

Hinckley's condition stabilizes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assailant John Hinckley Jr. was in serious but stable condition today, hooked to a respirator, as authorities tried to determine where he got the drugs he took in an apparent suicide attempt.

Hinckley, 27, was found semi-conscious from an overdose Sunday morning on the floor of his room at St. Elizabeths Hospital, where he was confined after his acquittal by reason of insanity in the shooting of President Reagan. Authorities were unsure what Hinckley took.

Wayne Pines, a spokesman for St. Elizabeths, said it was a "reasonable assumption" that Hinckley had tried to commit suicide for the third time since he wounded Reagan and three other men outside the Washington Hilton Hotel in March 1981.

Hinckley was given cardiopulmonary resuscitation and oxygen, and his color was blue and he was having difficulty breathing when he was brought to Greater Southeast Community Hospital, said Dr. James Levy, the hospital president.

"We will not be able to tell you for certainty for the next 24 to 48 hours whether he's out of the woods," Levy said.

Hospital spokesman Stephanie McNeill described Hinckley as "alert and oriented" early today.

"His vital signs are stabilizing," she said. "He is doing well for his situation... he does respond to commands."

Asked what Hinckley might have taken to cause the illness, Levy said: "I would imagine it would be medication that he might be taking in relation to why he's hospitalized at St. Elizabeths."

"He certainly took an excessive amount," Levy said. "We are not specifically clear exactly what substance he did take."

The Washington Post quoted sources in today's editions as saying Hinckley may have taken an overdose of a prescribed antidepressant drug. Pines said the hospital is investigating whether Hinckley may have saved up some of his medication and then taken an overdose of it.

Asked if Hinckley was in danger of dying, Levy said "yes." Asked how great was the danger, he replied: "It's a little hard to characterize that. I can't give you a prognosis. ... He is stable, and we believe he'll be all right. ... He has improved but is still seriously ill."

He said Hinckley was in the critical care unit with 24-hour nurses and security guards.

'I just like what she's about... She fascinates me and I don't really know why.'

DORIS DAY'S BIGGEST FAN — Leslye Overman, 18, has been following the music and movies of the singer/actress for several years. Leslye is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Overman.

Doris Day devotee

For local fan, it's a sentimental journey

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

At a time when most teen-agers follow the fads and idolize the latest rock musician or movie star, 18-year-old Leslye Overman is Big Spring's biggest Doris Day fan — playing her favorite Doris Day records and getting up at odd hours to watch Doris Day-Rock Hudson comedies.

The immediate question is why a high school senior from Texas — who got a letter from Ms. Day last month — is such a big fan of the 58-year-old star, whose popular career was decades ago?

"I don't really know how I got interested in her," Leslye said at her parents' home at 2719 Larry. "That's probably the most asked question. It just happened."

Although she doesn't have a clear memory of exactly when, Leslye does recall watching "The Doris Day Show" TV series as a little girl.

"Probably the first picture I see of her is her coming down the spiral staircase," she said.

While Leslye says she has difficulty articulating her attraction for the singer/actress' movies and music, she does have a perceptive picture of her idol.

The strength of Doris Day's character is the main thing that crops up again and again in Leslye's conversation about her attraction to the movie star.

"She's been through a lot of bad times," she said. "She had a pretty rough life — she's stayed strong through it all."

While Doris Day may appear to be "sweet and innocent, the girl next door," Leslye says that image is not correct nor appreciated by Ms. Day.

"She's been through four bad marriages — which doesn't say much for her," Leslye said. "She believes now that you can grow tired of people — I don't believe that. She believes in a lot of things I don't."

But something about the singer/actress and her career holds a certain mystique for the Big Spring High School student.

"I like how she handles herself — I just like what she's about," Leslye said. "She fascinates me and I don't really know why."

Music and animals are important to both. An avid animal lover, Leslye is a state choir finalist and plans to major in music at Abilene Christian University. She also says she prefers the mellow

Midland man sought in shootout

2 U.S. marshals killed

MEDINA, N.D. (AP) — Authorities scoured four states and two Canadian provinces today in a manhunt for a pair of suspects after a shootout with an anti-tax "fanatic" left two U.S. marshals dead and three other officers wounded.

Police said the shooting Sunday was sparked as a team of U.S. marshals and local police tried to arrest Gordon Kahl, a probation violator and tax protester.

Two other suspects, one of them wounded in the stomach, were arrested late Sunday. They were identified as Kahl's son and daughter-in-law.

Kahl, 63, of Midland, is "a fanatic. He's one of those income tax fanatics," said U.S. Deputy Marshal Ordean Lee of the Fargo office.

Lee said authorities believed Kahl to be dangerous because "he made statements he would not be taken. We knew he had guns."

The manhunt for Kahl, originally from Heaton, N.D., and another unidentified suspect, drew "almost the whole state of North Dakota ... including the FBI and the Highway Patrol" into the search, Lee said.

Kahl was jailed in 1977, 1978 and 1979 in Midland for failure to file federal income tax returns, according to the Midland Police Department. Midland police contacted by phone early today had no further information on Kahl's criminal record.

Lee said he didn't know what Kahl did to violate his probation or what the length of his sentences were.

Kahl's son, who was not further identified, was arrested at a Jamestown hospital where he was being treated for a gunshot wound to the stomach, said Chief U.S. Deputy Marshal Ron Evans.

The man's wife, whose identity was not released, also was arrested when she came in to inquire about him, Evans said. "Both have been charged with aiding and abetting on

Valentine, Texas, gets letters, but no respect

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer

VALENTINE, Texas (AP) — Residents of this tiny Texas town, tired of dumb Valentine's Day jokes and requests for directions to Cupid's house, have decided to make Valentine's Day pay.

"I mean, how many Valentines are there in the world? So we might as well take advantage of it," said Mayor Jesus Calderon.

But some skeptics say nothing could lure lovers to Valentine.

A Southern Pacific brakeman who has traveled the 155 miles between El Paso and Valentine for decades said the town has "nothing for no one," including its 300 residents.

Five U.S. border patrolmen sipp-ing coffee at The Mile Post Cafe laughed when asked if the two-gas-station town had any tourist potential.

But Calderon said a Valentine's Day chili cook-off could generate publicity and pad Valentine's pocketbook.

The town already has scheduled the coronation of its Valentine's Day queen, with four local high school maidens vying for the crown. The high school also holds an annual Valentine's Day boys' and girls' basketball tournament.

Further, Valentine's post office plans to continue stamping letters mailed on Valentine's Day with its special heart-shaped stamp. Last year, about 30,000 letter-senders nationwide requested the free service.

City completes Phase I of improvements plan

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

One fifth of a city improvement project is almost complete, within budget and with a little money left over, says City Manager Don Davis.

Over $2.375 million in bonds were sold for Phase I of the city's five-part capital improvements program; however, its cost — excluding consultant fees — was $1.944 million. After paying fees for engineering, bond counsel and surveys, the city has about $400,000 left over to be applied to projects in Phase II, Davis said.

The program's first phase covered six areas: sewer, water distribution, street and drainage improvements and construction of a water office.

Big Spring citizens voted for the program in December 1980. Three major bond proposals to improve streets and water and sewer systems passed in the first bond election held in the city in 20 years.

Estimated cost of the project is $10.2 million and should be completed in about 6½ years, Davis said. Phase I took about 18 months to complete, he said.

The most expensive part of the first phase improved the water distribution system and was completed in October for $582,077.

Workers replaced 34,953 linear feet of water mains, 5,500 linear feet of service lines and 310 service connections.

Probably the most visible improvements were to the streets, especially Wasson Road. Wasson Road has been reconstructed, but rough areas in the street must be repaired by Price Construction Co. before the city council approves it.

Wasson Road was widened to five lanes from F.M. 700 to Comanche Trail Park and to four lanes from the park to Randolph Blvd. Also, curbs and gutters were constructed along the entire road.

The Wasson Road improvements cost $447,114. Some of that amount was absorbed by individual property owners who were assessed $6.40 per linear foot for the curbs and gutters, leaving the net cost at $369,352.

About $169,816 was spent to repair streets opened for placing water distribution lines. Parts of Park, Dixie, Jefferson, 12th, 15th, Lockhart, George and Lincoln streets and the 11th and Birdwell intersection were repaired.

Also, a municipal annex is being constructed near City Hall for $108,836 and should be completed March 1. It will house the water business office, municipal court and the Housing Assistance Payment Program office.

The original plans called for a 1,600 square-foot water office costing an estimated $90,000. The plans were expanded to 3,000 square feet to house the other two offices but with no increase in cost to the program. The expansion cost ($40,000) will be absorbed into municipal court and housing assistance funds.

