City Council could Pandering for Pandas lower sewer rates Mating ends, waiting begins

Big Spring residents' sewer bills may be reduced if city council members approve an ordinance revision Tuesday night that lowers by 25 cents the base rate for sewer service within city limits

The revised ordinance — which amends chapter 16 of the Code of Ordinances — was composed at the city council's request because several members believed the current rates are generating more money than originally intended. The city council changed the sewer billing method in November 1982.

The proposed amendment includes a section that reduces the sewer charge base rate from $2.75 to $2.50 for all residential, commercial, multi-family dwelling, mobile home park and apartment complex accounts. The base rate is for the first 2,000 gallons of water used by each unit. The proposed ordinance does not change the 68 cent charge for each additional 1,000 of the average monthly usage for the past December, January and February.

However, the city staff recommends that commercial accounts be based on 90 percent of the amount in excess of 2,000 gallons used during the current month, rather than averaging consumption for the winter

Another change would give mobile home parks, apartment complexes and multi-family dwelling accounts a five percent vacancy allowance. Public Works Director Tom Decell said the city staff recommends this amendment because, unlike home owners, apartment and mobile home park owners can not disconnect their sewer service when a unit is unoccupied. Thus they pay for water that is not used.

Because the city can not keep up with how many units are occupied each month, a general 5 percent vacancy allowance should be used here as it is in other cities. Decell said.

waiting begins

WASHINGTON (AP) - The mating is over and the waiting has begun at the National Zoo.

After four days of varying degrees of togetherness, giant pandas Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing are settling back into normal routine while zoo officials are watching the calendar.

If all the right things happen, Ling-Ling will give birth between late July and early September to the first panda cub born in the United States.

Hsing-Hsing, however, would have good reason to ask Ling-Ling whether the cub is his

Officials said it may be possible to establish the father's identity through genetic tests when the hoped-for panda cub is several ears old.

Except for Friday's mating, Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing displayed their usual moods disinterest and hostility - for much of the time they were together. In fact, Ms. Kleiman said, Saturday's meeting ended in cities are deficient or obsolete.

"a fight in midmorning. Zoo officials say they are optimistic about getting a baby panda.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its last week of work before a 10-day Easter recess, Congress is rushing to send President Reagan two major pieces of legislation Social Security reform and a multibillion-dollar emergency jobs program.

The Senate was resuming work this afternoon on the $165 billion Social Security rescue plan with Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., saying he hoped for a final vote late today.

Meanwhile, congressional negotiators were set to meet this afternoon to hammer out the differences between the $4.9 billion jobs bill passed by the House and a $5.2 billion version passed by the Senate. The major difference is a provision in the Senate bill to speed up revenue sharing payments to states by three months.

The legislation also provides for food and shelter for the needy and other types of recession relief. It also includes an additional $5 billion in federal subsidies to help 27 states and the District of Columbia pay unemployment benefits to millions of jobless workers whose checks are due this week.

After the Senate finishes work on the Social Security package, congressional conferees also will meet to iron out the differences between the versions of that measure adopted by each chamber. For the most part, the Senate has been following the lead of the House and sticking close to the recommendations of the National Commission on Social Security Reform for higher payroll taxes, a six-month freeze on benefit increases, a levy on the benefits going to more affluent retirees and mandatory Social Security coverage for new federal workers.

The tightest remaining Senate battle involves the provision that would extend Social Security coverage

Ruckelshaus may take over EPA

WASHINGTON (AP) — William D. Ruckelshaus is meeting with senior White House aides to discuss President Reagan's request that he take over the beleaguered Environmental Protection Agency for the second time in a decade.

"He (Reagan) has asked me to consider this and I'm doing it," Ruckelshaus said Sunday in Seattle before flying to Washington.

'I don't think it's a matter of whether you want it or not, it's a question of whether you think you can be helpful in responding to the president's request,"
Ruckelshaus told CBS News.

The official disagreed with suggestions that one item left to be negotiated was how much independence Ruckelshaus would be given in appointments and other ROBBINSDALE, Minn. (AP) — A former policeman who miraculously snapped out of a twoyear coma is battling depression and paralysis while his wife voices one regret: she wishes he had been taken off a life support system sooner and left to die in peace.

David Mack, 39, is one of only two patients in history to awaken from a "persistent vegetative state," said Dr. Ronald Cranford, a neurologist at Hennepin County Medical Center.

The former Minneapolis police officer had hoped to regain use of his limbs, but after a year of therapy that hope is gone. He now lives at the Trevilla Nursing Home, a residence for disabled

SASEBO, Japan (AP) — Leftist and anti-nuclear protesters jammed this harbor today to protest the arrival of the U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise, clashing with riot police, screaming slogans through bullhorns and sloshing red paint on the giant vessel's hull.

Two dozen boatloads of demonstrators swirled about the harbor, repelled by a phalanx of Japanese patrol craft, as the 75,700-ton carrier dropped anchor more than a mile offshore for a four-day port call.

Minor outbursts of violence and street scuffles marked the protests as an estimated 7,000 demonstrators converged on the port. Many represented labor unions and the opposition Japan Socialist Party.

'Get away, Enterprise!," protesters shouted through bullhorns. At the same time, a boatload of U.S. supporters cruised the harbor displaying a banner that read "Welcome, Enterprise."

Downtown, protesters engaged in shoving matches with an estimated 3,000 riot police after they tried unsuccessfully to reach the entrance to the Sasebo naval base. Authorities decreed streets adjacent to the base off limits.

The Maritime Safety Agency reported six demonstrators were arrested for lobbing several "Molotov cocktails" at a Japanese patrol boat, injuring one crewman. A U.S. Navy spokesman confirmed that one group got close enough to splash red paint on the Enterprise's hull.

"It was a great victory. We left our mark on the Enterprise," said Masahi Kamata, a leader the Communist Party-affiliated Zen Gakuren, or All-Japan Federation of Student Autonomies.

The protesters contend the Enterprise carries nuclear weapons and thus violates Japan's so-called 'non-nuclear principles" which bar introduction, manufacture or storage of nuclear arms in Japan.

