Cold front spawns rain

Two tornadoes touch down in West Texas

From staff and wire reports

A quick-moving cold front which spawned two tornadoes in West Texas yesterday ended a spring-like week of balmy, dry weather for Big Spring residents who awoke Friday morning to nippy temperatures and brief showers.

The National Weather Service is forecasting more rain and cooler temperatures for tonight, with lows expected to be in the middle 30s. Temperatures should warm over the weekend, but winds will remain gusty, the weather service said.

Tornado watches and warnings were issued Thursday in the Panhandle, South Plains and Northwestern regions of Texas while at least three twisters touched down but caused only minor damage.

Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd said a tornado was reported to officials about 15 miles southwest of Tyler at 6:15 p.m. Some flooding occurred along Smith County roads, he said, but no problems were reported.

In the Panhandle, a tornado touched down in the Donley County town of Howardwick, flattened the Oasis Bar and injured one man.

A tornado also touched down east of Abilene near Rising Star about 5:30 p.m. Thursday, destroying a barn and several small, farm-related structures, the Eastland County Sheriff's Department said.

No injuries were reported. Showers and thunderstorms developed throughout Southeast Texas and spread north into North Central sections and the eastern Panhandle.

The National Weather Service said the severe weather was the result of a low pressure system that developed west of Texas and moved to the east.

Strong winds along the Texas Coast also prompted small craft advisories from Port Arthur to Port O'Connor and gale warnings from Port O'Connor to Brownsville.

Skies were partly cloudy over eastern portions of the state, parts of South Texas and west of the Pecos River. The rest of the state was fair.

Temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s across Texas in the afternoon.

The forecast called for continued thunderstorm activity on Friday with a few severe storms possible. Temperatures will be slightly cooler.

Jobless rate holds steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment held even at 10.4 percent in February as large numbers of jobless Americans awaited further signals of improved hiring prospects before resuming their search of work, the government reported today.

The unchanged unemployment rate resumed an 18-month pattern of rising or stand-still joblessness. That trend had been interrupted only by last month's healthy decline.

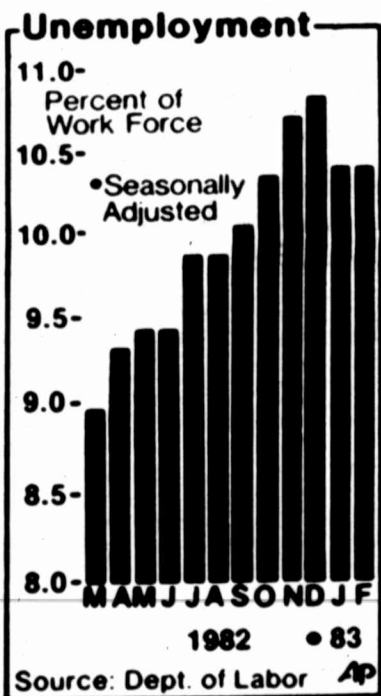

When the full-employment, 17-million-member U.S. military work force was included, February's overall unemployment rate also held steady at 10.2 percent, the Labor Department said.

Government statisticians said that, in interpreting the health of the civilian labor market, emphasis should be given to what happened in both January and February. They noted that the 0.4 percentage point drop in January might have been exaggerated by the Bureau of Labor Statistics' seasonal adjustment process.

Martin S. Feldstein, chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, said in a telephone interview that the February figures presented "mixed news" and would be "viewed with caution."

He noted that average weekly working hours declined last month, but said he hoped there would be improvement in total employment in March.

White House spokesman Peter

Roussel said, "The overall thrust of the economy is good. Despite some ups and downs on the road to recovery, we believe the administration has laid a solid foundation for permanent reduction in unemployment and are confident this will occur."

In testimony prepared for the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, noted that "in the two months between December and February, payroll jobs rose by 150,000."

Ms. Norwood said there was likely no further decline in civilian unemployment because businesses were assessing prospects for an

Cosden gas supply back

The unleaded gasoline supply is back on the dock after a storage tank fire Wednesday night briefly interrupted shipping operations at the Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. refinery. Cosden officials say they have not determined what caused the seven-hour blaze.

"We're sure it was a mechanical failure," said plant supervisor Wally Whittington, "but we haven't been able to pinpoint it. The firewalls (which surround each tank) are still full of water. We won't be able to tell much."

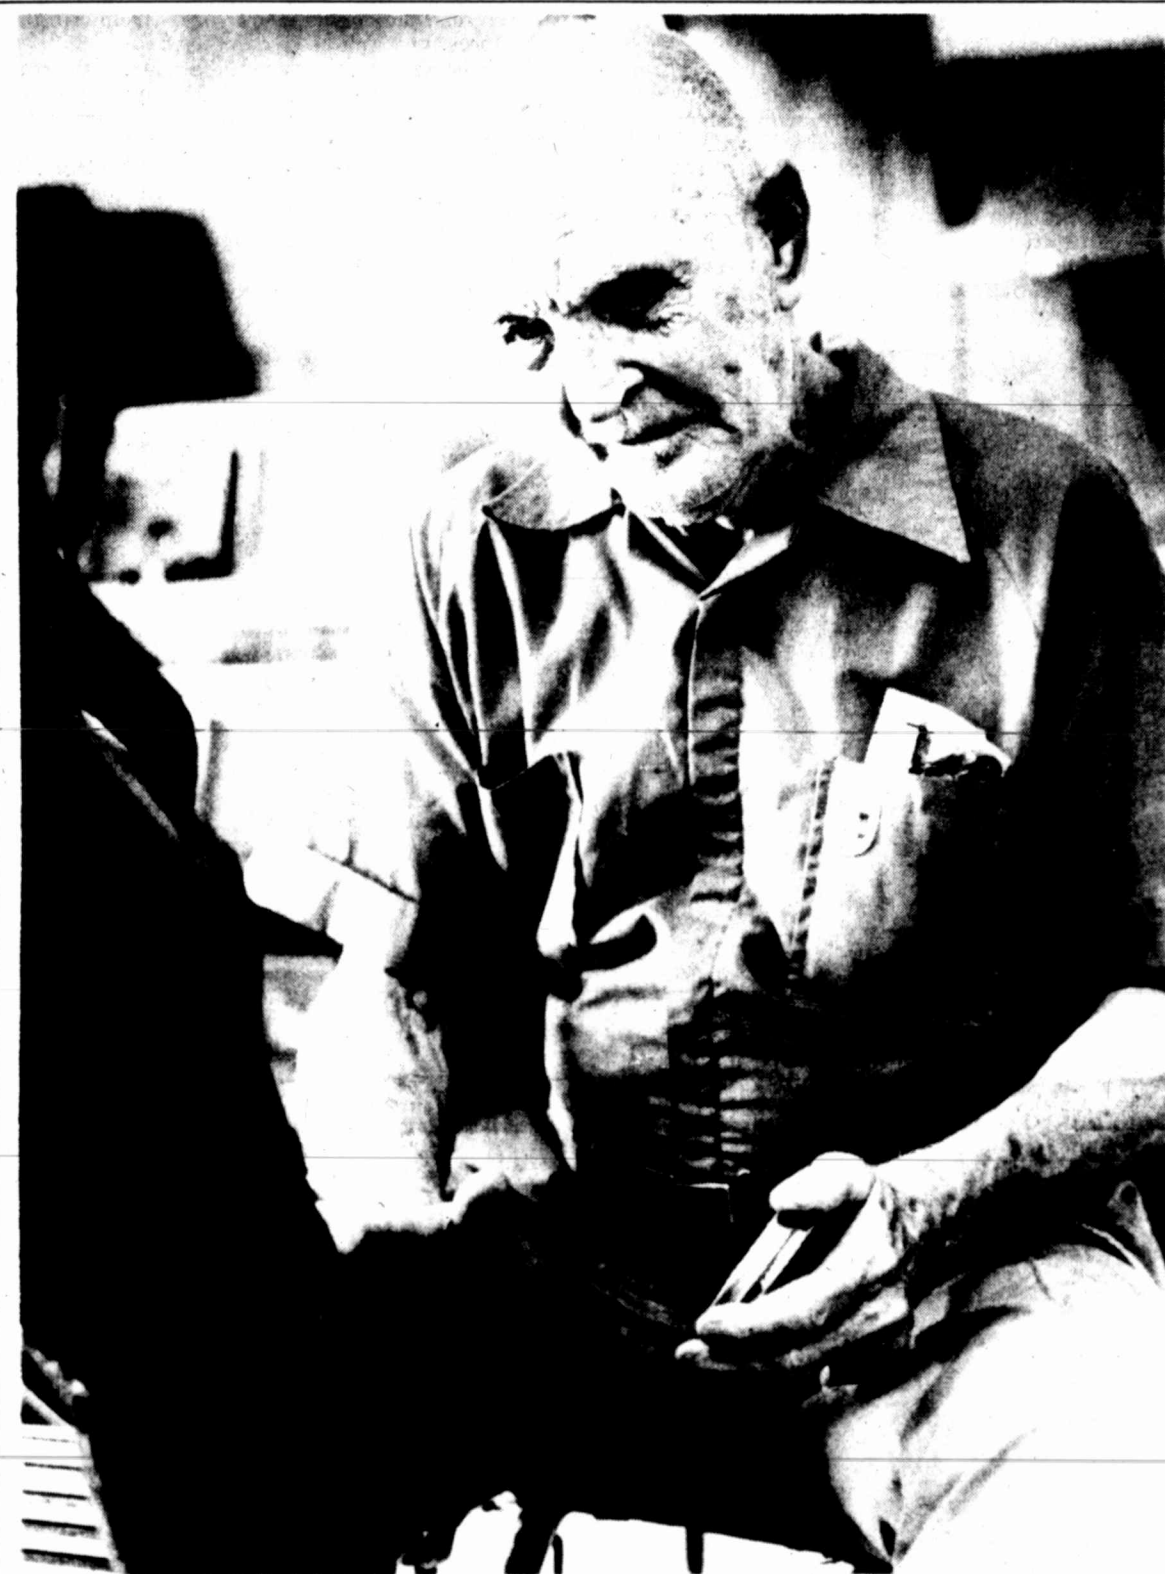

Whittington said the refinery still has no damage estimates. "All we did yesterday was get the firefighting equipment back in shape and get the gas back on the dock," he said.

