

Texas ag commissioner proposes marketing aid for farmers

By LE KILLGORE
Harte-Hanks News Service

AUSTIN — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told House Appropriations Committee members Monday he proposes to provide tangible marketing aid to Texas farmers.

Hightower, testifying before the full committee and a packed room, said his $27 million budget request, while $11 million less than his predecessor, Reagan Brown, had proposed, is geared toward "facing the crisis in farming and ranching" and addressing the "administrative crisis within the department itself."

For farmers and ranchers, he said, the agriculture department has concentrated on advertising-type aid — posters in supermarkets.

"But the family farmer is facing economic collapse," he said, suggesting that posters are inadequate to solve current problems.

"What we propose," he said, "is a marketing program, with staff going into international markets, equipped with the expertise to package sales."

State agriculture staff people, he said, would go to overseas markets, arrange for sales "directly for farmers," getting word to potential buyers through trade associations and marketing groups.

"We are in a position to do this," he said.

Hightower said Texas "has more problems than most other states" in the agriculture industry because of the relationship between production costs — escalated by high electric pumping costs — and decreased profits.

"The farmer's share of the dollar is falling," he said, noting that a farmer making 40 to 42 cents on a dollar could survive, "but now he's making 32, 33 cents, and that 10, 11 cents is the difference between bankruptcy and prosperity."

Texas faces $800 million budget drop

By JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock delivered some gloomy economic news to Texas lawmakers Tuesday, telling them they will have $867.1 million less to spend on state government in 1984 and 1985 than he predicted two months ago.

Since January, Bullock has trimmed almost $2 billion from a September revenue estimate when he told legislative leaders they would have $5 billion more to dole out for state operating expenses than did the 1981 Legislature.

Even with the decreased revenue projection, Bullock said lawmakers now will have 17.8 percent more money to spend than did their 1981 legislator counterparts.

Bullock's January drop of $1.1 billion in predicted revenues, like Tuesday's revenue revision, was pegged to declining oil and gas prices, lower than anticipated sales taxes and the devaluation of the Mexican peso which has left the Rio Grande Valley on the fringe of economic ruin.

The latest cut is expected to fan the call for a tax hike, the first since 1971.

Coahoma man hot about gas billing

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Lee Hogg of Coahoma says he is mad at the gas company. He's not mad about the price of gas. Hogg is mad about when his bill is due.

"Don't they know most old folks get their pension checks on the third (day of the month)," Hogg said. "It's set up to rob the poor people."

"It" is the second day of the month when his bill from Energas is due or else late charges are assessed. Hogg says he has made several trips to the Energas office in Big Spring to get his billing date changed, but to no avail.

Energas District Manager Daryl Pittman says he is aware of the problem but cannot do anything about it. Howard County is divided into zones for the purpose of meter reading and billing, Pittman says. The entire process is geared through the zones from meter reading to billing to payment, he said.

"If we tried to change a particular zone to have billing dates changed, we would have to pull another zone into that place," Pittman said. "All our billing is geared to those particular zones all through the system."

The billing process does not stop in Big Spring, Pittman said. Bills are printed in the central office in Amarillo, he said. Computer time is synchronized with the approximately 65 other towns in the system, he said.

"It's just not feasible to change the cycle," Pittman said. "We just can't bill everybody at the same time."

However, Hogg says the company can change its billing techniques and "it won't cost a dime." The Coahoma retiree said Energas does not want to cooperate with its customers on this issue.

"I know dad-burn well they can change that to keep from robbing poor people," Hogg said.

The cycle billing does not exist, according to Hogg. He says he has seen bills from the west, south and east parts of Big Spring and "all of them are just like mine." Hogg says the meter readers should not have any problem because, according to him, they are not reading his meter anyway.

Energas in Big Spring has the meters read one week of the month with bills going out about a week later, Pittman said. Approximately three weeks after the meters are read, the bills are due, the district manager said.

"We are almost a month behind our reading as it is," Pittman said.

Individual billing without the cycle and zone method would involve incalculable costs, Pittman said. Not only Howard County would be affected by such a change, he added. Every company unit in the entire West Texas system would have to change its format from the work crews in the field to the computer operators, he said.

"I realize it's a bad situation," Pittman said. "Several have asked us why, but we have to keep cycle billing."

THE RECORD SHOP — Oscar Glickman stands among the countless records in his shop at 211 Main. "We have records here you probably can't get anywhere else," he says. The shop is well-known outside of Big Spring as a place to look for a long out of print record.

On record Big Spring's famous shop may be for sale

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

It's hard to sell something that you've been collecting for close to half a century.

That's the problem facing Oscar Glickman and his wife, Bobbie. They have decided to sell The Record Shop — perhaps Big Spring's biggest attraction.

They've been in the business for over 50 years and have been selling records from the shop at 211 Main since the late 1930s.

Most of the world knows that. The Record Shop has been written up in Texas Monthly, newspapers across the state and nation, and even in European publications. It is renowned as a record collector's paradise, drawing buyers from around the United States, Germany, France, England and Australia.

"It's not because I'm smart," Oscar says, looking a little bewildered at all the fuss. "It's bad business. I got stuck with all these records."

Oscar, 82, began his career in Breckenridge in the 1920s as a jukebox repairman. There he gathered a collection of 78s and started selling them over the counter.

In Big Spring he opened a record store at a bank annex on Main Street, then moved down a few blocks to where a pawn shop now sits before settling in at the present location.

"The reason we've got so many old records is I never sent any back," he said. "You see, when you buy records you're allowed to send back what you don't sell, but that means you have to pay freight both ways. I figured it would be cheaper to keep them."

He stayed with that practice until two or three years ago, when he

"I KNOW WE'VE HAD IT IN HERE" ... Oscar Glickman says he never used to return records started returning many of the records that didn't sell.

"I still don't send back near as many as I should," he says. "But the record industry is so much different now."

When he first began, all retailers were allowed to listen to records and decide which ones they wanted to buy.

"Now days," he said, "you get what the radios play and only the big buyers go to those meetings."

"At one meeting," he said, "I bought 75 copies of Johnny Mathis' first album. This is before he was big, but I thought it would sell. One lady couldn't believe I was going to get that many. Well, you know how many we sold? Not a one. I don't know why."

