Reagan '84 budget goes to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan today unveiled a deficit-choked $848.5 billion budget plan for 1984 in which the entire spending increase would be absorbed by the military and higher interest charges on the national debt.

As he delivered his spending blueprint to Congress, the president plunged straight into a showdown with lawmakers over his push to give more to defense and less to social programs. He said he remains "adamantly opposed" to a public jobs bill, the first order of business on Capitol Hill.

Despite a $189 billion deficit projection for fiscal 1984, the year he once pledged would show a surplus. the president declared: "The stage is set; a recovery to vigorous, sustainable, noninflationary economic growth is imminent.

Reagan proposed to increase spending in the new fiscal year by $43.3 billion — or a modest 5.4 percent - from fiscal 1983, which ends Sept. 30.

The increase, an amount adequate only to cover the expected rate of inflation, equaled the combined rise devoted to defense and interest on the national debt. That left all domestic spending — on balance $\,$ frozen at or below this year's

Move over, Ernest Tubb - Lou Franceschini's

Unlike balladeer Tubb who sang, "I could waltz across Texas with you in my arms," Franceschini chose a more pedestrian way to cross the state. The 32-year-old former assistant professor of theatre at Christian Brothers College in Memphis, Tenn., is walking across Texas. But the Lone Star State is only a part of a 4,000-mile walk he's making across the United States. Franceschini began his walk from Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 13 and will end it in New York City in July The walkathon is designed to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis.

At every stop on the way, Franceschini and his support partner (Mark Bell, 24, a former student of Franceschini) are soliciting pledges for the hospital which treats children with catastrophic diseases. They don't carry money, and they would rather not accept any, except for gas and food money. They are asking people to contribute something per mile, but "if we don't catch them this time, at least we will have planted a seed," Franceschini said last week during a quick stop in Big Spring. Abilene will be the halfway point on his journey. "Depending on the way you look at it," Franceschini said. "we're running either a couple of days ahead or about a month behind. "We had put together an original schedule way back in July of last year, and theoretically, we were supposed to be here in Big Spring around the first of January," he said. "But we have had a couple of setbacks. Franceschini originally had a partner in Bob Meltzer, but Meltzer was forced to drop out in Los Angeles with a damaged leg nerve.

And his original jeep driver quit at El Paso. But Franceschini keeps plodding along. Does he get discouraged? "Sure, that's only human," he says around his corn cob pipe. "But the point is can you just pick back up and keep going, because that's the key to the whole thing - How far can you go? 'The further we go along," he said, "the more responsible we feel to all the people that have helped us back then. We feel that we have to justify these people's confidence in us, so that's an additional kind of impetus, the further along we go.

Going further along involves Bell driving four to six miles down the road and waiting while Franceschini walks. Once at the jeep, he sits, rests, and cares for his feet. Holiday Inns supply them rooms along the way, and other manufacturers are supplying equipment.

The accommodation part of it is really helping out in this part of Texas in the wintertime, Franceschini said.

When the two travelers can't make it to a motel for the night, they are forced to camp out. Something Franceschini hadn't done much of

"I am strictly a man of the indoors," he said.

"The furtherest I'd been out of doors was my front yard. But I (now) have lots and lots of practice.

"I did a lot of reading before I left," he said, "but it was all in the abstract. I read a lot about walking, read books on people who've done long walks, read a lot of books on camping, and so on and so forth. But getting out there and actually doing it is totally different - it's like reading a book on swimming and swimming.

In addition to learning about camping, Franceschini said he's learned a lot about the

"The most I knew about West Texas before I left was that there were strong winds here and Preston Jones wrote three plays about it," he said. "It's a very real place, and those winds are very real. But it's a very nice place. I say this in all seriousness -I wish Texas would annex all the way to the West Coast because if we'd gotten the reception in the West we've gotten here it would have been great all the way through.

The biggest problem so far has been finding a safe place to stay, Franceschini said, but weather and finances have been continuing problems. The dehydrated camping food the two carry creates its own problems, he said.

"You eat that stuff for five or six days at a stretch," he said, "it does strange things to your digestive tract. I was looking for every bush along Highway 4 and Highway 98.

Franceschini said the worst night he had spent so far was a rainy night outside of Bowie, Ariz. "When we woke up," he said, "there was an inch of rain at the bottom of the tent. It was like the 'Poseiden Adventure'. Everything we owned got The hiker has worn out eight pair of shoes en route, and learned to deal with blisters. "It takes two to three weeks to get your feet into condition," he said. "I don't care how good of shape you're in. I had never bled through two pairs of socks before. Franceschini undertook the walk as a kind of "sabbatical, to strengthen yourself against burnout, which is a problem with any kind of helping profession." he said. The two have raised $15,000 to $25,000 for St. Jude's, Franceschini said, and he expects to get higher pledges the farther east he walks. What does he plan to do when he gets back? "Sit down - a lot," he said. But, he added, "teaching is something I'm good at, and I'll probably find my niche back in the teaching Franceschini has no plans at the moment to write a book about his journey, but adds, "if there's something worth communicating about this trip, I'll try to communicate it.'

Book or no book, Franceschini feels he will be satisfied at his journey's end.

"It's an operation where nobody loses," he said. "I get really tired and achy and footsore and all that, but I think in the long run as well as in the short run, it's justifiable."

Big Spring resident Sharon Andrews is starting a petition in support of the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District, announced recently SWCID would have to close its doors at the end of the summer if $7 million in funds were not appropriated by the state Legislature.

The Legislative Budget Board recommended only $2 million be appropriated for 1984-1985 — far short of SWCID's $11 million request.

The petition asks the legislators "reword Senate Bill 892 (the bill establishing the institution) to establish a fair, non-discriminatory tuition rate for non-resident students, and to define and implement a method of funding appropriate to the needs of such an educational institution," Ms. Andrews said.

It also says the signers "recognize the deaf as viable members of society," and "support the purpose and the mission of SWCID' as a 'worthy expenditure."

"I understand that legislators are more impressed with people who take the time to write a personal letter," she said, "But the petition will allow people to show their support of SWCID if they're unable to take the time to write a personal letter to their legislator."

Ms. Andrews has worked at SWCID as the registrar, and is the sister of a deaf person, she said.

'Having worked with them,'' she said, "I know they are very capable of being viable members of society. The only difference between them

Report says Houston leads state in car theft and arson

HOUSTON (AP) — Auomobile arson and theft are on the upswing because of the tough economic climate and the majority of the state's criminal activity has centered here, the manager of the regional office of the National Automobile Theft Bureau says.

"At a time when automobile sales are like they are people can't sell their cars because people can't afford to buy them." said Charlie Evans of the NATB in Dallas. "They can get more out of their insurance carrier than anyone.

The NATB is a non-profit organization suppored by the insurance industry, Evans said. It works as a liaison between the industry and law enforcement agencies and is primarily a record-keeping firm.

