Mrs. Penner's account.

Cox, a Big Spring physician for two years, said he favors the subsidy and added that the Mrs. Penner's case is an "isolated incident."

"That's not to say we have the best ambulance service," Cox said. "We're dealing with a private company. But I definitely feel Shaffer has made progress (since 1981) within the feasibility of their economic format."

The council also:

Former inmate sues Mitchell County sheriff

COLORADO CITY — A former Mitchell County Jail inmate is suing Sheriff Wendell Bryant and a deputy for $2.5 million for allegedly violating his civil rights.

Wendell Lane Mayo, currently a prisoner in the Goree Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, filed the lawsuit in federal court in Abilene as an indigent without the aid of an attorney.

Mayo said in his suit that Bryant and his chief deputy, Bobby Callaway, illegally searched Mayo's cell and confiscated papers to be entered in his prison record which might prove harmful to him. The papers show Mayo to also be known by the name of a Sweetwater man with a history of sexual offenses, Mayo's petition said. He said the documents could be "very detrimental to him, should this be rumored among the inmates."

Mayo also claims his chances for furlough and parole will be harmed by the presence of the confiscated documents in his file.

Mayo's suit seeks $2.5 million and removal of the confiscated documents from his prison files. However, the petition does not deny Mayo is the Sweetwater man.

Mayo also claims that he was denied freedom of the press, denied the right to correspond with his attorneys, denied access to the courts and was given improper medication. His petition gives no details.

Bryant and Callaway could not be reached for comment.

County sets tax rate

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners today unanimously set the county tax rate at 24 cents per $100 valuation — a half cent reduction from last year's rate — and approved a 40 percent homestead exemption.

Commissioners met in an emergency session following the certification of the county tax roll by the appraisal review board Tuesday afternoon.

Commissioners approved the 1982 certified tax roll for the county which totaled $1.5 billion in property valuations.

The 24-cent rate will generate $3,415,597 from the $1,423,165,785 county evaluations, according to County Auditor Jackie Olson. However, commissioners expect a tax revenue collection of $3,074,038, based on a 10 per cent uncollectible rate.

The county's 1982-1983 budget, approved earlier this year, is based on expected tax collections of $3,905,198.

Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira was called by the commissioners to explain what his office used to determine the exemptions for the county. Pereira said he used a "conservative" estimate on the number of homestead exemptions currently filed and those expected to be filed before the deadline in February. Exemptions are expected to total $113 million.

College district OKs exemptions

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The Howard County Junior College District Board of Trustees in a special meeting yesterday approved a 40 percent homestead exemption in response to the county's recent certification of the tax rolls.

By setting the exemption, the board also tentatively agreed on a tax rate of 14 cents per $100 property valuation.

After notice of the exemption is published, the board will officially vote on the tax rate Friday, according to Dr. Charles Hays, president of the district.

The district plans to raise about $1,500,000 in tax revenue with the new exemption and tax levy. The 14-cent rate is the same as last year's rate, Dr. Hays said.

The board also grants a $12,000 exemption to persons 65 and older.

Under the exemption plan the district will take the taxpayer's home appraisal value and subtract 40 percent from that amount. The tax will be applied on the remaining

School district audit report is favorable

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Independent School District received a good report yesterday on an independent audit of the district's financial and personnel records done each year in accordance with the Texas Education Code.

The audit, done by Maxwell Green, a local accountant, analyzed changes in reserves and fund balances and compared the official budget of the 1981-82 school year with actual revenues and expenditures.

The audit also analyzed the district's Title I Program and Head Start kindergarten program.

Green said the district's financial records "fairly presented the financial position of the Big Spring Independent School District." Green cited "prudent management" as the reason for district's good report.

In other business the board:

- Heard an appraisal by the Industrial Appraisal Co. of Pennsylvania that reported the value of the buildings and contents of the BSISD to be $36,399,986.

- Hired Green as auditor for the 1982-83 school year.

- Heard a report on the California Achievement Test administered in September which showed BSISD students generally performing at or above anticipated scoring levels.

- Suspended two students for the remainder of the school year as recommended by the administration.

Wood defense 'not surprised'

By KATHRYN BAKER
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO — Defense attorneys representing the three people accused in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. say they were unhappy but not necessarily surprised when jurors convicted their clients.

All, however, said they were totally unprepared for the emotion with which the jurors returned the verdicts Tuesday.

"There is nothing in my experience that could have prepared me for the reaction of this jury," said veteran defense attorney Warren Burnett, who represented Elizabeth Chagra.

As soon as Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions began to read the six verdicts the jury was required to reach, all nine women and one of the men on the jury began to weep openly.

It took a moment before courtroom spectators, whose eyes were fixed on the defendants for signs of reaction, realized the magnitude of the jury's emotions.

Charles V. Harrelson, 44, was found guilty of conspiracy and of murdering the judge on May 29, 1979. His wife, Jo Ann, 41, was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice, and Mrs. Chagra, wife of convicted narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, was convicted of both obstruction of justice and conspiracy to murder.

Chagra will be tried later on charges he ordered the murder because he was to have been tried before Wood, known as "Maximum John" for the tough sentences he dealt drug defendants.

It took two weeks to pick the jury, because of the extensive publicity surrounding the case since Wood was gunned down outside his San Antonio townhouse. Mostly blue-collar or clerical workers, the jury listened intently to the complex evidence in the case. Several times since they began deliberating Saturday, they asked for additional information and clarification of the charges.

At 9:50 a.m. Tuesday, shortly after they had asked for another reading of the murder conspiracy charge, jurors announced they had reached verdicts.

Sessions first read the guilty verdicts against Harrelson and his wife. The sobbing increased when the guilty verdicts against Mrs. Chagra were read.

Mrs. Chagra's attorney, Warren Burnett, had tried to show she was obeying a mean and domineering husband and unwittingly delivered a $250,000 payoff to Harrelson through an intermediary.

Burnett was nothing short of stricken after the verdicts.

"We were desperate, as all people dealing with the unknown are," said Burnett. "The smiles, the glances from the jury — we took them as good signs. It takes a lot to destroy hope, but today we've taken a very big step, it seems."

A 28-year-old woman who had lived a life of luxury in Las Vegas, Nev., Mrs. Chagra has said that she became a born-again Christian while in custody. She smiled reassuringly at the sobbing jurors and mouthed at one point, "That's all right."

"She doesn't have a full grasp of what has happened to her," said Burnett after Mrs. Chagra was taken into custody by federal marshals. "She did ask me, 'Am I going to have to spend the rest of my life in the penitentiary?'"

The defendants will not be sentenced until March, Sessions ruled, to avoid affecting Chagra's upcoming trial.

Shultz denies pope linked Soviets to shooting

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today described as "totally wrong" a report that Pope John Paul II told him he believed the KGB was behind the attempt to assassinate the pontiff.

"There is absolutely no truth to that story," Shultz said of the report carried by Cable News Network.

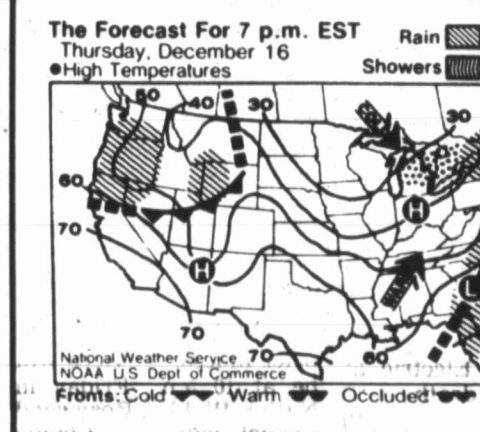

"Where it came from, I can't imagine," Shultz said.

"This is totally wrong," Shultz said.

Shultz said he had nothing to say about what the pope told him in a private audience at the Vatican on Monday, and that it would be "totally inappropriate" for him to comment. Shultz made his statements to reporters during a flight from Paris to Madrid.

Cable News Network said White House sources reported that Shultz outlined his conversation with the pope in a telegram to President Reagan. The network pointed out that the KGB was headed by Soviet leader Yuri Andropov at the time of the assassination try 19 months ago.

Weather

Clear skies all over Texas

Clear skies dominated the Texas weather picture today as slightly cooler temperatures moved across the state before dawn.

Some clouds and fog lingered over East Texas and along most of the coast.

Temperatures at 4 a.m. ranged from 26 at Amarillo and Lubbock to 64 at Beaumont.

Northerly to northwesterly winds blowing from five to 15 mph were blowing over most of the state.

The forecast called mostly fair skies and mild temperatures through Thursday.

A strong storm off the coast of British Columbia brought wintry weather to the Pacific Northwest early today with snow, heavy rain and flooding in some areas.

Strong winds battered the coast of Washington and Oregon with gusts around 40 mph and unofficial reports of winds over 100 mph at Mount Ashland, Ore.

Pendleton, Ore., had some flooding as heavy rain quickly drained off frozen ground, the National Weather Service said.

High winds and heavy seas crippled an Indian freighter about 700 miles off the Oregon coast, and another ship reported that it was standing by to pick up crewmen in lifeboats, the Coast Guard said.

FORECAST
West Texas — Fair through Thursday. Warmer Thursday. Highs 52 to 68. Lows 22 to 32. Highs Thursday 60 to 72.

EXTENDED FORECAST
West Texas: Fair and warmer most sections, turning cooler north on Sunday. Lows in the 30s and 40s, high generally in the 50s, warming on Saturday into the 70s.

Lawyer still hopes to halt Autry execution

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — An attorney seeking to save condemned killer James Autry from his date with death says time is running out, but he believes he will be able to plead his client's case before Friday's scheduled execution.

Autry, 28, of Port Arthur would be the second Texan in 10 days put to death by lethal injection.

His attorney, Charles Carver, asked a Beaumont federal court Tuesday to grant a stay of execution, contending Autry's constitutional rights were abridged when police obtained a statement they said contained an admission of guilt.

U.S. District Judge Robert M. Parker promised to rule on the attorney's court brief by 2 p.m. today, Carver said.

"I know it's going to be tight, but there is ample time to pursue all of Mr. Autry's appeals," he said. "I'll do anything that is within the law to save my client's life. We just can't let the man die."

Carver's motion ran almost 60 pages and claims 11 technical errors in Autry's trial. He filed the brief here and said a clerk from his office took a copy to Marshall, Texas, where Parker is holding court.

The attorney said the Dec. 7 execution of Charlie Brooks Jr., Texas' first in 18 years, created a "crisis-like atmosphere" and caused him to write a much longer petition than he would have otherwise.

Carver said he plans to file an appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and the U.S. Supreme Court if Parker does not grant the stay.

Carver also asked the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin to intervene but it denied his request without comment Tuesday afternoon.

He said Autry did not want to die, but declined to characterize his client's state of mind further.

Autry was convicted of capital murder in October 1980 in the April 1980 slaying of Shirley Drouet, 43, a Port Arthur convenience store clerk.

Carver's brief contends Autry was denied his rights under the 14th Amendment when the trial judge made no formal ruling on the admissibility of the statement police obtained. The brief contends Port Arthur police also had a videotape that showed Autry had been beaten.

10 people arrested in burglary ring

AMARILLO (AP) — Ten people have been arrested and more than $325,000 worth of property recovered after an undercover investigation into a burglary ring, sheriff's officials say.

All 10 suspects are from Amarillo, said Potter County Sheriff T.L. Baker, who added that more arrests are expected. The suspects were arrested in El Paso, Fort Worth, Amarillo, Panhandle and Albuquerque, N.M.

More than $200,000 worth of cars, vans and motorcycles and about $125,000 worth of other property was recovered in El Paso, Baker said.

"It was a pretty extensive operation. They were going after anything they could get their hands on," Baker said.

The three-month investigation culminated last week when Potter County sheriff's deputies were sent to El Paso, where they began purchasing the stolen property, Baker said.

"Our guy bought quite a bit of stuff from these people," he said. "They were selling him the cars and other equipment."

The ring apparently stole property from the Panhandle and sold it in El Paso and New Mexico, Baker said. Officers began making the arrests on Saturday, he said.

"We expect several more arrests within the next few days," he said.

Woman kills daughter, self

HOUSTON (AP) — A suburban housewife, reportedly upset over her poor health, fatally shot her sleeping daughter, before turning the gun on herself at her fashionable home northwest of Houston, investigators said.

James D. Jordan Jr., 40, found the bodies of Connie Sue Jordan, 38, and Jill Monique Jordan, 10, at 11:35 a.m. Tuesday in his daughter's upstairs bedroom, officials said.

Sheriff's detective Ronnie Phillips said the girl was found in bed, shot once on the temple with a .38-caliber handgun. Her mother lay nearby on the floor with a bullet wound to her right temple and the gun in her right hand.

Phillips said he could not explain why the woman would have shot her daughter.

Thieves steal Christmas tree

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Thieves cut down and hauled off the tiny tree that glowed with lights in the front yard, but the Christmas spirit still burns bright in the William Clayton family.

The Claytons, who moved here from Indiana last year, planted the three-foot-tall spruce in their front yard last January to celebrate their first Christmas here. This year they decorated the tree with little lights.

When Katie Clayton went out Tuesday morning to get the newspaper, all that was left of the tree was a four-inch stump.

"Katie came in with tears," Clayton said. "It's pretty sad when you see something like that, but it's still a season to be merry."

"I don't know why they would cut such a small tree," said Mrs. Clayton. "I hope somebody was desperate and not just out to vandalize."

The ring apparently stole property from the Panhandle and sold it in El Paso and New Mexico, Baker said. Officers began making the arrests on Saturday, he said.

"We expect several more arrests within the next few days," he said.

Boxing Club expresses thanks

Dear Editor,

In behalf of the Howard County Boxing Club we all say: Thank you Big Spring boxing fans for your support at the boxing tournament.

The Boxing Club held their last tournament of the year last weekend.

The Friday night fights resulted with Big Spring having four wins, one TKO by Markus Garza who weighs 75 pounds. They lost three fights on Friday.

