Re-enter winter

Snowfall makes driving hazardous, cuts power

From staff and wire reports
The third major winter storm of the season struck Big Spring Thursday night, leaving from 2-3 inches of snow on the ground and causing a rash of auto accidents.

Power outages were reported in neighboring Dawson County and Coahoma schools let out early today because of the bad weather.

Big Spring residents experienced an interruption in cable TV service and brief power outages were reported after an electric line snapped last night near Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. Cable service was restored early this morning.

By noon police had investigated at least five minor auto accidents in the city. The Howard County sheriff's office reported three accidents.

City patrolmen were "just going from one (accident) to another," police officials said.

By noon, however, the snow had begun to melt from streets as the temperature rose well above the freezing point. More snow and freezing is possible tonight, the National Weather Service said.

Big Spring escaped the center of the storm which passed to the north, dumping up to 14 inches of snow on the Panhandle. Snow was falling over the South Plains and as far east as Abilene before dawn today.

Forecasters warned of the possibility of light snow and freezing drizzle in Central and North Texas later today and tonight.

Ten inches of snow, with drifts of up to four inches, were reported at Canyon, where classes at West Texas State University were canceled today, according to a dispatcher with the Randall County sheriff's department.

YOU THINK YOU WERE COLD — How would you like to stand out in the snow all night? This replica of the Statue of Liberty, located in front of the Big Spring City Auditorium, got a dusting of snow last night. A snow storm dropped two to three inches of snow on the Spring City overnight.

O.I.L. to recall 20 workers

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Over 20 people who were 'furloughed' earlier this month by Oilfield Industrial Lines (O.I.L.) will be recalled Monday, said Henry F. Meyer, director of manufacturing for the Big Spring firm.

O.I.L. cut back to just over 300 employees Jan. 7 by furloughing 160 workers from every department. That cutback was the second in two weeks for the company. On Dec. 23, 40 workers were laid off.

Charles Christopher, O.I.L. chief executive, had said he expected to recall most of the furloughed employees by the end of January or first of February. This is the first group to be recalled.

Meyer said he decided to recall the workers because O.I.L. management is "cautiously optimistic" about the oil equipment marketplace. He said he doubts that all the laid-off employees will be called back to work.

"We're cautiously optimistic now," Meyer said yesterday. "When we said we would try to recall those 160 we furloughed on the seventh, we made a few assumptions. Those assumptions are coming to fruit."

Charles Christopher, O.I.L. chief executive, had said that the 160 furloughed workers would be called back as soon as the market downturn is over. The company is operating at half the production level of last year, he said.

O.I.L.'s reported gross business in 1982 was $175 million. Christopher said last year the company captured one half or more of the oilfield equipment market in the U.S. dealing with new rig manufacturing.

However, Meyer said O.I.L. stands by its prediction that production in 1983 could equal that of 1982. The Big Spring company has 12 rigs in its schedule now, about half of which are sold, Christopher said.

Meyer also said the company is continuing to establish an overseas market for its products. There are O.I.L. representatives making presentations in several countries now, he said.

"The way I'd put it is that O.I.L., and to a certain extent Big Spring, have a steady pulse," Meyer said.

Down to double digits

'Happy hour' fuels gas war on Gregg St.

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Drivers on Gregg Street in Big Spring have been treated to an unusual sight recently — double-digit gasoline.

Up and down the main thoroughfare, bright signs have been proclaiming 99-cent gas at many of the self-service stations. That price is the lowest in recent memory, at least since last summer.

Most of the service stations are just "following the bunch," as Mrs. Robert Karwedsky, manager of the Double S station, said.

Her prices are set at 99 cents a gallon for regular, $1.04 for unleaded and $1.09 for super unleaded. "With the economy the way it is, people are going to shop for the lowest prices in town," she said. "They're going to go across town for that extra one-cent difference, and if we're going to make a decent wage, we're going to have to let the company know so we can keep up with the rest of them (stations)."

"We haven't been especially busy today," said Nelda McCloud of the Rio Grande Self Service Station, "the weather's been too bad. But we've had quite a few coming in. If the weather was pretty, there'd be more."

She said she wasn't sure what started the drop in prices, but added that Bell Service Station on Birdwell and Third Streets holding a "happy hour" last week could have been the catalyst. Bell sold 99-cent gasoline from 12 noon until 2 p.m. for three days, resulting in long lines at the gas pumps. Prices at most of the stations have been lowered a day or more now, but few owners or operators know what started the drop.

"We went down Tuesday because everybody else did," said Tina Henkel, owner of the Super Save Drive In Grocery No. 1. "There's a gas war in this town — we have to stay competitive."

Most of her customers have been "faithful customers who trade with us everyday," she said, "but we do get a few who are traveling through."

She wasn't sure how long the prices would stay down.

"This is the lowest it's been since last summer," she said. "It seems like it went to 99 then, but it went up real quick then."

GAS WARS ON GREGG STREET — Mrs. Robert Karwedsky, manager of the Double S Self Service Station on Gregg Street says she was following the lead of other stations on the thoroughfare when she lowered her gasoline prices to 99.9 cents this week. Several self-service stations on Gregg have dropped their prices into the double digits for the first time in recent memory.

White can review 59 appointments, Senate says

AUSTIN (AP) — In an historic legislative session, Texas senators have voted to allow Democratic Gov. Mark White to review 59 appointments made by lame-duck Republican Bill Clements, the man White defeated in the Nov. 2 general election.

The session included senators — on principle, they said — voting against friends and political supporters.

Forty-three Clements nominees survived Senate votes Thursday by close margins, but still face possible public hearings before they can be confirmed.

"These are painful votes for a lot of us," said Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan.

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, described his votes to return nominees to White as "some of the most difficult" in his 10-year Senate career.

Democrats said they were trying to change a tradition started by Gov. John Connally in 1969 when he made hundreds of appointments just before leaving office, a maneuver that took the privilege away from incoming Gov. Preston Smith.

Connally, who later switched to the Republican party, was one of the victims Thursday as the Senate voted 19-12 to return his appointment as a regent at the University of Texas, his alma mater.

Asked if he intended to reappoint Connally, White said, "I would think that would be one of the most remote possibilities."

Former House Speaker Bill Clayton's appointment as a Texas A&M regent also was returned to White, 16-15.

Soviet satellite may fall on U.S.; probably water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orbiting debris from a disabled nuclear Soviet spy satellite probably will fall in an ocean or the Soviet Union, but there is a 2 percent chance it could hit the United States, Pentagon officials say.

Spokesman Henry Catto told reporters Thursday that experts have predicted that the satellite, which carried a nuclear reactor into orbit, will re-enter the earth's atmosphere sometime between 1 a.m. EST Sunday and 3 p.m. EST Monday.

"We can't predict where, with any certainty, until just at the last before it comes in," Catto said when asked to forecast where the satellite's debris will reach the earth's surface. The Federal Emergency Management Agency said there likely would be no more than a "45- to 50-minute warning of where the affected area might be."

Catto said there is a 70 percent chance the Cosmos debris will come down over water, 15 percent chance over the Soviet Union, 3 percent chance over Canada and 2 percent chance over the United States.

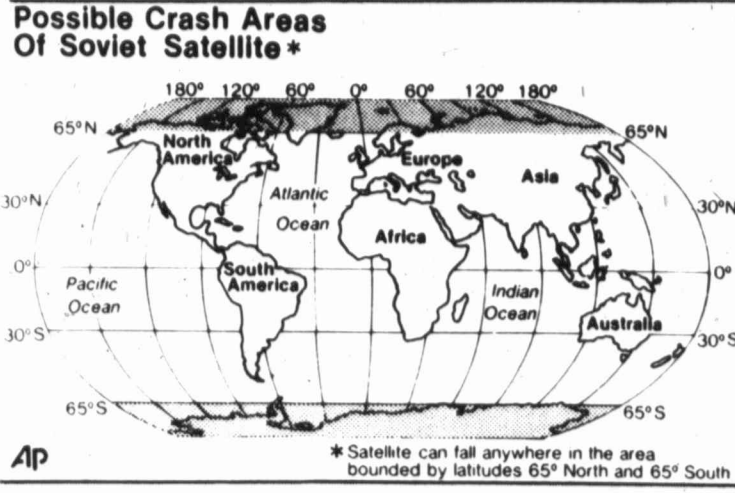

Later in the day, defense officials acknowledged for the first time that they are uncertain whether the 8,000-pound satellite still contains the nuclear core of about 100 pounds of uranium.

They said the Soviet Union has claimed it ejected the fuel core by remote control, and that the Soviets have said that that core is traveling separately and will fall into the atmosphere and burn up in February.

"We haven't determined if that is so," said one official who discussed the question only on condition he not be identified. "We hope it is."

Even so, that official said, the main section of the satellite will still be "hot" because it has been exposed to radiation.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency, meanwhile, indicated it thought the reactor was still on board, declaring that the "principal potential hazard."

THE SKY IS FALLING — This map locates the possible areas where the disabled Soviet satellite Cosmos 1402 may strike the earth's surface upon entering the atmosphere sometime between early Sunday and Monday afternoon. The satellite orbit covers a band circling the earth from latitude 65 degrees north to 65 degrees south. A man looks at what Canadian officials believed to have been debris from a Soviet satellite which fell Jan. 20, 1978 near a remote Arctic weather outpost at Wardens Grove, Northwest Territories. Under international law, there is no dollar limit on the Soviet Union's legal liability for damages caused to people or property when its crippled satellite crashes.

Board extends Hise's contract through 1986

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Big Spring school district Superintendent Lynn Hise yesterday had one more year tacked on to his contract, extending his bond with the district through 1986.

The extension was approved by the board of trustees in a regular meeting yesterday.

The board was also paid a visit by C.G. Gilstrap who asked to be placed on the next regular meeting agenda to discuss appointments to the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District.

Gilstrap said he had a petition with 5,000 names on it calling for the removal of Roy Watkins, Billy Smith and Lila Estes from the HCCTAD board because of a "conflict of interest."

"We are not pleased with them and don't think they have the interest of taxpayers at heart," Gilstrap said. Gilstrap was granted time on the agenda at the next meeting scheduled for Feb. 10.

In other business the board:

- Hired Mrs. Loreen Butler and Mrs. Letha Lee Mauldin as teachers at Marcy Elementary School.
- Accepted the resignations of Mrs. Flora Nobles and Mrs. Jean Scroggins, both teachers at Marcy.
- Okayed the reconditioning of two school buses by the Texas Department of Corrections at a cost of $8,000 each.
- Suspended one student for the remainder of the school year.
- Agreed to meet on Friday, Jan. 28 to study nominations for a vacancy recently created on the HCCTAD when member Jack Watkins resigned.

White

Republicans claimed Democrat White's mass recall effort was pure partisanship.

White, however, went on record in favor of a proposal that would stop him from making appointments near the end of his administration.

"The governor won major victories today," Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said after the 4½-hour session had ended, "but I think the Senate came out of it well. ... No bridges were burned."

Brooks predicted White would reappoint 80 percent to 90 percent of the nominees returned to him.