About 80,000 automobiles are stolen yearly in Texas and almost half are never recovered, Evans said. 'Quite frankly, just the city of Houston has more activity than the total rest of the state." Evans said. Evans said figures show that, for the month of December, Houston had 1,460 auto thefts reported and 651 pickup trucks. Dallas had the next highest activity, with 441 cars and 101 pickups stolen for the same period. Houston fire investigators say car arson to collect on insurance policies has increased. Records kept by arson investigators here show 709 suspected car arsons were investigated in 1981 compared to 842 last year. Houston has a separate vehicle arson investigation

Truckers strike

Participation varies across country

By The Associated Press

Gunshots hit two rigs and cinderblocks were dropped from an overpass as a strike called by independent truckers began today. But many haulers kept on trucking even though they were unhappy with proposed higher fuel taxes and user fees.

It was not clear how many of the nation's 100,000 independents actually supported the shutdown called by the Independent Truckers Association but opposed by other trucking groups.

However, truck stops across the eastern half of the country said their business was off early today. Some truckers were driving cautiously and said they feared reprisals, although the only confirmed reports of violence came from Maryland and Pennsylvania.

'The front tire of a tractor-trailer was shot out, flattened," said Maryland state police Sgt. James Lough, who also reported the cinderblock throwing today. No one was injured in either incident on U.S. 40 near Cumberland, he said.

State police in Pennsylvania reported five rock throwing incidents today, but no injuries.

Meanwhile, Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association, predicted "every truck on the highway is going to come to a screeching halt." He claimed that 75,000 of the nation's 100,000 independent drivers would take part in the shutdown.

But James Sills of Akron, national chairman of the Council of Independent Truckers, said a shutdown "is not the wisest thing. The timing is wrong, with the economy in as bad a shape as it is.

Independent truckers, who own and operate their own rigs, haul most of America's fresh food and much of its household goods and steel, although they represent fewer than 15 percent of the nation's truckers. They are angry about recently approved boosts in federal fuel taxes and truck fees. The fees take effect in July 1985 and the fuel taxes go into effect in April of this year.

No nationwide agreement was reached on a strike deadline. David Kolman, a spokesman for the Independent Truckers Association in Los Angeles, said the walkout started at 12:01 a.m. EST today. But other truckers, notably those in Ohio and Massachusetts, said their deadline is 12:01 a.m. EST Tuesday.

Slower than usual business was reported at truck stops in Indiana, New Jersey, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Oklahoma, Connecticut and one stop in Colorado. But most truck stops in Washington state and state police in Texas reported business, usually slow after a weekend, was normal early today.

The strike is opposed by most of the trucking industry, including the American Trucking Associations and the Teamsters union.

The strikers' key demand is repeal of the highwayuse taxes, which were part of legislation that increased the gasoline tax from 4 cents to 9 cents per gallon starting in April. Under that bil, the user fees increase from $240 a year to $1,900 a year by 1989. The truckers also want a lid on state highway taxes and an end to the 55 mph speed limit.

Laos raid revealed by colonel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A retired Green Beret killed or captured." lieutenant colonel says he led a raid into Laos last year in an unsuccessful search for U.S. servicemen who might have been left behind after the Vietnam war, the Los Angeles Times reported today

Lt. Col. James G. "Bo" Gritz told the newspaper he and his men fought a 30-minute firefight against what he believes were communist Laotian forces in the Southeast Asian country on Nov. 27.

"It was close," the highly-decorated Vietnam veteran told the newspaper in a recent interview before he returned to Thailand. "We could have been

The Times reported that Gritz, 44, said his mission was financed mainly through private donations and added that the U.S. government had helped the effort, although he refused to say whether or not any government funds were involved

Gritz said actors William Shatner and Clint Eastwood were among the private contributors. The Times said neither actor could be reached for comment.

The State Department declined to confirm the report, the newspaper said.

Continued from page one other financial institutions to complain about the inconvenience and cost of the program.

John Currie, president of State National Bank in Big Spring, said the program makes honest taxpayers pay for the sins of a few who fail to report interest and dividends on income tax forms.

He also isn't happy about the headaches and costs that go along with the new law. The cost of compliance and time it takes for us will probably equal the extra taxes the IRS gets," Currie said. "They should postpone the law until next year - that way it would give them time to see if it's cost effective. B.Y. Butler, also of State National, said institutions will be spending anywhere from $5,000 to $50,000 to get ready for new law something which won't bring a healthy investment return. "Financial institutions will spend tens of thousands picking up a few dollars of income that won't bring to the total scene anything comparable," Butler said.

But the "freeze" doesn't apply to the expense side of Americans' budgets, as Reagan's plan for keeping the federal deficit under $200 billion calls for new fees, higher taxes and program

If Reagan gets his way in Congress, the poor and elderly will pay more if they are sick; millions will have to pay taxes for the first time on health insurance benefits; and some students will have to pay twice as much up front for loans.

Reagan's proposed spending plan for fiscal 1984 does have its direct benefits for individuals. Homeowners-to-be can get their FHA loan a little faster, and some unemployed workers will be able to take on part-time work without losing their iobless checks

Reagan's budget for fiscal 1984, which starts Oct. 1, looks a bit more grim for individuals than his past efforts, for it lacks major tax cuts. The last tax cut for individuals under the administration's plan takes effect July 1 this year, which is in fiscal 1983. Of course, its impact stretches through fiscal 1984 as well.

The clearest evidence of Reagan's spending freeze will come for those who get checks or other money from the

For the millions who rdceive Social Security checks, welfare payments, Supplemental Security Income, veterans pensions, food stamps or child nutrition help, cost-of-living increases will be delayed for six months.

The delay - from July 1983 to January 1984 — was part of the compromise solution to Social Security system's problems. The Reagan administration expanded the idea to cover the other programs.

It will be tougher for every federal employee — both civilian and military and every federal retiree: there would simply be no cost-of-living increases in pay or pensions for a full year. For civilian employees, the budget would actually add up to less money in every paycheck for many.

On top of the pay freeze, Reagan also would like to increase federal employees' pension contributions from 7 percent to 9 percent of pay in 1984 and to 11 percent in 1985. Adding no pay increase to the pension contribution hike means civilian federal takehome pay would drop 2 percent in fiscal 1984 and another 2 percent in Doctors treating the elderly under Medicare would feel the chill of the freeze as well, with the proposed budget wiping out any increases in their fees for fiscal 1984. The budget estimates that will save the government - and cost the physicians - $700 million.

Another part of the solution to the Social Security problem will chop a bit out of the take-home pay of every working American with slightly higher Social Security taxes. For someone making abut $20,000 a year, the bigger tax bite will add up to just over a buck a week, an increase offset by a special one-year tax credit.

While the doctors will not be getting more from the government, the elderly and poor will be paying more for their medical care

The cost of getting sick will rise at least a buck for every day a poor person is in the hospital and another buck for each visit to the doctor's office. These dollars will be in Medicaid "co-payments" designed to discourage "over-use" of medical care.

