Council violates open meeting act

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

There were at least three sections of the Texas Open Meetings Law violated by the Big Spring city council when it met Tuesday night.

The first violation was an omission on the council's agenda which failed to list all the subjects to be discussed in a 90-minute closed executive meeting held immediately after the regular session. The agenda said the executive session was to be held "in accordance with section 2, subsections (e) and (f) of the Texas Open Meeting Law to discuss land acquisition."

Those subsections deal with litigation and purchase of real property, subjects that can be discussed during a closed meeting.

Council members say they did discuss a lawsuit filed by the League of United Latin American Citizens and starting condemnation proceedings to obtain land easements.

But they also said they discussed hiring a management consultant to coordinate a two-day testing program for the police department. And they said that City Manager Don Davis additionally passed out water usage figures that they had requested.

According to the Open Meetings Act, neither of the last two topics should have been discussed or dealt with during a closed executive meeting.

Councilmen said they believed that discussion of hiring a consultant was proper because the act allows governmental bodies to discuss hiring personnel during a closed meeting.

However, discussion of hiring a management consultant violates the act, an attorney general has ruled in the past. In Opinion No. MW-129 (1980), the state Attorney General held that an independent contractor is neither an officer nor an employee and thus does not fall within the specific requirements of section 2(g) of the Act. Accordingly, that selection may not be discussed in closed session.

Most councilmen said they didn't know or didn't believe that they had violated the act.

"I think you're straining at gnats and swallowing camels," Councilman Russ McEwen said. "I'd be tickled to death to discuss with everybody in town exactly what we discussed during the executive session.

"You could make a mountain out of a molehill," he said. "We may not be following the letter of the law. But we're following the intent of the law."

"I think everything was legal," Councilman Larry Miller said. "You were told after the meeting what was discussed."

"I have no idea (why the management tests were discussed in executive session)," he said. "As far as I'm concerned anything we discussed could have been discussed in a public meeting."

"Maybe we were (violating the Act)," Mayor Clyde Angel said. "I don't know. We were discussing hiring of someone. It was simply my feeling that we could discuss hiring personnel during an executive session."

However, Councilman Jack Y. Smith said the council should examine the law to see if it has been broken. "If the law has been broken, then we'd better get on the ball and find out and do it right," Smith said. "We need to find out what the technicalities are and what we can and cannot do in executive sessions."

Council members also said they didn't see any problem with the city manager handing out figures of public record during a closed session. They said those figures were not discussed during the executive session.

When the Herald asked for a copy of the water usage data given the council, Davis refused, saying they "are not a matter of public record."

"It was just more convenient to hand them out there rather than putting them in their mailboxes," he said.

When asked why they were not included in the agenda packet, Davis said "They're just some figures the council had requested. They are not a matter of public record."

By law, those figures are subject to public scrutiny because they deal with water usage in connection with a new sewer rate ordinance passed last November. Smith said he requested those figures so that he and Action/reaction: No insurance?

Q. What is the penalty for not having liability insurance when stopped by police?

A. According to Big Spring Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt, the fine is $75 — state law — plus $6 court costs. People will be charged, regardless, if they are not carrying proof of insurance like the state law mandates, he said. However, Daratt said if a person can prove they have insurance after they are cited, the case is usually dropped.

Calendar: Lunch and learn

Drivers indulge in gas station happy hour

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

It's not unusual for business people to take a few minutes off during their workday to visit the "happy hour" at a local bar, a time when liquor refreshment is usually much cheaper.

But a gas station?

Dangle a carrot like 99.9-cent regular gasoline in front of their noses and people will steer their mechanical steeds to your doorstep every time, according to Margie Molina, manager of the Bell Gas Station at Birdwell and Third streets in Big Spring.

"It keeps me busy," she said. "...$8.50, $9, $10, thank you. The time sure goes by fast. Today's our last day."

The service station started selling gasoline at prices of 99.9 cents for regular and 103.9 cents for a gallon of unleaded Tuesday. Lines filled the self-service pumping stations for "happy hour" from noon to 2 p.m., stretching out into Birdwell Lane all three days of the special, said Ms. Molina.

"I've had people in here I've never seen before," she said, "and, of course, my regular customers always come."

"I've been here (in line) 15 minutes," said Wanda Simpson as she filled the tank on her Chevette. "That wasn't too bad ... not at these prices. I think it's a very good idea, with inflation the way it is."

She said she was a regular customer at the station. Joe Gamble was there for an obvious reason.

Why?

"Ninety-nine cent gas," he answered as he filled the second tank on his pickup. "I figured I'd better take advantage of it while I could. If I had a barrel I'd fill it up, too."

Regular customer Raymond

Rodriguez was of a like mind.

"If you've got to buy it," he said as he filled the tank on his pickup. "you might as well pay the least you can for it. I'm going home and get my wife's car and fill it up."

Coahoma man dies in car crash on Interstate 20

COAHOMA — A 64-year-old Coahoma man died last night from injuries he received when his car collided with another vehicle east of Big Spring on Interstate 20, according to Department of Public Safety Trooper Dean Richardson.

James David Allison of Coahoma was travelling west at approximately 40 miles per hour at 7 p.m. last night when he ran into a vehicle driven by Hector Javier Villegas of El Paso, Richardson said. Villegas had left a grocery store just before the accident occurred, officials say.

Allison was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by Shaffer Ambulance Service with massive internal injuries, according to John Korell of Shaffer. Allison died at the hospital at approximately 9 p.m., he said.

Services for Allison will be 1 p.m. Saturday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Carl Powers, pastor of First Church of the Nazarene, officiating. Burial will be in Coahoma Cemetery.

He was born March 30, 1918 in Baird. He had lived in Howard County most of his life and was employed at Basin Construction as office manager. He married Naomi Hayes Aug. 11, 1978 at Lake Buchanan. He was a veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his wife; five daughters, Miss Charlotte Allison of Fort Worth, Mrs. Bob (Ruth Ann) Jones of Hobbs, N.M., Mrs. Bill (Becky) Faulks and Debra Riegel, both of Big Spring, and Mrs. Homer (Peggy) Yocum of Ackerly; two sons, Bob Hayes of Odessa and Tommy Hayes of Lubbock; one sister, Mrs. J.C. Robinson of Big Spring; two brothers, John C. Allison of Midland and W.J. Allison of San Diego, Calif.; two grandsons, three great-grandsons and one great-granddaughter.

Pallbearers will be Gene Martin, Homer Yocum, Tommy Hayes, Bob Hayes, Robbie Jones and Randy Jones.

Christmas baby dies

Infant succumbs after 3-week fight for life

TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — A man whose prematurely born grandson died after clinging to life for three weeks says he is bitter seven Houston-area hospitals would not admit the child — and convinced the parents' lack of money was the reason.

Christopher William Lemley, born Christmas Day, died early Thursday at Scott & White Hospital here — 20 days after the institutions near his birthplace turned him away.

"It was just extremely difficult to believe any individual could turn away a small infant on the verge of death and fighting for his life," said the infants' grandfather, Ron Bradhurst of Crosby.

Christopher was flown 170 miles here when the Houston-area institutions told his parents they were overcrowded.

"We are still somewhat bitter," Bradhurst said Thursday, "especially since we found there were at least five units in the Houston area that could have treated Christopher."

"His parents just didn't have enough money or insurance," the grandfather said.

The Texas House of Representatives, meeting in Austin, adjourned Thursday until 1:30 p.m. Monday in memory of the little baby that died in Scott & White. Funeral services were set for today in Temple.

The child died of "progressive respiratory failure" at 2:45 a.m. Thursday, said Dr. David R. Krauss, director of neonatology at Scott & White.

Christopher was critically ill when he arrived and never really improved, said Donald Nelson, director of public affairs at the Central Texas hospital. The infant had a major stroke Dec. 27 and was troubled by low blood pressure.

Gulf Coast Hospital at Baytown, where Christopher was born, did not have the specialized facilities needed for his care, doctors said. The infant weighed 1 pound, 13 ounces and suffered from hyaline membrane disease, a breathing disorder common in prematurely born babies.

Scott & White agreed to accept Christopher, but doctors said the baby's condition deteriorated during the delay in treatment.

"That still bothers us," Bradhurst said. "There was a six to seven hour delay in treatment."

Christopher's parents, Jana and Robert Lemley of Baytown, did not have medical insurance because Lemley had been laid off from his job. He since has been hired by an auto parts store.

Applicants flunk simple test for sheriff's deputy

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Almost two out of three El Paso sheriff's department applicants flunked a grammar-school level entrance exam that, among other things, tested the aspirants' abilities to spell "felony" and add single-digit numbers, officials say.

Of 340 applicants for 56 openings in the El Paso County sheriff's department, only 128 applicants — or 37 percent — passed, said Sgt. Ralph Mitchell, administrator of the newly designed test.

Those taking the half-hour test must successfully add single-digit numbers, spell words such as "sheriff," and pass a physical and psychological test, said newly appointed Sheriff Mike Davis.

Stenholm to talk at ag conference

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, will speak in Big Spring Wednesday at the 1983 Agricultural Outlook and Market Strategies Conference, according to Howard County Extension Agent Don Richardson.

Richardson said the conference will discuss prospects for economic recovery and the 1983 legislative implications. Agricultural policy decisions and specific marketing programs will be presented also, Richardson said.

Stenholm is expected to speak on the Washington attitude concerning the agricultural trade outlook. Texas A & M University economist Dr. William Black is scheduled to talk on the U.S. economic outlook and its implications for agriculture.

Three concurrent sessions are scheduled dealing with beef, cotton and pecans, Richardson said. An afternoon session will discuss marketing tools to merchandise area products, he said.

the other councilmen could study them before the next council meeting.

"I have some figures that show the rates may be a little off base," Smith said. "The income we are receiving may be a little bit more than what we anticipated. I hope this may lead to a lowering of the sewer charge."

