

Felecia Ford wins Miss San Angelo contest

SAN ANGELO — Big Spring's Felecia Ford defeated the hometown competition and was crowned Miss San Angelo here Saturday night.

The 18-year-old Big Spring High School student is now eligible for the Miss Texas Pageant to be held in Fort Worth this summer.

If she wins there she will compete against 49 other young women in the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City.

"I feel the best I've ever felt in my life," Miss Ford told the press after being crowned. "I hope I can represent San Angelo to the best of my abilities at the Miss Texas pageant."

Miss Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V.P. Dunbar of 424 Edwards and Roy Ford of 1308 Princeton, was named America's Perfect

Teen 1983 on Sept. 19 in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

But that pageant's officials allowed her to rearrange her appearance schedule so that she could compete in the Miss San Angelo and Miss Texas pageants, according to Mrs. Dunbar.

This is the first year the Miss San Angelo contest has been open to surrounding communities. Miss Ford defeated seven other young women, five from San Angelo, one from Brownwood and one from Georgetown.

Death penalty condemned

Legislator says Texas 'lacks guts' to carry it out effectively

AUSTIN (AP) — As a West Texas district attorney, John T. Montford had a no-nonsense, law-and-order reputation. He was known as John T. 99 for a long string of 99-year sentences doled out in cases he prosecuted.

But now Mr. 99 is Sen. Montford, D-Lubbock, and, as a "frustrated ex-prosecutor," he is looking for alternatives to the death sentence. Not because he opposes it, but because he thinks Texas lacks the guts to execute the people it sentences to die.

"I don't know that society is willing to carry it out," said Montford. "I'm about ready to say, 'What the hell, nobody's going to carry it out anyway.'"

For the first time since 1964, Texas has a capital punishment law that has resulted in an execution. Last December, convicted murderer Charlie Brooks Jr. of Fort Worth was the nation's first criminal executed by injection.

The Brooks death could focus closer attention on two House members' long-standing efforts to change the death sentence law. Both are offering a new twist this year — life in prison without the possibility of parole.

"If the Legislature were to give an alternative, such as life without parole, we would see a lot less executions, or perhaps we wouldn't see any executions any more," said death penalty foe Rep. Joe Hernandez, D-San Antonio.

Hernandez and Sam Hudson, D-Dallas, have filed separate bills which would accomplish the same

MOPAC depot to stay open, officials claim

Big Spring's Missouri Pacific railroad depot has experienced a "temporary forced reduction" of about 16 employees, but there are no plans to close the station, according to a railroad company spokesman in St. Louis.

The reduction involved two train crews, two clerks and two car inspectors, company spokesman Harry Hammer said.

"This is a result of long, continued slow traffic on the line," he said. "It is reflecting the recession. These positions will be returned when the level of business grows."

E.N. Craven, trainmaster at the Big Spring station, said that the reductions have taken place over a period of six months. He said rumors of the station closing are "erroneous."

"There's no talk of that," he said.

"Hard times are being felt by every industry in the country and its being felt here."

Craven said it is impossible to judge how the recession has affected the total number of employees because so many workers from different departments "come and go" at the station.

The Missouri Pacific public relations officer in Dallas could not be reached for comment.

Ray Grasshoff with the Texas Railroad Commission information office in Austin said Missouri Pacific has filed applications to discontinue 19 regular depots since January of 1982.

The commission has approved the closing of five of those stations, including depots at Sherman and Denton, he said. One application has been disallowed, Grasshoff said.

No application has been filed for the Big Spring depot, he said.

CHINESE CUISINE — A capacity crowd filled the Brass Nail Club last night to support the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center annual benefit.

About 550 people attended "A Night in Chinatown," comprised of an oriental dinner, a dance, an art show and an auction.

Hundreds turn out for benefit art sale

Big Spring turned out about 550 of its finest last night at the annual benefit for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Everybody who's anybody in town attended the combination Chinese dinner, dance, art show and auction that comprised one of the biggest social events in Big Spring this year. Benefit organizers converted the Brass Nail Club into an oriental world with a huge paper mache dragon, paper umbrellas, kites and lanterns and hostesses dressed in kimonos.

Guests rushed into the club to escape the cold weather and were welcomed at the entrance with cups full of hot saki. Even before 7 p.m., when the dinner was to begin, the club was filled to capacity. By 9 p.m. only about a third of the crowd had served themselves to the egg rolls, fruit, vegetables and meat at the banquet table.

Chefs said they originally set up for 400, however they fed the large crowd well. Coordinator Joyce Wash said the benefit was a "great success" and that 600 tickets were sold for the event.

"A Night in Chinatown" was held in conjunction with the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center Community Week. Local businesses donated everything from a fishing rod to a 14 karat gold ring with ruby, diamond and sapphire sets to be sold in the auction.

Top-name artists from throughout the Southwest showed their paintings at the benefit. Bronze sculptures, landscape and Western paintings nestled in several areas of the club for guests to admire.

The following items were among those donated to the auction.

$50 gift certificate, Smallwoods Western Wear. Western blazer, Hillman's Saddlery. Ladies' or men's Western boots. Morgans. Western hat, Ward's Western and Saddle Shop. Custom designed stained glass. Design place, custom designed stained glass, David Clinkscales. Six hand-made Afghans. Dora Roberts employees: two round-trip tickets to Los Angeles, Muse Airlines. Davis says fire officials cleared of misconduct

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Fire Department administration has been cleared of any misconduct in the questioning of employees about alleged criminal activities within the department, City Manager Don Davis said Friday.

Ten firemen were questioned by Big Spring police in mid-February about alleged illegal "bookmaking" by a fireman while on duty in a city fire station. Several of the firemen complained that they had been led to believe their jobs were in danger if they did not make statements.

Friday's news release from the city manager said, "Today the City completed its investigation into the complaints, comments and accusations that were raised about the fire administration over the last couple of weeks. Police Chief Rick Turner coordinated this effort.

"The investigation revealed that the allegations about the fire administration were groundless and untrue. However, Fire Chief Jim Ryals and Fire Marshall Carl Doran stated that they wanted to make sure this matter was cleared up once and for all, and each of them insisted on taking a polygraph examination (lie detector test). Therefore, they went to San Angelo and took the test. The polygraph results showed that neither of these men threatened any firemen, forced or coerced anyone to make statements or misused his position.

"At this point in time I am completely satisfied with these findings

City council, school board candidates quizzed on issues

School Board

	MELVIN BERRY	BILL BROOKS	DAVID HUFF	MARGARET GILSTRAP	CAROL HUNTER (Incumbent)	GILBERT PADILLA	DAN WISE	AL VALDES (Incumbent)	CHESTNUT BROWN JR.
1. How do you feel about busing to achieve racial balance in the BSISD?	At present busing does not appear to be a viable alternative to racial equality, since we are not busing and not achieving this equality.	Limited voluntary busing may be necessary to achieve racial balance but if a child wishes to attend school in his own neighborhood he should be allowed to do so.	I am an advocate of the neighborhood school concept. School buses are for utilization of a means of safe transportation of our children. I am morally opposed to segregation of races but do not feel school buses are the answer.	I do not believe in forced busing for any reason.	I have voted to uphold the neighborhood school concept. We rectified imbalance by our closing and reorganizing schools, 1977, and with the consent decree.	Racial balance has not been achieved in the BSISD by busing when you have Bauer 97 percent minority, so let's make it work right.	I have never been comfortable with the use of busing to achieve racial balance. Busing can be an effective tool, but it can also have negative results.	I don't believe in busing for racial balance. Busing hasn't worked, nobody likes it and we are wasting millions of dollars that are not improving education at all.	I am for neighborhood schools for safety reasons, but I am also for strong and equal education for all our children.
2. What is your opinion of the recent consent decree that made Bauer Elementary a magnet school?	If the magnet school brings out the creativity and enthusiasm toward school in our children, then it is an asset we need to make full use of.	The magnet school idea seems good but will need to be tested in our particular situation to determine its effectiveness.	The magnet school concept is good in two aspects: parental voluntary consent to utilize Bauer in their child's educational program and a broadening of available classes as electives for our children.	I think this was the best route to take, for it eliminated forced busing. Under the magnet school, attendance is voluntary not mandatory.	The consent decree is an opportunity to improve elementary education. The Board and its attorneys were fortunate to obtain this settlement. It must work.	I like the idea of the program for that school. But it's going to take the community to work together to make it successful.	I believe the city, school district and board should support the magnet school project. With good teachers and a strong curriculum it should be a great asset to the children and the community.	This not the best solution, but it's the best offer that we have and if we get our accreditation from the justice department as a non-discriminatory school and stop mandatory busing, we could utilize that money in the classroom a whole lot better.	This program has been introduced in other schools in the United States. I feel it will benefit a few children and will be short-lived.
3. What is your stance on discipline in the schools and how would you implement a discipline policy?	At present the in-school suspension (ISS) now used is the best working solution towards discipline in our schools.	Consistent discipline must be maintained with equality and fairness to all individuals. Policies should be agreed upon by all teachers, administrators and school personnel.	Our young people need discipline as an element of character development in their formative years. Our society is based on rules and compliance to them and without it, anarchy would prevail.	Firm discipline should be implemented, with teachers handling minor offenses. The principal would handle serious or repeat offenders, using suspension and expulsion in extreme cases.	Discipline is necessary for quality education. The Board makes policy; administration implements policy. We have good policies, and are proud of the job our administrators do, often under difficult circumstances.	First discipline starts at home, then let our school officials set their guidelines at our schools, and enforce them to the letter, without discrimination.	I am in favor of an effective, consistent discipline policy. I believe the current discipline policy in our schools is a good one, and I will support the administration in this area.	The schools have a good discipline policy and dress code right now. If the government leaves us alone, we would be better off in implementing it.	Discipline is needed in order for the educational system to work effectively. Any discipline policy should include reviewing and counseling.
4. Are you in favor of social promotion through the grades, or would you require students to pass basic competency tests?	Basic competency tests allow for better preparation of the students to function either in the job market or the college classroom.	Social promotion may be necessary in some cases but should be noted on certificates of graduation and school records.	Nothing is gained by social promotion, the child as well as our society become mutual losers. Our schools are not and must not be babysitters. A high school diploma must mean something.	I would require basic competency tests for promotion. Without the basics having been learned as the children advance through school, we will graduate illiterate children.	We do not social promote. One must understand, however, that it would be unrealistic to hold students with special learning problems back year after year. We offer a comprehensive program with opportunities to learn and achieve at various levels.	I would require the students to take a basic competency test. That way we will know in what subject they need help on.	I support promotion by passing competency tests. Only under certain circumstances would I favor social promotion. Retention should be done in the first or second grade. Parents need to support the teacher and administration in this policy.	I am not in favor of social promotion. Students should pass grades when they achieve all the requirements and if they are ready then they should not hesitate to take a test.	I am for testing, as long as they are not used to prove superiority between different cultures and social classes.
5. What is the proper balance between athletics and academics in the Big Spring school district.	Academics is the least that we owe to our students and takes precedence over anything else. If a student so chooses athletics can be part of a well rounded education.	Academics are of first and major importance but in most instances athletics are a complement to good education.	Both physical and academic development are important in a child's development. School's primary function, along with the parents, is the education of our children. High academic standards must prevail and academic achievement must be a prerequisite to athletic participation in our schools.	In my opinion the academic should be attained before a student is allowed to participate in any athletic function.	The Board and administrators have made major moves in both directions, and have a good balance for our resources and funds available. People will never agree on the ever-discussed "proper balance."	For any student to participate in any kind of sport, they must be academically sound to be in sports.	I believe there is a good balance between academics and athletics in the Big Spring school district. Academics should always come first, but a good athletic program is also essential. Athletics plays an important role in developing the whole person, as well as providing students an avenue for continued education.	We put academics first, but I believe that a healthy physical body makes better students and helps the discipline problem. Academics and athletics go side by side.	I am for a larger percentage of academics. A small percentage of athletics is also needed. Many times they stimulate students toward academic achievements.