For the elderly, out-of-pocket Medicare costs will go up — at least for the early part of illnesses. They would be expected to pay from $17 to $28 more a day for the first two months in a hospital.

But then, Reagan proposes to reduce the elderly's share of hospital costs. For someone in the hospital for 150 days in one year, the out-of-pocket Medicare costs would drop from $13,475 to $1,530, the administration says.

Military spending up 14 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administratioreas, ahead of the U.S. military, has proposed spending a record $1.55 trillion over freent increase in Pentagon spending is necessary to deter a growing threat from the Soviet Union.

The budget sent to Congress proposes spending a record ut many non-defense programs. Those social spending cuts, combined with rising deficits, llion increase over the current year.

President Reagan, contending that a 20-year-long Soviet Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., last week said another $15 billion could be trimmed from defense. And other proposals would cut up to $25 billion.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger testily noted those proposals Sunday as he outlined the budget at a , Pentagon news conference.

"I've asked may times, 'What is the $15 billion to consist of?"' Weinberger said. "The answer is, 'we don't know.

Weinberger said a $25 billion cut would mean the cancellation of 14 major weapons systems, including two new aircraft carriers, Air Force fighters, Army tanks, and cruise missiles.

There were no surprises in the Pentagon budget, which Weinberger said is "a realistic reassessment of our present and future military capabilities in the face of the growing threat.' Repeating an oft-stated administration theme.

Weinberger said the Soviets continued their defense buildup during the 1970s while American defenses 'Only in the past two years have we been able to reverse this trend and begin the needed modernization," Weinberger said. "During the same period and before, the Soviet Union has steadily expanded its own military program at a much higher level than ours.'

The Pentagon spending plan includes the pay freeze announced by Reagan last week in his State of the Union speech. Weinberger said he hoped the lid will "not have an adverse effect" on the nation's 2.1 million military personnel.

Weinberger said he would try to make up the freeze in the fiscal 1985 budget. He gave no percentage, but said the future budget would include a pay hike of about 4 percent to make up for the 1984 limit, plus another raise beyond that.

The budget proposed to add 37,300 people to the military, most of them to go aboard new ships. The administration earlier proposed increasing the Navy from 450 to 600 ships, but the newest budget projects a 650-ship Navy by the early 1990s.

BUDGET DOLLAR — This chart shows where the money will be coming from to support the Reagan 1984 budget and where those monies will be spent.

Budget proposal chocked by $189 million deficit

Reagan also called for $146 billion in standby taxes from fiscal 1986 through 1988 if needed to hold down future deficits. The package, consisting of an crude oil excise tax equal to 12 cents per gallon of gasoline and an unspecified income tax surcharge, already has been of Congress.

And although his own economic forecast sees unemployment persisting above 10 percent well into 1984, the president declared, "I remain adamantly opposed to temporary make-work public jobs or public works," a position congressional Democrats and many Republican will resist mightily.

Reagan rejected any major tax increases for 1984 and promised to protect future income tax cuts now on the books from repeal by

However, his 1984 budget would accelerate an increase in Social Security payroll taxes as part of a bipartisan compromise of tax and benefit changes for restoring the pension system to health. The changes would reduce next year's deficit by an estimated $12.2 billion from what it otherwise would be.

The new budget also would set a limit for the first time on the amount of employer-paid health insurance premiums a worker could receive tax-free.

Without his domestic budget savings, Reagan said, future federal deficits will reach unprecedented heights — climbing from $231 billion next year to $300 billion in 1988 - and snuff out any hopes for a lasting return to economic prosperity. Even with congressional ap-would be forced to accept deficits that would still run above $100 billion by 1988. Reagan had come into office promising to balance the budget by proval of his plan, the president

1983, a pledge he soon postponed to 1984 and eventually abandoned. Instead of balancing its budget this year, the government expects to show a record $208 billion deficit - more than double the $91.5 billion estimate Reagan made a year ago.

"Only the most sweeping set of fiscal policy changes could help to reverse the trend and set the budget on a path that is consistent with long-term economic recovery,' Reagan said in his budget message to Congress.

"We have come far in restoring order to the chaos prevailing in our economy and government affairs just two years ago," he added. However, congressional leaders, less sanguine about the state of the budget and the economy, promised to make their own sweeping changes once they got their hands on Reagan's spending blueprint.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicted Democrats and Republicans would join in a "bipartisan effort" to defend social programs and reduce Reagan's ambitious military buildup program. Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee forsees a "donnybrook" over defense, and Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said the president's standby tax package is in trouble.

Meanwhile, both parties in Con-gress were devising jobs programs House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Democrats are developing a $5 billion to $7 billion jobs program. Two conservative Republicans, Dan Quayle of Indiana and Orrin Hatch of Utah are offering instead a $2 billion public service jobs program.

Reagan said a vigorous and lasting economic recovery is at hand, and it ultimately will provide the best jobs program for the nation. But his own forecast shows unemployment receding only very gradually in the next two years from its current post-World War II record 10.8 percent.

We'll miss Bear Bryant

Bear Bryant's death removes color and drama from the game of football. Bryant was a coach universally admired by former players, assistant coaches and associates, and the winningest college football coach ever.

Bear Bryant came from a poor Arkansas farm family. He was a growing boy before he got his first pair of shoes. He proudly kept them at night, always polished, on top of his bureau. And he actually once wrestled a bear - for a fee. Thus the nickname that stuck for life.

In summary, he was a poor boy, who did his very best at what he tried. He was able, like few others, to convince good players they were better than they were. That was one secret of his Although his successes - particularly the record 323 victories and three national titles - will be remembered most by historians, the love and concern he showed for his players will remain his foremost contribution to collegiate athletics. "All you had to do was call on the man," said former player and Alabama successor Ray Perkins. "If you had done right by him, there was nothing he wouldn't do for you."

Paul "Bear" Bryant certainly did right by us.

The great escape

Everyone likes to have that place they can go to escape

I don't mean like flying to the Bahamas - but a place where a person can go to get away from the assault of everyday pains and headaches of the real world.

Some people go to a favorite bar to drink away problems or to a libaray to soak up some quiet. For me it's the Mom and Pop hamburger joint that's indigenous to almost any town.

There's one here in town I go to occasionally when I can't live another second without a homemade cheeseburger, but more importantly I go there for the

'That's ridiculous," you may be saying, "What cheeseburger joint in the history of the world ever had any atmosphere?'

However, the place I go is better than a tab of Valium and I always leave with more spring to my step than when I went in When I hit the door the place and people are always bustling. The sizzle and pop of burgers hitting the grill is like hearing a favorite song. And the customers are in good spirits as laughter and stories echo

Almost before I warm up to my seat, the food is there — all hot and aromatic. I've almost bitten through the paper around the burgers before unwrapping them because they smell so good.

The waitress always leaves the check too, so I don't have to wait around for it when I'm ready to go. I hate to wait around for a lazy waitress to bring the check when I'm in a hurry.