"What's on there are public," he said. "I want to talk about them next time (council meeting)."

McEwen said he felt the council has done nothing wrong and that the public should not be concerned with minor legalities. He said the council is not trying to withhold information from the public.

"I've been on a lot of different boards, but I've never been on a board that was so open with the public as this council is," McEwen said. "I can't get upset and concerned with the situation."

"I believe with all my heart and soul that we are conducting matters to the intent of the law," he said. "I would go into court and fight it and win because we're not doing anything illegal to the intent of the law."

Happy hour

Hoback as he filled his Cadillac, "and the prices have been down like this over there for a long time. I was coming in from Coahoma, and I saw everybody lined up. I thought they must have had a price change. I was going to go back to Odessa before I filled up."

"I don't know if it was worth the wait," said D.C. Barbee, "but it's a pretty good deal. Since they started this, it's been like this every day."

The line doesn't get any shorter. As soon as a car finishes filling up, another pulls into line.

"It turned out real good," said Ms. Molina. "...$10 out of $20 ... here's your change. Thank you. I didn't think it would be this busy. I had one guy come in with a 55-gallon barrel and fill it up the first day."

The "happy hour" could become a regular feature of the station, she said.

"We'll decide sometime next week if we should do it once a month or something," she says. "...$19 out of $20 ... here's your change sir, you have a nice day."

Clements gives farewell speech to Legislature

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has bid formal farewell to members of the predominantly Democratic Legislature, urging them to follow through on the aims of his four-year administration.

Clements made no mention, however, of some Democratic senators' threat to reject all the outgoing Republican governor's recent appointments to state boards and agencies.

The Democrats contend Gov.-elect Mark White, a member of their party, should be allowed to review the appointments.

Clements told the legislators Thursday that "together we waged the kind of joint effort that Texas needs, are entitled to and must have. In every instance over the first four years, we observed only one criterion. That was — what is right for Texas, without regard to vested interests."

"We in Texas are a breed apart," the crusty Dallas multimillionaire said during the farewell address to a joint session of the Senate and House.

Three guns stolen from car

Two shotguns and a Winchester rifle were stolen from a Big Spring man's vehicle while it was parked in the Gibson's parking lot Thursday at 7 p.m., police say.

W.L. Wilson of Gail Route told police the weapons, a briefcase and a $100 felt hat were taken when thieves broke a vent window to gain entry. Wilson estimated his loss at $900.

Thomas W. Parks of 1609 Sycamore told police he was assaulted with a coffee mug and a coke bottle by two men at 6 p.m. Thursday in the 1500 block of Sycamore.

Parks also reported a person he knew broke the windows of his vehicle between midnight and 8 a.m. Thursday. He estimated his loss at $500.

Police say they arrested Suzanne Scholes, 23, of Sand Springs for suspicion of theft.

Linda Thacker of the city animal shelter told police someone released all the animals inside the compound at the city shelter sometime after 5 p.m. Wednesday. Police report no animals were missing.

Charles Smith of 4101 Wasson told police he was swindled out of $500 by a man he did not know in the 2300 block of South Scurry at 1:40 p.m. Thursday.

Vehicles driven by Forrest Craig Foster of Sterling City Route and Lenora Hanson Nix of 108 Canyon were in collision on South Gregg at 7:40 a.m. Thursday. Police report Ms. Nix was injured, but refused treatment. Foster was cited for disregarding a red light, police say.

Vehicles driven by Wanda Louise Ford, 112 E. 15th, and Roger Dean Dyer, 1505 W. 5th, were in collision at 7:55 a.m. Thursday at W. 17th and Gregg. Police say Ms. Ford was cited for improper backing.

'Crop swap' plan receives mixed reviews

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — The American Farm Bureau Federation's adoption of President Reagan's "crop swap" program received mixed reviews from farmers at the close of the conservative organization's convention.

Federation president Robert B. Delano's prediction that the voluntary program could eliminate price-depressing surpluses within two years was not shared by some farmers.

"Even if everyone delved into the program, it is not going to salvage agricultural programs in the long run," said Cecil H. Miller Jr., one of two farmers elected directors Thursday at the close of the AFBF 64th annual meeting.

"It is a short-run solution," he said.

Delano said the program could eliminate the surpluses that have driven down commodity prices, and restore crop supply and demand to equilibrium within two years.

The program, presented by Reagan to delegates Tuesday, also would cut farmers' production costs. U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block said the payment-in-kind proposal would remove about 23 million acres of cropland from production.

"With the information that I have, it seems that with good participation by farmers in the program, it will work," Delano said.

But Miller, a former AFBF vice president from Phoenix, Ariz., said the impact of a "crop swap" is questionable.

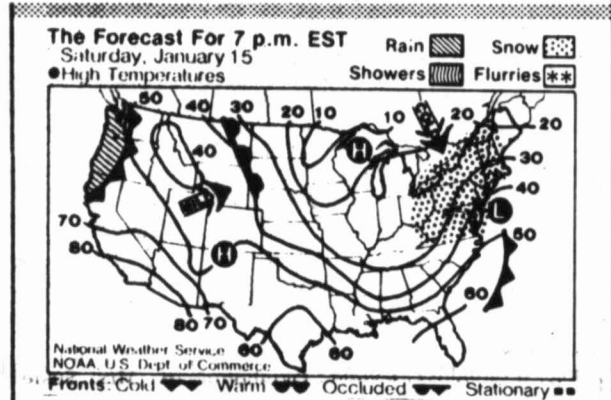

"I can't see where it will help raise the price of agricultural commodities the first year," he said.

Texas Farm Bureau president S.M. True Jr. agreed. "I can't see a whole lot of change in prices for next year," he said. "Surpluses are a determinant of the market."

Miller, 55, said the five-day AFBF meeting has served to "highlight the frustrations of the American farmer more than any one thing we have done."

Delegates backed Wednesday the president's proposal to reduce surpluses of grain and cotton by giving farmers commodity payments in exchange for withdrawal of acreage from production.

Weather

Cooler weather moves into state

By The Associated Press

Clear but cooler weather moved into Texas this morning as a cold front extended from central Oklahoma into Southwest Texas, dropping temperatures into the 30s.

Meanwhile, light fog formed in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area of Southeast Texas.

Early morning temperatures were in the 40s and 50s ahead of the front, and reached into the 60s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Temperatures statewide ranged from 31 at Amarillo to 65 at Brownsville.

Winds were northerly at 10 miles an hour behind the front and southwesterly ahead of the front.

West Texas — Fair Friday through Saturday, except partly cloudy extreme south and west tonight and Saturday. Cooler today and tonight. Little change in temperatures Saturday. Highs today mid 50s north to near 70 in the Concho valley and along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend area. Lows tonight, 20s most sections, except 20s south and far west. Highs Saturday 55 to 60 over most of West Texas, except mid 60s extreme south.

EXTENDED FORECAST

West Texas — Mostly fair with a warming trend. Highs Sunday near 50 north to mid 50s south to upper 60s Big Bend valleys warming to low 60s north to upper 60s south to low 70s Big Bend Tuesday. Lows Sunday mid 20s north to mid 30s south warming to low 30s north to upper 30s south Tuesday.

Is illegally gathered evidence admissible?

Reagan administration says 'Yes'

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A policeman's error in collecting evidence, even when it technically violates the Constitution, is insufficient reason to dismiss a case, the Reagan administration has told the Supreme Court.

The administration, trying to kill the so-called exclusionary rule that bans illegally gathered evidence, told the court Thursday the provision contributes to the nation's crime problem.

Solicitor General Rex E. Lee said in a written brief that after 69 years of applying the rule, "The time has come for recognition by this court that, at least in the case of reasonable good faith violations of the Fourth Amendment, the exclusionary rule is entirely unjustified."

The rule is based on the Fourth Amendment, which prohibits illegal search and seizure. Enacted by the Supreme Court for federal trials in 1914, the rule bars illegally gathered evidence from criminal trials.

The court broadened the ruling in 1961 to cover state and local trials.

John Shattuck, representing the American Civil Liberties Union, told the court the Reagan proposal is "a devastating mistake."

Shattuck argued that judges would have no way to determine whether policemen were acting in good faith. He said they would simply have to accept the government's assurance that they were.

"This would send a signal to local police that it's not necessary to get a warrant in all cases and place a terrible burden on them in judging when to get a warrant," Shattuck said.

Modifying the rule is a major objective of the Reagan administration's anti-crime program. Legislation it proposed to provide a good faith exception to the rule has stalled in Congress.

The Supreme Court re-opened the dispute last Nov. 29 when it asked for new arguments in an Illinois case specifically on the question of whether a good faith exemption should be created.

The case involves Lance and Susan Gates, suspects who have yet to stand trial in a Bloomingdale, Ill., drug investigation.

Police received an anonymous letter in 1978 alleging that the couple was shipping illegal drugs from Florida and had $100,000 worth of drugs in their basement. Acting on that tip, police officers followed the couple as they drove back from Florida and found 350 pounds of marijuana in the trunk of their car.

The police had a court warrant to search for drugs, but the Illinois Supreme Court ruled that the anonymous informant's information was too vague to support a legitimate warrant.

Because the warrant was tainted, the seized evidence could not be used against the couple, the Illinois court said.

Walesa refused shipyard job

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Authorities turned Lech Walesa away from the Lenin shipyard today when he asked to be given back his electrician's job at the Baltic port factory where his now-banned Solidarity labor union was born.

"There have been some new developments and I must think it over. I was not reinstated at the shipyard," Walesa told reporters as he left the yard office, appearing to be in good spirits.

Walesa arrived just before 11 a.m. (4 a.m. CST) and said he spoke by telephone with a management representative after a 55 minute wait.

Number 2 shuttle another giant step

Columbia's several flights, the last of them with a commercial payload, opened the age of the space shuttle. Another important milestone in the utilization of this new space tool will come when the second shuttle, Challenger, is sent aloft in its turn.

