City reverts to at-large elections

By CAROL DANIEL
 Staff Writer

Big Spring voters likely will face a new election format in April since councilmen announced last night they will revert to pre-1973 at-large elections.

Walter Mizell, the city's legal counsel in Austin, said today that he advised the action because the Voting Rights Act requires the U.S. Attorney General's approval of election format changes inacted since 1972.

Big Spring did vote in 1973 to change from at-large to at-large by-place elections.

Mizell said because the city did not submit the change to the attorney general in 1975, Big Spring should hold elections at-large until the attorney general rules on the change.

Councilmen, City Manager Don

Davis and City Attorney Doyle Curtis refused to answer questions about last night's decision. Mayor Clyde Angel read a statement that only said the city is reverting to the pre-1973 election format on its attorney's advice.

Davis said he was told not to comment.

Mizell said the council plans to submit the 1973 proposal to the attorney general because citizens had voted for the change. The attorney could rule before the April elections, he said.

That could mean a pending lawsuit that claims city election procedures violate minority voting rights might be killed by an attorney general decision.

Mizell said submitting the changes would give the justice department a chance to rule if at-large by-place elections have an adverse affect on minority voting.

Mizell said the council's only other choice would be to not hold an election. The council, as an elected body, has the authority to call the election, he said.

A civil lawsuit filed against the city in federal district court last November claims at-large elections dilute minority voting strength and asks for single-member district elections.

Mizell said he does not expect the switch in election procedures to affect that lawsuit since elections will still be at-large. He declined to comment whether the council plans to fight the lawsuit. City staff and councilmen have not announced their decision.

The council's decision was announced after councilmen met in a closed executive session.

SWCID staff, students feel 'determined'

By CAROL HART
 Staff Writer

Staff members and students at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf expressed "positive determination" Thursday when confronted with the news that the college may have to close at the end of the summer.

The announcement came during a meeting Thursday. SWCID staff and students were told by Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District, that if SWCID cannot come up $7 million in funding from the state Legislature for the next two years, the college for the deaf will have to close.

Sam Hill, vice-president of SWCID, said most people on the campus "are anything but upset. They are showing a positive determination, and that's the only way to get the job done." Hill said that staff and students alike must "contact Legislators to let them know what we need."

Pat Jones, an English instructor, said she had expected the news, but "We're going to fight to the end. My mouth is going to change into a motor. I'm going to start talking to people, writing letters, visiting people, to explain our situation the best I can. There is a lot of work to do but we're going to win in the end. We will be here in the fall."

Miss Jones added "Dr. Hays was as honest as he could be. He's not going to stop. He's going to fight for us, and the students and faculty will be fighting right with him. We'll cover all the bases."

Cindy Frisbie, a student, said "I'd like to help (in the battle for funding.) All the deaf students here want to help. I don't think we'll have to close in the fall. I hope we're open. I'm planning on coming back in the fall."

Alex Bonura, another student, said "I feel SWCID will stay here. We'll not close. We'll continue. I have a positive attitude."

Michael Martinez, also a student, said he believes the SWCID students will aid in the battle for See SWCID, page 2-A

Snyder flushes water supply following threat of cyanide

SNYDER (AP) — A telephoned threat of cyanide contamination led officials to flush out this West Texas city's water supply, but authorities said the incident apparently was a hoax.

City Manager John Gayle said Thursday that state lab workers told him that "all tests completed so far are negative" and have turned up no trace of poison.

Authorities received the threat Wednesday afternoon, but waited to ensure the water had not been contaminated before disclosing the threat, Gayle said.

The caller told police that cyanide had been, or was about to be, dumped into the city's water supply by someone else, Gayle said.

Authorities immediately contacted the Texas Department of Health, which advised the immediate flushing of the city's water mains and the addition of extra chlorine, he said.

Gayle said more than five tons of cyanide would have to be dumped into Snyder's water system for a lethal dose in drinking water, and that all access to the system is fenced off.

"Ours is a very controlled situation," he said.

He also said the usual chlorine levels maintained to purify the water were strong enough to counteract a fatal dose of cyanide.

The threat of cyanide poisoning was improbable at best, Gayle said, but authorities had no choice but to treat it seriously.

'We Believe in Big Spring'

Ask most residents why they like Big Spring and they will answer, "The people."

This Sunday, the Herald will profile a few of the people who "make things happen" in Big Spring.

Entitled "We Believe in Big Spring," this 28-page special edition, prepared by the Herald advertising, production and editorial staffs, will provide a valuable look at the "personal side" of the city and county. Watch for it in your Sunday Herald.

Storm destroying homes in California

By The Associated Press

Four California counties were declared disaster areas after towering waves from the week's third punishing storm washed away swank homes and smashed famous piers as if they were toys, while broken levees and a record high tide forced almost a thousand families to evacuate.

Nine deaths were directly blamed on the violent storms, and six people died Thursday in a twin-engine airplane crash in Scottsdale, Ariz. that officials said could be weather-related.

Another storm was forecast to crash in late today on the central and southern portions of the state, where damage estimates have already reached tens of millions of dollars.

Meanwhile, Thursday's harsh weather moved inland today — extending from southern Idaho to Arizona, with a foot of snow forecast for higher elevations in Colorado, said Hugh Crowther of the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

Tidal charts showed the seas would normally be at their annual peak now, even without the high winds that led to the current damage.

On Thursday, the pounding surf inflicted serious damage on Southern California beachfront homes owned by such film stars as Bruce Dern and Burgess Meredith.

"I knew it was all over when I saw the hot tub sail by into the ocean," said Becky Ilagan, who fled from her bungalow in posh Malibu just before it broke up in the boiling high tide.

Gov. George Deukmejian declared Los Angeles, San Diego, Marin and San Mateo counties disaster areas. The declaration entitles the counties to money to repair damage to public property, Deukmejian's press secretary, Larry Thomas, said in Los Angeles late Thursday.

Damage from the storms was expected to be in the tens of millions of dollars, and emergency services spokeswoman Anita Garcia said at least 998 families had evacuated their homes.

"The counties and cities are so busy dealing with emergencies, they haven't had time to get any damage estimates together," she said.

The storm whipped up 90 mph winds, dropped 3 or more inches of rain on some towns in a day and sent 20-foot breakers crashing over coastal roads. It plastered parts of the Sierra Nevada with 4 inches of snow an hour as it moved inland toward the Rockies. Some areas got several feet of fresh snow.

Eleven thousand homes and businesses remained without power Thursday night, and during the storm at least 400,000 customers temporarily lost power, said Marilyn Beret, a spokeswoman for Pacific Gas and Electric.

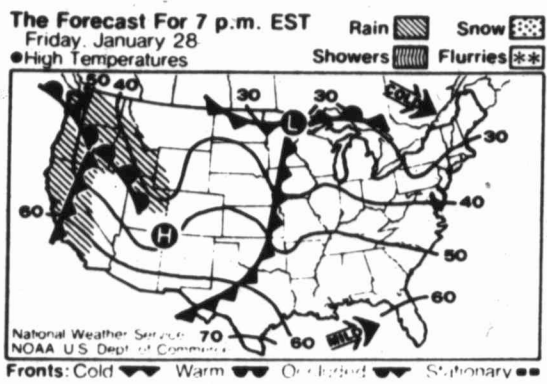

A family of five in the Marin County town of Novato, about 20 miles north of San Francisco, escaped being buried alive when a mudslide crashed into a bedroom of their $300,000 home before dawn Thursday.

Two homes slid down Fitch Mountain in the wine country of Sonoma County north of San Francisco on Wednesday night.

Part of the landmark Crystal Pier in Pacific Beach fell apart, and several others across Southern California were damaged.

At Redondo Beach harbor, near Los Angeles, waves crashed through windows and flooded a dozen businesses and four restaurants.

Scattered showers predicted for state

By The Associated Press

Fog covered the eastern half of Texas today as forecasters expected widely scattered showers across the state.

Visibilities dipped below one mile before dawn along portions of the Coastal Bend.

A flow of southerly winds kept the mercury above freezing during the night over most of the state. Pre-dawn temperatures were generally in the 30s and 40s statewide.

The forecast called for cloudy to partly cloudy skies with widely scattered showers through tonight. A daytime warming trend was expected to continue through Saturday.

CALIFORNIANS BRACED for another storm expected to roll in from the Pacific tonight, as damage reports continued to mount from earlier high winds, towering waves and record tides.

A storm with 90 mph winds dropped 3 or more inches of rain on some towns Thursday and sent 20-foot breakers crashing over coastal roads.

The 200 miles of shoreline from Santa Barbara to San Diego in Southern California was especially hard hit by the high tides and pounding waves. In San Diego, some residents used surfboards to get down flooded streets.

Gov. George Deukmejian declared four counties — Los Angeles, San Diego, San Mateo and Marin — disaster areas.

The fourth in the series of brutal storms was expected to strike mainly in the central and southern portions of the state.

