the lobby held walnut and mahogany furniture, light walnut paneling, marble floors and a wrought iron rail on the grand stair.

Restoring the Settles

Civic leaders cautious, but they see possibilities

By CAROL DANIEL

Some civic leaders here say they are interested, but cautious, about a Settles Hotel renovation proposed by Dallas businessman Robert Kendall.

Kendall is seeking private funding to begin a $4½ million project to restore the building to its 1930s condition. He's worked on hotel renovations in Austin, New Orleans and Rio Grande City.

"You bet I'm interested," said Chamber of Commerce executive vice-president F. LeRoy Tillery. "I don't know enough about his plans to say if they're feasible or not, but it's a most important concern for the community."

Bill Read, Chamber of Commerce president, said the project sounds feasible and that he would like to see the hotel renovated rather than torn down.

The project could switch the hotel from an eyesore to the center of a renovation of the whole downtown area, Tillery said.

Tillery said it may be difficult for Kendall to find local interest in the project.

"Local financial institutions are limited in how much they can loan to one customer," Tillery said. "I think that if every bank and sav-

A "MODERN" HOTEL — The Hotel Settles was built in 1930 for $500,000 according to Herald articles written about its opening. The hotel was photographed by Tot Sullivan in the 1930s during its heyday when Big Spring had grown in population from 4,000 to 14,000 in less than a decade.

Man killed in Texas Capitol fire

Building 'nearly lost'

 AUSTIN — An early morning fire at the state Capitol killed one man, ravaged the lieutenant governor's quarters and came close to destroying the century-old home of Texas government, says the man who led the battle against it.

Related story, page 3-A

"The fire was just getting ahead of us quicker than we could get ahead of it," acting Austin Fire Chief Brady Pool said Sunday.

"I mean the whole shooting match" could have been lost, Pool said. "From about a quarter to six until about 7:30, I wouldn't have bought no stock in it."

About 100 Austin firefighters battled the blaze for over two hours before it was controlled at 8 a.m. Sunday. The fire started in the library of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's Capitol apartment, Pool said.

The man killed was Matt Hansen, 23, a horse trainer from New Caney. Hansen apparently died of smoke inhalation.

Hansen, James and Joan Waterman of New Caney, and Hobby's 18-year-old daughter Kate were in the apartment during the fire. The Watermans own the ranch where Kate Hobby's horses are trained. Hansen was the trainer.

All four were in town for a Saturday night banquet at which Miss Hobby was honored for her horsemanship. Hobby, who lives in a duplex nearby, uses the Capitol apartment as a guest quarters.

Pool said early indications were that the fire was sparked by an electrical appliance, possibly a television, in the library of the east wing apartment.

Hobby credited Austin firefighters with saving the Capitol and thanked Capitol police for saving his daughter.

Bob Cargill, Hobby's press aide, said the library looked like an "inferno" had been ignited.

Hobby said the parts of the apartment suffered "just complete destruction." A hallway behind the Senate was gutted by the blaze. There was little damage in the Senate. Hobby planned to convene senators as scheduled today, although there would be no heat or light.

The only damage in the chamber was in a corner near a doorway leading to the apartment, although the offices of several senators sustained smoke or water damage.

The Watermans escaped through a back stairwell and Miss Hobby was led to safety by Capitol police. Six firemen and one Capitol policeman were hospitalized. None was in critical condition.

"I have never witnessed a more professional performance," Hobby said of the firefighters. "To them goes the credit for saving a historic and irreplaceable building."

Capitol police headed to the second-floor apartment, behind the Senate, after a heat-sensitive alarm went off in their security office at 5:25 a.m. Firefighters were quickly called as Capitol police tried to rescue the four people in the apartment.

Officer James Mitchell pounded on Miss Hobby's door, according to Bob Cargill, Hobby's press aide. She screamed that there were three others inside.

Miss Hobby said she was awakened by Mitchell's knocking.

"When I woke up, I heard all of these popping noises" from light

Last of Soviet satellite tumbles into South Atlantic

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
 AP Military Writer
 WASHINGTON — The radioactive remnant of a Soviet nuclear-powered spy satellite tumbled to its doom over the South Atlantic ocean 1,100 miles east of Brazil at approximately 5:10 a.m., CST today, the Defense Department said.

Confirmation of the apparently harmless re-entry had been delayed nearly four hours until the North American Aerospace Defense Command could complete checks by its tracking radar.

The defense command estimated the re-entry location at 19 degrees south latitude and 22 degrees west longitude, in an area of open water between Brazil and Africa.

A Pentagon statement said U.S. officials would use nuclear fallout data collection facilities to check for any increased levels of radioactivity in the area.

NORAD tracked the final section of Cosmos 1402 as it gathered speed in the ever-increasing grip of gravity.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported today that the fuel core "entered the dense layers of the atmosphere over the southern part of the Atlantic at 13 hours and 56 minutes Moscow time on Feb. 7, 1983 and ... totally ceased its existence."

"It is impossible to predict whether significant amounts of radioactive material will reach the Earth's surface," the Pentagon said in a statement before the satellite re-entered the atmosphere. Officials had predicted that the core would burn up nearly completely as happened an identical satellite which disintegrated over northern Canada five years ago.

Small radioactive particles from that 1978 satellite, Cosmos 954, "were spread over large areas with pieces of hardware distributed over a track several hundred miles long

Subdivision rule to be considered City to hold public hearing

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring city councilmen will hold a public hearing Tuesday night of an ordinance that regulates subdivision development within five miles of the city limits.

The preliminary ordinance rewrites the present one and includes requirements for flood damage prevention, standards for plat drawing, plat processing fees and time tables for the approve process. It also provides for survey monuments, drainage channels, street right-of-ways, curve radii, pavement width, street grades and utility sizing.

According to an executive summary, the ordinance establishes safeguards for the developer, the property owner and the city.

The council also will:

- Consider a salary increase requested for two staff members at the city-county health department.

J.M. Woodall, M.D., acting director of the department, requests that the salary for the general clerk be increased from $897 to $1,100 a month. He also asks that the registered nurse's salary be increased from $1,326 to $1,785 a month.

Additionally, the director asks to employ a licensed vocational nurse at a $1,066 per month salary. Previously the health department operated with two R.N.'s, but Woodall said the Texas Department of Health approved the switch to one R.N. and one L.V.N. to save money.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in City Hall at Fourth and Nolan. The meeting is open to the public.

and about 30 miles wide." The satellite section that descended today was all that was left in space from an 8,000-pound ocean surveillance satellite launched by the Soviets last summer. The main section plunged into the atmosphere and burned Jan. 23 over the mid-Indian Ocean.

The last section was believed to weigh about 200 pounds and include 110-pounds of enriched uranium fuel.

The Pentagon said that the second most likely possibility was that the nuclear fuel that powered the satellite's radar would "be even more completely consumed" than in the case of the satellite which fell over Canada in 1978.

bulbs and breaking glass, she said. "It sounded like glass was breaking everywhere."

She told of opening a door near the room where Hansen, described by her as a "good friend," was sleeping, but flames and intense heat kept her out.

"That's when it got so hot I found parts of my hair melted," she recalled.