"I think it's been mischaracterized as a victory for me or a defeat for me or a victory for anyone," White told reporters. "I think what it's going to be is a victory for the state of Texas in changing the policy so we don't have a recurrence of this."

Twenty-four of the 31 senators filed a bill Thursday that would prevent lame-duck appointments by an outgoing governor.

In urging the Senate to return Clements' reappointment of John Blocker of Houston as an A&M regent, Caperton noted that Blocker was a "good friend and good regent" and had hosted a fund-raiser for Caperton.

Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, one of Clayton's lawyers in the former speaker's Briab trial, said Clayton "is a friend and will be a friend when I cast a vote against him and leave this chamber."

Other nominees who were returned to the governor included Hilary Doran Jr., former executive assistant to Clements, and Bill Meier, the unsuccessful GOP candidate for state attorney general. Clements had named Doran a UT regent and Meier a regent at North Texas State University.

Survivors included Lias "Bubba" Steen of Cuero, an appointee to the Texas Employment Commission, and Sam Barshop of San Antonio, a UT regent appointee.

Home builders head optimistic slump will end

HOUSTON (AP) — Falling interest rates signal the housing industry may be emerging from its three-year slump, says the president of the National Association of Home Builders.

"With falling interest rates, with new sources of mortgage money, with freer access to secondary mortgage markets and with better understanding of the new forms of mortgage instruments, I think the worst is behind us," Fred Napolitano said as his group prepared for its 40th annual convention.

Interest rates for loans for new houses now are fluctuating between 10 percent and 12½ percent, down from 16½ percent a year ago, he said Thursday.

The U.S. Commerce Department reported this week that home builders nationwide had suffered through some rough times as construction of new homes and sales dropped sharply in 1982.

Builders started work last year on 1.061 million new houses, a 2.2 percent decline from the previous year and lowest number since 1946, the department said.

But Napolitano said builders were encouraged by the number of houses started in December.

New construction was up 43 percent in December from the recession low point of October 1981, and building permits for future construction rose through four straight months, the government reported.

"The trend over the last three or four months has been on the upside," Napolitano said.

"If interest rates and prices continue to stabilize, then 1983 will be the year that turns the corner of the most devastating recession since World War II."

But he warned the recovery "won't be like turning on the faucet and having a powerful surge. It will be a slow, steady process."

"During the next 12 months, we should build about 1.4 million units of new housing — 300,000 more than were constructed last year. Next year, that figure should hit 1.6 million and in 1985 reach 1.7 to 1.8 million," he said.

Napolitano, who is from Virginia Beach, Va., predicted the industry would strengthen most in the South, particularly in Texas, Arizona and Florida.

"You have people who are leaving the Snowbelt and moving south. The weather isn't as harsh, it's not as expensive and a lot of oil and high-technology corporations are moving their headquarters there, which makes those areas ultra-strong," he said.

Napolitano said the extent of the industry's woes will be reflected in the attendance at the four-day convention, being held in a city where builders started and sold a record number of single-family houses last year.

Houston Metro-Study, a research firm that monitors the housing market, said builders here started 29,000 single-family homes last year and sold 27,000. That surpassed records set in 1978, when 26,270 homes were started and 24,580 were sold in Houston.

Napolitano estimated about 40,000 people would attend the convention.

"Usually we have about 50,000 members attend. But this year, that number probably will be down because some of our members have gone out of business or bankrupt because they had no work," he said.

The convention is one of the nation's largest trade shows. More than 600 exhibits of the home appliances building equipment will be spread over 17 acres of a complex that includes the Astrodome.

Police Beat

Burglary rash continues

Police said they arrested two deaf students last night on suspicion of possessing under 2 ounces of marijuana.

Daniel Sam Castillo, 19, and Nickolaus Friedrich Gonzales, 18, both students at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, were arrested about 7 p.m. at Big Spring State Park after an officer found a small tin can of what appeared to be the substance inside their car, police said.

Apparently the Datsun Gonzales was driving struck a reflector pole on the mountain about 6:10 p.m., police said. When the arresting officer arrived, he detected a faint smell of marijuana, police said.

Police reports also showed the following:

- Burglars struck at two houses on Stadium street last night and stole almost $3,000 worth of items, police said. Bob Parks of 1025 Stadium told police someone stole $2,050 worth of merchandise from his home. The other victim, Nancy Twining of 1021 Stadium, told police burglars netted $890 worth of her belongings after they ransacked her house.
- Police said they arrested a 34-year-old man last night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated after he was involved in a minor traffic accident.
- Vehicles driven by the suspect, John L. Whitmire III of 4006 Parkway, and Craig Barker of 2636 Langley collided at Wasson and Parkway about 6:40 p.m.
- Whitmire also was arrested on suspicion of driving while license suspended.
- A 22-year-old woman told police a man she knows threatened her and stole her purse and a pistol yesterday. Adrey Cosby of 805 N. San Antonio said that when she left for work about 7:05 a.m. the man jumped in her car, grabbed her purse and told her to keep driving or he would hurt her. She said the man fled on foot with the stolen items after she slowed the car down.
- John Price of Big John's Feed Lot of 802 W. Third told police someone broke into his restaurant last night and stole candy, gum, cold drinks and about $20 in change from the cash register. The culprits also damaged several doorways, he said.
- Erma Cano of 1314 Mesa told police someone stole a $57 battery from her car while it was parked at the Chevron station for repairs.
- Charles Williams told police someone burglarized Auto Supermarket at 905 W. Fourth last night and stole $3 in change from a soft drink machine, a box of gum and half a box of cigarettes. The burglars also did $111 damage to the store, police reports said.
- Nita Jones of Charlie's Used Furniture at 604 W. Third told police someone stole about $25 in cash from the store yesterday afternoon.
- Bill Crane of 2201 Allendale told police someone broke into his car parked at his home and stole 12 jackets and sweaters, 15 golf caps and six boxes of cigars. The $816 worth of merchandise was stolen sometime Wednesday or Thursday, police said.
- Don Atkinson told police someone broke into Reed's Service Station at 3208 W. Highway 80 Wednesday night and stole nine cans of chewing tobacco and a six-pack of Pepsi.
- Police said they arrested one man and three women yesterday on traffic warrants. Those arrested were April Edwards, 18, of 1501-A Wood; Erminia Bustamante, 26, of 1200 Madison; Karla Daily, 19, of 2201 Runnels; and Gregg James Eggleston, 19, of 1307 Main. All four were released after posting bond.

Man found guilty in kidnap case

AUSTIN (AP) — A 19-year-old Monahans man has been sentenced to life in prison for the rape and abduction of a West Texas banker's wife last summer.

The four-day trial, moved here on a change of venue, ended Thursday when the 10-woman, two-man jury recommended one life sentence and a total of 283 additional years in prison for James William Hughes.

Hughes was accused of abducting a woman at gunpoint shortly after 4 p.m. on Aug. 31 and demanding $300,000 ransom from her husband, Charles Wade, president of the First State Bank of Monahans.

Acting at the kidnapper's instructions, Wade arrived at the Monahans Sand Hills State Park with the cash demanded, but could not locate the gunman. Police arrested Hughes with the victim in a pickup truck near Crane about 7 p.m.

Three fires strike county

The Howard County sheriff's office reported three fires in the county last night that were worked by city and volunteer fire departments.

A light pole fire was reported east of Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. at 6:50 p.m. The fire resulted in damage to power lines and was responsible for the television cable failure last night.

The water heater in the C.M. Calvert mobile home exploded at 8:10 p.m. across from Price Construction on the Snyder Highway, but little damage was reported. A house fire at the Robert Wagner home 13 miles north of Big Spring on the Gail Highway resulted in major damage, according to City Fire Marshall Carl Dorton.

Department of Public Safety troopers worked a minor accident last night and two accidents this morning, according to reports. Vehicles driven by Aletha Kemper of 1429 E. 6th and David Rhoads of Odessa collided on Highway 87 across from Feagin's Implement. No injuries were reported.

A two-car collision was also reported 11 miles north of Big Spring on Highway 87 this morning. A minor accident was reported on the Interstate service road one mile east of Coahoma.

Hijacker's 2nd attempt ends in death

Passengers unhurt in 2-hour siege

By BOB BAUM
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — A retarded man who hijacked a plane, then was shot and killed by an FBI agent who climbed through a cockpit window, had commandeered the same flight in 1980 and was free on probation, authorities said.

None of the 41 passengers and crew aboard the Northwest Airlines jet were injured in the 2 1/2-hour seizure Thursday.

The hijacker, who was shot as he began releasing some passengers, had falsely claimed to have a bomb in a shoebox and said he wanted to go to Afghanistan, witnesses said.

Authorities said 20-year-old Glen Kurt Tripp took over Flight 608 as the white-and-gray Boeing 727-200 approached Portland International Airport from Seattle.

Tripp, of Stanwood, Wash., had held another Northwest jet, also Flight 608, for 10 hours on July 11, 1980, at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, claiming he had a bomb in a suitcase and demanding $100,000.

Just before being arrested in that hijacking — in which no passengers were harmed and where the "bomb" turned out to be a jacket in a suitcase — Tripp reduced his demands to a fast car, a head start and three cheeseburgers. Experts described him as a mentally retarded 17-year-old, and said he had the intellect of a child between the ages of 9 and 12.

During Thursday's hijacking, Tripp railed against the United States for failing to help Afghan guerrillas fighting Soviet troops, said a passenger, John Boyle of Falls City, Wash.

Tripp made no demand except to be flown to Afghanistan, said Donald R. Jones, Port of Portland police chief. "He said he had been in prison and it wouldn't hurt the folks on the plane to sit with him for awhile," Airline officials said the jet was not capable of such a long flight.

The plane landed in Portland about 1:45 p.m. As the hijacker spoke to the crew in an otherwise empty first-class section, two FBI agents climbed through a cockpit window and waited.

Tripp agreed to release about half the 35 passengers, and as they slid down an emergency exit chute, the agents moved in, according to police and witnesses.

"At that time, the suspect made a sudden motion with the box as if to throw it at the agent," said William Baker, agent in charge of the Portland office. "The agent fired one shot."

Tripp was killed with a .38-caliber revolver, he said.

The hijacker was about 5-foot-10 and slender, wearing a suit and black work boots, said a passenger, Army Capt. Marsha Hibbard of Oregon City.

When the flight was about 60 miles from Portland, Tripp "came walking up past me and stopped and said something to the attendant about getting on the phone and telling them we're flying to Afghanistan. I didn't believe it," said passenger Gene Macellari, 55, of Seattle.

The man claimed he had to get home to his wife and two children in Afghanistan, according to Boyle.

Former Teamsters consultant 'silenced' in execution

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Teamsters consultant Allen Dorfman was "silenced" in a gangland-style execution because criminal associates feared a looming prison term would make him reveal secrets learned in 30 years of mob dealings, officials believe.

Dorfman was shot in the head five times at close range Thursday as he and a friend were going to a restaurant in Lincolnwood, a northern suburb. His companion was unharmd, and the gunmen escaped.

Forty FBI agents were assigned to assist police from Chicago and Lincolnwood in the murder investigation. A nationwide alert was issued for two unnamed male suspects. Police were also seeking a third man, believed to be the driver of a getaway car.