On Saturday night they had 11 wins, one TKO by Gene Dukes who weighs 139 pounds and is the team's open class fighter.

Big Spring had the most winners and won the team trophy, but under certain boxing rules they gave the trophy to the runner-up team — in this case was from Snyder.

There were 11 teams represented from the surrounding towns: Odessa, Colorado City, Olton, Nazareth, Snyder, Lubbock, Seminole, Hereford, Tulia and Plainview. The last two have city champs going to Indiana for the nationals. They are part of a team going to represent West Texas.

Officiating at the tournament were Judge Tune and Commissioner Brown and members of the visiting teams. The tournament was quite long and into the night but the Big Spring fans stayed till they found out the City of Big Spring won the team trophy.

During the intermission, Commissioner Brown was awarded a team jacket for his support and help he has been to the team and to the boys. Judge Tune and Brown were also given a trophy for their help to the team. Coach Jose V. Martinez says the team really appreciates these two men and other people who have donated a lot to the club. We want to thank each and every person who has supported the club in many various ways.

The club is looking forward to bigger and better things coming in the year of 1983. The coaches are looking forward to having champions in the coming Junior Olympics and Golden Gloves from these boys. We are starting to gather information to have a boxing display at the County Court House.

We want the people of Big Spring to know that the boxes of the Howard County Boxing Club mean business and want to make this city well-known in the boxing circles. Already teams are asking to participate that have never considered coming out here before to fight in our tournaments.

A lot of support was given to this tournament by many people and again, I say thanks, in behalf of the whole team, coaches and parents of the boxers.

Anyone interested in boxing or helping is welcomed at any time at the club. Our new phone number after 6 p.m. is 7-9389. Coach Martinez, Baldwin or Mr. Garza will be on hand to answer any questions.

Thank you,

Trade war on Mondale

WASHINGTON — Fritz Mondale can speak for himself, and he will if he wants to stay front-runner in the Democratic presidential race very long. But the current charge that he is a protectionist raises issues of a larger kind.

At stake is a feel for the way many diverse components fit into the general economic picture. Mondale possesses, far more than most, the acumen and honesty required to place trade in the context of larger elements of economic policy like growth and interest rates.

Growth comes first. When it is slow, as it has been since 1979, unemployment rises (10.8 percent in November for a postwar record) and capacity utilization falls (now under 69 percent for another postwar record). Since businessmen do not buy more plant and equipment when they already have too much, investment is off, especially in such expensive items as steel plants and machine tools. That means low innovation and vulnerability to foreign competition.

High interest rates, apart from prolonging slow growth, with all its negative consequences, have an especially perverse effect on international trade. For the high rates make it attractive for foreigners to put spare cash into American securities. Heavy demand appreciates the value of the dollar against other currencies. Thus in the last year, the dollar has risen by over 25 percent against the Japanese yen and the German mark, and by even larger amounts against such soft currencies as the French franc.

AS A DIRECT result, foreign goods become relatively cheaper and American products relatively more expensive. That is one of the reasons Japan has increased its share of the American auto market. It is one of the reasons European steel imports have recently done so well in this country.

A huge rise in protectionist sentiment follows from the combined impact of slow growth and high interest rates. American workers, threatened with further loss of jobs, become keen to fence out foreign products. Companies faced with loss of business feel the same way. The upshot is acute pressure for higher tariffs and other restrictions, particularly in heavy industry such as steel and autos.

The interconnection of all these issues is well understood by Mondale — perhaps better by him, indeed, than by any other political leader. Unlike most of the others, moreover, he addresses himself to the big, controlling factors as well as to the subsidiary matters.

In a chat with me the other day, he said he considered the return to sustained high growth "the indispensable component." To promote growth he wants the Federal Reserve Board to ease up on money supply so that interest rates can continue to move downward. But Mondale accepts the argument that to avoid a rebirth of inflation, easier money has to be accompanied by a lowering of the huge budget deficits that loom ahead.

Big budgetary cuts find favor in his eyes, especially in future years after recovery has been assured. He would bear down heavily on military expenses, and would like to see $10 billion cut from this year's defense budget. He thinks another $6 or $7 billion can be cut from domestic spending by containing hospital costs. To raise revenues he is prepared to rescind the part of the 1983 tax cut that applies to persons with incomes over $60,000 annually.

THE REDUCTION of deficits, Mondale believes, should be geared explicitly to reductions in interest rates. He deems it very important to strike "an accord" between the political authorities and the Federal Reserve Board. He foresees, in that event, a relatively rapid recovery that would soon yield the tax revenues necessary to close budget deficits dramatically.

Sustaining the recovery, in Mondale's view, requires that American companies, apart from selling here, have an opportunity to export. So he would like to see other countries, and especially Germany and Japan, move in harmony with the U.S. to promote economic growth. He wants what he calls an "international strategy for recovery."

As one of several tactics to achieve that goal, Mondale brandishes the threat of protectionist measures in this country. "If other countries refuse to open their markets to us," he says, "they should not have free access to our market. By the threat of some protectionism, we can move from mere talk about free trade to real action."

The Mondale approach to economic problems, in other words, is decidedly comprehensive. It reflects many of his best qualities. It is intelligent and clear. It is free of ideological cant and emotional hangups. It derives from the thoughts of some of the best people available in the political, business and academic communities.

Weaknesses, to be sure, also show up in the Mondale approach. He is a highly political being, partial to the constituent elements of the Democratic Party — especially organized labor and the minorities. He is not a tiger on national defense.

But to assail him as a protectionist is to abandon any sense of proportion. It is to miss the forest for the trees, and even the bark. The charge comes particularly amiss from those who are themselves exponents of the values Monday exemplifies — fairness, honesty and a progressive outlook.

Billy Graham

I'm waiting on death row

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am on death row, because I murdered a man. I am filled with remorse over what I have done, and I would do anything to feel that God had forgiven me. — P.A.

DEAR P.A.: Before I answer your question directly, let me make one comment. There may well be many people reading this question who are saying in their minds, "What a terrible thing that man did! God can forgive me, because I haven't done anything very bad. But surely he won't forgive someone who has done such an evil thing!" But what we all need to see is that all of us are sinners in the eyes of God, and deserve only his judgment, no matter what we have done. Yet we can be saved — including you — not because our sins are small, but because God's grace is great.

Do you remember the account of Jesus' crucifixion? When Jesus was put to death, he was completely innocent of any crime — in fact, the Bible tells us that he was without sin, because he was the sinless Son of God. But when he was put to death on the cross there were two men who were put to death with him — one on either side of him. They were, we are told, criminals and robbers. One of the men hurled insults at Jesus, but the other turned to Jesus in faith and said, "Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom." Then we read that Jesus replied, "I tell you the truth, today you will be with me in paradise" (Luke 23:42-43).

Jesus forgave the man who turned to him in repentance and faith — and he will forgive you as well. Every week I get letters from men and women who are in prison, and who have discovered the joy of forgiveness by accepting Christ into their hearts. Christ died for you on that cross — he took upon himself the punishment you deserve. Accept him by faith, and you can know not only the joy of forgiveness but the hope of eternal life through Christ.

Around the Rim

Killer rabbits

Why anyone would want to be the President of the United States is truly a mystery if one considers the kind of life a President leads.

The smallest personal detail in his private life becomes front-page news in every major newspaper, is discussed on the evening news and is used by every comedian as prime joke material.

Not only do we the public take the mundane affairs of the life of a President and make them household knowledge, but we like to find out the little-known quirks of our top men so that we can talk about them as well.

Of course these little oddities of life we would not want known about us, but you can rest assured we like to discover what the President's off-key habits are like.

PERHAPS THE best past examples of a President's "unusual life" receiving immense publicity are former President Carter's revelation that he had lusted after other women and the infamous killer rabbit affair. Now most men probably have looked at other women, but they were not the President or talking to Playboy magazine.

Concerning the killer rabbit incident, poor Carter was just trying to get in a little fishing when an antisocial rabbit kamikazed his boat. If I had been attacked by a rabbit, I wouldn't have told anybody, but the President gets raked over the coals again.

Former President Ford is another example of a minor trait becoming common knowledge. The man bumps his head two or twenty times on the door of his helicopter and everybody starts calling him a klutz.

Some of Johnny Carson's and the old Saturday Night Live's best humor came from Ford's alleged clumsiness, but who of us would like to be known as an uncoordinated stumbler? Of course, Ford didn't help his image when he belted a few people with golf drives.

President Reagan is already under fire now for things like incredible gaffes during speeches, working two or three hours a day, taking month-long vacations ever so often and sleeping through the Libyan plane affair. Things he has no control over such as his age and his acting background are targets for jokes while his work habits are discussed endlessly by the media.

WE LIKE to know little things about our Presidents, but the desire to know the odd fact is not a current trait. Our past Presidents were under close scrutiny as well.

Did you know President Franklin Pierce once ran over a little old lady in his carriage? Or that President Grant was arrested for reckless driving? What about President Andrew Johnson making his own clothes? Personally, I like knowing Woodrow Wilson kept 48 sheep on the White House lawn while President.

Even the "father of our country" is not immune from examination.

George Washington was said to be one of the most dreaded swearers of his time. His command of profanity was such that he scared his own soldiers while he was leading the Continental Army. Also, when running for the Virginia House in 1758, Washington supplied voters with 28 gallons of wine, 43 gallons of rum, 40 gallons of rum punch and 3½ pints of brandy.

I wonder how his voters found the polls.

I suppose we like to know everything about our Presidents in order to reduce the distance between us. Knowing the man with the power to end civilization is not infallible and is not unfeeling seems to be part of the comfort we get from discovering the fragility of our leaders.

Some consider it bad luck to let your shadow fall on a tree.

Was Murphy innocent?

WASHINGTON — There is startling new evidence that could establish the innocence of former Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., who was convicted in the FBI sting operation known as ABSCAM. The congressman was set up by an apparent liar.

Murphy was sentenced last year to three years in prison for accepting a "gratuity" from the FBI men who were posing as Arab sheiks in the ABSCAM operation. He is appealing the verdict.

The exculpatory evidence comes from one of the FBI's middlemen, Howard Criden, a Philadelphia lawyer who "delivered" Congressman Murphy into the FBI's trap. Oddly enough, federal prosecutors did not produce Criden at Murphy's trial.

Criden broke his silence for the first time when he testified recently in a secret session of the Senate select committee that investigated the FBI's alleged abuses in the ABSCAM caper. Criden's testimony has been sealed, but sources close to the committee have briefed my associates Indy Badhwar and Jack Mitchell. Badhwar has seen a transcript of Criden's explosive testimony.

In essence, Criden told the senators that he had falsely boasted to FBI undercover agents about his contacts with Congressman Murphy. Criden did this, he said, in order to con the FBI's phony sheiks into financing a casino in which he was hoping to purchase an interest. Despite Criden's failure to appear at Murphy's trial, the federal prosecutors used Criden's "knowledge" of Murphy's motives to convict the former congressman.

The most devastating evidence against Murphy was a secret videotape of a meeting between the congressman and the undercover agents on Oct. 20, 1979. Murphy was invited to the meeting — in a room covered by hidden FBI cameras — on the pretext that Arab refugees wanted his help for Arabs who were fleeing leftist regimes and who wanted to settle in the United States.

Criden was there, of course, as the go-between. And a briefcase containing $50,000 was passed to Criden, who left with it. There was no mention of money in the videotaped discussion with the congressman. He says he never knew the briefcase contained money. The government charged that

Murphy knew the briefcase contained money, but the prosecution was never able to show when or where he actually took possession of his share in the FBI bribe.

BUT HERE'S what was in Criden's secret testimony to the senators:

— Criden never told Murphy what was in the briefcase.

— The government's claim at Murphy's trial that the congressman had been briefed in advance about the illegal nature of the meeting with the FBI sheiks was false. Criden testified at the closed Senate hearing that he had discussed neither bribery nor payments of any sort with the congressman before the meeting. Criden said he had told Murphy that the "sheiks" were simply interested in investing money in the refurbishing of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which was in Murphy's congressional district.

— Criden took the whole briefcase full of boodle and shared it with another ABSCAM target at a meeting on the New Jersey Turnpike.

— To impress the presumed sheiks, Criden mentioned the names of several congressmen whom he didn't know. He also offered to produce senators, governors and State Department officials, and boasted of his alleged CIA connections.

— Criden met Murphy for the first time on Oct. 19, 1979 — the day before he brought him to the meeting with the phony Arab sheiks.

— Criden admitted that he had made phone calls to FBI undercover agents falsely claiming to know Murphy well.

— The FBI was apparently dissatisfied with the results of the Oct. 20 meeting with Murphy. So the G-men paid Criden $5,000 to produce the congressman at another meeting before FBI cameras three months later. Even at this meeting, Murphy categorically refused to participate in any discussion about bribes or payoffs.

Walesa urges labor movement

By W. JOSEPH CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland — Lech Walesa, leader of the outlawed Solidarity union, is urging followers to peacefully achieve their goal of an independent labor movement despite the restrictions of Poland's military rule.

"I am asking all of you who are waiting for the fulfillment of these hopes to go back home in peace, think this over, and work toward this end... let's not be pushed off a peaceful way of achieving our aims," Walesa said in the text of a prepared speech given to Western journalists Tuesday.

A reliable source told reporters Walesa hoped to give the speech Thursday in his hometown of Gdansk at a rally commemorating fellow Lenin Shipyard workers killed by police in 1970 during a demonstration Walesa helped organize.

It would be the Solidarity leader's first speech since his release from government internment last month. He was taken into custody on Dec. 13, 1981 — when the Communist government decreed martial law to crush 16 months of labor unrest and political challenges by the union.

The government has not said whether it will suspend martial-law restrictions against assembly to let Walesa speak. It has promised to suspend basic martial-law edicts by Jan. 1, including relaxation of a prohibition against public gatherings.