I ALWAYS leave a tip and so do most customers. It's one of those places where you leave a tip because you want to and not out of habit or guilt.

I leave reluctantly, but I feel like facing the rest of the day. I have the strength of the food, but also I feel my humanity restored because of the burger people's caring.

Reagan at the halfway point

As a fully accredited member of the fraternity of pundits, I am legally required to assess each president's performance at the midpoint of his term. This may be a foolish exercise but it is not a pointless one. A president who endures scrutiny on a hundred separate matters deserves to be judged occasionally for his overall performance. And pundits obsessed with the issues of the day can profit from stepping back and putting the president in historical perspective.

Before examining specific issues, some general observations are in order. Ronald Reagan is like Longfellow's little girl — when he is good he is very good, and when he is bad he is horrid. Like most conservatives, he sees no contradiction between limited government at home and military expansion abroad. (Liberals customarily reverse the error.) That contradiction endangers not only his defense budget but his inroads against taxes and domestic spending

As a thinker, then, Reagan has serious faults. As an executive, he deserves more credit than he gets. He doesn't get bogged down in the details of running the government, delegating them instead to his department heads. He has come closer than any recent president to implementing that goodgovernment ideal, Cabinet government. His attention is on the broad issues, not on who uses the White House tennis courts.

So how has Reagan handled those broad issues? Consider the most important ones:

THE ECONOMY - Reagan's chief virtue is his ability to keep his head while all about him are losing theirs. Few chief executives would have the backbone to endure a severe recession as Reagan has, confident of his ultimate vindication. Almost alone in Washington, Reagan recognizes that the huge deficits being predicted will evaporate with recovery. He recalls Oliver Wendell Holmes characterization of Franklin Roosevelt: "a second-class intellect, but a first-class temperament.'

Despite the current pain, his handling of the economy is Reagan's primary achievement. But supporting the Federal Reserve's fight against inflation, he has helped to restore the foundation for growth. By cutting and indexing tax rates, he has constrained government expansion. By reducing domestic spending, he had made an historic reversal. His minuses: failing to cut Social Security outlays, occasional fits of protectionism. Grade: B-plus.

DEFENSE AND ARMS CON-TROL — Though he understands that domestic programs mainly benefit the people who administer them, Reagan can muster no such realism about military ones. He is as indiscriminate with defense expenditures as he is hard-headed about social programs. Besides accelerating weapons procurement, at great cost, he has maintained U.S. aid to allies who can ably defend themselves, like those in Reagan's early loose talk about nuclear war has been replaced with serious efforts to negotiate strategic arms limits with the Soviets. But his progress is little and late. Grade: F.

FOREIGN POLICY — Reagan's clandestine war against Nicaragua is only the latest product of his belief that all undesirable change in the world is the work of the Soviets and must be resisted. That attitude also got him the European gas pipeline fiasco. It could get him a

But the President has made a sound proposal for a Mideast peace, insisting that Israeli demands are not synonymous with American interests. His plan is a step toward resolving the Palestinian issue. Reagan also deserves credit for his Caribbean Basin Plan. Grade: C.

SOCIAL ISSUES - Reagan promised to implement the New Right's "social agenda" — allowing prayer in public schools, outlawing abortion, blocking the Equal Rights Amendment. I disagree on the first, agree on the second, and am indifferent on the third. But he has done little on any of them.

On crime, however, what he has done has been bad — calling for preventive detention of some criminal suspects, proposing to gut the exclusionary rule, launching a publicized war on drug smuggling. His conservative stress on personal freedom is highly selective. Grade:

WITH THIS professor, Reagan is just passing. (Of course I would have flunked three of his four predecessors, with Ford the only exception.) But midterm exams don't determine the final grade, which after all is delivered by the If Reagan can manage a vigorous recovery, a courageous solution to the Social Security crisis, some restraint in the military budget, and a new arms treaty with the Soviets. he may still pass with flying colors. This pundit isn't betting against

Billy Graham

I'm afraid of dying

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I've never admitted this to anyone, but I am afraid of dying. Do you think there is anything wrong about feeling like this? — E.F.

DEAR E.F.: Frankly, I wish more people gave more thought to the subject of death, because (as someone has said) you are not prepared to live until you are prepared to die. The greatest tragedy for any person is to go through life without giving any thought to eternity, and to the fact that some day each of us will meet God. Jesus told a parable about a man who became very rich, and yet he never gave any thought to his soul and where he would spend eternity. Suddenly and unexpectedly he died. "But God said to him, 'You fool! This very night your life will be demanded from you''' (Luke

Have you asked yourself why you fear death? It probably is for at least two reasons. First, you may fear death because you do not know what lies beyond the grave. Second, perhaps you fear death because you sense that you will be judged for your sins and you know that you are not ready to meet God. But Christ can take away these fears because he is the answer to them. There would be only one way for us to know definitely what lies beyond the grave, and that would be for someone to die and then come back to life again. And that is exacty what happened with Jesus Christ! He died and was placed in the tomb, but on the third day God brought him back to life again. We know that death is not the end of our existence, but that eternity is before us because Jesus Christ rose from the dead. "In his great mercy he has given us new birth into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, and into an inheritance that can never perish, spoil or fade — kept in heaven for you" (1 Peter 1:3-4). You need not fear death or judg ment if you know Christ, because whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16). Give your life to Christ. Turn to him for forgiveness, and open your heart to him by faith. Then you too can know the joy which millions of Christians have experienced through the ages - the joy of forgiveness and eternal life in Christ.

Thanks for the hogwash

Dear Editor.

Mr. Brazel, we here in Big Spring want to thank you for your hogwash in the Herald. You and you alone have helped change so many people's thinking more than anyone I know of. In fact, if you keep writing your hogwash, there won't be a Democrat left in Howard County. Maybe not even a Republican. We will all be Independent voters. You always have a socialistic outlook toward the people trying to enslave

Mr. Brazel, this was the Democrats' platform that F.D.R. wrote when he put in all our social programs and that was also put into effect in 1960. I would like for you to answer these questions.

The Democratic party platform of 1960 stated it would reaffirm the economic bill of rights (what economic Bill of rights)? Where did this come from? You must open your mind, Mr. Brazel. Bear clearly in mind, Mr. Brazel, the concept of individual rights and economic rights that the Democrats offered on their platform. Have you got your mind open, Mr. Brazel? 1. The right to a useful and renumerative job in the industries or shops or farms or mines of the nation. (At whose expense, Mr. Brazel? Someone has to produce these jobs, Mr. Brazel, who?)

2. The right to earn enough to provide adequate food and clothing and recreation. (At whose expense, Mr. Brazel? Someone has to produce wealth, who, Mr. Brazel?)

3. The right of every farmer to raise and sell his products at a return which will give him and his family a decent living. (At whose expense, Mr. Brazel? Someone has to buy these products — who, Mr. Brazel?)