Rape, assault reported

Police say a Hispanic female reported an attempted rape and assault early Saturday morning.

The woman, who lives on West Fifth Street, told police a subject she knows tried to rape her and hit her several times in the stomach at 1:20 a.m. Saturday.

The woman was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital.

• Vernon Smith of Vernon's Liquor told police someone broke into his business at 602 Gregg Street between 9 p.m. Friday and 2:13 a.m. Saturday. Reports indicate someone broke a $200 window with a rock and took seven bottles of whiskey valued at $34.07 from the shelves in the store.

• John Howard of 1509 E. 11th Street reported someone stole 3 wheels and tires worth $240 from his 1980 Chevrolet Thursday night.

• George Montgomery of K-Wollens Store at 311 S. Main told police three black females entered his store Thursday at 1 p.m. and took 4 men's suits worth $200. Montgomery said two of the women kept his wife occupied while a third walked out of the store with the suits.

thing. Jurors in capital cases would have three punishment choices instead of two. In addition to a life or death sentence, jurors could choose life without parole.

Under a regular life sentence, inmates are eligible for parole in 20 years.

Hernandez and Hudson also have filed bills to abolish the death penalty, but they acknowledge those bills have little chance to pass.

The life-without-parole alternative has caught Montford's eye. "To force the death penalty, but if we're not going to have the guts to the investigation of Hamilton, he said.

According to Davis, one of those questioned said he felt his job had been threatened.

Ryals and Dorton were taken to San Angelo for the polygraph test because Big Spring does not have a polygraph machine, Davis said. He said the testing was done by a captain with the San Angelo Police Department who operates a polygraph business on the side.

San Angelo police Capt. Johnny

Benives could not be reached at his home or at his business, Angelo Polygraph, to confirm the testing.

On March 10 a criminal case against Fire Department Lt. Keith Hamilton for illegal gambling promotion was alleged to District Attorney Rick Hamby as a result of the original investigation. Ryals fired Hamilton on the same day.

Hamby said last week that he was retaking statements from five witnesses to determine whether to file charges against Hamilton.

do that, then it's time to look at the alternatives."

Montford said it's "difficult to put a finger on" the reason society seems to want a death penalty, but not executions.

"Even in very conservative, hardline West Texas, I've seen those juries melt on that death penalty question. I still support it. I think it should be carried out. But it's apparent to me that my views don't coincide with society," he said.

Defense lawyers support the life-without-parole option on the grounds that jurors make mistakes.

"The principal problem is why fix it with the death penalty? I don't think it's broken at this time," said Hollums.

Inmate says medical treatment denied her

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — A nurse who claims she had a heart attack in jail says authorities denied pain medication to her and to her jailed son, who is recovering from hand surgery.

Maxine Walcott, 59, who also says she has bone cancer, claimed Tom Green County Jail employees also refused to let her son have reading materials.

"None of it is true," said Capt. Norman Fisher, head of the jail.

Mrs. Walcott and her 63-year-old husband Howard were jailed last week on a charge of hindering apprehension in connection with the escape of their son.

Leslie Clay Walcott, 30, allegedly walked out of Angelo Community Hospital's recovery room while on trusty status from the jail, authorities said.

We put academics first, but I believe that a healthy physical body makes better students and helps the discipline problem. Academics and athletics go side by side.

I am for a larger percentage of academics. A small percentage of athletics is also needed. Many times they stimulate students toward academic achievements.

Nuke protestors kneel before train; eight are arrested

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — About 25 nuclear freeze advocates gathered around a train they believed was carrying nuclear warheads Saturday, and eight protestors were arrested after they knelt in train's path, police said.

Earlier Saturday, in Denver, about 15 people protesting the train's movement through populated areas sang songs and hoisted protest signs around the Burlington Northern freight train as it stopped in a station to change engines and crews. Two people were arrested in Denver on obstruction charges, police said.

The protestors in Fort Collins were members of a group known as Poudre Nuclear Freeze and those in Denver were affiliated with the Catholic Worker, a group that gives aid to the poor.

The train, en route to Washington state, also was to pass Saturday night through Casper, Wyo., where a silent vigil was planned by about 25 members of the Citizens for Sensible Defense.

Federal and railroad officials declined Saturday to say if the train was carrying nuclear warheads.

Mike Wenniger, media relations manager for the Burlington Northern Railroad in St. Paul, Minn., said the railroad has a contract with the U.S. Department of Energy to transport classified cargo from Amarillo, Texas, to a Trident nuclear submarine base in Bangor, Wash. He declined to say whether any such shipment was made Friday.

Ben McCarty, spokesman for the Department of Energy office in Albuquerque, N.M., said, "The cargo is classified and I cannot comment on it. I can say generally that these shipments carry nuclear weapons, nuclear weapons components or special nuclear materials."

He would not say how often the trips are made or comment on their routing — but he did say "that's our train."

Bill Durland, organizer of a demonstration in Colorado Springs, said the number of protestors statewide came to about 50, including small groups in Pueblo, La Junta, Las Animas, and Rocky Ford.

"We plan to make this a regular event, whenever we can find out when the trains are going through these tracks," said Durland.

1. What, in your opinion, is the major problem facing Big Spring?	Unemployment and lack of opportunity.	Only to the extent that it will profit from any help administered.	City government should have a bond issue to restore it to help get the downtown area active, or raze it to make way for new business.	The city can grant incentives such as making industrial revenue bonds available. The city should not get involved directly in the financing of a project.	Assist anyone by helping in tax exempt bonds. Cooperating within areas of our jurisdiction.	The Settles Hotel is a part of Big Spring's history and should not only be restored, but made eligible for use by citizens of Big Spring.
2. To what extent should city government be involved in the restoration of the Settles Hotel?	It is not an economically viable project at this time. Existing hotel-motel business is down 30-40% from last year.	The city council and city manager should work for Big Spring not have the city council work for the city manager.	Each city councilman's vote should count no less than the city manager's vote, unless he has agriculture business real estate properties, oilfield business and a good understanding of tax structure.	The city manager, answering directly to the Council, implements the ordinances and directives of the Council. Additionally, he should bring ideas to the Council for review.	City manager is responsible to the council. All employees are responsible to the manager. The council, as policy maker, is ultimately responsible for all action.	The city manager is the arbitrator between the city council and the people. It is the obligation of the city council to determine the decision whether the city manager is representing the town to his fullest.
3. What is the proper relationship between the city council and the city manager?	It should work as one unit, on an equal and even keel.	If shown by the city, of the growth possibilities. The company should only receive temporary tax breaks, etc.	It is very important not only for new business, but for businesses already in the community. Recreational improvements along with taxes are strong incentives to draw new business to Big Spring.	It indicates a receptiveness on the part of a city and is very important. A city should have a sound business basis for granting financial incentives.	I am against unequal taxation. However, we have the Industrial Park available that we can negotiate various incentives.	If the city of Big Spring does not offer financial incentives to businesses which could be located or relocated in Big Spring, then the city and county would lose millions of dollars of tax revenues because of its nonsensical decision.
4. How important is it for the city to provide additional financial incentives such as tax breaks to attract industry here?	More consideration for established business will entice new business. Established businesses are your best advertisement.	The school board should be like any other business, it should have the right people, whether they are white, black, or other races.	The suit should be solved by referring to the amendments of the Constitution. If this does not satisfy arguments, then city politics over ruled again.	It should be resolved in a manner that is equitable to all citizens of Big Spring.	I believe the present system represents all citizens. We should negotiate solutions agreeable to all citizens without disturbing our present cooperation with any one citizen.	In my opinion there is no discrimination in this city of Big Spring. The city stands behind the fact that there is total integration in the Big Spring school district and that other accusations would be totally erroneous.
5. The city and the school district are faced with a legal suit that claims local election procedures bar minority groups from electing representatives of their choice. How can this complaint be satisfactorily resolved?	By holding an open election and letting minority groups submit a candidate and see what happens from there. It would prove everyone's point.