Midland man wins $1 million in suit

SAN ANGELO — A federal jury has awarded almost $1 million to a Midland oil field worker who lost a leg in a job accident 18 months ago.

Bill Williamson, 37, was helping unload a Caterpillar ditch-digger when it fell off a trailer and landed on his right leg on July 29, 1981, near Garden City. He was an employee of Continental Pipeline Construction Co. at the time.

A six-person jury deliberated more than five hours Thursday afternoon before awarding Williamson $956,899 in damages against Turner Brothers Trucking Co. Inc. of Tulsa, Okla. It did rule that Williamson was partially negligent in the accident because he did not "keep a proper lookout."

Williamson's lawyer, John Green of Odessa, said testimony for his client proved the Caterpillar was heavier than the trailer's manufacturer's recommended weight limit.

Lawyers for Turner Brothers denied all allegations.

Police Beat

Fight outside arcade leads to 3 arrests

A fight outside the Space Station game room at Highland Shopping Center last night resulted in three arrests and a broken arm, police say.

A 19-year-old man, Jose Antonio Moran of 208 N.E. Seventh, told police he tried to stop the fight, but someone took offense and hit him on the left arm with a baseball bat.

Moran was treated at Malone Hogan Hospital for a fractured arm.

Police say they arrested an adult and two juveniles after the fray. Jose Refugio Moran Jr., 20, of 208 N.E. Seventh was arrested on suspicion of making an alcoholic beverage available to a minor. The juveniles were arrested on suspicion of being minors in possession of an alcoholic beverage.

Police reports also show the following:

- Police say they arrested 20-year-old Clint Rankin Elliot of Gail Route Box 39 Saturday night on a burglary of a business warrant and on suspicion of possessing less than 2 ounces of marijuana.
- Juanita Deanda Rodriguez, 31, of 1502 W. Third was arrested yesterday on suspicion of shoplifting a 3-ounce bottle of Charlie lotion from Gibson Discount Center.
- Mrs. Lorretta Huel Burt of 1615 Cardinal told police someone stole a micro-mini cassette tape recorder and some frozen meat from her residence Saturday night.
- Karla L. Daily of 2201 S. Rannels suffered minor injuries Saturday afternoon when cars driven by her and Bertha F. Bedford of 809 Lorilla collided at South Goliad and East 16th. Shaffer ambulance service took Ms. Daily to Malone Hogan Hospital where she was treated and released. Police say they ticketed Ms. Bedford for failure to yield right-of-way.

Doris Day

sounds not only of contemporary artists, but past singers as well.

"Rock is okay, but I like Anne Murray, Doris Day, Barbara Streisand," Leslye said. "I listen to Andy Williams, Rosemary Clooney — the older singers. I just always have."

Leslye is quietly proud of the letter she got from Doris Day after she had tried unsuccessfully to meet her twice while on church trips to California.

The hand-written three-page letter asked what Leslye said was her favorite question — "Where is Big Spring?"

In return, Leslye sent an old book, "Big Spring" by Shine Phillips. Because it's a humorous description of the early years of Big Spring, Leslye said she hoped her idol didn't get the wrong idea.

"She'll probably get it and think we're still riding horses or something like that," Leslye said with a laugh.

Questions about Doris Day are something Leslye excels at answering. She says people are always asking her about Doris Day trivia.

Leslye said the actress/singer was pushed onto the stage and screen. A car-train wreck at age 13 ruined any possibility of a hoped-for dancing career for Doris, the high-school senior said.

"The only thing she really wanted to do was grow up, get married, have a big family and live in Cincinnati in an old Victorian home," Leslye said. "Singing was an outlet when she couldn't move. They didn't expect her to walk again."

"Doris Day" is a stage name, according to Leslye. Named after the old song "Day by Day" while on tour with Les Brown and his Band of Renown, the actress doesn't like the name at all, the teen-ager adds.

Strangely, her friends call her by the curious title of "Clara Bixby" — a name given her by director Billy DeWolfe, Leslye said.

Much of the star's life is filled with the Doris Day Pet' Foundation, Leslye said. In fact, Doris Day likes dogs so much (18 at home) she named her record company after her favorite and most famous dog, Biggest, Leslye said.

What is the best Doris Day movie? Leslye is probably the one people are most familiar with and enjoys 'Pillow Talk' with Rock Hudson, Leslye said. Despite her love of Doris Day movies, Leslye said she had not seen all of them because they are not shown on TV.

A personal favorite was a horror picture that Doris Day made in 1965 that was surprisingly effective, according to Leslye.

"She did a real neat one called 'Midnight Lace,'" Leslye said enthusiastically. "Nowadays, the big scary movies are out with blood and everything. This one didn't have any blood or anything like that — but it was so scary."

Leslye's favorite song from Doris Day is probably "Sentimental Journey." She prefers her Christmas songs, too, but says it is really hard to choose.

Leslye believes she will continue to appreciate the music and movies of Doris Day as long as she doesn't "drive it into the ground." Doris Day is "something to come back to whenever you're in a mellow mood," Leslye said.

The Hollywood lifestyle is not something that particularly appeals to Leslye.

"You have to answer to a lot of people and I don't like to answer to people," Leslye said. "Hollywood is fun to visit, but I don't know if I'd like to make a go at it."

Ranked 14th of 275 students at BSHS, Leslye says the future does not concern her that much.

"I'm just trying to get through trigonometry now," Leslye said.

of the assault of a federal officer," he said.

The names of the slain marshals and the two other law officers were not released late Sunday. U.S. Deputy Marshal James Hopson was reported in serious condition after being flown from a hospital in nearby Jamestown to Bismarck Hospital.

Condition reports were not immediately available on the other wounded officers.

North Dakota Gov. Allen Olson said that he had put the entire resources of the state on the alert, including National Guard helicopters and all law enforcement agencies.

Authorities in Minnesota, Montana, South Dakota, Saskatchewan and Manitoba also were alerted.

Evans said automatic weapons fire started as "four U.S. marshals approached a vehicle that they suspected" Kahl was in.

"As they approached the vehicle, gunfire — automatic gunfire — erupted from the vehicle striking three of the marshals and fatally wounding two of them," Evans said.

Medina Police Chief Darrell Graf, who was involved in the incident, said he believed he heard about 20 shots from his position, which was out of sight of the shooting.

"It seemed like there was just a roar of gunfire. That's all I remember about it," Graf said.

"They (the marshals) had set up some fire trucks and ambulances at the base of the hill prior to the incident. They apparently knew there was going to be a problem," Graf said.

"I'm sure they were treating this situation as such. However, I'm also sure that they were not expecting automatic gunfire to come from the vehicle," Evans said.

Later, the suspects apparently stole a Stutsman County deputy sheriff's car which is still missing, Evans said. Another car in which some of the suspects had fled was found abandoned later Sunday near Fessenden, N.D., about 60 miles northeast of Medina.

Medina, a farming community of about 500 people in south central North Dakota, is about 75 miles east of Bismarck.

"The search is continuing and will continue until the two remaining suspects are caught," Evans said.

The actual cost for the water office is $68,836, well below the original $90,000 estimate.

The other two completed parts of Phase I replaced an interceptor sewer line for $442,679 and built drainage structures along 11th Place for $47,158.

The sewer project replaced the Beal's Creek sewer line with 4,678 linear feet of 30-inch ductile iron pipe from Rutgers street to the sewer plant.

The 15 drainage structures were built along 11th Place from Abrams to F.M. 700. They channel water runoff from 11th Place to retention tanks at the bottom of the arroyos without eroding the side slopes.

Odessans warned of poisonous gas

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A councilman says the concentrations of lethal gas may lead to "another Love Canal," but the city has still approved plans to build apartments near some oil wells leaking the fumes, experts say.

Oil wells "are what made Odessa grow, and we can't say we're going to stop the growth because oil wells are in the way," said council member Houston Seabolt.

Walter Reid, owner of an Odessa testing laboratory, warned the City Council that high levels of the foul-smelling gas were found near the 1.7-acre site annexed by the city for future apartment development.

Seven members of a family were killed Feb. 2, 1975 near Denver City, 70 miles north of here, when hydrogen sulfide gas from a well 150 feet from their home seeped along the ground and engulfed the house.

According to the American National Standards Institute, death can occur after exposure to doses of 500 to 700 parts per million of hydrogen sulfide in oxygen. The Denver City family was killed, autopsies showed, by concentrations of 50,000 parts per million.

A recent sample of oil taken by Tenneco Oil Co. officials from batteries of tanks near the annexation site contained hydrogen sulfide concentrations of 20,000 parts per million.

And despite strict state standards, concentrations of the gas, which smells like rotten gas, are increasing in Odessa, experts say.