They also say the carrier's visit is intended to bolster Japan's hawkish Prime Minister, Yasuhiro Nakasone, and to underscore a growing U.S.-Japan military alliance against the Soviet Union in Asia

U.S. officials refuse all comment on nuclear weapons aboard American ships and Japanese government officials say they are satisfied that the carrier would not enter Japanese waters with such arms aboard.

Since the United States has not sought consultations required by the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty in such cases, Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe said last week. it would be "impossible" for the ship to be carrying nuclear warheads.

At a rally in a downtown park in this port city of 250,000, Japan Socialist Party Chairman Ichio Atsukata told listeners the Enterprise visit "has exposed us more and more to danger of involvement in war.'

Leaving the park, protesters were blocked by police from a bridge leading toward the naval base. Several groups, wearing colored helmets tried to move in another direction but police hemmed them in, called for reinforcements and forced the demonstrators back in a shoving melee.

Nuclear terrorist program alarms TV viewers

By ROGER GILLOTT Associated Press Writer

One viewer said she was so frightened by NBC's "Special Bulletin" that she had to take tranquilizers. Others phoned in bomb threats or fears, and some worried that a realistic drama about nuclear weapons threats could inspire real-life terrorists.

'A lot of people are scared," said telephone operator Ed Walsh at San Francisco's KRON-TV, which received 50 calls during the two-hour program's first 45 minutes. "One woman called and said 'Why do you give all this time to terrorists on TV?'

Both before and during the show, NBC broadcast numerous warnings to viewers that the story was fictional. Even so thousands of worried viewers called TV stations around the country, although some objected to the disclaimers, saying they detracted from the

The movie showed a fictional TV network responding to a threat by an anti-nuclear group aboard a tugboat in the harbor at Charleston, S.C., to detonate a bomb as powerful as the one that destroyed Hiroshima, Japan.

They demand as "ransom" that the American government disarm 964 nuclear warheads in the Charleston area.

Charleston viewers bombarded the local affiliate, WCIV-TV, with 250 phone calls during and after the program, and others called the city's police station. Police Cpl. George Volpe said many of the calls were from reporters and only "four or five" were from concerned citizens

Charleston reactions are panic, outrage

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) - Viewers reacted with panic and outrage as they watched their city being "destroyed" in a realistic TV drama about terrorist use of nuclear weapons, local officials

WCIV-TV, the local NBC affiliate, received an estimated 250 phone calls Sunday night while showing "Special Bulletin." The national broadcast drew about 2,000 calls to stations across the country and to the NBC network headquarters in New York

"The first two minutes, people were concerned that we had the word "Fiction" on the screen," said Celia Shaw, general manager of the Charleston station. "But now that we made that decision we realize it was a wise decision because then people called in wanting to know if this was really

Mrs. Shaw said the station also received calls from Charleston residents people who had heard from worried out-of-town relatives.

"Then we got calls asking why the network put this on and would it not put ideas into the minds of some people," Mrs. Shaw said.

The fictitious station in the movie had the call letters WPIV-TV, which also may have caused som confusion, she said.

'That's all the more reason we decided to disclaim the movie throughout with the word 'Fiction,' because of the similarity of the call letters and the fact it was taking place in Charleston, South Carolina," Mrs. Shaw said.

"Most of the police in the city were in the movie. They hired us to do the movie," Volpe said. Mrs. Shaw said she didn't know if she'd like to see most of the state, followed by slightly warmer temperatures Tuesday. Cloudiness was expected to increase Tuesday and a chance of widespread showers was forecast for Wednesday.

West Texas — Partly cloudy with scattered showers and a few thunderstorms most sections Wednesday with activity tapering off Thursday and increasing again Friday. No important day-to-day temperature changes with slightly below seasonal normal temperatures: Highs middle 50s in the Panhandle to the upper 70s in the Big Bend. ### Dallas lead samples may have been diluted

DALLAS (AP) — Two Dallas newspapers say they have learned that a government analysis of blood and soil samples taken from a poor west Dallas neighborhood was diluted to show that lead contamination was less severe than in actually was.

Environmental Protection Agency officials announce ed Feb. 1 that the National Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta found the blood samples taken from preschool children living within a half mile of a smelter showed lead contamination was slightly lower than the national average.

But Dr. Norman L. Dyer, head of the EPA's toxic substances office in Dallas, told the Dallas Morning News that the government analysis diluted the impact of the lead in the most seriously contaminated areas.

And the Dallas Times-Herald reported Sunday it obtained documents that showed Dyer complained about that dilution Jan. 12 in a telephone conversation with

Disparity in pay for women is clear

The Census Bureau has shed some fresh light on the practical - read dollars-and-cents - value of a college education. It tells us that a young man now entering college can expect $329,000 in extra lifetime earnings if he gets a bachelor's degree, and that the comparable figure for a young woman is $142,000

This is interesting enough in itself. The report is even more interesting, however, for what it reveals about the continuing disparity between the earnings prospects of men and women. Though there is much lip service to the ideal of equal opportunity, the differences in pay arising from sex rather than competence on the job are still very large.

ONE IMPORTANT factor in the lifetime earnings picture is that women characteristically spend less time than men in the work force. The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that the average woman works only 28 years, compared with 38 for the average man.

Yet even when this is fully taken into account, generally lower pay for women — in identical or comparable jobs — results in a wide earnings gap. The discrepancy still cries out for reform.

I can't decide

Sometimes I have a hard time making a decision

It may be that I'm a Libra (the scales) and always weighing the respective merits of both sides of a decision. I don't know, I can't decided if that's the reason or not.

Anyway, I envy those people who always seem to know what they want and can make the proper decisions to carry out their wishes. It's not that simple for me. I think up several alternatives and mull them over, wait a while, mull some more until its almost too late to finally choose between them

I'm even worse with small decisions. Since they usually don't matter one way or another, I don't give them much priority. I can't put off washing the car, taking clothes to the cleaners or any number of tasks that take a menial conclusion indefinitely.

Consequently, I have a lot of small decisions piled up and I feel pressured to make them. However. when I'm under pressure to decide I hate to make any decision under duress so I wind up back at square one with no answers.

