Farmers protest public auction; 3 men arrested

SPRINGFIELD, Colo. (AP) — More than 200 chanting farmers trying to stop a public farm auction lined Main Street with banner-festooned tractors Tuesday and stormed the steps of the courthouse before being dispersed by tear gas.

At least one person was hurt in the melee. Three farmers were arrested, but one in handcuffs escaped, said Baca County Sheriff Willard Goff.

At auction was a 320-acre wheat and milo farm in southeastern Colorado owned by Jerry Wright. Despite the disturbance, the Federal Land Bank of Wichita, which held the deed, bought the farm for Alton Warren, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Lamar, said Wright was three years behind on his payments.

"You can't take land without due process of law," Wright said following the sale. "I'm not planning on leaving the land. I will not evacuate the land. They're going to have to evict me.

The farmers, some from as far away as Missouri and Illinois, began gathering more than an hour before the 10 a.m. auction. Scores of farm tractors blocked U.S. 385 through down and parked on both sides of Main Street, many with banners protesting

When Baca County Treasurer Thelma Goodnight attempted to read public notice of the auction, the farmers began shouting "No sale! No sale!" in Observers said deputies attempted to leave the courthouse but were pushed back inside. Goff ordered the crowd to leave, but the farmers refused.

INJURED - An unidentified woman wipes blood from the hands of Kinan Burk in Springfield, Colo. Tuesday after he was injured following the protest by the farmers.

A scuffle began at the courthouse door when some farmers tried to get inside and deputies used tear gas to disperse the crowd. Goff said.

Farmers threw eggs at the courthouse door. Goff said, and tires were flattened on several police cars, windows were smashed and gas tanks were filled with snow

"Some were angry, yes," Goff said. "But not at the beginning. They were just shouting down the sale. The whole thing would have been peaceful if those hotheads wouldn't have come in.

Local TESCO officials defend panel

From Staff and Wire Reports

Local Texas Electric Service Co. officials say the state's controversial Public Utility Commission is necessary to the operation of electric companies, even though the Sunset Advisory Commission voted Tuesday to get rid of it.

The Sunset panel voted 7-3 for abolition of the 8-yearold agency.

The commission's action is only a recommendation to the Legislature, which convenes Jan. 11, but ensures that complaints about the agency will get serious attention from lawmakers.

Sunset Commission members themselves said they do not expect the Legislature to disband the PUC, but called the vote a "strong message" for reform.

In its last meeting, on Dec. 17, the commission rejected a plan to improve the PUC by establishing a counsel to represent residential ratepayers and eliminating the fuel adjustment clause — an automatic  $\,$ pass-through to customers when fuel costs go up

Hooper Sanders, Big Spring division manager of Texas Electric Service Company, said last night in Big Spring that the fuel adjustment clause was a necessity

Electricity-producing plants used to burn natural gas, a low-cost (at that time) fuel which varied little in price, he said. But gas prices have gone up dramatically, he said, and 50 percent of TESCO's plants now burn

"We burn our cheapest fuel first," he said.

Also, since the fuel adjustment clause allows the companies to estimate the amount and cost of fuel which will be used every two months, "we charge only what it costs to produce the electricity." At the end of the two months, the estimates are compared with the actual fuel cost and corrections made.

Supporters of the PUC reform package vowed to try again. Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, tried to reintroduce the reform legislation Tuesday, but Sen. Ed

Gramm will run as a Republican

By FRANK MAY Harte-Hanks News Service COLLEGE STATION

Democratic Rep. Phil Gramm resigned his seat in the U.S. House today to run for the same seat as a Republican.

Gramm submitted a letter of resignation to Gov. Bill Clements and House Speaker Bill Clayton this morning, stating that by the end of the day he would be closing his office here He told reporters at a news conference, "I cannot in good conscience work within a national party that seeks to limit my effectiveness on behalf of those I represent in its effort to perpetuate the spending spree which has crippled our nation, threatened our position of world leadership and robbed our workers and retirees However, Gramm said, he was elected as a Democrat and believes that some who voted for him "would view it as wrong for me to change parties and serve out the remainder of my term as a Republican, having been elected as a Democrat.

'After a long and prayerful deliberation I have concluded that the honorable course of action is to resign my seat in Congress and to seek re-election as a Republican.'

Gramm said he realizes that there are political risks involved in his action. "I recognize that my

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN - Like a sculptor forced to quit with a work half done, Bill Clements is wondering what sort of features his successor will carve on the body he envisioned and chipped steadily into a general form. And he isn't optimistic about the possibilties. In a long interview Tuesday with a half dozen Capitol reporters, Clements said unfinished attempts to improve planning and management in Texas government will be among his biggest regrets when he steps down as governor on Jan. 18.

While mostly avoiding particular criticism of Mark White, the Democrat who defeated the Republican incumbent in the Nov. 2 election, Clements expressed little hope that his successor will complete the work already begun.

"I think you're going to see a deterioration in the management of our state government," he said. "I think what has happened the past four years is without any question a new page in our Texas history of management of state government. I doubt seriously if the incoming administration has any inclinations in this direction.

And if White has any hope that Clements will quietly drop out of sight after Jan. 18, he will be disappointed. The governor said he plans to return to SEDCO, the Dallas-based oil rig firm he founded, as chairman of the board but no longer as chief executive officer. And, he said, he will maintain an active role as a sort of "loyal opposition" critic of the Democrats.

Previous Texas governors generally remained politely quiet about successors because they all were of the same party, he said. "I'll be polite, but I'm not going to be quiet.' Clements, who was state campaign chairman for Ronald Reagan in the 1980 presidential race, said he plans an active support role in 1984 and in 1986 has 'every intention of making Mark White a one-term governor." But Clements ruled out any future campaigns for himself and said he doesn't want a federal ap-See Clements, page 2-A

New student loan program may find little acceptance

By BOB CARPENTER Staff Writer

A new plan for providing student loans will soon be presented to area lending institutions by the West Texas Higher Education Authority, but the program is expected to find little acceptance in Howard County,

The non-profit organization in El Paso has sold $25 million in bonds to purchase students loans made by lending institutions. The bond issue also will cover service and collection of the loans. "In essence we're operating a secondary market whereby we purchase guaranteed student loans initiated by lending institutions," said

"After the banks sell us the loan we take ever-the servicing and collection processes. The new procedure may not have much impact on the student loan market in the Big Spring area because of a similar program already instituted at Citizen's Federal Credit Union, according to financial aid officers at Howard College and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Ralph B. Rushing of Dallas, financial advisor for the authority

However, in other counties, especially Midland and Ector, there is a need for the program, said Joyce Thompson, financial aid director of UTPB.

The West Texas authority, one of several in the state, was organized in 1981 and proposes to serve 22 West Texas counties and 11 colleges and universities within the area. Rushing said the bonds were sold about eight weeks ago. The authority is now organizing an orientation seminar for interested institutions, The seminar will be conducted by the Higher Education Servicing Corp., Inc., a servicing agent created solely to provide higher education authorities with student loan billing and servicing, according to Rushing.

WTBS to stay on Big Spring cable

By MIKE DOWNEY Staff Writer

Big Spring television viewers apparently will not lose station WTBS-Atlanta from their cable selections despite its deletion by several cable companies across the nation, including San Angelo Big Spring Cable TV Vice-President Jim Lancaster said Tuesday there is "no danger" of WTBS (channel 11 on local cable) being dropped from the Big Spring

The removal of WTBS from several cable services stems from a decision by the Copyright Royalty

Tribunal to assess additional royalty fees for cable companies using independent distant signal stations, Lancaster said.

The decision could affect Big Spring "to some extent," Lancaster said. However, he would not comment about the possibility of a subscription rate increase as a result of the ruling.

"Some companies are asked to pay up to 400 percent more," Lancaster said. San Angelo would have to pay 3.75 percent of its gross revenues for the service, according to San Angelo officials. WTBS, owned by Atlanta millionaire Ted Turner, features sports, news, old movies and TV

The CRT decision affects all cable services nationwide as of Jan. 1, 1983, Lancaster said. However, cable companies have a "grace period" until March 15 before any fees will be due, Lancaster said. He said he expected cable companies would be lobbying Congress to get the copyright fees removed or reduced before then.

"It's not that you can't carry it (the distant signal)," Lancaster

Police Beat

Man's car disappears

Charles Dickson of 905 E. 13th probably won't be leaving his car alone with the engine running after this morning. Dickson started his car about 4:40 a.m. today and when he returned about 20 minutes later, it had disappeared.

Dickson notified police of the theft and a few minutes later an officer arrested two teen-agers that were driving the car north on Birdwell, police said.

A male juvenile and 17-year-old Yolanda Paradez of 301 N.W. 10th were both arrested on suspicion of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Police reports also showed the following:

• A 64-year-old man was the victim of an attempted robbery last night, police said. Doise McKee of 205 E. Third told police as he walked upstairs to his room about 7:30 p.m. a white male jumped him and tried to rob him. McKee fell and struck his head on the pavement, police reports said. As the victim began screaming for help, the would-be robber fled the scene, police said. No suspects have been arrested, police said.

• Robert Ray Pruitt, 45, of 2309 Brent was arrested yesterday on a simple assault warrant. He was released after posting a $100 bond.

 Police said they arrested 35-year-old Robert Earl Smith of 604 N.E. 10th last night on suspicion of possession of marijuana under 2 ounces. The suspect was arrested about 1:40 a.m. after police executed a search and arrest warrant at his home.

· A 14-year-old white male was arrested yesterday on suspicion of theft under $5. Lewis Chatman had told police the boy shoplifted two wallets from Gibson Discount Center

· A 14-year-old white female was arrested yesterday on suspicion of theft under $5. Randal Clark had told police the girl shoplifted $3.83 worth of eye makeup from Furr's Super Market.

• Police arrested a 72-year-old white female yesterday at Furr's Super Market on suspicion of theft under

 Abby Weyhe of Lubbock told police someone stole her brown shoulder bag yesterday from a Ford van parked at College Park shopping center. • Billy Joe Durden of 2602 Chanute told police someone entered his house Monday night and stole an $800 diamond ring and $30 cash. • Elton Jones of 4209 Walnut told police a person he knows entered his residence yesterday and took a stereo and two speakers without his permission. Margie Bridges of 1509 Oriole told police someone stole four wire-rimmed hubcaps from her car parked at her residence between 9 a.m. Monday and 2:30 p.m. vesterday • A 25-year-old man is in stable condition at Malone

Hogan Hospital after he was injured in a two-vehicle accident yesterday. Vehicles driven by the victim, Thomas R. Doane of 1408 Runnels, and Tamra L. Garza of Lenerah collided at Pennsylvania and 11th Place about 5 p.m Police cited Garza for making an unsafe left turn and Doane for failure to show financial responsibility Doane was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Peace Justice Lewis Helfin. Donny Eagle, 21, of 704 Creighton paid a fine, set by West, and bad checks to be released under to sheriff's office records.

- David Lee Ayers, 28, of San Angelo is in county jail after his transfer from Tom Green County authorities. Ayers is being held without bond under a warrant for revocation of probation on a theft conviction

Fire officials begin stove inspection tour

Big Spring fire department officials have begun a new service they hope will prevent blazes caused by improperly installed heating units, City Manager Don

Two blazes last week - one at 401 Hillside and another at 101 N. Carey - apparently were caused by wood burning stoves that were improperly installed, Davis said.

Davis said that fire officials will, upon request, inspect free-standing, wood burning stoves to make sure they are properly installed. The inspection is free of eharge. Davis said.

Interested persons should contact the central fire station at 263-8311.

The HESC's orientation program will be Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. in the Old El Paso Room of the State National Bank in El Paso. Donner said invitations were being sent to lenders in the 22-county area.

Located in Arlington, the servicing corporation will take over full maintenance of the loan once it is purchased by the authority from a lending institution, Rushing said.

"It's a really great deal for lenders," said Lee Donner, executive director for the HESC. 'We've found most lenders would like to make loans, but there's two things that hold them back: lack of liquidity and the complex regulations involved in servicing

Donner said most lenders do not want to tie up large sums of money in student loans which limits the institution's ability to loan money in other areas. He also said the paperwork and of the old Federal Insured Student Loan Program which contained a lot of red tape," Donner said. "Our biggest problem is getting lenders to sit down and listen to our presentation. 'With our program, it lets them make loans, get a return off the loans and then sell them off to the authority and not face the problems of collecting the loans," he said.

motion was out of order. Caperton seemed ready to give up when former Legislative Budget Board Director Vernon McGee moved for abolition of the PUC. "Our message was that the Public Utility Commission can only be viable if changes are made to keep the agency from being controlled by the industry," said Consumers Union Texas Director Carol Barger, a member of the Sunset committee. The vote came after the commission approved minor changes in the Railroad Commission and State Board Insurance — but voted to keep them

Until Tuesday's action, the commission, which reviews all state agencies regularly, had produced no recommendation on the three-member PUC despite intense feelings and lengthy testimony about the agency. Opponents of the PUC contend it is controlled by phone and fuel utilities, who regularly receive generous rate hikes from the agency. Bob Truitt, TESCO governmental affairs spokesman, said last night in Big Spring that replacing the appointed members of the PUC with elected officials would create other problems for the utilities. "If they are elected, there'll be a lot of 'if you elect me there won't be any more rate increases'," he said.