4. The right of every businessman, large and small, to trade in an atmosphere of freedom from unfair competition and denomination by monopolies at home and abroad. (At whose expense, Mr. Brazel?)

5. The right of every family to a decent home. (At whose expense, Mr. Brazel? Who will produce this home?) 6. The right to adequate medical care and the opportunity to achieve and enjoy good health. (At whose expense, Mr. Brazel?) 7. The right to adequate protection from economic fears of old age, sickness, accidents and unemployment. At whose expense, Mr. Brazel? 8. The right to a good education.

(At whose expense, Mr. Brazel? Jobs, food, clothing, recreation, homes, medical care, education, etc., etc. These do not grow from nature, Mr. Brazel. These are manmade values, goods and services produced by men, Mr. Brazel. Who is to provide them, Mr. Brazel?)

If some men are entitled by right to the production of the work of others, then this means, Mr. Brazel, that the producers' rights are condemned and he is to furnish slave labor for the rights of others? There is no right, Mr. Brazel, for the Democratic party to enslave the rights of others, and this was what Mr. Gramm was fighting, he can see socialism in its worse form. You just answer these questions, Mr. Brazel, if you can. I will gladly join the Democratic party and be a loyal democrat for the rest of my days. (Is your mind still open, Mr. Brazel?) Thank you for the same old hogwash.

C.G. GILSTRAP F.M. 700

P.S. They have taxed the producer through unions, state and federal taxes until the producer is going out of business, then where will we get these rights that are supposed to be given to some and taken from others???

All in favor

please say 'aye' Dear Editor,

I make a motion that the $9,000 per year raise that the United States Congress voted themselves this year be rescinded, and that the money be allocated to the soup kitchens that feed the unemployed, the homeless, and the street people. All in favor say "Aye." OMA ANDERSON

Taxing again is not fair

Dear Editor.

I heard the president's speech last night. He made a good speech. But so he did when he was campaigning for office. He talked about being fair in taxes and the freeze he wanted to put on government jobs, Social Security and servicemen's and women's cost of living raises.

I want people to know they put that freeze on retired Civil Service people as of October 1981 till October, 1982. Now a year and four months later he is talking about freezing the others. I don't like to see a freeze on anyone's pay. But the cost of living will never go down as long as people can pay the high prices. The cost of living will go up before anyone ever gets a raise.

And as long as we can pay $3 per pound for meat we will pay it but if we can't pay but $1 per pound that is what they will charge.

And starting in 1983 I am going to have to pay income tax on my disability retirement check. I paid tax on this money when I put it in the retirement plan and now taxing it again is not fair.

Fancy footwork throws lovers off-balance

DEAR ABBY: No lectures, please, Just advice. I'm in love with a married man. (I'm also married.)

"J" and I are not teen-agers. We're two mature adults who agree that we belong together, but the timing was wrong. Had we met while we were both single, we would have been married. We are so right for each

We've been seeing each other for three years. My husband doesn't suspect anything and neither does his wife. In fact, we are a very friendly foursome.

I have not told my husband yet because I want to be absolutely sure that J. will leave his wife to marry me. (She has Parkinson's disease in the early stages and it may get worse with time.)

J. says he will not ask his wife for a divorce until he's sure I am leaving my husband. Who should make the

DEADLOCKED

DEAR DEAD: There is more than an "Alphonse-Gaston minuet" going on here. You and J. may feel that you "belong" together, but you obviously don't trust each other.

There is also the problem of J.'s dealing with his guilt if he leaves an ailing wife. Before you try to figure out how to work your scheme into a reality, you need to get some professional help and make a decision you can both live with.

Meanwhile, unless and until you get professional help, you're asking for deep trouble if you continue to "see each other."

DEAR ABBY: The other evening at dinner I jokingly said to my husband, "I'll bet your girlfriend's name is the same as mine.

He said, "It sure is. That way I won't get you two mixed up." But, Abby, as he was saying this, he became so flustered he poured too much ketchup on his plate, and his face go so red as the ketchup he was DEAR ABBY: Exactly what are the responsibilities of a godmother? Here's the situation: I have a friend. We're close, but not that close. "Molly" has a 3-yearold child and she's expecting another any day now. She is also being divorced.

I am a professional woman, single and childless. The other night we met for dinner. (We do that once or twice a year.) During dinner Molly asked me to be her baby's godmother. I accepted on an impulse and we went on to talk about other things.

Now I'm having second thoughts. If something happens to the mother, isn't the godmother supposed to adopt her child? Now I regret having accepted so hastily. To be honest, I really don't want to be her baby's godmother. How can I get out of it without putting a strain on our friendship?

SPOKE TOO SOON DEAR SPOKE: You may not be able to. But feeling as you do,, tell Molly promptly that you have had second thoughts and wish to decline the honor of being her baby's godmother.

The obligation of a godparent is essentially to see that the child is raised in the same faith as the parents. However, godparents do not, as many assume, have any obligation to give financial assistance or to adopt children who lose their parents. That is the responsibility of the guardian.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P. O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Patient's chest X-ray detects 'mild scoliosis'

Dear Dr. Donohue: My last chest X-ray came back with the words, "Mild scoliosis of the spine." This is the first time such a note has been added, and I'm 58. I feel a bit uneasy about this. I have heard of crippling effects. Please comment on the subject in your column. - B.W.

Scoliosis is a bending of the spine to one side. Such bends can progress rapidly during active growth years (at around puberty) so it's important for it to be discovered early so the youngster can be treated before it becomes serious. This is why so many schools have routine scoliosis screening programs.

Now, to your situation. You are 58. Scoliosis can progress throughout life, but not at the rate it does during adolescence. Yours is described as mild. The degree of bend is measured in angles. If that angle is less than 30 degrees in an adult, the scoliosis is called mild. The next step is to follow it with an X-ray taken at a later date. That will determine if there is any progression.

If it is not getting worse, nothing need be done of a drastic nature. If there is marked change, surgery

Hitler wouldn't recognize Germany

Associated Press Writer BONN, West Germany (AP) — Fifty years ago Sunday, Adolf Hitler was named chancellor of Germany and watched with joy as a great torchlight parade heralded the beginnings of his Third Reich.

Mass rallies for peace now have replaced Nazi stormtroopers marching through the streets. Economic strength has succeeded the inflationary chaos that helped Hitler win power.

Fifty years ago, more than 200 rowdy brown-shirted Nazis sat in parliament. Today, some 90 percent of West Germany's electorate supports two stable democratic parties whose soft-spoken leaders hardly evoke images of "der Fuehrer.

The changes have not quieted some fears at home and abroad that Germany could turn from democracy as it did in the 1920s. But most of the 61 million West Germans of today believe they are unlikely to see a repeat of what happened in 1933 when Hitler came to power as chancellor

'The two eras are basically different. First of all, there is no Hitler, which makes a difference," German historian Sebastian Haffner, 75, said in an interview

Today it is unthinkable that a rightextremist party like the Nazis would have a massive following.