One reason I'm slow to decide is that most of the decisions I have to make are good ones. It's nice to have several options open at once and I like to prolong the anticipation of the result of an advantageous decision

An inner voice that warns us somebody is looking

It seems that quite a few in my generation are plagued with indecisiveness. There are so many roads we can travel — potentially good roads — that making a commitment is not easy.

We may even be poisoned with too many alternatives. Our parents operated under fewer options: get a job, have a family and try to make life better for your kids than it was for you.

In making life better for us, our parents gave us more education and the idea we had to be something important when we grew up.

We grew up in world with more acceptable options. People now no longer marry on schedule, have kids if they marry, and people change jobs more readily if not satisfied. These new options are nice, but they position us between new values and old values and who's to say which is right? Therein, I think the dilemma lies.

We are kids in the big candy store of life, and choosing that peppermint stick over the jawbreaker has complicated moving ahead in the real world

Israel's new approach

JERUSALEM - Before he left Washington to become defense minister here, Moshe Arens said he had learned a great deal as ambassador to the U.S. He was asked to name one thing. "The importance of personalities," he replied at once.

That lesson now bears fruit in the high-level Israeli mission that has been sent to Washington to deal with the Lebanese problem. Though headed by Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, it was undertaken on the motion of Arens. It represents a bid for the favor of Secretary of State George Shultz, and thus marks a departure from the approach favored by Ariel Sharon, the general deposed as defense minister after the Beirut massacres

The basic issue in Lebanon is joint withdrawal of the forces of Israel, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization. Within that framework there arise questions of future security and diplomatic relations between Israel and Lebanon.

A deal made with Lebanon, back of the U.S. central to the Sharon approach. He tried, in secret talks with Christian militants around President Amin Gemayel, to work out a treaty whereby Lebanon would make peace with Israel as a part of the withdrawal process. That backstairs approach is now emphatically discarded. By going to Washington at this time, the Israelis acknowledge they need

U.S. help to succeed in the Lebanese talks.

A thick Israeli security presence in Lebanon was also part of Sharon's plan. He had hoped before withdrawal to plant on Lebanese soil three electronic warning stations manned by Israelis, who could follow military movements in both Lebanon and Syria. That idea has been abandoned, as has another scheme for Israeli-manned observation posts on Lebanese territory.

What the Shamir mission to Washington seeks now is on accord whereby Israeli troops can join Lebanese forces in joint ppatrols of southern Lebanon. The Lebanese forces would be composed of the Christian militia supported by Israel as an independent army under Major Saad Haddad. The Israeli idea is that the Haddad militia would be integrated into the Lebanese army, with Haddad himself serving at least temporarily as governor in the region, if not

Some step toward commercial and diplomatic recognition was also art of Sharon's scheme. The Lebanese — under pressure from other Arab countries, notably Saudi Arabia -- have flatly refused. Now the idea is that after the coordinated withdrawal, the border would be opened for limited traffic. and the Israelis would maintain an unofficial diplomatic representative in Beirut.

Whether the Lebanese will accept jectives is not certain. But the Lebanese foreign minister, Eli Salen, will be in Washington the same time as Shamir. If there is a chance of accord, Shamir is prepared to meet with him.

HOW DO I DO THIS?

JUST CONFIDENT

IGUESS.....

Nor is it clear that the Syrians having been reinforced by the Russians, will pull out, taking the PLO force with them, as the Israelis withdraw. But the Israelis feel they have worked out, at a low level, all the details of their own withdrawal. A principal purpose for the Washington visit is tolay before Secretary Shultz the problem of coordinating Israel's pullout with the Syrian withdrawal.

What the Israelis most want, however, is an understanding of their security problem at a high level. They have increasingly felt hostility on the part of the presi-dent's special ambassador, Philip Habib. With Prime Minister Begin not exactly persona gratissima in Washington, dialogue at the top has been meager. The sense here is that Secretary Schultz has the patience and the grasp to understand the Israeli perspecive. They go to him, with the expectation that they will find a sympathetic listener.

In sum, the Israelis are finally beginning to personalize their diplomacy with the U.S. After months of antagonizing leading American officials, they are making a deliberate effort to win friends in Washington. That is not the worst news coming out of the Middle East these days.

Billy Graham

God understands your heartache

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My wife left me not long ago and took our two children with her. I miss them all very much, and feel like I am about to go out of my mind. Do you think I will ever be able to get them back? - A.G.V.

DEAR A.G.V.: I have no way of knowing, of course, what the future holds for you. I don't know the circumstances of this separation or why your wife left. But I can understand the deep heartache you feel at this time.

Furthermore, I want you to know that God also understands your heartache, and in fact when we hurt he also in some sense hurts with us. Why is that true? It is true because he loves us and he wants what is best for us.

Nevertheless, sometimes God takes the unpleasant and hard things in life and uses them for our good in ways we could never imagine. Let me tell you what I have in mind. Your letter (which I have not quoted in full here) suggests to me that you have never paid very much attention to God in your life. Your life has been relatively free of trouble until now, and perhaps you have never felt that you needed God very

But now you are facing something you have never faced before - a problem so great you know you cannot solve it by yourself. The greatest thing that could happen to you through this experience would be for you to find Christ and turn your life over to him. God, after all, has not been neglected of you. He as sustained your life, and more than that he sent his Son to die on the cross for your sins. You need him, not just to help you during this time of crisis in your life, but to forgive you of all your sins and reconcile you to God so you can go to be with him in Heaven when you die.

Pray for your wife and your children. But pray most of all for neart to Jesus Christ. Without this experience you might never have taken time to think about your need of Christ. But you need him, and he is ready to help strengthen you and remake your life. "So do . ot fear, for I am with you; do not be dismayed, for I am your God. I will strengthen you and help you; , will uphold you with my righteous right hand" (Isaiah 41:10).

Strange coincidence plagues Thurmond

WASHINGTON - The man who told a federal grand jury he saw Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., take at least $20,000 in bribes can now be named. He is William W. Pearce. I had been asked to keep his name out of my previous reports, but my sources believe his identity has now leaked back to the senator. Pearce swore to a Washington, D.C., grand jury on Feb. 10 that he had witnessed the bribery. Thurmond denied the allegation.