Yarbrough in Texas prison

AUSTIN (AP) — Don Yarbrough, who had told reporters they would "witness a miracle" when he assumed office as Texas Supreme Court justice in 1977, was in a Huntsville prison hospital this weekend facing five years in prison.

Despite his complaints at an extradition hearing in the Virgin Islands that he was "kidnapped" by authorities and feared he had suffered a heart attack, Yarbrough was flown back to Texas Friday.

Prison officials said Yarbrough would spend about two weeks in the Texas Department of Corrections diagnostic unit before being assigned to the unit where he will serve his perjury sentence.

Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle said he greeted Yarbrough with, "Hello, Don. Long time no see," when he boarded the private jet that brought Yarbrough back from a 19-month sojourn in the Caribbean.

"Fellows, it's good to be back," Yarbrough shouted to reporters as he was led away to the state-owned plane that would take him to prison.

Dallas millionaire H. Ross Perot loaned the state the jet that brought the 41-year-old former judge back to Austin from the island of St. Thomas.

U.S. District Judge David O'Brien approved Texas Gov. Mark White's request to extradite Yarbrough, even though Yarbrough protested that his arrest was "a kidnap in the purest sense of the word."

Yarbrough, who had been out of the reach of U.S. authorities while living on the socialist-controlled island nation of Grenada since 1980, was seized by federal agents when he ventured to the island of St. Vincent in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

"I may have suffered from some kind of coronary deficiency. I may have had a heart attack," Yarbrough told the judge at the Friday extradition hearing. Yarbrough was represented by a court-appointed attorney.

Texas officials said Yarbrough was uncooperative at the hearing and refused to stand when the judge entered the courtroom.

Yarbrough was convicted of aggravated perjury in March 1978. He appealed the conviction and, free on $5,000 bond, moved with his wife, Julie, and three children to Grenada where he began studying medicine.

In August 1981, after his appeals had run out, he failed to appear for formal sentencing and officially became a fugitive.

OTHER MEDICAL DEDUCTIONS

Everyone knows that medical and dental expenses paid for yourself, your spouse, and your dependents are deductible. What you may not know is that you may also be able to deduct medical expenses that you pay for a parent, child or certain other relatives even if you are not entitled to claim them as dependents.

For example, suppose you provide over half of your father's support but are not entitled to claim him as a dependent on your tax return because he has over $1,000 of taxable income. You are still allowed to deduct medical expenses that you pay on his behalf. Or suppose that your father must be in a nursing home for medical reasons. Payments that you make to the nursing home can be deducted along with your other medical expenses if you meet the support test. To determine whether you meet the more than one-half support requirement, you must count all the money that your father spent for his own support whether or not it comes from taxable sources or from such non-taxable sources as social security.

Another medical expense deduction that you may not be aware of is for a health spa, hot tub or swimming pool that you add to your residence for medical purposes. For instance, if your physician prescribed a specially equipped pool for your arthritic condition, the costs of construction and operation could be deductible to the extent they do not increase the value of your residence. If you spent $26,000 on the pool, and the property value increased by only $15,000, you may have a medical deduction of $11,000.

For 1982 tax returns, medical expenses are deductible as itemized deductions after they exceed 3% of your adjusted gross income. In 1983, medical expenses must exceed 5% of your adjusted gross income to be deductible. Don't overlook any deductions in this area. Review all costs for health care, including health travel, with your accountant at the time your return is being prepared.

Legislators are not happy fellows

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — I did a terrible thing to Jay Rosser. Rosser is a talented young reporter with the Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau. He works hard and can be counted on to come through smiling on just about any assignment.

But this time I asked too much. I assigned Rosser to try to do a column of briefs showing the lighter side of the 1983 Legislature — not necessarily knee-slapping humor but just little interesting brights that show something besides the day-to-day serious news. He somehow manages to succeed most weeks but only after a monstrous struggle that leaves even him feeling surly.

What neither of us realized was that there apparently is going to be very few times of a humorous or light nature to this session. So far, it looks deadly serious and only a totally unrealistic optimist would predict better times before the May 30 final adjournment.

SEN. ED HOWARD, D-Texas, put things into perspective last week when he spoke with reporters about a heated exchange between two senators over a proposed amendment to a bill.

"You saw tempers flare today," Howard said. "That's a little early in the session. Seems like we're in the last days of the session, and we're not even half through."

Howard is a bit angry himself.

He and other Senate conservatives are upset over last week's successful attempt by Gov. Mark White to withdraw three more nominees of White's predecessor, Republican Bill Clements. They thought White had agreed not to recall any more Clements nominees.

The Senate has the potential for some sharp clashes on philosophical matters this session. In the past, the conservatives generally dominated things, but now liberals and moderates have enough clout to at least stymie the conservatives and bargain from a strong base.

This change in political strength has both sides edgy, and White's power plays on appointments isn't helped.

On the other side of the Capitol, unexpected events have embarrassed the leadership and created a tension that shows signs of turning into a "circle-the-wagons" mentality.

In a sort of reverse Midas-touch story, everything new Speaker Gib Lewis has touched so far has turned to rust and eaten away at his credibility. The big blow, of course, was the discovery that Lewis had failed to report certain business connections with persons with other interests in the liquor business — this a time that Lewis was sounding like the principal foe of a couple of tough anti-DWI measures.

Lewis filed an amendment to his report and appears to be hoping that the whole thing will blow over. That may be wishful thinking, however.

Austin District Attorney Ronnie Earle pleaded no contest recently to failing to file required personal finance reports. One reason he moved quickly after discovering his error was that he wants to be free to prosecute others who make similar mistakes.

A source close to Earle said last week that Lewis would be smart, in the political sense, to end the speculation about his situation by following the district attorney's example.

But Lewis hasn't made too many politically smart moves recently. Every attempt to pull himself up from one problem seems to lead to another.

After revelations about the missing business connections, he said he probably would have to support the anti-DWI measures he previously opposed — for appearances sake. Such mushiness doesn't help establish his leadership credentials.

The Lewis team still is in control, but it can't suffer many more embarrassments without the House heading for some rocky divisiveness. The big battle could come between the Senate and the House.

Many senators seem ready to pass a tax increase of some sort to make up for decreased expectations for increases state revenue. The House leadership leans toward a belt-tightening, pointing out rightly that the so-called "state budget crisis" is only a decrease in expectations rather than a drop in actual state funds.

So, the stage seems set for a good show, but not necessarily a humorous one. It may turn out that the joke is on us.

Blaze guts office center in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — An early-morning blaze raced through a business plaza here today, damaging seven businesses and causing more than $600,000 in damage, officials said.

Fire officials were investigating the possibility of arson at Oates Plaza on the city's east side, where a back door to the complex was discovered forced open.

Firefighters using 18 trucks battled the five-alarm blaze, which began at 4:39 a.m., a dispatcher said. No injuries were reported, although firefighters worked nearly two hours to prevent flames from spreading to a neighboring residential area.

Damage was placed at $620,000, said dispatcher John Hobbs.

Montford campaign starts soon

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The luck of the Irish failed to rub off on 15 of the 31 state senators Thursday as they were forced by last year's redistricting to draw for new terms.

Among the 15 who drew a two-year term instead of the standard four-year term was Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock.

Montford acknowledged that he was going to run for the Senate again anyway, "but I didn't quite want it this quickly. We're still buying new shoes from the last time."

One big problem is that he'll start having to raise money for a new campaign later in the summer and that creates a problem in establishing his law practice and making a living.

Among the lucky 16 was Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo.

Sims said he was "very pleased" and added that, in any case, the prospect of a two-year term "didn't bother me a bit."

He also quoted a fellow senator who drew a four-year term as saying, "You can be a statesman now."

The Senate twice delayed the vote, waiting for a settlement of two court challenges by Hispanic groups to the state's redistricting in Bexar and Harris counties.

Because of redistricting, all Senate seats were up for grabs last year, making a draw for two- and four-year terms necessary to maintain the practice of staggered terms.

Q. With interest rates finally dropping, I imagine more buyers will be entering the real estate market. Do you think this will make it easier for a home owner to sell his property without a real estate agent?

A. We agree interest rates are, at last, coming down. Things, however, are not nearly as simple as they used to be in terms of selling a house. An example is the maze of complicated financing options like seller-assisted financing, alternative mortgages, etc. Unless you are aware of each option open to the potential buyer, you'll probably run into problems handling it alone. The prospective owner seller will need to know the difference between a graduated payment mortgage, a shared appreciation mortgage and an interest rate buy-down, just for starters.

KKK leader debates black doctor on TV

MIAMI (AP) — A black psychologist and a Ku Klux Klan leader debated on a radio talk show, and afterward, they traded business cards but admitted they didn't communicate too well.
 Bill Wilkinson, imperial wizard of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, traded arguments and historical perspectives with Florida International University professor Marvin Dunn on Miami's WWSM-AM on Friday night.
 "Why must my white children go to school with your black children?" asked Wilkinson, 40, of Denham Springs, La. "If (black and white children) grow up side by side, they're not going to see a difference between themselves any more and eventually they're going to marry."
 "To make decisions on the future of our children based on race is totally ridiculous," Dunn said. "It is none of your business who marries whom."
 Wilkinson came to Miami to fight for the Klan's right to hold an outdoor rally in white sheets and hoods. The city of Miami denied his application for the rally.