He went to look for the record in the stacks, but couldn't find one. "I guess the collectors got 'em all," he said. "I bet we have one in the basement."

Many times his maverick way of business has paid off.

JOHN DINGELL ... EPA investigator

Dingell to meet with Justice Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subcommittee chairman, who says his panel heard "sworn, direct testimony" of wrongdoing in the Environmental Protection Agency, is meeting with Justice Department officials to tell what he knows.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., said he would discuss with department officials today the testimony EPA staff members gave during closed hearings of his House Energy and Commerce subcommittee.

Dingell told reporters of the meeting after a public committee session that sparked another allegation of wrongdoing at EPA.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., said the panel should ask the Justice Department to determine whether the EPA's top lawyer committed perjury in testimony before the Dingell panel.

Dingell said the request would be discussed in a private committee session.

The Justice Department, acting under President Reagan's orders, has been trying since last week to schedule a meeting with Dingell.

Six congressional committees and the FBI are investigating a variety of allegations involving the administration of the $1.6 billion "superfund" established to clean up hazardous waste sites.

The allegations involve political manipulations, conflicts of interest, perjury, coverup, destruction of documents and "sweetheart" deals for industrial polluters.

EPA Administrator Anne McGill Burford says she favors a special prosecutor to investigate the allegations instead of the Justice Department. The department has said its investigation makes it impossible for its lawyers to also defend Mrs. Burford against the accusations.

Much of the EPA controversy began when Mrs. Burford followed Reagan's orders and refused to give Congress sensitive law enforcement documents. She was cited for contempt of Congress.

Dingell wrote Reagan a week ago that the panel "received sworn, direct testimony that the documents which you have withheld for five months ... contain references to political manipulation in the administration of the $1.6 billion superfund.

"There exists more than a suspicion that documents are being withheld to cover wrongdoing," Dingell said.

Pope: church to defend Indians

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II committed the Roman Catholic Church to defending Latin America's Indian peasants against injustice and rebuked Guatemala's president for ordering six men executed last week.

Disrespect for life, the pope declared in a public Mass here Monday, is "a crime and a grave offense against God."

The pontiff delivered a similar message to Guatemala's Protestant president, Gen. Efraim Rios Montt, during a private meeting before the Mass.

"The pope expressed once again his immense pain and his displeasure ... for the recent capital executions carried out in this country as he was preparing to make a pastoral visit to the people of Guatemala," a Vatican spokesman later said.

"He also reiterated his profound suffering for all the victims of violent death."

Last week, Rios Montt ignored a personal plea for mercy from the pope, sending six convicted terrorists to die before a firing squad.

The pope's message, delivered in separate speeches here and in Quetzaltenango, 120 miles to the west, amplified central themes of his week in Central America — that the Christian gospel supports social change and that the downtrodden of Latin America don't need Marxist-provoked class war.

Today, the pope flies to Honduras where he will celebrate Mass on the outskirts of Tegucigalpa, the capital, and speak in San Pedro Sula, the country's second largest city.

In Guatemala, the pope's decision to speak to a multitude of poor Indian peasants was a powerful message in itself. Indians represent 70 percent of the 6 million population here, but whites have the power.

The pope went by helicopter to an airport in Quetzaltenango, 7,900 feet high in western Guatemala, to be with hundreds of thousands of impoverished descendants of Mayan tribes.

He told them the church knows "of the discrimination you suffer, the injustice you must put up with, the serious difficulties you have in defending your lands and your rights ..."

John Paul pledged that the church will speak out "whenever your dignity as human beings and children of God is violated."

"It wants to be with you — peacefully as the Gospel demands — but with energy and determination ... I solemnly ask government leaders, in the name of the church, for legislation that effectively protects you against abuses and gives you adequate means for your normal development."

And, he added: "I sincerely ask ... that no one ever again confuse evangelization with subversion ... and that you not let yourselves be manipulated by ideologies that incite you to violence and death."

At least 10 Catholic priests have been among 6,000 people killed in Guatemala's political violence since 1976.

The message was a rebuff to Rios Montt, who publicly asked the pontiff Sunday night to tell his priests not to "politicize" the Gospel.

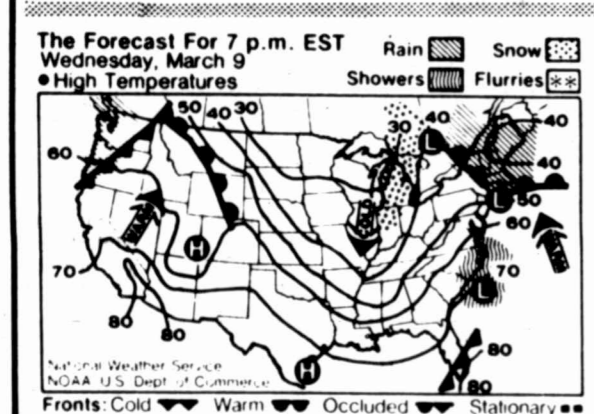

Rios Montt is an evangelical Protestant whose sect, the Church of the Word, wants to convert the predominantly Catholic Indians.

He says he wants to help improve their lot, claims to have curbed the worst human rights abuses, and denies accusations his government is carrying out a "scorched-earth" fight against rebels in the western highlands.

High clouds cover Lone Star State

By The Associated Press

An upper-level air mass over far West Texas combined with a surface pressure trough to bring high cloudiness over most of the Lone Star State today, but no rain was forecast.

The trough stretched along the New Mexico-Texas border, with the upper-level mass poised behind it. Skies were mostly clear in East and South Texas.

Temperature readings ranged from the 50s over central, southern and western sections to the 40s elsewhere.

Fair and mild conditions are forecast through Wednesday.

The Nation's Weather

Cold air blew into sections of the Upper Midwest early today, sending temperatures toppling to as low as 9 degrees in Fargo, N.D.

The leading edge of the cold front caused thunderstorms and touched off tornadoes when it arrived Monday night in Michigan.

Showers and thunderstorms also developed over the upper Ohio Valley.

The Red River Valley of northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota experienced new snow and bitter cold early today, carried by the same moist storm that earlier had hit Wyoming and Montana.

West Texas: Fair, mild days through Wednesday. Highs today, Wednesday 60s north to low 80s Big Bend valleys. Lows mostly 30s except 40s extreme south.