"We're expecting tides Friday that will be even higher," said Anita Garcia, with the state Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, as work crews fortified a fragile lacework of earthen levees along the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

Teacher pay hikes, no taxes

Gov. White's legislative agenda includes election of PUC members

By BRUCE MILLAR
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White's ambitious legislative agenda, which includes a teacher pay raise but no new taxes, drew a warm reception from Texas legislators Thursday despite some questions about his plan for electing Public Utility Commissioners.

In a speech before a joint session of House and Senate members, the new governor listed improvements in public education, including a "catch-up" teacher pay increase of at least 24 percent and the reorganization of the utility commission as his top legislative priorities.

The packed House chamber clapped loudly when White said near the end of his speech he saw no need for a tax increase. Applause interrupted his speech 12 times — a contrast to the stony reception legislators gave Gov. Bill Clements when he addressed them before leaving office.

White said he will study increasing "user fees" as a method for helping finance state government.

"I will also have recommendations for alternative sources of funding for some state government activities. And, I will propose other innovative ways to finance state operations and capital construction needs," White said.

TEACHER GROUP leaders expressed pleasure with White's plan to make higher salaries an "emergency" matter and with his apparent effort to fulfill his campaign promises about education. The leaders drew encouragement from White's remark that a 24 percent figure was a starting point.

"We're very pleased to see that Gov. White is a man of his word. He's not saying anything different now in office than when he was campaigning," said Barbara O'Neal, president of the Texas State Teachers Association.

"It's a good indicator they intend to do something about the salaries," Betty Pyle, president of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, said of the "emergency" status of a salary hike.

The designation would put the pay hike at the first of

MARK WHITE
...says Texas has the money

the session since the House can only consider governor-declared emergency bills in the first 60 days of the session.

State Republican party chairman Chester R. Upham, Jr. said White's teacher salary proposal may result in higher taxes.

"...It appears to me that Gov. White plans to advocate policies that sound worthwhile, but will not be within the state's income over the next (1984-5) biennium," Upham said in a statement.

Following the speech, White told a press conference he could not guarantee that a tax increase won't be necessary.

UNDER WHITE'S proposal, the utility commission would be restructured to allow for statewide election of its three members instead of by gubernatorial appointment. The governor also called for creating an independent general counsel to represent consumers in utility matters.

During his gubernatorial campaign, White had opposed a proposal to have elected utility commissioners.

White's plan would abolish the fuel adjustment fee and prohibit utility companies or their affiliates from making campaign contributions for utility commission candidates.

Although many legislators said they were impressed with White's overall program some were skeptical about restructuring the utility commission and critical of White's proposals for raising state revenues through user fees.

State Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, sponsor of a bill for electing commissioners, said at this time, there probably aren't enough votes to pass the utilities commission proposal that he outlined Thursday.

"If the vote were held today it probably would fail," Caperton said. "No one said it would be an easy task to accomplish. We've got a lot of work to do."

Freshman State Rep. Steve Carraker, D-Roby, described White's speech as a "mixed bag." He applauded White's proposal to shift from reliance on property taxes to finance public school education but was critical that the governor had not been specific about where to set spending priorities in the state budget.

"The most disappointing thing I heard is the trap that the Reagan administration falls into and that is to call increased taxes user fees," Carraker said.

TO GAIN public support for his utility commission proposal White has launched a $153,000 television advertising campaign. The TV ads were scheduled to begin airing Thursday in prime-time slots in 17 Texas cities.

Shaw gives high marks to White's speech

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White's first state of the state address to the Texas Legislature seemed to draw a generally favorable reaction from West Texas legislators although there was some criticism.

Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, who highly rated White's address, said that the governor's discussion of state revenue was "pretty well on course." He really kind of opened my eyes when he said he believes that there is enough money, it just depends on where we place the priorities."

Shaw said that some increases in user fees, such as motor vehicle registration fees, may be justifiable but any such actions would need to be carefully studied.

"I'm hopeful we won't have to increase any taxes," Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, said that he does not believe White is flatly ruling out tax increases, claiming "he's got a hedge there." But Rudd said he personally believes that "we can work within the income" the state is expected to receive.

Overall, Rudd said that White reiterated the same speech he gave throughout his campaign. White "didn't get down to the nitty gritty about how this legislation will look. He wants to raise teacher salaries. But where is he going to cut?"

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, who termed White's speech "very ambitious," said that "it's going to take some effective leadership to get the job done without a tax increase."

Shaw said he endorses the philosophy behind White's call to elect members of the Public Utility Commission, now appointed by the governor, but he would like to see the specifics of such a plan before endorsing it.

White's remarks about education gave Shaw hope that the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring may fare better with the Legislature than it has so far.

The school requested $11 million for 1984-85 but a legislative budget panel has recommended giving the institution only $2 million, Shaw said.

Overall, White asserted a strong leadership role in a positive way rather than exhibiting the "bully" tactics Clements was so often accused of using, Shaw said. "I like White's tone better. It's one of cooperation and 'let's work together.' He seems to value the input of the people more than Clements did," Shaw said.

Montford said White gave a "good, practical speech in terms of objectives. The number one question is 'can we get by without a tax increase.'"

Government figures predict recovery

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a new sign of recovery, the government said today its main economic forecasting gauge jumped 1.5 percent in December, the eighth gain in the last nine months and the biggest increase in more than two years.

The Commerce Department reported the increase in its Index of Leading Economic Indicators, a compilation of 10 separate statistics, including forward-pointing information concerning unemployment, production, prices and business conditions in general.

Commerce Undersecretary Robert Dederick said the size of the increase may later be revised downward because today's report did not include a not-yet-available 11th component — business inventories — which probably declined in December.

Still, he said, "the robust advance in December's leading indicators further strengthens the case for economic growth this quarter."

Meanwhile, the report said an accompanying Index of Coincident Indicators — designed to measure current conditions — dipped 0.1 percent in December, indicating that the long recession may well have been continuing, though at a slow pace.

In the past, gains in the leading indicators have foreshadowed recovery for the economy as a whole, though recovery usually arrived sooner than nine months after the indicators turned up. Index gains prior to past recoveries also were bigger than most recent increases, indicating to many analysts that the economy's 1983 rebound will be only moderate.

The December gain was the biggest since the 2.8 percent in September 1980 as the economy was pulling out of that year's steep but short recession. Such gains of 2 percent or more have been common at the start of previous recoveries.

In contrast, the index rose just 0.2 percent in November of last year — revised downward from the original estimate of 0.8 percent — and 0.3 percent in October, today's report said.

Since the performance of several index components was announced earlier this month, it had been widely assumed the leading indicators would be up for December. President Reagan reinforced that assumption when he told reporters Thursday night they could expect "some good news" when the report was released today.

In December, the report said, six of the 10 available leading indicators showed improvement, led by a gain in new orders for plants and equipment and a drop in initial claims for unemployment benefits — an indication that layoffs were slowing.

76-year-old man surrenders following all-night standoff

AUSTIN (AP) — A 76-year-old man who was holed up all night in his house at Lake Travis following the shooting of his son-in-law surrendered to sheriff's deputies about 7:38 a.m. today.

Officers identified him as Oscar Russell.

The body of Keith White, 19, was found in the house.

The shooting was reported about 9:15 p.m. Thursday when Mrs. White ran to the nearby Cosmos Bar near Paleface Park and telephoned officers.

Jack Herrington, who said he was one of Russell's neighbors, said he heard shots and went outside to find Russell's wife, daughter and 2-day-old grandchild in the front yard of the home. He sent them away to safety.

Gary Brown, pastor of the Pedernales Baptist Church and a volunteer emergency medical technician, said he and one of the bar patrons went into the house while a co-worker distracted Russell. Brown said he found the victim's body with a gunshot in the chest. There was no sign of life, he said, so the two left.

The sheriff's deputies established a headquarters in the nearby bar as the standoff went through the night.

Increase in hunting, fishing licenses urged

By BRUCE MILLAR
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — State officials are proposing increases of up to 100 percent for most fees and licenses paid by commercial and sportfishermen, hunters and boatowners.
The increase, the first since 1973, is needed to cover the rising administrative costs of the Texas Parks and Wildlife department, said Charles Travis, executive director of the department.
But two representatives of commercial fishermen told a Senate committee Wednesday that the proposed increases will double the license fees for an industry which one witness said is already hard hit by general economic conditions.
A commercial fishermen now paying $200 would have to pay $400 for licenses and fees, said Jim Tarr, state president of PISCES, or Political Involvement of Seafood Concerned Enterprises.

"Unfortunately, our catch has not doubled," Tarr said.
The Senate State Affairs Committee referred the bill to a subcommittee where it is expected to be taken up within the next two weeks.
Gene McCrory, PISCES chapter president in Lake Livingston, testified that the fees were to be used to increase bureaucracy at the Parks and Wildlife department — the agency that administers the fees and licenses.
He cited figures that executive positions at the department had more than doubled in three years. In 1979, there were eight executive positions and last year there were 18, he testified.
After the meeting, McCrory cited department figures showing that the total number of employees had declined from a 1976 level of 2,158 to the 1982 level of 1,877. That decline should have been accompanied by a reduction rather than an increase in administrative costs, he said.

