Doctor killed in crash

Halvard Hansen
...services Tuesday

Dr. Halvard T. Hansen, 62, a local chiropractor, died at 4 a.m. Sunday of injuries received in a one vehicle accident seven miles south of Interstate 20 on county road 1210.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, Hansen was southbound in his 1979 Toyota when it struck a dirt embankment and turned over one and a half times. Hansen was pronounced dead on the scene at 8:40 a.m. by Peace Justice Robert Tine of Midland.

DPS troopers David Jones and Sue Rudie investigated the accident. Services for Dr. Hansen will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in St. Paul Lutheran Church with Rev. Carroll Kohl, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He was born May 9, 1921 in Tacoma, Wa. He married Lela

A. Fuchs on Feb. 7, 1943 in Buckholts. He was a veteran of World War II and had served in the National Guard from 1939 to 1940 and in the Army from 1941 to 1945. He was a lieutenant in the tank destroyer command. He came to Big Spring in 1956 from Clifton. He was active in many civic professional and church activities. He was a member of St. Paul Lutheran Church and had been active in

'Money, money and money'

State Rep. Shaw: The buck may not stop here

Beginning tomorrow the 68th session of the Texas Legislature will convene to face a myriad of issues. Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring is entering into his second term and expecting a battle concerning the distribution of state funds.

The need for funding in such areas as highways, prisons and teacher salaries has caused Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to exclaim the session will be about "money, money and money."

Reports from Austin have said the Legislature is faced with $10 billion in requests from state agencies for money the state currently does not have in its coffers.

Shaw says the new session will require teamwork among elected West Texas legislators to get a share of the scarce funds for this area.

Shaw represents the 69th District in the Texas House. His new district, shuffled in redistricting, stretches almost 300 miles west and contains 95,000 people and 12 counties.

During a recent interview Shaw laid out his impressions of several key issues in the upcoming session.

The top issue facing the Legislature will be a tax increase, according to political observers. However, Shaw said it will take a while to discern exactly what types of increases, if any, will be needed.

"Tax increases will be an issue in some areas," Shaw said. "There's so much rumor and speculation, it's hard to tell if one group or one particular area of leadership is trying to pull a bluff. We'll be able to focus more on the problem once the session gets underway." Shaw also talked about the state's highway system. Studies have shown some of the state's bridges and roads are in need of repair and pressure is being put on the Legislature to remedy the situation.

"The repairs to the highway system carry a heavy price tag. We may need to enact some sort of user fee or gasoline tax," Shaw said. "Most people feel like that's a fair type tax — the people who use the system pay for it."

The issue of education has been an ongoing one in the state for the past few years. Shaw believes teacher salaries and enhanced educational programs will be argued this time around also.

"I may be wrong but I think we'll see some (teacher pay raises)," Shaw said. "The crisis that we face in education is about bringing new teachers into the field and keeping those that are qualified in the field... it's an area of great concern."

Shaw also said education is a long-term economic issue. Having qualified teachers and a sound education, Shaw said students will add to the productivity of the economy rather than detract from it.

"The better skilled our children are when they leave public schools and colleges, the better and more productive they will be and the better our economy will be," Shaw said.

He said the state has had a tendency in the past to hold back appropriations for education — a mistake the state usually pays for down in road in social programs.

"We come back to pay for it in social programs and prisons because people did not get what they needed to survive in today's society," Shaw said.

Another question expected to be hotly debated is the topic of prisons and prison reform.

"On some things the most expensive way of doing something is not always the most effective way. Our prison system is a classic example," he said. "We have the most expensive for of incarcerating people probably in the nation yet studies are showing that it may not be the most effective way."

Shaw suggested building some medium and minimum security prisons where reason warrants rather than all maximum security units. "I think we could realize considerable savings in building and operating costs, better potential of rehabilitating prisoner and making him productive again," Shaw said. "That is our objective, as well as the punishment."

A recent vote by the Sunset Advisory Commission recommending the abolishment of the Public Utilities has virtually assured the PUC a place on the Legislature's agenda, Shaw said.

"I don't think we'll do away with the PUC, but it is a warning that people are unsatisfied," Shaw said. "I think they expect to pay fair profit to the utility companies, but

Jury selection begins in Jimmy Chagra trial

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jury selection began this morning in the murder trial of Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, accused of hiring the hit man who killed a federal judge in Texas in 1979.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions, who moved the trial from San Antonio to the Middle District of Florida because of pre-trial news coverage in Texas, read an indictment charging Chagra with murder, conspiracy to commit murder and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The judge then asked 75 prospective jurors about their knowledge of the case. All but about 13 indicated that they had read or heard something about it.

Prosecutors say Chagra, 39, paid a man convicted last month $250,000 to kill U.S. District Judge John H. Wood on May 29, 1979, outside his San Antonio, Texas, apartment.

A team of five prosecutors, led by Ray and LeRoy John, has trucked more than a ton of files — the products of a three-year, $6 million investigation — to Jacksonville for the trial, expected to last four to six weeks.

If convicted, Chagra could be sentenced to life in prison.

Wood, 63, died of a single gunshot wound in the back. He had been under federal guard after a 1978 assassination attempt on an assistant U.S. attorney in San Antonio, but the protection was lifted at the judge's request three weeks before he died.

Wood was known as "Maximum John" because of the stiff sentences he handed down in drug cases. He gave the maximum in 72 of 90 narcotics convictions in his court and once sentenced a drug trafficker to 35 years for contempt of court.

The indictment says Chagra hired Charles V. Harrelson, who had the reputation of a card shark and gun for hire, to murder Wood. Chagra, the indictment says, feared that Wood would sentence him to life in prison if he was convicted in the narcotics case.

He was later convicted and is serving 30 years on that count in the federal penitentiary at Marion, Ill.

Last December, Harrelson, 44, was convicted of murdering Wood. His wife and Chagra's wife were found guilty of conspiracy in the death, and all three are to be sentenced March 8.

Harrelson, already serving 40 years for state narcotics and weapons convictions, faces a mandatory life sentence for Wood's murder.

Elizabeth Chagra, 28, could be sentenced to life. JoAnn Harrelson, 41, could get five years.

Chagra's brother Joe pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy in the murder case and was sentenced to 10 years in prison. The El Paso lawyer was the key witness in the first trial, but has refused to testify against his brother, so the trials were separated.

Producers hope Texas soap opera floats

HOUSTON (AP) — Will a Hollywood experiment in Texas-made soap operas played out on an 11,000-square-foot sound stage here float?

Tomorrow Entertainment, a company with more than 20 Emmys, and MFC The Texas Outfit of Houston are betting it will.

The melodrama, "The Lone Star Bar and Grill," is believed to be the first episodic TV show ever produced in the United States entirely outside California or New York.

But the plot is probably more Hollywood than Texas: Buddy Tyler, once a singing cowboy, and his vocalist wife, Mary Beth, launch the Lone Star Bar and Grill, a haven for bored housewives, night shift workers, disgruntled society ladies and offshore oil rig types.

But before opening the club, Tyler is paralyzed from the waist down in an auto accident. Mary Beth herself drawn to Tyler's best friend, a singer named Dave Spiker.

Two months behind on a mortgage payment on the place, Tyler tries to persuade Mary Beth to sign with a shady talent agent in a deal that would turn ownership of the bar over to him if the debt isn't repaid.

Mary Beth refuses, and then a suspicious fire guts the bar. And in the fighting to put it out, Tyler discovers he can walk. His paralysis apparently was psychological.

If the developments in "The Lone Star Bar and Grill" sound like they were concocted by a Hollywood soap opera writer, it's because they were. "But there is melodrama within melodrama."

"The Lone Star Bar and Grill" is considered the first series made in America for cable television.

Tomorrow Entertainment has sold six 90-minute episodes to Showtime, a cable company with about 4 million subscribers, the second-largest audience in pay TV.