The PUC not only sets rates, but guarantees companies a rate of return, figuring in capital investments such as power plant construction. PUC Chairman Moak Rollins argues that the guaranteed rate of return actually saves ratepayers money by keeping the utility company's bond rating up and cost of borrowing down. Mike Greene, TESCO executive assistant from Fort Worth, said that Construction Work in Progress money borrowed by the company for projects underway "It's a pay me now — pay me later type deal," he said, adding that should CWIP be abolished, the pay me later angle would result in customers paying about three times the amount of interest.

(CWIP) provides interim financing for interest on

Customers are not paying for the construction work itself, Sanders said, only the interest on the money borrowed for the construction.

"The 85-year little old lady won't be too interested (in paying the interest this way)," he said, "but it saves the customer money in the long haul. "I doubt seriously that it will happen," Rollins said Tuesday of abolishing the agency. "This is a recommendation to the Legislature. I don't anticipate that it will be the final legislative action. It's my personal view that the functions performed by this commission are necessary and ought to be continued.'

Truitt said already "pre-filed" to re-establish the PUC Texas Municipal League attorney Don Butler, who frequently battles rate hikes before the PUC, contends customers would see lower utility bills if rate-making authority were given back to the cities — which used to set utility rates before the PUC was created in 1975.

Truitt said last night here that he didn't believe abolishing the PUC would prove "viable." He said such a move would have results completely different from the ones Butler sees.

"If the PUC is abolished, the cost of asking for rate increases would go up considerably," he said. "There are, I believe, 78 communities in our service area. The cost of going to each community and asking for a rate increase would be ... prohibitive.

Sanders said last night that returning rate approval powers to the communities could have another adverse effect. "It is a necessity to have rates which are compatible throughout the system," he said, adding that, should individual communities have the right to set rates, the result could be widely varying rates. "I think their vote to abolish the commission is more in the order of a no confidence vote in the commission," Butler said. "But it certainly paves the way for some constructive changes in the commission to give it a more balanced approach.'

Jimmy Chagra trial moving to Florida

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The presiding judge, prosecutors and defense attorneys are moving a ton of evidence to Florida for a replay of charges that a narcotics trafficker hired a hitman to murder a Texas federal judge.

Prosecutors John Emerson, Ray Jahn and his wife, LeRoy Jahn, are trucking more than a ton of files and evidence to Jacksonville, Fla., for the trial of Jamiel "Jimmy"

Chagra, 39, is charged with paying convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson $250,000 to murder U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions planned to depart today to preside over Chagra's trial, which is set to begin Mondays

By The Associated Press

Syria is building two bases deep inside its territory for advanced Soviet SAM-5 anti-aircraft missiles that could seriously threaten Israeli aircraft within Israel's own airspace, U.S. intelligence sources

In Lebanon, police said 13 people were killed today and 37 others wounded as fighting continued between rival Moslem militias vying for control of the port city

In a separate incident, an Israeli army vehicle was blown up in the Christianpopulated town of Hadath, three miles south of Beirut, according to reports by Lebanese police and the Israeli military command. The command said two soldiers were wounded and a second charge was found but disarmed.

Lebanese newspapers and radio also reported two Israeli soldiers were abducted at gunpoint Tuesday near the coastal town of Jiye; 15 miles south of

Tripoli's half-million residents spent

Pro-Syrian Alawite Moslems and Palestinian-backed Sunnis are battling for control of Tripoli, Lebanon's secondlargest city, located 50 miles north of Beirut in Syrian-controlled territory.

Former Lebanese Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem and Tripoli's leading politician, was in Syria seeking President Hafez Assad's intervention to arrange a ceasefire.

Farouk Mokaddam, a Sunni militia commander, called the fighting a "bloodbath, a massacre committed piecemeal,' according to Lebanon state radio. He also was quoted as saying more than 3,000 people have died in the past month.

Food supplies have dwindled in Tripoli and there is no running water in the seaside slum districts of Baal Moshsen, Bab el-Tabbaneh and Kubbeh, where the heaviest fighting was reported.

An Israeli army communique Tuesday pressed new concern about a buildup of Soviet weaponry in Syria — Israel's most dangerous military adversary in the Middle East. Thousands of Israeli and Syrian troops face each other across a cease-fire line in Lebanon.

The communique did not say what Israel planned to do about the bases, but Israel has pursued an aggressive policy in the past toward Syrian missiles that threaten its air force's freedom to maneuver.

Last summer, Israel destroyed 19 Syrian anti-aircraft missiles sites in the Bekaa Valley, when its primary concern was the SAM-6 missile, with a range of 22

SAM-5s, a two-stage missile whose warheads are guided by radar homing devices, have a range of 150-190 miles, longer than any Soviet-built surface-toair missile previously deployed in an Arab country, U.S. intelligence sources in

So far the sources said, none of the missiles, code named Gammon, have been seen inside Syria. The Israelis said two bases were being built inside Syria and one U.S. source said at least one battery was under construction near

According to the Defense Department's 1981 report on Soviet military power, the SAM-5 was first deployed in 1963 and more than 100 complexes for the weapon were in operation throughout the Soviet Union. U.S. sources said SAM-5s have never been deployed outside the Soviet

On Monday, Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir was quoted by Israeli newspapers as having told a closed-door Parliament committee that he fears Soviet crews may be manning the equipment, and that the Kremlin has promised Syria the same guarantees as those covering the Syrian army on its own

Spiro Agnew pays Maryland $268,482 in kickback case

BALTIMORE (AP) Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's payment of $268,482 to compensate for kickbacks he allegedly took while governor and vice president helps "remove a stain" from Maryland, the state attorney general says. Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs handed a cashier's check from Agnew's attorney to the state treasurer at a Tuesday news conference, marking the end of an unusual case started by a group of law students in 1976.

The $268,482 represented compensation for $147,500 in kickbacks Agnew was accused of receiving from engineers seeking highway contracts, plus interest. Sachs said the judgment was believed to be the "largest ever of its kind in the country and the first of its kind in "It helps to remove a stain Maryland's reputation suffered,"

Agnew resigned in disgrace as vice president in 1973 after pleading no contest to a federal tax-evasion charge. In return the U.S. Justice Department - which said Agnew had even accepted payoffs in his White House office — agreed not to press bribery, extortion and conspiracy charges against him.

Agnew continues to maintain his innocence, but said he agreed to make the court-ordered repayment because an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court showed "no realistic chance of success. The compensation lawsuit was filed by three Maryland taxpayers at the urging of George Washington University law students

.The students, required as part of a course to bring a legal action, believed Agnew had not been punished enough for his "no contest" tax-evasion plea. He had been fined $10,000 and put on probation

The plaintiffs charged the alleged payments made to Agnew between 1967 and 1969 by engineers seeking state highway contracts resulted in higher construction costs and higher taxes.

Agnew was governor of Maryland when he became Richard M. Nixon's running mate in the 1968 presidential elections, and he was re-elected with Nixon in 1972.

They demanded return of the alleged kickbacks from Agnew and two associates, developer I.H. "Bud" Hammerman and Jerome B. Wolff, a former state roads commissioner.

'This case just doesn't seem to add up to the kind of justice the framers of the Constitution had in mind," Agnew said in a telephone interview from his home in Rancho Mirage, Calif.

Whooping crane's death natural, official says

MATAGORDA ISLAND (AP) — The death of a young whooping crane appears to have been natural, but scientists have not pinpointed what killed the rare bird, a spokesman for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service says.

"There is no indication of the bird being shot or anything. It looks like it died of natural causes sometime in the last week of December," said agency spokesman Tom Smylie in Albuquerque, N.M.

There is no indication of any foul play," he said. Remains of the bird were found Tuesday on this island off the Gulf Coast The death reduced to 84 the number of whoopers

Ford to pay man hurt in Pinto crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A man left brain damaged and crippled when his Ford Pinto smashed into a parked backhoe will receive $2.7 million in an out-of-court settlement

The settlement with Ford Motor Co., a Ford dealership and two construction companies was announced by the Nebraska man's lawyer.

Ford denied that the crash was caused by a defective brake line and only agreed to the settlement because it was less expensive than fighting the claim in court, said company spokesman Jerry Sloan. A three-member arbitration panel reviewed the accident and recommended the settlement for 24-yearold William Vann, of Omaha, Neb., who was in a coma for six months after the May 1978 accident. "We decided to settle in this way rather than going through the courts because it appeared it would be a long, protracted trial with appeals," Sloan said Tuesday from Dearborn, Mich. "While we had something to talk about, it (arbitration) was a long shot," said Vann's lawyer, Mark

Robinson Ford Motor Co. and the dealership where Vann bought the car, Drew Ford, in La Mesa, were responsible for 72 percent of the settlement, Robinson said. The other two defendants, backhoe owner W.R. Connelly and the company that leased the backhoe from Connelly, Land Equipment Co., will pay the remainder, he

Dear Editor

(and Mrs. Judith Gray):

It was obvious to me from your bitter rebuttal to my letter to the Herald, that I touched a tender spot somewhere in your armor

Could it be that you got so angry because the story I told was true? You never once denied it.

I did indeed receive 'poor service' from a rude, surly librarian.' Your reply never refutes that, nor could it honestly have done so

I freely admit my guilt in going to the library at a time when 'the drawers were unlabeled because a refiling project had just been completed.' I admit that my ignorance of the project is no excuse for my conduct. I should have waited until the library was prepared for

It heartens me to learn that business is booming at the library as you reported in your statistics. The people who read the editorial page of the Herald stand duly informed that the library is understaffed and its employees overworked. Now, perhaps steps will be taken to correct the situation, thus making both our letters worthwhile. Don't you agree that was the purpose for which they were written?

Mrs. Gray. I have never asked for service of any kind on a "silver plat-ter." On the contrary, I feel that I have added to your burdens by hav-

Russia's recession

 The occasional visitor to this city can settle at a glance a debate about the Soviet economy that ranges furiously in Western capitals. Living standards here are relatively high, and continue to rise.

The economic difficulty comes not in meeting basic needs, but in satisfying increasingly discriminating tastes. So an effective Western policy has to move beyond crude boycotts to sophisticated tactics.

Automobiles present perhaps the most striking sign of steady economic growth. Private cars, a rarity only 20 years ago, are now common to the point of becoming a problem. On such main drags as Gorki Street and Kalinin Prospekt there are now rush hour traffic

Clothing is not only warm and serviceable. Stylish coats, hats and boots are evident all over Moscow. One way Russians regularly put down the Chinese is by criticizing their dress. "They think," a Russian said to me of the Chinese, a good Marxist has to look l

Lines outside food shops are more common now than a couple of years ago. But the basic supply is assured. Indeed, there is enough around so that there was an increase to mark the accession of Yuri Andropov.

BUT IF THE quantity of goods suffices, quality and servicing fall short. The agenda of the Politburo, which is now being published, shows that at their meeting on Dec. 16. the top Russian leaders discussed, besides arms control and relations with Finland, the question of the availability of auto parts.

Meat, a luxury in the past, is now central to the Soviet food problem. Demand is rising, and the big pinch in agriculture comes in feed grains for livestock.

The reasons the Soviet state experiences great difficulty in producing goods and services of quality are well known. Population and labor supply are off for natural causes. Economic growth has declined from 5 percent a decade ago to less than 3 percent. Available resources have to be channeled more effectively. "The economy," as Andropov has said, borrowing a favorite Brezhnev comment, "has to be economical.

But central planners are not good at defining quality or making innovations - especially when communications are poor and transport inadequate. Managers here are rewarded for meeting targets set by the planning authorities, so the prudent manager just turns out more and more of the old stuff.

Workers, particularly down on the farm, lack incentive. Even if ev make more money, there is not much that is attractive to buy. Jobs are virtually guaranteed, so nobody has to work hard to avoid being fired. On the contrary, absenteeism and drunkenness run high.

General Secretary Andropov has made better economic performance a high priority for his-regime. He has moved to strengthen the planning process, to improve transport and to increase worker discipline. But it is not clear that he can overcome the inertia of a top-heavy Communist Party bureaucracy. Certainly the change will take time.

THE WESTERN interest in all this is easy to identify. The U.S. and its friends want to limit the resources available to Moscow for increasing military strength and pushing political expansion. That means nudging the Kremlin into spending more on butter and less on guns. But how to achieve that result is not self-evident — particularly in a time of world recession

In general, efforts to limit the supply of basic products prove ineffective. There is enough grain around for Moscow to pick suppliers. The Reagan administration not only felt obliged to lift the grain embargo. It is now practically begging the Russians to buy American. Washington's effort to cut off European sales of equipment to Russia for a joint gas pipeline venture also failed. Stopping the sales, especially of steel pipe, would have hurt the Europeans more than the Russians. Indeed, in view of the American policy on grain, the pipeline sanction looked like blatant hyprocrisy.

Limits can be usefully placed on high technology items, especially Russia is surely not entitled to any concessions on credit. It is sensible to maintain financial and trade ties with the East European countries so they can use Russia's "recession" to inch toward the freedom that the West cannot otherwise obtain for them.

Still, those are distinctly limited pressures. To list them is to assert the bottom line. The bottom line is that economic pressures cannot crack the Soviet regime, or put Communism on the ash heap of

Billy Graham

Is there really a hell?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can you say that there is such a thing as hell, if God is really a God of love?