"I do not believe those administrative costs can justify those increases," McCrory said.
Travis said the fee increases were not the work of his department but the product of 10-member Senate Committee to Study State Fees and Grant Structures. Recent reductions in state revenue estimates may have made the proposed increases necessary, he said.
"They are looking at places to finance state government. To me that's the real impetus behind it," Travis said of state officials supporting the legislation.
Under the proposal, sportfishing licenses would double, motorboat renewal certificate would cost twice as much in all categories and fees for hunting licenses would increase by 50 percent.

Both Tarr and McCrory said sportfishermen would have testified at Wednesday's hearing if the bill had been publicized. It was introduced late Monday by Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas.
"I have an idea that sportsfishermen did not know about it otherwise you would have seen them here," Tarr said.
Other examples of the proposed rate increases are: for a motorboat less than 16 feet in length, the renewal certificate fee cost would double to $12; the hunting boat license fee would double to $50; the temporary sportfishing license fee would be doubled to $5; the resident fishing license fee will be no less than $10.50 and left to the discretion of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission. The current price is $5.

Police gambling

Det. John O'Connor of the Organized Crime Control Bureau in New York poses with the various gambling tables and devices at police headquarters. Here officers become experts at the various games so they can mimic the high rollers who frequent illegal casinos in Manhattan

Learning to gamble to bust casinos

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK — In a room filled with gambling equipment to rival Atlantic City's, police officers gather every few weeks to play craps, roulette and slot machines.
The setting, however, is hardly a swank casino. The spin of the roulette wheel, the throw of the dice and the shuffling of cards all occur in the office of the vice squad.
The equipment is casino quality: the roulette wheel, with its polished track, the magnificent craps table, taken from an illegal casino in a home once owned by Al Jolson, the blackjack table with its familiar green felt.
The police who gather on the 12th floor of New York City's mammoth police headquarters aren't practicing for trips to Atlantic City, Las Vegas or Paradise Island. They are here to become expert at the games so they can blend in with the high-rollers who fill a handful of expensive Manhattan townhouses containing luxurious, illegal casinos.

The plush gaming dens "reproduce the Atlantic City milieu," said Inspector Aaron Rosenthal, commander of the Public Morals Division. "They're basically for the high rollers and the rather hoity-toity. They just won't let you in off the street."
Police don't arrest customers of the gambling houses because they break no laws, Rosenthal said. Only the operators, dealers and other employees are arrested. Undercover agents must be able to identify them when they mingle with customers, which is the reason for the police casino school.
"In order to get search warrants, we have to be in there on at least one or two previous occasions as gamblers," Rosenthal said. "So, to walk in there and not know what you're doing is ridiculous."
Officials don't know how many casinos are in New York, but almost $1.3 million was seized in gambling raids in the city in 1982, up from $940,000 in 1981. The money, which comes from bookmaking and numbers games as well as casinos, goes into the city's general fund. Police also seized 377 slot machines.

Mayor Edward Koch supports the legalization of casino gambling in New York. Last year, during his unsuccessful gubernatorial campaign, he estimated that "not millions, but billions" of dollars were changing hands. "Gambling will go on whether it's legal or not and the state ought to get some of those revenues," he said.
Rosenthal concedes it is difficult to convince people that gambling is a serious crime. Off-track betting and "numbers" betting in the form of a state lottery have already been legalized in the state. And legal casinos in Atlantic City, N.J., are a 2½-hour drive from New York City.
"It's hard to have people discipline themselves and convince themselves gambling is immoral when all they have to do is take a Short Line bus to a place where the state uses it as a source of revenue," Rosenthal said.
"Without that type of self-discipline, people will not be as reticent to frequent gambling casinos," he said.

Texas allowed to keep Padre Island treasure

But must pay part of salvage costs

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — A 5th U.S. Circuit Court decision gives Texas the right to keep 400-year-old Spanish treasure found off Padre Island in 1967 but orders the state to pay one-third the salvage value of the artifacts recovered.

"It is also unfair simply to establish the salvage award as equal to the present value of the (treasure), because Texas has expended a great deal of money cleaning, preserving and cataloging the artifacts, thus presumably increasing their value," the opinion continues.
In the opinion's summary, the court noted that despite arguments to the contrary:

State officials learned of that ruling Monday, although it was handed down in New Orleans last Thursday, said San Antonio attorney Jim Parker.
Parker was hired by the state to challenge an Indiana salvage firm's claim to artifacts recovered from the Gulf of Mexico near Corpus Christi almost 15 years ago.
The treasure — composed of cannonballs, various weapons, coins, anchors, navigation instruments and some silver bullion — was taken in secret by Platoro, Ltd., from a Spanish galleon that sank in a storm off Padre Island in 1544.
When the state learned of the salvage effort, it seized the items and transferred them to the University of Texas Balcones Research Center in Austin for restoration and preservation until the legal questions could be answered.
Parker said state officials are not ready to comment until they study the 16-page opinion, nor can they say whether the ruling will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court because of the ordered salvage value payments.
The New Orleans court noted that "in this case, where Texas has a strong interest in keeping the (treasure) because of its historical significance to the state, it is particularly inequitable to compel its sale at this juncture."

—Texas had waived its immunity from suit in 1977 by a vote of the Legislature.
—The galleon was a "marine peril" and therefore subject to federal laws allowing salvage crews to claim whatever they find.
However, the court said it disagreed with a federal district court's ruling in 1981 that the state must pay Platoro for the full value of the treasure, as well as $63,000 in attorneys fees and an undetermined amount of court costs.
The ruling throws out that award and sends it back for "a determination of a dollar amount, not to exceed the value of the (treasure as found)." The court also said Platoro deserves only one-third of that value because the company made up only one-third of the joint venture that salvaged the treasure.
Two members of the joint venture — William E. Kenon Jr. and George K. Purvis — never filed suit and, therefore, are not entitled to an award, the court noted.
"Finally, we vacate the award of attorneys' fees and instruct the district court not to grant them on remand. Each party will bear its own costs," the opinion ends.

Records with 'hidden messages' regulated

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A bill to require warning labels on records and tapes that contain hidden messages when played backward passed the Arkansas House on Thursday.
The bill passed without debate 86-0. The bill's sponsor, Democratic Rep. Jack McCoy, said he had tried to make tapes containing backward masking available to all legislators who hadn't had an opportunity to hear them.
Before the bill can become law, it must be approved by the 35-member Senate and signed by Gov. Bill Clinton.

The proposal would make manufacturers responsible for the warning labels. Police could seize tapes and records without the warning.
Promoting the legislation is the Rev. Don Hutchings of Hot Springs, an Assembly of God preacher who was involved in 1981 in the burning of about $2,000 worth of records, T-shirts, magazines and books in Dardanelle. He believes the messages sometimes deal with Satan.
"I don't know anybody who has a turntable that plays backward," he said.

U.S. blocks Braniff landing slot transfer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Thursday it will not allow Braniff International's landing authority at various airports to be transferred to Pacific Southwest Airlines, threatening a proposed aircraft lease agreement between the two carriers.

Under the agreement, which must still be approved by the bankruptcy court, Pacific Southwest Airlines would lease 30 Braniff aircraft and form a new division to serve the cities once served by Braniff.

The proposal is before U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers in Fort Worth, who is handling the attempted reorganization of Braniff after it stopped operations last May and began bankruptcy proceedings.

Braniff chairman Howard Putnam has said the transfer of about 400 so-called landing and takeoff "slots" at airports to Pacific Southwest are essential to the lease agreement.

Without the landing authority, Pacific Southwest would not be able to start the new service because it would have to use its own slots.

Pacific Southwest spokesman Cecil Scaglione, however, said the FAA rejection of the slot transfer does not mean the end of the proposal. He said if the proposal is approved by the bankruptcy judge and made part of a Braniff reorganization plan, the FAA would be asked to reconsider its decision.

In a letter to Putnam, FAA administrator J. Lynn Helms implied the FAA might reconsider the matter if new information is received.

Shopping tips stretch your clothing dollar

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Good shopping skills will stretch your clothing dollar. A person equipped with these skills can recognize quality when shopping for bargains. Not always is the lower-priced item the best buy. Sometimes a higher-quality garment may have a high initial investment, but in the long run is less expensive in terms of daily wear, the replacement cost of a lower-priced item, durability, construction quality, length of wearing time, and style, says a booklet entitled "Your Fashion Dollar" by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Knowledge of fiber content, garment care requirements and construction are clues to a garment's quality. The fiber content and care instructions are found on the garment's label. Seams should be wide enough to prevent pulling out or unraveling. Seam edges should be finished. Wide seams allow room for alterations. Seams should lie flat and not pucker.