Five days later — under suspicious circumstances — a federal grand jury in Norfolk, Va., indicted Pearce on six counts of

As the Senate Judiciary chairman, Thurmond has considerable clout with the Justice Department. My sources thought it was a strange coincidence that Pearce should suddenly be indicted after testifying against the powerful Thurmond.

The indictment followed a long and bitter legal dispute between Pearce and his former employer, Honeywell, Inc. - a dispute that Pearce thought had been settled months ago.

For years Pearce was a private detective in Washington; his exploits even made it into a popular book. Pearce also served as a bailiff in the District of Columbia court system.

Lawyers in the Washington area used Pearce's services as detective. In 1975, one of those attorneys lined him up with Edwin P. Wilson. who was then running a covert operation for the CIA and Navy intelligence.

Like just about everything involving Wilson, Pearce's story is complex. It was unraveled in a long series of interviews with my associate Dale Van Atta. Here is the substance of it: Pearce acted as a bodyguard and security man for Wilson. Pearce also spied on other Wilson employees. As a cover for his espionage activities, Wilson set Pearce up in a lavish apartment with a woman. Wilson also provided him with a full set of identification papers for two separate identities.

Pearce was known around the Wilson office as Peter Wagner. But when he attended meetings Wilson arranged with Israelis, he was identified as Dr. David Schwartz. And he had passports, drivers licenses and Social Security cards in both names.

Some of Pearce's assignments from Wilson were odd. He was instructed, for example, to secure specially prepared chickens for Wilson's Moslem clients.

Another time, Pearce arranged through Wilson to deliver 400 combat helmets to the Red Cross for use in disaster work. Afterward, he received a worried call from a Red Cross official. Many of the helmets were dented and had bloodstains on them, the official complained.

And once, Pearce was assigned to raid my office files. Butupon reflection, Wilson dropped the idea.

At the same time that Pearce was accepting assignments from Wilson, he was working full time as branch manager of Honeywell's protective services division in Norfolk. Though the Wilson contact helped him win customers for Honeywell, company officials did not know their Norfolk manager was moonlighting for the ex-CIA

When President Carter named Adm. Stansfield Turner as CIA director. Wilson called Pearce and suggested he arranged a security system for Turner's home in McLean, Va. Honeywell got the contract, which convinced Pearce that Wilson was still secretly working for the CIA. Actually, Turner had no idea Wilson was behind the contract; he said he picked Honeywell because an old friend was a company executive. The relationship between Wilson and Pearce soured in late 1979. Wilson's activities came under federal scrutiny, and he was indicted on charges of smuggling arms to Libya. When a Wilson associate was arrested in the shooting of a Libyan dissident in Colorado, an apparent "hit list" containing Pearce's name was found on the suspect. This was reported in the newspapers.

Honeywell officials, apparently embarrassed at this public link between their branch manager and Wilson, fired Pearce in April 1982. He sued; they countersued.

The dispute was later settled - or so Pearce thought. But then, last December, Pearce told federal officials that on two separate occasions he had seen a middleman deliver $10,000 cash bribes from Wilson to Thurmond.

I first reported Pearce's accusations — and Thurmond's denial on Feb. 2. On Feb. 15, Pearce was indicted on ciarges related to his dispute with Honeywe!!.

PIRATES ELUDE NAVY: 1ne Navy has proven shamefully timid about going after the murderous pirates in the Gulf of Thailand.

The request came right from the commander-in-chief. When President Reagan read my report more than a year ago on the butchery of Vietnamese boat people by Thai pirates, he ordered a top White House aide to handle the matter.

The aide passed the assignment on to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who in turn asked the Navy to take action.

But after months of hemming and having, the admirals came up with exactly nothing. The mightiest navy in the world couldn't figure out a way to sweep the seas of the cutthroats who were robbing, raping and murdering the defenseless boat

Once again it is the season when desperate Vietnamese try to escape the tyranny of their homeland in rickety boats. Once again they will be at the mercy of the Thai pirates.

Dear Abby

Husband wants wife to see plastic surgeon

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for over 40 years, and I am not happy at the moment. I am fairly attractive, sports-minded, golf- and tennis-playing male of 69. My wife (I'll call her "Bernice") is 60, plays nine holes of golf twice a week while riding in a golf cart and says that's enough exercise for her. Bernice has premature wrinkling all over her lovely face. I find this repugnant. At my insistence we saw a plastic surgeon who told her she was an ideal candidate for successful cosmetic surgery, but she wants no part of such an operation because she is "afraid" of surgery. Her mother was a psychotic who refused to stay above the first floor of any hotel, and I'm afraid Bernice has inherited some her mother's irrational

Bernice is a good wife and mother. It's probably too late in our lives to make any changes, and I don't really want to, but I would like her to go to exercise classes and build up her stamina so we could play 18 holes together and enter the club mixers. I also want her to have cosmetic surgery. I almost forgot another unattractive feature. She has a lower stomach protuberance that I find repugnant. She blames it on having children, but I've seen women with figures like teen-agers who've had more children than she's had.

I've offered to take aerobic dancing or join an exercise club with her to help her build up her stamina and improve her figure, but she spurs the idea. Am I asking too much of her?

NOT CONTENT IN CALIFORNIA DEAR NOT: Yes. No one should be asked to submit to cosmetic surgery to please another. And although an exercise program would improve your wife's stamina and figure, your reasons for pushing it seem more selfish than loving.

DEAR ABBY: We're a family of "talkers". Most of us are also sympathetic listeners — with the exception of this one aunt. She call me and talks for an hour without letting me finish one sentence! If I call her to tell her something about myself, she'll listen for maybe half a minute, then she interrupts with "Not to change the subject, but ..." and she gets back to her favorite subject - herself.

Everyone in the family says she does the same thing to them. She uses us only as an audience for her She's really a good person, and I do love her, but she only wants to talk — not listen. How can this problem be solved to keep peace in the family TIRED OF LISTENING DEAR TIRED: Tell her the truth — that you really do love her, but that you also need to be listened to, and you feel hurt and frustrated when she doesn't allow you to talk. If you can't say this to her, put it in a letter, but do get the message to her. Don't be critical or judgmental - just state the facts. She will respect you for it. And she may talk less and listen more.

DEAR ABBY: My son, who lives out of town, always sends me the best of everything, so you can imagine my disappointment when I received a puny little halfdead poinsettia plant on Christmas.

