The Settles: one option

Industrial bond issue may be best, city believes

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Many Big Spring residents have expressed interest in the Settles Hotel renovation, but wonder how it could be financed and how the city can help.

City administrative assistant Bill Hall says the city plays a limited, but very important role in supporting multi-million dollar projects such as the one proposed for the Settles. One means of financing the renovation would be through an industrial development bond issue, he said.

Apparently that is one financial route Dallas businessman Robert Kendall is investigating. For the past year, Kendall has researched the hotel and has decided it's possible to restore the first few floors to their original state and turn the rest of the structure into shops, restaurants, offices, apartments and condominiums.

KENDALL HAS supervised, and been successful with, several similar projects, such as the Driskill Hotel in Austin and La Borde House in Rio Grande City.

In an industrial development bond issue, no city funds are involved and no money is funneled through city management. However the city's support is essential, Hall said.

"Kendall needs to know whether local residents are interested and will support this," Hall said. "He's going to have to pay back that money and he'll have to know the income will be enough to pay back the bonds and make a little income for himself besides."

Hall said this type of bond issue is attractive to investors because an individual or group can borrow money at a much lower rate than the prevailing interest rate.

Hall described how an industrial development bond issue would work for the Settles Hotel. In 1979 a Development Corporation Act was passed which allows individuals to utilize industrial development bonds for commercial projects.

If Kendall finds enough interest in the community to back his project, he will approach the Howard County Industrial Development Corp. If directors are interested, the corporation asks the city council to designate the hotel as a blighted area.

The designation means that there is no economic reason for maintaining the structure, that it does not generate revenue and is deteriorating. The blighted designation makes the project eligible for industrial development bonds.

The city council then holds two public hearings to determine whether city residents support the project. If there is enough interest, the council passes a resolution that names the area blighted.

That completes the city's involvement. Its role is to determine and express the city's support for the project.

AFTER THE resolution is passed, the industrial development group approaches its bond counsel with a feasibility study. The study shows what the project is.

THE "NEW" HOTEL — These photos taken in the 1930s illustrate the Settles Hotel's original grandeur and how it could look in the future if a renovation project can be financed. One means of financing is through industrial development bonds. The large picture shows the building facing west on Third street. The inset was taken on the hotel mezzanine.

Council approves parks director post

By CAROL DANIEL
Staff Writer

Big Spring city council members yesterday approved the creation of a new city staff position for a parks and recreation superintendent.

Councilmen discussed the position at a work session last week and again yesterday during a closed executive session. They agreed that the city needs a person to manage and be directly responsible for park services.

Councilman Russ McEwen said creating the position is a step forward for the council because it has often, he said, pushed aside the job of supervising parks and recreation in favor of other responsibilities.

"The parks have always been kind of our bastard child," McEwen said at the work session. "If you have a good sharp guy, he could make it work well enough to almost pay his salary. A lot of people are dissatisfied now, especially with golf."

Apparently the city has never created such a position and left those responsibilities to the assistant city manager. The assistant city manager position has been eliminated and the new superintendent will be one of five in the Public Works Department. Public Works Director Tom Decell said.

Low wages leave county without law

HAMILTON, Texas (AP) — Hamilton police, a Texas Ranger and a Texas Highway Patrol officer are protecting the 840 square miles of Hamilton County because the Sheriff's Department has no sheriff.

It also has no deputies. John Harvey, sheriff for four years in the Central Texas county, said he resigned Monday because low wages had driven off all his deputies, leaving him with an unbearable workload and ill-feelings toward city councilmen forced to make budget reductions when voters cut the tax rate nearly in half.

"Fighting the county is harder than fighting the criminals," Harvey said. "You've got to have money and you've got to get and keep qualified people. At $920 a month (for deputies), I couldn't keep them."

Hamilton County was the scene of a taxpayer's revolt that forced a rollback of taxes when county commissioners were seeking an 80 percent tax increase. The commissioners tightened their budget by eliminating benefits to county employees and imposing a hiring freeze.

State of the states

Survey shows Americans feeling pinch of cuts in services, higher local taxes

By LEE MITGANG
Associated Press Writer

It's happening in cash-strapped hospitals in Philadelphia and Chicago where poor people with no health insurance are sometimes turned away unless they come with dollars in hand.

It's happening at gas pumps across the country where fuel taxes are climbing to meet the cost of repairing crumbling highways.

It's happening in classrooms on dusty rural roads or city asphalt, where children have no desks and chairs or learn from textbooks so dated that teachers remember them from their own schooldays.

With almost every state struggling with the worst rash of budget problems in memory, the impact of deep service cuts and increasing state and local taxes are being felt by Americans everywhere.

A 50-state survey by The Associated Press found officials from the industrial Northeast to the more prosperous Sunbelt states conceding that the days when higher state taxes and service reductions could be avoided are over.

Programs for health, welfare and education make up the lion's share of many state budgets, and those are the areas most deeply affected by budget woes.

This past fall in rural Pine Hill, Ala., 42 miles southwest of Selma, teacher Hank James' 48 fifth-grade pupils had to wait four weeks into the school year for their biology textbooks to arrive.

James conducted human anatomy lessons using a dummy missing its heart, lungs and some bones. He had to petition then-Gov. Fob James to get his pupils enough desks. He finally got them — but not before the children had spent an uncomfortable month huddled around the available desks.

"The whole state is a backwater as far as education is concerned," James says.

By contrast, spending for public safety, especially for prisons and other correctional services, is one of the rare budget items that has escaped harsh cutbacks, in part because prison populations have risen rapidly in the past decade and because 32 states are under court order to improve prison conditions.

Anthony Trivisono, executive director of the American Correctional Association, says states spent $6 billion on prison operations in 1982 and an additional $2 billion on construction, up 9 percent from the previous year.

New Jersey is rapidly increasing prison space to handle overcrowding, but a looming $70 million deficit nearly resulted in the closing of the state Training School for Boys at Skillman. The decision would have sent 140 inmates younger than 13 to other overcrowded facilities or else back to the streets. The facility was finally saved when the state raised its income and sales taxes.

Even a state like New York, which faces a $1.8 billion budget gap in 1983, plans to boost prison spending by $52.9 million and raise another $200 million with bonds to build housing for more than 2,000 additional inmates.

Making prisons a top budget priority doesn't please everyone. Universities and teachers in Virginia, who are being asked to absorb $70 million in education cuts

Action/reaction: Turn off

Q. If an electrical product accidentally falls into water, is it safe to reach for it if the switch is "off" but the product is still plugged in?
A. No. According to Underwriters Laboratories (UL), the electricity is still there as long as the product is plugged-in. UL suggests always unplugging any electrical product as soon as you've finished using it.

The smallest skyscraper

Texans want to restore architectural oddity

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — It is only fitting that the world's smallest skyscraper has no doors or windows, overlooks an alley and bears a street address that no longer exists.

And only an architectural ogre would demand a stairway by which to climb from the first to the fourth floors.

So it is altogether proper that this offspring of a Texas oil boom should remain a topic of amused controversy some six decades after its birth.

As Ripley says, you can believe it or not. He did.

In fact, historians say it was Robert Ripley himself who labeled the structure the world's smallest skyscraper.

From a base 10 feet by 16 feet, or about the size of a really roomy outhouse, the skyscraper rises four stories and 40 feet, a slender monument to the quick and questionable buck.

It amounts to four tiny rooms stacked atop one another with no visible means of ascending from one floor to the next.

"I couldn't find the stairway," said Richard Pink, one of many owners, "and I don't think there ever was one anyway."

He could be right.

"Guests couldn't get to the top floor unless they climbed the bricks," a reporter observed in 1959 while suggesting that the structure be converted into the world's smallest four-story hotel or the world's biggest birdcage.

Legend suggests that the building was a boondoggle from the outset, the cornerstone of a $200,000 stock swindle by a wily old rascal named J.D. McMahon.

"He just utterly vanished," said the structure's last owner, Mrs. Guy Mathews Jr. of Wichita Falls.

Research by Mrs. Mathews and others indicates McMahon built the brick edifice without the knowledge of the out-of-town property owner and sold stock through a unique prospectus.

"The promoters (apparently) offered the size of the building in inches instead of the usual foot measurements," Mrs. Mathews said in an article recounting the building's history.

And a gentleman named Tom Medders recalls that a distorted illustration made the building appear large against the Wichita Falls skyline.

Its windows and single door are boarded and bricked up now, and its La Salle Street address is known mostly to oldtimers who remember the adjacent St. James Hotel and recall the great oil discoveries at nearby Burkburnett.

President Theodore Roosevelt never slept in the world's smallest skyscraper but he did stay once at the St. James.

In the 1920s, angry investors branded the skyscraper "worthless" and there's little evidence to suggest they exaggerated.

But beauty being in the eye of the beholder, a number of Wichita Falls citizens think the skyscraper should be preserved as a historical landmark, a symbol of the city during its lusty days as an oil Mecca.

"I just feel like people enjoy seeing those things," said Mrs. Mathews. "It's one of the last of the original buildings in Wichita Falls."

"It's too good a thing to waste."

A historical buff, who just likes to "preserve things," Mrs. Mathews said her husband bought the skyscraper for her as a wedding anniversary gift in 1972.

"The city kept wanting to tear the skyscraper down," she said. "It was condemned twice before we bought it."

Mrs. Mathews and a late local historian named Louise Kelly tried unsuccessfully to arouse public interest in the building and to convert it into a museum.

They did succeed in compiling a colorful account of its origin.

"When the oil boom struck, the town was crowded," recalled an early resident, D. Leonard Davis. "People were glad to get even a little corner to open an office or start a business."