Garment pieces should have been cut to the straight grain of the fabric so the garment would hang straight on the wearer. Checks, stripes and plaids should match at seams to make the seam less visible and the garment more attractive. Fabrics with nap must have the nap running in the same direction for continuity in color shades. Underarm and waistline seams that don't match indicate poor construction.

Many store-bought garments have chain-stitched seams. Chain-stitched seams easily pull out if the thread is broken anywhere. Fabric pieces should be held together with firm and short stitches that do not pucker the fabric. Check firmness by pulling the fabric on the each side of the seam. If you can see between the garment pieces, the stitching is too loose.

Stitching should be well fastened at the ends of the seams and darts. Long threads should not hang from the garment.

Hems should not be noticeable from the outside of a garment. They should be even, parallel to the floor, in proportion with the garment, smooth, flat and equal in width throughout the hem.

Hems should give just enough fabric to lengthen the garment if needed and yet still allow the outfit to hang well. Skirt hems vary from 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 inches deep. Pant hems are 1 to 1 1/2 inches deep. Blouses and shirt hems are 1/2 to 1/4 inches deep.

Zippers should be smooth and flat, of compatible weight, length, color, type and strength of the garment. Zipper teeth should be the same color as the tape. When stress is applied, the teeth should remain closed at the top.

Straight and even stitching should hold the zipper in place, and the teeth should be covered by fabric.

Buttons and fasteners need to be firmly attached without causing puckering or gaping. They should be of a compatible color, size, type and weight to the garment. Matching buttons should be included with the garment if the buttons are covered in fabric.

Buttonholes need to be neat with raw edges not showing. Stitches should be extremely close together and covering fabric edges. Trims should require the same care as the garment and need to be firmly attached.

A garment's appearance or construction quality can be improved by reinforcing and finishing seams, replacing poor quality fasteners, reinforcing trims and buttonholes. But is it a worthwhile investment if too many improvements are needed? To answer the question, divide the total cost of the garment by the approximate number of times it would be used. Compare this with a similar garment that is of a different price range. Many higher-priced garments are more durable than lower-priced garments. A higher-quality garment may cost more, yet be a better investment.

Dr. Donohue

Slowing heart rate doesn't cause angina

Dear Dr. Donohue: With regard to your column recently in which you describe the new beta-blocker drugs used to control blood pressure: If angina pectoris is a problem of not having sufficient blood to supply the heart, wouldn't a beta-blocker (which causes the heart to beat more slowly) actually bring on angina pectoris?

just enough to support the new demands. That is to assure that the brain continues to get an adequate blood supply. You don't provide me with your age, but I should note that these reflexes become somewhat dulled as we get older. Certain blood pressure-lowering drugs (which you apparently are not taking) can cause the problem, also.

Your description of what beta-blocker drugs do is basically correct. They do slow the heart rate and help ease blood pressure. And I should have known that I would get this question when I wrote the column to which you refer.

To be more helpful, I would have to know when such episodes occur, for example, whether they happen when you are engaged in certain activities, or whether there is a relationship to your most recent meal. I would invite you to write back, but on reflection, a better bit of advice would be for you to report these spells to your doctor if you have not already done so. He can determine whether your problem lies in your nervous system, whether your blood sugar is dropping too low, or if your blood circulation is impaired.

FOR R.L. — I think you are referring to PUVA treatments for psoriasis. It's a method being tested in patients who have the most stubborn kinds of psoriasis. The "P" stands for psoralen, a drug that is taken by mouth. "UVA" is for ultraviolet light, type A. This combination of drugs and light stops the abnormal growth of skin cells, which is what produces the silver patches typical of psoriasis. As I indicated, this treatment is being used only on a limited basis, pending thorough study of its safety, as well as its effectiveness. And it's not for everyone. Often, the more conventional treatments bring relief. If you'd like, you can write to the National Psoriasis Foundation, Suite 200, 6415 Southwest Canyon Court, Portland, Ore. 97221. I'm sure they will know if PUVA is available to you in your area.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Re: itching eyelids from use of glaucoma eyedrops. I had this problem. I found that by not wiping my lids with any kind of facial tissue or towel solved the problem. Just let the eyelids air dry.

It's a nice thought, and I'm happy to pass it on. The booklet "Dizzy Spells" discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea, Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1120, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated

Dear Dr. Donohue: For years I have had low blood pressure (110/65 or such). My doctors and their nurses always tell me it is just great. But I have these near blackouts, fainting spells. Not too often, but they are scary. Could these be related to my low blood pressure? I have no other health problems. — Ms. L.O.

It's impossible for me to tell from this distance just what is causing your fainting spells. Your blood pressure sounds good to me, and that alone should not be causing the episodes, unless you get them when you suddenly change positions, as when arising from a lying or seated position, etc.

When you change the body's position that way, certain reflexes have to take over to alter the blood pressure, allowing it to rise

New deduction, easier form to benefit many taxpayers

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of working couples will benefit from a new deduction of up to $1,500 when they file their federal tax returns this year. Millions of single people will qualify for a slim new form that takes most of the complexity out of paying taxes.

An estimated 17 million families in which both spouses have jobs outside the home have been subject to a "marriage penalty" — meaning they pay more tax than they would if they are single and filing separately. The 1982 tax returns give these couples a special deduction for the first time to offset part of that penalty.

Also making its debut is Form 1040EZ, for many single taxpayers with incomes (after the $1,000 exemption) of under $50,000. This one-page form with a maximum of 10 figures to fill in is simpler than the two-page Form 1040A and much easier than the long Form 1040.

Several other changes are showing up this year, most of them growing out of the 1981 tax-cut legislation or the 1982 tax increase. Effects of some of the changes — such as a reduced medical deduction — will be delayed until a year from now, so don't be concerned about them when you file your 1982 return.

Here is how some of the new provisions will affect 1982 returns:

—In 1982, every person (under age 70½) with earned income became eligible to set aside up to $2,000 a year in an Individual

Retirement Account and pay no tax on that money and its interest until they are withdrawn at retirement. Another $250 may be set aside for a non-working spouse.

You may make your 1982 IRA deposit up until you file your return. You must file Form 1040 to claim an IRA deduction; a worksheet is on page 11 of the 1040 instructions.

—Working parents who hire someone to look after their children may get a tax credit of up to $1,440 — subtracted directly from taxes owed — for child-care expenses. The maximum credit, available only to those with incomes of $10,000 or less is for 30 percent of child-care expenditures up to $2,400 for one dependent and $4,800 for two or more. The percentage gradually declines as income rises; for those with incomes above $28,000, it is 20 percent.

Form 2441, included in the instructions that accompany Form 1040, gives details of the child-care credit.

—Even if you don't itemize deductions and no matter which tax form you use, you may deduct up to $25 in contributions to charity. For 1982, the allowable deduction for a single person or a couple filing a joint return is 25 percent of the first $100 of contributions; a married person filing separately may deduct up to $12.50.

—The $200-per-person tax exclusion for interest or dividends is no longer allowed. A $100 exclusion for dividends ($200 for a couple) remains, but there is no such exemption for interest. However, the All-Savers Certificate is still around, and although the first $1,000 in interest ($2,000 for a couple on a joint return) is tax-exempt, it still must be reported.

—There's a special new benefit for investors in the stock of most public utilities. If you take your dividends in common stock rather than cash, you may be able to exclude up to $750 worth of dividends from income subject to tax ($1,500 on a joint return). See IRS Publication 550 for details.

—Not all the changes are good news. The portion of unemployment compensation that may be subject to tax was increased retroactively to the start of 1982.

There's another major change but it won't affect how you fill out your return. Individual tax rates were cut an average of 10 percent last year, but the reduction already is figured into the tax tables and schedules that determine how much you owe.

Dear Abby

Rapists collide with March of Time

DEAR ABBY: As a regular follower of your column, I read one of your recent replies in the San Francisco Chronicle in which you stated that the statute of limitations for the prosecution of rape in California is three years.

I thought you would be interested to know that since Jan. 1, 1982, the statute of limitations for rape has been six years, as a result of legislation which I authored in 1981.

MILTON MARKS, STATE SENATOR, FIFTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

DEAR SENATOR MARKS: Mea culpa. The lawyer who provided me with the outdated information discovered his error shortly after my column had already gone to press. He's a prominent attorney, presently attired in sackcloth and ashes, eating crow in San Francisco.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I have always been close. Now that we're both married and have children, we are even closer.

Just before the holidays, Sis' husband came over to borrow my floor scrubber and he tried to get fresh. I couldn't believe it, but there was no doubt of his intentions.

I told my husband and he wanted to go to my brother-in-law's house and kill him, but we decided for my sister's sake not to say anything. I did tell my parents, and my dad's reaction was the same as my husband's. (My mother just said, "That's men for you.") For Sis' sake we all decided to drop it.

My parents have completely dropped it, but my husband and I haven't. We've backed out of family gatherings. My sister keeps asking me why I'm mad at them, and I keep saying, "We have other plans," etc.