Historian Jochen Loreck

German historians say there is more broad-based support for democracy than existed before.

The (German) Weimar Republic (that preceeded Hitler) stood on one leg. The right wing regretted the republic and wanted a monarchy," Haffner said.

'Today we have a democratic right wing.... Support for democracy is broadly based," he said. Said historian Jochen Loreck: "Today it is unthinkable that a right-wing extremist party like the Nazis would have a massive following. Two traits which Hitler exploited, extreme nationalism and reverence for militarism, also have

Most West Germans today are either resigned to the division of their country or hoping for a future European political union with all countries as equal

'Chauvinistic nationalism of the expansionistic type that was found in National Socialism (Nazism) during Weimar and the Third Reich is out of the question in both West and East Germany," wrote Eugen Kogon, a historian who spent several years in one of Hitler's concentration camps. The army, which had become the glorified symbol of German nationalism, plays no political role today and official emphasis on militarism has largely vanished.

West Germany refuses to build nuclear or chemical weapons - although it allows NATO to base such weapons on its territory

In 1982, 20 percent of the West Germans eligible for the military service refused induction.

In Communist East Germany, conscientious objectors face prison or other penalties. Nonetheless, several were jailed for their beliefs in 1982. In 1981, some 5,000 East Germans petitioned for social service as an alternative to conscription. Kogon said West German culture patterns also have changed since the war. 'The way of moving around, the way of eating, dressing, speaking, pleasure seeking and associating have become more international than national in character," Kogon wrote.

West Germany's founding fathers took steps in 1949 to ensure that a Hitler-style "Machtergreifung" (power grab) would not be repeated.

In drawing up the country's constitution, they tried to close the loopholes Hitler used to win power. They moved to shut out minority extremists by requiring that a party get at least 5 percent of the vote for parliamentary representation.

They also made it difficult to precipitate political chaos by constantly calling new elections, and they diminished the power of the chief executive.

Yet there is a heritage from Hitler and the "Weimar conditions" that led to his rise. Journalists and civic leaders often point to these remnants in hopes public exposure will keep them from growing. "Fascism was a mosaic. Most of the stones are broken. A few are still there," said historian Jochen

He said German "Auslaenderfeindlichkeit," or hostility to foreigners, is a piece of the mosaic — one that has expanded as the economy has declined.

The attitude predated Hitler but he capitalized on it to turn millions of Jews into scapegoats and ultimately death camp victims.

A poll last fall showed two-thirds of the 60 million West Germans think the country's 4.65 million immigrant workers should go home.

The Interior Ministry said attacks on foreigners rose by 150 percent to 297 incidents in 1981 and continued to increase in 1982. Final figures are yet available.

These statistics, said former Interior Minister Gerhart Baum, "should fill every democrat with great There are a few other, more blunt reminders of the Hitler era, including 1,250 Neo-Nazis. About 170 of them have been implicated in terrorist attacks on Jews and foreigners

Kogon said he doesn't believe the hostility to foreigners by some has anything to do with Nazi

"It appears to me rather to be a helpless reaction to the present situation of economic decline. Dealing with that situation will be a test for today's young Germans." he said.

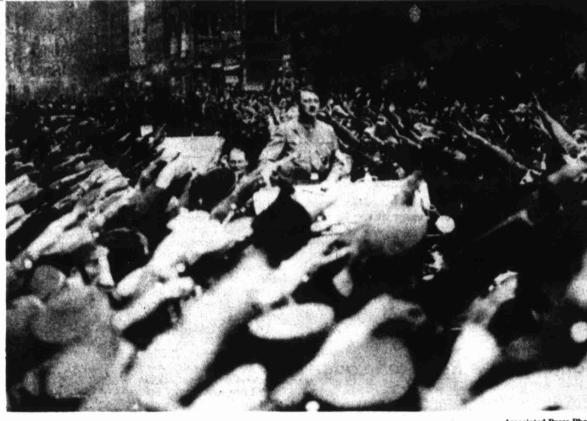

Today's economic recession is often compared with the economic chaos that helped Hitler seize power. After years of the post-war "Economic Miracle." there are now 2.23 million people out of work in West Germany and unemployment is at 9.1 percent, highest That's still a far cry from the 6 million hungry jobless that roamed the streets and contributed to the ranks of Hitler's followers in the 1920s, when unemployment was 30.1 percent, but some economists warn worse is yet to come. More than 12,000 West German business failures are expected when the final figures are in for 1982.

Another comparison that has become fashionable is that stable, popular government was lacking in the pre-Hitler days and is becoming increasingly elusive

West Germany is heading for national elections March 6 with the probability that no party will receive a majority, forcing a scramble for power by building

Last year, socialist Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's coalition government finally broke up after eight years in office and months of political haggling. Schmidt's

During the Weimar years there were eight elections in 12 years and general political disorder set the stage

Thousands gather, denounce Hitler

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) - About 50,000 people gathered in West German cities Saturday to denounce neo-Nazi groups on the eve of the 50th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's rise to power.

Carrying banners proclaiming, 'Fascism: Never Again," marchers jammed streets in Frankfurt, Hamburg, Cologne and Munich. Speakers warned that growing numbers of unemployed could turn to such extremist groups as the neo-Nazis, who revere Hitler as their idol.

Police estimated 8,000 people gathered in Frankfurt; 8,500 in Hamburg; 5,500 in Munich; 12,000 in Cologne, 3,500 in Hanover and 10,000 ir Moessingen.

'Skins rally for 27-17 Super Bowl win

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Hail to the Hogs, Washington's funloving offensive line, and their partner, running back John Riggins, who set a Super Bowl rushing record and led the Redskins to the National Football League championship.

"They were magnificent," said Riggins, who kept following the Hog-made holes for a record 166 yards on 38 carries in the Redskins' 27-17 victory over the Miami Dolphins Sunday

Riggins wasn't exactly shabby either in this pulsating come-frombehind triumph, played before 103,667 fans in the cavernous Rose Bowl. It was the second largest crowd in Super Bowl history and the excitement of the game had to erase any lingering bad taste of this strange strike-interrupted season.

It was a big-play game between two teams that had been struggling for respect all season and they earned it in the season's finale with Washington's victory constructed around the churning legs of its piletriving fullback.

President Ronald Reagan noticed, saying in a phone call to the Washington locker room, "I was going to ask Riggins to change the spelling of his name.

The Redskins used their Rigginsnomics attack to wear down Miami. Running behind the proud Hogs center Jeff Bostic, guards Russ Grimm and Fred Dean, tackles Joe Jacoby and George Starke, and tight ends Rick Walker and Don Warren - Riggins kept finding huge holes in the Dolphins' Killer

Bee's defense, best in the NFL. The Hogs' playbook isn't terribly complicated. It's mostly Riggins left, Riggins right and Riggins straight ahead.

s. rvice

So, when the Redskins, trailing 17-13 early in the fourth quarter and facing a fourth-and-one at the Miami 43, lined up to go for it, there was no great mystery about who would get the ball.