Juarez students threaten riots

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Protest-battered Ciudad Juarez was calm Saturday despite threats of further disturbances by student activists in the largest city along the United States-Mexico border.

A two-day truce ended at midnight Friday between government officials in Mexico City and 1,200 Hermanos Escobar Agricultural College students following a disagreement over how the school could be reorganized to ensure its survival.

The 77-year-old, private institution faces closure caused by Mexico's current economic crisis unless it is ruled a university and given federal aid.

Student activists the past 10 days have sacked two Juarez government buildings, briefly held a dozen workers hostage and temporarily blocked two international bridges between El Paso, Texas, and Juarez.

Students also have marched on several American-owned assembly plants in this city of 900,000, and have vowed more disturbances are forthcoming unless their demands are met.

No students have been arrested. One government worker was slightly injured when he escaped through a window during the students' March 9 siege at the downtown federal government building. Students have said they will "bring pressure" on the government with more planned protests unless aid is forthcoming for the school, considered one of Mexico's top agricultural institutions.

About the only resolution

Friday was the settlement of a wage dispute by workers at Juarez's racetrack.

This plant was built to hold down electric bills. So far it's saved customers $1 billion.

The Big Brown plant (above) at Fairfield was built to generate electricity with low-cost lignite coal, mined at the site. In ten years of operation, it has already saved customers more than a billion dollars over what it would have cost to generate the same electricity with natural gas. And that includes the cost of the plant.

Lignite plants have since been built at two other sites in Texas, and now about half your electricity comes from lignite coal. Even though your bills are higher than they used to be, they'd be a lot higher if we hadn't built these plants.

We're trying to hold down costs every way we can. We always have.

May bring first administrator back

Can Reagan clean EPA's image?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is moving to restore credibility to the Environmental Protection Agency by turning to its first administrator, William D. Ruckelshaus, to run the troubled body, an administration official says.

But other officials cautioned that while Ruckelshaus had accepted the job "in principle," a final decision had not been made as of Saturday.

One official, who insisted on anonymity, said the White House was holding off making the announcement until any possible conflict of interest could be studied.

Ruckelshaus, through a spokesman, declined comment. Larry Speakes, the chief deputy White House press secretary, said "when the president's ready to announce it, he'll announce it."

Ruckelshaus is a senior vice president of law and corporate affairs of the Weyerhaeuser Co., a timber and paper products firm based in Federal Way, Wash., about 30 miles south of Seattle.

Within the administration, Ruckelshaus was seen as a candidate who may face some opposition from the president's conservative allies.

But otherwise, he is viewed by the president's aides as one who has the experience necessary to help patch up the images of the agency and the president in regards to environmental issues.

"This guy's got a lot of credibility, which is what we need. ... he started the department," the administration official said.

Ruckelshaus, 50, served as EPA administrator from 1970 to 1973.

Thomas Ambrose, director of corporate information for Weyerhaeuser, said Ruckelshaus "will have no comment until there is something to comment upon. He said that at this time he will have no statement about the EPA."

With the president spending the weekend at Camp David, Md., no formal announcement of an EPA choice was expected until the beginning of the work week at the earliest.

While Ruckelshaus is the front-runner, the source stressed that the former administrator did not have the nomination locked up.

Walesa outlines plans for Gandhi-like protests

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Polish labor leader Lech Walesa, in an interview published Saturday, outlined a strategy of peaceful protests reminiscent of India's Mohandas K. Gandhi to wrest reforms from the Communist government in Poland.

"We have devised many efficient means of pressure, many of which haven't been tried out yet," the former chief of the Solidarity labor federation said in the interview published by the Vienna daily Die Presse.

One form of protest, he was quoted as saying, could be cancellation of television subscriptions. In Poland, as in some other European countries, viewers pay a fee to receive TV programming.

"That would be a big loss to the state treasury, and we could take more walks in the meantime," Walesa said in the interview, reportedly given in Gdansk after he attended a trial of former Solidarity officials.

"We could also stop buying the bad vodka (made by the government) and make our own fruit spirits for family holidays," Walesa was quoted as saying. "That would be another form of protest."

"It may sound ridiculous, but our activists in the regions are absolutely capable of devising many nice and efficient means of pressure."

Last week, Walesa also told The Associated Press in Gdansk that he plans to wage a campaign of "more determined action" in an effort to revive the outlawed labor movement.

His proposed tactics are reminiscent of some used by India's founding father, known popularly as Mahatma Gandhi, in the campaign of passive resistance and civil disobedience that helped his country gain independence from Britain in 1947.

Walesa, who reportedly has read a Gandhi biography several times, said "our possibilities to exert pressure can be regionally effective. One cannot enforce the same forms everywhere. What counts are the successes leading to the final aim."

Walesa confirmed in the interview that while he is on the payroll of the Lenin shipyard, where Solidarity was born in 1980, he is barred from entering his former workplace. Before Solidarity launched its 16-month campaign of strikes and other political protests to gain reforms, Walesa was an electrician at the Gdansk shipyard.

Official says lead warning issued in '81

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials were warned in 1981 that lead contamination in two Dallas neighborhoods required immediate attention, a former EPA toxicologist says.

Bill H. McAnalley Friday supported allegations made in congressional hearings last week that the EPA should have begun cleaning up lead-contaminated areas of Dallas two years ago.

McAnalley said he alerted EPA officials in Dallas and Washington to the seriousness of the problem early in 1981. He said one of the Dallas officials, Allyn Davis, relayed the warning to John Hernandez, who was agency director before his recent elevation to acting administrator.

Hernandez has denied that anyone told him immediate action was needed in Dallas.

"It's like knowing there are rattlesnakes in the back yard and not telling anybody," McAnalley said of the EPA decision to postpone a cleanup of the areas near three lead smelters.

The agency is under investigation by six congressional subcommittees for possible misuse of its powers.

RYAN FASTBALL? — Houston Astros pitcher Nolan Ryan fires a pitch in the second inning of Saturday's exhibition game against the St. Louis Cardinals. It was Ryan's first appearance of the spring.

Astros knuckle under to Cards

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Left-hander John Martin put up a strong bid for the No. 5 starting role for St. Louis Saturday as the Cardinals defeated the Houston Astros 3-1 for their fifth consecutive exhibition baseball victory.

An 8-5 performer two years ago — when a player strike cut 60 games off their schedule — Martin allowed only one hit during a four-inning effort.

Veteran right-hander Nolan Ryan, a five-time no-hit pitcher during his 15-year career, made his spring debut and permitted just three of St. Louis' seven hits in seven innings. The 36-year-old Ryan struck out four and walked three in what he called an "erratic performance."

The Cards scored twice off Ryan in the fourth, but one of the runs was unearned. Two walks, a run-scoring single by Andy Van Slyke and a throwing error by catcher Alan Knicely wiped out a 1-0 Houston lead.

The Astros, 2-6 in the spring, compared with the Cardinals' 6-2 record, scored their only run in the first inning off rookie left-hander Ricky Horton on a single by Omar Moreno, a stolen base and Bill Duran's sacrifice fly.

Horton, Martin, Jeff Kehner and Eric Rasmussen combined on a five-hitter, the second straight such game by St. Louis pitching.

The Cardinals, with seven hits, scored their final run in the seventh inning on Gene Roof's single against Dave Smith, his stolen base, and Kelly Paris' single.

Texas teams hope injury woes heal

By The Associated Press

Spring training is supposed to get pitchers and hitters in shape for the gruelling baseball season. This spring, trainers and doctors are getting plenty of work, too.

Here's the latest medical report, which is threatening to rival the National Football League's weekly injury list:

- Houston Astros relief ace Joe Sambito will undergo surgery on his left elbow for the second time in less than a year.
- First baseman Bill Buckner of the Chicago Cubs is suffering from a circulatory disorder in his right hand and will miss the rest of spring training.
- The Texas Rangers, who were concerned about their pitching going into training camp, had even more to worry about Friday when starter Danny Darwin checked into a hospital with an ulcer.
- And veteran pitcher Rick Reuschel of the New York Yankees, who missed all of last season because of two shoulder operations, pitched two shaky innings as the Yanks defeated the Texas Rangers 10-8 on Bobby Murcer's two-out home run in the ninth inning of a 'B' squad exhibition game. Reuschel allowed five runs, all in the second inning — three were unearned — and five hits.

"There was no pain, but I had no arm strength. I couldn't pop the ball when I wanted to," he said. "It wasn't as good as I had hoped, but I'm encouraged that I could pitch in game competition. When I threw last Saturday, it felt real good. I'm sure I was throwing better than I did today. I don't know if I overdid it that day and set myself back. But I threw today better than I did Tuesday."

However, owner George Steinbrenner called Reuschel's performance "sad. It's too early to tell, but it's sad."

Reuschel said he would probably give up his comeback attempt if he cannot pitch by July. The Yankees got some good news in the pitching department when Shane Rawley allowed two hits in five scoreless innings as New York defeated Texas 10-5 in an 'A' game, with Dave Winfield driving in four runs with a homer and double. Rookie first baseman Don Mattingly drove in seven runs with a pair of homers, a sacrifice fly and a double in the 'B' contest.

Meanwhile, the Rangers said Darwin will be hospitalized a minimum of three or four days and will be out of action at least two weeks. In addition, starter pitcher Charlie Hough was operated on Friday for knee problems and will be on crutches several days before starting rehabilitation.