In what appeared to be an attempt to discredit organizers of the memorial observance, the official news agency PAP said Tuesday that government auditors found "many irregularities in the management of union funds" at the Gdansk chapter of Solidarity.

In the text of the speech, Walesa also called for resumption of the campaign to give labor a voice in the planning and management of the crisis-bound Polish economy.

But he declared, as he did throughout Solidarity's official existence, that the labor movement is not trying to rid Poland of Communist rule. Solidarity, the only independent labor organization ever allowed in the Soviet bloc, was outlawed by the parliament in October.

"Our cause is not aimed against anybody," he said. "We are not overthrowing the authority; we accept the political realities which were created by the world and history."

In another development Tuesday, PAP said the government will "suspend granting visas to any representatives of the U.S.

Information Agency or its branches" and will "consider all visa applications from the United States with an eye to the interests and security of the (Polish) state."

It said the government will also "stop all forms of scientific and cultural cooperation with the U.S. Information Agency and all other U.S. federal agencies which engage in anti-Polish activity."

The restrictions are in response to the "intensification of the aggressiveness in the programs of the U.S. Voice of America and Radio Free Europe" and President Reagan's speech Dec. 10 in which he again accused the Polish regime of repression instigated under Soviet pressure.

Walesa said in the text of his speech he was faithful to the "ideals of August," the principles of independent unionism laid down in August 1980 when Solidarity was founded, and "to the workers and the Polish cause, as a Pole and a worker."

Declaring Solidarity "exists within us," he likened the movement to a river with four "tributaries."

"The trade unions which we won... pluralism, but at the same time a return to activity according to the statute and defense of the working-class world."

Gang seals off Irish town

CARNDONAGH, Ireland

(AP) — A gang of 14 armed, masked robbers, including two young women, held residents of this border town at bay for a half-hour while they robbed all three banks and fled to the Northern Ireland border.

Police, who searched for the gang today, said the robbers made off with an estimated $66,500 in Tuesday's robbery, the most daring in the country for several years.

Police said no shots were fired during the raid and no one was hurt.

A police spokesman said the gang lured half of the town's 12 policemen away with a hoax telephone call about trouble in a nearby village and then cut all telephone lines into the town.

West European peace activists march again

LONDON (AP) — West European peace activists who turned out in hundreds of thousands in 1981 are marching again, this time in smaller groups outside U.S. bases where 572 nuclear missiles are to be deployed starting next year.

In the new grassroots approach, anti-nuclear campaigners have engaged in mass acts of civil disobedience reminiscent of the U.S. civil rights protests of the 1960s — lying down outside gates of military bases in human blockades and forcing police to drag them away.

"You can't go on having large demonstrations forever," said Lukas Beckmann, a leading member of the pro-environment and anti-nuclear Greens Party in West Germany. "One must get out and do something at the bases."

In Italy, 5,000 pacifists are walking a 950-mile "peace march," and expect to arrive before Christmas outside the Sicilian town of Comiso where 112 U.S.-built cruise missiles are to be stationed.

In Britain, several dozen women have been maintaining a "peace camp" for the past 15 months outside the U.S. Air Force base at Greenham Common, where the first 96 cruise missiles are scheduled to be deployed. Last weekend, 20,000 women formed what they called a "chain of peace" around the base. Police later hauled away hundreds who formed a human carpet outside the gates.

In West Germany, demonstrators blocked entrances to about 50 military bases Sunday. They protests marked the third anniversary of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's decision to station the cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe starting next year to counter a perceived Soviet threat.

At the U.S. Forces European Command headquarters in Vaihingen, about 10 miles northwest of Stuttgart, police carried away about 100 demonstrators who held up traffic. Those seized included two members of Parliament from the opposition Social Democratic Party.

During the past month, peace protesters have demonstrated in Sweden, Norway and Denmark, where the debate over deploying U.S. missiles has been a major foreign policy issue.

NATO decided to deploy medium-range missiles in Europe to counter sophisticated Soviet SS-20s, targeted on all of Western Europe. Last week, U.S. officials said the Soviets have 333 such missiles, each with a triple warhead.

Earlier this month, the Soviet Union indicated it would reduce its medium-range missile force by more than half if the United States halts deployment of the cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe.

Daughter of Honduran president missing

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Security squads stopped cars and searched houses early today for clues to the whereabouts of the daughter of Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova after she was kidnapped by leftist guerrillas.

The government announced Tuesday night that an unidentified guerrilla group seized Xiomara Suazo Estrada, a 33-year-old pharmacist who lives in Guatemala City, and demanded publication of a "political manifesto" in return for her life.

Interior Minister Ricardo Mendez Ruiz said the guerrillas had warned in a communique that her life "will be in danger" if the manifesto is not published in Central American and Mexican newspapers by Friday.

Guatemalan officials said security agents began searching the capital after the announcement looking for signs of Miss Suazo Estrada, who was believed abducted by armed men as she was leaving a clinic here.

In a separate statement sent to the news media, the guerrillas set a deadline of 8:30 p.m. (9:30 p.m. EST) Friday.

Speaking over national radio and television, Mendez Ruiz described the kidnapers as "communists" and "extremists without a country" and said the Honduran president's daughter was "a Guatemalan citizen" not connected in any way with Honduran politics.

"Once again innocent persons are victims," he said. "It is not the government that is carrying out these kidnappings. It is one more case of lack of respect for human rights."

He was apparently referring to charges by human rights groups that conservative Central American governments terrorize people with kidnappings and killings to prevent them from associating with leftist insurgent movements.

Miss Suazo Estrada has lived in Guatemala for 20 years with her mother, also a Guatemalan citizen formerly married to the Honduran president, Mendez Ruiz said. He did not further identify the mother.

In Tegucigalpa, capital of Honduras, a government spokesman said Miss Suazo Estrada had received kidnap threats during a three-day visit there two months ago.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said she is Suazo Cordova's daughter by his first marriage. He said she rarely visits her father.

Since Saturday, Suazo Cordova has been in Houston, undergoing treatment for laryngitis. Friends said he has been informed of the kidnapping and planned to return to Tegucigalpa before Thursday.

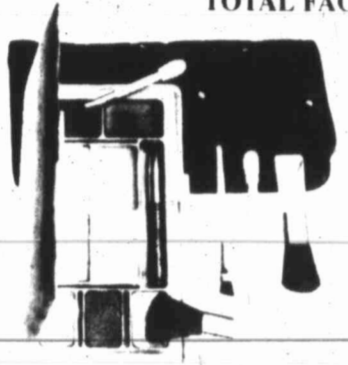

Government sources said he received the news "with great calm."

Mendez Ruiz said Guatemalan President Gen. Efraim Rios Montt had received a communique from an unidentified guerrilla group. He said the communique had also been sent to the Honduran president, to the defense ministers of the two countries and to Frederick Chapin, U.S. ambassador in Guatemala.

Senate struggles with proposed gas tax hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders are struggling to break another filibuster against President Reagan's proposed gasoline tax hike and clear the legislative impasse delaying adjournment of the 97th Congress.

Meanwhile, the House passed an emergency spending bill containing a $5.4 billion Democratic jobs package. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., urged the Senate and President Reagan to accept the measure to help "begin the long-awaited recovery before Christmas."

The Senate choked off one filibuster Monday in order to take up the gasoline tax measure designed to raise the price by a nickel a gallon. But a second filibuster occurred, and the Senate met through the night and into this morning before taking a break for about eight hours.

A vote to shut off the second filibuster was expected Thursday afternoon.

The House, meanwhile, ignored a veto threat Tuesday, sending the Senate the so-called continuing resolution on a 204-200 vote.

Congress has not finished work on all of the 13 annual appropriations bills that provide money for federal government operations and programs. Thus, the spending measure is necessary to keep money flowing to the federal government after Friday, when a current stopgap spending bill expires.

House Democratic leaders have jumped on the new stopgap bill as the vehicle to keep their campaign promise of passing legislation to create jobs for the unemployed.

"I hope that the Senate and the president do not close their hearts to the anguish of the unemployed," O'Neill said after the House vote Tuesday. "By signing the bill, the president can begin the long awaited recovery before Christmas."

Jobs provisions in the House bill are in addition to the gasoline tax increase, which is aimed at raising $5.5 billion annually to finance highway, bridge and mass transit repair jobs.

The jobs portion of the House measure contains about 40 provisions. It includes $1 billion for a temporary emergency public works program and $100 million for the General Services Administration to buy about 15,000 vehicles to "stimulate jobs in the ailing automotive and related industries," according to an Appropriations Committee report accompanying the bill.

"This bill is a grab bag," said Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., the top GOP member of the Appropriations Committee. "A grab bag like we used to play in school."

Heart patient critical

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Barney Clark, in critical but stable condition today after surgery to replace the left side of his mechanical heart, has pneumonia and faces "awfully tough slugging" to recover from his third operation in two weeks, doctors say.

"He was in critical before and he's more critical now," said Dr. Chase Peterson, University of Utah vice president for health sciences, following an emergency operation Tuesday after a valve broke in Clark's polyurethane heart.

Two hours after surgery was finished, Clark, the first human to receive a permanent mechanical heart, was fully conscious and responding to doctors' questions by nodding his head, university Medical Center spokesman John Dwan said.

The 61-year-old retired dentist from the Seattle area was resting quietly today, a hospital spokeswoman said.

A social worker, Margaret Miller, said late Tuesday that she had visited the intensive care unit and found Clark's wife, Una Loy, "very encouraged about his condition."

Ms. Miller said those caring for Clark felt he was "more alert than he had been in some time."

But doctors said they were worried about pneumonia in Clark's left lung and possible effects of anesthesia from the frequent surgery.

"There is no reason why it can't succeed, but at the same time it will be awfully tough slugging for Dr. Clark," Peterson said. "He's a very, very sick man who's gone through multiple surgeries."

He said the pneumonia, discovered Monday after Clark showed a slight fever, was thought to be limited to the lower portion of the left lung. It was "a serious complication" — especially since Clark suffers from mild emphysema — but Peterson said it was being treated with antibiotics.

Clark's vital signs and functions of his other organs were normal and in many cases improved since his heart implant Dec. 2, said Peterson, adding that the patient also had regained strength from several days on a high-calorie liquid diet.

It was the first malfunction in Clark's air-driven Jarvik-7 heart since the implant. On Dec. 4, Clark underwent surgery to correct air leaks in his lungs, a complication doctors termed minor.

In the surgery Tuesday, the entire left ventricle of Clark's mechanical heart was replaced after a broken housing on the mitral valve caused his blood pressure to drop dramatically. Hospital spokesman John Dwan said the valve fractured at a weld from stress and the replaced left ventricle was under study.

"This is the mitral valve which is the most serious of any (failure) there could be," said Dr. Robert Jarvik, the device's inventor.

The valve has a tilting disk which allows blood to flow one way from Clark's natural left atrium — or upper heart chamber — to his artificial left ventricle. The housing, which holds the disk in place, broke where it joins a metal ring surrounding the valve, Jarvik said.

Dear Abby

Faulty invitation may miss this Ms.

DEAR ABBY: Educate the uninformed, please print this:

Many women retain their maiden name after they marry. In addressing invitations and cards to a married couple when this is the case, the envelope should read:

Mr. Peter Smith and Ms. Joan Jones
Street address and apartment number
City, state and zip code

Notice that the husband's and the wife's name are on the same line. Of course, if Joan uses her maiden name only for her professional life, social invitations to the couple should be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith.

When a couple is not married but lives together, write each name on a separate line in alphabetical order.

My husband and I are part of a growing group of liberated couples who do not choose to use the same last name. We run across many people who just do not know, and a few who refuse to accept the fact, that separate names are correct, proper and socially acceptable.

Abby, your column is responsible for the education of many — how about a lesson in the "new" and "proper" way to address invitations, cards, letters, etc. Just sign me ...

I AM A PERSON AND MY FIRST NAME ISN'T MRS.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I had my club of girls over for lunch. There are five of us — all in our 50s. Two girls are heavy smokers. After they left, I noticed a tiny cigarette burn in my best tablecloth!

How can I tactfully suggest to these smokers that they should be more careful?

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO TOWN: Actions speak louder than words. Next time you have the girls over, put heavy-duty placemats where you want the smokers to sit. Explain that "someone's" cigarette burned a small hole in your favorite tablecloth, so you are trying to prevent a similar accident from happening again.

DEAR ABBY: My recently retired husband has me worried. John (not his real name) is a good provider, kind, loving and doesn't hit the sauce. His passion is golf.

I don't mind his golfing every day, but I know that it doesn't take all day to play 18 holes of golf.

In the back of my mind I am wondering if maybe there isn't another woman. Please tell me if you think it would be OK for me to call the club to find out what time John has signed in to play — and what time he finished playing.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't call the club to check up on John. If you suspect there's another woman in his life, ask him. Maybe he's playing 27 holes. Or 36.

Dr. Donohue

Germs don't always cause disease

Dear Dr. Donohue: I would like to know about cytomegalovirus. I know it causes a wide range of birth defects. Why aren't young mothers-to-be told about the possibility of contracting it? I've read that 80 percent of the U.S. population are being infected with this virus. — R.M.

There is a misconception about infectious diseases. It is this: Every time a germ gets into the body, illness results. That is not true, and cytomegalovirus is a good example.

That seven-syllable virus has infected more than just 80 percent of the population. Probably everyone has harbored it at one time or another. However, very few people ever get sick as a result. Man has this kind of truce agreement with many organisms.

Now, sometimes the truce gets shaky and a virus, including the cytomegalovirus, can cause disease. Why it decides to do this in some people and not in most others we don't know. We do know, for example, that disease is much more common in people who have a defect in their body's natural defenses against infections in general. Defenses against infection can be deliberately weakened with drugs that have to be used for people who have kidney transplants. They need the medicine so that the body will not reject the kidney transplant tissue. So cytomegalovirus infection is more common in those people.