That may happen on January 28; this is a tentative date set for the initial Challenger launching from Kennedy Space Center. Whether the ship begins its five-day mission on that day depends on whether a problem with a hydrogen leak can be corrected in time. That leak, not serious but of some concern nevertheless, occurred when rockets were test-fired.

The mission will be significant not only because it is bringing a second shuttle on line, but also for the planned activities. Among other things, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration tracking and data relay satellite will be deployed by shuttle for the first time. Later, two others will also be set in place to comprise a system which will take over most of the tasks now done by ground tracking stations.

Then, too, on this mission the Challenger will carry two scientists — Dr. F. Story Musgrave and Donald H. Peterson — who will test new extravehicular space suits in the airless cargo bay. Such a test was aborted on the recent Columbia mission because the suits were not functioning properly. Satellite deployment, a successful EVA operation, and completion of other assigned tasks — this would make the Challenger mission a marked advance in using the shuttle in its intended role as a space workhorse.

Steve Chapman

The Capitol's sins of commission

Another committee to study how to deploy the MX missile, you say? Well, it's about time. By my count, the poor projectile's ultimate residence has gone unstudied now for more than four months. That is a new experience for the MX, whose deployment already has been hashed over some 30 different times. But the missile still has no home, and until it does, it has to be studied.

This is also a boost to one of Washington's recession-proof industries, namely panel-sitting. Without such employment, Milton Eisenhower and Bess Myerson would have to stay home nipping at the bottle or staring at soap operas. Thankfully, anyone blessed with the plodding mind, talent for platitudes, and king-sized bladder required to make it through those long commission meetings can count on a job whenever a president or a Congress needs an excuse to do nothing about a ticklish problem, which is often.

In fact, there's a simple way to measure your child's aptitude for politics: Ask the little darling why his or her room hasn't been cleaned. If the answer goes, "As you know, I've appointed a special blue-ribbon committee to study that very problem, and I will naturally withhold my own judgment until such time as... well, start organizing a campaign staff."

Skeptics may argue that the last thing the MX needs is more study, having been studied to within an inch of its life. But when our leaders can't agree on how to handle a problem, they can't just throw up their hands and admit they can't solve it. They have to give the impression that they are acting resolutely, and appointing a commission is often mistaken for action. At worst, it's perceived as better than nothing.

In fact it's probably worse. If nothing is being done, people will notice, and will clamor for something to be done. If a commission is studying the problem, nothing is still being done, but everyone will act as if something is being done. Only when the group makes its report will there be pressure to act, and it can always be relieved by doing what President Reagan has done — appoint another committee to study the issue all over again.

CONNOISSEURS of blue-ribbon panels (why never a red-ribbon panel?) know there are two basic types. The first is appointed when there is a problem that everyone knows is serious but no one knows what to do about. The second is named when there is a problem that has a simple solution that is politically impossible to enact.

The MX commission, of course, falls into the first category. All disciples of the prevailing wisdom acknowledge that our land-based ICBMs are vulnerable to a Soviet first strike, but they can't agree on what to do about it. Make the new missile mobile and shuttle it from shelter to shelter? Put it in a dense-pack configuration? Put it on airplanes?

Two presidents and four Congresses have wrestled with the issue and lost. Each time they laterated it to a committee of experts, which made proposals that were then rejected. The MX panel differs from the commission now studying Social Security, which falls into the second category. Everyone knows that Social Security benefits will have to be reduced one way or another over time. But the typical officeholder would sooner confess to pederasty than invite the enmity of 36 million beneficiaries.

Faced with the unappetizing prospect of having to reduce those benefits, Congress and the President named a commission. This was intended to accomplish two things. First, it would give them an excuse to do nothing about the trust fund's insolvency until after the November election. Second, it would furnish some protection against the political fallout when they finally did cut benefits — since they would be doing only what the foremost experts had concluded had to be done.

UNFORTUNATELY the experts declined the invitation to walk the plank. Instead, they have behaved in a most un-blue-ribbon way, degenerating into partisan bickering and failing to reach a consensus. For that we didn't need a special commission.

So that leaves Social Security in the same condition as the MX — unsolved. Even the most reverent admirers of our presidential commission, special advisory boards and White House conferences, seeing these two failures, may now wonder if those panels are really any help in solving the nation's problems. How about a special commission to look into that?

Billy Graham

Please give tips about kids

Dear Dr. Graham: I'd like to know what guidelines you would give for raising children. We are about to have our first child, and I think about it a lot when I see some of the problems other families seem to have. — Mrs. S.I.

Dear Mrs. S.I.: I have honestly hesitated to answer your question in this brief column because there is so much that could be said about this complex topic! I am sure you will spend years to come trying to find out more about being a parent — particularly because each child is different, and what works for one is not necessarily useful for another. But I am thankful you are concerned about this — God has given parents a great responsibility, and it demands your best with God's help.

But let me suggest three general guidelines that may help you to get started in your thinking. First, surround your child with love. I know that sounds simple, but it is easy to forget sometimes. For example, some parents in their zeal to have their child behave better will constantly criticize their child. Yes, there is a place for criticism — but a child who constantly is hammered with criticism grows up feeling he is not loved and also that he is not worth very much. Love your child — and don't be afraid to express that love, even when it is difficult or when he has done something that is wrong. Be quick to praise.

Then have clear guidelines about behavior and discipline. The other day I heard a leading psychiatrist say on national television that we need more discipline today, and I agree. We discipline not out of anger (or at least we shouldn't be) but out of love, knowing that a child needs to learn the difference between right and wrong, and needs to learn he is responsible for his actions. Don't change the rules all the time either, or threaten punishment and then not carry it out. Most of all, make it your priority to help your child spiritually. Pray with him, and pray for him consistently. Let him see that Christ matters in your life, and teach him about Christ in a way he can understand. We do all we can to protect our children from physical harm. In the same way, do all you can to help him spiritually so that some day he will come to his own commitment to Christ.

The main drag

It was the first time he'd been back since he left the little town he grew up in.

And he wasn't sure why he was coming back now. Like most of his friends in high school, he had vowed to leave as soon as he could, never to return.

"It doesn't look much different now," he mused to himself as he turned onto the main drag.

"We used to sit there all night and talk," he thought, passing a parking lot cluttered with cars and pickups of teenagers.

An empty beer can came flying out of a pickup on the parking lot, accompanied by laughter.

"Steve and I sat there, drunk as skunks, trying to pick up girls all one night," he remembered. "Didn't have any luck, even though we waited until the nurses got off the late shift at the hospital. Two of 'em were pretty interested — until Steve threw up."

WITH A TWINGE of sadness, he remembered Steve had been a casualty of the high-speed, high-pressure life of college. Never one to pass up anything, Steve had sampled every drink and drug available to a college freshman. He flunked out after two semesters, moved in with an older woman, grew a goatee, bought a Harley, and vanished.

"The last time I heard from him, he wanted me to come to San Angelo and shoot pictures of his second wedding with 200 motorcycle freaks in attendance. For free, of course. Said one of the cycling magazines would buy them. I can't believe him," he thought.

He recognized the car of James, an old friend, parked in the driveway of a small house.

James had worked for one farmer all his life, getting far less than he deserved for his labors. There was no future in that job, but he never wanted to let go of any sure thing for a possibility.

"I hope he's happy," he thought as he pulled into the drive-in window at the Dairy Queen, the only thing open at 9 p.m. Diane used to work here, he remembered.

AH, DIANE. Blond hair, pretty face, and a figure that caused many a high school basketball player to dribble all over his shoes. That had been a good time — his first love. They had sworn eternal allegiance to each other, but her croppduster father had insisted she quit seeing him.

"The old jerk," he snorted, pulling up to the drive-in window. "He couldn't stand a farm boy — not even one with intentions of being something else, eventually — being with his daughter. Serves him right that she married that jerk lawyer who left her. But I don't blame the lawyer, her father always insisted on running every detail of her life."

The last he'd heard, Diane was living in Missouri, working for a radio station. He didn't miss her. The girl came to the window. Brownhaired, cute, — she had to be a cheerleader — probably driving all the boys wild with her new-found sexuality.

"Hi!" she bubbled around her chewing gum. "Can I help you?" What was that underlying tone? He'd heard it before, but he couldn't believe it here and now. He gave her his order — a medium Dr. Pepper — and watched, amazed and wary, as she flirted with him while mixing his drink.

"I get off at 10," she said, "why don't you stick around?" "No thanks," he said and hesitated. "Uh, I can't stay — I'm just passing through."

She watched, puzzled and irritated, as he squeaked the tires and sped out of town, a tunnel of light in the small-town darkness.

Pentagon has secret 'minutemen' plan

WASHINGTON — There has been much agitated whispering on Capitol Hill about a secret Pentagon plan to establish a rapid deployment force in Jordan. The secrecy of the project has prevented open discussion of an extremely controversial issue.

Basically, the secret plan calls for perhaps two brigades of elite Jordanian troops, who would serve as modern minutemen ready to respond immediately to any crisis in the Persian Gulf area. This "mini-Rapid Deployment Force," as it has already been nicknamed in the Pentagon, would be trained and equipped by the U.S. military.

The details are considered so sensitive politically that only top congressional leaders have been informed of the plan, and they have been sworn to secrecy. The intent is to keep the project hush-hush and to finance it secretly.

The reason for all the secrecy is not to suppress the congressional debate, which is beginning to simmer below the surface. Rather, it is intended to prevent a storm of protest in Jordan. While King Hussein reportedly favors the project, it is doubtful that the Palestinian majority in Jordan would welcome such close, active cooperation with the United States.

Nevertheless, insiders told my associate Lucette Lagnado that the Pentagon is convinced Hussein can be a key U.S. ally in the Middle East. Some of those who are pushing the plan even see Jordan as the pillar of U.S. strategic operations in the Persian Gulf area.