I took a Polaroid picture of the plant and sent it to my son along with my thank-you letter.

A few days later, the florist delivered not one but two of the most maginificent poinsettia plants I had ever

Fluctuating pulse rate

nohue: I am a male, 66 years old, in good health, only about five pounds overweight. I do mild exercise. I wonder if I have a problem? I notice that my pusle rate fluctuates anywhere from a morning low of 72 to a high of 96 later in the day.

I am concerned about the number. Is there a norm? What does this indicate? Is it dangerous? Is my heart being overworked. Incidentally, I am a non-smoker, but drink beef socially, and play 18 holes of golf once a week, and I jog about five hours each week. - J.R.H.

The normal range for a pulse rate is between 60 and 100 beats per minute. And you realize, of course, that the pulse rate is the same as the heart's rate of beating. What you are actually counting when you feel your pulse rate at your wrist or elsewhere is the number of times your heart beats in one minute.

Now, you have to realize that our heart rate does not remain constant through a day. It is slower when we rest and it speeds up as we move around during the day. It becomes even faster when we do vigorous exercise. These changes reflect the changing needs of the body for greater or lesser amounts of blood circulation with different activities. When the body needs more blood, the heart picks up its pace to accomodate that.

It's hard for me to comment about your variation (72 a.m. and 96 p.m.). You have to know just when and in what circumstances it is being taken. If you were at rest when you got the high rate, that might (note MIGHT) be significant. For example, it might mean a problem with the heart's natural pacemaker.

But I don't want to raise ghosts. Your 96 reading may mean nothing at all, and it is still within the 100 end of the normal range. It is not overworking the heart.

Nevertheless, you should mention this to your doctor. He may want to do tests to see if that increase means something that could lead to an even greater racing of your heart at some future time.

Here's a related kind of heart rate question:

Dear Dr. Donohue: I've never seen anything on atrial fibrillation in your column. Would you please, as some time, discuss it, teling the causes and treatments? — E.C.

I thought I had beaten atrial fibrillation into the Normally, the heart maintains a regular beat even though its rate varies according to needs, as I explained to J.R.H. (above). The heart's pacemaker calls out the cadence just like a drill sergeant. The heart muscle keeps pace. With atrial fibrillation, the heart has fallen out of step and just like the soldier in the ranks stumbles and speed up to catch up.

There are two kinds of atrial fibrillation. One is paroxysmal, meaning it comes on rapidly and ends just as abruptly. That can be due to a number of more or less controllable factors — like alcohol, nicotine, caffeine or emotional stress. The other kind is longer lasting and may reflect a number of other kinds of problems. Those include poor blood supply to the heart muscle, certain heart valve conditions, or overactive thyroid gland. Sometimes no cause for it can be found.

Drugs, like digitalis, can be used to control fibrillation, or, in emergency situations, it can be terminated with use of a small electrical current — a defibrillator.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I was very upset when told by my doctor that I had trichomonas infection. I had not been sexually active for two years. I am now taking Flagyl. My question is will I ever be able to resume sexual activity without giving this to my partner? How else could I have gotten this? Is it contagious to the male?

Trichomonas has been found in the genital tract of virgins, so there must be ways other than sexual intercourse by which people contract it. Some women do have it without symptoms and most men are symptomfree with it. Your medicine is effective, but be sure you follow the full course of treatment your doctor advises. You can resume sexual activity after treatment. You are no longer contagious then.

Herpes may be killing the sexual revolution, but having it doesn't mean the end of your life. Or the end of your sex life. In his new booket, Dr. Paul Donohue separates the truth from the fiction about this controversial health problem. The sisters, Judy Donnelly, 34, Billie Williams, 32, and Sandy Elliott, 27, are grown up now and married, but the memories of their many accomplishments remain vivid, they say. The sisters reflected on their unique past while at their parents' house in Vici for the Christmas holidays.

There were fond memories for "Miss Redrock," an Appaloosa mare that carried all three women through a lot of rodeo contests.

'Miss Redrock was used to winning by the time I started entering contests,' Sandy said. "When the winner was announced, she would try to step forward. It was so embarrassing. I was trying to hold her

Bull rider still looks up to clown

HOUSTON (AP) — The rodeo clown with the gnarled fingers has just bumped into the world champion bull rider and the air is awash with mutual admiration. Charley Sampson, the best bull rider in the world, still looks up to Myrtis Dightman, same as he did when he began hanging around the rodeo ring in Gardena, Calif., a Los Angeles suburb.

"Every time I went out there, he'd be following along behind me," Dightman, 46, recalled at the Houston Rodeo and Livestock Show, where the two met by chance recently. "One time he showed me a picture and says, 'What you think of me sitting up there on this steer?' I said, 'It's OK. But go to school, get an education.'

"He said you can ride bulls a long time after you get out of school," said Sampson, 25. Accordingly, Sampson clenched his teeth and finished high school before going on the national circuit.

When he won the finals in '81, I was glad. When he won the world, I was double glad," said Dightman, a native of Crockett and a resident of Houston.

Dightman does not claim to have had much to do with Sampson's success, although he does recall passing along this bit of bullriding wisdom: If you slip down to the bull's side, don't try to hang on.

"If you can't ride him on the top, you can't ride him on the side," he reasoned.

Sampson is hardly cut from the classic cowboy mold. He's short — 5-foot-4 — he's black and he was born not in a dusty, rural setting, but in Watts, the Los Angeles

Seeing Dightman was the one bright spot of the Houston rodeo for Sampson. A broken ankle suffered in a Baton Rouge rodeo reduced him to a spectator for this show, the first major rodeo of the season. Almost as bad, a reporter wanted to him to talk about himself, a task Sampson obviously hates.

So his face lit up when a familiar voice called from behind a beer stand and the two were reunited, as they are occasionally every year.

Sampson became interested in riding during a Cub Scout outing to a stable.

"After that, every day I used to go to the park where there used to be a pony ring," Sampson said. "I used to give the man a quarter and ride around the ring." One day he ran out of quarters and arranged a barter system with the stable manager, trading work for

About two years later, when he was 12, Sampson discovered a rodeo ring in the area, where he began competing in roping events.