Even if I told her the truth, she'd probably say I was nuts or I must have led him on. What should I do? KEEPING MY MOUTH SHUT

DEAR KEEPING: Join in on the family gatherings, but tell your brother-in-law that the next time he makes a move toward you, you will expose him to his wife and the entire family for the kind of person he is.

DEAR ABBY: A word to "Bill," an inmate at the Attica Correctional Facility, who wanted people to send Christmas cards and letters to inmates in prison so they would not feel "forgotten."

Abby, please assure him and others in his position that they shall never be forgotten — by their victims (if they are still alive) or their families.

FRIEND OF A VICTIM

DEAR ABBY: I was a lonely, frustrated widower after my wife passed away. Then a pretty young widow came along, and we seemed attracted to each other. However, the only time I can see her is when I take her somewhere to spend money on her — to dinner, the theater, etc. For example, I bought tickets to a special dinner at a club. We arrived there in separate cars. After the dinner, she got into her car and I got into mine, and without even a handshake, she said good night.

This young woman is wearing my ring and says she loves me.

Am I unreasonable to expect a little more personal attention? Or must I be content to see her only when there is something in it for her?

OLD ENOUGH TO KNOW BETTER

DEAR OLD: You and your fiancée (and that is what she is if she's wearing your ring) are not on the same wavelength. If you can't communicate with her now, shake hands and wave goodbye before you invest any more time or money in this relationship.

What is the definition of income? No simple answer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you had all the money paid lawyers and accountants each year for advice in determining what is income for tax purposes, you could make a sizable dent in the federal government's deficit.

As long as the federal income-tax laws cover more than 2,000 pages of laws, there probably won't be a simple definition of income. But here are three terms that you should know in filing your tax return:

—Gross or total income is all income that you received during the year except for items that are specifically excluded, such as Social Security benefits.

—Adjusted gross income is gross income minus one or more of 17 separate adjustments. In filing Form 1040EZ, there can be no adjustments; total income and adjusted gross income are the same. On Form 1040A, the only adjustment is the new "marriage-penalty" deduction. All the adjustments, including certain moving expenses, contributions to an Individual Retirement Account and alimony payments, are available to filers of the long Form 1040.

—Taxable income is what's left after the $1,000-per-person and deductions are subtracted from adjusted gross income. This is the figure on which you calculate your tax.

A CRACK IN THE LAND — Mark Spezza kneels next to a crack in the hill behind his Wilkesville, Ohio barn. Spezza believes the crack was caused by longwall mining of coal beneath his 57-acre tract. The cracks run through his century-old barn in the background.

LONGWALL METHOD — A miner watches as the shearer moves through a section of coal in a mine near Fairmont, W. Va. This method of shearing coal along a face is called longwalling and is the subject of criticism by owners of land mined near Wilkesville, Ohio.

Longwalling

Ohio coal mining process draws flak

By DALE LEACH
Associated Press Writer

WILKESVILLE, Ohio — Its exterior walls are twisted, many of its floors have buckled and the well on the back porch has gone dry. Lavern and Mary Jordan's 100-year-old farmhouse is the victim, its owners say, of a coal-mining process called longwalling.

Longwalling has divided residents of southeastern Ohio's coal country, pitting them against coal companies that for years brought jobs and sometimes prosperity to a part of the state where both have often been in short supply.

Caught in the middle is the United Mine Workers union, which says the dispute is threatening jobs in an industry already decimated by layoffs.

For the Jordans it has meant sleeping in a mobile home, a few yards from their farmhouse.

"We were afraid of fire," Mrs. Jordan said. "We were afraid of it pulling apart the electrical wires."

In longwalling, a huge shearing machine removes coal from the face of a wall as much as 500 feet wide in about 22 minutes. The machine then advances into the coal face and repeats the process.

Industry officials say it is one of the safest methods for mining coal because the machine provides its own ceiling, a canopy of steel, within the mine.

It also provides a more efficient means of removing coal. In traditional room-and-pillar mines, only about 55 percent of the coal in a vein can be mined. Longwalling allows for recovery rates of up to 90 percent, mining officials say.

But the Jordans and other residents are worried about another aspect of longwalling — rapid collapse of the earth above.

In traditional mining, pillars of coal are left behind after the mining is done, and they support the ceiling so that subsidence is so gradual it often goes unnoticed. In longwall mines, the ceiling behind the machine collapses almost immediately as the machine moves forward.

The effects above ground, according to some residents of Meigs County, are just as immediate — and costly.

Three years ago, Mark Spezza purchased a 57-acre farm with its own woods, a pond and a barn he could use for his business, pottery making.

Today, the brick foundation of Spezza's barn splits along a mortar joint, and a yard-wide concrete slab in the middle of the barn floor sinks into a three-foot crater. A six-inch crack runs the length of the floor. The building's walls, which Spezza says were once plumb, now bend.

"You know, I'm not even motivated to do things around here any more," Spezza said during a walk around his property. "I used to come down here and try to clean things up. But anymore, it just doesn't seem worth the trouble."

The Southern Ohio Coal Co., which has owned much of the coal beneath Meigs County land for a quarter-century, began mining beneath Spezza's property last year. Before operations began, the company shored up the barn with cables and braces.

Spezza says he noticed changes within days. "I walked in the barn, and I noticed there was a crack in the floor about an inch wide ... and then I looked at the wall and there was a crack there about an inch wide," he said. "I went to sleep, and I got up in the morning and it was two inches wide."

Residents of Meigs County, where longwalling is being used in two mines, have formed a protest group, Citizens Organized Against Longwalling (COAL), to fight the new mining method. The UMW says they should be aware of the consequences.

Wealthy town gets soup kitchen

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — A private welfare agency on Thursday said it would set up a soup kitchen for the poor in this wealthy town, meeting the demands of two men who have been on a hunger strike for 10 days.

Save The Children Inc. said it would set up the soup kitchen Monday at its world headquarters here not far from downtown.

The arrangement could end a dispute between the Homeless People Committee, which was formed to urge food for the needy, and the city government, which had complained that congregating destitute people would blight the town.

John Roorbach, 36, a social worker, and Matthew Vitucci, 32, director of the Westport branch of Operation Bootstrap, said they would end their hunger strike at noon Monday by eating apples.

Their fast began Jan. 16 and was held at a church. The pair consumed only fruit juices.

Westport, population 26,000, is about 50 miles from New York City and has a median annual income of $41,000. It has 46 needy people. It is the home for many celebrities, including actor Paul Newman, actress Sandy Dennis, comedian Rodney Dangerfield and author Robin Moore.

"We're going to continue with our strike until Monday," Roorbach said in a telephone interview. "We'll stop when the first bowl of soup is served."

The soup kitchen will be open from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Famed pier closed by storm

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The Santa Monica Municipal Pier, which has attracted film crews and sightseers for decades, was badly damaged in the storms that have battered California.

The pier was closed Thursday after turbulent waves swept pier buildings into the sea and ripped off the lower deck. Heavy surf dragged a third of the pier into the ocean.

"I heard it start going cajunk, cajunk," 17-year-old fisherman James Michael Kish said Thursday. He had been asleep on the lower deck when his sleeping bag began slipping into the water.

"This is the worst thing since the earthquake that happened about 1938," said Jack Rosenberg, a security guard at the nearby Boathouse restaurant.

"There's nothing you can do about nature," Santa Monica Mayor Ruth Yantata Goldway said. "All we can do is make sure the lost property of merchants on the pier is minimal, and the safety hazard to residents is minimal."

City spokeswoman Linda Sullivan said the "vast majority" of the pier remained structurally sound.

Storm-churned waves atop a rain-swollen tide about 8:30 a.m. tore off a 50-foot lower deck slung under the end of the 1,700-foot pier, the Harbor Master's office, the Porthole Cafe, a crane and a ticket sales office for fishing boats. The sea also knocked a third of the pier into the ocean as many of the pilings supporting the end were washed away.

The pier was officially "condemned" at around 11:30 a.m. by the Santa Monica Building Department, citing "storm damage."

"You heard it creaking and then it just went — boom!" said harbor patrolman Paul John, who said he was on it at the time.

"I never moved so fast," he said.

No matter what the destruction, "The pier is not going to be torn down," said Ms. Sullivan. "Santa Monica is going to be saving that pier."

"I view the pier as the heart of the city, and I'm very attached to it," Ms. Goldway said.

WINDY CITY — These school girls battle strong winds in San Francisco Wednesday as a storm front moved into the area. Some minor flooding occurred in Marin County and high winds forced closing of the Golden Gate Bridge to small cars.

Design flaw in MX engine found

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force reportedly is seeking correction of a flaw found in the second stage rocket engine of the MX Missile and is planning to skip two scheduled test firings after the engine is redesigned.

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., quoted Air Force officials as saying Thursday that design flaws have been found in the engine of the missile, one of which exploded and killed four workers last November.

Sasser, ranking Democratic member of the military construction subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee, met privately with the officials. He said they also told him the Air Force plans only one more test firing of the MX rockets — instead of the three originally planned — before launching the missile on its first test flight.