"It's more of an odor nuisance than a health hazard," said Neil J. Carman, environmental quality expert with the Texas Air Control Board's Odessa office.

"There's a very sour gas out there. The fields out there and the wells are going more sour, and it's common knowledge that the level of (hydrogen sulfide) is increasing."

Odessans breathe a concentration every day of 0.02 parts per million, Carman said.

Reid said he is concerned about potential dangers to people moving closer to oil fields.

And councilman Seabolt agrees. Odessa, Seabolt said, could be "looking at another Love Canal," referring to the area of upstate New York poisoned by industrial chemicals.

SA sets luncheon

The Salvation Army will hold its annual dinner at noon on March 15, said Lt. Carol Braun of the SA.

Humorist Chesley McDonald will be featured speaker at the banquet.

Volunteers who helped the SA throughout the year will be recognized at the luncheon, Braun said, and three new Salvation Army Advisory Board members will be installed.

Dock Vourchez, Lupe Dominguez and Grady Cunningham will be the new members installed.

In a break with tradition, the organization decided on a noon-time dinner because "we thought it would be easier for some of the people to attend, Braun said."

Tickets for the event are $6 and are available through advisory board members or at the Salvation Army offices, Braun said.

BSSH doctoral intern gets research grant

Big Spring State Hospital doctoral intern Robin McGirk of Sherman has received a research grant from the Wacker Foundation of Dallas for his study with hyperactive children. He is currently seeking subjects.

McGirk is working in cooperation with East Texas State University and has been at BSSH for six months. His doctoral work deals with how environmental toxins affect the behavior of children.

The grant goes to cover the costs of hair analyses for the children. The analysis attempts to show the relationship between toxin levels and hyperactive behavior in two groups of children.

Studies show hyperactivity affects 10 percent of all school children — many which develop learning disabilities.

Interested parents should contact McGirk at 267-8216, Extension 255 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. or 263-3294 after 6 p.m.

East Coast braces for second storm

By The Associated Press
A new East Coast storm spread snow and freezing rain across the Carolinas and parts of Virginia today while roads clogged by the Blizzard of '83 caused rush hour delays in the cities of the Northeast.

Office workers in Washington were urged to play hooky.

Although snowplows cleared major thoroughfares Sunday from Richmond to Boston after a record blizzard that killed at least 70 people, many side streets remained blocked.

It was standing room only on commuter trains and buses in cities such as New York, Washington and Baltimore, with many running up to 30 minutes late.

Dozens of bus routes in New York City and Washington were not operating.

Florists complained they were having trouble delivering flowers for Valentine's Day.

But few problems were reported on the highways as residents heeded warnings from officials that roads were only partially open and all the street parking places were covered with mounds of snow.

Al Long, spokesman for the transit authority in Washington, urged people "not to go to work today if they don't have to."

A new storm was spreading from Georgia to central Virginia, with forecasts of up to 3 inches of snow and gales off the South Carolina coast. As temperatures warmed, the snow was expected to change to freezing rain, making driving treacherous.

By early today, trees and power lines glistened with ice in North Carolina and the weather service advised "extreme caution" for any outdoor activities.

Some light rain or sleet could fall on the major metropolitan areas in the Northeast that were hit by the blizzard that dumped up to 3 feet of snow Friday and Saturday, forecasters said.

But the weather service said temperatures would remain on the cold side for the next five days, preventing any significant snow melt and promising a week of traffic problems.

"It looks like it's going to be cold and kind of sloppy for awhile," said Harry Gordon, with the National Weather Service's severe storm center in Kansas City, Mo.

Gordon said forecasters were surprised at the storm's intensity over the mid-Atlantic states. "It took a zig where it should have zagged and brought a lot more snow," he said.

The mercury dipped to 11 degrees below zero Sunday in Elkins, W.Va., a record for the date, and temperatures this morning were in the 20s along the Eastern Seaboard.

In New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston, streets remained clogged today with abandoned cars and trucks mired in waist-deep snow.

William A. Maas, executive vice president of Florists' Transworld Delivery, said florists seeking to fill Valentine's Day orders today were particularly hard hit by the inaccessible streets.

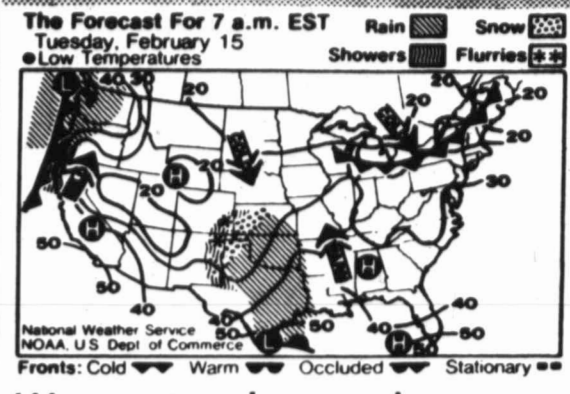

"Right now it looks like a disaster," said Baltimore flower shop owner Van Boylan.

FTD florists asked the governors of 11 storm-hit states to declare it Valentine's Week, which would give them some extra days to complete their rounds. The governors of Massachusetts and Maryland had agreed.

The weekend blizzard was "probably the worst in memory for many people," said Gordon, and "one of the worst" ever for the region.

"It's pretty if you're looking out, but this is quite enough," said Ruth Cowell, 65, of Vernoo, N.J., one of millions of people forced to dig out Sunday. "I don't want to shovel any more, thank you."

Weather

Warm weather ends

By The Associated Press
Clear skies dominated the Texas weather picture early today, but the possibility of scattered rain and thundershowers — and some snow in the Panhandle and South Plains — loomed on the horizon.

Patchy light fog was reported over portions of Central and Southeast Texas before dawn. High clouds were noted over the Panhandle.

Pre-dawn temperatures were generally in the 40s. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 30 at Amarillo to 51 at Brownsville.

Winds were blowing from the west up to 15 mph over portions of West Texas, while southerly winds gusting up to 25 mph were reported over the Panhandle and South Plains. Light and variable breezes were the rule across the rest of the state.

The forecast called for increasing cloudiness with a chance of rain mixed with snow over the Panhandle and South Plains tonight and Tuesday.

West Texas — Increasing cloudiness, windy and warm today. Slight chance of thundershowers southeast. Cloudy and colder tonight and Tuesday most sections with a slight chance of showers mostly north and southeast. Some rain mixed with snow Panhandle. Fair southwest. Highs 45 Panhandle to 75 Big Bend valleys. Lows 25 Panhandle to 42 Big Bend. Highs Tuesday 42 Panhandle to 65 Big Bend valleys.

North Texas — Rain tonight and Tuesday with a possibility of thundershowers southeast. Highs 58 to 64. Lows 38 to 52. Highs Tuesday 46 to 52.

New Israeli defense chief a 'calm diplomat'

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Moshe Arens, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's choice for defense minister, will bring a more pragmatic and calm temperament to the job than the flamboyant and combative Ariel Sharon.

Arens, 57, is a hardliner who opposed Israel's peace treaty with Egypt, and his policy recommendations may be just as tough as Sharon's. But the softspoken diplomat is expected to be less likely to seek fights with Washington than Sharon, who angered the Reagan administration by accusing it of blocking Israel from a peace treaty with Lebanon.

Arens went to high school and college in the United States and is just completing a year as Israel's ambassador to Washington.

U.S. officials had expressed worry that the hawkish Arens might be difficult to deal with, but Israeli press reports say he was generally considered a success.

The Reagan administration appreciated his influence in getting Israel to put off invading west Beirut last summer, and he suggested last fall that Israel consider a temporary freeze on settlements in occupied Arab territory as urged by President Reagan in his Middle East peace proposal.

Arens was born in Lithuania. He emigrated to the United States with his family when he was 14 and attended high school in the Philadelphia area.

He then studied engineering at both the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the California Institute of Technology.

Arens associated with right-wing Jewish groups in his youth and moved to Israel in 1950. He settled on a farm community near Jerusalem, then went back to the United States for his studies.

Upon his return here, he went into aeronautical engineering. Arens has said he is proudest of his work designing aircraft and missiles produced in Israel for both the Israeli armed forces and for export.

In 1973 Arens entered politics, joining the Herut Party that is the core of Begin's Likud Bloc. After Begin's 1977 election victory he became chairman of Parliament's most prestigious body, the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee.

FIRE VICTIMS — Policeman and rescue workers stand beside covered bodies of some of the victims found dead inside a Turin, Italy, movie theater Sunday night. Police said the fire might have been caused by a short circuit or by fireworks set off as a joke by pranksters celebrating Carnival.