DEAR C.W.: Let me say at the beginning that God does not want us to go to hell; instead, he wants us to live with him-eternally in Heaven. The Bible says, "He is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish. but everyone to come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9). At the same time, the Bible also makes it very clear that hell is a reality, and it would be foolish for you to turn your back on that fact. How can God who loves us also allow hell to exist? That is not an easy question to answer, but perhaps the right place to begin is to realize that God is not only a God of love, but a God of justice as well. He is holy and perfect, and he is also completely just in all he does. The Bible says, "The Lord is righteous in all his ways and loving toward all he has made" (Psalm 145:17). Let me put it this way: God has made this world in such a way that some things are right, and some things are wrong. It is always wrong to murder someone, for example, or to steal from someone.

But imagine what kind of world it would be if God did not ever judge evil. Imagine if the Hitlers of this world, who oppress and kill others, never had to give account for their sins or be judged. But that is not the way it is! "For God will bring every deed into judgment, including every hidden thing, whether it is good or evil" (Ecclesiastes 12:14).

You have, in other words, two great truths: God judges sin because he is righteous; God 'also') loves us Andryet if we are anhestel!) we must admit that we have sinned against God and we only deserve tonibe judged. We have not followed his will, and have turned our backs on him. But now I want you to see a very important truth: God in his love has made it possible for us to escape his judgment - because Christ was sent from God to take deserved. God loves you, and that is why "he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life"

WASHINGTON - At painful expense to the taxpayers, the Pentagon has developed the most sophisticated weapnry in the world. The latest instruments of destruction are wondrous to behold, with sleek designs, computerized controls and electronic gadgetry.

There is just one problem: These weapons are so complex that only highly skilled technicans can operate them. Yet the armed services don't have nearly enough technicians in the ranks. So they depend on civilian contract personnel known in the trade as "technical mercenaries" - to manage and maintain the sophisticated weapons systems.

This poses a problem: If war breaks out, will the eight-hour-aday civilians stay and fight? The Pentagon has responded typically by trying to minimize the problem. But I've seen a grim study prepared for the Defense Department, which warns urgently: "If these civilians should choose not to work in crises, the effect on weapon system material readiness could be devastating Meanwhile, the generals and admirals continue to lavish billions on hardware, without putting sufficient money into personnel training and inducements. Thus the technicians in uniform, who can be trained to keep the super weapons in working order, are too easily lured out of the service into lucrative jobs in the civilian sector

AT PRESENT, there are about 5,000 civiliam technicians in the Defense Department. About half of them are contract people - the technical mercenaries. A Pentagon memo states:

"We have become increasingly concerned over the past few years with the growing shortage of skilled military technicians at a time when weapon systems entering the inventory are increasingly complex. This has resulted in "an expanded use of civilian technicians, largely contractor personnel, to provide necessary technical advice, training and support in the maintenance of weapon systems.

An investigation by the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, chaired by Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., found there were more than 1,000 technical mercenaries performing critical jobs in the European Command alone. Their responsibilities range from command-andcontrol communications to air

The Pentagon memo puts the problem succinctly: "This increased use of civilian technicians in peacetime in turn raised the question of availability of these personnel in wartime."

The Logistics Management Institute, an independent defenseoriented think tank, recently made a study for the Pentagon. Its report, reviewed by my associate Lucette Lagnado, urges the Defense Department to reassess its policy toward the use of technical mercenaries in key positions.

Officially, the military services are required to be "self-sufficient" in operating and maintaining their exotic new weapons systems. But in reality they depend on contractors "on a continuing basis — frequently throughout the operational lives of systems." Rather than admit to a breach of the regulations, those in charge "under-report their use of contract engineers and technicians," the report said.

The White House isn't in immig-nent danger of becoming a roasti-motel, but its pest problems any hot limited to pickets and reculations members of Congress. Controlling the cheeky little critters has been a continuing struggle

Chemical warfare is waged on the insects and rodents on a regular basis. The Reagans' kitchen pantry and food-storage areas are sprayed with restaurant-strength pesticides biweekly, while the first family's living quarters are treated periodically as the need arises

The National Park Service is in charge of the battle against rats, tracking them around the White House grounds and laying poison bait on their pathways. No part of the executive complex is immune from the bugs and rodents - East Wing, West Wing, the Old Executive Office Building, all are sprayed routinely. The cost of treating the 660 offices within the White House grounds topped $20,000 in fiscal 1982, according to the General Services Administration

Impartial as ever, the creepingcrawlies also infest the legislative branch. There are roaches in all the congressional buildings on Capitol Hill; pest control there costs $2,000

First Baptist Family Life Center to burn mortgage

A building was built in Big Spring in 1980 at a cost of one and one-half million dollars. Interim financing was obtained from First National Bank. On completion in September 1980 First Federal Savings carried the mortgage note. Monday, Jan. 3, just a little over two years later, the note was paid in full!

The building was the First Baptist Family Life Center. It took faith and courage to make the commitment to build it. Faith in the economy, in the members, in this community. It also took effort, sacrifice and belief when the members adopted the theme debt-free in '83. Sunday morning in the 11 o'clock church service there will be a mortgage burning ritual led by the minister, Dr. Kenneth Patrick, and Dr. Charles Warren, Clem Jones, Joe Pickle and P.W. Malone.

I'm not a member of this church or even a Baptist - but I'm very proud of this group of people. They provided needed facilities to this community, created jobs, kept money in this community through the lending instutions, and set an example for the rest of us to follow. This same church is planning to open a bilingual chapel in the downtown area of our city very soon. And, in reviewing the past year, Dr. Patrick found that giving to the church increased 20 percent in 1982 over 1981. ·

Another church in town that is on the grow is St. Paul Lutheran Church on Scurry, which is about to add a new fellowship hall.

These are optimistic signs of a positive quality of life that is aftractive to new residents and prospective new industries.

An application was made several weeks ago to the Texas Arts Council for matching funding to hire a parttime consultant to assist the community cultural development. Notification came this week that the Arts Council grant has been approved for $3,000. This will be matched by monies from the Symphony Association, the Museum and the Chamber Cultural Affairs Council ward who has worked tirelessly over the past two years for several Big Spring cultural events while he served as manager of the Midland-Odessa Symphony-Chorale. You will be hearing more about Sam in the weeks ahead as he begins to work regularly here and begins gathering input from the community. Offer him your assistance as he helps us make this a better, more interesting place to live.

The consultant hired is Sam Wood-

If you are a member of the chamber, it is time for you to sign up to work on committees. This is your opportunity to help make things happen. If you aren't a member, join today so you can sign up for the 1983 plan of action. Next Wednesday, Jan. 12, the board of directors and committee chairpersons will be meeting to finalize the program of action.

Some important events coming up

•Monday, Jan. 10: Women's Network Luncheon, 210 Permian Building, call 263-1451 for more information. Important meeting because

Man charged in hospital shooting

HOUSTON (AP) police officer wounded by a gunman who had shot a security guard in the emergency room of Ben Taub Hospital has been released following treatment, a hospital official said.

Officer James H. Legg twice told the gunman to drop his weapon before opening fire Monday, authorities said.

Legg was sent home Tuesday after a day in the hospital, according to Walter Tinson, admitting supervisor at Ben Taub.

Legg's head was grazed by a bullet in the shootout, witnesses said.

Billy Ray Clark, 29, was charged with three counts of attempted capital murder, said police Detective M.D. Doyle. Bond was set at $20,000 for each Court records showed Clark has been examined for psychiatric problems since 1971.

According to court records, Clark once tried to run over a security guard, fought with three law enforcement officers who tried to arrest him for loitering and kicked a deputy constable who refused his request to be taken to jail.

Witnesses said Clark started the Monday gun battle by pulling a .38-caliber pistol from the holster of Robert McMenomy and shooting him in the stomach. Clark was listed in fair condition with an abdominal wound, Tinson said.

McMenomy, 31, was listed in critical condition. The off-duty Texas Medical Center policeman was working as a security guard at the hospital at the time of the shooting, authorities said.

Police spokesman Raul Correa said authorities did not know what prompted the argument that led to shooting about 1:45 p.m. Monday.

Two witnesses, Ann Siford of Shepherd and Teresa Graham of Pasadena, said McMenomy had escorted Clark outside the emergency room registration area when an argument erupted.
The officer returned with

Clark immediately, with Clark protesting that he was a patient, said the women, who were at the hospital to check on a friend.

As the officer tried to pin one of Clark's arms behind his back, the man turned on him and grabbed his pistol, they said.

"The first shot went wild. The second shot hit him (McMenomy) in the stomach and he fell backwards and started screaming. He screamed about eight times and nobody could get to him,' said Ms. Siford, 52.

She and other witnesses said an older man grabbed Clark's neck but was thrown to the floor.

Paramedic R.D Wisnoskie said "the guy who shot the officer was holding a gun over the top of him and wouldn't let anyone near him."

Locking car one of best crime preventatives

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles dealing with crime prevention. Today's article gives some tips on protecting your vehicles

By CAROL HART Lifestyle Writer

Common sense, which according to Police Chief Rick Turner is one of the best crime preventatives, again prevails when it comes to safeguarding your vehicle from theft.

How many times have you left the keys in the ignition of your vehicle when you made a quick dash into a store. Or how many times have you left your vehicle running as you went on an errand. Many people who use these "time-savers" return to where their vehicle was parked only to discover it is no longer there.

Law enforcement officials urge drivers to keep their vehicles locked at all times, even if leaving for just a short period of time, or if it is parked in front of your house. And never leave keys in an unattended vehicle.

The National Automobile Theft Bureau says that two of every five stolen cars had keys in them when they were taken. The Bureau also has statistics which say four out of five stolen cars were unlocked at the time of Here's another tip for safeguarding your vehicle. Make sure the window seals are secure, and that you roll up the windows as far as you can. A small space at the top of the window will allow a theft to insert something like a coathanger, unlock the lock, and gain entry to the vehicle.

Many cars are stolen at night. Be sure to park your vehicle in well-lighted areas, under street lamps or in front of brightly lit stores. This tip may protect both you and your vehicle, as it is safer to approach a car in a well-lighted area than one covered in darkness.

If you park you're car in the daylight but may return after darkness, look around the area to see if the area will be well-lighted after sundown.

Park in areas where your vehicle can easily be seen by passers-by. A well-trafficked area may serve to PROTECT YOUR CAR - Locking your car at all times and rolling up windows may prevent you from losing your automobile to a thief, law enforcement officials say. And officials urge car owners to lock up deter thieves. A trick many car thieves use today is towing vehicles away from where they are parked. To avoid this, try not to park at an intersection at the end of a line of parked cars. If you park by a curb, turn your front wheels sharply to the right or left, to

Don't feel that because your car is parked safely in your front drive-way it is really safe. Statistics show vehicles when they are parked in front of residences, because thousands of vehicles are stolen each year from in front of people's homes.

that nearly half of all stolen cars are taken from residential areas

Just as it is not safe to leave keys to your home under the welcome mat or in your mailbox, neither is it safe to leave keys to your car fastened under fenders and bumpers, under the floormat or attached inside the trunk. Car thieves will often check around the vehicle to see if they can find a spare key, and most will have no trouble finding keys in places you will leave them. It is safer to carry an extra set of keys with you at all

Glove compartments are not designed to be car safes, and shouldn't be used as such. Once a thief has broken into your vehicle, it causes him very little additional trouble to break into the glove compartment. Never leave valuable papers, credit cards or other valuables in the glove compartment.

And don't leave valuables, such as cameras, purses and suitcases sitting in easy views on the seats of your car. Valuables should be locked in the trunk if you must carry them with you.

If you have a cassette tape player in your car, of-ficials advise that it is a good idea not to carry every tape you own in your car. Should someone break into the car, they will get only a few tapes, not your whole collection. And officials recommend buying tape decks and radios which can be pulled out easily and taken inside when your vehicle is unoccupied.

Goods carried inside your vehicle, like valuables around your home, should be marked. The Big Spring Police Department participates in Operation I.D., and has a metal engraver at the station with which you can mark certain items with numbers which make them easy to identify.

Officials also recommend making some kind of identifying mark on your vehicle, such as scratching your initials on the inside of the trunk or hood.

If your car should be stolen, be ready with the information the police will need to begin searching for it. Keep a card handy with the license number, vehicle identification number, body style, engine type, etc., handy. Don't expect the police to be able to retrieve your car if you can't even identify your own license

Again, remember that common sense may be your best weapon in fighting crime. The Big Spring Police Department has a number of pamphlets dealing with crime prevention methods.

Dr. Donohue

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband has just found out that he has sarcoids of the lungs. I have read about it in my medical books, but am not clear about them yet. The doctor says it normally runs its course, and if not, there is a treatment for it. My husband is 29 and in very good health otherwise. How does one get this disease and what is the treatment the doctor speaks of? — T.Y. I wish I could answer your question about how one gets sarcoldosis. I can't. No one knows. Sarcoldosis is the name of an illness in which small lumps form in the body tiseue, the lungs being a common site. And although it may resemble tuberculosis, it is not that at Sarcoidosis can be so mild that the person feels perfectly well, but in a few it can progress rapidly and injure organs, like the liver, eyes, skin. It appears that your husband has a mild form, perhaps one detected almost incidentally.

Let's take his case as possibly a usual one. A chest Xray happens to be taken, perhaps as part of a general physical examination. It shows enlarged lung nodes. What are called granulomas have formed - hordes of special kinds of cells, called macrophages. These are cells that normally attack material foreign to the body. We don't know what they congregate in sarcoidosis.

Your doctor now is watching this situation. Often, sarcoidosis disappears as mysteriously as it appeared. However, if it does get out of control and affect body organs, steroids can be used to stop the macrophage cells from piling up.