"I'm not entirely satisfied," Sasser said after meeting with Major Gen. Al Casey, director of the MX project, and three other Air Force officials.

"I still have a question about whether the testing of the Air Force is adequate prior to flying the missile," Sasser said.

Neither Casey or the other officials would comment about the meeting, but Sasser said the flawed engine is being redesigned by its manufacturer, Aerojet Corp. of Sacramento, Calif.

He said the design error involved distribution of the solid fuel and caused deterioration of the second-stage rocket casing during full thrust.

When the flaw is corrected, the engine will be checked in a test at Edwards Air Force Base in California, Sasser said he was told.

Previously, the engine was to be tested three more times at the Air Force's Arnold Engineering Development Center near Tullahoma, Tenn. at a simulation of 80,000 feet. Edwards Air Force Base is at sea level.

"They failed once in a sea level test in California, we found out today," said Sasser, who has asked Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to consider ordering more MX engine tests. "This continues to raise questions about the adequacy of the second stage of the MX missile."

Sasser sent a staff member to investigate the explosions.

More cyanide water threats

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — State police and health investigators have "swung back into action" after a revival of anonymous telephone threats that public waterworks were poisoned with cyanide.

Four more towns were threatened Thursday after 36 hours of quiet followed a week-long series of nearly 60 such calls. The latest threatened towns — Hammond, Covington, Newellton and Lake Bruin — did not shut down their water systems, state health officials said.

It was the second threat to Hammond. Mayor Debbie Pope at first asked residents not to drink or cook with the water, but three hours later she said tests proved negative and that the water was safe.

The gossip service

Public is fascinated with private foibles

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — In a country where pamphleteers first wrote about the escapades of kings and politicians in the 18th century, gossip is still helping to sell British newspapers with Andy and Koo and Charles and Diana as the main targets.

The Daily Mail's Nigel Dempster, dean of the scandal-mongers, says Britons are hooked on gossip because the country is so homogeneous. "In this country, everyone's heard of everyone. And we're all interested in each other."

In the United States, gossip columns don't have the same impact because the population is so large and diverse, he said. "A lot of American gossip columns are about people who nobody's heard of."

While scandal remains the bread and butter of tabloid gossip-tellers here, the three high-brow national newspapers eschew sex and concentrate on political foibles in their "diary" columns.

Dempster recalled that when he began work at the rival Daily Express 20 years ago, "people hid their peccadillos so it was big news if you reported that a member of Parliament was sleeping with his secretary and divorcing his wife."

NOW, NO one gasps at extramarital affairs and a child born out of wedlock "is no longer a bastard but a love child," he said.

"People lead more open lives because of my kind of column. If a husband says he's going to put his wife out of the house without a penny, she says, 'OK, I'll ring up Nigel Dempster.' In a way, we're sort of social policemen, aren't we?"

Other journalists disagree. Jocelyn Stevens, former managing director of the Daily Express, once said that Dempster's reports are rich in the three I's: "intrusion, innuendo and inaccuracy."

Alexander Chancellor, editor of the right-wing political weekly, the New Statesman, took a wider swipe at the gossip columns, calling today's cast of characters too dull and the gossip "rather stale."

"In the old days, ordinary people felt quite remote from the upper class and were amused to read about the antics of the aristocracy," he said in an interview. "Now all that's over and the upper class is much more merged and they aren't mysterious to anyone. So I think it's less thrilling to read about a duke's daughter doing something naughty."

The Daily Mail and the Daily Express, whose gossip column is published under the name of a somewhat scandalous 19th century essayist named William Hickey, find no lapse in demand.

Dempster said his column is read by nearly 6 million people and Jane Slade, the only woman on the William Hickey reporting team, put the column's readership at about 10 million.

WILLIAM HICKEY broke the news last October that 22-year-old Prince Andrew was on a Caribbean vacation with Koo Stark, a 26-year-old American actress who had appeared in several soft porn movies.

Miss Slade said the story came from a "royal contact" and boosted the Express' circulation.

Last November, Dempster was the first to report that 34-year-old Prince Charles was "desperately unhappy" and 21-year-old Diana who had turned into "a fiend and a little monster" after 16 months of marriage.

Buckingham Palace branded Dempster's remarks "rubbish" and his rivals dismissed the story. But Dempster said that after Diana's display of petulance on the ski slopes earlier this month, "every newspaper that attacked me is writing the same thing."

Dempster said his story came from inside Kensington Palace, Charles and Diana's London residence.

"The situation got so out of hand in November that I spoke out. The queen couldn't say anything. Prince Charles is not in control of the situation. There's nobody there to spank her. The person who has to improve the Princess of Wales is me," he said.

Three days after he criticized Diana for never wearing the same dress twice, she appeared in a dress for the second time "and that's not just coincidence," Dempster said of his impact.

Miss Slade said that when the Hickey column reported that the queen's husband Prince Philip was planning to attend a dinner in Los Angeles at a club where blacks are banned, he canceled the appearance.

Dempster claims to have been first with news that Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson would resign in 1976 and that Princess Caroline of Monaco and her husband Philippe Junot were getting divorced.

Man gets $50,000 for loss of wife

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — A 40-year-old Vancouver widower who claims he can't even boil water has been awarded $50,000 by the provincial Supreme Court to compensate for the loss of his wife's services.

Joseph Almeida, whose wife, Olinda, was hit and killed by a truck, received the award Wednesday.

Supreme Court Justice Patricia Proudfoot found John and Thomas Mikel liable for the Feb. 14, 1980, accident.

In making the award, Ms. Proudfoot said she was required to take into consideration such factors as Almeida's chances of remarrying, despite his statement in court that he wasn't interested in doing so.

"I cannot help but conclude that anyone that is as 'helpless' as Mr. Almeida professes to be would, I suggest, be encouraged to seek a mate before too much time passes. Mr. Almeida would have me believe he could not boil water for a cup of tea. If that be the case, then I suggest that Mr. Almeida will not be long before remarrying."

Almeida also sought damages to compensate for the fact that he had no one to answer his business telephone.

The justice advised him to buy a telephone answering device "which would operate quite successfully for a cost of between $300 and $800."

She also granted Almeida an additional $20,000 for past and future loss of his wife's wages.

Mrs. Almeida had been working as a babysitter.

Their daughter Candida, 12, was awarded an additional $12,000 for loss of her mother, and the court also awarded $1,800 for funeral expenses.

Bear buried among friends

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — An estimated 3,000 people, including numerous former players and coaches attended a short, simple funeral service today for former Alabama football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant.

Mourners included ex-coaches Woody Hayes of Ohio State, Darrell Royal of Texas, Frank Broyles of Arkansas, Fran Curci of Kentucky, Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech and Norm VanBroklyn of the Atlanta Falcons.

BASKETBALL • The Howard College Hawks continue their current road trip tonight when they head further north to battle Frank Phillips College in an 8 p.m. game in Borger.

Hawks edge Badgers

AMARILLO — Despite losing a 14-point lead, the Howard College Hawks snapped a jinx here Thursday night, nipping the Amarillo Badgers 60-59 in a WJCAC brawl.

The Hawks built on that lead until it reached a peak of 14 with 10 minutes to play. The Badgers spent the rest of the game creeping back into the contest but came up a point short.

Queens hold off AC

AMARILLO — Talk about a heartstopper. With top scorer and rebounder Nell Haskins on the bench with five fouls, Howard College watched two desperation shots by Amarillo fall short, allowing the Hawk Queens to escape with an important 58-57 victory over the Lady Badgers here Thursday night.

Amarillo roared back to come within a point but missed an opportunity to go ahead in the last minute. Holli Holloway rebounded but was called for traveling, giving AC a final chance.

WHERE ARE GOING, DEBBIE? — Abilene High defender Mary Seguin (43) puts a little hold on Big Spring High dribbler Debbie Donelson (44). The hold wasn't enough for Seguin or the Eagles as the Lady Steers swamped the hapless visitors 62-36 in Steer Gym Thursday night.

Aggies nabbed in pizza theft

BRYAN, Texas (AP)—Two former Texas A&M football players have been indicted in connection with a pizza theft in which a deliveryman was shoved down a flight of stairs.

Former defensive end Gary Rogers, 19, of Dallas was charged with assault and former linebacker Burn's Simon, 22, of Houston was charged with theft.

Simon and Rogers told police that they found the pizza on a hallway floor at Cain Hall. They said that after they had eaten some of the pizza, the deliveryman accosted them and shoved Rogers.

Foursome on top at Phoenix

PHOENIX (AP)—The four players sharing the first round lead in the $350,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament pointed to four different reasons for their success.

Leonard Thompson credited a cocktail-party tip from old friend Arnold Palmer.

Ed Sneed benefited from a short game played from some "unbelievable" places.

Hal Sutton talked about a new set of irons.

And Jack Renner pointed to the calendar.

All managed 6-under-par 65s Thursday on the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course and were one stroke in front of veteran Lee Elder.