"One day, the guy that owned that ring said, 'Get Pee-Wee and put him on a steer," Sampson said. He declined at first but was persuaded when the man who had taken him to the arena threatened to leave him

"I was all scared and stuff," Sampson said. "The first steer bucked me off and knocked the wind out of me. I said, 'I told you I didn't want to ride him.' But they brought out another one.

"The second one was easier. I rode him and just started riding steers every week.'

That was a rougher beginning than many cowboys get today. Sampson said the quality of riders is steadily improving as rodeo becomes more sophisticated. Now a beginner can go to a school and view videotaped

"When I started, you just got on," said Dightman, who said he was chiefly a rodeo clown and never liked riding bulls. But he said he did so for the money for several years starting in the early 1960s.

Back then, a black cowboy like Dightman often had to compete with promoters before he got a chance to compete with other performers.

"One time I went to a rodeo in Liberty. They wanted to put me out," he said. Dightman said he struck a deal, offering to ride a bull which had never been ridden for a full eight seconds in exchange for a ride in the

"He made 22 rounds (rotations) in eight seconds, but I rode him," Dightman said. "After that, he (the promoter) said, 'Bring him along with the rest of 'em.

At another rodeo in Tennessee, Dightman said, "there was folks come in out of the hills and they'd never seen a black man. The little kids would want to touch you but they was afraid you might be nasty or

Sampson said he has encountered no such problems in his career. But he figures the sport still only has about five black cowboys competing nationally. Sampson said he figures he has five or six years of competition left. "Youth has taken over." The traveling schedule is fierce. Sampson went to 148 rodeos last year. He made $91,000 in prizes in 1982, which is a record and earns him the title of world

He plans to continue his career as long as he is able. 'It's hard to explain," he said. "People ask me, 'You like riding bulls?' I say, 'No. I love riding bulls."

Denver burns Blitz

Walker's Generals fall again

By The Associated Press

Chicago gave George Allen the cold shoulder.

The coach of the Windy City's entry in the United States Football League brought the Blitz into snowy Soldier Field Sunday, and barely one-third of the 68,000 seats in the ancient edifice were filled. And the Denver Gold left the Blitz with a cold, empty feeling, too. Quarterback Ken Johnson swept into the end zone on a fourth-down, 1-yard keeper with 18 seconds remaining to defeat Chicago. The 16-13 defeat was the second last-minute loss by the Blitz in two "It's like a doctor doing a lot of things properly and then the patient dies," said Allen.

USFL Roundup

In Sunday's other games, unbeaten Tampa Bay routed winless New Jersey 32-9 as John Reaves threw three touchdown passes and the Bandits shut down Herschel Walker, and the Boston Breakers edged winless Washington 19-16 on Tim Mazzetti's 29-yard field goal with 27 seconds to play.

On Saturday night, Oakland outlasted Michigan 33-27 and Arizona defeated Los Angeles 21-14. Tonight, Philadelphia visits Birmingham.

Denver Coach Red Miller said he never considered playing it safe, going for the "sure" three points with a field goal and then hoping for a shot at victory in overtime. "We didn't think 'kick' at all," Miller said. "I didn't want to tie. We wanted to win - and it was a big, big win for our young team."

Johnson drove Denver 70 yards to its winning touchdown, passing twice to tight end Bob Niziolek for gains of 14 and 13 yards, the second completion putting the ball at the Chicago 3-yard line. Three plays gained just two yards, setting up the fourth-and-1.

"I took a good look at the goal line right before the play," Johnson said. "It looked like a yard and a half away." And with the snow and the wind, the footing was treacherous. But Johson crossed up the defense, sweeping around left end and scooting over a goal line he couldn't see because of the snow.

Greg Landry's 42-yard touchdown pass to Lenny Willis and field goals of 27 and 38 yards by John Roveto accounted for the Blitz scoring. Harry Sydney set up a field goal by Brian Speelman with a 36-yard run, then sprinted 30 yards for the first TD by the Gold.

Bandits 31, Generals 9
Walker had been only mediocre in the Generals' first two games, both on the road, by rushing for 65 and then 60 yards. And in front of a home-opener crowd of 53,370 - the largest attedance in the USFL's three-week history - he carried the hall 10 times for only 39 yards against a Tampa Bay defense that keyed on him all

"It was easy to stop him because that's all they did was give the ball to him," said Bandits Coach Steve Spurrier. "It was obvious early on that Herschel was not running very far against us.

Meanwhile, Greg Boone carried the ball 18 times for 72 yards and a score for Tampa Bay. Reaves threw for the Bandits' other TDs - 3 yards to Boone, 25 yards to Eric Truvillion and 10 yards to Lewis Gilbert.

"I'm embarrassed with the performance of this ballclub right now," said Generals Coach Chuck Fairbanks. "I think we have better players than the way we're playing. I've got to coach them better.

Breakers 19, Federals 16

A tiny home-opening crowd of 18,430 in nearly as tiny Nickerson Field (capacity: 20,535) saw Tim Mazzetti continue his sizzling performance for the Breakers with four field goals. Mazzetti had a meteoric rise and fall with Atlanta in the NFL a few years back.

But the real hero of the game was Boston's nose tackle, Jeff Gaylord. He lined up opposite Federals center Dave Pacella, a replacement for regular longball snapper Bruce Byrom. Two of Pacella's snaps one on a field-goal attempt, the other on a punt - were bungled, leading to a touchdown and the game-winning field goal by the Breakers.

"I hate to give away my secret," Gaylord said of his play against Pacella, "but right before he snaps the ball he squeezes it to get a good grip. So as he squeezed it the first time his arm went in motion and I slapped his arm and he made a bad slap."

The second time Gaylord swiped, he missed, but "he was shaking. His face was white. He knew just what I was going to do." And Pacella admitted: "I tried to rush the ball a little bit because I was expecting him to reach out for my arm.

Invaders 33, Panthers 27

Oakland quarterback Fred Besana ruined Michigan's home opener, completing 24 of 30 passes for 341 yards and three touchdowns, two of them to Wyatt Henderson.

It also overshadowed a sparkling comeback engineered by Bobby Hebert, the Panthers' quarter-back, benched early. Hebert returned late in the third period and threw three TD passes to Derek Holloway.