Queen makes plea; sets sail for Canada

SEATTLE (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II made a plea for international cooperation to overcome the "enormous human problems" posed by technology before sailing for Canada on her royal yacht, ending a rain-marred 10-day visit to the United States.

The British queen and her husband, Prince Philip, waved goodbye Monday as the spotlighted Britannia began its cruise toward Vancouver Island and Victoria, the capital of British Columbia.

Earlier, she capped a five-hour whirlwind tour of Seattle with a seven-minute address delivered in a flag-draped basketball stadium at the University of Washington, saying her visit fulfilled a "longstanding ambition" and "will strengthen the friendship between our two nations."

She said last week's visit to California's "Silicon Valley" of computer marvels showed her "the shape of the world economy and therefore the shape of our individual lives, is being changed beyond all recognition.

"With those changes will come enormous human problems," she said, but added, "I am confident that the people of our two countries will be able to transcend them together."

In her brief time in Seattle, the 56-year-old monarch managed to attend a University of Washington convocation, take tea with university officials, visit Children's Orthopedic Hospital and the site of the 1962 World's Fair, attend a reception hosted by Gov. John Spellman and even take a monorail ride.

Rain fell as she arrived Monday afternoon by air from California, and as she departed for Canada aboard the luxurious 412-foot royal yacht.

Poor weather followed the queen during much of her West Coast tour, which began in San Diego and include visits to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, President Reagan's mountaintop ranch and Yosemite National Park.

Demonstrators protesting the British presence in Ireland, who dogged the queen's trip, surfaced again Monday at the University of Washington and in downtown Seattle.

The queen saw about 100 demonstrators waving Irish flags and signs reading, "Brits Out of Ireland," as she entered a hotel for the reception. She remarked to Seattle Mayor Charles Royer, "Oh, look at the signs. Aren't they interesting?" Royer said.

At Children's Orthopedic Hospital, the queen accepted a cluster of pink rhododendrons, a felt banner showing Puget Sound and the surrounding mountains and a tiny T-shirt commemorating the hospital's 75th anniversary for her grandson, Prince William.

After appearing before about 8,600 people at the university, the royal couple greeted a crowd of more than 4,000 at the Seattle Center, site of the 1962 World's Fair.

Next the queen and prince boarded the city's monorail for a trip of about a mile into downtown Seattle and walked a block to the governor's private reception at the Westin Hotel. Some 400 state dignitaries were feted at the reception featuring ice sculptures, Alaska salmon, shrimp, crab and Washington wines.

The royal yacht docked in Seattle on Monday afternoon to the sound of two 21-gun salutes.

Seattle police officers, who declined to be identified, said the first salute was fired by mistake at a passing freighter, then repeated when the Britannia sailed into port.

Dear Abby

Diagnosis isn't doom

DEAR ABBY: A friend told me that a couple of years ago you ran a letter from a woman who had just learned that she had multiple sclerosis and was debating whether to tell her young daughter, fearing it might upset her. My friend said you responded by printing a very helpful letter from another woman who had faced the same problem. Abby, please find that letter and run it again. I need it because my sister has just been diagnosed as having MS, and she's in the identical situation. Thank you.

CONCERNED SISTER
DEAR SISTER: With pleasure:
DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Prepared for the Worst," the woman with MS (multiple sclerosis) who was told by her doctor that eventually she would be paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair. How right you were to tell her not to accept her doctor's gloomy prognosis. She was debating whether to tell her 13-year-old about her disease in the hope that she might be more cooperative and understanding — yet she didn't want to frighten or upset her younger children.

I think all her children should be told.
She should also contact her local MS society. Members will invite her to meetings, put her in touch with other MS victims and provide her with a lot of helpful information.

"Prepared for the Worst" should also read "The Pursuit of Hope," an excellent and inspiring book by Miriam Ottenberg, a journalist with MS. I know firsthand about MS because I have it, too. My 8-year-old daughter and 11-year-old son were told what I have and how they can help. They are among my greatest assets. Without their help and my husband's constant assurance, I wouldn't be able to do the things I do today. I'm a substitute teacher, Brownie leader, team mom for my son's baseball team and active in my church and PTA.

I manage to keep my home going and keep up a moderately active social life. I realize that someday I could be paralyzed and in a wheelchair. But right now I am not, and I intend to keep my body on its feet and walking. It's a struggle, but it's well worth the effort when I see what I can still accomplish.

PATHERMAN, OXNARD, CALIF.

DEAR PAT: Thank you for a wonderful letter. I received hundreds of letters from those with MS, and all were in complete agreement that no one should expect the worst and resign him/herself to a wheelchair. They also told me that telling the children and asking for their help will bring the family closer together.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter signed "Prime." She's the woman who was reluctant to submit to a premarital sex performance test to be "graded" like a side of beef. Prime has a choice, and it's not good. This fellow is very commercial and there is no utility in keeping him. She should cut and can him.

Sign me... HIGH GRADE

DEAR HIGH: You have a legitimate beef. I would be a pleasure to meat you.

DEAR ABBY: I was married for 28 years, then I got a divorce. He married again but I never did. He just passed away, and I was wondering if I'm a widow now, or am I just a divorcee?

This is very important to me. My husband's wife is still living if that makes a difference.

DALLAS

DEAR DALLAS: You are a divorcee. The woman who was married to your ex-husband at the time of his death is his widow.

Dr. Donohue

Night snack: ulcer no-no

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have an ulcer. I have always been told that food neutralizes the stomach acid, yet my doctor tells me to forget about pre-bedtime snacking. How come? — F.Q.

It's true enough that food does tend to neutralize gastric acid. That's why many people with peptic ulcers may feel relief after eating a meal. But there's a catch to this. At bedtime, there usually has been a long period in which no food has been introduced into the stomach — many hours, in some cases. All of the digestive machinery is on hold, so to speak.

So when you take a small snack at that time, the machinery gets the signal to start up. There's no substantial volume of food to help neutralize the sudden spurt, and an ulcer situation can be aggravated. So the answer is to eat enough at the normal mealtimes so that you can avoid a nighttime snack habit.