Miss Hobby, a senior at St. John's school at Houston, described the smoke as "so thick, it was like breathing soup or something and it was such a rancid smell."

"I never felt I was near death. I wasn't ever scared for myself. There never was any confusion," Miss Hobby added.

Intense heat — a "sea of flames," Hobby said his daughter recalled — stifled initial rescue efforts. Officer Joel Quintanilla kicked in a library door, but it exploded out on him. The 56-year-old officer was hospitalized with burns on his face, arms and hands, Cargill said.

"We heard Officer Quintanilla screaming that he needed help," said Officer Wilfred Spinks. "We then got down on our hands and knees and tried to find him."

Police did not reach Hansen in time, however. The horse trainer was found dead, probably of smoke inhalation, on the floor between two single beds in the apartment.

"He would have had a better chance if he knew the surroundings," said Pool. "He may have missed the door."

The early fight against the blaze was aided by Gov. Mark White, awakened by sirens as firetrucks raced to the Capitol, a block from the governor's mansion. White said he helped firefighters carry air bottles at the scene.

Panel recommends debate on textbooks

By KATHRYN BAKER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Textbook protesters and backers will debate each other at this year's textbook selection hearings if the State Board of Education adopts a rule change recommended by a panel of board members.

The state board's Ad Hoc Committee on the Texas Textbook Selection Process voted for the change Sunday after two days of hearings.

People for the American Way, a national anti-censorship organization begun by "All in the Family" producer Norman Lear, challenged the Texas system. The group complained the system allows only protests of textbooks without rebuttal before the Textbook Selection Committee, which meets annually to choose which books will be bought by Texas public schools.

Texas is the nation's biggest buyer of textbooks, and publishers say they frequently cannot afford to produce a book that is not accepted by the state.

American Way coordinator Michael Hudson said the organization came to Texas to combat Mel and Norma Gabler, a conservative Longview couple who have been testifying at the textbook hearings for 21 years.

The ad hoc committee, made up of 13 of the 27 board members, sends its recommendations to the full board, which would have to adopt new rules before the change would go into effect. The ad hoc committee meets again Thursday. Its final recommendations go to the full board Friday.

The committee also voted to recommend that the 15-member Textbook Selection Committee be expanded to 27 members, one from each congressional district, but most of the debate centered on how to handle testimony at the annual hearing.

"Today's textbooks do not just set forth mathematical equations; they set forth concepts and beliefs that are open to debate," board member Will Davis of Austin argued in favor of the proposal.

"We must provide a forum. You can't vaccinate yourself from a disagreement. You can't make yourself immune," Davis said.

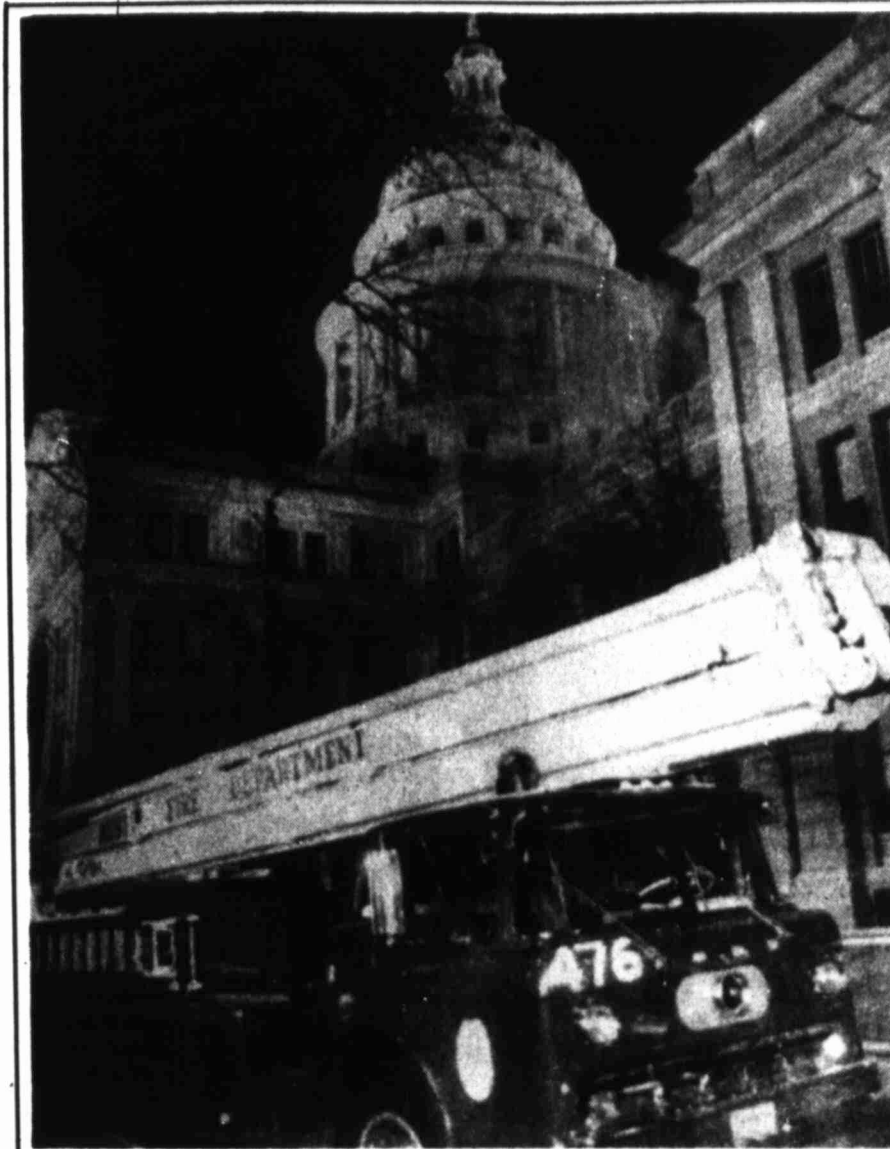

Board member James Whiteside of Lubbock complained that open debate at the often emotionally charged hearing would create a "circus."

"Then we get, for instance, Mel Gabler and this American Way man arguing for two hours, and they're not arguing textbooks, but arguing against the other person's philosophy," Whiteside complained.

"I guarantee you there's going to be some philosophical debate, but you're just going to have to listen to it," board Chairman Joe Kelly Butler told Whiteside.

"You can call it a circus, you can call it anything you like, but it is an uninhibited public hearing. But in order to be there, you have to go through the written process," Butler said.

Hudson said the 7-1 show of hands in favor of opening the hearing was "great progress," but he was wary about Butler's insistence that all who want to testify must file written statements.

PRE-DAWN FIRE — A faint wisp of smoke rises from the State Capitol as a fire raged in the East Wing of the building. Lack of a sprinkler system is being blamed for the heavy damage.

Capitol lacked sprinkler system

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — The fortresslike Texas Capitol came close to being destroyed possibly because it lacked a sprinkler system to douse fires, one fire official says.

A predawn blaze Sunday, spreading through false ceilings and other air spaces, damaged 70 percent of the second floor of the east wing and 20 percent of the first and third floors.

Water seeped all the way to basement offices and was 1 1/2 inches deep. Computers in the basement, however, apparently were not damaged.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's second-floor Capitol apartment and a nearby corridor burned, killing one guest in the apartment and injuring six firemen and a policeman.