You also ask in your letter about symptoms. As noted, there may be none, but if lungs are affected there might be the symptoms of breathing difficulty, or other problems related to other affected organs. With liver invasion, a jaundice (skin yellowness) would appear. In any event, steroids can be used when health seems to be seriously threatened. I hope your husband's experience with sarcoidosis is a short one that continues to be mild.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you explain optic neuritis. in your column? Can it be cured? - B.M.R.

Optic neuritis is inflammation of the optic nerve, the one that brings visual sensations back to the brain. Although such inflammation can occur with a wide variety of diseases - virus infections, brain infection, multiple sclerosis or diabetes — if the inflammation is severe, vision can be affected

The treatment is to try to fight the underlying illness. and when that is done successfully, the optic nerve problem ends and vision returns. It is important to do that early because if the infection continues, visual disturbance may continue after it's brought under control. So it's not so much the cure of optic neuritis as it is the cure of what is causing that nerve inflammation.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You noted that once a person has had rubella he or she is immune for life. My daughter had rubella as a child, yet her gynecologist ran a test and found she had lost her immunity. She is advising her friends to be tested before pregnancy. Can you comment? — A.B.F.

She has no argument from me. Testing for rubella immunity is a good idea in every pregnancy, and it is mandatory in some states. Most often, rubella does give life-long immunity, but having had it as a child should not lull women into complacency.

The point is to be made is that rubella can easily be misdiagnosed, especially by parents of children. A lot of other illnesses look like rubella. So, unless a child was obviously sick during a documented epidemic of rubella, that person in adulthood should be tested for immunity prior to pregnancy. Simply stating that rubella was in the past is not enough evidence to assume immunity.

The result is that a fireplace can actually hinder, rather than help, your heating system, says Walterscheidt

Despite the inefficiency of a fireplace most persons whose homes have one will want to use it. The forester offers several suggestions that can add to the enjoyment of a fireplace.

Before the cold season sets in, check the chimney for obstructions and keep home heat from creosote buildup. Creosote, a tarry substance, is found in all types of wood and, as a result, will be found in all chimneys, not just the ones where creosote-treated wood has been burned.

Critics: Jobless rate higher than figures show

A MERRILL HARTSON AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON - Critics of the Reagan administration's economic policy are complaining that the national unemployment rate understates the scarcity of work eross the country.

These critics argue that the overall, a anally adjusted jobless rate would be much higher if the government factored into the count the some 6.4 million under employed Americans and the 1.6 million categorized as too discouraged to look for work.

Among those who have challenged the administration's unemployment rate, which stands at a post-Depression high of 10.8 percent, are AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, Democratic Party Chairman Charles Manatt and former Rep. Henry Reuss. D-Wis

Administration officials generally have not responded to such criticism, except to note that there have been no changes in the way the monthly employment report has been compiled since President Reagan took office.

In fact, they note, the Bureau of Labor Statistics tracks men and women who abandon the search for work — and report that statistic on a quarterly basis in the "discouraged worker" category.

But these officials acknowledge, neither the under-employed nor the discouraged worker are considered when the government calculates the unemployment rate.

Discouraged workers are excluded because they are not in the labor force. Workers who hold only part-time jobs for lack of anything better are excluded because they have some work.

The overall national unemployment rate is obtained by dividing the size of the labor force by the number of people officially listed as unemployed.

When the government releases December's national jobless rate this Friday, it will report how many Americans have joined the ranks of discouraged workers - otherwise known as labor force dropouts.

In October, the most recent month for which discouraged worker figures were reported, more than 1.6 million people were in this category.

Social Security dropouts running at all-time high

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defections from the Social Security system are running at an all-time high as hundreds of counties and other government agencies move to rid themselves of the payroll tax burden.

The cash-short system lost an estimated 75.955 government contributors on Jan. 1 as 100 counties, school districts and other public agencies pulled their employees out of the system. Los Angeles County yanked its 55,000 employees out over the objections of unions in a move that will cost Social Security $143 million in 1983 and reportedly save the county $36 million.

The losses were more than double the previous high set in 1979, when 81 state and local government agencies pulled 34,134 workers out of Social Security, including all of Alaska's 14,500 state employees. 'The system itself is in financial trouble," said Social Security spokesman James Brown. "Any time you lose money, it's not good for the system. Some 275 government agencies are threatening to pull 104,506 employees out of the system at the end of 1983, and 112 agencies with 63,149 are threatening to withdraw at the end of 1984.

In addition, 177 non-profit agencies - hospitals, schools, charities and other groups — were scheduled to drop out last year and nearly 900 others — with several hundred thousand employees -- are threatening to withdraw over the next two years. Social Security does not yet know which ones have carried out the threat to withdraw.

Federal workers are not covered by Social Security. Most state and local governments and non-profit agencies such as colleges and hospitals have opted to join the system, although they aren't required to. But for most of the 116 million workers who pay 6.7 percent of their earnings to Social Security, there is no way out of

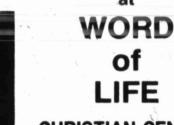

The pace of withdrawals has quickened in the past two years as Social Security's financial picture worsened and as efforts were mounted in Congress to bar the door to any more defections.

The National Commission on Social Security Reform, which says Social Security needs to save $150 billion to $200 billion by 1990, favors mandating coverage for new federal workers and all non-profit employees. Most members also seemed to favor extending coverage to all state and local government workers, but the panel is not expected to press for that because of uncertainties over whether such a move would be constitutional.

Participation in Social Security "was a costly duplication," said Herbert Kaplan, county senior assistant administrative officer.

Teen retreat planned

The new year has just come and many have made resolutions. One I would encourage is that those who are not involved in 4-H find out what it is, what it stands for, and what is involved. For those already involved I would challenge you to attend more meetings and to work harder at the projects you already are in-

To start the new year off, we are sending a group of senior 4-H members to a teen retreat. The retreat is entitled "A 4-H Recreation Celebration." It was scheduled for December and was rescheduled because not enough people were signed up to go. The retreat will be held at the Texas 4 H Center in Brownwood on Jan. 7-9. They will be leaving Friday. Jan 7, from the Howard County Courthouse at 4 p.m. 4-H members will learn how to lead recreation, including puppets and clowns, crafts and woodworking, games and skits, and dance 4-H Council will meet on Wednesday, Jan. 12, at 4:30 p.m. in the County Extension Agents' Office. This will be a very important meeting and we encourage all council members to attend

The first issue of the "Texas 4-H Standard" came out in December. The magazine has a lot of interesting news. There are many articles, recipes, and even pictures of local 4-H members.

Sports Editor To make the fast-break work, a team must first play good defense. The Big Spring Steers spun a sticky spider web on defense and stung Abilene High with fancy passing and easy buckets to speed off with a 75-61 District 4-AAAAA opening victory Tuesday night Smooth forward Jerald Wrightsil scored a game-high 20 points to guide the Steers to a 1-0 start in league play, downing the defending 4-5A champs in the process. For the year, Big Spring stands 11-5 while AHS slips to 10-11.

"This was a game we had to win right here," a sweaty Fred Rubio said in the locker-room. Rubio had eight points and played an aggressive role in a Steer defense that engulfed top Eagle scorer Mike Simmons and his teammates. "We all played hard, everyone was fired

"Everyone played good...we did everything coach told us to do," said forward Jinx Valenzuela who followed Wrightsil with 17 points.

The Steers did indeed do things right, stepping on the scoring accelerator for a 14-2 start after AHS sharp-shooter Rufus Brooks scored the first two points of the game. The quick start was one of three major points in the game won by the Steers, eventually sending the Eagles down to defeat.

While AHS was forcing bad shots because of the clinging BSHS defense, the Steers were destroying the Eagle full-court man defense with alert passing that led to layups.

So tight was the defense, the Steers drew two charging fouls and so hot was the shooting that Big Spring hit seven of its first nine shots.

"I think our guys got over their nervousness quicker than they did," said coach Archie Myers. "Their press really didn't bother us too much. We had worked on it this past week and the guys did exactly what I told them.'

Abilene closed to within five (40-35) at halftime after trailing 20-9 after one period. And when Mike Simmons scored to close the score to a point (40-39) and AHS got the ball back again, it looked as if the Eagles were back in the contest ear ly in the third quarter.

But the Steer defense forced a turnover and quick as wink, Big Spring scored 10 straight points to take a commanding 50-39 lead.

That was the second point. The final point came with six minutes to play when Eagle Tim Robinson was whistled for both personal and technical fouls. Rubio hit the free throws and Valenzuela the bonus shot before he drove in for a basket to give BSHS a huge 63-47 lead. The Eagles had run out of places to fly.

"It was an all Big Spring High show," moaned AHS coach Dub Pierce. "I can't think of any highlights for us.

The Steers, not particularly concentrating on the high-scoring Simmons, still held the Eagles senior to nine points, 13 below his usual average. Les Hines - who tied Wrightsil with 20 points - and Brooks, 18, were the only AHS scoring successes.

"We played a pretty strong team," Wrightsil complimented. "They're good. But everyone was fired up. We need to do that every

The Eagles tried to shut down the Steers by covering up Wrightsil.

The Steer senior responded by finding the open man when he drew a crowd. "I just looked for the open man. I told Jinx to fall down in there and shoot the 'j' and I would rebound. They weren't watching the back man.'

If Valenzuela wasn't scoring, it was Tony Randle, another senior who also scored 17 points. Most of his baskets came from passes to his post position. "We worked real hard to break the press. They weren't trying to stop me. That's what we want them to do. If they forget about the rest of us, we'll do the job," Randle said.

Myer agreed with his player. "A whole lot of people feel Jerald is the whole key to our team. He does play a great role for us we do have other that can play.

Big Spring hit 30 of 50 shots (60 per cent) but struggled at the foul line, hitting just 15 of 28 tries (54 per

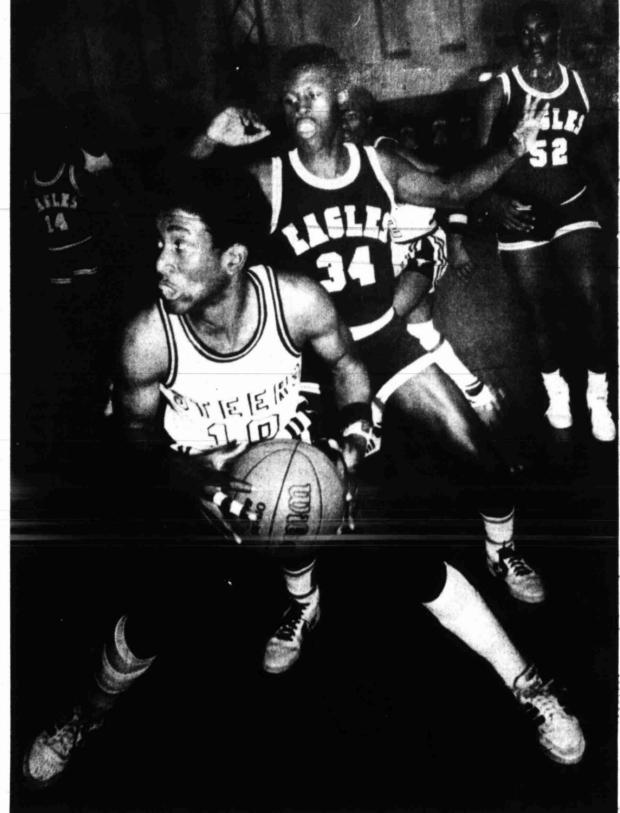

"I tell you what," Myers smiled wryly, "if we can improve on our free throws, we can win most of our games the rest of the season.'

4-AAAAA Roundup

Coogs upend Central, 59-52

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Sports Editor Thank you, Midland Lee.

The lowly Rebels, struggling along with a 2-14 predistrict season, were the only team that lived up to expectations on the first night of District 4-AAAAA

Among three surprises, Cooper's 59-52 victory over No. 1 pick San Angelo was the biggest. In other games, Big Spring toppled No. 2 Abilene 75-61, Permian sneaked past Midland 61-56 and Odessa held off Lee 56-47.

Here's how the zaniness went around the league:

Cooper 59, Central 52

ABILENE — Guard Bob Estes tossed in 20 points and a tight defense held Central scoring ace Lorand White to just 13 points as the Coogs posted the first big upset of the district season.

Cooper led by 15 points in the second quarter and held leads as large as 10 points late in the game before having to stave off a fast finish by the Bobcats. SAC outscored Cooper 15-9 in the final quarter to make it close.

Mike Pluger led Central with 21 points while Joe Melson added 12 to the Cooper attack. The win was just sixth of the year for Cooper.

USFL drafts top college stars

NEW YORK (AP) - "This is the easy part," Commissioner Chet Simmons said after calling out the names of a few more college football players. "Now, we've got to go out and sign 'em.'

The "we" in this case is the United States Football League, stocking its 12 rosters for the start of its inaugural spring and summer season. The USFL drafted stars, starting with Pitt quarterback Dan Marino, and also selected stars like Stanford quarterback John Elway, Penn State running back Curt Warner and Nebraska center Dave Rimington, from territorial college teams. And it gobbled up unheralded, marginal players by the bushel, too. In all, 600 players were being divided up in the territorial and round-by-round drafts.

Doug Reed, a defensive tackle from San Diego State, was selected today by the Los Angeles Express to open the 17th round. Twenty-four rounds were scheduled by the USFL. Sixteen of them involving 192 players were conducted Tuesday.