Unleaded gasoline was back in supply Thursday afternoon, Whittington said.

No one was injured in the blaze which broke out in a storage tank at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and spread to a second tank before being extinguished at 5:30 a.m. Thursday.

Cosden firefighters, the Big Spring Fire Department and units from Howard County responded to the fire. Cosden safety supervisor Jimmie Wood said two high pressure pump trucks from Halliburton Services in Big Spring were also used.

"We needed to make sure we had a good supply of water," he said. "We also got some foam from suppliers in Odessa and Abilene. We had enough foam, but we wanted to play it safe."

ONE OF BIG SPRING'S LAST SHOESHINE MEN ...Charlie Boland shows his skills at the Downtowner Barber Shop

The shining times

Big Spring shoeshiners carry on

By RICHARD HORN Staff Writer

They were once a fixture in most of America's barbershops, as much a part of that scene as the chair and the barber pole and the chatter. But shoeshine men — or "shine boys" as they call each other at no matter what age — are vanishing from the American scene.

Except maybe in Big Spring, where two shoeshiners have practiced their craft for years and say they aren't ready to pack up their brushes and polish.

There's Willie Johnson at the Roffler Hair Center in Highland Mall. He says he's three score 12 (that's age 72), doesn't like talking about his craft and insisted that his picture not be taken.

And there's Charlie Boland, age 79, at the Downtowner Barbershop at 302 Scurry. He's legally blind, used to sell newspapers in Dallas and was a drummer in dance bands before shining shoes.

These are the last two shoeshiners in town, but both remember when downtown Big Spring had plenty of them with plenty of work to do.

"Times got hard," Willie says. "A lot of them quit. It used to keep 'em busy all day long."

When asked why the shine business came upon such hard times, Willie pointed at the tennis shoes worn by a barbershop customer.

"I hate 'em," he said. "They've knocked me clean out."

He says he started shining shoes in 1929. Before that, he worked on a farm in Dawson County.

"There used to be a big demand for shoe shining," he said, "but now there just aren't as many there once were. Nah, there's not a lot of future in it."

Charlie is no less pessimistic about the shoeshine trade in general, but he says his business is fine for him.

Gem and Mineral Show opens

The 14th Annual Gem and Mineral Show in Big Spring begins tomorrow at 9 a.m. in the Dora Roberts exhibition building at the county fairgrounds. Tickets are $2. Admission is free for those 11 years old and under.

The show, sponsored by the 60-member Big Spring Prospectors' Club, features about 75 exhibits to entertain and educate visitors in lapidary, a phase of earth science.

Cash prizes of $150 and $50 will be awarded at 6 p.m. Sunday and there also will be grab bags and hourly door prizes. A snack bar will be available for the 2,000 to 3,000 people expected to attend the show.

One display is a United States map fashioned by club members and composed of various minerals polished and shaped in the form of the 50 states.

Social highlights of the show are a potluck supper tonight for club members and exhibitors, the annual Rollin' Rock Club breakfast at Wayne Henry's Steak House on Sunday and an after-show buffet supper at La Posada at 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Flying high?

Q. How much does it cost taxpayers for President Reagan to fly to his ranch in California?

A. $41,630. Assuming it takes seven hours to fly from Washington, D.C. to California, the cost of Air Force One is $5,566 an hour or $38,962. If he uses a marine helicopter to get away from the White House and to his ranch at $1,334 an hour, that's $2,668.

Calendar: Dance fete

TODAY

The senior citizens' dance will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Big Spring Industrial Park building #487. Guests are welcome.

SATURDAY

The St. Vincent de Paul Society of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church will hold a fashion show at the parish hall at 2 p.m. Donation tickets are $2.50. The church also will have a benefit car wash from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Howard County Youth Horsemen Club will hold its first playday at 2 p.m. at the club arena. Registration is at 1 p.m. There will be a potluck supper afterwards.

The Howard County Library will show four children's films from 2-3 p.m.: "Niok, Orphaned Baby Elephant," "The Little Train," "Bored of Education" and "Mother Goose Stories."

Tops on TV: New shows

Two new shows premiere tonight on channel 5 at 7:30 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. The first, "At Ease," is a military comedy set at Camp Tar Creek in Texas. "The Renegades" follows with seven former gang leaders fighting crime to clear their records. Saturday at 8:10 p.m. on channel 5 is Pete Seeger and Arlo Guthrie in concert.

A foolproof diet

Staple your stomach and throw up

AUSTIN (AP) — Dee Bennett tried everything — Weight Watchers, the Stillman diet, the Scarsdale diet — nothing worked. In March 1982, the 50-year-old Internal Revenue Service clerk stood 5-foot-2 and weighed 376 pounds.

Since her stomach bypass surgery (commonly referred to as stomach stapling) last March, Dee has lost more than 125 pounds.

That's skinny when you think of being able to sit on a regular little stool to have your picture taken. Or in an ordinary movie theater seat without having it cut into your sides. Or just walking and talking at the same time. All those ordinary activities were out of the question for Dee until recently.

"Those diets worked as long as I stayed on them," Dee says. "but I can't stay on any diet. It's not in my make-up. I like food too much. These staples are in me forever, and I love it. It takes (the weight problem) out of my hands. I didn't want the responsibility, I guess," she says candidly.

Dee Bennett wasn't always heavy. As a child, she had no weight problem. "My mother controlled my diet," she says. "I used to be allergic to wheat products, so my mother prepared all my meals for me. Instead of cake on my birthday I got Rye Crisp with some icing on top," she groans.

"I was 125 (pounds) when I got married 28 years ago, and as soon as I had a kitchen of my own I went wild! I baked all those cakes and breads that I couldn't eat before. I gained 10 pounds the first week we were married and kept on going."

Stomach stapling was a last resort. At first the weight came off rapidly and Dee was ecstatic. "The results were instantaneous — I didn't get discouraged like I did on all those diets." But there came a crisis point. She lost 99½ pounds and became terribly depressed. "I felt sort of like my nerve endings were exposed. I guess I felt like the food and fat were insulating me," she says. She passed the 100-pound mark, and the crisis passed. It was as if losing 100 pounds meant losing a person buried within herself.

The new Dee Bennett, she says, is a happier person. She gets a thrill just from seeing herself without all that padding.

"Look! I've got a neck!" she proclaims with glee. "I've gone down from a size 50 to a 26½, and my hips went from 79 to around 59." But the changes are deeper than appearance alone.

"My husband says he sees changes, but they're subtle. I'm not so angry any more. I used to joke a lot, but really I was angry at myself. Maybe I'm more outgoing, too. Absolute strangers will stop and talk with me now — they notice me. If they noticed me before, they'd pretended not to."

"And I get so many compliments. Sometimes I feel a little shy, having all this attention paid to me. And for the first time in years I enjoyed Christmas. I was able to move around. I'm not so sedentary any more. For some reason, I didn't get panic attacks (from crowds) in the stores the way I used to, either."

Dee has become more aware of the role food plays in society. The surgery left her with only a tiny opening in her stomach through which food passes, so now she's rarely hungry.

"But do you notice how people say, 'I'll meet you after dinner?' or 'How about coming over for dessert and coffee?' Food is really a social thing. It amuses me now to see people stuff themselves. I think, 'If they only knew where it's going.'"

But Dee's children are obese, also. Don't they see where it's leading?

125 POUNDS LIGHTER — Dee Bennett, 50, of Austin is shown in two views, the one at left when she weighed 376 pounds, and the one at right, when she had lost over a hundred pounds after stomach bypass surgery.

"Sure they do," she responds, "but they're just like me — they can't keep on a diet either. My 23-year-old girl is thinking about getting her stomach stapled, too. It'll be her decision if she does."

Dee's goal is to be down to 125 pounds again. But first it's down to 200, then 150. She's losing weight more slowly now, but she's not losing her motivation.

Unemployment

economic turnaround before recalling laid-off workers.

Altogether, 11.5 million people were unemployed last month, an increase of 44,000 over January that bureau analyst Deborah Klein called "negligible."

Total employment also held relatively steady at 99.1 million.

Despite burgeoning signs of an economic recovery, only 5,000 people re-entered the labor force, according to the Census Bureau's survey of some 60,000 U.S. households.