The millionaire insurance executive had longstanding ties to the Teamsters union and organized crime. He escaped unharmed from an attempt on his life 16 years ago.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Mr. Dorfman was killed to keep him quiet," said Patrick Healy, the Chicago Crime Commission's executive director. "A lot of people in the criminal world will sleep better tonight knowing that Dorfman is silenced."

Dorfman was convicted Dec. 15 with Teamsters President Roy L. Williams and three other men of conspiring to bribe then-

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., with a lucrative Las Vegas land deal. Cannon was not charged but lost a bid for re-election.

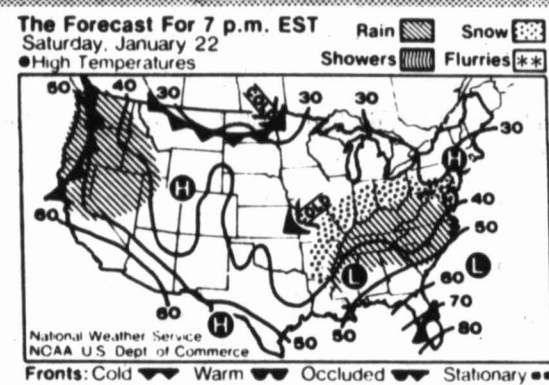

Dorfman, 60, faced up to 35 years in prison — tantamount to a life sentence. He was also under indictment in Illinois and California, and a federal grand jury was investigating an alleged kickback scheme involving Dorfman and the Teamsters health and welfare fund.

For more than 30 years, Dorfman maintained a grip on the murky billion-dollar business of Teamsters loans, land deals and insurance, officials said. His stepfather was a friend of Jimmy Hoffa, the former Teamsters boss who disappeared in July 1975 and was believed killed during a power struggle for control of the union.

Healy, saying the killing had the earmarks of a mob hit, termed Dorfman "a good candidate" to cooperate with authorities.

Reagan aides planning on bid for re-election

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's advisers are quietly planning an early re-election strategy aimed at reasserting the leadership control they acknowledge he has lost and repairing his weakened political standing.

With Reagan's popularity sagging below other modern presidents at the midterm, and repeated reports of disarray in the administration, no attempt is being made to deny that Reagan is at a dangerous political crossroads as planning begins for the 1984 campaign.

"He's clearly got some problems," former aide Lyn Nofziger said. "If the election were tomorrow, he'd be in trouble."

But Nofziger, a political consultant who retains close ties to Reagan, and presidential aides believe Reagan's problems can be overcome if the right changes are made — and soon.

"The third year is the make it or break it year," said a Republican strategist who spoke on the condition that he not be identified further. "You either use this year to your advantage or it becomes your undermining."

From interviews with Nofziger and seven senior and mid-level White House aides it became clear that the strategy for corrective action includes reviving the economy, reducing unemployment, restoring Reagan's leadership image, advocating policies that help women and minorities — all an effort to shore up his eroded political base.

Everyone interviewed agreed there was a universal assumption within the White House that Reagan will seek a second term. No one said it would be easy. "We knew this was going to be the toughest year," said Joanna Bistany, special assistant for communications.

David R. Gergen, assistant for communications, conceded Reagan's loss of influence when he said "one of our greatest concerns" is the realization that the initial confidence the president inspired has eroded.

A White House aide, who spoke on the condition that he not be further identified, said bluntly: "The leadership edge is gone and agenda control is gone. And they are the things presidents have to take into the year of their re-election with them."

In an attempt to get back that leadership edge, the State of the Union message Reagan will deliver Tuesday night was designed to "help re-establish him as a central figure in American politics," according to Gergen.

At long last — a children's shelter

In 1982, after several months of discussion and research, the Howard County Ministerial Fellowship voted to develop an emergency shelter for abused children.

The home, to be known as the Rainbow Project, is fast becoming a reality. A former firehouse at 2609 West 13th has been leased, and remodeling and renovation of the building has already begun. The firehouse is being converted into a home-like residence that will meet the Department of Human Resource's standards of licensing.

THE SHELTER WILL BE licensed for nine children. It will be a temporary home for children who must be removed from an unwholesome home environment because of abuse, neglect, or other unacceptable conditions. The shelter will provide supervised care for the child while a social worker researches the home and parental situation to determine what plans need to be made for the long-range, best interest of the child. A child can stay in the shelter up to 30 days.

In some cases, runaways and truancies will be given a home in the shelter while authorities locate parents, seek to reconcile parent and child, or work out other problems.

It is expected that the Department of Human Resources, Juvenile Probation, and the Texas Youth Council will utilize the facility for children it is working with who need emergency care. They will pay for the care of the child on a daily rate. There will also be private placements. Parents or guardians will pay as they are able.

Buckner Baptist Benevolences, a statewide child-care agency, has been asked to act as administrator of the shelter. However, the project is not a unit in the Buckner system; it is a Howard County shelter, developed and supported by the citizens of Big Spring.

THE FIRST YEAR'S BUDGET has been set at $55,000. This will include salaries of fulltime and relief houseparents, maintenance of the building, and professional social work and consultation with parents.

The board will begin its major fund-raising effort in February. When you are approached, please dig deep. This is a very worthwhile project, one long needed here. We commend the Ministerial Fellowship for their efforts to help the helpless.

It has been said that every child born into the world is a new thought of God, an ever-fresh and radiant possibility. And it's also been said that, as very rough weather destroys the buds of spring, so does too early an experience of life's hardness blight the young promise of a child's faculties.

We're glad there are people in Big Spring who care enough to help abused children. You can do your part by mailing a check (tax deductible) to The Rainbow Project, P.O. Box 2825, Big Spring, TX 79720. The names of all contributors will be printed in the Herald.

People aren't stupid

Why can't city hall reach some kind of understanding with the news media?

There is a feeling in city government that says, "If no one reads about our mistakes in the paper or hears about them on the radio, they'll think we aren't making any."

That feeling is wrong. People are not stupid. As a rule, townspies don't go to city meetings.

And who can blame them? City council meetings are often the most tedious events imaginable, with councilmen and reporters alike having to fight off the urge to go to sleep.

If agendas and the accompanying supplements (facts, figures, maps, etc.) used by the councilmen are not made available to the public attending the meeting — and they usually aren't — there is no way to keep up with what is happening in the meeting.

Traditionally, and by law, reporters have access to those facts and figures. By using them and asking questions, reporters are usually able to tell the public what happened and why.

Those reports of city meetings are often the first things read when the paper hits the newsstands. Things the council takes action on have an effect on everyone who lives in Big Spring. And any money spent by the council came from the citizens' taxes.

EXECUTIVE SESSION has a legal and ethical place in a public meeting.

However, by law, only three situations are considered fair game for discussion in these sessions. Acquisition of real estate, hiring and firing of personnel, and pending litigation are ALL that can be discussed. And ONLY discussed. Any action taken must be taken in open session.

When the Big Spring city council discussed in closed session the hiring of a management consultant and reviewed water usage figures, they were effectively excluding public comment on those subjects.

And the public will be affected by both items.

The management consultant's salary will be paid out of public funds. The water usage figures could lead to the lowering of a sewer rate which apparently is now generating more revenue than is needed.

WHEN HERALD reporter Carol Daniel discovered what had happened and accurately reported the occurrence, giving councilmen an opportunity to defend their actions, city manager Don Davis retreated into a bunker mentality.

He cancelled regular press conferences and ended a Wednesday night program on radio station KBST called "A Visit With the City Manager."

In a press release, Davis said both actions were the result of a request by the city council that he "spend whatever time is necessary" to ensure the open meetings law and public records act is followed. He said the request would place such demands on his time that he would be unable to talk to the media.

Hogwash. It will take no longer to follow the open meetings act than it did to circumvent the act.

Davis is simply retaliating against the media for exposing his error.

In doing so, he is shortchanging the people of Big Spring. Those press conferences released city-related news and explained items on the city council agenda. The city-related news kept the people informed, and the explanation of the agenda gave people advance notice so they could attend the meeting if the topics interested them.

Calls to the Herald and KBST have made it obvious the public resents its loss. Davis should take heed.

Alienating the people who pay your salary is not a wise policy.

Goodbye, Ma Bell

Jack Anderson

One of the saddest things Americans will have to face in 1983 is the demise of "Ma" Bell, who, at the urging of the Justice Department, is going out of the telephone business and into "computers" and esoteric communications. From now on each one of us will be at the mercy of his or her local telephone company.

I've always been very sentimentally attached to the old gal so I went over last week to say goodbye.

"We're going to miss you, 'Ma,'" I told her as she was packing some cable and silicon chips in her suitcase.

"I'm going to miss every last one of you," she said. "You were all my children and we shared many good times and bad times together."

"It doesn't seem right to break you up," I said bitterly. "You were the best telephone system in the whole wide world. I never told anyone this before, but you were the only monopoly I ever loved."

"I did the best I could," she said, wiping away a tear. "Some people did call me a monopoly, but I was a benevolent one. I had to make a profit for the widows and orphans who owned my stock. But I also made it possible for almost everyone in this country to own a telephone. I soaked the rich on long-distance calls, so I could subsidize the poor who wanted to make local ones."

"You were the last American monopoly who had a heart."

"My only desire in life," she said, "was to reach out and touch someone."

I handed her a Kleenex. "When something went wrong with your phone," she sobbed, "I sent one of my people out there right away to fix it and I never charged you."

"And when we got lucky you always let us keep the change we found in the coin box at a pay phone."

"The girls I trained to be operators were the friendliest women in America. And I respected people's privacy. If you didn't want to be in the phone book I always found you an unlisted number."

"You let our fingers do the walking in the Yellow Pages."

"I tried to make life a little easier for everybody."

"Tell me, 'Ma,' of all the innovations you thought up during the years, which one were you the proudest of?"

"The collect telephone call. I made it possible for generations of children to keep in touch with their parents. I doubt without the collect call if parents would have ever heard from their kids again."

"Only a mother would have thought of the collect telephone call," I said.

She put a Princess phone and a Touch-Tone dialer in her suitcase.

"The Justice Department never did like me. They've been out to get me for years. Well, at least I wired up the country before they won their case."

"If it hadn't been for you there wouldn't be telephone poles strung across this nation from sea to shining sea."

"Could you use an old switchboard?" she asked me.

"I'd like that. It would remind me of the wonderful times we had together."

"Well, I guess I'm all packed," she said. "It was nice of you to stop in and say goodbye. Most people forget."

"I'll never forget you. Every time the phone rings I'll say to myself, 'Not for whom the bell tolls? It tolls for 'Ma.'"

Tears started to well up in her eyes.

"I suppose now that I've been broken up you'll never call me any more."

"Of course I'll call you, 'Ma.'"

"When?"

"Friday."

"Mrs. Estrin's son Melvyn calls her every day."

My husband is impossible

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband has become almost impossible to deal with. I don't know whether he's getting senile or what. We are both in our seventies, and life is hard enough without him complaining all the time. Sometimes I think it's more than I can bear.—Mrs. C.T.O.