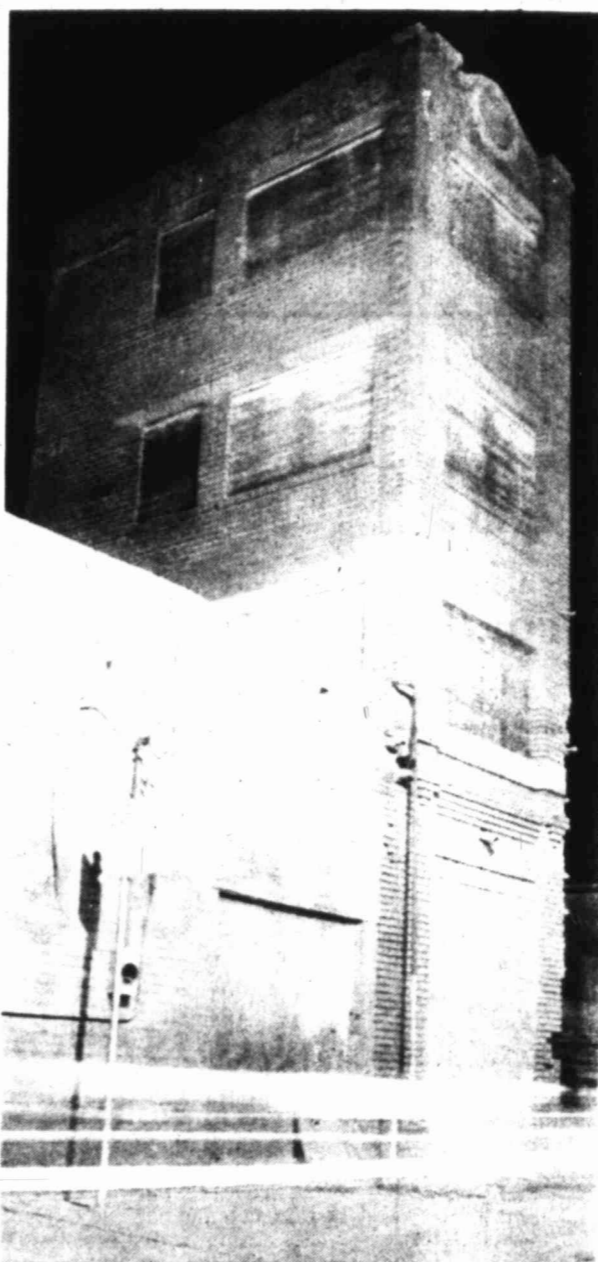

"Dozens walked the streets to find a place to live. The streets were crowded every day — just like circus day."

Historian Jonnie Morgan told of several men who bought a general store, sold off the merchandise and opened up oil offices the next day.

It was in such a climate of land scarcity and hip pocket trading, Mrs. Mathews said, that the McMahon building was constructed.

"Its unique size was dictated by the space available at the rear of the lot, 10 feet by 16 and two-thirds feet," she recalled.

There is reason to believe that tenants occupied the skyscraper at least off and on until 1931 when it was gutted by fire. Later, someone flirted with an idea for a cafe there, but that fell through.

SMALLEST SKYSCRAPER — The world's smallest skyscraper overlooks an alley and bears a street address that no longer exists in Wichita Falls. The boondoggle building rises four stories and has a base of 10 feet by 16 feet.

School board race draws 3 in Coahoma

COAHOMA — Three persons filed for two positions on the Coahoma school board following last night's board meeting.

Incumbents Donnie Reid and Kirby Brown have filed for re-election. Reid is currently board president and Brown is serving as secretary.

Bill Gressett has also filed for the school board. Trustees last night appointed election judges for the April 2 election. They are Mrs. H.C. Wallin, Joe Swinney and Ben Neel.

In other action, the board hired two teachers and renewed the principals' contracts for one year.

Charles Parrish was hired to replace retiring Weldon Weaver in the building trades department. Parrish will begin March 7 and assist Weaver through the remainder of the year.

David Hutton was hired to temporarily fill in for Jo Ann Pulattie in the high school journalism-English department. Mrs. Pulattie was granted a 45-day leave of absence due to illness.

Principals Tom Spell, Rob Ethridge and Ronnie Bourland were given one-year contracts.

The board approved $2,800 worth of repairs for the high school running track and $400 for revitalizing the jumping pits at the track. Trustees also decided to advertise for bids to move the elementary playground in order to turn the area into a football practice field.

The board adopted a new school policy dealing with the selection of honor students and the school cafeteria.

Beginning next year, valedictorian and salutatorian honors will be awarded based on a point system. High School Principal Ron Bourland suggested a system that would give more points toward the honors for taking more difficult classes.

Plainview fire kills 2 children

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — Two children were killed in their home after one knocked over some gasoline their teen-age brother was using to clean an automobile carburetor, authorities say.

Plainview Fire Capt. Wayne Wright said the two children were playing in the family's living room Monday when one of the children knocked over a pan of gasoline. About three minutes later, Wright said, the gasoline exploded when it reached a space heater.

Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone said he pronounced Maria Casillas, 4, and Ascencion Casillas, 2, dead at the scene.

The children's mother, 41-year-old Maria Rocha Casillas, received second degree burns on her arms when she re-entered the house trying to save her children, Wright said.

Mrs. Casillas and the older brother, Daltazar Casillas, escaped when the gasoline first exploded, he said.

Wright said the fire blew out all the windows in the house and caused extensive smoke damage to the structure.

Abilene records 4th rabies case

ABILENE (AP) — An animal control officer has warned some residents to watch their pets after authorities confirmed the fourth case this year of rabies in the city.

Nine cases were reported here in 1982. The latest case was confirmed after a skunk was found dead last Wednesday in a south Abilene backyard, said Animal Control Superintendent Carl Cornelius.

The skunk's head was sent to the State Health Department in Austin for analysis. Two other rabid skunks and one rabid cat were confirmed in January.

The cat bit a Clyde man Jan. 20, and he began a series of rabies shots two days later.

The animal control officer warned the people in the area where the skunk was found to be specially observant of their pets.

"In essence we'll replace the assistant city manager with a leisure supervisor," City Manager Don Davis said.

Although specific requirements have not yet been determined, Decell said the superintendent would need a degree in parks and recreation administration and at least three years experience.

The person hired will "plan, pro-

next year, say prison funds ought to be cut more instead.

Public hospitals are feeling the pinch of lower state Medicaid payments and overall health and welfare cutbacks. A recent report by the Intergovernmental Health Policy Project in Washington said that 30 states had cut services, eligibility or reimbursements to hospitals, nursing homes and doctors.

All but six states have reduced health services for pregnant women, according to the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

New Jersey's only municipal hospital, the 500-bed Jersey City Medical Center, is $16 million in debt and on the verge of financial collapse.

Lower Medicaid payments have meant that private hospitals in Chicago, Houston, St. Louis and accept, or else are demanding cash up front before accepting poverty cases. Public hospital officials say that as a result, the poor have been deferring medical care, and those who do come to hospitals are sicker.

The recession and cutbacks in domestic spending by the Reagan administration have stripped states of surpluses many had accumulated in the late 1970s, the last period of relative prosperity.

Nowhere is the decline in states' fortunes better illustrated than in California, which four years ago boasted a $4 billion surplus.

Police Beat

Auto burglary suspect arrested

Police say they arrested 23-year-old Gregory Joe Biddle of 2512 Central last night on suspicion of auto burglary and public intoxication.

Biddle was arrested at the Green House club after Gilbert Padilla of 1108 W. Sixth told police someone burglarized his car.

Police reports say that when Padilla went out to the parking lot, he saw a white male jump out of his car. Apparently the suspect broke the passenger window to get into the locked car, police said.

Padilla stopped the suspect and the two apparently started fighting before officers arrived and arrested Biddle.

Police reports also show the following:

- Mitch Covington of 2704 Boulder told police someone forced open the back door of his van last week and stole a $350 leather coat, a $400 stereo system and a $1,000 worth of hand tools.

- Graig Knocke of 2808 Ann told police someone stole the exhaust header off his motorcycle from his backyard last weekend. Knocke estimated his loss to be $150.

- Heldrun Covington of El Paso told police someone stole a tire and wheel from his Kentworth truck that was parked at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop Sunday night.

- W.A. McNew of McNew Body Shop at 1805 W. Third told police someone cut off the business's front door lock last weekend and stole 10 power tools, two straight line files and several hand tools. McNew estimated the loss at $3,000.

- Police say they arrested 31-year-old Delores E. Johnson of 506 N. Lancaster yesterday on suspicion of forgery by passing. She was released after posting a $5,000 bond set by Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

The suspect was arrested after James Howell told police a person he knows stole two checks from him, forged his name and cashed them for $347 at First National Bank.

Firemen battle grass fire

Six volunteer fire departments were called to the scene of a grass fire west of the Luther community at 1:20 p.m. Monday, according to the Howard County sheriff's office. The blaze, fed by dry conditions and high winds, was finally brought under control shortly after 5 p.m.

In addition to volunteer units from Luther, Knott, Jonesboro, Sand Springs, Silver Heels and Coahoma, a water truck and a maintainer from the county barn were also called into action. Fire guards were plowed to control the blaze, according to persons at the scene.

Estimates of damage were not available.

- Billy Carson, 26, of Forsan was arrested by state park officials Monday for disorderly conduct and driving the wrong way. Carson was fined $40 and given credit for two days of jail time by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. The traffic charge was dismissed and Carson was released today.

- Charles Turner, 31, of 1011 N. Bell is in county jail without bond in connection with a writ of attachment for non-payment of child support. Turner is also being held for Midland authorities.

- Kristopher Grant Pittman, 18, was released under $1,000 bond after his arrest by police for suspicion of criminal mischief. Bond was set by Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

- Two persons were released under $1,000 bond each on separate charges of driving while intoxicated. Jerry R. Madry, 32, of Odessa was arraigned before County Judge Milton Kirby. Roland M. Hankins, 60, of Amarillo was arraigned before Daratt.

The county property tax office is located on the first floor of the county courthouse.

Voter registration ending

Voter registration for the April 2 city council and school board elections ends March 2, according to Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore.

Anyone who has not registered to vote must register by March 2 in order to vote in the April school board and city council elections, Mrs. Moore said.

Witnesses urge DWI bill passage

By BRUCE MILLAR
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A mother whose children were permanently handicapped after a collision with a drunken driver was among 50 Texans Monday telling a Senate committee that Texas needs stronger laws against drunken driving.

Mary Ann Warzecha of Corpus Christi told a hushed Senate chamber of the physical and financial cost to her family after she and her three children were nearly killed in a 1975 collision with a drunken driver.

The Senate State Affairs Committee was conducting the hearing on several bills to toughen penalties against drunken drivers. Onlookers in the gallery held placards urging committee members to recommend approval of the bills, introduced by Sen. Bill Sarpauius, D-Hereford.

Mrs. Warzecha said two of her children are permanently handicapped as a result of injuries in a collision near San Antonio. Her 21-year-old daughter has recovered from brain damage but has had to relearn how to speak, walk and dress. Another child is called "Elephant Girl" by her schoolmates because one side of her body is growing slower than the other, Mrs. Warzecha said.

"We were six happy, healthy ambitious people whose lives were changed forever by a drunken driver who didn't know where he was going," Mrs. Warzecha said.