Cinema fire kills 64 in Italy Sunday

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Fire officials said today that all emergency exits were unlocked as required by law when firefighters arrived at the burning cinema where 64 people choked to death in billowing smoke Sunday evening.

It was the biggest death toll from a fire in Italy since World War II.

The victims, many dressed in Carnival costumes to celebrate the period of feasting and revelry before Lent, were placed on the snow-covered sidewalk outside the downtown Statuto Cinema, where anxious parents searched for their children.

One of the victims was identified as Bonnie Calvert, 28, a Los Angeles native who lived in Turin, an industrial center in northern Italy.

Cardinal Anastasio Ballestrero, archbishop of Turin, blessed the bodies before they were moved to the city morgue. A state of mourning was declared in the city, and Italian President Sandro Pertini arrived at the morgue with tears in his eyes to pay his respects.

Three people were seriously injured and dozens of others were treated for smoke inhalation, officials said.

Giuseppe Basso, who was seated in the orchestra section of the theater, said the emergency exits didn't open immediately.

"I felt people pushing my shoulders," he said. "I tried to shield my little son so he wouldn't be crushed."

Raimondo Capella, 51, manager of the theater was arrested and charged with manslaughter. Police in Italy often arrest an owner or a manager of a building after a fire or other disaster and hold him pending investigation.

Deputy Fire Chief Bruno Nicoletta said it would take months to determine the cause of the fire, but other officials said a short circuit was the most probable cause.

Almost 500 spectators fled in panic as the fire raced through the cinema's 1,000 plastic-covered seats, but many people on the balcony were trapped at three closed doorways.

Piero Sassi, head of Turin's police detective squad, said at least 18 bodies were found in a second-floor bathroom which the victims apparently mistook for an exit.

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

Don't forget to write

A personal letter is a good thing because you say things you can't say in a crowd and might not even say to the person face to face. If you feel like it, a letter allows you to take yourself and your thoughts more seriously than you would dare take them in conversation.

—Andy Rooney
Not long ago I completed what turned into a monumental task — writing a personal letter.

It seems the art of letter writing has been stored in the attic with all the other antiques and junk one never uses. We're lazy and short on time these days so we pick up a phone receiver rather than a pen to communicate our feelings and wants.

That's fine and convenient but at the same time it seems cheap and hollow. We should care enough to take the time to put our thoughts on paper. There is something lasting and permanent about that.

IT'S TOO BAD that the thrill of anticipating and actually getting letters from loved ones and friends is vanishing.

A letter can be savored and read again and again — a phone call fades almost as soon as one hangs up. I have letters from old friends that I occasionally take out and read and the letters can still stir old emotions and memories — I can't remember a phone call from a week ago.

Billy Graham

Am I too young to know God?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am eleven years old, and I would like to know God. Do you think I am too young? — J.S.S.

DEAR J.S.S.: No, you are not too young to give your life to Jesus Christ and to come to know God in a personal way. I have known many people who committed their lives to Christ while they were young — even much younger than you — and have grown up to live lives that are greatly used of God. My wife, Ruth, grew up in a strong Christian home (her parents were missionaries to China) and committed her life to Christ at a very early age.

How can you come to know God? First, you need to understand that you are a sinner and that you are separated from God. No, you may not have committed as many sins as someone who is much older, but you still need forgiveness for your sins, and you still need to be united to God. The Bible says, "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).

Then you need to understand what Jesus Christ has done for you. God loves you very much, and he does not want you to be separated from him. Instead he wants you to

I'm as guilty about not writing as anyone. I probably didn't write but two or three personal letters last year. And I can't remember getting more than that same amount either.

Andy Rooney says there ought to be a five-cent stamp for personal letters to encourage people to write more, but I don't know that would help. We first have to drum up enough feeling to set our words on paper.

I'm not saying we are insincere over the phone, but making an effort to put our feelings on paper just seems more rich and genuine.

ONE COLLEGE professor suggests that writing has become an abnormal skill for people. He says writing should be taught to students as a skill with interests and rewards much like computer programming. He says they will then be taken with the idea of mastering something unusual and challenging.

I've always thought of writing as unusual and challenging, but I know many of us consider it to be a grim task. It is something that can be handled by phone, form letter or word processor rather than with our heads and hearts. I think we're capable of doing better.

I've already decided to write more letters this year even if I don't get any back. Try it yourself, it'll be good for the soul. See you at the post office.

become his child. He has made it possible for you to do this, because he sent his Son, Jesus, to die on the cross for your sins. Now Jesus is the "bridge" that makes it possible for us to come to God. You could never have forgiveness if it were not for Jesus Christ, but because of him you can be forgiven and you can come to know God.

All you need to do is receive Jesus Christ into your own heart and life. How do you do this? By a simple prayer of faith. In our crusades I often encourage people to pray a prayer something like this: "Oh God, I know that I am a sinner, and I am sorry for my sins. I want to turn from my sins, and I want to receive Jesus Christ into my heart right now. I want you to cleanse me from my sins, and I want Christ to live in me. From this moment on, I will follow Christ and serve him. In Jesus' name, Amen."

This can be your prayer. And then grow each day in your relationship to God — through reading your Bible and memorizing important passages in it, through praying and committing your problems to God, through going to church and hearing about Jesus. God bless you as you commit your life to Christ.

Settles could be source of pride

Dear Editor,

The Settles Hotel is a historical, architectural monument of which Big Spring should be proud and preservation should be the concern of all citizens. It could and should become a source of civic pride. It is one of a kind.

Ways and means to keep the Settles Hotel would change its status of a liability to an asset.

The present status of the building does not provide any service to Big Spring either in use or taxes. As an incentive to investors and developers the cancellation of back taxes might be the very thing to hasten renovation by interested parties.

This would be a positive investment of the taxing entities for future tax income. As things stand now — no tax benefits are being realized and cancellation would be a definite investment for future tax income.

The taxing sections have existed without the collection of these back taxes, so cancellation would not make the situation any worse. As an unemployed pays no taxes — thus an empty building does not provide taxes — let's let it pay its way.

We need to preserve as much beauty and heritage as possible for we pass this way but once. Investment by people such as I would be a pittance — "a drop in the bucket," but if this method is necessary I'm sure the citizens of Big Spring would cooperate if renovation arrangements are reasonable.

It is regrettable that our town is in its present run-down condition and it would be a shame to sacrifice the Settles to further promote this undesirable trend.

Taxpayer is upset

Dear Editor,
Calling all citizens of Howard County:

How many of you were given a homestead exemption, but when you went to pay your taxes you found your homestead wasn't really exempted at all?

We didn't find out till we got up there and we asked about this little extra slip with $16.10 on it. We went ahead and paid it, but if we had taken time to think about it we wouldn't have paid it.

We are retired and both in our seventies. Please, friends and neighbors, get behind this and do something about it.

Textbook process fair and fine

Dear Editor,
While reading Carol Daniel's comments about the Texas textbook selection process in Sunday's "Around the Rim" and the AP release on the same subject, I was reminded of the cry of the witches at the opening of "Macbeth." They shout, "Fair is foul and foul is fair." Centuries before Shakespeare, the prophet Isaiah had spoken of people "that call evil good, and good evil; that put darkness for light, and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter!"

The implication that the Texas textbook selection process is somehow unfair is a vivid example of just such an absurdity! Texas is one of the very few states in this nation that even permit citizen participation in the selection process.

In all fairness, I assume that Carol's remarks did not arise from a direct acquaintance with the Texas process but rather from the rhetoric of liberals, secularists, and others upset because citizens of Texas have been afforded the privilege of objecting to textbook content which undermines traditional values, teaches biased history and political science, destroys faith, advances perverted lifestyles, etc.

I do not see how a more fair textbook selection process could be devised which would actually be workable.

Briefly, the process is as follows:

1. Publishers must provide sample copies of proposed textbooks for public examination.
2. Persons objecting to content must write their objections to particular passages — no generalities.
3. Publishers read the objections and may make written rebuttals, point by point.
4. At the textbook committee hearing, the objector presents the objections orally to the committee but IS NOT ALLOWED TO CALL OUT-OF-STATE EXPERT WITNESSES.
5. The publisher then orally responds to the objections and MAY PRESENT OUT-OF-STATE WITNESSES to defend the content in question.
6. Later, the objector and publisher may appear at a hearing before the Board of Education under the same constraints.

Contrary to the impression Carol Daniel leaves in her comments, the Gablers do not select the textbooks! It is the textbook committee which recommends books to the Board of Education and the Board of Education which finally adopts or rejects the textbooks.

Carol's concern over the "power" of the Gablers, if legitimate, might be better directed towards state officials and Board members who are so weak or unintelligent as to allow themselves to be unduly influenced by the couple from Longview!