Wranglers 21, Express 14

Jim Asmus, who had climaxed Arizona's comeback against the Blitz a week ago with a last-second field oal, kicked two field goals against the Express, one of them a 57-yarder to drop Los Angeles from the

The Wranglers' other points came on rookie Alan Risher's 45-yard pass to Jackie Flowers and Darryl Clark's 1-yard dive. Each LA quarterback passed to Kevin Williams for a TD, Mike Rae's covering vi yards. Tom Ramsey's covering 3.

Utah and North Carolina State meet Thursday night in the final fitting session for this year's glass slipper at the NCAA basketball tournament.

The Wolfpack challenged the Utes for the Cinderella tag Sunday with a last-gasp 71-70 victory over sixthranked Nevada-Las Vegas. Utah and North Carolina State meet in the West Regional semifinals at Ogden, Utah.

Of the 16 teams remaining in the national championship tournament, 13 are seeded, with Iowa, Utah and North Carolina State the only unseeded teams.

Utah, whose 18-13 record is now the worst in the tournament, beat No. 7 UCLA Saturday after opening the tournament with an upset triumph over Illinois.

In other games Sunday, St. John's beat Rutgers 66-55 and Ohio State defeated Syracuse 79-74 in the East Regional, Memphis State ousted Georgetown 66-57 and Iowa swamped Missouri 77-63 in the Midwest, Louisville toppled Tennessee 70-57 and Indiana whipped Oklahoma 63-49 in the Mideast and Boston College stopped Princeton 51-42 in the West.

As Atlantic Coast Conference champions, North Carolina State appears to have more solid credentials than Utah, but the Wolfpack was only 17-10 in the regular season before three straight victories in the ACC tournament gave it an automatic berth in the NCAA.

North Carolina State edged Pepperdine 69-67 in the first round before upsetting Nevada-Las Vegas on 6-foot-11 center Thurl Bailey's rebound basket with four seconds left. Bailey tipped in the rebound of a missed 20-footer by Dereck Whittenburg to give North Carolina State its fifth close victory in a row. 'When it came off the rim I tried to tip it in the first time," Bailey said. "It rolled off and there were a couple of hands on it, so I grabbed it and, as I was falling back, I just threw it off the board and it dropped.'

'What can I say? It was a onepointer. That's five of those close ones in a row for us," Wolfpack Coach Jim Valvano said. "I said it would be a one-point game and it was. There's luck involved in this, too. I call it the luck factor. Don't discount it. Nevada-Las Vegas led 52-40 with 11:40 remaining, but the Runnin' Rebels allowed the Wolfpack to come back by missing several layups and free throws

"We haven't been a good free throw team all year and it came back to hurt us in a big game," said UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian. Nevada-Las Vegas, UCLA and

When you're trying to build a basketball reputation ata little-known school, you don't complain when the National Invitation Tournament ships you halfway across the country.

"We will go anywhere and play anyone at any time," says Don Smith, whose New Orleans team will play Oregon State Monday night in Corvallis, Ore. "This is a chance for us to get exposure in another part of the Smith's Privateers, 23-6, didn't have to go far for their first victory, traveling up to Baton Rouge to beat Louisiana State, 99-94 in overtime. That gave them some prestige in their home state; now they're seeking it at a national level.

"One coach told me they may be the most under-rated club in the country," said Lanny Van Eman, an assistant coach at 19-10 Oregon State, which downed Idaho 77-59 in its first-round game. 'They don't have any obvious weakness.

In other NIT quarter-final games Monday night, Iona will be at Nebraska; Virginia Tech at South Carolina, Fresno State at Michigan State, Wake Forest at Vanderbilt, South Florida at Mississippi, Northwestern vs. DePaul at Rosemont, Ill., and Texas Christian at Arizona State

"They're an interesting ballclub and they play under control," Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller says of New Orleans, to which Smith concurs: "we do a little bit of everything.

ligers pounce on Astros

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) - Mark Dacko has always been a late bloomer, but the rookie Detroit righthander is giving indications that he'll be worth the Dacko, 24, a 6-foot-4, 195-pound graduate of James Madison University, had everybody in camp talking Sunday after working the first five innings of the Tigers' 5-4 exhibition victory over the Houston Astros. Dacko struck out five and allowed just two weak infield

"I was just happy I got a chance to pitch," said Dacko, who knows he is ticketed for the Tigers Class AAA farmclub at Evansville, Ind. this year. "I'm not a strikeout pitcher. I try not to put too many guys on base because I know I'm not going to overpower many guvs.

Dacko, who lives in Connecticut, was not recruited by any college. He attended James Madison only because his older sister once played a college basketball game there and told him it has a pretty campus. Once enrolled, he had to beg the coach for a tryout. The Tigers gave him only the minimum $1,000 signing bonus after making him their 31st selection in the June

Manager Sparky Anderson said, however, that it's not uncommon for athletes like Dacko to slip unnoticed through the scouting web.

"There's no way of telling how a guy is going to develop," Anderson said. "Mark has improved each and every year. There's no way of telling if he's even at his top level now.

Anderson noted that this is the first time since he's been manager that the Tigers have had the luxury of not having to rush young pitchers up to the major

Detroit third baseman Tom Brookens belted a tworun homer with Glenn Wilson on board in the seventh inning to provide the margin of victory

The Astros, who saw their Grapefruit League record dip to 2-8, had tied the game 3-3 in the top of the seventh on successive triples by Terry Pohl and Alan Ashby, followed by an RBI double by Tony Scott off Tiger reliever and winner Bob James.

Detroit, 8-4 this spring, got an unearned run in the first when Howard Johnson walked, went to second on an infield grounder and scored when Houston third baseman Phil Garner bobbled Chet Lemon's shot down the line for an error

Lemon singled in the Detroit fourth, went to third on a hit-and-run single by John Wockenfuss and scored on Enos Cabell's single. A bloop single by Wockenfuss drove in Larry Herndon, who had doubled, in the Tigers' sixth.

The Astros got a run off Howard Bailey in the sixth and another off Juan Berenguer in the eighth.