Others testifying at the hearing included judge, prosecutors, defense attorneys, and admitted alcoholics.

"The present laws are a disgrace," said Dick Brown, of the Brazos County chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers. "There is no confusion that people want stronger laws against DWI."

On the committee table, there were a pile of petitions supporting tougher laws against drunk drivers and a large jar of life-saver candy donated by citizens groups against drunken driving.

One of Sarpauius' bills would eliminate deferred adjudication which allows a driving while intoxicated offender to be placed on probation without a final conviction on the record. His proposals, which included a bill to prohibit open containers in motor vehicles, were referred to a Senate subcommittee for further hearings.

Sarpauius proposes to mandate that a suspected drunken driver must take a breath test or lose his driver's license up to 360 days. His bill also would require that counties with populations of 25,000 or more be required to have videotape cameras to record defendants but these tapes will not be required to support a conviction.

LEARNS OF BROTHERS DEATH — Alice Arnold is aided by an unidentified woman, left, Monday in Atlanta upon learning her brother Alfred was killed in a shootout with police. The shootout occurred when officers responded to a burglary report.

Weather Cloudy skies in northern Texas

By The Associated Press

Clouds covered North Texas and the Panhandle before dawn today, but mostly fair skies had returned to the rest of the state.

Drizzle and fog were reported across the northern half of the state, but forecasters expected the sun to pop out later in the day.

Temperatures were near seasonable norms over the state. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 36 at El Paso to 52 at several locations along the coast.

Winds were northerly to northwesterly at 5 to 15 mph statewide.

The forecast called for decreasing cloudiness tonight and Wednesday.

HEAVY RAINFALL was reported in the South Central part of the country early today.

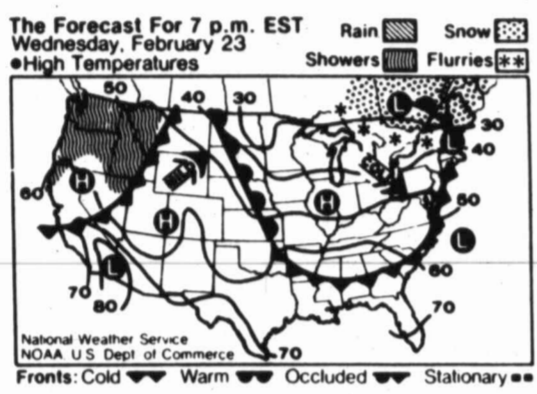

A flash flood watch was posted for the northern half of Louisiana and southern Mississippi as showers and thunderstorms spread from Arkansas to the Central Gulf Coast.

Skies were fair from the mid-Atlantic coast to Ohio and partly cloudy across the Upper Plateau and Rocky Mountain regions.

Temperatures were below freezing from lower Michigan across North Dakota to northern Montana.

Generally sunny skies were forecast later today from the Southwest into the Plains, and from Virginia into northern New England, with mild weather in most sections.

Skies were expected to be cloudy in the Pacific Northwest, the Southeast, the Lower Ohio Valley and in the Upper Great Lakes.

SHOWERS were forecast from eastern Louisiana and Mississippi and into Alabama and central Georgia. Occasional light rain was forecast for northern Ohio with light snow in northern Michigan.

Officials say no ground gained in anti-drug fight

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Top federal drug officials concede that narcotics traffickers battled them to a virtual draw during the first year of the Reagan administration's campaign against drugs.

Even though drug seizures were up sharply in 1982, the Drug Enforcement Administration's own figures show that heroin and cocaine became slightly more plentiful, cheaper and purer on U.S. streets and marijuana prices remained stable.

In recent interviews, Acting DEA Administrator Francis Mullen and Assistant Administrator for Intelligence Gary Liming acknowledged the effort was a draw because overall availability and consumption of illegal drugs did not decline. "I can't argue with that judgment," Mullen said.

"Drug traffickers paid a higher price to operate in 1982," Liming said. "But the amount available for consumption remains sufficient to meet demand."

But Mullen was confident that the addition of more than 1,000 new agents and prosecutors this year in 12 inter-agency drug task forces throughout the nation will reduce the drug problem.

Liming said, "We haven't hurt them bad enough for them to make major changes, such as bringing drugs from Colombia up the Pacific coast rather than through the Caribbean. But that day will come."

The DEA measures the supply of drugs primarily by tracking their street price and purity. Lower prices and higher purities indicate $600 and the average price of high-grade northern California marijuana remained in the $1,500-$1,900 range. No figures are kept on the purity of marijuana.

On the other hand, cocaine seizures nearly tripled from 4,353 pounds in 1981 to 12,535 in 1982. Heroin seizures nearly doubled from 332 pounds in 1981 to 608 pounds in 1982. And marijuana seizures rose more than 45 percent from 1,935,206 pounds in 1981 to 2,814,787 pounds in 1982.

Mullen said 1982 was the government's best year ever in destroying domestic marijuana fields, with 1,650 metric tons eradicated. "Our previous estimates were that we had only 1,200 metric tons being grown domestically, so with this concentrated effort, we found there is more domestic marijuana than we thought was out there," Mullen said.

Urges Israel to withdraw from Lebanon

Reagan reviews mid term foreign policy

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan says the United States is ready to "take all necessary measures" to guarantee the security of Israel's northern borders if the Israelis withdraw their forces from Lebanon.

At the same time, the president is urging Arabs to accept Israel's right to exist and to let Jordan negotiate the future of the West Bank.

Reagan made the statements in a speech reviewing his foreign policy at mid-term, prepared for delivery to the American Legion today. The White House made several excerpts of his remarks available in advance.

In the speech, the president contends past U.S. policy-makers "had lost touch with changing world realities," and "ignored our responsibility to work for constructive change, not simply to try to preserve the status quo."

He also declared that the "ultimate Soviet goal in Europe is to force the nations to accommodate themselves to Soviet interests on Soviet terms."

On the heels of allegations that U.S.-Israeli relations have worsened substantially over the situation in Lebanon, the president pledged:

"This administration is prepared to take all necessary measures to guarantee the security of Israel's northern borders in the aftermath of the complete withdrawal of the Israeli army."

He was referring to U.S.-led efforts to get the Israelis and all other foreign forces out of Lebanon, which Israel invaded last summer. So far, Israel has refused to set a timetable for withdrawal.

In advance of the speech, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the security of Israel's northern borders would not be guaranteed unless there were a specific request and would not necessarily involve further use of American troops.

Speakes said Reagan's border assurance "has been a principle that's been stated from the outset," and was just one of "many, many options," none of which have been decided.

Reagan also repeated his call for Arabs "to accept the reality of Israel and the reality that peace and justice are to be gained only through direct negotiation.

"King Hussein (of Jordan) should be supported in his effort to bring together a joint Jordanian-Palestinian team to negotiate the future of the West Bank, Gaza and Jerusalem," Reagan said.

Reagan has long urged Hussein to enter talks with Israel, and Secretary of State George P. Shultz said last week he sees a "reasonable possibility" the Jordanian leader will do so.

The president's speech came three days after Moshe Arens, who is replacing Ariel Sharon as Israel's defense minister, contended that some Reagan administration officials have "idealized notions" about how fast a settlement in Lebanon can be negotiated among all parties involved.

Arens, Israel's ambassador to the United States for the past year, said in an interview with The New York Times that the level of "frustration and impatience and anger" in U.S.-Israeli relations was perhaps the worst in history.

Reagan earlier this month said he believed Israel was "delaying unnecessarily" in withdrawing its forces from Lebanon.

The president's reference to the Soviet Union apparently was aimed at Moscow's rejection of his proposal to cancel deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in exchange for the Soviets removing their intermediate range nuclear-armed missiles from Europe.

Economy's slows to change emphasis

The American economy has stopped growing and many economists pessimistically see this development as a product of permanent weakness in American society.

But the chairman of the first lunar-exploration committee and founder of NASA's Goddard Institute for Space Studies makes a strong argument that the opposite is true.

"We are at the beginning of the biggest boom in American history — a period of unparalleled prosperity and economic growth," asserts Robert Jastrow, currently professor of Earth Science at Dartmouth. "The reasons have a great deal to do with science and its first cousins, research and development."

In a revealing analysis, Jastrow, who set up the U.S. priorities for the scientific investigation of the moon, debunks most of the oft-stated reasons for America's stagnation. It is not, he says, high-priced labor; it is not too much social welfare spending; it is not astronomical deficits, nor is it lack of concentration on research and development.

"What is killing our productivity? If we could identify the villain we could cast him out," Jastrow says. "But there is no villain. The trauma we are passing through now is not a depression but a natural interlude between two great waves of economic growth. American industry is shedding its skin, casting off old technologies and developing new ones. But the new skin has not yet hardened."

The new skin, in Jastrow's view, is based on new technologies such as computers and micro-electronics, robotics, fiber optics, biotechnology and long-distance communications.

"They have not yet developed to the point where they can take up the slack in employment and industrial output created by the decline of the aging enterprises — the smokestack industries of steel, chemicals, autos and so on," he believes.

While Jastrow rejects accepted explanations for the current stagnation, he is in complete agreement with economists who insist that productivity must be increased — through high technology or otherwise.

"Productivity is the key to the wealth of an industrial nation like America," Jastrow concludes in the Science Digest article. "Arab wealth comes out of the ground and can run dry. American wealth comes out of the brains of people, and it is potentially inexhaustible."

Bears

West Texas is not the ideal place to come across bears of any shape, size or personality. Today, almost no place is.

Your best chance is to travel north and west, up to Yellowstone or the Grand Tetons or, at closest, the mountains of northern New Mexico. That's where I saw my first bear — big event in my life.

Bears have always seemed to me to be a great American animal, though political cartoonists have turned them into a symbol for the Soviet Union.

Nyet A black bear rummaging through leftover lunches under a picnic table at a national park is pure Norman Rockwell ... if Rockwell had been inclined to paint bears instead of Boy Scouts.

But like much else, bears are on their way out. Most of the bears in the United States are on federally maintained lands, many in national parks.

The numbers of grizzly bears and black bears are dwindling, all as part of the Interior Department's rather sloppy attempt to "manage" the bear population. This is not a major problem facing humanity, I admit, but it is an example of how poorly governments (or, more precisely, human beings) take care of wildlife.

First, to put it bluntly, bears are scavengers. They have always fed on man's leftovers and are well-known for taking food offered to them by park visitors.