If the show succeeds when it airs later this year, it may spawn a new film-for-cable industry in Houston. Tomorrow Entertainment vice president Philip D. Fehrle told the Dallas Times Herald.

"Right now a lot of pay television programming goes to Canada because production there is so much cheaper," he said.

Cable companies generally cannot afford to spend as much as the commercial networks for made-for-TV films.

One Hollywood producer estimated that it costs $2 million to make an inexpensive made-for-TV movie.

Fehrle will not specify the exact cost of "The Lone Star Bar and Grill," but he said that it will be "less than half the cost of equivalent programming on network television."

MFC is keeping down costs by shooting the series on 16 mm, rather than 35 mm film, and is hiring both union and non-union workers, most of whom were found locally.

The series, which Fehrle said has a plot and texture similar to a novel, is being produced at a rapid clip. One episode is finished every 90 days.

The shows are "not like anything" that's being done, he said. "It's closest approximation is the movies shown on pay television," he said.

Because of the uninterrupted 90-minute format, "we don't have to write stories to accommodate commercial breaks, we don't have to insert phony climaxes — what we call cliffhangers. All of a sudden we can go back to telling stories the way they were meant to be told."

Two episodes are scheduled to be aired by the end of June, and Showtime has an option to have six more produced this year. Showtime has an option for 60 in all.

City faces annexation issue again

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council will return its attention tomorrow night to an item it tabled two weeks ago — the Wilson family's request for about 30 acres near Silver Heels addition to be deannexed from the city.

That request came under fire last week when Ron Osborn, represented by local attorney Larry Hamby, objected to deannexation because he would lose the protection of city zoning ordinances. David Wilson and his father, Bob

Odessa plant explodes

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — An explosion caused heavy damage and ignited a fire but caused no injuries this morning at the El Paso Products Co. ammonia plant.

The sound of the 8:30 a.m. blast could be heard throughout the southern sections of the city.

"It sounded like somebody was banging on our walls," said Michael O'Rourke, a newsman at radio station KYXX.

Company spokeswoman Lori Bell said no one was injured, the fire was brought under control and that officials were trying to determine the cause of the blast and the extent of the damage.

Wilson, both said they wanted the area deannexed so they could develop their property without having to consider city ordinances.

Another item involving the Wilsons and Osborns will also be considered tomorrow night. At their last meeting, the council tabled

David Wilson's request for a mobile home permit on land that adjoins the Osborn's property.

The Osborns — who say they've already spent $85,000 on the home they're building — object to the location of Wilson's mobile home because it obstructs their view and devalues their property.

The council reasoned that they needed to know how other the property owners in that area feel about deannexation before taking action. That action should take place tomorrow night.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. at City Hall, Fourth and Nolan. The meeting is open to the public.

they expect fair service and expect that service to be assessed to them at a fair price. I don't believe that has been the case."

Stiffer penalties for drunk drivers will also get notice from lawmakers, according to Shaw.

"People are ready for tougher laws. I think there will be some changes that will hopefully be fair and equitable but will have a positive result," Shaw said. "The law will have to change society's opinion toward DWI offenders so it will not be socially acceptable to drive while you're drunk."

Shaw said other major issues that may appear before the Legislature are the reworking of the insanity defense in criminal prosecutions, changes in the collection of ad valorem taxes in respect to the so-called "Peveto Bill," a water plan for the state and restricting of state senate and house districts.

Clergymen protest new submarine

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Although its name has been changed, the Navy's newest fast-attack submarine, City of Corpus Christi, has continued to stir controversy as angry clergymen and peace activists denounce its commissioning as "sacrilegious" and "blasphemous."

"They changed the name, but the intention of the sub hasn't changed," said Arthur Laffin, a member of the so-called Trident Nein group that was sentenced last November in a July break-in at the Electric Boat Shipyard in Groton.

The City of Corpus Christi, which was commissioned at the U.S. Naval Shipyard in Groton Saturday, is the 18th in the Los Angeles-class of submarines, the Navy's latest line of fast-attack subs.

The 360-foot, 6,900-ton vessel was authorized by Congress in 1973 and launched at Electric Boat in 1981.

But since its launching, it's been the center of religious controversy because its original name, Corpus Christi, translates to "body of Christ" in English. The Navy maintains the submarine was named after the southern Texas city, but agreed in May to change the name to City of Corpus Christi.

"Even though the name was changed ... the allusion is still there," said Julie O'Reilly, a member of Connecticut's Pax Christi peace group. "Connecting that name with a submarine that can do so much destruction in a violent way is sacrilegious."

"We feel that that's a strong confrontation with our belief in Christ and his witness to non-violence and his witness to a peace based on love and justice."

About 50 people — mostly church leaders and anti-nuclear activists — held a peaceful vigil outside the eastern Connecticut naval base during Saturday's commissioning. Some quietly carried signs reading, "Lord, Help Our President Freeze The Arms Race." No arrests were made.

Inside the shipyard, U.S. Sen. John G. Tower, R-Texas, the key speaker, praised the Navy for keeping the United States strong, free and economically healthy.

"We must have a Navy that is sized to the threat, not sized to budgetary considerations, he said. "You can't whip the Russians with a balanced budget."

Hearing set on textbook selection

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Butler said after a regular monthly meeting.

A critic of the selection process said he hoped the study would result in the board broadening the amount of comment allowed in public selection hearings.

The hearings are an annual battle between publishers who want to make a sale to one of the nation's largest markets and protesters who use the hearing to air grievances about everything from communism to sexism.

Books that are rejected in Texas normally are not published for other states. "We hope that this study committee, after its public hearing in February, will recommend that all Texas citizens have an equal opportunity to submit public comment and appear before the State Textbook Committee and the State Board of Education," Mike Hudson, who directs People for the American Way.

One of the most criticized aspects of the selection process is that the textbook selection committee only allows critics of a textbook to speak at the group's public hearings.

Textbooks proposed for public schools are screened by the committee in the public hearings before they are submitted to the Board of Education.

A supporter of the process also said he welcomed the public airing on the issue.

"We think the hearings held now are the most democratic in the nation," said Mel Gabler, of Longview, who with his wife, Norma, have been professional consultants on selection of textbooks for 21 years.

"But we think it is a good idea to have a public hearing on the process. Let the public have its input, that's what we want."

Hudson's group, People for American Way, was founded by television producer Norman Lear and opened an office in Texas last summer to monitor the textbook selection process.

In the regular state legislative session opening Tuesday, state Sen. Ray Farrabee, D-Wichita Falls, has filed a bill to allow tex-

Daniel Amaro

Daniel Amaro, infant son of Mrs. Mrs Modesto Amaro of Big Spring, died at 9 a.m. Sunday at his home. Graveside services were to be at 2 p.m. at Mount Olive Memorial Park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He was born Jan. 3, 1983 in Big Spring.

Survivors include his parents; four brothers, David Amaro, J.P. Amaro, both of Big Spring, and Raymond Amaro and Johnny Amaro, both of New Braunfels; two sisters, Denise Ramos of Bryan and Amelia Amaro of Mercedes, Calif.

Edith White

Mrs. J.M. (Edith) Smith, 85, died at 4:30 a.m. Sunday in a local hospital after a long illness. Services will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with burial in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

She was born July 26, 1897 in Vaughn. She came to Big Spring in 1923 and had worked for Dr. G.T. Hall as a secretary. She married James Miles Smith June 14, 1947 in Big Spring. He died Nov. 5, 1979. She was a member of the First Baptist Church where she had been active for 30 years. She was also active in the Home Demonstration Club. She was also preceded in death by one daughter, Frances Stamper, in November of 1975.

She is survived by one son, Lloyd Stamper of Fort Worth and by one nephew, James Willard Williams of Dallas.