DEAR MRS. C.T.O.: First of all, if your husband is having some problems that might be medically caused, you have a responsibility to be sure that he has a thorough medical check by your doctor. You should not put this off any longer, and many problems can be treated very successfully. This would help not only your husband but you as well.

But let me also suggest that regardless of what your husband's exact problem may be, God calls you to be the best wife you can possibly be. Furthermore, he is able to help you and give you strength and wisdom whenever you face particularly difficult situations. He also is able to give you patience.

How can his happen? Your letter (which I have not quoted here in full) suggests that you and your husband have never given much attention to God, and have never committed your lives to Jesus Christ. The most important thing you and your husband could do is face your own need of forgiveness, and receive Jesus Christ into your lives right now. God loves you, and he wants you to come to know him personally. He wants to help you, and he wants you to put him first in your lives. God has blessed you both by giving you long lives—but some day you both will die and go into eternity. How tragic it would be for you to miss the joy and peace of God's Heaven because you never took time to think about your need of Christ and invited him to come into your lives. I urge you to turn to Christ right now.

Then, when you do, God himself comes to dwell within you by his Holy Spirit. No, you may not feel that you can bear the burdens you are facing—but the Spirit can help you as you seek God's help every day.

James Buckley well taken care of WASHINGTON — For members of Ronald Reagan's "Cabinet of Millionaires," government service is a temporary financial hardship. The same can hardly be said for the latest millionaire to win a high administration post.

He is James Buckley, a former Conservative senator from New York, unsuccessful Republican candidate for the Senate from Connecticut and, more recently, an undersecretary of state. He was recently appointed president of Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty, with government-paid salary and allowances second only to President Reagan himself.

RFE/RL is technically a private corporation, though it is totally funded by the federal government.

The corporation's board used this technicality to pay Buckley far more than the $60,662 federal maximum that Cabinet officers must struggle along on.

IN FACT, Senate sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado that Buckley's total compensation and perquisites may amount to as much as $200,000 a year. Here's the breakdown, according to those who are familiar with the contract:

- An annual salary of $95,000 — more than 50 percent higher than that of Cabinet members and Buckley's predecessor at RFE/RL.
- A post allowance and "presidential allowance" for entertaining visiting dignitaries, totaling $25,000 a year.
- A personal servant paid for by the government.
- A car and chauffeur.
- A tax-deferred annuity of about $19,000 a year to cushion the 59-year-old millionaire's golden years.
- Free housing.

In a letter to Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., the RFE/RL board said it was having difficulty finding a suitable residence for Buckley in Munich. In an apparent attempt to allay any suspicion of extravagance, the board wrote that "in any event, the style of accommodation will not exceed that of the consul-general."

What this disarming assurance fails to mention, though, is that the American consul-general in Munich lives in a quite beautiful villa, one of the better homes of any U.S. consul in the world. Though the villa was picked up for a song in 1957, a residence of equal grandeur would cost a fortune today.

Zorinsky fired back a terse letter to the board chairman, Frank Shakespeare, demanding to know the exact extent of Buckley's remuneration. He asked for "an item-by-item comparison of Mr. Buckley's salary, benefits and perquisites with those of his predecessor."

The board eventually sent Zorinsky some information, including a copy of the predecessor's contract — but not of Buckley's. Essentially, the board justified the lucrative Buckley contract as sheer necessity to keep their chosen president from returning to private life.

"Our feeling was that a man of Mr. Buckley's prominence and achievements would be much sought after in the private sector at a wage far in excess of anything we could hope to match," the board explained to Zorinsky. "However, we thought if we could make the job ... more financially attractive than it was under our previous president, we might have a better chance of securing Buckley for the job."

Mothers March donations fight birth defects

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Each year, thousands of volunteers ask neighbors to aid unborn and newborn babies through the March of Dimes Mothers March. The support is important, for some quarter-million babies are born each year with mental or physical handicaps.

"Our Big Spring marchers will go from house to house asking for donations from Jan. 27-31," said Mrs. Zilberg, executive director of Caprock Chapter of March of Dimes. Mrs. Betty Bruner and Mrs. Cindy Middleton are co-chairmen for the local march. They recruited volunteers to cover the area.

"We are delighted with the volunteer response and we hope the mothers of Big Spring will respond generously when our marchers approach them for donations," Mrs. Zilberg said.

She and Mrs. Pam Walker, mother of Becky Jo Walker, the Caprock Chapter's poster child, and Mrs. Zilberg have gotten volunteers from the following areas: Key Club and Student Council of Big Spring High School, Coahoma High School, Sand Springs, Ackerly Young Homemakers, Forsan, Garden City High School, Lamesa Young Homemakers, Future Homemakers of America at Snyder High School, Stanton High School, Colorado City High School and Gail High School.

"Even in an age of great technological advances, too many infants born in this country have birth defects," Mrs. Zilberg said. "The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation has made great strides in trying to change that. Our 25 years of successful work has saved many babies thanks to the generous support from the public."

THIS YEAR MARKS the 25th year since the March of Dimes focused on the problem of birth defects after successfully conquering polio. The Mothers March originated in 1950 in Phoenix, Ariz.

Today, funds contributed to the march support programs of research, medical services and public and professional education to prevent birth defects.

The term "birth defects" did not exist 25 years ago. After whipping polio, the March of Dimes pinpointed a group of illnesses and disorders that cause birth defects. The organization is trying to find cures and preventions.

Providing intensive care units for critically ill newborn babies is one example of the organization's work. The units have saved thousands of babies a year that were born too small or too soon. Also physicians now can diagnose and treat some birth defects prior to the baby's birth. Vaccination programs have spared unborn babies from devastating effects of infection in the womb. Educational efforts have alerted the public to preventable birth defects caused by smoking, drinking, un-prescribed drugs or poor nutrition in pregnancy.

Despite the advances, many problems remain. Millions of Americans live with the handicapping effects of birth defects, and each year some 250,000 babies are born with mental or physical disorders.

But there is hope. Through the March of Dimes, research is being conducted at several Texas hospitals and medical schools. Other advances include perinatal and genetic medicine and counseling, professional and public health education, medical interns, health scholarships and community services.

Recently the March of Dimes Foundation presented $15,000 to Scott and White Hospital in Temple for its Perinatal Outreach Education program, completing a $30,000 grant.

MANY BREAKTHROUGHS occurred in 1982 as researchers announced developments which promise to change the course of birth defects prevention and treatment in the 1980s. Two such areas are prematurity and diabetic pregnancy.

In cases where mothers give birth to babies having Spina bifida, the chances of recurrence in future children is considerable. Through research funded by March of Dimes, it was discovered that if the mother is treated prior to conception, her next baby will be normal. In April, a feat of cellular engineering was reported showing how certain genetic disorders might be corrected. In July, success was reported in clinical trials of a rapid method to detect or rule out sickle-cell anemia prenatally using amniotic fluid cells rather than a fetal blood sample.

Last year, some babies in newborn intensive care units succumbed to a "gassing death." Research revealed these deaths probably were caused by flushing life-support tubes with fluids containing small amounts of an anti-bacterial compound, benzyl alcohol. Immature newborn babies' livers appear to be unable to detoxify this substance, and its use has now been discontinued in many newborn nurseries.

Mothers March contributions will make future discoveries, possible. "When one infant in 12 is born with physical or mental birth defects, I think everyone should feel the need to get involved," Mrs. Zilberg said.

Dr. Donohue

Heart enlargement is due to three causes

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor tells me I have a heart enlargement. It is enlarged by 1 centimeter. Can this be corrected in time? Or will it correct itself? The doctor gave me no medication for it and very little information. Will this shorten my life span? I am in good health. I have a feeling this doctor just does not want to bother with my problem. — S.L.

The amount of enlargement you have is really not great. In fact, it's almost nil. At its broadest diameter, an adult heart is about three and a half inches. A centimeter is only .39 of an inch.

I don't think your doctor is ignoring you. Doctors are trained to note even the slightest variations from the norms, and I believe that is all that has happened here.

But you do give me an opportunity to talk about heart enlargement in general. Hearts enlarge for three prominent reasons. They will do so if they're forced to perform extra work, which can occur with high blood pressure. Or they will be larger in a person who has been athletically active all his life. Finally, a heart will enlarge for just the opposite reason, becoming flabby and pooped out, as with heart failure. I should note that enlargement from physical exercise is of no consequence. In fact, it's a good kind of enlargement because it indicates a stronger organ, one that has enlarged muscularly.

I feel certain that you need have no concern over your one centimeter of heart enlargement. Besides, it's sort of hard to be really precise about heart measurements on the basis of a single chest X-ray, which I presume is where your measurement originated.

If you want to really be sure, ask your doctor for this measurement. Ask him to compare the transverse diameter of your heart to the transverse diameter of your chest. If the width of the heart divided by the width of your chest comes out to less than 0.5 to 0.6, then the enlargement is not too great, no matter what it measures on its own.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a lot of houseplants, including some in my bedroom, cactuses, etc. A friend of mine told me that sleeping around these plants could have brought on all my back trouble and rheumatism. Is this the truth? — F.S.

No. And when the purists write me complaining that the plural of cactus is "cacti," I hope you will support both of us in using this alternative form.

What are ulcers? How can you help yourself get rid of ulcers and stay rid of them? Read the booklet, "Peptic Ulcers: The Modern View and Treatment." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Man feels exposed in 'woman's world'

DEAR ABBY: Everyone says, "It's a man's world." It isn't. If anything, it's a woman's world. Explain this:

If a woman undressed in front of a window with the shade up and a man stood outside and watched, the man would be arrested as a peeping tom.

But if a man undressed in front of a window with the shade up and a woman stood outside and watched, the man would be arrested for indecent exposure.

A MAN IN A WOMAN'S WORLD

DEAR MAN: Not necessarily. It is doubtful that a man — or a woman — who disrobed inadvertently before an unshaded window would be arrested for indecent exposure.

Nor would one caught in the act of observing someone of the opposite sex disrobing before an uncovered window necessarily be arrested as a peeping tom (or tomette, whichever the case may be).

Intent is all important. Gender is not.

DEAR ABBY: For 14 years my wife and I have had a running battle over a difference of opinion that has left us both somewhat battle-scarred. Before I invite guests (including my relatives) for the weekend, I always get my wife's OK first.

When my wife invites guests for the weekend (usually her relatives), she never asks for my OK ahead of time. If I am told at all, I am simply informed that so-and-so is coming for the weekend.

When I remind my wife that I always ask for her approval before inviting guests and think she should give me the same consideration, she says, "You are eccentric." Then she reminds me that she is an adult, and she sees no reason to ask for my "permission" to invite guests to her home.

How do you view this, Abby?

MIFFED IN MARYLAND

DEAR MIFFED: Marriage is a partnership. The home is not hers — it belongs to both of you. It's not a matter of asking for permission to invite weekend guests, it's simply "clearing" with one's partner before issuing an invitation. It's the courteous and considerate thing to do.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old, average-looking male with a four-year college education who seems to have terrible luck finding a young woman. I have joined dating clubs, which cost me a lot and got me nowhere. I am not in the habit of going to bars, but I was so desperate for female companionship one night I went to a bar and picked up a young woman and she turned out to be a prostitute.