HERE'S WHAT the Jordanian force would be used for:

— Maintaining Jordan's own stability. An elite military unit would guard against both internal threats to Hussein's regime — attempted coups or assassinations — and external threats from such hostile neighbors as Syria.

— Emergencies in friendly Persian Gulf states: This is the main purpose for creating the Jordanian RDF. It could be dispatched quickly to put down insurrections against regimes in Saudi Arabia, Oman, Kuwait, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates.

— Possible use in inter-Arab wars: The Pentagon apparently sees the Jordanian RDF as a potential surrogate force to promote U.S. interests in the area, without the need for American troops.

The use of friendly Arab troops would be infinitely more palatable to Saudi Arabia, which has expressed displeasure over the possibility of calling in American forces, even in a direct emergency.

Needless to say, the Pentagon's secret plan has already raised concern, especially among senators who believe Israel, not Jordan, is better equipped to protect American interests in the Middle East. They fear it will damage our relations with our most dependable ally; the Israelis would understandably be concerned that a crack Jordanian military force could be used against them.

There is also uneasiness on Capitol Hill over the idea of establishing a special relationship with any Middle East potentate. Some senators are still haunted by the disastrous results of such an arrangement with the late shah of Iran.

But the Pentagon can presumably count on strong White House support. Jordan is crucial to President Reagan's Middle East peace plan.

HERE'S MUD IN AIREYE: While cost overruns are distressingly commonplace among the major armed services, even the runt of the military litter, the Coast Guard, has trouble keeping its projects within the budget. Its AIREYE medium-range surveillance system is not only years behind schedule, but has run far over its original $6 million budget.

The AIREYE, in various stages of development since 1972, is a sensor that was to be attached to Coast Guard planes to detect illegal oil discharges at sea and to identify the tankers responsible. Some $10 million has already been spent or obligated, and the target date for a prototype has been changed from 1980 to January 1984. The original anticipated cost of the six AIREYE systems totals $18 million.

Now there is some question whether the surveillance device is even worth having. The technology involved may be 10 years out-of-date. As an internal report of the Coast Guard inspector general observed last November, "The justification for the AIREYE system appears to be questionable at this time." In fact, the IG recommended that any further effort be delayed until a full evaluation is made.

Much of the cost overrun was caused by design modifications — at least 22 since the contract was let in July 1980. One Coast Guard research and development official told my reporter Carolyn Farrar bluntly that the project is "an example of poor management."

MYSTERY JOBS: While it sneers at congressional jobs programs, the White House has been running one of its own — for Republican members of Congress who lost their seats in November. One applicant turned down a job in the Transportation Department, hoping for something better.

Utah fights about what's on the cable

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Fri., Jan. 14, 1983 5-A

By MICHAEL WHITE
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — Jim Bunnell has been called everything from smut merchant to godless, but he still can't understand why some Utah residents are disturbed.

Bunnell, regional marketing director for Tele-Communications Inc., has become a reluctant soldier in a major legal and legislative battle over whether some R-rated films will be banned from the households of cable television subscribers in Utah.

"I have gotten calls in which people have accused me of being everything from a smut peddler to secular humanist," he said. "I just see the whole thing as ridiculous."

But what Bunnell calls ridiculous others view as a serious threat to home and family. More than 60,000 Utah residents have signed a petition forcing the state Legislature to consider an initiative that would ban up to 30 percent of the R-rated films shown on cable systems.

"The Constitution and First Amendment do not guarantee to you the right to receive pornography or indecent material in your home," said Lorraine McKay, president of the Utah Association of Women, which supports the initiative. The proposed law would prohibit cable companies from showing films that portray explicit sexual conduct, erotic nudity or violence with erotic overtones.

John Harmer, author of the initiative and a former California lieutenant governor, said the initiative would extend Federal Communications Commission rules on program content to cable television.

Opponents say that would be unconstitutional because cable movies are not broadcast to the public at large.

Legislators who must consider the initiative within the next 60 days say the cable debate has generated much interest.

In North Ogden, more than 75 families responded to the city council's request for donations to pay the costs of defending the city's restrictive cable ordinance in court. Some families, said Mayor Don Colvin, donated $1,000 to the cause.

Growing support for cable restrictions is a reality," the unsigned editorial said. "The sad thing about it is that these families sign up for it with their eyes wide open, and invite the worldly into their homes."

Cable operators say such a law would effectively prohibit sale of subscriptions to such cable movie channels as Home Box Office and Showtime, which do not edit films before showing them.

While this would not put Utah cable firms out of business, Bunnell said it would seriously curtail revenues. Worse, he said, would be allowing government to control what people watch in their homes.

"Basically, it comes down to making a my children not to go into any other home?" he said.

In 1981, the Legislature approved a bill which later was declared unconstitutional by U.S. District Judge Bruce S. Jenkins. Jenkins said the bill, which would have outlawed films deemed indecent and obscene, was too vague and broad.

A similar bill was introduced during the 1982 Legislature but lawmakers, concerned about losing another court fight, failed to move it out of committee.

The city councils of Roy and North Ogden took a more sophisticated approach, passing ordinances that would apply the same restrictions to cable television the FCC imposes on the program content of network television.

Jenkins struck down the Roy ordinance last month, saying he would rule on a lawsuit challenging the North Ogden law after appeals of the Roy decision are adjudicated.

In his Roy opinion, Jenkins said cable television should not be subject to the same FCC content controls.

Legislative leaders say the issue will spark fierce debate and intense lobbying during the current session which opened Monday.

They are anxious — after Jenkins' earlier rulings — to produce a legally sound bill that could withstand a challenge they believe would likely end up in the U.S. Supreme Court.

"A lot of us feel like it's an issue that would be better dealt within the home, but since the initiative petition has been filed, it's a matter of necessity," said Rep. Stephen Rees, who is considering introducing a less restrictive bill.

'You vote against it, and it's like voting against motherhood and apple pie.'

— A Utah senator, talking about cable restrictions has placed many legislators in an awkward position.

"You vote against it, and it's like voting against motherhood and apple pie," said Senate Majority Leader Kay Cornaby, a Salt Lake Republican.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, whose members make up 70 percent of the state's population, has not commented officially on the initiative. But a recent editorial in the Mormon publication "Church News" urged members to resist the corrupting influences of indecent movies and television programming.

"The invasion of putrefaction into many homes is no longer a threat. It choice of what to watch. Utah is either going to allow the government to tell them what the right choice is or they are going to retain the right to make that choice," he said.

The initiative marks the third attempt in as many years to regulate cable television statewide.

Harmer argues the legislation is necessary to protect children, who could be harmed by "indecent" programming. He said he is not persuaded by the cable operators' argument that parents can control what their children see by putting a lock-box on the television, or simply by not subscribing.

"Why should I as a parent have to order

Paperwork cut, officials write

WASHINGTON (AP) — In five pages of press releases and an 89-page booklet, the Reagan administration proclaimed Thursday that it will exceed its goal for reducing the paperwork burden on the citizens of the United States.

In a three-page statement, accompanied by two pages of lists, the White House press office described administration efforts in the past two years to comply with the Paperwork Reduction Act, passed one year before President Reagan took office.

"Americans will spend over 100 million fewer hours filling out government forms and records by the end of this fiscal year than they did during fiscal year 1982," the announcement said.

This was accomplished through the Information Collection Budget, the announcement said, explaining:

"The Information Collection Budget (ICB), administered by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) under authority of the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-511), is a process of measuring and controlling the costs of federal information collections to individuals, businesses, and state and local governments."

To expand on its message, the White House distributed an 89-page booklet entitled "Information Collection Budget" introduced in a one-and-one-half page letter from OMB director David A. Stockman taking a larger view of ICB's progress beyond the mere fiscal 1982-83 improvement.

Stockman's letter told Reagan his administration has "reduced the annual burden of federal paperwork by 300 million hours since you took office."

Reagan vetoing plan to create 'drug czar'

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Concerned about costs and the prospects of increasing the government's drug enforcement bureaucracy, President Reagan is vetoing a crime bill that would have created a "drug czar."

Administration officials said the president planned to veto the measure today, disregarding the advice of a key Senate Republican and a liberal Democrat.

The drug czar would have been given extensive powers over federal agencies to conduct the government's efforts to stem the abuse of drugs and the smuggling of drugs into the United States.

Reagan was urged to approve the bill by Sen. Strom Thurmond R-S.C., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and by Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., a sponsor of the measure. They visited the White House last week to lobby against a veto.

The congressional watchdog agency, the Government Accounting Office, supported the measure, stating that central management of drug enforcement was necessary.

The drug czar, who would have been appointed by the president, could order Cabinet officials to follow his priorities.

Associate Attorney General

Rudolph Giuliani said the drug czar provision of the crime bill was "naive, simplistic and hopelessly flawed."

Giuliani called the measure irresponsible, saying it would force a reorganization of Reagan's Cabinet system and law enforcement programs without ever having been the subject of a congressional hearing.

"How could you have the attorney general tell the secretary of defense how to use his resources?" Giuliani asked, referring to the authority a drug czar, possibly the attorney general, would have over other officials.

As currently organized, the government's efforts to halt narcotics abuse in the United States involve the Drug Enforcement Administration and the FBI, parts of the Justice Department; the Coast Guard, part of the Transportation Department; the Customs Service and the Internal Revenue Service; parts of the Treasury Department; and the Pentagon's military intelligence agencies, which are authorized to help track smugglers' ships and airplanes.

Giuliani said every federal agency taking part in the anti-drug campaign opposed the naming of a drug czar. He added that in passing the bill, Congress made no reference to the administration's efforts to bring the FBI into the drug campaign, its creation of a Cabinet group focusing on narcotics, and the establishment of nationwide task forces on drugs, involving various federal agencies.

He also said the bill is "possibly unconstitutional" because it contains a provision under which state or local prosecutors would have a veto over whether a career criminal would be tried in local, state or federal courts.