(By the way, would Carol have the same concern about the influence of the National Organization of Women, which regularly appears at the hearings to object to textbook content?)

I am certain that Carol is dead wrong in her claim that the Gablers "complain about books that... call for class discussion." That broad generalization, which could not have originated with her, is nothing but a mean distortion of the Gablers' opposition to "values clarification" discussions in which students are encouraged to throw over the values taught them by parents and church and to adopt "their own" values (meaning the corrupt values of liberal secularists).

The Texas textbook selection process is fair and fine as it is. If anything, let concerned citizens who object have the same privileges in the hearings as the publishers. Above all, the process must not be "opened" to a stream of paid liberal and secularist activists voicing "support" for challenged passages in books. Surely the most interested supporters are the publishers themselves who have all the resources necessary to defend their books!

Norman Lear and his "People for the (new and corrupt) American Way" can go back where they came from!

Sincerely yours,

Reaganomics: the rest of the story

Dear Editor,

I read in the Herald last week that President Reagan didn't like the term "Reaganomics" and was trying to lay the saying off on his critics.

But his fellow Republican newscaster Paul Harvey was the one that started the term and once or twice "bragged" about how it was catching on.

Thank you.

Who's trying to censor whom?

Dear Editor,

In the last few weeks your paper has contained articles and a Rim about the proposed change in the textbook adoption process.

I find it incredulous that the press has given so much space to those special interest groups who accuse our state of having a process which is unfair. I have yet to see any proof that such is the case, just accusations!

I have protested textbooks myself and know that many people do so — liberal and conservative. The feminists and the Daughters of the American Revolution are regular protesters too. Texas, unlike California, has a well-run, publicly accessible process where all sides can present arguments against the textbook material and methodology they objected to.

The Texas Textbook Adoption Process has been unfair though, not to the publishers, but to the Gablers, the feminists, the DAR and other protesters. After the protesters have written their Bill of Particulars (in triplicate so that a copy goes to the publishers) and have received a reply from the publisher, they are invited by the State Board of Education to a hearing in Austin to answer the publisher and to verbalize their argument.

They will be assigned a specific amount of time, perhaps 15 minutes to speak, and the publisher an equal amount of time. However the publisher can spend thousands of dollars paying an expert on a particular subject to testify for them when the parents are not allowed to hire specialized experts.

It is also unfair to have so short an amount of time to read textbooks. If any of the reporters would go to an Education Service Center in May and June each year and see the boxes stacked in rows four feet high and even try to begin to read a few texts they would be overwhelmed with respect for anyone who delves into this project.

There is not enough time to begin to read these textbooks, let alone write a strong pragmatic argument, even if a person finds something objectionable. To increase the length of time the public could have access to the textbooks would be a definite improvement.

Another unfair aspect of the Texas Textbook Adoption Process is the media sensationalizing the Gablers and giving the impression that the "... Gablers manage to censor textbooks..."

If Carol Daniel knew what the process was all about, she would know that the Gablers don't censor anything. They may want to censor a textbook, they may ask the State Textbook Adoption Committee to ask the publisher to delete the material, they may ask the Board of Education to refuse to purchase a textbook, but they have no direct power to censor anything.

They do come before the Textbook Adoption Hearings with strong pragmatic reasonings that even the best of publishers and educators have had difficulty refuting. It is, however, the Board of Education who asks the publisher to delete material or change methodology. It is the Textbook Committee who selects textbooks for Texas, not the Gablers, the feminists, the D.A.R., the parents, or the People for the American Way.

The accusation that the process can be improved by allowing the public to give supporting comments on texts is not necessarily a bad one as long as it doesn't turn the hearings into taxpayer-paid lobbying by the publishers so they can make big bucks.

It is also obvious that the main goal of People for the American Way, a liberal group formed after the 1980 elections to counteract conservatism, is to censor the Gablers' voice in the adoption process by watering down, disrupting and "reorganizing" the fine adoption process Texas has had.

It is ironic that a group who claims to be against censorship desires so strongly to censor the conservative voice in the adoption hearings. It is also ironic that the press, specifically Carol Daniel, who would object vehemently against anyone censoring their articles, wants to censor the Gablers and the conservative voices in the adoption hearing!

Sincerely,

Motorcycle hosts say thanks

Dear Editor:

The Big Spring Road Riders Motorcycle Show was a big success due to the support our organization received from the community. We owe a tremendous thank you to Howard and Marijo at the Harley-Davidson Shop, Oscar, Janet and Mike at Western Kawasaki, Kenneth at Big Spring Yamaha-Suzuki, and Mackie and Jacqueline at A-1 Cycle Shop for their support and participation.

The folks at Gibsons, Mr. McCauley and Mr. Chapman and the Customer Service girls, went out of their way to help us with our project.

The local news media gave us superb coverage both before and after the show thus enabling us to get our message across that motorcyclists are good, family people and that motorcycling can be a fun, safe activity.

Mark Sheedy and the merchants at Big Spring Mall extended a welcome hand to us and provided us with an excellent facility in which to hold the show. The presence of the radio remote had a definite impact on the number of people who came to the Mall on Saturday. This was provided by the Mall at no expense to us.

Finally, we would like to thank our fellow club members and the guest exhibitors who took part in the show. We believe the people of Big Spring were afforded a view of an excellent variety of classy motorcycles and were given a taste of motorcycling at its best. Without you, there would not have been a show.

To the people of Big Spring, thank you for coming out.
Sincerely,
BILL and JUDY HUNTER

Dear Abby

Woman finds man of dreams

DEAR ABBY: A wedding is taking place because of you. Four years ago I wrote the following letter to you:

"Dear Abby: For years I have suffered from an inferiority complex because of my height. It has ruined my whole life. I am a woman, 5 feet 9. I love to dance, but in heels I'm taller than the average man, and I feel like a fool when a man looks up at me."

"I am uncomfortable unless I wear flats. I won't even walk to the coffee machine at work because I feel so conspicuous. I became so desperate I even asked my doctor if he knew of some kind of operation to shorten the bones in my legs, but he said no one has ever attempted such an operation. I told him I would be more than willing to be the first."

"Abby, you can't imagine what a miserable feeling it is to walk into a room and pray to God that there is someone there taller than you are! Would you believe that I have even considered taking my life? I'm sure there are other girls who feel the same way."

"Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. Don't tell me to see a psychiatrist because that is where my problem has already landed me. Signed ... Tall in Canada"

You replied: "Dear Tall: Since you've already wisely consulted a psychiatrist, you must surely know that it's your attitude — not your altitude — that needs changing."

"You are much too self-centered in assuming all eyes are constantly focused on you. Not true!"

"Instead of those negative feelings you have about your height, stand tall, throw your shoulders back, chin up, and come on proud, confident and alive!"

If you have two good arms, legs, eyes, a voice and a mind, thank God in your prayers!

"Get rid of those flats (they make you shuffle); wear heels. It will improve your figure. Practice walking with grace and dignity."

Well, Abby, I took your advice. I not only started to pray, I also started to judge men by what they were, not how tall they stood. It took me three years to get rid of the feeling that unless the man I was with was taller than I, we would look foolish together.

A year ago I met a man who stands 5 feet 5, but in my eyes he's 6 feet 5! He told me that he had grown up feeling self-conscious about being "short," but he overcame it by rising above his peers scholastically.

We're being married in June, and you're invited. COULDN'T BE HAPPIER

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Donohue

High potassium level

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 54-year-old female. On a recent screening my blood potassium level was high — 5.3. I understand now that I must avoid foods high in potassium, which seems to include most things that could result in deficiency of minerals and vitamins. I was told that heart irregularities can develop from high blood potassium. What could the reason be for this high reading? — A.A.

You're quite right; eliminating all foods that contain potassium would not leave you with very much to eat. I would approach this problem a little differently.

The normal level of blood potassium ranges between 3.5 and 5, so to begin with, yours is only a little elevated, certainly not to the degree that it would cause heart irregularities. If I were you I would find out if this one lab test is for real. In other words, I'd repeat it before I altered a single element in my life. Sometimes, when a blood specimen is taken for a potassium reading, some of the red cells may be damaged slightly, and they can leak potassium. That would give a falsely high reading, and that may be your only problem.

But what if that is not the case and your potassium level stays high. Then, I would search for causes other than diet alone.

Drugs may cause it, and kidney problems may be involved. It can happen in certain adrenal gland disturbances. The fact is that it is quite rare for a high blood potassium level to come from eating too much of it. It's so abundant in foods and our kidneys are so efficient in getting rid of excess amounts that diet would be a minor contributor.