In others the virus may cause a mononucleosis-like illness, with temperature and enlarged lymph nodes. It can cause pneumonia. And, yes, in newborns it has resulted in birth defects — enlarged liver and spleen, skin rash and even brain-development disturbances. So why, you might well ask, does Dr. Donohue assume a cavalier approach to this organism?

We have no means of either treating or preventing such an infection. We don't know just how the virus is passed from person to person. And, although the virus does abound in nature and infects almost everyone, it rarely causes illness. So, at this stage all we can do is to continue learning more about the virus and hope that a preventive will be available in the future. I do not want to leave this discussion without again pointing out that cytomegalovirus is not a new and rampant organism wreaking havoc among us.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I do wish you could discuss a problem I have — sialolithiasis. It is a salivary gland problem. I know. It is very painful. — Mrs. H.K.

Sialolithiasis is the presence of a stone within the salivary duct. There may be a single, large stone or many small ones. can become quite painful. With blockage of the saliva flow, the gland swells, and in the obstructed duct.

Tammy Peugh — 4-H reporter

Around the county

Recently, Dennis Pool and Peggy Kalina 4-H Extension Agents met at Sands School for a 4-H information day. Students from the 3rd, 4th, and 5th grades attended. Principal Henry Hunter gave a talk on his involvement in 4-H.

Knott 4-H club had their monthly meeting Saturday, Dec. 4. Janie Hunt demonstrated methods of preparing fruits for dehydration. President Cole Hunt presided and gave a glowing report on his recent trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago. Lance Robinson and Russ Billingsley gave project reports on their show steers. Five new members were welcomed to the club: D'Nae Brown, Jade Johnson, Raemi Fryar, Tessa Garrett, Leann Maxwell. Planned projects include crochet and wood working.

Paty Schuelke taught girls to make decorative barrettes with ribbon. Nutritious snacks of beef jerky, apples, pears, bananas and pecans, were a taste treat not previously experienced by most of us.

Nine girls pulled and pushed to make a yarn chain, the first step in learning to crochet. Sometimes the needle and yarn didn't seem to cooperate, but with the help of special crochet experts, Pauline Schuelke, Linda Marshall, Joe Hughes and June Nichols everyone made at least one string of chains. Our star of the day, Tessa Garrett, was already making a flower.

New members today included Tody Owens and Jana Long.

Congratulations to Cole Hunt of Knott, and Scott Underwood of Gayhill for their outstanding work in winning the state record book. They both received a trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Welcome to a new club that has just organized in our area. The club has chosen the name Westsiders. We're glad to have it as part of our organization.

Gayhill club has been busy making candy Christmas wreaths and will be delivering them to area nursing homes.

CRMWD's December revenue expected to top forecast level

December revenue for the Colorado River Municipal Water District is expected to exceed projected levels, said district Treasurer Joe Pickle.

"This is another way of saying that the excess of revenues over expenditure of $789,130 for 11 months is not far off of what December revenues likely will be," Pickle said.

One of the reasons for this difference is that power costs are $422,475 under budget projections for 11 months, Pickle said, resulting from an imposition of a rate increase substantially later in the year than anticipated.

Pumping patterns which permitted production of water from sources nearest to point of delivery also contributed to the surplus, he said.

Another $140,790 was in unbudgeted interest earnings and $130,000 came from rural users (largely oil well drillers), he said. Most surplus will be applied to system expansion, he said.

November revenues amounted to $834,721, and operational expenses were $506,828, leaving $327,892 available for application to debt service, Pickle said.

During November, the 1,122,387,580 gallons pumped from Lakes J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence amounted to 91 percent of the 1,224,301,690 gallons produced, compared with 74 percent for the 11-month period, he said. Ward County well fields supplied only 2.5 percent for November, compared to 14.90 percent for 11 months, he said.

BREAK OUT THE BUBBLY — Herbert and Susan Keulzer pose with a bottle of champagne Monday outside the Grendel's, their Cambridge, Mass. restaurant. Earlier in the day the couple learned that the U.S. Supreme Court threw out a Massachusetts law which allowed churches to veto liquor licenses for nearby establishments.

Restaurant celebrates end to church ban on liquor

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — At Grendel's Den they are toasting a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that says churches can no longer stem the flow of liquor at pubs and restaurants in their neighborhoods.

Grendel's Den, a restaurant separated by an alley from the Armenian Catholic Church, was the instigator of the court suit.

Sue Kuelzer, who owns the Harvard Square landmark with her husband, Herbert, said they hoped to be serving liquor by New Year's Eve.

The 8-1 Supreme Court decision struck down a Massachusetts law allowing churches to veto liquor licenses for establishments within 500 feet of a church.

"We've been fighting so long for this," Kuelzer said. "We felt all along it was just totally unconstitutional. There are going to be a whole lot of restaurant owners who are going to be thrilled."

Grendel's Den had gone to court when the Holy Cross Armenian Catholic Church, located about 19 feet away, blocked its attempt to obtain a liquor license in 1977.

The state Supreme Court ruled against the restaurant, but federal courts backed them up. The U.S. Supreme Court upheld the lower federal courts.

Demo returns to Party

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A maverick Democrat who threatened his party's control of the Ohio Senate, by agreeing to join Republicans in exchange for the Senate presidency, has changed his mind.

Sen. M. Morris Jackson had said he would vote with Republicans in the next Legislature, convening in January, because Democrats were ignoring him despite his 16 years seniority.

The defection would have given Republicans control of the Senate, although Democrats took a 17-16 advantage in the Nov. 2 election.

Jackson, from Cleveland, is one of two black members of the Senate. He said Tuesday he dissolved the coalition after meeting with 15 members of Cleveland's black community.

Jackson to change his mind, said the state senator agreed to return to the Democrats in return for a committee chairmanship of his choice.

In a prepared statement, Jackson said he had received "substantial support" for his candidacy as Senate president, but changed his mind because Republican control of committee chairmanships would block the legislative agenda of Gov.-elect Richard Celeste.

"Considering the state's severe economic crisis and the importance of implementing Democratic programs, I have decided I can best serve my constituents, the state and the governor-elect as a member of the Senate Democratic caucus," he said.

Jackson was part of the Democratic leadership team until two years ago when Senate control was lost to Republicans.

20 men caught in flooded freighter

SEATTLE (AP) — An Indian freighter with a flooded hold was "rolling terribly" in high winds and heavy seas about 700 miles off the Oregon coast as a merchant vessel tried early today to save 20 crewmen who abandoned ship, the Coast Guard said.

Forty-one crewmen remained on board the 500-foot Jalamorari, which sent a distress signal at about 7 p.m. Tuesday saying its No. 2 hold was filled with water that was pouring through its hatches, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Chris Couch.

A freighter that steamed to its aid, the Timur Lady, radioed just after midnight that the crippled vessel was "rolling terribly," said Lt. Mark Ashley.

The Timur Lady radioed that it was attempting to pick up a lifeboat containing 20 people. The Jalamorari, a general cargo vessel from Bombay, was reported to be 700 miles due west of Coos Bay, Ore.

Ashley said the Jalamorari was buffeted by winds up to 58 mph and seas of 15 feet. Asked if a rescue would be dangerous, Ashley replied, "absolutely."

"We have a very unstable ship," he said. A Coast Guard C-130 turboprop plane from Sacramento, Calif., and a Canadian Maritime Forces rescue plane from Comox, on Vancouver Island, were flying to the stricken ship early today.

Two other merchant ships also were routed to the scene. The Coast Guard plane was to drop survival equipment.

The Jalamorari left Squamish, British Columbia, on Saturday with a cargo of wood pulp, Couch said. Its destination was not immediately known.

The 6,000-ton vessel is registered to Scindia Steam Navigation Co. Ltd. of Bombay, according to Lloyd's Register of Ships. It was built in Germany in 1972.

Open For Business

Remember back in early fall when the slogan, "We Believe in Big Spring" began to catch on? And remember when the whole town caught Steer fever and the spirit spread like wildfire, back and forth, from coach to player, from student to parent, from one person to hundreds? I remember well because great things began happening in this community. There were less negative responses, more positive attitudes. People began to look for ways to make things happen instead of finding excuses not to try. We began the process of discovering what a community can accomplish when it pulls together with a positive approach and believes in our limitless potential.

Last weekend was an example of just how well we are learning this lesson as the community worked together to put on a huge Christmas parade. It was an astounding success BECAUSE of Bill Nehls' outstanding, positive leadership, business support and contributions, and the group effort of the whole community.

After several weeks of meticulous planning, Saturday mornign came cold, damp, and threatening. The parade committee wasn't doubtful that the participants would show up nor that there would be spectators. Their confidence paid off with 93 of the 97 entries in line at 10 and the parade began to an appreciative audience of over 10,000 spectators lining the long route. It was fun!

Examples of the community spirit of cooperation that made it possible were abundant. Some of these included: Cathey Construction Company provided the helicopter to transport Santa from site to site. Bob Brock Ford supplied Santa in the form of Dale Worthan and elf, Tammy. The Ambassadors helped with parade line-up while the Police Department took care of traffic and crowd control. Men volunteered to drive parade cars supplied by the New Carriers Association. Fast food restaurants and grocery stores donated food for 400 members of visiting bands at Goliad cafeteria where the Goliad cafeteria manager, Mrs. Tidwell, was on hand to serve the drinks supplied by Coca Cola. The Visitors and Convention Bureau provided the reception for the visiting dignitaries.

Zales in the Big Spring Mall brought in Miss Texas and paid her expenses that allowed her to ride in Grady Cunningham's fancy Excaliber in the parade and then be treated to a party in her honor at the Brass Nail by owners Cunningham and Del Austin. Steve Childress of Trinity Memorial and Pat Porter of Sunshine Unlimited provided limosines for special people. OIL paid the expenses required to get the military band to come, after the efforts of Congressman Stenholm's office to clear their trip.

The Optimist Club and many businesses gave financial support toward parade expenses. The mayor, other community and foreign dignitaries and beauties agreed to participate. The Radio Shack-Mutex Sound provided the sound system and walkie-talkies used by parade officials who were riding around on those cute three-wheelers provided by the Honda and Yamaha dealerships. The super Chamber staff plugged in all the holes for anything that needed to be done. And all the media gave extensive coverage in promotion and public information.

People worked long hours building floats and decorating vehicles so that volunteer judges (Tommy Hart, Tina Steffen, David Trusty, Kathy Viccinelli, and Jerry Avery) could pick winners on the basis of creativity, appropriateness to the theme, amount of effort expended, overall appeal, and workmanship.

What a positive way to end this year! We are glad, Big Spring!

Larry Don Shaw will be sworn in as legislator in Austin at 12 noon on Jan. 11. As a show of support and to let our clout be felt in Austin, we hope to have a large contingent there to witness this event. At Shaw's first swearing in, he had a busload and several plane loads of people who attended and we want to do better this time. Call me or his office for more information about attending this special event.

GREAT NEWS: The United Way will go over the top by about $25,000! Thanks Big Spring and thanks to Sherry Bordofske and the United Way Board who worked so hard to make the goal and then exceeded it!

Smithy Smith has opened up Smithy's Parkway Laundry on Wasson Road. He has remodeled and completely redecorated the building from top to bottom, put in all new Maytag equipment, added more machines, and has three very courteous people manning it. They are Lee Ginn, Jackie Robertson and Brenda Gregory. It is spotlessly clean, attractive, and has security lights outside for safety. It is open from 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Smith, who also owns Baskin Robbins, opened the Laundry after the completion of the new street paving project. With easy access, it features drop-off laundry service as well as do-it-yourself service.

Two more events that held crowds in Big Spring this past weekend were new ventures that have great future potential for Big Spring.

The Sports Car Club of America, after working out a long-term agreement, held its regional driver's training school for 50 drivers from a five state region. This precedes the racing season when a race will be held here every 2 to 3 weeks from April to October.

The Martial Arts Tournament Training culminated Sunday night with 35 states and 4 foreign countries represented, under the direction of Master Leo Gaje.

Jaynet Smith has assumed the role as secretary at the Chamber of Commerce due to the death of long-time employee, Camille Patterson.

The End of a Legend

Bear Bryant retires; Perkins named successor

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Paul W. "Bear" Bryant, the winningest coach in college football history, announced his retirement today and Ray Perkins, coach of the National Football League's New York Giants, was named as his successor.

Bryant, 69, said he would remain as athletic director of the Crimson Tide. Perkins, an All-American receiver at Alabama in the mid-1960s, will stay as coach of the Giants through the end of the season and take over at Alabama for the 1983 season.

The announcements came in simultaneous news conferences here and in East Rutherford, N.J.

Bryant, with a 322-85-17 record as a college coach, said his retirement would take effect after Alabama's Liberty Bowl game against Illinois Dec. 29. This year's Crimson Tide team is 7-4, the team's poorest mark since 1970.

"I'm following — repeat, following — the greatest coach in college football," Perkins said. "It's a great honor to go there."

Bryant has been coach at Alabama for 25 years, compiling a record of 231-46-9. In the final regular-season game of the 1981 season, he registered his 315 career victory, breaking the old mark held by Amos Alonzo Stagg.

Perkins, 41, was a star wide receiver at Alabama under Bryant in 1964-66, gaining All-America honors as a senior. The Mount Olive, Miss., native went into coaching after playing five years with the Baltimore Colts of the NFL.

He is in his fourth year as coach of the Giants, with a 23-33 record including 3-3 this season. Last year, the Giants made the NFL playoffs for the first time since 1963.

In Tuscaloosa, Bryant told a packed room of reporters that there comes a time when every coach has to "hang'em up."

In East Rutherford, Perkins said: "I will finish the season as head coach. I look forward to finishing the season. On the other hand, I leave with mixed emotions. It gives me great pleasure to return to my alma mater. It's certainly something I want to do very, very much. "It's simply something that's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for me. If it was anyplace else, any other college team could not lure me from the New York Giants. Nothing could have, I don't believe, kept me from making this decision."