Falklands welcome Thatcher, Argentina blasts surprise trip

VISITS AIRFIELD — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her husband, Denis, look out over the airfield Sunday at Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, as Phantom fighter jets are scrambled for her benefit. The plane at right is a Hercules transport of the type used to carry Mrs. Thatcher to the islands Saturday for her unannounced visit.

The prime minister and her husband Denis arrived Saturday after an 8,000-mile, 24-hour trip from London that followed the route of the British Falklands supply line.

STANLEY, Falkland Islands (AP) — Teary-eyed residents shouted "God bless you" as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher began a surprise visit to get a look at the battlefields where hundreds of Argentine and British soldiers died fighting over this British colony. "This is more than a visit," Mrs. Thatcher said in a speech Sunday night. "It is a profoundly moving experience because we have all been through things we hope will never be repeated."

While Mrs. Thatcher received a warm greeting from the 1,800-member community on the South Atlantic archipelago, the reaction to the unannounced trip in Buenos Aires and from opposition lawmakers in Britain was angry.

Argentine Foreign Minister Juan R. Aguirre Lanari said Mrs. Thatcher's visit to the islands was "a new act of provocation and arrogance." The newspaper Conviccion, reflecting a stand taken by most Argentine media, called the visit "another provocation to Latin America."

In London, Liberal Party legislator Richard Wainwright said the trip was a "public circus" aimed at diverting voters' attention from economic woes. George Fulkes, an opposition Labor Party legislator, described it as "provocative to Argentina, South America and the United Nations."

Mrs. Thatcher, the first prime minister to visit the Falklands in 150 years of British rule, was scheduled to make a helicopter tour of the battlefields and to visit war cemeteries today.

One of her stops was to be San Carlos Water, 50 miles west of the capital, where the first of the 5,000 attacking British troops landed May 21 to begin their battle to recover the islands from Argentine occupation forces. The 74-day undeclared war killed 255 Britons and 712 Argentines.

She made the last leg of the journey, the 13-hour flight from the mid-Atlantic Ascension Island, in a lumbering, propeller-driven C-130 Hercules transport specially outfitted with a soundproof cabin in its cavernous hold. The plane was escorted into Stanley by Phantom jet fighters.

Hundreds of tearful islanders gathered in the capital to cheer the prime minister as word of her arrival spread across the desolate islands 250 miles east of the tip of South America. The trip was not announced in advance because of security considerations, British officials said.

"The week that I heard Argentina's invasion force was on its way was the worst week of my life," the prime minister told the crowd.

Later, in a speech to the Falklands' leaders, she said: "You know what we all fought for — freedom and justice, which are two sides of the same coin."

Although delighted by Mrs. Thatcher's visit, the 19 councilors who run the islands with civil commissioner Sir Rex Hunt reportedly conveyed to the prime minister their feelings that Britain has neglected the islands for far too long.

Mrs. Thatcher's government, to the disappointment of many islanders, recently turned down a proposal to make farmland available for purchase. Nearly half of the islands' territory is owned by one British company.

During her first full day in the islands Sunday, Mrs. Thatcher visited the RAF camps at the airport, and was briefed by bomb disposal experts still clearing the thousands of mines littering the islands.

Lebanese say talks progress

KHALDE, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese, Israeli and U.S. envoys made "significant progress" today toward breaking a two-week-old deadlock over an agenda for negotiations on withdrawal of foreign troops from Lebanon, state radio reported.

"It seems a compromise has been reached," said the privately owned "Voice of Lebanon" radio. But Israeli officials said they did not share the optimism reported by Lebanese media.

"Whereas there was a feeling in the morning that there was going to be an agreement today, right now the same optimism doesn't exist," said an Israeli official who declined to be named.

In the northern city of Tripoli, meanwhile, PLO guerrillas armed with machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades set up buffer zones to enforce a cease-fire in the bloody eight-week-old battle between pro-Syrian and anti-Syrian militiamen, authorities said.

Israeli and Lebanese troops stood guard at all roads leading to Khalde's Lebanon Beach Hotel, where the fifth round of talks among Lebanese, Israeli and U.S. officials were held.

Sources at the meeting said the United States had proposed a compromise to break the stalemate over the agenda. But Israeli spokesman Joseph Gal told reporters that the Lebanese side today rejected American compromise proposals made last week so the Americans proposed another version.

The sticking point is Israel's insistence that the discussions start with normalization of relations between the two Middle East neighbors, while Lebanon wants to focus on withdrawal of Israel's invasion army, along with Syrian and Palestinian forces.

Details of the U.S. compromise were not spelled out, but the state radio quoted a Lebanese official as saying "significant progress" had been made.

Lebanese radio stations said the U.S. team headed by presidential envoy Morris Draper suggested replacing the term "normalization of relations" on the negotiating agenda with "neighborly relations."

Diplomatic sources in Israel have said the U.S. ideas could "satisfy everyone's needs, both in language and substance."

"We hope everything will be okay," chief Lebanese negotiator Antoine Fattal told reporters as he walked into the closed-door session. Draper and Israeli officials made no statements to reporters.

The three delegations have been arguing about an agenda since the talks began Dec. 28, alternating between this Beirut suburb and the Israeli town of Kiryat Shmona.

Syria, which has about 30,000 troops in Lebanon, and the Palestine Liberation Organization, which has an estimated 6,000-10,000 guerrillas in the country, have said they are willing to withdraw if Israel agrees to pull out its invasion army.

Storms lash Midwest

By The Associated Press

Snow and drizzle pushed by heavy winds hit the Midwest and northern Plains early today, while rain kept falling on the Southeast.

Winds blasted the central Plains and snow was scattered from Kansas to Minnesota. The winds were clocked at about 50 mph in parts of Nebraska and South Dakota. The storm was blamed for three traffic deaths and a 25-car pileup in Nebraska and for a passenger plane's crash while landing in Brainerd, Minn., in which one woman was killed.

Light drizzle covered the Ohio

Valley, with snow scattered over Pennsylvania and around Washington, D.C., and it rained in South Atlantic coastal states.

Showers were forecast for later today across the Northwest coast, snow was expected from Utah through the upper Rocky Mountains to the upper Great Lakes.

West Texas — Fair with mild days and cold nights through Tuesday. Highs in the 60s, except 70s Big Bend. Lows 20s north and mountains to 30s south.

North Texas — Mostly fair through Tuesday. Highs 56 to 62. Lows 28 to 37. Highs Tuesday 58 to 62.

NOTICE OF CALCULATION OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE AND PUBLICATION OF ESTIMATED UNENCUMBERED FUND BALANCES
I, DOROTHY W. MOORE OF THE CITY OF FORSAN in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 26.04 of the Property Tax Code, have calculated the tax rate which may not be exceeded by more than three percent by the governing body of the CITY OF FORSAN without holding a public hearing as required by the code. That rate is as follows: $0.325 per $100 value.

Dorothy W. Moore
 Tax Assessor Collector
 January 7, 1983

The Forsan City Council met January 3, 1983 and approved the tax rate at $0.325 for the tax year 1982. Tax Rate for 1981 was .8375.
 The council unanimously approved the optional 40% homestead exemption.

We salute all blood donors

In 1982 a total of 258 volunteer blood donors participated in the weekly Blood Mobile held at Dora Roberts Health Center. Various businesses in Big Spring sponsored 40 Blood Mobiles, netting a total of 1,539 "pints of life." This brought the total pints of blood drawn in Big Spring to 1,807 for 1982.

Big Spring hospitals had a busy year, too. Their total usage of blood last year reached 1,896 pints. This does not reflect the approximately 65 pints kept on consignment in the hospitals on a day-to-day basis.

BIG SPRING HAS GONE far in its endeavor to meet its blood needs. Without the volunteer blood donor, 1,896 times in 1982, a precious life would have perhaps been lost for lack of blood to transfuse. At least 1,896 times last year, volunteer blood donors took the time to ensure that this would not happen.

January has been designated your month, volunteer blood donor. We salute you and congratulate you on your outstanding participation in 1982.