As this is as good a time as any to review the whole matter of the different kinds of peptic ulcers. It's always a bit confusing. The two kinds are identified by where they occur in the digestive system. Gastric ulcer is in the stomach, which is what "gastric" means. The other kind of peptic ulcer is "duodenal," because it occurs in the duodenum, the first part of the small intestine as it leaves the stomach.

Gastric ulcers form when the protective mucous lining of the stomach is lost. With that protective shield gone, stomach juices begin digesting the organ.

The loss of protective mucus may come from bile flowing upward from the duodenum. That's just one cause of gastric (stomach) ulcer. Actual overproduction of acid is the chief initiating factor in duodenal ulcer.

Gospel singer to perform Thursday

Mona Lue Tonn, local gospel singer, will perform at the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, NARFE, meeting Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at Kentwood Older Adults Activities Center on Lynn Drive.

Legislative action by Congress which is of interest to federal retirees and employees will be discussed during the meeting.

"LOSING HAIR? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas — For years "they said it couldn't be done." But, now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for "sebum" hair loss, that is not only stopping hair loss but is really growing hair! They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their expense, and see for yourself. Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss. Many conditions can cause hair loss. Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help.

So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

To demonstrate the effectiveness of this treatment, Loesch Laboratory Consultants, 3311 West Main St. Dept. T-2 (Houston, Texas 77098, will supply you with the first 32 days of treatment (regular price $34.15) ... at their expense. All you have to do is agree to give your hair a fair chance, and their treatment a fair trial by using it every day as directed, send them the information listed below, and enclose $5.00 to cover postage and handling charges.

Does your forehead become oily or greasy? How soon after washing? Does your hair pull out easily on the top of head and not the sides? Do you have dandruff? Dry or oily? Any thin areas? Where? Any slick bald areas? Where? All inquires are answered confidentially by mail. ADV.

Don't worry, it's oil in the oil game

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — You gambled everything you had on this last oil lease and it came up a duster. You're indebted to the bank, and you owe more than $100,000 in back taxes.

You're in serious trouble, and the options you have available are all fairly unappetizing. You can ask the local loan shark to bail you out at 30 percent interest; you can put yourself at the mercy of your competitors and sell them your productive leases for whatever they will pay; or you can declare bankruptcy and lose your credit standing forever.

It would be enough to give even the sharpest business person a nervous breakdown — if it weren't only a game.

The game is Oil Baron, invented by Geosource Wireline District Manager David Oliver, and it is on sale by mail order.

"We took all the variables of big business," Oliver said, combining them to make the locally manufactured, locally marketed, oil-business board game.

To open the contest, each player gets a $200,000 bank loan. Note, that's a loan — and players must pay it off to establish a rating for additional credit.

"Nothing is inherited, nothing is given to players for free," Oliver said. "It's just like being in a real business."

Armed with their $200,000, players enter the oil patch — or money markets, or the gold market. The choices belong to the individuals. Players roll dice, advance around the board and land on squares that offer them certain options.

Rolls of dice and turns of cards dictate oil-lease production, prices of oil and gold, prime interest rates and money-market rates.

Every complete trip around the board represents one month. After each player makes 12 laps, the game ends. The player with the most money at the end is the winner. Simple? Don't bet on it. "It's really easy to learn how to play," Oliver said, "but how well you play depends upon how well you know ever letter of Baron's Law."

Baron's Law is the multi-page pamphlet spelling out the game's complex rules that regulate transactions with banks, loan sharks, markets and other players. Like any law, it has loopholes and intricacies that players would do well to understand.

Should players run into disagreement on the interpretation of any part of Baron's Law, Oil Baron furnishes a toll free number participants may call, 24 hours a day, just to settle an argument.

Lee Click of Best Printing Co. is manufacturing the game board, which customers receive in a mailing tube, and Sharon Birmingham of Promotional Services is handling the game's promotion.

Oliver said he turned down a Houston firm's offer to manufacture the game because he believed local concerns expressed more of a personal interest in the product and were willing to begin marketing with a small number of manufactured copies.

"It costs a little more," the inventor said, "but it puts the money back into the community, and that helps everybody."

Early marketing of the game is strictly by mail order, while later marketing will depend upon the game's early success.

Under the mail order marketing plan, persons ordering each 1,000th copy of the first 5,000 receive checks for $1,000 each. This, along with the toll free number, was devised, Oliver said, to establish credibility.

"I want our customers to know that there are real people behind the post-office box," he said.

Cigarettes most widespread example of drug dependence

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new federal publication says cigarette smoking causes more illness and death than all other drugs and is "the most widespread example of drug dependence" in the country.

The anti-smoking pamphlet, titled "Why People Smoke Cigarettes," was released by the Office on Smoking and Health.

"For years smoking was thought of as a habit — a nasty habit," Mark Twain called it," the pamphlet said. "It has now been established that for many smokers it is more than this, that it is, in fact, the most widespread example of drug dependence in our country."

It said cigarettes, smoked by 56 million Americans, are addictive because nicotine "reinforces and strengthens the desire to smoke and causes users to keep on smoking."

The pamphlet comes as the Reagan administration prepares to give Congress its views on legislative proposals to strengthen warnings on cigarette packages.

Dr. Edward Brandt, the assistant health secretary who heads the Public Health Service, testifies Wednesday before the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health.

The administration came under criticism from some health associations and congressmen last year when it flip-flopped on warning labels. After Brandt told a congressional panel that the administration backed a stronger warning, he was forced to retreat when the White House withdrew its support.

A comment on the pamphlet from the Tobacco Institute, the cigarette industry's lobbying group, was not immediately available.

Judy Murphy, a spokeswoman for the Office on Smoking and Health, said that about 30,000 copies of the pamphlet will be made available to the public. The office won't advertise them and will "rely on word getting out through the voluntary organizations," she said.

"It's a stronger characterization of cigarette smoking as a dependence than we have said in the past," she said. "We came to the conclusion that maybe it was time we did."

The pamphlet said alcohol affects 10 million problem drinkers and their families and accounts for half of the nation's automobile fatalities. Among illicit drugs, marijuana is the most widely used. Fewer than 500,000 people use heroin, "but (as) with other opiates it exacts a terrifying toll of crime and social disarray," the pamphlet added.

It said the addictive nature of cigarette smoking causes sales to continue despite public knowledge about the health hazards.