Although acting Fire Chief Brady Pool said the Capitol was not a firetrap — "a firetrap just explodes and you can't run out of it fast enough" — he said firefighters came "real close" to losing the whole building.

On a scale of 10, Pool rated the damage to the entire three-acre building as a "2," but to the east wing, it was an "8."

"If they hadn't stopped it where they did, it'd have circled that rotunda, gone around the chambers, down these other wings," said Pool.

The building, first occupied in 1888, has been "remodeled, redone, repainted. It's got numbers of false ceilings, voids in it, and you've got to pull them down," said Pool. He said firefighters found three false ceilings in one place.

"It's been plastered over, and the fire just goes from one to the other," said Pool. "It's probably as bad a building as there is to fight a fire in — anywhere."

The fire started just before 5:30 a.m., and Pool said by 8 a.m., with 100 firefighters on the scene, it had been controlled. But at 7:30 a.m., Pool said, "I wouldn't have bought no stock in it."

Gov. Mark White, who was awakened by sirens at the Governor's Mansion a block away, was asked if Capitol fire control would be reassessed.

Federal official predicts truckers' strike will end soon

By DEAN FOSDICK
Associated Press Writer

Seventeen men and women were arrested today on rioting charges after a rock smacked the cab of a truck in Ohio, but a federal official says such violence is down and predicted the eight-day independent truckers' strike will end soon.

The cost of getting products to market was up in some areas, shippers said, and the hike was expected to be passed on to consumers.

The police action in Ohio was the biggest arrest since the strike began. On Sunday night, four men had been arrested near Pittsburgh, Pa., after they forced a truck off the road, held a knife to the driver's throat and then assaulted a deputy who tried to help, said Allegheny County Deputy Sheriff Joseph Schmerbeck.

Eight of the 17 people arrested near Youngstown, Ohio, and charged with rioting identified themselves as truck drivers, the Ohio Highway Patrol said. The 12 men and five women were released on $1,000 bond each, said Sgt. Walter Charko of the Mahoning County Jail.

A state trooper following a truck at 1 a.m. had seen a rock "about the size of a softball being thrown from the interior of a tent shelter used by pickets," said state patrol Capt. Arland E. Nelson.

The rock damaged the cab but caused no injuries, he said. Six people were charged with disorderly conduct at the same location Wednesday.

The worst incident of violence during the weekend also occurred in Ohio, where a driver leading a convoy was seriously injured Saturday night, his leg shattered by a sniper's bullet. Shots were fired Sunday at working drivers in Louisiana and Iowa, but no one was hurt, authorities said. Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association, claimed again Sunday in Omaha, Neb., that 70 percent of the nation's 100,000 independent haulers support the shutdown, and he called the violence the work of "a small group of wackos."

The length of the strike would "depend on the drivers' determination," said Parkhurst, who called the strike to protest rising fuel taxes and highway fees.

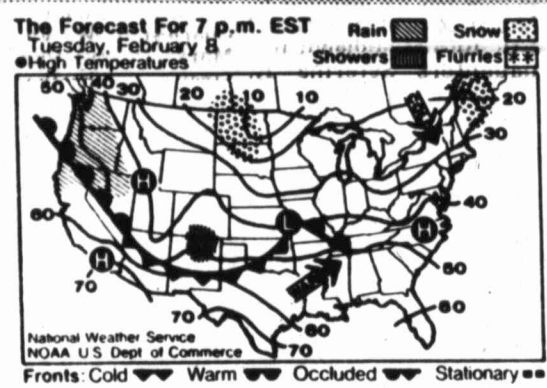

Tom Blank, a Department of Transportation spokesman, said federal officials "see a clear decrease in overall violence over the last several nights.

"We think we'll begin to see an easing of the strike in terms of owner-operators beginning to drive again at the beginning of the week," Blank said. At the start of the strike Jan. 31, Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said only 20 percent of independent drivers stopped work.

Just 24 new incidents were reported Sunday in Ohio and Pennsylvania, two states on the crucial Chicago-to-New York corridor that had been violence prone.

Ambulance crash kills 1; patient dies

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigators say an autopsy should determine whether a collision between a car and an ambulance that killed one motorist also caused the death of the cardiac patient in the emergency vehicle.

The patient died later in a hospital about 100 yards from the accident site, but police Sgt. Robert Schweiker said it was unclear whether he died of his heart ailment or from injuries suffered in the collision.

The patient's wife, three firefighters and an infant who was listed in critical condition were injured in the crash Sunday.

"They haven't made a determination yet on whether he (the patient) died as a result of the accident or not," Schweiker said, adding that the medical examiner would look into the case.

Schweiker said that the cause of the patient's death would have a bearing on an investigation into whether charges will be filed against the driver of the car.

Investigators said the Houston Fire Department ambulance was traveling to Memorial Hospital Northwest with its emergency lights flashing and siren wailing.

Test the sirens on election day

Al Valdes has come up with an idea which has merit and which is gaining support around town.

The idea is to test the city's civil defense sirens on election day. The sirens would remind people that it's time to go vote.

After previous election days, Valdes says, many people have come to him and said they flat forgot to vote. Other candidates have had the same experience.

Since the sirens must be tested regularly anyway, it might as well be on election day. If city officials are amenable to the idea, it could well become an election day tradition.

We vote for its approval.

The truckers' strike

Nothing positive has come from the week-old truckers strike.

Some truckers are angry, most are scared to drive on the highways and ugly violence has derailed the true ideals of the strike.

And because of the violence, President Reagan has said Congress won't consider rolling back the five-cent-a-gallon fuel tax and highway user fees that started the whole thing in the first place.

I sympathize with the truckers. The independent trucker is like the small businessman — he operates on a thin red line between bankrupt and prosperity.

The five-cent boost in fuel taxes plus increases in the highway use tax, tire tax, tread rubber tax, tax on truck parts and accessories and an excise tax on new trucks and trailers are enough to send anyone screaming mad into the night.

HENCE THE truckers strike, something wrong with that. The strike is an American institution and often the only way a working man has to deal with what he feels are injustices.

Only this one isn't well organized and its effectiveness has been marred by violence.

It seems that most all the striking truckers are honest, hard working men, but a minority of bully boys firing off rifles and throwing rocks is souring the rest of the country on the truckers' cause.

So far, 1,000 acts of violence have been reported with one person dead and 45 others injured. Probably some of the violence has been wrongfully blamed on truckers as other crazies take advantage of the situation to hurt innocent people.

I don't know how much work went into the revised taxes affecting truckers, but it doesn't seem to have been enough. However, the taxes aren't set to take effect until 1985.