Houston's Sambito, the Astros' all-time earned run average leader, was to be operated on today at Indian River Memorial Hospital in Vero Beach, Fla., by Dr. Frank Jobe, who repaired ligament damage and removed bone chips from the elbow last July 7. Sambito had experienced irritation and numbness in the elbow.

World Cup Skiing

Mahre wins slalom for U.S.

FURANO, Japan (AP) — American skiing sensation Phil Mahre captured the men's World Cup giant slalom championship Saturday by winning the season's final race of the event in northern Japan.

It was a come-from-behind victory for Mahre, 25, of Yakima, Wash., who before Saturday's race was third in giant slalom standings behind Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden and Max Julen of Switzerland.

Mahre, skiing aggressively, produced a combined time of 2 minutes, 35.20 seconds, edging Julen by .01 of a second. Julen was clocked at 2:35.21.

"It's exciting to win," said Mahre, who already owns the cup's overall championship.

Mahre took the lead after the first run with 1:17.58 and was third in the second run in light snow with 1:17.62 before 4,800 spectators at the 1,180-meter course in central Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island.

"I made some bad turns, but generally it was a good run," Mahre said, referring to the second run.

Stenmark, who finished eighth in the first run with 1:18.19, charged hard in the second run and scored the best time of 1:17.08, but was .07 of a second behind Mahre with 2:35.27.

"This season has been good, except for some races. And this was one of them because this was the important race today," the disappointed Swede said.

Stenmark, who celebrated his 27th birthday Friday, said he was satisfied with his performance in the second run, but regretted that he took too much time on the flat, moderate slope in the middle of the course, in the first run.

"Phil has been skiing very well this year. He deserves to win the championship," he said.

Finishing fourth in Saturday's race was Hans Enn of Austria with a combined time of 2:35.55.

Switzerland's Pirmin Zurbriggen came in fifth with 2:35.72, followed by Boris Strel of Yugoslavia with 2:36.13.

Both men's and women's slalom races will be held Sunday, the third day of the four-day event and an exhibition competition of parallel slalom is scheduled for Monday.

More than 120 skiers from 15 countries are competing in the season's final event.

C-City places 5th at Ozona

OZONA — The Colorado City Wolves finished in fifth place yesterday at the Ozona Relays behind several strong individual performances.

Chris McKinney finished second in the discus throw with a toss of 125 feet 11 inches, while Armando Rivera also helped out in field events by grabbing second place in the pole vault with a leap of 11 feet 6 inches.

In the running events, the Wolves got two third places with Donnie Davenport's time of 2:06 in the 800-meter dash, and with Jay Claxton's run of 5:01.9 in the 1600-meter run.

The 1600-meter relay team finished in sixth place with a time of 3:38.94. Kevin Norman, Perry Conner, Joey Ritchey and Mike Liggin comprised the team. Norman also finished sixth in the 100-meter dash with a time of 11.46.

Dennis Rivera and Doug Chitsey finished fourth and sixth, respectively in the 300 intermediate hurdles with Rivera running a 42.26 and Chitsey a 43.86. Rivera also placed sixth in the 110-meter high hurdles by running a 16.44.

Other performers placing were Liggin with a 53.41 in the 400-meter dash, and Charles Ingelhart with a time 11:19.7 in the 3200-meter run, good enough for a sixth place finish.

NIT features 'dream' game

By The Associated Press

A "dream" matchup between a pair of neighborhood rivals — one seeking respectability, the other aiming to atone for recent mishaps — highlights second-round action in the National Invitation Tournament, which resumes Monday night.

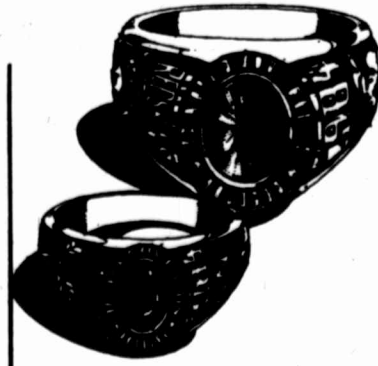

It's "an NIT dream," said DePaul Coach Ray Meyer, looking ahead to the confrontation against Northwestern at the Rosemont Arena in Rosemont, Ill.

"It'll be two local teams in a local arena, and it'll be a super crowd," he continued.

Northwestern, perennial doormat in the Big Ten Conference, is enjoying a rare trip to a college basketball postseason tournament. The Wildcats, 17-12, set a season record for victories and gained their first postseason triumph by capturing their opening-round NIT game, 71-57 over traditional powerhouse Notre Dame Thursday night.

Mariah show their stuff

Although football season is long over and the band does not perform anymore, there is one special group who has been performing quite frequently. This group is the Steer Band Color Guard, Mariah. Mariah won three competitions during the Spring Break. On Friday, February 25, they won in Round Rock. On Saturday, February 26, they won in Austin, and on Saturday, March 5, they won in San Antonio. In the San Antonio Competition, the Mariah Rifles were chosen as the Outstanding Rifles.

Steer Baseball is here! In their first District game, the Mighty Steers defeated Abilene High. The score was 8-5. Winning pitcher for the Steers was Jinx Valenzuela. Danny Arista had 3 hits and Jay Pirkle had his 5th homerun. The Steers traveled to Midland High this past Saturday to take on the Midland High Bulldogs.

The Steer Baseball team also won the District 4-5A Tournament that was held in Steer Park over Spring Break. They defeated Abilene High in the first game by a score of 8-6. Winning pitcher for that game was Jinx Valenzuela. The second game was against Midland High. The Steers won by a score of 17-15. Tom Cudd was the winning pitcher for game 2. The Championship game was against San Angelo, and the Steers defeated them by a score of 7-3. Winning pitcher for that game was Adam Rodriguez who struck out 13 batters. Steer batters showed their strength as they had a total of 8 homeruns for the tournament. Those hitting homeruns were: Tom Cudd with 2, Danny Arista had 2, Matt Warren with 2, and Alan Trevino and Jay Pirkle each had one.

The Girls' Golf Team came in 2nd in the Kerrville Golf Tournament this past week after the 2nd days round was called off because of rain and lightning. They were led by Patricia Jones who had 77 and came in 3rd medalist. Other members were Sandra Arellano with 97, Pam Martinez with 100, Diana Johnson with 105, and Debra Edwards with a 114.

Millions of people are involved in the many steps and enterprises required to get food and fiber from our American farms to towns and cities across the nation. It's a chain of linked human cooperation. Each person contributes his or her expertise in the growing, processing, transporting and marketing until the final goal of feeding America is accomplished.

To honor this thought that "the food chain is a human chain," March 21 is set aside as Agriculture Day, One special day to recognize the links in this chain. Links that make this vital industry work so well for all of us every day. We invite you to join with us on March 21 as we say "thank you" to the men and women who make American agriculture work so well.

Age is no barrier for student nurse

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Many people are returning to school after years of absence. Some students are 50 years and older. Bertie Cataldo of Madison, Conn., a 56-year-old student vocational nurse at Howard College, is one of them.

During World War II, Mrs. Cataldo began registered nurses' training at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene. "Nursing seemed exciting at the time," she said. "I've never found anything outside of being a housewife and mother that I found more interesting than nursing."

She began training in 1943. After seven months, she quit school to be married to a military man, Wallace V. Cataldo. Since then, she's worked off and on as a "practical nurse" — known today as a licensed practical nurse or licensed vocational nurse.

In 1943, LVNs weren't required to have formal training and licensing like R.N.'s had, Mrs. Cataldo said. Today, LVN and LPN schooling programs must be recognized by the state.

In 1971, she applied for nursing school admission to become a LVN. She was rejected due to a hearing problem. "I didn't try anymore," she said. "It hurt me too much when I was turned down. I had no intention of trying again."

"Schools should give handicapped persons opportunities. They are supposed to, but I'm not sure whether they do or not now."

For the last eight years, she was a psychiatric aide in Connecticut Valley Hospital in Middletown, Conn. She and her husband considered moving to Idaho to be near their daughter. Cataldo wanted his wife to return to school and get the L.P.N. license so she could work in Idaho.

"He knows I've regretted not getting my training back in 1943," Mrs. Cataldo said. "I've always regretted that mistake. It was a big mistake. People need to work. Nearly all families need two pay checks to get by. It wasn't so much that way in 1943. I never would have gone back to school if it weren't for him."

Mrs. Cataldo believes Connecticut doesn't have enough nursing schools for the amount of people trying to get in. She took the pre-entrance test in June with 1,550 other people to see if she qualified. She said about 700 to 800 students were not accepted.

She also applied at Howard College in May or June, 1982 and upon acceptance, she began in August. "I chose Howard College because it was in my home town and I would be living with my mother," she said.

Mrs. Cataldo's mother, Mrs. Roy Reeder, 1602 Kiowa, helps support her daughter financially and with housing. Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Feagin loaned Mrs. Cataldo a car for her year's stay. Mrs. Cataldo also is the niece of Mrs. Ina Richardson, 1026 Stadium.

Being separated from her husband, family and friends for a year is hard on Mrs. Cataldo. The letters, cards and telephone calls she receives encourage her to continue. She has seen her family once — at Christmas. The next time will be after graduation. Once she graduates, she will return to Connecticut to continue her profession.

While she believes that Connecticut nursing schools lean toward younger applicants, she thinks Texas nursing schools give more opportunities to students than schools in other states. "I think it's a big disadvantage in Connecticut," she said. "They (Connecticut nursing schools) have dropouts, and it's the young ones that drop out. They have too many applying. They seem to lean toward younger students. They (nursing schools) don't seem to do that here in Texas."