JUST AS JANUARY is the time to thank our volunteer donors, it is also the time to determine to become a donor ourselves. Come join us in meeting and exceeding the blood needs of Big Spring.

Blood is taken from noon to 6 p.m. on the first Monday of each month at the Dora Roberts Health Center.

Billy Graham

Christ gives us strength

Dear Dr. Graham: Here it is just a few weeks after New Year's, and already I have broken every New Year's resolution I made. I want to do better, but I can't seem to get the strength to be a better person. What is wrong?—J.L.K.

Dear J.L.K.: I imagine there are many people right now who could echo your question, because it is a very common experience for us to set goals for ourselves and then not be able to achieve them. The apostle Paul once put it this way: "I do not understand what I do. For what I want to do I do not do but what I hate I do...I have the desire to do what is good, but I cannot carry it out" (Romans 7:15,18).

What is the problem? The Bible tells us that the real problem is that each of us has a moral and spiritual problem which keeps us from being what we know we ought to be. Let's say (to use an illustration) that you wanted to walk up a flight of stairs, but you had some type of disease or paralysis that made it impossible because you did not have the strength. Now in the same way the Bible tells us that we are morally and spiritually crippled, unable to do perfectly what we know is right and good. This, the Bible also tells us, is because of sin—our rebellion against God. Sin is like a disease that weakens us and makes us unable to do right all the time.

That is one reason why the greatest need any of us has is to come to know God. We cannot live as we ought to live—but God can help us and give us strength! That does not mean we will never have problems or that we will suddenly become perfect when we come to know Christ. But when we accept Christ into our hearts, God the Holy Spirit takes up residence within us to help us and strengthen us. That is why Paul could also say, "I can do everything through him who gives me strength" (Philippians 4:13).

You need forgiveness for what you have done wrong, and you need God's strength to live as you ought. Let me urge you to make a new start—not just turning over a new leaf, but turning over your life to Jesus Christ at the start of this new year. He will make all the difference.

The word "crystal" came from a Greek word meaning both ice and rock crystal since the ancients believed that rock crystal was a modified and permanent form of ice.

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

On the highways

A few years back there was an editorial cartoon done by Ben Sargent of the Austin American-Statesman concerning Texas highways.

A Texas governor was giving a commencement address to a group of college graduates and he was saying, "and as I look on each of your eager, young faces, I think, 'Damn! You could have been ten yards of FREEWAY!'"

The cartoon harpooned the fact that the 1976 session of the Legislature acted on highway legislation during the first two weeks of the session, but failed to fund education during the entire session. Later a special session had to deal with the problem.

The cartoon illustrates just how much Texans love their highways. Highways have been favored with state funds time and again over other projects. Highways rank right up there with mesquite, armadillos and oil wells in hearts of Texans.

I'm no exception. I like our good highways too.

HOWEVER, a crisis has appeared on the horizon. According to reports, the Texas highway system apparently is slipping beneath the quality demanded for so many years by its residents and highway lobbyists.

From what I can discern, the highway plight is a public embarrassment for us Texans. It seems we get upset when the state so much as lets the white lines fade on the road.

Why we've had the best, the longest and the straightest highways to brag about forever. Now they're telling us our highways aren't up to snuff. It's an outrage I tell you.

For one thing we do a lot more driving than learning in Texas. We spend more time on long drives between here and Dallas or El Paso than we ever spent in a classroom. That's why education funds should come second.

Another thing to consider is that if we had bumpy roads like they do in New Mexico and Oklahoma, our kidneys would shake loose on those long drives and we'd die.

DRIVING IS a national pastime in Texas. And as some have said, "driving across Texas is not a trip—it's a career."

We need those good, smooth roads to take us where we're going as quickly as possible. If we weren't able to drive stretches such as Monahan to El Paso or Van Horn to Terlingua quickly, we'd succumb to boredom.

Hopefully, the satirical reasons listed above for good highways won't be a factor in the next session of the Legislature. Our lawmakers are facing other important issues also like the prison systems, a water plan and teacher raises to let highways get a disproportionate piece of the pie.

But if our zealotry for highways is any indication, Sargent is already sharpening his pencils and wit.

Excluding evidence, or rights?

In its war on crime, the Reagan administration regards some constitutional rights as a nettlesome obstacle—a danger to citizens rather than a source of liberty and safety. That makes the exclusionary rule, which forbids the courtroom use of illegally obtained evidence, Public Enemy No. 1.

Critics of the rule cannot abide that criminals sometimes escape jail because police use illegal methods to get incriminating evidence. Regardless of how the police behave, the crime should be punished. They cite Justice Benjamin Cardozo's lament: "The criminal is to go free because the constable has blundered." Their proposed change can be summarized as follows: because the police break the law, the citizen goes to jail.

Still, the critics have gotten the attention of the Supreme Court. It recently agreed to consider a "good faith" exception to the rule—allowing illegal evidence to be admitted if the policemen who seized it believed they were acting legally. The chief justice himself has called for abolition of the rule.

But the exclusionary rule, contrary to what its enemies contend, is not separable from the Fourth Amendment. It is the only way to provide citizens some protection against unreasonable searches and seizures. Before the rule was extended to state courts in 1961, police routinely ignored the Fourth Amendment, since they had much to gain from illegal searches and nothing to lose.

Leonard Reisman, who was deputy police commissioner of New York City when the 1961 decision was issued, later said it "was a shock to us... Before this, nobody bothered to take out search warrants. Although the U.S. Constitution requires warrants in most cases, the U.S. Supreme Court had ruled (previously) that evidence obtained without a warrant—illegally, if you will—was admissible in state courts. So the feeling was, why bother?"

WHAT HAD changed? Not the constitutional requirements for a legal search—they had existed all along. But until the exclusionary rule was broadened, the police had no reason to heed those requirements. It was easier to get convictions by violating the Constitution than by obeying it.

The good faith exception would give police every incentive to revert to that sort of behavior. A policeman's best weapon would be ignorance of the law. The less he knows about the rights of citizens, the freer he will be in getting evidence. A policeman who is conscientious enough to follow the constitutional requirements for legal searches will be handicapped next to an officer who is ignorant, stupid or brutal.

The rule, as its critics argue, may not be an adequate deterrent. But it is the best one available. The only way to discourage police from violating the Fourth Amendment is to ensure that they won't be able to achieve their goal—putting a criminal behind bars—if they do. In the absence of such a rule, police will ignore the Constitution whenever they can gain something by doing so.

The alternatives lack the exclusionary rule's force. One proposal is to admit the illegal evidence, but make the policeman who obtains it civilly liable for violating the suspect's rights. But police are already liable—in fact, a lawsuit is the only remedy for a citizen who is victimized by an illegal search but never prosecuted. Even these innocent citizens rarely win. What chance will a convicted criminal have suing the man who put him in jail?

IN ANY CASE, the officers who violate the law may be at no risk. Several police officers lost or settled lawsuits in the infamous Chicago strip searches, but the city paid the damages.

Another option, punishing policemen who violate citizens' rights, is even more fraudulent. Police departments are notoriously reluctant to discipline their own officers, particularly for "overzealous" law enforcement. Jay Miller, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Illinois, notes that the Chicago Police Department, which isn't known for its attention to constitutional niceties, exonerates its officers in 92 percent of citizens' complaints.

It may seem unfair that society should be penalized for a policeman's mistake by having to let a criminal go free. But the policeman is society's agent, and we are all responsible if he abridges someone's rights.

The real quarrel here is not over some obscure courtroom requirement, but over the Fourth Amendment. The right to be free of illegal state intrusions into one's home and person either applies to all or it runs the risk of applying to none. Not the privileges of the guilty but the constitutional rights of the innocent are at stake.

Right-wingers, Liberals lock horns in bruising battle

WASHINGTON—A major political bargain asserts itself as the 98th Congress gets underway. But right-wing Republicans, led by President Reagan, and some liberal Democrats block the obvious deal.