Reagan and his top economic advisers, while heartened by the 0.4 percentage point drop in civilian unemployment from December to January, have said they are prepared for further rises in that crucial jobless figure.

"There may be a month where it (the unemployment rate) might level off or come up, say a little above the 10.4," the president said last month. "I don't think that you will see it come above the high mark of 10.8" reached in December. That figure represented the highest joblessness since the Great Depression.

In advance of the release of February's jobless figures, several private analysts pointed to the growing signs of a business recovery, noting the robust 3.6 percent gain in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators in January, the largest monthly rise since July 1950.

But these same analysts cautioned that the return to the labor force of large numbers of Americans seeking work could put pressure on an economy that has not yet created new jobs or caused the rehiring of people laid off during the 18-month recession.

Ms. Klein agreed with that assessment, saying "I guess we should wait to see another month's figures. If people perceive there are jobs out there and re-enter the labor force, that (heightened competition for work) could slow the growth of employment."

A separate bureau survey showed that total payroll employment declined by 180,000 in February, following a substantial 330,000 gain in January, producing the net 150,000 rise over the period. Bureau analysts had said earlier that unseasonably warm weather in January had swelled total employment in such areas of the economy as construction, a seasonal variation that exaggerated the true employment picture.

Camera club opens shutter

The Crossroads Camera Club has scheduled a "get acquainted" open house for noon Saturday at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office.

"We've shown our work in the show at the Big Spring Mall, now we want people to see our equipment and hear our plans," said Lilia Hinojos, club president.

Ms. Hinojos' color photo "Where To Now," showing three birds perched on a yucca plant, was voted People's Choice at the club's recent show at the mall.

Gifts donated by several area merchants will be given away during the afternoon. Plans for field

"I still get lots of people in here," he said. "I've doubled my business here since I started."

"There used to be nine or 10 barbershops in the downtown area. But then, oh about 15, 20 years ago the barbershops started moving out. Shine boys couldn't stay in business because they could only keep half of what they made," he said.

"Of course, a lot of them just weren't much good. You can tell the difference between a real shine boy and one that's doing it just to do something. Willie, he's a real shine boy," he said.

Charlie came from Dallas in 1947 where he sold the Dallas Times Herald, Dallas Dispatch and Dallas Journal at newsstands.

"The (Texas) commission for the blind brought me out here to work at a newsstand. I also was a janitor at the police station before I retired and started shining."

He took his place in the Downtowner 8½ years ago.

"I learned to shine shoes in the '20s from this old boy in South Texas. It's something I can still do, and I plan on doing it until I can't stand up," he said.

Charlie says his 20 percent vision from childhood eye problems doesn't bother his skills or business.

"I could shine a pair of shoes blindfolded," he says. "I may need you to help me with the colors, but a lot of people who can see fine have trouble with colors, too."

"You can feel when the shoe is shined. It's a lot slicker than when you started," he said.

Californians bailing out after storm

By the Associated Press
Thousands of Californians returned to their flooded homes to begin bailing water or shoveling mud as skies cleared after a storm that caused $160 million in damage and left eight counties disaster areas.

But in Alviso, a low-lying San Jose neighborhood transformed into a 6-foot-deep lake, 1,700 people may not be able to return home for up to 10 days, officials said Thursday.

And as the season's most powerful storm moved east, the National Weather Service warned "there's another just around the corner."

The new storm should move into northern California late Saturday or early Sunday, then travel south, said forecaster Dan Cooper.

"It shouldn't be nearly as strong" as the previous storms, he said. "If I am wrong, we're in trouble because the ground is still very saturated."

Seventeen people died and more than 40 were injured in the vicious onslaught that began last Friday. More than 10,700 people were forced from their homes, 60 houses and businesses were destroyed and 1,685 damaged, the state Office of Emergency Services reported late Thursday.

As Thursday's storm drifted east, heavy snow fell over parts of Arizona, southern Nevada and western Utah. Nine inches of snow covered Utah 12 at Bryce Canyon and highways east of Monticello were closed. Flagstaff, Ariz., got half a foot of snow.

Up to 9 feet of fresh snow in the past week in the Sierra Nevada left about 30 feet on the ground near Squaw Valley, Calif.

Northern Californians adopted resourceful strategies for coping as rains let up: a rancher rented boats to get feed to cattle stranded on a flooded field south of Chico, and pack mules carried supplies to 20 people in a Monterey County canyon hit by mudslides and flooding.

Elsewhere in the country, Kansas City, Mo., enjoyed record 79-degree weather Thursday, and Milwaukee saw its earliest 72 degree-day on record.

Tornado watches were issued Thursday in the Texas Panhandle as at least two twisters touched down, but caused only minor damage.

President Reagan inspected some of the storm-damaged areas of California on Thursday as he flew by helicopter to Los Angeles from his ranch near Santa Barbara. A spokesman said he would expedite Gov. George Deukmejian's request to make federal aid available.

"I'm grateful for the president's promise for swift action," Deukmejian said. Earlier, the governor declared states of emergency in eight counties.

Sheriff's deputies called off a search Thursday night for Angel Garcia Sr., missing after his rowboat overturned in the rain-swollen San Gabriel River near the City of Industry, 18 miles east of downtown Los Angeles.

Authorities were able to rescue Garcia's 11-year-old son Angel Jr., and a nephew, 13-year-old Francisco Reyes, said Deputy Kevin Carney.

WELCOME TO MUDVILLE — Denver Coleman, owner of the Mudflat Pottery in flooded Alviso district of San Jose, found himself advertising for help on Thursday. The entire town was evacuated following the latest storm through the state.

OPEC reaches 'understanding'

LONDON (AP) — Eight OPEC oil ministers meeting in London reached an "understanding" on prices and production today, and planned to convene a full meeting of the 13-nation cartel here Monday, the United Arab Emirates minister said.

No details were available immediately on the reported agreement, hammered out in emergency talks in London by the eight ministers. Any decision by the eight would have to be ratified by the full membership of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Iran, the spoiler in previous OPEC efforts to forestall an all-out price war for the shrinking world market, was not among the eight countries meeting

"On the two issues (prices and production), we reached an understanding and there are encouraging signs that there will be an agreement," said United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Mana Saeed Oteiba as he left the adjourned talks at the Intercontinental Hotel.

"I am optimistic now, more than in the morning," said Oteiba, who earlier had predicted there was only a 50-50 chance of an agreement. "We'll meet again Monday afternoon. Meanwhile, we have invited the rest of our colleagues who are not here to join us. I don't think any of them will object to coming."

Oteiba said it had not been determined whether Monday's session would be a formal "extraordinary" OPEC meeting, necessary to set new policies.

"It is not until we meet on Monday and decide on whether we go for an extraordinary meeting or not," he told reporters.

EPA head Burford ready for disclosure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anne M. Burford, trying to restore public confidence in the Environmental Protection Agency, is asking President Reagan to give congressional investigators full access to agency documents, her aides say.

One close aide said Thursday night that Mrs. Burford, the EPA administrator, has repeatedly urged the White House to go further than it has in letting lawmakers look at all documents. She has so far been rebuffed, aides said.

"The key is to restore confidence in the programs. As long as there is a perception by the public and Congress that some information is being withheld, that is going to be impossible to do," said one aide, who like the others asked for anonymity. Mrs. Burford believes the EPA controversy can only be solved by giving congressmen complete access to documents, so long as they keep sensitive material confidential, the aides said.

They said she blames the president's position on "poor guidance," primarily from the Justice Department.

Anson Franklin, the assistant White House press secretary traveling with Reagan in California, said there would be no comment on those remarks.

In a related development, The New York Times reported that Deputy Attorney General Edward C. Schmults told Mrs. Burford Thursday night that the Justice Department would no longer represent her or the agency in matters related to congressional subpoenas. The report quoted unnamed administration officials.

An administration official told the newspaper the Justice Department could no longer represent EPA officials because the president had ordered the department to investigate charges of agency mismanagement.

Therefore, representing Mrs. Burford, who is under a contempt of Congress citation for withholding documents at Reagan's request, would represent a conflict of interest.

An EPA official said Mrs. Burford was extremely angry about and decision, and felt that the White House and Justice Department were leaving her "high and dry" to defend herself, the Times said.

Mrs. Burford's aides' disclosures came on the same day that Sen. Rudy Boschwitz and Rep. Vin Weber, both Minnesota Republicans, urged Reagan to replace Mrs. Burford with a "politically independent person of nationally recognized scientific qualifications."

A day earlier, White House Chief of Staff James Baker said "at the present time" there were no plans to dismiss the EPA chief.

The White House on Wednesday said all the congressional panels could have access to the 70 or so disputed documents on the same terms it worked out with Rep. Elliot Levitas, D-Ga., chairman of a Public Works subcommittee. Levitas had subpoenaed 700,000 pages of documents dealing with cleaning up the nation's toxic chemical waste dumps.

Under the so-called Levitas agreement, subcommittee members can get edited summaries of documents whose disclosure might jeopardize legal cases against alleged polluters.