The Cataldos' Idaho plans have changed, but that's all right with her because she's almost completed her education, she will have financial security and can work anywhere in the states besides psychiatric hospitals, Mrs. Cataldo said. "It's taken me 40 years to finish school, from 1943 to 1983."

"I think you have exceptional instructors here," she said. "The students are fortunate to have the quality of teaching and instruction here. In Connecticut, if you didn't get it you were out. I've had a lot of help from my instructors."

Jean Morris, an R.N. at Cowper Hospital and nursing instructor at Howard College, commented on Mrs. Cataldo's work. "She is progressing very well," she said. "She is interested and very active in the hospital and the classroom. She has her own motivation. She is always reaching for more knowledge."

"Students who have been out of school awhile are more eager to learn than students just out of high school. They've had a break from studies and it is more of a challenge to do their homework. They are out of the studying routine and are trying to get that back," Ms. Morris said.

Mrs. Cataldo enjoys most nursing branches. "Each branch has its own," she said. "I enjoy psychiatric, but it's risky. It's abusive. You get hurt. The older I get (the more) I think I should stay in regular nursing."

"I don't think I could be a public health nurse. I would be influenced by the environment and living conditions of the lower income people — especially in the East. You have to be an R.N. anyway."

"I don't like working with alcoholics," she said. "When they first come in they are very abusive. They are dried up, helped and then let out again. Then they are back at it. I don't see the medical profession has helped them that much unless the person is determined to turn around. I work with geriatrics — patients 65 and older."

If she had her life to live over again, she said she would wait to be married after completing her schooling and make her husband-to-be wait. "I would have picked the same husband and family though," she said. "If I had the chance, I wouldn't start over again."

Mrs. Cataldo will be capped and pinned as a Licensed Vocational Nurse Aug. 30, 1983.

A HARD DAY'S WORK — Howard College's student vocational nurse, Bertie Cataldo, is exhausted after spending the day in lectures, studying and working. Mrs. Cataldo, a 56 year old psychiatric aide from Connecticut Valley Hospital in Middletown, Conn., is working toward getting licensed as a licensed vocational nurse. She receives her "book learning" from Howard College and does her clinical work at Cowper Hospital. Following graduation in August, she will be on her way home to her husband, family and friends in Connecticut.

Earthquake makes nurse's 1st year on the job an ordeal

By CAROL HART
Lifestyle Writer

The first year on any job can be a trying experience, but Linda Ainsworth's first year as a nurse was harrowing.

It was 1964. Mrs. Ainsworth's husband, Sam, had been transferred to Anchorage, Ala. with the Air Force. She had received her diploma of nursing from the Shannon Hospital School of Nursing in San Angelo and was working as a nurse in the United States Public Health Hospital in Anchorage.

On Good Friday of that year Anchorage experienced "the worst earthquake in history," registering higher on the Richter Scale than any other earthquake to date.

Mrs. Ainsworth remembers the terrifying experience. It was 5:30 p.m. and she was assigned to a wing in the hospital caring for a group of Indian and Eskimo children. The children had been flown in from the Alaskan "bush" and their parents remained home because the planes flying to the hospital had no room for the parents.

THE EARTHQUAKE BEGAN with a loud rumbling noise and she thought initially the noise was the older children running upstairs. She called upstairs to tell the children to be quiet and picked up a nine-month old baby to feed him supper. Then the violent earthquake began shaking the building with a terrifying force.

"I was holding a nine-month old baby in one arm and six children grabbed me around the legs," she said. She grabbed an oxygen carrier because she knew the heavy oxygen tank would be like "a torpedo" if it was allowed to move freely.

The ground shook for 10 minutes and the aftermath of the earthquake left Anchorage devastated.

Mrs. Ainsworth remembers one licensed vocational nurse on the floor fled the scene and was never heard from again. Her other nursing assistant was trapped in the hospital's kitchen.

"Every bottle of medicine in the hospital except for a bottle of digitalis was broken. Our food was ruined. We had no heat, no water, no electricity. Everything was covered with glass."

Because several children in the hospital could not be moved, "We couldn't evacuate. We sat down and waited" for help to come.

Mrs. Ainsworth and her small patients waited until 5:30 a.m. the next morning when "My husband came in." Ainsworth was working as a corpsman at the hospital at Elmendorf Air Force Base. He and other members of his crew later received a presidential commendation for their acts in the earthquake because the air force base hospital collapsed. Everyone was evacuated from the hospital within 17 minutes.

Although it had broken into five separate pieces, the Public Health Hospital Mrs. Ainsworth was in was the only hospital left standing in the city.

"There were many aftershocks," Mrs. Ainsworth said. "There was one a week later almost as bad as the first one. That one frightened me much more than the first one. I thought I was dead."

THERE WAS NO HEAT or water in the hospital for three months. "It was a mess." National Guardsmen brought aid to the hospital until things began running smoothly again.

Mrs. Ainsworth's mother, Mrs. Irene Cameron, can't recall the incident which happened almost 20 years ago without getting tears in her eyes. "It was a terrifying experience for Mrs. Cameron because 'We didn't know if they were alive or dead until Thursday following the earthquake. We got no direct message from them." Reports of the earthquake were available in the newspaper, radio and television, but Mrs. Cameron could get no word on her daughter because phone lines were down.

On Thursday following the Friday earthquake, she got a half-page letter from Ainsworth with the message "We're alive."

The Ainsworths remained in Alaska until 1965 when Ainsworth returned to Houston to attend the University of Houston. Mrs. Ainsworth took a job on the pediatrics ward at M.D. Anderson Hospital. Because most of the children on the ward had cancer, it was an emotional experience. Mrs. Ainsworth formed a philosophy which enabled her to work on the ward in the face of the tragedies which she saw.

"I WAS NOT THERE TO CURE these children," she says now. "I was there to make what time they had left pleasant for both them and their families. It was disheartening and it hurt a lot to see these children die, but they didn't all die. Quite a few of them lived for a long time."

Mrs. Ainsworth moved on to the blood bank at M.D. Anderson Hospital and began working both with patients needing blood and with volunteers giving blood. "It was the best of both worlds," she remembers.

The Ainsworths then moved to Lafayette, La., where Ainsworth enrolled in graduate school. There their two children, Brent, 14, and Laura, 13, were born. Mrs. Ainsworth worked in the Our Lady of Lourdes hospital.

The family returned to Houston. Ainsworth worked as a microbiologist at St. Luke's Hospital and Mrs. Ainsworth went back to M.D. Anderson, this time as a research assistant. The family then moved to Kerrville, Dublin, Ga., then Big Spring, where Ainsworth took a job with the Veteran's Administration Hospital and Mrs. Ainsworth worked in the Intensive Care Unit at the VAMC.

Because VAMC "puts a high priority on a degree" Mrs. Ainsworth decided to return to school to obtain her bachelor's degree. She chose West Texas State University, in Canyon, to complete her degree because "They were very, very nice and I felt I could get my degree faster there" because of their cooperation.

Mrs. Ainsworth, who is 40, found an apartment in Canyon two blocks from school and began taking classes last August. She would leave for Canyon at 4 a.m. Monday mornings, be there in time for an 8 a.m. class, then come home Friday afternoon to spend the weekends with her family.

THAT FIRST SEMESTER she took a 16-hour course load, tested out of six hours with College Level Examination Program (C.L.E.P.) tests and 42 hours of challenge courses offered through the department. Today, she is a senior hoping to graduate in May. She also maintains a high grade point average.

This semester, she drives to Canyon on Wednesday mornings and comes home Friday nights.

"I couldn't have done it (returned to school) without my husband's support. And I have very self-sufficient kids," she said. "They can take care of themselves. At first I had guilt feelings, but I think it's been helpful to all of us. When I'm not home, Sam cooks and cleans. He does a pretty good job."

Mrs. Ainsworth would like to continue her education after she earns her bachelor's degree, and may go into teaching. "I haven't made up my mind yet."

She recently was awarded the Catherine M. Johnson Scholarship from the Johnson Foundation in Amarillo.

HOMEWORK — Linda Ainsworth, a nursing student who travels weekly to West Texas State University in Canyon, is working toward her bachelor's degree and hopes to complete requirements for the degree in May. Mrs. Ainsworth has been a nurse for 20 years but decided to return to school and finish her degree.

Water, electricity is deadly duo

Always unplug any small electrical product after using it, cautions the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers and Underwriters Laboratories. Don't assume that if the switch is "off," there's no danger of electrocution. This may not be true if the product comes into contact with water.

Electrocutions may occur in kitchens, bathrooms or outdoors — anywhere near water sources. Never use any electrical product while bathing or put it where it can drop or be pulled into the tub or sink. If the appliance accidentally falls into the water, don't reach into the water for it. Unplug it immediately at the wall outlet.

Never leave a small portable electrical appliance within the reach of small children. Children left unattended could pull the plugged-in, but switched-off appliance into the tub or sink and risk being electrocuted.

Blood donor recruiter says stability is appreciated

Jane Furlow, an area recruiter for United Blood Services of San Angelo, was the keynote speaker at a breakfast held recently at Malone-Hogan Hospital. The event was hosted by a group of hospital employees who run the hospital's blood drives.

of the Quiet Ones, a group of 16 gallon donors who work at the hospital and clinic.

Ms. Furlow said it was the stability of the program, the follow-up and dedication of the people involved that she appreciated. Twenty-one employees and three physicians were inducted into the membership

The Quiet Ones' program has increased the hospital drives by about 300 percent. The program was developed in August, 1981. Malone-Hogan Hospital is now in first place in supplying the largest percentage of blood used in its operations. "You're now supplying 37 percent of the blood used by the patients in your hospital. That's a real statement of caring," Ms. Furlow said.