The Interior Department is trying to get bears off this habit. They have moved them far from garbage dumps (the bear world's equivalent of a nifty McDonald's) in the belief that they will be better able to survive in a wild environment; after all, the thinking goes, bears lived quiet happily before Man started taking vacations and throwing his sandwiches away.

But the bears are dying. America is too urban to support the bear population, so without the smorgasbord of garbage (it's hard to get poetic about bears when you talk this way) they starve.

Secondly, park service officials don't seem to like bears. They are killing them by design and with precision. Bears who are considered a threat or a problem to manage are loaded on trucks and moved to the backcountry where they have only instinct to live on.

Larger, more troublesome bears are hoisted by helicopter. In the past this was carelessly done, and according to a mid-1970s environmental report, close to a hundred bears fell to their deaths in a six-year period.

In all, an average of 140 bears are killed a year by the Interior Department's management program, an article in this month's Atlantic says.

Bears are not our most majestic creatures, it's true, but many Americans find them fascinating. Surveys at Yellowstone National Park in the 1960s show that the black bears were a main attraction; now it's almost impossible to find them anywhere.

Surprisingly, considering their strength, bears are among the least feared of wild animals. The reason is obvious: most of them are cute. Yogi Bear and Boo Boo and Smokey the Bear and, of course, the perennially popular Teddy Bear are great image-builders.

At Philmont, a New Mexico Explorer Scout camp, bears are a big deal. We were instructed to put all our food, detergent and whatever smelled good to bears into a big bag and hang it high between two trees.

We would sometimes stay up all night in the hopes that we could see a bear coming into the campsite and take a picture or whatever. The park rangers discouraged this, but we weren't worried. All you have to do is bang pots and pans together and they will head for the hills.

Bears have killed humans, but they are far more frightened of us than we are of them. The first person killed by a bear in a national park (Yellowstone, in 1907) was out walking with his wife and came across a bear cub. He chased it up a tree and poked it in the rear end several times with an umbrella.

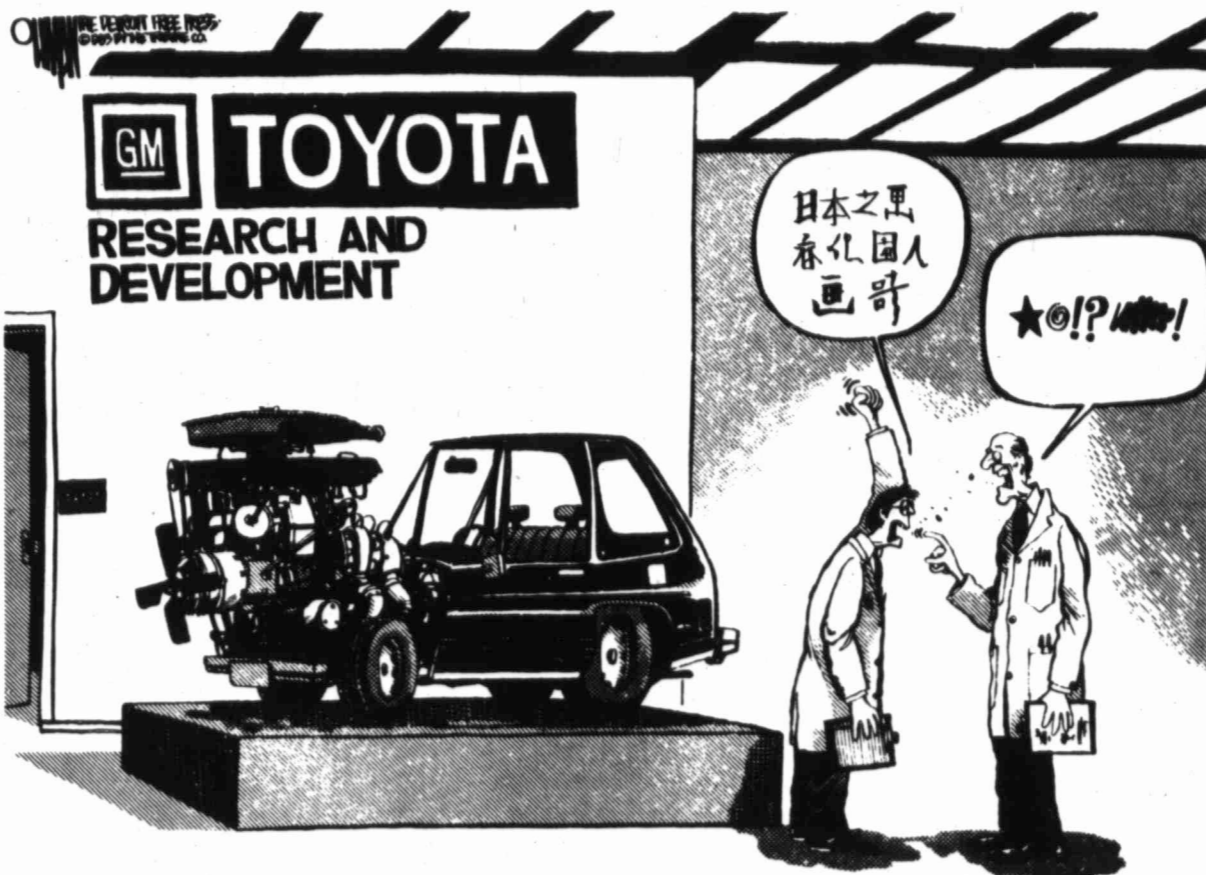

That must have been fun. Then the bear's sow appeared and tore out the man's breastbone and one lung with a single swipe.

There was considerable pressure put on the park ranger to kill the bear. He refused; the bear had a right to protect its young, he said.

Back in the early 20th century, this was the Interior Department's policy of "forest justice." They have no such policy today. People now win lawsuits against the park service and bears are considered by Washington to be a big liability.

The United States' policy of wildlife protection and management and environmental protection has become that watered down.

I can't find a good economic justification for keeping bears, or any wild animal for that matter. But if Man was given dominion over the Earth, that means he was to care for it and use it to its fullest potential. He's not supposed to waste it.

Shouting at the President

My wife and I were watching the evening news on television the other night, when she said, "I feel sorry for President Reagan."

"How's that?" I asked.

"Every time he leaves the White House to go somewhere the reporters shout questions at him."

"Well, it's their job to ferret out news, and they hope he'll say something earth-shattering as he's leaving for Camp David."

"All he does is shout back one or two words to their questions. How much news can you ferret out of that?"

"It depends on how you phrase the questions. Suppose you shout, 'Mr. President, have you made up your mind about Denny Pack?' and he shouts back, 'No.' — then that's a news story. If he shouts back, 'Yes,' that's also a news story. If he just smiles, shrugs his shoulders, and puts his arm around Nancy, it may not be a news story, but at least it's something to go with the film."

"Why can't he go to Camp David on the weekend without us having to watch it on the evening news?"

"Because the American people should know where their president is at all times. The White House doesn't need the media covering his departure when he is going to Camp David because he's usually in a good mood. He's in an even better mood when he comes back. But you can't expect the press corps to just stand there like dummies when Reagan is getting on and off the helicopter. They owe it to the public to find out what is really on his mind. That's why they should shout those questions at him."

"I think it's a very dangerous way to gather news. Half the time, with the helicopter motors whirring, he can't even hear the questions," she said.

"I don't think the president objects. Frankly, I think he prefers that type of questioning to a press conference. I know his staff does."

"But suppose someone yells a question and he says 'Yes' instead of 'No.' Isn't that scary?"

"Not really. Because if he gives the wrong answer, the press secretary can always say he didn't understand the question. What you have to realize is that Ronald Reagan, before he went into politics, attended an awful lot of movie premiers, so he's used to reporters shouting at him. He's an old pro when it comes to running a press gauntlet. Look at the way he waves his arm as he approaches the helicopter. He's a natural when it comes to saying goodbye."

"But the TV networks show the same scene every weekend. They could probably use stock footage from their files and save a lot of money."

"You don't understand how the White House communications people work. This is what is known as a photo opportunity. It shows off the president at his best. He's usually wearing a cowboy outfit and boots and he doesn't look as if he has a care in the world. That's the image of Ronald Reagan they want to project. And frankly I believe that's the image the American people want to see. Would you feel any better if he came out of the White House to board the helicopter scowling and refusing to talk to anyone?"

"I guess not," she admitted. "But I don't know why the networks can't just just say he went to Camp David and leave it at that."

"That's okay for the print people. But the electronic media can't just say, 'He went to Camp David.' They have to have the pictures to go along with the story. If they showed Sam Donaldson or Leslie Stahl or Chris Wallace standing in front of a darkened White House saying, 'The president is not there tonight,' you'd be worried sick."

"Maybe you're right. What are they yelling at him now?"

"They want to know if he's going to fire Ann Gorsuch of the EPA."

"Does the press really expect him to answer that when he's leaving for Camp David?"

"Not really. But if you have to stand out in the cold for an hour, it's worth a try."

Military purchases a scandal

WASHINGTON — The great corporate scramble for defense dollars has produced weapons systems that are designed more for profit than for defense. The military procurement system has become the nation's biggest scandal.

Contractors sell the Pentagon on fancy military gadgetry that increases their profits but reduces the combat effectiveness of the weapons. The costly trimmings help make U.S. weapons so complex that military personnel can't operate them but must call in factory representatives.

Obviously, new weapons should be tested under battle conditions. Yet they are accepted after superficial tests that permit the contractors to take their money and run. Many weapons now on the firing line would probably be useless in actual combat.

The latest example is the Aegis Cruiser, which is supposed to protect Navy carrier task forces from Soviet aircraft and missiles. Yet the cruiser may itself be hopelessly vulnerable to attack.

The heart of each $1.2 billion Aegis Cruiser is a super-sophisticated radar system. It can track attacking planes and missiles and cut through the enemy's electronic jamming to tell real missiles from decoys.

But the radar has a fatal flaw. It emits such strong distinctive signals of its own that they act as beacons that give away the exact location of the Aegis.

The Aegis is also virtually untested in anything like realistic battle conditions. Although the first Aegis is scheduled to join the fleet early this year, no one is sure that it will work, even if it isn't sunk.

What has the Navy been doing to test its cruiser? "To date, most Aegis combat system tests have been computer simulations rather than actual exercises against target vehicles," said a secret General Accounting Officer draft report seen by my associate Don Goldberg.

Furthermore, the Aegis hasn't been tested against the very kind of low-altitude missile that sank the HMS Sheffield in the Falklands war. Yet this is the precise threat the experts fear the Aegis is most vulnerable to.