"I doubt the federal government can constitutionally turn over its responsibility to enforce the laws to a non-federal official," Giuliani said.

He pointed out that the Reagan administration has set up councils of federal, state and local law enforcement officials in each of the 94 U.S. attorney's offices. The councils decide whether state, local or federal agencies will pursue a case.

Also in the bill was a provision, introduced by Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., that would order a prison term of 15 years for a third conviction of a crime committed with a gun.

Associate Deputy Attorney General Stanley Morris said there may be 500 such cases annually. He said the average federal correctional institution has 500 beds, so the bill might require the government to build 15 federal correctional institutions.

Convicted man gets new trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A man sentenced to 70 years and one day in prison for murdering his wife's boyfriend has been granted a new trial because jurors were allowed to hear testimony that his relatives and friends had threatened prosecution witnesses.

The 14th Court of Appeals on Thursday ordered a new trial for Sergio Guerrero, 38, who was convicted in August 1971 of murdering Tomas De Los Santos Torres.

Wholesale price rise smallest in 11 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices climbed 3.5 percent last year, the smallest rise in 11 years and less than half the gain of 1981, the government reported today. Gasoline prices fell a record 8.6 percent.

In December alone, the Labor Department said, prices rose a minuscule 0.1 percent — markedly off from November's 0.6 percent and the smallest one-month change since prices fell 0.1 percent in September.

Economists, assessing the year's greatly improved inflation picture, point to the worldwide oil surplus, which has held down gasoline and heating oil prices; bountiful harvests; and the lingering recession, which has driven the unemployment rate to 10.8 percent, the highest since 1940.

Supporting that view, the department's own analysis said today that energy prices actually fell 0.1 percent since December 1981. In comparison, such costs had soared 14.1 percent in the preceding 12 months.

The drop in gasoline prices was the most precipitous since the department began keeping such records in 1947. The previous record fall was 8.1 percent in 1954.

Food prices, the department added, rose a modest 2.1 percent in 1982, up only slightly from the 1.4 percent gain of 1981.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said today's report "indicates we have continued to make substantial progress in attacking the underlying rate of inflation. It is good news for the economy."

In a fresh reflection of the persistent recession, however, the Federal Reserve Board said industrial production last year fell 8.2 percent, the steepest annual decline since the 8.9 percent drop of 1974. The board did note that the 0.1 percent decline posted for December was the least negative monthly industrial production report since July's 0.1 percent gain. Economists also forecast a net gain, due to expected higher auto production, when January's figures are compiled.

The full-year wholesale price gain was sharply under the 7.1 percent registered for all of 1981. Wholesale prices rose 11.8 percent in 1980 and 12.8 percent in 1979.

The 1982 increase was the smallest since the 3.2 percent of 1971.

Wholesale prices actually fell in four months last year, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said. The sharpest monthly climb was a 1 percent jump in June.

For all of last year, the department said, the moderation in energy and food prices actually restrained the overall wholesale price gain for consumer goods, which, if those two areas were omitted, would have risen 5 percent.

The department gave this breakdown of specific changes in the Producer Price Index for finished goods, as the wholesale price calculation is formally known:

- Energy costs: The record drop in gasoline prices was helped by a 0.3 percent drop in December. Natural gas prices, which had soared following congressional price decontrol in 1978, surged 20.7 percent in 1982, although dipping 0.8 percent last month. Home heating oil costs were unchanged for the year despite a 0.4 percent drop in December.

- Food prices: The moderate 2.1 percent yearly gain was helped by a tiny 0.1 percent jump in December. Prices for fresh fruits tumbled 11.9 percent last year and were down 4 percent for the month of December. Vegetable prices tumbled 12 percent for the year, compared with a sharp 12 percent gain in December. Beef and veal prices fell 2.9 percent last year, including a 0.7 percent drop in December. Pork prices, however, skyrocketed 19.7 percent in 1982, although rising 1.1 percent in December. Poultry prices rose a modest 2.2 percent for the year, even though tumbling 2.7 percent last month.

- Automobile prices rose a moderate 1.9 percent last year, compared with a 1 percent increase in December. Light truck prices were up 1.8 percent for 1982 and 0.5 percent in December.

All the increases are adjusted for seasonal variations.

In all, the unadjusted Producer Price Index for finished goods stood at 285.1 in December, meaning that goods costing $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $28.51 last month.

Dr. Donohue Elimination problems

Dear Dr. Donohue: I wrote you before and got kinda sassy with you. I said, "Don't just send me pamphlets, as I have a dresser drawer full of them." Well, I wasn't at my best that day, I guess. And I am sorry. When a person has a colostomy and chronic diarrhea, you just don't get up every morning singing "vesti La Giubba." I have survived two bouts of cancer. I have a colostomy. I feel pretty lucky just to be here, but this diarrhea really gets me down. I would appreciate any advice you can give me. — M.R.

It wasn't the tone of your letter that kept me from answering. I like a little sassiness every now and then. But there are too many unanswered questions for me to be of any real help to you. Perhaps you'll be able to pick up some hints from a general discussion.

First, I'd have to know how much of your intestinal tract was removed. If it involved the last part of the small intestine (the ileum) along with your colon (large bowel), then your problem might involve irritation from bile acids. That can lead to diarrhea, and it can be helped with cholestyramine, a drug to neutralize the acid.

Second, I'd want to know the number of eliminations you are having and be sure they are more than an amount expected with your colostomy. You might want to compare notes on this with members of one of the ostomy clubs near you.

Third, your problem may not stem directly from your colostomy. You tell me you have to avoid dairy products, and that suggests a deficiency of the enzyme lactase, which digests milk sugar. But you can be getting milk sugar from unsuspected sources. Do you use one of the commercial lactase products, which are added to milk to assist digestion? Do you see what I mean about having insufficient information?

Now finally, a little explanation of what happens when we eat will help you understand why loose stools are expected at times in those without a natural colon. We get about two quarts of liquid each day from food and fluids we take in, and there's another quart produced from secretions from the digestive tract. Most of that fluid is normally absorbed in the colon. So you can see why stools will tend to be more liquid for people with colostomies. You have a wonderful spirit. I did not mind your moderately cranky note earlier.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please include in your column a paragraph regarding air conditioning and its contribution, if any, to the discomfort of people suffering arthritis. Can an air-conditioner or air fan cause a person to become ill with pneumonia? A relative visiting me when the temperature was 90 degrees F and with high humidity claimed she'd get pneumonia if we ran our air-conditioner. Others have sided with her. I don't believe this is true. — P.S.

I side with you. I never heard of air conditioning or fans causing pneumonia. Germs cause it. Of course, with arthritis, it is always best to have the environment that makes one the most comfortable, but I really can't see such appliances contributing greatly to that either. This is one relative who should be invited to visit in winter months. Does she go outdoors in winter?

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please send me any information regarding ataxia. Also, what type of doctor can test to determine if you have this disease? — M.H.

Ataxia is not an illness. It's the symptom of many possible illnesses. It refers to an unsteadiness when the person stands or walks.

Often, such problems originate in the cerebellum, the part of the brain that governs our coordination, permitting us to swing our arms and throw out our legs in perfect rhythm. Your family doctor can certainly find out if you have the symptom, ataxia. And he can refer you to a neurologist if he has difficulty in pinpointing any of the illnesses that can cause ataxia — things like infections of the nervous system, some of the hereditary causes, or brain tumor, etc. It is seen in some illnesses like multiple sclerosis.

I do not want to frighten you with ghosts of illnesses you probably do not have. You may be confusing a bit of dizziness with the word ataxia. And there are many not-so-serious causes of dizziness. But you must find out just what your symptoms, whatever they may be, are all about. Will you do that?

For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

LOOKING AHEAD — Lightweight sweaters are popular for spring, particularly those with collars. This linen blend sweater features a sheer layered collar, plus openwork stitchery.

Millers honored at baby shower

Mrs. Danny (Tina) Miller and daughter Kristen Danielle were honored with a baby shower in the partyroom of Quail Run Apartments Dec. 11.

Hosting the event were Linda Adams, Carol Hart and Tina Steffen.

The infant's father was special guest.

Guests were served ice cream cake decorated with a stork.

Kristen was born Nov. 12 at Malone-Hogan Hospital. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Walker, 1900 Runnels, and Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of Haskell.

Grads give TV series high marks

NEW YORK (AP) — The songs are ended but the melodies linger on for the "lumni" of "Sesame Street," the long-running educational television series for children.

A new study of youngsters on the impact of the show they watched as preschoolers indicated that it helped 85 percent prepare for school.

In the survey conducted among fifth- and sixth-graders by the Center for Research in Children's Television at Harvard University, some 88 percent also felt that the series had taught them good ways to relate to other people, "to share, to be nice and to cooperate."

The researchers reported that Sesame Street, which has started its 14th season, retains a special place in the childhood memories of the 9-to-12-year-olds queried. Every one of the respondents remembered watching the show as a preschooler, with 89 percent stating they had viewed it every day. Ninety-two percent still could describe parts of programs.

The Muppet characters were most memorable to the youngsters, with Big Bird, Ernie and Bert subjects of the highest recall.

Dear Abby

Man keeps fiancée 'in the closet'

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé is divorced and has two children who live with his "ex." We've been engaged for a year and have been living together for over six months. In the last year I've seen his children only once. His ex-wife does not want them near me, so I am not allowed to see them. My fiancé does nothing to correct this. He doesn't realize how hard it is for me to handle being treated like I'm invisible.

He doesn't let me answer the phone, and he won't let me put my name on the mailbox. When I complain about the situation, he either doesn't want to discuss it or he changes the subject.

I don't think his ex-wife and children know that I still exist. I would like them to know that I am still a part of his life, love him very much and do everything in my power to make him happy.

Why does he keep me hidden? Is he sick, or am I just a fool?