"We need every kind - the veteran, the rookie, the star, the hope-to," said Simmons. His league begins its 18-game regular season (no preseason games) on March 6. one month after the National Football League's Pro Bowl. It ends its first season with the championship game on July 17, about the time the NFL is opening its training camps.

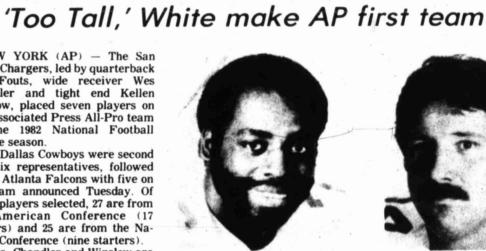

The NFL, with this year's draft coming at the end of April — two months into the USFL season - is the new league's competition. "We're offering a lot of players a better chance of making a team, a better opportunity to become a starter. What's the turnover rate in the NFL? Twenty percent. Twentyfive? What's the chance for a youngster to make it with them?"

That, along with the pitch that players can be part of a grand new venture, are the league's big selling points. "I think you'll see some signings people didn't expect," Sim-

He acknowledged that the USFL is operating at a "disadvantage in timing" in competing against the NFL. Collegians can tell the USFL they want more than they're being offered or they'll wait for the NFL but the NFL teams will face no such pressure because, when they draft, the USFL will be playing. "And." Simmons said, "sometimes a team (in the NFL) might tell a player he'll be going higher in the draft than he really will, to try and keep him from going elsewhere.

Still, Simmons said he believed the USFL had a realistic chance of signing every one of its 12 firstround choices. "But the question is whether we want to," Simmons added. "I don't think we have to- I think we can be selective in our signings. From Day One, I said there would be no all-out bidding war - a dollar war or player war -

Lamesa's Warren resigns

LAMESA (SC) — Lamesa High School athletic director and head varsity football coach Jim Warren has resigned his position effective at the end of the current school year to enter private business. Warren handed in his letter of resignation to the Lamesa Indepentent School District Board of Education Wednesday morning, ending three years as head coach at Lamesa High. He has served as athletic director since this past

Next task: USFL must sign draftees

with the NFL. But that doesn't mean there won't be some skirmishes.

Marino, in a telephone hookup from the Express' offices in Los Angeles, called the prospect of a bidding war "a unique situation for a lot of players" whose value could increase because of the competition. "I have to see how things work out in the next couple of weeks," he

"Right now, I don't know what I'm going to do. I'm going to have to find out who might draft me in the NFL. I don't think I'll be able to wait (until the NFL draft). I'd like to be able to make a decision as soon as possible.'

Among the stars chosen in the territorial draft were Elway, by Oakland, running backs Curt Warner of Penn State and Kelvin Bryant of North Carolina, each by Philadelphia; Michigan wide receiver Anthony Carter, by the Michigan Panthers, and Nebraska center Dave Rimington, the twotime winner of the Outland Trophy by the Boston Breakers.

In the territorial draft, each club had five designated college teams from which it could select a total of 26 players, giving them negotiating rights to those players and exempting them from the regular phase of the draft. The colleges, for the most part, were in the teams' general geographical area, although New Jersey was allowed to select Oklahoma and Tennessee and Boston had Nebraska.

Pitt and SMU were excluded as territorial teams because they had an unusual number of senior players, and UCLA was exempt since the league's competition committee felt it would be unfair to allow Los Angeles rights to both Southern Cal and UCLA

Other notable players drafted Tuesday were Ohio State running back Tim Spencer, by the Chicago Blitz; Southern Methodist University running back Eric Dickerson, by the Arizona Wranglers; Arkansas linebacker Billy Ray Smith, by the Oakland Invaders, and Southern Mississippi quarterback Reggie Collier, by the Birmingham

Collier has been projected by some NFL teams as a running back, wide receiver or defensive back but he wants to play quarterback. "I feel I'm a quarterback and nothing else," he said, adding that the Stallions had assured him he would be their quarterback.'

And Simmons, not mentioning Collier specifically, noted: "We can tell a young man where he's going to play. He doesn't have to wait.

Rams Knock Malavasi out ANAHEIM. Calif. (AP) - 1.08

Angeles Rams owner Georgia Frontiere says she fired head coach Ray Malayasi, who guided the National Football League club to its only Super Bowl berth, "for the sake of our fans.

Malavasi, who coached the Rams into the Super Bowl in 1980, but who had two losing seasons, was relieve ed of his position Tuesday, confirming reports from early in the season that he was on his way out. Mrs. Frontiere said in a prepared statement: "We are indebted to Ray for some fine seasons of football. He helped us into the playoffs three times, won two division championships and coached our first Super Bowl team. Unfortunately, the results of the past two seasons have fallen short of our goal to give our fans a winning team.

"I have a strong personal feeling of friendship for Ray. He is a fine and loyal person. However, I feel for the sake of our fans, it is time to make a change.

Riddled by injuries, the Rams completed the strike-shortened season with a 2-7 record after going 6-10 in 1981. Malavasi had steered them to a record of 12-4 after becoming the head coach in 1978. then 9-7 in 1979 and 11-5 in 1980

The firing came just a day after Malayasi expressed confidence that the coming week would be business as usual for him I expect we'll have meetings during the next week to start making plans for next year," Malavasi said on Monday But Tuesday night he said the firing was not unexpected. Why should it come as a surprise," he said in a telephone inter-Nothing ever comes as a surprise I've been coaching for 31 He also said he asked Mrs. Frontiere for a decision after Sunday's upset 21-20 victory over the Super Bowl champion San Francisco I was interested in bringing this to a head. I kind of pushed it that way. I said, 'I want an answer. I want to know right now

The answer came in a telephone call just before 5 p.m., said Malavasi's wife, Mary, adding That's par for the course.

I'm thankful. They paid me well," said Malavasi, who still has one year remaining on a contract reportedly in excess of $100,000. Mrs. Frontiere's statement made no mention of a successor Among those who have been mentioned as possible candidates for the Rams' job are Arizona State Coach Darryl Rogers, Illinois Coach Mike White, Denver Broncos Coach Dan Reeves, Philadelphia Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil, and UCLA Coach Terry Donahue.

Defensive end Jack Youngblood said the firing was a "surprise" but 'inevitable in this game." He also defended Malavasi

"I don't believe you can point the finger at Ray Malavasi and say he is the reason for a 2-7 record," Youngblood added.

Malavasi, 52, was elevated from an assistant's job to the head coaching job when Carroll Rosenbloom, the late Rams owner, fired George Allen in 1978.

Before falling to losing seasons the past two campaigns, the Rams had won seven consecutive division titles, including two under Malavasi. The 1979 club is the only Rams team to make it to the Super Bowl, where it lost 31-19 to Pittsburgh in the 1980 NFL title game.

The Rams' 1982 record, the club's worst in 20 years, came despite the acquisition of quarterback Bert Jones from the Baltimore Colts Jones was unable to turn the club around, even before he went out with a nerve injury.

Levy knew he might be in jeopardy after the fiercely pro-union Chiefs lost their first four poststrike games and finished 3-6.

"The news was not a total surprise to me because I could sense a feeling here," he said. "But it was still a shock when it came. We were already preparing hard for next season and the draft. I certainly plan to keep coaching and feel in my own heart I could do a good job in coaching.

Levy was fresh from guiding Montreal to a second straight Canadian Football League title when Hunt put him in charge in January, 1978. He inherited a talent-starved team, mostly the aging remnants of Hank Stram's 1970 Super Bowl champions, who had finished 2-12 the year before and cost first Paul Wiggin and then Tom Bettis their

Tornadoes flatten Andrews home win streak

ANDREWS — With three starters fouled out of the ballgame, the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes still managed to turn the trick here Tuesday night.

Steve Alexander intercepted a downcourt pass with two seconds to play to preserve a 69-67 victory by the Tors over Andrews, snapping the Mustangs' 19-game home winning streak at the same time.

The victory improved Lamesa to 2-1 in District 2-AAAA play and gives the Tors an overall mark of 13-4. Andrews slips to 9-9 with the loss and 2-1 in league

Top scorer Victory Spencer fouled out with 20 points with 4:29 to play and Mustang Darrell Collins went to work. Collins, averaging 16 points a game, scored 19 in the second half alone to guide his team to within two points. Down 69-63, Collins scored four points to make it a two-point game.

Leroy Rodriquez missed the front of a one-and-one with two seconds to go and the Mustangs had a final chance. Alexander pulled the long pass to insure the Spencer scored 18 of his 20 points in the first half as Lamesa built a 37-27 lead. But plagued with four fouls, the ace Lamesa scorer scored just one basket in the final half.

Mark Murphy picked up the slack with 17 points while Jimmy Salazar added 11. Rick O'Connor had 12 for Andrews

In the girls game, Andrews punished Lamesa 85-38 to drops the Lady Tors to 4-10 and 2-3 in league play. Lamesa plays at Pecos Friday night.

Forsan, Klondike split two

FORSAN — The name of the game was defense the Buffalo Queens had more of it in the second half, when Down 23-12 at halftime, Forsan held the potent Klondike scoring attack to just six points in the final half to post a 34-29 victory here Tuesday night.

Klondike turned the tables in the boys game, pulling out a 43-41 win. Forsan, still undefeated at 12-0, won for the third time in non-league play over its district rival. The Cougarettes have lost just four times, three at the hands of the Buff Queens. Teresa White and Vicky Baggett had 10 points each for Forsan while Cynthia Cave led Klondike with 10. Forsan led 21-20 at halftime in the boys game but a strong third quarter by the Cougars toppled the home team. Tim Cope tossed in 15 points for Klondike while David Lucas topped Forsan, 4-7, with nine points. Forsan plays again Thursday in the Sterling City tourney, the girls testing Mertzon at 12:30 p.m. and the boys following at 2 p.m.

Bulldogettes rip Denver City

COAHOMA — It was an encouraging night for both boys and girls teams at Coahoma High Tuesday night. Facing a tough Denver City team, the Bulldogs stayed with eight points of the Mustangs before bowing 97-77 in a high-scoring game. Prior to the boys game, the Bulldogettes whipped DC 56-38 as Dana Souter scored 13 points

DC scored at least 20 points in each quarter in the boys game but Coahoma stayed almost basket-forbasket with the visitors until the final minutes. Four Bulldogs scored in double figures, led by sophomore John Swinney with 21. Dee Cagle had 15, Royce Renfro had 14 and Robbie Phernetton 12.

The game was a physical affair as 72 fouls were whistled. Coahoma, now 6-6, hit 25 of 47 foul tries while Denver City converted 15 of 25 at the line.

A big difference in the girls game was also at the foul stripe. Coahoma tossed in 24 of 38 attempts while DC managed just eight of 27.

The win boosts Coahoma to 4-10 for the year. Cochoma plays Seminole Friday night in a boys game while the girls test Sonora.

Alaskan can't remember $12,000 party

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Even by Alaska standards it was a wild night, with bright lights and loud music, drinks for the house champagne by the bottle and $100 bills for the scanning clad ladies who danced on the table tops. *

But the Port Heiden fishermen who apparently picked up the $12,000 tab says he doesn't remember most of it.

Henry Matson says he recalls spending an evening at the Great Alaskan Bush Company in Anchorage, and waking up the next morn ing in a hotel room shy about $12,000.

Matson is suing the Bush Company to get his money back.

As he remembers the night on the town, he asked owner Edna Cox to cash a $12,579.64 check made out to him by Whitney-Fidalgo Seafood: Inc.

Ms. Cox agreed, Matson says, as long as Matson was willing to wait for his money until banks opened the next morning and the check cleared. He says she offered to let him run up a tab against the check in the meantime.

He acknowledges spending some money at the Bush Company that night. He remembers signing a tab or two, and says he just barely recalls leaving the club.

The next morning, Matson says, he woke up at the Captain Cook Hotel, his pockets empty and his head aching, but his room was paid for. He says he called the Bush Company and was told be didn't have any money coming, that he had spent it all.

"It didn't seem reasonable," says Matson, who admits he's been known to have a little

But Ms. Cox says there was nothing unreasonable or even unusual about the July 1981 episode. She says Matson cashed the check to pay his tab, and took the balance in $100 bills

According to court records, Ms. Cox says Matson spent the money "buying all the patrons in the club drinks, paying numerous girls for table dances, handing girls in the club $100 bills insisting on having seven to nine girls sitting at the table with him.

Fishermen snag balloon

HAINES CITY, Fla. (AP) - A 40-by-30-foot helium-filled balloon broke free from its mooring at a beer distributor warehouse, floated about 20 miles and fell into a lake where a couple of fishermen hauled in the $100 catch on an otherwise luckless day.

Madge McDonald was fishing on quiet Lake Marion with her son, Allan, when the pair saw a yellow and red blimp-like balloon splash near shore Monday. They maneuvered across the water and dragged the sagging, soggy thing aboard.

Neither knew exactly what they had, but they telephoned a radio station and discovered the $1,200 balloon had been the subject of a search that eventually involved the Air Force.

An employee at the James J. Musso Inc. headquarters in Lakeland pulled into the parking lot Monday and noticed the promotional balloon was airborne. Frank Felice, general manager at Musso's, telephoned local radio stations, offered a reward and alerted the Air Force Weather Service at Patrick

Air Force Base. The Air Force figured that with winds in the upper atmosphere gusting to more than 100 mph, chances of stopping the balloon before it reached the Atlantic Ocean were slim. Then came word of the McDonalds'

"We were just out on Lake Marion fishing for specks and we saw this thing land on the south side."