The reason for this failure is simple but appalling: The Navy doesn't have a simulated missile that can be used for this kind of test.

It's not that the admirals didn't think of this. They did. It was called Firebrand, and it would have given Aegis defense teams a target just like the Soviet's dangerous low-altitude missiles.

But in typical Pentagon fashion, Firebrand was plagued with delays and cost overruns. In not-so-typical Pentagon fashion, however, Firebrand was scrapped. The Navy decided it simply wasn't worth its price.

The Navy is now considering a less-fancy simulated missile for Aegis' target practice. But it won't be ready until late next year at the earliest.

This means the fleet's chief defense ship may get its first realistic test from enemy missiles. That will be a little late to find out whether Aegis works.

LET THEM LIVE: I have made a personal appeal to Gen. Chun Doo Hawn, the president of South Korea, to spare the lives of two young political dissidents.

Their names are Mun Bu Shik and Kim Hyan Jan. They have been sentenced to death for a fire that destroyed the American Cultural Center at Pusan last March, killing one person. U.S. government sources consider the death sentences too severe.

Publicly, the Reagan administration has taken no stand on the fate of Mun and Kim, which is now in the hands of the South Korean Supreme Court. Behind the scenes, though, the State Department has been quietly trying to persuade President Chun to spare the two men's lives. Our diplomats feel that execution would make martyrs of the two men, and would only inflame anti-American sentiment among the Korean people.

Are you happy without God?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't agree with you when you say that it is not possible to be happy without God. I think I'm a reasonable happy person, although I have never bothered with religion. — Mrs. S.L.

DEAR MRS. S.L.: Yes, it may be that your life right now is reasonably trouble-free and happy. I hope however that this will not deceive you into thinking that you do not need God, because you do.

Let me mention briefly three things for you to think about. First, I strongly suspect that your happiness is dependent on your circumstances. In other words, you have few problems right now and therefore you are reasonably happy. But what will happen when difficulties come into your life — as they inevitably will? Christ is able to give you a joy and peace even in the midst of difficult times. The reason is because when you belong to Christ you know that you can trust him in every situation. The Bible says that God "will keep in perfect peace him whose mind is steadfast, because he trusts in you" (Isaiah 26:3).

Also, Christ can give you a deeper and fuller joy and peace than you can know apart from him. I am interested in the fact that you describe yourself as "reasonably happy" — indicating that you sense there may be people who are happier than you. Jesus said, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives" (John 14:27). I know that you may be skeptical of what I am saying, but I have met countless people who have found in Christ a peace and joy that they never knew was possible when they came to know him.

In addition, I must tell you frankly that even if you are reasonably happy living without God, the time will come when you will be miserable. Some day you will die, and if you do not know Christ you will pass into eternity separated from God in hell. Look at just one of the Bible's descriptions of hell: "darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth" (Matthew 25:30). You may not like to face this truth, but it is better to face it now than when it is too late. My prayer for you is that you will realize your need of God and give your life to Jesus Christ without delay. You will discover a life of excitement and joy that you never dreamed existed.

Arab states ready to cut prices of oil

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — OPEC oil ministers from four Persian Gulf countries met privately today to consider matching or undercutting price reductions by three other nations trying to beat an international oil glut.

A Saudi newspaper reported the Arab oil producers planned to slash their prices by as much as $7 a barrel.

Today's emergency meeting was supposed to include all six members of the Saudi-led Gulf Cooperation Council states, according to a council announcement. But only oil ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar attended. Bahrain and Oman, which are not OPEC members, did not show up.

The absences sparked predictions of an immediate price cut.

Such a move could ignite a worldwide price war, lowering gas prices for American motorists but making it harder for Third World oil-producers to repay their foreign debts.

To be competitive, industry analysts say, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries must drop its price of $34 a barrel. The 13-nation cartel controlled international oil prices in the 1970s but has lost some clout since then because of internal rivalries and a smaller market.

Nigeria was the first OPEC member to break ranks when on Sunday it lowered its price by $5.50 to $30 a barrel. Its decision came after non-OPEC members, Britain and Norway, cut their price to $30 a barrel for North Sea Crude, the African nation's main competitor in the European oil market.

The state-run Saudi Press Agency reported that ministers of the Gulf Coordination Council meeting here would discuss "current trends in the petroleum market" because of the action taken by

World Oil Prices (42 Gallon Barrel)

Nigeria, Britain and Norway.

Saudi sources said the official announcement that the entire council would meet clearly indicated a price cut is planned.

The council includes four OPEC members — Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates — as well as Bahrain and Oman.

Without saying when the action would take effect, the authoritative Saudi newspaper Asharq al Awsat said the council's ministers would cut prices between $5.50 and $7 per barrel "to maintain competitive levels after the North Sea and Nigerian reductions."

"The present structure has been debilitated after Nigeria violated it in a manner that surpassed all expectations," the newspaper said.

HOMELESS — Refugees from the slaughter of Moslems gather in a makeshift refugee camp in Assam Monday. Up to 1,000 were slain by Hindu extremists in a rampage over the weekend.

Assam refugees tell of massacre

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A child with an eyeball partly gouged out by an arrow spoke to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi about the 19-day anti-election massacre that killed some 1,400 people in the northeastern state of Assam.

Mrs. Gandhi flew to the blood-soaked region on Monday for a six-hour visit and went to a refugee camp for 2,000 survivors, most of them Moslems with roots in neighboring Bangladesh.

The child was among those who stepped forward when Mrs. Gandhi, brushing aside her aides, asked people to tell her what happened when Hindu tribesmen wielding hatchets, arrows and spears rampaged through their villages, All-India radio reported.

The radio reporter, one of the few allowed to accompany Mrs. Gandhi, said the Bengali survivors asked the 65-year-old prime minister for protection by national security forces, instead of the state police.

The violence, beginning with the slayings of more than 430 people, culminated in the massacre last Friday of as many as 1,000 men, women and children in 17 villages of the Nelli area 450 miles northeast of Calcutta.

Troops moved into the Nelli area on Monday, but 31 more deaths were reported in other parts of the state.

Reports from the area said the Hindu tribesmen attacked because Moslem villagers voted in defiance of an election boycott declared by the Assamese Movement.

The predominantly Hindu movement demands all Bengalis be removed from the voting lists and expelled from Assam, arguing that they will dominate the state culturally and politically.

Voting in the staggered election for 126 state assembly seats started Feb. 14 and officially ended Monday. Mrs. Gandhi's Congress Party was assured of victory because of a low turnout resulting from the violence and the election boycott.

Libyan hijackers free stewardess, await fuel

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — Three Libyan hijackers today released a stewardess carrying a request for medicine for a sick boy, nearly 44 hours after the Libyan Arab Airlines plane was forced to land on this Mediterranean island, airport officials said.

The stewardess got off the Boeing 727 at 2:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. CST) and walked about 50 yards to a command post. Airport officials said supplies of food and water aboard the plane were exhausted.

The hijackers, who pirated the Libyan domestic flight en route to Tripoli on Sunday, have demanded to go to Morocco. The North African country has refused to give them asylum, saying it does not want to encourage air piracy.

Prime Minister Dom Mintoff said the plane would not be refueled until the hijackers freed the remaining 161 captives, Maltese officials said.

Mintoff told the hijackers that he had a message for them from the Moroccan government but he would not release its contents until they released all the hostages.

The hijackers had no immediate reaction to the news of Morocco's rejection.

The parked plane's 156 passengers and five other crew members were without food or water for a second day today, and Mintoff said none would be sent.

Maltese negotiations with the hijackers resumed this morning via two-way radio that was monitored by Libyan officials who flew in from Tripoli, authorities said.

Western diplomats said Morocco had not responded to an invitation to send a representative to the talks.

Some medical supplies were brought to the plane overnight, but the hijackers refused to open the door. Authorities said nothing indicated any violence had happened inside the jetliner.

Police buses, trucks and a tractor blocked part of the abandoned runway where the jet was parked. Dozens of riot police, with submachine guns cocked, patrolled the remote corner of the airport.

Libya threatens U.S. AWACS

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libya said today its air force is taking "appropriate measures" to counter what it calls provocative missions by U.S. AWACS jets on the Libyan-Egyptian border.

A Lebanese newspaper said Libya has threatened to shoot down the American radar surveillance planes.

"The Libyan armed forces have declared they will not allow any forces to make incursions into our territorial waters, skies or lands," the official JANA news agency said.

JANA, quoting a communique from the armed forces read on Libyan television Monday, said U.S. Airborne Warning and Control Systems planes have started carrying out "provocative-aggressive missions" on the Libyan-Egyptian border.

It said the Libyan Air Force "has taken all appropriate measures to face any eventuality."

Employee-of-month named at Malone-Hogan Hospital

Margarita Dutchover, an aide in the environmental services department at Malone-Hogan Hospital, has been chosen the hospital's February employee-of-the month. John Bingham, administrator, said "Mrs. Dutchover is the employee in the red jacket who greets people as she polishes and cleans the front lobby entrance, or rides elevators as she cleans."

MARGARITA DUTCHOVER
...employee of month

"She really cares that the emergency room area is clean. When we're so busy that she has to work around the staff and troubled patients and visitors, she worries. She never slights an area, and her work never has to be redone." Mrs. Dutchover has been an aide since 1976, when she transferred from the dietary department.

Choosing the outstanding employee for each month is a project of the Employee Activity Committee of the hospital. As winner, Mrs. Dutchover will wear a special name tag, have a private parking space on the employee parking lot, publicity in the hospital's news letter, and a special coffee mug. She also receives a weekly free meal throughout the month of February.

Mrs. Dutchover is a Big Spring native. She and her husband, Robert, have five children, including Emma Anyan, Lubbock, Mary Helen Bustamente, Christina Garcia, Robert Dutchover Jr., and Cynthia Lopez, all of Big Spring.

Lingering hoarseness needs investigation

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am very concerned about my 22-year-old daughter. She has had hoarseness for several weeks and it isn't getting any better. She says it doesn't hurt and only gets sore occasionally. She doesn't smoke. What might cause such a condition? — M.H.

The routine kinds of hoarseness are the kids that follow a cold or strenuous voice box use, such as unrestrained yelling at sporting events. The vocal cords become red and swollen and hoarseness results.

Whether from cold virus infection or straining, the treatment is resting the voice, avoiding vocal irritants, like smoking, which I'm pleased to learn is not a factor with your daughter, and using a humidifier to keep air moist.