BLOCK SAYS "MANY WILL OVERPAY"

The New Tax Laws are complex and if you aren't familiar with all of the changes you could be overpaying your taxes unknowingly. Some of the tax revisions make you lose other deductions which would have benefited you more. The instruction (you received from IRS) booklet doesn't answer all the questions that could affect your income tax return.

The New Income Tax revisions affect every taxpayer regardless of income. Your H & R Block Tax preparer can show you how the new Tax Laws can save you money or cost you money if you don't know how to apply the provisions to your benefit.

I.R.S. doesn't check every tax return to see if the taxpayer took all the available deductions and credits to the taxpayers benefit. Thus many taxpayers overpay their taxes.

If you don't know Taxes you need H & R Block. Last year's average fee was under $37.00 in the Big Spring area, so you can't afford not to see H & R Block.

Big Spring's office is located at 1512 Gregg. Tele: 263-1931. Open 9-6 Mon. to Fri. and 9-5 Sat. Appointments available. Prices start at $7.50.

March events

I heard this week that VIRGINIA WHITTEN is getting ready for another showing of her paintings in a special display at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. It began this week and will go on for one month. She also will have paintings in a circuit tour by Hemphills.

MARK SHEEDY will soon be busy hanging up beautifully colored easter eggs painted by children in grades kindergarten through five. He says he expects close to 3,000 eggs from Big Spring area students.

Be sure to make plans to attend these upcoming events:

*The 21ST ANNUAL AMBUCS RATTLESNAKE ROUND-UP to be held Friday and Saturday at Howard County Fair Barns.

*The 1983 TEXAS STATE COLOR GUARD COMPETITION will be held in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Saturday. Big Spring High School's "MARIAH," reigning champions, will host the event. Preliminaries will be at 9 a.m. and finals at 7:30 p.m.

*The BIG SPRING HERALD SPELLING BEE to be held at Howard College at 4 p.m. March 31.

SUSAN SMITH, daughter of HERMAN AND JANE SMITH, is home for leave from her Naval assignment in the legal department. Susan was commissioned into the Navy immediately upon finishing law school and passing the bar.

A friend of mine told me that a group of students from FORSAN HIGH SCHOOL are putting on a one-act play for U.I.L. contests and have made it to the district competition. The competition will be held Tuesday. If the kids win district, they will advance to the state competition. I wish the group good luck with their play.

Here's the latest on a former Howard County Extension Agent — Home Economics. DR. CATHERINE B. CRAWFORD of Lubbock, district director for South Plains District Two of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, was named president-elect of the Texas Home Economics Association at its 65th annual meeting in Austin, March 5.

Dr. Crawford will assume responsibilities of her new one-year position this summer, and at the end of a year she will replace Carol A. Sain of University of Texas in Austin as president of the 1,200-member association of home economists from high schools, colleges and universities, the Extension Service and industry.

As president, she will direct the organization's educational activities related to resource depletion; care and services for the elderly, young and handicapped; support for home economics education and family research.

Since 1971, she has served as director of the 20-county Extension District in cooperation with Billy Gunter, her district co-worker. She has been with the Extension Service since 1960, having served as a county agent and district agent before her title was changed to that of district director.

Dr. Crawford served as the HOWARD COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT — H.E. for 11 years prior to her transfer about 12 or 13 years ago.

She is married to DELAINE CRAWFORD and has three grown daughters, who are all graduate home economists, and a son.

MIKE HUEBNER of San Antonio, a student at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, is pursuing a career in the welding field. He recently was treated to a tour of Oilfield Industrial Lines manufacturing by BARNEY HISE and CARL GROAT, machine shop superintendents. THERESA BURKE, secretary for Marketing, accompanied Huebner as an interpreter when needed.

That's the latest. Until next week...

Recipe offered to rattlesnake hunters

The Annual Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup will be held this week. The following recipe is for the benefit of successful hunters. I personally cannot vouch for this recipe and it is not backed by university research but the dish has been field tested by my younger brother. To persevere the authenticity of the recipe, no change or corrections have been made:

CAMPER'S DELIGHT
Catch 1 rattle snake 4 to 5 feet long. Carefully remove head and place it afar from work area. Take skinning knife and run length-wise down snake and remove skin. Wash after removing inners. Cut cleaned snake in 3 inch chunks. Roll in "flower" and cornmeal mix. Pan fry until golden brown. Serve with all the courage you have. Feeds sometimes 100 people.

Add a big bonus to your food dollar by shopping for ground beef. Special sales on ground beef are important money savers. Before buying, review how to get the most for your money. Consider which lean to fat category of ground beef will be the best buy. The three categories of leanness are states on the label:

- Not less than 70 percent lean — lower price.
- Not less than 75 percent lean — medium price.
- Not less than 85 percent lean — higher price.

One recent USDA study compared 75 percent lean to 85 percent lean ground beef. Both lost about the same amount of weight, but the 75 percent lean lost more fat and the 85 percent lean lost more water. The 75 percent lean patty, or least costly one, was judged the more juicy and flavorful.

Also anticipate how you will be preparing the ground beef. If you are using the meat in a recipe without browning first, or in a low calorie recipe, then you'll prefer the 85 percent lean ground beef. Leaner meat creates a firm product which cooks slower than the one with higher fat content.

The 75 percent lean ground beef is also recommended for recipes in which the meat does not have to be browned before adding other ingredients. It reduces the cost of preparing meat loaf, meat balls, or ground beef casseroles. You get a firm product (at a lesser cost) with this type of ground beef.

Use ground beef with high fat content in recipes where the meat is browned and the dripping poured off, such as tacos or chili. This will provide a moist and juicy product which cooks faster.

Make note of the amount of ground beef to be purchased. One pound contains about four (3 ounce) servings after it is cooked. Buying in large economy packages usually provides more meat for less money. To re-package a large amount of beef into smaller servings, re-wrap in moisture proof freezer paper and freeze immediately. If you will be preparing the ground beef in patties, shape the patties prior to freezing them.

Think of the nutritional value of ground beef when you buy. You want the most nutrition you can buy for your money. Ground beef provides complete protein which helps maintain growth and repair of body tissues. Beef is a good source of the B-complex vitamin which helps change food to energy and aids in digestion. It provides iron needed for healthy red blood cells and the transfer of oxygen to cells. Beef also adds zinc which is needed for chemical changes that occur in protein, carbohydrate and fats after digestion and absorption.

Let ground beef be a real bonus for you. Remember it when considering cost, versatility, nutrition and just plain good flavor.

Dear Abby

Cancer patient tired of comments

DEAR ABBY: I've had cancer and have been on chemotherapy for year and a half. I'd like to pass on some tips to the general public to help them deal with cancer patients. Ninety percent of the people I've dealt with have been great. Here's the other 10 percent:

People who wait until they have an audience, then ask in a sorrowful voice, "How are you, dear? Your color looks terrible." (I took this from one woman for several weeks before yelling "I'm fine! And don't ever ask me again!" She never has.)

People who ask, "How many days a week can you work? When I reply, "Two," they say, "Boy are you ever lucky! I wish I could find a way to work only two days."

People who ask loudly, "I know you've lost all your hair. Is that your hair now, or are you wearing a wig?" (It's none of their business. I don't ask if they're wearing fiasies, so I wish they'd lay off about my wig.)

People who tell you that your doctors don't know what they're doing — all you need are vitamins, or some faith healer they heard about in Europe who performs "miracles".

People who tell you about all their relatives who died of cancer and how much they suffered.

I've wanted to write this for ages. Even if you don't print it, I feel better now.

OFF MY CHEST IN OREGON

DEAR OFF: It's well worth the space if just one well-meaning but thoughtless person see himself and learns from it. Good luck and God Bless.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't talk to anybody about because I'm too ashamed. Fifteen years ago I had to get a delayed birth certificate. I appeared before a judge and under oath I lied about my parents' birthplace. They were born in a foreign country and I said they were born in the U.S.A. (I had been ashamed of my parents' birthplace ever since I was a child.)

My parents have been dead for over 25 years. Can I be punished for this lie? What do I have to do if I want this falsehood corrected on my delayed birth certificate? Thank you.

CAN'T SLEEP NIGHTS

DEAR CAN'T: The information is used for statistical purposes only. According to the state department of birth and death certificates, you will not be punished for this falsehood.

To change the information on your delayed birth certificate, you may be required to provide documentation to prove that this time the information you submit is true. Then an affidavit must be filled out and the birth certificate will be changed. No sweat. Pleasant dreams. You're welcome.

Dr. Donohue

Hockey coach confused by exercises

Dear Dr. Donohue: I'm not sure which I should emphasize for my young hockey players, aerobic or anaerobic exercises. They are on the ice constantly in hockey, and skating just about every minute, so it would seem they should be trained for endurance. But you can't neglect speed. What's the answer? You end up exhausting them by trying to train for both. Which is most important? — B.L.

It's been estimated that about 20 percent of action in a hockey game if of the intense, high-speed variety, calling for short bursts of high energy. That kind is best trained for through anaerobic kinds of exercise, or sprint training, if you wish to call it that. It refers to use of energy generated without benefit of oxygen. It is stored in muscles.

The rest of hockey action, about 80 percent, is spent at less intense levels. That action calls on endurance utilizing oxygen — in short, aerobic energy.

I cannot give you a complete hockey conditioning program, but I can suggest some general ideas. For the anaerobic needs, you would emphasize fast skating bursts from blue line to blue line in say, about eight seconds. Players might do that eight to 12 times in a practice session. Allow about 10 seconds between sprints.