I see guys all around me with girls, and they don't appear to have any more on the ball than I have. What's wrong with me? I'm starting to worry about myself, Abby. I've even prayed to St. Jude, and I'm not even Catholic.

I consider having a companion of the opposite sex more important than a job or career. I want someone to share my life with. Without that, everything else is meaningless. Can you help me?

LONELY IN DENVER

DEAR LONELY: What are your outside interests? The theater? Music? Museums? Art? Dancing? Sports? Antique cars? There are any number of places to meet people (church included) that will bring you into contact with women whose interests are the same as yours.

She is the daughter of Myrna and Bob Bogle of Lamesa and Dr. Wesley Strayhan of Lubbock.

The Junior Miss Program is a nationwide program for senior high school girls designed specifically to grant scholarships to winners at the local, state and national level.

Judging is based upon interviews, scholastic achievements, creative and performing arts, physical fitness and poise and appearance.

Mike and Cathye McCracken, former Big Spring residents, announce the birth of their second son, Gray Alexander, born Dec. 10 in Beaumont.

The infant was born at 2:55 p.m. and weighed 6 pounds, 15 ounces at birth and was 20 inches long. Welcoming the new arrival home was his brother, Charlie, 7.

Grandparents are Mrs. Charles Gray, Beaumont, and Mr. and Mrs. David L. McCracken, Eufaula, Okla.

Tiny post office lost in computer world

OPEN FOR BUSINESS — Imogene Tullos raises the flag outside the 12x13-foot post office in Centralia, Texas as she does every morning. Mrs. Tullos has been the postmaster for the town, with a population of 26, since 1967.

By ANDREW BENSON
Lufkin Daily News

CENTRALIA, Texas — Every morning except Sunday and holidays, Imogene Tullos runs an American flag up the crooked flagpole next to the white, one-room shack. Without the flag, the building easily could be mistaken for a tool shed.

Inside, Mrs. Tullos, sitting at her desk among stacks of mail, fills out forms and cancels letters. The eyes of numerous criminals wanted by the FBI stare out from the wall at her, frozen as if they are amazed by what they see.

For the 26 or so residents of this small Texas community, this is the post office.

"People will come in and wait on the mail," said Mrs. Tullos, Centralia's postmaster since 1967. "This is the only building left for them to meet in since they closed the store over there."

She put five chairs and a desk in the lobby for those who come in to wait for the 10:30 a.m. mail delivery or for those who come in just to sit and talk. She said other postmasters don't understand that.

"One said, 'I've never seen a post office with chairs before,'" she said. "I told him, 'You've never been in a country post office where you have to sit on the mail.'"

Centralia has had a post office since June 22, 1874, and since then there have been 21 postmasters. Mrs. Tullos, 56, worked as an assistant to the previous postmaster before getting the job.

"When she died, they appointed me acting postmaster," she said.

Mrs. Tullos was confirmed as the 22nd postmaster in Centralia's history shortly after that.

The post office has been in the 12-by-14 foot shack for about 10 years, previously being housed in one corner of a local store. Mrs. Tullos, and her husband, Campbell, have just bought the land where the post office sits, and they plan to put a new building there to replace the shack.

"When I first open up in the morning, it's cold," she said of the small building. "But I turn the heat on and it gets warm. It stays pretty cool in the summertime

'People will come in and wait on the mail. This is the only building left for them to meet in since they closed the store over there.'

because the wind will blow through the front and back door."

The fourth-class post office, open four hours a day to serve about 32 families in the area, seems oddly out of place in today's mechanized world of mail delivery.

"I sell everything that any other post office would sell," she said, adding that she can't sell international money orders. "I don't deliver the mail, though."

Several rows of cubbyholes hang over her desk with the names of residents scrawled on them.

"Part of them have names on them and part of the mail I stick in here," she said. "I know where it is."

A star route carrier brings her a locked sack of mail every morning, and she bundles up Centralia's mail, bearing the inked stamp of the community, to be sent all over the world.

"We receive more mail than we send out," she said.

Mrs. Tullos still stamps each piece of mail by hand, one of the few post offices that do. She said she enjoys her job.

"I meet the public four hours a day and that's enough," she said. "Then I go home and do what I want to."

It's only a dogsled race

But the Iditarod captures Alaska's imagination

By BRUCE BARTLEY
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — For three weeks each winter, Alaska's populace seems divided into two kinds of people: Dog mushers and those who wish they were.

In the small group of mushers, a few dozen of the finest captivate the entire state as they race more than 1,000 miles over some of Alaska's most forbidding terrain and through some of its worst weather.

It's the annual Iditarod Sled Dog Race from Anchorage to Nome, coming up again in March. What's the secret of Iditarod's grip on the 49th state?

Writer Tom Jones in a recent book explains the allure and traces Iditarod's history.

"Memories of the frontier period in the rest of the country have faded into books and museums and park dedications," he writes in his "The Last Great Race." But in Alaska, he says, "some of the people who pushed to the edge of that frontier still live."

"The Iditarod rekindles the light of adventure that's in all Alaskans while keeping us in touch with history. And the men and women who run it are some of the modern heroes of Alaska."

ONE OF THE most knowledgeable Iditarod

writers around, Jones weaves much of that history into his narrative of the 1979 race, describes virtually every foot of the trail and captures the character and culture of the various checkpoints along the way.

With a reporter's eye for detail (he worked on newspapers and magazines), he conveys the stark splendor of the country and the competition, without falling into lyrical excess as others writing about the Iditarod have been known to do. The adjective "grueling," more overworked than mushers or dogs, doesn't once occur in his book.

The mushers' own chronic reticence discourages superlatives.

"For the most part, mushers are solitary persons more at home on the lonely trail than they can ever be even in small groups of strangers, and the crowds make many of them at least as nervous as they make the dogs," Jones notes.

But he offers insights into what makes a musher.

Joe May, winner of the 1980 race, tells how and why a Merchant Mariner from the Great Lakes ended up in Alaska.

"I just wanted to go somewhere, move to Alaska," May recalls. "There's always a reason why you can't. All of a sudden one day the reasons went away. Took me about two weeks to get rid of everything I owned. I either gave it away, sold it or burned it."

The sport and the race naturally attract people like that, as they attract trappers, bush pilots, miners and other rugged residents who use dogs for work as well as play. But as Jones notes, the Iditarod field also includes lawyers, real estate developers, and electronics technicians, with a millionaire or two thrown in.

"As far as food and health care go, the dogs fare much better than the mushers," Jones says, and his book provides ample documentation.

IN THE EARLY races, as many as 30 dogs died, but in recent years, through careful medical checkups, the mortality has dropped to less than 1 percent.

"In any population of 800 dogs, whether they're running the Iditarod Trail or chained to a dog lot or living in an apartment in New York, five or so could be expected to die during a given month, and that's all that would die by the end of this race," Jones writes.

"The dogs are tougher than the men," says Dick Mackey, who edged Swenson by the length of a dog's muzzle to win the 1978 race. "You can't drive a dog to death; it'll quit first. And the man will probably quit before the dog."

NOW leader indicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The president of the National Organization for Women is calling for unity among members following the California NOW leader's indictment on a murder charge in Louisiana.

NOW shouldn't "waste any more precious feminist energies in internal fights," said national President Judy Goldsmith on Thursday.

Ms. Goldsmith referred to allegations that a national NOW member was motivated by rivalry when she sent Louisiana authorities a note Dec. 28 that apparently led to Ginny Foat's arrest.

Ms. Foat, 41, the California NOW coordinator, was arrested Jan. 11 and is being held without bail. A grand jury in Gretna, La., indicted Ms. Foat on Tuesday in the 1965 tire-iron bludgeoning of Argentine business man Moises Chayo, 62. She was implicated by her ex-husband, John Sidote.

A Municipal Court hearing has been scheduled Feb. 11 on an expected request by Louisiana authorities for extradition, said Los Angeles County Deputy District Attorney John Madden.

"We are deeply concerned that Ginny's highly visible association with NOW has focused the public spotlight on her far more intensely than if she had been a private person," Ms. Goldsmith said.

Asked about the supposed rivalry between Ms. Foat and Shelly Mandell, whose letter to Louisiana apparently triggered Ms. Foat's arrest, Ms. Goldsmith said she was "not aware of any 'evidence' supporting it."

Sales tax rebates down on border

By The Associated Press
People just aren't buying like they used to in Texas border towns, and the poor sales are reflected in drastically lower sales tax receipts, the state comptroller says.

Cities' shares of the 1 percent sales tax dropped 7.7 percent statewide in January 1983 compared with a year ago, but the decline in border towns ranged from 11.19 percent in Del Rio to 62.48 percent in Laredo. The checks sent to Texas cities last week reflect sales made in November and reported to state Comptroller Bob Bullock at the end of December.

Bullock blamed the declines on the depression in the oil industry and the repeated devaluations of the Mexican peso.

Laredo received $131,342 this month, compared with $350,035 a year ago. Eagle Pass' payment dropped 55.85 percent, from $85,072 in January 1982 to $37,557 in 1983.

Brownsville's $135,141 check reflects a 48.01 percent decrease from the $259,921 received a year ago. McAllen got $205,853 this month, a 53.11 drop from last year's $438,986.

Brackettville's share of the 1 percent tax dropped 35.58 percent from last year, from $1,723 to $1,110. El Paso's share of the tax was $733,000 this month, 15 percent less than last January.

Payment to Uvalde declined 11.47 percent from January 1982 to this month, from $29,987 to $26,548. Del Rio's share fell to $50,856, compared with the $57,260 in January 1982.

C-City records drop in sales tax rebate

COLORADO CITY (SC) — For the first time in a number of months, Colorado City's share of the sales tax rebate is less than that for the corresponding time a year ago.

Figures released by the state show the city will receive $10,947, which is down from $12,522 returned to the city a year ago. That amounts to a 12½ percent drop.

However, Colorado City fared better than three neighboring counties, which reported payments ranging from 22 percent to 43 percent less than last year.

MEET LISA — Apple Computer, Inc. of California introduces their newest personal computer Wednesday. Called Lisa, the computer is aimed at the office environment and is priced under $10,000. Apple says that Lisa is so easy to learn that a first-time user can put it to work in less than 30 minutes.

Apple unveils 'unique' computer

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — Apple Computer today introduced a new personal computer its designers say is aimed at making a radical change in office chores by using pictures instead of "computerese" in its operation.

Unveiled at Apple's annual meeting, the $9,995 Lisa is the first new system in three years for the nation's No. 1 personal computer company.

The system includes a keyboard and video screen, a disk storage system and six software applications — programs for such functions as writing and editing, developing financial forecasts and drawing graphs.

What makes Lisa different is its pictorial approach to computer use that lets editing, graphics, scheduling, listing and financial programs work concurrently.

Apple says a first-time user can put Lisa to work in less than a half-hour.

Perhaps the only touch of "computerese" about the system is the acronym Lisa — Local Integrated Software Architecture.

A user does not have to know any special language to operate the system. Codes and commands are unnecessary.