Tied at 4-under 67s were Johnny Miller, Cal Peete, J.C. Snead and Scott Hoch.

Defending champion Lanny Wadkins topped a big group at 68. Masters champ Craig Stadler and Keith Ferguson, a winner last week in the Bob Hope Classic, each shot 73 and must improve today if they are to qualify for the final 36 holes.

Thompson said Palmer, who is not playing here, took him aside at a cocktail party last week and pointed out a "couple of things I was doing wrong." He said he was lining up to the right and "not getting far enough behind the ball."

Thompson's round included four birdies on his last five holes.

"I'm hitting the ball more solid now, and, obviously a lot straighter," he said.

Although he dropped a couple of 20-foot birdie putts, Renner said he is "not comfortable with the putter. I have been lacking confidence, and the only way you can get confidence is to make some. This helps a lot."

Renner also noted he had off-years in 1980 and 1982 while enjoying success in 1979 and 1981. He said that should put on schedule for a good season this year.

Sutton, who took one title and set a money-winning record for a rookie last season, has brought a new set of irons into play this year.

"It's taken a week or two to get used to them," he said. "I'm starting to hit them pretty well now."

While Sutton and Renner had extremely solid efforts, Sneed flirted with disaster on numerous occasions "but I just holed it from places that were unbelievable," he said.

He chipped in twice, once from about 30 yards and once from about 15, turning a couple of potential bogeys into birdies. He made three putts of about 15 feet, one to save bogey and one by accident when, he said, "I was just trying to lag it up and it fell in."

Trio guides Spurs win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—George Gervin likes playing at Market Square Arena, and having Artis Gilmore and Mike Mitchell along makes the experience even more enjoyable.

Gilmore, Gervin and Mitchell combined for 109 points Thursday night as the San Antonio Spurs downed the Indiana Pacers 143-138 in a National Basketball Association game.

"I'm real pleased with the outcome," said Gervin, who scored 37 points. "We played well down the stretch. We showed we have a dominating center like Artis, and he's only going to help Mike's and my game out."

Gilmore's help added up to 39 points, while Mitchell finished with 33, including two clutch free throws in the final seconds.

It was hard to stop either team. Indiana shot better than 63 percent for the game, while the Spurs hit a 60 percent clip.

The Pacers, who led 66-61 at the half, were led by Herb Williams, who scored 28 points.

HOUSTON (AP)—Riding the bench doesn't sit well with Houston Rockets forward Elvin Hayes, but coach Del Harris says the strategy has helped the club win two consecutive games for the first time this year.

Hayes came off the bench to lead the Rockets in rebounding with 12 and help boost Houston to a 98-84 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

Hayes was fined an undisclosed sum by the Rockets Tuesday for criticizing Harris as "petty" and "paranoid." Harris had benched the 37-year-old forward for failing to set a pick Saturday in a 113-96 loss to Portland.

The Rockets, now 8-35, beat the New Jersey Nets 114-111 Tuesday night, the first game in which Bailey started in place of Hayes.

Allen Leavell led the Rockets with 16 points and handed out 13 assists. The point guard had 22 assists against New Jersey.

BEAR BRYANT FUNERAL SERVICES — The casket of Alabama football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant is carried into First Methodist Church this morning by 90 members of his 1982 football team.

Admirers mourn at services

Perkins said she told him to go on recruiting, saying, "If you've got a player out there, go get him. I'm not going to, of course," said Perkins. "There's plenty of time for that."

At the request of the family, the funeral caravan will pass slowly through Bryant landmarks as it rolls through Tuscaloosa — Bryant-Denny Stadium where Alabama lost only two games during his era and Memorial Coliseum, which housed Bryant's office.

Among the tributes to Bryant was one from a cross-state rival, former Auburn Coach Doug Barfield.

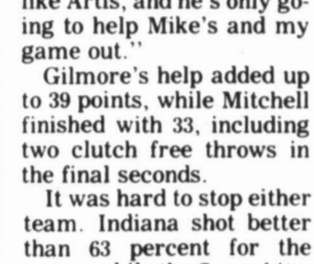

"We're losing more than just a great football coach," Barfield said. "We're losing a man who brought ideals and values to athletics. I'll always respect the man."

The way the economy is, we may all go to "The War Against Poverty" headquarters & surrender.

True love is: when a man is asked what other person he would rather be than himself and he replies, "My wife's second husband."

A true gentleman is a husband that holds the door while you carry in the groceries.

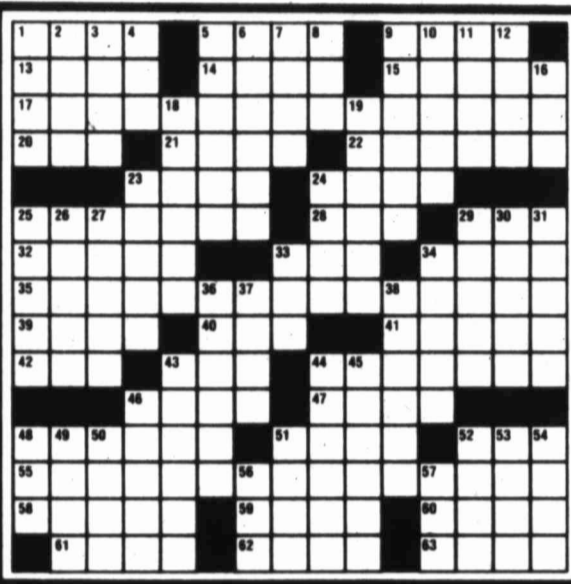

A really true gentleman is one who loads his feed while I hold the door at Big Spring Seed & Chemical, 602 N.E. 2nd. FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 29, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's new aspects can bring you all sorts of opportunities, so be alert at all times. Make sure that you understand with clarity just what others are expecting of you now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find out how you stand with others and do whatever is needed to improve relations. Strive for increased happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make new acquaintances who can help to enrich your life in many ways. Attend a group meeting that is worthwhile.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take part in new activities that are fine for you but first know all the facts concerning them. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Loved one may have a change of attitude, so go along with new ideas for best results. Take it easy tonight and express happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show more interest in civic affairs and gain the respect of others. Make this a most worthwhile and productive day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Improve your environment so that it is more inspiring and brings you greater comfort. Come to a better understanding with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to what a good friend has to suggest for greater pleasure ahead. Take health treatments and improve your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get rid of whatever is causing disharmony at home and be happier in the future. Put your talents to work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to study a new project well before you put it in operation. Don't take any risks that could prove costly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make long-range plans that could give you added income in the future. Come to a better understanding with family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are likely to be upset about matters you can't change, so concentrate on whatever brings you inner peace.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can understand both sides of a situation, so teach to stand up for what is right and success and happiness will follow. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

PLANNING SPECIAL WEEK — Sister Lucy Keane, principal of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic School, talks over plans for the upcoming National Catholic Education Week, which will be observed Feb. 6-12. Many events are planned for the week locally, including an 11-mile marathon Feb. 6. Students talking with Sister Lucy include, from left, Michelle Rodriguez, Michelle George and Sandra Puente.

Catholic Education Week set

By CAROL HART
Religion Editor

The principal's office at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic School is painted in bright colors with comfortable furnishings and green plants placed around the room. Outside the office one can hear the sounds of children playing during a mid-morning recess.

But inside the office, Sister Lucy Keane, principal of the school, is busily outlining a schedule for National Catholic Education Week, slated Feb. 6-12. Locally, several special events will highlight the week.

Kick-off for National Catholic Education Week locally will be an 11-mile marathon Feb. 6. This will be the third year for the marathon, which raised more than $6,000 last year.

National Catholic Education Week is sponsored each year so that "the Catholic schools of the nation may celebrate their contribution to society in the field of education. We ask the community to celebrate with them," says Sister Lucy. Theme for this year's celebration is "In God We Trust and Teach."

During the week, the Catholic educational system attempts to recognize "important people in the school community — the students, parents and teachers."

Teachers in Catholic schools like to recognize the fact that "The parent is the primary teacher. The school helps that parent in his role."

Sister Lucy said another hope is that the week will allow people to see "The program we have to offer and the excellent manner we have to offer it."

Another basic philosophy of the Catholic schools is that they are "a place where values are taught, faith is nurtured," as well as academics are taught.

At the school, "We work with children's values. We work with the total child and with whole families."

The Immaculate Heart of Mary School has grades kindergarten through 7th, Sister Lucy says. The size of the school in the past three years "has almost doubled."

The school also offers "a full-day kindergarten. It's a good, tough program. It's an academic program which readies children for the first grade."

In the upper grades, children "get a sense of high school." Classes are departmentalized, with students journeying from math classes to science classes, etc. They must learn "to deal with different expectations. They are not isolated by any means of experiences they will have in high school."

The Immaculate Heart of Mary School is growing, and "We've just now completed a science lab and a new library, or a learning resource center. We're not quite moved in yet," Sister Lucy explains. There are also classrooms for every grade offered at the school, a large cafeteria with a stage and kitchen, and office space.