Ship's men on strike for months

LONGVIEW, Wash An Ecuadoran cargo ship with a hold full of lentils and paper has been floating beside a dock in the Columbia River for more than four months while its 40 crewmen play pingpong. The crew of the Ciudad de Manta is on strike.

"We are very tired," said Fausto Recalde, the purser, union representative and only Englishspeaking crewman. The crew is "doing nothing, only thinking of their families," he said.

The sailors have hung signs in English and Spanish on the 535-footlong, black-hulled ship: "We are on strike!" and "Viva la huelga!" or long live the strike.

Few people pass near enough to see the signs.

Two other Ecuadoran ships are on strike, the Republica del Ecuador and Ciudad de Quito, both in Buenaventura, Colombia About 200 Ecuadoran of ficers and crew members are striking, according to Luis Larenas Davila, the company's general manager in Ecuador. The strike began after President Osvaldo Hurtado announced that Ecuador will depart from the Flota Mercante Grancolombiana, a company formed in 1946 by Ecuador, Colombia and Venezuela. Venezuela pulled out 10 years ago. Ecuador owns 20 percent, Colombia 80 percent. The presidential resolution has not been implemented but the Ecuadoran crews are afraid of losing their jobs. They asked for pay increases and severance than after the severance than a severance that a severance than a severance than a severance than a severance that a severance that a severance than a severance than a severance that a severance than a severance that a severance that a severance than a severance that a severance tha

The company agreed to the pay increases but rejected the severance benefits that could total $19 million, Davila said.

Labor authorities in Guayaquil, Ecuador's main port, made one judgment in favor of the workers and the company appealed to higher labor judges. A decision is possible by the end of the month

The Ciudad de Manta carries a cargo of lentils from Seattle and paper it picked up in Longview. The cargo is destined for Colombia, but since Aug. 27 the ship has been docked in Longview.

The ship is at an International Paper pier normally used to ship woodchips. But there are none now and the company let the ship dock to wait out its labor troubles, said mill site manager Marvin Kurtz.

The crew gets no pay during the strike against the Flota Mercante Grancolombiana, which owns the ship.

No money goes to the crews' families in Ecuador, 5,600 miles away.

All 40 men on the ship, except the captain, support the strike by their union, Sindicato de Marinos de la Empresa, Recalde said.

Recalde says the Ciudad de Manta is going nowhere until the men receive their back pay.

The Lufkin Daily News CHIRENO — Ardath Mayhar lives in a typical rural East Texas setting, but she works in a world of imagination, writing science fiction.

Her house sits on wooded acreage in this community near the Attoyac River. A swarm of cats, one companionable dog and two goats live on the place with Mrs. Mayhar and her husband of 24 years, Joe, who operates a Nacogdoches service station. The farm atmosphere ends at the front door.

Inside, Mrs. Mayhar taps out her books at an electric typewriter, listening to tapes of Mozart or Beethoven. The characters that take shape on her pages exist light years away from East Texas, and their stories unfold only in the imagination.

She writes full time, several hours a day, and has published five books this year, including two reprints of previous works.

Her most recent books are set in distant galaxies, and her characters are better than ordinary. Mrs. Mayhar says she likes to keep the plots suitable for

"I like to write about people as they can be, not as they are," she said. "My books are for a general readership. Three books by the Atheneum Publishing Co. are in a young adult (student) series. All of my books, not just those three, are suitable for young

Mrs. Mayhar creates treacherous worlds for her characters, but in those worlds good combines with courage to win out over evil.

Her "Golden Dream: A Fuzzy Odyssey," features the Fuzzies, furry, 2-foot-tall creatures that walk upright and are at least as intelligent as humans. She wrote "Golden Dream" at the request of an editor at Ace Books in New York, the book's publisher. The Fuzzies were invented by the late H. Beam Piper, and Ace asked Mrs. Mayhar to continue the series. She invented a language for the little creatures, who inspire affection and loyalty in humans.

Characters in "The Runes of the Lyre," published in September by Atheneum, communicate by linking minds. Music from a lyre wakes from centuries of sleep an ageless race of people to fight, against evil.

These books and her two previous ones are set in distant galaxies. Fantastic plots and living adventures abound. Her characters feel joy and pain, grow fatigued and disheartened and fight with righteous rage. The reader identifies with their feelings, especially in "Runes."

Mrs. Mayhar, the mother of two sons and two stepsons, all now grown, said she has not stopped learning since she stopped her formal education on graduation from Nacogdoches High School.

She operated a Nacogdoches County dairy for 15 years, and was a newspaper proofreader, reading and studying all the while. She has studied seven different languages, as well as geology, sociology, genetics and

Mrs. Mayhar made her first literary sale, a poem, at the age of 19.

"I soon found out there was little monetary reward for writing poetry, but that was what interested me. Twenty-five years later I wrote my first fantasy science fiction, and I was hooked," she said.

'I had discovered what interested me more than poetry — and I could even sell my work.' But the poetry still creeps into the descriptive passages of her books, in names, language and bits of

take hold

By WILLIAM GARLAND

States News Service WASHINGTON - The question of the constitutionality of the windfall profits tax on crude oil continues to linger before the U.S. Supreme Court, but 13 percent of all U.S. oil production was exempted from the tax on Saturday.

An indsutry spokesman said Monday that the exemption would have a 'great effect' stimulating the sluggish oil industry.

"Under the tax-cutting proposals that passed Congress at the urging of President Reagan in 1981, so-called stripper well" oil production became exempt from the windfall tax on

Production from a well qualifies in the stripper category if the well produces no more than 10 barrels of oil per day. Oil industry figures show that 13 percent of all domestic production comes from stripper wells, amounting to 401 million barrels of oil in

The exemption applies only to producers of oil and not to royalty owners (those persons who own the mineral rights to the land on which the oil is próduced).

With the exemption, U.S. Treasury Department officials estimated Monday that the loss of revenues to the federal treasury would amount to approximately $1.8 billion between 1983

Peter Wellish, a spokesman for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, noted that a producer would not automatically be exempted from the tax. A producer will have to file for an exemption on a special form with the Internal Revenue Service

With the exempion, oil producers will be able to keep open stripper wells that otherwise might have been shut down because of the declining price of oil, Wellish said. He said it previously cost more to keep some stripper wells operating than to shut off their production.

A spokesman for the Energy Action Project, a consumer organization, disagreed with Wellish. 'There's no evidence that continuation of the windfall profits tax on stripper wells would have shut them down because they couldn't meet the cost," said Ed Rothschild.

He cited the low amount of financial overhead in keeping such a well operational, since it requires relatively little manpower at the well site and said the tax would have decreased the well's profits only slightly.

About the current windfall tax case before the Supreme Court, Wellish said IPAA expects some indication from the court in the next few months about the manner in which the court will handle the case

Jackie Gleason takes on the world

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer HOLLYWOOD, Fla. - The limousine drove carefully through the gravel pit and parked next to a motor home. An aide held an umbrella to protect the car's passenger from the gentle rain as he walked the few feet from car to shelter. The door of the motor home slamm-

Jackie Gleason had arrived on the movie location

It was 3 p.m., and Gleason was enraged. He had been waiting all day at his $2-million mansion at Lauderhill, an hour's drive away. The call had been changed three times, and Gleason demanded to know why.

Mort Engelberg, producer of "Smoky Is the Bandit, Part III," and Dick Lowry, the director, trooped to Gleason's quarters to placate their star.

Having made three movies in one year, Gleason is on a roll. But at 66, he still displays the raw energy and self-protectiveness that lifted him out of burlesque to become one of the nation's most enduring clowns.

Gleason is now appearing in movie theaters in "The Toy," Richard Pryor, a comic with an entirely different style. "The Sting II," with Mac Davis and Karl Malden, will be released in the spring. The summer will bring the third version of "Smokey and the Bandit," in which Burt Reynolds makes a brief appearance. The plot for the new "Smoky" offers the usual slim basis for staging a vast number of car chases and crashes. Gleason plays a double role as irascible Sheriff Buford T. Justice and as the Bandit himself, embarked on a hell-bent highway race for money. The $6.6-million Universal movie has been filming throughout Florida. On a wet humid day the location was a building-supply company, where cars raced around mountains of gravel.

After his conference with the producer and director, Gleason was still seething: "Can you imagine? First they tell me 11 o'clock, then 12, then 1. Why can't they make up their minds? Jackie Gleason against the world.

That's the way it has been since his Brooklyn boyhood. Over the years he has fought against crooked night club bosses and movie producers who cast him as gangsters and Arabs. His battles with network bosses during his years with "The Jackie Gleason and "The Honeymooners" were legendary.

He may have mellowed since his heart operation a couple of years ago, but it's not noticeable. He still smokes.

"Four packs a day," he sighs. "After the operation, my wife Marilyn (Taylor, whom he married in 1975) asked the doctor, very hopefully, what I should do. 'Well,' he said, 'he should cut out smoking and cut down on

"I said, 'Doctor, did you do a good job?' He said yes, and I said, 'OK, then I'll go right back to what I was doing before.

Once known as a world-class drinker, Gleason admitted that his boozing has diminished. "In the old New York days, I'd go into Toots Shor's and someone would say, Benny Goodman lost a button off his shirt. That's all the excuse we needed — 'Bring out

"Now I don't have reasons to drink, and I can't drink alone," he says.

Sitting in a director's chair marked "The Great One," Gleason sipped a soft drink and smoked continuously. He seemed cautious in talking about Richard Pryor, with whom he was reported to have had little rapport during "The Toy" filming.

"I play a straight role in the picture, so there was no sense of competition," said Gleason. "I've always gotten along with other comics. In all the years I worked with Art Carney, we never had an argument, never a disagreement.

"I found Pryor very pleasant to work with. He seemed to be still suffering the aftermath of his accident. Imagine the guilt, the anguish that he must have gone through, and the pain of all the skin grafts. I have a great deal of admiration for him.

Gleason said that when he read the first 'Smokey' script, he was offended. "But then I thought, maybe I could take the sheriff character and make something of it. So I dreamed up this crazy character

'Tootsie' leads huge holiday movie rush

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD - The movie industry enjoyed a happy New Year's weekend with booming theater business led by "Tootsie," the holiday season's big winner

"Tootsie" led the parade of movie attractions followed by "The Toy," "The Dark Crystal," "48 Hrs," "Airplane II: The Sequel," "Best Friends" and "The

The losers were "Six Weeks," "Trail of the Pink Panther," "Still of the Night" and "Honkytonk Man."

"Tootsie," Dustin Hoffman's comedy about an unemployed actor who finds stardom when he poses as a woman, collected more than $11 million at 1.020 theaters for an impressive $11,000 average. The 17-day total was almost $40 million for the Columbia Pictures

Columbia had another big winner in the Jackie Gleason-Richard Pryor comedy "The Toy," which made $5 million in 1,508 theaters over the three days for a 24-day total of $30.5 million. The two films, along with the limited release of "Gandhi," provided Columbia with a new company high for a one-week gross -$28 million for the week that began Dec. 24.

The Paul Newman drama "The Verdict" also showed strength. Appearing on only 646 screens, it collected $4.7 million for a 17-day total of $16 million. The $7,286 average placed it second to "Tootsie" in attendance per theater. "The Dark Crystal" was No. 2 in box office returns with $5.4 million in 1,052 houses, for a 17-day total of $22 million. The fantasy features the puppet wizardry of Jim Henson, creator of the Muppets, and Frank Oz, the voice of Miss Piggy and of Yoda in "The Empire Strikes Back.'

The weekend brought more than $4 million each for three other films: "Best Friends," starring Burt Reynolds and Goldie Hawn, $4.8 million; "48 Hrs," starring Nick Nolte and Eddie Murphy, $4.4 million; and "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial," $4 million.

After a slow first week, "Kiss Me Goodbye," starring Sally Field, James Caan and Jeff Bridges, increased 111 percent from the previous weekend for a New Year's weekend gross of $2.8 million in 803 theaters. "Airplane II: The Sequel" climbed to $2.7 million in 1.300 theaters and Disney's re-release of "Peter Pan" soared to $2.6 million in 800.

"Trail of the Pink Panther," which includes clips of the late Peter Sellers, managed $1.3 million in 738 houses and "Six Weeks," with Dudley Moore and Mary Tyler Moore, $1 million in 555. But both were considered holiday losers, along with "Still of the Night," starring Meryl Streep and Roy Scheider, and "Honkytonk Man," with Clint Eastwood.

Among the limited runs, "Gandhi," ($318,902 in 12 theaters) and "Sophie's Choice" ($243,000 in 10) gave promise of bigger box office to come.

Grapefruits are high in nutrition

By TINA STEFFEN Lifestyle Editor and CAROL HART

Lifestyle Writer Grapefruit is one of several fruits now in season, so for grapefruit lovers; we've included several grapefruit recipes below in the Recipe Exchange.

Grapefruit can be stored at room temperature in a well-ventilated area away from direct heat for a week to 10 days. For longer storage, refrigerate in the vegetable crisper of the refrigerator.

Grapefruits contain about 55 calories in an average-sized half, but they are high in nutrition. And they provide 80 percent of the United States Recommended Dietary Allowance for Vitamin C and 15 percent of the United State Recommended Dietary Allowance for Vitamin A.

Grapefruit also contains high levels of potassium and is low in sodium.