FOOL IN THE CLOSET

DEAR FOOL: He is not sick, he's slick. He has all the benefits of marriage and none of the responsibilities. You're a housekeeper, bed partner and obedient servant who lives in the closet because you "fiance" wants it that way. Demand to be acknowledged, recognized and treated like a fiance. If he refuses and you continue to live in the closet, you are indeed a fool.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my son, Tony, got a speeding ticket while giving me a ride to a bingo game. He is angry about the ticket because he didn't want to do this in the first place. He says that's the reason he was speeding and, therefore, the reason he got the ticket. He insists that I go to court and say that he wasn't really speeding.

Abby, I don't want to be a liar, but with neither of us working, we just don't have the money to pay for a ticket. Also, I'm afraid of losing my son's friendship if I don't.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Don't lie for your son. What you lose in "friendship," you will gain in respect.

You need to get your priorities in order, Mother. Since you are unemployed, bingo is an extravagance you can ill afford. Think about it.

DEAR ABBY: Thirteen years ago, I underwent psychotherapy regularly for two years. Today I would like to have access to (and review) my files, but I do not wish to return to the same psychotherapist. Whose files are they? Mine, or his?

What is the proper way to handle this?

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: Although you are entitled to know what is in your records, your psychotherapist has the right to withhold them from you if he believes that reading them might injure you psychologically.

However, he is ethically obligated to send your records (or a detailed summary of what they contain) to another qualified psychotherapist of your choice if you request it in writing.

DEAR ABBY: Is an annulment the same as a Catholic divorce to a Catholic?

GINA

DEAR GINA: No. An annulment does not dissolve an existing marriage according to civil law. It is granted by the Catholic Church. Tribunal when it can be shown that some essential element made the marriage invalid from the beginning. (Example: Incompatibility.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. IN FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.: It's unwise to confide too much in a friend. Your friend has a friend, and your friend's friend has a friend.

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dermatologist's advice for skin care

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Too much soap and too much makeup, at Jefferson Medical College, Thomas Jefferson University.

Washing twice a day with mild soap is sufficient for the skin, says Dr. Herbert A. Luscombe, chairman and professor of dermatology because the skin tends to get drier.

Younger people should not use creams for cleansing and should avoid using cosmetics with the purpose of making the skin healthy, he cautions. "The skin will stay in good condition if we allow it to do so with minimal, normal care."

Hawks fail to dance at the chance

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

MIDLAND — The stage was set for a repeat of Saturday night's stellar performance. The only difference Thursday night was the script had been altered and it was the Midland Chaparrals who stole the spotlight.

Shifty guard Spud Webb scored five points down the stretch and Howard College misfired on the chances offered by Midland in the final four minutes of play, allowing the Chaps to clip the Hawks 87-79 in a Western Junior College Athletic Conference game.

The victory boosts MC to 5-1 in the WJAC race and snaps a rare two-game losing streak for the No. 3 nationally-rated Chaps. No. 10 Howard had its six-game win streak broken and falls to 1-2 in the conference wars.

"We didn't take advantage of our opportunities," said a solemn head coach Harold Wilder. "We didn't make the plays we needed to win. It wasn't because of a lack of effort...we played hard. But in a game like this, those missed opportunities come back to haunt you."

Haunt is the correct verb. In fact, the number of blown chances by the Hawks is down-right spooky.

Trailing by 12 points at the midway mark of the second half, the Hawks perched for the kill as they had done just five nights before (in a 102-96 victory over the Chaps in Big Spring). Three-point plays by Leon Issac — who finished with 22 points — and Reggie Childrees brought Howard to within five points.

Chances to do further damage to the Chap lead began with four minutes to play. Danny Grayson — Saturday night's hero — missed the front of a one-and-one. So did Nate Givens. With 1:05 remaining, James Barnett ironed both tries of a two-shot foul. There were also two missed shots and two turnovers.

The result? Midland — trying to give away its slight advantage — finally conceded the Hawks failure at a second comeback and pulled away in the last seconds, winning by eight.

"If we had made all those (opportunities), we'd have been in the game," Wilder understated. "In Big Spring, we made all those plays and won. Tonight we lost and that was the difference."

Midland coach Jerry Stone wasn't concerned so much with the win as he was glad to see his defending national champs perform up to par again after two losses and a near upset.

"We did play better defense this time around," he admitted, "but we've had to wait the season all over again. The biggest thing was getting over losing two. You wonder if you can win. That was the big deal. We came back and did some good things tonight."

The best thing the Chaps did was play tight inside defense. Murdered by the powerful Givens (32 points) Saturday, MC held the WJAC's top scorer to 19 last night. And even when Midland was beaten downcourt, the Hawks missed a half-dozen layups because of defensive pressure.

"He's hard to shut down," Stone said of Givens, "but we played better defense tonight." Wilder agreed. "They did a good job inside. Chester Smith is a good defensive player and he got a lot of help. Jerome Crowe dropped off of Reggie (Childrees) and helped out on Nate."

The first half was back-and-forth. Howard's biggest lead was four points at 45-41 at 2:30 but MC reeled off a 7-1 spurt to take a two-point halftime lead.

MC opened the second half with a six-point lead and when Howard was seemed content to leave it there, Midland impatiently increased its advantage to a dozen twice before Issac guided the Hawks back into contention.

Midland, 16-3, again shot the ball extremely well as Nate Bufford hit 12 and Smith nine field goals, neither sinking a free throw. Webb, despite a night of poor shot selection, still finished with 19 points. Givens had 19 and Childrees 16 for the Hawks, now 14-2 for the year.

Even with the loss, Wilder was encouraged. "This gives us more confidence and proves we have a good team. We can play with the best on the road. It's obvious to the guys that we had our opportunities tonight."

LEON ISSAC
...scores 22 points

BASKETBALL BUMP AND GRIND — With the low score of the Big Spring-Cooper game Thursday night, it may appear the girls did more discoing than putting the ball in the hoop. Cooper's Melinda Finley (34) and Big Spring's Shell Rutledge (30) boogie on this play but it was the Lady Steers who waltzed away with the game, downing the Coogs 40-29.

The Abilene Cooper Cougars were outclassed here last night by the Big Spring Lady Steers as they clawed the Coogs for a 40-29 win.

The victory upped Big Spring's record to 5-1 in District 4-5A play and kept them in a first place tie with Midland Lee. The Lady Steers, 10-8 overall and looking for their first winning season ever, travel to Midland Monday to battle the Rebels, 56-34 winners over Permian Thursday.

In other 4-AAAA games, Midland bombed Odessa High 71-47 and San Angelo ransacked Abilene 52-31. Big Spring, Lee, and Midland stand 5-1 in the league race while Permian dropped a step back to 4-2.

The Lady Steers' leading scorer Shell Rutledge had an off game scoring only five points in the contest. However, a 12-point night from Sylvia Randle and 10 points by Monette Wise tightened Big Spring's scoring slack.

Big Spring's aggressive 2-3 zone defense shut down Cooper's offense and forced numerous turnovers by the Abilene team.

Cooper jumped out to an early 8-2 lead over the Lady Steers, but the Big Spring defense rallied to cause four straight turnovers by Cooper. The Cougars' mistakes allowed the Lady Steers to score six unanswered points and tie the game at 8-8 with 3:13 to go in the first period.

Things then turned icy in Steer gym apparently not only affecting shooting, but also the ball-handling of both teams. During the next three minutes of the period neither squad was able to come close to scoring with Cooper turning the ball over five and Big Spring three times.

The cold snap also lasted throughout the second period. Big Spring was able to put five points on the board, while Cooper managed four. The score at half stood at a low 13-11 in favor of the Lady Steers.

The Cougars came out pressing in the second half, but the tactic actually worked to the advantage of the Lady Steers. Utilizing the ball-handling skills of Wise and Rutledge Big Spring pushed the ball past the Cooper defense and was able to score several easy layups.

Debra Rubio popped in three baskets during the stretch and Wise hit two corner jumpers as the Lady Steers gradually established dominance in the game.

Meanwhile, on the defensive end Big Spring held Cooper's center Angela Riggins in a sticky defensive web thus paralyzing the only dangerous Cooper scoring threat.

Although Big Spring was only up by eight, 27-19, at the end of the third quarter, the margin seemed much wider than that.

Cooper's offensive trouble continued on into the fourth quarter. Dismal shooting, both from the floor and foul line, and ball-handling mistakes caused by the hawking Big Spring defense kept Cooper from ever making a serious bid for the lead.

Randle led all scorers in the game with 12 points followed by Wise and Rubio with 10 and eight points, respectively. Riggins and Rhonda Mays had eight each for Cooper.

In junior varsity action Cooper etched out a 55-49 win over scrappy Big Spring which had a chance of winning up to the very end.

Alice Lopez canned 14 points to lead Big Spring scorers. She was aided in the scoring column by Tris Clemons and Adrienne Allen, who scored 10 points each in the game.

Despite success, Falcons ax Bennett

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons announced today that Leeman Bennett, the only winning coach in the team's 16-year history, has been fired after six seasons.

No replacement was named. Owner Rankin Smith Sr. said the Falcons' slump at the end of the 1982 National Football League season was principally responsible for the decision.

"We thought this team had arrived," he said. "For whatever reason, it has not arrived... The situation was one in which we were going backwards instead of forward."

Bennett, appearing at a news conference with Smith at the team's training complex, said he was "very much surprised" by his dismissal and had "a feeling somewhat of betrayal."

"We were in this thing together, and yet I'm the guy that goes," he said. But he added, "Of course, that's all part of it. I understood that when I came here."

"I came here with a smile on my face and I'm going to leave the same way," he said.

"We just weren't good enough. I hope Mr. Smith and the Falcons' organization can reach their goals in the future."

Bennett said he did not know his future plans. Smith said the search for a new coach will be started immediately by executive vice president Eddie LeBaron and General Manager Tom Braatz.