So a long, bruising battle lies ahead. At the end of the day, when the deal is finally cut, the odds are that the economy will still be in trouble, that budget deficits will still be huge and that the political scene will be dominated by cripples.

The stuff out of which deals are made flows in superabundance from the present budgetary situation. The deficit for fiscal 1983, ending this September, is expected to hit a record high of $190 billion. The deficit in the fiscal 1984 budget, which the President will transmit to Congress on January 31, is estimated, unless changes are made, to run at $200 billion. Thereafter the deficit will rise steadily until, in fiscal 1988, it reaches $300 billion.

Borrowing to finance such major revenue shortfalls puts a big strain on private spending. The pinch becomes especially acute after the recession ends and corporations begin competing for funds to expand. So, on the assumption that a turn in the economy will occur this year, a reduction of deficits becomes absolutely essential to sustain recovery later on.

WAYS TO CUT the deficit abound. The huge rise in social spending, certain to occur unless various entitlement programs are moderated, presents a target appealing to most conservatives. The $1.6 trillion rise in defense spending programs for the next few years offers a juicy watermelon to many liberals. The liberals would also like to have a go at the big benefits accorded rich people in the 1981 tax cut. The obvious deal is to reduce the deficit in 1984 by limiting increases in social spending and defense, while raising revenue later on by adjustment in taxes.

Moderate Republican senators, under Majority Leader Howard Baker and Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, have long favored that approach. In the past few weeks four weighty economic figures have joined the group—Martin Feldstein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; George Shultz, the economist who is Secretary of State; Secretary of Treasury Donald Regan; and the director of the budget, David Stockman. Publicly, they all emphasized the importance of reducing deficits. Behind the scenes they have insisted on putting into the budget realistic estimates that spotlight the deficits.

But President Reagan has refused to yield on defense. He has pounded the table in opposing any tax rises. He has recoiled before reductions in social spending that might affront his own middle-class constituents. Hence his deference to the committee studying Social Security. Hence, too, the almost incomprehensible ups and downs on an estimated $30 billion in cuts recommended by Stockman.

On the Democratic side, mainstream figures in the House of Representatives are primed to get the lion of gargantuan budget deficits out of the street of economic recovery. Chairman James Jones of the Budget Committee has already surfaced a proposal for major cuts in both defense and social spending, including limits on cost-of-living rises for Social Security. He would also wipe out part of the big tax cut.

But Speaker Tip O'Neill favors big job programs to end the recession quickly. In his opening statement to the new House, the Speaker said: "It is time to stop waiting for an economic theory to work, and instead to do what we have done before—stimulate the economy." Of course, the Speaker is an old pro used to compromise after asserting his preferred position. But maverick liberals crowding behind him leave little room for turning around. It is notable that a California group, led by Phil Burton of San Francisco, elected its candidate, Howard Berman of Los Angeles, as freshman member of the Democratic Steering Committee, over the candidate, John Bryant of Dallas, favored by the Speaker and Majority Leader Jim Wright.

That suggests Democrats on the make are going to embrace the job programs. The Burton lead will probably be followed by all the presidential candidates, and the Speaker may have a tough time compromising.

In the end, the deal now visible to everybody will probably be cut. But not before the President and the Speaker have been shown beyond any doubt that they lack the votes for a win. That foreshadows a hard-fought battle that will last for most of the year.

In the interim, the economy will drag along without major stimulus. Budget cuts will prove difficult to achieve in the atmosphere of recession, and the deficits will hang high. As to the political consequences, moderate Republicans may have to shoulder the burden of big deficits, high unemployment and a fight with President Reagan.

Many species face extinction

By WILLIAM G. SCHULTZ
Smithsonian News Service
They leave quietly. Most go unnoticed. Few people mourn their immediate loss, yet all of us are profoundly affected by it. They are the animal and plant species our planet loses every day — forever.

The figures are dismal. An estimated five million to 10 million species of plant and animal life, the majority still unidentified, inhabit the Earth. By the end of this century, more than 1 million will have vanished. At that rate, the Earth is losing nearly one species an hour, according to experts such as Dr. Norman Myers, a conservation scientist who has spent 20 years studying the situation in Africa and whose book "The Sinking Ark," has called attention to this problem.

Extinction was the topic that brought Myers and other scientists to the Smithsonian's National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C. for a recent symposium "Animal Extinctions: What Everyone Should Know."

"What happens to the animals of this Earth ultimately happens to us." With those words, National Zoo director Dr. Theodore H. Reed set the tone of the conference. A zoo, he said, is an appropriate place to discuss extinction. "For some animals, zoos are the only hope there is."

Dr. David Challinor, assistant secretary for science at the Smithsonian Institution, said "Extinction is the norm. Survival is the exception. Perhaps two-thirds of all the animals that ever existed are now no more."

ENDANGERED SPECIES — Large and majestic mammals such as this leopard are endangered or threatened in many of their habitats, and steps are being taken to protect them. Many plants are also on the endangered species list.

Extinction is a natural process, but before humans began altering the environment, species died off at a very slow rate, a result of gradual processes such as changes in the Earth's global climate, sea level, and vegetation. "Today, however, we can no longer attribute the increasing decline in our wild animals and plants to "natural processes," the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service says.

Human beings are the major cause of today's situation. "There are too many people," said Dr. Elliott Norse, former director of science and policy at the Center for Environmental Education in Washington, D.C. At least four billion people live on Earth, and another 2 billion could be added by the year 2000. These increasing human numbers lead to "habitat disruption," the main threat to wildlife.

Conservationist Myers defined this disruption as "any significant modification of natural environments and life support systems." When tropical forests — where nearly half of all animal and plant species live — are cleared for timber, when marshes are drained for construction projects or waterways polluted, some form of life will probably perish or become threatened. Modern technology has accelerated the entire deadly process.

But what is it about animals like the cheetah, the blue whale or the black rhinoceros that keeps them hovering on the brink of extinction, while other animals like cockroaches, rats and house sparrows thrive? Biologists point to the reproductive differences between large mammals and the so-called "pest" species.

Typically, the "pests" are opportunistic species. As individuals, they are short-lived but they reproduce at very high rates. They adapt readily to new environments and can survive any human alteration of nature. The house mouse is the classic case.

At the other extreme are large mammals like the cheetah. The cheetah exploits its environment efficiently, but it produces fewer offspring than the pests and cares for its offspring longer.

Dr. Donohue

Interrupted sleep

Dear Dr. Donohue: My gripe is that I have to get up so often at night. It's five or six times that I get the need for one of your sensible answers. — Mrs. E.F.

Nighttime urination can signal many things. Let's start with some examples. An illness that causes swellings of the ankles and feet is one. When you go to sleep that fluid finds its way back into circulation. You get rid of the fluid by filtering it out of your kidneys and into your urine. So the nighttime urination need is, in a sense, the price paid for waking up in the morning with unswollen ankles.

Another example has to do with bladder capacity. You may produce the normal amount of urine at night, but your bladder has shrunk and cannot hold it. So you have to get up to void. When the bladder reaches a certain volume it sends out the impulses that signal the need to urinate, and that's the only nerve involvement I can suggest.

Please understand, these are only two common causes. There are many others — heart failure, liver or kidney disease, infections, stones and tumors, for examples.

Go to your doctor for a complete evaluation. He can immediately begin to rule out the various causes mentioned. If nothing is found amiss, you may have a slight bladder shrinkage that comes with age. If so, you can look to simple steps like avoiding fluids after your evening meals, going easy on alcoholic beverages which act as diuretics in the evening, and avoiding coffee, tea and colas, which act the same way.