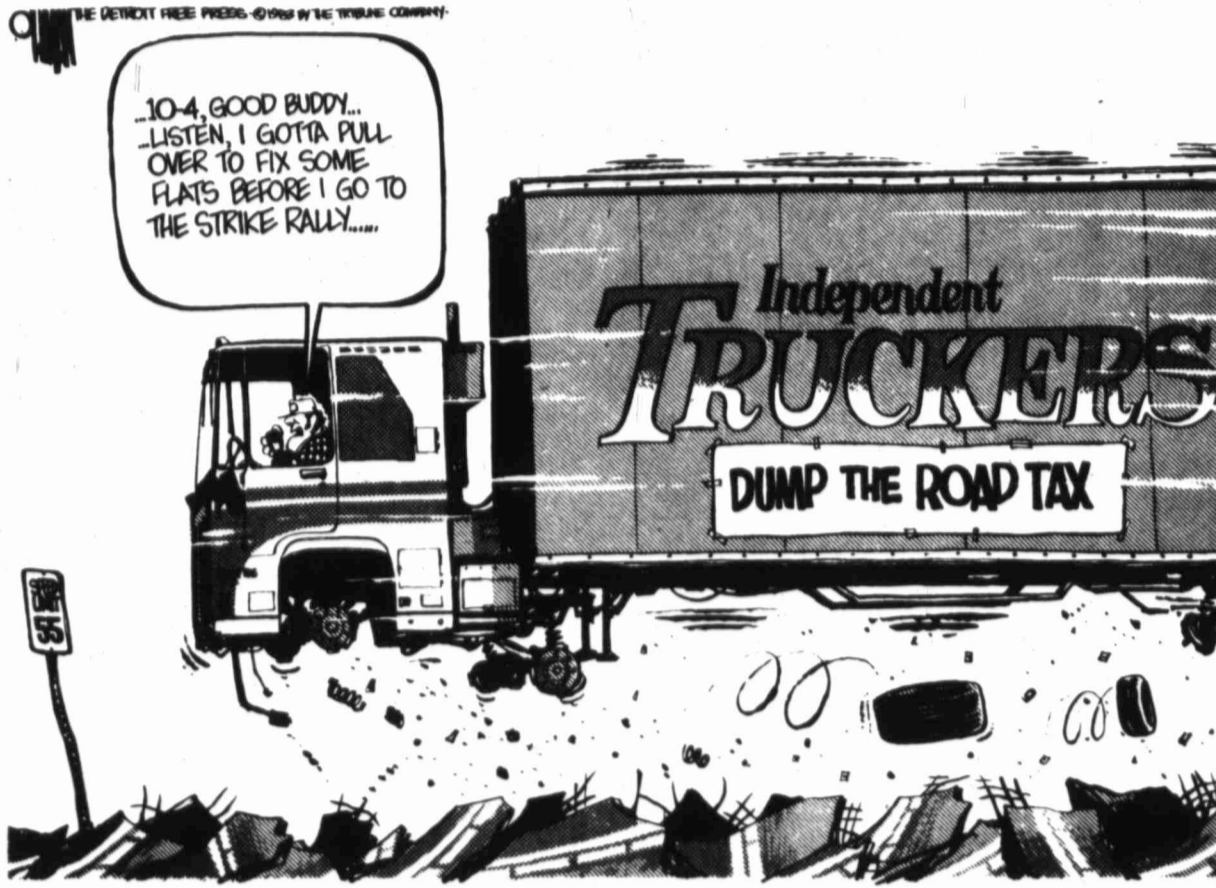

IT SEEMS to me that truckers and their representatives have time to go to Washington and educate President Reagan and the Congress on any unfairnesses. And through this education maybe things will be changed.

Why stick to a strike that is jeopardizing chances of having lawmakers listen to anything truckers might have to say?

Frontier justice with firearms is gone and now justice is wrought with mediation and compromise. The tax battle will be fought on Capitol Hill and not on Interstate 40.

That may hard for some to realize, but that's the system and one has to work within it to try and get something accomplished.

I wish the truckers luck with their problems, but a change in strategy is needed for the problems to be solved. Hopefully, it will be soon before anyone else is hurt.

Exclusive talk with envoy

WASHINGTON — Francisco Fiallos Navarro made a brief media splash last December when he resigned abruptly as Nicaraguan ambassador to the United States and denounced the Sandinista regime in Managua. Last month the Nicaraguan government splashed right back with the charge that Fiallos had absconded with more than $600,000 of embassy funds.

Since then, the dapper 36-year-old Fiallos has been in seclusion, preparing to defend himself in court against the Nicaraguan government's charges and planning a libel suit against his accusers. He consented to an exclusive interview to give his version of the events leading to his resignation and the ensuing controversy.

Depending on one's personal prejudices, Fiallos is either the most unlikely candidate for an embezzlement charge — or the kind of man who wouldn't think twice about looting the treasury of a leftist regime he had been serving. He grew up as a member of the Nicaraguan privileged class and got an advanced degree at Harvard Law School. He was even married briefly to a niece of the late Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza. Yet he supported the Sandinista regime for three years after it kicked Somoza out.

Fiallos explained the embezzlement charge as an attempt by the Sandinistas to discredit him in retaliation for his dramatic defection, which he said damaged the regime's own credibility.

"This is what happens," he said. "Every single person that has resigned in Nicaragua has been accus of mismanagement of funds ... (The charge) is completely false, and unfortunately I cannot explain it here to the American people ... because my lawyers have advised me not to tell you."

Fiallos said there is a "simple explanation" for his admitted withdrawal of the embassy funds. He was given coded instructions, he said, to withdraw the money because Nicaraguan government officials were worried that the United States would try to "freeze" their assets. "I was instructed to protect the money," he said, adding that he would disclose where the cash is located when his lawyers give him the go-ahead.

A State Department official who investigated Fiallos' background said he was "convinced that (Fiallos) didn't take the money for his personal enrichment."

A HIGH OFFICIAL of the Nicaraguan Embassy told my associate Lucette Lagnado he is convinced that Fiallos misappropriated the money, and he produced documentary evidence to support his assertion. The official also noted, with some asperity, that in nearly a year as the Nicaraguan envoy to Washington, Fiallos had never expressed any criticism of the Sandinista regime's policies.

Fiallos said he became "increasingly disenchanted" with the revolutionary government last year. His disillusionment stemmed, he said, from his growing realization that the Sandinistas were becoming as oppressive as the Somoza regime had been.

"I was seeing, especially the last year, that the promises they had made ... to the Nicaraguan people were violated every day," he said. He insists he told his co-revolutionaries in Managua that "the revolution shouldn't take the path of the Cuban one."

Fiallos said that the "most radical elements in the (Sandinista party), with Marxist-Leninist, even Stalinist, ideology are gaining power and are more entrenched every day." He said "the communists have taken complete control of the situation by now."

The ex-ambassador said the Soviet Union has used surrogates to penetrate Nicaragua. Bulgarians are handling the country's economic policies, while East Germans are running the security forces. He played down the influence of the Cubans in Managua.

State Department sources disagree with this assessment. They say Fidel Castro and the several thousand Cuban advisers he has sent to Nicaragua are the most important foreign influence.

It's wrong to ignore elderly

Dear Dr. Graham: I work in a home for elderly people, and it makes me angry to see the way the families of some of these people treat them. Some of these people never have anyone visit them or write them a letter. Don't you think this is wrong?—Mrs. T.I.

Dear Mrs. T.I.: Yes, I certainly do. I sometimes wonder how people who neglect their parents will feel when they too are old, and find that their own children are following their example and have abandoned them.