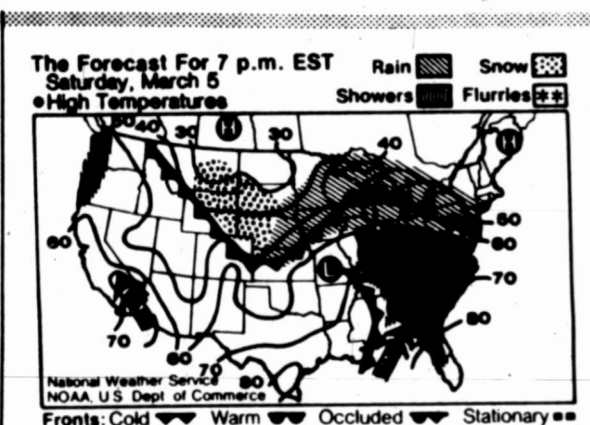

If subcommittee members are not satisfied, they may inspect the complete originals, but they may not make copies. "She (Mrs. Burford) feels he (the president) should go further than that and waive the privilege," an aide said. "He should not just give access but permit the committees to review and make copies so long as it is done under rules of confidentiality."

Meanwhile, Levitas said there may be questioning at his subcommittee today to determine if Rita Lavelle, a fired EPA assistant administrator, may have committed perjury.

And Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., chairman of one House panel probing EPA, scheduled a news conference today to talk about possible criminal acts at the agency.

Justice Department officials stood by all day Thursday to meet with Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who said he has received "sworn, direct testimony" of possible wrongdoing at the agency.

Thunderstorms cover broad area of Texas

By the Associated Press
Showers and thunderstorms covered a broad area of Texas from San Antonio northward into Oklahoma early today and a flash flood watch was posted for the eastern third of North Texas.

The National Weather Service posted the watch because of saturated ground and the prospect of additional heavy rainfall. The watch area was generally east of a line from Sherman to Crockett.

Temperatures remained in the 60s and 70s throughout much of the eastern half of the state, while readings in the 40s and 50s dominated the western half.

Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 37 at Marfa to 72 at Brownsville.

Winds were from the south and southeast at 10 to 20 mph over the eastern two-thirds of Texas, while southerly and southwesterly winds at 10 to 15 mph were reported in West Texas.

The forecast called for scattered showers and thunderstorms into tonight. Severe storms were possible in South, North Central and Northeast Texas.

West Texas — Widely scattered thundershowers into tonight. Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday. Highs 62 Panhandle to near 80 Big Bend valleys. Lows 35 Panhandle to 45 south. Highs Saturday 55 Panhandle to near 70 Big Bend valleys.

Pope Nicaragua-bound

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Pope John Paul II left Costa Rica today for Nicaragua, where he will confront a growing rift between the leftist government and the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

The pontiff's specially outfitted jetliner took off from Juan Santamaria International Airport about 8:30 a.m. (9:30 a.m. EST) and was due to arrive at Managua's Sandino International Airport after a flight of less than one hour.

John Paul, who began his eight-day tour Wednesday, spent the first two days of his eight-country trip in peaceful Costa Rica. During the visit, he deplored the violence that has claimed some 100,000 victims in five years in other Central American countries on his schedule.

But his calls for peace and harmony coincided with a grim reminder of the region's conflicts — the Guatemalan government's execution Thursday of six convicted terrorists despite a papal plea for mercy.

A Vatican spokesman said the pope, who officially requested clemency, was "deeply saddened." He said further comment would await an explanation from Guatemala, where John Paul will spend Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights.

Guatemalan President Efraim Rios Montt, a born-again evangelical Protestant who is to meet with the pope Monday, refused to halt the firing-squad executions of the five Guatemalans and one Honduran. In response, the Vatican warned of "serious repercussions ... at the world and national level."

On Thursday, hundreds of thousands of Costa Ricans expressed their love for the pope at an open

Mass, a motorcade through downtown San Jose, meetings with members of the clergy, and a rousing evening gathering with 40,000 young people.

Each time, the pope renewed a call for peace and respect for human dignity.

"What can I tell you of the horrors and violence?" he asked the young people. "You have the grave responsibility of breaking the chain of hatred that generates hatred, of violence that generates violence. You must create a world better than that of your predecessors."

Fire chief praises workers

Dear Editor,

I want to express my appreciation to the members of the Big Spring Fire Department, Cosden Refinery, and area volunteers that worked so diligently throughout the night to extinguish the tank fire at Cosden Oil and Chemical Company.

I was very pleased with the professional manner that all in attendance of the fire conducted themselves. Their unflinching, enthusiastic attitude displayed and technique demonstrated extinguishing the blaze made this the easiest and most controlled fire of any that have occurred at Cosden.

Recognition must also be given to area law enforcement agencies who worked all night securing the fire scene and directing traffic.

I commend all for a job well done.

Sincerely,

JIM RYALS
Fire Chief

Farmers need several degrees

Dear Editor,

I enjoyed the section in the Sunday issue of the Herald on farming in Howard County. It was interesting to note that the farmers who had college degrees gave their fathers credit for teaching them to farm.

One thing you failed to do was to give the women any recognition. Those women have done a great deal to keep food on the table and the family cared for. The women of Howard County own a large share of the farms, but most of them do as I do and trust the operator to do the farming. The following explains why.

I have received a lot of mail lately on the new farm P.I.K. program set by the government. I find it to be as complicated as the not-so-simple income tax form to figure out.

There is a list of definitions of terms from A. through H., concluding with "all other words and phrases shall have meanings assigned to them in the regulations governing reconstitution of farms which are found at CFR 719," (whatever that is).

Paragraph 3 on PIK quantity can well compete with the confusion one can expect from government forms. It goes like this, quote:

"If the result of multiplying the acres designed in paragraph 1b of contract times the percent specified in paragraph 3B of the contract times the farm yield differs from the quantity shown in 3B of the contract, the quantity which shall be applicable for the purpose of the contract and this appendix shall be the result of multiplying the acres designated in paragraph 1B of the contract times the percent specified in 3B of the contract times the farm yield." End of paragraph.

There are 18 such paragraphs on the 10 pages of the document and by the time they reached the last paragraph they were revising paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, or parts of them.

Ask any farmer and he will not admit he does not understand all of it, PIK business, for fear he might be misjudged. We women who are farm owners are smart enough to let the farmer figure it out.

If you plan on farming you will need degrees in accounting, law, business management, and you will let Papa and Mamma teach you how to farm.

Real characters

After 11 years, the Korean War ended Monday.

Bloody and tragic, the war hopefully brought a nation of age. As in all wars, no one won. All sides were losers.

And a generation grew up with the war.

On millions of television sets throughout America, footage of real people dying on the six o'clock news was followed later in the evening by the desperate antics of a group of surgeons in a war they didn't want, had nothing to do with starting and wanted out of as quickly as possible.

My generation missed the Vietnam War by a year. We were too young to be drafted in the last official callup, and the re-institution of the draft missed us by about the same margin.

For us, M-A-S-H was our war.

WE GREW to love the family of strange, pressured characters in the 407th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital. We could identify with their confusion. And in every character on the show, we saw a little of ourselves or someone we knew.

Hawkeye Pierce embodied many of the characteristics we wished we had. Gentle, caring, with an eye for (and a way with) the women, the insanity of his situation led him to do funny things. And he clung to his ideal of the sanctity of life in a daily morass of dead and dying soldiers whom he patched up and sent back to kill again or be killed.

Trapper John McEntire was much the same as Hawkeye, but he had more of rough edges, we knew we possessed. He wasn't perfect, but he tried.

B.J. Hunnicut came along at a time when we were growing older, more aware of our families' importance or perhaps contemplating starting a family of our own. He wanted nothing more than to return home to see his family — something in our minds, had we been there with him.

Thanks, M-A-S-H. Let's hope the lessons weren't wasted.

a position of command, something he didn't ask for and had difficulty accepting. He worked with friends and people he admired for their talent, and it was hard for him to command them. He was the everyman "nice guy" that we liked to think we would have been.

Col. Sherman Potter was the older man in a young man's place. We identified with him as the father-figure we would have liked to have had watching over us in that situation.

Frank Burns was the sniveling wimp we hoped we would never be, but it was often too easy to detect traces of ourselves in his actions.

Charles Winchester was impressed with his own importance, just as we teen-agers were too often impressed with our new-found maturity.

Margaret Hoolihan grew from a one-dimensional cutout of a woman into a many-faceted person. It was amazing to us, because her metamorphosis so strongly paralleled the growth in our minds of the women we knew.

Max Klinger was originally the person who would do anything to get out of the place he was in. Anything was likely — even to the point of wearing women's dresses. But Max grew, accepting his situation and working to improve on it the best he could — just as we did our best to accept the situations we couldn't change.

Radar O'Reilly was the little boy who lurks inside of all men, and Father Mulcahy was as close to God as we wished we could have been. There were others, such as Col. Flagg and Sidney Friedman, who touched us in some way.

BUT THE characters had a couple of things in common — they were not all good or all bad, and they grew, coming out of the war older, wiser and more worldly.

Like them, we came out of our television war with a completely concept with which we went in.

A dirty movie

We had just finished dinner when Winslow said, "I have a surprise for everyone. Come in the living room while I lock the doors and pull down the window shades."

We went in the living room. Winslow had set up a 16mm projector and a movie screen.

"What are you going to show us, Winslow?" Someone asked. "Deep Throat" or "Debbie Does Dallas?"

"Something must worse. I managed to get an illegal print of a Canadian documentary on acid rain."