Perkins said he was called by Alabama officials last Thursday and interviewed for the job last Sunday. He was offered the job Monday and made up his mind to take it that day, he added.

Alabama's mandatory retirement age for state employees is 70, so Bryant could not promise potential recruits that he would be their coach for their entire college careers.

Southeastern Conference rivals of the Crimson Tide have stressed this to recruits in recent years, and it has made recruiting increasingly difficult for the Bear.

Bryant has been a head coach in college for 38 seasons — one at Maryland (1945), eight at Kentucky, four at Texas A&M and the last 25 at Alabama, where he played in the mid-1930s and later was an assistant coach under Frank Thomas from 1936-39.

Bryant, whose record at Alabama is 231-46-9, has often said he would never do anything to hurt the program and wanted to leave it in such good shape that his successor would have even more success than he did. Apparently, he feels the time is ripe before decay sets in.

The promise of October — a 5-0 start, a No. 2 ranking in The AP poll and the dream of a sixth national championship — has turned into the doldrums of December. Alabama finished the regular season with three consecutive losses for the first time in Bryant's reign and the Crimson Tide's 7-4 record was its poorest since a 6-5-1 mark in 1970. Alabama has not been in the Top Twenty for the last four weeks; in the previous 11 years, the Crimson Tide only missed the ratings for one week early in the 1976 campaign.

Efforts to reach Bryant and Perkins were unsuccessful Tuesday night. Bryant's wife said he was out recruiting, although he was known to be at home, while Perkins refused to come to the telephone.

All indications pointed to the stern-visaged Perkins, a noted disciplinarian just like the "old man," as Bryant's successor.

"Personally, I hope he doesn't step down anytime soon," Perkins said of Bryant not too long ago. "But if it were to happen and I were honored by being asked, then, yes, I would have to consider it."

Perkins, in his fourth year as coach of the Giants, reportedly was asked to consider it last week when Bryant was in New York for the National Football Foundation's annual banquet. The AP learned that Alabama had formed a small search committee to pursue an eventual successor, but did not really consider Perkins because it felt he was making more money with the Giants than the school could offer.

However, Perkins got word to Bryant that he wanted the job, and now he apparently has it.

Perkins, a native of Mount Olive, Miss., went into coaching after playing at Alabama from 1964-66 as a star receiver. He played five years with the Baltimore Colts in the NFL and then went into coaching, serving as an assistant at Mississippi State University and later with the NFL's New England Patriots and San Diego Chargers before the Giants gave him his first head coaching job in 1979. Last year, the Giants made the playoffs for the first time in 18 years.

While the Giants' star was on the rise, Alabama's seemed to be fading. The Crimson Tide was held without a first down in the first half and thoroughly embarrassed by LSU in a 20-10 pasting Nov. 6. Afterward, Bryant said it was "very obvious now, for three or four weeks, that our team has been very poorly prepared. In any event, I'm going to alert the (university) president, and anybody that wants to know, in a heck of a hurry that we need to make some changes, and we need to start at the top."

THE BEAR ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT — Alabama head coach Paul "Bear" Bryant watches his Crimson Tide from the sidelines during Alabama's last game against Auburn in Birmingham. Bryant, whose teams have won more games than any coach in the history of college football, announced his resignation at the end of the current season Wednesday morning. He will be succeeded by New York Giants head coach Ray Perkins.

Morgan

traded to Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies President Bill Giles says he and his top aides decided after last season's runner-up finish in the National League East that the team needed to add left-handed hitting and strengthen its bullpen.

The Phillies did just that Tuesday by acquiring left-handed-hitting second baseman Joe Morgan and southpaw reliever Al Holland in a five-player deal that sent right-handed starter Mike Krukow and two minor leaguers to the San Francisco Giants.

The trade came after Philadelphia was left with a hole at second base last week when it swapped gold glove Manny Trillo to Cleveland for left-handed-hitting outfielder Von Hayes.

The addition to Krukow, the Phillies gave up pitcher Mark Davis and outfielder Charles Penigar. Davis played last year for Oklahoma City in the AAA American Association, and Penigar with the Class A Spartanburg club in the Carolina League.

Dallas subs see action

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry says one of the nice things about his team's game with the Houston Oilers was a chance to give his second stringers much-needed work.

"It encouraged me to be able to play our backup people who played very well," Landry said.

Landry had high praise for wide receiver Butch Johnson and running back Timmy Newsome, who accounted for three touchdowns in Monday's 37-7 National Football League victory over the Oilers.

Johnson caught two touchdown passes from quarterback Danny White, and Newsome snared a short pass and turned it into a touchdown by breaking three tackles.

"Butch played extremely well. It was one of his better games," Landry said. "(Starter) Drew Pearson had the virus and couldn't practice so we worked Butch in there a little more than usual.

"Timmy is playing extremely well," he said. "He made just an outstanding play. He's very good in the open field and tough to bring down."

Landry also got a good job out of second-string quarterback Gary Hogeboom, who completed three of six passes for 45 yards.

The Cowboys were off Tuesday, but began work today preparing for Sunday's meeting with the New Orleans Saints in Texas Stadium.

Dallas is the only team that has not lost a game since the strike. Landry said mental toughness is one of the keys.

"We don't get concerned when we get behind," he said. "We've been mentally tough, particularly the last couple of weeks. We have been passing the ball well and playing good defense. We hang in there though."

Landry said he was cautious about playing New Orleans Sunday because the Saints are coming off a 35-0 loss to Atlanta.

"You don't like these kind of games because it's hard to convince your team that the Saints are as good as they are," said Landry. "All I know is that New Orleans beat the (San Francisco) 49ers. So they can't be that bad."

Landry praised New Orleans Coach Bum Phillips, saying, "He gets a lot out of his players. He develops their strengths and it is a credit to him as a coach."

The Cowboys, who now have a NFL record 17 consecutive seasons, have three games remaining against New Orleans, Philadelphia and Minnesota.

"We had set a goal of winning three out of our last four," said Landry. "Of course, we would like to win the last three games. Losing doesn't help too much."

Bum hurts for Oilers

DALLAS (AP) — Bum Phillips refuses to put a bum rap on the Houston Oilers who fired him. He just wonders why they don't use running back Earl Campbell more.

The former Oiler coach, now head field boss at New Orleans, watched sadly Monday night as the Dallas Cowboys beat Houston 37-7 in a televised National Football League game in the Astrodome.

"I was pulling for them and I felt bad for the players and coaches," Phillips said Tuesday in a telephone interview at Dallas Coach Tom Landry's weekly press luncheon.

Phillips was fired two years ago by owner Bud Adams and replaced by assistant Ed Biles.

"I felt sad watching the game," Phillips said. "They're in a bad spot (1-5). If it wasn't for bad luck, they wouldn't have any luck at all."

Television cameras showed several pro-Phillips signs during the game, including one that said "Bum Phone Houston."

"Fans are kind of funny," Phillips said. "Those are some of the same ones who booed us when we got beat. Fans get frustrated like coaches and players when things are not going too good."

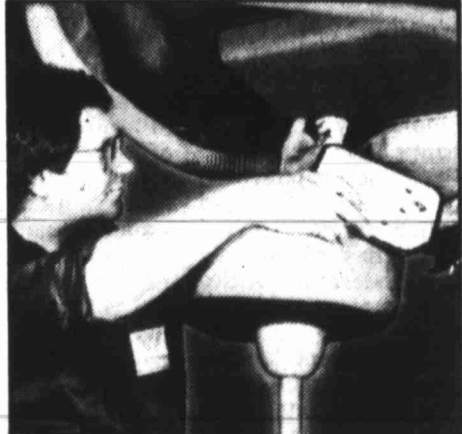

Phillips said the Oiler players and coaches "don't deserve what they are getting."

"I was really pulling for them last night," he said Tuesday. "I wasn't pulling for Dallas because they are too good. They don't need anybody pulling for them."

Phillips said he can't see any dropoff in talent, even though Oiler running back Earl Campbell is not having a productive year.

The Tigers roared off to an 8-2 start in the game but Lamesa regrouped quickly on the moves of Spencer — the league's MVP last season — and the outside shooting of Mark Murphy to take a 29-22 halftime lead.

Curtis Gafford led Snyder with 17 point while James Caldwell added 13. No other Tor scored in double figures after Spencer — who also ruled the boards with 17 rebounds — as the team relied on a balanced scoring attack that saw eight players score.

Greenwood sweeps by Coahoma teams

GREENWOOD — Down by eight points at halftime, the Greenwood Rangerettes rallied by the Coahoma Bulldogettes 33-29 Tuesday night.

Stuart Burlison poured in 22 points to lead the Ranger to an easy 33-29 victory in the boys game.

Coahoma slowed the tempo of the game down and for a half, the tactic puzzled the Rangerettes. Greenwood, however, outscored the Bulldogettes 21-9 in the second half to post their 10th win of the season.

High-scoring Renvy Evans was held to just nine points by Coahoma. Melissa Paige dropped in 11 points for the only double figure performance of the game, for Coahoma.

Troy Wallace added 12 points to Burlison's usual game to boost Greenwood to 6-1 for the year at the expense of the Bulldogs.

Greenwood plays in the Rankin Tournament this weekend, the girls meeting Ozona at 9 a.m. Thursday and the boys playing at 10:30 a.m.

Deana Clark had 14, Teresa White 12 and Vicky Baggett 10 points for Forsan. Melinda Bearden paced her team with 19 points.

Jumping off to a nine-point first quarter lead, the Buffaloes never trailed in posting a 61-49 victory over Sands.

Daniel Bristo had 17 and Robert Eggleston 14 points in the win while Ronnie Long topped the Mustangs with 14.

The Buffalo Queens, now 7-0, and Buffaloes, 4-3, play in the Borden County Tournament this weekend. Action begins Thursday with the girls testing New Home at 11 a.m. and boys teams squaring off at 12:30 p.m.

Spurs trip up Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Stan Albeck and George Gervin, the coach and the high-scoring guard of the San Antonio Spurs, just wanted to make sure the best team won.

Ten days ago, the Houston Rockets toppled their intrastate rival 94-93 for one of their three victories this season. It appeared more of the same might be in store when the Rockets took a 57-51 halftime lead Tuesday.

But the offensive-minded Spurs tightened their defensive belts and shut down the Rockets in the second half, finally winning 102-93.

"There's always been something special between these two teams and Gene Banks' lay-up and free throw with 7:37 remaining put the Spurs ahead for good, 86-83.

"If you can't shoot, you can't win," lamented Houston coach Del Harris. "I think we're doing pretty well except for our shooting. When you shoot 37 percent, nothing looks good because there's no payoff. You can run the most beautiful play in the world, but nobody goes home talking about it if you don't make the shot at the end of it."

Elvin Hayes paced Houston with 21 points. James Bailey added 18 points and 13 rebounds.

Banks scored 16 points for the Spurs.

Warriors 122, Mavs 113

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Golden State Coach Al Attles, relishing a rare easy victory, has debunked reports that the Warriors are trying to acquire troubled rookie Quintin Dailey from the Chicago Bulls.

Attles labeled "completely untrue" a quote attributed to him in a Chicago newspaper saying the Warriors would've drafted Dailey last year if he'd been available to them. And he said the Warriors haven't been trying to get the former University of San Francisco guard recently.

"There's no truth to the rumor that we have actively tried to secure Quintin Dailey," Attles said after his team romped over the Dallas Mavericks 122-113 Tuesday night. He admitted the Warriors might look for help, especially a big man who can rebound, but said he wasn't anxious to make any trade right now, despite the team's 10-14 record.

Attles praised Purvis Short, who scored 15 of his 33 points in the final period against Dallas, calling him one of the "best small forwards in this league" and worthy of All-Star consideration. Attles also lashed out at recent criticism of center J.B. Carroll.

Carroll, for all his apparent lack of spirit on the court and his silence in the locker room, contributed 20 points, seven rebounds and four blocked shots against the Mavericks.

Klondike bumps off Midland, Stanton foes

KLONDIKE — Shutting down the quick Bulldogs with a tight drop-back defense, the Klondike Cougarettes downed 5-A Midland 39-25 Tuesday night.

In the boys game, the Cougars held off a fast-closing bunch of Buffaloes from Stanton to take a 68-66 victory.

Terri Cave scored 16 points to guide the Cougarettes to their fifth victory of the season against two losses, both to rival Forsan. Midland, which had beaten Big Spring by 10

Morgan to help

He said that with Morgan and Hayes the Phillies have added 20 to 30 home runs and 40 to 50 stolen bases. And he said that without a top-flight reliever such as Holland, the team couldn't win in the National League East.

But how will Morgan, 39, playing alongside, first baseman, Pete Rose, 42, affect the Phillies' usually tight defense?

"Trillo is the best defensive second baseman in the game," Giles admitted. "But Morgan has a better career fielding average, is a more intelligent player. Also, Morgan is a great leader, a gamer, a great competitor."

Giles said Morgan, who had reached a salary impasse with the Giants, was given a two-year contract, the first year guaranteed. It was believed Morgan got close to the $600,000 per season he was seeking.

Spurs win protest

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs got a rare second chance, and they're hoping to take advantage of it.

National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien upheld Tuesday a protest by the Spurs concerning a Nov. 30 home game with the Los Angeles Lakers that San Antonio lost 137-132 in double overtime.

The last protest to be upheld by the NBA was on Nov. 8, 1978, when O'Brien upheld the New Jersey Nets' protest of a loss to the Philadelphia 76ers.

O'Brien ordered the last three seconds of the game to be replayed on April 13 preceding the next game the Lakers play at San Antonio.

The controversy occurred with three seconds left in regulation and the Spurs leading 116-114. Los Angeles' Norm Nixon, at the foul line for the second of two free throw attempts, moved as if to shoot the free throw but didn't and players from both teams moved into the foul lane.

Referee Jack Madden called a double lane violation and ordered a jump ball. The Lakers won the jump and Nixon hit a shot to tie the game, sending it into overtime.