The Bible gives special emphasis to the responsibilities of parents to children, and children to their parents. In fact, one of the Ten Commandments stressed this: "Honor your father and your mother, so that you may live long in the land the Lord your God is giving you" (Exodus 20:12).

Snyder college president grateful

In the meantime, we are extremely grateful for the current assistance. Thanks to Howard College and Cogdell Memorial Hospital here, students will be able to do almost half of their Associate Degree Nursing Training in Snyder before completing the work at Howard College and at hospitals in Big Spring.

Sincerely,
DON NEWBURY
President
Western Texas College
Snyder, TX 79549

Dear Editor,

For the better part of the past year, folks in Scurry County have been working hard to establish an extended campus of Howard College in Snyder in order to make available Associate Degree Nursing Training for prospective students in our area.

From the beginning, we have enjoyed immeasurable cooperation from Dr. Charles Hays, Dr. Robert Riley and other members of his administration, and Mrs. Mrs. Barbara Holdampf, Director of Allied Health Programs. Without their cooperation, we would still be floundering about, wondering what we might be able to do to respond to the local critical need for registered nurses.

Thankfully, the Howard people have cooperated beautifully. Mrs. Holdampf has guided us well and has given us many hours of her time so that the proposed extended campus can become a reality.

In recent weeks, both the Coordinating Board and the Texas Education Agency have granted their approval, and the proposal will become a reality if the State Board of Nurse Examiners sees fit to authorize this extended campus during its meeting in March.

We believe there are many more ways that Howard College and Western Texas College can cooperate, and we shall be exploring these ways as time unfolds with Dr. Hays, and others there.

Policeman is praised

Dear Editor,

I would like to take a little space in this column to publicly thank Jimmy Wallace for the 12 years he spent on the Big Spring police force.

Up until a few years ago, I never realized what it took to be a police officer. I have since come to see this a little clearer.

All of the long hours away from your family and the sometimes physical and verbal abuse from the public takes more than pride, integrity and guts, it takes "backbone." Jimmy has that "backbone" and has proven it on several occasions. He doesn't know what the word "stranger" means and always has a smile and a friendly word.

Best wishes Jimmy on your new job. We will miss you.

I know that I am not alone when I say that Big Spring has lost its finest.

Between retreat and rout

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan blew an uncertain trumpet in his State of the Union message. While he would clearly prefer to stay the course, the call that issued fourth sounded a retreat that might lead to a rout.

The stress in economic policy is on promoting recovery by deliberate passivity about budget deficits this year and next. But there is no credible program for holding the line after that. So unless there is a strong recovery, the President will be naked to the storm.

Mr. Reagan's personal preference emerged clearly enough. He repudiated harshly any suggestion that the combination of huge tax cuts and higher defense spending enacted in 1981 might have even some little, itty-bitty connection with big deficits. Instead, he picked on his favorite whipping boy, the welfare state. "The fact is," he said, "our deficits come from the uncontrolled growth of domestic spending."

EVEN MORE revealing is an analysis of what would happen in the new budget if the Congress gave the President everything he now seeks. In that case, according to Budget Director David Stockman, defense spending, absent inflation, would rise by 9 percent in fiscal 1984. Domestic spending, absent inflation, would drop by 2 percent.

But everybody knows the Congress is not going to accept a defense increase of that size. The President's good friend, Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, expressed doubt the Congress would even go for a 7 percent increase. "And I'm a hawk," Laxalt observed ruefully in a brief chat after the speech.

Neither will the Congress readily approve the President's appeal for additional cuts in such transfer programs as Medicare, food stamps and welfare. Nor will it take kindly to the big item — a freeze of various government pay and pension program.

THE FOURTH part of the program — after the freeze, the cuts in transfer payments and defense — calls for raising taxes on a contingency basis of three years beginning in 1986. Howard Baker, the Republican leader in the Senate, had expressed strong opposition to contingency taxes as recently as Sunday. On Tuesday morning, he gave contingent support for contingency taxes. But Baker's condition is that the other three parts of the program are first enacted. So raising taxes after 1985 is practically a non-starter, too.

Those political realities were not lost on the President. Instead of digging in hard, Reagan spoke, in the first sentences of his speech, about "new things," and "making change work." He did not invoke such darlings of the right wing as Hoover and Coolidge. He did not even mention Lincoln. Instead he quoted two Democrats — Franklin Roosevelt and Bernard Baruch. And seven different times he invoked the "bipartisan" spirit.

The Democrats rose and cheered only once — an obviously orchestrated effort when the President said, "We who are in government must make the lead in restoring the economy." Reagan improvised a good one-liner: "And here I thought all that time you'd been reading the paper." But the burst of wit only underlined the point that the Democrats were sitting on their hands most of the way.

Not that they have any strong alternatives. On the contrary, the lack of big programs — even of big job programs — is striking. Their chief tactic is to insist that in return for a freeze, there be a reduction in tax breaks to the rich. That suggests that instead of meeting the President halfway, they are setting him up as a punching bag.

WHAT MATTERS most in all this is the impact on the economy. For the time being, the green light is on for stimulus. The deficit — which expresses government stimulus of spending by consumers — is high and rising. The official estimate is that it will be $200 billion for fiscal year 1983, which ends this September; $189 billion for fiscal year 1985. But that assumes enactment of the freeze and the cuts in transfer payments. Without them, the deficits soar over $200 billion.

Moreover, the President practically invited the Federal Reserve Board to pour money into the system. "Right now," he said, tipping the wink to Chairman Paul Volcker of the Fed, "with inflation as low as it is, 3.9 percent, there is room for interest rates to come down."

That basic emphasis seems right to me. With unemployment as high as it is, 10.8 percent, the clear priority should be on recovery. If the stimulus works, Keynes will be in his heaven, and many things, including deficits, will be right in the world.

But if the economy continues to falter, then the country is in for nasty trouble. For, apart from a return to prosperity, the President has no feasible program to bring the budget into balance ever. Large deficits loom ahead, and the mere overhang could cripple a weak recovery. In that event, the Democrats would move in for the kill. What is now a controlled retreat would become something all too familiar in our recent past, the rout of another President.

Dedication to city recognized

By CAROL HART
Lifestyle Writer

When the local chapter of the Woodmen of the World presented Mrs. Edna Womack with a Conservation Award they were honoring her for more than 35 years of service to the Big Spring community, Candy Andrews, a member of the chapter, said.

Mrs. Andrews described Mrs. Womack as "a lovely lady. I know she has touched my life several times. We honored her for her dedication to the Big Spring community. She has fought with City Hall for years to beautify Big Spring."

If no funds were available from the city for various clean-up projects, "she would use her own funds and energy" to get projects going, said Mrs. Andrews.

One project Mrs. Andrews recalled was the former Cottonwood Park near the railroad tracks on Birdwell Lane and Second Street. Mrs. Womack began the project to battle a drainage problem which existed there. For several years she was assisted in keeping the park clean by local Garden Club members and by city employees who mowed the grounds.

Mrs. Womack is a member of the Rosebud Garden Club and the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs. She first joined a garden club in 1942 at the urging of a friend.

Mrs. Womack also is an international flower show judge, having achieved the rank by studying horticulture for many years.