Finally, a word about diets: We do tend to look to diet for answers to a great many of our problems. True, diet is important. What we can eat make a difference in our health — vis-a-vis heart and artery disease and bowel regularity, for examples. But to be panicked into an unwise dietary regimen because of a single casual blood test reading, as yours for potassium, can be not only foolish, but counterproductive by creating real deficiencies, as you so wisely suggest. My advice to you is to have the test repeated. Then, if the level is consistently elevated, search for causes, including, but not limited to, the amounts you eat.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Could you please tell me what pulmonary stenosis is and what the treatment is for it? I have been diagnosed as having this and have very little information about it. What causes it? I am a 26-year-old female. — C.D.L.

One of the chambers of your heart has to pump blood to the lungs, and it pumps it by way of the pulmonary artery. Where the chamber and artery join is a valve. That's where the stenosis (narrowing) you have is located. Many times the cause for this is congenital, something the person is born with.

Because of this narrowing, the chamber involved (the lower one on the right side of the heart) has to pump harder to get blood into the lungs, where it receives fresh oxygen. If it's only a mild narrowing the person is generally without symptoms and narrowing may stay more or less the way it is thereafter. If the narrowing is greater, the person might have symptoms — of easy fatigue, for example. If the narrowing is great it may have to be corrected through surgery.

The way to tell how much narrowing is present is by measuring pressure inside the heart chamber by catheterization, passing a measuring device into the chamber. The level of pressure places the problem in the mild, moderate or severe category.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

SNOW JOB — A worker uses a tractor rig to remove large drifts of snow which accumulated in front of the Lincoln Memorial during a severe winter storm that struck the East Coast Friday. The workman's efforts enabled the more courageous tourists in the nation's capital to visit the monument on the former president's birthday Sunday.

Militant farmers held seminars, paper says

(DENVER, AP) — Members of the American Agriculture Movement were taught to make crude pipe bombs out of homemade black powder during two "seminars" organized by AAM leaders last fall on a southeast Colorado farm, according to a copyright newspaper story.

Reports of the classes triggered an investigation by federal agents looking for felony violations of laws governing the manufacture and possession of explosive devices, according to officials quoted in Sunday's editions of the Denver Post.

The investigation — into reports of possible bombing attempts and of the production of bombs at several farms in southeast Colorado — is still in progress, the Post reported.

Rich Rawlins, resident agent in charge of the Denver office of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, confirmed that the bureau has an active investigation in southeast Colorado.

However, he refused to give details about possible bombing attempts or to identify the owners of farms where bombs supposedly have been made. No arrests have been made.

The pipe-bomb sessions organized by AAM leaders were innocent "educational opportunities," according to two men who attended them.

"But I'm the first to admit that once you learn to use explosives, you can use it for whatever you want," added Alvin Jenkins, the AAM's national spokesman who attended both sessions.

Whatever their purpose, the sessions helped focus the image of a farm organization that has moved sharply to the political right of the flag-waving, tractor-driving group that was born in Springfield, Colo., in 1977 to protest the poor farm economy.

Parity — fair prices for farm products — was the rallying cry for the AAM, but the word rarely is mentioned in the organization's rural headquarters, recently moved to Campo, about 25 miles south of Springfield near the Colorado-Oklahoma state line.

Instead, the literature at the headquarters is filled with the language of the militant right and complaints of the Rockefeller, the Trilateral Commission, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Federal Reserve System, and vague conspiracies involving Jewish bankers.

The attention-grabbing tractorcades of AAM's early days have given way to more confrontational tactics such as last month's attempt at the Baca County Courthouse in Springfield to block the court-ordered auction of a nearby farm.

About 250 angry, chanting AAM supporters who came from about a dozen states didn't succeed in halting that sale and finally had to be dispersed with tear gas. Three farmers were arrested.

The bomb-making sessions in southeast Colorado, one in October and another in November of last year, were organized and taught by Eugene Schroder, one of the AAM founders, the Post said. The sessions were held on the farm of his father, Derral Schroder, also a long-time AAM supporter.

Each session attracted about 20 people, including Jenkins, identified by AAM as its sole national spokesman, and Jerry Wright, the sale of whose farm triggered the near-riot on the courthouse steps in Springfield.

Jenkins said about half of those at the sessions came from Colorado, with the rest coming from New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Eugene Schroder confirmed that he hosted the classes, but insisted that they were just a part of a day of "basic survival" training that included topics such as leather tanning.

Schroder maintained the devices built by the group were similar to "large firecrackers. They might weigh 2 ounces."

But Jenkins said the group made one 7-pound charge and others that weighed between six pounds and one pound apiece.

"I wouldn't call any of them firecrackers," said Rawlins. Even a 6-ounce explosive "would be enough to constitute a device. It's against the law."

Unlicensed production of an explosive device and possession of such a device are both federal offenses punishable by prison sentences of up to 10 years and fines of up to $10,000 for each count.

Jenkins said Schroder, using an Army demolitions manual, showed the groups how to make black powder by combining crushed charcoal, sulfur and fertilizer. The groups then experimented with the explosive, making a number of bombs.

"We put a 7-pound charge under a tree stump out there about a mile and a half away. It split the trunk wide open," he said.

Eugene Schroder said the group was "not building these to blow somebody up. These were just community seminars."

"At some point, our economy could collapse," Schroder said. "We wouldn't have a lot of basic knowledge."

And Eugene Schroder told the Post that he and Jerry Wright were among others who attended a three-day survival school at Weskan, in western Kansas, last March, that included sessions on poison, explosives, knife fighting, and hand-to-hand combat.

The Post said that the black powder sessions, the interest in the survival training indicate a new militancy in the American Agriculture Movement. The Post said the militancy is visible in other ways and in other places.

AAM members like Keith Shive, who considers AAM "too timid," have formed splinter groups, like Shive's Farmers Liberation Army, in Halstead, Kan. Shive, who says he is still an AAM member, said his group "has a right to use violence" to overcome laws his group decides are unjust.

AAM supporters have taken part in such activities as the burning of cotton bales in Texas last month to protest low commodity prices.

• In Tennessee, Ill., about 300 farmers, mostly AAM members, succeeded last November in stopping a Farmers Home Administration-ordered auction of dairyman Randy Carson's farm machinery with an intimidating shout of "no sale, no sale."

THE MAGIC ASSIST MAN — Los Angeles Laker Magic Johnson (32) passes off for one of his NBA All-Star Game record 16 assists Sunday at the Forum in Los Angeles. Johnson also scored 17 points in the game but the East, helped by defender Reggie Theus (24), won the annual contest, 132-123.

'Dr. J. Show' too much for NBA West's stars

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — They had fun, they provided some outstanding entertainment for the sellout crowd at the Forum and a national television audience and they were proud to be in the game.

"This was the type of game you could enjoy by playing in it or simply sitting on the bench and watching it," Boston center Robert Parrish said Sunday after the East's 132-123 victory over the West in the 33rd National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

"It was a great show," said losing coach Pat Riley of Los Angeles. "Both sides really put on a super show for the fans."

"It was a well-played, exciting, close game," said forward Jamaal Wilkes of the Lakers. "It was ideal for the fans who deserve to see something like this."

"I think the game lived up to the NBA standard of exciting All-Star Games that have been played in the past," said forward David Thompson of Seattle and the West. "Everybody on the court was there because they are the best at what they do. The game showcased some great talent and that's constructive for the league."

"It was fun," said Detroit guard Isiah Thomas, who had 19 points for the winners. "I loved it."

Heading the show was Philadelphia's Julius Erving, who scored 25 points for the East and was named the MVP for the second time, an honor he first won six years ago. Earvin "Magic" Johnson of the Lakers provided a different kind of show, handing out an All-Star record 16 assists for the losing squad.

"We enjoyed ourselves out there," said Johnson, who also had 17 points.

Many players on both teams said they were impressed by the unselfishness of their teammates in looking for the open man and passing the ball. San Antonio center Artis Gilmore exhibited a different sort of unselfishness, asking late in the game to be taken out so hometown favorite Kareem Abdul-Jabbar could go back in the game.

"That means he wanted to have Kareem replace him as we made a run for it in front of Kareem's hometown fans. My hat is off to Artis for making that gesture. I assure you that very rarely does that happen. It made an impression on me."

Aoki first Japanese PGA Tour winner

HONOLULU (AP) — Everyone was thinking playoff.

"I was trying to prepare myself, mentally prepare myself, for a playoff," said Jack Renner.

"My only thought," Isao Aoki said through an interpreter, "was to get it close and make a birdie and go to a playoff."

But the playoff wasn't necessary in the $325,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Aoki, trailing by one stroke, pitched in from the light rough from 128 yards out for an eagle-3 on the 18th hole Sunday, making him the first Japanese to win on the American PGA Tour.