That kind of hoarseness is usually short-lived. If it's from a cold, it should have not lasted longer than a week or so. Viral illnesses are usually self-limiting in the sense that they subside on their own. Hoarseness that persists longer may be due to an infection other than a cold virus. This kind of vocal-cord infection often requires antibiotic therapy.

Such persisting hoarseness may also reflect some damage to the vocal cords, or nodules or polyps on them. Your daughter's hoarseness and periodic soreness have gone past the point of usual viral infection scenarios. She has to see a doctor to find out what is going on. The kinds of infections I'm speaking of are not usually the kind that take care of themselves.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am always getting cold sores on my lips. Is there any cure or preventive for them? I have heard that smallpox vaccination will prevent them. Could you please advise me? — A.M.

The theory of smallpox vaccination for cold sores is attractive, but it doesn't work. The live virus in the vaccine causes the body to make interferon and that does help ward off viral infections in general. Not only doesn't it work for the cold sore virus, but there is danger of getting a generalized infection from the virus in the vaccine.

So you have to turn to things like a mouthwash of one part hydrogen peroxide (3 percent solution) and two parts water. Prescription medicines for it are xylocaine viscous and elixir of benadryl. Sometimes, physical factors like sunlight, coldness, exertion or fatigue can cause cold sores. Check that possibility. This herpes infection is one of those discussed in my new booklet, "Herpes:

Don't Panic," which other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and one dollar.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you please explain how bile is made and used? — M.B.

Special cells in the liver produce it. It then drains into the gall bladder through a system of ducts. The gall bladder then empties it into the digestive tract when it gets the signal to do so. You didn't ask me, but the liver makes about two pints of it daily and it's necessary for the proper digestion of fats.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, send for the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Abby

Public restroom dilemma

DEAR ABBY: Today my jaw dropped! While sitting in the local cafe having coffee with my husband and our 2½-year-old daughter, "Cindy", we were approached by the owner of the cafe, who told us of a complaint he had about us the previous evening.

My husband, who has always shared in the care of our daughter, had taken Cindy to the "potty" in the men's room. There is only one stall, and while they were occupying it, another gentlemen had need for the facilities, so he poked his head in. My husband informed him that they would be out in a minute.

The other customer promptly complained to the owner saying little girls should use the women's facilities. The owner then told my husband that in the future he should not take Cindy into the men's room — either I would have to take her to the ladies' restroom or she would have to go alone.

What is the rule on this? Is it written somewhere that only women are allowed to take their children to the bathroom in a "public place"? And then only to the women's room?

How do mothers of sons — or single fathers of daughters — handle this?

NO IDENTIFICATION, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Very young children should never be sent into a public restroom alone. And men should use the men's facilities and women should use the women's when taking a child of either sex to the restroom.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading about when a cowboy should take off his hat. Most men who wear western hats (and they're not all cowboys) wear them indoors.

When you invest $100 in a hat and $50 in the band, you don't take it off indoors. If you do, someone invariably sits on it, steals it, or some drunk wanders up, puts it on and you have to dismantle his body to get it back.

In the movie "Smokey and the Bandit," Burt Reynolds, who always wore a cowboy hat, said, "I take my hat off for only one thing."

What do you think that "one thing" was?

OREGON TRUCK DRIVER

DEAR DRIVER: To scratch his head. (Would I lie to you on Washington's birthday?)

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I attended a holiday party given by a couple we had met socially at several other parties.

When we got there, we found the other guests were mixing drinks at a "bar" that had been set up on the kitchen table — a common practice among our circle of friends. About halfway through the party, I was informed by a complete stranger that this was a "bring your own bottle" party, and I was drinking his scotch!

Abby, I haven't heard of a "BYOB party" since my college days. I know we are in an economic depression, but our hosts are comfortable, middle-class professionals — not rich, but surely far from poor. Also I was raised to believe that if you couldn't afford to entertain your guests, you should wait until you could.

Was I brought up wrong, or have times and the rules of common courtesy changed that much? (I'm only 30).

BEWILDERED IN BOSTON

DEAR BEWILDERED: In many circles the BYOB PARTY IS S.O.P. (standard operating procedure). Your hosts were remiss in not informing you what kind of party it was when they invited you.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Women wage war on extra pounds

Several women in the St. Lawrence community have banded together to wage the war on extra pounds for better health.

County Extension Agent, Kathryn Burch met with the group and explained the importance of a balanced diet while trimming pounds. Portion control, food preparation, and variety are an important part of dieting. Jogging, exercising, walking, and stair climbing also are part of the program.

The next program is today at 6:30 p.m. at the St. Lawrence Catholic Church educational building. The program will center around spices that can be added to foods to enhance their flavor without adding calories. Each participant is asked to leave off one serving of bread for that day. They will have a chance to taste a variety of spices sprinkled over rice. The spices will be served individually and pre-mixed for cultural emphasis.

Everyone is welcome to attend the meeting. There is no charge. New members interested in the basic diet should come 30 minutes early.

Educational activities conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Federal agents to watch as Chicago elects mayor

By SHA .ON COHEN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO — Under the watchful eyes of more than 1,500 federal and state agents, voters decide today whether Chicago will keep its first woman mayor, nor name its first black mayor or restore the Daley name to City Hall.

The Democratic primary, tantamount to election for 50 years, is the most expensive ever in Chicago politics. It is also the most bitter and hotly contested mayoral campaign in nearly three decades.

A million voters were expected to choose among Mayor Jane M. Byrne, seeking a second term; Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, whose father ruled as mayor for a generation; and U.S. Rep. Harold Washington, the most serious black mayoral candidate ever in Chicago.

Last-minute campaigning has focused on the candidates' differences, with Mrs. Byrne and Washington tussling Monday over charges of racism in the Byrne campaign and Daley stumping in white ethnic precincts.

Polls showed that Mrs. Byrne, who trailed when she announced her candidacy last November but soared to a strong lead in January, lost ground to both challengers in the final weeks of the campaign.

The race was rated a toss-up. The winner faces former State Rep. Bernard Epton on April 12. Epton is unopposed in today's Republican primary.

The polls open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Mild, spring-like weather was forecast, prompting election officials to predict a record turnout among the city's 1.6 million registered voters.

Amid concerns of vote fraud that have tainted the city's reputation in the past, a cadre of U.S. officials was assigned to monitor a non-federal Chicago election for the first time.

Also watching were nearly 900 federal and state prosecutors, 3,000 Chicago police officers and about 250 state and city election workers.

The federal agents were ordered in by U.S. Attorney Dan K. Webb, whose office has indicted several people for vote fraud in last November's Illinois gubernatorial race. He vowed that the mayor of Chicago would not be chosen "based on fraud."

"If everything falls into place, we could have an honest election in the city of Chicago," said Kirsten Svare, executive director of Project LEAP, a non-partisan group that combats vote fraud.

The issues in the campaign were Mrs. Byrne's leadership, the $10 million raised for her political war chest, and — in the final days — race.

All three candidates had avoided references to race but the two challengers accused Cook County Democratic Chairman Ed Vrdolyak, a Byrne supporter, of race-baiting. Vrdolyak warned white precinct captains over the weekend that the election was "a racial thing," and said that a vote for Daley was a vote for Washington. Mrs. Byrne's opponents claimed.

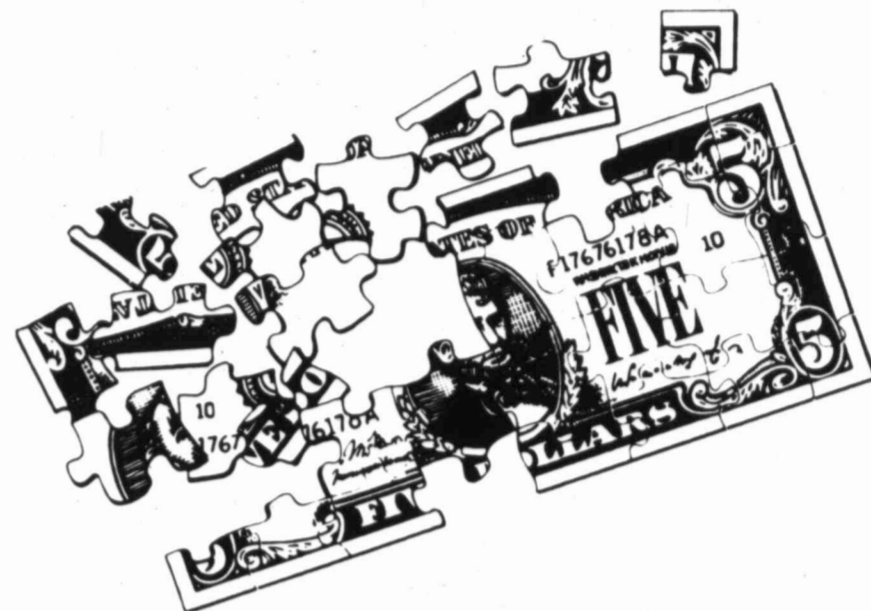

Mrs. Byrne repudiated the statement and spent much of her final campaign day in the black community. Vrdolyak denied making the statement.

Washington told a news conference Monday he was concerned about the use of racial campaign tactics but more worried about possible ballot box fraud.

"If there were an honest election in this city, the whole country would go bananas. They would literally be stunned," he said.

Mrs. Byrne, 48, was elected mayor in 1979, when as an outsider she rode to victory on a blizzard that buried the city and her party-backed opponent, Mayor Michael A. Bilandic.

CHINATOWN MASSACRE

Suspect's prior murder case dropped

FAMILY LEAVES HEARING — Members of the Benjamin K. Ng family leave a pre-arraignment hearing Monday in Seattle court. Ng and Kwan Mak were arrested in connection of the slaughter of 13 people in a private club in Seattle's Chinatown.

SEATTLE (AP) — One of two men being held without bail in the Chinatown gambling club massacre of 13 people was charged two years ago in the shooting of four young men but the case was dropped for lack of evidence, officials say.

A second-degree assault charge against Benjamin Ng, 20, was dismissed in the Jan. 5, 1981, shooting before the case reached trial in juvenile court, according to police records.

Police would not talk Monday about either shooting, except to say there were no developments in the search for a third man wanted in the Chinatown massacre. But Mayor Charles Royer said he was told the 1981 case was dismissed for "insufficient evidence."

Ng was arrested Saturday within hours of the massacre at the Wah Mee Club. Also arrested and held for investigation of homicide was Kwan "Willie" Mak, 22, who has no previous arrest record.