The presentation of the Conservation Award is one in a series of projects undertaken by the local Woodmen of the World chapter, said Mrs. Andrews. She explained that Woodmen of the World is a national fraternal organization which has more than 900,000 members.

The local chapter has 225 members, 150 of whom live in Big Spring. Most members come from "pioneer families" of the area, Mrs. Andrews said.

Of the 150 local members, about 35 attend monthly meetings on a regular basis. In addition to distributing civic awards, the group also plans to present scholar-

Dr. Donohue

What is sedimentation rate

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor recently noted that my sedimentation rate was up. She asked me if I had any aches. She mentioned a correlation between a high sedimentation rate and arthritis. Later, I wondered if she meant by aches the little irritating ones everyone gets with age. I am 44. Why is this test important? — Mrs. B.F.

Let's first get an idea of what the blood sedimentation rate is and what it tells. It's done by putting a sample of whole blood in a narrow tube, then measuring how far and how quickly the red blood cells settle down to the bottom of the tube. It is very simple, but it is a so-called "non-specific" test. It does not indicate any specific disease. The sedimentation rate of the red cells can increase in illnesses that cause inflammation or during pregnancy. And it will show an increase in connective-tissue diseases, like rheumatoid arthritis.

So when the test is done in a routine physical, it is an aid in screening out illnesses. The doctor raises an eyebrow when the sedimentation rate is elevated mildly, and he raises both eyebrows when it is very elevated. You tell me that the rest of your examination was normal and all other tests good. Under such circumstances a little elevation in the sedimentation rate would not have much meaning. Perhaps your doctor will want to repeat it later to see if it is staying up or has fallen.

If you had reported joint swelling and stiffness, especially in the morning, your doctor would have been more concerned. The sedimentation rate is no proof positive of rheumatoid arthritis.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can your heart beat too well? Prior to my mitral heart valve surgery my blood pressure was normal. Afterward it rose to 160-90. I am 60 years old and in fair health, but I have been going bananas with the constant "woosh" sound — "woosh-woosh-woosh." It is maddening. I am now taking Aldomet, but the beat goes on. I tried skipping the medicine for a day, with no effect. Should I try a couple of days with no medication? I have to try something. — E.S.E.

Please don't discontinue your medicines without first asking your doctor. And, as a matter of fact, the medicine you mentioned does not produce the whooshing.

Now to your question. I've heard of a heart beating too well. But if you wish I'll give you my guess as to what is happening with regard to your blood pressure rise since your surgery. My bet is that your blood pressure problem existed well before your operation, but it was being masked, in a sense, by the fact that your weak heart was not beating so well. Your blood pressure wasn't low because you were healthier then. You just had a weaker heart. Now with your heart-valve problem solved your heart is beating normally, uncovering your blood pressure problem.

Back to the whooshing noise. I have no easy remedy for that. It may be due to your new valve. You could be hearing this noise as it is transmitted from your heart up through your arteries. Sometimes a whoosh of this kind can indicate a narrowing of one of the large neck arteries, but I'm sure your doctor has examined you for this possibility. With that kind of problem ruled out, you are left to deal with your sanity. Perhaps you can learn to tolerate it, but even I won't resort to the easy platitudes of telling you to ignore it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 39-year-old mother of three children. During my last routine Pap smear it was discovered that the mouth of my cervix had a bluish color. The smear showed no infection. I took pregnancy tests and the results were negative. What other reasons are there for a cervix being bluish? — L.C.R.

There is a bluish color to the cervix during pregnancy because its vessels are engorged with blood. That's called Chadwick's sign. I have asked my gynecological consultants if they know of any illness that is associated with the tinge; none had an answer. Most thought it was a sign of engorgement of blood vessels, perhaps due to the time of the menstrual cycle during which you were examined.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Supreme Court needs assistance, Burger says

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger says he wants lawyers to help him convince Congress that the Supreme Court is dangerously overworked and the judicial system needs "fundamental changes," including a new appeals court.

"My proposal today is to provoke you and others and to stimulate a vigorous debate and discussion," Burger said in a 50-minute speech Sunday to the winter convention of the American Bar Association.

"We can no longer tolerate the vacuous notion that we can get along with the present structure 'because we have always done it that way,'" he said.

"Only fundamental changes... will avoid a breakdown of the system — or of some of the justices."

His proposal, in effect, calls for a temporary shadow Supreme Court to handle up to a third of the 150 cases that the high court decides with formal written opinions each year after full hearing.

BURGER SUGGESTED 26 judges could be selected from the 13 federal circuit courts and that seven or nine of them would serve terms of one year to handle the cases. The court would expire after five years and be renewed only if it proved successful.

The new panel would decide issues on which any two of the nation's 13 U.S. Courts of Appeals reached conflicting decisions. Such an approach, Burger believes, would eliminate the need for the Supreme Court to resolve the conflicts.

The ABA, which represents about half of the nation's 600,000 lawyers, can play an important role in convincing Congress of the need for drastic changes to relieve the overload, he said.

Burger previously has expressed concern over the court's workload, but this was the first time he had endorsed a specific solution.

Burger's claim that the Supreme Court is near drowning in "a tidal wave" of cases was greeted skeptically by some legal specialists.

JUDGE ALVIN B. RUBIN of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which is based in New Orleans, said, "I know the Supreme Court is overburdened only because they say they are."

Rubin said that issuing 150 written opinions a year means "slightly more than one opinion a month" per justice. The three-man appeals panel on which he serves produces about 150 opinions a year, he said.

Arthur D. Hellman, a University of Pittsburgh law school professor, said complaints by the justices "puzzle me a little. The Supreme Court only must consider a case if it is important, not if it was decided improperly" by a lower court.

"It ought not to take that much time," said Hellman. Burger, at 75 one of five of the court's nine members over 70, did not assert that the court's capacity to decide cases diligently had been exceeded. But he said the trend is in that direction.

IN THE LAST 30 years, the number of cases appealed to the court have more than tripled, from 1,463 to 5,311, Burger said. Last year, the court issued 141 opinions. In 1953, the figure was 65.

Justices work about 60 hours a week and their three-month recess in the summer is no vacation because even then they must read hundreds of legal briefs to prepare for the upcoming fall session, he said.

Friends honor Karen Carpenter

CYPRESS, Calif. (AP)—About 60 mourners paid their last respects to pop singer Karen Carpenter, filing into a memorial chapel during the first night of a public visitation.

Her brother Richard and her parents, Harold and Agnes Carpenter, were visitors at a Sunday night wake for Miss Carpenter at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Miss Carpenter, who with her brother won three Grammy Awards and sold 60 million recordings of their easy-listening music, died Friday of congestive heart failure at the age of 32.

Funeral services were set for Tuesday at United Methodist Church in Downey, the Los Angeles suburb where Miss Carpenter spent much of her childhood.

Golden Lloyd, manager of Utter McKinley Mortuary in Downey, said the funeral would be open but entombment at Forest Lawn would be private.

Miss Carpenter had been battling anorexia nervosa, a condition that prompts some victims to diet and exercise to the point of emaciation. Doctors said the condition may have damaged her heart.

The exact cause of death was still under investigation by the Los Angeles County coroner's office.