"The play is called 70-Chip," said Riggins, "It's a play we've been running all season."
The Dolphins called a time out before the play. When they returned to the line of scrimmage, they had shifted from their basic 3-4 defensive set to one with six down

"It's easier to make a first down against the 3-4 defense," said Grimm. "It's harder against the 60, but if you do make it, you usually make it big.'

That's just what Riggins did, sliding off the left side and shrugging off cornerback Don McNeal to race into the end zone for the touchdown that put Washington in front for the first time in the game.

Once armed with the lead, the Redskins kept Riggins banging into the Dolphins, chewing up chunks of yardage that eventually led to a wrap-up touchdown from Joe Theismann to Charlie Brown.

"The game started with a 50-gut (Riggins' basic call), and ended with a 50-gut," said Starke. "We ran the same plays all day. Our plan to run the basic plays was there all day. We never had to go to Plan B."

Theismann played his part, tossing a pair of touchdowns and breaking up an almost-certain interception with a deft defensive play. But ask him about the game and he just grinned and said, "We just turned our Hogs loose today.'

As the Redskins approached Super Bowl XVII, Riggins and the Hogs were happy because the Dolphins, a team which uses a 3-4 defense, were waiting for them.

"I look forward to playing against a 3-4 team," he said. "So does our line. They do such a great job getting into those linebackers.

Riggins kept taking handoffs from Theismann and thumping into the Dolphin defenders. Before the playoffs began, Riggins, concerned that he might be overlooked in the Washington attack, had asked Gibbs for the ball. The coach delivered it, perhaps more frequently than the fullback had

"How many times did I carry? Thirty-eight? That's on the verge of too many," he said.

It was just right for the Redskins, who overcame two stunning longyardage plays which had built a 17-10 halftime lead for Miami.

The Dolphins had seized the early lead when David Woodley and Jimmy Cefalo combined for a 76-yard touchdown pass on Miami's fifth play from scrimmage. It was the second longest TD pass in Super Bowl On their next possession, Woodley had Miami moving again with a first down at the Washington 37. But he was sacked by Dexter Manley, who jolted the ball loose. Dave Butz recovered for the Redskins.

Riggins carried five straight times for 21 yards in the ensuing drive and with fourth and two at the 14-yard line, Mark Moseley kicked a 31-yard field goal. It came on the second play of the second quarter and touched off some scoring pyrotechnics.

Miami came right back, spinning off four first downs on an impressive drive to the Washington 3-yard line. But the Redskins stiffened there and Uwe von Schamann kicked a 20-yard field goal.

That made it 10-3 and Theismann came back throwing. He hit Rick Walker for 27 yards on the first play after the kickoff and later found Riggins -- yes, he can catch the ball, too - for 15 more. The drive ended with Theismann passing to Alvin Garrett for a 4-yard TD.

That tied the score, but not for long. Fulton Walker, whose 42-yard return had set up von Schamann's field goal, dashed 98 yards with the next one, the first time in Super

Gilder outlasts Caldwell

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) The second longest suddendeath playoff in PGA Tour history ended after eight holes in the dim light of early evening when Bob Gilder, at last, holed a 6-foot birdie putt.

'It was a battle all the way," Gilder said after beating Rex Caldwell for the title in the Phoenix Open golf tournament. "It wasn't any fun.

If the hard-earned triumph Sunday wasn't fun for the winner, it was devastating for the loser.

Caldwell, deprived of the first victory of his nineyear Tour career only one week ago in the Bob Hope Classic, again saw that initial triumph escape his eager grasp after 112 hours of head-to-head play.

He left the course without comment to Gilder, swept through the locker room without a word, and departed

Caldwell, gamely battling back from the disappointment of that week-old defeat, gained a place in the four-man playoff when he dropped a dramatic, 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole of regulation

Mark O'Meara and Johnny Miller also finished regulation play at 271 - 13shots under par on the rainsoaked Phoenix Country Club course — but dropped out of the playoff on the se-

Caldwell was the third-Miller shot 68 and Gilder shared the top spot.

PATIENCE PAYS OFF - Bob Gilder celebrates after sinking a putt on the eighth hole of sudden death to defeat luckless Rex Caldwell at the Phoenix Open Sunday afternoon. Caldwell lost in a playoff last week in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

They were the survivors Hal Sutton, Cal Peete and of a cavalry-charge finish, Scott Hoch all finished at with at least a dozen men in 272, a single stroke out of round leader and played title-contention over the the playoff. Sneed had a the last round in one-under-back nine. At one time or closing 66 on the course par 70. O'Meara got into another over the last nine that was still wet from daythe multiple-man playoff holes of regulation play, long Saturday rains. Another stoke back, two shots out of the playoff but tied for 10th, were Fuzzy Zoeller, Dan Pohl, Jack Renner and defending champion Lanny Wadkins. Zoeller matched the best round of the tournament, at 64. Pohl shot 66. Renner 68

BSHS swimmers splash well

Boys third, airls fourth in Monahans meet

MONAHANS - A poolful of second places guided Big Spring High to encouraging finishes at the Monahans Invitational Swim Meet here this past weekend. Tim Plew swam to a first place finish in the 10° C, and the medley relay team swam to second place to lead the boys to a third place finish (40 points) behind Seminole (84) and Hobbs (52). Jonna Atchley, Rita Fleckenstein and the freestyle relay each took runner up medals to pace a fourth place finish (37 points) by the BSHS girls. Seminole won with 93 points with Hobbs (74) and Monahans (43) following.

Plew recorded a 1:02.62 to outswim the competition - particularly Seminole's Greg Tankersley (1:05.09) for first place in the fly event. Plew joined Terry Bordofske, Speight Grimes and Cecil Willey on both medly and freestyle relays that finished second (1:55.31) and fourth (3:51.80) respectively.

The No. 2 boys medley foursome of John Burcham, Scott Boland, Donald DeFlitch and Chris Williams was fifth in 2:13.2.

Other top Steer finishers were David Booth, second in diving: Grimes, fourth in the 200 intermediates (2:31.42); Willey, fifth in the 50 free (25.77); Ben Parham, fifth in the 100 backstroke (1:16.06): and Boland, sixth in the 100 breaststroke (1:21.03)

The foursome of Mandy Gauer Fleckenstein, Carol Davey and Hartley Newell splashed to second in the freestyle relay in 4:23.32. Hobbs nipped BSHS for first with a 4:21.29 effort.

The same Lady Steer team was fourth in the medley relay, recording a 2:14.46 behind Seminole's top time of 2:08.56.

Fleckenstein returned to the pool minutes later for a 28.09 clocking in the 50 free, just a flash behind Robynn McLaren's 27.21 winning time for Monahans

Atchely and Lisa Salazar gave Big Spring big points in the diving competition with two-three finishes Barbara Snodgrass of Seminole won the event

Newell was third in the 100 fly (1:21.51), two second behind Candy Stice's 1:19.02. Gauer was fourth in the 100 freesty'e with a 1:05.20.