A murmur ran through the crowd. "Couldn't we get in trouble watching a dirty film from Canada?"

Winslow smiled. "You're damn right you could. The Justice Department has declared all Canadian films on acid rain pure propaganda, and they have to be clearly marked as such. They also told the Canadian Film Board it has to turn over to Justice the names of those who asked to see the films."

Martha Harrington said, "I've never seen a documentary on acid rain. This is going to be exciting."

"How in the devil did you get the film?" I asked Winslow.

"I smuggled it in from Toronto," he replied.

"You really took a chance. What if you had gotten caught?"

"I would have been fined and sent to jail. U.S. Customs has strict

One for the price of two

WASHINGTON — It's a clever public relations man who can get paid by two separate clients for doing the same piece of work — especially when the clients are two different governments. But Ian MacKenzie managed to pull it off.

He was paid by the U.S. Information Agency for a seminar intended to show foreign publicity people how to handle the American press; at the same time, he was being paid by the Haitian government to push its cause in the United States.

The USIA invited MacKenzie's Haitian client to send representatives to the press-handling seminar last December. The invitation was accepted by the director of information, Guy Mayer, and the foreign ministry's director of political affairs, Henri-Robert Nere.

The seminar — including all expenses for the visiting flacks — was paid for by USIA.

CURIOSLY, in the application for the $170,000 USIA grant for the seminar, there was no mention of the fact that MacKenzie was a registered foreign agent for the Haitian government. He did disclose that among his past clients was the government of the late Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua. According to the Council on Hemispheric Affairs, "MacKenzie is a 'highly motivated, active and ardent' agent in

When my associate Lucette Lagnado asked USIA officials about MacKenzie's clientele, she was told orders to look for Canadian Film Board movie prints. They're even training dogs now to sniff for them. The Attorney General has given it top-priority."

"Why are they uptight about films on acid rain?"

Winslow said, "They're afraid if Americans see them, without them being clearly marked as propaganda, we would believe that acid rain is an environmental problem."

"You would think the Justice Department would have more to do than worry about Canadian documentaries," Ed Harrington said.

"You don't know much about the Justice Department. They finally found a legal issue they understand: They've been so confused about civil rights, EPA and antitrust cases, that they jumped at the chance to sock it to Canada. The Canadians are going to think twice the next time they finance a film about pollution," Winslow told us.

"How long is it?" someone asked. "It only runs 30 minutes. But it will blow your mind."

Bella Murphy said, "Suppose the FBI breaks in while we're watching it?"

"Don't worry about it, Bella," Winslow said. "My kids are outside on the lookout. If they ring the doorbell three times, I'll dump the print and substitute 'The Devil in Miss Jones.' They can't touch us for watching a porno movie in our own home."

"Well, show it fast," Bella said. "I'm very nervous."

"Okay lights out. Here we go."

We all sat in rapt attention as we watched fish and wildlife dying in the Canadian north. A few people got sick and had to go to the bathroom. At the end of the picture, Martha Harrington said, "What kind of degenerate mind could make a picture like that?"

"That's what the Justice Department would like to know. If this film is shown throughout the United States it could destroy the American way of life as we know it."

"How could Canada do it?"

"There are a lot of dangerous people in the environmental movement up there, and they have control of the film industry. If you think that one was bad wait until you see the other one I smuggled in. It's about the horror of nuclear war."

"You can't show a Canadian picture against nuclear war in the United States," Bella screamed. "It's illegal."

"Of course it's illegal, that's what makes it so exciting," Winslow said. "Wouldn't you rather see a film forbidden by the U.S. authorities, than watch 'The Winds of War'?"

Billy Graham

I turned my back on God

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Several years ago I decided I didn't want anything to do with God, and I turned my back on him deliberately. I've never admitted it to anyone, but I've been miserable since then. Will God receive me back, or is it too late? — M.W.

DEAR M.W.: No, it is not too late for you to turn to God and get back on the right track, and I am praying you will have the courage to do it now before it is too late. It is, I believe, very possible to become so hardened to God that we will never return to him and our case is hopeless. But the fact that you are concerned shows that you know you need God, and that is good.

What must you do? Let me answer that by trying to answer another question: why did you turn your back on God in the first place? I don't know what place God had in your life several years ago, but if you had put your faith in Christ you knew that God loved you and had sent his Son to die on the cross for your sins. You knew that he loved you, and do the will of God. But you turned your back on him. Why? Ultimately it was because you thought your way was better, and you wanted to be free to live any way you wanted to. In other words, you wanted to be ruler of your own life, instead of letting Jesus Christ be Lord.

That is why the way back for you is to renounce what you have done. You need to repent of the fact that you tried to shove God out of your life and run your life yourself. You need to get "King Self" off the throne of your heart and let Christ rule.

You remember the parable of the prodigal son which Jesus told in Luke 15. This son wanted to rebel and run his own life, so he left home and wasted his life and his money in a far country. Only later did he come to his senses and return humbly to his father. And his father received him and forgave him! That is what God wants to do with you, and Jesus has promised "whoever comes to me I will never drive away" (John 6:37). Turn to Christ — he is ready to receive you because he loves and wants to forgive you.

they were unaware of his background.

Had they become curious enough to make one telephone call to the Justice Department, they would have learned that MacKenzie was — and still is — a Haitian agent. They also might have discovered the striking similarity between his contract with Duvalier's government and the USIA grant to the group that sponsored MacKenzie's little seminar.

The Haitian contract, a matter of public record, states that MacKenzie's firm will be paid $360,000 for, among other things, "media relations and national image promotion services."

The USIA contract says of MacKenzie's program: "The purpose of these seminars is to provide media training assistance to (foreign) government officials and their armed forces... to strengthen their effectiveness in the 'War of Ideas,' and specifically, in media relations and overall information preparation and distribution."

Interestingly, USIA officials objected to the characterization of MacKenzie's seminar as a course in "handling" the American media. Yet the description of the seminar, after mentioning the differences between the American and foreign press, states candidly: "The understanding of these differences is essential if the attendees are to... advantage; i.e., not defensively, but assertively."

The grant application provides an interesting insight into MacKenzie's perception of the best way to appeal for money from the USIA in a conservative administration. The lecturers for the seminar, the application promises, "will be practicing and in some cases well-known journalists... of the stature of Patrick Buchanan, Jeffrey St. John, John McLaughlin and Robert Novak" — all columnists of identifiably conservative views.

In the end, however, the list of speakers was leavened by journalists of less easily pinpointed (or even liberal) persuasion. In addition to Buchanan, St. John and McLaughlin, the seminar guests also heard from Bob Schieffer and Robert Pierpoint of CBS News, Karen DeYoung of The Washington Post, Coit Hendley Jr. of the Washington Times, wire-service correspondents, and news executives of The New York Times.

PUFF FOR 'MARLBORO MAN': Although President Reagan's budget-cutters lopped $2.6 billion from the Farmers Home Administration's 1984 budget, they managed to find money to create a new $60,000 job at the agency for a defeated Republican congressman.

Former Rep. Clint Roberts, R-S.D., a ruggedly handsome cattle rancher who once auditioned for "Marlboro Man" cigarette ads, was beaten last fall by Democratic Rep. Tom Daschle. Roberts is now a special consultant on international trade matters for the FmHA, with an office in Pierre, S.D., about 30 miles from his ranch at Presho. Except for federal judges, Roberts is the highest-paid non-elective federal official in South Dakota.

Teachers caught cheating

Union official says there was cribbing on test

HOUSTON (AP) — Widespread and unrestrained cheating occurred among Houston teachers taking a competency test here Wednesday, an official of the teachers' union said Thursday.

John O'Sullivan, president of the Houston Federation of Teachers, said the teachers taking the test felt they were being treated "unfairly" and there was a feeling of unity in the cribbing.

"I'm talking about a lively sharing of information among the teachers taking the tests," said O'Sullivan. "They were being tested over materials that in no way related to their job performance."

"The traditional way of testing broke down," he added. "There was a spirit of 'we're in this unfair thing together so let's help each other to get through.'"

Houston Independent School District deputy superintendent Ron E. Veselka said he could not confirm how widespread cheating was in the test, but noted "I talked to a couple teachers who said they saw what they thought was cheating."

The test was taken by about 3,100 teachers as part of an HISD program of evaluating teacher competence. Veselka said scores on the tests will be a factor in evaluating teacher performance and that low scorers could be required to undertake a "growth improvement plan."

The testing cost the state and school district about $77,500, or $25 for each test. The tests were administered by the Education Testing Service.

According to O'Sullivan, the phones at the union office rang constantly Wednesday after the test as teachers called in to report cheating, including their own.

"Some teachers admitted they cheated and were not at all penitent about it," said O'Sullivan.

He said there was a powerful feeling among the testtakers that the whole process was "a fiasco" and that they were being treated unfairly because it is unknown how the test scores will be used.

Veselka and Joe Stubbs, an assistant superintendent for planning and evaluation, said that no passing score for the test has yet been established. They also said that the precise uses for the test scores have yet to be established, but that they will be evaluated by some as-yet unnamed group that will take some as-yet undetermined action that will include some type of as-yet undefined "growth improvement," a process that neither man could as-yet describe.

Stubbs said that a group of 500 persons, including citizens and educators, will study the results of the test later to determine what is a passing score. Members of the group have not been selected.