Reserve one soup can of chicken broth. Combine soups, broth, chilies and seasonings. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Arrange layer of tortillas in 9x13 inch of 10x10 inch baking dish. Spread 1/2 of cut up chicken over chips. Pour 1/2 of soup mixture over this. Add 1/2 of grated cheese. Repeat process. Top with grated cheese. Bake 25 minutes, or until cheese is melted. Serves 8.

Spread pecan filling over dough, bringing it to the edges. Starting at the wide side of the oblong, lift cloth and let dough roll up like a jelly roll. Seal well by pinching edges into dough. Place in greased oblong pan, 13x9 inch or on a greased baking sheet in snail shape. Let rise until almost double one hour. Heat oven 325 degrees (slow mod.). Bake 40 to 45 minutes or until brown.

PARTY BUNDT BREAD
By Stephanie Frerich
4 cups unbleached flour
3 3/4 cups whole wheat flour
2 pkg. active dry yeast
2 1/2 cup warm water (105 to 115 F.)
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup nonfat dry milk
2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1 Tbsp. salt
Combine in plastic bag: One cup unbleached flour, two tablespoons honey, one cup warm water, and two packages active dry yeast. Squeeze upper part of bag to force out air. Close top of bag tightly between thumb and index finger. Rest bag on table; mix by working bag with fingers about 20 seconds or until all ingredients are completely blended. Let rest in bag 15 minutes.

Add remaining ingredients: 1 1/2 cups warm water, 1 tsp. salt, 2 tsp. honey, 1/4 cup dry milk, and 1 tsp. vegetable oil. Mix by working bag with fingers. Add 3 3/4 cups whole wheat flour, one cup at a time, mixing thoroughly. Gradually add remaining unbleached flour until a stiff dough is formed (about 2 1/2 cups.) Push dough away from inside of bag using a rubber spatula and sprinkle unbleached flour between bag and dough to assist in turning out dough. Turn dough out onto floured surface. Divide dough in half. Knead each half five minutes or until dough is smooth and elastic. Add more dough if necessary. Cover with plastic bag. Let rest 10 minutes. Punch down. Flatten dough with hand. Shape each half into a 12x7 inch rectangle. Roll dough tightly towards you, beginning at the narrow end. Pinch loaves together to form a ring. Place ring seam side up in greased 12-cup bundt pan. Let rise until dough reaches top of bundt pan, about 45 to 60 minutes. Bake in 375 degree oven 40 to 45 minutes. Invert immediately onto cooling rack. When cool, drizzle with Honey-Nut Glaze.

HONEY-NUT GLAZE
Stirring constantly, bring to a boil 1/4 cup coarsely chopped nuts, 1/4 cup packed brown sugar, 1/4 cup honey and 2 Tbsp. butter or margarine.

CHEERY CHERRY DESSERT SQUARES
Michele Pechacek
1 package (double layer size) yellow cake mix
1 1/4 cups rolled oats; divided
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine; divided
1 egg
1 can (21 ounce) cherry pie filling
1/2 cup chopped pecans
2 Tbsp. brown sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In mixing bowl, combine cake mix, 6 Tbsp. butter (set aside 2 Tbsp.) and 1 cup rolled oats (set aside 1/4 cup). Mix until crumbly with mixer or pastry blender. Remove 1 cup crumbs for topping. Add egg to mixture still in bowl; mix well. Pat this mixture into well-greased 9 x 13 x 2 inch pan. Spread cherry pie filling over crust.

Make topping: To the reserved 1 cup crumbs, add the remaining 2 Tbsp. butter and 1/2 cup rolled oats, along with pecans and brown sugar. Mix until crumbly; sprinkle over cherries.

Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 45 minutes or until golden brown. Serve slightly warm or cooled. Cut in 12 generous squares, top with whipped cream or ice cream; if desired, for a dessert. Or serve as snack-size bars.

Other pie filling flavors (blue berry, apple, etc.) may be substituted. For apple squares, spice cake mix may be used. For extra B Vitamins, substitute 2 Tbsp. wheat germ for 2 Tbsp. rolled oats in crumb topping.

CHERRY-PINEAPPLE CRUNCH

1/2 cup chopped pecans
Cream margarine. Gradually add sugar, beating well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Add bananas and mix until smooth. Combine flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Makes 1 1/2 dozen muffins.

Heart valves of pigs used in human surgery

HUGHSON, Calif. (AP) — One little piggy went to market. One little piggy stayed home. And one little piggy donated a heart valve for human surgery.

Actually, Bill Macedo Jr. makes sure most of his pigs donate their heart valves for human implantation. The Stanislaus County farmer raises or slaughters 12,000 to 15,000 pigs a year under the cleanest conditions possible, to guarantee the value of the aortic valve.

Macedo's pigs and thousands from other ranchers are killed at his ranch for shipment to retailers in San Francisco's Chinatown for meat.

But before they leave the ranch, a small piece of tissue that regulates blood flow from the heart to the arteries is carefully trimmed away.

"They can take the heart valve, then clean off the muscle fibers and it is purely connective tissues of the valve that is transplanted," explained Dr. Everett Johnson, a Turlock physician.

With time a critical factor, the valve is packed in a saline solution for shipment to a laboratory in southern California. It must reach the lab within 72 hours to be of any use, the 45-year-old rancher said.

"After the valve is cleaned and sterilized, it's packaged in a vacuum-type container and put on a shelf and kept until needed," Johnson said.

He noted a similarity between porcine and human blood-pumping organs.

"The pig's heart and the human heart are very much alike," Johnson said. "Their digestive track is a lot like ours."

About 90 percent of the pig valves are usable. The remainder are discarded because of damage or disease. The pigs are fed a high-protein grain diet to keep both their meat and valves useful.

The valve business represents less than half of Macedo's income, but his product can mean life or death for patients in need of a new valve.

Leonard Ellefson, a 67-year-old Turlock pharmacist, has been living with the aid of a pig valve for eight years. A synthetic valve had to be replaced after several years when he suffered a series of small strokes.

"I had to go through several years in a terminal situation," he recalled. At one time, he required ready access to oxygen and stuck to a salt-free diet.

The natural valve gave him more freedom than the original substitute for his ailing heart. He now does 100 pushups daily and rides an exercise bicycle.

"When they use the pig valve, if they are very careful to clean off the muscle, it does not give any more trouble than a human valve," Johnson said. "And it's much better to be able to go into the shelf to get the right size. You don't have to wait until someone dies."

Surgeons measure a patient's valve size during surgery and trim one to fit before suturing it in place, he said. The pig valve can replace both the aortic and mitral valves in humans.

The rejection rate is similar to that involved with a human valve transplant, Johnson said.

Macedo has a pretty good idea of how valuable his pig valves can be to heart patients. He suffered a massive heart attack three years ago.

Specialty steel mill bucks slump

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — In an age when the U.S. steel industry is in full retreat, Bob Bunting and Carl Calloway are going in the opposite direction — running a "mini-mill" they say is about to show a profit after only 10 weeks of operation.

The men are the principal operating officers of Steel of West Virginia, Inc., a 235-employee mill that converts scrap into specialty items for a select but lucrative market.

Six months ago Calloway was a recently retired accountant who had no idea he would be trying to help run a steel mill.

"I had never been in the mill before," he said last week. "And I only had a slight acquaintance with Bob."

Back then, Bunting was the local plant manager for Connors Steel, a division of the Pittsburgh-based H.K. Porter Co. As the man who ran the day-to-day operations of the Huntington facility, he sensed H.K. Porter was about to close the mill.

"Bob called me one day last April and I thought he wanted to set up a golf game," Calloway said. "But it wasn't about golf; he wanted to have lunch. And when we got together he said, 'I want you to help me buy the Connors Steel plant.'"

After some thought, Calloway said yes.

"I'm sure that we'll show a profit for October," said Bunting, the president of the operation. Calloway, the vice president and the man who's good with figures, doesn't disagree.

Neither was willing to say how much money they would make. They did say, however, that the business is on schedule and they are confident Steel of West Virginia and its employees has a secure future.

How can a small mill in southern West Virginia make money when much of the steel industry is in trouble?

"There are several reasons," said Bunting, who grew up in a Pennsylvania steel town. "For one thing, we're very competitive in tooling costs, and we also have an experienced work force that knows how to produce."

For another, he said, the company concentrates on specialty items — such as lightweight I-beams for the trucking and mobile home industries, and track rail for coal mines — that haven't particularly interested the steel giants in the past.

"There are two kinds of mills," Bunting said. "There are integrated mills, which make steel from iron ore, and mini-mills that use scrap. Well, we're one of some 50 mini-mills operating in this country today. And, for the market we specialize in, we have relatively few competitors, either here or abroad."

That's a major reason why Bunting was willing to mortgage his home to help back the venture, and why Calloway was willing to plow tens of thousands of his own dollars into the plant.

They, and 15 other local investors, with the help of eight Huntington bankers and the governor's office, put together the $3 million purchase package.

"There are 17 or 18 investors who own 15 shares," Calloway said. "Bob and I each own one of these 15 shares."

Both men play down the concept of ownership and don't like to talk about labor and management.

Recession rock: Pop music chronicles hard time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They still sing of love and sex, but some pop lyricists are now setting the grimmer facts of contemporary life — unemployment, poverty and loss of hope in the American dream — to music. Rock has caught up with the recession.

"Well, we're living here in Allentown, and they're closing all the factories down" go the opening lines to a song from Billy Joel's new album, "The Nylon Curtain," and he isn't the only one singing the hard times blues these days.

Recession rock runs the gamut from New Wave to rhythm and blues. Most of the songs differ from protest songs of the 1960s. They don't blame government or demand action to cure the problems, but rather are statements of disillusionment, of something gone awry.

Joel's song, "Allentown," is one of the more striking, with a factory-whistle prelude and a jaunty, uptempo arrangement that contrast with lyrics which talk of unemployment lines and frustrated expectations.

Joel said he'd been toying with the melody and the idea of a song about Allentown for 10 years.

"I didn't know what the subject matter was going to be about until the last year or so, reading about the problems of the steel industry," he said. "The great American blue-collar promise that the postwar kids were raised on isn't there...I really don't know anyone who is untouched by what's happening economically."

Joel said that despite the troubled tone of most of the song, he doesn't take an entirely pessimistic view of the country's future. The last line of the song repeats "We're living here in Allentown" — in other words, Joel says, "we're going to stick it out. This is our heritage, this is our tradition, we're going to make it."

Richard "Dimples" Fields, who last year caused a ruckus in rhythm and blues circles with "She's Got Papers on Me," a song about an errant husband and his scolding wife, is back with "People Treat You Funky When You Ain't Got No Money," a litany of complaints about being poor.

In contrast to some other songwriters, Fields doesn't hesitate to blame government for his problems: "Reaganomics, Reaganomics, mean ghetto-nomics," he sings, "...What happened to the chicken in every pot?" There's also no optimism in "Bread and Butter" by the Waitresses, a popular New Wave band. The voice speaking in "Bread and Butter" is clearly that of a young, hip suburbanite: "How do you like your new house? How do you like your new job? You say you never got them? No kidding, me neither."

Waitresses guitarist-songwriter Chris Butler says he was inspired by the band's frequent trips to Detroit, where on each successive visit more and more auto plants were closed. The song took on its middle-class tone because he was writing for lead singer Patty Donahue, whose character in the group's other songs is highly articulate — and usually able to cope with her problems.

"There's no resolution on this one," Butler said. "The character is upset. The character feels cheated. The character feels that things that have been promised have not been delivered. And lots of people feel that way."

The latest Bruce Springsteen LP, "Nebraska," delivers a disturbing portrait of America through sparsely arranged vignettes about people from the heartland. Economic woes are touched on, but the hard times in "Nebraska" are spiritual as well as material.

Steel song called anthem of jobless

MIDLAND, Pa. (AP) — Michael Pickering just wanted to cheer up his laid-off uncle when he strummed his guitar and made up "Steel Mill Blues," a folk song about the plight of a furloughed steelworker.

But the recording, called "the national anthem of the unemployed," has sold over 3,000 copies in two weeks and is gaining popularity on radio stations and jukeboxes in areas where the blast furnaces are idle.

All of the proceeds are being used to feed the jobless, and the United Steelworkers of America is promoting the tune nationally.

"I wanted to help lift my uncle's spirits. I had no idea it would be a record. I never expected this," said Pickering, a freshman studying medical technology at West Liberty College near Wheeling, W. Va.

"Ideally, I'd like some people who are hurting to get some help from it. And I'm hoping it will lead to a break for me," said Pickering, 18, who lives in nearby Wellsville, Ohio and had never made a record before.

Pickering took "about a week" to write the song in October when Colt Industries closed its Crucible Stainless Steel and Alloy Division in Midland, a mill that once employed 4,800 workers.

His uncle and godfather, Bob Sullivan, had toiled in Midland for 18 years as a furnace bricklayer before he went on unemployment June 13.

"I get chills every time I hear it," said Sullivan, 49, the father of five daughters.

"It describes what I'm going through and what the 2 million unemployed people in the country are going through. It's the worst feeling in the world when they tell you you're done. That initial shock is devastating," he added.

"You wonder if you're ever going to work again. You lose your pride," said Sullivan.

"I was depressed to the point, I even hate to say it, where I thought my family would be better off with out me. I was leaving (suicide) notes. But the song has taken my mind off myself and my troubles," he said.

Fifteen minutes after he first heard it, Sullivan started writing letters to promote the song. He even wrote to President Reagan.

Liz Miles, a reporter in Pittsburgh for KDKA-TV's "Evening Magazine," arranged to have a record made after Pickering agreed to have all proceeds go to the Pittsburgh Community Food Bank, a non-profit group that distributes food to the needy in the tri-state area.

"I call it the national anthem of the unemployed. It delivers a very strong message," said Justin Brown of Air Craft Communications, which donated the studio time, musicians and production costs to make the record.