Also in today's recipe exchange, we've included the correction for Seven Minute Frosting, submitted by Mrs. Ben Sullivan. Because of a coding error on our computers, the recipe came out reading 13 cups of egg whites instead of one-third. Please note the corrected version

Today's Recipe Exchange also includes a variety of other recipes we hope you'll enjoy.

Recently, we had a request for a recipe for Pina Colada Cake. If any of our readers have this recipe and would like to share it with us, send, it to the Herald Recipe Exchange, P.O. Reagan urged to ease huge budget deficit

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Wed., Jan. 5, 1983 13-B

By OWEN ULLMANN

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON - President Reagan is under grow ing pressure from his own economic advisers and hi best friends in Congress to seek tax increases, defens cuts or both to avoid "terrifying" deficits that coul reach $300 billion by 1988.

But by all accounts, Reagan was staying his budge course Tuesday despite private warnings from ac ministration officials that he could be courting economic disaster.

"The president feels you shouldn't raise taxes durin a recession," deputy White House press secretar Larry Speakes said today. "Business and financia people share that view."

Speakes told reporters that economists and busines leaders do not agree that "high deficits will abort th (economic) recovery." Asked if the nation could sus tain a recovery with heavy budget deficits, th presidential spokesman replied: "Yes, we can.

He said Reagan was "not inclined to stretch out" in creases in defense spending over six or more years, a some advisers have urged.

Speakes said Tuesday that the president remain "firm on not reducing defense spending and firm of not increasing taxes. Earlier Tuesday, the president's closest friend is Congress, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., left a meeting with Reagan describing the budget estimates for the next five years as "terrifying." The deficit numbers that we're looking at now ar huge and probably intolerable," said Laxalt, chairma of Reagan's 1980 campaign and now general chairma of the Republican Party. Laxalt said Reagan is "ver close to being in concrete" in his refusal to trim Per

Meanwhile, administration officials put out the word Tuesday that all of Reagan's senior economic advisers - including Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, budget director David A. Stockman and chief White House economist Martin S. Feldstein — favor a combination of tax in creases and military cuts to reduce the deficits.

Otherwise, according to internal administration estimates, the deficit will swell from a record $200 billion in fiscal 1984 to $300 billion four years later.

Reagan almost certainly will be questioned about the budget deficit projections at a nationally broadcast news conference - his 15th since taking office - star ting at 8 p.m. EST today in the White House East In the search for spending reductions, Stockman's

Office of Management and Budget is proposing a third round of food stamp cuts and new trimming of the child nutrition program, which includes school lunches for more than 20 million pupils. The Stockman plan calls for nearly $1 billion in food stamp cuts and $380 million less in child nutrition spending in 1984. Shultz, a treasury secretary and budget director under former President Nixon, was described by a well-placed administration source as being "horrified" by the looming deficits. Because of his economic experience, Shultz has worked closely with Reagan's economic advisers in shaping budget policy. The economic advisers fear the enormous amount of money the government will have to borrow to cover its budget shortfall will drive up interest rates, lead to a new burst of high inflation and throw an already seriously ill economy into a deeper slump, according to the sources who asked to remain anonymous. Feldstein has called the deficit problem the most serious threat to this country's economic well-being The president has until Jan. 31 to send Congress a budget plan for fiscal 1984, which begins next October. Some administration officials expect him to make key decisions about taxes and defense spending by the end of this week.

On Monday, administration officials said the president tentatively approved $30 billion in non-defense spending cuts for fiscal 1984 to hold down the deficit. At the same time, he wants to increase the Pentagon's budget by $40 billion, from $207.5 billion this year to $247 billion. In the meantime, administration officials have been lobbying indirectly for budget changes by willingly making their views known to reporters on the condition that their names not be used. "On the basis of decisions as they currently stand, and with the caveat that he may yet change his mind, the president will be proposing deficits in the $200 plained one official. 'This makes our support for a balanced-budget amendment look like something of a joke," he added: Reagan pushed hard, but unsuccessfully, in the last Congress for a constitutional amendment designed to force balanced pending. But it appears now that his own budget proposals wouldn't come close to that goal, even if he should serve a second term.

billion range or higher over the next five years," com-

Reagan vowed during his election campaign in 1980 to balance the budget by 1983. That pledge slipped to 1984 early in his presidency. But the deficits are expected to climb from $110.7 billion in fiscal 1982 to $185 billion or more this year.

The huge deficits stem from a combination of factors, including the prolonged recession, the record tax cut approved by Congress in 1981 and a large increase in the growth of spending by the Pentagon.

Sheriff in trouble for helping homeowners

HOLAFOWNERS - Harry the Monday Night Footis ins write Linda, and son are shown in their Pittsburgh who has been unemployed for a year and a half, saw his home about to be sold at a sheriff's sale until the Veteran's Administration stepped in and had it removed from the

By EARL BOHN Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH - A sheriff says he wanted to give "a little time" to jobless homeowners by pulling their houses off the auction block, but an attorney says the gesture may have broken the law.

Saying he sympathized with victims of the recession, Allegheny County Sheriff Eugene Coon withdrew 42 owner-occupied houses from an auction list, giving County Judge Nicholas Papadakos time to attempt to organize a moratorium on mortgage foreclosures.

The properties had been scheduled for sale Monday to pay back taxes and overdue loan installments

Coon's action drew swift praise from officials of the United Steelworkers union, which has an estimated 50,000 members in the county out of work.

"If we don't start doing something for these people, there's going to be a revolution," said Walter Bachowski, director of USW District

"It's tremendous ... We're elated," said Andrew Palm, director of USW District 15. Coon anticipated criticism, although "all we're doing is giving them a little time.' "I expect I'll be hearing from some banks," here screaming their heads off. They get a were any other alternatives (to foreclosure), piece of the action, you know. They're on a percentage basis."

Attorney Bernard Markovitz, who broken the law

"I don't think it's legal. It's a matter of contract. I don't think Sheriff Coon has the authority to do it," Markovitz said. He called foreclosures "distasteful" but necessary.

He said he advised his clients not to challenge the move in court as long as it was not repeated.

Markovitz said bad loans can hurt small savers as well as big banks.

"These banks are saying most of this money is made up of little people who give the bank their money and say 'Make me some money and protect it," he said. "And if the loan's insured, the federal government has to pay, and that's you and me."

Coon said his action also would displease businessmen who routinely buy homes at sheriff sales, pay the liens and resell the properties at a profit.

One man facing loss of his home was Harry Backes, 28, an Air Force veteran who has been unemployed for 18 months. Although his home was saved by the Veterans Administra-

he said. "There are lawyers running around tion, not Coon's action, "I didn't know there Backes said. "We were just going to let it go up in the sheriff's sale."

In his case, the VA postponed monthly represents lenders, said Coon may have payments and may refinance the mortgage if Backes finds work.

Homes are the last thing unemployed workers hold on to by selling cars and other possessions to meet mortgage payments, said Robert Toy of the Mon Valley Unemployed Committee. "It is people's last stand," he

"People are getting very, very embittered and frustrated because all of it comes to nothing," Toy said. His group has protested three previous mortgage sales, and is working for state and federal legislation to prevent foreclosures against people who have lost their jobs.

Coon said the number of properties of all kinds sold at public sale has increased from 32 in December 1978 to 118 last month. At Monday's auction, 55 homes and commercial properties remained on sale after Coon's action.

The Mon Valley committee has confronted banks, the VA and the Farmers Home Administration over foreclosures. It recently initiated an "Ident-A-Vulture" file to name people who buy homes at sheriff sales.

Ryan O'Neal and Gene Kelly have passed through town on their way to another appearance on the big screen. So have Milton Berle, Rosalind Russell, Shirley Jones, Susan St. James and Stella Stevens

The Marlboro man has even reined his steed on the ranch grounds.

More recently, Klinton Spilsbury's rendition of the Lone Ranger galloped the Screen Actors Guild, said the project through town, and Butch and Sundance showed what it was like "in the early years - before the fame, when fun was the name of the game."

SINCE BUTCH and Sundance "wrapped" and rode out of town in 1978, the ranch has grown quiet, the wind blowing tumbleweeds across the deserted movie town streets. A part of "Time Rider" was shot on the ranch, but not at the town set.

Paint has peeled, windows have broken and floor boards have warped since the heyday that brought the stars and accompanying glitter to the Eaves Movie Ranch, although the occasional curiosity seeker still stops at the site off New Mexico Hiighway 14 to gawk significant effort to bring major film and television shooting back to New Mexico," Multimedia has announced plans for a $3.5 million project at the Eaves Ranch. It will include renovation of the movie town and construction of a studio-sound stage and post-production facility.

But if a recently formed group of Santa Fe residents gets its way, the glitter will be back with an extra pinch of panache.

The group has acquired 27 acres surrounding the Western set and will use about one-fourth of that for the proposed buildings, said Carpenter, marketing and public relations representative for the James Garvin, director of the state's Economic Development Division under the Bruce King administration, said last month he is "quite impressed" with the project. He also said there could be a bill prepared for the state Legislature on subsidizing movie production in New Mexico.

A deal was cut and a handshake sealed Multimedia International Inc., a produc- "would be great," but questioned it. In less than two weeks, camera lenses tion company originally started in 1972 by whether the project can be financially conditions.

"It's been a terrible year," he said of the state's film busines. "It's the worst year since I can remember, and I've been involved in motion pictures in New Mexico since 1970."

But he added that such a project could be a strong shot in the arm for the approximately 250 guild members in the state.

Ray Maggio, who last year served as assistant director of the New Mexico Motion Picture Promotion Bureau, confirmed the bleakness of the state's movie industry. Only three films were shot in New Mexico in 1982, compared with seven in 1981, he said.

Of the last five years, 1978 and 1979 were the best, with nine and eight films respectively.

But for the Multimedia International members, the Eaves Ranch project is the big one that grabs for the brass ring. And for Patton it is the climax of a lifetime in the film business.

Local Texas Electric Service Co. officials say the state's controversial Public Utility Commision is necessary to the operation of electric companies, even though the Sunset Advisory Commission voted Tuesday to get rid of it.

The Sunset panel voted 7-3 for abolition of the 8-year-

The commission's action is only a recommendation to the Legislature, which convenes Jan. 11, but ensures that complaints about the agency will get serious attention from lawmakers.

Sunset Commission members themselves said they do not expect the Legislature to disband the PUC, but called the vote a "strong message" for reform.

In its last meeting, on Dec. 17, the commission rejected a plan to improve the PUC by establishing a counsel to represent residential ratepayers and eliminating the fuel adjustment clause — an automatic pass-through to customers when fuel costs go up.

Hooper Sanders, Big Spring division manager of Texas Electric Service Company, said last night in Big Spring that the fuel adjustment clause was a necessity.

Electricity-producing plants used to burn natural gas, a low-cost (at that time) fuel which varied little in price, he said. But gas prices have gone up dramaticaly, he said, and 50 percent of TESCO's plants now burn lignite coal.

'We burn our cheapest fuel first,' he said. Also, since the fuel adjustment clause allows the companies to estimate the amount and cost of fuel which will be used every two months, "we charge only what it costs to produce the electricity." At the end of the two months, the estimates are compared with the actual fuel cost and corrections made

Supporters of the PUC reform package vowed to try again. Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, tried to reintroduce the reform legislation Tuesday, but Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana and Sunset chairman, said the motion was out of order

Caperton seemed ready to give up when former Legislative Budget Board Director Vernon McGee moved for abolition of the PUC

'Our message was that the Public Utility Commission can only be viable if changes are made to keep the agency from being controlled by the industry," said Consumers Union Texas Director Carol Barger, a member of the Sunset committee.

The vote came after the commission approved minor changes in the Railroad Commission and State Board of Insurance — but voted to keep them.

Until Tuesday's action, the commission, which reviews all state agencies regularly, had produced no recommendation on the three-member PUC despite intense feelings and lengthy testimony about the agency. Opponents of the PUC contend it is controlled by phone and fuel utilities, who regularly receive generous rate hikes from the agency. Bob Truitt, TESCO governmental affairs spokesman, said last night in Big Spring that replacing the appointed members of the PUC with elected officials would create other problems for the utilities.

"If they are elected, there'll be a lot of 'if you elect me there won't be any more rate increases'," he said. The PUC not only sets rates, but guarantees companies a rate of return, figuring in capital investments such as power plant construction.

PUC Chairman Moak Rollins argues that the guaranteed rate of return actually saves ratepayers money by keeping the utility company's bond rating up and cost of borrowing down.

Mike Greene, TESCO executive assistant from Fort Worth, said that Construction Work in Progress (CWIP) provides interim financing for interest on money borrowed by the company for projects

"It's a pay me now — pay me later type deal," he said, adding that should CWIP be abolished, the pay me later angle would result in customers paying about three times the amount of interest. Customers are not paying for the construction work itself, Sanders said, only the interest on the money borrowed for the construction.

'The 85-year little old lady won't be too interested (in paying the interest this way)," he said, "but it saves the customer money in the long haul.

"I doubt seriously that it will happen," Rollins said Tuesday of abolishing the agency. "This is a recommendation to the Legislature. I don't anticipate that it will be the final legislative action. It's my personal view that the functions performed by this commission are necessary and ought to be continued.

Truitt said last night that "several" bills were already "pre-filed" to re-establish the PUC.

Texas Municipal League attorney Don Butler, who frequently battles rate hikes before the PUC, contends customers would see lower utility bills if rate-making authority were given back to the cities - which used to set utility rates before the PUC was created in 1975.