Veselka said the passing scores will be "based on the distribution of grades" in the tests.

He said that based on the scores "and other factors" the teachers with poor scores will be given a plan of "growth improvement". Should a teacher make a poor showing in the plan, said Veselka, "at that point the administration will decide what to do with the teacher."

O'Sullivan said the vagueness of the testing plan angered the teachers and led to the widespread cheating.

"They were insulted, intimidated and frightened," said the union leader.

He said monitors, or proctors, for the teacher testing were "temporaries" hired by the testing service.

"They were Kelly Girls," said O'Sullivan.

The union leader said his group "is going to the courthouse" over the tests, but are waiting until some teacher's career is actually damaged before filing suit.

Those selected to take the test were 2,600 probationary teachers, 600 contract teachers marked for assessment by their principals and about 50 student teachers.

CELEBRATION THWARTED — A federal appeals court ruling ruined a party for Pacific Southwest Airlines personnel who planned to celebrate the expected approval of PSA's bid to acquire Braniff's landing slots.

Lawmaker wants jobs bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of a House labor committee says thousands of Texans could go back to work if Texas had a local option public jobs program. Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-LaMarque, Thursday filed a bill that would allow voters in cities and counties to decide whether to raise their sales tax by 0.5 percent in order to fund the program.

The money would be used to hire unemployed Texans to work on public projects.

"Texas has never tried anything like this before, but Texas has never faced this kind of recession before either," said Criss.

Under the Criss plan, voters could choose to increase their local sales tax for two years.

Criss, chairman of the House Labor and Employment Relations Committee, said the program could put as many as 7,400 unemployed people to work in Harris County, 6,000 in Dallas County, 1,500 in Tarrant and 1,450 in Bexar.

PSA chief claims Braniff deal dead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A complex deal to allow Pacific Southwest Airlines to lease planes from grounded Braniff International is "dead" now that a federal appeals court has blocked the plan, PSA Chairman William Shimp says.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that the proposed Braniff-PSA arrangement simply did not conform to bankruptcy law. Hours later, Shimp said PSA has no plans to appeal.

"No doubt. It's dead," Shimp said from his home in San Diego. "We don't think the Supreme Court would take it."

Braniff Chairman Howard Putnam, however, expressed hope that something still might be worked out as lawyers for the two airlines met Wednesday night at Braniff's headquarters at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Putnam said the ruling left him "in a state of shock." In its ruling, the 5th Circuit reversed a district judge's order to the Federal Aviation Administration to provide 200 landing slots — times at which planes may land at designated airports — for Braniff planes that were to be leased by PSA.

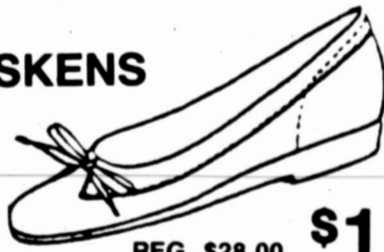

To fill the gap after Braniff stopped operating last May because of an accumulated $1 billion debt, the FAA reassigned many of Braniff's 450 slots to other carriers. Those airlines were among those opposing the Braniff-PSA deal.

Braniff had contended that it had the right to transfer its slots to PSA.

The FAA argued that it alone has jurisdiction over the issuance of airport time slots and a federal judge cannot treat them as property to be conveyed by contract.

Arthur Koestler, wife, found dead

LONDON (AP) — Arthur Koestler — author of "Darkness at Noon," the widely acclaimed novel of the Stalin purges — and his wife were found dead today in what police called an apparent double suicide.

Police sources said Koestler, 77, and his wife apparently took an overdose of drugs. The sources said Koestler was believed to have been suffering from leukemia and Parkinson's disease.

Police officers were summoned to the Koestler home by a maid and found the bodies of the author and his wife, Cynthia, in separate chairs in the living room, a Scotland Yard spokesman said.

Press Association, the British domestic news agency, said the maid also had found a note, the contents of which were not disclosed.

Mrs. Koestler was in her 50s. Koestler, born in Hungary but later naturalized as a British citizen, published "Darkness at Noon" in 1940. At the time, it was heralded as the most important political novel of a generation.

The account of an old Bolshevik arrested in the late 1930s Stalinist purges, in which more than 20 million people were believed to have perished, opened the eyes of many left-wing intellectuals in America and Europe to the realities of the Soviet Union under Josef Stalin.

The book was made into a Broadway play after World War II. In France, the novel sold nearly 400,000 copies and Francois Mauriac once wrote that it played an important role in turning the tide of public opinion against the Communists. In the literary world, the novel broke the ground for a new genre of political fiction, including such works "1984" by Koestler's friend George Orwell.

Born in Budapest Sept. 5, 1905, Koestler studied in Vienna. As a young intellectual horrified by fascism, he became attracted to communism during Hitler's rise to power in Germany.

He joined the Communist Party, travelled in the Soviet Union and eventually became an agent for Comintern, the international arm of the party. During this period, he saw friends betrayed to the police and his disillusionment set in.

Firemen admit arson spree

DICKSON CITY, Pa. (AP) — A dress factory was damaged. A lumberyard and a department store were burned. Vacant houses were torched.

And authorities say the men who set some of the fires, went back to fight the flames. Eight volunteer firefighters, including the fire chief and captain of Eagle Volunteer Hose Company No. 1, have been arrested in connection with eight of the 59 fires that have plagued this small, northeastern Pennsylvania community since 1977.

Eight others volunteers, ranging in age from 15 to 17, were charged with summary offenses for allegedly setting minor fires and face juvenile proceedings, said state police Lt. Michael Jordan.

Jordan said "a code of silence" within the fire department stopped firefighters from telling authorities about the alleged arsons.

"The majority were what we classify as thrill and excitement. They were set for the fun of it," said state police fire marshal Walter Mochowsky.

"You get an individual who joins a fire department to fight fires and isn't content unless he does," he said. "They'd get to drinking and decide they haven't had a fire for a while, so they'd set one."

"The unique thing about this situation was the number of firemen involved," said Mochowsky, whose investigation into other fires, including the torching of the local high school and the borough building, is continuing. More arrests are expected.

The first arrests on Feb. 3 shocked many of the town's 6,700 residents.

"It's been a tragic situation," said Mayor Vincent Wiercinski. "We're just going to have to pull ourselves together again. We've got a good community and we're going to stay that way. We'll survive this."

In Pennsylvania there are no statistics on the number of volunteer firefighters who are arrested for starting fires. State police logs, for example, do not list volunteer firefighters as an occupation.

But according to state police figures, 50 percent of those arrested for arson in Pennsylvania are under 18 and 74 percent are under 25. Many volunteer firemen come from that age bracket, said Ernie Rojahn, spokesman for the Pennsylvania Firemen's Association.

"There is a definite correlation between the age group of people who come into the fire service and the age group that experiments with arson," said Rojahn.

"When 60 percent of your membership is young adults, and 74 percent of the arson arrests in Pennsylvania are those same young adults, we're bound to get some of them."

The Dickson City arrests involve a 1978 fire at a dress factory that caused $300,000 damage, two fires at the C&S Wood Products lumberyard and several vacant homes. Police say flares taken from fire trucks were used to start some of the fires.

A number of the fires also included brush fires and garbage bins.

One firefighter, 19-year-old Robert Lark, has already pleaded guilty to six counts each of criminal mischief and conspiracy. He was sentenced to two years probation, fined $400 and has agreed to testify for the prosecution.

In a statement filed with authorities, Lark told police he had been drinking with fellow firefighter John Knutelski, 19, at a party on Sept. 11, 1981.

Hell's Angels have 'contract' out on Stones

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Hell's Angels, still angry at the Rolling Stones more than a decade after a violence-marred concert, have an "open contract" on the rock group, a former member of the outlaw motorcycle gang says.

"There's been two attempts to kill them that I know about," a man identified as "Butch" told the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday. "They will someday. ... They swear they will still do it."

"Butch," who was hidden by a screen during his testimony, said the vendetta stems from the Stones' ill-fated 1969 concert in Altamont, Calif., when a spectator was killed near the stage during a rendition of "Sympathy for the Devil."

Hell's Angels members served as security guards for the concert attended by some 300,000 people and were blamed by law enforcement officials for the slaying of the gun-toting spectator.

"Butch," a protected federal witness, said the Angels are still mad because they feel the Rolling Stones "did not back them" in the subsequent furor and prosecution of a gang member.

"There's always been an open contract on the band," said the witness. He said the first attempt against the band occurred in the mid-1970s at a location he did not identify.

"They sent a member with a gun and a silencer" to a hotel where the Stones were believed to be staying, the witness said. "He stalked them, but they never showed up."

"Butch" said that around 1979 members of the Angels' New York City chapter plotted an assault by water against a house at which the Stones were staying.

"They were going to put a bomb in the house and blow everybody up and kill everybody at the party," he said.

The plot failed when the Angels, advancing in a rubber raft, lost their plastic explosives overboard, according to the witness, who is in prison for a 1974 Angels-related murder he admitted after quitting the club in 1981.

"Butch" said the vendetta obsesses the Angels, who are said by law enforcement officials to have 500-to-600 hard-core members in 33 U.S. and 18 foreign chapters. "This has been discussed many times — killing the band," he said. "Anyone doing this would get in good grace with the California Angels." The gang is headquartered in Oakland, Calif.