A MEMORIAL TO JEFFERSON — Green Bay Packers wide receiver John Jefferson celebrates after catching a last-minute touchdown pass from Danny White of the Dallas Cowboys. The late scoring play lifted the NFC All-Stars to a 20-19 victory over their AFC counterparts in Sunday's Pro Bowl in Honolulu.

White's toss subdues AFC

HONOLULU (AP) — Danny White's football season was in danger of ending on a sour note, but he closed out the National Football League campaign on the upbeat Sunday.

White, the quarterback who sat out a good part of Dallas' playoff loss to Washington with an injury, threw an 11-yard scoring pass to Green Bay's John Jefferson with 31 seconds remaining to help give the National Football Conference a 20-19 Pro Bowl victory over the AFC.

Washington's Mark Moseley ended what had been an afternoon of frustration with the winning extra point kick. He actually had to kick it twice, since the NFC drew a five-yard penalty the first time. "It means a lot more than money to win," said White, referring to the winners' shares of $10,000, twice that of the losers. "There's a lot of pride involved, a lot of incentive when you're playing against the best in the league."

Jefferson, whose diving, fingertip grab of a White pass kept the winning drive alive, smiled and said: "We've got bragging rights for the year. I've made a lot of diving catches, but that had to be the biggest one."

The touchdown pass on the next day was a relatively easy catch for Jefferson, who broke open momentarily over the middle.

Jefferson made a beautiful catch when he drove: that was the play of the game," said NFC Coach Tom Landry of the Cowboys. "Without it we would have lost."

Moseley, who had missed three field goals and had another blocked by the AFC, said: "There's no excuse for missing those field goals. I had a bad day."

	AFC	NFC
First downs	24	26
Rushes-yards	27-79	27-124
Passing-yards	307	221
Returns-yards	17	39
Passes	31-50-2	24-44-4
Sacks by	4-43	2-15
Fumbles lost	5-43	3-32
Penalties-yards	9-118	7-41
Time of possession	30:46	29:14

Play was generally ragged in the game, with the specialty teams — using players who hadn't been on specialty teams for years — particularly error-prone.

Still, it had a number of exciting moments.

"It was a heck of a football game," said AFC Coach Walt Michaels of the New York Jets. "For people who had just been together for four practices, they gave an effort to be proud of. On that last drive by the NFC, their stars shone brightly, too."

The NFC victory overshadowed a Pro Bowl record passing performance by + San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts, who threw for 274 yards.

Fouts, who played the entire first and third quarters and the last half of the fourth quarter, set Pro Bowl records for most yards and most completions. He completed 17 of 30 attempts.

He connected with the New York Jets' Wesley Walker on a 34-yard scoring throw in the opening quarter, then helped the AFC to a 19-10 advantage when he directed a 69-yard scoring drive in the third period. Los Angeles Raiders rookie Marcus Allen, the NFL's leading scorer this season, capped the march with a 1-yard touchdown plunge.

The NFC trimmed the difference to six points four minutes into the final period on a 41-yard field goal by Moseley.

Kite slashes to Crosby win

Caldwell runner-up in third tournament

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Kite got the victory and said it was a step in the right direction toward an undisclosed goal.

Rex Caldwell tied for second — the third week in a row he has had a least a share of the runnerup spot — and said he's already achieved a goal.

"When I first came on Tour, it was my dream to be recognized in any pro shop I went into. Now they recognize me in any grocery store I go into. It's great," Caldwell said Sunday after chasing Kite to the title in the 42nd Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament.

Caldwell, who has yet to win on the PGA Tour, lost in playoffs in the Bob Hope Classic and the Phoenix Open, his two previous starts. He didn't force it to a playoff this time. Kite won outright, by two shots, with a closing 73 in rain and wind and cold that raked the Pebble Beach Links, and a 276 total.

Caldwell also had a 73 over the final 18 and a 278 total. He shared second with Cal Peete, who pitched in for an eagle-2 on the way to a closing 70.

But Kite was the first to note that it could have been different.

"If Rex had made those (birdie) putts on the last two holes, you could have had a very interesting story," Kite said.

But Caldwell missed them and Kite, despite bogeys on three of his last four holes, rode his once-commanding five-shot lead to his fifth PGA Tour triumph, a surprisingly low total for the man who led the 1981 money-winners and has taken the Vardon Trophy for the past two seasons.

"I'm awfully glad to get the win," he said. "This is one you set your sights on, for a couple of reasons; the courses and the fact they always have such a strong field. "This is a stepping stone, but I have a long way to go to complete my goals for the year." He declined to name those goals, however.

BIG PAYCHECK, ALL RIGHT — Austin golfer Tom Kite gets that winning spirit after a birdie on the 12th hole Sunday during the rainy finish of the Bing Crosby Pro-Am at Pebble Beach, Calif.

A year ago, however, in a plane over the Atlantic headed for Great Britain, he spelled them out: "Win, and win consistently. Win in the majors, and win more than once."

The victory was worth $58,500 from the total purse of $325,000 and lifted Kite a couple of notches on the all-time money-winning list. He now has $1,723,715 for a 12-year career and moved past Hall of Famers Billy Casper and Gary Player into the No. 9 spot.

And Jack Nicklaus passed another money milestone. He birdied four holes in a row beginning on the 14th, a comeback that salvaged a closing round of par 72 and sixth alone at 280. He won $11,700 and became the only man to go past $4 million in career earnings. Nicklaus now has $4,006,633.

'Boom-Boom' bops Feeney

SAINT VINCENT, Italy (AP) — World Boxing Association lightweight champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini pounded out a hard-fought decision over Britain's George Feeney who, Mancini said "turned out to be an extremely tough, determined opponent."

The 21-year-old champ from Youngstown, Ohio won a close, unanimous verdict in the 10-round, non-title bout. The fight, in this Italian gambling resort, was seen as a test of Mancini's physical and psychological condition after his tragic title defense last Nov. 13 against Korean challenger Duk-Koo Kim, who died of brain damage after being knocked out in the 14th round.

Eighty-five days after the tragedy in Las Vegas, Nev., the world champion showed his usual, aggressive boxing style. But he was forced to fight the full 10 rounds by the 25-year-old British champion, who displayed a great deal of endurance and fought back with a range of powerful blows.

Feeney's rights shook Mancini during the eighth round and the British fighter later said in the dressing room, "I felt close to a sensational upset in that moment."

Instead Mancini fought back gamely, firing wild two-hand series and tagging Feeney freely in the final round.

Mancini agreed that the two last rounds won him the decision — his sixth on points out of a professional record of 26 wins and a single loss. He had a two-point edge, 98-96, on two judges' cards, and was three points ahead, 98-95, on the third.

Sunday night's defeat in the indoor sports palace was Feeney's eighth in 24 pro fights.

The world champion rejected suggestions of insufficient preparation. "I trained hard. It was Feeney's ability which prevented me from achieving a clearcut win. I took a lot of risks for this victory. I am very proud of it." Feeney exploited his longer reach to jab Mancini with the left and fire precise rights which often hit Mancini's jaw.

One blow by Feeney cut the champion's left eye during the seventh round and Mancini ended the bout bleeding.