"I know the Japanese people expected me to win in the United States," said Aoki, generally considered the finest player in golf-mad Japan.

"It was their dream, too, that Aoki win in America. I am very happy I could make that dream come true."

It had something of a nightmare quality for the composed, self-contained Renner, however. He was sitting in the scorers' tent as the leader, his day's work done, and Aoki, the only man who could catch him, was chipping up the 539-yard 18th.

After driving into the rough, Aoki hooked his second shot into the gallery.

"The ball hit a spectator and came back out," Renner said. "It would have been a difficult birdie from there, but I was trying to prepare myself for a playoff. He's one of the world's best short-game players."

But Aoki's wedge shot covered the flag, took one hop and ducked into the cup for an eagle. There was a stunned silence for a moment, then Aoki raised his arms in triumph, tears forming in his eyes as the mob of Japanese tourists began a screaming celebration.

"Apparently, it wasn't meant for me to win," shrugged Renner who, with the one swing of the club, went from a one-shot leader to a one-shot loser. "But I'm looking at it positively. I played well. I had a good tournament. I got beat by a shot."

The shot finished off a round of 67 for Aoki and a 268 total, 20 strokes under par on the Waialae Country Club course. Renner, who played the par-5 holes 5-under for the day and lipped out an eagle putt on the final hole, shot a closing 66 and had a 269 total.

Ben Crenshaw, one of six men who led or shared the lead over the final 18 holes, was third alone at 271 after a 66 in the warm, sunny weather.

Tied at 272 were Hale Irwin, Andy Bean, Peter Jacobsen and Ed Fiori. Irwin had a closing 65, Bean 67, Jacobsen 70 and Fiori 71.

Aoki's victory was worth $58,500 from the total purse of $325,000.

The 40-year-old Aoki has won the Japanese PGA for four of the last five years. He has a total of 39 career victories in Japan, plus the 1978 World Match Play Championship in England.

This, however, was "the greatest thrill of my career," he said.

Aoki, who uses a peculiar putting style with the toe of the club raised, first came to national attention in America when he chased Jack Nicklaus to the 1980 U.S. Open title. In two years as a full-fledged member of the U.S. Tour, however, he had indifferent success and last season finished 122nd on the money-winning list.

WHAT A WAY TO FINISH — Japan's Isao Aoki raises his hands in triumph after a 128-yard shot for an eagle on the 18th hole, vaulting him to the championship of the Hawaiian Open Sunday in Honolulu.

No, Pokes not for sale

DALLAS (AP) — Tex Schramm, general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, has denied a published report that the National Football League team is for sale.

According to a report in Sunday's editions of the Boston Globe, the Cowboys and Texas Stadium, the team's home field, are on the block for about $40 million.

But Schramm told Dallas radio station KRLD today that the team is not for sale and pointed out that Texas Stadium is owned by the city of Irving.

The Globe said a report had been confirmed that Clint Murchison Jr., who has owned the National Football League club since its inception in 1960, wants to sell the team.

The newspaper quoted unnamed sources close to Murchison as saying his health is failing and he is acting to settle his estate.

The Globe said a league source, also unnamed, said Murchison wanted the new owner to be a wealthy Texan.

Murchison also was said to be demanding that the new owner give General Manager Tex

Scramm and Head Coach Tom Landry contracts that will keep them with the club until they retire, the Globe reported.

Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, may have first chance at buying the Cowboys, according to the report.

The newspaper said Murchison wanted to complete the deal before next season.

Texas Stadium which is 12 years old, also is the home field for Southern Methodist University.

Earlier reports that the Cowboys were for sale were denied by team officials.

Hawks test top-rated Chaps

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Valentine's Day — a box of plump chocolates, a dozen fragrant roses, candlelight dinner for two. But for local basketball fans, tonight's Howard-Midland College showdown will be the sweetest treat of all.

The Chaparrals brings a nine-game winning streak and a glossy 13-1 Western Junior College Athletic Conference record to Dorothy Garrett Coliseum for tonight's 8 p.m. showdown. Howard has done too poorly either, compiling a 19-7 ledger for the season and 6-7 WJCAC mark.

Midland last lost Jan. 10 when Amarillo surprised the Chaps 71-67 in the Great White North. The loss marked the only stumble in WJCAC play for MC but followed a 102-96 loss to the Hawks in the finals of the OIL Classic two nights before.

The two-game losing streak dropped the defending national champions out of the National Junior College top 20 but the Chaps have rallied to re-enter the NJCAA poll in the 20th position.

Howard hit its season peak with the big win over MC and traveled to Midland for a WJCAC game with a 15-2 record. The Chaps won the rematch 87-79. It was the second league loss for the Hawks and

Greenwood, Wall play first

Greenwood and Wall High Schools battle in practices games prior to the Howard College-Midland game tonight in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Rangerettes, 24-2 and undefeated champs of District 11-A, battle Wall, 10-0 winners of District 8-AA, at 4:30 p.m. Following that game at 6 p.m., the 21-2 Rangers test the Wall Hawks, also 10-0 in league play.

All four teams are tuning up for the state playoffs.

The Hawks-Chaparrals game will be played at 8 p.m.

Howard has recorded only a 4-5 mark since. Included in those four losses was a two-point loss to Clarendon and a triple overtime defeat at the hands of Frank Phillips, both at home.

Until wins last week of New Mexico Military Academy and No. 2 South Plains, the Hawks had been playing inconsistently at best. The two conference wins in 1983 were top-notch performances — a 59-58 win at Amarillo (where Midland lost) and a 98-87 victory over highly-regarded New Mexico JC.

But HC — once rated among the nation's top 20 — lost by 15 at Frank Phillips, 18 at South Plains and 12 at Western Texas.

Midland is paced by sophomore Chester Smith's 20 points and transfer Nate Bufford's 19 points each game. Sophomore guard Spud Webb — an all-WJCAC choice along with Smith last spring — broke his own school record for assists in Thursday's 76-62 victory over Amarillo in the Chap Center. His 10 gems against the Badgers gave him 272 for the year, one ahead of his record during the 1981-82 season.

The 5-6 guard is averaging 10 a game, passing out a league-high of 16 against New Mexico and South Plains.

Nate Givens matched his WJCAC-leading average of 23 points against South Plains. The 6-6 sophomore also leads the rebounding wars with 13 missed shots a game.

After recovering from a knee injury, freshman Dwight Harris has come back to score 25 (vs. NMMI) and 26 (vs. SPC) points. Sophomore wing Leon Issac gets 15 more points with sophomore inside man Reggie Childress adding 12 more.

Childress is fifth and Givens sixth in FG percentage.

BASKETBALL

Several games are planned around the Big Spring area tonight.

- The Coahoma Bulldogettes battle Ballinger at 8 p.m. at San Angelo Lake View in a District 6-AAA playoff game. The winner meets Sonora Tuesday night to determine the first place winner in the district.
- Coahoma is 11-13 on the season but went 7-3 in league play, finishing second to Sonora in the first round and tying Ballinger for the second half co-championship. The Bearkates own two of those wins in league play.
- Greenwood High, boys and girls winners in District 11-A, play Wall High, double 8-AA champs, in tune-up games tonight in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The girls teams square off at 4:30 p.m. while the boys tangle at 6 p.m.
- The Howard College Hawks, winners of two straight Western Junior College Athletic Conference games, hope to get back further in the race when they host No. 1 Midland College at 8 p.m. in DGC.
- The Hawks fought off No. 2 South Plains 99-95 Saturday night to improve to 6-7 in league play and near the 20-victory plateau again under Harold Wilder.
- Midland is 24-3 and 13-1 in WJCAC play.

'Cobra' strikes Hwang in 12

Ft. Worth boxer wins WBA title

FORT WORTH (AP) — Donald (The Cobra) Curry, the new World Boxing Association welterweight champion, hopes to defend his title in two months if nothing is seriously wrong with his right hand.

Curry, a Texan, hurt his hand in the 12th round of his unanimous 15-round title decision Sunday night over gutsy South Korean Jun Sok Hwang in a bloody brawl.

"I hope it's not broken, I hope it's just a sprain," said Curry, who was to undergo X-rays today.

The surprising Hwang decked Curry for the first time in his professional career with a right uppercut in the seventh round, but the Fort Worth native made the underdog Asian battler pay for it.

Curry came back to pummel Hwang into a bloody mess. Hwang gamely hung on to finish the fight with his nose streaming blood onto his white trunks.

"This guy was a tough customer," said Curry. "I hurt my hand hitting him in the head in the 12th round. He took a lot of punishment and had a very hard head."