'We did well," coach Harlan Smith said simply.

Big Spring does not swim again until the District 4-AAAAA meet Feb. 18-19 in Midland.

'Hogs' do it for Riggins

"We had a wedge left return," said Walker. "I baited them into thinking I was going to the right, but cut it back. All I had (to beat) was the kicker. I threw a move on him and hit the open field.'

That made it 17-10 with just 94 seconds left in the first half, but the Redskins weren't done. A 30-yard pass interference call and a 26-yard completion to Charlie Brown had Washington on the move. With 14 seconds left, Theismann hit Garrett for 9 yards to the Miami 8. But Washington had no timeouts left and the seconds ticked off before the Redskins could get another

But the Redskins came up empty and went into the dressing room dragging just a bit.

"At the half, I told them we have been down by more than this," said Gibbs. "All of us felt we had a good Speaking for the Hogs, Bostic said, "We realized (at halftime) we played pretty good football in the first half. Miami didn't really outplay us. They had the long kickoff return and the long pass play, but other than that, we felt we were in the game. We knew we were going to win it at halftime.

For a fleeting moment, at least, you could have fooled Theismann. Moseley's second field goal, this one a 20-yarder, had narrowed Miami's lead to 17-13. With 2:42 left in the period, Mark Murphy intercepted a pass and Washington started from its 5-yard line. Riggins carried twice for 13 yards and then Theismann tried a pass. It was almost a disaster.

"It was a short pass to Charlie Brown in the left flat," the quarterback recalled. Kim Bokamper, with a heavy rush, deflected the ball and it popped into the air. As it came down, it looked like Bokamper could grab it and head for the end zone. But there was Theismann, playing defensive back

I just tried to get in the middle of it," he said. "I hit the ball out of his hands

Had Bokamper caught the ball and taken it in, Miami would have had a 24-13 lead going into the fourth quarter. Instead, it was still 17-13.

Washington retained possession and drove to the Dolphins' 43 before Theismann, throwing for the end zone, was intercepted by Lyle Blackwood at the 1-yard line. It amounted to a long punt and when the Redskins contained Miami, the Dolphins were forced to punt the ball back.

Washington took over at midfield and faced a fourth-and-one at the Dolphins' 43 with 9:01 to play. Gibbs decided to go for it with his bread and butter man.

"I was thinking about the play on third down," the coach said. "We knew if we didn't make it on third down, it would be a risky field goal. We felt we would take our best play and go at them.

So the Redskins went for Riggins. "The play was a fake zoom," Gibbs continued. "I think they thought we were slanting one way and got caught when we went the other way. John made a great run.'

The play was designed to provide blocks on just about all the Dolphin defenders. Only the cornerback was free. That was McNeal, but he slipped when the play began and by the time he recovered, Riggins was rumbling and ran right through his arm tackle and after that it was daylight to the end zone.

Miami could not move the ball on its next possession and when Washington got the ball back, Gibbs went back to basics. Riggins carried on eight of the next 11 plays, a drive that ended with Theismann's second touchdown pass of the game, this one a 6-yarder to Brown.

After that, it was just a matter of running out the final two minutes of the game clock. Riggins and the Hogs had done their damage.

What did the Dolphins think of the running back who had destroyed their Super Bowl dream?

'John Riggins was Mr. Universe, Mr. All-World," said defensive end Doug Betters. "Their offense was no secret. Give it to John.

"He's been one of the great fullbacks over the past decade, said guard Bob Kuechenberg. "He carried the Washington offense on his back much of the year and he did it today.

And how about the Hogs?

They had a big, strong offensive line," said linebacker A.J. Duhe. 'They were knocking us off the ball. They challenged us and we challenged them. They won the

Bradley wins LPGA's

Fla. (A) — Pat Bradley believes her victory in the Mazda Classic, her first LPGA title since she captured the U.S. Open in 1981, keeps her on pace for a larger goal.

'I'm right on schedule to be the youngest member of the million-dollar club and I'm excited about it." said Bradley, who needs only $31,366 to become a member of the elite group. She carded a final-round 66 Sunday to win the fourday $150,000 Mazda Classic at Deer Creek at 16-under par 271. The tournament was the opener on the Ladies Professional Golf Association's 1983 tour.

Her 72-hole total on the par-72, 6,089-yard Deer Creek Country Club course was one shot off the tournament record 272 set four years ago by Hollis Stacy.

Bradley, 31, fought off several challengers, led by Beth Daniel, to win by seven strokes and take home first prize money of $22,500 and 150 bonus points in the Mazda LPGA Series, which offers $125,000 to the winner at the end of the

Austin wages below average

AUSTIN (AP) - Latest government figures show the average pay for workers in Austin lags well behind the national average and pay levels in most Southwestern cities, an Austin newspaper reported

The average annual salary for Austin workers was $14,044 during 1981, the latest year for which pay statistics are available from the Bureau of Labor

By contrast, the average pay for Houston workers is $19,042, Dallas $16,735, and the national average is $16,234, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

The average pay in several other Texas cities is also also higher than in Austin. Workers in Midland earn an average of $19,267 a year; Galveston, $17,055; Wichita Falls, $16,234; and Corpus Christi, $15,580.

Austin's pay is slightly higher than San Antonio, $13,934, and Waco, $13,311.

The American-Statesman story said the reasons given for Austin's low pay included:

• The University of Texas and its 48,000 students many of whom are willing to take low-paying part-time work to make expenses while going to school.

The abundance of state employment in the area with traditionally lower salaries. The lack of strong labor unions.

• The relative youth of Austin's work force. Young workers are usually found in entry-level jobs that pay

• The presence of many temporary workers who are willing to accept lower wages for the opportunity to work part-time.

• The availability of highly skilled workers who have recently moved to Texas from recessiondevasktated areas of the Midwest.

Spring, is ready for the open road on Judy Hunter's Yamaha XS1100 at the Big Spring

Roadriders' motorcycle show Saturday. The show in the Big Spring Mall promoting motorcycling as a family activity attracted 24 members' motorcycles (including a 1918 model Indian) and 16 from local dealers, said club president Bill Hunter.

Teachers want aas, oil taxes

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Federation of Teachers today proposed a hike in oil and gas severance taxes to pay for the $5 billion increase in education spending the group proposes. TFT President John Cole was joined at a Capitol news conference by Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, who said he would help push TFT's legislative proposals during this session.

The group wants to see per-pupil funding in Texas increased by 65 percent over the 1983-1984 spending period. TFT also seeks a 40 percent teacher salary raise over the two years and a $1.8 billion "grant" to improve school buildings in poor school districts.

The cost of the programs, Cole said, would amount to a $5 billion increase over the $9.3 billion two-year program proposed by the Legislative Budget Board.