A capacity crowd of 1,500, including Mancini's parents, a group from Youngstown and dozens of fans from Bagheria — the Sicilian village where Mancini's grandfather was born — warmly supported Mancini, but also applauded Feeney as both fighters belted away after a cautious start.

Let's talk.

Information about your changing telephone service from Darlene Gifford, Community Relations Manager

Industry changes will affect us all

The new year brings us significant changes for Southwestern Bell and the entire telecommunications industry.

As a result of a ruling by the Federal Communications Commission to introduce more competition into our industry, we are reorganizing how we provide your telephone service.

Helping you keep pace with change

As Southwestern Bell restructures and adapts to these new industry changes, you will want to know their impact on you and your telephone service. That's part of my job: keeping you informed about our plans. My duties also include recommending areas for service improvement, monitoring service problems in our area, and serving as the company's representative to our community.

While I've had the opportunity to visit with some of you about these telephone issues, it's impossible for me to speak personally to everyone. That's why I will be using this column to communicate with you. My address is listed at the end of the column. Please feel free to drop me a note anytime—I'll be glad to hear from you.

I can't guarantee that I will have all the answers or instant solutions. But I can promise that I will listen to you and help you in whatever way I can.

Most importantly, I will keep you posted on changes—local and national—that affect your telephone service.

Today's changes in telecommunications

For most customers, the FCC changes effective January 1 will have little impact. In fact, you probably won't be affected immediately unless you move, disconnect or change your service in some way. If you plan to alter your phone service, here are some areas of change you should know about.

Bell PhoneCenters

Bell PhoneCenters are no longer a part of Southwestern Bell. Now, the business office is the place to call for starting, stopping, moving or changing your service.

Effective January 14, Southwestern Bell's local business office moved to Odessa to comply with the company's continuing consolidation plans.

Residence customers may call (toll-free) 1 + 951-2221 for billing matters and 1 + 951-2112 for orders. Business customers may call (toll-free) 1 + 951-2501 for billing matters and 1 + 951-2521.

Telephones

Southwestern Bell will continue to lease phones to our customers. However, during this year, we will not be permitted to add new phones to our inventory.

When you order phones from us, we will direct you to the nearest Southwestern Bell Service Center located at 205 E. Fourth to pick up your phones. If you cannot go to the Center, we will deliver the phones. There will be a charge for this service.

Business customers with a single line or two lines with non-key equipment can pick up telephones from these Centers, too.

Payments

The Service Center will not be able to accept payments. Of course you may mail your payments, but if you prefer to pay your statements in person, you may do so at one of the following locations:

First National Bank
400 Main
(10 a.m. to 3 p.m.
Monday through Friday)

Kopper Kettle
Big Spring Mall
(10 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Monday through Saturday)

Repair Service

We will continue to repair Southwestern Bell phones as always. If you have trouble with your phone, you still should call the repair service number listed in the front of your phone book. If the problem is in your Southwestern Bell set, we'll direct you to a Service Center where you can pick up a replacement.

For more information about the changes, write me for a copy of our booklet, "Telecommunications in Transition." Address requests to: Transition Booklet, Southwestern Bell, P.O. Box 225265, Dallas, Texas 75265.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "It was about time," sighed John McEnroe after beating Ivan Lendl to win the $375,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships for the second consecutive year.

McEnroe, 23, had lost to Lendl seven straight times before prevailing Sunday 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3 and ending the 22-year-old Czech's indoor winning streak of 66 matches.

The top seed from Douglaston, N.Y., who before Sunday had lost 19 of his last 22 sets against Lendl, said he got a lot of advice on how to play the second-seeded Czech.

"I had to decipher what was meaningful," said McEnroe, who got some tips from, among others, tennis hall of famer Don Budge.

"What it came down to was going back to my roots," McEnroe said. "I decided to come in and volley. That's my game. I figured if I was going to lose, it would be against the way I play best."

McEnroe said this was an important victory for him.

"He was darn tenacious," McEnroe said. "It was a close match. And I think he felt the pressure of his streak."

A practitioner of the art of plain talk, McEnroe commented, "I played better than Ivan and needed to."

His own mistakes made the victory that much tougher to achieve, McEnroe noted. "I missed some easy ground strokes I couldn't believe and put pressure on myself early. But I felt I volleyed pretty good."

Lendl said one reason he lost was his serve, which he felt let him down.

He said he wasn't disturbed by McEnroe's cries and gestures of displeasure on calls throughout the match, noting, "He does that all the time. It was nothing new."

As for the streak, Lendl said simply, "It's over. There'll be another one."

Dallas eyes focus on Lewis, Olson

DALLAS (AP) — Herschel Walker, the Heisman Trophy winner and All-American from Georgia, has a track hero and it isn't himself.

He'd like to be just like Carl Lewis, who now owns the world indoor long jump and 60-yard dash records.

"Carl is an outstanding athlete and person on and off the track," said Walker.

"He's a super guy with a great personality. I think anybody would like to have a kid just like Carl. He's an example of a winner."

Lewis beat Walker with a world indoor record run of 6.02 seconds in the Dallas Times Herald Invitational Meet Saturday night.

"It's a second world record and I always wanted it, but I was a little surprised since it was the first time I had run the 60 this year," said Lewis.

Lewis eclipsed the record of 6.04 established by Stanley Floyd at Reunion Arena in 1981.

"I was very nervous," Lewis said. "I was leery of the way things were going to go. It's the only time this year that I have run the 60."

Lewis, who holds the world indoor long jump record of 18 feet, 1 inch, had run a 6.06 in the 60 two years ago as his personal best.

"I hadn't won a race of any kind this year," Lewis said. "I hadn't run a good 60 in two years."

Walker was second in 6.12 seconds after running 6.10 in the prelims.

A crowd of some 12,000 was treated to Lewis' explosive run and stayed around close to midnight to watch Billy Olson's attempt to best his world indoor pole vault record.

Olson cleared 18 feet, 8 1/2 inches but failed three times at 19 feet, 3/4 inches which would have bettered his world indoor best by a half-inch.

The former Abilene Christian star set the new world record in Toronto Friday night before flying to Dallas.

Aguirre scores 44 in Mavs victory

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland Trail Blazers coach Jack Ramsay credits Mark Aguirre's hot shooting and ball-handling skills with leading the Dallas Mavericks to a 112-105 National Basketball Association victory over the Blazers Sunday night.

"You have to acknowledge that Aguirre had a great game, an outstanding game," said Portland coach Jack Ramsay. "I don't recall when a player had that good a game handling the ball and shot it with such accuracy."

Aguirre connected on 13 of 30 shots to record a career high point total of 44. He scored 43 earlier this year against Indiana.

The victory was the Mavericks' 10th in 13 games.

Aguirre scored 24 of his points in the first half as Dallas took an 11 point lead, 59-48.

The Blazers caught the Mavericks in the fourth period, leading by as much as three, 103-100, with 2:13 left in the game.

But Aguirre hit two consecutive jump shots in a 30-second stretch and then Elston Turner connected on a three-point play with 46 seconds left to give the Mavericks a 107-103 lead.

Turner, who scored only five points in a reserve role, stole the ball from Portland, which led to two free throws by Brad Davis that clinched the verdict.

Davis had 19 points and Jay Vincent had 21 points to bolster the Mavericks' attack.