The pamphlet said the immediate effects of inhaling nicotine are "subtle and not catastrophic." But it warned that long-term consequences are produced by "many tobacco-smoke constituents in addition to nicotine. There is evidence to suggest that nicotine is implicated in the onset of heart attacks and that it is a carcinogen, enhancing the tumor-producing effects of cigarette tars.

"Its most important role, however, is its action on the brain and nervous system in helping create dependence," the pamphlet said.

DYING POND — Patrick Reardon, a fisherman in New Hampshire's White Mountains since 1938, stands by frozen Beaver Pond in Woodstock. Officials say the pond has become too acidic to support fish, and blame acid rain. Reardon and townspeople across the state vote this week on a resolution opposing acid rain.

Acid rain a reality here

LINCOLN, N.H. (AP) — Patrick Reardon doesn't climb the 1/2-mile trail from Lincoln to fish at Lonesome Lake anymore. He hasn't since the trout stopped biting 15 years ago.

"You walk up five times and don't get a fish, you say forget it," he says. Reardon thought then it was bad luck that kept trout off his hooks. Now he thinks it's something else — the same thing that made all the fish turn belly up in Beaver Pond, 10 miles away. Something in the rain.

Reardon's awakening has been reflected across New Hampshire, where this week residents will consider a resolution urging Congress to halve smokestack emissions — mostly in the Midwest — that scientists believe fall as acid rain on the Northeast and Canada.

"We never knew what was going on," says Reardon, a fisherman since 1938. "It didn't seem to make sense that something they're doing out in the Midwest would affect our fishing here. But apparently it is."

In most communities, the acid rain resolution will be voted on Tuesday at town meetings. About 60 percent of the state's 920,000 residents live in small towns and thus can vote at town meetings, the 303-year-old ritual of Yankee self-government.

"The support for it (the resolution) has been overwhelming," says Martha Lyman, head of a drive that in seven weeks placed it on town meeting warrants in 193 of the state's 221 towns. "People have just responded to it."

"We've raised this into a national dialogue," adds her associate, Scott Martin. "We've got the presidential candidates talking about it."

But the talk may be too late for Reardon's old fishing hole, its water poisoned.

"I don't think anybody could look ahead and see a disaster coming so plainly," says Deke Towne, the state's chief water pollution biologist, who has been testing the rain since 1972. "We knew back then that something was coming down to acidify the water."

Of 302 New Hampshire lakes and ponds the state has checked since 1975, 40 are acidic, Towne says. Worse, he says, is a sharp drop in alkalinity — the natural buffer against acidity — in nearly every body of water in the state.

"I don't think it's appropriate that the patient die before we declare him seriously ill," says Towne. "We're wearing out our buffer. More and more lakes are becoming acidic."

Towne and Ms. Lyman's Acid Rain Education Project say more than fishing is at stake. They cite studies saying acid rain may kill or stunt trees; corrode buildings and bridges; threaten water supplies; mask vistas in haze; even dull the finish on cars.

The issue could affect the showing of Sen. John Glenn in next year's New Hampshire primary, the nation's first showcase for presidential contenders. The Ohio Democrat, whose state is the Midwest's biggest emitter of sulfur dioxide from coal-burning plants, says more study is needed before emissions from states east of the Mississippi are slashed.

Glenn says studies show that car exhausts also contribute to acid rain, and warns that the cost of smoke-cleaning devices would ruin some industries.

"I want to do whatever is possible to clearly define the problem so we can cut back on those sources," he said in New Hampshire a month ago. "I want us to get a clear picture of what is happening first."

Ms. Lyman contends that Ohio could halve its emissions by installing anti-pollution devices on power plants and disputes utility claims that the cost is prohibitive.

"We're not trying to bring the Midwest to its knees," she says. "We are trying to address the inequities."

Three other Democrats running for president — Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, former Vice President Walter Mondale and Sen. Alan Cranston of California — have favored cutting emissions in half.

David Moore, a political science professor at the University of New Hampshire, says it's unlikely any single issue will decide the primary. "I don't know how salient the issue of acid rain is at this point," he says. "I think you'll have a better idea after you see the towns vote."

But some local officials question what can be accomplished by the resolutions, which were placed on the warrants by petition of at least 10 people in each town.

"I think we've got to solve the problem," says Roger Stewart, chairman of Lincoln's selectmen. "But we're not going to solve it at a town meeting in the little town of Lincoln."

But Ms. Lyman's group says the vote will increase public awareness while strengthening the hand of proponents of acid rain curbs.

"We think it's very much a town issue. Acid rain is falling on every town in the state," says Ms. Lyman. "We can't solve the problem. The only recourse we have is to make our concern known."

Graham pair treated for cyanide poisoning

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Graham man and his young daughter were being treated in separate hospitals Monday for cyanide poisoning, and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration was attempting to determine the source.

William Hill, 52, was in fair condition at Harris Hospital while his daughter, Brenda, 9, was reported in good condition at Fort Worth Children's Hospital.

Medical officials said the child had a higher level of cyanide in her blood than her father when she arrived at the Harris emergency room Friday.

She was transferred from Graham General Hospital where she was diagnosed originally as suffering from any of several deadly viral infections.

While in the emergency room, she suffered cardiac arrest, according to Dr. James Harper.

"She was in very poor condition when she came," Harper said. "The symptoms could very easily be confused with encephalitis, meningitis or a general infection. Her blood pressure was at the shock level."

As doctors in Fort Worth worked to keep her condition from deteriorating, her father was taken to Graham General with what first was believed to be a heart attack.

Hill, transferred here Friday by helicopter, arrived in a "semi-conscious condition," a spokesman said.

Horace Hamilton, the hospital's toxicologist, discovered elevated traces of cyanide in the blood of both victims.

Ted Rotto, chief FDA investigator in Dallas, said the FDA was checking into possible sources of the poisoning.

"From all outward appearances, it doesn't look like tampering," Rotto said. "However, we're going to check it very quickly and closely. If we err, we want to err on the side of caution. Our laboratory will be checking pharmaceuticals, screening them for heavy metals and cyanide."

The daughter was described as being in "life-threatening" condition when she arrived at Harris. She was transferred later Friday to Fort Worth Children's Hospital.

Though a spokesman reported her condition as good, he said Monday she was still "not neurologically back to normal."