Another hangover from Altamont is that "no Hell's Angel listens to Mick Jagger's music," according to "Butch," described as a 43-year-old former leader of the Angels chapter in Cleveland.

He said that vendettas are a way of life in the Angels. "They have a saying: 'Hell's Angels have a memory like an elephant; they never forget,'" he testified. "If they have a grievance with anybody, it never ends. They keep a record."

A member of the Angels, Alan David Passaro, was acquitted of murder charges in the stabbing of Meredith Hunter, 18.

Humorist looks at Des Moines' as a private joke

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Outsiders have always told jokes about Des Moines, but now a native who fears residents might take the city too seriously has written a booklet asking insiders to laugh at themselves.

"Let's Keep Des Moines a Private Joke" is the title of Dan Hunter's 30-page look at the funny side of Des Moines.

The 29-year-old Hunter, who bills himself as a songwriter-singer-humorist, has left little of Des Moines' culture untouched.

"The one who remains glum the longest is the winner and gets to shovel the walk," Hunter says.

Queen headed to Sacramento

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a night crowned by champagne toasts, golden caviar and raucous yells from 5,000 protesters, Queen Elizabeth II prepared to fly to California's capital today for more pomp and circumstance.

Before toasts sounded the finale of a glittering state dinner Thursday night at the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum, the nearby crowd of demonstrators cheered its own efforts, disbanded peaceably and regrouped at the city's Civic Center several miles away.

The queen gave no indication she heard the political grab-bag of demonstrators chanting, sounding bullhorns and waving banners saying, "Brits Out of Ireland," "U.S. Out of El Salvador" and "Reagan Steals From the Poor and Gives to the Rich."

Her motorcade bypassed the throng, held back by a line of helmeted policemen standing arm's length apart, mounted police and officers on motorcycles.

Overhead, a small plane, sponsor unknown, circled the museum with a banner that read, "Hail to the chief. God save the queen. Long live rock 'n' roll."

The queen warmly praised California in a brief speech, also striking a political note.

"We are deeply grateful for the unstinting contribution of the United States to the maintenance of the Western Alliance," she said, adding that "no one who knows the British and their history could have any doubts about our steadfastness as an ally."

She concluded with a toast: "Mr. President, I raise my glass to you and Mrs. Reagan, to the friendship between our two countries; to the people of California and to the people of the United States."

The president, while noting the "challenge to restrain and reduce the destructive power of nuclear weapons," said "we must maintain our strength in the face of enormous military buildup of our adversaries and ... face the challenge of restimulating economic growth and development without rekindling inflation."

After her trip to Sacramento and the president's speech on trade policy, the royal couple and the Reagans were to meet again tonight aboard the royal yacht Britannia. The ship was expected to reach the Golden Gate in time for the queen's dinner honoring the Reagans' 31st anniversary.

Burger wars heat up

MIAMI (AP) — Burger King is frying its chief competitor again, bringing back the "burger wars" of last fall with a new series of five comparative commercials.

Once again, the television spots, which were scheduled to debut in some areas Thursday night, concentrate on a claim that burger lovers prefer the taste of No. 2 Burger King's flame broiling.

Top competitor McDonald's uses a process that Burger King considers frying. Officials at the No. 1 burger chain call the cooking process grilling.

Last fall's campaign prompted lawsuits by McDonald's and No. 3 Wendy's, but the court action was dropped after Burger King promised to phase out the campaign.

"We never said we wouldn't be controversial in the name," said Kyle Craig, Burger King's executive vice president of marketing. "We are presenting the results in a light hearted style which gets the point across in a remaining fun to watch."

The campaign cost the Miami-based chain at least $10 million. Company officials said it would begin airing Thursday and Friday in some markets.

The new commercials cite a new, company-paid survey of 1,200 people purporting to show again that Burger King hamburgers are preferred over McDonald's.

Burger King asked consumers: "Do you prefer fried burgers or flame-broiled hamburgers in a fast-food restaurant?"

The campaign uses some of the same actors who appeared in the fall ads and has the same light tone.

El Paso officer wounded

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A burglary detective shot in the head while trying to make an arrest was clinging to life today after nearly 11 hours of surgery to remove the bullet and bone fragments from his brain, officials said.

Detective Charles Heinrich, 35, and a patrolman stopped a man on a routine check Thursday in northwest El Paso. As the officers left their car, the man ran, then turned and fired three shots at the officers, said Lt. Ed Agan.

Patrolman Jessie Eckard returned the fire and wounded the man in the leg. Eckard was not injured, Agan said.

Heinrich is an 11-year veteran of the El Paso police force and is considered one of its finest burglary detectives, officials said.

A spokesman at William Beaumont Army Hospital said surgery worked late into the night to save Heinrich, who arrived at the hospital at about 1 p.m. He came out of surgery about 11:45 p.m. CST.

Dr. Donohue

Drug helps bedwetting

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is the latest thinking with regard bedwetting, and how much of it can be laid to psychological factors in the home? I am speaking of a 9-year-old boy. What should be looked for in the way of illnesses that can cause this? We really think he is going to outgrow it. His doctor thinks so. But it is such a difficult problem for him, and we want to make sure he gets every chance. Are we being overconcerned? — Mrs. F.H.

No, you have expressed the common concern of any good parent.

Let me clear up a few things about the bedwetting problem. Most children do learn to control their bladders by age 3 or 4. Some are a little slower, but for almost all control will be achieved by the time of puberty, usually earlier. All of the statistics leave plenty of room for harmless variations. And for most children with the problem psychological factors do not play a part.

Urination in infancy is governed by a spinal cord reflex, and for most a delay in control is a matter of late maturation of the nerves and muscles that provide the control mechanism.

You have followed the rules in assessing a bedwetter. You have taken your son to a physician so that he could ferret out any treatable physical cause. Sometimes that can be a spinal cord problem. Or there might be an infection or some abnormality of the urinary tract. You should have been reassured by this checkup.

You sound like parents who have not resorted to punishment or severe scolding. That type of response can create the psychological factors you mention and further delay the control that usually comes. I am asked about medicine. Perhaps you might ask his doctor about Ditropan, for which some success has been claimed. It is occasionally used for bedwetting. When it works, it does so by delaying the desire to void and by dampening the force of the spontaneous bladder contractions. It is not for everyone, and should be used only under a doctor's supervision.

Then there are the general rules — avoiding liquid between the evening meal and bedtime, awakening the child later, just before you go to bed yourself, to have him void. Don't get uptight when an accident happens.

FOR G.H.L. — The odds of hemorrhoids reappearing after surgery are about 1 in 20. When this happens it is usually a matter of some of the veins not being present during the surgery, but appearing afterward. If the same conditions causing the other hemorrhoids remain, those veins may dilate at a later time causing new hemorrhoids.

Bed wetting can be a frustrating problem but it can be controlled. To learn how, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Bed-Wetting: Ways To Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Doctor's care extends as far as office door

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to have a genuine friendship with your doctor? I am a professional woman who has grown very fond of my woman physician during this past year. She treated me for a medical problem and has helped me a great deal with some personal problems, too.

From the very beginning I felt a strong attraction between us. We've attended the same social functions and have lunched together on occasion. After my medical problem was resolved, I had the feeling that my doctor wanted to end the personal relationship that I thought was just beginning to develop.

When I asked her about this, she said we could not maintain both a social relationship and a patient-doctor relationship, but she was quite willing to be my doctor.

I have trouble understanding this, as my husband and I have a social relationship with our lawyer and other professional types we deal with and it's never created any problems.

I would appreciate hearing your view or those of your readers on this topic.

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: It's my opinion that you came on too strong, and your physician felt that she couldn't handle a social relationship with you. In any case, she told you as diplomatically as she could that she prefers not to socialize with you.

Please accept her decision with grace and don't pursue her.

DEAR ABBY: When I threw my bridal bouquet at my wedding reception, guess who caught it? My husband's mother!

Abby, I had my bridal bouquet specially made with silk flowers in the color scheme of my wedding, intending to preserve it along with my wedding gown and veil.

Should my mother-in-law have returned the bouquet to me? She has not offered it back.

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: According to Emily Post, the bridesmaid who catches the bride's bouquet keeps it, but I'm sure if your mother-in-law knew how much you wanted it, she'd return it. Ask her.

Incidentally, traditionally the bride tosses her bouquet to her bridesmaids, and the one who catches it is supposed to be married next, so your mother-in-law really should not have been in the competition.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I returned to his hometown 80 miles away to attend a family wedding and stayed with his parents as usual. We asked in advance if we could bring a young woman who had also been invited to the wedding and were told that she was also welcome to stay with them as they had ample room.

When we arrived we were all told which bedrooms were ours to use. After the wedding and reception, we returned late and very tired. Upon retiring, we found there were absolutely no sheets on our beds, so rather than go searching for bed linen, we slept on the beds with no sheets.

The next morning, my husband politely teased his mom about the bed being bare of sheets. Mom became defensive and said she didn't appreciate our sleeping on her beds without sheets, and called us "lazy" for not finding sheets and making up the beds ourselves!

This conversation took place in the presence of the friend we brought with us and it was very embarrassing. I was offended by my mother-in-law's remarks. Our visits are rare, and she had plenty of notice that we were coming.