Instead, little pictures on the screen symbolize the things workers might use on their desktops — a memo pad, a file folder, a calculator. And a touch of a button will "tear off" a blank sheet from the memo pad or extract a document from the file folder and put them on the screen.

Another touch of a button can "cut-and-paste" a column of figures from a spreadsheet to a memo, turn a bar graph into a pie chart, shrink or enlarge a diagram, recalculate a financial forecast when one or more factors change, highlight words or change the type face in a report.

That button is on a "mouse," a hand-held device about the size of a slim bar of soap. By rolling the mouse on a desk or tabletop next to the keyboard, an arrow moves to whatever "picture" a user wants or to a little "menu" of tasks listed across the top of the screen.

"The key thing is ... it's faster and easier ... you don't have to remember codeage," said Greg Kelsey, an analyst at Hambrecht & Quist, a San Francisco investment analysis company.

He speculated that people not willing to spend lots of time mastering a computer may be very interested in Lisa. "It becomes so much easier to use that you want one," Kelsey said.

Apple expects to start shipping Lisa systems in volume by late spring. It anticipates half its first-year sales will be to medium-size companies with $5 million to $120 million in annual receipts, 35 percent to larger companies and 15 percent to smaller ones.

Thereafter, Apple expects the bulk of Lisa sales will be to small and medium-sized companies. Company officials declined to forecast projected sales of Lisa systems.

As a complete system, Lisa is "quite unique," said Gil Juliussen, chairman of Future Computing Inc. of Richardson, Texas.

Let's celebrate the dubious glory of Obverse English

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. — A lady stamping the snow off her moon boots in the foyer of the post office the other day announced to one and all that she hated this wicked winter weather because "it gives me chill brains."

She thus got the new year of Obverse English off to a marvelously mixed-up start.

There was the peevish lament of a man at the back end of a long bus queue on O'Connell Street in Dublin one rainy rush hour evening: 'If we all get on the next bus, half of us will be left behind.'

My mother, who was fluent in the language, could have told her it was even colder out than the thermometer on the supermarket indicated because of "the Chill Wills factor."

Obverse English, for those of you auditing one of our seminars for the first time, is the knack of rendering familiar expressions trippingly on the tongue so that they execute the most amazing pratfalls.

Former Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico, I am reliably informed, was a master of this difficult and imaginative speech form. King, who recently completed eight years as governor, lived up the old Capitol at Santa Fe with random bursts of rhetoric that turned the most immutable clichés to silly putty.

HE ONCE warned an Albuquerque legislator that leading down an administration bill with a lot of amendments — known as the Christmas tree effect in Washington — "could open up a whole box of Pandoras." Because after all, as he was fond of saying, "the best laid plans of men sometimes go aft."

As do their best laid sentences: witness King's masterful blend of the best of John Kennedy's inaugural address with Neil Armstrong's moon talk. "Ask not what you can do for yourself but take a giant step for New Mexico."

The governor, who was wont to affect "western grab" to show his pioneer origins, also liked to mimic the tumbling tumbleweed in his platform oratory. This endeared him to the common folk who could relate to a fellow saying "statues" when he meant statues and "physical" for "fiscal." I sat next to King during his governorship one night at a banquet head table and found him a witty, delightful conversationalist, temporarily at rest from any of those fanciful flights into the obverse, which I suspect he puts on like his "western grab" to project a homey country boy image.

EARL LONG, who was governor of Louisiana in my formative years as a reporter, was a master of the down home homily, delivered in the most rudimentary grammar, to point up the urbane sophistication of his opponent, invariably a big city lawyer. Old Earl never emphasized an oratorical point without a double snap of his gulluses and always deliberately mispronounced his opponent's name: thus new Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison became "DeeLaSoups."

Obverse English has long been the lingua franca of the fight crowd. A leading lightweight a few evenings ago predicted in a prefight interview on TV that his game plan for dealing with a taller, rangier opponent was devastatingly simple. "I'm gonna whip his butt," he boasted, which did seem to be a bit south of the target area specified in the Marquis of Queensberry rules.

There is an Alice in Wonderland quality about the language spoken in the vicinity of Madison Square Garden, where words mean exactly what the speaker intends them to mean regardless of any buttinskis like Noah Webster or Samuel Johnson.

A story is told about fight manager Vic Marsillo, a fixture in Jersey Joe Walcott's corner who later conducted a radio talk show on sports from a table in Jack Dempsey's restaurant on Broadway, which of course is deep in Damon Runyon country. When fight announcer Harry Markson was invited to be a guest on the show on the eve of a championship bout in the Garden, he asked Marsillo what they should talk about.

"LET'S JUST reminisce about tomorrow night's fight at the Garden," Vic suggested. Given the aura of predestination that invests some of the entertainments arranged by the fight mob, reminiscing in advance was not always an impossible assignment.

As President Eisenhower once put the elusive factor of time in context: "The future lies ahead." Unless, of course, the spokesman is Sir Boyle Roche, the famous Irish orator who worried out loud about "what our future forefathers will think."

Speaking of the Irish, and the delightfully original things they do with the Queen's English, I am reminded of the Cork publican who told me his parish priest had just delivered "one of those hailstone and brim fire sermons."

Then there was the peevish lament of a man at the back end of a long bus queue on O'Connell Street in Dublin one rainy rush hour evening: "If we all get on the next bus, half of us will be left behind."

Scientists work on world's 'most powerful' telescope

CHICAGO (AP) — A three-ton, computer-driven microscope should be able to "magnify a baseball (to) the size of the moon" and give a clear picture of a single atom, the physicist who developed the device said Thursday.

Albert Crewe, a physics professor at the University of Chicago, said in a telephone interview that the new microscope will be able to magnify objects 150 million times, at least five times more powerful than the strongest existing electron microscope.

The microscope will take three years to build and should, for the first time, will allow scientists to see single atoms in solid materials, Crewe said.

"We are trying to build a machine that will study the arrangement of atoms," said Crewe, who has worked on the project for 16 years. "We need to be able to distinguish one atom from the other and see the gap between them."

The microscope also should be able to determine how atoms behave together.

Current microscopes can see only heavy, single atoms when they are on top of a surface but they are unable to look between atoms, because they are spaced so close together, Crewe said. Atoms are usually one or two angstroms apart.

An angstrom is a unit used in measuring the length of light waves. One angstrom — the diameter of a typical atom — is about four-billionths of an inch.

"The best microscope," he said, "has a resolution of about two angstroms, so you can't see in the spaces. All you see is the fuzziness." With the new microscope, Crewe said, scientists should be able to get clearer pictures of atoms that are as little as two-billionths of an inch apart.

"It boggles the mind, doesn't it?" Crewe said.

Crewe built the first microscope capable of observing single atoms in the late 1960s.

He said the new microscope will be used largely for metal research and other biological and scientific fields.

Pokes hope history doesn't repeat vs. 'Skins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their rivalry is one of the fiercest in the National Football League, one that even led to a television commercial by Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who warns ominously that, "You never know when you're gonna be surrounded by Redskins."

That will be the Cowboys' condition Saturday when Dallas and Washington collide for the National Football Conference championship.

"We're the teams with the two best records, playing for the championship," said Joe Gibbs, coach of the Redskins. "That's the way it should be."

The Redskins are playing in the NFL Championship game for the first time since 1972 when they defeated the Cowboys 26-3. Washington lost to Miami 14-7 in the Super Bowl.

Washington's only loss this season came seven weeks ago when Landry's visiting Cowboys ambushed them 24-10. "They made us look worse than we were," said Gibbs. "They beat us."

And Dallas did a thorough job of it, sacking Washington quarterback Joe Theismann seven times and intercepting three of his passes. Gibbs remembers.

"They blitzed two or three times with things we had not seen before, and we missed picking them up," he said. "Our quarterback held the ball too long a couple of times. Our line was beat on stunts a couple of times. We missed big plays downfield a couple of times."

Theismann remembers, too. "Our inability to execute and their ability to

"I feel we are a better team now," he said. "The last game, it was as if we were saying 'Let's use Dallas as a barometer to see how good we are.' Now we feel we're good enough to win against anyone, anytime."

Much of that feeling, of course, is due to the development of Theismann, who finished the season as the NFC's top-ranked passer, throwing for 2,033 yards and 13 touchdowns.

"Joe started playing well five or six weeks after I got here," said Gibbs, whose first Washington team lost its opening five games last season but has won 18 of 22 since then.

"Until then, there was a period of adjustment. A lot of the people around him were injured and there was some inconsistency and a period of transition."

But once Theismann settled into Gibbs' system, the Redskins have maintained the hottest pace of any team in the NFL.

"This offense is designed to use the abilities of 15 or 16 different people with varied receivers. Joe devised it to suit the people in it. To be able to accomplish what we have accomplished in just his second year is a credit to the intelligence of the people involved."

Landry the Cowboys ride into Washington today. Gibbs and Redskins hope to surround them again a day later, just like in the commercial.

execute, that was the difference. Put it this way. Our execution wasn't what it could be, should be, shall be."

Theismann says the Redskin team Dallas will face Saturday has matured a great deal since their paths crossed back in December.

Some Cowboys enjoy playing in RFK

DALLAS (AP) — It sounds bizarre, but some of the Dallas Cowboys say they actually enjoy playing in RFK Stadium, where they will be the object of boos and scorn Saturday.

"It's a stimulant to play there. It gets your adrenalin going," said Dallas linebacker Bob Breunig on the eve of the Cowboys' departure to meet Washington in the National Conference title game.

"I love to play on natural turf. It's my favorite surface," Breunig said. "Having all the fans against you gets you motivated."

Former Cowboys Charlie Waters and Cliff Harris used to delight in playing at RFK.

"There was nothing like getting dirt and grass all over you — that was football," Harris said.

"Yeah, I feel that way, too," Breunig agreed. "There's a noise factor you have to deal with, but it's nice when you can quell it with a good performance."

"It's good to get ahead early if you can and take the crowd out of the game," fullback Ron Springs said.

Dallas has had spectacular success at RFK Stadium, winning there the last three times — including a 24-10 triumph on Dec. 5.

The Cowboys have beaten the Redskins six consecutive times.

"The Redskin fans really get involved," said wide receiver Drew Pearson. "They are diehard."

The Cowboys also are prepared for the worst of field conditions. They worked out all week in Dallas in frigid temperatures and on the soggy natural surface of their practice field.

BOB BREUNIG AND TEAMMATES CELEBRATE... Cowboy linebacker likes playing in nation's capital

"It (the field) will be to their advantage because the play on it," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "That place can be three degrees and snowing or 40 degrees and soggy. We'll just have to take what we get."

Landry said the crowd would be another factor.

"You can't do anything with a noisy crowd other than backing away. Then it gets louder," Landry said. "It did bother us a great deal in Minnesota. It's a real problem."

Noise gives the Dallas offense trouble when the team is in the spread, with quarterback Danny White some five to seven yards behind the center. Then, it's difficult for the players to hear White's signal counts.

Asked if he liked to play in RFK, White said "Yeah, after we win. It's a tough place to play."

"Our goal is the Super Bowl and it won't be a successful season unless we get there," said Springs.