The Immaculate Heart of Mary school has eight classroom teachers, a physical education, art and music teacher, and a bus driver.

Sister Lucy says the school strives to "be aware of what's happening in the community. We try to become involved." Students and staff members at the school participated in the recent Christmas parade, promote blood drives and assisted in a recent Heart Association project. Participating in such events "is part of the learning experience of a child. You can't isolate them."

Of her job as principal, Sister Lucy says "I love it. I'm not saying it is easy. There are frustrations, but somehow we see ourselves through. We work through them."

Sister Lucy is also complimentary of "the sense of support that I receive from the pastor, the school board and the parents."

A rededication ceremony will be held Monday of National Catholic Education Week. Students will be witnessing teachers rededicate their call as teachers, and in turn, teachers will hear students rededicate their roles as learners.

Tuesday will be Family Day, which starts with an open house at 12:30 p.m. Parents will be invited to the school and their children will lead them on a tour. Later that evening, the Parent's Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

Wednesday will be Children's Day. It will be "something different from the routine. Children will dress up. There will be a movie," and other events to break up the day.

Thursday will be Teacher's Day. Students will honor their teachers and members of the Student Council are also planning a surprise.

"All of this is going toward a goal," Sister Lucy says. Climax of the week will be a special Mass celebrated Friday. The Mass is open not only to parents, teacher and children, but "to anyone who wants to celebrate with us."

Deacons installed at Nazarene church

Ten men were installed as deacons at the First Church of the Nazarene Sunday. Special music was presented by the Sanctuary choir and a solo was presented by Jerry Scott.

Dr. Carl Powers, pastor, gave a sermon entitled "Duties of a Deacon," and presented the charge to the men.

Installed were Earl Bohannon, Dub Bryant, Dan Laws, Dell McGuire, Jerry McGuire, Cotton Mize, Jimmy Pedigo, Pete Rosenbaum, E.J. "Bud" Smith, and Bob Spears.

Following the installation ritual and a commitment prayer the congregation joined in giving the right hand of fellowship to the new deacons.

The church is planning a "singspiration" at 6 p.m. Sunday. The musical presentation will feature soloists, duets, trios, quartets and ensembles.

Sunday morning's service is "The Road to Revival." A "Possess the Promise" revival is scheduled to begin Tuesday with Dr. V.H. Lewis, general superintendent, as evangelist. This is a part of the 75th anniversary celebration of the Church of the Nazarene which was organized at Pilot Point in 1908.

Sunday morning's service is "The Road to Revival." A "Possess the Promise" revival is scheduled to begin Tuesday with Dr. V.H. Lewis, general superintendent, as evangelist. This is a part of the 75th anniversary celebration of the Church of the Nazarene which was organized at Pilot Point in 1908.

Memorial service planned

The Salvation Army will host a memorial service at 6 p.m. Sunday for Lillian Dovie Hart, a long-time member of the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Hart died recently. She was for many years a soldier with the Salvation Army, and was a 30-year member of the League of Mercy, the women's club.

The service will be conducted in the citadel at 600 W. 4th with Lt. Carroll Braun officiating.

Rock, generation gap

Dr. Randel C. Widener, Ph.D., will speak out on "Rock and the Generation Gap?" in a special film presentation slated at 9:45 a.m. Sunday at Faith Baptist Church, 1209 Wright St.

"Rock...It's Your Decision," deals with one of the major problems facing youth today," says Dr. Widener. "Its characters are regular people from a typical church, each with varying opinions and tastes in music, but most without any Biblical basis for their choices. As the story unfolds, they are confronted with facts about "rock" that provoke strong reactions in them.

The public is invited to attend.

New hymnal planned

PEKING, China (AP) — China's Protestants plan to publish a new hymnal this year, with at least a fourth of the hymns to be original songs composed by Chinese Christians.

Shen Deron, secretary general of China's official Protestant group, disclosed the project at a meeting of the Christian Association of China. She also announced that China has published 1 million Bibles and condemn foreign "Bible smugglers."

E.T. DIES — Michael Patrick Bilon, the 2-foot-10, 45-pound actor who played E.T. in the popular movie died Thursday in Youngstown, Ohio, from complications arising from pneumonia. He was 35. Bilon had roles in several movies, was a former sheriff's dispatcher, a bouncer in a bar and a basketball coach at a church school. He made the only live appearance as E.T. at the Hollywood Bowl.

5 die in B-52 fire

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — A flash fire that killed five Air Force workers doing routine maintenance on a B-52, the third major accident in two months involving the decades old bombers, raises doubts about their safety, a congressman said. Air Force officials had no immediate explanation for the explosion and fire Thursday that left the giant plane a charred hulk and injured eight other workers. Investigators were sent to Grand Forks Air Force Base to search for clues today. Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., calling for a congressional investigation, said, "We owe this to military personnel, whose safety and lives may be jeopardized by the aircraft, and we must assure ourselves that the B-52 fleet is still capable of its mission." Matsui's district includes an Air Force base that was the scene of an earlier B-52 crash. Thursday's explosion, created by burning fuel, came as the B-52G was undergoing routine maintenance after a training mission the previous night, said Col. Frank F. Horton, commander of the 321st Missile Wing. The plane, built in the late 1950s, was not carrying nuclear weapons, he added. The fire broke out at 9:30 a.m. and was controlled in 15 minutes, but only the tail of the bomber, parked on a maintenance ramp, was left intact, officials said. "We had work going on, on the fuel quantity indicator gauge, and other people were giving it regular service and repair," said Col. Frank Cheshire, deputy maintenance commander at the base. On Dec. 15, a B-52 crashed at Mather Air Force Base in California, killing all nine crew members. Two weeks earlier, a B-52 was destroyed by fire just after landing at Castle Air Force Base near Merced, Calif. The crew escaped safely. "These three disasters may simply be freak coincidences, but we have an obligation to closely examine any possible connections," said Matsui. He called on the House Armed Services committee to open an inquiry.

Happy Super Sunday

NEW YORK (AP)—The banks will be closed and the nation is already heady with expectation. The only thing missing is a Hallmark Card telling us to have a "Happy Super Sunday." Without doubt, the Super Bowl is America's No. 1 undeclared national holiday.

It's also our top-rated one. According to NBC, five of the 10 most-watched shows ever are Super Bowls, and Sunday's match-up between Washington and Miami on NBC is bound to give the No. 3 network a big boost in viewers, advertising revenues (a 30-second commercial costs $400,000) and promotional messages for future programs.

The last time NBC won a week in prime time was in October, when it televised another sports classic, the World Series. But Super Bowl XVII is such a phenomenon that even mighty "60 Minutes" will be knocked off as a weekly ratings winner.

NBC projects more than 100 million viewers will watch the game, which means this will be the first Sunday of the season in which CBS' super successful lineup (beginning with "60 Minutes" and ending with "Trapper John,

M.D.") won't take the night.

The fact that this game transcends sports is not lost on NBC's announcing team of Dick Enberg and Merlin Olsen. "This is a social event," said Enberg, "so early on, we'll develop stories for fans who don't necessarily watch football. That way, they can get involved and care."

The beneficiary of the Super Bowl's audience will be "The A Team," which is scheduled after the 30-minute post-game show, around 10 p.m. EST. NBC has high hopes for "A Team," a campy spoof of "Mission Impossible," about a bizarre band of soldiers of fortune.

Last Sunday's two-hour premiere was heavily promoted by Mr. T, who was Sylvester Stallone's punching bag in "Rocky III" and, before that, the bodyguard for real-life heavyweight boxer Leon Spinks.

Mr. T looks like the kind of dude who would dot your eyes if you crossed him. And his semiaudible promotion seems to have gotten the message across, that "The A Team" is action-adventure, pure escapist entertainment, a commodity much in demand in these hard economic times. "The A Team" was last week's fifth-rated program.

"We're not going to get 20 Emmy Award nominations with 'A Team,'" said Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment. "But you can't program an entire schedule of 'Cheers,' 'St. Elsewhere,' 'Hill Street Blues' and 'Fame.' We're in the circulation business, and this show has good general appeal."

Mild quake hits Malibu

MALIBU, Calif. (AP)—A mild earthquake jolted this surf-ravaged area early today, but there were no immediate reports of damage, officials said.

The 6:54 a.m. tremor registered 3.6 on the Richter scale and was centered 20 miles southwest of Malibu in Santa Monica Bay, said Leroy Irby, a geophysicist with the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

Scientists at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena agreed on the quake's magnitude, but said it was centered 6 miles southwest of Malibu Beach, said Dennis Meredith, a Caltech seismology lab spokesman.

Malibu was among the hardest hit areas of the Southern California coast during a Thursday storm that sent heavy surf crashing into numerous homes.

James Skiman, a Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy stationed at Malibu, described the quake as "rolling" and said it lasted "maybe two seconds, three seconds."

Although a quake could pose an extra hazard to slopes already weakened by heavy rains, no damage was immediately found, Skiman said.