Ng and Mak were born in Hong Kong and came to the United States five to seven years ago.

Tentative agreement reached in school strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Blue-collar school workers reached a tentative agreement early today with school negotiators, ending a 20-day strike against Philadelphia public schools, a judge says. Local 1201 of the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, which represents 4,000 bus drivers, custodians and maintenance workers, is to vote on the contract Wednesday.

Union members were under court order to return to work today. The tentative contract was announced shortly after 1 a.m. by Common Pleas Court Judge Stanley Greenberg, who had been supervising negotiations since last week and had been meeting with city, school and union officials since 10:30 a.m. Monday.

"These are the most unusual negotiations I've ever been involved in,"

Greenberg said. "Several hours ago I would have said 'we'll never get an agreement,' and yet now we have one."

Greenberg refused to discuss terms of the agreement and directed negotiators to refrain from talking about it until Wednesday's ratification vote.

The city has 266 public schools, but only about 50, equipped with coal-fired boilers, were closed during the strike. The boilers require constant monitoring, a job normally performed by Local 1201 members. It will take up to three days to get the boilers working again before the 50 schools can be reopened, school officials said.

Union members, who had been working without a contract since Sept. 1, walked off the job Feb. 2, vowing not to return until they got a new one.

Famed 'pool shark' dies

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Edward "Fast Eddie" Pelkey, the famed pool shark portrayed by actor Paul Newman in the movie "The Hustler," has died of lung cancer.

Pelkey died Monday. His age was estimated by relatives at 85 to 88.

Although playing pool made him a legend, he used to say he hated the game.

"He hated the game itself and never let any of us kids anywhere near a pool hall," said his son, Jim, of Soquel. "But we were proud of him. He was a regular father. There was never any stigma attached to him in our family."

Pelkey made enough money on pool to support his family and help put his son through college. He earned a spot in "Ripley's Believe It Or Not" with a 1938 snooker game in San Jose's Garden City Billiards Hall.

After sinking a red ball off the break, he sank the rest of the reds between shots on black and pink balls to ace a Florida hustler 118-0. The game was over before his opponent had a shot.

"He couldn't shoot so good at the end," said Duke Knight, owner of The Wooden Cue billiard parlor.

Hawks split doubleheader at home

Recover from disaster to win second

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Name three opposites? Let's try — left and right; up and down; forward and backward. And Monday's first and second games between Howard and Wharton Colleges, of course.

Wharton banged out 22 basehits against five Hawk pitchers in a 23-2 rout in the opener but could get only one runner to third base against curveballer Bruce Hollander in the nightcap as the Hawks blanked the Pioneers 2-0.

As dusk settled over the HC ballpark, the Hawks had completed their first weekend homestand in 30 years with seven wins in eight outings. And although all six victories were important, none was better than Monday's finale against Wharton.

The setting was unlikely for a pitching duel after the beating Howard took in the first game. On the mound was the former Permian hurler who served up a grand slam home run in Sunday's first game between the two teams. Wharton batters were licking their chops in the visiting dugout.

But that was before they saw his variety of curveballs dance, drop, fall, spin and dip away from the plate.

When seven innings were in the scorebooks, Hollander had fashioned his team's first shutout of the season, given up just three hits — only one for extra bases — struck out seven and walked just one batter.

"I knew I had to redeem myself," said the freshman pitcher, looking back to Sunday's inauspicious debut. "Any time you throw strikes, you can keep people off the bases. And that way you let your defense do the work. There's no defense against the walk."

Hollander was happy to turn his team's performance around against the Pioneers. "It was a definite improvement. I don't know what was wrong with the first game. I guess we were embarrassed enough to get up for the second game."

Throwing 70 percent curves, he kept WC off-stride with tailing fastballs and even a couple of knucklers. All his stuff kept working even when his elbow tightened up in the fifth.

While Hollander was throwing a shutout at the Pioneers, Howard was struggling with Wharton's Joey Kopycinski. He spaced out seven hits in six innings but the three he gave up in the fourth proved fatal.

Bobby Behnisch opened the HC rally with an infield single and Kelly Smith followed with a line drive double in the right field alley. One out later, Doug Hatch rolled a single up the middle to score both runs, all the scoring Hollander would need on this brisk afternoon.

Smith — Hollander's batterymate — said his pitcher sparked a turnaround in events from the opener. "He was on. We had to do well after the first game. We realized we could be beat. I guess we got a little cocky."

The cocky ones in the second game were the Pioneers who anxious to bang Hollander's pitches around the ballpark. The pressure of a tight game made the righthander work harder. "We didn't get that many runs so it makes you work twice as hard. That's all I did was concentrate, even in the dugout when we were batting."

"This will help my ERA a lot," he added with a laugh.

Howard's team earned run average (ERA) in the first game suffered miserably as Wharton connected on every arm coach Bill Griffin sent to the mound.

Bobby Wooten got the show rolling with a three-run homer in the first inning and 2-RBI basehits by Shawn Mikeska and Kent Bozarth in the second helped up the score to 9-0. Jr. Lemons lashed a solo home run in the third and collected an RBI along with Bozarth and Ron Jones in the fourth when the score mounted to 14-1.

Howard scored a run on Behnisch's RBI single in the third and got another in the seventh when Jeff Hodges scored on an error.

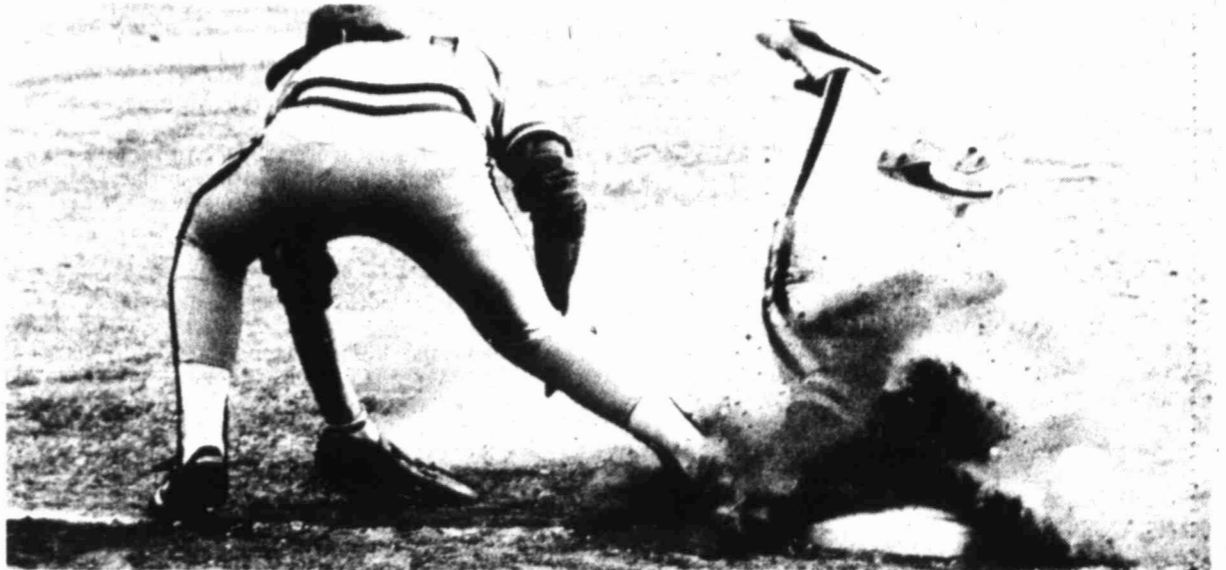

Meanwhile, the Pioneers piled up the stats, scoring four more times in the sixth and five runs in the seventh.

The Hawks managed just three hits off hard-throwing Chris Hutchingson. With a fastball clocked at high 90 mph in the stands, the Wharton pitcher fanned two and induced the Hawk batters into 11 ground-outs.

"That guy brought the ball in well," Smith said. "He just overpowered us. Early in the season, pitchers like him can do that. Later in the season, we get the bats on him. All he was doing was throwing fastballs."

That disaster was quickly forgotten after Hollander's gem. "Bruce really gave us a lift. We needed that," Smith said.

The Hawks are off until Thursday when Wharton returns for a 1 p.m. doubleheader.

IN YOUR FACE — Wharton College's Shawn Mikeska dives into third base in a cloud of dust to elude Blake Rosson's tag during the second inning of the opener Monday. Mikeska was ruled safe on a two-RBI double which he stretched to third. Howard recovered from a 23-2 drubbing in the opener of the doubleheader to win 2-0.

ten minutes remaining. Nate Givens was high point for the Hawks with 18, all of those from the floor. Howard's record stands at 20-9. ## Tabb: Sullivan boost to all sportswomen

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Track star Mary Decker Tabb, recognized as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete for 1982, sees her selection for the Sullivan Award as a boost for all women in sports. "The Sullivan is the most prestigious award anyone can win," Tabb said after Monday night's announcement at the Indianapolis Convention Center. "My career is so young still, and I haven't reached my potential. So winning this is a great honor. Men have dominated the Sullivan for so long, but that's because until recently there haven't really been many women in sports." Tabb, 24, also named the 1982 Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year, is the sixth woman to win the Sullivan Award, named for a founder of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union and has been presented annually since 1930 by the AAU. The first female winner was swimmer Ann Curtis in 1944. Others were diver Patricia McCormick in 1956, track star Wilma Rudolph in 1960 and swimmers Deborah Meyer in 1968 and Tracy Caulkins in 1978. "There are a lot of young girls out there in athletics," Tabb said. "They should be able to look up to someone, and I'm proud they can look up to me." Tabb, a native of Flemington, N.J., who now lives in Eugene, Ore., received 1,723 points in the nationwide voting by sports writers, members of the AAU and past winners. Second place, with 1,037 points, went to distance runner Alberto Salazar, and finishing third for the second time in three years was skier Phil Mahre with 979 points. The point totals for only the top three finishers were announced. "The only thing beyond this would be an Olympic medal," said Tabb, who broke seven world records and 10 American standards last year. "But it's gratifying just to be among a group of athletes like this." Other finalists — all world champions in their respective sports — were Tyrell Biggs (boxing), Scott Hamilton (figure skating), Mary T. Meagher (swimming), Greg Louganis (diving), Greg Gibson (wrestling), Tracie Ruiz (synchronized swimming), and Melanie Smith (equestrian). Tabb, 5-foot-6 and 103 pounds, set world records in the mile three times during the indoor season last year. She also topped world and American indoor records at 3,000 meters. Over a 41-day span starting June 5, Tabb set three world and six American records. The world marks were for 5,000 meters, the mile and 10,000 meters.