"We've had two big disappointments the last two seasons losing out in the National Conference championship game," he said. "It was something we had to think about throughout the off-season. We don't want to have to go through that again."

Rutledge's return sparks BSHS win

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Sports Editor

What a difference a month can make. What a difference a little outside shooting can make. And what a difference just having Shell Rutledge on the court can make.

The foul-plagued Big Spring senior reentered the game late in the third quarter and sparked the Lady Steers to a 50-33 victory over Odessa Permian in a key District 4-A AAAA game Thursday night in Steer Gym.

A 37-point reversal from a Dec. 21 loss to Mojo, the win keeps Big Spring in second place in the league race with a 6-2 record. Permian dips to 5-3 and to 11-12 overall.

In other games, No. 1 Midland Lee struggled by Cooper 53-50, Midland crushed Abilene 61-30 and Central edged Odessa 41-38. Lee stands 7-1 for the district season while Big Spring, Midland and Central are tied for second with 6-2 marks.

Big Spring saw the game slipping away midway through the third quarter after leading by as many as nine points in the first half. When Rutledge drew her fourth foul and left the game at 4:45, the Odessans quickly closed the score to 24-23 on a three-point play by Laura Bartlett.

That was all coach Annette Fowler could risk and Rutledge returned to action with more than nine minutes to play.

"Just her speed, rebounding and leadership makes a difference," Fowler said later. Those three talents indeed made a big difference in the outcome of this game.

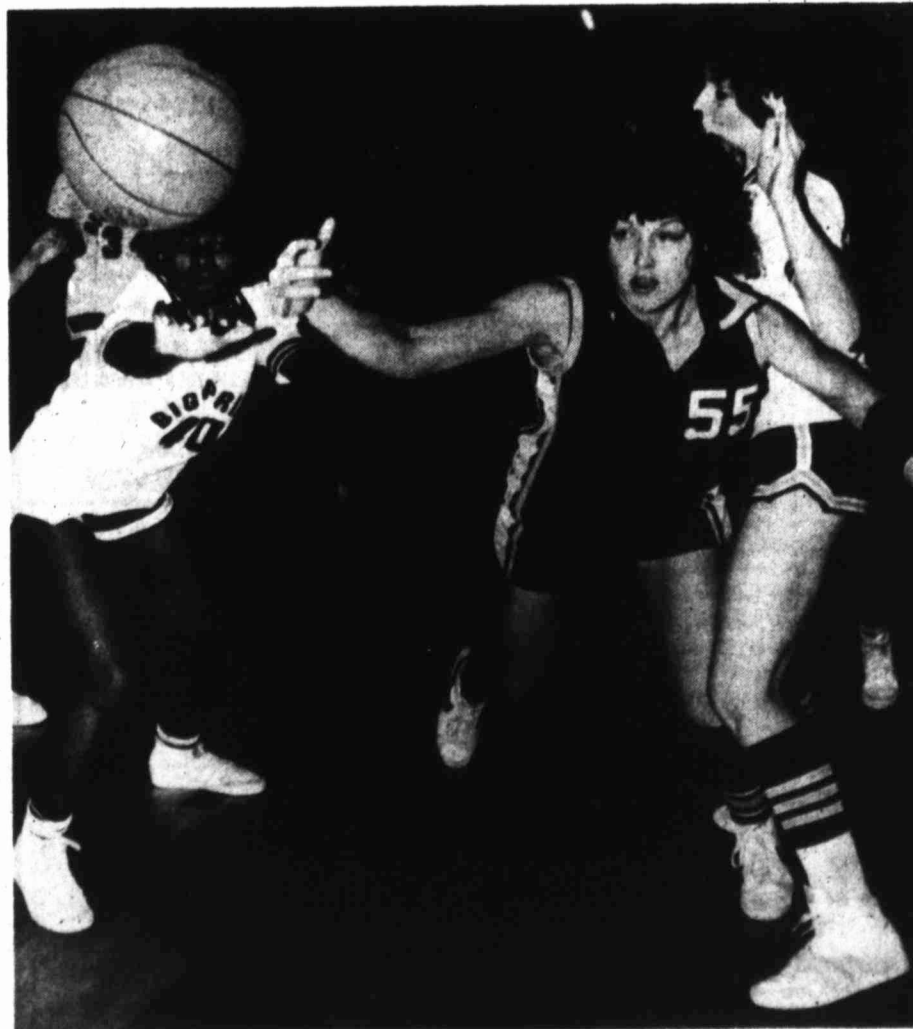

She immediately hit a rebound basket and fed the ball to Sylvia Randle for another hoop to give Big Spring a five-point lead at the quarter's end.

Here's what she did in the fourth quarter: hit two more baskets; stole the ball twice and passed to Monette Wise and Paula Spears for layups; collected half-dozen rebounds; and slapped down three Permian shots on defense.

Rutledge's presence was the spark Big Spring needed to pull away from Mojo. Wise's deadeye shooting from the top of the key provided the fatal blow.

Wise began the game by missing her first five shots but a long jumper from the key with a second left in the opening quarter snapped her streak. The BSHS

COME BACK HERE, BALL — The action heats under the basket as Paula Spears (40) of Big Spring and Melissa Harrison (55) of Permian lunge for a loose ball. The Lady Steers outscored Mojo 22-10 in the final quarter to claim a 50-33 District 4-A AAAA victory in Steer Gym.

Morris gets 20 years in prison

MIAMI (AP) — Former All-Pro running back Mercury Morris, a member of three Miami Dolphins' Super Bowl teams, has been sentenced to 20 years in prison on drug charges.

Dade County Circuit Judge Ellen Gable, who admitted she was a Dolphin fan, imposed the sentence Thursday. Morris, 35, must serve a minimum of 15 years before becoming eligible for parole.

"As I sit here today, I'm perplexed how I was convicted..." Morris told Gable before sentencing. "I think at this point that I am a useful citizen."

The 20-year term is a "death sentence" for Morris, said defense attorney Ronald Strauss. "Putting Mercury Morris in jail is a judgment of destruction," he said.

Morris was arrested at his South Miami home Aug. 18, 1982, after selling undercover Florida Department of Law Enforcement agent Joe Brin-

Klondike, Sands split; Coahoma tops C-City

ACKERLY — Melissa Schneider scored five points in the fourth quarter while Sands went 1-for-11 from the field to guide the Klondike Cougarettes to a 36-31 District 11-A victory before a packed house here Thursday night.

Sands used 17 points by Chris Wington to gain revenge in the boys game, topping the Cougars 51-44.

Ahead 18-17 at halftime, Sands watched the Cougarettes tie the game after three periods as Terri Cave scored eight points. A basket by Laurie Mosley with a minute to play accounted for the only Mustang points in the quarter.

Klondike, now 2-1, hit just 10 of 21 free shots, but dropped in five of those in the final quarter.

Melinda Bearden had 10 points for Sands, also 2-1 and 14-6 overall.

A 10-6 second quarter propelled Sands to its win in the boys game. High-scoring Cougar Tim Cope was held to five points as the Mustangs improved to 3-0 in league play, 11-8 overall, and set up a Tuesday showdown with unbeaten Greenwood.

GET IN THE HOLE, BALL — Bob Hope Desert Classic leader Craig Stadler urges a putt to curve into the hole during Thursday's second round in Palm Springs, Calif. Stadler fired a 6-under-par 66 to grab a huge lead after two days in this special five-round event.

Stadler maintains torrid pace

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Craig Stadler, already setting a blistering pace in the $375,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic, says he'll need more of the same to win the tournament.

"I've got to keep going. I can't relax. I can't look back to see who's there. I've got to shoot 8-10 under, at the very least, the next three days," Stadler said after he'd completed two rounds of this marathon event with a spectacular 129 total, 15 strokes under par.

"He may be hard to catch," admitted Gil Morgan, seeking a rare, third consecutive victory. The unique format, however, could work to his advantage. Morgan said.

"You never know," said Morgan, who trails by seven strokes in the five-day, 90-hole event. "With a tournament this lengthy, you may have a chance to make up a little slack."

And Stadler, who followed an opening 63 with a 6-under-par 66 at Tamarisk in Thursday's second round, agreed.

"It's much too early, in this tournament, to tell. The courses are in such good condition, the weather is so good, there are a lot of birdies to be made out there."

Wise's hot shooting, defense aid Big Spring

junior then sank seven of her next 11 tries — six of those from the city limits range — to lead both teams in scoring.

In addition, Smith came off the bench to sink two shots from the left corner to aid in the fourth quarter Lady Steer surge.

While Big Spring was hitting a tough night, Permian was having a tough night. Not only did they miss on 41 of its 56 shots (72 per cent), but Mojo turned the ball over 36 times. Why? The BSHS press caused many of the mistakes and an aggressive inside defense many of the others. The rest were just their own errors.

"I still wasn't totally satisfied," Fowler grinned. "We still let them have too many good shots."

True, Permian had its chances but more than one shot was rushed or arched too high because of waving defensive hands.

Big Spring, now 11-9, got off on the right foot, building an 8-0 lead before Permian finally scored at the 2:43 mark on a shot by Stephanie Sorrels. The biggest Lady Steer lead was 17-8 at 5:28 in the second quarter as Mojo recovered to narrow the deficit to 19-14 at the half.

A layup by Debbie Hinds cut the score to two, 22-20, and Barlett's three-point play made it a one-point game. That's when Rutledge turned it on, and despite her no-holds style, she remained in the game until the buzzer.

"The girls really wanted this one because of what they did to us the last time," Fowler said.

Randle followed Wise with 12 points while Rutledge added 10. Carolyn Gibbs led Permian with 10.

Big Spring was hindered by an injury to Debra Rubio. Although she played, the effects of a deep thigh bruise slowed the normally-quick-footed senior.

Again, Big Spring floundered at the foul line, converting just two of 14 freebies.

In the junior varsity game, Permian used a 17-7 third quarter to run past Big Spring 59-45. Alice Lopez had her best night of the year, tossing in 13 points while Monique Jones added 12. Tris Clemons — who had 27 points in an earlier 49-43 victory over Mojo — scored her only two field goals in the first quarter and was held to eight points.

Dr. William Berryhill, pastor of Faith Baptist Church, 1209 Wright, says with a smile that Faith Baptist "is a friendly church. We try to emphasize that, and I try to set the tenor for that myself. The church can be no friendlier than the pastor."

Berryhill is talking from the study of the west side church. It is a comfortable room filled with a wall-full of books and a desk cluttered with the activities of a busy man. The room is warmed with a small gas heater.

Berryhill said he enjoys working within a church, and adds that he has long felt that pastoring a church was "what the Lord wanted me to do." But Berryhill began his career in the ministry after studying to work with music and youth groups in the church.

Berryhill is a native of Florida. He was born in Tampa and grew up in St. Petersburg. He obtained his undergraduate degree and his doctorate from Trinity College in Florida.

"I received my doctorate in divinity 20 years to the day after I received my undergraduate degree from Trinity College." While working on his degrees, Berryhill also began an active life in the ministry.

Although he studied to work with youth and music, Berryhill says "I surrendered to the ministry in 1961. In 1964 I pastored my first church in Vidalia, Ga. I stayed there for 15 years."