Decker Tabb '83's top athlete

NEW YORK (AP) — In the summer of 1982, two years before the Summer Olympic Games at Los Angeles, a television crew was in Eugene, Ore., filming a lot of footage of Mary Decker Tabb.

It was a sure indication that Tabb already had been tabbed as one of the stars of the TV special called "The Road to L.A." She had every right to be chosen for that role — even though the Olympics have become a jinx for her during her star-studded running career.

Tabb was the woman's star of the 1982 track and field season, and her series of record-shattering performances earned her The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year Award.

In the balloting by sports writers and broadcasters, announced Thursday, Tabb received 29 votes. Tennis player Martina Navratilova was second with 21 and golfer JoAnne Carner was third with 9.

Last year, Tabb was undefeated in 14 races, indoors and outdoors, and shattered numerous records before an Achilles tendon injury prematurely ended her season in August.

Female Athlete of the Year

Indoors, she set three world bests, with clockings of 4 minutes, 20.5 seconds for the mile, 5:53.4 for 2,000 meters and 8:47.3 for 3,000 meters. In the mile, she lowered the indoor best three times.

Outdoors, she set three world records, with clockings of 4:18.08 in the mile, 15:08.26 for 5,000 meters and 31:35.3 for 10,000 meters. The mile record later was reduced to 4:17.44 by Maricica Puica of Romania.

Tabb also set an American record of 8:29.71 for 3,000 meters.

For the year, she was ranked No. 1 in the world in the 5,000 and 10,000, and No. 1 in the United States in those events, plus the 800, 1,500 and 3,000.

No other American woman's distance runner ever has been so versatile and so good.

Still, the fact that she has yet to compete in the Olympic Games continues to haunt the 24-year-old Tabb.

In 1972, she was fast enough but too young. In 1976, she was old enough, but injuries — shin splints and stress fractures — kept her from even running in the U.S. Olympic Trials. In 1980, she won the 1,500-meter race during the Trials at Eugene, Ore., but because of the United States' boycott of the Games over the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan, the Americans didn't send a team to Moscow.

Since then, the injury-plagued Tabb has been pointing toward the 1984 Games and Los Angeles.

"This one is in my hometown, so to speak, since I started my career in Southern California," she said. "There should be a lot of friendly faces and a lot of support. If I don't get injured..."

If Tabb doesn't get injured, she probably will try to qualify for the U.S. team in the 1,500 and 3,000, the longest Olympic races on the track for women. She plans to run both those races as an experiment in the inaugural World Championships at Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 7-14.

"I think my best bet for Olympic gold is the 3,000," she said. "I would double in the 5,000 and 10,000 if I could."

"They (Olympic officials) said they would try to put in the 5,000 and 10,000 for the '88 Games," added Tabb. "I would like to help inaugurate those events in the Olympics."

BASKETBALL
• Looking to get back into the District 4-AAAA race, the Big Spring Steers travel to Abilene for a league encounter tonight with Cooper High.

The Steers, 1-2, have lost two straight games after opening the district schedule with a victory over No. 2 seed Abilene. The Cougars have followed the same road, losing twice since a stunning 59-52 victory over No. 1 San Angelo.

Jerald Wrightsil continues to be the class of the district, scoring 27 points a game. He had 31 in Tuesday's 10-point loss to Odessa, scoring 17 of those in the final quarter as the Steers dropped a 22-point Broncho lead to eight points in a losing effort.

For the year, Wrightsil is scoring at a 22.7 clip. Tony Randle had only six points against Odessa but adds 11.7 average to the attack.

Bob Estes is the top Cougar scorer with a 12.9 average while Greg Mendenhall scores 10.7 and Joe Melson 9.7 points. Cooper is 7-13 overall.

Arnie's back! 'Army' happy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a scene from another, earlier era.

There was Arnold Palmer, trailed by that vast army exulting in his move on the leader, whooping and yelling at his every success.

There was Palmer, hitching his britches with the old, familiar, nervous gesture; Palmer boldly threading trouble shot through the trees; Palmer, now 53 but again on the prowl, charging as he did so well so many years ago.

Calling on the magic he exerted before some of his current competitors were born, Palmer fought his way to a 5-under-par 66 — his best score on the PGA Tour in at least two years — Thursday in the first round of the $300,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, a title he first won two decades ago.

He was two strokes back of leader Fuzzy Zoeller, who fired a 7-under-par 64. Gibby Gilbert and Australian Open champ Bob Shearer had 65. But it was Palmer, probably the most popular player the game has ever known, who generated the excitement on a warm, sunny day.

Zoeller, a former Masters champion, was in a mass interview, describing his four consecutive birdies and his front side of 30, when he looked up and saw Palmer.

"Come on in, 'King.' They're waiting for you," Zoeller said, surrendering the floor. But not before he got in a couple of parting shots. "How old are you, anyway?" he asked. "None of your business," responded Palmer.

"I'm playing at 7:40 in the morning. Early in the year like this, it's sometimes hard to get up that early," Zoeller said. "It must be really tough on you old guys."

"I'll give you a wake-up call at six," said Palmer.

Palmer's heroics — which included two escapes from the trees, a two-putt for par from 20 yards off the green, and a two-putt birdie-4 on his final hole which drew roaring applause from his gallery — all but overshadowed Tom Watson's spectacular finish.

Watson, opening defense of the title he won last year at Riviera, scored an eagle-3 on his 17th hole. And on his 18th, another par-5, he lashed a 2-iron second shot to within 30 inches of the flag. But he missed the eagle putt and had to settle for a birdie that finished off his 67.

"A 67 for the first round of the year. I'm satisfied with it. But I'd like to have made that last putt. That'd be some finish: eagle, eagle," said Watson, the current U.S. and British Open title-holder.

Palmer was tied at 66 with Gary Hallberg and Payne Stewart, neither of whom was born when Arnold first won the Masters.

Tied with Watson at 67 were Lee Trevino, Gary Koch, veteran Gene Littler and Mac O'Grady.

PGA champion Ray Floyd had a 70 for his first round of the year. Masters champ and 1982 leading money-winner Craig Stadler and Cal Peete, a four-time winner last season, each shot 73 and must improve Friday if they are to qualify for the final two rounds.

Palmer took the national seniors title in 1981 and won twice on the seniors tour last season, but hasn't won on the regular PGA circuit for 10 years.

"My game," he said, "is not and has not been very good for a long time. But it's improving and is on the verge of getting a little bit better."

"I'm driving as long as at any time. And that's a big factor, both in my game and in my mind, just knowing I have that. Maybe with some good iron shots and a couple of putts here and there, maybe I can start playing a little better."

'Skins, Vikes meet; Raiders host Jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins have been doing their homework as they prepare for a final exam of sorts, Saturday's game with the Minnesota Vikings in the second round of the National Football League playoffs.

The 9-1 Redskins began preparing for the Vikings, 5-5, last week, before either team had gotten past the first-round of the playoffs.

The coaching staffs broke down Minnesota films, charting out each play over a two- or three-game period.

Three game films were eventually analyzed. A computer study of the Viking defense was run off. Coaches studied Minnesota's offensive and defensive tendencies and how the Redskins can be effective in those circumstances.

And by early this week, the players were given instructions on the initial part of the game plan. Then, the plan was executed in practice and later reviewed by coaches.

"What we don't like we change," said Dan Henning, the Redskins' assistant head coach. "What we like, we keep in. But everything is tested thoroughly before it is used. For example, we may want to run a certain play against two different defenses. Before the week is out, we'll make sure we try it that way in practice."

After a couple of more days of filming and reviewing the practices, the players were given a chance to respond.

"If we aren't comfortable with something, we'll say so," said safety Mark

Murphy. "The coaches are very good at listening to us and making adjustments. They realize we are the ones who have to execute it."

The Redskins usually practice more plays preparing for a game than they actually use in the game itself, and they usually do very little free-member of the Jets who led the NFL in rushing during this strike-interrupted season, played his college football at UCLA.

Allen, a Raiders' first-round draft pick who led the NFL in scoring and was a unanimous selection as the league's outstanding rookie on offense, was a standout at Southern Cal.

Super Bowl in the past three years.

Allen, who rushed for 697 yards on 160 carries during the regular season, gained 72 yards on 17 carries and caught six passes for 75 yards during the Raiders' 27-10 victory over the Cleveland Browns last Saturday.

Senior stars at Hula Bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — Anthony Carter is small by pro football standards. But pro scouts taking a look at this year's college standouts during Hula Bowl drills think the 5-foot-11, 161-pound Michigan receiver will do just fine in the pros.

"His size doesn't bother me one bit," San Diego assistant general manager Tank Younger said.

"I've seen some outstanding wide receivers his size and smaller in the league that have played for a long time," Younger said. "As long as the guy has the physical toughness, I don't think the size makes a difference."

The new emphasis on passing makes a player of Carter's abilities more valuable than ever, Younger said.

Carter was called a phenomenon by Gil Brandt, director of player personnel for the Dallas Cowboys.

"He's the kind of guy who'll do whatever he has to do," Brandt said. "He doesn't have 44 speed, but he will run just fast enough to return a punt for a touchdown."

Carter, a three-time All-America selection, and Penn State running back Curt Warner head the East team in Saturday's Hula Bowl game. Dan Marino of Pittsburgh will be starting quarterback.

Carter and his teammates will be up against a talent-loaded West team that includes running back Eric Dickerson of Southern Methodist and center Dave Rimington of Nebraska.

The 6-3, 285-pound Rimington heads an offensive line that averages 6-5 and 270 pounds.

The all-star contest boasts six of the players who finished in the top 10 in the Heisman Trophy balloting: Carter, Dickerson, Rimington, Warner, Marino and Tom Ramsey of UCLA, who will be West's starting quarterback.

The East team is under the direction of Jackie Sherrill of Texas A&M, while Don James of Washington is coach of the West team.

The game begins at 9 p.m. EST, and will be televised by NBC-TV.