Watch your salt intake during the day. If you use a lot of it, you may take in more fluid and both have to be gotten rid of, if not during the day then at night. My wish for you is an uninterrupted night's sleep. In passing, and for the benefit of male readers with your problem, I should add another common cause in males — prostate gland enlargement.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a skin problem called necrobiosis lipoidica diabeti-corum. Have you heard of it? I've had it for three years and my doctor has me on the gel for my skin. I am a dietician of 16 years standing. Do you know of any other help for this? — L.S.

Yours is a rare but distressing complication that occurs in the skin of some diabetics. The usual site is the shins, but it may appear elsewhere. It starts with tiny red bumps, which later coalesce to form large oval patches with a glazed surface. The centers seem somewhat sunken and yellowish.

In diabetes, the cause often is a plugging of small vessels serving those skin patch areas. The skin is not getting proper nourishment. Treatment begins with control of the diabetes, of course, and I assume you are being diligent in that regard — with your diet, medicine, etc.

I have to tell you that control of the skin problem is not always successful. Your cream, which I assume is cortisone-based, is commonly used for this. Some doctors favor injecting the skin with cortisone drugs, and skin grafts have helped some, although sometimes there is reappearance following the grafting.

I'd like to describe a new treatment, but I haven't any. I'll pass along any new thoughts of physicians who treat such problems, however.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes — and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the book, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 12210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Reader's questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Past clouds future

DEAR ABBY: I have this problem and really don't know whom to ask, so I'm turning to you.

I used to be what you would call a lesbian, but that is all in the past. I have never had a love affair with a male, but I have had a few affairs with females.

I have met this guy whom I really love, and we plan on getting married. He thinks he is marrying a virgin. I told him I was one, and I think I am, but now I wonder Am I?

Another problem I'd like to tell you about my past? We plan on getting married in June after I graduate from the University of Minnesota.

QUESTIONS IN ST. PAUL
DEAR QUESTIONS: Technically you are a virgin. The Human Sexuality Program at the University of Minnesota offers expert counseling. Go there. You need to learn more about your own sexuality. (A few lesbian experiences during one's adolescence does not necessarily a lesbian make.) And don't tell your fiancé anything until you have all the answers.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Right-Handed Mama," whose husband was forcing their naturally left-handed child into right-handedness because he believed "left-handed people are clumsy and stupid".

If they're clumsy, how would he like to have boxed heavyweight champion Gentleman Jim Corbett, played tennis with Jimmy Connors, baseball with Babe Ruth, Reggie Jackson, Sandy Koufax or Lou Gehrig, golf with Ben Hogan or basketball with Willis Reed?

As for being stupid, he is obviously no match for Alexander the Great, Clarence Darrow, Julius Caesar, Napoleon or Queen Victoria, not to mention American Presidents Truman, Ford, Garfield and Reagan.

As far as creativity, what about Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Pablo Picasso or Bach?

This is only a sampling. Oh, one last name to drop — can her husband match brains with Albert Einstein?

Alpha Phi Delta discusses projects

Members of Alpha Phi Delta discussed service projects at their chapter meeting Jan. 4 in the home of Linda Bowersox.

The chapter is planning to play bingo with the patients at the United Health Care Center this month.

The chapter decided to donate money to the proposed child abuse center.

Each member was reminded to pay council dues and chapter dues. Executive board members held a brief meeting.

The City Council meeting will be held Jan. 6 at the Coors Hospitality Room.

Members were reminded of the Valentine's Ball, which is to be held Feb. 12. The Alpha Phi Delta chapter is responsible for tickets, publicity and presentation. Members voted on a chapter queen during the meeting.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 18 in the home of Tammy Strickland. The program will be presented by Becky Rowden.

Safety of headsets discussed

Everywhere you look these days — whether it's on buses, in the office or just walking down the street — stereo headsets are definitely turning up in volume. Over 6.5 million of the pocket stereos have been snapped up, setting off a loud debate on how safe their special sound really is.

According to Joseph J. Rizzo, executive director of the Better Hearing Institute in Washington, D.C., "There's nothing dangerous about the devices in themselves." Rizzo says if the headsets are played at a comfortable volume, there should be no danger of hearing loss. "It's how people misuse them that can cause a potential health hazard."

Dr. Aram Glorig, associate director of research at the House Ear Institute in Los Angeles agrees with Rizzo that it's the improper use of headsets that can result in hearing damage. Since the maximum output of the average headset is 90 decibels — roughly the upper limit of a human shout — you'd have to listen continuously for six to eight hours at the highest volume for permanent hearing damage to occur.

If after using headphones you experience symptoms such as fuzziness in hearing, difficulty understanding some speech signals or a ringing in the ears that lasts more than thirty minutes, you probably have the volume too loud.

Prison officials, prisoner leaders discuss hostages

OSSINING, N.Y. (AP) — Corrections officials and inmate negotiators faced each other through steel bars Sunday in talks aimed at freeing 17 guards held hostage after a "spontaneous" uprising at the maximum-security prison once known as Sing Sing.

Face-to-face talks between five inmates and the members of a special hostage negotiation team began about 7:30 p.m. Sunday, nearly 24 hours after convicts armed with broom handles and night sticks took over the Cell Block B at the state's Ossining Correctional Facility.

All the hostages were reported safe, the rest of the prison was calm and there was only one minor injury, officials said.

Negotiators did their bargaining over tables separated by a barred gateway in a narrow prison corridor. The state's team, established three years ago and not tested until now, was trying to persuade convicts to free the guards taken prisoner Saturday night.

An ABC television crew also was allowed in the cellblock for a time late Sunday night in response to the inmates' demands.

State Sen. Ralph Marino said overcrowding "is one of the big gripes. They are just very uncomfortable in there." The prisoners also were asking for amnesty, he said.

"Most of the inmates locked in there really don't want any part of this," Marino said. "Eighty percent want the hostages released immediately and returned to their cells."

State corrections spokesman Lou Ganim said one reason for the unrest was prisoner "idleness." He said inmates held in that cellblock were awaiting transfer to other facilities and "don't have a lot of activities."

Officials originally reported that 16 guards were taken hostage, with one of them later freed. But early today, a state spokesman said that two other missing guards were also hostages.

"Two guards were missing and believed to be in hiding in the cellblock," said spokesman Peter Johnson. "We did not include them in the direct number count at the time in the interest of their safety."

Marino, who heads the Committee on Crime and Corrections, said the hostages were being guarded by a group of prisoners he described as "Muslims."

Authorities believe it was a "spontaneous and unplanned" uprising, Ganim said. The situation was "calm and the hostages are safe," he said.

No serious injuries were reported, although an unnamed guard was hurt by a blow to the head during the takeover. He was released early Sunday, about eight hours into the siege, in exchange for some prescription medicine.

Officials had been talking intermittently with the inmates by telephone. Sunday afternoon, an unidentified prisoner speaking through a loudspeaker said an inmate committee wanted to meet with the prison administration and reporters.

About 200 of the cellblock's 618 inmates were out of their cells for recreation when the incident began, Ganim said.

"What happened was essentially, there was a lot of loud complaints. One inmate started it. He didn't want to go down the hall to the recreation area — he wanted to stay in the gallery," an open area in front of the cells, Ganim said.

After a sergeant and a lieutenant tried to talk to them, one of the inmates began yelling and breaking furniture, he said. Hostages were taken during the melee.

None of the inmates or guards has been identified.

At one point Sunday, an inmate told reporters through a loudspeaker: "We don't wish to harm anyone. That would be our last alternative."

Inmates unfurled banners from broken windows saying, "We Don't Want Another Attica," an apparent reference to a 1971 riot at Attica state prison where 43 inmates and state employees died.

"We live like animals in here," one prisoner shouted through a window.

TOPSY-TURVY INTERCEPTION—Dallas Cowboy safety Dexter Clinkscale (47) gets upended by Tampa Bay offensive tackle Dave Reavis (75) after intercepting a Doug Williams pass Sunday in Texas Stadium. The Cowboys took advantage of several Buccaneer turnovers to claim a 30-17 playoff win.