Expos 9, Rangers 1

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Tim Wallach hit a two-run homer to cap a five-run fifth inning as the Montreal Expos defeated the Texas Rangers 9-1 in an exhibition game.

Expos starter Steve Rogers became the first Montreal pitcher to go more than five innings in the exhibition season when he limited the Rangers to one hit over the first six innings Sunday.

Al Oliver had run-scoring singles in the first and third innings to provide Rogers with a 2-0 lead before the Expos blew the game open in the fifth.

Ahead of Wallach's homer, Andre Dawson and Gary Carter drove in runs with a two-run double and an infield out, respectively. Texas starter Frank Tanana was the victim for most of the damage, before being replaced by reliever John Butcher in the fifth.

The Expos added a run in the seventh when Carter scored on a wild pitch and another run in the eighth on Tom Wieghaus's RBI single.

The only Texas run came off Dan Schatzeder in the seventh when former Expo Larry Parrish stroked a run-scoring single.

Walker says he's dissatisifed

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - It was right there in black and white on the New Jersey Generals' statistics sheet, two numbers that told the story of Herschel Walker's latest miseries: 19-39. That was Walker's production as a runner — 19 carries for 39 yards - in the winless Generals' 32-9 loss Sunday to the unbeaten Tampa Bay Bandits in the United States Football League.

The Heisman Trophy winner has 164 yards in three games, an average of 54.7 yards per game, paltry considering he averaged 146.1 yards during his three-year career at the University of Georgia.

"I'm sort of dissatisfied. There's more I can do," said Walker, who had been expected to make New Jersey one of the new league's premier teams. He was the main attraction for the crowd of 53,370 at the Generals' home opener, the league's largest turnout since it began play three weeks ago.

"After three games, I see there's a lot to learn." he said. "There's a lot of room for me to get better and improve.

Chuck Fairbanks, the Generals' president and head coach, said he had expected Walker to "run with more positiveness" against the Bandits after watching him gain 65 and 60 yards in his first two games.

"In practice last week, it looked like he was running and getting a feel for where things were supposed to happen. Before that there was some tentativeness,' Fairbanks said. "I don't think he's running as positive as he will. He was a little tentative (against Tampa

Walker, who also caught eight passes for 54 yards Sunday, shrugged off Fairbanks' comments, saying:

"I run the same all the time." The Generals do have a problem at quarterback, heaping more pressure on Walker's broad shoulders.

Lakers drown Mavs, 117-110

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - As Jamaal Wilkessees it, the Los Angeles Lakers are one-third of the way toward reaching their goals for this National Basketball Association regular season.

"It's nice to know that we've clinched a playoff berth," the Laker forward said after Sunday's 117-110 victory over the stubborn Dallas Mavericks. "But that's just one goal. Now we'd like to wrap up the best record in the Western Conference, that's our second goal; and our third is to try to have a better record than Boston (currently 46-20).

The victory that assured the Lakers a playoff spot - making them the first Western Conference club to clinch a berth this season — was their seventh in their last eight games. With a 49-17 record, they now hold a nine-game lead on Phoenix in the NBA's

'We have to be pleased with the way we're playing, especially at this time of the year," said Wilkes, who scored 21 points to go along with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 23 in the victory over the Mavericks. "I still feel the best is yet to come, but we're playing well enough to win. 'We're playing good basketball in stretches," added Wilkes, "but not for an entire game."

Los Angeles built a 17-point halftime lead against Dallas, then had a lapse and had to face a furious second-half rally that saw the Mavericks take the lead at 101-100 with 7:10 remaining in the game.

The Lakers, however, reeled off an 11-2 string over the next four minutes and were in control the rest of the way.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson, returning from a onegame layoff because of a bruised thigh muscle, added 18 points and 16 assists for the Lakers.

The Mavericks, 34-35 in the Midwest Division, were led by Mark Aguirre's 33 points. Jay Vincent chipped in 20 points for Dallas. Dallas Coach Dick Motta, referring to his club's comeback, pointed out that Abdul-Jabbar and some

"They brought the big boys back in and that had a lot to do with them taking over the game again,' Motta said. "They've just got too much talent for us.

We're just not in their class yet.' The Mavericks, 34-35, still have a shot at a playoff berth, but Motta said, "We don't worry about the playoffs now. If they come, that's fine.

Whitworth stages comeback at Kemper

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (AP) — It must have seemed like old times for LPGA veteran Kathy Whitworth as she sank a putt worth $1,000 per foot to birdie the 18th hole and win the Women's Kemper Open.

'When I was winning a lot several years ago, I never thought about anything but the shot I was taking at the time," the 43-year-old Whitworth said following her victory Sunday.

The Hall of Famer now has won 84 events in 24 years on her way to earning more than $1.2 million in prize money. She has been honored as Player of the Year seven times.

'I love playing golf," Whitworth said. "I think it is so great to compete with younger players. Although my future is limited, I still have a few years left.

"But actually, I've suprised myself this ear It's usually hard for me to get started on the tour. I usually do better toward the end. Whitworth came into the final round tied for third place, three stokes off the pace. She ended the 72-hole, $200,000 tournament at 4-underpar 288, one stroke ahead of Dale Eggeling. Both fired 4-under-par 69s Sunday.

"I knew that Kathy would make the putt on the 18th," Eggeling said after she saw the 30-footer drop into the hole. "She's a veteran, she's been there. I knew she wasn't going to

Whitworth, who collected $30,000, started the final round with a birdie on the first hole. and added three more before she ran into trouble toward the end and bogeyed the 15th and

"When you bogey, it's difficult to regain your composure," Whitworth said. "But with me I think it's a matter of pride. I just say to myself 'I'm not going to do that again.'

Whitworth must have heard what she told herself, because she went on to win the tournament on the strength of back-to-back birdies. Donna Caponi and Stephanie Farwig tied for third place at 1-under-par 291, while JoAnne Carner, Yuko Moriguchi, and Jan Stephenson had to settle for fourth place at

Lynn Adams, who led after the second and third rounds, shot a 4-over-par 77 Sunday to dropp back into a three-way tie at 293

Adams, who was aiming for her first Ladies Professional Golf Association victory since ining the tour in 1978, said, "The cream s to the tap, and Whitworth mintely is the cream."