Want to be a Hell's Angel ...

WASHINGTON (AP) — It takes far more than a Harley-Davidson superhog and a thirst for beer to become a Hell's Angel.

The nation's most famous outlaw gang has a rigorous, violent rite of passage a man must complete before he's awarded his "colors" — the death's-head patch.

And even then, the testing continues. A new Angel has six months to kill or be killed, according to "Butch," a former gang leader from Cleveland who told the Senate Judiciary Committee about the birth of an outlaw biker.

The veracity of his testimony could not be determined. Law enforcement officials have told Senate panels recently that outlaw bikers must prove themselves through crime, but "Butch" was the only witness mentioning mandatory murder.

"Butch," who was not further identified, is now in prison for a murder on an Angel rumble in 1974. He went into the federal witness protection program when he quit the Angels and became an informant in 1981.

His testimony, under oath, outlined the following procedures for becoming an Angel: First, the man — the Angels have no women members — must meet basic qualifications:

be at least 21 years old, white and own a Harley-Davidson motorcycle. If he's accepted by one of the Angels' 33 U.S. and 18 foreign chapters, he becomes a "mudcheck."

To move from this bottom rung, he must survive "a lot of fighting," routine assaults by two or three Angels out to test his mettle. He said those who survive become "hangers-around."

"He can come into the clubhouse and do flunky work," said the witness. Anywhere from three months to a year later, chapter members vote. Three blackballs and he's out.

"They beat him up, take his motorcycle away and run him off," the committee was told. If he's accepted, he becomes a "prospect."

"They work 24 hours a day," the witness said, cleaning members' bikes, running errands, standing armed guard overnight at the clubhouse and doing anything an Angel tells them — including committing crimes. Law enforcement agents say this requirement virtually prevents infiltration of outlaw gangs.

The "prospect" phase can last from six months to five years before a unanimous vote of the chapter adds a new name to the 500 to 600 that law enforcement officials say comprise the Angels' roster.

For initiation, "there's usually a big party — drinking and fighting," according to "Butch."

The new Angel must get a tattoo with the club name and death's-head logo, pay $500 into the chapter's bail bond fund and perform another task known as "rolling your bones."

"The new member has six months to kill someone," said "Butch." The name of the victim, often a rival outlaw gang member, is supplied by the chapter's intelligence officer.

"If they renege on that, then they're killed," testified "Butch."

The rewards of being an Angel are great, he said, adding that two or three Angels are reputed to be millionaires from dealing drugs, especially methamphetamines.

The goal of a biker, he said, is to live well without worrying about a regular job. Women, he added, are a means to this end.

He said Angels pick up runaway teenagers, using some for their pleasure and putting others to work as prostitutes and topless dancers — taking the money they earn.

Office Olympics in three-piece suits

CHICAGO (AP) — If the business of America is business, why would office workers practice the secret triple-fold technique, chant over small paper wads and cultivate sweaty feet?

The answer is simple: They are training for next year's office Olympics, hoping to learn the methods of masters like 34-year-old architect Ken Abrams, who carried off the gold medal Friday in the Paper Airplane Fly event of the 1983 competition.

Abrams, who admits learning the secret triple-fold technique "at the knee of my big brother," hit his boss with paper airplanes three of five times from 20 feet. And he was just one of five champions to emerge from a field of 50 contestants gathered at a Loop hotel to battle for honors in the inaugural Office Olympics competition.

Another medalist, Kitty Kingston, 35, owner of a Near North Side public relations firm, won the Waste Paper Basketball event by sinking nine of 13 attempts.

Her key to victory: "Wad the paper into a small ball without air pockets and chant over it." Linda Rutkowski, 25, who works in the bond department of Near North Insurance, credited her triumph in the Speed Swivel Chair Spin — 24 revolutions in 30 seconds — to "fancy foot peddling and sweaty feet."

The Olympics was the brainchild of Evanston mail order consultant Meir Sered, 39, who said he began his career in waste-paper basketball at the age of 11 because his Jewish theological schools lacked athletic programs.

"This is a chance for them to excel in those obsessive sports they carry on at work each day while the boss is looking the other way," said Sered.

"This is for those sedentary athletes who refuse to jog or go into weight training, or who never got an athletic letter in high school, or who refuse to send their 6-year-olds to camp for the summer," he told a cheering crowd gathered for the matches.

Nearly 100 bosses, secretaries and other office workers paid 87 cents each to watch the events, kicked off with a drum-and-bugle duet and an Olympic time-card torch ceremony.

Another of the Olympics whose training paid off was Karen Simonaitis, 33, an admissions representative at Chicago's Career Academy who won the Coffee-Cup Carry. She ran the official 25-foot course with three full cups in six seconds, which must have seemed easy after her training regimen of running up and down her driveway for 45 minutes with an armload of coffee cups.

The final event was won by Hyacinth Wellington, 20, a computer operator at Time Inc., who topped the Hat Rack Toss by ringing five of seven attempts.

She pledged to be back next year and said that until then, she will be "throwing hats everywhere to train for the test."

Panthers stall Stallions by slim edge

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Coach Jim Stanley had no trouble describing the United States Football League debut of his Michigan Panthers and the Birmingham Stallions, and neither did the 38,352 fans.

"It was a good defensive game first and foremost," Stanley said after the Panthers defeated Birmingham 9-7 on three field goals by Novo Bojovic, two for 49 yards and one for 48.

The hometown fans had only one chance to cheer, when Birmingham quarterback Reggie Collier skirted right end on a bootleg keeper for the game's only touchdown.

Other than that, the most cheering occurred before the kickoff when a parachutist delivered the game ball at midfield.

All the scoring occurred in the first half although Birmingham threatened twice after the intermission. Scott Norwood missed a 27-yard field goal attempt on the first play of the fourth period and later Birmingham drove from its 39 to the Michigan 32 but linebacker Ray Bentley intercepted at the 19.

Bentley was a main reason it was a good defensive game. He had another interception and led his team in tackles with 10.

Linebacker Larry McPherson of Birmingham had 12 tackles and the Stallions' Mike Raines sacked Michigan quarterback Bobby Hebert twice.

"Any win is a good win," Stanley said, calling it "a good football game for both sides."

Coach Rollie Dotsch of Birmingham, however, said, "The disappointment is very severe."