Question: Wasn't Mom the lazy one for not being prepared for our visit? Or were we the lazy ones for not making our beds at such a late hour?

MIDNIGHT SURPRISE
DEAR SURPRISE: Obviously Mom wasn't properly prepared for your visit, but that doesn't necessarily make her "lazy." And neither can you be called "lazy" for opting to sleep sheetless as you did. But all the unpleasantness could have been avoided had your husband not "politely teased" Mom about her thoughtlessness.

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

'Latter Day Saints' discussed

By CAROL HART
Religion Editor

Although all is quiet on the outside of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 1803 Wason, inside members of the congregation are scurrying to attend to various types of church business. No less busy is John Peptis, a high priest for the local church.

JOHN PEPTIS
...administrator of chapel

Peptis explains that as high priest and administrator of the local church "I'm just a servant. We're all equal." Very few people receive a salary in the framework of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Almost all of the money generated by the church goes back into aiding the needy and into church programs across the world.

Headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is in Salt Lake City, Utah. Much of the church business originates from Salt Lake City and the Temple there is known across the world. But there are "five and a half million members world-wide," Peptis said.

Most people outside the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints refer to members of the church as "Mormons." When asked if that is a proper reference to parishioners, Peptis says "We are called Mormons by our enemies and by people who don't understand the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." "It is not a term by which they refer to one another.

Church members also follow 13 Articles of Faith which were penned by Joseph Smith, the founder of the church. Another characteristic of members of the Latter Day Saints is the Code of Health, which says "avoid habit forming drugs, eat a moderate, nutritious diet, get plenty of exercise and rest, find challenging work, follow the moral codes of chastity and fidelity and maintain family unity."

But the word Mormon is used by the church. In addition to King James version of the Bible, parishioners use the "Book of Mormon" as a study guide and background for their beliefs.

Peptis said that parishioners are taught if they read the Book of Mormon and the Articles of Faith, if they fast and pray, "We will know the truthfulness of all things through the Holy Spirit." Temples are not public houses of worship. They are erected for special purposes. After a Temple is dedicated only members of the church in good standing may enter the Temple.

Church members go into the Temples "To be sealed for an eternity" in covenants with God. To enter a Temple, members must "be living the highest standards of the church." Sacred ceremonies such as marriages are conducted within Temples.

Among beliefs by members of the church are that marriages are for eternity and that when a church member dies, they remain the same and are bonded to their family for eternity.

Peptis said much of what people in other religions learn of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints "is hearsay. They haven't investigated the Church for themselves."

One of many misconceptions people have about "Mormons" is that they condone polygamy. Members of the Church who engage in polygamy and are found out "are excommunicated," Peptis explained. "We are bound to live by man's law," he said.

The Big Spring Chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints serves an area from Snyder to Big Lake and Stanton to Coahoma. The local chapel is part of the Odessa "stake," which is the next highest level of the church.

Peptis is a social worker on the multiple disabilities unit at Big Spring State Hospital and works full-days there before working at the church in the evenings and on weekends. He has lived in Big Spring a year with his wife, Anna, and four children.

He said that 207 families are members of the local chapel.

Religion briefs

Church planning revival

Emmanuel Baptist Church, 22nd and Lancaster, will host a revival Sunday through Friday at 7 p.m. each evening.

Kenneth Clift, associate pastor from Tate Springs Baptist Church in Arlington, will be guest preacher.

Clift graduated from the U.S. Air Force Academy in 1959, and was assigned to a "Hurricane Hunter" squadron in Puerto Rico. He flew 31 missions into tropical storms, and earned two naval air medals and the distinguished service medal.

Later, Clift was a test pilot for the aerospace industry. He was named executive vice president of a major defense sub-contractor, and soon became an investor in rock concerts, a night club, and other ventures. He says his decadent lifestyle and rebellion against God led to the collapse of his fortune during the early 70s.

Clift says he struggled to rebuild his financial background but only met with modest success until he was converted by Jesus Christ.

In 1980 he entered the ministry. He an assistant pastor and teacher and conducts many workshops.

A Witness Training Course will be taught Monday through Friday following a noon luncheon. Rafoad Dunagan will lead the music.

Logan Peterson, pastor, invites the public to attend the revival.

Hardy, Marianne Brundage to minister

Hardy and Marianne Brundage will be ministering at Christ Fellowship Church for the 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. services Sunday.

The church is located at FM 700 and 11th Place. A nursery will be provided.

Brundage is recognized as a preacher and minister of the word of God. He was affiliated with the Crawford Broadcasting Company, radio stations in Houston and Baton Rouge, La., and served for five years as vice president and general manager of the Swaggart Broadcasting Company in Baton Rouge, La., a division of the Jimmy Swaggart Evangelistic Association. For more than 10 years he has hosted the "Dixie Gospel Caravan."

Mrs. Brundage was at one time diagnosed as having terminal cancer. She will give her testimony of God's healing power.

Glory Heirs to appear locally

The Glory Heirs, a new gospel group, will be in full concert at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Central Baptist Church in Elbow.

No admission will be charged. The group sings largely southern gospel music but also includes country gospel, inspirational, middle of the road and traditional selections.

The members of the group come from a variety of backgrounds. They are Ed Tichenor, Harvey Jackson, Tim Earles and Tommy Reed. The group also consists of pianist Joy Tichenor, guitarist Ron Kendrick and sound technicians Pat Jackson and Sarah Earles.

The group is from Abilene and travel by customized bus. They have appear at Six Flags, county fairs and with the Happy Goodman family, and in churches throughout the south. They have recorded two albums, "Now I Have Everything," and "Reach Out."

'Upper Room' to show movie

"A Thief in the Night," a motion picture about Bible prophecy from Mark IV Pictures of Iowa, will be shown at "The Upper Room" at 313 Runnels tonight at 8 p.m.

present, with little concern about the future. What happens when this thinking catches up with her provides an action packed, unforgettable drama.

The movie portrays the Biblical prediction "There will be no place to hide." (Rev. 20:11). As one viewer commented, "The film in essence illustrates the consequences of indecision. It leaves the audience thinking."

World Day of Prayer planned

The board of the Church Women United met at the Salvation Army Feb. 25 to plan a World Day of Prayer, which is being observed today at the First Methodist Church.

Mrs. Jim Watson, treasurer, reported more than $300 was raised by a tasting tea for West Side Community Center. It was reported that $100 has been recommended for the Rainbow Project.

Danny Gaither to sing March 11

Danny Gaither will appear in concert at 7 p.m. March 11 at Hillcrest Baptist Church.

Gaither was at one time a member of the Bill Gaither Trio. They received the Dove Award as "Best Mixed Group." They also received a Grammy award for the album "Let's Just Praise the Lord," and for "Jesus We Just Want to Thank You."

He now travels as a soloist throughout the U.S. and Canada. He is supported by his wife who coordinates concert dates and travels with him. Their son, Nick, and daughter Trina, also travel with the group. On keyboards is Dave Redman.

Warren's blast lifts Steers by AHS

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Sports Editor

Mark Warren smashed a one-out, three-run homer in the top of the seventh inning to power the Big Spring Steers to an 8-6 victory over Abilene in the first game of the District 4-5A tournament this morning at Steer Park.

The Steers, now 1-1 on the season, play again Saturday at 10 a.m. against the winner of the Permian-Midland game which was scheduled from 1 p.m. this afternoon.

Warren's blast capped a long rally for Big Spring. Abilene scored four times in the second and twice more in the third to take a 6-2 lead and led 6-4 entering the seventh.

David Anguiano led off with a sharp single to left and Marty Rodriguez drew a walk to put two runners on. Tom Cudd, hitless in seven previous appearances at the plate, belted a double to left-center field to drive a run and cut AHS's lead to 6-5.

Mark Walker fled out to bring up Warren. The senior second baseman ripped the first offering from reliever Rob Starnes well over the left field fence.

The win avenged a 9-3 loss to the Eagles in the first round of this tournament last year in Odessa. Big Spring went on win consolation honors.

Abilene bolted to a 4-0 lead with a big second inning.

The Eagles loaded the bases as Matt Waldman singled, Ricky Rodriguez walked and George Shannon reached base when Steer pitcher Jinx Valenzuela couldn't field his bunt.

Damon Edwards lined a one-out single to left to drive in two runs and with two away, Pat Sigala followed David Oden's bunt single with a two RBI hit to center.

Big Spring cut the deficit in half in the third. Jay Pirkle reached on an error and Chris Lamb walked before Valenzuela — batting for himself — singled to deep shortstop to drive in Pirkle.

The Eagles got those runs right back in the bottom of the inning when Shannon singled in Waldmann and Jay Gravens slapped a triple to right field.

It was then the Steers began chipping away at the AHS lead.

Walker began the fourth with a single and came around when Pirkle sailed a double to right-center. Another run was scored in the fifth as Anguiano singled, advanced on an error and scored on Cudd's RBI grounder to second.

Valenzuela went the distance for the Steers. He allowed 10 hits but none over the final three innings. He struck out six and ended the game by tossing Gravens a doubleplay ball. Lamb made the play at short and doubled up Shannon who had reached on an error.

Big Spring matched their opening game total with eight basehits with Anguiano again setting the pace with two safeties.