After working in Vidalia, Berryhill and his family moved to Carrollton, Texas, where he pastored at a church for 15 months. He then moved to Big Spring, where he and his family have been living for two years.

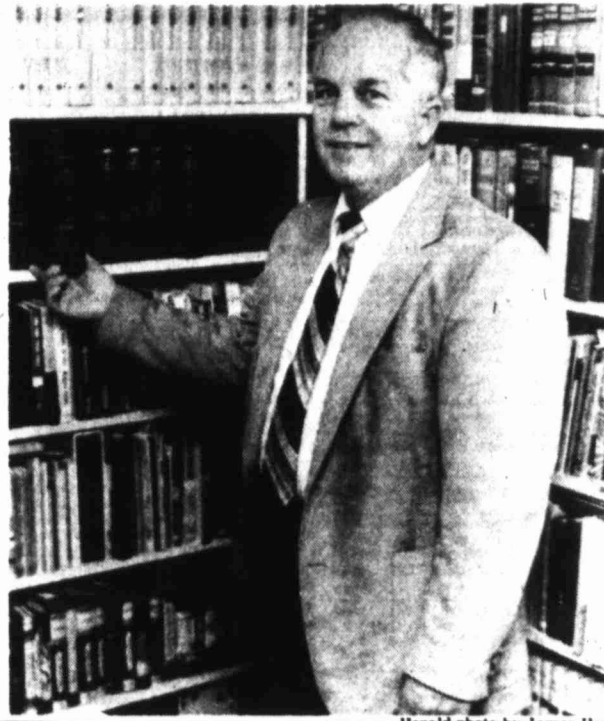

Berryhill says he and his family like this city "better than the metropol." Although he sometimes misses the greenery of his native Florida and Georgia, "I like this area."

Faith Baptist Church itself is a little more than four years old. It was formed with 45 charter members under the directorship of Pat Githens. Berryhill is the second pastor at the church.

Berryhill says he likes to think of Faith Baptist Church as "a soul-winning station here on the west end of town." The church has a full slate of services during the week, and participates "in the world-wide mission outreach," Berryhill explains. The church contributes to the support of missionaries throughout the world.

Because of their work with missionaries, "missionaries come in to the church at least once a month" to talk to the congregation. A missionary to Ecuador is slated to come to the church at the end of this month, he added.

Faith Baptist Church is "affiliated with the World Baptist Fellowship and Arlington Bible College in Arlington, Tx," Berryhill says. He adds that "I am one of 11 pastors who serve on a missions committee for the World Baptist Fellowship."

FRIENDLY CHURCH — Dr. William Berryhill, pastor of Faith Baptist Church, says the church, located on the west end of town, is one of the friendliest in the city. He and other parishioners work on that attitude, he says. Berryhill has been pastor of the church for about two years.

Baptist Fellowship and Arlington Bible College in Arlington, Tx," Berryhill says. He adds that "I am one of 11 pastors who serve on a missions committee for the World Baptist Fellowship."

For the coming year, Berryhill says he foresees a growth for the church both "numerically and financially." The church noted an increase in these areas in 1982. "Only four percent of the churches showed an increase last year." He and other members of the church are thankful for the church's growth, he says.

Berryhill's family includes his wife, Barbara, and four children, including Robert Paul, a student at the Sand Springs Christian School. Other children are Bill Jr., a music and youth director at the Temple Baptist Church in Fort Worth, and Robin and Lisa, both of Dallas.

Week of Prayer continuing

Services for the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity will continue through Tuesday according to several area clergymen.

The Week of Prayer for Christian Unity is a co-sponsored effort of St. Mary's Episcopal Church and the Roman Catholic churches of Big Spring. Bishop Sam B. Hulse, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, is presiding. Guest preacher is Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Angelo.

Services for today, Saturday and Monday are at 7 a.m. in St. Thomas' Roman Catholic Church, 605 N. Main, noon at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 10th and Goliad, 5:30 p.m. in the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, and 7 p.m. in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

According to Father David Bristow of St. Mary's, all the churches will observe their regular worship hours on Sunday.

On Tuesday, services will be held at 7 a.m. in St. Thomas' Church, at noon in St. Mary's Church, and at 7 p.m. in Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. This closing service in the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church will be led by Father Bristow.

Area groups to meet

Jehovah's Witnesses instruction and fellowship.

From Big Spring will be convening with members based on the Bible book of Luke chapter 12, verses 15-21. Lunsford said, "Wherein we as Christians are encouraged to center our lives on spiritual things rather than material gain."

C. L. Lunsford, spokesman for the group, said that 2400 attended such a gathering in October. About the same number are expected to attend this upcoming two-day session of Bible related general superintendent Dr. V.H. Lewis slated to preach. This effort is part of a celebration observing the 75th anniversary of the denomination.

Tournament scheduled

A benefit racquetball tournament has been slated Feb. 11, 12 and 13 at the Big Spring YMCA. Money from the tournament will go toward the Rainbow Project, the child abuse shelter which has been established locally.

The tournament is open to men and women. Fee is $10 for the first event and $5 for the second event. The deadline to enter is Feb. 1.

More information on the tournament can be obtained through the First Christian Church, 267-7851.

Imperials to appear

The Imperials will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Midland Chaparral Center.

Tickets for the performance by the nationally-known gospel group are available locally at the Abundant Life Bookstore. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Marathon set Feb. 6

The Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic School will be sponsoring an 11-mile marathon walk to raise money for National Catholic Education Week Feb. 6-12.

The marathon will begin at 2 p.m. Feb. 6 at the Highland Mall. Check-in time is 1 p.m.

According to Sister Lucy Keene, principal at the school, the marathon is open to anyone. Sponsor sheets are available at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church and St. Thomas Catholic Church.

Prizes will be awarded to the person with the fastest time, the person with the most pledges and the person with the most money, the youngest marathon participant and the oldest.

Christian, Jewish teachers band together

DALLAS (AP) — Christian and Jewish seminary teachers, and some students, get together Jan. 10-12 to review jointly what is being taught about each other's traditions, with the aim of improving their relationships.

The unusual conference, believed to be the first of its kind, involves faculty members of a half dozen Protestant and Roman Catholic seminaries in the southwest and several midwestern and eastern Jewish seminaries. About 65 students also are to participate.

The meeting, at Holy Trinity Seminary of the University of Dallas, is sponsored by the Council of Southwestern Theological Schools, an association of

Consumer prices fall

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

Consumer prices fell in December to end a year in which inflation increased 3.9 percent, less than half 1981's rate of 8.9 percent and the lowest level in a decade, the Labor Department reported today.

Moderation in the Consumer Price Index, which fell 0.3 percent last month, was attributed to worldwide recession, bumper crops, a retreat of oil prices and falling interest rates on mortgage loans.

The rise in consumer prices was the smallest since the 3.4 percent gain in both 1971 and 1972, when government controls were imposed on wages and prices, and was in sharp contrast to the double-digit surges in 1979 and 1980.

While relief from record-high interest rates on home loans helped contain inflation, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker has warned that budget deficits will not be brought under control has kept interest rates abnormally high, something that could thwart recovery from recession.

"Meaningful action to demonstrate the government's discipline on the fiscal side would reduce concern about future inflation and future interest rates," Volcker said in a speech Thursday night.

The Reagan administration, meantime, is looking ahead to an economic revival, even as a new poll says Americans consider the president's economic policies a failure.

President Reagan said Thursday the United States was entering a "season of hope" despite the despair caused by the highest unemployment rate, 10.8 percent, since the 1940s.

During an impromptu appearance in the White House press room on the second anniversary of his inauguration, Reagan blamed the state of the economy on his predecessors.

The recession had been coming for several years and gradually growing worse," he said. The recession began in July 1981 and continued through last month, although an increasing number of private economists think the slump is ending now.

Reagan also said "nearly every economic indicator shows us heading into recovery."

A day earlier, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige had said an end to the longest recession in the postwar period was at hand and that 1983 would be "a year of recovery."

An increasing number of Americans, however, apparently are losing their patience, according to pollster Louis Harris.

"People don't think this president is fair," Harris told the Consumer Federation of America's consumer assembly in Washington. By a margin of 55 percent to 27 percent, a majority of the people in Harris' poll said Reagan's economic program has been a failure, Harris said. Eleven percent said it was too soon to judge.

In other economic developments:

The president of the National Association of Home Builders, Fred Napolitano, said declining interest rates should help pull the housing industry out of its slump this year. He said builders were encouraged by the number of houses started in December, when new construction was up 43 percent over the recession low point of Oct. 1981.

The Labor Department reported that 6.27 million people were collecting jobless benefits in the week ended Jan. 1, the highest level since the program began in 1935.

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.

This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation.

Lily Tomlin hosts 'Saturday Night Live'

NEW YORK (AP) — Lily Tomlin created Purvis Hawkins, her sexy soul singer, for a television special last May, and she and Purvis will be back Saturday night — as host and musical guest — on NBC's "Saturday Night Live." Maybe.

"Now I'm going to do Purvis again. ... I PLAN to do Purvis again," the entertainer says. "And I'm scared. What if I'm not dressed in time? We're live, and I've got to be out there, whether I'm ready or not."

"Sometimes you get lucky," she says with a big smile, "and things go easy."

The "Saturday Night Live" appearance will be Miss Tomlin's third — she was host of the show Nov. 22, 1975, and Sept. 18, 1976. Her return comes with the once enormously popular program seemingly on the road to recovery.

The audience for "SNL," which was rumored to be close to cancellation not long ago, has grown impressively since the new season began Sept. 25. The Jan. 8 show, a repeat from October with Ron Howard as host, reached more than 7 million homes.

"SNL" underwent radical change with the departure of cast members like Chevy Chase, John Belushi, Dan Aykroyd, Gilda Radner and Bill Murray. Their ultimate replacements, notably Eddie Murphy and Joe Piscopo, appear to be building the same kind of following for the program.

It's been a long time — 20 years? — since Lily Tomlin invented her first character, the pretentious Grosse Pointe matron, on the stage at Wayne State U.

"They were doing this variety show," she remembers, "and when I saw what they had, I could tell they needed material. I told them, 'I think I've got something you could use.'"

"I would be the old, tasteful lady, you know, and a friend would interview me. She would stand up at the end, like this," and Miss Tomlin demonstrates, her back arched, knees spread. "It would be a joke about Grosse Pointe, and that social situation."

"Everybody just screamed."

With the exception, perhaps, of one movie, the critical flop, "Moment By Moment" with John Travolta, Lily Tomlin has been a "big success" ever since: on NBC's "Laugh-in," as the star of three Emmy-winning TV specials, in movies such as "Nashville" and "The Late Show," and on the Broadway stage, in her one-woman show, "Appearing Nightly," in 1977.

Many of the characters she has created over the years are considered classics — Ernestine the telephone operator, Mrs. Judith Beasley, Tess the Bag Lady.

"You get a feeling for the type you want to do," she says, trying to explain the process. Purvis, Agnes Angst, the punker, and Holly Oneness, a protest-singer from the '60s, were