He noted that the Stallions "had several opportunities to win but we failed to take advantage of those opportunities. We will get better. I am confident of that."

Although Collier was the heralded quarterback, Hebert came out better in the air, hitting on 11 of 20 tosses for 131 yards with no interceptions. Collier connected on 6 of 14 for 49 yards and had three picked off. He led Birmingham's runners with 76 yards on 13 carries.

Michigan's Tony Ellis got 74 yards on 20 carries.

The Panthers' No. 1 draft pick, wide receiver Anthony Carter, picked up nine yards on an end-around and returned one punt for 16 yards. He caught no passes.

In the league's other opening games, all on Sunday, it was Boston 21, Tampa Bay 17; Chicago 28, Washington 7; Philadelphia 13, Denver 7; Los Angeles 20, New Jersey 15, and Oakland 24, Arizona 0.

FIVE YARD STRETCH — Birmingham Stallions running back Kenneth Talton gets five yards through the middle. Michigan Panthers noseguard Dave Tipton makes the stop with help from Wes Roberts.

SMU, Tech survive first round...barely

TRYING FOR TWO — University of Texas forward Mike Bond (54) looks for an opening to attempt a shot while being closely guarded by Southern Methodist University center Jon Konack during first period action in Dallas. SMU won 49-48

By The Associated Press Southern Methodist and Texas Tech will meet in the Southwest Conference Post-Season Basketball Tournament quarterfinals Thursday night, but there were times in their first-round games that they weren't sure they'd make it.

The Mustangs survived two ice-cold shooting spells and relied on freshman Carl Wright's two free throws and a short jump shot in the final two minutes for a 49-48 victory over Texas.

Texas Tech struggled all the way in Lubbock to nip the Baylor Bears 57-55 and earn a trip to Dallas, where the tournament will be played out in Reunion Arena.

"I thought our guys really came out at the start of the first half ready to play," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "They wanted to get to the tournament really bad."

In the other first round game, Texas Christian's "Killer Frogs" slew the Rice Owls 74-49 and will meet Texas A&M next Thursday at 7 p.m. The SMU-Tech game will follow.

"I think that was the best team game we've played in a long time," said TCU coach Jim Killingsworth. "We ran the offense well, we passed the ball and those are the things we really haven't been doing lately."

The Mustangs, who had finished fourth in the SWC regular season, went almost 13 minutes without a basket during stretches of the first and second half.

SMU Coach Dave Bliss said the Longhorns' ability to slow the pace — the 45-second shot clock is not being used in tournament games — helped keep Texas in the game.

"The shot clock changed the whole style of play," said Bliss.

SMU guard Butch Moore said "The (lack of a) shot clock made all the difference. Texas really made it work for them. They played their game. They outthusted us."

•The Big Spring High Steers meet the Snyder Tigers in a 4 p.m. non-district game at Steer Park. Left-hander Jinx Valenzuela is the probable starter for the Steers. Snyder is 2-1. No starter had been set at press time.

Big Spring is coming off a championship finish in the annual District 4-AAAAA tournament. The Steers whipped Abilene 8-6, outscored Midland High 17-15 and tripped San Angelo 7-3 in the finals as Adam Rodriguez tossed a six-hitter.

Right fielder Tom Cudd, second baseman Matt Warren, first baseman Danny Arista and center fielder Jay Pirkle each have two home runs on the early season.

Valenzuela tossed the victory over Abilene in the tournament. Big Spring is 3-1 for the season, winning three straight since an opening two-run at Andrews.

Cougars keep claws on No. 1 rank

By The Associated Press Houston, Virginia and Louisville held onto the top three spots today in The Associated Press' next-to-last college basketball poll, while UCLA climbed from sixth place to fourth — only to lose its next game — and defending national champion North Carolina jumped from eighth to fifth.

The Houston Cougars, who defeated Arkansas and Baylor last week, received 43 of 52 first-place votes and 1,030 of a possible 1,040 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

The other nine first-place ballots went to Virginia, which defeated Wake Forest and Maryland and received 987 points.

Louisville disposed of Murray State and Virginia Tech before going into overtime to nip Memphis State and preserve its No. 3 ranking. The Cardinals received 919 points.

UCLA, which knocked off Washington last week, received 837 points. But the Bruins were upended 70-68 Monday night by Washington State. North Carolina climbed to fifth with 739 points by trouncing Georgia Tech and Duke.

Last week's No. 4 teams, Villanova and Arkansas, fell to 13th and sixth, respectively. Villanova lost to Syracuse, while Arkansas was beaten by Houston. However, Arkansas, Houston and ninth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas are the only major college teams with only two losses.

Houston tops SWC team

DALLAS (AP) - Guy Lewis had the flu Monday but he got some news that made him feel a little better. He was named The Associated Press 1982-83 Southwest Conference Basketball Coach of the year in voting by his peers for the Houston Cougars' runaway championship season.

Three of his players made the first team. Houston posted a regular season record of 25-2 and defeated 16 consecutive SWC opponents for the Cougars' first unblemished league season.

The Cougars' won their first SWC title and have now captured 24 SWC games in a row, tying an all-time record.

Houston can set a new record Friday night in the semi-finals of the SWC post-season tournament in Dallas against an undetermined opponent.

Also, No. 1 ranked Houston has 20 consecutive victories, longest streak in the nation.

One Cougar made the second All-SWC team team, and one was on the All-Newcomer team.

Also, the co-offensive Player of the Year was Houston's Michael Young, who shared the honor with Arkansas' Darrell Walker.

The Cougars placed the following players on the first team: the 6-6 Young, who averaged 17.8 points; seven-foot sophomore center Akeem (Th Dream) Olajuwon, who averaged 12 points, 11 rebounds and had 135 blocked shots, and 6-7 Clyde (The Glide) Drexler, who averaged 17.3 points per game.

Young and Drexler are juniors and Olajuwon is only a sophomore.

Arkansas' Walker, a 6-4 senior who averaged 18 points and three steals per game, was also first team All-SWC along with Texas Christian's classy senior guard, Darrell Browder, who averaged 16.5 points per contest.

Walker was named The Defensive Player of the Year for the second consecutive season.