Boston earns win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

After beating St. John's and losing to Syracuse, a pair of Top Twenty teams, last week, Boston College may have had trouble getting psyched up for lowly Connecticut.

"Not the coaches," BC's Gary Williams said Monday night after the 19th-ranked Eagles' hard-earned 86-80 victory over Connecticut. "With players, no matter what you say, sometimes it becomes a problem. Maybe subconsciously that's a factor and we just have to remember that every win this time of year is a big win. It's not who you beat. It's how many you beat."

Boston College has beaten 19 opponents in 24 games and is 9-4 in the rugged Big East Conference. Connecticut, 9-15 and 2-11, lost for the 13th time in its last 15 games.

In the only other game involving a member of The Associated Press Top Twenty, No. 12 Wichita State needed a tip-in at the buzzer by Xavier McDaniel, the nation's leading rebounder, to nip New Mexico State 72-70.

At Newton, Mass., Jay Murphy scored 20 points and pulled down 13 rebounds as Boston College survived a first-half scare. Connecticut led 34-31 at halftime before dropping its seventh consecutive game — four in eight days to Top Twenty teams — as BC used two eight-point spurts and a 10-point streak in the second half to open a comfortable lead.

"We were coming off a very tough stretch," Williams said. "We had to get this win, and I thought we gutted it out. The end of the game was an indication of how tough it was to concentrate," he said, noting that the Eagles led 86-72 with 41 seconds to go and let Connecticut score the final eight points.

Trailing 36-33, Boston College launched its first eight-point rally on baskets by Martin Clark, John Garris, Dominic Pressley and Michael Adams. Connecticut closed the gap to 41-40, but Clark touched off another 8-0 burst with four free throws and baskets by Garris and Adams made it 49-40. With the lead at 51-46, Murphy's basket triggered a 10-point run.

"You can't lose your concentration against Boston College. They're coming in with fresh troops and they'll hurt you," Connecticut Coach Dom Perno said. "We did lose our concentration some and they got a 10-point spurt and we were struggling after that."

At Las Cruces, N.M., Wichita State upped its record to 21-3 overall and 13-1 in the Missouri Valley Conference, while ending New Mexico State's four-game winning streak.

McDaniel just beat the buzzer with the winning basket after Antoine Carr and Gilbert Wilburn missed shots in the final seven seconds. Carr led the Shockers with 27 points and eight rebounds.

New Mexico State led 70-63 with 4:24 left — the Aggies led by 10 in the first half — but missed free throws and turnovers allowed Wichita State to climb back to a 70-70 tie as McDaniel scored seven of his team's final nine points. A backcourt violation on New Mexico State's Gillis Williams with seven seconds left set up the winning basket.

Elsewhere:

—At Athens, Ga., Gerald Crosby scored 18 points and James Banks added 16 as Georgia took control early and rolled to an 80-65 victory over Florida, which dropped its 19th consecutive Southeastern Conference road game. In other SEC games, Leonard Mitchell's 25 points and 13 rebounds paced LSU over Mississippi State 86-73 at Baton Rouge, La., while at Oxford, Miss., Carlos Clark scored 15 points and Roger Steig added 11 — including a pair of free throws with 11 seconds remaining — to lift Mississippi past Alabama 56-52.

—At Norfolk, Va., Keith Thomas converted all 10 free throw attempts, including four in the last 42 seconds, as Old Dominion's Sun Belt Conference leaders held off South Florida 82-74.

—At New Orleans, substitute John Williams hit three free throws down the stretch and scored 15 points to lead Tulane to a 68-54 victory over Cincinnati and undisputed possession of second place in the Metro Conference.

—At Greenville, S.C., Willie White's 14 points helped Tennessee-Chattanooga edge upset-minded Furman 52-51 in a Southern Conference game. The winners are 20-3 overall and 13-3 in the conference.

—At Normal, Ill., Hank Cornley scored 20 points to lead Illinois State over West Texas State 74-59 in Missouri Valley action.

—At Los Angeles, Cedric Bailey's 20-foot jumper with three seconds remaining gave Southern Cal a 55-53 Pacific-10 victory over California.

—At South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame's John Paxson scored 24 points and the Irish held Joe Jakubick, the nation's leading scorer, to 19 points in crushing Akron 80-45. Jakubick came into the game averaging 28.3.

GLIDING FOR TWO — Texas A&M forward Claude Riley sails to the basket as several St. Mary's players watch. Action is from the first half of the Aggies game in G. Rollie White Coliseum last night.

TCU's Killer Frogs take close win over Baylor

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer

Texas Christian Coach Jim Killingsworth compared the first half of the Horned Frogs' game against Baylor to the bus ride between Fort Worth and Waco.

"We chugged and sputtered along and stunk like the fumes on that bus," he said.

The second half was a different story. Darrell Browder scored 12 of his game-high 16 points in the second stanza as TCU overcame a 13-point halftime deficit to defeat Baylor 51-47 in Southwest Conference action Monday night.

The win kept the Horned Frogs, now 9-5 in SWC play and 18-7 for the year, in third place in the conference race. Baylor, which began the year with its hottest start since 1945, dropped to 2-11 and 10-14.

In another game involving an SWC team, Texas

A&M took off in the second half to post a 96-76 win over St. Mary's at College Station. The loss snapped a 10-game winning streak for the Rattlers, who had not lost since Jan. 15.

"In the second half we got back to our bread and butter defense," said TCU's Doug Arnold. "In the second half we reacted fast as compared to slow reaction in the first half. At halftime, they must have thought the game was over."

The Bears dominated the first half, building the 13-point lead behind the scoring of James Stern, who finished with 13 to lead Baylor.

Baylor Coach Jim Haller said he was pleased with his team's performance in the first half.

"The difference in the game was that we didn't hit our shots in the second half that allowed us to apply our press," Haller said. "We had four turnovers in the first half compared to TCU's 14, but you can't press when you don't make a basket."

The Horned Frogs came out storming after the intermission, and finally grabbed the lead at 36-34 when Dennis Nutt hit an 18-footer from the corner.

Nutt, who finished with eight points, gave TCU the lead for good at 38-37 with a driving layup.

The Bears came within one at 40-39 when Ozell Hall, who led all rebounders with 11, hit two free throws. But then Baylor went cold and failed to score during the next five minutes as TCU opened up its lead.

Freshman guards Doug Lee and Kenny Brown led the Aggie charge in the second half that broke open a tight game.

Down 45-43 at halftime, St. Mary's scored on three straight baskets to open the second half and had cut A&M's lead to 51-48 when Lee and Brown went to work — earning the praise of Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf.

"I thought Kenny Brown and Doug Lee, our two freshman guards, put on a pretty good show tonight," Metcalf said. "They both have good offensive ability, they're probably the best two shooters, at least with that range, on the squad or maybe that we've had here."

Lee, with 18 points, and Brown, with 17, were among six Aggies in double figures. Tyren Nauils led A&M with 20 points while Claude Riley had 13, Roy Jones had 12 and Lowell McHenry had 10.

Jai Mahone led St. Mary's with 20 points while Gary Jaspard had 19 and Ricky Hooker had 18.

The Aggies ran their season record to 14-12. A&M is 7-5 in Southwest Conference play. St. Mary's dropped to 21-6 overall.

Whatever happened to balanced budget

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Even when all the explanations are listened to, it was an amazingly poor job of calculating two years ago that led those entering the White House to promise a balanced budget for fiscal 1984.

By most current estimates, including those who originally made the error, the deficit will be short of the balance bar by something on the order of $200 billion, an amount bigger than the budget itself for 1970.

It is a miscalculation that, were it to have occurred at General Motors or IBM, might have cost the chairman, president and treasurer their jobs, and probably the jobs of a few thousand other employees too.

And were a miscalculation of relative proportions to have been made in a household budget, the failure probably would have cost the erring spouse any further use of the checkbook.

The administration has survived it all, however, even if the economy hasn't, and one of the ways in which it survives is to borrow unprecedented amounts of money, such as $180 billion in the current fiscal year.

U.S. to buy troubled town's homes

TIMES BEACH, Mo. (AP) — The federal government will offer to buy all the homes in this St. Louis suburb so residents can escape the perils of dioxin, government sources confirmed today.

Details of the buy-out were to be announced to residents by Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Anne Burford, formerly Anne Gorsuch, together with results of the latest round of dioxin testing in the eastern Missouri community.

Sources in Washington, speaking only if they were not identified, said residents would be paid the value of their homes before news of dioxin contamination came out last year and before flooding struck the town in December.

The buy-out was to proceed as quickly as details could be arranged, the sources said. No decision had been reached on what to do with the poisoned property once it is in the hands of the federal government.

"This is the fairest course to the people of Times Beach, and ultimately for the taxpayers, said Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., commenting on reports of the buy-out.

Two St. Louis newspapers, quoting "sources close to the EPA," also reported in today's editions that the officials would announce a federal buy-out of the entire town. While no date was set for the buy-out, it was to be completed as soon as possible, the newspapers reported.

EPA "superfund" chief William N. Hedeman on Monday confirmed that "raw data" from the latest tests indicated contamination by dioxin at levels up to 300 parts per billion, 300 times what the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta considers safe.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond met Monday behind closed doors at a motel with about a dozen Times Beach residents in nearby Eureka. He told them the EPA would announce the test results at a meeting attended by Lee M. Thomas, head of a federal cleanup task force, and Dr. Vernon Houk, a health expert with the CDC.

About 75 additional townspeople gathered outside the motel and chanted for a federal buy-out of their homes.

"We're not just staying here because we're hard-headed and want to be here," Evelyn Zufall said at a town meeting that preceded the governor's visit. "We're just protecting our homes. When I get that check into my little hot hands, I'll leave."

Unpaved roads in Times Beach were sprayed more than a decade ago with waste oil containing dioxin as a dust control measure.

Another round of soil samples was taken last month in Times Beach following extensive flooding of the community by the Meramec River in December. Testing done before the floods showed levels of dioxin, a highly toxic chemical, at just over 100 parts per billion in places.

The earlier tests along the streets and in yards were taken last November at depths of only a few inches. The second round of tests was taken at much deeper levels, with borings done mainly through asphalt into roadbeds.

Thomas said health safety issues and options for residents of Times Beach, the home of 2,400 residents before December's floods, would be discussed at the EPA briefing.

Dioxins are byproducts of several chemical manufacturing processes, including the manufacture of some herbicides.