Jones is 'Mr. January'

DALLAS (AP) — Just call Ed Jones the Dallas Cowboys' "Mr. January."

"Too Tall seems to rise to his most awesome heights in the playoffs," trumpets the Dallas media guide.

If the All-Pro defensive end does play his best with the money on the line, as evidence suggests, then he's someone Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey will bear watching Sunday in the second round of the National Conference playoffs in Texas Stadium.

Some "awesome" examples of an unleashed Jones in the playoffs:

—In 1977, Jones had 23 tackles, 2 quarterback traps, two batted-down passes and two forced fumbles.

—In 1978, he had 19 tackles, two sacks and a fumble recovery.

"Sure, I take pride in being a clutch man in the playoffs," said Jones. "I want to play the best I can all the time but it gives you a special feeling to deliver when it counts, when the money is there."

The incentive for Super Bowl XVII is $64,000.

Teacher enjoys course subject

By CAROL HART
Church Editor

Staying busy isn't a problem for Virginia Powers. In addition to being the wife of a Nazarene minister, mother to five children and a grandmother, Mrs. Powers is the Bible teacher at Big Spring High School.

Although she holds a degree in education and has taught for many years, Mrs. Powers became Big Spring High School's Bible teacher only last November when long-time Bible teacher Elizabeth Johansen retired.

Mrs. Johansen began teaching the class in the 1940s and taught continuously until illness forced her to retire in 1982. Mrs. Russell (Nancy) Patrick, substituted for the Bible class until a replacement, Mrs. Powers, was selected.

Mrs. Powers says she likes the idea of being able to work teaching the Bible. She remembers reading in the newspaper that the Howard County Ministerial Fellowship was accepting applications from people interested in conducting the course.

"I was totally intrigued that this school system had a Bible course," she says.

She and her husband, Dr. Carl Powers, pastor of The First Church of the Nazarene, "followed with interest the fund-raising drive for the Bible class" conducted late last summer. Shortly thereafter the opportunity to apply surfaced and Mrs. Powers submitted her application.

Shortly after being notified of her selection, Mrs. Powers went right to work and immediately planned to visit with Mrs. Johansen.

"That was the first thing I did after I was hired. I went out and spent time with Mrs. Johansen. I decided that anyone who had done that for so long, so successfully," knew the subject well.

"I have really appreciated her," Mrs. Powers said. "She has been a great help."

Since she began teaching locally Mrs. Powers has discovered "I love it. I love the material, and I love teaching the Bible. I've had some of the nicest students in my classes."

Mrs. Powers also complimented the Big Spring School System, including teachers, faculty and staff. "It's been a real pleasant place to work."

In addition to teaching the Bible classes, Mrs. Powers leads the Bible club, which is open to any student who is interested in the Bible. The group also undertakes special projects, such as caroling at Christmas, delivering handmade gifts, raising money for an annual Spring trip, and making a scrapbook of all activities undertaken by the club.

The club, like the class, is open to students of any faith, says Mrs. Powers. "There is no emphasis on denomination," Mrs. Powers explains. "The class is taught as a historical survey of the Bible."

The Old Testament is taught during the fall semester, and the spring semester is dedicated to the New Testament. Students, who gain a hour's worth of elective credit for the course, study each of the books of the Bible, learn who wrote them, read scriptures, and answer questions in a textbook designed by Mrs. Johansen.

The group also engages in discussions, and students learn how to use the Bible. They also learn to use the Concordance and other Bible dictionaries.

Students may take Bible in grades nine through 12, although most of her students are seniors this year.

In addition to teaching at Big Spring High School, Mrs. Powers has been hired to teach a Bible course at Coahoma High School next year. She teaches three classes a day at BSHS and will journey to Coahoma to teach a class in the afternoons.

Mrs. Powers is a graduate of Emmanuel Bible College in Nashville, Tenn. She has also taken courses from Bethany Nazarene College in Oklahoma City, Okla., Trevecca Nazarene College in Nashville, the University of Tennessee in

Week of Prayer to be observed

Millions of Christians around the world observe the "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity" every year in January. Few people realize this world-wide observance began in the Episcopal Church during 1908 at Graymoor, N.Y., across the Hudson River from West Point.

In Graymoor lived an Episcopal priest named Father Paul James Francis Watson, the founder of an Anglican Franciscan community called the Society of Atonement. Father Watson was a vigorous advocate of the union among the churches, especially the Anglican-Roman Catholic churches, and he championed the concept of a reunited Christian church.

Thanks to the efforts of Father Watson and a French Roman Catholic priest named Father Paul Couturier, the "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity" was established. It is now a world-wide ecumenical observance of a week of prayer beginning Jan. 18 — the Feast of the Confession of St. Peter — through Jan. 25 — the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul.

The "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity" will be observed in Big Spring under the co-sponsorship of St. Mary's Episcopal Church and the three Roman Catholic parishes of Big Spring — Immaculate Heart of Mary, Sacred Heart and St. Thomas.

The opening service for the "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity" will be in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 10th and Goliad, at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Bishop Sam B. Hulsey, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, will preside. Guest preacher will be Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza, Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Angelo.

During the course of the week, there will be daily observances at each of the parishes. The schedule includes 7 a.m. — St. Thomas' Church, 605 North Main; noon — St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 10th and Goliad; 5:30 p.m. — Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, 1009 Hearn; and 7 p.m. — Sacred Heart Church, 508 North Ayford.

The concluding service will be held at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church at 7 p.m. Jan. 25. Father Robert Bonnington of St. Mary's Church will deliver the sermon.

European churches studied

The Women of the First Church of God met recently. Betty Reagan, missionary education director, presented a lesson on the Church of God in Europe, including England, Northern Ireland, Sweden, Scotland, Holland, Switzerland and Denmark.

The objectives of the study are to present a brief account of how the Church of God had its beginning in these areas as well as current information, and to help members understand the work there.

Background information included the fact that the Apostle Paul was the first Christian Missionary in Europe at Philippi, now a part of Greece. Initially he worked among his fellow Jews.

The study programs are written by Dr. Lester Crose, who has served as missionary in Lebanon, Syria, Barbados, Trinidad and Egypt.

The 1983 group II officers include Frances Miller, vice president; Anna Smith, secretary; Cordelia Castle, treasurer; Betty Reagan, missionary education director; Jean McCray, spiritual life director, and Kathryn Thomas, historian.

The next meeting will be held in the church sanctuary Feb. 7, with Hettie Minix presiding.

Two seminars slated

Allen Fletcher, an accident prevention advisor for the Halliburton corporation, will present two seminars in Big Spring on drug and alcohol abuse.

Fletcher will present the first seminar at 7 p.m. Monday in the Hillcrest Baptist Church. A second seminar is slated for 7 p.m. Wednesday at Calvary Baptist Church.

Fletcher is from Duncan, Okla.

Church wants third diocese

DENVER (AP) — A third Roman Catholic diocese in Colorado has been proposed to the Vatican by Archbishop James V. Casey because of the state's continuing population growth.

The new diocese would be located in Colorado Springs, formed from nine counties now in the Denver archdiocese and one county in the Pueblo diocese.

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 15, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Schedule your time and activities well so that you can accomplish a great deal today. Check your surroundings and make plans for improvements. Be alert at all times today.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Situations arise today that can give you a new outlook on life. Engage in civic affairs that can be helpful to the community.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Handle routine chores and gain greater benefits. Be sure to keep promises you have made to others. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Ideal day to engage in recreations with congenials. Handle home duties more efficiently and they become easier.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Studying new outlets and getting into new activities can bring more success in the future. Be logical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Talk over with allies what you expect of them and vice versa, and come to a finer understanding. Something good can result.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Study what your true financial status is and make plans for improvement. The evening is fine for social pleasures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Go after your most cherished personal wishes since there is a good opportunity to gain them now. Sidestep a foe.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Good day to do some investigative work and come up with the right answers to a problem. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Exchange ideas with good friends for mutual gain. Show appreciation to those who have helped you in the past.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Dive into whatever will give you more prestige in the community. Take time for recreation in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Study a new outlet that could bring you added income in the future. You can now gain a long-time longing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You are now able to engage in interesting activities with friends and have a most delightful time. Be happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will know exactly how to get rid of tensions that arise and can be objective in solving difficult problems, so give an education dealing with arts and sciences for best results. Teach to work with hands.

Lawyer says Chagra didn't order murder

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra may have paid a killer thousands of dollars to keep quiet about the 1979 murder of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., but he never ordered the assassination, his attorney told a federal jury.

Chagra delivered extortion money to convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson after Harrelson approached him and said: "Chagra, I killed the judge. I want to get paid for it," defense attorney Oscar Goodman said Thursday in an opening statement at Chagra's murder trial.

Goodman said the defense would not try to disprove that Harrelson shot Wood in the back with a rifle on May 29, 1979, the day the stiff-sentencing judge known as "Maximum John" was originally to begin presiding at Chagra's trial on drug-related charges in Texas. "Jimmy Chagra does not know if Charles Harrelson killed Judge Wood," the Las Vegas attorney said.

He said Chagra had no reason to fear a stiff sentence from Wood because his attorneys were only five years apart from government prosecutors in an effort to plea-bargain a prison sentence.

NOTICE OF CALCULATION OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE AND PUBLICATION OF ESTIMATED UNENCUMBERED FUND BALANCES

I, DOROTHY W. MOORE TAX COLLECTOR for the CITY OF COAHOMA in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 26.04 of the Property Tax Code, have calculated the tax rate which may not be exceeded by more than three percent by the governing body of the CITY OF COAHOMA without holding a public hearing as required by the code. That rate is as follows: $.542 per $100 value.

Dorothy W. Moore
TAX ASSESSOR-COLLECTOR
January 12, 1983

The Coahoma City Council adopted the rate of .542 as the rate for the 1982 Tax Rate. The 40% optional homestead was also approved at the meeting January 11, 1983.