The second team included 6-9 senior Larry Micheaux of Houston; 6-10 senior Claude Riley of Texas A&M; 5-10 sophomore guard Bubba Jennings of Texas Tech, and two Razorbacks, junior guard Alvin Robertson and 6-11 sophomore center Joe Kleine.

The fiery Kleine, a transfer from Notre Dame who sat out a year, was named the SWC Newcomer of the Year.

Franklin of Houston, Butch Moore of SMU, and Texas Aggies' Kenny (Downtown) Brown and center Jimmie Gilbert.

China Long Wins The Anson Jones Award For The Third Consecutive Year

For the best in local news coverage, keep your dial on 1490, KBST, the consistent award winning news station. You expect more from KBST and you get it.

THE AWARD The Anson Jones Award of the Texas Medical Association is presented annually to the media of Texas for excellence in communicating health information to the public. The award in each of the nine categories consists of a framed certificate and a $500 cash prize. Citations of Merit also may be awarded. Since its beginning in 1957, the award has recognized journalism that contributes to a better public understanding of medicine and health in Texas.

ANSON JONES, MD Anson Jones, a pioneer Texas physician, served the Republic of Texas with distinction as a member of Congress, secretary of state, and as its last president. He was responsible for establishing the first regulations concerning the practice of medicine in Texas. He also urged the formation of an "Association of Physicians of the Republic of Texas for the promotion and general diffusion of medical knowledge." Throughout his life, Jones was a prolific writer and his book, "Republic of Texas, shows his keen intellect, his literary style and his devotion to journalistic award is named in his honor.

Man convicted of failure to register begins sentence

SALEM, Va. (AP) — Enten Eller, the college student who was the first person convicted of failing to register for the standby draft, will begin two years of court-ordered, unpaid service at a Veterans Administration hospital in July. Conditions of the service were spelled out in an order signed last week by U.S. District Court Judge James C. Turk, who unsuccessfully tried to force Eller to register with the Selective Service System. Eller, 21, is scheduled to graduate in June from Bridgewater College, a Church of the Brethren school in northwest Virginia's Rockingham County. Eller, 21, is an honor student and a devout member of the church. Jonathan Rogers, one of Eller's lawyers, said

Eller will do a variety of work at the large VA Medical Center, including assisting with cancer research and working in the center's laundry and kitchen. Eller is a straight-A student in math and physics and has said he hopes to become a Brethren minister one day. Turk's order said Eller would begin service July 5 and end it July 4, 1985.

He will receive room and board from the VA but no pay and will be given 12 days of leave a year. Turk ordered the VA to provide medical treatment for minor problems and provide workman's compensation coverage, but he also told Eller to arrange his own health insurance. Eller has known since a hearing last December that he would have to perform alternative service.

Houston man shoots woman in church

HOUSTON (AP) — A man apparently distraught that his girlfriend had joined a church, shoved his way into the church and shot the woman in the head as about 1,000 horrified worshippers watched.

Witnesses said the man whispered something in the woman's ear, then put the gun to her head and pulled the trigger. He then laughed and tried to shoot himself, but was restrained by an off-duty policeman in the next pew, authorities said.

Cynthia Handy, 25, was listed in critical condition at Hermann Hospital Monday, following the shooting as she stood to sing a hymn Sunday evening at the Life Tabernacle Church.

The man later tried to hang himself in his jail cell with his socks and was taken to a psychiatric ward for observation, Detective Mike Lewellen said.

Detective D. B. Osterberg said the man forced his way into the center aisle just a few feet from the pulpit as the congregation stood to sing a hymn.

After shooting Ms. Handy, Osterberg said, "He put the gun to his head and hesitated and was bringing it down to his side when several people grabbed him and took it away from him."

Pam Valentine, 16, who was standing across the aisle from the victim, said the suspect waved his pistol and laughed after shooting Ms. Handy.

Miss Valentine's mother, Julie Valentine, said Ms. Handy had recently joined the church and that her boyfriend was upset about her attending the church.

"This morning (Sunday) someone told our pastor he (the gunman) had threatened to kill her because he didn't like her being in the Pentecostal Church," Mrs. Valentine said.

Lewellen said church beliefs had caused friction between the couple.

He doesn't take excuses for missing church

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Rev. David Harms of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church has decided to get tough with those of his congregation who are quick with excuses for missing Sunday services.

Sunday was "No Excuse Sunday" at Prince of Peace, and they weren't kidding.

For those who complain about hard pews, the church provided pillows. For those who like to sleep late, there were cots, and there was a first aid station for small but incapacitating injuries.

Harms said the event was only partly in fun. "It's a tremendous spoof on what is otherwise a serious subject," he said.

Some people claim "the church roof would fall in if I ever went to church," Harms said, so hard hats were provided.

One favorite excuse is that the sermon is too loud, so the church provided earplugs. Hearing aids were available for those who claim the sermon is too quiet.

Anyone tempted to skip church for outdoor pursuits found fishing poles and a small pond filled with duck decoys. There was also a putting green equipped with golf clubs and balls.

Pam and Scott Wallin got into the spirit by showing up for church in pajamas, robes and slippers with blankets and pillows in hand.

Wallin said it's easy to "take a little later on Sunday so we just rolled out of bed and came anyway — as is."

Car City Auto: for sales and service

Car City Auto, on FM 700, is much more than a used car lot. They do sell used cars, but they also provide top-notch car repair services — available to both their car-sale customers and the general public. It is the only used car lot in town with this to offer.

Owned and operated by Tony Ginnetti and Jim Stewart, Car City Auto has two full-time, General Motors-qualified mechanics on duty. They do work on foreign cars, diesel engines, and all American cars and trucks.

Services include tune ups, brake work, electrical service, work on the air conditioning, complete overhauls and transmission service.

"We do free estimates before work," Tony Ginnetti said. "We have all the latest engine analyzing equipment to cut out unnecessary replacement of parts. It tells you what's wrong like just like that. There's no hunt and peck."

Ginnetti, who was with Pollard Chevrolet for 7 years, said all replaced parts are returned to the customer.

In their sales department, Car City Auto handles late-model used cars. They give a 12,000-mile, 1-year warranty and furnish the previous owner's name and address.

Car City is open Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. It is located on FM 700 between Goliad and Birdwell, next to La Contesa Beauty Salon. The phone number is 267-4151 or 267-4152.