White zips Pokes by stubborn Bucs

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and Green Bay Packers meet in the National Football League playoffs Sunday for the first time in 16 years.

And the last time, Bart Starr was the quarterback for the Packers. It will be Starr, the coach, versus Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who lost 21-17 to the late Vince Lombardi in that NFL championship game in 1967, at 3 p.m. CST in Texas Stadium.

Dallas set up the second round National Conference playoff meeting by whipping Tampa Bay 30-17 Sunday. The Packers defeated St. Louis 41-16 Saturday.

"I'm delighted to be playing my friend Bart Starr," Landry said. "They are well coached."

Landry has befriended Starr several times in the past when he was having "tough going as the Packer coach."

Dallas' fifth victory against no losses against Tampa Bay was hard-earned.

The Bucs led 17-16 early in the fourth period before rookie reserve safety Monty (Big Game) Hunter intercepted a Doug Williams pass and returned it 19 yards for a touchdown.

Quarterback Danny White, who had a sore thumb and a toothache, threw a career record 45 passes and completed 27 of them for 312 yards and two touchdowns.

"Hunter's interception gave us the breathing room we needed," Landry said. "Danny played well considering his injuries. He let one sail on him but I thought he threw the ball pretty good."

White hurt the thumb in practice last week and got the toothache Sunday morning.

He said, "Four or five times I really noticed my thumb bothering me, including the long interception that got away from me in the end zone."

In the second quarter, linebacker Hugh Green picked off a fumble in the air after White cocked his arm

Running back Tony Dorsett said "the crowd was fantastic ... I hope they continue to do that. You talk about the 12th man; it's great to have the fans behind you, get you pumped up, the adrenalin was flowing."

Asked why he thought the normally blasé Cowboy fans were so enthusiastic, Dorsett said, "There were 20,000 tickets left on Thursday. Maybe we got some of the real fans this time — some of those who can't get season tickets."

Williams, who had a 49-yard scoring pass to Gordon Jones, also had three interceptions and completed only 8 of 28 passes for 113 yards.

"I didn't have the mobility I usually have," said Williams, who played despite a pulled hamstring.

Dallas jumped ahead 6-0 on a pair of 33-yard field goals by Rafael Septien but Green struck to put Tampa ahead. Bill Capece kicked a short field goal for the Bucs, but White threw a 6-yard scoring pass to Ron Springs to give Dallas a 13-10 halftime lead.

Septien hit another short field goal before Williams hit Jones, who broke a tackle and ran 30 yards after he caught the pass, giving Tampa 17-16 lead.

The killer came for Tampa Bay when lineman Charley Hannah was flagged for an illegal block, then got another penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct.

On the next play, Williams' pass was intercepted by Hunter, the first ever intercepted by Hunter in the NFL.

By The Associated Press

The New York Jets fired their cannon, the San Diego Chargers attacked by air, the Dallas Cowboys struck from all fronts and the Minnesota Vikings refused to fold in the first weekend of play of the National Football League playoffs.

The NFL's revised and expanded 16-team playoff format, necessitated by the 57-day players' strike that wiped out seven weeks of the season, also produced a few surprises and guaranteed new finalists for Super Bowl XVII on Jan. 30.

The Jets, behind Freeman McNeil's record-breaking 211 rushing yards, crushed Cincinnati 44-17 Sunday afternoon, eliminating the defending American Conference champion Bengals from a return trip to the championship game. Last year's Super Bowl winners, the San Francisco 49ers, didn't reach the playoffs.

In Sunday's other playoff games, San Diego edged Pittsburgh 31-28 in the AFC and Dallas trimmed Tampa Bay 30-17 and Minnesota eliminated Atlanta 30-24 in the National Conference.

In Saturday's first-round matchups, the Los Angeles Raiders ousted Cleveland 27-10 and Miami eliminated New England 28-13 in the AFC and Washington blasted Detroit 30-7 and Green Bay whipped St. Louis 41-16 in the NFC.

Next weekend's games will have New York at Los Angeles and Minnesota at Washington on Saturday and San Diego at Miami and Green Bay at Dallas on Sunday.

NFL Playoffs

One of the surprises was the fans, who nearly filled the stadiums after staying away from the games following the strike. In the playoffs, there were a total of 6,183 no-shows, an average of 773 per game, compared with an average of 8,169 in post-strike games.

Jets 44, Bengals 17

"When you've got a cannon, you're supposed to shoot it," New York Coach Walt Michaels said. "Today, he (McNeil) was our cannon."

McNeil, who also rushed and passed for two touchdowns, gave the Jets their first playoff victory since Joe Namath led New York to victory in Super Bowl III.

"I was blessed," McNeil said of his performance. "I was in the right time place at the right time."

New York, now 7-3, also got a playoff-record interception return from Darrol Ray. He sparked a three-touchdown outburst in the last period by picking off a Ken Anderson pass and streaking 98 yards for the touchdown. The Jets also got three field goals from Pat Leahy.

"We turned the ball over too many times, but I think the final blow was the interception that went for a touchdown," said Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg, whose club finished 7-3.

The Jets' Richard Todd completed 20 of 28 passes for 269 yards, which included eight receptions by Wesley Walker for a career-high 145 yards.

Anderson, who had two first-quarter touchdown passes to stake the Bengals to a 14-3 lead, finished with 26 completions in 35 attempts for 354 yards.

DIVING FOR THE END ZONE—Los Angeles Raider running back Marcus Allen, right, slips away from Cleveland Brown Dick Ambrose to score one of two touchdowns in Saturday's NFL playoff game in Los Angeles. The Raiders eliminated the Browns with a 27-10 victory.

Morgan takes Tucson playoff

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Gil Morgan had one small complaint about his playoff victory in the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open.

"It's nice," the non-practicing optometrist said after a spectacular birdie on the second extra hole had subdued Lanny Wadkins and Curtis Strange and provided Morgan with a $54,000 prize in the 10-month Professional Golfers Association tour.

"I just wish I hadn't had to wait so long," Morgan said after his triumph Sunday in the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open, his first victory since the summer of 1979.

"This one was long overdue.

"I'd had numerous opportunities in the last 3½ years. But something always happened. I was in position a number of times. But something always happened. Either I didn't play very well or somebody else played better.

"In the end, I guess I just didn't play well enough."

And, he said, for a time he thought he wasn't playing quite well enough in this one.

"I got to nine under (with an 18-foot birdie putt on the 12th hole) and was one behind. I had several chances after that, but I just couldn't make a putt. I thought I had to get to 10 under to have a chance at the playoff.

"But Cal (Peete, leading at the time) dropped a couple of shots on the back (with bogeys on the 14th and 15th), and all of a sudden nine under was good enough."

Morgan shot 67 over the last 18 holes of regulation. His 271 total was matched by Wadkins, who had a 68 despite some very uncertain putting, and Strange, who came from well off the pace with a 65 that included 31 and four consecutive birdies on the back nine.

The first playoff hole was parred by all three. Morgan, however, had to one-putt from four feet to save and Wadkins, a three-time winner last season and usually one of the game's most aggressive players, left an 8-foot winning putt short of the hole.

"I thought Lanny had it won right there," Morgan said. When he missed, however, they went to No. 2.

Morgan drove into the rough, but hit a 7 iron some 22 feet from the cup. Wadkins and Strange got theirs about 20 feet out.

"I played about two feet of break in the putt and, at the last minute, it just slung into the hole," Morgan said. Wadkins ran his putt over the hole and Strange, who has collected more than $465,000 in the last two years without scoring a victory, lipped out.

The victory was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000. It was Morgan's fifth career title and his first since the 1979 Memphis Classic.

"After going so long without winning, it becomes a psychological detriment, a psychological aspect," Morgan said. "You begin to wonder, 'When will I win again? Can I win again?'"

"I think it affected me some.