The 21-year-old Curry will defend his title against Roger Stafford April 15, probably in Italy.

"Stafford's a boxer, he's more my kind of fighter," said Curry.

Hwang, 21, the Oriental Pacific Boxing Federation champion, would anchor himself in a corner and dare the counter-punching Curry to come after him.

Curry, 146 1/2, got caught coming in once and Hwang, 147, landed a solid right that sent the champion sprawling.

"He didn't hurt me when he knocked me down but he landed some other punches that did," said Curry.

Hwang said through an interpreter that he got tired of chasing Curry all over the ring.

"That's not the way boxing should be. It should not be hit and run," said Hwang, who would wave for Curry to come after him.

Curry, a former Golden Gloves flash whose biggest victory as an amateur was over Davey Moore in the 1980 Olympic Trials, is now 16-0 with 12 KOs.

Hwang suffered his first defeat in 22 bouts.

The WBA crown was vacated when champion Sugar Ray Leonard retired.

Curry earned an estimated $75,000 and Hwang got $20,000 as 5.372

BOOM, BOOM, OUT GO THE LIGHTS — Don Curry of Fort Worth lands a stinging punch to Jun Sok Hwang of Korea in the third round of their WBA Welterweight Championship Sunday night in Fort Worth. Curry won the 15-round bout with a unanimous decision.

noisy fans turned out in Tarrant County Convention Center.

"I was in a lot of fights as an amateur like the one tonight," said Curry. "Jun wanted me to come after him. He wanted to try to catch me coming in with a wild hook. I pretty much stayed to my game plan."

The card by referee Roberto Ramirez and judge Hermodio Cedena were identical, 146-139 on the 10 points must system.

Judge Ismael Fernandez had it 148-140 in favor of Curry.

"I was very pleased," said Curry. "He was a toughie and a fight like this will help me down the line. I learned I can go 15 rounds."

Fletcher blows chance

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Wilford Scypion, not Frank "The Animal" Fletcher, has apparently earned the right to fight Marvin Hagler for the world middleweight crown.

Scypion boosted his hopes for a championship fight with a unanimous 12-round decision Sunday over Fletcher, who had been guaranteed a May 20 title shot at Hagler if he beat Scypion. Hagler successfully defended his title Friday night, stopping Englishman Tony Sibson in the sixth round in Worcester, Mass.

Scypion's victory gave him the United States Boxing Association crown. Promoter Bob Arum indicated earlier this weekend that Scypion would meet Hagler if Fletcher lost.

"Everybody was talking about Frank Fletcher, Frank Fletcher, Frank Fletcher," said Scypion, who gained control of the fight early. "You would not even have thought I had a fight today."

Scypion, 24, of Port Arthur, Texas, raised his record to 26-3 with 20 knockouts. The fact that the World Boxing Council ranked him sixth, while rating Fletcher second, was a source of motivation.

"They (the WBC) just passed right over me," said Scypion. "I should be No. 1. I kept thinking about that while I trained. This was his backyard. I didn't have any respect before this. But I knew I was going to get it."

Fletcher, 28, who is from nearby Philadelphia, fell to 16-3-1 with 11 knockouts.

Judge Tom Kazzmarec scored the fight 7-4-1 for Scypion, Frank Brunette had it 6-5-1 and Harold Lederman had it 8-3-1.

Daniel leads Sarasota

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Beth Daniel, fighting gusting winds and cold on a foggy course, bogeyed two of the final three holes of the third round of the $175

WILDCAT IN THE WAY — Villanova's John Pinone (45) stops the drive of North Carolina's Sam Perkins during first half action of Sunday's clash in Chapel Hill. The Wildcats led all the way and upended the No. 1 Tar Heels 56-53.

Villanova's journey pays off

By The Associated Press
Villanova ignored snow and sleet and plain good sense to bring down college basketball's top-ranked team, defending national champion North Carolina.

When a storm dropped a couple of feet of snow on parts of the East, shutting down airports and creating hazardous travel conditions, some teams sat by the fireside, waiting for the weather to clear.

Not the No. 12 Wildcats, though. They vowed on Saturday to get to Chapel Hill one way or another for Sunday's date with No. 1 North Carolina. The opportunity for an upset was just too tempting.

So Villanova set out on a circuitous route. There was a bus ride from Philadelphia to Atlantic City and then a chartered flight to Raleigh-Durham Airport, 20 miles from the North Carolina campus.

The trip was worth the trouble.

Villanova scored the game's first seven points and led all the way in a 56-53 victory that is sure to shake up the rankings in The Associated Press poll. John Pinone led the winners with 14 points while Ed Pincney add 11 points and 11 rebounds and Gary McLain had 10. Michael Jordan scored 20 for North Carolina.

Tulane has Memphis State's number and that probably won't be nine this week.

State has won 18 of 19 games against the rest of the college basketball world this season and is 0-2 against Tulane. That's two losses in a week, not the very best way to impress the poll voters.

A week ago, Tulane, which is a rather orinary 10-9 against everybody else, beat Memphis State 58-56 on the road, tumbling the Tigers from No. 4 to No. 9. Coach Ned Fowler was suitably impressed but not excited by the schedule which had the two teams going back at each other exactly seven days later in New Orleans. You know, revenge and all that.

Not to worry. Tulane used Daryl Moreau's 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer for a 49-47 Metro Conference victory. If you think the Mardi Gras is a wild show, you should have seen the scree the Louisiana locals put on when Moreau's shot dropped through.

They also notice upsets like the 69-65 victory Oregon State scored over No. 5 UCLA. It was the first league loss of the season for the Bruins, now 17-3 for the season and 9-1 in the Pacific 10 conference.

That one might have been predictable, though. UCLA hasn't won at Corvallis, Ore., since 1979.

The Bruins got into trouble early, losing 7-foot-2 Stuart Gray and their leading scorer, Kenny Fields, with injuries in the first half. Charlie Sitton scored 25 for Oregon State, 6-4 in the conference and 12-8 overall.

Three other top 20 teams were beaten, each suffering a second consecutive loss. No. 17 Illinois State lost to Drake 71-57; No. 18 Purdue was beaten by Northwestern 66-55; and No. 19 Minnesota bowed to Ohio State 74-69.

Nevada-Las Vegas, ranked No. 2, remain undefeated, stretching its winning streak to 22 games with a 66-59 victory over Fresno State. After North Carolina lost Sunday, Coach Jerry Tarkanian was thinking about moving up in the poll.

"I don't know if we're the best team, but we're undefeated and everybody here would be a little disappointed if we're not No. 1," Tarkanian told ABC Radio Sports.

Larry Anderson scored 22 points for Nevada-Las Vegas, which hit 64 percent of its shots from the field.

No. 4 Indiana destroyed a man-to-man defense to win its game while No. 6 Houston used the same strategy to win its contest.

Indiana got 28 points from Randy Wittman in a 75-56 rout of Wisconsin that ran the Hoosiers' record to 19-2.

Man-to-man worked just fine for Houston. The Cougars stretched their winning streak to 14 by beating Texas Christian 74-66, but they had to come from behind.

Trailing by seven points at halftime, Houston went man-to-man. The best practitioner of the strategy was Clyde Drexler, who limited Doug Arnold to three points after Arnold had scored 16 in the first half.

Arkansas, ranked No. 8, beat Texas A&M 62-55 in a Southwest Conference game that left both coaches complaining about the officiating. Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton picked up two technical fouls and Shelby Metcalf, A&M's coach, picked up one.

Arkansas is 9-1 in the league and 20-1.

No. 10 Missouri went into overtime for an 84-79 victory over Oklahoma as Michael Walker canned three free throws in the final 25 seconds to seal the decision. Jon Sundvold scored 28 points and Steve Stipanovich had 26 for the Tigers while freshman Wayman Tisdale scored 32 points and grabbed 18 rebounds for the Sooners.

Stolen stallion champ thought to be dead

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Detectives hunting stolen superstallion Shergar admit they are stymied and believe there is a "strong possibility" that the $13 million winner of the Irish and English derbies is dead.

Police Chief Supt. Jim Murphy, who is leading the five-day-old hunt for Shergar, said Sunday: "We have nothing to go on to convince us the animal is still alive."

He appealed to the gang who Tuesday night snatched the racehorse at gunpoint from a stud farm at Newbridge in County Kildare, Ireland's bluegrass country west of Dublin, to send some proof that the champion was still alive.

Some observers interpreted Murphy's statement as a bid to flush the horsemen into the open amid a deluge of confusing hoax calls that have hampered the investigation.

He repeated that he has advised Shergar's owners, a 40-member syndicate headed by the Aga Khan, that they should not pay any ransom.