For the endurance, you want to emphasize the slower but more lengthy exercises, such as laps around the rink, perhaps simulating the length of time players would be expected to be on the ice in a given turn. You don't have to work them to exhaustion to accomplish your goals. There's nothing at all wrong with doing one kind of exercise one day, and the other the next. Or if you have two sessions, emphasize one during one of them and switch to the other for the next.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have recently had a hysterectomy. Everyone keeps telling me I should not be jogging because of this. What is your opinion on this? I am sick of them always telling me I look so tired and that I'm going to kill myself. Please set me straight. — Miss B.

My opinion is that jogging is a safe exercise for a woman who has had a hysterectomy unless there is some unusual complication for which the doctor has expressly forbidden it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: It seems to me that some of these fitness freaks are looking for the fountain of youth. You and I know, doc, that no matter what you do, old Father Time is going to be there someday and zap, that's it! So what's all the fuss about? I know you've got a patented answer, and I'm dying to hear it. — Unfit

I've got a tough audience, for sure.

Yes, there may be those among the fitness enthusiasts who are looking for eternal youth. But I doubt they are numerous. You're the one I'm concerned about.

Whether staying fit prolongs the years of one's life is not the whole point. Whether it improves the quality of that life while it is being lived is.

You want an example? We know that our hearts pump less blood with each beat after age 25. The amount pumped goes down by about 0.8 percent each year. But (and here's your sermon) in the well-trained, middle-aged adult this decline either does not occur or if it does, it does at a lesser rate.

Habitual aerobic training through the sixth decade of life maintains heart size and pumping action at youthful levels. It may not be what Ponce de Leon had in mind, but it's a pretty good second choice.

PACKING FOR YOUR HONEYMOON
Picking your trousseau for your honeymoon is one thing, but packing it can be quite another. Here are some helpful hints for successful packing.

If you don't have a special jewelry travel case, pack your jewelry in that evening bag you'll want to bring anyway. When you reach your destination, valuables should be kept in the hotel safe.

Stocking and socks can be rolled up and placed inside shoes — no use in letting that room go to waste (and it will help your shoes keep their shape, too).

If you'll be honeymooning in a place in the sun, be practical and bring a bathrobe that can double for a beach robe. Wrap skirts can also do double duty as beachwear.

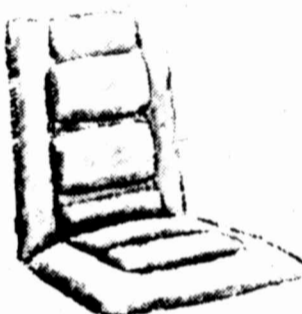

Consider investing in a few travel-sized appliances. A travel iron is a good idea, and will save tears over the wrinkles in that expensive new evening dress. Curling irons pack a lot more easily than a handful of curlers.

Texas Gardener tips

Plan a bright garden

Flowers provide the color and beauty every yard needs. You can ensure an abundance of color well into the summer by planting varieties that are suited to the changing weather each month brings.

To help in your planning, here are five of the best plants for annual color in Texas landscaping, arranged in a month-by-month format to take you through the summer. Exact timing varies from one part of Texas to another, but this is a general guide.

April: Coleus. Height: 12 to 30 inches, depending on variety. Shade or part shade. Leaf colors include red, yellow, white, pink, orange and violet. Grown for foliage. Flowers should be removed. Coleus provide landscape color from first day of planting through summer and well into fall.

May: Marigold. Height: 10 to 36 inches, depending on variety. Sun or part sun. Colors include yellow, orange, mahogany, and near white. Smaller French types are best as low flower bed boreers. Use taller types for background flowers and cutting. They are prone to spider mites (prevent with regular applications of kelthane or other miticide). Plant after danger of frost has passed for color during summer. Replant in midsummer for fall color.

June: Caladium. Height: 12 to 20 inches. Shade of part shade. Colors include red, pink and white. Grown for spectacular foliage.

Flowers should be removed immediately as they form. Light-colored types stand sunlight better. Plant bulbs in midspring, once soil has warmed considerably. Avoid high-nitrogen fertilizer to prevent excessive greening of foliage.

July: Hybrid Portulaca. Height: 4-6 inches. Sun or part sun. Colors include red, pink, orchid, orange, yellow and white. A low-growing relative of common moss rose, this may be the most outstanding new plant of the '80s. It stands all of Texas' heat and is easy to grow. It blooms from spring until the first frost of the fall. Be sure to plant some.

August: Periwinkle. Height: 6 to 18 inches. Sun or part sun. Colors include white, pink and rose-red. Plants are usually rounded and compact, with dozens of flowers at all times. Trailing types are available. Perhaps our most heat-tolerant annual flower. Blooms from early spring through first frost.

MRS. MARK DOUGLAS CARTER
...formerly Lisa Kim Sledge

Sledge-Carter

Lisa Kim Sledge and Mark Douglas Carter exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening in the Sweetwater First Baptist Church with Dr. Don Goates, pastor, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Sledge, 2715 Rebecca. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Billy G. Carter, Colorado City.

The couple was wed before an altar adorned with two fan candelabra with yellow candles. An archway with ivy greenery adorned with white satin bows completed the setting.

Mrs. Don Goates was organist. Laurie Churchill was vocalist.

The bride wore a white satin floor-length gown with an off the shoulder bodice. The gown featured a Chantilly lace overlay adorned with white pearls and lace sleeves. From the waistline, the skirt fell into a satin sweep train edged in lace. The veil, which was made and designed by the bride, was formed of Chantilly lace cascading from the headpiece, accented with lace flowers.

Her cascading bouquet was of white and yellow carnations and roses, baby's breath, white and yellow streamers and lace.

Matron of honor was Karen Nachlinger, Hermleigh, sister of the bride. Maid of honor was Sally Wilkerson, Sweetwater. Bridesmaids were Vickie Rasco, Sweetwater, and Kathi Carter, Graham, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Flower girl was Kerry Nachlinger, Hermleigh, niece of the bride.

Best man was Gene Carter, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Clay Hammond, Colorado City, Randy Useton and Lynn Bradbury, both of Colorado City. Ring bearer was Jeffery Johnson, Odessa, cousin of the bride.

Ushers were Bobby Wall, Snyder, and Larry Nachlinger, Hermleigh, both brothers-in-law of the bride, and Yancy Spivey, San Angelo.

Candlelighters were Judy Jones and Kelli

Mitchem-Alexander

Debra Mitchem and Lee Boyd Alexander exchanged wedding vows Friday evening in the Birdwell Lane Baptist Church with the Rev. Jack H. Collier, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Mitchem, 1105 Barnes. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Alexander, 2002 Merrily.

The couple was wed before an archway decorated with white lily-of-the-valley and greenery, and highlighted with orchid ribbons at the top and on the sides. Two seven-branch candelabras were placed at either side of the arch. They were decorated with white lily-of-the-valley and greenery.

Tammy Collier was pianist. Tim Yeats was vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional-style gown of white organza and Chantilly lace. It featured a fitted bodice with a sheer yoke outlined with a deep band of lace. The wedding ring necklace was finished with lace. The full skirt ended in a deep flounce ruffle and was topped with an over skirt of pleated Chantilly lace. The chapel-length train ended in a flounce ruffle of lace. The veil of silk illusion was edged with matching lace.

She carried a cascading bouquet of orchid and white carnations and baby's breath.

Burns may be repaired

If you discover a burn in your carpet, you might get rid of it with a sharp pair of scissors. Hold the scissors flat against the carpet and use the tip to snip off the burnt fibers.

On nubby carpets, rubbing with a fine pad of steel wool may accomplish the same thing. Use a vacuum to clean up the black dust

MRS. LEE BOYD ALEXANDER
...formerly Debra Mitchem

Maid of honor was Kathy Sayles. Flower girl was Sonya Hancock, cousin of the bride.

Eugene Alexander, brother of the bridegroom, Abilene, was best man. John Halstead, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Ushers were David Mitchem and Ricky Mitchem, both brothers of the bride, and John Johnson.

Candlelighter was Lee Hancock, cousin of the bride.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the fellowship hall. The table was covered with a lace cloth. A silver serving bowl was used and the bride's bouquet was the centerpiece. A three-tiered cake was served. It was white and featured orchid sweet peas and rosette borders. The second and third tiers were separated with corinthian-style pillars and a miniature bride and bridegroom centered the cake.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and Howard College. She is employed in the Howard County Clerk's office as deputy clerk.

The bridegroom attended Big Spring High School and is employed by Small Fishing and Rental.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will reside in Big Spring.

New variety of grass termed more tolerant

Homeowners putting in new lawns this spring may want to consider a fairly new variety of St. Augustine grass, "Raleigh," says Dr. Richard Duple, turfgrass specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Raleigh St. Augustine grass is a vigorous, St. Augustine Decline (S.A.D.) resistant variety released by North Carolina State University. It is more cold and shade tolerant than "Floratum" St. Augustine.

However, Duple emphasizes that Raleigh, unlike Floratum, is not resistant to chinch bugs.

As for appearance, an established lawn of Raleigh St. Augustine looks similar to a lawn of common St. Augustine grass. But Raleigh is slightly coarser and faster growing than the common type.

Duple recommends planting Raleigh wherever common St. Augustine grass can be grown, except in South Texas.

In new lawns, Raleigh can be sodded to provide an "instant" lawn, or plugged on about 18-inch spacings to provide a cover in two or three months, says the specialist. To restore a St. Augustine lawn weakened with S.A.D., Duple suggests plugging 4-inch blocks of Raleigh directly into the lawn on about 1-foot spacings. Raleigh will cover the lawn after one complete growing season.

Raleigh has similar maintenance requirements to those of common St. Augustine grass, adds the specialist. Weekly mowing at a height of about 2 inches, spring and fall fertilization, and watering as needed to prevent severe wilting should produce an attractive lawn of Raleigh St. Augustine.