National Record Mart agreed to sell the record for $1.99 and serve as a collection agency.

Carroll to be honored in Westminster Abbey

LONDON (AP) — Lewis Carroll created a little girl named Alice who wandered a wonderland of make-believe in Victorian England — and into hearts everywhere. Now nearly 85 years after his death, Carroll will be honored in the Poet's Corner at Westminster Abbey.

A memorial stone to the man who wrote "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking-Glass" will be unveiled following services in the abbey Friday, the 150th anniversary year of the writer's birth. He died Jan. 14, 1898.

Abbey authorities and sponsors of the memorial strongly rejected assertions by some modern writers that Carroll was sexually attracted to little girls. Noted poet John Betjeman was among sponsors who convinced the abbey that Carroll is worthy of respect and will enjoy lasting fame.

"We completely disregard that gossip," Lindsay Fulcher, a London librarian and secretary of the Lewis Carroll Society, told The Associated Press in a recent interview.

"I see all that as a sensationalist, post-Freudian view of the man. Anyone who knows anything about the Victorian social structure and Victorian attitudes knows that children were the symbols of purity, especially in the rigorous high society of Oxford," Ms. Fulcher said.

Carroll, whose real name was Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, was the son of a clergyman. He never married, and for nearly 30 years taught mathematics at Christ Church, the Oxford University college. Alice Liddell, who inspired the Alice of the stories, was the daughter of the college dean.

Carroll was an early photographer of children, as well as a mathematician, story-teller and poet. His preference for photographing little girls, some barely clothed, led to speculation about his sexual preferences.

When Carroll began composing the adventures of his imaginary Alice for Alice Liddell on July 4, 1862, they were with her two sisters and a clergyman friend in a rowboat. Carroll was 30 and Alice Liddell was 7.

"Mrs. Liddell gave famous parties and rubbed shoulders with royalty. I cannot believe there was any hanky-panky between her daughters and a man in the employment of the university and very much under the dean's eye and thumb," said Ms. Fulcher.

"And there is nothing in the letters of Carroll to his family and friends to suggest anything like it," Ms. Fulcher said. "He was a born bachelor who delighted in the company of children and, in a way, was a child himself."

She said Carroll deserves the Abbey memorial because after William Shakespeare, Carroll is "the most translated writer of English fiction — 20 editions of 'Alice' in the Soviet Union alone. I have it in Norwegian, Gregg shorthand and Esperanto."

The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations includes 106 sayings from Carroll's poems, stories, riddles and letters, like "Curiouser and curiouser" and "There's nothing like eating hay when you're faint," in the two Alice books.

Walesa will urge peace to attain labor goals

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa plans to tell his followers in a speech this week to follow a peaceful course to attain the goals they pursued during the Polish labor upheaval, according to a text handed to Western correspondents today.

In the text, delivered by a reliable source, Walesa says, "Our workers' issue is still open, and ours will be the victory."

Walesa, freed last month from 11 months of internment, said, "We are not overthrowing authority," adding: "It is now time for ... this great river ... to divide itself into several tributaries."

"None of these tributaries will move without the other. None of these elements can be absent, otherwise we will once again make mistakes."

In the speech, Walesa proposes trade union pluralism, self-management in workplaces, independent associations of artists and intellectuals, and independent organizations for young people.

It was still not clear whether authorities will grant Walesa's request to deliver the speech in Gdansk Thursday at a memorial for scores of workers killed during protests in 1970.

Poland's Communist authorities imposed martial law and suspended Solidarity on Dec. 13, 1981, ending 16 months of upheaval sparked by the formation of the first independent labor union in the Soviet bloc.

Martial law chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski said Sunday that many aspects of martial law would be lifted by the end of the year, but that total suspension of military rule will be gradual.

Whew: Bomba's not pregnant

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It took 3½ years, but the verdict is in: Bomba the elephant is not in a family way.

Bomba was mated with another Asian elephant, Coco, in July 1979 and has gained about 1,200 pounds since.

For 21 months, tests for pregnancy were either negative or inconclusive. Gestation for elephants is about 22 months.

Then, a test in April 1981 showed Bomba was pregnant.

That's when daily observation of Bomba began.

"We must have been wrong," Columbus Zoo Director Jack Hanna said. "This is about the biggest disappointment of my career."

Hanna said Bomba and Coco will be paired off again. He said he couldn't explain Bomba's weight gain.

Cars part of Hispanic culture

Lowriders riding high

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The young man, slicked up in a stylish Zoot Suit, adjusts his Fedora so the shadow falls just over one eye. He preens himself carefully: his "baby" is waiting.

Frank Trujillo's baby, dressed in candy-apple red with low fender skirts, is scrutinized for any flaw. A speck of dirt catches his attention. Deftly, the 25-year-old pulls out a toothbrush and brushes clean a chrome edge of the hood.

The baby the Albuquerque, N.M., man is so caught up with is a 1950 Chevy sedan that car collectors say is worth about $15,000.

"I love her," he admits. "Spent the last 3 years fixing her up, taking her from nothing to something."

He shows pictures of his beloved — from a shell of a car he pieced together at home, painted and spent his savings for original parts, to what he hopes will outshine other cars at the El Paso Convention Center's Low-rider Show.

The spruced Chevy shines brightly under the Convention Center lights where some 300 other low-riders from across the Southwest were meeting in an almost ritualistic display of their dressed-up cars.

The rage from California to Texas, low-riders are lovers of the low-slung, ground-hugging autos that started as a fad in the 1960s in the Hispanic ghettos of East Los Angeles and San Jose, Calif. After fading away in the 1970s, low-riding has once again become stylish across the Southwest where most of the nation's 18 million Hispanics live.

"Low-riding is unique within the Hispanic culture," said Johnny Lozoya, automotive editor for Low Rider magazine, a San Jose-based publication that attracts an estimated 125,000 readers monthly.

About 10 times yearly, Low Rider magazine and the Anheuser-Busch and the Coors beer company sponsor shows in Hispanic centers such as El Paso, Phoenix, or Los Angeles where local's low-rider cars are displayed.

Low-rider's children, too, can show their bicycles, most of which have small chain-link steering wheels and over-sized dice hanging from rear view mirrors like their parent's cars.

Low-riding also features surrealistic art scenes painted on the car's exteriors and primly dressed young men such as Trujillo, a bar bouncer who says "style" is what he loves about the low-rider movement.

"It's something different, something that's readily recognizable," he said, posing beside his car in the striped-gray Zoot Suit made famous first in the 1940s and later by Luis Valdez's 1970 play of the same name.

Others at the show put trophies around their cars proving their past wins in low-rider competitions. Many of the low-riders stand beside their trophies, affectionately buttressed by their girlfriends, whom they call their "old ladies."

Low-riding is a male-oriented "leisure-vehicle sport" that Lozoya said has advocates from as far away as France and West Germany. The sport knows no boundaries, he said, because anyone can have an auto built with a hydraulic system that allows the cars "to hop" (bounce) up to 30 inches off the ground with special air pumps.

Most of the low-rider's cars are often older than their owners. Some of the more valuable autos, such as a jet-black 1939 Buick 8, are worth up to $20,000.

The conventions bring together an array of low-rider lovers who show off their old vehicles — one proudly displays a 1930 Ford flat-top with a snub-nosed shotgun mounted in the front seat. Others revel in the festive atmosphere that includes dancing to Hispanic bands amid a gathering of like spirits.

The original low-riders in the 1960s were often associated with surly street gangs who hung out in the Hispanic ghetto and taunted passers-by, said Lozoya. He said the movement has "survived the bad apples" and now is a legitimate social group where about 85 percent of the low-riders are bilingual.

"Sure, some believe we're made up of a bunch of Latin outlaws, but that's just outdated," he said.

The "lead sleds" the low-riders dote on daily often have customized wet bars built in the backseat and televisions mounted in the front dashboard. Others have thick fur throughout the interior and are for show only — never driven.

The pampered cars have now become an expression of the Hispanic's standing within their community.

"Within the Hispanic community, the car is a prized possession. It is seen as a status symbol, an extension of one's personality by those who express themselves through their vehicles," Lozoya said.

Low-riders who bring their customized "V-dubs" (Volkswagen Beetles) and aged Model T Fords to the shows often belong to area clubs with names such as the "New Breed" and "Texas Rodders."

Others come to listen to bands play 1950s tunes such as "Why Do Fools Fall in Love."

Fort Bliss' Danny Martinez said he came to view the show's Zoot Suit and Sexy Legs contest. "Hey, listen, you can only look at so many shiny old cars."

But Trujillo, who drove 300 miles south to show off his beloved car and Zoot Suit, was unsatisfied: "I turned down one guy the other day who wanted to buy this car for $20,000. Maybe next time I shouldn't — bills, you know, are for real."

ZOO BABY — Casey, an orangutan born Sunday at the Audubon Park Zoo in New Orleans, is held in the hand of a zoo staffer for one of the baby's first public appearances. Parents of the 4 and a half pound Casey are Frankie and Sarah.

Bird biter sentenced

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — A 20-year-old man who bit the head off a pet cockatiel in a bar has been sentenced to pay $750 in penalties and spend 100 hours cleaning out cages at an animal control center.

Charlotte County Judge John P. Shannon, calling the punishment "poetic justice," on Tuesday also ordered Michael E. Hone to spend a year on probation, pay $250 to the bird's owner and pay another $500 in fines and trial costs.

"... Maybe there will be some sick birds in there," Shannon said of the animal center.

Hone could have been sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1,000 after pleading no contest to a charge of cruelty to animals. The cockatiel, named Pepper, was killed the night of June 9 when Clayton Johnson, the bird's owner, walked into a Naples tavern with the bird riding on his shoulder.

Johnson said a man came over and asked him if he could hold the pet. "He picked her up and just bit her head off and dropped her body in my lap," he said.

"I think it was a dastardly deed," the judge said, telling Hone that he wasn't being sent to jail because "they would make an animal out of you if you aren't one already."

Hone stood silently during sentencing and refused to answer questions as he hurriedly left the courtroom.

Press freedom deteriorates

LONDON (AP) — Press freedom deteriorated worldwide this year, and almost every nation violated free speech "in one form or another," the International Press Institute said Wednesday.

"It should be painfully obvious that the press must fight back to retain what is left of its freedom," the news media watchdog group said in an annual review covering 67 countries.

Institute director Peter Galliner, in an introduction to the 24-page report, singled out Iran, Turkey, Argentina and India as nations with already poor records which slid "further down the scale of freedom" in 1982. The review said Iran's Islamic regime culminated efforts to "end all press freedom" by executing more than 30 journalists. Twenty others were "missing" and more than 200 were jailed in the capital, Tehran.

The London- and Zurich-based institute, whose membership includes nearly 2,000 editors and publishers in 60 countries — most of them Western — also criticized the United States and Britain for curbs or attempted curbs on press freedom. Moscow was described as continuing a "stranglehold" on the Soviet news media.

The review described restrictions ranging from official attempts in the West to withhold information or mislead reporters, to regimes that permit only government propaganda.

Asked how many nations still have a press free of state control — a press that can and does criticize the government and gives prominence to opposition views — institute managing editor Alan Pearce told The Associated Press:

"There are only about 20 on that basis — most West European countries, North America, Australia and so on. But if you try to use one yardstick it becomes almost nonsense. You have got to look at local problems."

For example, the review said the government-owned press of newly independent Zimbabwe "by simply serving the (black) majority" was better than the privately owned press under Rhodesian white-minority rule which "served the interests of European settlers."

On the United States, the review said President Reagan's administration continued efforts "to tighten restrictions on the flow of government information" especially through proposals to restrict the Freedom of Information Act.

The report also cited U.S. journalists' opposition to a bill passed by Congress "making it a crime to identify American intelligence agents or sources even if the information came from public records and even if the agent was breaking the law."

Britain's Conservative government was criticized for censoring war correspondents' copy during the 74-day Falkland Islands war with Argentina and banning foreign reporters from the war zone.

"The Ministry of Defense ... even planted false stories in a bid to mislead the enemy," the report said. On Iran, the review said: "The purge of journalists in the remaining dailies and weeklies continued throughout the year."

A handful of professional journalists still working were fired in September for refusing to sign articles lauding Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime, the review said.

Iran was now left with badly written and edited newspapers staffed by mullahs and theology students. Circulation has dropped so drastically that the main daily, Kayhan, sells 15,000 copies a day compared with one million four years ago.

India's plethora of newspapers got special praise in the review for jointly fighting an attempt by one state, Bihar, to outlaw publication of anything the authorities consider objectionable.

"The campaign ... is an object lesson of what can be achieved if it speaks with one voice and is firm in its resolve."

Pro-Western Kenya, once outstanding in black Africa for its free press, "is now becoming one of the worst offenders against free speech," the review said.

It cited, among other things, government instigation of the firing of the editor-in-chief of the Standard, a major newspaper, for criticizing detention without trial.

British don't fare as well

Israeli press heroes

LONDON (AP) — Israeli war correspondents emerged as "heroes" from Israel's invasion of Lebanon last summer because they uncovered information officials tried to suppress, the International Press Institute said Wednesday.

In its annual review of press freedom, the London and Zurich-based media watchdog body found the Israeli press emerged "victorious" from the Lebanon war.

But it said Britain's press came out of the British-Argentine Falkland Islands war deeply distrustful of officialdom.

Israeli journalists resisted "any initial attempts" at "indirect coverage," and in the latter part of the Lebanon war published information often denied even to members of the government, the review said.

"It carried critical analysis and comments unprecedented in war times and defended journalists who came under fire for their criticism."

The review said the Israeli government and the press clashed often over official "censorship at source" — denying access to the news or curtailing it. But Israeli authorities made no attempt to curb press criticism.

"Although television sometimes succumbed to pressure, the (Israeli) written press emerged victorious from 1982," the review concluded.

It criticized British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government for censoring war correspondents' copy from the Falklands, banning foreign reporters from the war zone and complaining that the British press was too even-handed.