"But now I feel like this could be a very good year for me. There are a lot of tournaments left, a lot of chances for me to win again."

Peete, winner of four American titles and two in Japan last season, had a 2-shot lead at the turn on the final round, but suffered a rare lapse. He couldn't recover from his back-nine bogeys and finished with a 71, one over par.

He was tied at 272, a single stroke out of the playoff, with Andy Bean, Fred Couples and Fuzzy Zoeller. Bean and Couples closed up with 66s and Zoeller shot 68 in the warm, sunny weather.

Scott Hoch was next at 71-273. Johnny Miller, one stroke back after three rounds, took a 72 and was tied at 274 with Payne Stewart and Keith Ferguson.

Sampson loses his cool

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Coach Terry Holland admits he considered taking Virginia's fourth-ranked Cavaliers off the basketball court at Maryland, but not for the reason Terry Coach Lefty Driesell contends.

"What I told the officials was to clean it (the game) up or I would be willing to take my team off the floor," Holland said Sunday through a school spokesman in the aftermath of the Cavaliers' 83-64 Atlantic Coast Conference victory Saturday night at College Park, Md.

Holland's comment was in reply to an accusation by Driesell that the Virginia coach threatened to forfeit the game if 7-foot-4 All-American Ralph Sampson were ejected.

It was Driesell's contention the officials charged Sampson with three technicals, which call for his removal.

"First they said he was out of the game, then they changed their minds. They're gutless," Driesell said Sunday.

"To my knowledge there were not three technicals on Ralph last night," Holland said Sunday in his statement. He said he told the officials he did not want the game "to continue as it was, but my remarks had nothing to do with Ralph's technicals."

"Terry Holland said he'd take his team off the court and go home, and forfeit the game," Driesell told his radio listeners. "Then they (officials) said let him (Sampson) stay in the game."

The outburst by Sampson came with 16:37 left in the game and Virginia leading 51-40.

When two fouls were called almost simultaneously, one on Sampson for throwing an elbow, Sampson charged official Joe Forte and yelled vociferously.

BASKETBALL

● The Big Spring High Lady Steers, currently locked in a first place tie with Midland in the District 4-AAAAA standings, battle winless Odessa High tonight in a league game in Odessa.

BHS stands an even 8-8 on the season but has won three straight district games after an opening defeat at Permian. Odessa is 0-4 and 4-15 for the year.

Leading the Lady Steer scoring attack still is senior forward Shell Rutledge with 15 points a game for the season and 15.8 in league play. Junior Paula Spears is scoring 9.8 points a game while senior Sylvia Randle adds 8.4 and junior Monette Wise 8.3.

Big Spring updated Midland 45-37 Thursday to force the tie. San Angelo — a team already beaten by BSHS — and Lee are 2-2 in 4-5A play.

Texas Legislature will sport many new faces this session

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — New senators in the 1983 Legislature include the first black in 10 years and a former FBI agent who helped track the assassin of Martin Luther King Jr. Among first-term House members is an author who may write a book about his experiences.

Nearly one-fourth of the lawmakers will be answering their first legislative roll call when the session convenes Jan. 11. The Senate, as usual, is far and away more experienced than the House.

The edge in experience carries over to the leaders. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, with 10 years on the job as presiding officer of the Senate, will set a record for longevity with his new four-year term.

The apparent House speaker, Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, has been a legislator since 1971 but will be serving as speaker for the first time.

The new-face count in the 150-member House comes to 40. Four more representatives are returning after missing the 1981 session: Tip Hall of Ponder, a dairy farmer and preacher; insurance man Mike Millsap of Fort Worth; and lawyers Roy English of Arlington and W.O. "Bill" Harrison of Corpus Christi.

House members are elected for two-year terms.

Retirement, death and political defeats took away 10 senators and erased a combined total of 74 years of Senate experience. Only four of the new senators, however, have to learn the ropes from scratch. The other six won promotions from the House.

This session, as they must after redistricting every 10 years, senators will draw slips of paper, numbered one through 31, from a box. The 16 senators drawing odd-numbers get four-year terms, the others two. Among the more notable new senators are House committee chairmen Craig Washington, a self-styled liberal-radical Democrat who grew up in a Houston ghetto, and Republican Bob McFarland of Arlington, an ex-FBI agent described by Washington as a "conservative with a heart."

Washington, 41, is the first black senator since Barbara Jordan, later a member of Congress, served there in 1966-72.

Some feel he is Texas' most effective legislator — with ambitions to become the first black elected to statewide office in Texas — as well as a fine lawyer. He helped with Speaker Bill Clayton's successful defense in the Brilab case, and also won an acquittal for prison inmate Eroy Brown, who was accused of killing a warder.

"Craig's a hero," said Houston controller Lance Lator, a former House member. "He's got all the style.

He's made it, and everyone knows he's made it."

McFarland, also 41 and a lawyer, has been ranked by Texas Monthly and Texas Business magazines as among the top 10 legislators, and the Texas Municipal League and the Black Legislative Caucus named him the state's outstanding lawmaker.

"He's very complex, and one of the most intelligent people I've ever met," said Washington.

"While everybody else is wondering what's going on, he's got all the answers," said Lewis.

Although McFarland is thought by many to be the ideal GOP candidate, he says he has no desire to run for statewide office and definitely does not want to go to Congress. "I really don't plan to make a career out of politics," he says. "I don't think you'll find Bob McFarland white-haired at the helm of a political office."

Small town debates DDT settlement

TRIANA, Ala. (AP) — The sign at Flamingo Park, a small picnic area on Indian Creek, reads: "Notice — Fish in these waters are heavily contaminated with DDT. Eat them at your own risk."

It was put up about five years ago, long after residents of Triana, most of them black and most of them poor, had seen the fish from the creek a major part of their diet.

"The fish was free," explained Joe Louis Fletcher, the town's 46-year-old police and fire chief.

On Dec. 24, the Olin Corp., which made the toxic pesticide from 1954 to 1970 at nearby Redstone Arsenal, agreed to a $24 million settlement of suits filed by Triana residents and commercial fishermen.

Of that amount, $5 million would go to a 10-year community health and medical care program. The rest would go to the 1,100 residents of this north Alabama village and to the 39 members of a commercial fishermen's association who lost their jobs when the DDT was found in Indian Creek in 1977.

Olin officials say the pesticide does not threaten the lives of the townsfolk. They say they're willing to settle mainly to end what could be protracted, costly litigation, with an uncertain jury verdict.

But the fishermen are not satisfied with the proposal, saying they want more, and a federal judge is now reviewing legal questions about the settlement.

Fletcher said he would not quarrel with the dollar amount offered, but added, "It doesn't change my feelings about Olin. All the money in the world don't change my feelings."

If, he said, "white people had lived here instead of black people, they wouldn't have put it in. They put it here at a time we couldn't get a lawyer, so they didn't see any harm. Now, fortunately, we can get a lawyer."

Those lawyers have reviewed mountains of documents in the case including the first findings by the Army and the Environmental Protection Agency that DDT residue seeped into Indian Creek and tests by the Center for Disease Control showing high levels of DDT in the blood streams of the Triana residents.

The effect of DDT in human remains in dispute. The mayor of Triana, Clyde Foster, says he likes the settlement because it will, in part, fund more research on the risks of DDT to humans.

Charles Dana, a spokesman for Olin in Stamford, Conn., says the company "remains convinced that there is nothing in the scientific or medical literature concerning human exposure to indicate that DDT in the amounts reported ... presents them with any greater risk of injury or illness."

Townpeople have mixed feelings about DDT and about the settlement.

"I sure has caught a heap of them fish out of that creek. Ate a lot of them, too," said Dave Rice, a 84-year-old farmer.

"Morale is low," Fletcher said. "Nobody claims they know what DDT will do to you. The doctors don't know. We have a high percentage of hypertension. We don't know from where. It may be from DDT."