Truitt said last night here that he didn't believe abolishing the PUC would prove "viable." He said such a move would have results completely different from the ones Butler sees.

"If the PUC is abolished, the cost of asking for rate increases would go up considerably," he said. "There are, I believe, 78 communities in our service area. The cost of going to each community and asking for a rate increase would be ... prohibitive.

Sanders said last night that returning rate approval powers to the communities could have another adverse

"It is a necessity to have rates which are compatible throughout the system," he said, adding that, should individual communities have the right to set rates, the result could be widely varying rates.

"I think their vote to abolish the commission is more in the order of a no confidence vote in the commission," Butler said. "But it certainly paves the way for some constructive changes in the commission to give it a more balanced approach.

Police Beat

Man's car disappears

Charles Dickson of 905 E. 13th probably won't be leaving his car alone with the engine running after this morning. Dickson started his car about 4:40 a.m. today and when he returned about 20 minutes later, it had disappeared

Dickson notified police of the theft and a few minutes later an officer arrested two teen-agers that were driving the car north on Birdwell, police said.

A male juvenile and 17-year-old Yolanda Paradez of 301 N.W. 10th were both arrested on suspicion of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle

Police reports also showed the following: A 64-year-old man was the victim of an attempted robbery last night, police said. Doise McKee of 205 E. Third told police as he walked upstairs to his room about 7:30 p.m. a white male jumped him and tried to McKee fell and struck his head on the pavement. police reports said. As the victim began screaming for help, the would-be robber fled the scene, police said No suspects have been arrested, police said.

 Robert Ray Pruitt, 45, of 2309 Brent was arrested yesterday on a simple assault warrant. He was released after posting a $100 bond.

 Police said they arrested 35-year-old Robert Earl Smith of 604 N.E. 10th last night on suspicion of possession of marijuana under 2 ounces. The suspect was arrested about 1:40 a.m. after police executed a search and arrest warrant at his home.

• A 14-year-old white male was arrested yesterday on suspicion of theft under $5. Lewis Chatman had told police the boy shoplifted two wallets from Gibson Discount Center

• A 14-year-old white female was arrested vesterday on suspicion of theft under $5. Randal Clark had told police the girl shoplifted $3.83 worth of eye makeup from Furr's Super Market

 Police arrested a 72-year-old white female yesterday at Furr's Super Market on suspicion of theft under

 Abby Weyhe of Lubbock told police someone stole her brown shoulder bag yesterday from a Ford van parked at College Park shopping center. Billy Joe Durden of 2602 Chanute told police someone entered his house Monday night and stole an $800 diamond ring and $30 cash. • Elton Jones of 4209 Walnut told police a person he knows entered his residence yesterday and took a stereo and two speakers without his permission Margie Bridges of 1509 Oriole told police someone stole four wire-rimmed hubcaps from her car parked at her residence between 9 a.m. Monday and 2:30 p.m yesterday.

 A 25-year-old man is in stable condition at Malone Hogan Hospital after he was injured in a two-vehicle accident yesterday. Vehicles driven by the victim, Thomas R. Doane of 1408 Runnels, and Tamra L. Garza of Lenorah collided at Pennsylvania and 11th Place

Police cited Garza for making an unsafe left turn and Doane for failure to show financial responsibility. Doane was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Sheriff's Log

Five arrested on warrants

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested five persons Tuesday in connection with county warrants for

 Scott Emerson, 23, of 1604 Benton paid a $26 fine and $104.11 in bad checks to be released after arraignment before Justice of the Peace Bobby West. Gloria Hunter of Hermleigh paid a total of $180.68 in bad checks through the Snyder sheriff's office to West's office • Michelle Overton, 20, of 4021 College was released under $1,000 personal recognizance bond after being arraigned before West. Records show Ms. Overton was not confined • John R. Rogers, 39, of Sterling City Route posted $1,000 bond to be released after arraignment before Peace Justice Lewis Helfin.

• Donny Eagle, 21, of 704 Creighton paid a fine, set by West, and bad checks to be released under to sheriff's office records.

• David Lee Ayers, 28, of San Angelo is in county jail after his transfer from Tom Green County authorities. Ayers is being held without bond under a warrant for revocation of probation on a theft conviction.

Grapefruits are high in nutrition

Lifestyle Editor and CAROL HART

Lifestyle Writer Grapefruit is one of several fruits now in season, so for grapefruit lovers, we've included several grapefruit recipes below in the Recipe

Exchange Grapefruit can be stored at room temperature in a well-ventilated area away from direct heat for a week to 10 days. For longer storage, refrigerate in the vegetable crisper of the refrigerator.

Grapefruits contain about 55 calories in an average-sized half. but they are high in nutrition. And they provide 80 percent of the United States Recommended Dietary Allowance for Vitamin C and 15 percent of the United State Recommended Dietary Allowance for Vitamin A.

Grapefruit also contains high levels of potassium and is low in sodium.

Also in today's recipe exchange, we've included the correction for Seven Minute Frosting, submitted by Mrs. Ben Sullivan. Because of a coding error on our computers, the recipe came out reading 13 cups of egg whites instead of one-third. Please note the corrected version below.

Today's Recipe Exchange also includes a variety of other recipes we hope you'll enjoy.

Recently, we had a request for a recipe for Pina Colada Cake. If any of our readers have this recipe and would like to share it with us, send it to the Herald Recipe Exchange, P.O. ## East Texas author writes about fantasy world

By DORIS DANIEL The Lufkin Daily News

CHIRENO — Ardath Mayhar lives in a typical rural East Texas setting, but she works in a world of imagination, writing science fiction.

Her house sits on wooded acreage in this community near the Attoyac River. A swarm of cats, one companionable dog and two goats live on the place with Mrs. Mayhar and her husband of 24 years, Joe, who operates a Nacogdoches service station. The farm atmosphere ends at the front door.

Inside, Mrs. Mayhar taps out her books at an electric typewriter, listening to tapes of Mozart or Beethoven. The characters that take shape on her pages exist light years away from East Texas, and their stories unfold only in the imagination.

She writes full time, several hours a day, and has published five books this year, including two reprints

Her most recent books are set in distant galaxies, and her characters are better than ordinary. Mrs. Mayhar says she likes to keep the plots suitable for young readers.

"I like to write about people as they can be, not as they are," she said. "My books are for a general readership. Three books by the Atheneum Publishing Co. are in a young adult (student) series. All of my books, not just those three, are suitable for young

Mrs. Mayhar creates treacherous worlds for her characters, but in those worlds good combines with courage to win out over evil.

Her "Golden Dream: A Fuzzy Odyssey," features the Fuzzies, furry, 2-foot-tall creatures that walk upright and are at least as intelligent as humans. She wrote "Golden Dream" at the request of an editor at Ace Books in New York, the book's publisher. The Fuzzies were invented by the late H. Beam Piper, and Ace asked Mrs. Mayhar to continue the series. She invented a language for the little creatures, who inspire affection and loyalty in humans.

Characters in "The Runes of the Lyre," published in September by Atheneum, communicate by linking minds. Music from a lyre wakes from centuries of sleep an ageless race of people to fight against evil.

These books and her two previous ones are set in distant galaxies. Fantastic plots and living adventures abound. Her characters feel joy and pain, grow fatigued and disheartened and fight with righteous rage. The reader identifies with their feelings, especially in "Runes.

Mrs. Mayhar, the mother of two sons and two stepsons, all now grown, said she has not stopped learning from Nacogdoches High School.

She operated a Nacogdoches County dairy for 15 years, and was a newspaper proofreader, reading and studying all the while. She has studied seven different languages, as well as geology, sociology, genetics and

Mrs. Mayhar made her first literary sale, a poem, at the age of 19.

"I soon found out there was little monetary reward for writing poetry, but that was what interested me Twenty-five years later I wrote my first fantasy science fiction, and I was hooked," she said.

"I had discovered what interested me more than poetry — and I could even sell my work.' But the poetry still creeps into the descriptive passages of her books, in names, language and bits of

Windfall tax exemptions

take hold

By WILLIAM GARLAND States News Service WASHINGTON - The question of the constitutionality of the windfall profits tax on crude oil continues to linger before the U.S. Supreme Court, but 13 percent of all U.S. oil production was exempted from the tax on Saturday. An indsutry spokesman said Monday that the exemption would have a 'great effect'' in stimulating the sluggish oil industry.

"Under the tax-cutting proposals that passed Congress at the urging of President Reagan in 1981, so-called stripper well" oil production became exempt from the windfall tax on

Production from a well qualifies in the stripper category if the well produces no more than 10 barrels of oil per day. Oil industry figures show that 13 percent of all domestic production comes from stripper wells, amounting to 401 million barrels of oil in

The exemption applies only to producers of oil and not to royalty owners (those persons who own the mineral rights to the land on which the oil is produced).

With the exemption, U.S. Treasury Department of ficials estimated Monday that the loss of revenues to the federal treasury would amount to approximately $1.8 billion between 1983

Peter Wellish spokesman for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, noted that a producer would not automatically be exempted from the tax. A producer will have to file for an exemption on a special form with the Internal Revenue Service

With the exempion, oil producers will be able to keep open stripper wells that otherwise might have been shut down because of the declining price of oil, Wellish said. He said it previously cost more to keep some stripper wells operating than to shut off their production.

A spokesman for the Energy Action Project, a consumer organization, disagreed with Wellish. 'There's no evidence that continuation of the windfall profits tax on stripper wells would have shut them down because they couldn't meet the cost," said Ed Rothschild.

He cited the low amount of financial overhead in keeping such a well operational, since it requires relatively little manpower at the well site and said the tax would have uecreased the well's profits only slightly.

About the current windfall tax case before the Supreme Court, Wellish said IPAA expects some indication from the court in the next few months about the manner in which the court will handle the case.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES

Dr. Donohue

Sarcoid experience can be brief

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband has just found out that he has sarcoids of the lungs. I have read about it in my medical books, but am not clear about them yet. The doctor says it normally runs its course, and if not, there is a treatment for it. My husband is 29 and in very good health otherwise. How does one get this disease and what is the treatment the doctor speaks of? - T.Y. I wish I could answer your question about how one gets sarcoldosis. I can't. No one knows. Sarcoldosis is the name of an illness in which small lumps form in the body tissue, the lungs being a common site. And although it may resemble tuberculosis, it is not that at indosis can be so mild that the person feels perie, tly well, but in a few it can progress rapidly and injure organs, like the liver, eyes, skin. It appears that your husband has a mild form, perhaps one detected almost incidentally.

Let's take his case as possibly a usual one. A chest Xray happens to be taken, perhaps as part of a general physical examination. It shows enlarged lung nodes. What are called granulomas have formed - hordes of special kinds of cells, called macrophages. These are cells that normally attack material foreign to the body. We don't know what they congregate in sarcoidosis.

Your doctor now is watching this situation. Often, sarcoidosis disappears as mysteriously as it appeared. However, if it does get out of control and affect body organs, steroids can be used to stop the macrophage cells from piling up.

You also ask in your letter about symptoms. As noted, there may be none, but if lungs are affected there might be the symptoms of breathing difficulty, or other problems related to other affected auguns. With liver invasion, a jaundice (skin yellowness) would appear. In any event, steroids can be used when health seems to be seriously threatened. I hope your husband's experience with sarcoidosis is a short one that continues to be mild.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you explain optic neuritis in your column? Can it be cured? - B.M.R.

Optic neuritis is inflammation of the optic nerve, the one that brings visual sensations back to the brain. Although such inflammation can occur with a wide variety of diseases - virus infections, brain infection, multiple sclerosis or diabetes - if the inflammation is severe, vision can be affected.

The treatment is to try to fight the underlying illness. and when that is done successfully, the optic nerve problem ends and vision returns. It is important to do that early because if the infection continues, visual disturbance may continue after it's brought under control. So it's not so much the cure of optic neuritis as it is the cure of what is causing that nerve inflammation.

Or. Donohue: You noted that once a person has had abella he or she is immune for life. My daughter had rubella as a child, yet her gynecologist ran a test and found she had lost her immunity. She is advising her friends to be tested before pregnancy. Can you comment? - A.B.F

She has no argument from me. Testing for rubella immunity is a good idea in every pregnancy, and it is mandatory in some states. Most often, rubella does give life-long immunity, but having had it as a child should not full women into complacency.

The point is to be made is that rubella can easily be misdiagnosed, especially by parents of children. A lot

Fire officials begin stove inspection tour

19 2 Spring tue department chiculs have begun a service they hope will prevent blazes caused by properly installed healing units. City Manager Don

Two blazes last week - one at 401 Hillside and another at 101 N. Carey - apparently were caused by wood burning stoves that were improperly installed, Davis said.

Davis said that fire officials will, upon request, inspect free-standing, wood burning stoves to make sure they are properly installed. The inspection is free of charge. Davis said of other illnesses look like rubella. So, unless a child was obviously sick during a documented epidemic of rubella, that person in adulthood should be tested for immunity prior to pregnancy. Simply stating that rubella was in the past is not enough evidence to assume immunity. I'm with your daughter. I'd like to see all pregnant women tested for immunity. It's not an expensive test, and the consequences of effects on the fetus are too

Interested persons should contact the central fire station at 263-8311.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been told that a person who has a heart condition should not wear nylon garments. especially over the top part of the body. Will you comment on this? -Y.Y.I can't think of any reason behind this-idea.

To learn about the major cateogries of prostrate symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery - read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50