"No TV film was allowed out, even though it was technically possible, until well after it had lost all its news value," said the review.

"Copy was frequently prevented from reaching the public, not generally because it was of military value to the Argentines, but rather that it was likely to affect morale back home."

In London, the review said, the Defense Ministry "withheld information and even planted false stories in a bid to mislead the enemy."

During the Falklands war, Britain's two television networks were sharply criticized by the government for carrying official Argentine film of Argentine troops digging in on the islands.

The news media retorted it was all they had. British officials said TV and still film were held up because communication facilities from the Royal Navy task force operating 8,000 miles from home were overloaded with military signals.

Cadavers are the ultimate study aid for class

AGOURA, Calif. (AP) — Human cadavers are "the ultimate in study aids" in an Agoura High School anatomy class where human corpses are dissected along with the remains of cats and frogs.

Tom Carmichael, now a college freshman, said his biology courses at the University of California-Los Angeles are a breeze because he was able to study the cadavers in high school.

"It helped so immensely that I'm just coasting through my biology courses," Carmichael said recently.

Many medical students don't get to work on cadavers until their second year of training.

Tough prerequisites help ensure that only serious students enroll in his physiology and anatomy class, Jerry Lasnik said. He puts a group of juniors and seniors through about six weeks of lectures, reading and lab work before he introduces the cadaver.

Nobody is forced to work on the cadaver to pass the course, and students who take the class out of morbid curiosity "will flunk out before they get a peek," Lasnik said. But students not taking the class are just as curious.

"They're always asking us about it," said Tom O'ferman, one of Lasnik's students. "But as soon as they find out it's studying, they don't want to take it. I always scare them away with the amount of homework I have."

Lasnik covers the faces of the cadavers when he first presents them to the class, making them seem less human.

Removing the cover later in the course also helped students get over their apprehension, said Carmichael.

"Edgar Allen Poe said the eyes are the window to the soul. Once we could see the eyes of this corpse, this cadaver, I could see there was no spark, no life," Carmichael said. "I could equate it with working on the cats, frogs or whatever."

Carmichael said he wasn't uneasy about dissecting the corpses until helping Lasnik remove the brain.

"I realized that what I was holding in my hands was the sum total of emotions, experiences, suffering that this person had gone through," he said. "I was thinking that this four pounds of matter is essentially what this man was."

"It was the ultimate in study aids," said Carmichael.

Lasnik has equipped his classroom with items donated by the community. But locating a cadaver was something else.

"Everyone told me, 'For a high school? Forget it!'" Lasnik said. But finally he got a cadaver after contacting John Sykes, a curator at the University of California-San Diego medical school.

"As long as the class is conducted properly — if the purpose is to learn the structure of the human body — then I'm all for it," Sykes said. Calling Lasnik a "true professional," Sykes said he had no doubt about the Agoura program and agreed to supply cadavers, which cost about $125 each.

The first time he uses the cadaver, Lasnik generally wheels it out unexpectedly in the middle of a lab session.

"OK, gang, take a few minutes off. We're going to bring out the cadaver," Lasnik told students recently when the time came for a presentation.

There was silence as they gathered about the black plastic body bag wheeled into the classroom on a cart that Lasnik scrounged from a mortuary.

While Lasnik unzipped the body bag and exposed the corpse, he told the students a little about it including age and cause of death.

Expressions on the students' faces ranged from blank stares to distaste. Lasnik fielded a few questions before wheeling the body out of the classroom.

Then the students slowly returned to work on the dead cats they had been dissecting.

"It's created a tremendous enthusiasm among the kids," said Robert Ross, principal at Agoura High School, which is about 30 miles northwest of Los Angeles. "The achievement levels are higher than before."

Van scatters murder jurors

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A van ran a roadblock, "screamed around the corner" and scattered a jury assembled on a street corner to view the scene of a police officer's murder, authorities said.

Defense lawyers for Wilbert Mayle said they would ask for a mistrial. But police said today they did not believe the incident Monday night was related to the trial.

Mayle, of Columbus, Ohio, is accused of the Dec. 14, 1981 execution-style slaying of Huntington police Officer Paul Harmon. Jurors had been taken to the scene late Monday night when the van crashed through the roadblock.

Huntington police Detective Tom Jarrell said fingerprints found inside the van, and a preliminary registration check, pointed to a suspect with no connection to the murder case.

Police declined to identify the suspect, but Jarrell said investigators believed the driver panicked after spotting the roadblock, "got scared and just tried to get out of there as fast as possible."

Prosecutor John Cummings said today he would resist the motion for a mistrial because "in my personal opinion, this incident was not connected with the trial."

He said the unusual late-night session was scheduled to "duplicate the lighting conditions" at the time of the killing.

Circuit Judge Alfred Ferguson had called the incident Monday night "a deliberate act."

That was after a witness had told the judge she had received a telephone death threat, the caller saying she would be "blown off the witness stand" if she testified in the trial.

No jurors were harmed in the encounter with the van, but at least two police officers suffered minor injuries, authorities said.

Mike Johnson, a reporter for the Huntington Herald-Dispatch, said the jurors were viewing the scene about 11:42 p.m. when a blue van "screamed around the corner," drove up on the sidewalk and headed for the crowd.

"They all spread out," Johnson said. "There was screaming. It missed a half dozen jurors by only two or three feet."

He said several officers produced their guns but no shots were fired.

Cabell County Deputy Fred Buchanan was struck on the hip by the van but did not require treatment, and Columbus police officer John Postlethwaite cut his hand when he fell to the ground to avoid vehicle, officials said.

Ferguson said he was told the van, which was taken to a police department garage, had a temporary Ohio registration.

After the incident, jurors were driven in sheriff's cars to Kenova, where they looked at the site where a car owned by Bobby Dean Stacy was found after Harmon's death. Stacy, also of Columbus, was convicted of first-degree murder in the slaying.

Defense attorney Jerry Weiner said he intended to ask for a mistrial because of the incident.

Earlier Monday, with the jury out of the courtroom, Kathy Pearson of Columbus said an anonymous caller told her she would be "blown off the witness stand" if she testified.

"If I made it out of the courtroom, I'd be killed before I got out of West Virginia," she quoted the caller as saying.

Ms. Pearson also said that firebombs were thrown at her house after she testified earlier this year at Stacy's trial.

Ms. Pearson testified Monday that Stacy was at her house about 6 p.m. last Dec. 13 when "he told me he had to meet Jackie and pick him up to go to the hills and take care of some business."

She said Mayle's nickname is Jackie, and she said "the hills" referred to southern Ohio.

Prosecutors say Harmon was shot to death after encountering two men who earlier that evening had robbed a Chesapeake, Ohio, fast-food restaurant, across the Ohio River from Huntington.

Would-be Florida teachers flunk test

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Nearly two-thirds of Florida's prospective black teachers flunked the state licensing test given in October, officials said Monday.

Only 83 out of 222 black applicants — about 37 percent — passed all four sections of the test, said Louise Beauchamp of the state's Department of Education.

The overall passing rate was 84 percent. The exam, given Oct. 9, covers math, reading, writing and professional education.

Would-be teachers must pass the four-part exam to qualify for permanent licenses. The test was introduced in 1980 as part of Florida's reforms to upgrade academic standards.

Some education leaders have complained that the teacher certification test is too easy.

"The level of the test is eighth grade," says Donald Magruder of the Florida School Boards Association, who calls the exam a joke.

Yemen quake death toll reaches 2,000

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) - The death toll in the North Yemen earthquake has doubled to more than 2,000, the Gulf News Agency quoted a high Yemeni official as saying today in San'a, the capital of the stricken country.
The official was not identified and no other details were immediately available. The previous death toll had been given as 1,062.
More than 1,100 other people were reported hospitalized with injuries.

CBS's 'Memories Don't Die' tonight

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The story vehicle of a mentally depressed mother returning to her family after six years of hospitalization seems artificial, but the emotions are irresistibly real in tonight's CBS movie, "Memories Don't Die."

Lindsay Wagner plays Joanne Tilford, an intruder in her own house who is summoned home to care for her children after her husband, Howdy (Gerald McRaney of "Simon & Simon") suffers a heart attack. Joanne hasn't seen her kids for six years; Shawn is now 9, Kathy a teen-ager.

Joanne's return sets up conflicts between mother and daughter, and between mother and surrogate mother. It also opens the characters to guilt and fear, love and caring, while providing viewers an involving TV experience.

It's hard not to be touched by a mother, wrestling with anxieties and her reawakening maternal instincts, attempting to rekindle her children's trust and affection. The audience sympathy is further evoked by a wonderfully warm and sensitive portrait by Miss Wagner, the former "Bionic Woman."

After one suicide attempt, drugs, electric shock treatments and therapy, Joanne's doctor thinks she's capable of being a full-time mother and wife again. Joanne's not so sure. "How can I be ready to go home if I feel this scared?"

She's nervous about her own competency. But, except for flashbacks to her suicide attempt, Joanne remains remarkably composed and together, in fact too much so, giving the movie its most unbelievable element.

As it turns out, her fitness is less a problem than other issues:

Will she be accepted by her children? Does she want to be a mother and wife again? Does she want to accept responsibilities after having the hospital take care of her needs for so long?

When she leaves Chicago for California, she admits: "I feel like I'm leaving home."

Joanne receives a rude welcome. Her husband's sister and brother-in-law, who want custody of the children if Howdy should die, are patronizing and insensitive. But the worst treatment comes at home.

Daughter Kathy (Melissa Michaelsen) is hostile. Her feelings of abandonment are complicated by her extreme protectiveness and possessiveness toward her father, still recuperating in the hospital. Kathy objects when her mother returns to her old bed, and not the guest room.

Another obstacle to family togetherness is the icy housekeeper, Louise, played by Barbara Babcock of "Hill Street Blues." There's immediate competition and an intense disagreement over child-raising. Joanne, as the outsider, doesn't know her place yet, but she gets no sympathy from Louise.

"Trust me to know what's best and please don't interfere," Louise says.

Only Shawn (played by Peter Billingsley, the off-stage brother of Miss Michaelsen) reaches out at home. He wants a mother, not a professional child-raiser. In one touching scene, Shawn asks if he should call her "mother, mom or ma."

Joanne cries. "You're making it tough on me kid."

Joanne herself is treading gently. Her first display of physical affection comes while she's fighting one of her flashbacks. It's only then that she asks Shawn for a hug.

Joanne's only other support comes from Howdy, a strong man, convincingly captured by McRaney. With all the trouble at home, Joanne's impulse is to return to her carefree existence in Chicago, as soon as Howdy is well enough to leave the hospital. But Howdy, a womanizer who contributed to Joanne's depression, desperately wants her back and his is that this family-in-fragments is worth caring about. Deeply.

Pink Panther's father still thinking pink

IN THE PINK — Two decades ago, director Blake Edwards (shown recently with a feline friend) and Maurice Richlin combined their talents for a screenplay for an adventure-comedy about a diamond heist. That film, "The Pink Panther," spawned a string of feature films and an industry which includes Pink Panther toys, dolls, cartoons, TV commercials and scores of other products.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It all started when Blake Edwards and Maurice Richlin combined their screen writing talents for an adventure-comedy about a diamond heist. Twenty years later, the Pink Panther has produced eight feature films and an industry.

The Pink Panther is ubiquitous, his lanky persona prancing in television commercials and cavorting in cartoon series. There are dolls, toys and scores of other panther products.

The seventh of the features, "The Trail of the Pink Panther," will be in the nation's theaters this month. Next summer will bring "The Curse of the Pink Panther."

The Pink Panther's papa is Blake Edwards, an amazingly prolific third-generation filmmaker who has also found time to write and direct "The Great Race," "Darling Lili," "10," "S.O.B." and "Victor Victoria."

In his Trellis Productions offices on the 16th floor of a Century City high rise, Edwards traced the two decades with his money-making cat.

"Maurice Richlin, who had won an Academy award for 'Pillow Talk,' came to me with a notion that I liked and we set about writing it," said Edwards, a slender, boyish 60-year-old, whose probing eyes are protected by dark glasses.

"The role of the detective hadn't been developed as broadly as it turned out to be," he said. "We concentrated on the princess, and we decided Audrey Hepburn would be great for the role. Maurice and I wrote our way across the Atlantic and presented half a script to Audrey in Paris. She turned it down, and we returned on the same boat and managed to finish writing the script."

Edwards was under contract to the Mirisch Company, which agreed to produce "The Pink Panther." Casting proved a problem.

Peter Ustinov agreed to play Inspector Clouseau, then withdrew. "He claimed we had told him Ava Gardner would play the role that Capucine finally did," Edwards recalled.

"We pleaded with him to reconsider, but he was intractable. What could we do? Shut down and file a law suit, which I hate?"

Someone came up with the idea of casting Peter Sellers, whom Edwards "vaguely knew about."

"I quickly looked at his films, which had nothing to do with the character of Clouseau," Edwards said.

"We got lucky again. The Mirisches said yes, and Peter was free briefly so we condensed his role."

"The Pink Panther" was a 1963 hit, and Sellers as Clouseau was injected into the 1964 "A Shot in the Dark," based on a successful play.

"Inspector Clouseau," released in 1968 with Alan Arkin in the title role and without Edwards' participation, was a failure.

In 1975, Edwards and Sellers worked together for "Return of the Pink Panther," an enormous success. The 1976 "The Pink Panther Strikes Again" also was a success.

The alliance between Edwards and Sellers began to crumble during the filming of "The Revenge of the Pink Panther" in Europe in 1977.

"I developed pneumonia, which was entirely emotional, from keeping my rage in check," Edwards said. "I finally called my analyst here and told him, 'I'm afraid I'm going to kill him or kill myself instead by holding back. I'm dealing with a madman.'"

Edwards said his analyst told him to use kindness. The director went back to the film and tried the gentle approach, "which worked until Peter caught on, then he would throw a real tantrum."
